Israel retaliates after suicide bombing

Command post attack triggers air strikes against Palestinians

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - A suicide bomber attacked an Israeli command post in Tyre early today, killing at least 14 Israeli troops, the military command said. Israeli jets swiftly retaliated with two big air strikes on Palestinian positions in the central mountains.

Beirut radio said waves of bombing, strafing jets blasted targets around Sofar and Bhamdoun at midday, then returned to pound the same area in midafternoon

Private radio stations said the jets made at least 10 bombing sorties that reduced several artillery positions and tank concentrations in the Syrian-controlled central mountains to a smoking wreckage.

White House spokesman said President Reagan deplored the truck bomb attack and that the latest violence demonstrates "how far radical elements" will go to disrupt a Middle East peace process.

Spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan was informed of the bomb attack when he awakened. Reagan received a briefing from national security adviser Robert McFarlane before 8 a.m. EST, Speakes said.

Speakes talked to reporters aboard Air Force One while Reagan was en route from Washington to Cherry Point, N.C., for a meeting with the families of Marines killed in Lebanon and Grenada, and to attend a memorial service at nearby Camp Lejeune.

It was the first time the Israeli air force has attacked in Lebanon in 14 months. The Israeli command said the raids were a retaliation for the daybreak bombing near Tyre, 50 miles

In addition to the dead, the command listed 21 Israelis wounded and 13 missing. Beirut radio said 25 Palestinian and Lebanese prisoners also were killed in the blast.

Responsibility for the bombing was claimed by Islamic Holy War, the same fanatical pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem group that claimed the suicide truck bombings of the Marine and French bases in Beirut Oct. 23 that killed 230 American and 58 French troops.

Meanwhile, Yasser Arafat and his beleaguered Palestine Liberation Organization lovalists continued battling Syrian-backed guerrilla mutineers in camps outside the northern port of Tripoli. Police reported more than 50 dead and 200 wounded in two days of fighting

It was just over two months ago that Israeli forces pulled out of the central mountains to what they believed would be safer positions in southern Lebanon. But today's truck bombing near Tyre showed how vulnerable the occupation forces were.

The Christian Voice of Lebanon radio said 16 Israeli jets took part in the retaliatory strike in the central mountains and destroyed at least three artillery positions in the hills overlooking Bhamdoun and Sofar, about 13 miles east of Beirut.

The Israeli command said all planes returned safely after scoring "direct hits" on command posts, tanks and 130mm cannons in retaliation for the terrorist bombing near Tyre.

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Arens visited the bombing site after the loss for the people of Israel," and vowed, "We will hit back and we will hit back very hard."

Hours later the Israeli jets attacked, and the Tel Aviv command said they struck "following the escalation of terrorist activity against Israeli forces in Lebanon which climaxed this morning in the attack... in Tyre.'

The Israeli command said the retaliatory air attacks were directed at targets of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command headed by former Syrian Capt. Ahmed Jebril, and Abu Moussa, leader of the Palestinian rebellion against PLO leader Yasser Arafat.

It was the first Israeli aerial action reported in Lebanon since October 1982.

Unemployment plunges

WASHINGTON (AP) - America's civilian unemployment rate plummeted to 8.8 percent in October, the lowest in 20 months, as 320,000 people found work, the government reported today. The roster of the iobless fell below 10 million for the first time since March 1982.

Improvements were felt across the labor force. Some 101.9 million people

Although 9.9 million people remained of the unemployed, the number out of ork for 15 weeks or longer fell for the ird straight month.

In all, the Labor Department's civilian jobless rate, adjusted for seasonal variations, was the lowest since the 8.8 percent of February 1982 and 0.5 percentage point under the September rate of 9.3 percent. Just last

Nearly two-thirds of the 550,000 labor force decline occurred among 16- to 24-year olds, and bureau analyst Deborah Klein said that the normal autumn adjustment of labor force figures for the reopening of school may have accounted for some of the shrinkage in the size of the labor force.

Klein noted that officials did not believe the susbtantial drop from September's 9.3 percent was a statistical anomaly because a separate survey of business payrolls showed 320,000 people went back to work last

Family possessions destroyed by fire

BY JEFF LANGLEY Senior Staff Writer

A family that moved to Pampa four months ago to find work watched a fire destroy their rented apartment and consume all of their meager possessions Thursday evening.

"I said, 'Oh, Lord, what do I do now?." said Nancy Adams, 40. Adams lived in the burned two bedroom apartment with her daughter, Jullie Ann Neil, 20, and her husband, Billy Ray Adams.

"We lost everything we had. It all went up," Mrs. Adams said today. The fire in the small apartment at 508 S. Ballard started about 5:30 p.m. Thursday "My husband and I were up town. My daughter came running up.

hollering that the house was on fire.' Adams said. She said they hurried back to the apartment, and by that time, "smoke was coming out everywhere. The Pampa Fire Department sent four units and 10 men to fight the fire. Firefighters extinguished the blaze in about an hour. Firemen said the fire started in a closet of an upstairs bedroom in the apartment. Adams said she believes faulty wiring caused the fire, as the electrical outlets in one of the bedrooms did not work, she said. The Adams came to Pampa from Broken Bow, Okla. Mrs. Adams said they had to leave the small Oklahoma town because there is no work there. "There wasn't nothing much up there at all - only a chicken farm -

you were lucky to get work there," she

Adams said the family has relatives here and knew they could find jobs. Mrs. Adams found work as a cleaning lady at the Pampa Country Club. They moved into the apartment that burned and tried to pay rent and buy groceries on Mrs. Adam's small check.

The money "really don't mount up to too much," she said.

"I had just paid the rent and bought groceries." Adams said. Paving the bills just before the fire left the Adams with no money, she said Her husband was looking for a job when the fire destroyed their apartment: "he does carpenter work." Adams said Pampa Salvation Army Captain Milton Wood went to the fire Thursday and found out that the burned - out family has no place to stay. The Salvation Army rented a room for the family at the Black Gold Motel Thursday night. The captain said the Salvation Army will continue to help the family members with temporary lodging and will give them clothing. "The people were quite distraught,"

Wood said

"If they need a place to stay, we will be glad to take care of them. We can house them," he added. "We lost a house in a fire 20 years ago. We lost everything in that fire too. This brought back all of the bad memories," Adams said.

New jobless rate shows upswing in Texas economy

DALLAS (AP) - October unemployment figures reflect a continued upswing by the state's economy as the number of jobless Texans dropped to 7.4 percent, down from 8.5 percent in September and from 8 percent in October 1982, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

"From its peak of 9 percent in March of this year, the trend in umemployment has continued downward. July and September's figures rose, but those were just blips in what would otherwise be a nice, steady downward trend," said Nic Santangelo, chief of the bureau's southwest regional

The number of jobless fell from 659,000 in September to 571,000 in October. Compared to a year ago, the state has seen significant improvement in the number of employed, up by 329,000. Meanwhile, the number of unemployed has declined by 21,000.

"I'm sure some will look at the change from September to October and really make good news out of the fact that we've dropped 1.1 percentage points in one month," Santangelo said. "But the important change comes from looking at the long term trend, the longer the better."

Since the 9 percent peak last March, unemployment has declined by 2.6 percentage points, he said.

The figures make Texas the state with the third lowest unemployment rate in the nation. Only New Jersey at 6.8 percent and Massachusetts at 6.9 percent have few people unemployed. Santangelo said the statistics show "that we're slowly working our way out of the recession. "But the dynamics of a changing

New disaster warning system planned for city

By LARRY HOLLIS Staff Writer

Members of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce Fire Prevention and Safety Committee have given their support to the development of a warning system to aid in the dissemination of information to Pampa residents in event of a tornado or other disaster. Steve Vaughn, coordinator for the Office of Emergency Management (Civil Defense) in Pampa, explained the proposed operation of a two-channel radio system to committee members in the Chamber office Thursday

OEM and city personnel plan to use two radio band frequencies to notify citizens of approaching tornados and to warn of other disasters which could affect large numbers of city residents, such as dangerous chemical spills or the spread of dangerous fumes, Vaughn said.

Using the city public works and police band frequencies, OEM and other disaster personnel will sound a tone over a frequency on a radio scanner to notify residents of imminent disaster or tornado warnings.

Frequencies to be used are 155.820 (city public works band) and 155.070 (police band), Vaughn noted. To make the system more effective and widespread, a local merchant, working with OEM and the Chamber, is making four-channel receivers available at a discount price of $67.50 through Dec. 31.

The receiver will have the two emergency bands already set, with the other two channels open Vaughn said the system could be purchased by schools, churches, hospitals, nursing homes, businesses, offices and individuals, enabling them to receive emergency disaster information more quickly than in the past.

The channel receiver can be plugged in most electrical outlets. An optional battery backup, to provide power in case of an electrical outage, may also be purchased, Vaughn said. The system is designed "to enhance our warning system," "We know the need is there."

He said he had received many requests to develop a better warning system following tornado warnings from last year and last spring.

Previously, information was disseminated mainly through radio and television broadcasts and the use of sirens. These had limitations for citizens who were at work, at church, in a hospital or at school, he noted.

The scanner system would allow more immediate dissemination of information to those areas where a radio or television is not in use or where sirens might not be heard

To be effective, though, the new system must be used, Vaughn said. With the scanner turned on, especially during a tornado watch period, people could listen for the tone while conducting regular business or activities.

The city public works frequency would probably be the one most used, Vaughn said. The frequency is used during the day the city to dispatch city vehicles, but is used infrequently after 5 p.m. The police band would be used as a backup. The information would be broadcast from the City Hall those things, that's why older people have to." she said. The 16 - year old boy who was driving the car was "terrified - there was really nothing he could do'' to avoid the accident, Bond said.

National Guard sets open house Sunda

The Pampa National Guard has invited the public to attend an open house at the armory from noon until 3 p.m. Sunday. The armory is located at the Pampa city limits on Highway 60 east.

Sgt. Kenny Kent said the members of the Guard will be training and drilling. They will be happy to answer any questions people may have about the National Guard and its equipment, he added.

A remodeling project was recently completed and the Guard is eager to show it off, Kent said.

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas automobile insurance rates will go up 3.9 percent statewide next Feb. 1, the State Board of Insurance has decided.

The 2-1 vote of approval of a staff recommendation came Thursday after the three-member board split three ways on how much profit insurance companies should make from insurance policies and investments.

The increase will mean $88 million more income for the companies.

Chairman Lyndon Olson said later the board actually had no philosophical difference on whether investment income should enter into the ratemaking procedure.

"Our differences of opinion as reflected in voting today go mainly to the extent, procedure and timing of its (investment income) inclusion," Olson said.

The impact on insurance buyers in the 40 rating territories will range from an annual premium increase of $39 in Dallas County to a $17 decrease for the East Texas oil field area.

The industry had asked for a statewide increase of 11.1 percent, saying the number of claims continued to increase along with soaring health care costs.

David Irons, Dallas attorney representing the industry, said a rehearing would be asked but it was "premature" to say if there would be a court test.

The board, for the first time, set maximum rates for premiums that will not cover the auto industry's estimated

Staff members said income from investments made by the insurance companies would make up the difference.

Irons said the amount of loss on premiums was small, less than 1 percent, "but it is a significant fraction to us because it sets a precedent for moving to a negative profit provision." Board member Carole McClellan made the successful

She said the board decided three years ago to directly consider investment income in setting rates, not just the income from policy premiums.

She said she felt the staff proposal was "just, reasonable and adequate ... both reasonable to the insured and the insurers ' Board member William Daves voted with her, while Olson voted against. Earlier, a motion by Olson to modify the staff proposal to insure insurance companies would lose nothing from their underwriting income was defeated 2-1.

A motion by Daves would have asked the staff to recalculate its rate proposal giving insurance companies less return on their underwriting business because of increased investment profits. The motion failed, 2-1.

Olson then had a motion to leave rates just as they are now That also failed, 2-1.

The actual premium each motor vehicle owner will pay depends upon his geographical location and the type of vehicle driven, type of insurance coverage, and other factors. In addition, the rate set by the board is only a guide.

AUSTIN (AP) - A $25,000 witness hired by Southwestern much brighter and the political pressure to check the increase Bell to help push its $1.36 billion rate hike request says investors generally agree that the Texas Public Utility Commission has been good to utility companies. But PUC General Counsel Allen King, who verbally sparred with witness Dennis Dolan, said it was like "pulling teeth" to get Dolan to concede that Southwestern Bell's future as an independent company might be helped by the commission's historic generosity.

Dolan, a vice president with Salomon Brothers Inc. financial analysts of New York, was the company's second witness in the rate case that re-opened Thursday. He testified that his. company was paid $25,000 plus expenses by Southwestern Bell for his testimony here.

Utility companies are allowed to charge ratepayers for rate hike case expenses.

King and Assistant Attorney General Geoffrey Gay hammered away at Dolan's prefiled comments. Both lawyers tried to show that the phone company's financial future might not be as risky as Dolan and other analysts have predicted. Dolan contended that government regulation of utilities is the top cause of uncertainty among investors.

'Fueling eyeryone's concerns is the fact that the sizeable but required rate requests are coming at a time when the prospects for lower rates of inflation and interest rates are

An "adverse ruling" on the Southwestern Bell's rate hike request "would embody the very regulatory risk that the financial community fears for Southwestern Bell," he added.

But King, pulling out rankings compiled by several analysts, eventually got Dolan to say, "The Texas commission has been perceived to be the best" as far as guaranteeing financial stability of utilities.

Also Thursday, PUC Administrative Law Judge Jacqueline Holmes listened to disabled Texans who complained about Southwestern Bell's request to double monthly rates for basic Cerebral palsy victim James Templeton, whose life outside a state institution is a physical and financial battle, said higher telephone bills could force him back into the state's care.

"Without a phone I would not be able to get an attendant to help me," the wheelchair-bound Templeton testified. "I would have to go back to the state school. That would mean more money from taxpayers."

Templeton spent 20 years in the Austin state school for the mentally retarded before officials determined about a year ago that he is not retarded, according to Bobby Simpson, director of the Austin Resource Center for Independent Living.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

The new politics of hatred

If the average reader were familiar with the work of radical commentators in the U.S., he would be shocked to discover that there are so many people who regard their country as an evil or criminal force in the world. Sad to say, there is a sizable contingent of Americans who, while benefiting from the liberties afforded by the U.S., are determined to condemn it.

It would be helpful if more Americans understood the depth of radical hostility to America, its institutions and values

Dr. Noam Chomsky of the Massaghusetts Institute of Technology is a professor of linguistics who also is a full - time participant in the politics of hatred. In a new book, Prof. Chomsky said the U.S. will "oppose any foe, pay any price, sanction any repression, support any fascist in order to assure the widest possible freedom for American business to acquire its necessary raw materials - in short, to make the world safe for capitalism." This is an ugly absurdity, of course. How does Prof.

Chomsky square this statement with U.S. support of Solidarity in captive Poland?

Then there's the case of the radical journal Democracy. Sheldon S. Wolin, editor of the magazine, says of the U.S.: "Nuclear supremacy is its telos (ultimate end or objective), and a line from Livy awaits its epitaph: 'In love with death, both individual and collective." He says this of his country, which has sought agreement on arms control since the Baruch Plan after World

The Progressive, another radical magazine, commenting on the Soviet destruction of Korean Airlines Flight 007, says that the airliner "fell victim to the rampant paranoia that is indispensable to the devotees of 'military preparedness' in our country, no less than in the Soviet Union." The killing of the innocent passengers was as much our fault as the Soviets, in the view of The Progressive.

This sort of twisted thinking filters down to students. A student columnist for a campus paper at a Southern liberal arts university writes that "the Soviet Union might be the biggest criminal in the world." But he goes on to say that the U.S. is "the second biggest criminal in the world" and that "we are in no business to hysterically denounce them." Only the politics of hatred explains the notion that the U.S., which millions of people around the world want to become citizens of, is "the second biggest criminal in the world." criminal in the world.

A free society has to allow such comments, though universities ought to examine the worth of their educational processes if their students "think" that way. A free society, however, may not be able to survive the politics of hatred. It's all very

We pay people to remain poor

It briefly captured the front pages, then quickly faded from the public arena. What happened to this fall's Census Bureau announcement that the number of poor in America is greater today than at any time since the late

One might have expected more ink to have been poured out analyzing the numbers, especially since the revelation would seem to be a natural club with which President Reagan's critics gleefully could have beaten on his administration. If they chose not to, it is because a closer look at the poverty figures showed that the recent increase was not a significant reversal of trends after the coming of Reagan, but rather a minor blip in a pattern that has held sway since Lyndon Johnson first declared war on poverty

As a Heritage Foundation study revealed, the proportion of Americans living below 11 and 13 percent of the population since the late 1960s, after dropping steadily and dramatically in the preceding two decades (from 33 percent in 1947 to 12.8 percent in 1968)

In other words, the post - war years when the economy was robust and social welfare spending accounted for 5 to 6 percent of the Gross National Product, poverty declined substantially. But in the years when federal spending on public assistance and other income transfer programs increased so dramatically (to 12 percent of GNP from 1968 to 1978 and to 12.6 percent by 1982), the extent of official poverty remained virtually unchanged or increased slightly.

To begin to understand the meaning of these numbers, one must know that poverty, as used by the Census Bureau and as a trigger of eligibility for poverty programs, measures a specified level of cash income (in 1982, it was $9,862 for a family of four). It does not count the value of non - cash "income" such as Medicaid, food stamps or housing subsidies.

In this light, then, in the 20 years before 1968, when such public assistance programs were few and the level of benefits small, the only way to provide for such needs was to earn more money to pay for them. Of course, that also would lift you above the official poverty line. If one's income remained below the poverty line, one presumably went without or was assisted by family or private charities. What happened in those years is that official poverty dropped dramatically.

In the years since the late 1960s, however, it became possible - in fact, necessary - to remain "officially" poor, at the same time to receive significant non - cash assistance from the poverty programs.

The results were inevitable. As a new analysis by the Dallas - based research organization, the National Center for Policy Analysis, points out, the welfare system as it is constructed virtually has assured that the numbers of people living below the poverty line will increase or at least undergo little change

The National Center's conclusion: "The welfare system demands one thing from its clientele: a low (reported) money income. In return it offers passage through an entitlements gateway to more than 49 major benefit programs... Once they are in the system, individuals face virtually no penalty for any act, save the act of earning an income.

It is not surprising, then, that official poverty is on the rise. As economists always have known, if you want more of something, you subsidize it. That is what the welfare system does, by rewarding people who keep their incomes low enough to qualify for its generous benefits. We are, in short, paying people to be poor.

can't be a super power without having a foreign policy. "What is it, then?" Cousin Ziggy asked.

"Our foreign policy is not to have one. "What does that mean?"

"If the other side knows that we have no foreign policy, then the Kremlin thugs have no idea what we'll do next. Up until recently when a president spelled out a foreign policy, the Soviets immediately worked out a policy to counteract it. But now they're as confused as the American people as to what our objectives are, and they're climbing the Kremlin walls."

"Under the 'no - foreign policy' of the U.S. are we getting closer to going to war with the USSR?" Ziggy asked.

"No, but they are getting much closer to going to war with us. "What's the difference?"

"The Soviets will not sit down with us unless they know we are willing to fight.'

"That's our broad policy. We are also in the business of destabilizing governments favorable to Moscow's thugs, and supporting governments that Moscow is trying to destabilize."

"We'll give the job to a third party which will be financed and trained by the CIA. The Soviets use the KGB to find and train their third parties. If destabilization doesn't work through third parties then we are prepared to use American brute force, just as the Soviets do when one of their covert operations fail."

"What ever happened to diplomacy where nations talked things out first, before flexing their muscles?

"Our foreign policy is to use diplomacy only as a last resort, when all else fails. The president can't endanger the lives of 220 million Americans, not to mention everyone else on the globe by using diplomacy, when the only thing the other side understands is armed might.

"It doesn't sound like a foreign policy that can last for a very long time. At some moment one side will test the other to see if it's bluffing or not.

Parenting parents new concern

It comes up more and more in conversation these days: the concerns of my friends about their parents. They are beginning a worrisome and distressing chapter of life - a chapter titled, "Parenting our Parents.

Joan, who just turned 40, frets about her mother and father 1,000 miles away. Her mother's had a mild stroke, her father a heart attack.

Harry, a friend who's divorced, calls up to tell me he's agonizing over a nursing home for his aged mother. For a long time, she managed on her own. He did the grocery shopping, leaving cans of food out on the shelf so she'd remember to eat. Lately, she's become disoriented and no longer bathes or changes her clothes.

A neighbor has had her 78 - year - old mother living with her for six years. In the beginning, her mother was mobile, but 'She became so dependent on me, she cried whenever I left the house," recalls my neighbor. "She used to wake us up several times a night. She'd get out of bed and tap her ring on the stairway railing until I awoke and went to her.'

Now her mother is totally bedridden, doesn't speak or see and weighs a scant 50 pounds. "She's a little body with no mind," said my neighbor.

While she doesn't regret having taken her mother in, she admits, it's been a trying six years for her, her husband and their three

"We invited her to our home because we wanted to and we had the room," she says. "There have been times, though, I've thought, 'We have the room, yes, but no

Most of those I've known in this dilemma have muddled through alone with little professional help. Most experience frustration, guilt and always some regret. We're told 'the graying of America' has begun; that the number of senior citizens increased 21 percent in the last decade. There are now 25 million people over 65, according to the Census Burea. That's more than 11 percent of the population.

With such a major change affecting so many of us, it is not surprising that support groups for those caring for aging parents are springing up around the country.

I sat in on one such newly formed group. Among the participants was a woman, aged 59, who put her mother into a nursing home following a stroke. Years ago, she told the group, her mother had tried to get her to sign a paper promising never to do this. Even though the daughter didn't sign, her decision to take this step still haunts her.

The specially trained counselor of this roup is also a nurse. She assured members it's OK to admit their negative feelings, that they don't have to put their life on hold in order to be good care - givers.

When the group departed, she told me:
"Some are 40 - year - old daughters still trying to please their mothers as they did when they were 7. Hopefully, in this settling, they will find ways to put away childish responses and cope as rational adults."

Others are finding help in new books dealing with this issue. One is "Old People Are A Burden, But Not My Parents" by Marcella Bakur Weiner, Jeanne Teresi and Corrine Streich (Prentice - Hall). The authors chose that title because their research revealed that's how people really

The harmful things they teach are that men can have rights without

AUSTIN (AP) - A federal udge has extended for up to 10 days his order halting the use of state funds to prosecute Eroy Brown in a third murder trial of a prison official.

U.S. District Judge James Nowlin said Thursday said he needed time to review a $1.35 million damage suit on Brown's behalf.

Brown, 32, was a convict serving 12 years for a Tarrant County robbery when he was accused of killing two prison officials in April 1981. Prosecutors said he was trying to escape, but Brown pleaded self-defense.

His first trial in the drowning death of Ellis Unit Warden Wallace Pack ended in a hung jury in March 1982, and Brown was acquitted in the second trial - also at Galveston - in November

Brown's third trial, in the slaying of prison farm manager Billy Max Moore, is scheduled for Dec. 5 in Edinburg.

Court-appointed lawyer Craig Washington argued before Nowlin on Thursday that "long-overdue" bills from the second trial for the indigent Brown would make it impossible for him to get a fair third trial because unpaid witnesses would be reluctant — or perhaps refuse - to testify again.

State Sen. Washington and another court-appointed attorney, William "Bill" Habern, also of Houston, argued that the state "has tipped the scale of justice in its favor" in pursuing yet another trial without paying $184,062 in defense costs for

Asked how he felt about witnesses who had testified in his previous trials, Brown said, "I couldn't get a fair trial if I didn't have the same witnesses, no sir.'

Washington estimated that he owes investigators, medical witnesses and others about $60,000 from the second Brown trial, and that his law firm already has advanced $30,000 from its own resources.

The Washington-Habern brief said Gov. Mark White had approved a Criminal Justice Planning Fund grant for Walker County of $45,000 to prosecute Brown, but had taken no action on Washington's application for a defense grant. Washington told Nowlin he had tried for three days to subpoena White, a defendant in the case, but had been unable to do so.

Austin private investigator John Imbert said it was his opinion that White had tried to avoid being served with the subpoena to appear in court, but Nowlin cut him short, saying he thought it was a minor issue.

U.S. congressional delegation was leaving Washington today to begin a two-day fact-finding tour of this small Caribbean island nation, and expelled Soviet bloc and Libyan diplomats were headed back to their homelands.

Charles Gillespie, a State Department official based in Grenada, said Deputy Prime Minister Bernard Coard and Gen. Hudson Austin, leaders of the coup in which Prime Minister Maurice Bishop was killed on Oct. 19, would be turned over to Scoon in a day or two.

The coup precipitated the U.S.-led invasion of Grenada on Oct. 25. Supporters of Bishop, a leftist, said he was ousted by government factions who favored an even more hardline Marxist policy.

Coard and Austin were captured last weekend after evading U.S. forces for several days, and since have been in custody on the American helicopter aircraft carrier Saipan off the coast, Gillespie said Thursday.

Scoon, who is considered by U.S. officials to be the legitimate authority in Grenada, has the power to detain people suspected of violating Grenadian law, according to State Department officials. He has indicated he may try those responsible for Bishop's death.

Scoon said Thursday an investigative commission was needed to examine events in Grenada during the past several weeks.

'The Grenadian people must know exactly why a prime minister could be killed under house arrest and why a prime minister was killed in the presence of his people," he Scoon said he will appoint a transitional government by next Tuesday or Wednesday — "certainly not later."

"We are not having politicians on this government," he said. "We will have a government of technocrats. I am looking for Grenadians of ability, integrity, knowledge and Dissidents, loyalists-who are they?

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria denies any role in the revolt against PLO leader Yasser Arafat, but a huge Syrian flag covers the wall behind the desk of the man who engineered the rebellion from an office in Damascus.

"He is a traitor. He is corrupt. He must be punished." Nimr Saleh said of Arafat in a recent interview at his office in the Syrian capital.

Saleh's followers - dissidents in the mainstream Fatah movement of Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization - on Thursday launched a fierce assault on the besieged PLO chairman's last stronghold in the Middle East, near the northern Lebanese port of Tripoli.

Witnesses said Syrian rocket batteries were supporting the PLO mavericks. Arafat himself said the attack was a final Syrian push to depose him.

Arafat went on his Voice of Palestine radio station to denounce Syria with his usual fervor. But behind the rhetoric, the 54-year-old PLO chairman was no longer the Arafat of old, the feared leader of a guerrilla army able to launch attacks on its Israeli enemies

When he and about 15,000 PLO guerrillas were evacuated from Beirut a year ago under Israeli siege, he called it a victory. The PLO had held out against Israel for 88 days, longer than any Arab army ever had. He moved his headquarters to Tunis, headquarters of the Arab League, and with the world's media watching kept up his visits to Third World and Soviet bloc nations, gathering support for the Palestinian effort to regain a homeland in

But dissatisfaction was growing among some of the guerrillas, and it blossomed in a public denunciation of Arafat last may by Nimr Saleh, also known as Abu Saleh.

Saleh was a former member of Fatah's central committee who had been removed by Arafat. He found an ally in Col. Saeed Mousa, regarded by many as an able military man but demoted by Arafat as ""too argumentative.

Their complaints against Arafat were enforced by the PLO's loss of its bases in Beirut and southern Lebanon, from which it had been able to strike at Israel

It was said Arafat appointed leaders more for their blind loyalty than for courage or military skill.

Meanwhile, 16 Libyans, including four diplomats, flew from Grenada to London aboard a U.S. military plane Thursday. They were the first diplomats to leave the island. since Scoon on Tuesday ordered the Soviet and Libyan embassies here closed and said Cuba could keep only one person at its embassy. The Soviets had prepared to leave, U.S. militarytransport officials said in Barbados. But the details of their departure were not disclosed.

Also, 37 Cubans remained under house arrest in their embassy, refusing to leave Grenada until their estimated-600 countrymen being held prisoner are released, too.

Gillespie said officials hoped the Cuban prisoners would be evacuated this weekend. In Havana, it was reported that a British ship is heading for Grenada to return the prisoners to Cuba. The U.S. already has repatriated 57 wounded Cubans and 10 Cuban medical personnel.

About 1,800 members of the Army's 82nd Airborne Division were being flown back to Fort Bragg, N.C., today as a group of U.S. congressmen were flying in from Washington for a fact-finding tour.

The White House said there were 5,980 U.S. troops on Grenada Thursday. Some 700 army rangers and 1,900 Marines in the original invasion force already had Gillespie said troop withdrawals would continue steadily over the next few days, and predicted there would be "no need" for an American military presence on Grenada within six months.

He said about 80 American civilians, including engineers and health specialists, have been brought onto the island since the invasion. "They're going to help the people get back to what will be a normal Grenadian experience," he

An echo cariography - phono cardiography machine, costing more than $30,000, was recently acquired by the local hospital, giving physicians here an advanced diagnositic tool.

The therapist uses a transducer which is a small ice cream cone - shaped device, Austin said. The transducer is placed on different areas of the chest to show various planes of the heart. Two television screens on the machine are connected to a video cassette recorder so that the image on the bottom screen is recorded for the doctor to study. This

Dear Abby

Ex-waitress's husband serves her a raw deal

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am in a marriage that stinks. Freddy (not his real name) is a macho man who doesn't think s married woman should work outside the home. When he met me I was a waitress. (He owns a cattle ranch.) We've been married three months, and I feel like I'm in prison. He still goes out with the boys, stays out late and never tells me where he's been.

If wanted to take a course in flower arranging, but Freddy wouldn't let me. He knows that the man who teaches flower arranging is gay, but Freddy says you don't have to go to bed with a man to fall in love with him. He feels threatened by every man I say hello to.

To make sure I didn't have a car of my own, right after we got married he sold his car and "borrowed" mine and never gave it back. Now he's begging me to get pregnant, so I'll really be tied down. I'm 22 and Freddy is 32. Please

FREDDY'S PRISONER

DEAR PRISONER: You are your own "prisoner"not Freddy's. Nobody owns anybody else, and if you allow Freddy to control you, it's a choice that you made. Tell him how you feel. Then ask yourself if you'd be better off with him or without him, and go with your feelings.

DEAR ABBY: My son was engaged for 16 months to a girl who lives in another state. She broke the engagement last night by telephone. She also said she was keeping the ring because Dear Abby said an engagement ring is a gift and belongs to the girl if the engagement ends.

Abby, did you really say that? My son spent a whole year paying for that ring. As a matter of fact, he still owes money on it.

The girl broke his heart, and now she's breaking his pocketbook. Have the rules of etiquette changed?

DEAR NO CITY: The rules have not changed. An engagement ring symbolizes a promise to marry. If the engagement is broken—regardless of who breaks it—the ring should be returned.

DEAR ABBY: I have always taught my children never to eat anything unless they know exactly what it is. But my mother-in-law, normally a sensible woman, has a habit of sampling plants that grow wild to see how they taste and whether she would like to use them in cooking.

Recently our family and my husband's parents went on a camping trip. The third day, I came upon my mother-inlaw urging my children to share some "wild dill seeds" she had found. Fortunately, neither of them had eaten any. The "wild dill" was actually water hemlock, one of the most poisonous plants in the United States!

My mother-in-law protested that the government wouldn't "allow" poisonous plants to grow in a federal park, but she agreed not to eat the seeds. Now she is angry with me for "undermining" her with her grandchildren. (Never mind that I probably saved their lives.)

I am a botanist. My specialty is field taxonomy; I am often called upon to identify "weed" plants. I know what I'm talking about, Abby.

Please tell your readers: Never, never eat any unidentified wild plant or berry because it looks good. Know for certain what you are putting into your mouth. If you don't, it may cost you a serious illness, maybe even your life!

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

"Gone — Not Forgotten" across the bottom. Walking through a cemetery with a new friend that was born in 1897, the thought "Not Gone Just Forgotten" came to mind. When searching for ancestors, take time to know your distant relatives that are still living and might feel alone. These people are the real treasures and often remember the facts you need

Tying the knot permanently

By George R. Plagenz

One of the nice things about being a minister is that you get to marry people. To be a part of one of the happiest occasions in human experience is the best antidote there is for cynicism and despair.

But I have been marrying people long enough to know that the solemn vows the two persons standing before me make to each other - "to love and to cherish till death us do part..." - are too often forgotten.

So, to keep these young marrieds in mind of the "covenant betwixt them made," I have made it a practice to give them a rather unusual wedding present. It is a piece of rope. A big piece of rope, 3 inches in diameter and 6 inches long, the kind used by tugs to tow giant freighters on the Great Lakes. If they don't lose the piece of rope - and it is not easy to lose - and if they remember what it symbolizes, they will never have a chance to forget the great secret of a lasting

When I give them the piece of rope during the ceremony, I tell them there are two types of happily married people. There are happily married singles and happily married

Happily married singles are in fashion today. Each party goes his or her own way, pursuing his or her interests and pleasures. They are married and they are happy. But they are happily married singles.

Happily married couples are different. They depend to a great extent on each other for their happiness. They "do" for their partner and they let their partner "do" for them. Theirs, I tell the young marrieds, is a much stronger relationship and more likely to withstand the pulls and stresses "These couples," I add, "are like the piece of rope I'm holding whose strands are twisted and bound up together. That is what accounts for the rope's great strength. Each strand of this heavy-duty rope is thin and fragile. But twisted together with the other strands it makes a piece of rope like this which can pull an ocean-going liner.

"I am going to give you this piece of rope for a wedding present. It will outlast all your other wedding presents. The casserole dishes will chip and break eventually and the kitchen knives will grow dull and you will throw them out. But this rope will last forever.

'And if you remember what it stands for - two lives, thin and fragile by themselves which are entwined and bound up together to give the strength that only mutuality and interdependence can give - then your marriage too will outlast all the others. This idea of interdependence and togetherness in marence where both husband and wife agreed not to invade the other's "space." Now interdependence may be coming in McCall's magazine (which popularized the "togetherness" slogan 30 years ago only to find itself ridiculed a few years later for promoting something so anti-feminist) has an article in the November issue entitled, "Honey, I'll Take Care of It," about the importance of mutual caring and nurturing.

The ultramodern marriage, says the article, "seems more like a merger than a marriage.' "The two equal-but-separate partners stand side by side but never really touch," says the author. "Determined to protect their rights, they spell out his, her and their obligations and write in escape clauses, just in case. There is no room for needing and being needed. In such marital setups, the word "let's" is hardly ever heard. And "let's," as one writer recently said, is one of the most beautiful words in the English language. But if happiness is the goal of marriage and these are happily married singles, why knock the arrangement?

Because, says the McCall's writer, the marriage where neither party ever leans on the other may be "sane and sensible - but it is ultimately unsatisfying."

Maybe I should point that out in my little marriage service homily

Makes a change to help people

VICTORIA, British Columbia (AP) - The Rev. Tony Roberts, the chaplain in the white Cadillac, has retired from the ministry and is becoming an investment counselor.

"I look upon this change as a new way to help people," said Roberts, 67, who stepped down as chaplain at Veteran's Hospital under the compulsory retirement rule.

He could have taken a minor role in the Anglican Church but decided to follow his second love - making money

He concedes it's the reverse of the usual trend of making your million first and becoming involved in spiritual matters later in life. But Roberts has always been an unusual man - a minister driving a Cadillac does raise eyebrows.

"It didn't fit the image of the chaplain," he said.

"I feel that if you truly believe that getting there is half the fun then you should always travel in style. If I was born 100 years ago, I would have wanted to buy the best saddle horse or the best carriage. The car fits in neatly with his new occupation. He has passed his Canadian stockbrokers examination for a licence in his It will keep him active in retirement, but it was far from a last-minute decision for Roberts, who has been checking stock prices for seven or eight years. "I have done rather well with my investments and I am now comfortable." His income as an Anglican priest, and later as a chaplain would have left him little for his retirement. Roberts intends to avoid the Idea that an investor can find God in the stock tables but there are some limited spiritual overtones in his new activity

There can be financial peace of mind, a sense of security about the future, he said.

His Wall Street philosophy is similar to his religious viewpoint. Start from a firm base. Anyone planning to invest should begin with something that is secure. It is important to be launched on a winning note." Obtaining good information and solid advice is important, he said, but adds that prayer is not part of the process. "I do not believe in praying to ask for the name of a good stock. Prayer is simply a way of identifying yourself with the Creator. It is not a way to make money or win games. Nor is the Lord interested in whether you do well in the stock market, which Roberts says requires a down-to-earth approach that includes study and careful thought.

Join Us In Worship N THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOIC

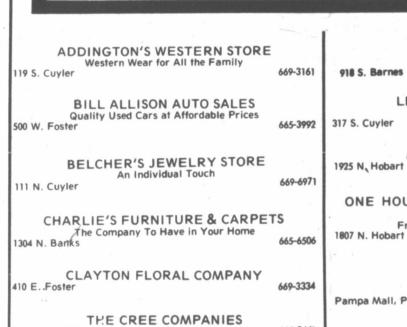

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Weight program is for youth

By MICHAEL RODDY sociated Press Writer ALA CYNWYD, Pa. (AP) - Jill Weglarz, 11, had spent the weekend at the seashore, tempted by stands selling cotton candy, popcorn and fruit cups. Her weigh-in showed it

"Did you lose, Jilly?" asked her friend Carolyn.

It was confession time at the YouthMed children's weight-loss program. Four youngsters, ages 9 to 12, all of them overweight for their age, were discussing what the scale in a nearby room showed them all too starkly whether they had lost or gained weight during the previous week.

The modern American youngster too often sits home alone instead of running outside and has a divorced parent who thinks food is the est treat for a child during weekend custody jaunts, says Afnold Berson, executive director of the YouthMed program.

He says that as many as 16 percent of adolescents are ese, 20 percent are heavier than normal while 12 percent pre-pubescent children iffer the same problems.

'There's been too much nphasis on weight control a cosmetic improvement that's what the adult programs are about," Berson says. "But there has to be a concern for the emotions, for the diet. Fortunately, we have the nucleus here."

What Berson has, as he carefully phrases it, is what he believes to be the only weight program for children that combines nutrition, exercise and psychological counseling outside a hospital. He came upon the idea because his own son, David, weighed as much as 132 pounds when he was 12. "The pediatrician for a number of years said it would go away and it didn't.' Berson says. Berson, a former marketing executive, did worry. He began reading medical literature and consulting with nutritionists and other experts. What he hit upon was the YouthMed program, which opened at one location in March and will expand to two others in the Philadelphia area this fall.

Berson says initial figures show that 76 percent of the 84 youngsters enrolled, at a cost of $607 for six months, have lost weight, some 20 pounds or more, others only a few.

At one session, after playing a bingo-style game designed to teach them which foods are fattening, the children headed to an exercise class with instructor Lori Kaplan. The big treat, Ms. Kaplan says, is an exercise bike hooked to a video game, which operates only if the bike is pedaled fast enough to generate electricity

The youngsters are tested to be sure their weight problem is not the result of a thyroid condition or other malfunction, says Dr. Harris Lilienfeld, the medical director. Otherwise, he says, the medical aspects are kept

"We don't want to label them as sick kids," says

Berson says the YouthMed environment, with children socializing, exercising and playing games, is a key portion of the program. "We are dealing with youngsters who sometimes have very little social life, who may be ridiculed or harassed," he says.

Restorers winning battle for ancient buildings

By WILLIAM S. COWLES Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) Pollution, rising damp and wood-eating beetle grubs are ravaging Britain's legacy of historic buildings and monuments, but determined restorers say they're winning the slow and costly battle against time and decay.

'Our buildings are probably the best maintained the world," said Warren Davis, spokesman for Britain's National Trust.

The charity, Britain's third oiggest property owner after the government and the crown, spends $13.5 million a year on restoration and maintenance.

"Britain is endowed with a national instinct for conservation." said Davis. 'Aristocrats did it for centuries. In our democratic age people donate money and land for conservation. Britons believe in saving history."

In London, where the government looks after more than 500 buildings that include bits of ancient Roman walls, restoration goes on continuously, said project supervisor Charmian Lacey of the Department of the Environment's historic buildings division.

Most visibly undergoing a facelift in the heart of the capital is the Palace of Westminster, embracing the Houses of Parliament and the famous Big Ben clock tower.

"We may be working on five or six projects at once including ventilation and lighting modernization, and planning 10 or 20," she said.

restoration, said Miss Lacey. "The work is extremely expensive because the standard is quite high - to repair or alter a building centuries old it's essential to Tourists may be spend time researching ancient design and building techniques and then duplicating them as nearly as possible," she said.

But "it's nearly always cheaper to update and maintain an old building than build a completely new one," Miss Lacey maintained.

Most Britons agree that money should be spent on restoration. But criticism comes from scholars upset about the aims of restoration work or the quality, said David Pearce, secretary of the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings.

"Government architects trained in the glass curtain, neoprene gasket and steel-reinforced concrete school just couldn't cope with the 16th-century brickwork at Hampton Court," he said.

Completed around 1515 just west of London on the River Thames, the dark red-brick palace where King Henry VIII threw 12-course banquets has complicated brick carving and interwoven patterns on its chimneys and exterior walls. It was refurbished last year.

"They may have been well-intentioned, but the work was shoddy: it won't last and it doesn't fit in," Pearce said.

The preservation society, one of some 10 architectural watchdog groups in Britain, supplies technical advice on how to do as little as possible to prop up settling church walls or replace beetle-infested timbers.

"Too much money is available for restoration projects that ruin ancient buildings, like putting in lifts (elevators), lights and heating," he said.

"Westminster Abbey used to be a 15th-century abbey; now it's got crystal chandeliers running its length. How authentic is

Throughout Britain, the government has listed some 300,000 historically and architecturally significant palaces, thatch-roof cottages and ancient barns as buildings that cannot be altered without government approval.

The government supplied $28.1 million to owners of listed buildings for approved renovation work last year.

At the same time it granted $300 million to 70,000 owners of antiquated but unlisted homes, to defray costs of roofing and installing indoor plumbing to bring them up to Churches don't receive grants, however.

"Conservation groups are still working to find some sort of relief for the tiny village churches that are literally falling apart," said Charles Shears, registrar at St. Paul's Cathedral in London.

But St. Paul's, blessed with being a landmark, has $300,000 a year to spend on maintenance from a trust set up by city businesses 13 years

On any given day, workers on the cathedral's roof can be seen hosing water down its 273-year-old white Portland stone walls to wash away city grime. "It's simple but effective," Shears said.

Pampa head coach John Kendall is trying to eliminate the negatives going into tonight's District 1-4A meeting with Lubbock The outcome could very well determine a state playoff position. Kickoff is 7:30 p.m. at Harvester Stadium.

'We've had pretty good practices this week. considering the beating we took (Pampa's 14-0 loss to Canyon)," Kendall said. 'The kids need to realize that they're still in contention."

Pampa's loss last week still left the Harvesters in a three-way tie for second with Canyon and Dunbar.

Pampa is 3-2 in district play and 4-4 overall.

"There's two big games this weekend as far as district is concerned, but we also want to try to have a .500 season or better," Kendall

Pampa hasn't a .500 season or better since Danny Palmer guided the Harvesters to a 6-4 yards last season, and hasn't been slowed much since then. Greene rushed for 96 yards in Dunbar's 13-10 loss to Borger last week.

Dunbar opened the season with four consecutive wins before losing to Levelland. 22-21. The Panthers only other loss was to Borger

Banet said in his homily. "He went beyond that to share the hurts and pain of his players and friends - I know this personally.

"No one faces the death of friends, men you have coached, men you have taught, cajoled, threatened, even fined, nurtured, challenged, and in his (Halas') own inimitable way, truly loved without turning to prayer,' said Banet, president of St. Joseph's College in Renssalaer, Ind., where the Bears trained in Halas' coaching days.

The mourners filed out of limousines and chartered buses through a forest of flashing cameras into St. Ita's, a Gothic-style church on the North Side not even built by the time Halas had helped create the NFL in the early 1920s.

Some of Halas' grandsons carried his flag-draped casket into St.

SWC football roundup

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer The Houston Cougars have at least 50 reasons to want to ipset the No. 2 ranked Texas Longhorns Saturday night in the Astrodome.

The Cougars suffered a 50-0 humiliation to the Longhorns last year in the most lopsided defeat in the school's history. Some Houston players and coaches said later they thought the 'Horns might have run the score up on Houston has picked a bad year for revenge.

The talented and unbeaten Longhorns are whopping 20-point favorites.

They also have just installed Todd Dodge as their starting quarterback and he gives Texas a legitimate assing threat to go with the salty Longhorn ground game. Texas' defense is the best in the nation. Houston has already lost to Baylor, Texas A&M and Arkansas in SWC play. The self-destruct Cougars lead the SWC in rushing offense, but have also lost twice as many fumbles as any other league team, 25.

Texas Tech, SMU, and Arkansas each have one SWC loss and need victories to keep pace with the Longhorns, who are 4-0 in league games. SMU Coach Bobby Collins is worried about Rice wanting to give Ray Alborn a going away present.

"Rice comes into the game with nothing to lose and everything to gain, playing a nationally ranked team," Collins said. "As we noticed in the Texas Tech game where Rice led late, if you don't go out and play well, you will be in for a fight."

It's Homecoming for SMU and Alborn has taken note: 'It seems everytime we play on the road, it's somebody's homecoming."

Arkansas has a revenge motive itself on the Hogs Homecoming. The Bears ambushed the Razorbacks 24-17 on Homecoming at Waco last year.

"No one needs to remind us how well Baylor plays against us," said Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz. "I don't think there will be a better game in

Nets spurt past Bulls

Darryl Dawkins was having his best game as a New Jersey Net, and Buck Williams couldn't have been happier that some of the pressure was off.

"If he's having a game like that, it makes it that much easier on me," Williams said. "I just love the way he played tonight.

Dawkins scored 22 points and had 15 rebounds, keying an early spurt that started the Nets on their way to a 112-107 victory Thursday night over the Chicago Bulls.

With the help of Dawkins and Otis Birdsong, who had 23 points, the Nets got off to a fast start and led by as many as 27 points midway in the third period before the Bulls made a run. Williams ended up the leading scorer and rebounder for the Nets, with 24 points and 16 boards, but both he and Coach Stan Albeck gave much of the credit to Dawkins.

PHYSICAL GROUP SIZE

"Darryl can be the key for us," Williams said. "When he's active on offense and defense, it makes a lot of things happen.'

Reggie Theus paced the Bulls with 22 points and Quintin Dailey had 20, 13 in the fourth period.

In other NBA games, Washington defeated Detroit 111-88, Denver beat Kansas City 131-128, Utah defeated Golden State 129-112 and Phoenix downed San Antonio

Bullets 111, Pistons 88 Washington finally got on the winning side of the ledger in its fourth game of the season, getting 21 points from Rick Mahorn and 20 from rookie Jeff Malone, to beat Detroit.

"I'm just thankful we finally won one," Bullets Coach Gene Shue said. "It's been a long time since last season.'

The Bullets used a 12-1 burst in the first quarter to break a 16-16 tie and a three-game losing streak. Detroit was led by Kelly Tripucka, who had 19 points. John Long added 16.

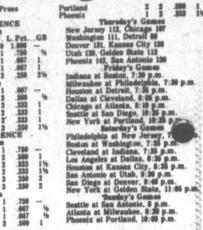

Washington led by as many as 20 points late in the game, helped by Jeff Ruland's 10 points in the third quarter.

Nuggets 131, Kings 128 Kiki Vandeweghe came off the bench to score 39 points, and Alex English hit a pair of crucial free throws in the final seconds as Denver beat Kansas City.

The Nuggets led by 104-87 at the end of three quarters, but Kansas City pulled to within 129-128 with five seconds to go on a basket by Eddie Johnson, who had 29 points.

But Billy Knight fouled English before the buzzer, and English, who had 25 points, hit both free throws to make it 131-128.

The San Diego Chargers, fresh from the demise of their 1983 season, will be trying to out a crimp in the Pittsburgh Steelers' playoff plans Sunda v

The last three times these teams met, the Chargers won - most recently last January when Dan Fouts' three touchdown passes knocked the Steelers out of the playoffs.

But Fouts isn't playing these days. Ed Luther is. He threw two TD passes against Washington last Monday night. He also threw six interceptions.

The Redskins' pass defense is last in the league. The Steelers' pass defense is fifth, and its overall defense is second. In other words, take PITTSBURGH minus 5 over San Diego.

With every snap of the ball. Miami quarterback Dan Marino looks more and more like a seasoned quarterback instead of a rookie. Last Sunday, the Dolphins' entire offense - and its defense, too

- seemed to jell. Look for both to get a bit better this Sunday at San Francisco, in the weekend's only meeting of division leaders. Take Miami plus 21/2 over SAN FRANCISCO. How can a team with the 26th-best defense be a playoff contender? Ask Chuck Knox. He's the one manipulating the mirrors in Seattle. The Seahawks are 5-4 and on a high after sweeping their season series from the Los Angeles Raiders. Denver. Mile High itself and higher in the standings at 6-3, will bring the Seahawks back to earth. Take Denver plus 3 over SEATTLE.

Consumerism isn't dead

AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) - Is the

consumer movement dead? A magazine — a consumer magazine, no less - asked that question, apparently worried that the Reagan administration is barely lukewarm about enforcing industry regulations imposed in recent years.

But consumerism isn't dead, unless you say that a movement ceases to exist when it changes goals. It is probably more potent than

It was an insistence by the public that it be heard in the tplace — in the content purity and labeling of foods, in the safety of automobiles, in the contents and clarity of contracts.

It changed the wav America does business, and if you tend to forget that fact it is probably because you are accustomed to product recalls and reminders by companies that they are there to serve. The consumer message was not wasted, although though some think it might have been carried to extremes, pushed along by candidates eager to be elected as consumer investments on personal representatives.

The consumer learned that things could be done by acting, and now that discovery is coming to fruition in the realization that individuals aren't helpless creatures.

The consumer movement, it can be argued, became more positive. In the 1960s, when Denver housewives (the word was acceptable then) boycotted supermarkets, it was largely a reactive movement.

It was negative, that is, in the sense that almost everything seemed to be wrong with commercial society, including its products, its prices, its marketing, its advertising, and even its attitudes.

Now, you can witness the same individuals doing their thing in a far more positive manner. It was forced in part by economics, but encouraged by the realization that people are not helpless What was protest became affirmation, and the evidence is all about. People who once felt their technological know-how barely encompassed the dial

Myths about Reagan should be dispelled

By BARRY SCHWEID Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) -The invasion of Grenada should dispel two myths that have surrounded Ronald Reagan's presidency.

The first is that there are really two Reagans - a tough talker who is contained at decision time by a more moderate Reagan.

The invasion demonstrates he can match his tough talk with tough action. The visceral anti-communist is the real article.

The second is that it isn't fair to hold the president entirely accountable since most White House decisions, especially those that prove to be lemons, were arranged by his advisers. When Reagan ordered thousands of Marines. Rangers and paratroopers to the vest-pocket Caribbean country, his rhetoric and his decisions were firmly aligned and his accountability made inescapable. The president who condemned the Soviet Union last March as "the focus of evil" was now acting on his beliefs. "Grenada ... was a Soviet-Cuban colony being readied as a major military bastion to export terror and undermine democracy," was how he explained the invasion to the country. "We got there just in time. Secretary of State George Shultz offered a somewhat different view of the U.S. action. "This was not taken as a signal about anything else," he said. "It was taken in the light of the threat to the lives and welfare of American citizens." In any event, Reagan chose to cast the situation in Grenada in a different light. He accused the Soviets of being the force behind surrogates who were pressing against Western interests in the Caribbean, and in Lebanon, as well. With his rhetoric, but more important, with his actions, Reagan has put the Kremlin on notice he will fight to contain "the aggressive impulses of an evil empire.' as he described the Soviets in his address last March to evangelical Christians in Orlando, Fla. The president is inescapably in charge of the Grenada operation and the public will hold him personally responsible - win or lose.

If the success of the military action holds, Reagan is apt to retain the favorable rating he showed in polls taken immediately after the Southwestern Bell, in accordance with rules and orders of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of its intent to re-file evidence and appropriate tariff(s) in support of a request to establish rates for the use of certain complex inside telephone wiring in the amount of $54.5 million annually. This request was previously a part of the considerations in Docket 5141 and now has been re-docketed as Docket 5420. Customers who do not own the Complex Inside Wire associated with their Customer Premises Systems (such as PBX and Key Systems), and who utilize Southwestern Bell's wiring after January 1, 1984, could be affected by this request. On January 1, 1984, all of the Customer Premises Systems presently provided by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company will be transferred to a subsidiary of AT&T and that subsidiary of AT&T will be almost exclusively responsible for the charges pursuant to the proposed tariff on January 1, 1984. After January 1, 1984, customers who purchase their Complex Customer Premises Equipment and do not purchase, but continue to use, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's inside wire will be subject to the charges proposed in the tariff. The proposed effective date for these new rates is Janu-

Persons interested in intervening in this matter should file a written motion expeditiously with the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Austin, Texas 78757, as the Hearing on the Merits in Docket 5420 is set for November 21, 1983.

Computer raiders ran holes through UCLA system

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Three computer raiders known as "Ron," "Kev" and "Kar" ran amok in UCLA's vast government, business and school computer files until their electronic chatter and carelessness gave them away, an investigator says. UCLA physics student Ronald Mark Austin, 19 - who officials said was known to computer users as "Ron" - pleaded innocent Thursday to 14 counts of malicious computer entry and theft of two round-trip airline tickets to London. Municipal Judge Michael Tynan lowered bail from $10,000 to $2,000 on the condition that Austin stay away from computers. Austin's Santa Monica home and that of Kevin Lee Poulsen

Their computers were seized along with equipment, telephones and thousands of sheets of data No charges have been filed against Poulsen, a juvenile, and court documents mention only one name for the third person, in North Hollywood were raided by investigators Sept. 22.

On UCLA's electronic computer billboard, Poulsen was known as "Kev" and Kareem was known as "Kar," said

On Aug. 25, there was this cryptic message between "Kev and "Ron" "Who is this?"

"Ron." "Why are you using Betty (a password)?" "I can't tell you." But the owner of the Betty file found out soon enough. On district attorney investigator J. Duane Trump.

Sept. 3, UCLA student Betty Lee found she couldn't get into her own file. A supervisor used a special code to open the file, and Ms. Lee discovered that 50 to 60 hours of research work was missing

Besides breaking into the UCLA research computer and allegedly changing the codes of scores of files, the three discussed their conquests via computer hookup which, unknown to them, was being monitored by school officials, then the campus police, and finally the district attorney's

Deputy District Attorney Clifton Garrott refused to comment on the case after Austin's arraignment, but reports filed by Trump indicate that the three raiders had access to some of the most sophisticated computer networks in the Austin and Poulsen both admitted tapping into files when Trump interviewed them after the raids on their homes,

A break in the case came when Austin gave his full name, address and phone number by computer to Poulsen. And it was Austin who bragged to Kareem one day about how he was capturing files, Trump said. The illegal access was first noticed on July 7 by Terry Gray, associate director of the UCLA Research Computer Science
