Pampa moves to 'enhance quality of education'

Sweeping curriculum changes approved

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

Members of the board of trustees of the Pampa Independent School District approved the report and recommendations of the Long-Range Planning Committee to incorporate "computer literacy" and adopt various curriculum changes in the Pampa public school system at its meeting Tuesday night.

The recommended changes "will enhance our quality of education," said Ken Fields, board member and chairman of the Long-Range Planning Committee.

Most of the changes aim at increased academic emphasis in the school programs, adopting many suggestions currently under study by the state Board of Education.

Fields said the committee, which has been meeting for several months, recommended the changes after local officials became concerned with studies indicating SAT scores for Pampa students had fallen from previous years. The decline in scores became "a cause of great concern and alarm for us," he said in his report before the board last night.

"A radical change" approved by board members was a decision to adopt the state's current suggested guidelines permitting a student to miss only five class periods a year, or a maximum of three periods a semester, for participation in approved extracurricular activities. Any additional absences in a class for such activities could result in loss of credit for a particular course.

The absence proposals have been recommended by a state education subcommittee. Implementation of the policy in Pampa public schools would be contingent on the recommendation being approved by the state Board of Education.

The new absence policy, if adopted by the state, would require an entire restructuring of scheduling for athletics and other school trips for such extracurricular activities as choir, band, and vocational programs, Fields said.

Another major change calls for the introduction of computer-related studies and instruction throughout all levels of the public school system over the next several years.

According to the plan approved last night, computers would be introduced for use in the fourth grade for the 1984-1985 school year. In the following years, computer-assisted instruction and programs would be introduced at other levels, aiming at computer use from kindergarten through the 12th grade for various courses.

In preparation for greater computer use, staff and faculty will be receiving computer training workshops between now and the start of the next school year.

Some computer-oriented courses already exist in Pampa Middle School and Pampa High School, but elementary schools will be getting the main emphasis in computer systems for the next several years, according to John English, assistant superintendent of schools.

Other suggested changes approved by the board include increased graduation credit and course requirements, additional honors courses, mandatory foreign language instruction (Spanish) at the elementary school level, introduction of additional math courses (algebra for the middle school, pre-calculus and calculus for high school), re-introduction of Latin courses, required credit in world geography for graduation, more emphasis on homework assignments and reduction of credits allowed for the vocational cooperative program.

Fields said the committee developed "an excellent plan" for increased academic emphasis and more quality education.

"I think we have a sound recommended program," English said. In other action, the board set the date for upcoming school board elections for Saturday, April 7, from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the Music Building at Pampa High School. The action was taken to comply with state laws.

Three positions will be up for election. These include those of Wallace Birkes (Place 1), Darville Orr (Place 2) and Dr. Robert Lyle (Place 3).

Candidates must file with the secretary of the board of trustees at the school business office, 321 W. Albert, before March 8. In addition to filing a written request to be placed on the ballot, all candidates are required by law to sign a loyalty affidavit.

The board met in a closed executive session following the public meeting to discuss personnel matters. After the session, the board reassembled in public session and voted to accept the resignation of Patricia Southerland as teacher at Baker Elementary School effective Feb. 17. Members approved the hiring of Patricia Stucker as a Baker teacher effective Feb. 20.

In other matters, the board recognized Elizabeth May ("Burgundy") Avendano as student of the month for Pampa High School. Approved on second reading were policy updates and changes as recommended by the Texas Association of School Boards.

WATER LEAK REPAIRS - Phillip Alardin, employed with Gifford-Hill and Co. of Amarillo, cuts into a water distribution pipeline with a torch this morning to begin repairs on a leaking 16-inch tapping sleeve at the alley

Some Pampans lose water service

Many residents in the northwest section of the city were without water today as city maintenance crews worked to repair a leaking water pipeline connection at 22nd and Zimmers.

City Manager Mack Wofford reported a tapping sleeve on a 16-inch water distribution line located in the alley at 22nd and Zimmers has failed and needed to be replaced to avoid further water loss.

The replacement of the 16-inch sleeve "is a major repair to such a distribution line," Wofford said.

City crews began work on the line yesterday. But when the line was uncovered, it was determined more major work would be required. The line was leaking from some as yet undetermined reason, Wofford explained.

Water was coming out of the line, located four feet underground. The water loss was not bad, "but it could get worse if not repaired," he said.

City water distribution crews located approximately 18 valves which had to be shut off to isolate the area and cut off the water distribution flow at that area.

Water service was cut off to the area north of 18th Street and west of Zimmers. Also affected were the 2300, 2400 and 2500 blocks of Rosewood and the 1100 blocks of Jupiter and Cinderella. Plans early today called for the water to be shut off to those areas from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. today.

"We hope it won't be as long as we say," Wofford said this morning. "It's a big, big job. It's a good-sized chore. I wish it were easier. It's just a hazard of doing business." He said he hoped the crews would be able to complete the repairs sooner than allowed for.

The tapping sleeve, which provides water to a fire hydrant, comes off the main distribution line and must be cut out and replaced, Wofford explained. The work is complicated because the water line includes a steel cylinder encased in reinforced concrete on the outside and inside of the metal pipe.

U.S. gunship bombards mountains as Marines wait for pullout orders

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The battleship New Jersey bombarded gun positions in the central Lebanese mountains today with its 16-inch guns and U.S. Marines awaited orders to pull back from their airport bunkers to ships off the Lebanese coast.

The 115-man British contingent of the multinational force withdrew from its suburban base and moved to a ship offshore because of the "deteriorating" situation in Lebanon.

The British move followed President Reagan's announcement Tuesday night that the 1,600 U.S. Marines would be redeployed to American ships off the shores of Lebanon. But Reagan authorized broader use of American naval guns and warships to support the disintegrating Lebanese army and the embattled government of President Amin Gemayel.

Related stories, Pg. 16

The salvos by the New Jersey apparently were in keeping with that policy, but the targets were not announced.

A spokesman for the Marines, Maj. Dennis Brooks, said the New Jersey was "hitting targets way east of Beirut, off my map" with its 16-inch guns, the largest afloat.

Until now, U.S. naval firepower has been used only to protect the Marines and other elements of the multinational force.

It was unclear if the New Jersey's shelling was intended to protect the Marines or aid the Lebanese army. Brooks said he did not know if the Americans were fired upon before the battleship opened up at 1:25 p.m., but said the compound at Beirut International Airport was hit by "three or four mortars or rockets" within minutes after the battleship began firing.

Awaits signature

Baptist Temple injunction ready

A permanent injunction ordering the Pampa Baptist Temple to either license or close its day care center awaits the signature of 223rd District Judge Don Cain.

Judge Cain received the permanent injunction he previously ordered the state to prepare on Monday. Cain said he will sign the order after the defendants agree to its wording.

The injunction was prepared by Special Assistant Attorney General C. Ed Davis. Judge Cain said Baptist Temple lawyers and the Rev. Jerry West must approve the form, or wording, of the legal document, before he will sign it. It may take several weeks for the parties to agree on the injunction's wording, or Judge Cain could call another hearing, if the parties can't approve the document.

After a hearing that spanned parts of two years, Judge Cain granted the permanent injunction against the church's day care center on Jan. 4. He ruled the state has a "compelling interest" in licensing day care centers, despite the church's claim that licensing violates its religious freedom.

The short, two-page injunction prepared by Davis simply orders the Pampa church to license or close the day care center.

"It is therefore ordered, adjudged

Wil-Mart to become Handy Hut

The Pampa-based Wil-Mart convenience store chain has been sold to Southwest Convenience Stores Inc. of Beaumont, according to Jerry Wilson, Wil-Mart president.

Sale of all of Wil-Mart's stock to the Beaumont-based firm was effective Jan. 31, Wilson said in announcing the sale this morning.

Wil-Mart began operations in Pampa in 1976, opening the first store near the Woodrow Wilson Elementary School. With construction of other Wil-Mart stores in Pampa, this store was later closed.

The Pampa-based chain had grown to 22 stores in operation in Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas at the time of the sale.

With the change in ownership, the Wil-Mart name will no longer exist on the stores, Wilson said. The former Wil-Mart stores are to be renamed Handy Hut.

Civil Liberties Union plans to sue Judge McIlhany

BY JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

District Judge Grainger McIlhany is in hot water with the Texas Civil Liberties Union over the contempt-of-court jail term he gave a 51-year-old Miami woman because she wrote the judge a critical letter.

James C. Harrington, Austin legal director of the ACLU, has called an Amarillo news conference for next week and said he will announce the organization's plans to sue Judge McIlhany in federal court.

Harrington said McIlhany, 65, of Wheeler, "acted wholly outside his jurisdiction" when he jailed Doris Adams for writing a critical letter to the judge. The civil liberties spokesman said the organization will file a federal civil-rights lawsuit against Judge McIlhany. Harrington said the lawsuit will seek both monetary damages and an injunction against the judge. He said he will announce the details of the proposed lawsuit in an Amarillo news conference, scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Monday in the office of Amarillo lawyer Selden Hale.

Generally speaking, judges are immune from lawsuits based on issues before their courts, unless a complaining party can prove a judge had no legal jurisdiction whatsoever over a disputed case, according to ACLU spokesmen.

Adams sent Judge McIlhany a handwritten letter postmarked June 14, 1983. She complained that the judge and Roberts County lawmen were unfair to her sons in connection with a variety of charges against them.

Several months after receiving Adams' letter, Judge McIlhany ordered the part-time barmaid to show up in his Miami courtroom for an Oct. 7 contempt-of-court hearing. The judge ordered Adams to explain why he shouldn't find her in contempt of court for writing the letter, a letter he said accused him of being "paid off."

Adams appeared at the October contempt hearing without the benefit of a lawyer. The judge put the woman on the witness stand, read her letter aloud, and ordered her immediately jailed for 30 days, according to Adams and records of the proceeding.

The mother of six served 28 days of the 30-day sentence.

Judge McIlhany later told The Pampa News that Adams' private letter accused him of being a "taker of bribes." He said the passage that deserved a 30-day sentence reads: "The only way you can win with the law anymore is if you can buy your way out, and it's done every day. You know I can't pay, so you stick my boys good."

"You can read that passage. It speaks for itself. That particular passage was what the hearing was all about," the judge said last December, in explaining the jail sentence.

McIlhany said Adams wasn't entitled to a lawyer at the civil contempt hearing, which is a legal opinion and decreed that the defendants Pampa Baptist Temple dba Pampa Christian Academy and Jerry West be permanently enjoined from operating any child care facility in the State of Texas, including but not limited to the child care facility now being operated by said defendants at 500 East Kingsmill, without being issued a license to operate such a facility by the Texas Department of Human Resources, as provided by Chapter 42 of the Human Resources Code," the injunction says in part.

The Rev. West has said he won't comply with the judge's order and said the church will appeal it.
"We will not close, right now we're continuing to operate," West said after the January ruling.
"We don't want a situation where we have to go out there with armed guards and do something drastic...What we want to do is get them to accept a license," Davis has said.

"When it comes down to it, there is a law that's over the government - that's God's law, the Bible. When they conflict, you live by God's law," West has said.
"If confrontation comes - it comes. With just a few phone calls, we can have 2,000 preachers standing at the church," the reverend said previously, adding, "I don't think it will come to that here."

Judge faces suit

rejected by the TCLU.
The organization called for the judge's removal from office and filed a complaint with the Judicial Conduct Commission, the Austin agency that polices the state judiciary.
The commission considered the complaint Jan. 13 and decided the judge's jailing of the letter writer didn't warrant public punishment. The conduct commission's general counsel, Bill Hornung, said the mostly secret agency possibly recommended a private reprimand, but it considered the matter closed.

Adams never had been arrested for any reason until Judge McIlhenny ordered her to jail. The ordered contempt hearing was the first time the woman was made a party to any proceeding in the judge's court, though several of her sons had appeared before him on a variety of charges.

"My kids got in trouble. That's why I wrote the letter, because he was their judge. It seems like anytime my boys would start doing halfway decent, they'd pick them up," Adams said last year.

She said she is ignorant about legal proceedings and was unaware she could have appealed her jail sentence.

"I really didn't know what to do. He took it personal. It was just a statement. I thought you had the freedom of speech - I really did," Adams said previously.

Monthly sales tax check bigger, but receipts for year are down

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

Though Pampa received a sales tax payment check this week about $80,000 more than the one received in January, local sales tax payments were down 12.17 percent from collections during the first two months of last year for the year, according to a report from state Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Bullock sent the city a check for $180,701.08, reflecting sales made during the final Christmas quarter and reported to the Comptroller's office by Jan. 20.

February's check represents about a 28 percent decline from the February, 1983, payment of $249,847.14.

Total payments for the year to date (checks received in January and February, representing sales in November and December) are $281,025.87, down about $39,000 for the comparable period last year, Bullock reported.

All other cities in The Pampa News' reading area except Perryton and Miami also showed declines in sales tax payments for the first two months of this year, compared to the same period in 1983.

McLean received a check for $3,534.08, down slightly from the $3,994.59 received last February. Total payments for the year to date are $4,906.65, a 1.63 percent drop from the $4,987.93 reported for the same period in 1983.

Lefors registered an 18 percent decline, with total payments this year to date of $1,321.95 compared with $1,612.15 last year. The city received a February check of $789.88, compared with $1,061.98 for the previous February.

The state sent Groom a check for $2,434.07 this month, a slight decrease from the $2,574.80 received last February. However, total payments for the year to date are down about $500 or 12.66 percent with current totals at $3,504.78 compared with $4,012.59 for the same period last year.

Skellytown had a check this month for $1,709.16, about a 44 percent drop from the $3,065.62 received in February, 1983. Total sales tax payments for the year to date are $3,012.07, down 40.06 percent from the $5,024.81 for the same period last year.

White Deer received a check for $2,778.46, down more than $700 from the February, 1983, check of $3,521.43. Total payments for the year to date showed a decline of 31.60 percent, from $7,030.04 last year to $4,808.84.

Registering about a 37 percent decline from last February, Canadian had a check this month for $1,942.74 compared with $2,439.83. Total year to date payments are $32,495.02, a decline of 11.90 percent from the $36,882.57 received in the same period last year.

Perryton was off about $36,000 this month from last February. The city received a check for $76,869.05 this month compared with $112,911.73. Total sales tax payments for the year to date, however, showed an increase of 1.72 percent, with $136,047.65 this year compared with $133,745.74 for the same period in 1983.

Miami was down nearly $1,600 for the month, receiving a check from the state for $3,033.93 this month compared with $4,600.18 for last February. The city reported a 34.70 percent increase for year to date payments, however, receiving a total of $6,196.42 this year and $4,600.18 last year.

Mobettie had a 69.25 percent decrease in total year to date payments, receiving only $1,003.85 this year compared with $3,264.59 for the same period last year. This month the city received a check for $1,003.85, down from the $1,988.91 sent by the state last February.

Down more than $4,000 this month from last February, Wheeler had a check for $6,101.10 compared with $10,615.45 last year. Total payments for the year show a 29.04 percent drop, with $9,570.61 received for the first two months this year compared with $13,487.91 for the same period of 1983.

Bullock sent checks this week totaling $105.4 million in local sales tax payments to the 980 cities that levy the one percent city sales tax.

Statewide, 1984 payments are running 2.57 percent ahead of last year, Bullock said. It is difficult to compare raw payment figures for 1984 with the same period last year in all aspects. Recent changes in reporting requirements converted 15,000 small and medium sized taxpayers from quarterly to monthly payment periods. Thus, what were quarterly payments last year are now spread over three separate months, he noted.

"Even with the bookkeeping changes, these payments reflect the recovery that is underway in our state economy," Bullock said. "When it's all said and done, Texas apparently had the best Christmas in our history in terms of retail sales," he claimed.

Deficit reduction talks get off to shaky start

WASHINGTON (AP) - Talks between administration officials and members of Congress on President Reagan's call for a $100 billion "down payment" to reduce deficits are getting off to a shaky start with senior Democrats and Republicans already predicting failure.

At Reagan's urging, five top presidential advisers and two members each from the House and Senate were gathered today at Blair House, the government's official guest residence across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

But prospects for the negotiations were bleak.

"How," asked Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd, "can anyone realistically expect the whole budget to be rewritten by a few members of Congress and administration representatives meeting downtown, whether at the White House or Blair House or wherever?"

The fact of the matter is the process of crafting a budget requires weeks and weeks of careful preparation," said Byrd, of West Virginia.

Reagan's invitation to the talks was issued a week before he sent Congress a fiscal 1985 spending plan that projects deficits of $180 billion in each of the next few years, not far off the record $195.4 billion posted in 1983.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., has said the president called for the election-year talks simply to "pass the buck" on the issue of huge federal budget deficits.

Legislative efforts to significantly reduce federal budget deficits have been stalled since last year by Reagan's insistence that big increases in taxes or big reductions in military spending are off limits while Democratic leaders rufled further domestic spending cuts.

But the president's key economic advisers have been urging Congress to take the talks seriously and slash the enormous budget deficits or risk sending the economy into a tailspin.

Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, who will represent House Democrats, said he will insist on "serious deficit reductions, not cosmetic deficit reductions," adding that the president's goal of a $100 billion package over three years is too small.

But the question of election-year politics is as critical to the success of the talks as agreement on specific proposals.

Earlier this week, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said, "It's still not clear to me whether the administration is looking for partners or accomplices in this thing."

Administration officials have said they consider the $100 billion truly a down payment and that more reductions will be necessary in 1985 and beyond.

Democrats question whether it is worth giving up a prime campaign issue to join in talks that, at best, can produce only modest results in reducing deficits.

Hearing on county game laws Friday

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department will hold a hearing on changes in hunting and fishing laws in Gray County Friday night, according to Sen. Bill Sarpalis' office.

The hearing is scheduled for 7 p.m. Friday in the Energas building in Pampa.

Dallas men slain

DALLAS (AP) - The slayings of two men killed by a burst of gunfire from an automatic weapon appear to be drug-related, police said.

Police said they had no suspects in the slayings of Luther Eugene Dickerson, 47, and Bobby John Whately, 34, both of Dallas. Both men were pronounced dead on arrival at Parkland Memorial Hospital.

Marrow transplant success is uncertain

HOUSTON (AP) — A doctor who performed a bone marrow transplant on a 7-month-old Idaho boy says he won't know for at least three months whether the experimental procedure helped the infant develop disease-fighting cells he needs to live.

T.J. Davis was in stable condition late Tuesday after doctors at Texas Children's Hospital injected marrow from his father in a treatment doctors hope will help the infant develop an immune system.

The boy suffers from severe combined immune deficiency, a rare disorder which leaves his body without protection from infection.

In a 30-minute procedure shortly after midnight Tuesday, T.J. was given about 2½ ounces of marrow taken from the hip of his father, Terrence Davis Sr., 22.

Davis and his wife, Linda, 18, live in Caldwell, Idaho, but have been staying in their son's hospital room since he was admitted.

Davis said he was "a little sore" after donating the marrow for T.J., but said he felt well and was optimistic about his son's health.

"We just hope that the infection he does have now doesn't progress any farther," Davis said. "We'll just wait and see how it goes."

Mrs. Davis said she felt "scared, excited and frightened" about the transplant. She said the child has had three previous operations to remove infected facial tissue, but added, "If his face wasn't swollen, you wouldn't know there was anything wrong with him."

Dr. William Shearer, chief of the hospital's allergy and immunology section and the physician who performed the procedure, said T.J. had a minor reaction to the procedure and had run a temperature. But he said such adverse such reactions are common after transplants.

Shearer said he has performed three similar marrow transplants, but said T.J.'s was difficult because the baby has a severe infection in his right eye, jaw and cheekbone.

Shearer said he cannot be "absolutely certain" of the procedure's success for three to six months, when the marrow cells have had a chance to grow in the child's body.

"Now who's going to come out the winner — we'll see," Shearer said. He said the child has a "small but real chance" and that he is optimistic about the transplant.

An immune deficiency also has kept a 12-year-old Houston boy, known only as David, in a sterile plastic bubble since birth. David underwent the same kind of transplant last October, but doctors say the results have been inconclusive so far.

T.J. was admitted to Texas Children's last week after the UCLA Medical Center in California refused to perform the procedure because the family could not afford the $100,000 down payment. Mr. Davis, a maintenance worker, was laid off from his job eight months ago.

Texas Children's received a federally funded research grant that allows the hospital to treat seriously ill children whose parents cannot afford the medical bills.

Jury will decide fate of Moreno today

RICHMOND, Texas (AP) — Eliseo Moreno, convicted early this week of killing a rookie state highway patrolman, today faced the prospect of being sentenced to death by injection or a life in prison.

A jury of six men and six women, who found him guilty Monday of capital murder in the slaying Oct. 31 of rookie Texas Department of Public Safety Officer Russell Boyd, was to consider Moreno's fate following concluding statements from District Attorney Jim Keeshan and defense lawyer Robert Scardino Jr.

In testimony during the punishment phase of his trial Tuesday, the 24-year-old former lawn mower repairman from Donna was described by two defense witnesses as an alcoholic who suffers blackouts and is capable of violent acts when under the influence of alcohol. One of the witnesses, Houston clinical psychologist Sul-Ross Harrington, said that while Moreno was not psychotic, he was depressed and suicidal.

"If he is incarcerated for a long time, the suicide risk is great until anti-depression drugs are administered," Harrington said.

Friends and family members, however, including Moreno's brother and first of two wives, testified he was no more than a social drinker.

But James Harris Jr., a certified alcoholism counselor with the Mental Health and Mental Retardation Authority of Brazos County, said Moreno sought treatment for alcoholism on Sept.

20, three weeks before the 160-mile shooting spree across southeast Texas that left Boyd and five others dead.

Moreno, 24, was charged in all six slayings. While charges in the trial concern only Boyd's death, fingerprint and ballistics testimony has linked him to the other five slayings.

"Most people with this charge come out psychopathic," Harrington said, defining psychopathic as "crazy."

"But I didn't find any evidence," he said. Harrington said tests he gave Moreno on the eve of the trial indicated the defendant was of low average intelligence, showed "severe depression with suicidal tendencies," and indicated he was a "serious alcoholic."

Harris, 62, of College Station, who said he has treated about 2,000 alcoholics, acknowledged under cross examination that Moreno sought help only at the urging of his estranged wife, Blanca. Moreno was "argumentative" during the session, appeared to have no interest in counseling and failed to keep another appointment for the following week, Harris said.

Harris also said he felt Blanca Moreno, who did not testify, feared her husband, and that Eliseo Moreno kept the original appointment only because it was a "condition laid down so she would return to him."

Moreno told the counselor he could not remember what he did after he drank two or three six-packs of beer. Harris also said it was "certainly" possible for Moreno to become violent after drinking.

Prosecutors could not overcome defense objections to introduce into evidence Tuesday a tape that allegedly records the fatal shootings of a College Station couple shortly before Boyd was shot to death after he stopped Moreno for speeding on Texas Highway 6 north of Hempstead.

The tape, recorded by the Bryan Police Department, is of a telephone call made by Esther or Juan Garza, two of the six people Moreno is accused of killing.

Scardino objected to the use of the tape, saying voices were difficult or impossible to identify and that other voices on the tape remained unidentified.

The Garzas were relatives of Moreno's estranged wife. Authorities said after his arrest in October that he blamed the couple for his marital problems.

Keeshan said he thought the tape would indicate "whether the defendant was likely to commit acts of violence and be a threat to society," but conceded he believed the state had "ample evidence."

In other testimony Tuesday, employees of two sporting goods stores in Bryan identified Moreno as the person who bought two guns on Oct. 11. In addition, a sporting goods store salesman reported missing from his store the gun that has been identified as the weapon used to kill the trooper.

Moreno also faces charges in the deaths of three elderly Hempstead residents — Allie Wilkins, 79; Ann Bennett, 70; and James Bennett, 62, all of whom were slain in the same home.

Texas board adopts federal EDB guidelines

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas Board of Health opted to follow the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's on limiting levels of the pesticide EDB in food and by ordering grocery stores to remove tainted products.

The state board also went one step farther Tuesday, expanding the limits to citrus fruit and baby food.

The emergency guidelines will set ceilings for acceptable amounts of EDB at 900 parts per billion in raw grains, 150 ppb in processed grains produced for baking and 30 ppb in ready to eat products such as cereals and breads.

EDB, ethylene dibromide, has been found to cause cancer in laboratory animals.

The federal guidelines proposed Friday by EPA Administrator William Ruckelshaus did not include limits for citrus products and baby food.

"We think it doesn't matter if you are eating EDB from nachos or from oranges," said Texas Health Commissioner Robert Bernstein.

"We're taking a very conservative approach in what we are doing today," Bernstein said. "I think we have to aim towards elimination of the substance, if we can, because we know it's bad stuff."

Ruckelshaus said less than 2 percent of the total citrus fruit consumed in the United States is treated with EDB. Bernstein said the federal guidelines did not include citrus fruit because there is no effective substitute for countering fruit flies.

The controversy over EDB, a commonly used grain fumigant, heightened about six weeks ago when it was found in ground water and food substances in Florida. Bernstein said no EDB has been found in Texas ground water, and no EDB has been found in baby food tested by the state.

The H.E.B. grocery chain has already announced it would pull packages of Duncan Hines brand muffin mix from store shelves because it was found to contain 436 ppb of EDB.

The muffin mix was one of two products out of 200 tested in Texas, found to exceed the EPA's recommended limits. The other product is Jim Dandy Quick Grits, which has 90 ppb.

Bernstein said he expected other grocery store chains to quickly comply with the guidelines and he said manufacturers have told him they will meet the state levels.

"We don't think much policing will be required," he said, adding that state authorities would conduct spot checks to enforce compliance with the guidelines.

Bernstein described EDB as "bad stuff."

Defense prepares case in nurse's murder trial

GEORGETOWN, Texas (AP) — Gene Jones' defense team today worked on its response to the state's 14-day, 44-witness story of a nurse the prosecutors say killed a baby to prove a point.

As they promised jurors at the start of the trial, prosecutors tried to show a motive for the slaying of 15-month-old Chelsea McClellan in 1982. The possible motive came in testimony from the final witness called by the state before it closed its case Tuesday.

Mary Morris said she ran into Ms. Jones, a former nursing school acquaintance, in a Kerrville hospital when Ms. Jones was brought in for ulcer treatment. The meeting was on Sept. 11, 1982, in the midst of a string of mysterious seizures that hit children in Ms. Jones' care.

"She said she was (in Kerrville) to help start a pediatric intensive care unit," Mrs. Morris testified, adding that Ms. Jones said the new unit would be run by licensed vocational nurses, such as Ms. Jones.

Mrs. Morris said she told her school friend, "I don't think the state would let you get away with that."

But, she testified, Ms. Jones was "adamant." "I said, 'We have sick children, but I don't think there's enough sick children'" to justify a special care unit for them. "She said, 'Oh, they're out there. All you have to do is go out and find them.'" Mrs. Morris said in the answer to the state's last question.

The defense had no questions for Mrs. Morris. Outside the courthouse, Ms. Jones and her lawyers would not answer questions about the prosecution's case.

State District Judge John Carter said the trial would resume Thursday with the defense starting its case. Defense lawyers Burt Carnes and Jim Brookshire have not said whether Ms. Jones will testify.

Kerr County District Attorney Ron Sutton had reason to be satisfied with his case. Carter gave Sutton big wins in two major decisions, allowing jurors to hear a poison expert testify that his new test proved that tissue taken from Chelsea contained the muscle relaxant allegedly used by Ms. Jones to kill the girl on Sept. 17, 1982.

Carter also allowed testimony on five other charges against Ms. Jones, indictments that allege she used the drug — succinylcholine — to injure five other children at Dr. Kathleen Holland's office in Kerrville during the three weeks she worked there.

Parents and grandparents of those five — none of whom died from the injections — told similar stories of children who went "limp" after shots from the nurse. All five stopped breathing after treatment from Ms. Jones. All five only had such attacks after the nurse treated them, according to testimony.

Throughout the state's case, the defense tried to show that other things could have killed Chelsea and hurt the other children. They honed in on an initial autopsy report that said Chelsea was a Sudden Infant Death Syndrome victim.

But even the neuropathologist who issued that report testified here that it was wrong. And on Tuesday the state's next-to-last witness was Vincent DiMaio, the Bexar County medical examiner who studied the case. "It's my opinion she died as a result of an injection of the drug succinylcholine," he said.

Fire danger remains high

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — The fire danger in heavily forested East Texas remained high, but Texas Forest Service officials said a higher humidity and the chance of rain prompted them to lift a ban on outside burning.

Officials lifted the ban Tuesday while Texas Forest Service firefighters still were fighting about 30 new fires that burned about 300 acres. Forest Service spokesman Mahlon Hammetter said 15 still were burning late Tuesday.

Forest service officials said that 109 fires blackened 6,256 acres in East Texas on Sunday, the largest one-day outbreak of fires in the region's history.

And the officials said the fire activity through the first five weeks of 1984 has been more than the forest service usually has in an entire year.

"They are primarily accidental fires, including careless debris fires, and most of them are the result of that — brush burning and probably a few deliberately set fires tossed in," said Hammetter.

Hammetter said the number of fires this week in East Texas have probably been underestimated.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government; and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Private venture beats bureaucrats

Do we really need government to protect our interests, wipe our noses, compile information and tell us how to be good little consumers? Or are most consumers capable of and interested in acquiring information that they consider genuinely important when making decisions?

A piece of evidence fell into place last month with the second private edition of "The Car Book," three years after the government decided to quit printing it. The book, which compares maintenance costs, safety, crash-worthiness and other information about new cars, had been the government's most popular publication when it was dropped three years ago in the first wave of visible cost-cutting by the newly-installed Reagan administration. A government auto-safety researcher quit his job to publish the book privately.

As a private venture, "The Car Book" has survived three years. The second edition, which incorporates information (much, but not all from government sources) on 1984 models, appears to be attracting buyers willing to plunk down $7.95 for the latest auto comparisons. That's a modest investment for anybody planning to buy a new car in the next year or so.

Having "The Car Book" published privately is a superior arrangement to having it published by government and made available at subsidized prices. Those who want it or can benefit from it are free to purchase it. Those who don't want it are not forced to pay for it through use of their taxes to pay for publication. Who decides whether it's really needed? The people do, by their decision to buy it or not buy it.

That beats having ambitious bureaucrats decide what's good for us.

Texas has offended the Times

Oh, goodness me! Oh, my sainted aunt! Texas has offended the New York Times, which editorially rebukes us for our "ignorance" - meaning our "doubts about the soundness of Mr. Darwin's theory of evolution."

Really it's the state board of education that has the Times' nose out of joint. This is because of the board's recent ruling that biology textbooks need not mention the aforesaid Mr. Darwin, unless, to be sure, the authors want to, in which case it's perfectly fine with the board, just so they don't think they must treat him as some kind of intellectual crossroads. The Times titles its editorial, "Deep in the Heart of Ignorance."

As Jack Benny used to say (not necessarily after reading the Times): "Well!" It's nice to know that in some minds Darwin's theory - accent, if you please, on "theory" - goes unchallenged. In scientific circles, as distinguished from the jeeringly denominated "fundamentalist" circles, Darwin's credibility has been under attack for a long time.

As Robert Nisbet, our finest social philosopher, writes: "it is a rare meeting of major biological disciplines that does not include a panel or two on the deficiencies of the specifically Darwinian theory of biological evolution...mirabile dictu, it has become possible to criticize Darwin at national meetings and not be ostracized. It is the Darwinian mandarin that is on the defensive." Except at the Times. However...

Darwin, for one thing, seems to have left time out of his accounting. He thought nature could act "only by slow and short steps." He denied the possibility of great leaps. Hence, natural selection, the heart of his theory of gradualism. But how, then, account for the impressive scientific evidence that creation may have involved a "big bang"?

So, too, is Darwin criticized for positing that, in the main, yesterday's processes are like today's processes. Nor does Darwinism explain how whole species, instead of evolving simply disappeared.

Nisbet says: "Natural selection is far from being one of the more elegant theories in the natural sciences. That the process of natural selection exists and has existed continuously in the past is beyond question; the concept has been known since at least Lucretius. But as a general theory designed to explain the enormously complex phenomenon of evolution, it fails badly. It explains too much and too little."

Let's see, then, if we can guess what the state board of education is up to with its new textbook rule. Not actually banning Darwin, who cuts almost as imposing a figure in modern biology as George Washington does in American history. Rather, cutting him down to size, removing him from the pedestal where worshipful admirers have maintained him these hundred years, keeping him nicely dusted and his serious critics at a suitable distance.

How strange to see the Times defending, with sneers and knowing pokes in the ribs, the fond ideas of the past! If the Times really goes for 19th-century ideas, how about a little livelier support for free enterprise?

However, it isn't Darwin the Times is defending so much as it is the secular view of life: the view that Divinity has comparatively little (if anything) to do with human affairs. Deny Darwinism as fact, and next thing you know Baptists will be howling to teach "Genesis 1:1."

I should not judge such a danger to be very acute. "Genesis" - for all the ardor with which poor Bishop Wilberforce defended it against Thomas Huxley - is not an account of Creation, nor would it ever have been such, save in the absence of scientific evidence.

"Genesis" is in fact a very, very old story whose details are of less significance than their meaning: to wit, that "In the beginning, God created the heavens and the earth." Which declaration doesn't for a minute exclude evolution from either religious or scientific consideration; just so long as scientists, like bishops, are required to follow where the facts lead.

The Times' wispish defense of Darwin has a nervous quality about it. Do the editors sense that the Darwinian jig is about up? "Ignorance," Texas-style, can be catching - when it's really not ignorance at all.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, Feb. 8, the 39th day of 1984. There are 327 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On Feb. 8, 1837, in the only time the Senate has chosen the vice president, it elected Richard Mentor Johnson after no candidate received a majority of the electoral votes.

On this date:
In 1587, Mary Queen of Scots was beheaded after being accused of plotting the murder of England's Queen Elizabeth I.

In 1910, the Boy Scouts of America was incorporated in Washington, D.C.
In 1922, President Warren Harding had a radio installed in the White House.

And in 1940, the Nazis shot every tenth person in two Polish villages near Warsaw in reprisal for the deaths of two German soldiers.

Ten years ago: Astronauts Edward Gibson, Gerald Carr and William Pogue splashed down in the Pacific after a record 84 days aboard the Skylab 3 space station.

Five years ago: President Jimmy Carter sent Congress a trimmed-down version of the bill to create a department of education, a measure that had died in the House the previous year.
One year ago: A special state investigating panel said top Israeli leaders bore "indirect responsibility" for the massacre of Palestinians by Lebanese Christian militiamen the previous September.

Today's Birthdays: Actress Lana Turner is 64 years old. Actor Jack Lemmon is 59.

Celebrating the 1985 budget

You should have been in Washington, D.C. last week. The whole town was celebrating the president's 1985 budget.

I dropped into a pub near the Capitol the other evening for a quiet drink and found the place jammed with people.

"Why the crowd?" I asked the bartender.
"The 1985 budget is going to be announced on television in a few minutes. Where have you been for the last few weeks?"
"Shut up!" someone yelled, "and turn up the set."

The bar quieted and all looked up nervously at the screen.

Secretary of the Treasury Donald Regan, in a black tuxedo, came on the stage, told a few jokes, and then said, "And now - heeere's Ronnie's Budget! May I have the envelope please?"

David Stockman, the head of the Office of Management and Budget came out and handed the envelope to Regan, who ripped it open. "I'm always nervous when I do this,"

he said as the audience tittered.

Regan read from the card. "The budget for fiscal 1985 is an all time high of 924 billion, 500 million dollars!"

Almost everyone in the bar cheered, and waved pompoms.

Mr. Regan continued reading, "The deficit will be 180 billion, 400 million dollars, but could reach an even 200, if both parties work at it."

Again we all cheered and raised our glasses.

Regan said, "David, who were the big winners?"

"The military and tax cuts."

"And the big losers?"

"Domestic spending across the board."

The bar went wild, people slapping each other on the backs, and kissing strangers.

"It's the best election year budget a president has ever come up with," a guy who had White House lobbyist written all over him shouted in my ear.

"It's not a bad deficit either," I shouted back.

"It's a beaut," he yelled. "I'll buy you a drink."

The bartender poured out our drinks and said, "That will be 10 bucks."

"Put it on my deficit," the lobbyist said.

"And who's going to eventually pay for it?" the bartender wanted to know.

"My kids will," the guy said, breaking himself up, "and if they don't my grandchildren will."

The man on the next stool was staring silently into his drink.

"Hey fellow," my drinking pal said.

"Didn't you just hear the news? We almost got a trillion dollar budget."

"I hate deficits," the man said.

"What are you, some kind of fiscal nut?"

"I happen to be a Democratic Congressman."

"I thought Democrats loved deficits," the man joshed.

"We like them within reason, but this is ridiculous."

"Ah come on fellow, it's only money. We can always borrow it when we need it."

"Yeh," I said, "And if we can't borrow it we can always print some more."

"That's a good one," my buddy said, almost falling off his stool.

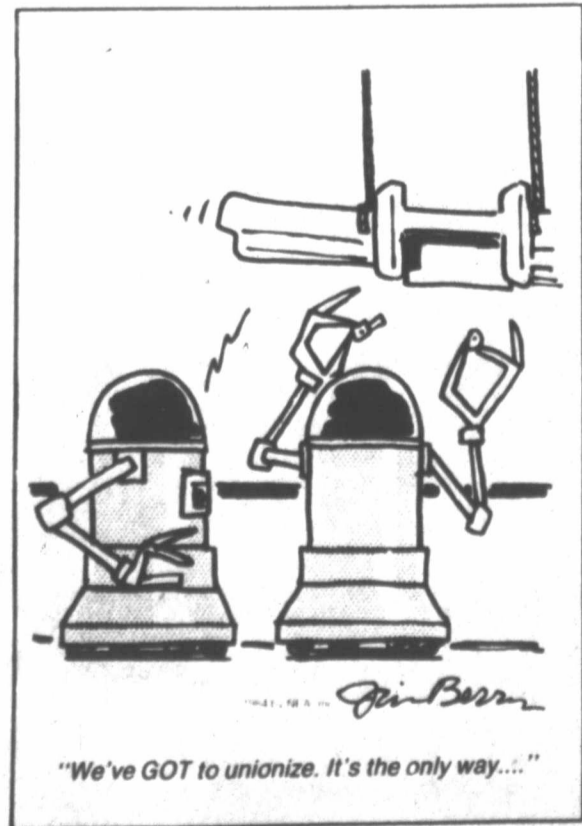

The stuffed shirt Democratic Congressman said, "Haven't you people ever heard of fiscal responsibility?"

The bartender said to the Congressman sternly, "Watch your language fellow. This is a respectable place."

My pal and I had several more drinks and then with our arms around each other's shoulders, we staggered out into the street singing, "Two hundred billion dollars parlez - vous - Two hundred billion dollars parlez - vous - We'll hug the rich and shaft the poor - Until the deficit climbs some more - Inky dinky parlez - vous."

GOP must not court the liberals

NEW YORK (NEA) - As any observant reader of this column knows, I have not gone along with those conservative leaders, such as Richard Viguerie and Howard Phillips, who have become profoundly disenchanted with Ronald Reagan and would, if the opportunity presented itself, repudiate his administration altogether. On the contrary, I think Ronald Reagan has been an absolutely superb president - the only authentic representative the conservative movement has had in the White House in modern times - and I believe that any conservative who isn't on balance pleased with his administration probably can never be pleased at all. What's more, I think the vast majority of conservatives, and probably a majority of the entire American electorate, agree with me.

But for that very reason I think the time is appropriate to issue this public warning to the so-called "pragmatists" who are taking over the management of this year's Republican campaign: Get over the breezy notion that serious conservatives have "nowhere else to go" this year, and that accordingly you can afford to spend your time wooing this or that liberal clique to round out your vote total on Election Day. Nothing could be further from the truth.

In the first place, if there was ever any validity to the theory that the GOP could win nationally by pursuing marginal liberal voters - and personally I never believed it for a moment - it certainly isn't true in 1984. The liberals may be down and out, but they know an enemy when they see one, and they will fight Ronald Reagan's Republican Party with every ounce of strength they possess.

In the second place, the notion of winning by picking up stray liberal betokens a fatal misunderstanding of the nature and deepest concerns of the American people. The really important movable bloc of voters - "movable" in the sense that it can and will vote for either of the two major parties, depending on circumstances - is the lower and lower middle class blue-collar and "ethnic" white voters who were dependably Democratic until Kennedy's election in 1960.

In 1964 that bloc, though profoundly alienated from the Democratic Party's strenuous liberalism, stuck with Texas' Lyndon Johnson. In 1968 it split between Nixon and George Wallace, and defeated Hubert Humphrey. In 1972 it joined the rest of America in re-electing Nixon over the leftist McGovern. In 1976 it returned to the Democratic Party at the soft beckoning of Georgia's Jimmy Carter - and retired a Republican president who'd had no better sense than to pick Nelson Rockefeller as his vice president. In 1980 it conferred its enthusiastic approval - and the presidency - on Ronald Reagan.

In 1984, the Republican Party had better take blessedly good care to keep this bloc of voters, or most of it, in its pocket, or it could be in for a bleak surprise. Moreover, some of the shrewdest political observers on the scene today are growing seriously concerned over the danger of defeat.

Take Paul Weyrich, by far the ablest nuts-and-bolts political operator active today in the conservative movement. Weyrich is close to such New Right spokesmen as Viguerie and Phillips, but has firmly refused to join in their intemperate denunciations of Ronald Reagan. Yet Weyrich is warning, both publicly and privately, that the Republican Party cannot, on its record to date, count on the sort of enthusiastic blue-collar support that, added to the GOP's natural base, put Reagan over the top in 1980.

Blue-collar voters are vulnerable to an economic down-turn, and even those who weathered the recent recession will be sensitive to the slightest hint of possible future trouble on that front. They can also be influenced by Democratic charges that this administration has tended to favor large corporations and big banks with soft overseas loans. In addition, Weyrich warns, millions of Americans motivated chiefly by the "social issues" - abortion, school prayer, etc. - may not feel nearly as fervent about registering and voting in 1984 as they did four years ago.

Ronald Reagan is aware of these problems - but what about his managers and advisers? They had better start learning: fast.

COLD HOBBY—An ice fisherman attends to his three poles during the chilly pursuit of bluegill at the Willow Slough Fish and Wildlife Area in Indiana, near the Illinois state line, earlier this winter. There is more than a difference in the water when fishing in the winter: poles are shorter, lures different and there is a limit on the diameter of the pole. The fishing is slower, but the fish seldom fight. (AP Laserphoto)

De la Madrid says Americans don't want military intervention

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Miguel de la Madrid says he believes the people of the United States don't want to take on a larger military role in Central America.

Speaking at his first news conference since taking office 14 months ago, de la Madrid also said his administration will not use the "moral renewal" campaign against corruption to start a witch hunt against former officials.

De la Madrid replied when asked about the U.S. military role in Central America that the region must determine its future without foreign intervention of any kind.

"I am sure that the people of the United States wants to avoid the risk of military participation in the Central American area," he said. "I express my firmest hope that things turn out this way and that the government of the United States arrives at the conviction that a military intervention far from solving the problems would make them more serious and would make them wider not only in Central America but throughout the American continent."

Mexico, Colombia, Venezuela and Panama make up the Contadora group which for the past year has been trying to find a regional solution to Central America's tensions. The group has working sessions under way aimed at producing legal agreements to defuse the violence.

De la Madrid described their immediate objectives as a cease-fire, a ban on using a nation's territory to promote violence elsewhere, to freeze the amount of weaponry in the area and withdraw foreign military advisers.

The president said the Cuban government has had a "positive attitude" regarding Contadora's efforts.

Asked what he would have added to the Kissinger Commission's report on Central America, de la Madrid replied only: "I recommend to them a more careful reading of the objectives of the Contadora group."

Among other things, the commission recommended in its report to President Reagan that there be an increase in military, as well as economic aid to Central America. De la Madrid said his campaign to rid the government of corruption will not resort to "terror or political scandal."

He was asked specifically if anything in Mexican law prohibited action from being taken against his predecessor Jose Lopez Portillo.

"We have only proceeded with criminal action in the cases in which we have found sufficient proof and elements. My government has avoided carefully confusing moral renewal of society and the serious and deep program accompanying it with a climate of terror or political scandal," the president replied.

Hightower didn't sign letter endorsing Doggett

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Two Democratic candidates for the U.S. Senate say Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower has apologized to them for a fund-raising letter that labeled them "boll weevils."

The letter, bearing Hightower's signature, called Democratic primary opponents Bob Krueger of New Braunfels and U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock conservative Democrats who often have supported Republican policies.

But Hightower did not write the letter that endorsed state Sen. Lloyd Doggett, who is also running for U.S. Senate, Doggett's campaign manager said Tuesday.

James Carville told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that Hightower neither wrote nor authorized his signature on the campaign mailing. It praises Doggett and attacks Krueger and Hance.

Carville said the fund-raising letter was sent out by Public Communications Co. of Washington after "an unfortunate mixup."

Carville said he was uncertain how the error occurred. Officials of the direct mail firm could not be located for comment.

Krueger had called the letter a "fabrication" during an interview with the Star-Telegram at his New Braunfels home Tuesday.

Krueger presented a letter of apology written to him Monday by Hightower. The commissioner said the fund-raising appeal was mailed "without my approval or knowledge."

A spokesman for Hance said Hightower also apologized to the Democratic congressman, who accepted it.

"The letter was critical of the Lubbock Democrat and included a number of inaccuracies on the Hance record," said Hance spokesman Ken Vest in a prepared statement.

Krueger is portrayed in the letter as a conservative champion of special interest groups, one who voted against financing for environmental and social programs while supporting increased military spending.

An aggressive campaign by Doggett, a state senator from Austin who is the more liberal of the three candidates, has targeted Krueger, viewed as the early front-runner in the race.

Krueger, who lost narrowly to Republican U.S. Sen. John Tower in a bitter 1978 race, said Doggett is running "the dirtiest campaign I've ever encountered. It makes John Tower look like a gentleman."

Doggett repeatedly has made "massive distortions" of Krueger's voting record while representing the 21st Congressional District of Southwest Texas from 1975 to 1979, Krueger said.

An apology is due to Hightower for the fund-raising mailing, Carville said. He said the four-page letter was mailed to tens of thousands of Texans throughout the state during two weeks in late January.

But Carville refused to apologize to Krueger.

"What are we going to apologize for? There's nothing in it that's not true," Carville said from Doggett's Austin campaign headquarters.

FISH a l'ORANGE — White fish fillets and treatment when drizzled with a light oil fresh orange slices are given delicate and ground spice mixture.

Nutritious fish enhances menus

Ah, baked fish! It's not just for Friday dinners. With the trend toward lighter, leaner meals, families concerned about nutrition are serving fish more often. Delicate, yet hearty, this natural food from the sea is low in calories, cholesterol and sodium. Fish also boasts a good quality protein, the B-complex vitamins and many minerals.

Fish a l'Orange takes all this nutrition and then enhances it. Fish fillets and fresh orange slices are drizzled with a mixture of grated orange peel, ginger and pepper in a safflower oil base. Served here with a green leaf salad and white wine, this meal would delight any gourmet on a diet.

Potato Scallop

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
BRUNCH FARE
Ham & Potato Scallop
Fresh Fruit & Coffee
POTATO SCALLOP

Small-size version of one of my favorite recipes.
1 1/2 tablespoons butter
1 1/2 tablespoons unbleached all-purpose flour
1 1/2 cups milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
Pepper to taste
3 medium (1 1/2 pounds) potatoes

Make a white sauce of the butter, flour, milk, salt and pepper. Pare potatoes and shred fairly coarsely — there should be 4 loosely packed cups; stir into sauce. Turn into a buttered 1 1/2-quart round baking dish (8 by 2 inches). Dot with an extra 1/2 tablespoon butter. Bake in a preheated 300-degree oven, uncovered, until potatoes are tender and top is golden brown and crusty — 2 hours. Serve hot. Makes 4 servings.

1/2 t. salt (optional)
1/4 t. ground ginger
1-16th t. ground black pepper
1 lb. fish fillets,
see NOTE
2 oranges, peeled and cut in sections
2 T. chopped walnuts, (optional)

NOTE: Use white, low-fat fillets such as sole, flounder, etc.

Preheat oven to 425 degrees F. In a small bowl combine 1 1/2 tablespoons of the safflower oil, orange peel, salt, ginger and black pepper. Place fish in a well-oiled shallow pan. Spoon oil mixture over fish. Arrange orange sections on top; drizzle with remaining one tablespoon oil. Bake uncovered until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork, about five minutes. Sprinkle with walnuts before serving.

Another example of a tasty fish dish is Fish with Dilled Vegetables. Herbs and vegetables are lightly sauteed, then spooned on top of fillets before baking. Easy, nutritious and satisfying.

FISH WITH DILLED VEGETABLES

1 lb. fish fillets
1/2 c. sliced scallions, (green onions)
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 1/2 c. zucchini cut in matchsticks
1 1/2 c. diced fresh tomatoes
1 c. sliced fresh mushrooms
1/2 c. carrot cut in matchsticks
1 t. dill weed
1/2 t. salt (optional)
3 T. safflower oil

NOTE: White, low-fat fillets such as sole, flounder, etc.

etc. Preheat oven to 425 F. In a large skillet heat oil until hot. Add scallions and garlic; saute for 20 seconds. Add zucchini, tomatoes, mushrooms, carrot, dill and salt. Saute until barely crisp-tender, 4 to 5 minutes. Place fish in a well-oiled shallow baking pan. Top with sauteed vegetables. Bake uncovered until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork, about five minutes.

Is this someone you know?

She is 84 and has lived in her home for 50 years. She raised two handsome sons and cared for a loving husband. Her husband died five years ago, and her two sons left to start families of their own. One son visits at Christmas and writes occasionally; the other hasn't been to visit in three years.

The neighborhood has changed over the years and Mary seldom goes out because she is afraid! She stays in and watches TV alone.

Mary was once an award-winning chili cook. Now she lives on peanut butter and an occasional can of soup.

We have met many Marys over the years and understand their loneliness and despair. We've created a special living environment for important people like Mary, who need:

- a sense of security,
- the warmth of companionship,
- medical attention,
- nutritious meals
- and someone to rely on in emergencies.

There is no place like home, but we offer the things that make life worth living. If there is a Mary in your life, call us today for more information.

An old-time favorite: pepper pot

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

The father of our country, George Washington, as legend goes, had an army cook whose creation has lived through generations.

The Philadelphia pepperpot is said to have been created at Valley Forge when General Washington complained that the troops were deserting because of the food.

Pepperpot is a highly spiced soup that is a favorite of West Indians, Jamaicans, Germans and the Chinese.

This version offers a dish that is lower in cholesterol, sodium and calories. For further low-sodium benefits, use a low-sodium beef broth and add additional spices to taste. Freeze in small portions for a quick pick-me-up soup snack.

PHILADELPHIA PEPPER POT

- 2 pounds beef chuck, cut into 1/2-inch cubes
- 2 leeks, chopped
- 2 medium onions, chopped
- 2 potatoes, pared and finely diced
- 1 carrot, finely diced
- 3 quarts beef broth
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 teaspoon thyme
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 1 teaspoon hot pepper sauce

Heat large soup pot over medium heat. Spray with no-stick cooking spray. Add meat, a little at a time, and brown well. Remove meat with slotted spoon and set aside. Pour off all fat. Spray pot with no-stick cooking spray again. Add leeks and onions and saute until tender. Return meat to pot. Add potatoes, carrot, beef broth, bay leaf and thyme. Bring to a boil, reduce heat; cover and simmer 2 1/2 hours. Add parsley and hot pepper sauce. Simmer 5 minutes. Remove bay leaf.

Serve with additional hot pepper sauce, as desired. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 20 1-cup servings. Calories per serving: 132.

Try roasting your vegetables

By Jacqueline Heriteau

Most vegetables can be roasted (or baked) successfully in the drippings of roasts or in their own skins.

BEANS, PEAS, GREENS: Snap beans, peas, kale and spinach may be baked in a little butter in a covered casserole. Preheat the oven to 425 degrees and cover well. The vegetables will be done in 10 to 30 minutes, depending on how thick they are. Spinach cooks very rapidly. Thick green beans and big peas take longer.

CARROTS, TURNIPS AND OTHER ROOT VEGETABLES: Root vegetables (such as carrots, salsify, and peeled, cut-up turnips) may be baked at 375 to 400 degrees until tender — between 45 minutes and 1 hour. Place them in a covered Dutch oven or seal into heavy duty foil, with a little butter. Or, halve or quarter them and roast with meats in the bottom of the roasting pan.

POTATOES, SWEET (also YAMS): Bake in oven preheated to 400 degrees (450 degrees if you are in a hurry) for 45 minutes (or until pierced easily with a fork).

POTATOES, WHITE: Bake in an oven preheated to 425 degrees (500 degrees if you are in a hurry) for 1 hour (or until pierced easily with a fork). Wash well first and pierce with a fork in one or two places so steam can escape. (Smaller potatoes occasionally explode when baked unpierced.)

SQUASH, ACORN (also BUTTERNUT): Bake halved, seeded squash at 375 degrees for 45 minutes or until fork-tender. Salt, pepper and butter each half and brace in foil. Then set on an oven rack or in a baking pan. Corn syrup, brown sugar and lemon juice are some popular seasonings for squashes.

SQUASH, HUBBARD: Bake slices wrapped in foil, and seasoned, at 400 degrees for 1 hour, or until easily pierced with a fork. Salt and pepper and add lots of butter before serving.

TOMATOES: Place tomatoes, halved, cut side up, in a buttered roasting pan, dot with butter and season with salt and pepper. Bake for 15-20 minutes, or until tender. Crushed garlic, slivered onions and minced basil are among seasonings for baked tomatoes. Or, smother in a mixture of bread crumbs and crushed garlic, then bake.

Dear Abby

Frustrated husband says "Take my wife— please"

By Abigail Van Buren
 © 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My wife would like to trade me for a kindly gentleman who is well-to-do and no longer interested in sex. Based upon our 45-year marriage, I can recommend her highly as a person of good moral character and an excellent homemaker. She is also a healthy, attractive, conservative and well-informed woman with many friends.

I am prepared to release my 65-year-old wife to any man she might choose because I want her to be happy.

Also, feeling humiliated and frustrated over my long exile from the marriage bed, I would like to be free to love again.

Can you suggest a way in which I might discreetly "advertise" her availability? If successful, the golden years of three senior citizens might thus be substantially enriched.

SERIOUS IN LAGUNA BEACH, CALIF.

DEAR SERIOUS: If you're looking for a kindly, well-to-do, older gentleman who is no longer interested in sex, take an ad out in The Wall Street Journal.

DEAR ABBY: I live alone in very cramped quarters. I have no complaints until unexpected company drops by. Since I have no warning, I usually ask my guest to stand outside for a few minutes while I quickly tidy up my one room, which serves as living room, bedroom, den and eating area.

One guest said she thought this was very rude of me. What are my alternatives? I enjoy having company.

CRAMPED IN BURBANK

DEAR CRAMPED: (1) Keep your quarters tidy at all times in case unexpected company knocks on your door. (2) Open your door immediately and bear the embarrassment. (3) Continue to ask drop-ins to wait a few minutes while you rush around trying to make the place presentable.

(P.S. And tell the person who called you "rude" that she won't have to wait outside if she phones first.)

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the bride who invited 31 singles to her wedding and was furious when 14 accepted and indicated that they were bringing a "date." A wedding is a special occasion when the friends and family of the bride and groom gather to celebrate a joyous event. It is not a party for strangers.

Presumably, the single person is a friend of the bride or groom and will know most of the people there. But if the single person can't have a good time at a wedding without a date, then he or she should decline the invitation.

B. IN L.A.

DEAR B. Let's hear from a Canadian reader:

DEAR ABBY: The next wedding invitation I receive that does not include an escort, I will decline. Do you know how lonely it is to attend a wedding where the focus is on the happy couple, their happy parents and their many happily married friends? Couples, couples, couples! And there you are, all by yourself. Then some well-meaning relative says, "Next it's your turn to get married!" Believe me, Abby, rather than attend alone, I will stay home where I feel more comfortable.

ELIZABETH IN WINNIPEG

BLIND COMEDIAN—Alex Valdez, who bills himself as the only blind comedian in the nation says even blind people have to look at the bright side. "I've been blind since I was seven years old," he says. "It's okay. There are no car payments and I can shave in the dark." (AP Laserphoto)

Man says he is nation's only blind comedian

AUSTIN (AP) — Alex Valdez says even blind people have to look at the bright side. "I've been blind since I was seven years old," he said. "It's OK. So's justice. There's no car payments. And I can shave in the dark."

A 29-year-old Californian who bills himself as the only blind stand-up comedian in the nation, Valdez made a special appearance recently before an audience of 100 students of the Texas State School for the Blind.

The students seemed delighted with his offbeat sense of humor. They howled and applauded at every line. And, when he was through, they crowded around to shake his hand.

"Being Chicano helps," he said. "I learned to spray paint when I was a kid. In high school, I even got a job as a proofreader for the National Enquirer."

But the story that drew the loudest laughter was Valdez's recollection of the night he was playing a club date in Cincinnati and he accidentally fell off the stage.

"Let me explain," he said. "I used to throw sunglasses into the crowd. I'd say, 'It's time to get blind with Alex.' I tossed one last pair out, pivoted and lost the stage. I landed on a table in the front row. Later, I picked up the couple's tab because I spilled their drinks and everything. They were surprised. They said, 'We thought it was part of the act.'"

Not everybody takes Valdez's humor humorously.

"It's been a struggle, frankly," he told the students. "The first few years were very tough. I was banned from a couple of clubs in Los Angeles because the owner was uncomfortable with my handicap and my making fun of it. But the industry's changing. Doors are opening to us."

In seven years of professional work, he said, he's worked with comedian Robin Williams, been on NBC-TV's "Real People" and had a bit part in the Cheech & Chong movie "Nice Dreams."

He said he also has learned — with sighted help, of course — to fly an airplane and to drive a car.

"Ninety-five percent of the freeways built today," he said, "are set up especially for blind people. It's true. Those little strips on the road are Braille markers. All you have to do is drag your hand out the window."

But Valdez drew his longest applause with his closing remark.

"Remember," he said, "with strength, determination and dedication, there isn't anything in this world we can't do."

Competition scarce for aging horseshoe pitcher

CENTRALIA, Ill. (AP) — At 83, Henry Franke throws horseshoes the way younger folks throw parties — long, hard and with little modesty.

He says he's so good that he's been blackballed from at least 16 horseshoe tournaments.

Opponents say they don't want to play Franke because he throws the 2½-pound horseshoes from 30, rather than 40, feet, the required distance for most pitchers. In 1982, the National Horseshoe Pitchers Association said pitchers in 70-and-over age divisions could throw from 30 feet. Franke said the distance dispute was a coverup for the real reason pitchers won't play him: "They don't want to be beaten by an old man."

"The players," he said, "say that it bothers them and breaks their concentration when I walk up to the 30-foot line, pitch and then walk back to the pitching platforms. That is baloney."

Twenty world horseshoe championships have not made Franke modest.

"I can beat anyone in the world certain days," he said. "I sign so many autographs ... Really, I'm pretty popular."

During an interview, Franke, a member of the National Horseshoe Pitchers Association Hall of Fame, pointed to shelves of trophies lining the walls of his white frame house: "My son says I have over 400 trophies. It's closer to 500 than 400. And I have 82 gold, silver and bronze medals" from Senior Olympics competition.

Franke, who won 14 consecutive games, pitching 65.9 percent ringers, to win the 1983 world title in the 75-and-over division, said a tournament manager in Tremont was among those who let him compete. The catch: he had to lose all games.

Things went better in Cowden, where a manager told players they could go home if they didn't want to play Franke. Nobody went home. Franke played twice and won first both times.

Franke, who wears a white shirt with red letters saying, "Henry Franke, Centralia, Ill., 1982 World Horseshoe Champion," is more modest about his golf game.

"I shoot in the 90s," he said. "They call me Straight-Down-The-Middle Franke. I don't hit them so far, but I hardly ever hit them to the far left or the right."

Though most of his trophies and medals are for horseshoes, some are for other sports: bowling, tennis, jumping, swimming, running, shotput, discus throwing, basketball free throwing, for instance.

What's the secret to his success at horseshoes? "I practice more and ...

have a greater desire to win," he said.

The only place I can get competition is in the world horseshoe tournament, and then I win them all."

Marina Oswald sues over autopsy videotapes

DALLAS (AP) — Lee Harvey Oswald's widow has sued two Rockwall men over videotapes and photographs taken of the accused presidential assassin's exhumation and autopsy.

Marina Oswald Porter contends in the suit that she and British author Michael H.B. Eddowes paid the two to record the October 1981 exhumation and autopsy, but never received the tapes and photos.

The suit was filed against Hampton Hall and John Norman Collins Monday in state district court.

Mrs. Porter had Oswald's body exhumed to dispel Eddowes' theory that a Soviet spy was buried in Oswald's grave. An autopsy conducted by a team of pathologists at Baylor University Medical Center in Dallas concluded that the body exhumed was Oswald's.

Mrs. Porter contends that the recordings of the exhumation and autopsy are her property and are being kept illegally by Hall and Collins to be used for their benefit.

Oswald, accused of assassinating President John F. Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963, was shot to death by nightclub owner Jack Ruby two days later.

CHURCH BUSINESS—Greg Dishman, sales manager of International Seafoods of Gloucester, Mass., poses recently with a truck full of lobster ready to be shipped from the company's location in Gloucester. International Seafoods is owned and operated by members of Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church and their ownership of prime waterfront land still causes some resentment among the people. (AP Laserphoto)

Truce between Moonies and Gloucester

GLOUCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Moisture from tanks of lobster fogs the windows of Greg Dishman's office. Smiling serenely, Dishman takes an order over the phone and then explains that selling seafood is an act of faith.

"Reverend Moon believes the future belongs to people who can use the water," says Dishman, sales manager for International Seafoods Gloucester, a seafood packing house owned and operated by members of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church.

"Three-quarters of the Earth's surface is water. Therefore, the Lord must have intended for us to fish," Dishman said the controversy that has been simmering in Gloucester since the church began buying land and competing with local fish packers three years ago is abating.

"The color of our money is the same as anybody else's," he said. "It's a matter of growth. There may still be conflicts, but the more time we spend here, the more compatibility we find."

But while angry pickets no longer surround the fish packing house or the restaurant out front, some of the 27,000 residents in this historic port still resent the church's ownership of much of the town's prime waterfront property.

And local fishermen are angry that their prices are sometimes undercut.

"I'm concerned about what's going to happen to our workers — guys with four or five kids at home," said Michael Orlando, vice president of the Seafarers International Union.

"They can't compete with kids that work for nothing. They have enough money to stick around until our people are run out of business."

Behind the economic issue, says Orlando, is another concern.

"We really don't care what they do with their fish," he says. "It's our kids."

But Mayor Richard R. Silva said church members have made good on their pledge not to indoctrinate Gloucester youth.

"The church seems to have lived up to its promise not to recruit any local kids," said Silva. "As long as they operate the way they're operating now, they have a right to be here as much as anybody else."

Silva said townspeople no longer perceive church members as a threat.

"They seem to be at a point where they're no longer interested in more real estate," he said. "But they scared a lot of people a few years ago, to say the least."

In addition to land, the fish packing operation and a seafood restaurant called "New One," church members also own a house in town where some employees live and an oceanfront villa formerly owned by the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Boston.

Payment of taxes on the villa, purchased in 1981 for $1.1 million, was the center of a dispute between the church and the city. It was settled Jan. 2 when the church agreed to pay $25,000 annually in exchange for community services, Silva said.

Dishman said Moon intended to use the villa for seminars and religious retreats. A forbidding mansion on a rocky cliff, the villa is surrounded by 10-foot chain link fences and padlocked iron gates. Because of the dispute, it had remained empty except for a caretaker.

Dishman concedes church members are paid less than workers at competitors' plants, and frequently donate their earnings to the church.

"I receive a salary and I put some of it into a company fund, to save for when I have a family," Dishman said. "We're trying to be a viable business. I mean, if we want to donate to the church — everybody donates to their church — that's all right."

Dishman said he has no idea how much money the company makes. He said the parent company, International Oceanic Enterprises, also operates fish packing plants in Norfolk, Va., Bayou LaBatre, Ala., and Kodiak, Alaska.

Sandra Sinagra, 23, a waitress at the Boulevard Sweet Shop, said sentiment against the "moonies" has mellowed.

"I don't think the town will ever accept them," she said.

Case dismissed but no one told him

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jim J. Dukas, who works for the government, doesn't think much of the way government worked for him.

Dukas, a Customs Service patrol officer in South Texas, was prosecuted for fulfilling the requirements of a college course. He spent more than three years battling the charge. Finally the government decided to dismiss the case. And then it forgot to tell him about the dismissal.

"I completely understand why so many people are so critical of the bureaucrats," said Dukas. "Because this is the type of people I think I was victimized by."

Dukas, 35, of Brownsville, traces his problems to 1978, when he worked several weekends as a volunteer in the re-election campaign of Sen. John Tower, R-Texas.

The only reason Dukas volunteered was to fulfill a requirement for a college course in political parties he was taking at Pan American University. But in 1980, a government attorney decided to charge him with violating the Hatch Act, which bars federal employees from taking an "active part" in political campaigns.

During the next three years, Dukas fought the charge before the Merit Systems Protection Board, which rules in such cases. Dukas, who has five children, faced a 30-day suspension from his job, which he said would cost him about $2,300 in lost pay.

Finally, last Sept. 21, the board dismissed the charge.

But then, the board forgot to tell Dukas or his attorney about it.

"They were very zealous in the prosecution of me, up until the point of dismissal," said Dukas. "... For some reason, I got everything except the final dismissal letter."

Dukas said he didn't learn his case had been dismissed until mid-January, when his attorney, B. Craig Deats, happened to see the dismissal mentioned in a newspaper for federal employees.

"I called the board and said 'that's news to me,'" said Deats, of Austin. "I asked them to send me a copy of the order."

"It seems kind of unfair to keep (Dukas) worrying about the thing for four months when he didn't have to," said Deats.

Lon Anderson, a board spokesman, said Dukas and his attorney were not notified because "it looks like we had a clerical error here on our part."

However, Anderson said that "Dukas can't be too upset, because he won the case."

Dukas, however, said he still can't understand why he was prosecuted in the first place. He said, "To use an old cliché, they made a mountain out of a molehill."

Dukas worked between 10 and 20 hours for the Tower campaign, occasionally answering telephones in Tower's Brownsville office, helping in a voter identification survey and reminding Tower supporters to vote.

He wrote a college paper on his experience, for which he received an A.

But in July 1980, Dukas was charged with violating the Hatch Act, triggering a complex series of legal proceedings. At a hearing last June, an attorney for the Office of Personnel Management warned that if the merit board failed to suspend Dukas "we are in danger of creating a safe harbor, an academic safe harbor, from violations of the Hatch Act."

However, the board's special counsel, K. William O'Connor, who is responsible for prosecuting cases before the board, told board members the case had been initiated by one of his predecessors and "I can't see a reason why this case was prosecuted."

"I wouldn't have prosecuted it, frankly," he said.

In August, the board said that unless O'Connor objected it was prepared to consider dismissing the case. And in September the board acted, without addressing any of the issues raised in the proceedings.

Copies of the dismissal order went to 22 persons, including heads of various federal agencies and a host of attorneys — but none to Dukas and none to Deats.

Deats said, "It was the only piece of paper in the whole case I didn't get."

"I literally still felt I was on the hot seat," Dukas said. "The whole process seems to be fouled up."

Pampa clinches district title with 57-38 rout of Borger

By L.D. STRATE
News Sports Editor
BORGER—During pre-game introductions in Tuesday night's Pampa-Borger District 1-4A clash, many Borger fans stuck newspapers in front of their faces to show their indifference when the Harvester players were introduced.

Today, those same fans can read about how their Bulldogs were routed by Pampa, 57-38, giving the Harvesters the District 1-4A championship. "Our depth and switching defenses made the difference," said Pampa Head Coach Garland Nichols. "I went back and looked at our film two years ago of the state tournament game with El Paso. They were a lot like Borger, walking the ball down and playing it real slow. "I used some of that strategy against Borger."

Pampa remains unbeaten in district play at 11-0 and improved its overall record to 21-5. Borger fell to 10-14 and 7-4, but are still tied for second place in the loop standings and could possibly meet Pampa again in the post-season playoffs.

"It looks like we'll play either Andrews or Sweetwater in bi-district," Nichols said. "I'm predicting Andrews."

It was sweet revenge for the Harvesters, who lost three times to the defending district champion Bulldogs a year ago.

Pampa trailed only once (8-6 in the first quarter), but were never able to gain more than a nine-point lead until the fourth quarter. That's when Pampa ran off eight consecutive points, four by Marty Cross, and outscored Borger, 19-8.

Randy Harris gave Pampa its first goal of the fourth quarter when he rebounded a missed shot, making it 40-30 with 6:50 to go.

"When we got that lead, we made them play our game," said Nichols. "They were forced to come out of their zone and play us man to man or we would have sit on the ball the rest of the night."

The Harvesters hit eight of 12 field goal attempts down the stretch while the Bulldogs went cold, hitting only three of 14 tries. Borger also missed six foul shots in the final period.

"I was just really pleased with our defense," Nichols said. "We looked good in all phases except blocking off on the boards. It was just a real physical game."

Coyle Winborn, who set up easy baskets for his teammates with some sharp passes in the first half, starting going to the basket more in the second half and finished with 14 points. Winborn also collected 13 rebounds to give Pampa a 32-26 rebounding advantage.

Rodney Young added eleven points for the Harvesters while Harris and Gaylon Faggins added eight and seven points respectively.

Terry Witcher and Wayne Dickson had 10 each for the Bulldogs.

Pampa has three district games left and will host Brownfield Friday night in the final home game.

"This is the first time in five years I've been able to breathe easy with some games left," Nichols said. "The kids can go out now and play hard, but without any pressure. They want to go 14-0 in district."

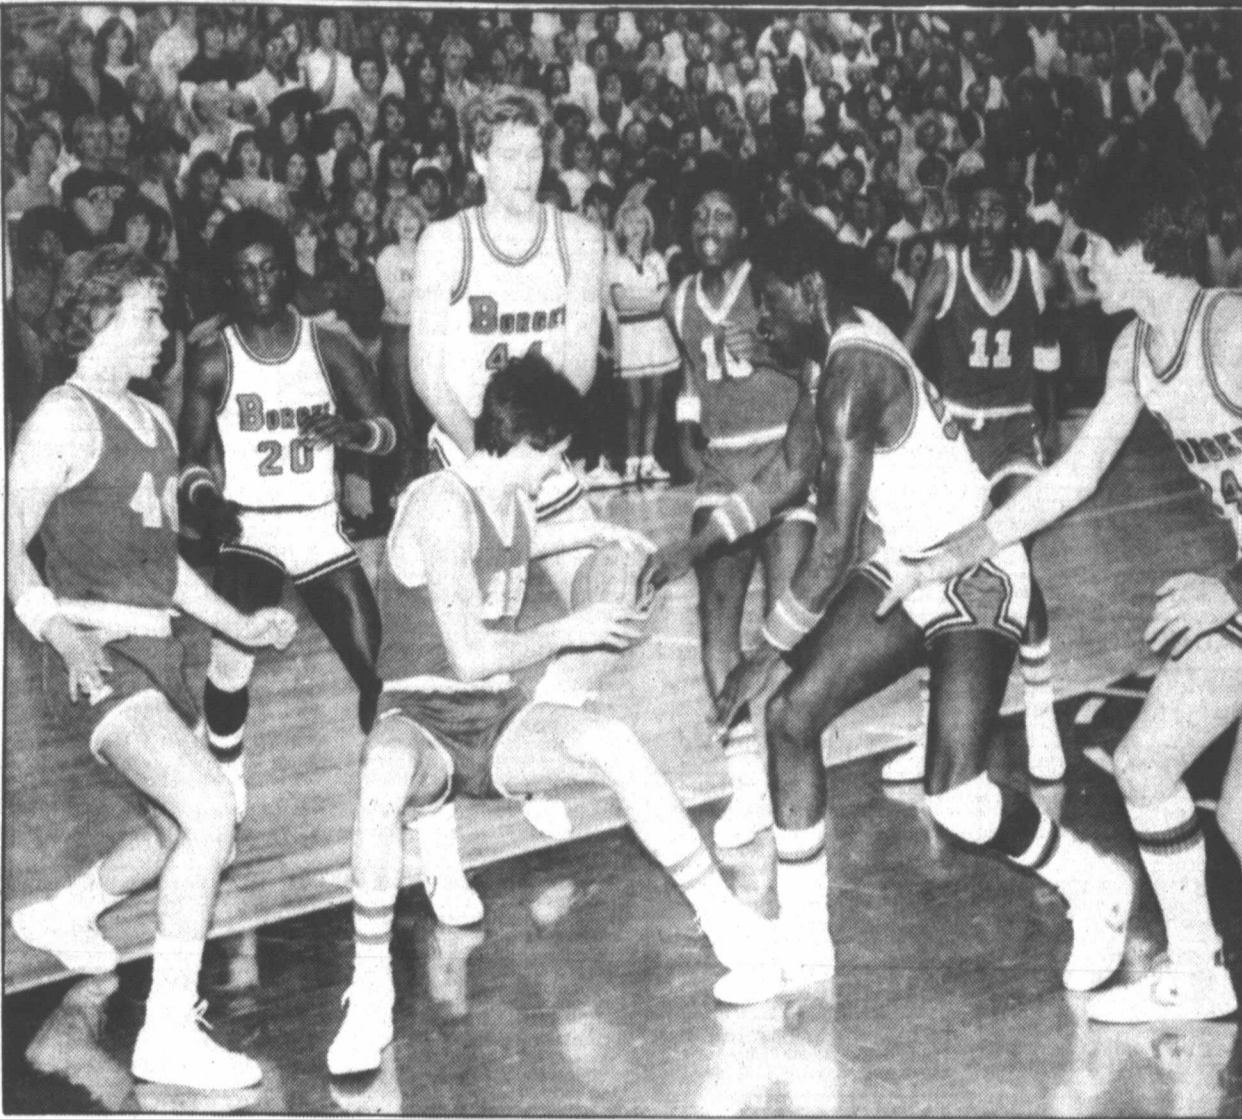

Nichols has now won four district titles in five years at Pampa.

while Pampa's Rodney Young (10) and Al Buchanan (11) close in on the action. Winborn scored 14 points and ripped off 13 rebounds as Pampa clinched the district title with a 57-38 win last night in Borger High's new gym. (Staff Photo by L.D. Strate)

College Basketball roundup

Blue Demons upset by St. John's

It was the best of times for the St. Joseph's Hawks and the worst of times for the DePaul Blue Demons.

"We've played a lot of games, but I've never seen us shoot 14 for 54 before," DePaul Coach Ray Meyer said after his second-ranked basketball team was upset 58-45 by St. Joseph's (Pa.) Tuesday night.

Losing to St. Joseph's is getting to be a bad habit for DePaul. The Blue Demons were knocked out of the 1981 NCAA playoffs by the Hawks in one of the biggest upsets of the tournament.

St. Joseph's Coach Jim Boyle described Tuesday night's upset over the previously unbeaten Blue Demons as the greatest victory of his college coaching career.

"I think our defense was the cause of their poor shooting," Boyle said, noting DePaul's 25.9 per cent from the field.

In the only other game involving a ranked team, Virginia crushed No. 18 Georgia Tech 91-59. Top Twenty

The Hawks broke the game open by scoring 13 straight points early in the second half, turning a 27-23 lead into 40-23. DePaul went more than six minutes without a field goal during the Hawks' rally, shooting 0-7 from the field.

The closest DePaul got thereafter, as the Blue Demons went down to their first loss in 18 games, was nine points with 3:29 remaining in the game. But St. Joseph's then boosted its lead to 50-37 and never led by fewer than 11 the rest of the way.

Tony Costner scored 18 points and Bob Lojewski had 13 to pace the offense for St. Joseph's, which won for the 15th time in 19 games.

Rick Carlisle scored 18 points and Othell Wilson contributed 16 points and 11 assists as Virginia snapped a four-game losing streak by routing Georgia Tech. The Cavaliers built a 15-point halftime lead at 39-24 and never looked back.

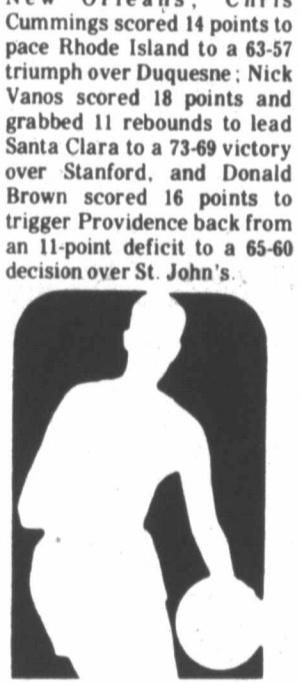

Tim Mullen added a season-high 15 points, and Jim Miller and Olden Polynice tallied 14 and 10, respectively, in the balanced Cavalier offense. The loss was the worst for the Yellow Jackets since a 96-67 thrashing at the hands of Virginia in the ACC tournament last season. It was the 17th straight Atlantic Coast Conference road loss for Georgia Tech. Others

In other action, Arnie Russell scored 24 points and collected 10 rebounds and Gary Springer added 20 points as Iona routed Manhattan 82-59; Bob Bamford scored 16 points as Colgate defeated Canisius 69-62 to snap a 14-game ECAC North Atlantic Conference losing streak; Mark Davis and Keith Thomas each scored four points in the last 32 seconds as Old Dominion held on for a 79-71 victory over UNC-Charlotte; Roosevelt Chapman collected 20 points as Dayton downed Creighton 79-64 and Pat Elzie scored 15 points and grabbed 13 rebounds, leading Holy Cross to an 83-61 win over New Hampshire.

Also, Terry Catledge scored 22 points and paced a second-half comeback to lift

South Alabama to an 81-74 victory over the University of New Orleans; Chris Cummings scored 14 points to pace Rhode Island to a 63-57 triumph over Duquesne; Nick Vanos scored 18 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to lead Santa Clara to a 73-69 victory over Stanford, and Donald Brown scored 16 points to trigger Providence back from an 11-point deficit to a 65-60 decision over St. John's.

Lady Harvesters fall to Borger girls, 41-38

Borger rallied in the second half to defeat Pampa's Lady Harvesters, 41-38, Tuesday night in District 1-4A girls' game.

Pampa is now 1-12 in district play and 3-19 overall with one game to go. Borger is 5-8 and 8-16.

Pampa led by Rebekkah Guenther's sharpshooting, was in command for most of the first half. Miss Guenther hit four consecutive shots from the 15-foot range, including one at the buzzer to give Pampa a 30-23 lead at halftime.

However, Borger deadlocked the score at 33-33 after three quarters and took over the lead in the closing minutes.

Shelley Dahn led Lady Bulldogs with 12 points while Danyale Burse followed with 10.

Kerri Richardson was Pampa's only other double-digit scorer with 12 points. Also scoring for Pampa were Melissa Nichols with five, Stephanie Smith four and Lisa Crayton three.

The Lady Harvesters close out against Brownfield Friday night in McNeely Fieldhouse.

Pampa did win the junior varsity girls' contest, 45-30. Sandy Greenway led Pampa JVs with 15 points, followed by Melanie Morgan with 11.

Pampa JVs are now 6-7 in district action and 8-12 overall. They will try and finish .500 in district play this Friday against Brownfield.

"It's been a long time since a Pampa JV team has broke even in district," said Coach Phil Hall. "It's something we set out to achieve this season."

Canadian girls wrap up playoff position

DALHART—Canadian girls wrapped up a playoff spot Tuesday night with a 42-39 District 1-3A win over Dalhart.

With a win over River Road Friday night, the Lady Wildcats can become the first girls' basketball team in school history to win back-to-back district titles. A year ago, Canadian won its first district girls' championship in 49 years.

The Lady Wildcats, now 6-1 in loop play and 16-4 overall, had to hold off Dalhart in the closing seconds for the all-important victory.

"We made 15 turnovers to their 26," said Canadian Head Coach Steve Zurline. "That was big key to the game." Melinda Vanhoozer led

Congressional leaders glad marines are leaving

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate leaders of both parties are expressing relief that President Reagan ordered the U.S. Marines in Lebanon shifted to Navy ships offshore, but some critics pressed for a complete withdrawal of all American military forces from the area.

"Moving them to the ships is not far enough. I want to move them all the way home," said conservative Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

Asked if the United States would suffer in the Middle East, Goldwater recalled the Vietnam War and said, "I would rather lose a little face than half a million men."

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. was more restrained, saying now that there is full civil war in Lebanon, "the Marines are no longer serving a useful military or diplomatic purpose."

With the situation now changed, Baker said, the withdrawal to the ships "was the only prudent reply given the circumstances. The alternative is to increase the military presence there, and that would not be wise."

Baker said the administration's tentative plan is to move 500 Marines immediately, and transfer the rest over the next month, leaving 50 troops to guard the U.S. Embassy in Beirut.

Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, called the president's action prudent.

"Our diplomatic efforts should now be further intensified in order to seek progress towards a peaceful resolution of the problems of Lebanon. There is little reason for optimism, but we can do no less than our best," he said.

Percy said his committee would be meeting today with administration representatives to discuss the next steps.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said he hopes the withdrawal moves quickly.

And he added: "I am very sad at the way things have developed in Lebanon.... While I and others acquiesced in the decision, it became clear some time ago that the president's policy was wrong from the beginning."

Last September, O'Neill accepted and Congress approved a compromise War Powers Resolution which permitted Reagan to keep the Marines in Lebanon until April 1985.

But that was before the truck-bombing which killed 241 U.S. servicemen, and the continued heavy fighting among religious factions which O'Neill said demonstrated that the administration failed to anticipate how hard it would be to unify Lebanon.

Another persistent critic of the administration policy, Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., said, "The president is right to remove the Marines... it's obvious... that his policy has failed."

In the House, Rep. Ike Skelton, R-Mo., praised the decision but in a reference to the truck bombing and other Marine casualties said, it "comes over 200 deaths too late."

Withdrawal comes to late for relatives of some of the 264

By DANA FIELDS
Associated Press Writer

Families of U.S. Marines expressed relief at President Reagan's decision to shift the Beirut peacekeeping force to ships offshore, but bitterness marked the reaction of some whose sons and husbands were among the 264 American servicemen killed in Lebanon.

"We're not doing any good there. It's not our war," Rebecca Stephens of Beacon, N.Y., whose son survived the terrorist bombing Oct. 23 at the Marine's Beirut airport compound, said Tuesday.

She said she hoped the forthcoming shift of the 1,600 Marines was a signal that her son, Cpl. Matthew Stephens, won't be shipped back from Camp Lejeune, N.C. But she acknowledged that he "feels differently. If they sent him back, he'd go. He says it's his duty."

Some of those who have lost family members in Lebanon, like the wife of the late Marine Sgt. Tandy Wells, said they bore Reagan no grudge for having waited to order the redeployment.

"I was glad to hear he took the Marines out of Beirut and put them on the ships, but I don't think it means we have to quit," said Cleta Wells, 42, of Jacksonville, N.C., the site of Camp Lejeune.

Her husband died with 240 other servicemen in the attack on Marine headquarters, "but the situation wasn't then like it is now. Of course I would always wish something would have happened so... (her husband) wouldn't have had to give his life. But my husband died for what he believed."

Marine Lance Cpl. Kevin Miller is still in Beirut and his mother, Beverly Miller of Avoca, N.Y., said she was glad to hear Reagan's decision. "It's a worry. Every time one of the Marines over there is injured or killed, you don't hear anything and you just sit and worry."

"I just thank God he's (Reagan's) doing something," said Mrs. Thomas Lancia of Webster, N.Y., whose son Jeffrey has completed one tour in the ravaged Middle Eastern capital and could be sent back in July or August.

"We're just praying they're out of there by summer."

But for Patricia Smith of Port Huron, Mich., mother of the late Marine Sgt. Michael Massman, Reagan's decision is too late.

"If he takes them out of there, what did all these boys die for?" said Mrs. Smith, whose son died in the terrorist bombing. Vera Brown of Detroit, mother of another victim of the suicide-bombing, also expressed bitterness.

"Little by little, they're being wounded and killed, and for what?" said Mrs. Brown, mother of the late Marine Sgt. Anthony K. Brown. "I lost mine, and I hate to see these families and parents go through what we went through."

"I am not a military person. I can only go by what my president says is necessary," said Arlene Lange, the mother of Navy Lt. Mark A. Lange, killed during a December air raid over Lebanon. "He knows an awful lot more than you or I, or these Monday-morning quarterbacks."

"Politics have no place with life on the line. There really isn't any point in speculating," she said.

"My son was over there because he was a professional Marine officer," said Walter Wint Sr. of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., the father of Capt. Walter Wint Jr., who died in the blast at the compound. "I don't question what the president does."

Harold Macmillan is 90 this Friday

LONDON (AP) — Nearly 90, Harold Macmillan still works his magic on Britain, brightening up bleak times with memories of a bygone glittering age.

The former prime minister has been out of politics for nearly 21 years, and he rarely appears in public. His health, says a secretary, is good, but his eyesight is fading and he will pass his 90th birthday quietly Friday.

Just to look at him is to be reminded of another time. The patrician face, the sage, drooping eyes, the white hair swept back grandly at the temples, the mustache that seems to reinforce the stiffest of upper lips — all these seem to embody a lost golden age of grandeur and empire.

Critics contend that it was all an adroit political pose, and indeed, Macmillan the prime minister was a bundle of paradoxes.

He presided over the breakup of the British Empire while seeming to stand for everything it represented.

In the heyday of his 1957-1963 premiership, an adoring press dubbed him "SuperMac," "WonderMac" and "Unflappable Uncle Harold," and he played the role to the hilt.

"Everybody seems slightly pompous to me now," he recently told a newspaper. "You must make good fun of life. You must make the best of it. Even in war we had a lot of jokes and fun. Even if there are troubles and difficulties, laugh them off and pray to God for help."

Macmillan was at the forefront of Western efforts to limit the spread of nuclear weapons, and staunchly backed President John F. Kennedy in his confrontation with the Soviet Union during the Cuban missile crisis of 1962.

Macmillan came to office in January 1957 with Britain reeling from the catastrophic British-French-Israeli invasion of Suez in 1956 and the resignation of Prime Minister Anthony Eden. His first move was to pin a sign on his door with a line from a Gilbert and Sullivan opera: "Quiet, calm deliberation disintegrates every knot."

His administration, one of the longest in modern British history, brought prosperity and the welfare system to its peak and set the stage for the delights of swinging London and the Beatles. But it was marred by strife inside the Cabinet and a succession of scandals, climaxing in 1963 with the Profumo Affair, in which War Minister John Profumo was discovered to be sharing a prostitute with a Soviet military attaché.

Macmillan resisted pressure to resign, and stepped down on

Social Security rolls leaping upwards again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Social Security rolls, after dropping two years ago due to the elimination of some benefits and a disability crackdown, are growing again and hit an all-time high in January.

James Brown, spokesman for the Social Security Administration, said 36,182,998 retired or disabled workers and their families received benefits in January. That was about 22,000 more beneficiaries than in March 1982, when the previous record was set.

The number of beneficiaries had soared upward without interruption every year from 1940, when the first 222,488 people began drawing monthly Social Security checks.

But after hitting 36,161,000 in March 1982, the rolls began contracting as the system felt the impact of changes that the Reagan administration and Congress made in 1981, as well as the sweeping disability reviews launched that year.

The lawmakers ordered a phase-out of Social Security benefits for college students ages 18 to 22, who used to draw regular dependents' benefits if they had a parent who was retired, disabled or deceased. Students' benefits also were halted for the first time in the summer months.

Another change adopted in 1981 led to a cutoff of benefits for widowed mothers when their youngest child turned 16 instead of 18. Widows without children in their care must wait to age 60 to draw benefits, or 50 if they are disabled.

In January 1981, before the congressionally-ordered disability reviews began, 2,857,331 disabled workers were drawing tax-free monthly checks. A million had their eligibility checked over the next 2 1/2 years and 45 percent were told they were fit to work.

Many managed to keep their benefits on appeal. Counting those workers awarded disability for the first time, the number of disabled worker beneficiaries dropped to 2,571,727 by April 1983 — a reduction of 285,604. There has been little change in that figure since then.

The total number of beneficiaries dipped to 35,278,027 in August 1982 — down by nearly 900,000 in five months. But then it began building back up, with some monthly fluctuations, to the current all-time high.

Brown said Social Security's actuaries expect the number to swell to 36.4 million by June. The Reagan administration fiscal 1985 budget projects further growth to nearly 37 million next year.

"It's due to the greying of America," said Brown, referring to the nation's gradually rising median age.

The cost of Social Security's retirement and disability programs is expected to rise from $179.8 billion this year to $191.3 billion next year.

But the administration says that thanks to higher payroll taxes, a tax on half of some retirees' benefits starting in 1984 and a six-month delay in last July's cost-of-living increase, Social Security's trust funds actually will increase by $11 billion in 1985.

Plane crash victims identified

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico (AP) — Two victims of the crash of an eight-seat plane in the mountains near here have been identified.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman identified the pilot as Chris Allen and a second victim as Vernon Pellow.

The spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said Pellow was from Oklahoma City. He said Allen's hometown was not known.

Oct. 10, 1963, only after being hospitalized with a severe prostate affliction. Three years later his wife, Lady Dorothy, died.

Since then he has written memoirs and still presides over the prosperous family publishing house.

In his old age, even the approach of death is to be joked about. He calls 90 "an absurd old age." And to invitations to official functions, "I tell them that I'd like to come, but I'll probably be dead."
