

RODEO CLOWN Texas Bill Thorpe of Florida will perform at the 96th Annual Fourth of July Celebration and Rodeo through Wednesday in Canadian. Thorpe and his 1,000 Brahma steer, Cajun, will be one of the featured attractions. The rodeo begins at 8 o'clock tonight.

Area residents who want to celebrate the Fourth of July will have to be content with family get-togethers or go elsewhere for their fireworks displays. Tight funding and hometown celebrations prompted many area towns to forego spectacular Independence Day observances.

Canadian, however, will spend three days honoring American Independence with its 96th annual Rodeo and Fourth of July celebration, which begins with a rodeo at 8 p.m. today at the Rodeo Grounds. The rodeo will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday and at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

The rodeo, which dates from 1888 and lays claim to having been the first amateur rodeo anywhere, will feature saddle bronc riding, bareback riding, bull riding, bulldogging, calf roping and girl's barrel racing. An added feature this year will be a wild cow milking contest for teams of three "white collar businessmen."

On Wednesday, Canadian's Independence Day festivities begin with a parade at 9 a.m. The parade is followed at 11 a.m. with a contest at the Hemphill County Courthouse to "Find a Girl with Skool Between Her Teeth." A spokesperson with the Canadian Chamber of Commerce explained that the contest is a take-off on a recent country-western song about a man who met a girl in Canadian with skool between her teeth.

"The girls don't have to really have skool," she said. "They just have to find a girl most likely to dip snuff."

After the "snuff-dipping girl" is found, the Canadian Rodeo Association will serve a barbecue lunch at the Courthouse. Tickets purchased for the barbecue may also be used for the rodeo. Afternoon activities, which will begin at 3 p.m., include a hot dog feed and concerts by local bands.

The City of Canadian and the Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor the annual fireworks display at approximately 9:30 p.m. at the City Park.

The only other area Independence Day celebration will be a day-long observance in Panhandle. According to Panhandle city manager Larry Gilley, city churches will sponsor the celebration, which begins at 8 a.m. with a Sun Run marathon race. A Main Street Parade will be at 9:30 a.m., followed by Independence Day Ceremonies at the Carson County Courthouse at 10:15. Contests will be held throughout the afternoon, with the Miss Carson County Contest slated for 3 p.m.

The Panhandle Country Club will have a fireworks display at nightfall.

"Our big celebration of the year is always on the fourth," Gilley said.

White Deer will honor the Fourth by allowing area residents to shoot fireworks at the city community center from 9 p.m. to 11 p.m. Wednesday.

Other area towns, including Pampa, Mobeetie, Miami, McLean and Shamrock, have their own celebrations at other times. Pampa, which will host the Top O'Texas Rodeo later this month, hasn't celebrated Independence Day for several years.

"We just didn't have the funding to do it," said Pampa Chamber of Commerce manager Floyd Sackett. "We'd spend $8,000 to $10,000 on the displays, but the turn-out was always so small. People would go to Lake Meredith or Amarillo."

Sackett and a spokesperson for the Shamrock Chamber of Commerce said there might be July 4th celebrations for the Texas Sesquicentennial in 1985.

Senate considers hike in sales tax

AUSTIN (AP) — The chairman of the Senate tax-writing committee seemed confident that his colleagues would accept a late shift in tactics and raise the state sales tax from 4 percent to 4.25 percent.

Chairman Grant Jones of the Finance Committee announced just before the Senate adjourned Sunday that he was preparing a substitute for the three-year, $4.9 billion measure that cleared the House on Saturday.

The tax bill would be the first major increase in 13 years, and would be used to upgrade the Texas highway system and pay for school reforms adopted by the Legislature on Saturday.

Jones' plan would reinstate sales tax exemptions on newspaper and broadcasting advertising as well as repairs on tangible property, such as autos, and real property, such as a person's home. The House bill had eliminated those exemptions.

Jones, D-Abilene, said the tax income from his proposal over three years would be about the same as the House bill.

His announcement on the proposed substitute apparently caught some senators by surprise, but others said they had been working with House leaders to come up with a compromise.

Only two days remain in the special session, which was called by Gov. Mark White, and the governor seems on the brink of what could be a spectacular legislative victory. Many political observers thought the Legislature would never enact school reform and a large tax bill in a 30-day session.

Filibusters still were a threat in the Senate, but even if opponents of taxes ran out the clock to midnight Tuesday, White could call legislators right back into session.

On Sunday, Jones was asked if a Senate majority would favor his plan, and he said, "I think there will be."

Asked how the House felt about the proposal, Jones said, "I think there's an excellent chance for concurrence."

The House-approved tax bill cleared the Finance Committee 12-1, with only Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texas, voting against it. No amendments were offered, because Jones said, "There's no sense in getting into a wrestling match here."

Jones said he understood a "whole series of amendments" would be offered on the floor.

One obstacle fell Sunday when the Senate voted 27-2 to suspend a rule that would have enabled a single senator to hold up a tax vote for 48 hours.

White was asked about the House tax bill, and he said, "I've been very, very careful and watchful of how they're doing this. It's not my plan but it's a plan that will raise the necessary revenue, and that's important." White proposed a 1-cent sales tax increase.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who presides over the Senate, said, "Any proposal that raises the money necessary to pay for the education program now passed by both houses is dandy."

It was estimated that a one-quarter cent increase in the sales tax would bring in $180 million a year.

Jones' bill presumably would retain certain provisions in the House bill, such as increasing the motor fuel tax from 5 cents to 10 cents a gallon and raising motor vehicle registration fees by $25 over the next three years. Some sales tax exemptions would be eliminated, and the bill would raise taxes on liquor, beer and wine. The corporate franchise tax also would go up, and banks would be required to pay the tax.

Awaiting White's signature is the education bill, which tracked many recommendations of H. Ross Perot's Select Committee on Public Education.

The overhaul of Texas' public education system would establish seven-hour school days, with few interruptions; limit class sizes in the earlier grades; restrict absences; provide voluntary pre-kindergarten classes; set up tutoring programs.

Demos favor Ferraro over Hart for VP

WASHINGTON (AP) — Delegates to the Democratic National Convention pick Rep. Geraldine Ferraro far more than any other candidate as their favorite for the No. 2 spot on the party's ticket, according to an Associated Press survey.

Nearly 3,000 delegates were surveyed, and of those who disclosed their preferences for vice president, a majority expressed interest in having a woman chosen for the first time in U.S. history.

Ms. Ferraro, 48, a former prosecutor in Queens, N.Y., who chairs the Democratic Platform Committee, was being interviewed today for the job by Walter F. Mondale, who appears to have more than enough delegates himself to lock up the presidential nomination at the convention that opens in San Francisco in a fortnight.

Mondale told a National Organization for Women convention in Miami Beach on Saturday that if he chooses a woman "it will be because she is the best." He has been urged to choose a woman not only by feminists, but by such male party chieftains as House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and New York Gov. Mario Cuomo.

Nearly 3,000 of the 3,933 delegates have responded thus far to the AP survey on vice presidential preference and other questions.

Of the 1,640 who stated a vice presidential preference, Ms. Ferraro was singled out by 360, or 22 percent.

In addition, several dozen delegates who named two or, in some cases, three choices listed

Ms. Ferraro among them.

There was no prompting in the survey, conducted by telephone and in person by AP correspondents in all 50 states. The delegates were not given any names to pick from. They were simply asked: "If your favorite candidate wins, who would you like to see as his vice presidential running mate?"

Drugs are a constant problem in most communities, and Pampa is no exception.

This week Pampa Crime Stoppers will focus on drug trafficking in our community and ask citizen cooperation in combating this continuing problem.

Many people make a living solely by trafficking in drugs, whether it is transporting, distributing, dealing at the street level, or manufacturing the drugs. At best, it is extremely difficult to construct a good case against the dealers of drugs and requires a great deal of law enforcement hours to make a case that is presentable enough to go to trial. Because of this difficulty in making a case, the cooperation from citizens is a must in combating the drug problems.

The board of directors of Crime Stoppers urges anyone having information about drug usage or trafficking to report it immediately.

Crime Stoppers will pay $500 for information leading to the arrest and indictment of persons manufacturing drugs in our community. Rewards are available for information about other criminal activity. Call Crime Stoppers at 649-2222.

Carver school exes making plans for reunion this week

Former students of Carver School will begin activities for their second reunion Thursday night, with other events scheduled through Sunday.

Members of the reunion committee are finalizing plans for the event, billed as the Second Time Around Carver All-School Reunion. About 300 invitations have been sent out.

The reunion is for anyone who ever attended Carver School from its opening in 1949 until its closing when it became the center for offices for the Pampa Independent School District.

A youth dance will be held at 9 p.m. Thursday at the Southside Senior Citizens Building, replacing the cancelled Miss Black Pampa Pageant, according to Joyce Holt, committee chairman.

Registration will begin at 3 p.m. Friday at the Southside Senior Citizens Building. Plays and skits on ex-Carver highlights will begin at 7 p.m. at Lamar Elementary School, followed by a cocktail hour at the M. K. Brown Auditorium.

An ex-Carver student parade will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday, traveling south on Cuyler St. to Brown St., turning right to Gray St., then down Gray to Carver Center.

Any ex-Carver student may ride in the parade in decorated cars, trucks and other vehicles. Drivers and owners are responsible for decorating the vehicles, Holt reminded parade participants.

Parade participants are asked to be at Central Park at 8 a.m. Saturday for parade lineup.

Following the parade, a softball game and all-family picnic will be held at the Marcus Sanders Park.

An Ex-Students Grand Ball will be held Saturday night in the M. K.

Brown Auditorium's Heritage Room, beginning at 9 p.m.

The reunion activities will conclude with farewell church services at noon Sunday in the Marcus Sanders Park.

The first reunion for Carver students was held two years ago. It was deemed such a success that plans were made for a second reunion this year, Holt said. The next reunion, though, probably won't be held for another eight to 10 years, she said.

Persons who may not yet have been contacted about the reunion and still want to attend should contact any committee member as soon as possible, she said.

Special reunion T-shirts will be available for purchase during the activities.

Former students are expected to attend the events from throughout the United States.

Reagan presses arms talks during dinner with Soviet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, trying to entice the Kremlin to discuss resuming nuclear arms talks, apparently pressed his case with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin, but both sides remained tight-lipped about what was said.

Dobrynin, the dean of the diplomatic corps, was seated between Reagan and Secretary of State George P. Shultz during the dinner Sunday night in honor of the diplomatic corps in the East Room.

Despite the presence of other guests at the president's round table, the three men engaged in animated conversation throughout the meal, laughing often.

Earlier, while Reagan was greeting his guests outdoors on a hot, muggy night, Shultz and Dobrynin huddled together in a secluded corner of the Green Room, away from the other 380 guests, deep in private conversation.

The talk looked serious and intense, in contrast to the jovial mood at the dinner table, but there was no confirmation later that Shultz had indeed brought up the latest Soviet offer to discuss negotiating a ban on space weapons in Vienna in September.

Earlier, a White House official had told The Associated Press that Reagan was going to the barbecue prepared to explain that the United States was agreeing to Moscow's offer to discuss a ban on space weapons.

Bentsen denies he's in race

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, says he's not interested in the vice presidency even though the talked to Walter Mondale about the job.

"I'm not seeking the job. I'm not campaigning for it," Bentsen said Saturday. "I've got some kind and generous friends who recommended me to Walter Mondale, but I really don't expect to be on the ticket."

Speaking informally to reporters before the start of a Mississippi Democratic Party fund-raising dinner, Bentsen talked about the national debt, illegal aliens and Ronald Reagan as well as the vice presidency.

But he made clear that besides coming to Jackson to help the Democratic Party, he also came to help William Winter's candidacy for the U.S. Senate.

"He's got a great record as governor," Bentsen said. "He's done so much for education in this state, and in that, he's a national leader."

Police accept applications

The Pampa Police Department will give written tests to applicants who want to join the force at 9 a.m. Tues., July 17.

Capt. Roy Denman said people who want to take the police department's test should see him about filling out a job application before the July 17 tests.

Denman said the two-part test in writing skills and reading comprehension will take about three or four hours to complete.

The department's stated hiring policy doesn't discriminate against race, color, creed, sex or national origin.

Applicants who want to join the police force must meet requirements that include age, 21 to 45 years old; corrected 20-20 vision; height-weight ratios; good health and pass a physical; 24 hours college credit (the college credits may be obtained within two

"His reputation precedes him, and he will be very influential in the Senate from the day he gets there," Bentsen added.

The Texas senator, who is chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, played a role in convincing Winter earlier this year to enter the race against the Republican incumbent, Thad Cochran. The committee is making a strong push this year to cut down or eliminate the 55-45 Republican advantage in the Senate, and the Winter candidacy is considered a crucial one.

Bentsen admitted that Winter has raised less money than Cochran. But, he said, "that's happened before and the Democrat still has won."

On the issue of the vice presidency, Bentsen discounted the idea that his moderate-to-conservative voting record and his Southern background would give the Mondale candidacy the oomph it needs to beat Reagan.

years after employment); must be of good moral character and pass a background check; must pass the written exam and oral board tests; and must take a polygraph test if the applicant lives outside the area.

New patrolmen will start at a salary of $1,264 per month, progressing to $1,327 in six months; $1,393 in 12 months; and $1,463 in 18 months.

In addition, officers receive salary supplements for completed education, including $75 per month for an associate degree, $100 per month for a bachelor's degree, or $1 per month for each college hour completed, up to $60 per month.

The Pampa Police Department furnishes uniforms, offers insurance, a credit union and a retirement program.

For more information, call Capt. Denman at 669-7407.

He said that he expects Mondale to choose Colorado Sen. Gary Hart for the No. 2 spot.

Winter, who stood next to Bentsen at the podium, said he would support a female vice presidential nominee "as enthusiastically as I would support a ticket with a man as vice president."

Winter also said that if he "had his druthers, I would prefer that the vice presidential candidate be from the South."

Asked what he considered to be the major issue in the upcoming presidential campaign, Bentsen said the national debt. He added that he disagreed with "political pundits who say the deficit is not important to the American people."

"It took all the presidents from George Washington to Jimmy Carter to get the deficit up to $1 trillion," Bentsen said. "And it's taken this president to increase that deficit by 50 percent."

He also said that he believes the Democrats will pick up votes from some traditionally Republican farmers because of "the devastation of the farm aid program by the Reagan administration. The delinquency rate on farmers' loans in Mississippi is 40 percent," he said.

"The farmers are fed up with what has been done to the farm program."

Bentsen said he voted for the Senate bill that gives amnesty to aliens already in the U.S. but limits future immigration.

"You have to look at the alternative of not having any controls," he said. "Half of the people of the world would move here tomorrow if they could. But we have an obligation to our own people first."

And on the issue of Reagan, Bentsen said he, like the president, supports increases in defense spending and reductions in taxes.

"But this administration has gone to excesses," the senator said.

Volunteers fight heat, time to lay water pipe

NEWCASTLE, Texas (AP) — Volunteer workers from three counties battled the heat and time as they worked through the weekend on a water pipe that would transport water seven miles from Lake Graham to this thirty North Texas town.

Newcastle faces the immediate prospect of running out of water. The second of two lakes used for the town's water supply will be dry by Wednesday, officials estimate.

"We've got to have it done by Wednesday. We're out of water then," said Ted Creason, one of the volunteers who worked on the 200-pound, 20-foot long segments of iron pipe.

Newcastle, located about 100 miles northwest of Fort Worth, usually uses water from two municipal lakes, but one of them went dry six months ago and the other has a depth of less than two feet.

Creason and Doris Maxwell, wife of Newcastle Mayor R.B. Maxwell, each have a way of describing conditions at the nearly dry lake.

"You could throw a rock across the lake now," said Creason.

"You could walk across it," said Mrs. Maxwell.

City officials from Graham and Newcastle worked out an agreement last Thursday that would permit Newcastle to buy a year's supply of water from Lake Graham.

The volunteers began work

Friday and others joined Saturday and worked into the night.

The 700 residents of Newcastle have purchased jugs of bottled water from grocery stores and stocked up on water from Lake Graham at special hydrants in Graham.

Most of the community worked Saturday either at the pipeline site or in a kitchen fixing lunch and dinner for the volunteers.

The water problems have been brought on by prolonged drought conditions. Residents can't recall the last good rain.

Mrs. Maxwell said no one had to wait for the city to order a ban on non-essential uses of water.

"People just took it on their own," said Mrs. Maxwell. "They just automatically quit watering. They were real cooperative."

Permanent solutions to Newcastle's water problems are being discussed. Some residents want to buy water from a rural cooperative and others hope the city can make it on its own.

Triple-slaying trial continues in Waco

WACO, Texas (AP) — The capital murder trial of David Wayne Spence, charged in the slayings of three teen-agers near Lake Waco two years ago, was scheduled to resume today.

Court-appointed defense lawyer Hayes Fuller planned to resume his attack on prosecution evidence.

Spence, 25, is charged in the deaths of Jill Montgomery and Raylene Rice, 17, both from Waxahachie, and Kenneth Franks, 18, of Waco. He is being tried now only in Miss Montgomery's slaying.

Before the trial recessed Thursday, investigators were called back to the stand to discuss the hair found on terry cloth towels used to bind the victims.

The hair did not match samples from Spence, the other man accused in the case, or any of the victims, according to a laboratory analysis. The same tests also showed that hair found in Spence's car did not match any of the defendants or victims, investigators said.

A forensic dental specialist testified last week for the prosecution that bite marks found on Miss Montgomery's body matched Spence's teeth "in a reasonable degree of dental certainty."

Court was recessed late Thursday until today to allow lawyers to take prospective testimony in the judge's chambers on Friday.

The bodies of the three teen-agers were found in a park near Lake Waco on July 14, 1982. Authorities said they had been tortured, stabbed repeatedly and mutilated.

Prosecutors contend Spence was hired by Muneer Mohammad Deeb, also charged with capital murder, to kill his former girlfriend, Gayle Kelly. An insurance agent testified that Deeb had taken out an insurance policy on Miss Kelly and made himself the beneficiary. Miss Kelly testified in Spence's trial that she knew about the policy but did not know Deeb was the beneficiary.

Prosecutors claim the killers mistook Miss Montgomery for Miss Kelly.

Residents are jittery after strangulation of stewardess

AUSTIN (AP) — Residents of the Spyglass Apartments are feeling a bit jittery these days. Some of them are talking of keeping guns handy in the wake of the strangulation death of a Braniff Airways stewardess.

On Friday, the 33-year-old woman, who lived in the West Austin complex, was found strangled in her apartment's bathtub. Police say evidence indicates she was also sexually assaulted.

Though evidence doesn't support it, some worry that the death of Jeeta Graeber might be another in a series of area murders and rapes that have occurred over the last few years.

"I've got a wife and a 6-year-old daughter and I live on the first floor," said Jerry Rogers, who lives not far from where Ms. Graeber was killed early Friday. "I feel worried for them and I guarantee that our doors and windows are going to stay locked."

"I'm keeping my gun loaded and I'll shoot anyone who tries to break in," he said. "The sad part about this is that people will forget about it too soon. But I'm not going to forget. My wife will have a gun every time I step out of the door."

Other residents say that since Ms. Graeber's death, they lock their doors and windows after dark, something they often had not routinely done. Others have given their telephone number to neighbors, along with instructions to call police if they see anything unusual.

Police are continuing their investigation into the death, but say they have little to go on. Ms. Graeber, who lived alone, was attacked by someone who apparently entered through an unlocked sliding rear door.

Drug crackdown working, Air Force official says

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — An 18-month Army-Air Force crackdown has resulted in a 50 percent decline in the number of servicemen found to be using drugs, an Air Force official says.

Col. George Lathrop, in charge of drug testing at Brooks Air Force Base, said that the number of servicemen found using drugs has dropped by more than 50 percent during the past year.

The Brooks lab tests urine samples from Army and Air Force soldiers nationwide. The tests are done on a random and surprise basis.

The Brooks lab last year conducted 260,000 drug-use tests. Of those, 26,000 indicated drug use and nearly 3,000 were discharged on drug-related offenses from September 1982 to October 1983.

The laboratory has been the focus of controversy in recent weeks because of allegations by workers that it has been run in a haphazard manner. Some workers also claimed during military courts martial they were demoted when they complained about lab procedures.

Two military judges have found fault with the laboratory. One dismissed drug charges against two Patrick AFB soldiers because of complaints about the lab.

Another judge said lab officials tried to withhold information on drug cases from lawyers defending soldiers. However, charges were not dropped in that case.

When the drug crackdown began in January 1983, the number of urine samples indicating drug use was 20.5 percent, Lathrop said. During the first six months of 1984, the total dropped to 9.4 percent, he said.

"The drop is clearly attributable to the drug analysis' effectiveness in identifying the drug users," Lathrop said.

Lathrop, who oversees the lab, said, "The fact is that the drug abusers are being removed as are others in their peer groups."

Despite Lathrop's claims of success, the lab has drawn criticism from several attorneys representing accused soldiers.

One such lawyer, Woodrow Nesbitt of Shreveport, La., was successful in getting drug charges dropped against an Air Force pilot.

World trade walls hurt U.S. economy

Walls against world trade are being built a brick at a time, threatening to lower our standard of living and plunge the world economy back into recession.

The walls are trade barriers, mainly in the form of import quotas and tariffs. One of the bricks that make up the wall is the "voluntary" quota placed on Japanese cars shipped to America. Another is the stiff tariffs President Reagan applied last year to large motorcycles imported to the United States.

Despite the lessons of the past, spokesmen for certain sectors of the American economy are clamoring for more protection from foreign competition. Steel unions and executives are now pleading with the U.S. government to limit the amount of foreign steel sold in the country.

Proponents of protectionist walls score points with their constituents, but they ignore history and the laws of economics.

America last erected trade barriers in a big way with the Smoot-Hawley Tariff Act of 1930. The result was disaster. High tariffs aggravated American's economic troubles by stifling world trade. When combined with a restrictive monetary policy and high income tax rates imposed by Herbert Hoover, the tariffs locked America into 10 years of economic stagnation.

Tariff advocates argue that their particular industry only needs protection for awhile to "get back on their feet." The fallacy of this notion has been displayed by the two biggest automobile companies. They were granted a temporary reprieve from their Japanese counterparts through the voluntary quotas. Some of their new-found profits that could have gone to modernize their facilities to better compete with the Japanese have, instead, gone to huge bonuses for their executives.

Auto worker unions have been equally near-sighted in the protection of the quotas. Rather than reduce their wage demands, they are demanding higher wages, which will make U.S. auto companies even less competitive against the Japanese.

Furthermore, a funny thing happens when Americans are forbidden from buying goods from foreign producers. People in foreign countries start buying less from Americans. When products come into the United States, dollars go out. Unusable in other countries, those dollars must eventually come back to America, either to purchase goods, services or tools of investment.

Efforts to raise trade barriers are short-sighted. They are a selfish grab for temporary profits and inflated wages at the expense of other Americans.

Why the Soviets are angry

NEW YORK (NEA) - Western observers of the Soviet Union are having a field day trying to figure out why the Soviet leaders are so angry. I suggest a simple explanation:

They have a lot to be angry about - much of it owing to that remarkable man in the White House.

Put yourself in the place of those overweight thugs in the Politburo. At the most fundamental level, it is how clear that the USSR will never surpass or even match the West, in terms of either technology or production. Its best hope is to copy such advanced Western technology as it can steal, and compensate with slave labor for the glaring deficiencies in Soviet productivity.

The USSR's only plausible claim, in fact, to superpower status has been its immense buildup of nuclear weaponry. In recent years, by deploying the SS-20's against NATO Europe, it actually achieved transient superiority in the IRBM category. When NATO firmly insisted on deploying cruise missiles and Pershing IIs to redress the balance, despite a wellnigh hysterical Soviet campaign to stop it, Soviet diplomacy sustained a black eye of global proportions.

Now, thanks to President Reagan's proposal for a shared system of non-nuclear satellite defenses against ICBMs, the Russians find themselves in the appalling position of either refusing to go along with this brilliant substitute for mutual assured destruction (thereby watching their vaunted nuclear missiles become worthless, while the USSR remains vulnerable to ours), or consenting to participate in the new non-nuclear defense system at a cost they can ill afford.

These severe setbacks at basic economic and strategic levels have been accompanied by almost equally shattering blows on the propaganda front. We have grown so accustomed to the daily barrage of Soviet billingsgate against the U.S. that it sounded positively gratuitous to some people when President Reagan described the Soviet Union, accurately and precisely, as "the focus of evil in the modern world," and predicted confidently that it would end up "on the ash heap of history."

To complicate matters still further, the intricate Soviet-inspired plot to assassinate the Polish pope backfired when the would-be assassin began to talk and convincingly implicated Moscow's Bulgarian stooges. Then the defenders of Russia's "sacred" frontiers had the daylight so badly scared out of them by a civilian Korean 747 that they shot it down, carrying all 269 innocent people on board to their deaths - a piece of mindless savagery that turned the stomach of a watching world.

On their own frontiers, their largest communist neighbor (China) is consolidating its de facto alliance with the U.S. The next largest (Poland) is hovering on the brink of civil war. To the south, hundreds of thousands of Soviet soldiers have failed for 3 1/2 years to subdue the rebellious tribesmen of Afghanistan. Further afield, Marxist influence in southern Africa is in precipitate retreat, while across the Atlantic Grenada was briskly snatched from the hands of Moscow's Cuban puppets. In Vietnam and Nicaragua, communist regimes are under attack by indigenous rebel forces. As for El Salvador, the communists' own current target, it has just held democratic elections, chosen an anti-communist president, and received further military and economic aid from the U.S.

That is the world out upon which these bloated gangsters glare from their Kremlin stronghold. And, of all the rotten luck, they have to cope with it while their most redoubtable foe is heading for near-painless re-election, and while they themselves are passing the Soviet leadership nervously around among a handful of wheezing septuagenarians. No wonder they're angry!

Today in History

Today is Monday, July 2, the 184th day of 1984. There are 182 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On July 2, 20 years ago, President Lyndon Johnson signed into law the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the most far-reaching civil rights legislation in American history.

On this date:
Ten years ago: In a television address from the Kremlin, President Richard Nixon said the United States and the Soviet Union were weaving a fabric of cooperation to give both nations a positive stake in peace.

Five years ago: The U.S. Supreme Court upheld sweeping desegregation orders for the Columbus and Dayton, Ohio, school systems.

Today's birthdays: Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall is 76. Comedian Dan Rowan is 62. Actress Polly Holliday is 47. Actor Jimmy McNichol is 23.

Thought for today: "Everything comes to him who hustles while he waits." - Thomas Edison, inventor (1847-1931).

How to avoid an early grave

David L. Huie works for the International Rescue Committee, an American volunteer relief agency.

He is stationed in Saida, Lebanon, where he and two American doctors and two American nurses have set up a small hospital to care for Palestinian refugees and poor Lebanese.

Says David Huie of his small hospital, "We stay busy."

Funny how we tire of a news story that seemingly has no end to it, such as a story of the civil wars in Lebanon. Day after day we read of the bombings and the killings, and night after night we watch the film of same on the TV news.

It all becomes stale and confusing, and we all have our own problems to worry about.

That is probably the reason I found the letter I received from David Huie so intriguing. It is a view we don't get from oft-impersonal news reports.

It is the view of one American who for six months has been caught in what he describes as "never-ending feuding and aimless killing."

David Huie's letter:

"I recently received a letter from my father, who included some of your columns. One was titled 'How to Avoid an Early Grave.'

"Let me offer a rather macabre Lebanese version of how to avoid an early grave over here. First, you must avoid getting hit by a shell.

"To accomplish this, you should have a large corridor or stairwell outside your apartment. If you do go out, only do so when there are lots of other people in the streets.

"If the streets are empty, it does not mean that it is Super Bowl Sunday and everyone is at home watching the telly. It means one of the 20-odd militias is about to blast someone to smithereens.

"How do you know if the shelling is about to start? Stick close to the streetside fruit vendors; they almost always carry a transistor radio in order to know when it's time to scatter.

"Of course, sometimes the vendors themselves don't hear the news until it's too late. Recently, a man who had peddled cigarettes on the same Beirut street corner was killed on that corner along with his son by an incoming shell.

"It was what is euphemistically called a 'direct hit,' meaning there remained nothing substantial enough for the two people to put in a coffin.

"Shells are not the only danger in Beirut. You must also worry about being kidnapped. The Lebanese surgeon general should warn that a 'Reagan in '84' campaign button can be hazardous to your health.

"Finally, if you hail a taxi and the interior is replete with icons of Khomeini and the driver's face looks like it belongs on the wall of a U.S. post office, take a bus or walk.

"If I sound pessimistic and sarcastic, it's because I am. I am witnessing a civil war that is destroying a people and a country.

"The U.S. also had a civil war, but I don't currently see among the various belligerents here anyone with the integrity of Lee or the wisdom and earnest desire for reconciliation of Lincoln.

"The major portion of Lebanese, however, continue to await and hope for an Appomattox.

"May God and Allah help them."

And help you, too, David. You, too.

Foreign loans a bit risky

If I were a bank executive and got a letter from the President of the U.S. suggesting that my bank make a loan to the government of Argentina, Chile, or Bolivia, or even Peru, I would drop it in the waste basket.

I do not imply that any banker received such a letter from the President or from any high authority in Washington, but we are told that some kind of influence was brought to bear on large U.S. banks to induce them to make substantial loans to foreign countries in Latin America and elsewhere.

It is common knowledge that one big bank, Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Company, a month ago came close to failure because it had made big foreign loans that are not being repaid on schedule - if at all. It was saved only by heroic measures of other banks and of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and the Federal Reserve. It makes one wonder if other large banks are in peril for the same reason.

Banking is a peculiar business. There is probably not a commercial bank in the U.S. that could pay its depositors all the cash it owes them and has agreed to let them withdraw at will. This is because the banks make interest-bearing loans, repayable on a time basis, aggregating little cash.

Banks act in this seemingly risky way because they know from long experience that depositors do not want to withdraw all their deposits simultaneously and hence that it is safe for the bank to lend freely so long as it retains a substantial reserve in cash and securities that can be quickly converted into cash.

If, however, a bank makes large loans, drawing down its reserves, and these loans are not repaid according to the agreed-upon terms, it can get in a bind, and even fail - that is, close its doors in the faces of its creditors and stockholders. This apparently is what nearly happened in the case of the Continental Illinois.

Small, local banks fail without causing the world to come to an end (although their stockholders' world can be painfully jolted). Of some 14,000 banks in the U.S., 48 failed last year.

Columnist Otis Pike is highly critical of the government for rescuing the big, rich Continental Illinois but letting the "weak and helpless" banks fail. He seems to forget that the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation is a government agency and that it has saved many small banks. It insures every depositor's balance up to $100,000.

Outright failure of the Continental Illinois would have been a serious event, for it holds deposits of many large business firms as well as those of many individuals. Would not failure of General Motors Corporation be a more serious blow to the U.S. economy than that of a local automobile dealer?

Individual bank depositors who want to keep more than $100,000 on deposit can always reduce the risk by dividing their holdings between two or more banks, that are members of the FDIC.

South Korea says Iraq hit cargo ship

By The Associated Press
Iraqi jets rocketed and destroyed a South Korean cargo ship, forcing 23 crew members to abandon the vessel near the Iranian port of Bandar Khomeini, South Korea said today. Iraq reported destroying five naval targets and downing an Iranian plane.

South Korea's Foreign Ministry in Seoul said in a statement that two missiles struck the 10,205-ton cargo ship Wonjin-ho on Sunday, injuring four crew members. It said all of those aboard were picked up by Iranian rescuers.

The ministry said the ship was carrying 9,000 tons of steel from Japan to Iran when it was hit in the engine room and set ablaze.

An unidentified Iraqi military spokesman, speaking Sunday over Baghdad Radio, claimed that Iraq's navy had destroyed five "naval targets" in the Khor Moussa Canal leading from the Persian Gulf to Bandar Khomeini and that two others had been damaged when they struck mines while fleeing.

He said Iraqi jets shot down one of Iran's U.S.-made F-14 fighter planes which was among several that scrambled in response to the attack.

Iraq did not specify what types of targets its navy hit.

Iraqi planes have attacked and damaged dozens of ships in the Persian Gulf in a blockade of Iranian ports designed to cut off the revenue which Iran uses to finance its war effort. Iran has been accused of retaliatory attacks on several Saudi Arabian and Kuwaiti ships, although it has denied them.

Iran had no immediate response to the reported naval attack and the South Korean report was the only word of damage.

However, Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini warned leaders of the Arab nations in the Persian Gulf to stop helping the Iraqi regime of President Saddam Hussein.

"Saddam is a beast that cannot be changed into a human being," Khomeini said in remarks broadcast by the Iranian state radio, monitored in Bahrain.

Saudi Arabia and Kuwait have given billions of dollars in aid to Iraq.

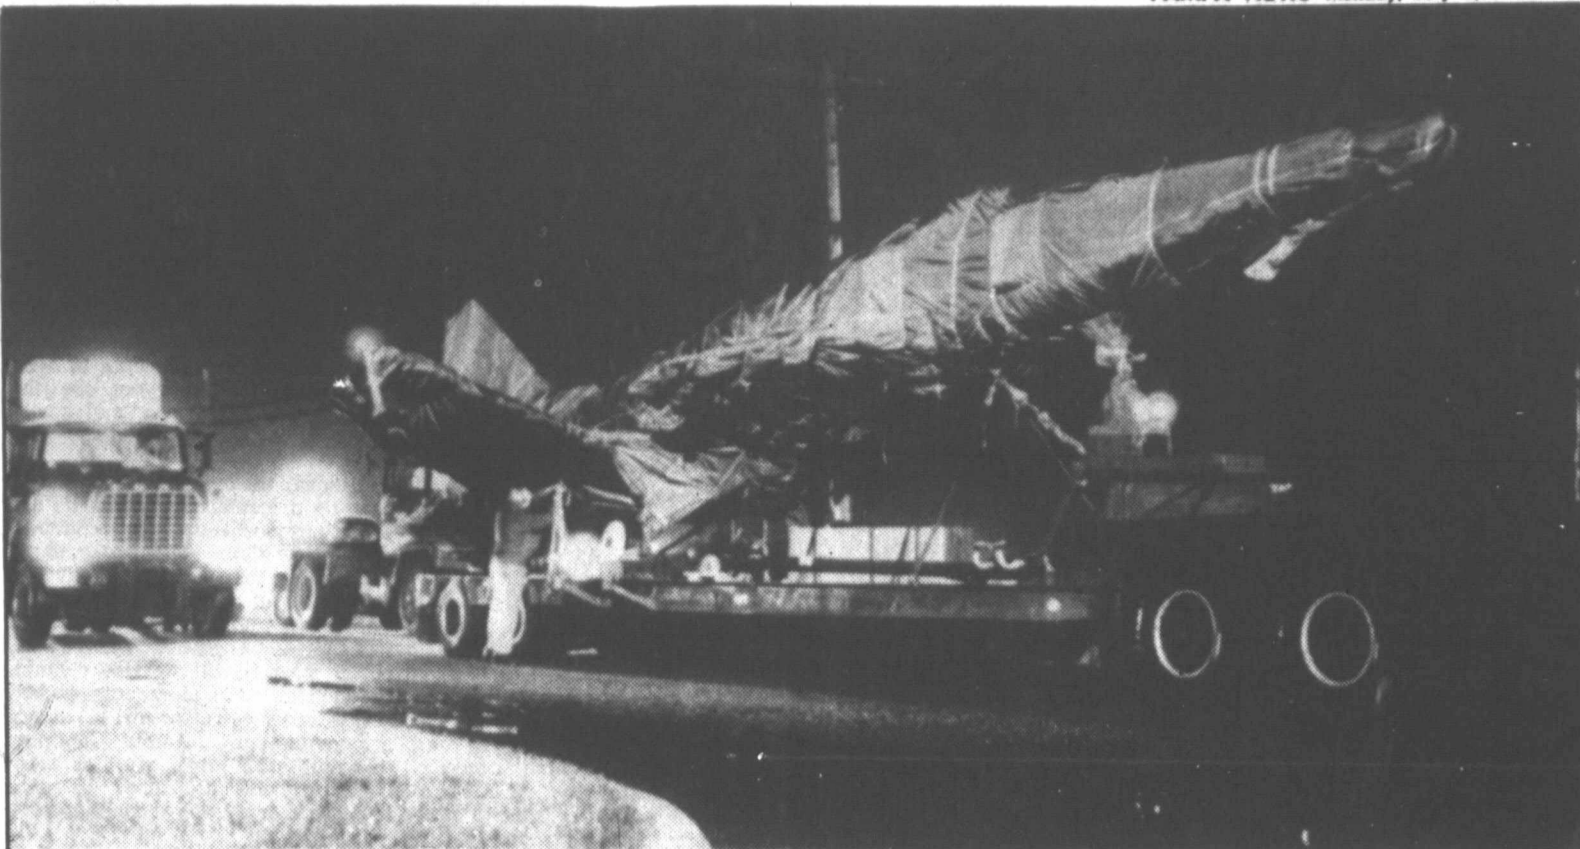

Khomeini said Gulf governments aiding Iraq are "fomenting a war, and they are not aware of the fact that any aggravation of the conflict would precipitate their own destruction."

Earlier in the day, Iranian President Ali Khamenei repeated his nation's offer to refrain from attacks on shipping if Iraq does the same.

Both Iran and Iraq reported fighting along their 730-mile-long border Sunday.

Iraq said its helicopters and gunners attacked Iranian positions and patrols, killing an Iranian soldier and gutting three infantry bunkers, an observation post and an ammunition dump.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said Sunday its country's troops had killed 51 Iraqis and wounded an unspecified number of others.

Flood of Nixon news

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — News of Richard Nixon, drip by drip for a decade, has become a flood.

His journey from disgrace to exile to a still evolving attempt at resurrection was a story waiting to be told. And now, as Nixon and the nation approach the 10th anniversary of his resignation, a writer has done just that.

Since leaving the White House in August 1974, Nixon has popped into the public consciousness in fits and starts — his illnesses, TV interviews, visits to China and Europe; his struggles to find a place to live, a place for his papers, a place in history.

Now resurrection is on in earnest: This spring's classic performance before an influential gathering of newspaper editors; the frequent commentary on the 1984 campaign; his observations, for a TV special, on television and the presidency; last January's meeting with the visiting Chinese vice premier.

Robert Sam Anson, in his aptly titled book, "Exile. The Unquiet Oblivion of Richard M. Nixon," tells of Nixon's last 10 years. Anson finds no point where it can be said, "Nixon is back;" rather, the re-emergence of the 37th president has been gradual. So gradual that it's hard to remember that a decade ago Nixon was the focus of a political firestorm; that he became the first man to resign the presidency.

Anson begins where Woodward and Bernstein's "The Final Days" leaves off: with Nixon's tortured farewell on Aug. 9, 1974, and the flight to San Clemente — half of it as president, half as private citizen. It ends on his 70th birthday in 1983 with Nixon increasing his activity and visibility.

Except for the first year of his exile when he was sick, Nixon's credo always was "never look back."

Nixon obviously thought of himself as one of the great leaders. He chafed in San Clemente and longed to move to New York, which he called "the fast track." Once there, he held carefully planned, high-powered "issues" dinners, always stag, off-the-record. He began showing up in the best restaurants; he traveled extensively, seeking out world leaders in China, then to Europe, and Africa.

His search seemed always for acceptance as a statesman. Once he complained to a friend that Jimmy Carter failed to grasp "the big picture in world affairs, and asked who the real strategic thinkers were. 'Well, there's you,'" said the friend and Nixon responded, "Of course, but who else?"

Although Nixon was shunned by the Republicans at their 1976 convention, by 1980 he was giving advice to Ronald Reagan's campaign, some of it unwanted. He was offering guidance, much as he used to give presidential advice on strategy to football coaches.

Like it or not, Nixon was always news — even in events as innocuous as a visit with his grandchildren to Disney World. In a decade, he's gone from down, out and hated, to being a listened-to commentator on the world scene and a pundit on domestic politics.

It is, as Sam Anson says, that Nixon has come out of the desert and is "back in the arena again."

Teachers hear attack on Reagan's policies

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The National Education Association, preparing to welcome Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale, opened its four-day annual meeting with a blistering attack on the education policies of President Reagan.

NEA President Mary Hatwood Futrell, in a keynote address Sunday before 7,018 union delegates, urged teachers to work actively for Mondale's candidacy. She said that Reagan, if re-elected, would take steps that would "undermine public schools."

"He has already said, if he is re-elected, he will resume his efforts to slash education funding, eliminate the Education Department, and try to pass tuition tax credits, vouchers, and other measures that would undermine the public schools," Ms. Futrell said.

"We've been fighting this attack for four years," she said. "Now we say, 'enough!'" Under Reagan, she said, the nation's budget deficit has grown and military spending has increased.

"What has happened to the fight for universal literacy, the battle to wipe out hunger and disease and the concern for the preservation of life?" Ms. Futrell asked.

Mondale was to address the NEA today. His speech was expected to deal with a broad range of issues, including peace, economic growth and social justice.

The NEA was the first national organization to support Mondale's candidacy last September. Ms. Futrell, who is a Mondale delegate, said the NEA will be sending 270 delegates to the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco — and 220 are pledged to Mondale.

At a news conference following Ms. Futrell's address, the union released a poll of 2,000 kindergarten-through-12th grade NEA-affiliated teachers which indicated that 85 percent believe their schools are safe and orderly — an apparent contradiction of the view expressed by Reagan that school discipline has worsened.

It also found 70 percent opposed to merit pay using current performance evaluation criteria, and 71 percent rejected the idea of using standardized tests to grant teachers recertification.

Those findings seemed to conflict with a Louis Harris poll of nearly 2,000 teachers released last week that found 57 percent believed periodic competency testing of practicing teachers would boost the quality of teaching in America's classrooms.

NEA spokesman Howard Carroll attributed the discrepancy partly to differences in the wording of the poll, plus the fact that the Harris poll included both union and non-union teachers.

Arrests reported in bungled coup

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — The government reportedly has arrested more than 100 army officers, policemen and paramilitary gunmen as suspects in the attempt to stage a military coup by kidnapping President Hernan Siles Zuazo.

"We have detained various officers and will continue these arrests until we dismantle the entire coup-planning apparatus of this country," Gustavo Sanchez, undersecretary of interior, said Sunday.

He declined to say how many were in custody or identify them, but Presencia, a leading newspaper, reported today that more than 100 people had been arrested in connection with Saturday's attempt to topple the elected government.

The drama began before dawn Saturday, when Siles Zuazo awoke to the sound of footsteps and squinted into a flashlight held by one of the abductors. By late that afternoon, the 70-year-old president was free, addressing thousands of cheering supporters, while his abductors took refuge in two embassies or went into hiding.

Sanchez on Sunday accused army Col. Rolando Saravia, an advisor to two former military presidents, of being one of the masterminds of the plot. He said Saravia recruited presidential guards, narcotics policemen, paramilitary units and a vice presidential aide.

There was no word on the whereabouts of Saravia, who was cashiered for trying to kidnap President Hugo Banzer in 1974.

Two children struck and killed by train

GOODRICH, Texas (AP) — Two boys who fell on a railroad trestle while fleeing an approaching train were struck and killed, but a 9-year-old girl who was playing with them escaped to safety, the Department of Public Safety said.

The accident happened about 6:30 p.m. Saturday near Goodrich, a community 60 miles north of Houston in Polk County.

The victims were Jason Lee Long, 12, of Houston, and Michael Evan Kingery, 4, of Goodrich. Michael's sister, Marty Ellen Kingery, narrowly escaped injury when she jumped off the trestle, authorities said.

The group was playing on the trestle when they spotted an oncoming train. The older boy picked up the younger one to carry him to safety, authorities said.

"He (Jason) was trying to outrun the approaching train, then fell down and the train struck both of them," said DPS spokesman David Wells.

The northbound Southern Pacific train, which included 87 cars, took 4,284 feet to stop after hitting the boys, said DPS Trooper Harvey Stamper.

"They had it made, but the engineer said they tripped and fell down in front of him," Stamper said.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC
CITIES SERVICE OIL AND GAS CORPORATION
Panhandle East and West Gathering System
Gray County

It has come to Cities Service Oil and Gas Corporation's attention that some residences are receiving natural gas through unauthorized connections, or "tapping," onto the field gas pipeline serving the Panhandle East and West Gathering System. The residue pipeline system is not designed for safe use by residential owners. The gas is extremely hazardous for residential use since it is not odorized, and it may be subject to explosion and/or fire due to possible loss of pressure.

Cities Service Oil and Gas Corporation will not accept liability for personal injury, death or property damage that may result from any unauthorized use of this natural gas. For the safety of those unauthorized users, and the public in general, we ask that action be taken immediately to disconnect any such gas pipeline connections and that all future tapping cease. Any failure to immediately disconnect unauthorized pipeline connections serving residences or other buildings will result in Cities Service taking whatever action is necessary, including legal action, to protect and retain Cities Service's property and to eliminate the safety hazard created.

Dear Abby Club's male dancers could spread more than cheer

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I live around Dallas, and there's a club where male dancers "dance" with nothing on but itty-bitty G-strings. They're all very sexy-looking, well-built guys. This club is so popular with women (no men are allowed), if you don't get there an hour before the doors are opened, you can't get in.

I was there with a bunch of girls from the office and I'm no goody-two-shoes, but I was shocked. The men do a lot of very suggestive dancing and then they get out in the audience. If a woman tips them, she gets a big French kiss! I saw this with my own eyes.

Can a girl catch a disease from one of these male dancers if she kisses him? They must kiss a hundred girls in one evening.

Is there a weekly health inspection on these male dancers to ensure someone who is only out with the girls to have a good time that she won't catch something and take it home to her husband?

SCARED TO PLAY,
AFRAID TO PAY

DEAR SCARED: I can't answer the question about a "weekly health inspection," but if the men kiss "about a hundred" women a night, they would need a daily health inspection to be positively certain they were healthy. Both the kisser and the kissee are at risk. Foolish, all.

have said, "The service was poor and my waiter was insolent."

DEAR ABBY: I might sound like a 16-year-old girl, but I'm a 64-year-old widow. I lost my husband of 40 years two years ago. He had been in a wheelchair for years. I had to feed and change him like you would a baby, but I didn't mind. He was a good man and I loved him.

Last year I met "Henry," who is also in a wheelchair. His wife had been dead for six years, and Henry had been in a wheelchair for nearly 30 years. He can't move anything but his hands and arms, but he does more work than a man who hasn't got anything wrong with him. Henry repairs electrical appliances, does gardening, housework, etc. He's kind and sweet and we fell in love.

Henry has four children. The three oldest are married; the youngest, "Billy," is not. Billy is as sorry a boy as they come. When he works, all his money goes for beer and dope. When nobody's around, he bullies his daddy and curses him like he was a dog. Henry gives Billy money when he demands it because he's afraid of him.

Henry wants to marry me, but I just can't, feeling like I do about that boy of his. His other kids are nice as they can be, and they love me like I was their mother.

What should I do?

MISERABLE

DEAR MISERABLE: You don't say whether Billy lives at home, but if he does, he should be put out and warned not to come around. Henry's older children should help enforce this. If they can't handle it, don't hesitate to call the law.

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

Among small imported cars, both the Honda Civic and the Nissan Sentra are certainly worth considering — but Isuzu's I-Mark is another matter. A Honda Civic, Nissan Sentra XE and Isuzu I-Mark Deluxe were tested by Consumer Reports auto engineers, along with a Toyota Corolla and a Toyota Tercel.

The new front-wheel-drive Honda Civic four-door sedan is a well-equipped car with sporty styling and feel. Standard equipment includes a 1.5-liter, four-cylinder engine, tilt steering column, tinted glass and rear-window defroster. Adding options, including such major ones as automatic transmission and AM/FM stereo radio, raised the price to nearly $8,000, including destination charge.

The Civic's engine sometimes stalled when cold and the automatic transmission was shifted into gear. However, once warm, it ran well. The engineers said that its transmission didn't shift smoothly, but the fuel-saving lockup gear worked well.

The Civic delivered 39 miles per gallon in expressway driving, 22 mpg in city traffic. It usually handled nimbly and precisely in normal driving and was judged outstanding in accident-avoidance maneuvers. On the other hand, its jiggling and sometimes jolting ride was judged only fair.

Although the model's body design is new, its mechanical components are essentially unchanged. The reliability of the new Civic is expected to be much better than average.

The four-door Sentra "XE" sedan tested was equipped with a 1.6-liter, four-cylinder engine. Power brakes, power steering, tilt steering column, tinted glass, AM/FM stereo radio and rear-window defroster are all standard equipment. Adding options, including such major ones as automatic transmission, raised the price to more than $7,700, including destination charge.

The Sentra's engine started well when cold, but it hesitated somewhat while accelerating. The three-speed automatic transmission with its fuel-saving lockup gear sometimes shifted abruptly. The Sentra delivered 36 miles per gallon in expressway driving, 20 mpg in city traffic.

In normal driving, the car steered and handled very well. But in accident-avoidance maneuvers, the Sentra's rear-end tended to swing out. The engineers said it took some skill to control that problem. The car's ride was judged only fair. The Sentra's reliability is expected to be better than average.

The rear-wheel-drive I-Mark is an old-fashioned design. The "Deluxe" four-door model tested lists for about $7,700 when equipped like the other imported small cars. Its 1.8-liter, four-cylinder engine started and ran flawlessly. And its three-speed automatic transmission shifted smoothly. Send your questions to: From Consumer Reports, care of this newspaper.

Classes abound for expectant parents

By LUELLA KLEIN, M.D.
 Today, you can find classes for expectant parents in just about every community in the United States. Commonly called childbirth preparation classes, these courses are taught by various groups and almost all are intended to give prospective parents some help in preparing for the birth of their child.

Generally these classes will teach parents what to expect during labor and delivery. Provide techniques to help lessen the discomfort of childbirth and help parents to have the best possible experience during labor and delivery.

One of the big advantages these classes have is that they give mothers and fathers a chance to share their experience with others.

It is very reassuring to learn that others have experienced the same feelings and ideas that you may have thought were strange or unusual. Some classes even continue after childbirth and help give new parents advice about caring for their newborn and emotional support from other couples also experiencing the major changes of new parenthood.

You can get information about these classes from your physician, the hospital where you are planning to give birth, or from friends. The classes may be held in the hospital, at local schools, at instructor's homes or in the doctor's office or clinic. They usually begin in the sixth or seventh month of pregnancy and last about six or eight weeks. If the expectant father cannot accompany you to classes, you might want to bring a friend. This person will help you with the techniques that are taught to help you relax physically and mentally so that you can better deal with the discomfort of labor.

Many childbirth classes place emphasis in reviewing their knowledge about labor and delivery. Today, according to a national study, fathers are present at about 80 percent of all births.

Repeat parents may find the classes helpful in reviewing their knowledge about labor and delivery. Also parents may be able to get information about how to prepare the other children for the arrival of a new brother or sister. There is usually a fee for childbirth classes.

Although some people are avid followers of a particular type of prepared childbirth techniques, the important thing is that parents choose to participate actively in the birth of their child. If you and your partner want to prepare for your labor and delivery, check with your doctor, hospital or friends to see when and where these courses are offered in your community.

Children's nutrition important Newsmakers

HOUSTON — Should a child who refuses to eat his breakfast cereal be given a peanut butter sandwich instead?

Children's nutrition experts at Baylor College of medicine say why not.

It's not important what a child eats for breakfast, as long as it's something nutritious.

Good nutrition is vital during the growing years. But parents are often exasperated because children have special tastes which usually don't include vegetables or fish.

A new pamphlet from Baylor College of Medicine helps parents choose the right foods and teach their children about nutrition.

A child's nutritional requirements change as he grows.

An infant needs plenty of calories and nutrients from breastmilk or commercially prepared solutions because more physical or mental development occurs during the first year than at any other time.

A toddler sometimes doesn't want or need three full meals a day because he has a slower growth rate.

A high school age child needs three nutritional meals a day because he is very active. But he is also choosing his own foods, so he needs to understand good nutrition. What he learns will carry over into adulthood, and bad nutrition can lead to heart disease, obesity, high blood pressure and dental problems.

Other suggestions Baylor experts had were:

Don't make a child clean his plate. Serve small portions, and then let them ask for more.

Don't serve small children spicy foods that are too hot or too cold. They prefer mild flavored foods served at room temperature.

Don't buy expensive health foods. They are no more nutritious than foods from the four basic food groups — meats, fruits and vegetables, milk products and bread.

Avoid putting a child on fad diets or high doses of vitamins.

The children's nutrition pamphlet is available for free by writing to: We care for you, P.O. Box 13567, Houston, 77219.

Gambler team rolls snake-eyes in playoffs

HOUSTON (AP) — Arizona Wranglers Coach George Allen and running back Doug Dennison weren't always on the same sideline during football games. The Houston Gambler's played Sunday what the coach and player can do when they put their talents together, along with another former National Football League player, quarterback Greg Landry.

The three used those talents and their experience as the Wranglers scored two fourth quarter touchdowns for a 17-16 first round United States Football League playoff victory over the startled Gambler's.

Trailing 16-3 with 13:37 left in the game, Landry guided Arizona to a 20-yard touchdown run by Tim Spencer with 6:11 to play.

Then, with time running out, Landry again took the Wranglers to the Gambler 11 and hit Dennison for the tying touchdown with 1:49 to play.

Frank Corral added the winning extra point and the Wranglers moved on to the USFL Western Conference title game against the Los Angeles Express.

"The coaches said we'd probably win with the two-minute offense and we did," Dennison said. "I was in the middle working hard looking for the ball. I was hit hard but stayed with it."

Dennison said he had admired Allen since he opposed him as a member of the Cowboys.

"When I was with the Cowboys, George Allen had my respect because Tom Landry respected him," Dennison said. "We were always 1-1 each season with them. He's a milestone coach to me."

Dennison said Allen preached patience throughout the game, although the young Gambler defense had shut down the Wranglers through three quarters.

"Your time will come on offense," Dennison said. "All you need is the big play and a defense to keep you in the game."

The Gambler's, in charge most of the game, had taken a 16-3 lead into the fourth quarter on quarterback Jim Kelly's 14-yard touchdown run on the first drive of the game and field goals of 38, 22 and 25 yards by Toni Fritsch.

Arizona trailed 10-3 at the half. They were held to minus yardage until midway in the second quarter and scored with 34 seconds left in the half on Corral's 32-yard field goal.

Arizona's defense, the league leader in quarterback sacks, dumped Kelly six times including back-to-back drops in the second quarter that led to a missed 47-yard field goal attempt by Fritsch.

Houston got close, but too often had to settle for field goals or nothing.

"We got down to the 30 several times and came away without even a field goal," Gambler Coach Jack Pardee said.

Landry said the Arizona defensive strategy was to prevent any big Gambler plays.

"We knew we wouldn't stop them, but we wanted no big plays," Landry said. "They would march 80 yards and couldn't get in. The defense kept us in the game. I thought it would take 30 points to win this game."

Kelly finished with 23 completions on 34 attempts for 301 yards but failed for the first time this season to complete a touchdown pass. Landry hit 11 of 22 passes for 130 yards but came away with a distinct advantage on the scoreboard.

Wimbledon play resumes

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — It was a century ago that women in layered summer skirts first walked daintily onto the grass at the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club to play in the annual tennis tournament.

Today, at the start of a hectic day of singles play, the Wimbledon championships honored 100 years of women's champions in a ceremony on Centre Court. Seventeen of the game's legends were to be there, from Kitty Godfree, the 1924 and '26 champion, to Martina Navratilova, the defending champion and top seed.

Others honored were Althea Gibson (1957, 1958), Maria Bueno (1959, 1960, 1964), Margaret Smith Court (1963, 1965, 1970) and the six-time queen of Wimbledon, Billie Jean King (1966, 1967, 1968, 1972, 1973, 1975).

Everyone had the day off Sunday, but the activity resumed today with a heavy program.

Navratilova, a four-time champion, was to continue her title defense against Elizabeth Sayers of Australia while three-time champion Chris Evert Lloyd, seeded second behind Navratilova, challenged 14th seed Claudia Kohde of West Germany.

With both halves of the men's and women's draw due for action, top seed John McEnroe was to grapple with 14th seed Bill Scanlon in a notorious grudge match.

Weekend in sports

TENNIS
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — John McEnroe, the defending men's champion, routed Wally Masur of Australia 6-0, 6-4, 6-3, Saturday to advance into the final 16 at the Wimbledon tennis championships.

McEnroe will face Bill Scanlon, seeded No. 14, on Monday.

In the women's singles, No. 10 Jo Durie of Britain reached the last 16 with a straight-set win over American qualifier Kim Steinmetz.

AUTO RACING
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Mario Andretti breezed to a 51.7-second victory Sunday over Danny Sullivan in the inaugural U.S. Grand Prix at the Meadowlands.

In another race, Chip Robinson jumped into the lead early and ran off to an easy victory over Dominic Dobson in the rain-soaked SCCA Bosch-Volkswagen Super Vee auto race.

GOLF
OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) — Greg Norman scored a two-stroke victory Sunday over Jack Nicklaus in the Canadian Open Golf Championship.

Norman, the Australian known as the "Great White Shark," produced a 5-under-par 67 and won this national title with a 278 total, 10 shots under par on the Glen Abbey Golf Club course.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Miller Barber shot steady, one over-par golf and won the U.S. Senior Open Golf Championship Sunday by two strokes over Arnold Palmer, whose own mistakes cost him the lead he had taken into the final round.

Barber carded a 71 on the par-70, 6,636-yard Oak Hill Country Club course for a four-day total of 286.

Palmer, leading by one stroke going into Sunday's final round, slipped to a 74 and a four-day total of 288.

Astros unleash hitting machine

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jerry Mumphrey was the aggressive swinger as he and the Houston Astros hitting machine made the Philadelphia Phillies look like wallflowers.

Mumphrey cracked two homers and drove in six runs, both career highs in a game, and Joe Niekro pitched a six-hitter to lead the Astros over the Phillies 13-1 Sunday.

"It was a good win, a team effort," Mumphrey said. "That's the way we like to play."

"The first (home run) pitch I hit was a fast ball. It was a pretty good pitch. The second one was a curve ball. I was just swinging aggressively."

The Astros left town with a .324 batting average — averaging seven runs a game in their last 12 outings — and for the first time since 1971 captured three of four games in a series in Philadelphia.

The victory came on the heels of a 7-0 shutout against the Phillies, and left Phillies Manager Paul Owens with some soul-searching to do.

"We haven't hit at all the last two games, and we gave them too many runs," said Owens. "We can't play much worse."

Owens said he knew the Phillies might not be consistent the first half of the season. "But we've played half the year now," he added. "We sure can't win playing this way."

The Phillies announced a roster change after the game, saying they will send pitcher Dave Wehrmeister to their Portland Class AAA club and recall Don Carman, a lefthander who went 2-0 with Portland in June. Wehrmeister pitched two innings and gave up two runs Sunday.

"We're hitting more consistently. It's just hard work," said Astros Manager Bob Lillis. The hits, he added, were "overdue."

The Houston offense made it easy for Niekro, 8-7, who hurled his sixth straight victory. He gave up a double to John Russell in the seventh, scoring Tim Corcoran, who had walked, to end a streak of 17 scoreless innings.

"In the past, if we got two runs early, we kind of laid back," said Niekro. "Now, we're swinging the bat better. Everybody's hitting, and it's more fun."

Tribe hurlers stops Texas

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mike Mason's last outing had been close to a masterpiece; Don Schulze's had been a disaster.

But the two pitchers traded those roles Sunday, with Schulze holding the Texas Rangers to two runs in seven innings for his first major-league victory, while Mason surrendered seven runs to the Cleveland Indians in 3.23 innings.

The Indians won 13-5, their eighth victory in the last 11 games. "I really couldn't judge him (Schulze) the first game because the kid was new," said Indians Manager Pat Corrales. "That first inning didn't help, when we gave them six outs the other day."

Corrales was referring to the Rangers' five-run first inning in Schulze's American League debut Thursday night, when the Indians made two errors and a mental mistake to aid the Texas cause. Schulze lasted only three innings in that game, enabling him to pitch again three days later.

On Sunday, the right-hander scattered seven hits over seven innings.

"I have a better sinker when I'm a little tired," said Schulze, 1-1. "I probably do better that way because when I feel too strong, I tend to overthrow. Really, I wish I had better stuff when I'm feeling strong."

The left-handed Mason, meanwhile, was coming off a frustrating 2-1 loss to the California Angels in which he retired the first 19 batters he faced.

Pigs help in curing fatal disease

HOUSTON (AP) — Researchers are thanking experimental pigs for providing clues to a mysterious genetic disorder that can cause surgical patients under anesthesia to die suddenly.

The disease, malignant hyperthermia, occurs in humans and swine and may have caused previously unexplained deaths in healthy surgical patients, said Dr. Thomas E. Nelson, who has researched the syndrome.

Malignant hyperthermia was discovered only about 20 years ago, but researchers have made great headway in diagnosing it, said Nelson, an associate professor of anesthesiology at the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston.

our pigs and human patients referred to our MH center," Nelson said. "The Food and Drug Administration has approved giving dantrolene as a preventive early in an operation to prevent the worst problems seen in malignant hyperthermia."

MH can cause a lethal allergic-type response to some anesthetics, Nelson said. Its symptoms include sudden changes in body metabolism, rigid muscles and a temperature that may rise to more than 110 degrees.

An Australian physician discovered the disorder after a patient told him 10 of 24 relatives died after receiving a general anesthetic, Nelson said.

As many as one in every 200 people may have the disorder, but until recently it wasn't detected until a patient died or came close to dying during surgery, Nelson said.

More than 150 patients have been admitted to UTMB in Galveston, one of few facilities in the world set up to diagnose and treat the disease.

Patients at the MH center usually undergo a muscle biopsy so tiny strips of their thigh muscle can be treated in a laboratory. The tissue is exposed to halothane, a potent and common general anesthetic, and other drugs, such as caffeine.

"We've known for a long time that large amounts of caffeine, — and I mean considerably greater than anyone could ever consume from any foods and drinks — trigger a release of calcium, which contributes to the muscle problems common to MH," Nelson said.

Pig tissue was originally used in experiments where researchers isolated the membranes that release calcium, Nelson said. But the procedure is now used on human tissue.

Some of the same drugs used to treat the disorder in humans have been used on pigs, which also are susceptible, Nelson said. The medications have helped the pork industry fight one of its most costly health problems, he said.

"We've had considerable experience giving the drug dantrolene, which is a muscle relaxant, to both promise they will do the same Wednesday.

"We'll have security guards watching all the boundaries, and if anyone has any problem, we'll have the problem taken care of," said Steve Hauser of Pace Concerts, the picnic's promoters.

Mrs. Wingo said the impending horde of concert goers has not stopped the family from planning a festive holiday gathering at the house.

"We're getting together just for the heck of it, just because Willie's going to be next door," she said.

Ed Harrell, another of Willie's "neighbors," has another idea for keeping order on his property. He plans to buy a keg of beer for his 20 guests, who will be outfitted in T-shirts reading "Security."

Harrell said his primary concern is about his legal liability if strangers wander onto his property.

"My concern is I would just hate someone to climb over the fence and get killed," he said.

Finding volunteers to help him spend the holiday guarding his property hasn't been a serious problem, Harrell said. In addition to the keg of beer, the volunteers will have a view of the stage and if the wind blows in the right direction, they should be able to hear the music, he said.

Willie's neighbors not thrilled about 'picnic'

AUSTIN (AP) — The 30,000 spectators expected to attend country singer Willie Nelson's Fourth of July picnic probably will have more fun than some of the entertainer's neighbors — who look upon the event as anything but a holiday.

The 12-hour, non-stop package of entertainment will be held Wednesday on an 11-acre site on the south side of Austin.

"We are very much against it," said C.L. Fox, a 90-year-old chiropractor who lives next door to the concert site.

Fox said he thinks it's "ridiculous" that people would fork over the price to attend the concert — $18 per adult and $9.75 per child.

"People have gone crazy," he said.

Earlier concerts have caused Cullen Lane, the street where Fox lives, to become clogged.

"When The Police (a rock group) played here, people parked up and down Cullen Lane," said Arlene Wingo, Fox's daughter.

However, Mrs. Wingo said owners of the concert park have been helpful in keeping fans off her father's property and concert promoters promise they will do the same Wednesday.

"We'll have security guards watching all the boundaries, and if anyone has any problem, we'll have the problem taken care of," said Steve Hauser of Pace Concerts, the picnic's promoters.

THOUSANDS OF GUATEMALANS wait in line to vote Sunday in the first elections since 1982.

Guatemalans elect new assembly

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — The government reported a heavy turnout and peaceful conditions in voting for a new Constituent Assembly, which is to write a constitution that could revive democracy after 30 years of military domination.

The head of state, Gen. Oscar Humberto Mejia Victores, has promised to call elections for a president and congress once the new constitution is adopted. Civilian political leaders say the assembly's progress, or lack of it, may indicate how much power the military is willing to give up.

Many polling places Sunday opened late and voting was slowed in some areas by bureaucratic red tape. But no violence was reported and both Guatemalan poll-watchers and foreign observers agreed the voting went smoothly.

Arturo Herbruger Asturias, head of the Supreme Electoral Tribunal, estimated 1.7 million of the 2.5 million registered voters cast ballots for the assembly's 88 seats. Most observers earlier had predicted a 50 percent turnout.

Although the law mandates a $5 fine for failure to vote, the penalty is rarely applied.

"I was very impressed," said Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Texas, one of two-dozen U.S. observers who toured polling places by helicopter in western Guatemala. "When we got down and visited with the people we found really a mood of optimism."

Asked if he was concerned about fraud, which has plagued past Guatemalan elections, Hightower replied: "Not at all. We found poll-watchers everywhere."

"In general terms, we think that this has taken place without mischief," said Hector Luna Trocoli, a leader of the Union.

Mrs. Marcos testifies she saved Benigno Aquino's life

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — First lady Imelda Marcos testified today that she once helped save former Sen. Benigno Aquino's life — and tried to do so a second time, but failed because he returned to the Philippines against her advice.

Mrs. Marcos wept as she read a letter from Aquino, praising her charitable work, to the board investigating the assassination of her husband's main political rival last year.

"When I met Aquino in 1980 ... and helped him go to the United States for a heart bypass operation, I would like to believe that to a great extent I helped save his life," Mrs. Marcos said. Aquino had been imprisoned for nearly eight years under martial law before he was permitted to leave for the United States.

She said she met Aquino again for three hours in New York in May 1983 and "pleaded with him to postpone his return. Again I tried to save his life."

Aquino was shot at the Manila airport last Aug. 21 on his return from self-exile in the United States. President Ferdinand E. Marcos, claiming the government had uncovered a plot against the opposition leader's life, had warned him against returning.

The government says Aquino was killed by alleged Communist agent Rolando Galman, who was immediately gunned down by soldiers. The Aquino family says Aquino was killed by a soldier and has accused Marcos of involvement.

The public was barred from the hearing room during Mrs. Marcos' testimony, which came on her 55th birthday.

Jewels & Gems

by Ken Rheams

Tanzanite is one of the rarest of gems. It comes from only one location, Tanzania, and compared to many other gem stones, the supply is limited. You can truly set yourself apart by wearing this unusual stone. Yet, the finest quality stones are substantially more affordable than the finest quality among the "big four". Tanzanite is very rich looking. "Velvety" is the word that best describes its texture. It also appears to have two colors in the same stone. For example, it may be seen as blue from one angle. When moved slightly and viewed from a different angle, it may be seen as purple. This phenomenon is called "dichroism". What is more, it appears as one color indoors and another outside.

When it comes to precious gemstones you are sure to find a complete selection of all of your favorite stones and settings here at RHEAMS DIAMOND SHOP, conveniently located at both 939 S. 2nd, Canadian, 323-8922 & 112 W. Foster, Pampa, 665-2831 "Your Personal Jeweler". With 2 generations of experience and expertise in the field of fine quality jewelry and with all work done on our own premises, we offer the fine quality and service you require. MasterCard & Visa acct. Hours: Mon-Sat., 9:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Our best wishes for a Happy & Safe Holiday.

Tanzanite is particularly susceptible to heat.
