

Tax bill facing midnight deadline

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislators tried today on the last day of a special legislative session to salvage a $4.8 billion tax bill that would pay for the most dramatic public school reform in Texas in 35 years.

Significant progress was reported late Monday night by House Speaker Gib Lewis and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, but any tax proposal would still have to survive votes of both houses and, in the Senate, an almost certain filibuster.

THE TAX BILL would be the first major tax increase in Texas in 13 years, but legislators have only until midnight to pass it unless Gov. Mark White calls another special session.

At least five senators and five House members, meeting without official approval of their colleagues, talked privately in Hobby's office Monday night after the House had rejected Senate amendments to a tax bill.

After the House also voted not to appoint a conference committee to negotiate differences on taxes, the special session was on the verge of failing. Senators joked about "competency testing" of House members, and the House blamed the Senate for the stalemate.

"There are some feelings and egos at stake, but I think they are all starting to work pretty good," said Lewis. "They're very close."

Asked about White's role in the negotiations, Lewis said, "He's just saying, 'Do it.' He thinks it would be a disaster — and I agree with him — if we go home without acting on a tax bill and have to be called back in. He just wants a bill."

LEWIS SAID THE conferees were within "one item" of a compromise, and that item was the sales tax on advertising.

"The Senate is killing this deal," said Rep. Ray Keller, R-Duncanville. "They'll have to take the responsibility now."

On Monday rather than accept the House version of the largest tax bill in Texas history, the Senate stripped away a proposal that would have placed advertising under the state sales tax, which would have raised $459.2 million over three years.

"The big boys have come down here and done a pretty good job," in protecting the exemption for advertising, said Rep. Stan Schlueter, chairman of the House tax-writing committee. Senators also discarded a House provision that would have eliminated sales tax exemptions on auto and home repairs.

TO MAKE UP for the lost revenue, the Senate voted to raise the sales tax from 4 percent to 4.25 percent, which would raise $689.1 million over three years.

"There's a lot of resistance to increasing the sales tax," said Schlueter, D-Killeen.

House members booed a comment in debate that the Senate had "taken the tax off of business and put it on the general population."

"We're not trying to play hardball or anything, but we would like to maintain at least part of the dignity of the bill," said Schlueter.

The House gave up on appointing a conference committee after a test vote on suspending certain rules failed to get the necessary two-thirds. The vote was 87-56.

Both the Senate and House bills would raise about the same amount of money to pay for $2.8 billion in school reform over the next three years and to increase maintenance of highways.

IN A MOVE that was first interpreted as a slap at Lewis, the Senate defeated a House proposal to dedicate a 1-cent-a-pack increase in the cigarette tax to cancer research, a pet project of the speaker.

Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texarkana, said he understood the $12.7 million each year from the tax would go to a Fort Worth facility. Later, after Lewis visited with Howard, the senator said the bill was not designed as "pork barrel" for Lewis' legislative district.

Nevertheless, the Senate refused to dedicate the money to cancer research, choosing to channel it into general revenue.

The Senate adopted a new concept when it accepted an amendment by Sen. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, to base auto registration fees on the model year rather than weight. Newer cars would pay higher fees.

McFarland estimated the change would bring in an additional $36 million over three years.

AN AMENDMENT restricting the tax on amusement admissions to tickets costing $6 or more also was approved in the Senate.

Court rulings

Minnesota Jaycees must admit women

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, in a ruling that could threaten the male-only status of some organizations, said today states may force the Jaycees to admit women as full members.

In a 7-0 decision, the court upheld a Minnesota public accommodations law that requires the Jaycees, dedicated to developing America's future leaders, to grant full membership to women.

The ruling's impact on other male-only organizations as well as groups whose memberships are based on religious belief or national origin is not entirely clear.

Such organizations as the Rotary, Kiwanis and the Boy Scouts lined up on the side of the Jaycees in urging the court to strike down Minnesota's law.

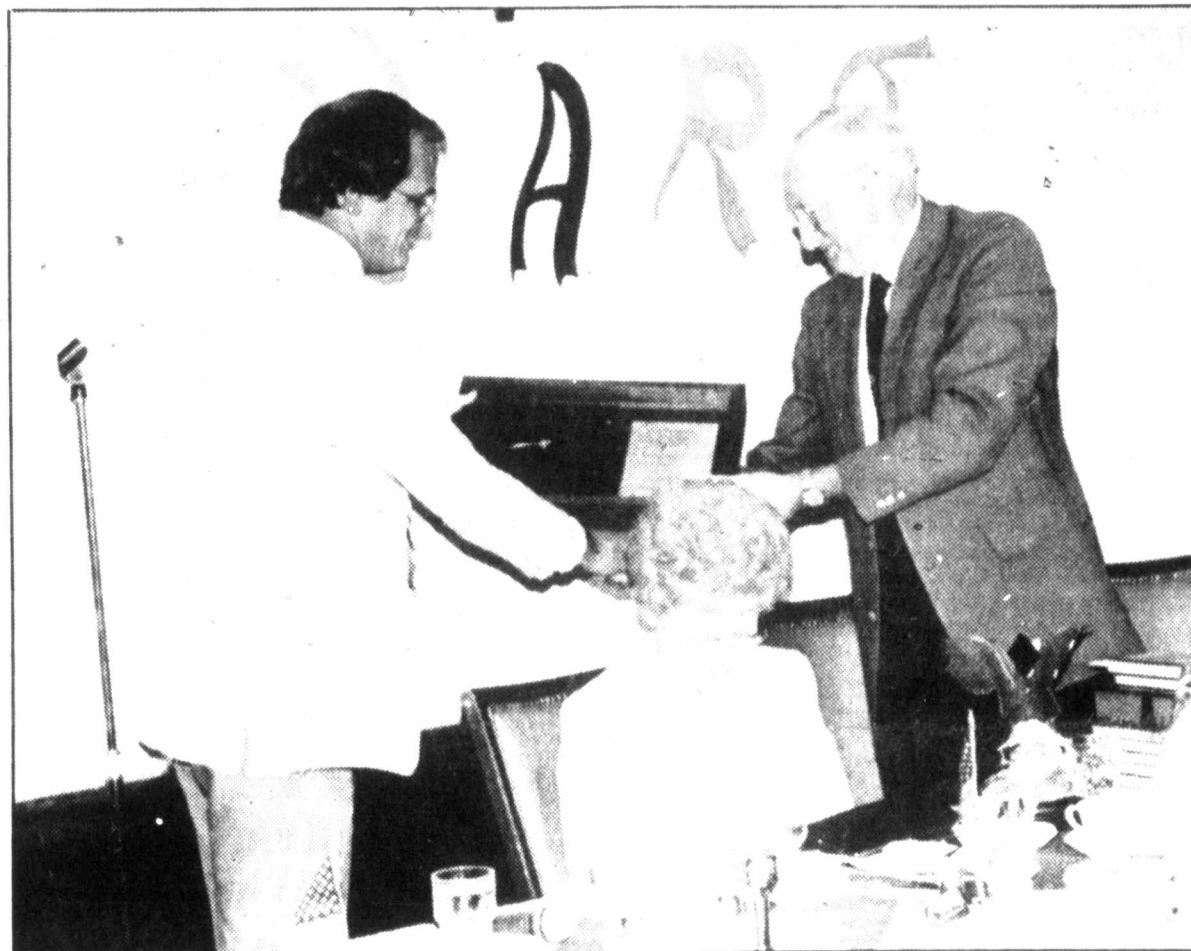

But the court said today that Minnesota's public accommodations law distinguished between the Jaycees and other private groups that may still be permitted to exclude women.

Citizens can't sue to stop tax breaks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Private citizens may not go to court and prod the federal government into denying or rescinding tax breaks to racially discriminatory private schools, the Supreme Court ruled today.

By a 5-3 vote, the justices said private citizens lack the necessary legal standing to file such lawsuits.

Writing for the court, Justice Sandra Day O'Connor said a lawsuit filed by black parents "which aims at nationwide relief and does not challenge particular identified unlawful IRS actions alleges no connection between the asserted desegregation injury and the challenged IRS conduct direct enough to overcome the substantial separation-of-powers barriers to a suit seeking an injunction to reform administrative procedures."

Pampan killed in Lubbock wreck

An 86-year-old Pampa man died, and his wife was seriously injured in a two-vehicle accident Monday morning near Lubbock, the Department of Public Safety reported.

Edwin Gleason Nelson, 72, 23 Dogwood, was pronounced dead at Lubbock General Hospital less than an hour after the wreck about six miles east of Lubbock.

Nelson's wife, Irene Nelson, 79, sustained head injuries and was listed in critical condition at the Lubbock hospital.

Investigating officers said the Pampa couple's car was hit broadside at the intersection of U.S. 62 and FM 400 by a van driven by Sharon Hanson of Lubbock.

Hanson wasn't injured in the crash, which occurred about 10:20 a.m., authorities said.

The DPS reported that the elderly man was behind the wheel of the Nelson vehicle and drove into the intersection in front of Hanson's oncoming vehicle.

Services for Mr. Nelson will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in the First Baptist Church, with the Rev. Claude Cone, pastor, officiating.

Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery by Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors.

He was born June 27, 1898 in Major County, Okla. He moved to the area south of Pampa in 1918 and into town in 1975.

Nelson attended Oklahoma State University. He was a teacher at schools in Oklahoma and Groom. He worked at the Groom Bank while starting a farming career. He was a member and deacon of the First Baptist Church and a member of Every Man's Bible Class.

He married Ellen M. Fortenberry on Sept. 18, 1921 at Groom. She died Jan. 22, 1974. He married Irene Glasgow on Feb. 9, 1975 at Tulsa.

Survivors include his wife, one son, Joe D. Nelson of Dallas; one brother, Ray Nelson of Enid, Okla.; one sister, Nettie Crawford of Ames, Okla.; three grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

White Deer studies problem of zoning

BY CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

WHITE DEER — Ordinances and zoning codes are worth very little without enforcement to back them up, White Deer City Council members observed Monday at their regular meeting.

Discussion on city ordinances and their enforcement first surfaced when city council members were deciding to grant a zoning variance to a Booker builder who wants to put four low-income houses on Benedict St. south of U.S. 60. The land, covering 150 feet from each side of the highway, is zoned for commercial property and three of the new residences would be within this area.

According to White Deer Mayor R.W. Standefur, John Crosswhite requested the business-to-residential zoning change on June 29. Standefur told Crosswhite that the change was subject to approval by the city council. However, the mayor said, Crosswhite reportedly commenced building the structures, apparently without city building permits, before the variance was cleared.

Pampa real estate broker Audrey Alexander, who sold the property to Crosswhite, told the council Monday that in other towns such as Pampa, a dwelling can be built without a variance on land zoned as business.

"I guess I just assumed it was like that here," she said, adding that Crosswhite says "there are a lot of people who want to live in White Deer."

"They like the schools, they like the utility rates and they like the location," she added.

Standefur agreed that White Deer does have several drawing cards, despite a decreasing commercial core. It's highway location, and the resulting easy access to Pampa, Panhandle and Amarillo, draws commerce away from the town.

Consequently, he observed that adhering to the zoning may be hindering city growth.

"I can see why the zoning is there, but are we protecting something that is that important?" he asked.

White Deer officials zoned the 150-foot strip along U.S. 60 as commercial in 1978 in an apparent attempt to clear the area of unsightly buildings.

The business zoning has been bypassed before. One resident is building a dwelling near the highway and another has a dwelling on business property along White Deer's Main Street (State Highway 152).

City Council member Charles Sutterfield asked why have a city zoning ordinance if it is not adhered to.

"If we grant them the exemption, why not do away with the zoning," he said.

Council members had other problems with Crosswhite's proposed housing. The material that would accumulate around the County sick leave studied

BY JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

Gray County Commissioners tried to come up with a formal sick-leave policy but decided that a policy set in stone probably can't cover all possible situations for all county employees.

Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy drew up a countywide sick-leave policy for consideration at the court's regular meeting Monday. Commissioners talked about various situations that the policy would cover but always managed to come up with one that it wouldn't.

Presently, each elected commissioner makes the policy about sick days with pay for the county employees in his precinct. That flexible approach may build a good employer-employee relationship; it may fairly deal with some of the unusual needs for being off of work; but it doesn't do a whole lot for the payroll records in the treasurer's office, according to the discussion Monday.

A uniform sick-leave policy would help the treasurer to keep track of each employee's work time and vacation and sick days in the scattered precincts, according to Judge Kennedy. The policy would eliminate the different methods used by the four commissioners to keep track of the payrolls, he said.

But keeping the uniform records demanded by a countywide policy would dump a mountain of additional paperwork onto the commissioners, according to the discussion.

The policy, which was tabled for further study, defines a sick leave as time off caused by "personal illness or the illness of an immediate family member that demands that the employee be absent from work."

Commissioners couldn't decide how many paid sick days should be allowed per year. Commissioner Jimmy McCracken suggested five days. But other local governmental agencies allow 10 to 12 compensated sick days per year, commissioners pointed out.

Spelling out the number of days allowed is itself an invitation for some employees to take that many days off, the panel said.

Also, how does a uniform policy account for such personal needs as time off for funerals, maternity leave, ag shows, or "taking the mother-in-law to the doctor," commissioners wondered.

Some employees wouldn't abuse a sick-leave policy no matter what, and a few others act like they're on sick leave when they report for work each morning, commissioners decided.

They also decided that they need more time to think about a work policy that can fairly deal with a wide variety of employees' personal needs.

In other action Monday, commissioners — considered a request from McLean residents Vera Back and Ruth Magee for additional funding for the McLean Museum. The ladies asked commissioners to double the county's $2,000 annual funding of the museum to help pay for additional maintenance. No action was taken.

— approved the plat of Keller

Estates, a proposed development of single-family homes east of Highway 70 and just north of the city.

— approved paying the Skellytown Volunteer Fire Department for its help in fighting a June 10 natural-gas fire at Getty's Kingsmill booster station. The volunteers were called in to assist the Pampa Fire Department in the fire that caused major damage to the plant. Commissioners said the approved payment can't exceed the maximum amount that Carson County pays the Pampa Fire Department for its assistance at fires in that county.

— agreed to advertise for bids for group medical insurance for county employees. Blue Cross - Blue Shield presently provides the county insurance.

— agreed to pay the electric bill for Pampa Medical Services' new radio repeater. The repeater, which was purchased with funds raised by the Pampa Evening Lions Club, is installed on the tower at the Cabot plant.

Sherman cocaine probe prompts school board president to quit

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — A cocaine investigation that prompted the resignation of the school board president and "cuts across all levels of society" has sent rumors flying in this town of 30,000, but authorities remain tight-lipped about who might be involved.

On Friday, Barrett Keith Brown, the president of Sherman school board resigned, saying in a letter to fellow board members that he "was guilty of having used cocaine in the past."

The 37-year-old attorney's resignation came two days after he appeared before a federal grand jury investigating drug trafficking in Northeast Texas.

According to a copy of the letter of resignation obtained by the Sherman Democrat, Brown wrote the board that "I was guilty of having used cocaine in the past. I voluntarily terminated any cocaine use some time ago."

The school board, stunned, accepted Brown's resignation Friday afternoon.

"It cuts across all levels of (Sherman's) society," said Ron Sievert of Tyler, an assistant U.S. attorney involved in the case.

In his letter, Brown said: "I hereby respectfully resign my position as president and as a member of the school board. I believe this action to be in the best interest of the Sherman Independent School District because of my former conduct. Although this never affected my responsibilities to this board, I violated the law and had no excuse."

One of Brown's attorneys, Phil Burleson, told the Dallas Times Herald that the resignation is "connected with his appearance before the grand jury."

Brown's resignation came five days after another Sherman attorney, Larry Cain, admitted using cocaine in a lengthy letter published last Sunday in the Democrat.

"I've been burned," wrote Cain, 37. "I will carry the scars of this burn mainly on my reputation for the remainder of my life."

Charles Schweizer, who has served on the school board with Brown for the past two years, said the six-month investigation, being conducted by police and FBI agents, has spurred lots of talk in the quiet Grayson County seat 65 miles north of Dallas.

"There have been a lot of rumors floating around," said Schweizer, who works at a Sherman stock brokerage firm. "In a town of 30,000, when you have something like this happen, it's the talk of the town."

Schweizer said board members and Sherman citizens are "really sorry something like this has happened."

"People in town are concerned about it," he said.

Iris Guedea, a mother of three students at Sherman High School, told the Dallas Morning News that townspeople have been "reading about the investigation for a long time and heard there were some big people involved."

Canadian vote slated for July 28

CANADIAN — July 28 is the date of an election on a proposed $1.715 million water and sewer improvement bond issue, city council members decided at a brief special meeting Monday.

At issue is what city officials call a comprehensive water and sewer improvement plan which would be funded through a $1.715 loan from Farmers' Home Administration. The loan would be paid through city water revenue bonds.

City officials say that there would be no increases in sewer rates nor any new taxes. However, residents may expect a water rate increase by nearly one third — from $7.50 to $10 for the first 1,000 gallons of water used.

The election was set in response to a petition circulated among city residents calling for the election. The city was to approve final issuance of bonds at their last meeting. But the action was delayed when the petition seeking voter approval on the bond issue was presented.

Petition backers say they agree that the water system needs work, but claim that the work can be done for less on a year-by-year basis.

The petition bears 277 signatures. After checking the signatures against voter registers, city officials found that 248 names were valid. One tenth of the city's registered voters, 180 residents, had to sign the petition to call the election.

Council members also discussed the amount to set the city tax rate. However, they are not expected to make their decision final until later this summer.

According to Standefur, the Carson County Appraisal District assessed city property value at $22,175,554. In 1983, the city operated at a tax rate of 60 cents per $1,000 valuation. Standefur said that with the increased valuation, the city can operate at a tax rate of 55 cents.

Some council members countered his proposals by observing that the city can do more with more revenue.

"We have a lot of big problems with streets and water and we'll need a lot of money to solve them," said council member Lloyd Collis.

No decision was reached on the tax rate.

LAST-MINUTE CHECK - Katrina Bigham, left, and Ann Thrasher check a list of addresses against pictures of graduating seniors in the 1964 Pampa High School Harvester yearbook in finalizing plans for the 20th reunion of the class next Saturday, July 7. The reunion activities will include a coffee at 9 a.m. in the PHS cafeteria, a Coke party at 2 p.m. in Central Park, and a dinner at 6:30 p.m. at Pamcel Hall. The two women said it's not too late for members of the Class of '64 to make plans to attend the reunion. Persons wanting further information may call Bigham at 665-4678 or Thrasher at 665-6867. Editorial writer chooses jail rather than reveal sources

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Saying a free press is essential to democracy, an editorial writer went to jail today to serve an indefinite contempt sentence for refusing to divulge his sources in an editorial that led to a libel suit. "If I don't, I'm afraid no one will challenge this law and it won't get changed," said Richard Hargraves, 34. "If I don't challenge this terrible law, any time a politician doesn't like something that's said about him, he can file a libel suit and ask for the sources."

Hargraves worked for the Belleville News-Democrat when he wrote the editorial involving a county supervisor in 1981. Hargraves now is an editorial writer for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, across the Mississippi River from Belleville. His legal appeals ran out Monday when the U.S. Supreme Court declined to hear his case. Illinois law provides for no confidentiality in libel cases. If politicians file libel suits to get sources, it "will have a chilling effect," said Hargraves. "Then nothing will be said and the people will lose their right to know."

Hargraves spoke outside the two-story, brick and cement jail that houses 244 inmates. Most of the 220 prisoners in the jail today were awaiting trial.

Hargraves will be given no special privileges, said Capt. Delancey Moore.

"I'm worried about what my family is going to do for the next couple of months," said Hargraves, accompanied by his wife Mariana. "And I'm worried — I've never been on that side of the jail before."

On Monday, Hargraves said he would not reveal his sources because, "To do so seems to me would just be going along with the way they've upheld the law that violates any reasonable balance between due process rights and First Amendment rights."

No U.S. journalist has been jailed in connection with a civil libel suit since 1958, according to press groups checked by The New York Times.

Hargraves is being sued by Jerry Costello, chairman of the St. Clair County Board of Supervisors.

The editorial accused Costello of lying to the News-Democrat, which had endorsed him, and the public when he made campaign promises to oppose new taxes that were not first approved by the voters. It said that in Costello's first meeting as chairman, the board created a regional transit district with the power to impose a sales tax.

College sets registration

The Pampa Center of Clarendon College will begin registration for second summer term classes on July 11, according to Larry Gilbert, director.

Registration will be conducted from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. July 11-13 and from 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. July 16. Classes will begin July 16 and end Aug. 23.

Only evening classes will be offered during the second summer term, Gilbert said. Classes will be held Monday and Wednesday evenings or Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

There will be classes in general education requirements, business, computers, real estate and nursing, Gilbert said.

Persons wanting more information may come by the college office at 900 N. Frost or call 665-8801.

Some council members wondered whether people should be allowed to build without a permit.

"Building without a permit is a fineable offense," White Deer Municipal Judge Alvin Adams told the council. "But there's got to be a complaint signed on it."

"You cannot enforce any rules, regulations or ordinances unless there is a signed complaint on it," he said. "If you don't have a signed complaint, you don't have a case."

Woman awaits tests to determine why allergies threaten her life

BEDFORD, Texas (AP) — Hospital officials were hoping to have lab tests completed today that could determine why a 23-year-old Canadian woman is suffering from a potentially life-threatening ailment that makes her allergic to almost everything around her.

Sandra Stronge was flown by the Canadian government to Northeast Community Hospital, located in this Fort Worth suburb, about 4:45 p.m. Monday, said Rob Martin, associate hospital administrator.

The young woman suffers from "environmental sensitivity," or "20th century disease," a condition so extreme her mail is aired on a clothesline for 48 hours so the ink fumes won't cause a reaction, her parents say.

When she was brought to the hospital, Miss Stronge had been drinking only spring water for the past two weeks because she could not tolerate food.

"We are monitoring her. She's more comfortable here than at home but we're following a conservative approach" in the treatment, said Martin. "This may be our biggest challenge in that she may have the most complex problem."

Her parents say the 17-bed Northeast Community Hospital is the only place that can treat Miss Stronge because it was built without varnished or plastic objects that emit fumes. It also has systems that filter air and water to 99 percent purity and a special kitchen.

"It's the only place you can go to be protected from the environment," said Ms. Cisar.

Teacher group explains its objections

AUSTIN (AP) — The school reform bill approved by the Legislature and awaiting Gov. Mark White's signature, despite pumping more money into public education, likely won't solve many of the problems, the Texas State Teachers Association says.

Although the bill contains a pay raise for beginning teachers, the TSTA said Monday there is no guarantee that many experienced teachers will be paid more.

"The overall impact of the bill lowers the already sagging morale of the state's teachers. The result will be to worsen a teacher shortage because increasing numbers of teachers will simply retire or seek other careers," the group said in a statement.

The TSTA, with 95,000 members, is the state's largest teacher organization. It initially supported the education reform compromise worked out in the Legislature, but last week withdrew its backing.

Becky Brooks, TSTA president-elect, said the group didn't urge lawmakers to oppose the bill because it does contain some positive changes, including provisions to reduce class size and to make academics the top priority.

But "as fine as certain provisions in this legislation are, no one can expect teachers to be happy with this legislation with all its uncertainties," Ms. Brooks said.

"Aides and secretaries who will be removed from the state minimum salary schedule and librarians and counselors who will be excluded from the opportunity of ever entering the so-called career ladder cannot be expected to be ecstatic about the new legislation," she said.

Ms. Brooks said only one-third of the $850 million the Legislature will spend next year on school reform is certain to go to teachers.

"The final bill has great potential for further eroding the morale of teachers and other school employees if the substantial amounts of money are not passed through in order to raise salaries," she said.

Among the bill's provisions the TSTA finds objectionable, Ms. Brooks said, are:

— "Insufficient" immediate salary hikes for all but beginning teachers, who will get raises from $11,000 annually to $15,200.

— A requirement that teachers and administrators take competency tests which haven't yet been written.

— A career ladder plan that "will reward less than 25 percent of all teachers and will allow for possibly arbitrary and even accidental decisions on who will be initially placed on the ladder."

— The replacement of an elected state board of education with an appointed board.

— The removal of support staff from state salary schedules, leaving pay scales up to each of the nearly 1,100 school districts.

Ms. Brooks also said that the bill's reforms will require school districts spend more, but doesn't guarantee there will be enough additional state aid to cover the costs.

Homeowners say condemnation gave city government bargains in Baytown

BAYTOWN, Texas (AP) — A group of homeowners, ordered out of their homes by a city ordinance declaring their property flood-prone, says the government has created a bargain-basement sale for itself.

"We've been lied to," said Jean Shepherd, president of the Brownwood Civic Association, one of 79 homeowners who have refused to sell their homes to the Federal Emergency Management Agency Monday was the deadline for the owners to do so.

The city of Baytown passed the ordinance condemning the subdivision in September 1983, a month after Brownwood was flooded by Hurricane Alicia.

Ms. Shepherd said in addition to believing the price offered is too low, Brownwood residents are wary because the city has made no definite plans to clear the land.

If the city fails to clear the land, she said, it will revert back to the federal government, which could sell it for use as a barge terminal.

Attorney Andrew Lannie represents seven homeowners in a suit filed in Harris County last October. His clients say the government has set a price well under market value for the 300 houses in what was once a fashionable neighborhood.

"All of these people that I represent, their houses are virtually intact," Lannie said Monday night. He said the highest purchase price offered his clients was about $7,000.

One clear-cut case of underpayment is that of Paul and Julia Morton, Lannie said.

"The Morton house is worth about $50,000 on the market," he said. "FEMA only paid them $7,500 (as an insurance settlement). There was only one windowpane broken out. She (Mrs. Morton) says she could have moved back in for $500 at most. So Baytown includes it in the hazard area."

"The house is intact," he continued. "If they offer her (a purchase price of) $7,000, that doesn't leave her more than about $35,000 short."

Lannie said he hopes the suit will be tried by the end of the summer.

Hurricane Alicia submerged many Brownwood homes in five feet of water. Now, the area is cordoned off by barricades. Electrical and telephone lines still drape trees and roads. Uprooted trees litter the yards, and concrete slabs or studs and roofs are all that remain of half the homes in the subdivision.

About 172 homeowners, saying they had been chained to their property with no way to sell out except at below-market prices, said they would accept the offer from the federal government.

"We're very happy with the way it went," said Rosa Ciruti, 71, a retired telephone operator who lived in Brownwood for 33 years. "It's like a gift. We never expected to get anything for our land."

Ron Gillum and Bill Haney are among those who say the city has no right to bar them from their homes.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Summitry fever raging

Suddenly, summitry is all the rage. Two prominent Republican senators, Tennessee's Howard Baker and Illinois' Chuck Percy, admonished the Soviet and American leaderships to (in Baker's words) "get together and talk about the general world situation, 'cause we've got to figure out some way not to blow each other up."

Naturally, when President Reagan met the Washington press corps two days later, the first question flung at him was: "Are you willing to go for a summit and start the ball rolling?" "I am willing to meet and talk any time," Reagan replied - hopefully or discouragingly, depending on one's point of view. Summitry is one of the recurring fetishes of 20th-century politics. It deserves extended treatment in the psychoanalytical journals.

The idea, very straightforward and American, goes thus: when two powerful parties aren't getting along, they just oughta sit down and talk things over. In business, in marriage, in democratic politics, the idea makes good sense. In dealings between democratic and totalitarian nations, it makes almost no sense.

Useful, successful summit meetings between such nations are as rare as the great auk. At Munich, Hitler finagled Neville Chamberlain into selling Czechoslovakia down the river. Yalta conceded to the Soviet predominance in Eastern Europe.

A Kennedy - Khrushchev summit in Vienna produced, in Khrushchev, a flinty contempt for the young American president - out of which contempt the Cuban missile crisis may have grown.

Lyndon Johnson and Alexei Kosygin met at Glassboro State College in New Jersey in 1967, at the height of the Vietnam war. Reporters and cameramen swarmed 'round, breathlessly covering the deliberations. And who has since given a thought to them, so puny and inconclusive were they?

The formidable fact is that totalitarians, the Soviets being nowadays the main exemplars of the breed, always cheerfully take whatever concessions they are tendered. But when it comes to OFFERING concessions - why, that's different. Here the Soviets grow shiftily-eyed, as defensive of their claims and possessions as a two-year-old with a new toy.

What are the grounds for supposing that a Reagan - Chernenko meeting would bear tastier fruit than previous meetings? The grounds are nonexistent, so far as one can discern. On "figuring out some way not to blow each other up," to borrow Sen. Baker's phrase, the Soviets are notably derelict, having stormed out of both arms limitation talks. The official Soviet position is, no talks until the U.S. stops the medium-range missile deployment in Europe - the deployment that the Kremlin provoked in the first place by deploying missiles able to shoot from Moscow to Lisbon.

Yet here is what fascinates: These high-level tensions are chiefly OUR fault. The Soviets say so; the Democratic presidential candidates say so; likewise the lords of the Washington media. We haven't been forthcoming enough. We haven't been well completely nice. The president has hurt the tender feelings of the Soviet leadership, calling their country an "evil empire." (He should have said a "lovable empire"?)

As Sam Donaldson said to Reagan during a press conference, the Soviets "feel you have been too harsh. What hard evidence do you have that relations would improve after the election?"

Reagan replied with laudable sarcasm: "Well, if I've been too harsh, maybe if I apologize for shooting down the K.A.L. 707 and some things like that, maybe they'll warm up and be willing to talk."

Maybe. Meanwhile, just to get the preliminary discussions going, would it be proper to suggest to Sen. Baker "some way not to blow each other up?" Here it is: the Soviets announce free elections. Really, truly free: secret ballots, no KGB interference. The opposition wins 9,000,000 to 1. Chernenko and his bodyguards flee to Albania. The new, popularly elected government negotiates in three-days' time a treaty with the U.S. whereunder both countries destroy all nuclear weapons except such as are necessary to keep the Communist Chinese honest.

That's what we talk about, Senator, if we want to talk for some purpose other than hearing the sound of our own voices.

Opinion

FCC's power needs curbing

It is not often that one has occasion to celebrate a triumph of good sense over bureaucratic intransigence in a federal court. Thus, news of the liberation of radio station WVCA-FM in Gloucester, Mass., is particularly welcome.

WVCA is the only station in the small fishing port. It's a one-man operation, broadcasting from the basement of owner-operator Simon Geller's home. It plays classical music. It doesn't have an especially powerful signal or a gigantic audience. The audience it does have is appreciative and loyal.

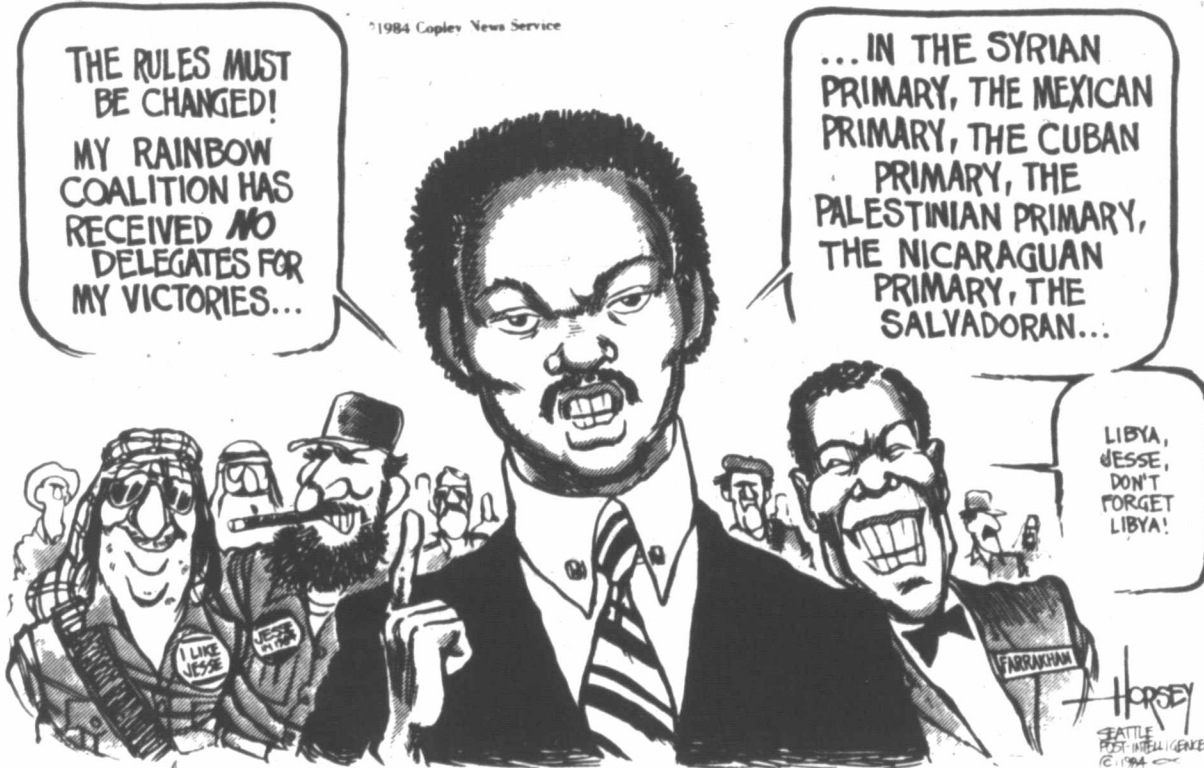

The station, however, does not broadcast news. Another company challenged the station's Federal Communications Commission license in 1975, promising to broadcast all kinds of news. In 1982, the FCC decided to pull Geller's license. Geller appealed. Recently, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia ordered the FCC to reconsider its license denial.

The FCC's original decision was particularly ironic. In most major markets (Gloucester is only 30 miles from Boston) there is no shortage of stations with formula formats. Classical music stations are relatively rare, for the reason that they are not especially profitable.

Yet the FCC was ready to put out of business a station that voluntarily filled a small niche in the market, and replace it with a station whose format could well have been virtually indistinguishable from a dozen other stations. Why? Because the FCC has guidelines about what "serving the community" means, and life-and-death licensing power.

The court's rejection of the FCC decision was on the narrow grounds that the FCC's "content evaluation is (in that particular case) unreasonable." The court didn't really have the power to abolish or substantially alter the FCC's licensing power—that's up to Congress.

Perhaps Congress will be stirred to action by this latest demonstration that regulatory power is too often the enemy of diversity and of the sensible process of letting radio station owners and their customers decide what kind of stations listeners want. Revision of the FCC's power has been debated for years and is long overdue. It may be too much to hope that the FCC will be abolished outright, but its present arbitrary power needs to be curbed.

Today in History

Today is Tuesday, July 3, the 185th day of 1984. There are 181 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On July 3, 1863, the Civil War Battle of Gettysburg ended after Confederate General George Pickett's troops suffered severe losses in his famous charge.

On this date: Ten years ago: President Richard Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev ended their third summit meeting by signing a communique in which they said their countries would seek a new interim accord on limiting offensive nuclear weapons.

Five years ago: West Germany's lower house of parliament, the Bundestag, voted to abolish the statute of limitations for murder to continue prosecuting Nazi war criminals.

Today's birthdays: Playwright Tom Stoppard is 47. ABC News Correspondent Geraldo Rivera is 41. Actress Betty Buckley is 37. Singer Laura Branigan is 27.

Thought for today: "Silence gives consent." — Oliver Goldsmith, Anglo-Irish author (1728-1774).

The machinery still works

Partly personal: I lost my intellectual virginity in Chicago. In the Tulsa, Okla., of the morning of my life there were cops and robbers but they were separate.

There were people who were different - but not separate. And then one day I transplanted my naivete to Chicago.

Where people, polarized around prejudices, took sides.

Where the difference between the good guys and the bad was blurred.

Where even the dead - vote.

Where the courts were so corrupt that you could buy your way into or out of anything - traffic tickets to murder.

Where mob bosses flaunted their freedom.

Where lawyers, paid extra, became "fixers."

Where judges spent half a million dollars to get elected to $30,000 jobs - and nobody asked why because everybody knew. Where judges divided their time between homes here and in Florida and the source of such wealth was never questioned.

And not one was ever - ever - convicted. Gradually the transplanted newsboy grew callous over his own conscience; idealism gave way to cynicism.

Yesterday I was on my way home from one of those wheeling - and - dealing meetings where a charitable organization is having to pay $10,000 a day to lawyers - and I was feeling sorry for us - U.S.

But then over my car radio came word that a Cook County Judge --

Who had taken cash payoffs to fix traffic tickets - has been found guilty.

Cynics had thought because the jury was out two days that some bought juror was going to get him off.

Instead, the jury was out that long because it was that carefully re - examining evidence on which they convicted him on 24 counts -- "mail fraud, racketeering, extortion."

His Honor, dishonored, is liable for $110,000 in fines and a prison sentence of 240 years.

More significantly - this prosecution is the first of many resulting from the federal government's undercover "operation Greylord" in which 17 have been indicted. Four of them are current or former judges. Others are attorneys, police officers and court personnel.

Observing this eventuation of justice will not restore the innocence of my sheltered younger years...

But it re - restores a flagging faith in the system.

Our country can still get out of whack and get fixed. The old machinery still works; it just needs to be tightened up once in a while.

Don't spare today's youths

I agree with President Reagan. I think young people should have to wait until they are 21 before they can buy a legal drink.

I had to wait until I was 21, so where does it say that today's kids should be allowed to walk into a bar without a fake I.D. and order a whisky sour - which is what most kids order when they walk into a bar - at a younger age than I could?

I don't want to be a pain about all this, but I had to suffer all the headaches of trying to get my hands on booze before I was legal, and it is only fair that today's youth should be forced to go through the same hassles.

I remember when I was 18. I met a girl who was 21. I told her I was 22. I called her one day and asked for a date.

"Fine," she said. "Why don't I meet you at Al's Place after work for a drink?"

What I originally had in mind was for snow cones and a movie. I had to borrow a friend's fake I.D.

At Al's Place, my date ordered Cutty on the rocks.

"I'll have a whiskey sour," I said.

"Well, then make mine a Pink Squirrel," snarled my date, who would never go out with me again.

Also when I was 18, I went down to register for the draft. You may recall the unpleasantness that was raging in Vietnam at the time.

Registering for the draft made me very nervous. If Lyndon Johnson had really set his mind to it, he could have had me in a jungle fighting the Viet Cong in a New York second. I decided I needed a few beers to get that horrible thought off my mind.

I walked into a package store and ordered a six-pack. The man behind the counter asked to see my I.D. I handed him my new draft card.

"Says here you're only 18. Sport," said the man.

"That's true, sir," I responded, "but it also says there I am currently eligible to get shot between the eyes 10,000 miles away from this package store by somebody I don't know, and a few beers would help take my mind off that possibility."

The man wouldn't budge. I had to try to chase away my anxieties with a couple of Pepsis.

When I was in college, I found out the best way to get booze was to bribe an older friend to buy it for me.

I always used Lester Pendley, who was 22 and working his way through law school by fleecing undergraduates.

Lester got a buck for buying a six-pack, or he got half the beer. He had a rate on cases: three bucks for a case, or he kept eight of the beers.

During spring break one year, a friend and I decided to hit the beach for a few days. We bribed Lester into buying us a case of beer.

My friend put the beer in the trunk of his car, but as we were about to leave, we noticed the beer was missing. My friend's father had found the beer and confiscated it.

"You boys are a little too young to be drinking beer," said my friend's father after we poured water on his head to sober him up and get him back in his chair. "When you're a little older," he said before passing out again, "you'll know how to handle this stuff."

New grand jury to consider several nursing home deaths

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — An assistant attorney general says prosecutors hope to present information to a grand jury next week involving allegations that a Texas City nursing home was responsible for the deaths of several patients.

David Marks said Monday a grand jury will be impaneled July 9 and the presentation involving Houston-based Autumn Hills Convalescent Centers Inc. could be made as early as July 10.

Earlier indictments alleged that 56 people died of neglect and mistreatment at the facility in a two-year period.

"The same theory and basic information that was presented in the past" will be presented then, Marks said.

"Right now we are in the phase of beginning the presentation. ... When we get a little further down the road, we'll have some more specifics," Marks said.

Autumn Hills was charged in 38 indictments in 1981 by the second grand jury to look into the deaths. The first panel's indictments were thrown out when former District Attorney James Hury complained they were sloppy.

A plea bargain the corporation struck in the second set of indictments provided for dismissal of 255 charges in return for a no contest plea to a single count of involuntary manslaughter.

The corporation was also to pay Galveston County $100,000. Under the plea bargain agreement, visiting state District Judge Larry Gist was to find the firm innocent if it kept state law for 10 years.

But Mike Guarino, Galveston County's current chief prosecutor, argued successfully that a corporation cannot legally take part in such a deferred judgment. He demanded Gist immediately find the firm guilty. The corporation withdrew its plea.

Marks, who worked in Hury's office, was fired by Hury when he tried to block the plea bargain. Marks claimed the district attorney struck the deal with little knowledge of the charges.

The assistant attorney general said the "main difference" between the upcoming presentation to the grand jury and the previous ones is that Hury no longer is the district attorney.

Hury now is a Democratic state representative from Galveston.

Hightower returns from Guatemala

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Rep. Jack Hightower says he hopes Guatemala does not seek military aid from the United States but says he'd consider some kind of aid after observing that country's elections this weekend.

Hightower, D-Texas, a member of the House defense appropriations subcommittee, was one of three congressmen who went to the Guatemala as part of a two-dozen-member team of U.S. election observers.

"Aid depends on what form it's going to take," Hightower told reporters in his Washington office after returning Monday evening. "They have not asked for military aid that I know of and I would hope that they would not."

"We're interested in trying to build bridges of peace."

The two other congressmen on the trip, Ralph Regula, R-Ohio, and Mickey Edwards, R-Okla., are also members of the appropriations committee — Regula on the military construction subcommittee and Edwards on the military construction and foreign operations subcommittees.

Hightower has supported the Reagan administration's defense and Central American policies, but he said he did not know if that was why he was invited to go to Guatemala.

"I was pleased to have the opportunity, so I didn't ask why," he said, adding that at least one other member of Congress who is not on the appropriations committee was invited to go on the trip but could not.

Voters in Guatemala went to the polls on Sunday to elect 88 members of a constituent assembly which is to write a constitution that could revive democracy after 30 years of military rule.

Guatemala's head of state, Gen. Oscar Humberto Mejia Victores, has promised to hold elections for a president and congress after the constitution is adopted.

Under Guatemalan law, Hightower said, members of the military were not allowed to vote. "We were ... concerned whether there was any military pressure," Hightower said. "There was no evidence of any military around."

Hightower said the U.S. Department of State, which arranged the trip, did not offer

"any guidance of what to look for." "We were encouraged to form our own opinions and that's what we did," he said.

After a briefing by the embassy staff Saturday night, Hightower said, the observers split up into groups on Sunday

Students design baths

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Get a creative group of students thinking about a human design problem and you can expect some interesting new solutions.

Challenged to create the "bathroom of the future," a group of senior design students came up with mirror defoggers, toilets that move up and down and flush automatically, and showers that won't wet the hair, among other ideas.

The projects by five groups of seniors at the Art Center College of Design in Pasadena, Calif., were displayed at a meeting sponsored by American Standard. The company funded the student design project.

Charles Pelly, an industrial designer and instructor in the course, said guidelines had been purposely kept general to avoid influencing the outcome. The students were asked to incorporate currently-available technologies and materials, to think in terms of satisfying today's needs, and to build room-size models of their ideas.

Pelly said students at the school had undertaken other industry-sponsored projects to rethink a product or a function. Projects are partly to expose the students to the real world of design problems and partly to generate interesting new ideas for the companies that sponsor the research.

The most elaborate student project was a bathroom whose grid-like floor acts as an instant drain so that the room functions as an all-inclusive wet area. No shower curtain or shower door is needed since water does not accumulate but is drained to a storage area below. The tub is recessed under the floor in a compartment with a sliding cover.

Electronic controls operate a self-cleaning system for floor, tub, sink and toilet and the sink is adjustable for various heights. A mirror over the sink has a built-in defogger and a wall-mounted blower provides for air-drying the hands.

The toilet in this bath of the future, designed by Harry Howard, Juan Montega, Russ Rucker and Steve Yaglan, adjusts up and down for different sized people and is in a private alcove away from the tub and sink.

Thinking more economically, Sally Ann Hadler and Joan Sunol designed a small-space bathroom that features a single central plumbing column off which radiate the toilet and sink. The sink and toilet both move sideways and up and down to provide for flexibility for all family members.

Common ideas found in several student projects included self-cleaning sinks and toilets, touch-sensitive electronic controls, automatic toilet flushing and built-in convenience features such as soap dispensers and dryers. At least two student groups offered in-floor weight-sensors in front of the sink to provide for a daily weigh-in and read-out as an individual steps up to the sink to brush his teeth.

Adjustable heights on sinks and toilets, and showers with water jets from the sides as well as from above were other common features.

Almost as if in response to these ideas, American Standard introduced an electronically controlled tub at the same meeting. Dubbed the "sensorium," the tub, which will sell for about $12,000 towards the beginning of 1985, is a foot longer, a foot wider and five inches deeper than the normal tub.

It will accommodate two persons and is capable of being filled automatically at a preset time to a preset temperature. It will be maintained at that temperature and can empty automatically if not used in an hour.

The tub also features a keyboard of electronic controls which offer 22 functions, including control of telephone, intercom, lights, house locks, music and television.

Emanuel Kampouris, a senior vice president at American Standard, said computer-driven electronics represented the most likely avenue of change in the bath fixture field.

"Computers are the cheapest resource we have today," he said, adding that some of the student ideas are easily possible with present technology and materials.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Gardner of Pampa are to be honored on their 40th wedding anniversary with a come - and - go reception Saturday, July 7, from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m., at the couple's home on 2236 Beech.

The date for the Gardner's anniversary was incorrectly reported in the Sunday edition. We regret any inconvenience this error may have caused.

Dear Abby

Theft of candy leaves sour taste in shoplifter's mouth

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I walked out of a local department store when suddenly someone tapped me on the shoulder and said, "I'm with security; please give me the box you have in your purse and follow me."

I followed him back into the store and into the manager's office, where I was questioned for shoplifting a box of candy that cost 78 cents!

Understand, I am not a kid. I am 50 years old, the mother of five children. Should they learn of this, I would never be able to look them in the eye again. There is a hearing scheduled for a week from now. I will probably be fingerprinted, charged with shoplifting and fined about $50.

Why did I do it? I have asked myself that question a thousand times. I wish I could come up with an answer—any answer that would explain my actions. I did not enter that store with any thought of shoplifting. I didn't want the candy; I seldom eat candy. Then why did I take it? I have plenty of money to buy whatever I want. I've never stolen anything before, and I didn't get a particular "thrill" out of taking it.

Thanks for listening, Abby. I haven't been able to talk to anyone about this. I feel so lousy.

GUILTY AS CHARGED

DEAR GUILTY: Legally you are guilty of shoplifting, but there is a strong possibility that you are a "kleptomaniac." Definition: "one who has a persistent, neurotic compulsion to steal—especially without economic motive." It's a condition that can be treated. Get a lawyer and a doctor. And in that order.

DEAR ABBY: Recently, your column told of a woman who broke into her sister-in-law's house by removing the screen and climbing into a back bedroom. (She wanted to put a box of bargain strawberries in the woman's refrigerator.)

I think I can top that. When I arrived home, I found some relatives in my house! They were tee-heeing about having had to remove the sliding door so my sister-in-law could use the bathroom! (My brother is a builder and knew some of the secrets for removing the door.) Abby, there are several service stations within two blocks of my home.

I asked those people how dare they show the entire neighborhood how to break into my house! They just laughed. They thought it was funny.

SEETHING IN THE SUBURBS

DEAR SEETHING: Your relatives should be informed that breaking and entering the home of a relative is no less a crime than breaking and entering the home of a stranger. And punishment for said crime is no laughing matter.

DEAR ABBY: I am dying to unload this. I am sick of hearing about adopted kids wanting to find their "real mothers." I'm not talking about kids who were 5, 10 and 15 years old at the time of their adoption, but children who were only days or weeks old, as I was when I was adopted. I will never understand why anyone would want to meet a woman who never did anything for him but give him away.

The people who adopted these kids are their real parents—it's written on their birth certificates. My so-called "real" mother was not there when I was sick, or when I woke up scared in the middle of the night. She wasn't there to see my first communion, my confirmation, my graduation from high school or college. She also didn't feed me, clothe me, give me an allowance and send me to college.

Only my closest friends know I am adopted. I chose not to tell anyone else because I didn't want to be bombarded with questions about my "real" mother. My adopted parents are my real parents, and God help the woman who gave birth to me if she ever comes knocking at my door in hopes of a reunion. To me she would be a very selfish person with a lot of nerve to think she could have a second chance.

Instant ice pack

Need an instant ice pack for bumps and bruises? Family Circle magazine suggests saving small, empty, preferably somewhat "flat" plastic bottles and containers from hand creams and shampoos. Clean them thoroughly, fill with water and put in the freezer. That way there'll be no fumbling for ice cubes when there's an injury, and no mess or dripping. Simply return the bottle or container to the freezer for the next time it may be needed.

Women's legal hotline offered

In October 1983, the Women's Advocacy Project, a non-profit organization based in Austin, began operating the nation's first statewide, toll-free "Women's Legal Hotline," offering free legal advice and counseling to women throughout Texas. The hotline focuses its services on sex discrimination issues, although counseling on all women's rights questions is available.

The hotline served about 70 callers during its first month. Calls increased by about one-third each month until leveling off at about 150 callers counseled each month since January.

Callers speak initially to the Project's executive director, attorney Betsy Loar. "Many of our callers need basic legal information or a referral to an attorney in their area who specializes in dealing with the type of problem they are having," said Loar. "We have at the present time a list of more than 50 participating attorneys from around the state who have agreed to provide our referrals with free initial consultations. The number of attorneys participating in our referral service is increasing all the time, with our goal being to eventually have enough attorneys in all areas of the state to handle the needs of all our callers."

The Women's Advocacy Project, Inc., says a pamphlet explaining the program, provides the following services to attorneys handling sex-discrimination cases: free research assistance, library and briefing bank, expert legal consultation, seminars on related areas of law, expert witnesses, co-counsel on selected cases and financial assistance for selected cases.

These are the problems the Project is trying to overcome through its legal assistance service, the pamphlet states.

—Although 20 years has passed since the enactment of laws intended to eliminate employment discrimination, the earnings gap between men and women continues to widen. On the average, women who work full time earn only 59 cents to every dollar earned by men, and the figure is even lower for minority women.

—Of the 5.6 million households in this country headed by women, 2.3 million (40 percent) of them live in poverty.

—Women workers have longer periods of unemployment, more underemployment, less overtime, less union protection and fewer benefits (including health, disability and retirement).

—A homemaker who becomes disabled is not eligible for Social Security benefits. A divorced woman is eligible for a maximum of 50 percent of her former spouse's Social Security benefits, but only if the marriage lasted 10 years and only after the former spouse chooses to retire.

—A woman college graduate earns on the average $3,000 less than a male high school graduate.

—72 percent of the elderly poor are women.

—52 percent of America's 90 million women over 16 are in the labor force; 74 percent of these women are single.

Women who feel they have a problem with which the Women's Legal Hotline can help, may call this toll-free number, 1-800-221-FAIR, between noon and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

HELICOPTER CRASH—Authorities investigate the crash of a Tennessee National Guard helicopter which killed three persons Monday afternoon near Only, Tenn. The crash occurred as the National Guard flight instructor and two Tennessee Correction officials aboard the helicopter were searching for a trio of prison escapees from a nearby state correctional facility. (AP Laserphoto)

Helicopter crash kills three in prison escapees search

ONLY, Tenn. (AP) — Despite a helicopter crash that killed three searchers, an intense manhunt for three prison escapees went on today with scores of officers, dog teams and another helicopter equipped for scanning in the dark.

A Tennessee Army National Guard pilot and two associate wardens from Turney Center prison died Monday when their observation helicopter crashed near the medium-security facility, where the inmates had fled by jimmying cell locks and climbing two fences in dense fog Sunday, authorities said.

Although the cause of the accident was not immediately known, witnesses said power lines were down around the wreckage of the craft.

"In all probability it hit some power lines, but we won't know for sure until an investigative team gets down there and takes a look," said Col. William D. Jones, chief of staff of the Tennessee Army National Guard.

Meanwhile, West Virginia correctional officers early today recaptured a convicted murderer who was taken into custody without incident along a creek near the hospital from which he had escaped Sunday.

About 70 prison guards and Tennessee Highway Patrol troopers stood watch overnight, forming a perimeter five miles out from the prison, while four teams of tracking dogs combed the area, said state Correction Department spokesman John Taylor.

The second helicopter, which was flying over the dense woods and rugged terrain around the prison about 65 miles west of Nashville, was equipped with infrared sensors that could detect the fugitives' body heat in the dark, Taylor said.

The escapees were identified as Michael Hartsock, 26, of Montgomery County, serving a life sentence for two murders; Lohman R. Mays, 41, of Sullivan County, serving life as a habitual criminal; and William R. Prentice, 29, of Dickson County, serving 30 years for armed robbery.

Sunday's breakout — the 25th at a Tennessee prison this year and the fourth from Turney Center — occurred in heavy fog at the site of construction to make the 846-inmate facility more secure, Taylor said. Because of the construction, razor-wire had been removed from the fencing between guard towers, Taylor said.

The downed helicopter was a

OH-6 Loach stationed in Smyrna, said National Guard Capt. Hooper Penuel. He identified the dead, all those aboard, as Turney Associate Warden James F. McPeters, 33, of Dickson; Turney Associate Warden Donald G. Gammons, 33, of Only; and Guard Maj. Sam M. Kyle, 43, of Murfreesboro.

National Guard Capt. Hooper Penuel said the downed craft — a jet turbine powered helicopter — was a Vietnam-era model. He said the Guard has "quite a few" of the OH-6s, but they wouldn't be grounded unless the crash investigation showed the helicopter defective.

Border Patrol is being beefed up

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP) — Bolstered by a $50 million budget increase, the Immigration and Naturalization Service is recruiting 850 new Border Patrol agents, the regional INS commissioner says.

The added agents will be used to cope with increased numbers of persons.

"We have an apprehension (of an illegal alien) every 73 seconds," INS Western Regional Commissioner Harold Ezell said.

TAKING DREAMS TO NASHVILLE—J. Stewart Richey performs before a Sulphur Springs night club audience. Richey is banking that he has the "something different" to make it as a country and western singer. (AP Laserphoto)

Singer dreams of Nashville

By SUSAN McCARY
Sulphur Springs News-Telegram
SULPHUR SPRINGS, Texas (AP) — It was a "Tuesday night" crowd in the motel club, a thin crowd of mostly guests seeking a little relief from the loneliness of a room in a strange town.

But J. Stuart Richey, the evening's entertainment, responded to the spattering of applause with a smile and launched into another "C&W" song and a full evening's work.

The only adjustment the musician made for the "Tuesday night" performance from the one he gives before a full house was to turn the volume down a little lower.

The crowd may have been small, but it was one more step on a road called "success," and Richey isn't about to step in one of the road's many potholes by slouching in front of an audience.

When not on the road, and that's not often, the Wood County native calls a small clearing in the woods on Cypress Springs Lake his home.

Before his show at the Sundance Room of the Trail Dust Inn, Richey relaxed in the spartan, but comfortable mobile home at his "ranch," which gives little evidence of the on-stage J. Stuart Richey, but a lot of the Stuart Richey who grew up near the community of Hopewell near Winnsboro.

He talked about the new trends emerging in Country-Western music and how those trends figure in his future — a future that he has mapped out, including a time table.

"It (the trend) is moving away from Outlaw Country, I'm not saying that Willie (Nelson) and Waylon (Jennings) won't still be big, but people are ready for something different," Richey said. And he is banking that he has the "something different."

Richey, whose own music and personal style leans away from the heavy emphasis of drinking, sex and a life style that thumbs its nose at social conventions, is quick to add that he does some "crying-in-mp-beer" kind of songs and some of the outlaw country songs. "I ride the top 40 real strong, but I slip in some of the older country songs and some of the old gospel songs. People recognize them and I think they like it," he said.

About his own music, which he sandwiches in between the "Top 40" and old favorites, he said, "I think people are beginning to recognize it."

With the growing acceptance of his music have already come a few swigs of sweet satisfaction. He told about one booking agent in the Houston area whom he tried mightily to convince she should try him in some of the clubs she managed booking for.

"But no matter how hard I tried — I sent her packets and packets of material. I would have sent a video if I could have laid my hands on one — she just wasn't interested. She made it clear that she was interested in someone with the outlaw style." He paused with a slow smile growing. "Well, while I was in Houston, I met this lady. I had booked myself into five of her clubs and an independent."

His music, which he delivers in a smooth, balladeer style, owes a lot to John Lennon, Paul McCartney and Credence Clearwater, as well as to Ray Price and Eddie Rabbitt and to the songs he and his six sisters learned while singing at the South Hopewell Primitive Baptist Church.

"A lot of people have helped me who don't even know me," he said. He added that a number of people who know him have helped along the way, too, such as Ray Price.

"I worked on Price's ranch near Mount Pleasant when I was just a kid. He encouraged me and, in fact, he lent me the first good amplifier I used."

He said he has always been interested in music, but when his dad, Charlie Richey, a fiddle and guitar player, gave him his first guitar at 13, he was off on the path he's still following.

"I've never really wanted to be anything else besides a musician," he said.

But for now, the one-man sells. "It's a novelty," he said.

Southfork, Dealy Plaza top list

DALLAS (AP) — The first law of guiding tourists through Dallas, says tour expert Patti Watson, is "promise 'em anything, but give 'em Southfork and Dealy Plaza."

It's that rule that Mrs. Watson is keeping in mind as she designs tours for Republicans who will swamp the city in August for the GOP National Convention. She took on the task at the request of the Republican Welcoming Committee.

She said that the sites associated with the assassination of President John F. Kennedy — Dealy Plaza, the Texas School Book Depository and Parkland Memorial Hospital — were the most frequently requested by all kinds of tour groups for years.

But the Southfork Ranch, the backdrop for the television soap opera "Dallas," may now be the most popular tourist attraction, Mrs. Watson said.

Mrs. Watson said she "made one thing clear to the Welcoming Committee — whatever else they had in mind, the Kennedy and 'Dallas' things were things people were going to ask to see."

Southfork and the assassination sites are on separate tours. Several of the Kennedy sites are also on the three-hour overview called the

"Dallas Preview Tour."
"We tried to get a good mix in there," Mrs. Watson said. "We were determined to show them not just the good and the bad but everything, and I think this package does it."

Mrs. Watson said she expects 300 to 400 people a day on the air-conditioned bus tours.

Your social life could take on a whole new direction this coming year. Exciting new adventures are in the offing through persons you'll be meeting.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you are engineering the family outing today, don't be reluctant to include older people with the youngsters. The blend will be compatible. Major changes are in store for Cancer in the coming year. Send for your year ahead predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Occasionally extravagance is healthy. Today if you're involved with people you like and are having a good time, don't hesitate to spend a little.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Instead of being buffeted about in a crowd today, friends will look to you for direction. That's because you'll control events and won't let events control you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You may initially feel a trifle shy or reserved today but, once you get into the swim of things, you'll be the most popular person at the party.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try to associate with people today who are physically active and young in spirit. Avoid those who think the Fourth is just another day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You thrive on competitive events today and you should do rather well. Don't let them begin the potato-sack race without you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If the party gets dull or slows down today, take that as your cue to move in. You can breathe new life into the happenings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It may be your lucky day to work a bit extra in order to see that others have a good time. To you, they'll be labors of love.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Any team would be fortunate to have you as a member today. You might not score the winning run, but you could inspire the one who does.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you set an industrious example today, willing helpers will rally to your side. Instead of ignoring what needs doing, tackle the tasks at hand.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Under your direction and guidance, a good time can be had by all. Instinctively, you'll know the types of fun activities that will please the majority.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your greatest sense of personal gratification will come from taking on duties or responsibilities no one else wants.

Hart Warren honored

RETIRING CLUB PRO Hart Warren urges a long putt toward the cup during a pro-am tournament held in his honor Monday at the Pampa Country Club course. (Staff Photo)

Awards and accolades were heaped upon retiring golf pro Hart Warren during an appreciation banquet Monday night at the Pampa Country Club.

Over 200 guests turned out to say farewell to the 65-year-old Warren and his wife, Ava, who are leaving later this year for golfing trips to Scotland and Spain.

Earlier in the day, a pro-am tournament was held in Warren's honor.

"Hart is the epitome of what golf is all about, particularly professional golf," said former National PGA president Joe Black and a longtime friend of the Warrens. "When I was at Ross Rogers (head pro at the Amarillo course), he was a big supporter of mine. He's what golf is all about."

Among the awards and gifts Warren received was a lifetime membership to the Pampa Country Club, the Horton Smith award from the West Texas Chapter, North Region, a money tree from the Pampa Ladies Golf Association, a True Top of Texan award from the City of Pampa and a sculptured eagle from the Tri-State Seniors Golf Association.

Jay McClure, head pro at the Meadowbrook Course in Lubbock since 1954, read a letter from Mark Buzzard of the PGA of America. "Congratulations on your 30-year tenure at the Pampa Country Club. It's obvious from the turnout here tonight that you've done a remarkable job. The PGA thanks you for your tireless effort," the letter said in part.

Among the special guests were Warren's sons, Tom and Skip, and a sister, Peggy McDonald. Former assistants of Warren present were Fred Bond of Hollis, Okla., Martin Reeves of Ocean Spring, Miss., and Sherwin Cox of Amarillo. Johnny Austin, the former head pro at the Pampa Club, was also on hand.

Dr. Joe Donaldson served as Master of Ceremonies. Also handling the introductions was Mickey Piersall, now the head pro at PCC. Piersall has served as an assistant under Warren the past four years.

Bob Giese, representing the Tri-State Seniors Association, said, "We want to thank Hart for everything he's done for us in the past. We've had an outstanding relationship."

"Hart helped me with my basics. He's an outstanding teacher," said Richard Ellis, a former Texas Amateur champion and a six-time Top of Texas champion. Ellis is a former Pampan now living in Plano.

Warren plans to spend more time on the course as a player now.

"Hopefully, I'll be able to play more golf. I'm going to sharpen up my game and supplement my income with some of these players around here," Warren joked.

Warren said he's enjoyed his tenure at the PCC.

"I've always done what I thought was for the betterment of the club, not just a chosen few," Warren said. "I've been criticized for that attitude, but I wasn't going to change."

Warren has been at PCC exactly 29 years, 7 months.

"I went to answer the phone the other day in the golf shop and I just realized I wasn't the pro anymore. That's going to take a little getting used to," Warren said.

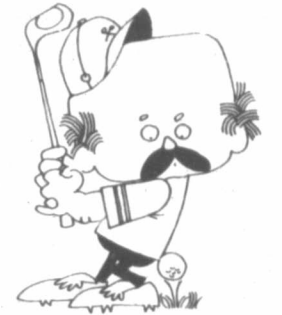

It will take some time for many of the country club golfers to realize Warren is no longer the head pro.

Golf results

The team of Myron Briscoe, Dumas, Doug McFrittridge, Bill Simon and Nancy Chase, all of Pampa, shot a 51 to win the Hart Warren Pro-Am Tournament held Monday at the Pampa Country Club course.

Ronnie Rosson of Levelland, Doug Burk of Perryton and Keith Bumpas of Amarillo shot a 68 to tie for low pro. Richard Ellis of Plano won the amateur division (low gross) with a 66.

Warren, retiring after 29 years at the PCC head pro, teamed with his wife, Ava, and sons, Skip and Tom, in the team division. They tied for third with a 54.

Energy-Agri edges Canadian, 6-5, Pampa all-stars win over Canyon

Pampa Blue (Energy-Agri) edged Canadian, 6-5, Saturday in a Senior Babe Ruth baseball game.

Wade Howard was the winning pitcher while Tobi Rithaler got the save. They combined for 10 strikeouts while walking six.

Ricky Cloud and Mike Kilgo led Pampa's hitting attack with two hits each. Richard Fishburn, Carl Graves and Howard had one hit each.

Pampa played perfect defense, not committing an error.

Pampa Blue plays at Dumas Friday and then go against Tital Specialties and Hood Pharmacy in doubleheader action Saturday and Sunday at Optimist Park.

Pampa's 13-year-old all-stars defeated Canyon, 8-6, in district tournament action Monday in Canyon.

Dustin Miller struck out eight and walked three in going the distance for the mound win.

Bryan Dunn and Billy Wortham were the top hitters for Pampa. Wortham, a left fielder, third baseman J.J. Jones and right fielder Mike Elliott were the defensive standouts for Pampa.

Pampa plays Dumas at 7 p.m. tonight in more tournament action.

Kelly named top player

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer

When he was growing up in East Brady, Pa., Jim Kelly tried to model himself after Terry Bradshaw and he still wears Bradshaw's No. 12. But Bradshaw never had Mouse Davis and his "run-and-shoot offense."

The 6-foot-3, 215 pound Houston Gamblers rookie was named Monday the United States Football League's Player of the Year after putting together the most productive season ever by a professional quarterback. It was accomplished but under the tutelage of Davis, who developed the quick-strike, short-passing offense that allowed Kelly to fulfill his promise.

"Bradshaw is my main man. I hold the ball the same way he does and I have the same number," Kelly says of the Pittsburgh Steelers' quarterback.

"But Mouse has been such a great help to me. He's taught me a lot about anticipating when to throw and how to read the zones. When I first signed with the Gamblers, I didn't even know who he was. But believe me, a lot of people know him now."

With Kelly directing Davis' offense, the Gamblers became the only one of the six USFL expansion teams to make the playoffs. They were eliminated in the first round Sunday 17-16 by the Arizona Wranglers.

Kelly, a first-round pick of the National Football League Buffalo Bills, was the first top young quarterback to sign with the new league and quickly became the USFL's brightest star.

He received 30 votes from a panel of two reporters from each USFL city. Philadelphia quarterback Chuck Fusina had three votes, Philadelphia running back Kelvin Bryant, last year's player of the year, had two and Birmingham's Joe Cribbs got one.

For the season, Kelly passed for 5,219 yards and 44 touchdowns and had nine 300-yard games in 18 starts. He also ran for 493 yards in 85 carries, an average of 5.8 yards per carry.

The touchdown passes were an all-time pro record, four more than Pete Liske's 40 for Calgary of the Canadian Football League in 1967 and eight more than the NFL

Connors rolls at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Jimmy Connors is asked the same question at almost every major tournament these days — when will you retire?

"As long as I'm playing like I'm playing, I don't see why I can't go on another year or two," said Connors after an impressive four-set victory Monday over fellow American Tim Mayotte in the fourth round of the men's singles at Wimbledon.

"But then again, if I lose my interest, I'd sooner get out."

Like the rest of the men left in the singles tournament, Connors was enjoying a day off today as the women took to the show courts of the All-England Club.

Chris Evert Lloyd was first up on Centre Court in a delayed fourth round match against Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany, to be followed by a quarter-final clash between No. 10 seed Jo Durie — the last British hope in the competition — and the No. 3 seed from Czechoslovakia, Hana Mandlikova.

In two other quarter-finals, both on court No. 1, defending champion Martina Navratilova was to play Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria before Pam Shriver's match against Kathy Jordan, an all-American affair between two big serve and volleyers.

Connors, 31, seeded No. 3, disposed off Mayotte 6-7 (4-7), 6-2, 6-0, 6-2.

Despite his enjoyment of the game, Connors stressed that tennis is not as dominant in his life as in the past.

Gooden whiffs 12 as Mets down Astros

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

The fans were cheering every two-strike pitch by Dwight Gooden and the Ks were being posted on the upper deck facade at a rate commensurate with the rookie strikeout artist's latest overpowering performance.

A crowd of 21,923 had come to Shea Stadium hoping to see the 19-year-old right-hander take the major league lead in strikeouts. He didn't disappoint them, fanning 12 in a 4-2 victory Monday night over the Houston Astros to boost his total to 125 and pitch the New York Mets into first place in the National League East.

A large red K was taped to the railing and the drama continued to mount with each succeeding strikeout in what has become known as The K Korner, a spot near the left-field foul pole. It reached its climax when Houston's Jerry Mumphy fanned for the third time to boost Gooden past Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles.

Gooden, in living up to his reputation of being poised far beyond his years, seemed unmoved by all the commotion.

"I don't get caught up in the crowd," said Gooden, who has fanned 10 or more six times. "The first time it happened I wondered what was going on. Now I just have to shut it out."

"Right now, he's one of the best right-handers in the league," said Jose Cruz, who had three of the eight hits off Gooden. Jesse Orosco relieved Gooden with one out in the ninth and picked up his 15th save.

Elsewhere, San Diego tripped Chicago 5-1, Philadelphia blanked Cincinnati 4-0, Montreal edged Atlanta 5-4 and Los Angeles shaded Pittsburgh 5-4. St. Louis and San Francisco were not scheduled.

Gooden, 7-5, tamed the hot-hitting Astros, who had been averaging seven runs over their last 12 games, after a shaky first inning. He allowed a leadoff triple to Bill Doran, Craig Reynolds' RBI grounder and a double to Cruz, who is now 18 for his last 31.

Wally Backman led the New York attack by driving in three runs, but errors contributed to the cause.

The Mets tied it 1-1 in the second inning when Darryl Strawberry tripled off the left-field wall with Cruz missing a catchable ball and scored when Hubie Brooks hit a chopper that shortstop Reynolds tried to short-hop but misplayed for a two-base error.

In the fifth inning, New York scored twice against Mike Scott, 4-6, without hitting the ball out of the infield. Right fielder Terry Puhl misplayed a hit by Ron Gardenhire in the seventh to help the Mets, who lead both Chicago and Philadelphia by three percentage points, score their final run.

San Diego went ahead 2-1 on a sixth-inning throwing error by loser Rick Reuschel, 4-4, and added three more runs in the seventh with the help of a two-run error by Gary Matthews.

Garry Templeton led off with a double and George Frazier relieved Reuschel. Pinch hitter Tim Flannery walked and Alan Wiggins dropped down a bunt single to load the bases. Tony Gwynn lashed a single to left to score Templeton, and Flannery and Wiggins came home when the ball eluded Matthews.

Phillies 4, Reds 0
Shane Rawley pitched two-hit ball over seven innings and Ozzie Virgil and Glenn Wilson hit solo home runs.

Rawley, 1-0, acquired Saturday from the New York Yankees, allowed both hits in the fifth inning. Al Holland retired all six batters he faced in the final two innings.

Juan Samuel of the Phillies' first with an infield single, stole second and third and scored when catcher Brad Gulden's throw went into left field.

The Phillies made it 2-0 in the second on Virgil's 12th home run of the season and added another run in the sixth.

Wilson opened the seventh by hitting the first pitch from Tom

Hume, 3-8, over the left-field wall for his sixth home run.

Expos 5, Braves 4
Andre Dawson's double highlighted a four-run sixth inning that made a winner of David Palmer. Miguel Dilone, batting for Palmer, 3-3, singled for the first of four straight hits off Atlanta's Pascual Perez, 8-3, who had retired 14 of the previous 15 batters and held a 2-1 lead.

Tim Raines, who had homered on the second pitch of the game, followed with a single and then Pete Rose singled to drive in Dilone. Raines scored the go-ahead run on Dawson's double, Rose came home on a wild pitch and Gary Carter drove in the final run of the inning with a sacrifice fly.

The Braves had tied the game 1-1 in the fourth and went ahead an inning later on Claudell Washington's 10th homer.

Atlanta threatened to tie the game in the ninth, but Dale Murphy, who had singled off Jeff Reardon, was cut down by Carter trying to steal third. Then Reardon got his 12th save by retiring Gerald Perry to end the game.

Dodgers 5, Pirates 4
Pedro Guerrero had two hits and drove in two runs, and rookie Franklin Stubbs added three hits for Los Angeles, which extended Pittsburgh's losing streak to seven games. The Dodgers sent nine men to the plate and scored four runs in the fourth inning to overcome a 2-0 Pirate lead.

Steve Sax doubled home Dave Anderson against Larry McWilliams, 4-7, then Guerrero hit a ground-rule double to score Bill Russell and winner Alejandro Pena, who had two hits. Candy Maldonado doubled to center to score Guerrero and give the Dodgers a 4-2 lead.

Stubbs tripled in the seventh and scored on Anderson's sacrifice fly.

Balboni leads Royals' sweep

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Steve "Bye Bye" Balboni is bidding farewell to baseballs with increasing regularity and the Kansas City Royals are saying hello to a pennant race.

The 27-year-old first baseman homered in each game Monday night as the Royals swept a double-header from the Cleveland Indians 9-3, 4-3 and stretched their winning streak to five games.

"Earlier in the year, if I got a good pitch to hit, I'd hit a single," said Balboni, who has seven homers in his last 11 games after hitting only five in his first 48. "Now, if I get a good pitch to hit and I hit it, I know it's going to be a home run."

The sweep lifted the Royals past Seattle into fifth place in the American League West, five games behind pace-setting California. In other AL games, Chicago trimmed Detroit 7-1, Texas edged New York 7-6, California downed Toronto 6-3, Minnesota defeated Baltimore 6-4, Oakland outlasted Boston 9-6 in 11 innings and Milwaukee took two from Seattle, 3-2 and 6-4.

Balboni slammed a two-run homer and a single in KC's opening-game triumph and added a single, double and homer in a 3-for-3 nightcap. George Brett also hit a two-run homer in the first game while Larry Gura scattered seven hits. Brett doubled home what proved to be the winning run in the ninth inning of the second game following Pat Sheridan's single.

Harold Baines and Ron Kittle slammed two-run homers and Floyd Bannister checked Detroit on five hits as Chicago defeated the Tigers for the first time in seven tries. Baines blasted his 13th homer off Dave Rozema in the first inning after Scott Fletcher singled, and Kittle hit his 19th, a tremendous shot onto the roof in left-center, in the fourth after Baines singled and was forced at second.

"I've never hit one farther, unless maybe it was at the driving range," said Kittle, whose drive was his second roof shot of the season and sailed over the 374-foot mark onto the roof, which is 74 feet high. It was the 27th ball in the history of Comiskey Park hit on or over the roof and Kittle did it twice as a rookie last season. He also threw a runner out at the plate in the sixth inning.

Rangers 7, Yankees 6
Billy Sample's tie-breaking two-run double in the fifth inning capped Texas' comeback from a 5-0 deficit while Dickie Noles, acquired from the Chicago Cubs on Sunday, picked up the win in his AL debut by allowing an unearned run and two hits in 4 1-3 innings of relief.

Gary Ward had a two-run triple for Texas, which tied the score on Pete O'Brien's fifth-inning single. Home runs by Steve Kemp and Dave Winfield helped the Yankees to their 5-0 lead after 2 1/2 innings, but they blew a chance to put the game away with some unbelievable baserunning, a symbol of their futility this season.

After singles by Willie Randolph,

Butch Wynegar and Don Mattingly made it 1-0. Wynegar was thrown out trying to score on Don Baylor's single. The runners advanced on the throw home and Winfield followed with an infield hit that scored Mattingly, but Baylor was somehow trapped off second and Winfield was caught stealing for the third out.

Angels 6, Blue Jays 3
Mike Brown hit a pair of solo homers and Fred Lynn added a two-run blast as Mike Witt won his third straight decision. Witt allowed eight hits before being relieved by Don Aase. Lynn hit a two-run homer off Jim Clancy in the first inning, while Brown connected off Clancy in the third and Dennis Lamp in the ninth.

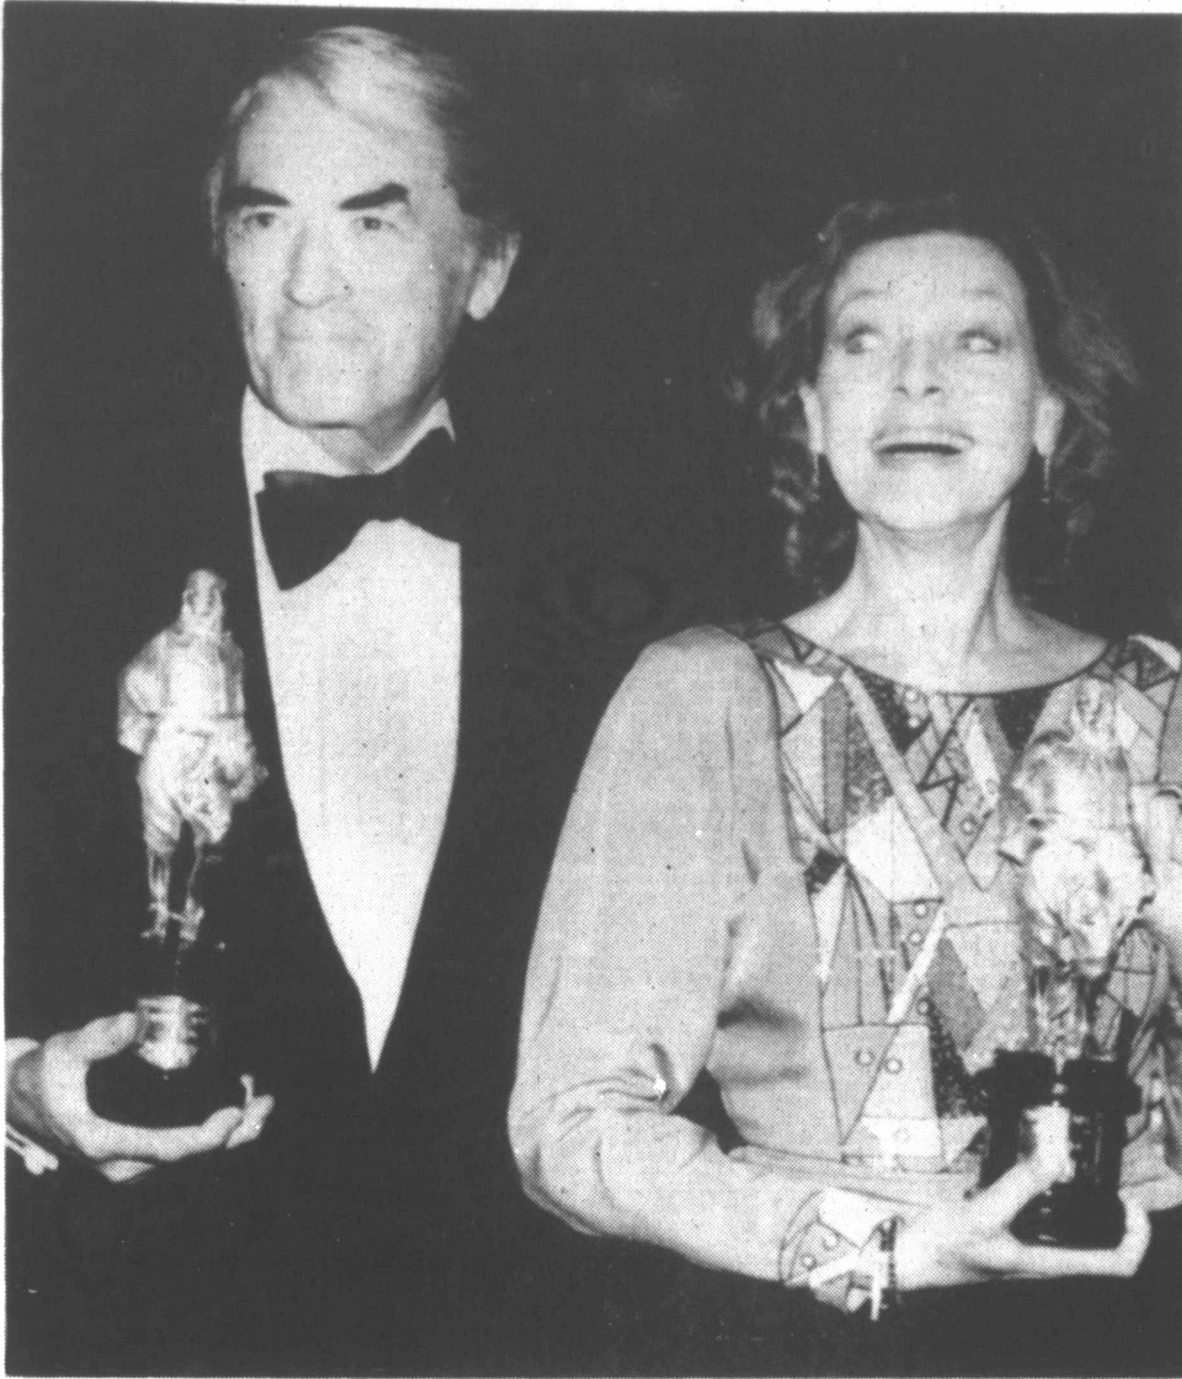

Twins 6, Orioles 4
Kent Hrbek and Mickey Hatcher homered and John Butcher scattered 10 hits in beating Baltimore for the third time in three meetings this season. Butcher allowed three runs in the first three innings and then blanked the Orioles until the ninth.

Hrbek, who homered in the second inning and singled and scored the go-ahead run in the sixth, has 14 hits and eight RBIs in his last seven games. The Twins erased a 3-2 deficit with two runs in the sixth off Scott McGregor on singles by Darrell Brown, Hrbek and Gary Gaetti, plus Tim Teufel's grounder. Hatcher added a two-run homer in the seventh.

Athletics 9, Red Sox 6
Mike Heath led off the 11th inning with a double and scored the first of three Oakland runs on Tony Phillips' sacrifice plus a throwing error by Boston third baseman Wade Boggs. Dwayne Murphy singled home two insurance runs in the inning, while Mike Davis and Dave Kingman hit two-run homers for Oakland. Bill Caudill, who is 8-1 to go with 16 saves, blanked Boston on two hits over three innings after the Red Sox tied the score on consecutive eighth-inning homers by Tony Armas and Mike Easter off Keith Atherton.

Brewers 3-6, Mariners 2-4
Ben Oglivie got two game-winning RBIs with a sacrifice fly in the fourth inning of the opener and an eighth-inning home run in the nightcap. Milwaukee's Rick Manning homered in the opener and Rollie Fingers recorded a save in each game. Oglivie's homer came off Salome Barojas to lead off the eighth and the Brewers added an insurance run on a walk and singles by Dion James and Ed Romero.

Seattle led 4-0 in the nightcap on Bill Nahorodny's two-run homer. Al Cowens' RBI double and Jim Presley's run-scoring grounder. Milwaukee tied the game in the fifth off Dave Geisel, just back from the minors and making his first appearance of the season. Bill Schroeder, Romero and Jim Gantner hit successive singles to load the bases, Robin Yount drilled a two-run single and Ted Simmons ripped a two-run double.

Water pipe to quench city of 625 as drought forces rigid measures

NEWCASTLE, Texas (AP) — As water shortages worsen across Texas, scores of volunteers have been working non-stop for three days to lay a pipe that will bring a year's supply of water to this small town.

"It looks like we're going to make it before we run out of water," said Newcastle Mayor R.B. Maxwell, who expects the pipe project to be completed today.

The town of 625 voluntarily cut back on water consumption six months ago after its primary lake source went dry. Another lake is diminishing rapidly in capacity.

Crews, many of them elderly and including volunteers from three nearby counties, have been working around the clock since Friday to lay a pipe that will carry water from Lake Graham, 7½ miles away, to this oil and farming community 100 miles northwest of Fort Worth.

"We lack about 2½ miles (of pipe)," Maxwell said Monday. "We had about 100 volunteers turn out yesterday and about 50 Saturday. If we move pretty good we may be there tomorrow night."

Some problems emerged, however, as air leaks threatened to stall the ambitious project.

"We found air leaks in the pipes, so we'll have to get the welders to come out and fix them," Wallace Whitley, 65, said Monday. "We had the best day yesterday (Sunday) because it wasn't as humid and we had about 100 men out there."

Names in news

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Actor Wilford Brimley says the key to his performances in such films as "Tender Mercies," "China Syndrome" and "The Natural" is, well, just being natural.

"I am the character I play," says Brimley, who once earned his living training and shoeing horses.

Although known as a character actor — he was a baseball manager in "The Natural," a plant manager in "China Syndrome" and managed a country singer in "Tender Mercies" — Brimley says he is not sure exactly what that means.

"I never really understood those terms — 'star' and 'character actor.' Robert Redford is as good a character actor as there is," he said. "Right now, I'm out of work. If a good year does that to you, I don't want any more of them."

Brimley said in an interview with The Salt Lake Tribune that the sort of films he prefers are "simple, honest stories about emotions and people."

"I did one story about steam and pigs guts, and I shall not do another," he said, referring to John Carpenter's "The Thing."

"But that's how you learn — by experience. Not by hearsay, not by suspicion, but by actually doing it," he said. "The only way I learned how to do anything in my life was by first doing it wrong."

NEW YORK (AP) — It was

Maxwell said an agreement was worked out with the City of Graham on Thursday to buy 34 million gallons of water from Lake Graham.

"It's pretty strenuous (work) right now, but it thrilled me to see the older people join in the effort," he said.

The effort rounded up five trucks and a forklift from a trucking company to help lay 200-pound, 20-foot long segments of iron pipe.

The mayor said it's not the first time Newcastle has run out of water.

"This is not something new, the city running out of water," he said.

"What's new about this is the laying of the pipeline. We've run out of water before but we've been blessed with good rains and haven't had to be without water too long."

Newcastle residents have voluntarily rationed water for about six months.

"People just took it on their own," said the mayor's wife, Doris. "They just automatically quit watering. They were real cooperative."

Cooperation is also being asked of Corpus Christi residents, who cut back on water following a mandatory water rationing program that officials hope will save 30 million gallons per day.

Doug Matthews, director of the city's public utilities, said water consumption totaled about 70 million gallons on Sunday, the first day of mandatory conservation. He said that was 40 million fewer gallons than was used Saturday.

The cutbacks also started in several area cities that buy water from Corpus Christi.

In New Braunfels, the dwindling Comal Springs prompted city officials to ask residents to comply to a one-day strict water conservation effort that lasted until midnight Monday.

"This is a totally new experience for us," said Connie Meyer, director of public relations for New Braunfels Utilities. "We are reaching a crisis period at this point."

The so-called C-Day (Conservation Day) was designed to gauge what mandatory water rationing would be like in New Braunfels, she said.

Residents were asked to halt all non-essential water consumption, including long showers and baths, lawn watering, car washing and filling swimming pools and hot tubs. Restaurants were asked to serve water only upon request.

Meanwhile, residents in San Antonio, about 40 miles south of New Braunfels, have been abiding by a voluntary water cutback for a week now.

In Denton County, north of Dallas, the towns of Eastvale and Highland Village have imposed restrictions on water use. In other Dallas suburbs, the cities of DeSoto, Grand Prairie, Seagoville, Rowlett and Denton have asked residents to voluntarily restrict watering lawns and washing cars.

salute to Brazil, the first of two concerts by the Crusaders, the Philip Glass Ensemble, the Artie Shaw and Lionel Hampton bands, Maynard Ferguson, two by Ray Charles and Gladys Knight and a salute to the late Count Basie.

"This year's festival has been very much of a joy, no headaches," Wein said. "I watched more of it than I usually do. I saw every group."

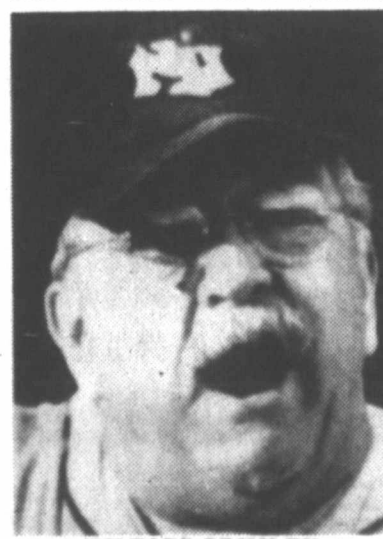

"I think it's the best festival we ever had."

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Former boxer Rubin "Hurricane" Carter, whose life sentence for triple murder was the subject of the Bob Dylan song "Hurricane," has been transferred from a maximum to a medium security prison, officials said.

"It's a routine inmate move as far as we're concerned," James Stable, a spokesman for the Department of Corrections said Monday.

Carter was moved from Trenton State Prison to Rahway State Prison on Friday, Stable said, adding that "He's done a lot of time and he doesn't need the security of Trenton."

Carter, 47, once a top middleweight boxing contender, and John Artis, were convicted in 1967 of killing a white bartender and two white patrons at the Lafayette Bar and Grill in Paterson on June 17, 1966.

It took action by Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Getting the government to pay moving expenses for a relocated federal worker doesn't usually require an act of Congress, but it did for Kenneth L. Perrin of Denver, Colo.

Perrin was employed by the Postal Service in Tampa, Fla., when he was notified that he was being promoted and transferred to another government agency, the Denver office of the General Services Administration.

He was told that the costs of transportation and relocation would be paid by the government, if he accepted the transfer.

Perrin took the job. The government reimbursed him an initial $5,427.68 for the move. Then, two months after he had been on the new job, he submitted a voucher for $4,467.94 to pay the rest of his relocation expenses — and the government balked.

Lawyers for the GSA said the moving expenses were paid erroneously, that they were only authorized to pay expenses of an employee transferred from another government "agency." And the Postal Service is technically a government-subsidized corporation and not an agency.

Not only would they not pay the second installment, but they insisted that Perrin pay back the $5,427.68.

Perrin went to Congress for help.

And the other day, the bill forgiving his $5,427.68 "debt" and paying him the additional $4,467.94 won the unanimous approval of both chambers of Congress — with absolutely no debate.

Union report on education rapped

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A report aimed at clearing the air on where the nation's largest teachers' union stands on issues like merit pay and teacher competency testing has instead become the springboard for the most heated arguments at the group's annual convention.

Most of the leaders of the National Education Association, including its president, Mary Hatwood Futrell, support the 18-page study called "An Open Letter to America on Schools, Students, and Tomorrow." The report was likely to be approved by the rank and file today.

But at least some of the 7,018 teacher delegates gathered here have charged that the report is so vague that it might actually erode the union's credibility in the debate over education reform unless it is thoroughly revised.

At least 78 amendments to the report have been proposed by union members.

A rousing speech Monday in which Democratic presidential hopeful Walter F. Mondale promised to be "the best president that education, and science and learning has ever had" was the emotional high point of the four-day meeting.

But the NEA's leadership has regarded passage of the report by the full membership as the most important piece of business — the guidepost for union activity for the next several years.

The report released last week just before the start of the convention called for a "total restructuring" of America's public schools.

On some issues the report took clear stands. It expressed "unalterable opposition" to merit pay. It also called for starting teacher salaries of $24,000 — about $10,000 above the current average — along with several other steps to improve overall teaching conditions.

But while many teachers spoke in favor of adopting the report as official NEA policy, a number of members in the spirited debate that began Monday termed the report negative and vague — and warned that it might wind up hurting the union in the public eye.

Two teachers from Texas, Dale Young and Doris Scott, rose during the debate to support the resolution.

Environmentalists are upset by return of Anne Burford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some environmentalists say they are astounded and even outraged by President Reagan's decision to bring Anne M. Burford back to government as head of a national advisory committee on environmental issues.

The new appointment for Reagan's first administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency was made in a routine announcement Monday on the eve of a White House luncheon organized to ease the administration's "continuing problems in environmental matters."

"I'm flabbergasted," said John McComb, chief lobbyist for the Sierra Club. "It really makes a sham of what had been a reputable committee."

The White House said Mrs. Burford is to chair the National Advisory Committee on Oceans and Atmosphere, a panel that reports to the president, Congress and secretary of commerce on marine and atmospheric policy and programs.

Liz Raisbeck, the lobbyist handling ocean issues for Friends of the Earth, said: "It's incomprehensible that a person who left in disgrace over her ethical conduct should get a presidential appointment. I'm shocked and aghast. It shows this administration is totally insensitive to the environment."

Committee members work part time and are reimbursed for expenses but don't receive salaries. They advise on issues ranging from defense navigation systems to wetlands protection and from subsea mining of scarce minerals to nuclear waste management and the weather forecasts of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. Mrs. Burford, who had been Anne M. Gorsuch until her marriage three weeks before resigning, quit her post at EPA on March 9, 1983, after months of struggling to save her job.
