Reagan says world safer than before

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan said today that increased fear about the risk of war between the superpowers "is understandable but profoundly mistaken" and that the world actually is safer now after three years of U.S. military buildup because the Kremlin is less likely to underestimate America's strength.

In a foreign policy address aimed at audiences at home and overseas. Reagan said, "I believe 1984 finds the United States in its strongest position in years to establish a constructive and realistic working relationship with the Soviet Union

The president said the United States had been in a state of decline in recent years, and the Soviets "may have counted on us to keep weakening ourselves. But he said his administration had reversed the decline, and the turnaround was becoming apparent in Moscow

"This may be the reason we've been hearing such strident rhetoric from the Kremlin recently," Reagan said. 'These harsh words have led some to speak of heightened uncertainty and an increased danger of conflict

This is understandable but profoundly mistaken," the president

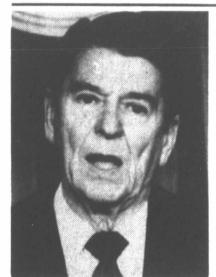

"Look beyond the words, and one fact stands out." Reagan said. "America's deterrence is more credible and it is making the world a safer place; safer because now there is less danger that the Soviet leadership will underestimate our strength or question our resolve.

Reagan spoke before an audience of administration officials and members of Congress gathered in the East Room of the White House. His appearance was beamed by satellite to Europe in time to be on evening newscasts

The speech comes two weeks before Reagan's expected announcement that he will seek re-election. Speaking privately. White House advisers said beforehand the speech was intended to help erase any image of Reagan as being "warlike" or a "warmonger

He noted the big increase in Pentagon spending during his administration, but added that "to say that our restored deterrence has made the world safer is not to say that it is safe enough.

We are witnessing tragic conflicts in many parts of the world," he said. 'Nuclear arsenals are far too high. And our working relationship with the Soviet Union is not what it must be These are conditions which must be addressed and improved.

The president added, "Neither we nor the Soviet Union can wish away the differences between our two societies and our philosophies. But we should always remember that we do have common interests, and the foremost among them is to avoid war and reduce

Reagan said the United States and Soviet Union should make a major effort in three problem areas:

-Finding ways to reduce the threat and use of force in solving international disputes:

-Negotiating reductions in the huge stockpiles of arms around the world;

-Establishing a better working relationship that is marked by greater cooperation and understanding.

The president noted he will send to Congress a report soon charging that the Soviets are violating arms control agreements and that the Kremlin is taking advantage of ambiguities in the accords. He said that was one example of how U.S.-Soviet relations are not what they should be

"We have a long way to go, but we are determined to try and try again,' Reagan said. "We may have to start in small ways, but start we must

In Moscow, the official Soviet newspaper Socialist Industry said in advance that the address was a campaign ploy to convince American voters Reagan was not "fanning up tensions." The newspaper said superpower relations had reached "the lowest point" possible

The president noted that nuclear arms control talks now are in a state of indefinite suspension because the Soviets have refused to set a date for the resumption of the talks. Reagan said that U.S. negotiators are ready to return to the bargaining table and that, whenever the Soviet Union is ready to do likewise, we will meet them

* Reagan, who once called the Soviet` Union an "evil empire" and said it was ruled by liars and cheats, put aside his tough rhetoric. Speaking in a conciliatory tone, he repeatedly talked about opportunities for progress in U.S.-Soviet relations.

"If the Soviet government wants peace, then there will be peace,' Reagan said. "Together we can strengthen peace. reduce the level of arms and know in doing so we have helped fulfill the hopes and dreams of those we represent and indeed of people everywhere. Let us begin now.

He said, "We can't predict how the Soviet leaders will respond to our challenge. But the people of our two countries share with all mankind the dream of eliminating the risk of nuclear war. It is not an impossible dream.

Reagan noted that Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrer Gromyko will meet in Stockholm this week in a 35-nation conference designed to calm East-West

"We are working with our allies to develop practical, meaningful ways to reduce the uncertainty and potential for misinterpretation surrounding military activities and to diminish the risk of surprise attack," the president said.

Demo candidates claim foes talking gobbledygook, baloney

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) -Democratic debaters livened their presidential campaign by hurling charges of "gobbledygook" and 'baloney." but they were uncertain today how just much their jibes slowed Walter Mondale's drive for the

"Nobody was sitting around keeping a scorecard." said Sen. John Glenn of Ohio after Sunday's three-hour debate.

'There were certainly no holds barred." said Mondale. "I think the audience understood what I was saying My record is very specific.

It was a presidential campaign debate like no other in memory. Three hours long, moderated by two television hosts, the debate produced lively give and take, most of it between the candidates but occasionally directed a the moderators, particularly, Phil Donahue

The sharpest exchange occurred when Mondale referred to his plan to cut budget deficits by more than half and Glenn snapped that he was offering "the same vague gobbledygook of nothing we've been hearing all through

"Is this going to be a Democratic Party that promises everything to everybody? ... I'm disgusted and tired of all the vague promises. I wish the former vice president would get some figures down," Glenn said.

Mondale countered that "I've listened to about a six-minute speech all of it baloney

Glenn interrupted when Mondale countered by saying the senator had voted for President Reagan's economic program and had to accept responsibility for federal budget

Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado said he "felt good" but added that "I don't think the candidates can judge. I think the public will judge. The Rev. Jesse Jackson said after the debate he wasn't sure whether the Glenn-Mondale exchange hurt the party, "but it did not help to instruct the people

The eight-candidate debate was sponsored by the House Democratic Caucus and Dartmouth College

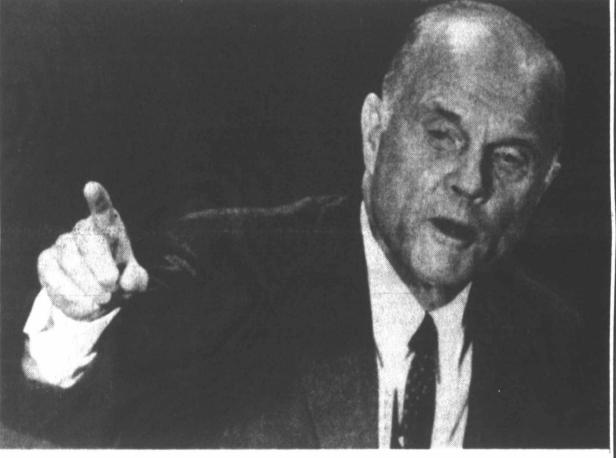

Before the debate, Mondale's staff had predicted the other candidates might gang up on the man acknowledged to be the front-runner in the Democratic field.

But until Glenn took him on. Mondale escaped with only occasional jibes from his rivals.

At one point, Hart turned to Mondale and said, "You cannot lead this country if you have promised everybody everything.

Chance of more snow in forecast here Tuesday

Shells shake presidential palace

Another winter storm moved into the Pampa area Saturday, bringing up to three inches of snow and creating hazardous driving conditions which led to more than 10 minor accidents in the city over the weekend.

The cold air from the north, meeting with moist air coming up from the south, brought snow throughout the Panhandle region during the weekend. with patches of fog this, morning dropping visibility to as low as one-sixteenth of a mile in parts of the area.

But cold temperatures remained relatively mild compared to the frigid cold spell which dominated the region for nearly two weeks in late December and early January

Pampa's high Saturday was 25, with the high Sunday reaching above the freezing point at 33 degrees. Overnight low Sunday morning and this morning was 16 degrees.

The snow brought about .16 inch moisture to Pampa

The Pampa Police Department reported eight minor accidents involving damages of more than $250. with a few "fender bender" types also reported. Several citizen assist calls were also received.

The cold spell is expected to continue for at least the next couple of days, with more chance of snow Tuesday

The high today was expected to reach into the mid-30s under partly cloudy skies. Increasing cloudiness will return to the area tonight, with the low dipping into the upper teens. The forecast calls for colder temperatures under cloudy skies Tuesday, with a chance for more snow. The high tomorrow is predicted to reach only into the mid-20s, with southerly winds of 10 to 15 miles an

Audit report shows city finances in good shape

By LARRY HOLLIS Staff Writer

According to a report presented to the city commission last week by Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. of Amarillo, Pampa's financial situation is in good shape despite a loss of revenues caused by a decrease in sales tax collections last year. "This year the audit went very smoothly," said Ken Rhodes, Peat and Marwick representative, in his presentation to the commission. Rhodes said he received "tremendous support" from city officials and employees in the preparation of audit figures. He also stated he could find no instances in which city money was missing or misused.

The only problem mentioned by Rhodes was the inability to determine general fixed assets costs for accounting purposes. In a letter prefixed to the report, the firm reports the combined financial statements. do not include financial statements of the General Fixed Assets Account Group, which should be included to conform with generally accepted accounting principles.

Fixed assets refer to all properties and materials purchased and owned by the city, including items such as tables, chairs, office equipment and the like.

The report notes, "Generally accepted accounting principles require that fixed assets, which are acquired for general governmental purposes, be expensed by the purchasing fund, but be capitalized at cost in the General Fixed Assets Group of Accounts. The City has not maintained a record of costs associated with its general fixed assets and, therefore, a statement of general fixed assets is not presented in the accompanying combined financial statements.

The problem arises from the city's lack of historical statements (purchase slips and such) to show the purchase price of many of its fixed assets items. For example, the price of a table purchased in the 1940s may be unknown today because of lack of records. "It's not a major problem," Rhodes said. He said his firm will be working with the city in the next year to determine the total fixed assets account for financial statements in next year's audit report. The city may possibly have to resort to appraisal of most items instead of depending on original

Otherwise, Rhodes said he was generally pleased with the statements included in the report. There has been "no adverse change" from the prior year, he said.

For 1983, assets, funds and debits for the city totaled $16,082,162, down slightly from the $16,401,505 reported for the 1982 audit.

Included in the totals are cash on hand, $786.641 for 1983, compared with $1,302,919 in 1982; certificates of deposit, $2,284,362 last year, compared with $1,641,121 in 1982; assets for property, plant and equipment in service, $11,743,609 (less depreciation of $4,002,342) in 1983, compared to $11.415.518 (less depeciation of $3.755.997) in 1982: and amount available in Debt Service Fund, $2,409,777 last year, compared to $2,218,190 in 1982.

Other figures included in the total include amounts for interest inventories, construction in progre customer deposits, Social Secui deposits, amounts due from ot governments and funds and similar items

Liabilities for the city in 1983 totaled $3,813,799, down more than $700,000 from the $4.588,732 reported for the previous year.

Liabilities included accounts payable, $203,326 for 1983, down nearly $494,000 from the $697,054 listed in 1982; amount due to other funds, $66,990 in 1983, compared with $80,338 for 1982; accrued expenses, $34,114 last year, up from the $23,177 reported for the previous year; payable from restricted assets (customer deposits), $109,618 last year, $108,163 for 1982; general obligation bonds payable, $2,060,000 in 1983. down from the $2,305,000 listed for 1982; and certificates of obligation payable, $1,339,751 last year, down slightly from the $1,375,000 reported for

Despite the loss of over $200,000 in sales tax payments from the state last year, revenues for Pampa were up $466,237, mainly due to increases in collections from property taxes, licenses and permits, grants, donations, and fines, forfeits and penalties

Revenue for 1983 was listed at $5,811,723, compared to $5,345,486 reported for 1982. Peterson's bill, subject of an Education Committee hearing scheduled Monday, would require that private school instructors pass the National Teacher's Exam but would not require that they be certified. Private school pupils would be required to take a basic-skills test.

Peterson will offer an amendment that would replace the teacher testing with examinations of church school pupils administered by county education officials, Woosley said.

Memorial dedicated to Lebanon causualities

OSCEOLA, Ark. (AP) - With $2,000 and used bricks, an out-of-work man who figured he should "do it myself" has built what the U.S. Marines say is the first memorial to the 241 servicemen killed in the bombing of Marine headquarters in Lebanon.

But that's just part of Allen Starr's plans for honoring the men killed in the Oct. 23 terrorist attack. In his will, he said, he has left his entire estate to the servicemen's widows "for their children's college education.

"This project came from my heart and from a low bank account," said the 49-year-old bachelor, who served with the Navy in Korea.

Prompted by bulletins read from church pulpits, about 500 people gathered for dedication rites Sunday afternoon in a park in this eastern Arkansas town of 8,371.

In attendance was Marine Col. R.B. Johnston, who was the commanding officer in Beirut when a suicide terrorist drove an explosives-laden truck into the Marines' headquarters building.

The memorial, a column-flanked brick wall 8 feet high and 4 feet wide, bears a bronze plaque which reads, "Lest we forget that peace has a

Starr, now unemployed, said he threw newspapers from a truck for the Memphis, Tenn., Press-Scimitar until it folded last year, then worked for a while for The Courier News in nearby Blytheville, Ark.

Because of his job, nearly everyone in town knows him, Starr said, and the community responded to his efforts. Businesses displayed flags and "every marquee in town said: 'Welcome

"It looked like a different part of the world if you came to Osceola this weekend," he said.

Starr knew none of the servicemen who died in Lebanon, but news reports inspired him to build the monument, he

"I saw it on television and I said to myself, 'My God, this looks like another Pearl Harbor.' I thought, I wish someone would do something about this. Then I thought, I'll do it myself,"

A Marine scholarship foundation in Princeton, N.J., is compiling names of the servicemen's children who would be eligible for aid for Starr's estate, and

"there are about 25 so far," he said. He did not say how large his estate is, but said his mother left an antiques-filled home valued at $225,000 when she died six years ago.

Johnston, who is commanding officer of the 8th Marines, 2nd Marine Division at Camp Lejeuene, N.C., said the memorial was the first in the country to be dedicated to the casualties in

Trial of nurse in death of infant begins (AP) - After lengthy investigations by grand juries in two counties and months of pre-trial manuevers, a vocational nurse faced trial today on a murder charge alleging she killed a 15-month-old girl with a dose of a paralyzing drug. Kerr County prosecutors said they planned to call about 70 witnesses in their case against Genene Jones, 33, in the September 1982 death of Chelsea Ann

Ms. Jones also is accused of administering life-threatening injections to six other children during a two-month span at a Kerrville clinic. She faces trial now only on the murder charge.

In nearby Bexar County, she is charged with injecting a month-old boy with a dangerous blood-thinning drug while she was employed at San Antonio's Medical Center Hospital.

Although she faces a possible life sentence if convicted, Ms. Jones' attorney said she appeared to be anxious to begin the trial.

Ms. Jones has steadfastly maintained her innoncence and her court-appointed attorney, Jim Brookshire of Georgetown, says she appears to be looking forward to the start of the trial.

"I've never killed any children," Ms. Jones said earlier.

"If I have done anything wrong, it's in fighting so hard for the welfare of those children," she said at a news conference before her indictment

The McClellan girl was taken to a pediatrics clinic where Ms. Jones worked in September 1982 for routine immunizations. While there, the girl experienced a sudden seizure. She died during a frantic ambulance ride.

But a later indictment alleges Ms. Jones used a powerful drug, probably the muscle relaxant succinylcholine, to injure the children in August and September 1982.

Prosecutors say they plan to call Swedish toxicologist Dr. Bo Holmstedt, who they say developed a revolutionary test that can detect the hard-to-trace substance in embalmed human tissue.

The dead child's mother, Petti McClellan, has testified in civil suit depositions that Ms. Jones gave the girl "immunizations" in each thigh that caused 'respiratory difficulties' and seizures.

OAS ignorant on human needs

A recent report from the Organization of American States on conditions in Cuba propbably tells us more about the OAS than it does about Cuba.

The report suggests that the country's communist system has been "notably efficient" in "meeting the basic human needs" of the people, though it acknowledges that the regime has a few shortcomings.

What kind of shortcomings? Nothing to bother an OAS bureaucrat much. Just such things as: -The absence of an independent judiciary, which "has created an environment of uncertainty and fear. -No recognition at all of the right of free expression.

-Government use of the media and education system to barrage citizens with Marxist-Leninist propaganda. thus effectively limiting freedom of religion and worship. —Emigration rights being "extremely limited in fact

It does sort of make you wonder, doesn't it, just which "basic human needs"the regime is meeting so efficiently.

If you deny freedom of thought, freedom of migration, freedom to worship and punish dissent with harsh imprisonment or even death, about all that's left in the "needs" department are material things like food and shelter. Assuming, for the sake of argument, that a regime should be in the business of doling out food and shelter rather than creating an environment in which people can provide these needs for themselves, the OAS claims the regime in Cuba provides these basic needs.

What kinds of assumptions about human nature are required for an organization to claim that a regime that denies every form of freedom and individuality, but provides food is "notably efficient and meeting the basic human needs.?

To reach such a conclusion, you would almost have to consider people, whether consciously or not, as nothing more or less than eating, sleeping and working machines. Hopes, dreams, aspirations, abilities, ambitions, a desire to create, a notion about independence, a yearning for love, respect for divinity? Mere irrelevancies to an eating and working maching. If your belly's not empty, your "basic human needs" have been met.

What is dismaying is that the OAS, in reaching for the conclusion that Cuba meets the human needs of its people, accepts such a limited, essentially materialistic or even mechanistic vision of what it is to be a human

Law gags legitimate protest adapted to intimidate, coerce, or bring into public odium any foreign government" ... or bring any foreign official into disrepute within the District of Columbia.

The law bars only demonstrations against a foreign government but permits demonstrations in favor. Because of this, some think the law is unconstitutional.

That is exactly what Floyd G. Brown has set out to prove. Brown, 22, national vice chairman of a group called Young Americans for Freedom, and Will Farron, 21, a Flordia college student, were the two Americans arrested in front of the Soviet chancery in Washington. They were originally part of a crowd of forty college students who were rallying to protest against the atrocities of the Soviet regime in Afghanistan and elsewhere. Brown and Farron separated from the rest of the crowd and attempted to show their disgust for the Soviets by burning a Soviet flag in front of the Russian compound

Brown and Farron claim the case shows that the D.C. law is not "content - neutral," a requirement for constitutionality. In other words, if demonstrations are allowed near the White House permitting signs that say "Rah Rah Reagan" the law must also permit demonstrators to carry "BOO REAGAN" signs if they wish. If not, the law unreasonably limits freedom of speech.

In 1938 the intent of Congress is passing the controversial law which still affects the District appears to have been the safety and well - being of foreign diplomats. The effect of the law, however, is to insulate foreign diplomats from American public opinion.

Raymond D. Battochhi, attorney for Brown and Farrow, wrote in his belief to the court that "under the present law, Iranians supporting Ayatollah Khomeini or Libyans supporting Muammar Quadaffi can express their views on the public sidewalks in front of the White House or on the steps of the Capitol. Russian citizens can picket the Supreme Court on the sidewalks in front of the building. But law - abiding Americans are subject to bring public attention to Soviet crimes around the world on the public street and sidewalks in our Nation's Capital within 500 feet of the Russian Embassy.

The Brown - Farron case is an interesting one that raises some very important free speech issues. While the U.S. government certainly has an obligation to protect foreign diplomats assigned to this country, it doesn't have an obligation to provide them with blinders and to gag legitimate U.S.

"I'm in a jam," I told Fetzler, who works in the Pentagon

"What's the problem now?" "I want to do a story on the lousy camouflage fatigue uniforms the Army is issuing to its men. "Why are you in a jam?" he asked. Because if I write it I'll just be confirming what Secretary of State George Shultz and President Reagan said about American reporters not being on our side

'What's wrong with the fatigues?'' "You should know better than I do. They're too heavy for the tropics, they are made of 50 percent nylon and don't breath. and when they get wet it takes forever for them to dry "They weren't meant to be used in the tropics. They were meant to be worn in northern Europe

"Then why didn't the Army issue the troops going into Grenada lighter uniforms?

"Because we didn't have any. But we're working on one right now.

"I found this out, but if I write it, Shultz and the president will think I'm on Castro's

"Why do you have to write it?" Fetzler wanted to know

"Despite the complaints, the Army is going ahead and ordering 13.4 million more sets at a cost of $432 million. They've already issued 6.4 million at a cost of $205 million and the GI's hate them.

"The people in the Pentagon know what's best for the GI's. After all, they're

"Then you think I better not say anything about it?

"If you did you'd be giving aid and comfort to the Kremlin, which is what the press likes to do.

"What about the comfort of the American

"That's none of your business. Why don't you write about what's good in the Army and not always what's bad?

"Don't get me wrong. I'm on 'our' side," I said. "But obviously the Army goofed and refuses to admit they made a mistake. I don't want our boys fighting in the tropics in heavy fatigues. Would it surprise you to know the Pentagon is aware of the bad reviews on the battle dress and has appeared a commission to study it?' "It wouldn't surprise me at all," I said.

"But why are they going ahead with the $432 million order when there's a question if they're any good or not?'

'Because it's going to take 12 to 15 months to design and test a new fatigue uniform."

'Didn't the Army test the one they have now in the tropics before they ordered it?" "That's just the kind of question that makes the president wonder if you people are on our safe side." Fetzler said. "I'm not trying to make waves," I protested. "My problem is that where the American GI is concerned he should at least be dressed for the war he's asked to fight in. And if he isn't, the American public should know about it.

When the Pentagon makes a mistake it is perfectly equipped to admit it. It doesn't need a bunch of Sandinista - loving reporters to tell the country what we're doing wrong. Fetzler said.

"But wouldn't a story on the uniforms stop the Army from wasting the taxpayers'

"The money's a drop in the bucket compared to the damage you could do to our troops if they find out their battle clothes will make them sweat," Fetzler told me.

"I guess you're right. If you were me and wanted to prove your loyalty to America what would you write?' "If you really want to prove you're on 'our' side, why don't you write a story on how tacky the Cuban fatigue uniforms are compared to ours?"

multiple presidency needed

The office of President of the U.S. has become so inhumanly difficult that no one person should be expected to fill it. It is time we consider a multiple presidency

It would seem logical to divide the functions of the president into two classes: International and Domestic. This would indicate two presidents: one to spend all his time and energy on the foreign relations of the U.S., the other to concentrate

While we are multiplying the heads of government it may be advisable to multiply by a balanced 3 rather than a contenious 2. One domestic president could be assigned to Congressional Relations - since many actions call for a large degree of agreement between the executive and the legislative branches and another could be chosen to specialize in Public Relations. that is, relations between the Chief Executives and the Public the people in general. This means the people as business entrepreneurs, laborers, farmers, professionals, youth, aged,

The three presidents - International, Congressional, Public would each have his own seat, but he would belong to the political party that won the election and he would be under constraint to cooperate at all times with the others of the

The first would travel a good bit - he'd best not be subject to airsickness. He should understand, and perhaps speak, a number of the most common languages. Most of all, he should know the world as a composite of nations, some huge, some tiny, but each sovereign in its territory, and each beset by its own problems. Our President - International would know the problems peculiar to each nation, and be helfpul - without being bossy - to each.

The second, our President Congressional, should be a politician in the good sense, if there is any, of the word. He should know the Representatives and Senators personally. His aim should be to help them arrive at a consensus on legislative upon the domestic problems, but even they may be excessive issues, with everybody's aims considered and with the overall aim of the administration always out front.

The third, the President - Public, should be a good domestic traveler. He should know every state of the union, intimately, being as much at home in Vermont as in Arizona. He will make the most speeches of any of the three presidents, and probably he will also shake the most hands. He will contact not only the most hands but the most brains of Americans. Of any president is of the people, by the people, and for the people, he will be it. He will also be a main source of information to the other two presidents, for they, too will depend on the voters of the American Public.

A multiple presidency will be a different kind of government from that which we now have. It will be more realistic, and more democratic.

We had better start thinking about it. Our guess is that Ronald Reagan has.

M.A.G. DEAR M.A.G.: It's true. The Salvation Army is expert at finding long - lost relatives. Its Missing Persons Locator Service extends to 86 countries and will make a search for the modest fee of $5. (Yes, $5!)

Interested parties should be aware of the following basic guidelines:

1. The person you want to locate must be a close relative - not a friend.

2. You must be able to provide the essential information about the missing person.

3. The Salvation Army reserves the right to reject any request based upon consideration of reasonableness, feasibility or motive. (For example, it will not track down people for the purpose of collecting debts: neither will it hunt for men or women who have deserted their families. And it will not search for people in adoption situations.)

To obtain information and or missing persons inquiry form, contact your local Salvation Army office or write to the nearest territorial headquarters: 860 N. Counselor's Corner

Sometimes relationships can't be saved

As we have seen, there are definite negative occurances in relationships, those things which damage repeatedly until someone gives up hope of ever realizing the satisfaction once shared. After enduring these so long, the decision is made to separate. Few people expect this to be the result of their relationship. The agony becomes so painful, someone has to change.

Even when the partnership is good, we have to be aware of those things which keep us happy. We prevent obstacles from occuring that way. One in the union usually pays closer attention and oversees disturbances, quickly eliminating them at the beginning. We want our relationship to be healthy and alive at the honeymoon stage forever. That's an illusion; but to protect fulfillment is a smart move. A relatitnship is to be purpose active. It defines the reason for being together. It is a team approach to attain goals in a united way. It is a committment. When one falls, the other stumbles but supports the fallen one to their feet. Together they're able to handle most situations with strength and poise. Seldom is a problem

Unfortunately, some they want to try relationships become so disjointed that "an act of congress" couldn't keep it together. When can a couple see the handwriting on the wall? Here are some relevant questions to ask yourself and your companion if you believe the probability of separation approaches.

confronted that neither cannot bring alternative solutions to correct it.

Is the relationship an open and honest one or closed and guarded?

Whenever things are good between us, we can say what sarcastic. Then comes a time we think and feel. Otherwise.

By DAVE BRUMMETT, enjoyed. It is a way of life we keep our mouths closed them any longer. We don't which keeps meaning and believe the less known, care. No, we don't like each the less can be thrown in our faces. That's a terrible misconception.

We must communicate our feelings and ideas because, without knowing, there is no way to reach an understanding. Honesty is not the best policy in a partnership - it is the only policy. There's no need to hide things from each other. Tell the truth - good or bad your mate can accept it if

Do we like each other? If the cigar butts, dirty clothes on the floor, a messy kitchen and snoring are a bother, we may not like each other. In the beginning, we could ignore these things, or else go unbothered. As one problem adds to another, plus resentments, disrespect, intrusion and limitations, all the small habits become intolerable. First we joke about it, then we become when we can't put up with other as we once did. We have permitted a stranger to invade our private domain without first getting to know them before joining forces.

Is mutual respect shared? Caring for our partner leads to respect for them. Caution is a measure used to protect us from stepping on their pet peeves, being disagreeable when they're in a mood, insisting while they are worried. Respect is the human way to get along in a complementary sense.

Do we share a healthy sexual attraction?

It's necessary to enjoy acts of sexual intimacy. If you can find satisfaction in talking after sex, you are more than likely relating okay. This intimacy improves by praising your companion's passion, exchanging good feelings and the wonder of being close.

In your present relationship, will each of us be willing to change to benefit interaction.

Expectations are valid whenever both of us agree to them. Once either of us become dissatisfied and complain about the role we live, change is essential. Change is usually avoided because that's admitting that someone has to make a move. Things are not okay when one or both will not change to some other level of

If these questions are viewed negatively, your relationship is in t ouble. Now you can choose another partner and hope for the best, lower the expectations and concede to feeling cheated, angry and dissatisfied, or choose to stay in your present frustrating, stressful. humiliating relationship and cope with the consequences the best you can. It's your life and it's your decision

Why stay when it's over? Fears keep people in burned - out partnerships, fear of acknowleeging responsibility for their welfare.

Staying together in order not to admit trouble and doubt may mean that you're the cause of discontent and you are not being responsible to make it right. You may be unwilling to admit it was a mistake from the beginning. It's possible you may be giving in to the judgment of

When a relationship is over, it's time to pack the suitcase and hit the road. When will you know for sure?

Tom, Tex would stay with Pokes

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry and General Manager Tex Schramm would be included as partners under an offer by the leading candidates to purchase the NFL team, a group led by Dallas businessmen W.O. Bankston and Vance Miller, the Dallas Morning News

Owner Clint Murchison is selling the team because of his health and a desire to settle the estate of his brother, John, who died in 1979. Schramm has been put in charge of finding a new owner for the National Football League team

We will insist Tex and Tom be in the deal," Miller told the News on Saturday. "They would have economic interest without significant economic risk. The Cowboys are the role-model management in professional sports.

Schramm said he had "not insisted on" being a part-owner. The Bankston-Miller group is one of "several" with which Murchison has given him "tacit approval" to make a deal, Schramm said Saturday. He said no agreement to sell the club

The newspaper quoted a source close to the negotiations as saying the names of Bankston and Miller could be submitted to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle for approval as early as

But Schramm said he does not "see anything happening in the immediate future."

"I've already discussed a lot with the commissioner and the league attorneys and so forth about the ways people are suggesting to structure it financially and whether that would meet league approval," Schramm said. "That goes on all the time. There are several groups still alive. But no names have been submitted to the league for approval. That would be the last thing done.

The sale price might reach $75 million for the team, property owned by the Cowboys and additional real estate owned or controlled by Murchison, The News reported.

"I think we are a little closer than anybody else, but we still are not there," Bankston said. "I think we have a chance to close the deal because we are Dallas people.

Bankston, 70, owns five car dealerships in the Dallas area, but made most of his money in the oil business. Miller, 50, is heavily involved in real estate.

Miller and Murchison have joined in many business ventures, including oil and banking. Bankston is a longtime friend of Schramm, the newspaper reported.

The deal "is very complicated" and "nothing is imminent."

Today when speaking of the "ring finger," we all know that the reference is to the third finger on the left hand. However this is a relatively recent stom in terms of the history of the wedding ring. Until the 1750s Roman Catholics used the right hand for wedding hands. In fact until the sixteenth century all European women wore their wedding rings on the right hand and on any finger. The little finger was frequently used because it is the least active finger. Weal-thy women favored their thy women lavored their thumbs with huge wedding rings in order to impress their servants, while the India women have worn their wedding rings on their thumbs since ancient times.

Hunger task force begged the question

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) - Last August, President Reagan many," Reagan said in appointing the task force. confessed to being "perplexed" by reports that people are hungry "in this great and wealthy nation."

He appointed a task force to find out if that was so. His task force has now reported. Its answer: Yes. And No. Yes, it said, there are hungry people; no, it said, hunger is Yes: "We find hunger to be a real and significant problem throughout our nation," said chairman J. Clayburn LaForce.

But No: "For the vast majority of low-income people, the private and public parts of the income maintenance and food assistance efforts are available and sufficient for those who take advantage of them," said the panel's report.

Well, then, is the problem worse? Is hunger more widespread than before? Yes, said the President's Task Force on Food Assistance, and No. It dealt with that crucial question in a single sentence that didn't answer it.

"Both need and availability have grown significantly," the task force found

This was the only acknowledgement that the country has an increased hunger problem.

'We cannot report on any indicator that will tell us where and by how much hunger has gone up in recent years." the task force said.

And so the crucial question of whether more Americans are hungry goes begging. But unless the government decides that substantial hunger remains despite substantial efforts to feed the hungry, it will not increase those efforts. Bill Moyers, the CBS News commentator, found some grounds for encouragement in the dispute.

Not so many years ago. Movers noted, there would have been no debate over whether hunger is a big problem. The fact that hunger is not so visible is proof that government programs can work, he said.

"If there is one person in this country hungry, that is one too The implication was that the government ought to do something about it.

Reagan didn't say that the government ought to help only those who can't help themselves. He applied no means test. But critics are dismayed by the task force's overall conclusion that government efforts are "sufficient.

Civil rights organizations, antipoverty groups, church groups, some Democrats in Congress and some people who run soup kitchens think the task force has missed the dimensions of the hunger problem.

Robert Greenstein, who ran the Federal Food and Nutrition Service in the Carter administration, says the panel ignored the impact of Reagan's cuts in government food programs and overlooked entirely the effects of cuts in other basic family

When the government increased the rent of occupants of subsidized housing, he says, it reduced the amount those families had to spend for food.

"As recently as a week ago, the Reagan administration was floating a document calling for another $4 billion cut in food programs over the next five years," Greenstein said. That's remarkable to me. If the president believes what he said, that we shouldn't have a hungry person in America, he won't propose another cut."

The commission's chief recommendation called for offering states the option of taking federal money to run their own food assistance programs and to drop out of the food stamp

That idea was rejected forcefully by organizations speaking for the nation's governors, mayors and county officials. In the debate over whether hunger is widespread, those groups are in agreement. Their answer is an unambiguous

For example, a study in June by the U.S. Conference of Mayors found "a recent and significant increase in the demand for emergency food assistance" in cities across the country.

Search for boat crew continuing

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - A search for survivors from a fishing boat that caught fire and burned Sunday night was to continue today in the Gulf of Mexico, the Coast Guard

The burning boat, identified as the Florence B, was discovered by a crew boat from an offshore oil rig. Officials at the Coast Guard's 8th District headquarters in New Orleans said the 70- to 80-foot vessel sank about 7:30 p.m. and the crew was nowhere in sight. The wooden-hulled vessel went down about 46 miles southeast of its home port of Galveston, Texas.

Coast Guard Spokesman Keith Spangler said the owner of the boat, Billy Bateson of Lake Jackson, Texas, has been contacted Authorities now believe there were at least three people Guard had dispatched an 82-foot patrol boat sut of Freeport, plus two aircraft from Houston and Corpus Christi, to conduct a search.

"They are continuing the search this morning with several aircraft," said "What we're Spangler. looking for is a five-man life raft with a net bottom.

Wolfpack not thinking miracles

By DICK JOYCE

AP Sports Writer After suffering five straight losses, Coach Jim Valvano of defending champion North Carolina State, isn't thinking miracles this college basketball season.

'We knew we were going to have problems," Valvano said after the visiting Wolfpack lost an Atlantic Coast Conference game 56-47 Sunday to Georgia Tech, "and the question marks in October are now full-fledged problems."

N.C. State, which lost three starters from last season's team, now has a 10-7 record, 0-5 in the ACC. Of course, the Wolfpack was 9-7 last season before going on a surge which included the ACC tournament title and its upset of top-ranked Houston in the NCAA final

"The more you lose, the tougher it is to win," Valvano said. "The more you win, the tougher it is to lose.

We are all in Carolina's conference," the N.C. State coach said. "but we are not in their league."

Top-ranked North Carolina boosted its record to 12-0 with a 70-62 triumph over No. 12 Wake Forest in an ACC game Saturday, while four members of the nation's Top Twenty lost. Sixth-ranked UCLA, No. 10 St. John's and No. 15 Georgia were beaten on Saturday while No. 13 Fresno State lost on Sunday. Mark Price and John Salley

each scored 11 points to pace

Georgia Tech to its ninth victory in its last 10 games. Salley's six points during a 14-2 spurt early in the second half gave the Yellow Jackets a 38-22 lead en route to making their record 10-2 overall and 2-1 in the ACC.

"We are a young team and there was a lot of pressure on us to win," said Georgia Tech coach Bobby Cremins, who was pleased that this team bounced back after having its eight-game winning streak broken by Clemson last week. Ernie Myers led N.C. State with 11 points and Lorenzo Charles had 10.

Oregon staged a major upset Saturday, tripping No. 6 UCLA, 62-51; No. 18 Boston College downed St. John's

69-67, Alabama stopped Georgia 65-60 and Fullerton State beat Fresno State 53-51. In other Saturday games, involving ranked teams, No. 3 DePaul kept its record perfect with a 98-63 victory over Alabama-Birmingham, No. 5 Maryland defeated Duke 81-75, Houston beat Texas A&M 70-64, No. 8 Texas El Paso ripped Hawaii 74-54, No. 9 Illinois edged Ohio State 55-53, No. 11 Louisiana State routed Mississippi 93-70.
