Midwest hit by twisters, more rain

By JIM PENSIERO
Associated Press Writer

Storms packing 70-mph winds spun off more than a dozen tornadoes and dumped up to 7 inches of rain on the soggy Midwest, keeping 1,000 people in Missouri out of their homes today after injuring four people in Iowa and ripping the roof off a Wisconsin church.

Flash flood watches for low-lying areas were in effect today across a broad band of the nation's midsection from Texas to western New York as scattered heavy rain showers were reported this morning, the National Weather Service said.

Officials in Nebraska, Missouri, Iowa, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Kansas are waiting until the water goes down from the weeklong deluge before making formal damage estimates. But in Nebraska alone at least 1,500 homes have been damaged and more than 1 million acres of farmland was flooded or too wet to farm.

In northwest Missouri, where a week of heavy rain pushed the Missouri River over its banks and onto more than 70,000 of prime bottomland, at least 1,000 families spent a third night in shelters or with families and friends.

Atchison County Sheriff Jack Millsap said he hoped some families would be able to return home later today. But the continuing rains made it doubtful.

"We have a town in Nebraska report 7 inches of rain in a half-hour and we received a heavy rainfall, so it is still not certain what we will do," Millsap said.

Harry Gordon of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., said early today that the storm system was expected to pick up intensity after dawn.

"Normally these kinds of storms die out after sunset," Gordon said today. "But these just keep on going."

House committee throws out some Perot proposals

Extracurricular requirements watered down

AUSTIN (AP) — In legislative surgery that House Speaker Gib Lewis said is harmful to the children of Texas, the House Public Education Committee has cut out some school reforms pushed by the speaker and H. Ross Perot.

In a marathon Fathers' Day session, and with Lewis looking on, the panel diluted proposals on programs for 4-year-olds and academic requirements for extracurricular program participants. But the panel also added a high school seniors' test providing for "certificates of completion" instead of diplomas for those who fail it.

The changes came in a compromise bill pushed by Lewis and backed by Gov. Mark White, who called the current special legislative session to look at education and highways.

H. Ross Perot, chairman of the Select Committee on Public Education, has lobbied for early childhood programs to help students with learning disabilities or other problems that hinder their education.

The Lewis bill mandated pre-kindergarten programs in districts with 15 or more children that need the help. But the committee on Sunday made the programs optional.

That decision came a few hours after committee members had voted to broaden the program's scope. When the program was changed to an optional one — offered only if districts want to — Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, said:

"We won a great victory for the school children this morning. Now we come back and destroy it."

Lewis also was upset. He called the early childhood program "one of the building blocks in the select committee's recommendation."

The House committee also watered down a select committee proposal aimed at guaranteeing classwork comes before extracurricular activities. Under Lewis' bill, a student failing any subject could not participate in extracurricular programs.

An amendment offered by Rep. Bill Hammond, R-Dallas, and approved by the committee, allows students to fail one course and still participate in extracurricular activities.

Lewis did not like the change.

"I think every student should have a 70 or above passing score in every subject before they are allowed to participate in extracurricular activities," he said.

Hammond also won approval for his amendment mandating standardized testing of all high school seniors. A student who fails the exam would get a "certificate of completion" instead of a diploma.

"There are people graduating with C-minuses who are, for all intents and purposes, illiterate," said Hammond.

The entire education package will be reviewed on the House floor, probably Wednesday. Lewis and Perot (through his lobbyists) are working to get floor support for the compromise bill.

The Sunday decisions came from the same committee that upset Lewis last Thursday by striking the appointed State Board of Education set up in the compromise bill. The committee voted to keep the current 27-member elected board system.

Another select committee proposal ripped from the bill by the House committee called for a statewide school schedule, with classes beginning no earlier than Sept. 1. Rep. Talmadge Heflin, R-Houston, won 6-1 approval for an amendment striking the uniform schedule.

Committee members voted 7-1 against a Hammond amendment that would have forced failing students to attend twice-a-week after-school tutoring sessions.

"It's not going to do one bit of good to drag a kid kicking and screaming in after school for extra help," said Ms. Glossbrenner, D-Alice.

The education reform bill considered by the committee orders school districts to provide tutoring.

House begins debate on amnesty plan for millions of illegal aliens

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, attempting to finish work on a hotly contested immigration control bill, faces a decision this week on whether to let millions of illegal aliens leave their "shadow society" and become U.S. citizens.

Hispanic leaders say the amnesty plan is so narrowly drawn that only a small number of those eligible to apply would qualify. Opponents, meanwhile, reject the idea as rewarding those who have already broken the law.

But sponsors of the bill, which was designed to stem the flow of illegals across the borders, argue that some form of amnesty is necessary to remove the stigma of outlaw from those who have earned a living here for years.

"We must allow people to come up from their shadow society and live a decent life," said Rep. Peter Rodino Jr., D-N.J., a sponsor of the bill and chairman of the House Judiciary Committee. "I know people who are afraid to register to vote because their parents are illegally here — this must end."

The outcome of the vote, tentatively set for Tuesday, could determine whether enough of a coalition holds together to get the legislation through the House.

Rep. Bill McCollum, R-Fla., will try to strip the amnesty plan entirely from the bill.

"There could be a problem out there" if the proposal for amnesty is not included in the bill, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said Friday.

As it currently stands, the legislation calls for granting permanent residency status to those who can prove they settled here before Jan. 1, 1982.

Court to rule on execution by drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to decide whether states may continue executing condemned murderers by injecting them with deadly drugs.

The court will review a decision barring that method of execution until the federal Food and Drug Administration determines whether lethal injections are a "safe and effective" way of killing death row inmates.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington last October acted on an appeal by death row inmates in Texas and Oklahoma by ordering officials in both states to stop using lethal injections for executions.

The appeals court ruled that the FDA first must determine whether the drugs used work quickly and painlessly. If not, the appeals court said, the FDA would have to ban use of the drugs for executions.

The lower court's ruling was to have taken effect last March 21, but on that day Chief Justice Warren E. Burger postponed indefinitely the effective date.

Between 6 p.m. April 28 and 11 a.m. April 30, 1984, unknown persons entered Video Box Office in Coronado Center by unknown means and removed an RCA model SJ400 video disc player, serial No. 40962660, and an RCA video cassette recorder, serial No. 350420773, from the store. Value of the items is approximately $1,250.

Crime Stoppers of Pampa will pay $500 for information leading to the arrest and indictment of the person or persons responsible for this crime.

If you have information about this theft or any other crime, you can report it and remain anonymous by calling 669-2222.

The board of directors of Crime Stoppers urges citizen involvement in reporting crimes in our community by offering rewards for other crimes not in this announcement. Call Pampa Crime Stoppers at 669-2222.

Wheeler property valuations decrease

WHEELER — Mineral and industrial property values in Wheeler county decreased by more than $119 million in 1984, according to figures at the Wheeler County Appraisal District.

The Wheeler County Appraisal review board will meet Thursday to hear appeals of mineral and industrial property value. Figures for agricultural, residential and other properties are not available. Reviews of residential, agricultural and other property will be heard in July.

Reviews of mineral and industrial property values in Gray County will be heard through this week with appeals of residential, agricultural and other property to be heard June 27.

According to chief Wheeler County appraiser Marilyn Copeland, county mineral and industrial property value throughout the appraisal district dropped by nearly 10 percent from $1,178,106,820 in 1984, to $1,058,683,574.

Of the taxing entities in the county, Lela Independent School District and the cities of Wheeler and Shamrock showed increases in industrial property value. Value in Lela increased 31 percent from $12,693,170 in 1983 to $18,443,910 in 1984, she said, attributing the increase to pipeline activity in the area.

Figures showing an 85 percent increase in Wheeler and a 14 1/2 percent increase in Shamrock may be misleading, Copeland said, explaining that sometimes appraisals made by the Amarillo appraisal firm Pritchard and Abbott, which is conducting reappraisals of mineral and industrial property, may overlap with appraisals of other property.

Wheeler County value showed a drop of 10 percent from $1,061,680,690 to $943,092,056. Wheeler ISD showed an 8.7 percent decrease from $194,489,110 to $177,487,560. Mobeetie ISD value dipped less than one percent from $58,739,420 to $58,253,140. Mobeetie city values increased five percent from $365,250 to $384,570.

Copeland said that 20 people have questioned their mineral and industrial property values. She said that they would have been more if property values had increased.

"I expected a lot of royalty owners who had shut back their wells, but still had values set on them," she said.

$1 million makes her baseball fan for life

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — A woman who hadn't been to a Baltimore Orioles game in 25 years and had never heard of outfielder Gary Roenicke has become a "fan for life" after his grand slam homer won her $1 million.

Anne M. Sommers, 45, a secretary from College Park, won a bank contest thanks to Roenicke's home run in the eighth inning of the Orioles' 6-2 win over the New York Yankees on Sunday.

"I'm sure going to follow them now," said Ms. Sommers, adding she'd like to meet Roenicke. "I'm ecstatic."

Ms. Sommers, who was automatically entered in the contest by using her 24-hour banking card, was the first person to win the contest since it began last season, said Jane Allan Bowie, an Equitable Bank spokeswoman.

Her name was randomly drawn by the bank when Roenicke, whose name was also randomly selected, stepped up to bat in the eighth inning. Ms. Bowie said.

Prizes are awarded to contestants if the selected player hits a home run, with the biggest prize going for a grand slam.

Ms. Sommers said she hadn't decided how to spend the money, but wants to move out of her 16th floor apartment.

"I'm going to be very conservative with it," she said.

Ms. Sommers will receive 20 installments of $50,000 a year, Ms. Bowie said.

"My mom's an Orioles fan for life now," said Tommy Sommers, 18.

Carol Gauger, Ms. Sommers' daughter, broke the good news after her husband, Bob Gauger, called from a friend's home where he was watching the game.

"Nobody deserves it more than she does," Mrs. Gauger said. "She always put us kids first before herself. She's a great lady, thoughtful, considerate and caring."

Ms. Sommers said she had no plans to quit her $18,200-a-year job at Emerson Electric in Seabrook.

"No, why should I? I have to go in tomorrow and let those people enjoy the excitement," she said.

"I know two people who are going to celebrate tonight," Roenicke said.

School to study assessing plan

Trustees of the Pampa Independent School District will discuss plans for the possible consolidation of tax assessing and collecting duties with the Gray County Appraisal District at its regular meeting at 5 p.m. Tuesday at the Carver Educational Service Center.

The school district currently handles the tax assessing and collecting property taxes for the PISD and the City of Pampa. Board members have discussed letting the appraisal district office take over the duties as a means of cutting down expenses and keeping records in a central location.

The board members will hear reports on the California Achievement Test Scores, the high school reading improvement program and summer school activities.

In other business, the trustees will consider the awarding of bids for remote workstations for IBM System computers and other computer assisted instruction equipment.

The board will also hear a request from an audience with the board by Joe V. Zandt, Gray County agriculture extension agent and president of Dairy and Alcohol Total Education (DATE).

In other action, the trustees will consider due bills and invoices, hear budget report and have a possible executive session.

International disabled games open

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Opening the 1984 International Games for the Disabled. President Reagan commended the participants who paraded past him — some without legs or arms, others blind or palsied — for "sending a message of hope throughout the world."

Reagan said Sunday that the athletes competing here during the next two weeks will be no match for their Olympic counterparts when it comes to the true essence of sports — "the human heart."

With the pass of a torch to Jan Wilson, a 29-year-old Winston-Salem, N.C., swimmer who has an artificial leg, Reagan declared the games officially open.

"There's something each of you understands that no one else can ever fully appreciate — something that has to do with courage, with will power, and with the utter refusal to give up, that has enabled you to rise above your disabilities and compete," Reagan told some 1,800 athletes from 44 countries.

The Soviet Union and Cuba, which are boycotting the Summer Olympics in Los Angeles, skipped these games as well. However, a few countries, including East Germany, which had followed the Soviets' Olympic boycott were participating here.

Reagan, honorary chairman of the games, sat in the reviewing stand as the procession of athletes passed before him. Some were amputees in wheelchairs, while others were blind and led around the field by teammates or, in one case, a seeing-eye dog.

A member of the Austrian team broke from the ranks to hand Reagan a spray of red, white and blue flowers.

The procession completed, Reagan accepted the games' torch from 12-year-old Timmy Towers of Levittown, N.Y., and then passed it to Miss Wilson, who lit the flame that will burn until the games' conclusion June 30.

The athletes will compete in 20 events, including track and field, swimming, weight lifting and wrestling.

Wrong Reagan tape shown at charity ball

DALLAS (AP) — About 1,700 people attending the Cattle Baron's Ball were pleasantly surprised when the emcee announced that the "most famous cowboy of them all" — President Reagan — had taped a message for them.
"Good evening," Reagan began on tape Saturday night. "I'm delighted to have this opportunity to speak before the Washington Charity Dinner of 1984."

The tape the crowd was seeing was intended for the Washington Charity Dinner, held Saturday night in Washington, D.C.

"By the way," the President continued. "I understand among the many celebrities present tonight are two of my closest friends, Charlton Heston and Bob Hope. Charlton, I can't help thinking although you may have played Moses, Bob Hope and I knew the man."

Results of Diaper Derby announced

Ninety-one young children, from crawlers to 4-year-olds, participated in the various events of the Pampa Mall's Diaper Derby Saturday morning.

Winners were named in six events, conducted as a type of stock car race.

Categories and the winners were:

4x4 (crawlers): 1. Lacy Huval, daughter of Tony and Dena Huval, Borger; 2. Raymond Lane, son of Mrs. Richard Lane, Pampa; 3. Samantha Straham, daughter of Gaylon and Brenda Straham, Pampa.

Scoters (walking to 18 months): 1. Ashlie Olivarez, daughter of Karen Olivarez, Pampa; 2. Holly Barton, daughter of Susie Barton, Miami; 3. Heather Phillips, daughter of Heidi Phillips, Pampa.

Formula 1 (19 to 24 months): 1. Shelton Watson, son of Doug and Jolyn Watson, White Deer; 2. Casey Owens, son of Gerrell Owens, Pampa. There was no third place winner.

Turbo-charged (2-year-olds): 1. Joshua Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jefferey Wright, Borger; 2. Sam Ronde, son of Debra Ronde, Pampa; 3. Roger Palmer, son of Roger Palmer, Pampa.

Modified Stock (3-year-olds): 1. Laurie Beth Lindsey, daughter of Tom Lindsey, Pampa; 2. Kelby McClellan, daughter of Brenda McClellan, Sunray;

3. Brad Allen, son of Carla Allen, Pampa.

Formula 4 (4-year-olds): 1. Jefferey Head, son of Eric Head, Pampa; 2. Matthew Nicholas, son of Holly Nicholas, Pampa; 3. Josajyn Watson, daughter of Doug and Jolyn Watson, White Deer.

The event was held from 11 a.m. to noon Saturday.

Bi-lingual revival underway

A bi-lingual revival campaign will be underway at the Community Christian Center, 801 E. Campbell.

The week-long revival will have services at 8 each evening this week and will conclude with a 7 p.m. service Sunday, June 24.

The services are being held in cooperation with the Spanish Pentecostal Church, according to Paul Allen Pletcher, pastor of the church. Evangelist will be Hap Watkins of Ozark, Mo., former pastor of the Pampa Community Christian Center.

All services will be interpreted into Spanish, Pletcher said.

A nursery will be provided. The public is invited to attend the services, Pletcher said.

Higher interest rates benefit people

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Here go interest rates again and that means, according to the conventional thinking, that fewer folks will be able to buy cars and houses, create new businesses or make money on the stock market.

High interest rates have a negative page, justly deserved, but there is also positive side to them that seldom gets mentioned. People can and do benefit from higher rates.

Higher rates keep people from going in over their heads. They put the lid on fanciful, unrealistic spending schemes that cannot be afforded. They encourage people to make do with what they have.

But above all, they tend to resurrect a latent creativity and ability in people, a rediscovery, a recognition of abilities that in better times would have remained hidden from sight.

The ability to do-it-yourself, for example, had almost been bred out of many people, or knocked out of them by education and mores, but it has come back strongly in recent years of volatile economic events.

When interest rates rise, so do bankruptcies. But during the high-interest recession of 1979-1981 there was simultaneous strength in the formation of new businesses, a result of jobless workers reacting aggressively to bad times.

People who earlier didn't like to get their hands dirty began changing the oil in their automobiles.

Progeria victims vacation in Orlando

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A dozen children from around the world suffering from the rare, incurable aging disease called Progeria are vacationing in Orlando this week for "an emphasis on fun."

But the "Progeria Reunion," as it is being called, will also offer the children and their families the chance to meet with medical specialists and each other.

The week of excursions to Disney World, Sea World, a ranch and other tourist activities is being sponsored by the Sunshine Foundation, a nationwide group that grants some of the last wishes of terminally and chronically ill children.

For some of the children, who have traveled from as far away as Holland, the gathering is their second. The first, together, held in the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania last year, was such a success that sponsors said they planned to make it an annual affair.

The emphasis is on fun, but we will have three medical specialists here to help them, said Lona Edwards, an officer at the Orlando Police Department.

John Stum founded Florida's Sunshine Foundation chapter, said the first reunion showed that family members enjoyed getting together and sharing information.

"It is important that the families as well as the kids feel they are not alone," she said.

Foundation officials say they also hope the annual meetings will help generate research funds to help determine causes and cures for the disease, which is estimated to affect one child in 8 million.

A Progeria victim ages so rapidly that death usually comes by the time the child is in his teens.

The first involvement by the Philadelphia-based Sunshine Foundation with Progeria victims was three years ago, when it arranged a meeting in the United States between Francie Gehringer of Orkney, South Africa, and Mickey Hays of Hallsville, Texas.

The visit brought national attention to the dreaded affliction and also was responsible for stimulating some research in the field.

The children, some in wheelchairs and others with near-normal mobility, began arriving in Florida over the weekend for a full schedule of activities planned through Friday.

Ms. Edwards said 17 families of Progeria victims had been located around the world by the foundation, but some of them had not responded and others couldn't make the trip.

"I am sure that is not all of them. There are many closeted, who don't want any exposure, and others who don't know what their affliction is," she said.

All travel and lodging expenses have been paid for by the foundation, airlines, hotels, tourist attractions and other sponsors and donors.

Among the visitors here this week is Mickey Hays. But Francie could not come this time, Ms. Edwards said.

Others are 3-year-old twin boys from Loxley, Ala., and one of the youngest victims known, a 19-month-old girl from Las Vegas, Nev.

Also in Florida are two unrelated girls from the Toronto area, a 5-year-old girl from El Paso, Texas, a 4-year-old boy from Andover, N.Y., a 5-year-old boy from Gibbonsville, S.C., a 13-year-old girl from San Jose, Calif., a 9-year-old boy from Salt Lake City, Utah, and a 3-year-old boy from Amsterdam, Holland.

Texas Democrats talk unity

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Democratic Party members gave Walter Mondale most of their national convention delegates and gave one another speeches about unity against Republicans, as party leaders worked to bridge gaps that appeared during the state convention.

"You acted as Democrats should have. You had conflicts, you resolved your conflicts. When we leave here, we can go forward," party chairman Bob Slagle told the 5,500 delegates at the convention's final session.

The biggest conflict they resolved was selection of the 200-member delegation Texas will send to the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco next month.

Mondale netted at least 119 delegates — and possibly 124 — after two days of convention negotiations.

Backers of Sen. Gary Hart and the Rev. Jesse Jackson unsuccessfully sought more than they had won in the three-level convention system that began with precinct caucuses on May 5. But despite a personal appearance from Hart, he wound up with just 41 and Jackson got 35.

Of the 200 delegates, 169 were chosen based on caucus support. Hart and Jackson could have picked up additional support from 31 so-called "super delegates," party and elected officials selected at-large.

However, Mondale got at least 25 super delegates to Hart's one. None went to Jackson. Mondale campaign operatives say the other five, although currently uncommitted, likely will back Mondale at the national convention.

Throughout the convention Friday and Saturday, a lengthy procession of top-level Democrats talked about unity.

Former congressman Bob Krueger, a moderate who was defeated in the U.S. Senate primary, pledged his backing to Senate nominee Lloyd Doggett and urged his supporters to do the same.

"I'm going to be there for Lloyd in November and you can count on it," Krueger said.

Conservative U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, who lost the runoff election to liberal Doggett by just 1,345 votes, pledged his backing as well in the race against GOP Congressman Phil Gramm.

Gov. Mark White reminded the convention that unsettled feuds in the past have allowed Republicans to win elections. "We all know the lessons of party unity. We in the Texas Democratic Party should know those lessons better than anyone," he said.

Despite the talk, several signs pointed to disagreements.

Hart traveled to Texas personally to appeal to delegates to steer clear of Mondale. Vowing to stay in the race until the national convention, Hart said, "I am the strongest candidate... I ask you who you think would have won if Texas had a primary election this year."

Mondale found himself forced to defend his victory as some Jackson supporters complained about party rules, written by Mondale backers, which gave Mondale a larger portion of total delegation than his actual popular support in the precinct caucuses. Mondale got 52 percent in the caucuses and wound up with at least 59.5 percent of the national delegation, largely because of the super delegates he won.

"I won the nomination. I won it according to the rules. I won it fair and square," he said during a pre-convention visit to Houston.

Senate nominee Doggett did get the endorsements of rivals Hance and Krueger — but not the traditional unity salute. The three were seated together on the convention stage, but they did not stand together with hands clasped over their heads despite the urgings of some photographers.

U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland, one of Mondale's key black supporters, was forced to withdraw his re-election bid for a seat on the Democratic National Committee after it became apparent that Jackson's numerous supporters wouldn't back him.

Some concessions were made in the name of unity. Hart and Jackson backers decided against staging a floor fight over the 31 super delegates. Also, backers of the caucus system — including many Mondale workers and party chairman Slagle — decided not to oppose a resolution calling for a presidential primary to replace the current caucus system.

GOOD TO THE LAST welcome trickle. The improvisation came during opening day of the 1984 DeLoe District Gulf Coast Council Cub Scout Camp at Sun Valley, near Victoria.

Republicans told tough races are ahead

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Texas Republicans have been warned by national and state party leaders that hard work — and hard cash — will be needed to put President Reagan back in the White House for a second term.

Much of the state GOP's annual convention, which ended Saturday night, was concerned with rallying state Republicans to campaign hard for Reagan and U.S. Senate hopeful Phil Gramm.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, co-chairman of the Reagan-Bush campaign in Texas, told the closing session.

"We're putting a double whammy on you. We're not only asking you to volunteer to work in the telephone banks to get new voters, but we are asking you to pay for the phone banks."

He estimated it would take $3.5 million in Texas to put Reagan over the top in November.

"Polls show Reagan can take Texas handily, but we Republicans know we can take nothing for granted because Democrats are not asleep this year," Tower said. "They can turn out a vote as they did in 1982 (when Republican Gov. Bill Clements was defeated)."

State GOP Chairman George Strake said, "It is up to us to present a GOP welcome not only to all new party members but to independents and disenfranchised Democrats."

Strake said he was particularly interested in Republicans winning more seats in the Texas House.

"We have 37 state representatives now, but if we got 50, then we could have a veto power over redistricting. Reagan got 55 percent of the Texas vote in 1980, but redistricting by the legislature gave Republicans only 22 percent of the state's congressional delegation and 16 percent of the state Senate," he said.

The state leaders' pleas followed a pattern set Friday by keynote speaker, Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., the national Reagan-Bush campaign director, who predicted Reagan was in for the race of his life because of politically aroused Democrats.

Laxalt said Texas was not only indispensable to the presidential contest, but the election of Gramm to Tower's seat would be important in keeping the GOP majority in the U.S. Senate.

Vice President George Bush followed on Saturday by saying Republicans face their most important political year in two decades. He stressed that all Texas GOP races would be affected by the outcome of the presidential race.

On Saturday night, the convention turned to a long list of conservative policy and platform issues, some of which have sparked intra-party squabbles for years.

In the closing session, the 4,600 delegates argued for more than four hours over about 50 resolutions sent to the convention from county and precinct sessions. All were finally passed near midnight on voice vote with no significant changes.

Those adopted on voice votes put the party on record as supporting a constitutional amendment to protect rights of unborn children, against blanket amnesty for aliens, for election of federal judges, for an elected state board of education, for school prayers, for a flat-rate income tax, and for a minimum drinking age of 21 on the national level.

Others opposed reconsideration of the Equal Rights Amendment, a minority status for homosexuals.

Vietnamese hold 200 POWs, retired colonel says

HOUSTON (AP) — Retired Air Force Col. Jack Bailey wears a bracelet that bears the name of an American serviceman missing in Vietnam since 1966. But the bracelet is just one sign of Bailey's concern for Vietnam veterans.

Bailey says he believes the Vietnamese government is holding more than 200 prisoners of war, and he has spent the last three years urging U.S. officials to try and find them.

A 61-year-old veteran of World War II and the Korean and Vietnam wars, Bailey is captain of the Akuna III, the ship that has sailed the South China Sea for Operation Rescue to protect Vietnamese boat people. His work brought him to Operation Rescue's Houston office last week and his itinerary also included Thailand, California and Washington D.C.

Although Vietnamese officials deny there are any living U.S. servicemen still in their country, Bailey told The Houston Post the government is holding American, Chinese, Korean, French and Australian veterans. He said he gets his information from underground Laotians, Vietnamese and Cambodians who claim POWs are being held in more than 100 places.

"I would be happy to trade myself for one of these people to give them a chance to live. I've had a wonderful life," he said.

Bailey has a wife, three daughters and two sons — one of whom is an adopted Vietnamese child — in California.

Bailey said he is willing to travel to Hanoi with an international Red Cross delegate and visit a site where his sources claim POWs are being held.

He said Vietnamese officials want to cash in on prisoners of war. The government is still waiting for $3.25 billion promised by the Nixon administration during the 1973 peace talks, he said.

President Reagan has said he believes some American soldiers may be held captive, but Bailey said talk is not enough.

The Akuna III is now idle in Thailand because Operation Rescue lacks funds. The organization's annual budget is $250,000 and the program is $100,000 in debt, Bailey said.

He said if the ship were in international waters it could deter pirates from harming boat people, "who might have valuable information about an American, a son or a husband."

Bailey said the ship sails for 20 days at a time, but he and crew members sometimes drift with the currents to save fuel costs.

Operation Rescue is funded by private contributions, Bailey said, many of which come from the Vietnamese community.

He says he has been fighting for government support and action since 1981 and has received no response on information he gave to the Defense Intelligence Agency and the National Security Council.

"This will never be resolved through a diplomatic effort," he said. "Maybe if we can give him (Reagan) proof..."

Bailey says he has no proof, but says the 500 live sightings reported by boat people should be enough evidence to convince the government into taking action.

Chagra pleads guilty to murder conspiracy in attack on prosecutor

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Imprisoned narcotics trafficker Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra has admitted that he conspired to have a federal prosecutor killed more than five years ago.

Chagra, 39, entered a guilty plea Saturday to one count of a two-count indictment before U.S. District Judge William Sessions, who warned Chagra that he could be sentenced to life in prison. Sessions said he would sentence Chagra later this month.

A federal indictment alleged that Chagra conspired with co-defendant James R. Kearns to kill then-Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr. Kearns is scheduled to go on trial June 25 in U.S. District Court in San Antonio.

Kerr, now an administrative law judge living at an undisclosed location, ducked beneath the dashboard of his automobile to escape a barrage of more than 15 semi-automatic rifle shots fired from the back of a van on Nov. 21, 1978.

The indictment was returned last November, just five days before the statute of limitations in the case would have expired.

After a reading of the indictment by Assistant U.S. Attorney Ray Jahn and under questioning by Sessions, Chagra said he arranged for hiring Kearns to kill the prosecutor.

The indictment alleges that Kearns actually fired the shots.

During Saturday's hearing, Jahn said the bungled shooting attempt set the stage for a final alleged meeting between Chagra and his confidante Robert Piccolo.

"They both agreed at that point they would abandon any attempt to kill Mr. Kerr," Jahn said.

When Sessions asked Chagra if he was satisfied the government could prove the case, he responded, "Yes, sir."

Jahn declined comment on the dispensation of a second

Jewels & Gems

by Ken Rheams

Gold-filled jewelry is made by mechanically bonding a layer of karat gold to a reinforcing metal. Its development is the result of an accidental discovery by a Sheffield silversmith named Thomas Bolsover in 1740. Bolsover was mending a crack in a sterling knife when he found that his vise was not tight enough. He wedged a copper coin and, while applying heat to the knife, was distracted by the town crier's announcement of some urgent news. When he returned his attention to the knife a few moments later, he saw that it was fused to the copper coin. The blade was ruined but the process that came to be known as "Old Sheffield" was born.

Immigration bill should be rejected

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the last in a series of three editorials discussing the Simpson-Mazzoli immigration bill currently being debated in the U.S. House of Representatives.

It seems almost certain that the country will soon have some sort of new immigration bill. The U.S. Senate passed the Simpson-Mazzoli bill last year and the House of Representatives is expected to pass its version of the measure sometime this week. President Reagan has indicated he supports the action and is likely to sign it into law once the Senate and House work out their differences.

While the bill seems almost certain to pass, it is difficult for us to find any good it will accomplish, but considerably easier to see the harm it will cause.

The very people in the House who have unsuccessfully opposed certain harmful aspects of the bill—employer sanctions—support another ill-conceived aspect, amnesty for illegal aliens, the last remaining section scheduled for debate this week.

The major focus of the debate this week will not be over whether the bill should include an amnesty provision, but how much amnesty should be provided. Hispanics want the restrictions eased, claiming that the bill as currently written will allow only several hundred thousand aliens to qualify for citizenship. In order to get the Hispanic vote on the overall bill, House leaders are likely to have to soften the requirement so that, perhaps, millions of illegals will have the opportunity to become American citizens.

Now, regardless of what Congressional leaders say, the bill is aimed mainly at curbing the flow of undocumented workers from Mexico. But if the amnesty provision is liberalized and the Senate accepts the Hous plan, here is what Congress will have accomplished with the bill.

It will have allowed millions (nobody knows exactly how many illegals are in the United States now) to remain as citizens and eventually to qualify for all the government goodies handed out to people considered disadvantaged; and it will allow hundreds of thousands of Mexicans to enter the United States with temporary work permits.

The question we ask is this: if passage of the bill results in millions of Mexicans working in the United States anyway, why do we need it in the first place? It seems to us that all we will accomplish is allowing many people who cannot apply for citizenship now to live off the taxpayers, adding a great deal of regulatory burden to employers who hire temporary agricultural workers; opening the way for organized labor to unionize agriculture in this country and drive up the cost of food; paving the way for requiring a national identification card for every American; and spending untold millions of dollars (nobody knows exactly how much) enforcing the bill.

While the current situation involving aliens is not suitable to some, it really isn't that bad. Currently, illegals have little impact on employment opportunities for U.S. citizens because for the most part they work at jobs nobody else will take. They do not legally qualify for welfare in this country, so they are not a burden to the taxpayer. They are hard workers and their efforts in the fields of America contribute to the low cost of food in this country.

Congress should remember the adage "If it ain't broke, don't fix it," and reject the Simpson-Mazzoli bill.

Fruits of Doggett demagoguery

Boy, that was some interesting U.S. Senate campaign the Texas Democrats put on, what with Lloyd Doggett depicting Kent Hance as the meanest man in politics since the late A. Hitler, and Hance slugging back in inventive fashion.

But, oh, my brothers and sisters, we have not seen anything yet. We have not seen Landslide Lloyd, the Democratic nominee, mount to the Senate rostrum and offer remotely useful solutions to anything. There, if ever he does so, will be a sight for the ages.

Let us consider Social Security, the meat and potatoes of Doggett's anti-Hance rhetoric. Over and over again, Doggett commercials sought to persuade the electorate that Hance had voted to "cut S.S."

Cut it how? And how much? The commercials, of course, did not say. Their purpose was not informative; it was inflammatory. The commercials bade older Texans think of Hance as their mortal enemy. In one commercial, a senior citizen - a paid actor, I assume - called Hance "a darn liar." "Doggett Bites Man," the headline should have read.

What a very interesting campaign style for one whose admirers like to brag on his gee-whiz, all-American "integrity." If Doggett's commercials demonstrate integrity, may heaven save us from a truly devious candidate!

The commercials never hinted as to what Doggett himself thought of Social Security: apart from the fact that he knew it to be one sexy campaign issue. Pity, because, should Doggett engineer another "landslide" victory in November, over Republican Phil Gramm, he will in due course have to confront the Social Security predicament we don't have, except for political bad guys voting all the time to "cut" payments.

What is wrong with S.S.? Medicare, for one thing. The program's Hospital Insurance fund could run out of money by 1988, given rising demand and exploding costs. What would Doggett do about this?

As for Social Security itself, there were some modest reforms in 1983, including benefit cuts. Presumably Doggett would have raised the countryside against these, preferring to wring more money out of the taxpayers. (For poor people, S.S. taxes already constitute the heaviest tax burden.)

Even with the reforms, S.S.'s financial problems persist. The Committee for Economic Development warns that "Should future economic and demographic trends turn out to be less favorable than is assumed in the 1983 amendments (the old age and disability trust funds) are likely to face insolvency again before the end of this decade."

A. Haeworth Robertson, former chief actuary for the S.S. Administration, wrote last year that "The strife and turmoil in the late 1980s and early 1990s will make today's problem with S.S. look like an afternoon picnic."

And it won't even be Kent Hance's fault!

Which certainly narrows the range of Lloyd Doggett's possible responses, assuming he's there representing Texas when the black day comes.

What makes any of us think money is the main problem with Social Security? It is a tributary problem only. The main problem is political demagoguery a la Claude Pepper - and Lloyd Doggett, Demagoguery so far has blocked major reform of S.S. despite the urgent need for reform.

How utterly simple, and obviously rewarding, to "champion" the S.S. recipient. All that's needed is some wholesome rhetoric about Defending (Protecting, Saving, Maintaining) Your Social Security Check. Never mind what your opponent really is saying: Just make out as though he had a secret plan to snatch bread out of enfeebled and arthritic hands.

And don't worry too scrupulously about actually solving the problem in question. The point of demagoguery isn't solving problems; it's getting elected. Right, Brother Doggett?

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, June 18, the 170th day of 1984. There are 196 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
One year ago, on June 18, 1983, astronaut Sally Kristin Ride became America's first woman in space as she and four colleagues blasted off aboard the space shuttle Challenger.

On this date:
In 1940, in a radio broadcast from London, Gen. Charles DeGaulle called on fellow French citizens to resist the Vichy government.

In 1953, Egypt was proclaimed a republic.
In 1972, Britain saw its worst air disaster ever when 118 people died aboard a British European Airways jet that crashed shortly after takeoff from London.

Ten years ago: President Richard M. Nixon completed a week-long tour of the Mideast.

Five years ago: President Jimmy Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev signed the Salt II treaty in Vienna. To date, it has not been ratified by the U.S. Senate.

Today's birthdays: Actor E.G. Marshall is 74. Lyricist Sammy Cahn is 71. Rock star Paul McCartney is 42.

Thought for today: "Frailty, thy name is no longer woman." — Victor Riesel, newspaper columnist.

They don't like to talk about it

A group of cub reporters was sitting in a bar in Washington when several old-timers from the 1984 Democratic Primary Veterans Association came in.

We watched in awe as they ordered their drinks.

Mike Gretschel said to one of them, "I guess you guys saw a lot of action."

The grizzled vet said proudly, "We saw it all. From the caucus halls of Iowa to the exit polls of Newport Beach. We were there in the snows of New Hampshire, and we fought in the peanut furrows of Georgia. But we're not heroes. We were just doing our job. Someone had to cover the Democratic presidential primaries, and better us than our wives and children."

"What do you mean wives and children?" a woman vet wearing a network baseball cap said. "I was there too."

"Sorry, Sarah," the vet apologized.

"What was it really like, sir, covering Mondale, Hart and Jackson?" a young reporter asked.

A vet loaded down with campaign pins stared in his beer and said, "I'd rather not talk about it."

The vet standing next to him whispered to me, "He lost his best friend at a Hart fund-raising barbeque in Waco, Texas."

"What happened?"

"The friend was listening to Gary Hart explain how he differed from Mondale on the nuclear freeze for the 165th time, and he freaked out. They took him away in a straightjacket."

One of the vets held up his glass and said, "Here's to Johnny Appleseed."

The other vets all solemnly lifted their glasses, drank, and then smashed them against the fireplace.

"Who was Johnny Appleseed?" one of us asked.

"He was the greatest," a TV veteran said.

"He threw himself on a Mondale mimeograph machine which was turning out a press release on Hart's credibility gap and saved all our lives. He was awarded the Medal Medal of Honor posthumously."

Another vet was wearing combat ribbons from Syria, Canada and Mexico.

I asked the man next to me, "Where did he earn those?"

"He covered Jesse Jackson's campaign, and was one of the few reporters who saw action in the Democratic primaries outside the U.S."

I turned to the Jackson vet, "I guess you were in the thick of it."

The Jackson vet said, "I saw enough to last me a lifetime. You never knew when you wrote a story about Jackson whether the Reverend Farrakhan would threaten your life. We had to wear bulletproof vests everytime we attended a rally. I guess those of us who covered Jackson saw more action than anybody else. When it came to campaigning he was another George Patton."

I bought a Mondale vet a drink. "It's hard for someone on the home front to imagine what you people went through."

"You don't think about it until it's over," he said. "Mondale was always sniping at Hart. Hart was always dropping bombs on Mondale, Jackson's people engaged in hand-to-hand combat for delegates, and all three were trying to burn the Democratic Party to the ground. Everyone took the low ground. Whoever said, 'Democratic primaries are hell' knew what he was talking about."

"I can't wait to cover one," I said.

"That's because you've never seen a primary close up. All you saw is what they showed you on television, and what you read in the paper. They never showed you the boredom between the speeches and the debates. You never saw us huddled in Holiday Inn and airport waiting rooms waiting for something - anything - to happen. You never heard the same speeches a thousand times. No one who has been there would ever want to do it again."

"But at least you have something to tell your grandchildren."

"I doubt it. Who the hell will care in 20 years what the Mondale, Hart, Jackson war was all about? Nobody even cares now."

Story behind the Ford affair

NEW YORK (NEA) - This pause between the end of the primaries and the opening of the Democratic convention in San Francisco next month may be just the time to clear up, once and for all, one of the minor mysteries of the 1980 campaign season. Such footnotes to history may not be important sub specie aeternitatis, but to political buffs they are soul food. Herewith I offer a particularly choice morsel.

Ronald Reagan had the 1980 Republican presidential nomination all sewed up nearly two months before the opening session of the convention in Detroit was called to order. A certain amount of excitement was being generated, however, over whom Reagan would tap for the vice presidential spot. That decision, in such situations, is invariably the presidential nominee's to make, but Reagan had kept his intentions strictly private, saying only that he was determined to choose a running mate who, if called on to step into his shoes, could be depended on to carry out his policies.

George Bush, Reagan's most tenacious rival for the nomination, was probably the choice of the vast majority of the GOP's professional politicians for the second spot, on the time-honored principle that it would "balance the ticket" (as Mondale may well balance his this year, by tapping Gary Hart). But many of the party's conservatives, having triumphed at last over its pesky "moderates," were in no mood to see Bush, a veteran moderate himself, walk off with the vice presidency (and thus inevitably position himself for a bid to succeed Reagan in 1984 or 1988). They much preferred Rep. Jack Kemp, or some other equally hard-headed conservative.

On the third afternoon of the convention, rumors began sweeping the Joe Louis Arena and flooding the nation's television screens, to the effect that Reagan was unwilling to accept Bush as his running mate and had asked former President Gerald Ford if he would consider serving as vice president. If true, the offer was unprecedented, and its acceptance would make history. Ford was seen entering Reagan's suite high up in the Renaissance Plaza Hotel; an hour or two later, reporters discovered that a "Ford negotiating team" led by Henry Kissinger was negotiating with a Reagan team headed by Bill Casey, apparently on the precise division of duties between the putative president and vice president. Around 10 p.m. Bush, exhausted and dejected, gave up hope and went to bed.

I was in the press section as the evening progressed and the hysteria grew. At one point, Ford appeared on CBS-TV and was interviewed by Walter Cronkite, who elicited from him an admission that under the arrangements being discussed, Ford would, in effect, be "co-president." I was appalled: Much as I admired Reagan's confidence that he could control such a situation, I was sure that having a former president as "co-president" was a prescription for political disaster.

Luckily something - observers later suggested it was Cronkite's interview with Ford - seemed to change presidential choice after all, and that Reagan was coming to the convention hall, nearly a full day ahead of his scheduled arrival, to address the delegates. Bush was rousted out of bed to stand beside him - and the exhausted delegates hailed their new leaders.

I only recently learned the truth about his curious episode. It seems that the Reagan high command knew all along that it would be necessary to choose Bush for the vice presidency. But they were anxious to avoid infuriating their fellow conservatives, and to this end concocted a scheme to pretend that Reagan was considering Ford - calculating that the conservatives would be so relieved when Ford was finally passed over that they would accept Bush with little or no protest.

There were only two flies in this ointment:

A good many conservatives were so anti-Bush that they alarmed the Reagan chieftains by actually preferring Ford; and Ford, egged on by Kissinger, ballooned Reagan's cautious approach into a much more serious offer than Reagan had ever intended it should become. That was why Reagan felt it necessary to make his dramatic early appearance before the delegates: to bring the growing foofaraw under control.

Let's hope that the coming melodrama in San Francisco has moments as startling, as baffling, and ultimately as entertaining as that one!

Bits of history

In 1567, Mary, Queen of Scots, was imprisoned in Lochleven Castle in Scotland.

In 1775, the Revolutionary War Battle of Bunker Hill was fought near Boston.

In 1865, the opera "Tristan and Isolde" by Richard Wagner premiered in Munich, Germany.

In 1922, singer-actress Judy Garland was born.

In 1935, the organization Alcoholics Anonymous was founded in Akron, Ohio.

And in 1973, a select committee of the U.S. Senate opened hearings on the Watergate affair.

Dear Abby Woman rich in friendliness thinks silence isn't gold

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I don't mind standing in long lines, but I hate the silence. As soon as I get into a line, I say to the person next to me, "Quite a crowd today, isn't it?" Of course I get an answer. Soon someone else chimes in with, "I didn't expect it to be so busy this time of day." In a few minutes, a lot of conversations get going, the time passes more quickly, and everybody leaves in a good mood.

Once I went to a volunteer awards luncheon and didn't know anyone, so I started talking to a man who didn't know anybody either. He told me he had just lost his wife and he sure missed the Swiss steak she used to make, but he supposed it was too complicated to prepare himself. I told him exactly how to make it, and he brightened up immediately.

Recently while visiting my father in the hospital, I was in the elevator going down to the cafeteria in the basement. An old gentleman got on and I said, "You look worried." He said, "I am. I've got an awfully big decision to make by tomorrow—guess I'll have to talk it over with the Lord." I said, "You can't get better advice than that." The elevator stopped and he walked me to the cafeteria, still talking a mile a minute. Suddenly, he asked, "Where are we?" I told him, and he said he wanted the lobby, so I walked him back to the elevator, pushed the lobby button and told him I'd pray for him.

My kids keep saying, "Ma, you're too friendly. One day you are going to be murdered by a stranger." And I say, "Well, I'd rather go on being friendly than standing in dead silence in a group of people." L.C.

DEAR L.C.: Pity there aren't more friendly folks like you. Most people are embarrassed by silence, but few have the courage to break it.

DEAR ABBY: Is there a rule to go by regarding the correct amount of money one should give as a wedding gift? I prefer to give a present, but so many couples say they'd rather have the money, I feel I should conform.

No one is willing to tell me what amount of money would be an appropriate wedding gift for a niece, for example. How about for the son of a business associate?

Any guidelines would be appreciated.

THANKS FROM NEW HAMPSHIRE

DEAR THANKS: Give the same amount of money you would have spent on a gift.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing this on Mother's Day. I have been richly blessed with five wonderful sons, and we have three lovely grandchildren.

Tomorrow will be our youngest son's birthday. (He will be 21.) It is also the day that his girlfriend is expecting their baby. Arrangements have been made to place it for adoption, as they do not feel they are ready for marriage yet.

My prayer for Mother's Day is for the young couple who await the birth of this baby with such joy and excitement. Bless them and their home, Lord, and may this child be a blessing to them, just as his father has always been to us.

My heart is heavy knowing that we will never see this child grow up—but I will remember the young couple who are adopting him in my daily prayers. May they feel our love, and raise this child to care for his fellowman, to be honest, upright and to love the Lord. May they love him fully, and may he return their love tenfold.

What you should know about Chlamydia

Ask a group of people what they think chlamydia is and chances are that no one will know. Yet this relatively unknown sexually transmitted disease now occurs more frequently than either gonorrhea or syphilis in the United States. Chlamydia is not as serious as syphilis nor as long lasting as herpes but it can cause a number of problems in men, women and children.

A bacteria-like organism, chlamydia is somewhat of a chameleon. Some people may harbor the disease for number of years with no symptoms, but their partner can develop an infection Chlamydia is now believed to be one cause of a number of infections including inflammation of the cervix (cervicitis) and pelvic inflammatory disease (PID) which is a catch-all phrase for a number of infections of the pelvic area. In men, chlamydia is believed to be responsible for nearly half of all cases of nongonococcal urethritis, an infection which has symptoms similar to gonorrhea.

Chlamydia is more likely to be found in addition to other sexually transmitted diseases such as gonorrhea. The bug is usually suspected when an infection is diagnosed and treated but refuses to clear up. Unfortunately, chlamydia bacteria do not show up readily on standard tests and the special test for the disease is time consuming and expensive.

If a woman has chlamydia infection during pregnancy and passes it along to her infant at birth, the newborn may develop an eye infection, infant pneumonia and other respiratory ailments, as well as some gastrointestinal or ear infections.

The good news about chlamydial infections is that they can be treated successfully by certain antibiotics, such as erythromycin or tetracycline or sulfa drugs for pregnant women. Penicillin, the old stand-by for certain venereal diseases, is not effective for chlamydia.

It's important that if you are diagnosed as having chlamydial infection, your partner is also treated. Otherwise, there is a chance of being reinfected.

If you have urinary or cervical infections that reoccur or your partner has recently developed a urinary infection, you may be the victim of chlamydia.

As with any type of infection, it's important to see your doctor and have the infection diagnosed and treated.

Rocky Mountain Fever alert

Seventeen cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever, resulting in two deaths, have been reported so far this year to the Texas Department of Health. A majority of these cases live in north central and northeast Texas. In 1983, 108 spotted fever cases, with six deaths, occurred in Texas, primarily in north central and northeast Texas.

The disease is transmitted to people through the bite of an infected tick. Most ticks can carry and transmit spotted fever. An infected tick must be attached and feeding for three to four hours before the disease will be transmitted. This is why early removal of ticks is so important in preventing the disease.

About one week after the disease has entered the body, the person will have symptoms which include sudden onset of fever, headache, chills, muscle aches, and a rash beginning between days two and six of the illness. Prompt medical attention is needed.

Ticks may attach anywhere but usually prefer hairy areas of the body such as the scalp and armpits. The Texas Department of Health recommends several measures to prevent spotted fever: 1) avoid places likely to have ticks, such as tall weeds and thick bushes; 2) check yourself and your children several times a day for ticks if you have been working or playing in tick-infested areas; 3) wear long-sleeved shirts and long pants tucked into sock or boots; 4) use insect repellents containing diethyltoluamide; 5) check pets regularly for ticks - even if they are allowed only to go outdoors in their own fenced yard; and 7) reduce tick infestation around the home by spraying the yard and treating pets.

Ask your veterinarian what to use for your specific pet.

Care should be taken when removing attached ticks from pets and humans. Tweezers or fingers protected with cotton or paper should be used to remove ticks. Do not crush ticks between the fingers. This could allow the disease to enter the body through abrasions or cuts in the skin.

If you have ANY illness within ten days of a tick attachment - especially if it includes fever, headache, or a rash - seek medical attention.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be fair in business matters today but, by the same token, don't give things away without getting something back of equal value in return.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Do not permit your pride to get in the way today and cause you to reject the ideas or suggestions of others just because you didn't think of them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try to handle important financial matters as early as possible today. Conditions tend to get more complicated by late afternoon.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In your haste to conclude important matters today, you must be careful not to leave any loose ends. Don't let the good you do unravel.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Look out for your self-interests today but do not do so at the expense of anyone else. It's better to suffer materially than to lose a valued pal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Friends will be willing to go out of their way to be of assistance to you today but, uncharacteristically, you may reject a cry for help from another.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Where your major interests are concerned today, you may represent two extremes. Some situations you'll handle masterfully while making a mess of others.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll be lucky today in involvements that include others but in matters where your interest is focused only on yourself, you may not do too well.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Both opportunity and confusion are likely to be prevalent in your affairs today. Do not allow the negative influences to overpower the positive ones.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be tolerant and forgiving with close pals today. If they do things that displease you, do your best to look the other way.

Miracle putt leaves Open tie

Norman rejoices as putt falls

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP) — Greg Norman called the putt 40 feet. It probably was closer to 50. Fuzzy Zoeller thought it was for birdie, and he was ready to throw in the towel.

Instead, the putt was for par. Norman lined it up, hard sure that it was going in, and when it did, he and Zoeller were headed for the 27th playoff in U.S. Open history.

It would take 18 holes today to settle the issue under the U.S. Golf Association's Open format. Tee off was 1:45 p.m. EDT. Sunday's fourth round turned into a war of attrition at the tough, unyielding Winged Foot Golf Club.

Zoeller was 7-under and three shots ahead of Norman after nine holes Sunday, firing four consecutive birdies on Nos. 3-6. But he bogeyed three holes on the back nine to finish with par-70 and 276, 4-under for the tournament.

Norman, who began the day two shots off the lead and one behind Zoeller, birdied the 14th to go 4-under, but he had to scramble for par on the final three holes, including the 50-foot putt at 18, to finish with 69-276.

And Hale Irwin, leader or co-leader in all three previous rounds, squandered a one-shot lead going into the fourth round with a 7-over-par 79 to finish at 284, eight shots back. Irwin began the day at 5-under, but a double-bogey six on the ninth hole put him back to even for the tournament, and he bogeyed four more holes on the back nine.

It was perhaps the worst U.S. Open collapse since Arnold Palmer blew a seven-stroke lead to Billy Casper in the final nine holes in 1966 and lost in a playoff.

Curtis Strange shot one of the best rounds of the day, 68, to finish at 281, 1-over-par and five shots back. Johnny Miller had 70-282 and was tied for fourth with Jim Thorpe, who faltered to a 3-over 73.

Peter Jacobsen and Mark O'Meara were tied at 285. O'Meara shot 69 and Jacobsen had 67, best round of the day.

Zoeller was playing in a twosome with Irwin behind Norman and Thorpe. Zoeller stood on the fairway as Norman lined up his long, par-saving putt. Norman had hit his second shot on the 448-yard, par-4 hole into the bleachers. He took a free drop into some high grass and pitched the ball past the pin and all the way to the fringe on the other side of the green.

"On my backswing, some adrenalin rushed in and I tightened up. I watched the ball go into the bleachers in disbelief," said Norman, who joined the PGA Tour last year and won the Kemper Open two weeks ago.

After he pitched up, he said he "could feel the putt. It's hard to explain. I had a feeling in my hands. All I had to do was hit it the right speed. I could see the ball going in."

The long, curling putt found the hole unerringly, and Zoeller waved a towel at Norman in mock surrender. He hadn't seen the shot go into the bleachers.

"I thought the shot Greg made on the last hole was a birdie, so I was ready to shoot right on in there (and go for birdie)," Zoeller said. "When I waved the towel, it was just a joke with Greg."

Zoeller, a happy-go-lucky sort, and the blond-haired Norman, nicknamed the "Great White Shark," head into the playoff with $47,000 at stake. That's the difference between the record $94,000 first prize and the $47,000 check for second.

The 18-hole playoff format is unique in major tournaments to the U.S. and British opens. Most tournaments are settled on the same day by sudden death. The last time the Open went to a playoff was in 1975 when Lou Graham beat John Mahaffey.

"To be perfectly honest, I'd rather play sudden death," Zoeller said. "But if this is the way they want to do it, it's OK with me. We play seven days a week anyway, so we might just as well play at Winged Foot."

Carl Lewis glides to victory

Lewis clears big hurdle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carl Lewis, who hopes to duplicate Jesse Owens' feat of winning four gold medals in the Olympics, has taken one important stride toward the 1984 Games, with two more remaining.

Lewis, appearing to run almost effortlessly, glided to victory in the 100-meter finals Sunday night at the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials. By winning the event, which was contested by one of the finest sprint fields ever assembled, the 22-year-old locked up one berth on the American team for this summer's Games.

Later this week, he'll try to earn more two spots, in the 200 meters and the long jump. He wants to compete in those events and as a member of the American 400-meter relay team in the Olympics and hopefully match Owens' four-gold performance in the 1936 Games.

"Obviously, I'm happy it went this way and that I won," Lewis said after he ran the 100 in 10.06 seconds despite facing a headwind of 2.2 meters per second. "I trained for this meet, harder than anyone else."

Sam Graddy, a relative unknown despite being the reigning NCAA and national champion in the 100, finished second to Lewis with a time of 10.21.

Ron Brown, who delayed what figures to be a lucrative pro football career for a chance to compete in the Olympics, grabbed off the final 100-meter spot on the U.S. squad with a 10.23 for third.

The field was so strong that Calvin Smith, the world record holder in the event at 9.93, finished fourth, in 10.29, followed by Kirk Baptiste, Emit King, Harvey Glance and Mel Lattany.

"I think the race was faster than the finals will be in the Olympics," said Brown, a former Arizona State wide receiver who plans to play for the Los Angeles Rams next fall. "We had one of the greatest fields ever."

Glance, a two-time Olympian, said, "That was the best field I've ever been in, including the 1976 Olympics. They are all champions and it was a great race."

Lewis, comfortably ahead in the final strides, took a quick look around and raised his arms triumphantly just before the finish.

Graddy, a 20-year-old Tennessee sophomore who seems to be hitting his peak at an excellent time, said, "I was in a loaded field, but I knew it would come down to the top dogs."

The 100 was one of four finals during Sunday's second day of the trials, which run through next Sunday, with Wednesday a day off.

Jackie Joyner won the women's heptathlon with an American-record performance; Mike Conley won the triple jump when he went 57-5, the sixth best mark ever; and Bill Green won the hammer throw at 240-3.

Other highlights included Edwin Moses winning his 101st consecutive race, with a 47.58 in his semifinal heat of the 400-meter intermediate hurdles.

McEnroe wins again

LONDON (AP) — John McEnroe, after a stormy tuneup, is looking forward to a rest before the trial of Wimbledon.

Sunday, McEnroe squelched a comeback attempt by upstart Leif Shiras to win the $203,000 Queen's Club tennis tournament, 6-1, 3-6, 6-2.

The fatigued winner was planning to skip a men's tournament starting today in England to rest up for Wimbledon, which starts next Monday.

"I'm definitely feeling weary at this stage and looking forward to a few days off," he said after the match.

Asked whether he was still smarting from his French Open loss to Lendl on the previous Sunday, McEnroe replied that he preferred to look ahead to Wimbledon.

"We've played the Dodgers so many hard, close-fought games over the years," Houston Manager Bob Lillis said. "We were bound to win our share sooner or later."

Ryan, 7-2, struck out nine before being taken out of the game after eight innings with a strained calf muscle. Smith came on to pitch the last inning and earn his second save of the season while extending the scoreless streak by Houston's bullpen to 19 1-3 innings.

"This is the best groove I've been in as an Astro," Ryan said.

"It will be 24 to 48 hours before we know anything. I don't know what happened. On my first step, my leg popped."

Ryan injured his calf while leaving the batter's box in the eighth inning. He had just come off the disabled list and was making his first start since June 1.

"It's sad to see what happened to Nolan after he just came off the disabled list," Puhl said.

The Astros scored their run in the fifth on Ray Knight's leadoff single and Puhl's double to right-center field against losing pitcher Bob Welch, 5-7.

Los Angeles threatened against Ryan in the first inning when Steve Sax led off with a single and stole second. Ryan walked R.J. Reynolds and Ken Landreaux then sacrificed both runners into scoring position. Pedro Guerrero walked to load the bases, but Terry Whitfield hit into a double play to end the inning.

"He (Ryan) had a good fastball, change-up, slider and curveball," said Los Angeles second baseman Sax.

The loss was the Dodgers' fifth in a row.

"We'll just have to try another town," Los Angeles Manager Tommy Lasorda said. "We weren't too successful here."

MAKE YOUR VEHICLE A BUSINESS CONTROL CENTER.

Motorola Privacy Plus™ Radiophone keeps you in touch.

Motorola's radiophone could be one of the most important business tools you could buy.

Orioles 'money player' cashes in

By BEN WALKER
AP Sports Writer

Gary Roenicke, who has been a money player for the Baltimore Orioles in the past but was having his problems this season, finally hit the jackpot.

Roenicke smashed a grand-slam homer in the eighth inning Sunday, capping a five-run rally with two outs that made the Orioles 6-2 victors over the New York Yankees and made a millionaire out of Anne Somers.

"I know two people who are going to celebrate tonight," Roenicke beamed. The home run, Roenicke's second of the season and fourth career slam, helped jolt him out of a recent 1-for-13 slump that had dropped his batting average to .194 with only eight runs batted in.

The blast also won $1 million for Somers, of College Park, Md., in a grand slam contest that is conducted by WMAR-TV, the station that televises Orioles games, and is sponsored by an area bank.

"It's incredible. I'm ecstatic and I'm getting more excited by the moment," effused Somers. "Did they win the game?"

In other AL games, Detroit stopped Milwaukee 7-4, Toronto downed Boston 5-3, Minnesota slapped Kansas City 3-1, Cleveland shaded California 4-3, Chicago crunched Oakland 9-4, and Seattle topped Texas 5-2.

Baltimore seemed as though it might waste a fine effort by starter Mike Flanagan, who finished with a five-hitter, as the Orioles trailed 2-1 going into the eighth at Yankee Stadium.

But with two outs, Floyd Rayford delivered a game-tying RBI single and Cal Ripken Jr. wished a happy Father's Day to his dad, Cal Sr. — the Orioles third-base coach — with another single. Eddie Murray then walked before Roenicke lined his shot into the left-field seats off New York starter Dennis Rasmussen, 1-2.

"When I saw that Eddie worked an 0-2 count into a walk, I knew that he (Rasmussen) was losing it," Roenicke said. "I said to myself, 'If you ever had a hit in you, hit it now.'"

He homered with a bat borrowed from teammate Wayne Gross.

"I had to do something," said Roenicke, who had 40 home runs and 138 RBI during the past two seasons in a key platoon role. "Why not use another bat? Mine's not working."

Yankees Manager Yogi Berra said he would have preferred to use Dave Righetti in the eighth had not the reliever cut a finger in a freak pre-game accident, which left him on the 15-day disabled list.

"I would have taken him (Rasmussen) out of there if I had Rags," Berra lamented.

Home plate umpire Mike Reilly saw Don Baylor's two-run homer in the first inning for New York but did not see the eighth-inning fireworks — he left the game in the fourth inning after learning that his wife had gone into labor in Battle Creek, Mich.

Brewers 7, Tigers 4

Detroit completed a three-game sweep in Milwaukee as Tom Brookens cracked a two-run triple to spark a five-run fifth inning.

The outburst started when Brewer pitcher Bob McClure mishandled Barbaro Garbey's soft grounder for an error. Chet Lemon then singled Garbey to third, and the two runners executed a double steal to put the Tigers ahead 2-1.

After a walk, Brookens tripled to finish McClure and Howard Johnson delivered an RBI single off reliever Jack Lazorko.

Lemon had contributed a run-scoring double in the first and tripled home another run in the eighth.

Blue Jays 5, Red Sox 3

Toronto took advantage of some bad weather to beat the visiting Red Sox.

The start of the game was delayed 1 hour and 33 minutes by rain, and once it began, the Blue Jays managed one run on just one hit in four innings against Boston starter Roger Clemens, who struck out seven.

But the rain came again in the middle of the fifth, and when it stopped 1 hour and 28 minutes later, the Red Sox replaced Clemens with Rich Gale.

Toronto pounced on Gale for five runs in the fifth as George Bell singled and scored on an RBI double by Rance Mulliniks to spark the inning.

The victory was the fifth straight for the Blue Jays while the Red Sox lost their fifth consecutive game.

Twins 3, Royals 1

Winning pitcher Mike Smithson, Pete Filson and Ron Davis, who got his 12th save, combined to prolong the problems of the Royals, who have scored just four runs in their last 41 innings.

Minnesota scored its three runs in the third inning against Charlie Leibrandt. Dave Engle's double with the bases loaded drove in two runs and Kent Hrbek hit a sacrifice fly.

The loss marked the first time since 1976 that the Royals have dropped a three-game set to the Twins in Kansas City.

Indians 4, Angels 3

Andre Thornton, who hit a sacrifice fly in the first inning but then flied out to leave the bases loaded in the second, belted a leadoff home run in the eighth inning to break a 3-3 tie in California.

The Indian designated hitter's 11th homer of the season came off Mike Witt, 5-7. Witt gave up five hits in eight innings and struck out five, raising his AL-leading total to 83.

White Sox 9, A's 4

Tom Seaver, 6-4, worked five innings for the victory, helped by Chicago's three-run sixth. Greg Walker's pinch-double in that inning tied the score and Scott Fletcher's squeeze bunt put the White Sox ahead.

Mariners 5, Rangers 2

Al Cowens blasted a three-run homer with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning to give the Mariners their victory in Seattle.

Cowens, who hit just .205 with seven home runs last season, is batting .282 in 1984. His sixth home run of the season came off reliever Odell Jones, who had taken over for Texas to start the ninth.

Virgil's sore leg a pain for Cubs

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Ozzie Virgil is playing on a sore leg these days — and enjoying every minute of it.

"It's been bothering me a little and as a result I've been trying to put the bat on the ball," said the Philadelphia Phillies' catcher, who claims that the strained ligaments in his left leg have actually helped his hitting.

Virgil's hot bat helped the Phillies wipe out the Chicago Cubs over the weekend, including a 9-7 triumph Sunday that capped a four-game sweep. Virgil had four hits Sunday, including a homer, and knocked in three runs.

"I feel pretty good," said Virgil, reflecting on the pain of his injury. "Today in batting practice I didn't swing too well and then I went out and got four hits. Winning four straight from the Cubs is a big boost for us."

The victory, the Phillies' fifth straight, boosted them back into first place in the National League East over the New York Mets, who dropped a 6-3 decision to St. Louis.

In other NL action, Montreal defeated Pittsburgh 5-3; Atlanta edged Cincinnati 6-5; San Francisco tripped San Diego 5-3 in 15 innings and Houston blanked Los Angeles 1-0.

Virgil drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a sacrifice fly and he also hit a pair of singles. Tim Corcoran, Von Hayes and Mike Schmidt also homered for the Phillies in a game that saw eight balls fly out of windy Wrigley Field.

Keith Moreland hit a pair for the Cubs, and Bob Dernier and Ron Cey added solo shots as a 14-mile-an-hour wind made it tough on the pitchers.

"Ozzie swung the bat well the whole series," said Philadelphia Manager Paul Owens. "We've been trying to get him to be more aggressive. We hit well in this series. When we're playing good, we can score runs and get you with the bat."

Cardinals 6, Mets 3

Darrell Porter's RBI single keyed a three-run rally in the fourth inning, leading St. Louis over New York.

Porter's base hit snapped a 1-1 tie and David Green followed with another run-scoring single, his first RBI since May 13. Ozzie Smith capped the three-run uprising off Bruce Berenyi, 3-8, with a suicide-squeeze bunt.

The outcome ended a Cardinal losing streak of four games and snapped New York's winning streak of the same length.

"It was a big inning by our standards, for sure," said Porter of the fourth. "I just think it (offense) better come if we're to have a chance."

Expos 5, Pirates 3

Jim Wohlford belted a two-run homer, his first in more than a year, and drew a bases-loaded walk while Charlie Lea became the NL's first 11-game winner as Montreal defeated Pittsburgh.

With the Expos leading 3-2 in the seventh, Wohlford followed Tim Wallach's single with his home run off reliever Cecilo Guante. It was Wohlford's first homer since April 6, 1983.

The Pirates closed the margin to 5-3 in the eighth on a solo homer by Benny Distefano, his second. Lea, 11-3, who allowed seven hits, left the game with one out in the inning after giving up a single to Lee Mazzilli, and Jeff Reardon worked the final 1-2-3 innings for his 10th save.

Braves 6, Reds 5

Dale Murphy's two-run homer in the seventh inning helped Pascual Perez gain his seventh victory as Atlanta trimmed Cincinnati.

With the score 3-3, Murphy connected off reliever Bob Ovwchinko, 3-3, for his 15th homer of the year after Gerald Perry drew a lead-off walk.

The Braves added another run in the seventh when Chris Chambliss doubled and pinch-runner Albert Hall scored on Bruce Benedict's double.

Perez, 7-1, allowed nine hits and struck out six in 8 1-3 innings to gain his fourth victory in a row.

Giants 5, Padres 3

Al Oliver's RBI single following a throwing error by catcher Bruce Bochy snapped a 15th-inning tie, lifting San Francisco over San Diego.

Johnnie LeMaster, who had four hits, opened the 15th with a single off Craig Lefferts, 1-3, the fourth San Diego pitcher. LeMaster stole second and continued to third when Bochy's throw sailed into center field.

Oliver singled off Lefferts' first pitch to score LeMaster. One out later, Jack Clark grounded to short, where Garry Templeton fumbled the ball for his second of three errors in the game. Jeff Leonard followed with a single to score pinch-runner Scott Thompson with the second run of the inning.

The Giants had tied the game 3-3 off reliever Dave Dravecky in the eighth when LeMaster singled, advanced to second on Dravecky's balk and scored on Oliver's single.

Astros 1, Dodgers 0

Nolan Ryan came off the 15-day disabled list and pitched eight overpowering innings to lead Houston over Los Angeles.

Ryan, 7-2, won his sixth straight decision, allowing just three hits and striking out nine before getting relief help in the ninth from Dave Smith, who gained his second save.

Terry Puhl delivered the game's only run with a fifth-inning RBI double off Bob Welch, 5-7, who lasted six innings.

The Astros won their fourth straight game for the first time this season, sweeping the four-game series with Los Angeles, while the Dodgers have lost five in a row and 21 of their last 36.

Texas shootout tonight

HOUSTON (AP) — Todd USFL record 208 yards

Fowler is the "run" in the Houston Gamblers' "run and shoot" offense that seems to set United States Football League records each time it plays.

When the Denver Gold decided to stack its defense to stop the Gamblers' pass-oriented offense recently, Fowler responded with a defensive back throughout college at Stephen F. Austin and didn't expect to be high on any team's draft list.

So he took the make-good offer from the Gamblers and after languishing on the bench early in the season, Fowler got his chance when Sam Harrell, then the league's leading rusher, suffered a broken leg. Harrell is back, but Fowler is now making good as the starter.
