POT HAUL — Bags full of homegrown marijuana are displayed in the evidence room of the Pampa Police Department. Officers confiscated the pot, including a book on how to grow it, during their four-month, undercover drug investigation here.

Mass arrests jam city jail following four-month probe

Police called it "D-Day"—today's culmination of the biggest drug bust in the history of Pampa.

As a result of a four-month, undercover investigation by Pampa police, 50 local residents have been charged with drug-related offenses and more charges are expected, Pampa Police Chief J.J. Ryzman announced this morning.

The chief said 42 of the suspects have been charged with felony drug offenses, and that some of the suspects are charged on multiple counts. The remainder of the suspects were charged with misdemeanor possession of drugs.

The suspects rounded up during mass arrests were crammed into an overloaded city jail this morning. The arrests of those named in warrants began late Monday and continued through the night. Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge stayed at the city jail all night listing charges and setting bonds.

The undercover drug investigation, conducted with the assistance of the local district attorney's office, began in late August, the chief said this morning. The investigation was coordinated by two Pampa narcotics officers and most available personnel participated at some point in the investigation, Ryzman said.

Police arrested 17 of the suspects during the course of the four-month probe, and 24 more suspects were picked up in the 24-hour period ending this morning, the chief said. The additional suspects being sought by police will bring the total netted in the drug investigation to more than 50, he said.

The number of people arrested is more than twice as many as in any previous drug bust here, the chief added.

"It was a very successful operation, the largest we've ever undertaken here," Ryzman said.

"They all did a great job," he said of the officers involved.

The chief said he thinks that the arrests will curb the sale and use of drugs here.

"Things will slow down for a while," he said.

Assistant District Attorney

David Hamilton will present the mass of drug cases to a grand jury on Thursday.

The undercover drug probe uncovered the sale of LSD, or "acid," at the Pampa Middle School, police said. Police said they busted the LSD dealer, but not before he had sold 1,000 doses, or "hits," of the mind-bending drug.

Other drugs involved in the bust were marijuana, methamphetamine (speed) and assorted pills, and the investigation turned up numerous pieces of drug paraphernalia, a drug manufacturing lab, illegal guns, homegrown grass and homemade pornographic movies, police said.

The home movies, videotapes confiscated by police during the arrests this morning, are titled "French Throat," and "... in a White Blouse," and "... in a Red Skirt."

Among the guns collected was a sawed-off, .12-gauge, "riot" shotgun, inscribed with "Amarillo Police Department."

One paranoid suspect arrested this morning had planted microphones in his yard, so that he could hear people coming up to his house, and he had a "nightscope," so he could see people in the dark,

• City to set water bill policy

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

The city will formalize a Water Department policy to clarify matters on delinquent bills, reconnection fees and security deposits for persons having problems meeting utility payments.

Commissioners this morning discussed the need to provide specific guidelines on late payments in response to a proposed agreement presented by the Gray County Extension Committee on Aging.

Meg Parsons, R.N., representing the committee, presented an agreement amended from the one presented at the previous regular commission meeting Dec. 4.

She said some city officials had expressed concern about the legality of the proposed agreement. She said the amended agreement would present the proposal as a policy statement instead of a legal agreement with the city.

Acting City Manager Allyn Moore said the department was in the process of formalizing a written policy to put in writing policies that had generally been followed in the past.

He said the written policy was being formulated in response to the group's request.

The group has asked for support in aiding charitable organizations assist needy persons in meeting utility bills without having to pay the extra reconnection fees or putting up extra security deposits.

The committee's agreement had asked for the city to grant a 48-hour grace period to allow the organizations to pay the bills without the customer's services being cut off and without having to pay the additional charges.

Moore said the department's policy, as being formalized, goes "a little further than the group recommends in some areas."

Viewing the department's proposed policy, Parsons said, "I think it would be wonderful." She said she would be "very much in favor of this" if the policy is formalized.

Parsons explained the committee had sought an agreement with the city to use in meeting with Energas and Southwestern Public Service officials to obtain similar policies.

Suzie Wilkinson, R.N., another representative of the committee, said having a written policy would be a sign of support for the group's aims. Definite guidelines showing willingness to work with needy persons in meeting bills would also aid collection of funds for the charitable organizations helping the needy pay their utility bills, she added.

Moore said the preliminary draft of the policy sets out five basic guidelines for handling all delinquent bills.

If any public assistance group calls to ask for a time extension, it will be granted for up to five days without penalty.

If a party's service is terminated, the reconnect fee and/or deposit may be waived at the Water Department manager's discretion.

Water service will not be turned off during extreme weather, or immediately prior to a holiday, or on Friday of any week, unless requested by the customer.

Servicemen performing cutoffs will look for signs of a resident simply being on vacation.

Time extensions will be granted as necessary to work out contested charges on any bill.

City Attorney Don Lane said the policy may require amending current city ordinances, especially in relation to waiver of reconnection fees and security deposits.

Moore said he will present the final form of the policy to the commission for its approval after "a little further study."

Commissioner David McDaniel said the policy would let the group know the city supports its concepts. He said the group can also show the policy to the other utilities in seeking their support.

White Deer dump off limits to county

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

WHITE DEER — Just like any other out-of-towners, county workers from Groom have to pay to use the White Deer dump, city officials said Monday.

White Deer city aldermen agreed on this policy at their regular meeting Monday after hearing a report that a county worker from Carson County precinct one brought tree limbs to the dump to be burned. Precinct one — the Groom area in the south part of the county — has no dump ground and Groom residents have their town trash picked up by BFI of Amarillo.

The city started clamping down on unauthorized use of the White Deer dump last month after dump manager Eddie Lowrance asked whether the dump was for city residents or for everybody. City officials said the dump was for city taxpayers and anyone else would have to pay fees of $10 for pick-up truckloads or $15 for larger loads.

On Monday, city officials said the fees apply to government entities, also.

City officials also agreed to keep a closer check on apparent tampering or vandalism to city gas meters. There have been two such reports over the past two weeks. In one instance a meter and regulator had apparently been beaten with a hammer. In the other instance, the city is not certain whether the meter was beaten with a hammer

Some drug penalties same as for murder

BY JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

Under Texas drug laws, the sale of heroin, LSD (acid), opium, codeine, cocaine or methamphetamine (speed) carries the same penalty as the crime of murder.

The laws dealing with drugs are known as the Controlled Substances Act. The Act divides drugs into four penalty groups.

A first-time conviction for the sale or manufacture, or for possession with the intent to sell or manufacture, any drug in Penalty Group I carries a term of five to 99 years or life in prison, the same range of punishment provided for murder.

The mere possession of a Group I drug is a second-degree felony, punishable on a first conviction by two to 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The sale or manufacture of any drug in Penalty Groups II and III is a third-degree felony, punishable by two to 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine. Possession of a Group II drug is a third-degree felony, while possession of a Group III drug is a Class A Misdemeanor.

Drugs in Penalty Groups II and III include hashish, mescaline, amphetamine, methaqualone (Quaaludes), compound drugs containing opium or derivatives, peyote, barbitol and other depressants, compound drugs containing speed or cocaine and peyote.

Marijuana and Indians and peyote are in classes by themselves, according to the state laws.

Possession of two ounces or less of marijuana is a Class B Misdemeanor, punishable by a maximum of 180 days in county jail and a $1,000 fine. Possession of four ounces or less of pot is a Class A Misdemeanor, punishable by a maximum one year in county jail and a $2,000 fine. Possession of more than four ounces of marijuana is a third-degree felony.

The sale of less than one-quarter ounce of marijuana is a Class A Misdemeanor. The delivery of any other amount of "grass" is considered a third-degree felony.

As a result of a federal court case, American Indians belonging to the Native American Church may use peyote in their ceremonies. Texas law says the legal user must have "25-percent Indian blood," without regard to the tribe, and be a member of the church, according to a state's attorney.

Despite the wide range of possible punishments, the majority of Pampa drug cases result in probation sentences. Any prison sentence of 10 years or less may be probated. A misdemeanor conviction for possession of marijuana in Gray County Court usually nets a penalty of six months probation and a fine ranging from $100 to $300.

Police and prosecutors in the state are enforcing drug laws under the above specifications in the "old" Controlled Substances Act, Assistant District Attorney David Hamilton said.

• Phillips takeover bid on shelf temporarily

By The Associated Press

A $1.38 billion offer for 23 million shares of Phillips Petroleum Co. stock has been temporarily shelved by a group led by oilman T. Boone Pickens Jr., pending the resolution of legal battles that involve courts in two states.

The legal maneuvering became even more complicated late Monday, when Phillips filed a federal lawsuit in Delaware alleging that Pickens' proposal of a $9.1 billion takeover has violated federal securities laws.

Phillips asked the court for an order to bar the group from proceeding with its acquisition efforts and asked for $10 million in damages.

It alleged the Pickens' proposal had misled the public and evaded federal laws relating to the registration of securities and the solicitation of shareholder support.

Allan Cecil, a spokesman for Pickens, declined comment on the latest lawsuit.

Citing other "legal uncertainties," a partnership of Mesa Petroleum Co. and Wagner & Brown, an independent oil company, said Monday it would not begin its previously announced offer to buy up to 23 million shares of Phillips at $60 a share. Pickens is chairman of Mesa.

With doubts about the offer, Phillips stock dropped 87½ cents on Monday to $52.62½ a share. Mesa was down 12½ cents at $20.87½.

SEN. BILL SARPALIUS

Sarpalius seeks open container, higher drinking age legislation

AUSTIN (AP) — Lawmakers who pushed a stiff DWI law through the 1983 Legislature say banning "happy hours" is not among their top priorities for 1985.

"Happy hour is indeed a problem," Sen. Bill Sarpalius said Monday, but he listed a higher drinking age and prohibiting drinking while driving as more pressing needs.

Sarpalius wants the drinking age raised from 19 to 21.

Several states have considered happy hour bans under the theory that cheap drinks taverns serve to draw customers immediately after working hours add to the number of drunken drivers.

Rep. Terral Smith, R-Austin and House sponsor of the 1983 driving while intoxicated law, said it would be tough to write an effective law against happy hours.

"They'll get you in there in some other way. My gut reaction is I can't contemplate a bill that would really do any good," he said.

Smith and Sarpalius spoke at a Monday news conference called to promote "Holidays Ahead," the Texas Commission on Alcoholism's campaign to warn Texans about the hazards of holiday drinking.

Ross Newby, the commission's executive director, said a happy hour ban would help, but it would be difficult to prove its worth.

"Nobody could stand up and swear what impact happy hour has on the problem," he said, adding that a ban "would reduce the problem, but we don't have the statistics to back it up."

Department of Public Safety Director James Adams said the problem with a happy hour ban is that it gets "into the price of the product you are selling."

Sarpalius said he will push for the higher drinking age and an open container law to bar drinking while driving.

"That would do more good than anything. It's still legal to drink and drive. It just doesn't make sense," he said.

A major push to pass an open container law in 1983 died in the House, where some legislators thought it was an intrusion on personal freedom and unenforceable.

Roberts County chooses courthouse elevator 'route'

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

MIAMI — Running an elevator through the tax appraiser's office is more economical than running one through the Justice of the Peace office, Roberts County Commissioners agreed Monday.

Commissioners and architect Pat Tunnell of Amarillo compared the costs and practicality of the two elevator routes at the regular commissioners' court meeting Monday. The county must install an elevator in its three-story courthouse by 1986 to comply with federal regulations guaranteeing accessibility to handicapped people. Commissioners estimate the elevator will cost a little less than $100,000.

Tunnell presented his two proposed elevator routes at the Monday meeting. The preferred route begins in the rear part of the Roberts County Library in the courthouse basement, goes through the front part of the county tax appraisal district office and concludes on the third floor where a tiny women's restroom is located. The restroom, which is dominated by a massive picture window overlooking the town, would be moved across the hall next to another restroom.

The other route would begin in the front part of the two-room library, cut through the office of Justice Mildred Cunningham and exit into the Roberts County Courtroom. Tunnell and the commissioners nixed this route because it would add nearly $24,000 to the cost, would require doors on both sides of the shaft and would open into the courtroom.

Tunnell took commissioners, county judge Newton Cox and precinct one commissioner-elect Don Morrison on a "tour" of the proposed elevator route Monday afternoon. According to the architect, the elevator will be located along an outside wall next to the corridors. Vestibules will be built in front of the elevator on the first and second floors. As a result, the tax office and the library would each lose an area of about eight feet by 12 feet.

But Tunnell said he is working on plans to help the two offices make up for the space. The bookshelves which run lengthwise across the library's back room would be turned widthwise to allow more shelf space. The tax office would extend into the adjoining JP office.

The architect will submit the specifications to the commissioners at their next meeting Jan. 14. The commissioners may then let contractors' bids before their February meeting.

Another way the county is seeking to comply with the regulations for the handicapped is to install a wheelchair ramp running from the parking lot down to the basement. Tunnell said that a third alternative, a chair lift running up the stairway, would be inconvenient on the narrow stairs in the courthouse.

Tax office in McLean to open three days

Beginning in January, the Gray County tax office station in McLean will be open only three days a week.

Gray County Tax Assessor-Collector Margie Gray announced today the McLean office will be open only on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The office will continue with its daily hours through December before the shorter week begins in January.

police said. The devices didn't help the man during the huge raid. Also netted in the probe was a 16-year-old boy, who has been detained in connection with the delivery of marijuana to an undercover officer.

Ryzman said the bust doesn't involve an organized drug ring, "just a lot of individuals."

"We'd like to eradicate the drugs, but the officers know you're never going to eradicate them. We'll eliminate a lot of the street pushers by taking them off the street," the chief said.

Some of the people were arrested during the probe after police obtained search warrants and found drugs in their homes. The warrants followed tips to police from informants. Others arrested had sold drugs to undercover officers, police said.

Those arrested in the course of the investigation and the charges include Danny E. Walker, 32, 618 N. Frost, misdemeanor possession of marijuana and paraphernalia (scales and syringes) and possession of explosive devices (blasting caps and detonator cord); David C. Jackson, 24, 104 S. Faulkner, misdemeanor possession of marijuana; Robert D. Oliveria, 32, of Bangs, possession of LSD; and Michael Scoggins, 24, 500 N. Warren, felony possession of marijuana.

Those arrested during the overnight raid and the charges and bonds include Michael Glen Palmer, 18, 500 Naida, delivery of marijuana, $2,000; Richard Burton Palmer, 25, 500 Naida or 821 E. Brown, three counts delivery of marijuana, one count conspiracy to deliver a controlled substance, bonds totaling $40,000; Kenneth Alan Taylor, age and address unavailable, delivery of a controlled substance, delivery of marijuana, two counts of conspiracy to deliver a controlled substance, possession of a controlled substance and possession of marijuana, bonds totaling $32,000.

Also, Nancy Ruth Foreman (Jarvis), 24, Rt. 2, three counts delivery of a controlled substance and possession of a controlled substance, bonds totaling $30,000; Milton Cooper, 28, 107 W. Tyng, delivery of marijuana, $2,000; Jerome Bradshaw, 32, address unavailable, delivery of marijuana; Steven Paul Echols, 24, 2200 Beech, delivery of a controlled substance.

Also, Bryan Scott Vinson, 24, 511 N. Faulkner, delivery of marijuana and delivery of a controlled substance, $10,000; Teri Chris Carr (Slavick), 19, 1192 Prairie Dr., delivery of a controlled substance and delivery of marijuana, bonds totaling $15,000; Don-Albert Foreman, 24, Rt. 2, two counts delivery of a controlled substance, one count possession of an illegal weapon, bonds totaling $30,000; Randy Harris, 27, 536 Maple, two counts delivery of marijuana, bonds totaling $10,000.

Sumner, delivery of marijuana, $2,000; Louis Darrell Males, 34, who lives near the rodeo grounds east of Pampa, three counts delivery of a controlled substance, two counts possession of a controlled substance, bonds totaling $50,000; Bennie Lee Wells, 18, 723 N. Banks, delivery of marijuana, $10,000; and Willie D. Mills, 23, 1053 Huff Rd., two counts delivery of marijuana, bonds totaling $20,000.

Police were hunting this morning for about a dozen additional suspects on felony drug charges.

Part two of this series on Wednesday will examine the local enforcement that led to the biggest drug bust in the history of Pampa.

State drug laws

The Texas legislature passed tougher drug laws in the last regular session, but the amended act was later ruled unconstitutional by the Court of Criminal Appeals, a decision that left law enforcement officials to operate under the previous laws, Hamilton said.

He said the state appeals court ruled that the lawmakers didn't properly "caption," or label the new laws, which resulted in the ruling that tossed out the stricter drug laws.

The prosecutor said the court ruled that because the new act wasn't properly titled, "people did not have sufficient notice."

"Many of the cases that were tried under the new law were reversed, bunches of them," Hamilton said.

The new laws set up mandatory sentences in some drug cases. A conviction for the first-time possession of more than 28 grams of drugs such as heroin and speed would have resulted in a minimum 15-year prison term.

"The new law also would have let the state seize people's homes," Hamilton said.

The local prosecutor and Pampa Police Chief J.J. Ryzman support strong drug laws and oppose the legalization of drugs. Both said the use of drugs would increase, if they were legalized.

"The drug user can't produce one thing for his family or society while he's hopped up on cocaine or heroin," Hamilton said. "He's going to feel good, but he can't produce one thing."

"If it's easier to get, more people would certainly try it. Those who get hooked become unproductive people. You have no control over them," he added.

Ryzman said drug use leads to other crime.

"We could show that so many crimes are related to drugs — not just for the purpose of the money for drugs — but because they are under the influence of drugs," the chief said.

"If you don't restrain the use of it, they'll get brain damage," Ryzman said. "I think we would have a lot of mentally deficient people if it were legalized."

The Controlled Substances Act provides the authority, but local police and prosecutors decide how to enforce the state's drug laws.

or hit by a car. Such accidents do happen, Standefer said, adding that when a bread truck recently backed over a gas meter, the company's insurance paid for the damages.

City officials agreed that damage to the city gas meters is a problem.

"It's vandalism, that's what it is," observed alderman Lloyd Collis.

Alderman Raymond Blodgett said that city marshal Tam Terry should handle the problem. The abusers should be fined.

City maintenance director "Junior" Williams asked if the proper procedure for handling people who damage meters would be to send the offenders a statement, then fine them. But alderman Dwight Huffman said if the meters are vandalized, the city should not just send a statement. He suggested the city investigate who damaged the meters.

"In this case, we know who it is, but we have to prove it," Standefer said, adding that the city needs a policy on how to deal with meter tampering.

Officials agreed to have Terry investigate the tampering reports then issue statements to the meter owners.

City officials tabled action on a request by Booker home builder John Crosswhite for an extension of sewer lines to some proposed low income residences he's planning.

Police chaplain plans docudrama on suicide

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Police chaplain Harold Elliott, prompted by the apparent suicides of two high school students, is raising money to finance a half-hour docudrama "Suicide Is Not Painless."

Elliott is used to being the first on the scene of the city's other crimes — from grisly murders to rapes.

But the deaths of two teen-agers got to him.

"I see what happens the minute a report comes in that we have a body, and I stay with it sometimes until years after the event," he said.

"But this really got to me. It was something about there having been two of them at once," Elliott said. "It was such a total waste."

What Elliott found were the bodies of high school students Chris Clower and Neal Risinger. They died of single gunshot wounds to the head, but authorities never determined where the deaths were suicides or slaying-suicide.

Elliott was determined to do something about it and is trying to raise $65,000 by February so production on the film can begin.

He got help from Marc Bockman, a script writer from Mineola, Texas, who agreed to write the script without advance pay.

The film is a takeoff on the "MASH" movie theme song, "Suicide Is Painless," and Elliott hopes it will "take the edge off the romanticism of suicide."

"I don't want a 'Scared Straight' type film where they scare you to death. I wanted one that showed the reality of suicide," Elliott said. "With this film, a lot of the responsibility is placed on the victim."

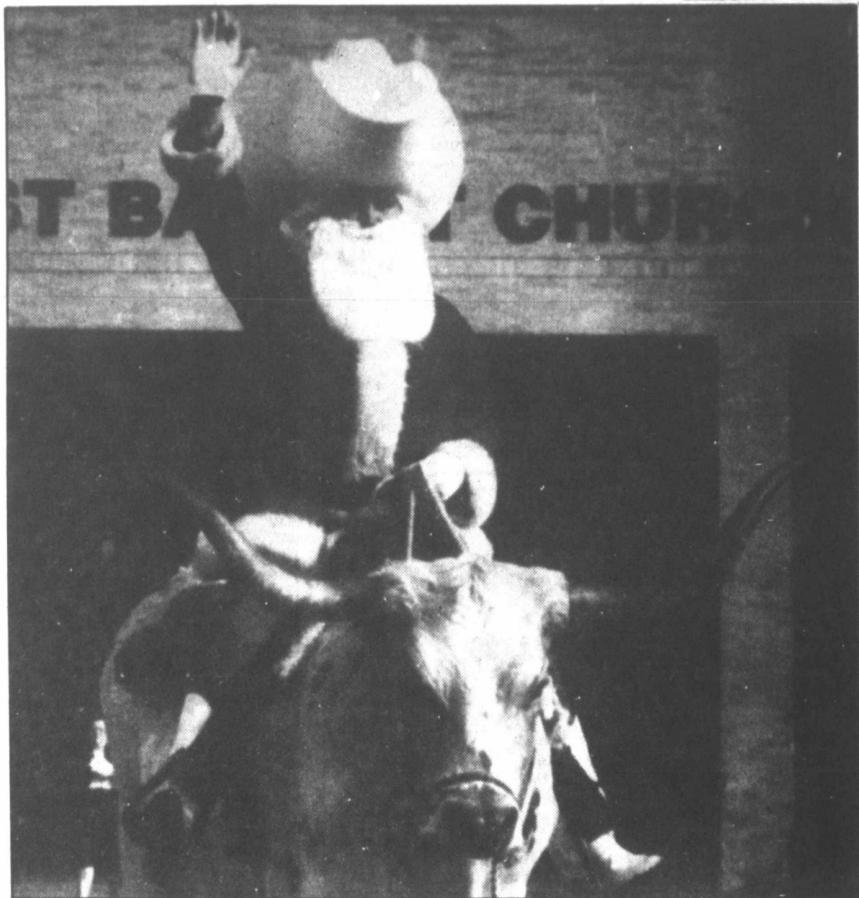

Howard Englander Film Producers of Houston is producing the film.

"The film is about a young man with ordinary problems," Elliott said. "He overreacts, picks up a gun and shoots himself. You'll see the gun hammer cocked, but we cut away there to show all the emotions you go through when there is a suicide in the family: the frustration, the anger and then, the process of healing."

Although some people have contributed to the project, Elliott said filming will not begin until all the money needed is obtained.

He said teens today need alternatives in life.

"They're a generation that's never been tested," Elliott said. "If you don't want to be married, you get a divorce. If you don't want to be straight, you can be homosexual. But unfortunately, the only alternative to living is dying. It's permanent."

Carbon monoxide fumes blamed for infants' deaths

WACO, Texas (AP) — After three years of struggling to get their high school diplomas and keep their young family together, a teen-age couple's dream was destroyed when their two infant children died from carbon monoxide fumes from a leaking gas heater.

The bodies of Renaldo Graves, 2, and Robert Graves, 1, were carried out of the family's residence in north Waco on a single stretcher Monday morning. A justice of the peace declared them dead at the scene.

Robert Jones, 19, a bus driver for the Waco school system, and Darla Graves, 18, a senior at Jefferson-Moore High School, were in satisfactory condition at Providence Hospital Monday night, officials said.

Jones and Ms. Graves moved into the house about a week ago, his sister, Rosalind Clanton, told the Waco Tribune-Herald. They had been living together for more than three years, and had been staying with at his parents' residence, she said.

"She was trying real hard to graduate high school. Robert had graduated last year. They had lived at (Jones' mother's) house so he could finish school, and they had just moved out. They both wanted to graduate," Mrs. Clanton said.

Jones' brother-in-law, who also works as a bus driver for the Waco Independent Schools, became concerned when Jones failed to report to work about 6:45 a.m. Monday. He called his family to see what was wrong.

"It wasn't like Robert to be late to work, so they knew something was wrong," said Wanda Akers, another of Jones' sisters.

Jones' brother, Reginal Jones, and another sister, Sharon Leak, drove to her brother's home about 8:15 a.m. and found Jones stumbling around the residence, incoherent. Ms. Graves was unconscious, they said, and the two children were dead.

Justice of the Peace Joe Johnson said it appeared the children had been dead for several hours.

White says his budget is trimmed

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White office budget for 1986-87 is being cut just as much he has asked other state agencies to do, a White aide said.

"Another example of Republicans using mirrors and smoke," Ann Arnold, White's press secretary, said after State GOP Chairman George Strake claimed White wanted hefty increases for his office and mansion the next two years.

"The record shows that White's attitude is to cut everyone else's budget but not his own," Strake told a Capitol news conference Monday.

He said White has requested 43.4 percent more for the mansion and 28.6 percent more for his office.

Ms. Arnold said the mansion budget does not call for any increase over present operations and the governor's new plane actually is saving taxpayers money.

"The budget request for all the governor's office actually is a decrease of 5 percent, or $13 million," she said.

Both Strake and Ms. Arnold quoted different figures in discussing the budget White has submitted to the 1985 Legislature.

Strake said White's request for the mansion included two stewards and three cooks compared to the one steward and one cook in Republican Gov. Bill Clements' administration.

"There is no increase in the mansion budget or the staff from what was there during the past two years," Ms. Arnold said. "There were six people in the Mansion when the Clements were there and there are eight now. Much of the time the Clements were there the mansion was under construction and they did not even live there."

She said a transfer of $60,000 from the governor's office on budget and planning to the mansion account was a normal procedure within the funds appropriated to the governor's office.

Ms. Arnold said White has entertained 76,499 people in the mansion since he became governor. All costs for food and beverages, including that for White and his family, are paid from the governor's officeholder's account, she said.

Strake said White planned to spend 55 percent more for his jet plane than he spent in 1984, plus taking another $1.7 million in state funds to pay off the twin-engine Mitsubishi seven-passenger aircraft, which is now under a 10-year lease-purchase agreement.

White's budget request said the state could save $102,425 in interest payments by paying off the jet, using for a large part of the payment $856,000 from interest earned on federal grants to the state that has accumulated in the governor's office.

Ms. Arnold said the accumulated interest on federal funds administered by the state dates back to the 1970s. "Gov. White put it into his budget document, but other governors have not," she said.

She said any increased costs for the jet would be cancelled out by the difference in operations of the new and the old governor's plane.

Being paid for having fun

You think that doing controversial stories is the most difficult thing we reporters do, don't you?

Well, I just finished the most difficult part of my job: I filled out my time card.

It's a weekly ritual we reporters have to go through in order to get paid. It gives our payroll clerk an occasional sense of power, knowing that she holds the key to whether we are to survive for the next two weeks. I can just hear her diabolical giggle, now.

I confess that I am not one of those diligent workers who keep their time cards handy so that they can whip them out the minute they go to lunch or home and jot down the exact second they quit work. I end up waiting until the last minutes of the pay period to even think about my time card.

But, I have a fairly foolproof system to help me remember when I worked. I just look through back issues of our newspaper to see what stories I did over the past two weeks. The stories help me remember where I went, how long I worked and how late I stayed. A lengthy story with a MIAMI or a WHITE DEER dateline is proof that I was up until well after midnight trying to figure out what happened at a city or school meeting. A CANADIAN dateline sometimes means that I spent a good two hours in my car.

But my back-issue method is not perfect. Many times I fill out my time card and wonder whether I deserve getting paid for the hours that I'm claiming.

As part of an industrious northeastern Protestant family, I was brought up to believe that if you were having fun doing something, then you weren't working. The women (and man) in the front office not only have to keep up with a payroll of more than 40 employees, they have to be nice to every customer who comes in, know the status of thousands of subscribers, answer every phone call and know exactly which department the call should go, keep up with lines and lines of classified ads, figure out a cantankerous new computer system and go through the tiring and nerve-racking monthly ritual of "billing." They are working.

Me? Well, right now, I'm sitting at my desk listening to the radio, sipping on a cold can of root beer and thinking up profound things to put in the Dec. 11 column. It's Sunday afternoon and I've got the whole newspaper office to myself. I'm getting paid to do something that I always dreamed about doing in high school and college: writing my own newspaper column.

There are other aspects of my job I feel guilty about getting paid for: banquets and receptions. I feel funny actually getting paid for something that I also get a free meal from. Then there are times I get so caught up interviewing a delightful little old lady, I have to pinch myself to see if I'm actually working.

Of course, there are times when I feel I should get paid twice as much. The hour between 8:30 and 9:30 each morning should count double on a reporter's time card. That's when the editors are hurriedly finishing their pages, Jeff Langley is scouring the police log for a front-page banner story and I am putting together the weather report, fire report, index, stocks, obituaries and hospital notes. Walk in this office then, and you'll swear you're in a chicken coop.

Luckily, with a deft combination of memory and imagination, I managed to figure this week's time card before the payroll clerk sent in a SWAT team. And I think all the meetings I have to cover this week will keep me busy enough not to feel guilty about getting "paid to play."

And I promise I won't have any fun. Spaulding is a staff writer of The Pampa News.

Bottled water pulled from shelves

HOUSTON (AP) — Hundreds of bottles of water are being withdrawn from the shelves at 170 Kroger grocery stores in Texas and Louisiana because of the possibility some of the water contains fecal coliform bacteria, company officials said.

Mark Lowry, a spokesman for the Texas Department of Health, said Monday that the agency tested 18 one-gallon containers, and that four contained the bacteria — which is not a contaminant, but is used to determine if contamination is present.

Peter Larkin, director of public affairs for Kroger, said the one-gallon plastic bottles were taken from Springdale drinking water and were dated Aug. 24, 1985, and July 31, 1985.

"We have not been ordered to remove this water from the shelves," Larkin told the Houston Chronicle. "We are doing it voluntarily as a precaution."

There have been no reports of sickness from the water. Kroger and health officials told the newspaper.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Even subsidizers can't stop future

The pages of history are replete with how "experts" have been wrong in their predictions on everything from the airplane (no future at all) to Abraham Lincoln (second rate). But at least one basic law of the marketplace was powerfully illustrated too, in a remark by the great inventor Thomas Alva Edison.

Edison said, back in 1913: "The talking motion picture will not supplant the regular silent motion picture. There is such a tremendous investment to pantomime pictures that it would be absurd to disturb it."

How often indeed do people try to cling to certain prevailing technology, even though far better developments are on the horizon. How often is some sort of statist or protectionist warning sounded that if the manufacture of a certain faulty or fading device isn't subsidized or otherwise propped up the government, thousands of people will be out of work, with the economy severely harmed.

If such false wisdom had prevailed in Edison's time, the silent movie would have remained the norm, and the natural development of sound film could have been retarded. The same could be said about the making of buggy whips, or gas lights, or steam locomotives, or a thousand other things. They were all important parts of their place and time, and no doubt many people depended on their production and use for a living.

Invention of the automobile, in fact, caused considerable concern in Congress, which worried about the jobs it would cost in the harness and buggy-making industry.

Yet other jobs come into being when outmoded jobs are ended. The buggy whip maker fades into history to be replaced by the automotive worker. The bookkeeper with a quill pen is succeeded by the mathematician with a computer.

Edison had a solid point when he referred to the large investment in the silent-film technology of his time. Naturally, no businessman with a certain substantial investment would be eager to scrap an important part of his inventory in order to replace it with something else. Indeed, prematurely discarding a major component of one's way of doing business could be quite unsound.

But the time comes when the new technology proves its superiority and must be allowed to replace the old. It is bound to happen. The only question is whether some government subsidizers make the evolutionary process much more difficult by handing out taxpayers' money, trying to keep the old ways going far beyond their time.

If the subsidizers had their way, we might today still be seeing our movies without sound. And, radio, television and cable channels could not exist for their would have deprived the silent film companies of a chance to make a living.

The laws of the marketplace will prevail. Efforts to resist must eventually go the way of the dinosaur. And just look where the dinosaur went.

How to reduce the deficit

Americans are entitled to be confused with the welter of talk of tax reform and deficit reduction. Chances are they are not half as confused as the people doing the talking, particularly Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole (R. - Kan.) who asserts that "deficit reduction" is the top priority, and tax reform is simply a pipe dream, as if they were mutually exclusive.

So, it's time for some plain talk. If you set out on a single-minded course to "reduce the deficit" chances are about 99 to 1 that you will make it worse. If you don't believe that, consider Dole's 1982 TEFRA tax plan. It was supposed to cut the deficit by $93 billion over three years - instead, deficit forecasts increased by $120 billion!

And consider the 1984 "deficit down payment" plan of $54 billion in "deficit reduction" passed last July. Already, the three-year deficit forecasts have INCREASED over that plan by more than $130 billion!

In 1980, Italy had a deficit nearly three times the level of ours (as a share of GNP), and they passed a 90-percent tax increase "to get rid of it." Instead, by 1983 the deficit SHOT UP 51 percent in real terms - from 11 percent of GNP to 16.5!

In short, deficit reduction is shorthand for giving politicians the excuse to raise taxes, spend more, slow the economy, and make everything, including the deficit, worse.

At the heart of the problem, of course, is the fact that the deficit is an EFFECT, not a cause. The economy is not slowing because of the rising deficit. The deficit is rising because the Federal Reserve has slowed down the economy. What we need is not a "deficit-reduction" plan, but a "growth-expansion" plan.

Remember, each point of real GNP growth is worth about $20 billion, up or down, on the deficit. Since last May, under zero monetary growth, GNP has fallen from 8-10 percent growth to 2-3 percent. That drop, by itself, is enough to add $50 billion a year to the deficit, if it were annualized. Which is to say that Congress could labor all year coming up with $50-80 billion in agonizing budget cuts and tax increases, and the Fed could wipe it out by a recession or further economic slow-down.

Indeed, in 1981 when the Fed deliberately took a 3-percent GNP growth economy and pushed it into a minus-2 percent recession. It automatically added $100 billion to the federal deficit - and that "growth lag" deficit is still there!

In other words, without a full employment and growth policy by both the Fed and the administration, there's no way to balance the federal budget. A static plan of increased taxes and reduced spending has no meaning or effect if the economy is flattening out.

This is why tax reform, if it is designed to encourage strong productivity and investment growth, coupled with a monetary policy that allows such growth (without excessive stimulation), is the key to seeing the deficit decline. Indeed, many spending cuts are not even possible without a change in monetary policy. Farm subsidies are at $13 billion because tight money has driven the dollar too high and commodity prices too low. Until farm commodity prices are allowed to recover by a moderating dollar, you can't cut the program that is giving farmers 80 percent of their income!

Therefore, like it or not, we have no way to get out of this deficit, unless we have a monetary policy that allows us to grow our way out of it - not an inflationary policy, but one which at the least stops fighting real growth.

The dynamic is simple: If federal spending could be held to the inflation rate, say 4-5 percent, and the economy could grow at a real rate of 4 percent, with 4-percent inflation for a "nominal" rate of 8-9 percent, the deficit would come down at the rate of 3-4 percent of the total $900-billion budget per year, or about $30-$40 billion.

And if the Fed were to allow 9-10 percent "nominal" GNP growth a year, the deficit would fall $50 billion a year, without substantial changes in the tax rates.

This leads us to suggest that you will know that Congress and the president are getting serious about the deficit when they put together a three-part "growth" package:

1. A spending freeze for all budget sectors at 4-5 percent, or about the rate of inflation.
2. Directions to the Fed to allow 8-9 percent nominal GNP growth consistent with maintaining current inflation levels.
3. Tax reform which is "revenue neutral" in the static sense, but which would have the effect of broadening the tax base (through the lure of lower marginal rates) by about $25-$35 billion.

Such a program, including strong directions to the Fed, could cut the deficit more than $50 billion a year - not as a "deficit-reduction" plan, but as a full-employment and growth plan. Anything else will fail.

Today in History

Today is Tuesday, Dec. 11, the 346th day of 1984. There are 20 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Dec. 11, 1936, Britain's King Edward VIII abdicated to marry an American divorcee, Wallis Warfield Simpson. In a radio address, Edward said, "I have found it impossible to carry the heavy burden of responsibility and to discharge my duties as King as I should wish to do, without the help and support of the woman I love." George VI ascended to the throne.

On this date: Ten years ago: Police in South Boston, Mass., clashed with a crowd of whites outside a high school where a white student had been stabbed by a black student. The violence was in the wake of Boston's school busing controversy.

Five years ago: A federal judge ruled the government was violating the Constitution with its deportation proceedings against Iranian students found to be in the United States illegally.

One year ago: Pope John Paul II, in a historic visit, attended a Lutheran church service in Rome. It was the first visit by a Roman Catholic pontiff to a Protestant church in his own diocese.

His life without muscles

Two women were shopping next to me and one of them picked up a large gift calendar.

"Look at this, Darlene," said one of the women to her friend.

Darlene looked. I noticed the front of the calendar. It was a calendar called "Hunk a Month" and the front pictured a muscular young man wearing less than Jim Palmer wears when he does those underwear commercials.

"Would you look at February?" said Darlene. "I like April better," said her friend.

They were ogling their way through the buns of August when I finally left the store.

OK. So women like muscular men. I've known that for a long time, but there appears to be nothing I can do about it.

I was born muscle-impaired.

I don't know why. My father was a strong, robust man. I drank lots of milk when I was a kid. But I've never had any muscles.

I wanted some desperately. I clipped a coupon out of one of those men's magazines - "Stag." I think - and mailed off for a Charles Atlas muscles course.

They sent back a guy who kicked sand in my face.

I was so muscleless, I never took off my T-shirt when I went swimming.

"Why don't you take off your shirt?" the girls would ask.

"I'm saving myself for my wife," I would tell them.

The real reason I never took off my shirt, of course, is because I somehow got saddled with Don Knotts' physique.

It was tough being a weakling at school because I was the kid every other boy could beat up.

Worse than that, there were four or five girls in the class who could handle me with ease, too, including Cordie Mae Poovey, who made my life miserable for years by getting me in a hammerlock and ramming my head into the tetherball pole.

Cordie Mae was bigger than the school gym and ugly as a train wreck. I decided I had enough of Cordie Mae's beating when I was in the fifth grade and I started myself on a weightlifting program.

Every afternoon after school, I would lift large sacks of guano my grandfather kept in his barn.

After several weeks of this rigorous training, I decided it was time to show Cordie Mae Poovey a thing or two about physical violence.

"Hey, Mule Face," I called out to her on the playground.

Apparently, lifting guano sacks does little or no good in the area of building muscles.

Cordie Mae promptly got me in another hammerlock and when she finished ramming my head against the tetherball pole again, I was quite cross-eyed and three inches shorter.

Cordie Mae, incidentally, later wrestled under the name of "Hattie The Hulk" and was last seen arm-wrestling steelworkers in a bar just outside Pittsburgh.

I suppose at this state of my life I will have to accept the fact I never will have muscles and never will be a calendar boy.

But what do I really need with muscles anyhow? The abuse I get from women today is strictly verbal.

GOP governors' mood more optimistic

By Robert Walters

DES MOINES, Iowa (NEA) — The annual meetings of the Republican Governors Association have not been notably joyous events in recent years, principally because the RGA's membership has been severely depleted by election losses.

Although Republicans controlled two-thirds of the nation's governorships in the late 1960s, the party has held fewer than one-third of those posts throughout the past decade. This year's elections produced only a modest increase in GOP strength, from 15 to 16 gubernatorial seats.

But there was an unmistakable aura of optimism when the RGA met here recently, because election results and surveys indicate that the country electorate has been turning increasingly Republican in recent years.

"There is absolutely no question that the face of American politics, at least in its partisan dimension, has been... altered dramatically," Republican pollster Richard Wirthlin noted during the RGA meeting.

"We ran extremely well — far beyond our expectations — among key groups of voters," Wirthlin added. "The move toward the Republican Party started in the West in the 1970s and now it has expanded to the South."

Noting that the baby boom generation — Americans in their 20s and 30s — has been especially supportive of GOP candidates in recent elections, Republican pollster Robert Teeter suggested that "age is the key dimension" because of the overwhelming size of that generation.

"Undoubtedly there will be a proportion (of younger voters) who will not stay in the party," Wirthlin acknowledged. But the fact that so many have cast their first votes for Republican candidates gives the GOP an edge, he insisted.

The Republicans' 59 percent share of the vote in this year's presidential election has been widely publicized, but Teeter noted that the GOP also received 52 percent of all ballots cast in 1984 gubernatorial races and almost 50 percent of all votes in contested elections for House seats.

Wirthlin and Teeter have a vested interest in promoting the party because both have done polling for scores of GOP candidates throughout the country, for national-level Republican committees and for President Reagan's campaign organization.

But their conclusions are supported by the results of surveys conducted by numerous non-partisan, independent researchers, including the prestigious Gallup Organization.

Gallup polls of almost 6,000 men and women in the two months immediately prior to this year's elections found that 39 percent of all respondents identified themselves as Democrats, 35 percent described themselves as Republicans and the remaining 26 percent said they were independents.

The new Gallup figures present an especially striking contrast with survey results in mid-1977, in the wake of the Watergate scandal when the GOP's popularity was at its nadir. At that time, the Gallup poll found 49 percent Democrats, 20 percent Republicans and 31 percent independents.

Segments of the population among which the Republicans more than doubled their support between mid-1977 and this fall include potential voters under 30, blue-collar workers and Southerners.

Government gears up for painful annual ritual

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty million Americans will get new statements from Social Security next month telling them how much they were paid in benefits in 1984.

For 90 percent, it will be nothing more than a reminder of how much their monthly checks add up to over a year. But for the other 10 percent, it will be the first step in what promises to be a painful annual ritual: figuring out how much of their Social Security they must pay income tax on.

The 1983 Social Security rescue legislation provided that starting in 1984, people with income over certain levels would pay tax on up to half their benefits.

Social Security and Internal Revenue Service officials displayed on Monday the new forms that will be mailed out in January. They said they have set up machinery, including a toll-free telephone number, to field an expected 9.2 million inquiries.

The IRS is transferring the tax receipts to Social Security every three months, pumping an extra $2.3 billion into the system this year and a total $27 billion through 1989.

Because the tax thresholds were not tied to inflation, increasing numbers of retirees will pay taxes in future years. Mrs. McSteen said 17 percent of all beneficiaries will pay taxes on Social Security by 1990.

Social Security pays benefits each month to 36 million people.

Economists objecting to abolition of Council of Economic Advisers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Word that President Reagan is thinking of scrapping his Council of Economic Advisers, whose former chairman Martin Feldstein ranked the White House, has prompted howls of protest from economists, including current and former council members.

William Niskanen, the senior member of the panel, said he was "disturbed to hear" the report Monday that the president was considering abolishing the council as part of a budget-cutting move to save $2.5 million. He said, though, he hadn't been told of any such plan.

Murray Weidenbaum, who was Reagan's first chief economist, described the move as an overreaction to Feldstein's outspoken tenure at the three-member council. "I think they're overlooking the important role an independent voice provides."

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Even subsidizers can't stop future

The pages of history are replete with how "experts" have been wrong in their predictions on everything from the airplane (no future at all) to Abraham Lincoln (second rate). But at least one basic law of the marketplace was powerfully illustrated too, in a remark by the great inventor Thomas Alva Edison.

Edison said, back in 1913: "The talking motion picture will not supplant the regular silent motion picture...There is such a tremendous investment to pantomime pictures that it would be absurd to disturb it."

How often indeed do people try to cling to certain prevailing technology, even though far better developments are on the horizon. How often is some sort of statist of protectionist warning sounded that if the manufacture of a certain faulty or fading device isn't subsidized or otherwise propped up the government, thousands of people will be out of work, with the economy severely harmed.

If such false wisdom had prevailed in Edison's time, the silent movie would have remained the norm, and the natural development of sound film could have been retarded. The same could be said about the making of buggy whips, or gas lights, or steam locomotives, or a thousand other things. They were all important parts of their place and time, and no doubt many people depended on their production and use for a living.

Invention of the automobile, in fact, caused considerable concern in Congress, which worried about the jobs it would cost in the harness and buggy-making industry.

Yet other jobs come into being when outmoded jobs are ended. The buggywhip maker fades into history to be replaced by the automotive worker. The bookkeeper with a quill pen is succeeded by the mathematician with a computer.

Edison had a solid point when he referred to the large investment in the silent-film technology of his time. Naturally, no businessman with a certain substantial investment would be eager to scrap an important part of his inventory in order to replace it with something else. Indeed, prematurely discarding a major component of one's way of doing business could be quite unsound.

But the time comes when the new technology proves its superiority and must be allowed to replace the old. It is bound to happen. The only question is whether some government subsidizers make the evolutionary process much more difficult by handing out taxpayers' money, trying to keep the old ways going far beyond their time.

If the subsidizers had their way, we might today still be seeing our movies without sound. And, radio, television and cable channels could not exist for their would have deprived the silent film companies of a chance to make a living.

The laws of the marketplace will prevail. Efforts to resist must eventually go the way of the dinosaur. And just look where the dinosaur went.

How to reduce the deficit

Americans are entitled to be confused with the welter of talk of tax reform and deficit reduction. Chances are they are not half as confused as the people doing the talking, particularly Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole (R. - Kan.) who asserts that "deficit reduction" is the top priority, and tax reform is simply a pipe dream, as if they were mutually exclusive.

So, it's time for some plain talk. If you set out on a single-minded course to "reduce the deficit" chances are about 99 to 1 that you will make it worse. If you don't believe that, consider Dole's 1982 TEFRA tax plan. It was supposed to cut the deficit by $93 billion over three years - instead, deficit forecasts increased by $120 billion!

And consider the 1984 "deficit down payment" plan of $54 billion in "deficit reduction" passed last July. Already, the three-year deficit forecasts have INCREASED over that plan by more than $130 billion!

In 1980, Italy had a deficit nearly three times the level of ours (as a share of GNP), and they passed a 90-percent tax increase "to get rid of it." Instead, by 1983 the deficit SHOT UP 51 percent in real terms - from 11 percent of GNP to 16.5!

In short, deficit reduction is shorthand for giving politicians the excuse to raise taxes, spend more, slow the economy, and make everything, including the deficit, worse.

At the heart of the problem, of course, is the fact that the deficit is an EFFECT, not a cause. The economy is not slowing because of the rising deficit. The deficit is rising because the Federal Reserve has slowed down the economy. What we need is not a "deficit-reduction" plan, but a "growth-expansion" plan.

Remember, each point of real GNP growth is worth about $20 billion, up or down, on the deficit. Since last May, under zero monetary growth, GNP has fallen from 8-10 percent growth to 2-3 percent. That drop, by itself, is enough to add $50 billion a year to the deficit, if it were annualized. Which is to say that Congress could labor all year coming up with $50-80 billion in agonizing budget cuts and tax increases, and the Fed could wipe it out by a recession or further economic slow-down.

Indeed, in 1981 when the Fed deliberately took a 3-percent GNP growth economy and pushed it into a minus-2 percent recession. It automatically added $100 billion to the federal deficit - and that "growth lag" deficit is still there!

In other words, without a full employment and growth policy by both the Fed and the administration, there's no way to balance the federal budget. A static plan of increased taxes and reduced spending has no meaning or effect if the economy is flattening out.

This is why tax reform, if it is designed to encourage strong productivity and investment growth, coupled with a monetary policy that allows such growth (without excessive stimulation), is the key to seeing the deficit decline. Indeed, many spending cuts are not even possible without a change in monetary policy. Farm subsidies are at $13 billion because tight money has driven the dollar too high and commodity prices too low. Until farm commodity prices are allowed to recover by a moderating dollar, you can't cut the program that is giving farmers 80 percent of their income!

Therefore, like it or not, we have no way to get out of this deficit, unless we have a monetary policy that allows us to grow our way out of it - not an inflationary policy, but one which at the least stops fighting real growth.

The dynamic is simple: If federal spending could be held to the inflation rate, say 4-5 percent, and the economy could grow at a real rate of 4 percent, with 4-percent inflation for a "nominal" rate of 8-9 percent, the deficit would come down at the rate of 3-4 percent of the total $900-billion budget per year, or about $30-$40 billion.

And if the Fed were to allow 9-10 percent "nominal" GNP growth a year, the deficit would fall $50 billion a year, without substantial changes in the tax rates.

This leads us to suggest that you will know that Congress and the president are getting serious about the deficit when they put together a three-part "growth" package:

1. A spending freeze for all budget sectors at 4-5 percent, or about the rate of inflation.
 2. Directions to the Fed to allow 8-9 percent nominal GNP growth consistent with maintaining current inflation levels.
 3. Tax reform which is "revenue neutral" in the static sense, but which would have the effect of broadening the tax base (through the lure of lower marginal rates) by about $25-$35 billion.
- Such a program, including strong directions to the Fed, could cut the deficit more than $50 billion a year - not as a "deficit-reduction" plan, but as a full-employment and growth plan. Anything else will fail.

Today in History

Today is Tuesday, Dec. 11, the 346th day of 1984. There are 20 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Dec. 11, 1936, Britain's King Edward VIII abdicated to marry an American divorcee, Wallis Warfield Simpson. In a radio address, Edward said, "I have found it impossible to carry the heavy burden of responsibility and to discharge my duties as King as I should wish to do, without the help and support of the woman I love." George VI ascended to the throne.

On this date:
Ten years ago: Police in South Boston, Mass., clashed with a crowd of whites outside a high school where a white student had been stabbed by a black student. The violence was in the wake of Boston's school busing controversy.

Five years ago: A federal judge ruled the government was violating the Constitution with its deportation proceedings against Iranian students found to be in the United States illegally.

One year ago: Pope John Paul II, in a historic visit, attended a Lutheran church service in Rome. It was the first visit by a Roman Catholic pontiff to a Protestant church in his own diocese.

His life without muscles

Two women were shopping next to me and one of them picked up a large gift calendar.

"Look at this, Darlene," said one of the women to her friend.

Darlene looked. I noticed the front of the calendar. It was a calendar called "Hunk a Month" and the front pictured a muscular young man wearing less than Jim Palmer wears when he does those underwear commercials.

"Would you look at February?" said Darlene. "I like April better," said her friend.

They were ogling their way through the buns of August when I finally left the store.

OK. So women like muscular men. I've known that for a long time, but there appears to be nothing I can do about it.

I was born muscle-impaired. I don't know why. My father was a strong, robust man. I drank lots of milk when I was a kid. But I've never had any muscles.

I wanted some desperately. I clipped a coupon out of one of those men's magazines - "Stag." I think - and mailed off for a Charles Atlas muscles course.

They sent back a guy who kicked sand in my face.

I was so muscleless, I never took off my T-shirt when I went swimming.

"Why don't you take off your shirt?" the girls would ask.

"I'm saving myself for my wife," I would tell them.

The real reason I never took off my shirt, of course, is because I somehow got saddled with Don Knotts' physique.

It was tough being a weakling at school because I was the kid every other boy could beat up.

Worse than that, there were four or five girls in the class would handle me with ease, too, including Cordie Mae Poovey, who made my life miserable for years by getting me in a hammerlock and ramming my head into the tetherball pole.

Cordie Mae was bigger than the school gym and ugly as a train wreck. I decided I had enough of Cordie Mae's beating when I was in the fifth grade and I started myself on a weightlifting program. Every afternoon after school, I would lift large sacks of guano my grandfather kept in his barn.

After several weeks of this rigorous training, I decided it was time to show Cordie Mae Poovey a thing or two about physical violence.

"Hey, Mule Face," I called out to her on the playground.

Apparently, lifting guano sacks does little or no good in the area of building muscles.

Cordie Mae promptly got me in another hammerlock and when she finished ramming my head against the tetherball pole again, I was quite cross-eyed and three inches shorter.

Cordie Mae, incidentally, later wrestled under the name of "Hattie The Hulk" and was last seen arm-wrestling steelworkers in a bar just outside Pittsburgh.

I suppose at this state of my life I will have to accept the fact I never will have muscles and never will be a calendar boy.

But what do I really need with muscles anyhow? The abuse I get from women today is strictly verbal.

GOP governors' mood more optimistic

By Robert Walters

DES MOINES, Iowa (NEA) — The annual meetings of the Republican Governors Association have not been notably joyous events in recent years, principally because the RGA's membership has been severely depleted by election losses.

Although Republicans controlled two-thirds of the nation's governorships in the late 1960s, the party has held fewer than one-third of those posts throughout the past decade. This year's elections produced only a modest increase in GOP strength, from 15 to 16 gubernatorial seats.

But there was an unmistakable aura of optimism when the RGA met here recently, because election results and surveys indicate that the country's electorate has been turning increasingly Republican in recent years.

"There is absolutely no question that the face of American politics, at least in its partisan dimension, has been...altered dramatically," Republican pollster Richard Wirthlin noted during the RGA meeting.

"We ran extremely well — far beyond our expectations — among key groups of voters," Wirthlin added. "The move toward the Republican Party started in the West in the 1970s and now it has expanded to the South."

Noting that the baby boom generation — Americans in their 20s and 30s — has been especially supportive of GOP candidates in recent elections, Republican pollster Robert Teeter suggested that "age is the key dimension" because of the overwhelming size of that generation.

"Undoubtedly there will be a proportion (of younger voters) who will not stay in the party," Wirthlin acknowledged. But the fact that so many have cast their first votes for Republican candidates gives the GOP an edge, he insisted.

The Republicans' 59 percent share of the vote in this year's presidential election has been widely publicized, but Teeter noted that the GOP also received 52 percent of all ballots cast in 1984 gubernatorial races and almost 50 percent of all votes in contested elections for House seats.

Wirthlin and Teeter have a vested interest in promoting the party because both have done polling for scores of GOP candidates throughout the country, for national-level Republican committees and for President Reagan's campaign organization.

But their conclusions are supported by the results of surveys conducted by numerous non-partisan, independent researchers, including the prestigious Gallup Organization.

Gallup polls of almost 6,000 men and women in the two months immediately prior to this year's elections found that 39 percent of all respondents identified themselves as Democrats, 35 percent described themselves as Republicans and the remaining 26 percent said they were independents.

The new Gallup figures present an especially striking contrast with survey results in mid-1977, in the wake of the Watergate scandal when the GOP's popularity was at its nadir. At that time, the Gallup poll found 49 percent Democrats, 20 percent Republicans and 31 percent independents.

Segments of the population among which the Republicans more than doubled their support between mid-1977 and this fall include potential voters under 30, blue-collar workers and Southerners.

Government gears up for painful annual ritual

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty million Americans will get new statements from Social Security next month telling them how much they were paid in benefits in 1984.

For 90 percent, it will be nothing more than a reminder of how much their monthly checks add up to over a year. But for the other 10 percent, it will be the first step in what promises to be a painful annual ritual: figuring out how much of their Social Security they must pay income tax on.

The 1983 Social Security rescue legislation provided that starting in 1984, people with income over certain levels would pay tax on up to half their benefits.

Social Security and Internal Revenue Service officials displayed on Monday the new forms that will be mailed out in January. They said they have set up machinery, including a toll-free telephone number, to field an expected 9.2 million inquiries.

All Social Security beneficiaries — including the elderly and disabled — must pay income tax on up to half their benefits if their adjusted gross income, plus tax-exempt interest from municipal bonds, plus half their Social Security benefits exceed:

- $25,000 for a single individual.
- $32,000 for a married couple filing jointly.

—Zero for a married couple who lived together for any part of 1984 and who file separate returns.

—$25,000 for a married person who files separately but did not live with a spouse at any time during the year.

Acting Social Security Commissioner Martha A. McSteen said the new Social Security Benefit Statement Form SSA-1099 — akin to a bank interest or dividend statement — and a companion IRS Notice 703 are "the simplest and clearest forms and directions that a government agency has been able to issue."

The IRS is transferring the tax receipts to Social Security every three months, pumping an extra $2.3 billion into the system this year and a total $27 billion through 1989.

Because the tax thresholds were not tied to inflation, increasing numbers of retirees will pay taxes in future years. Mrs. McSteen said 17 percent of all beneficiaries will pay taxes on Social Security by 1990.

Social Security pays benefits each month to 36 million people.

Economists objecting to abolition of Council of Economic Advisers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Word that President Reagan is thinking of scrapping his Council of Economic Advisers, whose former chairman Martin Feldstein ranked the White House, has prompted howls of protest from economists, including current and former council members.

William Niskanen, the senior member of the panel, said he was "disturbed to hear" the report Monday that the president was considering abolishing the council as part of a budget-cutting move to save $2.5 million. He said, though, he hadn't been told of any such plan.

Murray Weidenbaum, who was Reagan's first chief economist, described the move as an overreaction to Feldstein's outspoken tenure at the three-member council. "I think they're overlooking the important role an independent voice provides."

Added Herbert Stein, council chairman from 1972-74, "It would be a mistake. I think the council is an asset to the president."

As for Feldstein, who left the job in July to return to teaching at Harvard University, he wasn't at his Cambridge, Mass., office or home and couldn't be reached for comment.

It was widely known that White House aides were disturbed by Feldstein's persistent warnings about the negative effect on the economy of the federal budget deficits. White House spokesman Larry Speakes publicly rebuked him for his views about a year ago, and Treasury Secretary Donald Regan advised a Senate committee to throw out the council's 1984 report, chiefly written by Feldstein.

Since Feldstein's departure, the chairmanship has remained vacant.

Niskanen has indicated interest in the job and said if he doesn't get it by the end of the year, he'll leave. The other council member, William Poole, is expected to return to Brown University early next year.

Regan is considered the administration's chief spokesman on the economy and a close adviser to the president.

The tiny council, whose members are appointed by the president and confirmed by the Senate, was set up under the Employment Act of 1946, and abolishing it would require legislation in Congress.

Meanwhile, Regan also was weighing proposals to abolish two other agencies, the Washington Post reported today. The newspaper said the targets are the Council on Environmental Quality, whose activities have already been sharply trimmed by the administration.

ARRESTS AT EMBASSY—Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas, left; James Farmer, founder of the Congress for Racial Equality, center; and Adam DeBaugh, a community activist, are taken into custody by uniformed officers outside the South African Embassy in Washington Monday. The three, joining the ongoing demonstrations of South Africa's racial policies, were arrested for protesting in a restricted area. Leland became the 14th member of Congress to be detained for protests against the policies. (AP Laserphoto)

Kuwait press ridicules Iran rescue

By The Associated Press
U.S. officials say they expect two freed American hostages from a hijacked Kuwaiti jetliner to leave Iran soon but Iran has made no comment. Newspapers in Kuwait ridiculed Iran's reported rescue effort as theater and a "camouflage for collusion" with the hijackers.

The six-day hijacking, in which two Americans were reported killed, ended Sunday when the official Islamic Republic News Agency IRNA reported Iranian security men overpowered the four hijackers and freed their last seven captives — two Americans, the British pilot and four Kuwaitis.

Officials said they expected the two Americans — businessman John Costa, 50, and Charles Kaper, 57, an employee of the Agency for International Development, to leave Iran today after receiving medical treatment.

IRNA has reported the hijackers burned Costa with cigarettes in an effort to get him to say he worked for the CIA.

The terrorists reportedly sought the release of 17 people imprisoned in Kuwait for bombing attacks last year on the U.S. and French embassies. The bombings were carried out by Shiite Moslems sympathetic with Iran's government.

State Department officials withheld judgment on Iran's handling of the hijack, but Kuwaiti newspapers charged the Iranians had cooperated with the hijackers. A man identified as a British expert on terrorism said in an interview with the CBS Evening News that the rescue could have been staged.

The ordeal was "sheer hell ... terror for six solid days," the British pilot of the commandeered Kuwaiti Airways plane was quoted as saying. The hijack leader was "absolutely psycho," said Capt. John H. Clark.

Clark said the hijackers had shown "really animal behavior" toward the Americans.

Costa, 50, identified as a New York businessman, said after his rescue that during the entire six days he felt "always under the threat of death," the Iranian news agency said.

Most of the passengers were released in groups beginning Tuesday, but the hijackers killed one American on Dec. 4 and a second U.S. citizen on Thursday.

The State Department identified them as Charles Hegna, 50, of Wausau, Wis., and William Stanford, 52.

New report offers support for 'nuclear winter' theory

WASHINGTON (AP) — A National Academy of Sciences committee, in a report that partly supports the "nuclear winter" theory, said today there is a "clear possibility" that a major nuclear weapons exchange would produce severe atmospheric and climate changes lasting for months.

The committee of the prestigious academy's National Research Council said not enough data exist to give accurate estimates of the atmospheric effects of a nuclear war.

But it made interim estimates, based upon a projected case of half of the world nuclear arsenal being detonated in a general war.

This case shows a "clear possibility," it said, that the exchange would produce enough smoke and dust to cause severe temperature drops over much of the Earth's northern temperate zone, which includes the United States, Europe and much of the Soviet Union.

The panel, chaired by Dr. George F. Carrier of Harvard University, said it examined a number of mathematical models or simulations others have used to predict nuclear atmospheric effects and found them inadequate for scientific predictions.

Estimates from these models are so rough that they only can be used as a general indication of the seriousness of what might happen, it said.

For instance, when the committee put its assumptions into the models, they projected temperature reductions of between 18 degrees (Fahrenheit) and 45 degrees. Temperatures returned to normal levels after about six to 20 weeks, according to these projections.

"Although there are enormous uncertainties involved in the calculations, the committee believes that long-term climatic effects with serious implications for the biosphere could occur," the report said.

"And these effects should be included in any analysis of the consequences of nuclear war," it continued.

The 190-page report, commissioned by the Defense Department by the private research organization, said there was particular uncertainty about how much smoke would be generated by city-wide fires following nuclear detonations and how long those smoke particles would remain in the air.

These particles are critical because, along with tons of dust propelled into the atmosphere by atomic explosions, they would act as tiny mirrors reflecting the sun's radiation and preventing it from warming lower altitudes.

The possibility of nuclear winter was first proposed last year by a group of scientists who used computer projections to show, they say, that even limited nuclear war could render the planet uninhabitable.

Proponents of the theory said fires from target cities and nearby forests would pump soot, smoke and ash high into the atmosphere to blot out the sun and cause months of subfreezing darkness in the northern hemisphere.

Critics of the theory say it overestimates the amount of post-war darkening by using extreme, "worst case" assumptions.

Canadians leave UAW

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — The head of the United Auto Workers in Canada says the pullout of his 120,000 member unit from the 1.1 million-member union is an "evolution" that will give Canadians freedom to negotiate their own contracts.

The break was announced Monday night after the UAW's 25-member International Executive Board denied a request that the Canadian union be allowed to call strikes, run contract negotiations and appoint officers without answering to the board or to UAW President Owen Bieber.

The board said that if it had approved the request by Canadian director Robert White, the Canadians would be operating "without accountability" and could destroy the union.

Challenge at the top: the unanticipated

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The unexpected is what tests the mettle of corporate management, and those tests seem to be occurring with regularity today.

Warren M. Anderson knows this more acutely, perhaps, than any other chief executive of a major corporation. He heads Union Carbide Corp., whose plant in Bhopal, India, was the source of a gas leak that killed hundreds and hundreds of townspeople, leading not only to his personal arrest but the threat of billion-dollar lawsuits.

Handling the unexpected isn't something that managers can train for. Nevertheless, at least one essential is known, judging from its successful application: It is to do everything possible to remove the immediate menace and then to provide the public with all information possible.

That technique was used by James Burke, Johnson & Johnson chairman, when some bottles of his company's Tylenol product were contaminated by poison, leading to several deaths.

So quickly did the company act in removing the product and informing the public that its actions already are considered a classic in management schools. Moreover, the company quickly regained much of its lost market.

Many of the unanticipated challenges to management come simply from growth, since increasingly larger business units can have a potentially devastating impact on environment and the economy.

Two decades ago the future of the paper industry was threatened by charges of stream pollution. Managements approached the problem differently, some challenging the facts, others questioning government's power to intervene.

It was a no-win situation for the challengers, and a win situation for those who complied and cleaned up their act. Studies later showed the latter enjoyed more respect in the stock market and consequently higher stock prices.

Under the older concepts, the primary role of management was to serve shareholders first, then employees, and finally the community. But the community now has forced its way nearer to being the primary consideration.

A big factor in the transition has been safety, and the public concern with it. In spite of improvements, however, the unexpected challenges to management often emanate from a breakdown in plant and product safety.

For the Manville Corp. the unexpected emanated from the past.

For years it had been a major producer of asbestos, widely used in home and product insulation. Following the discovery that asbestos was capable of inducing cancer, courts suits — real and anticipated — forced the company to seek protection under the bankruptcy laws.

Shultz to London and start of pre-Geneva NATO talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz flew to London today to confer with British Foreign Secretary Geoffrey Howe in preparation for next month's resumption of U.S.-Soviet arms control talks in Geneva.

Shultz will go to Brussels on Wednesday for a three-day meeting of NATO foreign ministers, followed by a brief stop in Frankfurt on Saturday to confer with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl before returning to Washington. The Geneva talks also will be high on the agenda at those stops.

A senior State Department official said consultations with the allies are very important to the Reagan administration in devising its negotiating strategy.

"Nearly every important arms control initiative that we have taken has been taken not only with the knowledge, but also the views and recommendations of our key allies, and I expect that to continue," he told reporters at a briefing on the NATO meeting Monday.

The official spoke only on condition he not be identified.

Shultz was accompanied today by Paul H. Nitze, who has been named by Reagan as Shultz's special adviser for the Geneva meeting and who is playing a key role in devising the U.S. negotiating strategy.

Shultz will meet in Geneva on Jan. 7-8 with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko to set the stage for detailed follow-up negotiations aimed at controlling strategic and intermediate nuclear arms and space-based weapons.

Also on the agenda in Brussels will be discussion of plans for strengthening NATO's non-nuclear defenses.

Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger and other NATO defense chiefs last week approved a six-year $7.8 billion program to improve conventional defenses in Europe. The separate meetings of defense and foreign ministers are held annually at the NATO headquarters in Brussels.

Shultz also is expected will to raise the issue of international terrorism and press for improved coordination of anti-terrorist efforts, as well as an understanding on "how to attack the situation collectively," as one senior State Department official put it.

Shultz has been increasingly vocal about his frustration over terrorist attacks and the failure of the Western nations to prevent them.

A tree full of angels graces Metropolitan

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

What may be one of the most beautiful and most elaborate Christmas trees in the country is the one which stands in the Medieval Hall of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York for almost a month before Christmas.

The 30-foot artificial balsam is decorated with more than 200 18th-century Neapolitan angels and cherubs. It is a gift to the museum from the late Loretta Hines Howard, an artist and a collector of creche figures.

It is an unusual gift in that the donor not only provided the rare and valuable ornaments, but also supplied the many weeks of labor required to set up the tree in all its splendor.

Mrs. Howard contributed the unique method of displaying the angels, devising a way of putting the figures into the family Christmas tree when they arrived from Italy in 1952.

The effect was so spectacular that she was asked to recreate her "angel tree" at the Metropolitan, which she did for the first time in 1957. In 1964, she gave the figures to the Metropolitan for its permanent collection. Since 1965, the tree has been a fixture at the museum. It is believed that as many as 8 million visitors have seen it over the years.

Mrs. Howard died in 1982, but her daughter, Linn Howard, and others who have worked on the tree from the beginning have continued to donate their time to decorate it.

We caught up with Ms. Howard several weeks before the scheduled unveiling Dec. 1. Activity behind the improvised wooden screen was, in a quiet museum-like way, at fever pitch.

Ms. Howard, Enrique Espinoza and Susan Roschen, of whom worked with Mrs. Howard over the years, were hard at work, assisted by museum painters, electricians, carpenters and riggers.

Besides the angels and cherubs, the tree is festooned with electrified candles. At the tree's base are a series of landscapes and architectural backdrops which recreate the landscape of Bethlehem, as imagined by 18th-century Neapolitans. Scores of 18th-century figures are placed in these landscapes to re-enact the events of the Nativity.

Though each of the figures is interesting in itself it is the combination of all the elements which stimulates the exclamations of awe and pleasure when viewers first catch sight of the towering tree.

One of the hallmarks of the tree is its perfect symmetry. All the figures are arranged so that every eye appears to be turned toward the base at which the Christ child lies in its cradle.

To position these figures and install all the elements is a full-time labor for many people over a period that may range from two to four weeks, according to Ms. Howard.

She said the effects had been achieved through the invention of a variety of special devices and lighting by Espinoza. The angels, for example, are all on adjustable swivel mechanisms so they can be repositioned. The angels' silken robes are wired at every edge so they can be rearranged.

Each year, the tree is photographed, and Ms. Howard makes annotated sketches indicating where each figure has been placed. However, no attempt is made to duplicate the arrangements since new figures are often added.

Work begins at the top of the tree as the gold- and silver-plated, copper and lucite tree ornament Espinoza designed is placed at the pinnacle. The electrified candles are then installed and the angels, starting with those at the top, are arranged on the tree. Shielded spotlights hidden in the tree's branches illuminate each of the approximately 20-inch-long angels.

The "flying" angels have bodies of straw, painted wooden hands, feet and wings, and painted terra cotta faces.

Though they appear to be flying, the illusion is created by their position and the drape of the silken pastel robes in which they are clothed. The goal is to create a series of perfectly straight diagonal lines from the top of the tree to the base, said Ms. Howard.

The goal, said Ms. Howard, is perfection — a goal which she says she inherited from her mother.

"My mother took the tree from our home and gave it to the museum so everyone could share its beauty," she said.

Though not everyone can visit the museum to see the tree, Ms. Howard has remedied this lack by writing a book describing and picturing the tree and its most celebrated decorations.

Dear Abby

Uninformed dentists force patients to pay terrible price

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: If you have dentures, skip this column. But if you still have your own teeth and want to keep them, you may be glad you read it:

DEAR ABBY: I am sitting here after work, emotionally drained and physically exhausted, but I must write this letter because so many people need to be educated. I am a dental hygienist who is currently seeing a flock of new patients because two elderly dentists in this community are no longer practicing. (One retired and the other died.)

These patients had complete faith in their dentists only to come to us and find that it was in vain. They are victims of dentists who did not keep up with current dentistry.

Most of these patients saw their dentist regularly—twice a year for checkups and cleaning—some for 20 to 30 years! They loved their dentists and they can't believe it when they learn that they now have advanced periodontal (gum) disease! They can't understand why they were never told this before. I could tell them, but I don't want to be blackballed in this community should they decide to take legal action. So I will tell Dear Abby, and hope that you tell them:

These dentists were trained in an era of dentistry that did not understand periodontal disease, and they haven't learned anything since.

Dentures were something that were expected by most older people in the 1920s through the 1950s.

Today we know that gum disease is a bacterial infection caused by plaque—the same bacteria that cause decay. The plaque hardens into calculus (tartar) if it is not removed. The usual place of calculus formation is at the gum line, and it eventually extends beneath the gum, if not removed. It is beneath the gum that calculus does the most damage, for here it attacks the bone that supports the teeth. The bone slowly "dissolves" itself to get away from the irritating calculus. It takes years before the teeth will loosen—and eventually be lost.

More often than not, the patients I see have no calculus visible when looking in their mouths. Their former dentist removed what he could see, but left the calculus under the gums, allowing the disease to continue. He either was unaware that it was there because he failed to keep up with modern dental education, or he was unwilling to change and felt that curing periodontal disease is "modern hogwash." Consequently, the majority of his patients are suffering from advanced gum disease.

Periodontal disease is usually not painful until the final stages. However, there are warning signs. There are several stages—and all are curable until one reaches the most advanced stage.

Only a competent dentist is able to tell you what stage you are in and what treatment is needed. Usually all that is needed in the beginning stages is a thorough cleaning and a good home-care program.

The symptoms to look for are: red and swollen gums; bleeding when one brushes (healthy gums never bleed); a bad taste or odor from the mouth.

In the advanced stages, the bleeding stops because the gums have formed a type of scar tissue around the tooth. (If you've had bleeding for years, and then it stops, it doesn't necessarily mean the problem has gone away.)

Abby, I know this is very long, but the public needs to know the whole story. Let me say that not all older dentists are uninformed, but the vast majority have not kept up with the times, and their unsuspecting patients pay a terrible price.

I hope you deem this important enough to print. I'm signing my name if you want to check me out, but I prefer to remain anonymous for obvious reasons.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I am going to install mineral wool batts in our attic. I have been advised by one person to use nails and by another to use staples. What is your advice?

A. — Staples are generally easier. However, one reader said he had arthritis and found it easier to handle a hammer than a stapler. Incidentally, be sure the vapor barrier part of the insulation faces the part of the attic that will be lived in. If the attic will not be lived in, the insulation usually goes in the floor, in which case the vapor barrier should face downstairs or towards the heated part of the house.

Q. — There is one part of our property where water runs downhill toward the house. I would like to build a retaining wall of stones, hundreds of which are on our land. Is it better to fill the spaces between the stones with mortar or let them stay?

A. — Stones used for this purpose must be fairly large, yet not so heavy you can't lift and work with them. The trouble with a solid wall is it might crack if a lot of water pressure is applied. Better to fill the spaces as best you can with smaller stones. That will allow some water to seep through if there is heavy pressure, thus avoiding a collapse of the wall. To be effective, the wall should be very wide — 18 or 20 inches would be about right.

A. — In cleaning the gutters around our house, I found a lot of granules in them. Apparently they came off the asphalt shingles on the roof. Is this an indication the roof needs to be replaced?

Q. — It is one of the signs that a roof is old and needs replacing. However, if these loose granules are the only sign, replacement of the shingles may not be necessary. Check for broken, cracked or missing shingles and determine what the general condition of the shingles is. You can do this from a ladder without getting on the roof or, if that is not practical, conduct the inspection from the ground on a day with good visibility, using binoculars for the inspection.

APPALACHIAN WHITE PINE — creates an entirely different ambience in this white-on-white decor using light woods, textured fabrics, rustic folk art and unique accessories.

White-on-white decor

Color has emotional impact. Red excites, purple adds drama. Green is restful.

White, usually associated with space-expanding qualities, also runs the gamut of emotions.

Depending on the furnishings in interior decoration, white can look peaceful and warm, nostalgic in homespun and lace... or sophisticated in sleek, stark contemporary settings.

White — the all-time classic — has the ability to "set off" other colors.

Here are two different ways to decorate the same white-on-white room.

A floral chintz tablecloth, 18th century mahogany furniture pieces, and plum-colored upholstery look vivid and powerful with the neutrality of white.

Walls, ceilings and window shutters are painted in a white matte finish. The flooring has a soft off-white satiny sheen. Chippendale armchairs, and other pieces are handsomely silhouetted.

White candleholders, wall-hung plates, and a Staffordshire dog illustrate how appropriate white accessories are in an already white room.

In a different mood, using the same white "shell," is a warm and lively dining room — this time color-enhanced with scrubbed pine furniture.

Dining table and Marlborough chairs, linen press, side table with pull-out shelves and antique pine-framed looking glass are 1800s replicas.

The table setting is mostly white: Royal Doulton's Cascade chinaware on a small cotton-and-lace tablecloth artfully placed on the diagonal. Folk art, colorful pottery and accessories reflect the mood and decor of the adjacent living room.

Entertaining at home

By The Associated Press
Some say that party-givers are born, not made. Marjorie Reed disagrees.

Mrs. Reed, author of several books on entertaining, is a party-giver of some distinction in New York. Her new book, "Entertaining All Year Round," was written to ensure a successful party regardless of the occasion, menu and number of guests.

She says that the key to easy entertaining is to be yourself. "We all have natural style; allowing that style to shine through makes for a good party," she says.

Her party rules simplify the three basic areas of concern in all parties: hosting techniques, the way the house looks and the food selected and served.

Organization is the key to easy entertaining.

Plan your guest list so it includes a variety of people; send out invitations or telephone at least two weeks in advance. Plan the party's theme and gather supplies well ahead of time. Make lists of decorations needed, food and cooking requirements so all is spelled out and nothing left to chance.

When planning your last-minute schedule, allow some time to relax before the guests arrive.

Wear comfortable and attractive clothing and concentrate on feeling calm and peaceful so you communicate these feelings to the first guests.

Perfect your party manners. Besides providing food and drink, your job is also to see that everyone has a good time. Always introduce every guest to the others as each enters. Move from group to group throughout the party. Develop a "third eye" that notices overflowing ashtrays and empty glasses. If "disasters" happen, keep them to yourself and attend to them quickly without involving your guests.

Set a party mood by rearranging furniture, if necessary.

Space expands when used creatively, so don't allow a small apartment or home to deter you from entertaining. If your quarters are tiny, rearrange or remove some of the furniture. Press every room into service. Turn the kitchen into a serving area, an extra bathroom into a bar.

Plan your menu to work with your available space. If you've no dining room or dining table, give a picnic and seat guests on the floor on cushions or blankets. Another idea is to throw a cocktail party with guests invited at staggered hours if you must accommodate a large crowd in a small space.

Make your home festive with props.

Spread the party mood with candlelight and lamps draped with colored scarves.

Christmas Arts and Crafts

Sander's Sewing Center Offers Free Workshop

It's time to think Christmas, the happiest of all seasons. What a better way to show how you care for your friends and family than to add a personal touch to your holidays.

Sanders Sewing Center, 214 N. Cuyler, is inviting you to do just that. Karen E. Kunkel and Ren Cross, from New Home Sewing Machine Company, will be at Sanders Wednesday, Dec. 12, to give a free, lively demonstration of how you can make clever Christmas decorations with the help of your sewing machine.

As Educational Coordinator for the New Home Sewing Machine Company, Karen is responsible for coordinating New Home's advertising and public relations, as well as conducting educational seminars throughout the country as part of New Home's national education program. Ren is the New Home Representative.

Karen is a 1979 graduate of the State University of New York at Plattsburg, and is a certified teacher of home economics in New York State with a concentration in clothing and textiles.

Prior to joining New Home, Karen was employed by Cranston Print Works in retail sales and by the Simplicity Pattern Co., where she worked as an instruction editor, Consumer Relations Department representative and Educational Coordinator. She also conducted lunch and sewing programs at Simplicity and evening classes for teens and adults.

In addition to making home sewing part of her career, sewing has been her favorite hobby for more than 15 years. Karen's ambition is to inspire others to become more knowledgeable and enthusiastic sewers.

Sanders invites you to take part in this free Christmas arts and crafts demonstration Wednesday, Dec. 12, from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and from 2 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Call or come by Sanders at 214 N. Cuyler or call 665-2383, where service has made the difference since 1974.

Dec. 12, 1984

In the year following your birthday, many new opportunities, adventures and unusual possibilities to further your aims will be presented to you. Be selective and discriminating, instead of scattering your forces.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Although you may be quick to perceive solutions to other people's problems, don't offer any unless asked. It could be interpreted as "butting in." Your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead can help guide you to happier tomorrows. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll have a better time shopping today with a good pal but take care not to be influenced by his or her inclination to spend. It could do you in.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Try to arrange things today so that you call your own shots. If you get involved with a demanding type, your whole day will be spent on this person's interests.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Unless you get organized early today, you could end up frittering your hours away on projects of little importance. Allocate your time wisely.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't hesitate to break plans if you get a better offer, especially if the people you originally were to spend time with are not your favorites.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) As a Taurus, it could be upsetting for you if someone interferes with your routine but today, unless you are flexible, you might produce friction.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If at all possible, avoid in-depth conversations today. You could accidentally rattle the wrong cage if you stray into forbidden areas.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Some great bargains could be in the offing for you today. Unfortunately, however, this could cause you to go on a spending spree and put you in debt.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Being self-sufficient is an admirable quality but take care not to carry it to extremes and fall to act in harmony when situations call for it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Just because you're in the mood to do things today as your whims dictate doesn't mean you can ignore your duties. Frustrations will ensue if you do.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) One of those impromptu gatherings with friends could take place today. Everything should turn out to be fun unless someone opens the door to an agitator.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're an especially kind and giving person but remember to let this generosity extend to your verbal treatment of others. Be forgiving.

Cowboys still have playoff hopes

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys need help but they could still make the National Football League playoffs for a record 10th consecutive year. The Cowboys definitely hurt themselves with a 30-28 loss to the Washington Redskins on Sunday but are still in the playoff picture. The defeat was Dallas' third in a row to Washington and marked the first time the 'Skins had swept a season series from the 'Pokes. Dallas, which has been to the playoffs 18 times in the last 19 years, must now defeat Miami in the Orange Bowl on Monday night, Dec. 17 and get help this weekend. One of two things must happen: — The Los Angeles Rams must lose to San Francisco on Friday night, or. — St. Louis must lose to Washington on Sunday and the New York Giants must lose to New Orleans on Saturday. Dallas is 9-6 and tied with the Giants and St. Cardinals for second place in the National Conference Eastern Division behind Washington's 10-5. The Rams are 10-5 in the NFC West but Dallas has a tiebreaker edge, having defeated Los Angeles earlier. With a victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in Washington, the Redskins will have successfully defended their title in the wildest division in the NFL. "It was a big loss for us because we were going for the playoffs," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "Now we don't know. I'd say our chances are slim. This was a disappointing game for us." The Cowboys have always had problems playing in the Orange Bowl. They lost a regular season game to Miami there and the Orange Bowl was the site of Dallas' three Super Bowl defeats. Dallas did defeat Minnesota 17-13 in a "Playoff Bowl" game in Miami in 1969. Landry said he wasn't going to worry about all the playoff possibilities. "You just go to the next game," Landry said. "That's all you can do."

Pampa teams visit Canadian

Both Pampa boys' and girls' basketball teams have returned from tournament action and will play Class 3A Canadian tonight in Canadian. The girls' game tips off at 6 p.m., followed by the boys' game about 7:30 p.m. The Lady Harvesters are back from the Abilene Tournament where they placed third. The Lady Harvesters have a 3-2 record, but are coming off a 62-44 loss to Sweetwater. "We had only one day to get re-grouped and get back in the gym and get ready for Canadian," said Pampa coach Albert Nichols. "Canadian has a fine little club. They've got a girl that averages over 20 points a game and they've got a lot of experience back from their good team of a year ago." Pampa hosts Lubbock Dunbar Friday night in the first District 1-4A game of the season. "I'd like to urge the people to come out and support us," Nichols said. "We've got a good chance of making the playoffs this year."

The Harvesters had impressive wins against Lawton MacArthur (46-44) and Lawton Eisenhower (60-44) in the Bi-State Classic in Lawton, Okla. last weekend. The won fifth place after losing to Choctaw, Okla. in the first round of play. Rodney Young and Petey Davis were the big guns for Pampa in the three tournament games. Young totaled 54 points, including a 24-point outing against MacArthur. Davis had 48 points with a 27-point outburst against Eisenhower. The Harvesters shot better than 50 percent from the floor in their last two games. "Overall, we were pleased with the way we played in the tournament," said Pampa head coach Garland Nichols. "We came back pretty good after that first game." Nichols said Candadian is an unknown quantity. "We'll just go play our game and try to keep on improving," Nichols said.

College basketball roundup

Sooners wipe out Southwestern

By The Associated Press Billy Tubbs has a very simple basketball philosophy — win by a bunch. And in Wayman Tisdale, he has just the fellow to lead the assault. With Tisdale, a member of the gold medal-winning U.S. Olympic team, exploding for 55 points Monday night, the 15th-ranked Sooners demolished Southwestern University of Texas 126-76. "This is a perfect example of us taking no prisoners," Tubbs said after Oklahoma improved to 5-2. "If I did take prisoners, it would be Southwestern," where Tubbs coached for two years. "I have a lot of friends there and I know how they feel," Tubbs said. "I've been there before. But I don't mislead anyone. I'll try to beat you by 100 if I can."

In other games involving Top Twenty clubs, No. 18 Kansas ripped South Carolina State 81-54 and Michigan, newly elevated to the No. 20 position, beat Western Michigan 83-59. Tisdale scored 36 points in leading Oklahoma to a 60-35 halftime advantage over Southwestern, and finished only six points shy of his single-game school scoring record of 61. Tisdale also collected 13 rebounds. "He got the hot hand early," said Tubbs. "We didn't plan for him to score that many, but I'm not surprised at anything he does." Tim McCalister added 20 points for Oklahoma while Bobby Deaton had 27 points and 10 rebounds for Southwestern. Kansas Coach Larry Brown said he "had fun" watching the Jayhawks, 6-1, run past South Carolina State.

"We got everyone to play and I like to see everyone play," Brown said. "The opportunity to play is what the players look forward to." Ron Kellogg scored 16 points and Greg Dreiling 15 for Kansas, which romped to a 46-27 halftime advantage. The Jayhawks built their biggest margin at 73-45 with 5:40 to play. Ralph Miller had 16 points to pace South Carolina State, which is winless in eight games. Michigan, unbeaten in five games, got 21 points from Roy Tarpley, including 15 during a second-half explosion. Michigan led only 36-31 at intermission, but used a 12-4 run to quickly settle the issue at the start of the second half. Another 14-2 tear made it 65-45 and cleared the way for subs to mop up. Don Petties scored 19 points for Western Michigan, now 3-3.

In other games Monday night, it was Niagara 79, Penn 73; Pittsburgh 89, Indiana, Pa., 64; Alabama 68, Austin Peay 48; Kansas State 58, Northeast Missouri 48; Michigan State 50, St. Peter's 38; Missouri 70, Tennessee

NUMB ARMS, LEGS

Symptoms of Pinched Nerves

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning and others.

Here are nine critical symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations which are usually the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these usually spells back trouble.

- (1) Paresthesias (see above) (2) Headaches
- (3) Painful joints (4) Numbness in the arms or hands (5) Loss of sleep (6) Stiffness in the back (7) Pain between the shoulders (8) Stiffness or pain in lower back (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals indicate that your body is being robbed of normal nerve functions. until this function is restored, you will in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help the worse the condition will become. Don't wait! should you experience any of these symptoms...call for indepth consultation in Layman's terms.

Fourth consecutive win

Raiders crush Lions, 24-3

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Just when the rest of the National Football League thought it was safe to venture into the street, the Los Angeles Raiders came swaggering back to town wearing their playoff faces.

The defending Super Bowl champions used an awesome defense, led by Bill Pickel, and big offensive plays — a Raider trademark — by Marc Wilson, Cle Montgomery and Jim Plunkett to crush the Detroit Lions 24-3 Monday night.

The Raiders, given up for dead after losing some key players through injuries and dropping three straight games last month, now are riding a four-game winning streak and their 11-4 record in the AFC West assures them a wildcard spot in the playoffs.

And, lest you scoff, remember that the Raiders rode a wildcard berth to the championship over Philadelphia in Super Bowl XV. Pickel, who had 3½ of the Raiders' eight sacks, led a defense that shut the Lions down at every turn. Detroit finished with only 10 first downs, 257 total yards and had two passes intercepted.

"It was a good win because we played hard," Raiders' Coach Tom Flores said. "The defense played well all night. We wanted to play well, win and stay healthy. Going into the playoffs, our biggest concern is to stay healthy."

Wilson, who completed 11 of 19 for 194 yards with two interceptions before leaving the game with back spasms in the fourth quarter, tossed a 12-yard TD pass to tight end Todd Christensen in the second quarter and had a 72-yard bomb to Dokie Williams that set up a 37-yard Chris Bahr field goal in the third quarter.

"I've never had these (spasms) and I don't know what to expect,"

Wilson said. "It's real tight now." Ironically, it was an injury to Plunkett that gave Wilson a chance to start in the first place. Plunkett, who hit 3 of 4 for 102 yards — most of it on a 73-yard TD strike to Marcus Allen late in the fourth quarter — was seeing his first action since suffering pulled abdominal muscles Oct. 7.

"I felt a little more comfortable late in the game," Plunkett said. "I felt very apprehensive going in."

One of Plunkett's passes also went to Cliff Branch who hung on for his only catch of the game, but it was the 500th of his career.

"You don't know if you'll ever get a chance to achieve that and I'm glad I'm a part of it," Plunkett said.

The Raiders fumbled the ball seven times, but the Lions failed to recover any of them. The bedraggled Lions dropped to 4-10-1 in the NFC Central.

Three playoff spots remain in NFL

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer

If the race for the three remaining playoff spots in the National Football Conference looks too complicated to figure out, look at it this way — most of the confusion could be cleared up before Sunday by the Los Angeles Rams and New York Giants.

To the naked eye, things look hopelessly muddled, particularly in the NFC East, where the Washington Redskins lead with a 10-5 record and the Giants, Dallas Cowboys and St. Louis Cardinals are a game behind at 9-6. Along with the Rams, who are 10-5, they will get the NFC's three remaining playoff berths along with San Francisco and Chicago, champions of the West and Central.

But the Rams and Giants can make things simple.

The Rams play at San Francisco Friday night in a game to be televised nationally by ABC and can clinch a wild-card spot if they win.

If that happens, the 9-6 Giants can win the other NFC wild-card berth if they beat the New Orleans Saints on Saturday, leaving only the NFC East title to be decided in Sunday's game in Washington between the Redskins and the Cardinals. The winner of that game would be the division title, the loser would be out of the playoffs.

The AFC is simple. Miami is the East champion; Pittsburgh or Cincinnati will win the Central, and either Seattle or Denver will win the West with the loser joining the Los Angeles Raiders as a wild-card entry.

But the NFC is so muddled that nearly 24 hours after Sunday's games, the league office still was trying to confirm all the possibilities involving the Redskins, Cardinals, Giants, Cowboys and Rams.

Here's the breakdown: NFC

The San Francisco 49ers, 14-1, have clinched the West title and any home-field advantage for the playoffs. The Chicago Bears, 9-6, are the Central Division champions and but cannot get a homefield advantage.

The other three playoff berths will be decided among four NFC East teams and the Rams.

The best way to sort them out is team-by-team.

ST LOUIS, 9-6: If the Cardinals beat the Redskins Sunday, they're the NFC East champion based on a 6-2 division record; if they lose, they're out because they're 9-7.

WASHINGTON, 10-5: The Redskins edged the Cowboys 30-28 Sunday to take over the division lead. If they beat the Cards Sunday, they win the division based on their 11-5 record.

Even with a loss to the Cardinals, the Redskins could still be a wild card. Should the Giants lose, Washington earns a berth. If the Giants win, the Redskins would still make the playoffs if Dallas loses to Miami.

NEW YORK, 9-6: The Giants, who lost to the Cardinals 31-21 Sunday, cannot win the division.

But they can get a wild-card berth by beating New Orleans if the Rams beat the 49ers or if the Cardinals and Cowboys both lose. The Giants could also lose and get the wild card if Dallas and St. Louis lose because if all three are 9-7 the Giants have the best combined record against the other two.

DALLAS, 9-6: Like the Giants, the Cowboys can't win the division title. But they can earn a wild-card if they beat Miami and the Rams lose to San Francisco. If that happens, they eliminate the Giants regardless of the outcome of their game with New Orleans.

If the Rams beat the 49ers, the Cowboys can still get a wild card if they beat the Dolphins and the Giants and Cardinals lose.

LOS ANGELES, 10-5: The Rams can clinch the wild card and the home-field for the playoff game by beating the 49ers Friday night. If they lose, they can still earn the wild card if either Dallas or St. Louis loses. AFC

Both Denver and Seattle are 12-3 and the winner of their game at Seattle Sunday wins the AFC West. If the Broncos are the wild card, they'll be at home against the Raiders; if it's the Seahawks, they'll play at Los Angeles unless the Raiders lose one of their two remaining games, Monday night at Detroit or Sunday at home against Pittsburgh.

If Cincinnati, 7-8, beats Buffalo at home and the 8-7 Steelers lose to the Raiders, then Cincinnati wins the Central Division because it has the better intra-division record. If Pittsburgh wins or ties, or both teams lose, then Pittsburgh is the champion.

Explosions damage NATO lines

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Four explosions damaged NATO fuel pipelines in three different parts of Belgium early today, Belgian and NATO officials said. No injuries were reported, and an extreme left-wing group claimed responsibility for the blasts.

The explosions, at least two of which were caused by dynamite, came a day before the scheduled arrival in Brussels of the U.S. secretary of state, George P. Shultz, who is to attend a three-day meeting of NATO foreign ministers. Shultz arrived in Britain today for talks with British leaders.

The responsibility claim was made in a letter to the Brussels daily La Cite by a group calling itself Cellule Communistes Combatantes, or Fighting Communist Cells.

The group has claimed responsibility for six bomb attacks against Western defense contractors, Belgian political party offices and military transmission lines in recent months.

Gabrielle Lefevre, an editor at La Cite, said the group's letter charged NATO has made "war the principal focus" of its actions. He said the letter claimed five explosions were set off along the underground pipeline.

Dig Itha, a spokesman for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, said a 5:25 a.m. explosion near Tubize, 15.5 miles south of Brussels, ripped open a NATO fuel pipeline and caused a fire that lasted about four hours.

Fifty minutes later an explosion hit a NATO aviation fuel pipeline near Verviers, 62 miles east of Brussels, Itha said. There was no fire. Two explosions then damaged another pipeline in Glons, 43 miles east of Brussels.

News in brief

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A woman sentenced to six years in prison for her part in a $2.7 million bank robbery "suffered the most and profited the least," her attorney said.

Janice Krebs, 29, who was vault manager at Nevada National Bank, was sentenced Monday on charges of embezzlement and interstate transportation of stolen money.

Her attorney said co-defendant Richard Cochran threatened to kill her two children if she did not cooperate. She and Cochran were arrested in July in Paraguay with more than $1 million cash. Cochran has pleaded guilty, and a third defendant, Brian Perceval, is scheduled for trial in January. About $1 million is still missing.

BOSTON (AP) — Plans to install videotape cameras in police stations to film drunken driving suspects should help keep such cases out of court, a state official said.

During a test of the system, 20 of 25 suspects pleaded guilty after seeing themselves on videotape. "When tapes are shown to defense attorneys at the conference stage of a case, in many cases they may close up their briefcase and go home," Jeff Grossman, of the state Executive Office of Public Safety, said Monday.

LONDON (AP) — A vintage Bentley coupe that beat the Blue Train express from Monte Carlo to London in an epic 1931 race was sold at a special Sotheby's auction to an American auto collector for $324,720.

The buyer of the Bentley was not identified. But sources at Sotheby's said he lives near San Francisco and has a collection of 40-50 vintage cars.

The green 1930 Bentley Speed Six was the big prize in the auction of 20 veteran cars and horse-drawn carriages held in the 250-year-old London headquarters of the Honorable Artillery Company.

The car became famous when Capt. Joel "Barney" Barnato, a colorful British racing driver who co-drove Bentleys to victory in the 1929 and 1930 Le Mans 24-hour races, beat the Blue Train to London on a $400 bet with a friend. He averaged 43.43 mph.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's inaugural committee has raised more than $9 million in private, interest-free loans during the past two weeks to help foot the bill for the Jan. 18-21 inaugural events.

SEVIERVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Freida Parton, younger sister of entertainer Dolly Parton, says her family was surprised but not upset when they saw her picture in the January edition of Playboy.

"Daddy just grinned and started looking at the other pictures," said Ms. Parton, a 27-year-old rock 'n' roll singer and the 10th of 12 Parton children.

"Momma said 'Lee, that's enough.' She didn't want daddy looking at them other naked women," said Ms. Parton, who appears in the music video "Oriental Dolls."

Ms. Parton posed in a dress she said reveals mostly leg and some cleavage.

"They wanted me to pose nude," she said, but declined because she wanted to leave something to the imagination. "Once you've showed it all what have you got left?" she asked.

NEW YORK (AP) — After nearly 40 years of dispensing advice to 30 million parents, Dr. Benjamin Spock has taken on a partner for an updated edition of his book on baby care.

Spock, 80, will be joined by Dr. Michael B. Rothenberg in the fifth edition of the book, entitled Dr. Spock's Book of Baby and Child Care, scheduled for release next year by Pocket Books.

NEW CITY, N.Y. (AP) — The settlement of a lawsuit against author Robert Ludlum amounted to substantially less than the $500,000 a former friend sought as his share of royalties from "The Road to Gandolfo," an attorney said.

Ludlum and John Patrick, who said he provided the spy novelist with the idea for the book, had signed an agreement in 1974 covering royalties, but they had "a falling out over a silly little thing" and the deal soured, Patrick's attorney, Robert Prier, said.

Patrick, 1954 Pulitzer Prize winner for the play "Teahouse of the August Moon," received only a payment of $2,500 representing his share of the original advance for the novel, court documents said.

The case was settled Monday, when it was scheduled to go to trial. The book, which depicts the kidnapping of a pope, was first published in 1975 under the penname "Michael Shepherd" and reissued in paperback in 1983 under Ludlum's name after he had had 10 years of successful books.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — When then-struggling songwriter Willie Nelson borrowed $500 from country singer Faron Young 20 years ago, he promised to pay him back by raising a calf and giving Young the beef.

Nelson has finally paid his debt. Last week, the now-famous songwriter and performer had a 3,000-pound, pure-bred bull delivered to Young's office.

Young, who has had such hits as the Nelson-penned "Hello Walls," "It's Four In The Morning" and "This Little Girl of Mine," said he did not know what to think about the gift.

"I could have killed him," Young told The Associated Press Monday.

NEW YORK (AP) — Archbishop John J. O'Connor ended the evening one up on quick-tongued New York Mayor Edward I. Koch when he followed the mayor to the podium during a Christmas luncheon.

The mayor told the audience at the Monday night affair, given annually by the archdiocese to honor child-care organizations, that he has enjoyed coming to the event since being elected mayor seven years ago.

When the archbishop spoke, he quipped, "You almost didn't get invited this year."

The mayor turned slightly red but chuckled heartily at the reference to a dispute over a city rule prohibiting agencies, including those of the church, that do business with the city from discriminating against homosexuals.

O'Connor noted that the lawyers for the city and archdiocese "get very nervous whenever the mayor and I speak in public without their presence: They're afraid we'll settle without them."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Lou Rawls will headline a national telethon Dec. 29 to benefit 42 colleges and universities, including Fisk University, which had its heat turned off last year because it had not paid its gas bill.

President Reagan has appointed an advisory board to help Fisk, which is about $1 million in debt.

The 12-hour telethon, which will raise funds for members of the United Negro College Fund, will originate from the Coconut Grove in Hollywood, Calif.

SEVIERVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Freida Parton, younger sister of entertainer Dolly Parton, says her family was surprised but not upset when they saw her picture in the January edition of Playboy.

"Daddy just grinned and started looking at the other pictures," said Ms. Parton, a 27-year-old rock 'n' roll singer and the 10th of 12 Parton children.

Farm worker protections will raise crop costs

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for employers of farm laborers says new federal rules intended to protect field workers are almost certain to be adopted in the near future, and could increase the cost of producing vegetables and other crops.

But the biggest upheaval is expected if Congress passes new legislation to restrict the flow of alien workers into the United States. Advocates say a tougher law is needed to stem a rising tide of illegal foreigners entering the United States.

Patrick H. Quinn, executive vice president of the National Council of Agricultural Employers, said other actions are in the works that could drive up costs of producing the nation's food.

"During the next 24 months, labor-intensive agriculture in the United States will face significant challenges which have the potential to dramatically reduce the availability of harvest labor while forcing employers to adopt more formalized and costly management practices," Quinn told an Agriculture Department outlook conference last week.

Quinn said regulatory proposals by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and the Environmental Protection Agency — in the areas of field sanitation and worker protection from pesticide exposure — will probably be approved.

"These regulatory proposals, as well as concerns about increased Labor Department enforcement activity and union organizing in the West, pale, however, by comparison with the impact which enactment of comprehensive immigration reform legislation would have on the industry," he said.

Quinn noted that for the last four year Congress has struggled with immigration reform, notably legislation offered by Sen. Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., and Rep. Romano L. Mazzoli, D-Ky.

"Having twice fallen victim to interest group and partisan politics, proponents of immigration reform legislation believe their time has come," Quinn said. "The political constraints which the 1984 presidential election placed on both parties are gone."

President Reagan said in the second television debate with Democratic challenger Walter Mondale that he strongly supports such legislation, Quinn said.
