Request rejected

Autry execution won't be on TV

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The Texas Board of Corrections refused today to allow televising of the execution of James David Autry, due to die before sunrise Wednesday by lethal injection.

The board rejected arguments that the public should have the right to watch a convict die, voting 8-0 against changing the state guidelines that would permit cameras into the death chamber to record Autry's execution.

"I have many concerns about this. Not just the propriety and decency of it, but the potential that it could have an effect on the death penalty itself," said board chairman Robert Gunn, who will be one of two witnesses to the execution if it is carried out.

Board member Pete Cortez, who attended the 1982 execution of Charlie Brooks, said "after witnessing that execution, I'm not at all ready to favor putting it on television."

While the board debated the issue, Autry waited in his Death Row cell for decisions by the U.S. Supreme Court and the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles on his request for mercy.

Autry, 29, was sentenced to death for the 1980 slaying of a Port Arthur convenience store clerk, and Texas prison officials have been ordered to inject a deadly combination of drugs into his veins before sunrise Wednesday.

Autry, who escaped execution in October with 30 minutes to spare, has vigorously professed his innocence in the death of Shirley Drouet, a mother of five. But if the court-ordered punishment is to be carried out, he said, the public should not be opposed to watching it.

The last public execution in Texas occurred on July 30, 1923, when Roy Mitchell, convicted of five murders, was hanged from a gallows next to the McLennan County Jail in Waco.

The debate over televised executions heated up when Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said he did not oppose the idea. "If executions serve as a deterrent, then there's a very logical argument that they should be done publicly," Mattox said.

Other inmates and death penalty opponents also favored the idea, saying it would show the public what executions are all about.

"If they think it acts as a deterrent, then why do they want to hide it?" said Billy Hughes, a Death Row inmate and registered lobbyist.

Desperate Demos stump South

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

Four Democratic presidential candidates foraged for votes in the South today after a debate in which the new front-runner, Gary Hart, was attacked as naive and inexperienced by rivals desperate to blunt his drive for the nomination.

Hart changed his schedule to spend an extra day campaigning in the South, and a poll taken Sunday showed him drawing even with Walter Mondale in Georgia. Hart canceled plans to fly to Massachusetts, where polls say he has a strong lead going into Tuesday's presidential primary.

Alabama, Florida and Georgia also hold primaries on Tuesday, and they were where Mondale, John Glenn and the Rev. Jesse Jackson were spending today.

George McGovern left the region and flew to Massachusetts where he hopes to do well enough in Tuesday's primary to keep his candidacy alive.

After the 60-minute debate Sunday sponsored by the League of Women Voters in the Fox Theater in Atlanta, Hart, Mondale, Glenn and Jackson all said they were pleased.

"It should help," said Mondale. "I thought it went exceptionally well," said Glenn. "I was very pleased with it."

"We did very well," said Jackson. "I'm impressed."

Hart brushed off suggestions that other four ganged up on him. "I thought it was a good exchange," he said.

Hart has won four straight delegate contests entering "Super Tuesday," when nine states hold primaries or caucuses. His winning streak began with an upset victory in the New Hampshire primary and continued through Maine, Vermont and Wyoming. The Atlanta debate was the first candidate forum since the Colorado senator forged to the front of the Democratic field.

Mondale, Hart swap shots in debate

In Atlanta, a poll taken of 350 likely Georgia voters on Saturday and Sunday showed Mondale with 35 percent and Hart with 34 percent, with a margin of error of plus or minus 5 percent. The result was a virtual dead heat. Glenn had 13 percent and Jackson had 9 percent.

The poll was conducted by Atlanta-based Darden Research Corp for WXIA-TV in Atlanta. Half of those questioned were polled on Saturday, and the result from that day alone gave Mondale 37 percent and Hart 31 percent, with a plus or minus 7 percent margin of error.

"What we obviously see is that it's closed right up between Hart and Mondale," said pollster Claiborne Darden Jr.

Former front-runner Mondale, who still leads in the number of delegates he can claim, questioned during the debate whether there was any substance behind Hart's "new ideas" campaign.

"We don't elect momentum," said Mondale. "We don't elect images. We elect a human being."

Hart renewed his contention that Mondale is too committed to filling the desires of special interests to be able to govern effectively.

To date, Mondale has 148 delegates supporting his nomination, while Hart is second with 27. Glenn has 17. Those figures include delegates chosen by the House Democratic caucus, but do not include the eight for Hart and four for Mondale given in preliminary estimates from the results of voting in Wyoming caucuses on Saturday.

A total of 511 delegates are at stake on Tuesday in the nine states and in voting in American Samoa and by Democrats Abroad, an organization of registered Democrats living outside the country.

Mondale flatly predicted late last week that he will win the Alabama primary. He refused to make any predictions about Florida and Georgia.

Hart spent little time in the South before the New Hampshire primary.

After the debate, Glenn said he thought Hart's rivals were "finally getting down to filling in some of that blank slate that came out of New Hampshire with such a big win. And I think that when people look at what they see I think they'll find they don't want the big spending, weak on defense. I think that they're going to see that my position is more in harmony with people in the South."

On military matters, Jackson said that instead of preparing to fight, defense planners ought to be "preparing to live." He also chastised both Hart and Mondale for refusing to commit themselves to choosing a woman for the vice presidential nomination.

McGovern also jabbed at his former campaign manager, Hart.

"I think some legitimate questions have to be asked when the issue is posed as Gary has," said McGovern. "He says the election is a contest between the future and the past. I'm an old history teacher. I've always revered the past."

Flu outbreak closes McLean schools again

BY CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

McLEAN — After missing four days of school due to an outbreak of the flu, students returned to classes today, only to be let out of school again for the rest of the week.

An unidentified strain of influenza forced school officials to call off classes for four days last week as 20 to 25 percent of the students were reported absent.

School Supt. Jim Rutherford said school was in session this morning, but because of the still high absentee rate, classes will be dismissed through the rest of the week.

"It's everywhere," Rutherford observed, noting that 30 students were absent today. "It's in Pampa and in Fort Smith, Ark."

Because of the high absenteeism, the school had to move its spring break and in-service training day to last week.

Rutherford added that school officials will add three days at the end of the school year and will cut a day from Easter vacation in April to make up for the days missed this week.

"We will still dismiss on April 20,

Good Friday," he said. "But we will return the next Monday."

A spokeswoman for the McLean Clinic said that there has been no letup in the flu since last week and it doesn't look like it will let up.

"Now the older people are reporting it," she said, noting that in the past, the flu had hit mostly children.

Officials at surrounding schools report that they have not yet been hit by the flu.

"We're really not in bad shape," said Lefors High School Principal Allen Jenkins. "Seems like the flu hit us about three weeks ago. But now we have six absent out of the high school and 10 out of the grade school."

As for combating the flu, Jenkins said there's "not a whole lot you can do except try to keep the kids in."

He added that the school is sprayed regularly with disinfectant.

Similar precautions are taken at Mobeetie, which peaked at 13 percent absenteeism.

Mobeetie Superintendent Bob Mickey said that all the rooms are disinfected and that students who have a fever are sent home.

Senate set to approve Meese

WASHINGTON (AP) — A vote on Edwin Meese III's nomination as attorney general comes before the Senate Judiciary Committee this week, and even his most vociferous opponent concedes the Republican-run panel appears ready to approve President Reagan's choice.

Meanwhile, the full Senate will spend the week debating a proposed constitutional amendment to permit organized prayer in the nation's schools. The chamber could have its first test vote on the proposed amendment, but Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., has vowed to delay action on the measure for months if he can.

The Judiciary Committee delved for more than a week into Meese's debts and finances, his ties with wealthy Californians who obtained government jobs and his alleged role in the 1980 Reagan campaign's use of documents from President Carter's re-election campaign.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, is the White House counselor's chief opponent on the committee. The senator argues that Meese is not fit for the office, charging that the presidential adviser has not been completely candid with Congress during the hearings and will be unable to cut his long-time political ties to the president.

The senator concedes that his probe has not made much headway among the members of the Republican-run panel and the full chamber.

"With 55 Republicans in the Senate, I have to be a realist," he observed.

The committee, which delayed the vote on the nomination last week, is scheduled to take it up again on Thursday.

The school prayer proposal, backed by Reagan and Senate conservatives, requires a two-thirds vote in both the Senate and House and ratification by 38 states before it could become part of the Constitution.

Late last week, Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee conceded he could not deliver the needed 67 Senate votes and introduced a compromise version that would permit officially sanctioned silent prayer, but it was still not clear whether he could pick up the additional votes required for passage.

The election-year push to fashion a deficit-reduction package of tax increases, military spending restraint and domestic spending cuts also will continue this week.

Another meeting between President Reagan and senior Republican senators was expected as early as today as they try to agree on an approximately $150 billion plan.

Meanwhile, Democrats on the House Budget Committee will be putting the finishing touches on their own plan that will be presented to a meeting of all House Democrats on Wednesday.

The Senate is likely to take up a major rewrite of the government's commodity price support programs for the next two years.

The interim changes are being sought by the administration.

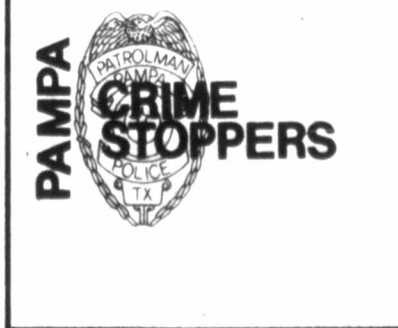

Drugs are a constant problem in most communities and Pampa is no exception. This week Pampa Crime Stoppers will focus on drug trafficking in our community and ask citizen cooperation in combating this continuing problem.

There are numerous persons who make their living solely in trafficking in drugs, whether it is transporting, distributing, dealing at the street level or manufacturing drugs. At best it is extremely difficult to construct a good case against the dealers of drugs and requires a great deal of law enforcement hours to make a case that is presentable enough to go to trial.

Because of this, cooperation from citizens is a must in combating the drug problem. The Board of Directors of Crime Stoppers urges anyone with information about drug usage or trafficking to report it immediately.

The Board of Directors of Crime Stoppers will pay $500 for information leading to the arrest and indictment of persons manufacturing drugs in our community. Rewards are available for information about other criminal activity. Call Crime Stoppers at 669-2222.

One-act plays to be presented in competition Tuesday night

BY CATHY SPAULDING Staff Writer

WHEELER — A family's struggle during the Civil War may not have much in common with 17th Century dealings with the devil, but students in four area high schools will present such themes at the class A south zone one-act play contest Tuesday.

The contest, which will begin at 5 p.m. Tuesday at Wheeler High School is the first step on what could be the road to the state finals for student actors. The four schools participating in the contest will be Wheeler, Mobeetie, Kelton and Briscoe.

Wheeler High School will present Warren Frost's "The Unknown Soldier," a historic play which deals with a family who lost a son in the Civil War.

Mobeetie entered David Campton's "After Midnight, Before Dawn," a play set in Puritan England about a group of prisoners who are duped into offering their souls to the devil in an effort to escape being hanged as witches.

The play's theme and references to the occult were branded as "Satanic" by Wheeler evangelist Rev. Rickey Pfeil, who asked Mobeetie school officials not to allow the play. However, he said he does not intend to continue his public protest.

The two other high schools, Briscoe and Kelton, will each present "Crisp and Anthem." According to Wheeler speech teacher Rhonda Blanchard, the two best plays will advance to the district meet March 22 in Miami. The winners there advance to the area meet at White Deer, then to the regional meet at Levelland, then to state finals.

Schools in the "north zone" of the district — Miami, Booker, Follett, Higgins and Darouekt — will participate in the preliminary meet March 15 in Follett.

She added that this district is often strong in one-act competition. "Last year Kelton and Wheeler went to district and Wheeler and Follett went to area," she said.

Officials hope highway will bury hatchet

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Can a new $7.6 million highway help two feuding West Texas cities finally bury the hatchet?

Time will tell, but some 500 residents of Midland and Odessa were willing to huddle against frigid, whipping winds to dedicate the new Texas Highway 191, which links the northern sides of the two cities.

Many of those who attended Saturday's ceremony represented civic groups, as well as city and county government. But others said they just wanted to cast their vote of confidence for the effort to unite the towns.

"I wanted to be part of this ceremony," said one, Ginny McLelland of Midland. "I'm really glad to see Midland and Odessa work together. And today is an indication — from looking at the turnout — that the people want cooperation between the two cities." But her husband, R.T., said, "Everyone's got to want to cooperate."

Midland County Judge Bill Ahders said he was "glad to see the day that Midland and Odessa could get together."

Other politicians at the ceremony — State Rep. Tom Craddock, R-Midland; Rep. Jay Gibson, D-Odessa; Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock; and Sen. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo — agreed on the call for "spirit of cooperation" that they said could bring "political, social and economic unity."

The temperature during the late-morning ceremony at the Midland County-Ector County line was 41 degrees, but the high winds dropped the wind-chill factor to 24 degrees. That forced those in attendance to huddle together as Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby, tongue-in-cheek, dubbed their towns "capitals of cooperation."

The two cities, separated by 20 miles of sandy oil country and decades of resent and bitter competition, are already linked by U.S. Highway 80 and Interstate 20.

But officials hope the new $7.6 million highway, which connects the northern sides of the two towns, will help them unite the communities in spirit.

Many residents of Odessa, generally considered the less affluent of the two towns, say they regard Midlanders as snobs. Some Midlanders say their rivals are only jealous.

The McLellands have lived in both cities over the past 15 years.

EX-SHERIFF AT DINNER—Former Rockwell County Sheriff John Vance, left, shares a laugh with supporter Gerald Payne during an appreciation dinner given for Vance by over 1,000 supporters at the Rockwell high school Saturday. ## Ex-sheriff is sent to prison in style by friends, neighbors

ROCKWALL, Texas (AP) — Not everyone who turned out for an appreciation dinner for former Rockwell County Sheriff John Vance was in an appreciative mood. A handful of protesters thought a high school was no place to honor the former lawman.

But more than 1,000 residents turned out for Vance's farewell Saturday night, three days before he was to begin serving a one-year sentence for whipping a 15-year-old auto theft suspect.

The $5-a-plate dinner was held inside the Rockwall High School cafeteria. It was a western-theme dinner and Vance was honored as a hero.

Among the handful of protesters walking silently outside the cafeteria were the guardians of Richard V. Williams, Neil and Martha Glenn of Rowlett.

Williams was allegedly beaten when he was taken into custody on suspicion of stealing a car. The car turned out to be Mrs. Glenn's.

Mrs. Glenn said she felt that it was in bad taste to hold the dinner where Williams was once a student.

The Glenns wore signs that said "Not all people appreciate you, John Vance," and "Schools are no place to honor criminals."

Vance also was fined $1,000 for the misdemeanor civil rights violation after U.S. District Judge Joe Fish said the ex-sheriff had acted "as judge and jury" in whipping the youth, who had been suspected of auto theft.

He was convicted last month in Dallas federal court. He is scheduled to begin serving the one-year sentence at the federal prison at Big Spring, Texas, on March 14.

Although Vance did not speak to the crowd, he said he would "tell them thank you and I appreciate your friendship and your love."

Before the dinner began, Mrs. Glenn said she expected anywhere from two to 200 protesters. But she said she wouldn't be surprised if only a handful showed up because some probably feared "retaliation."

"Somebody is going to get seriously hurt," she said. "This town is absolutely split wide apart."

Stretched over 40 feet on one wall were cut-out letters spelling the ex-lawman's name. Drawings of life-sized cowboys flanked the words, including one that closely resembled the Lone Ranger.

The former sheriff, who spent 24 years as a Texas Department of Public Safety officer before he was elected in 1980, said he was not surprised by the number of friends who attended the dinner.

"I'm not a lone ranger," Vance said. "I'm just an old country boy with a lot of friends."

The Glenns drew a few dirty looks from Vance's friends and supporters. At one point, when Mrs. Glenn said she didn't plan to stay very long, one woman said, "I hope not."

A woman, who asked not to be identified, said that the dinner had raised enough money to cover Vance's $1,000 fine, with plenty left over.

Although she would not specify the amount of money raised, she said it was between $10,000 and $100,000.

"The first ($10,000) is way too low and the second ($100,000) is a little high," she said.

After first denying the charges, Vance and Deputy Roy Woodbridge pleaded guilty to violating the youth's civil rights. Woodbridge was fined $500 but received no jail sentence or probation.

Both were cited after a six-month investigation by the FBI and Justice Department into allegations made by Williams' guardians.

Paroled inmates set record

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Legislation encouraging prison officials to relieve prison crowding led to a record number of paroles in 1983, figures show.

Texas released 8,588 inmates on parole last year. That means paroles ran about 15 percent ahead of 1982, the previous record year, when 7,504 were paroled.

John Byrd, the executive director of the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles, predicts yet another record this year.

Byrd said parole policies are "a control mechanism over the prison population so that it is not dependent upon either a federal court or some outside authority telling Texas what it has to do in regards to prisons."

Tribe seeks payment for territory lost in 1800s

LIVINGSTON, Texas (AP) — The Alabama-Coushatta tribe, which claims it was driven off its territory in Texas and Louisiana during the 1800s, is asking the federal government to pay for the land — a bill that could run into the millions of dollars, attorneys say.

The dispute involves 17 East Texas counties and about a third of Louisiana. No estimate of the worth of Texas land is mentioned in court documents, but attorneys for the tribe say the value could range from tens of thousands to hundreds of millions of dollars.

The Indians are asking for $49 million for the Louisiana land. The Dallas Morning News reported in Sunday's editions.

Fulton Battise, 74, chief of about 600 Alabama-Coushatta Indians in Texas, said the legal action is necessary to the tribe's survival and is not intended to displace anyone.

"We want to help with the future of our children," said Battise, a retired logger, who lives on the tribe's 4,200-acre reservation near Livingston.

Unemployment is 37 percent among tribe members. Improvements in housing, health care and other areas have come slowly, according to the Texas Indian Commission.

Although the tribe has a fund benefitting from a producing gas well and a tourist center, Battise said any major improvements for low-income tribe members would require either more money or more land. For now, the tribe is seeking the money, he said.

A special congressional waiver was needed for the tribe to push its pleas to the U.S. Claims Court in Washington on Feb. 14. Three months earlier, the House passed a joint resolution allowing the Indians to move the case to the court.

The resolution was sought by Reps. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, and John Breau, D-La., after the tribes' claim was disallowed because of a late filing.

In 1946, Congress set a five-year statute of limitations on Indian land claims. In 1949, a government worker in Oklahoma was told to inform the Alabama-Coushatta of the deadline, but the tribe later claimed that no notice was received.

"I've been working on this case since 1965," said attorney Alan Minter of Austin, tribal counsel. "Here it is 1984, and we're finally going to get our day in court."

Justice Department spokeswoman Ann Shields said the government had not filed its answer to the claim and refused to comment further.

The complaint, signed by Battise and prepared by a collaboration of lawyers in and out of Texas, said "this is an action against the United States for money damages arising out of its failure to protect the Alabama-Coushatta in possession of its aboriginal lands in Texas. The tribe maintains that its aboriginal title has never been extinguished."

According to complaint, the tribe occupied the following Texas counties when the state entered the union in 1845: Angelina, Chambers, Hardin, Jasper, Jefferson, Liberty, Montgomery, Nacogdoches, Newton, Orange, Polk, Sabine, San Augustine, San Jacinto, Trinity, Tyler and Walker.

"The big question becomes when was their land taken from them and how much was it worth at the time," Minter said.

Jealous husband shoots wife, other student and kills self

COMMERCE, Texas (AP) — A jealous, estranged husband lurked in the dark and waited for his wife and another East Texas State University student to come out of an apartment before shooting them both and then turning the gun on himself, police say.

The bodies of Michael Wayne Mauldin, 28, Lisa Rene Mauldin, 20, and Jerry Julian Vollrath Jr., 20, were found lying in a parking lot Sunday after neighbors heard five to six gunshots, said police chief Jim Peek.

All three were on the dean's list at East Texas State, a university with a 7,500 enrollment. Vollrath was a cheerleader at the school.

Peek said the deaths will probably be ruled a double homicide and suicide.

"Something was in his (Mauldin's) mind that he thought his wife was running around on him and she wasn't running around on him," Peek said. "It wasn't a love triangle or anything like that."

Peek said the preliminary autopsy report showed Mrs. Mauldin had two wounds, one on the head and one in the abdomen. He said Vollrath was shot in the head and chest. Mauldin was found holding a .45 caliber semi-automatic pistol and had a single gunshot wound in his forehead.

All were dead on arrival at Commerce Medical and Surgical Hospital.

Peeks said that from conversations with the couple's friends, investigators found Mrs. Mauldin had been depressed. The couple had not filed for divorce and had only briefly been separated, Peek said.

The young woman had moved out of a married student dormitory and into another dormitory with three roommates.

"We have evidence indicating Michael had beaten his wife before," Peek said Sunday. "He had slapped her or beaten her a couple of times. We found this out today."

University vice president of student affairs, Ron Robinson, said the school was in shock over the incident because all three were outstanding students.

"We at East Texas State are all in shock over this," Robinson said. "Jerry Vollrath was an outstanding student leader and well liked by everyone on campus."

Vollrath was also involved in Christian activities and was apparently trying to counsel Mrs. Mauldin when they met for the first time Saturday night at a dance.

"We feel he (Vollrath) was

Jewels & Gems

by Ken Rheams

Almost all gems are minerals that have formed in the earth's crust following millions of years of pressure. The value and price of each type is based on its scarcity, while the value and price of a particular stone depends upon its color, clarity, cut and carat weight. Most mineral gems come in a variety of hues. One shade is usually the most desirable so that an off-color stone is less expensive to purchase. For example, a pinkish ruby costs less than one that is deep red. Interestingly enough, what a jeweler may consider to be an off-color stone often looks like a more expensive stone to a layman. It may be a very good buy for that individual.

When selecting fine jewelry there are several things to keep in mind: first the reputation of shop, the experience they have in the field of fine jewelry and guaranteed satisfaction. Sound impossible to find? Not when you make RHEAMS DIAMOND SHOP, 939 S. 2nd, Canadian, 323-8922 & 112 W. Foster, Pampa, 665-2831 your one stop shopping headquarters. ## NUMB ARMS, LEGS

Danger Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others. Here are nine critical symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations which are usually the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these usually spells back trouble.

- (1) Paresthesias (see above)
- (2) Headaches
- (3) Painful joints
- (4) Numbness in the arms or hands
- (5) Loss of sleep
- (6) Stiffness in the neck
- (7) Pain between the shoulders
- (8) Stiffness of pain in lower back
- (9) Numbness or pain in the legs

These signals indicate that your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these danger signals... call for in-Depth consultation in Layman's terms.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Middle class is shrinking

WASHINGTON (NEA) — One of this country's most popular institutions — the seemingly ubiquitous and supposedly indestructible "middle class" — is in trouble.

After decades of remaining a relatively constant proportion of the total population, the middle class has contracted alarmingly in recent years — and the vast majority of the people stripped of that status have gone down rather than up the socio-economic scale.

Even more disturbing are indications that the trend is likely to accelerate in the future, producing an increasingly stratified — and possibly polarized — society.

Much of the strength of the middle class is derived from the fact that virtually everybody wants to be a member of it. We live in a society in which egalitarianism mitigates against people classifying themselves as rich while pride discourages people from describing themselves as poor.

Even serious analysts who have attempted to examine the middle class have found a precise definition of it to be elusive.

Thus, Fortune magazine in a recent article defined the middle class as composed of families with yearly incomes ranging from $15,000 to $35,000. That article warned that "economic forces are propelling one family after another toward the high or low end of the income spectrum."

Others prefer to rely upon a formula developed by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics to characterize income levels for typical urban families of four — two adults and two children.

Under that definition, a "low budget" family has an annual income of $17,000 or less while a "high budget" family has a yearly income of $41,000 or more. The middle class then includes families with earnings between those two figures.

Using that BLS formula, Dr. Stephen J. Rose, a Baltimore research economist and college teacher, recently concluded that the middle class shrank substantially during the past five years.

In 1978, approximately 55 percent of the country's population had annual earnings between the BLS low and high budget lines. By 1983, however, that figure had fallen sharply, to slightly more than 40 percent.

About three-quarters of those displaced fell into a lower income category while only one-quarter rose to a higher income classification, says Rose, whose findings are vividly illustrated on a 3-foot-by-4-foot poster called "Social Stratification in the United States."

"This downward change represents a significant change in the nature of the American social fabric," he adds. "More and more people are finding it difficult to maintain a decent standard of living. Many who were once comfortably middle class are now scraping by with severely reduced incomes."

His gloomy assessment is shared by others, including a pair of economists who, in a recent report commissioned by the Urban Institute, found that "over the last five years, the income distribution has become less equal."

Similarly, journalist Robert Kuttner, writing in The Atlantic magazine last year, concluded: "With most jobs being created at the top and bottom of the ladder, America may have difficulty remaining a middle-class society."

That phenomenon is attributable to a number of causes, including the drastic decline in the number of relatively well-paying blue-collar jobs in the auto, steel, rubber and other traditional "smokestack" industries.

Rampant inflation during President Carter's administration followed by massive unemployment during President Reagan's tenure also have claimed an inordinate number of victims among middle class families.

The prospects for the future are not bright as the nation's transition to a service-oriented and high-technology economy is likely to create a two-tier employment pattern which will exacerbate the current trend.

Many of the service jobs — including those held by nurses' aides, clerical workers and equipment maintenance personnel — probably will pay relatively little, especially in contrast with the lucrative professional and managerial positions at the other end of the scale.

We don't make athletes great

One of the Mahre brothers, following the Winter Olympics, said it "I don't do it for the medals. I don't do it for the family. I don't do it for my country. I do it for me."

Skater Peter Carruthers, asked how it felt to have apparently ignited other American athletes with his (and sister Kitty's) silver-medal performance in pairs skating, noted: "It's nice to be part of all that, but too much is made of winning a medal. Everyone who makes it here is fantastic."

It was as if the U.S. Olympic athletes in Sarajevo this year were a little less inclined to carry the misplaced burden of representing their country than were their predecessors.

Perhaps it was the early elimination of the U.S. hockey team, whose counterpart four years ago was the focus of intense national feeling. Perhaps the hockey team's "failure" assured that the 1984 Olympic story would not be written in the "us-vs-them" metaphor; thus the athletes were somewhat liberated to pursue their individual goals and deal privately with their failures.

The development of world-class athletes, of course, is not just a matter of individual effort. The dominance of the Soviets and East Germans in total medals is in part the result of massive government-run programs. Potential medal-winner are identified and selected early, and supported throughout their athletic careers.

To the extent that support programs are available to U.S. athletes, they are less centralized and, by and large, privately operated and financed. A more structured system might produce more medals. It is unlikely to produce any more thrilling achievements than were recorded at Sarajevo.

It is difficult to imagine, in fact, a Scott Hamilton—stricken with a mysterious childhood illness that stunted his growth for year—or a Bill Johnson—by his own admission, an adolescent delinquent a few years ago—being selected and groomed for the Olympics by the government-dominated Soviet or East German sports establishment.

If we can claim their victories for the United States—if in any way they "represented" us—it is not because this country made them great athletes, but because it did not interfere with their individual pursuit of greatness.

Understanding 'Super Tuesday'

My wife and I were watching the results of the New Hampshire primary.

"Is the race all over now?" she wanted to know.

"Of course it isn't over," I told her. "It won't be over until Super Tuesday."

"You mean the Democrats are going to play a football game to decide who their candidate is going to be?"

"No, Super Tuesday, on March 13, is the day nine states choose 650 delegates for the Democratic convention. We'll know a lot more about who will oppose Reagan than we do now."

"If Super Tuesday is that important, why was everyone so excited about New Hampshire?"

"Because New Hampshire was the first state to hold a primary. New Hampshire could give us a hint on what will happen on Super Tuesday."

"I thought Iowa did that."

"Iowa was just political caucuses. New Hampshire was decided by the people going to the polls. It's a whale of a difference."

"Why did the media make such a big deal of Iowa?"

"Because it was the first media test of how the candidates would do. The big deal in Iowa was not that Mondale won so big, but that Gary Hart did better than everyone expected, and John Glenn did worse than he had hoped for. This affected what the media would do about the contest in New Hampshire. Many of them who had ignored Hart started concentrating on him and giving him momentum — at the expense of Glenn and the others who bombed out in Iowa. This is why Hart did so well in New Hampshire and Mondale did so badly."

"Mondale didn't do that badly. He came in second."

"Yes, but he was supposed to come in a big first. After Iowa we thought Mondale had the thing all wrapped up. But with Hart's showing in New Hampshire, we now have a new ball game and this will put all the political pundits back in business."

"Why should the public believe anything you people say after you were so wrong in New Hampshire?"

"They have no choice if they want to have an exciting Democratic primary. The only sin we political pundits can commit is to bore the American people."

"I think the media is just hyping up all these races so they have something to write about and show on TV."

"That's not true. We're giving the Americans what they want. If Mondale had it all sewed up after New Hampshire, no one would buy newspapers or watch their TV sets on Super Tuesday. How would you have felt if you knew six months in advance that the Los Angeles Raiders were going to win the Super Bowl?"

"Why did everyone say in the fall that the race was going to be between Glenn and Mondale?"

"Because Glenn looked like a natural candidate in the tradition of Dwight Eisenhower? He was a hero who had gone into space."

"So what happened?"

"The other Democratic presidential candidates used his space achievements against him. They said Glenn didn't know anything except how to drive a capsule around the earth."

"Do the New Hampshire results mean that Glenn is out of it?"

"Glenn doesn't think so. He said the fact that Gary Hart won so big against Mondale means that Mondale is vulnerable and that it is a good omen for Glenn because of his strength in the South."

"Then what did New Hampshire prove?"

"It proved that Iowa didn't mean beans for Mondale — but it meant everything for Hart."

"What did New Hampshire do for Jesse Jackson?"

"It gave him an opportunity to apologize for referring to New York City as 'Hymietown,' in hopes of winning the Jewish vote in Florida."

"What am I supposed to do for Super Tuesday?" she wanted to know.

"Go to the deli and buy lots of cold cuts, potato salad, popcorn and beer. I'll invite over all the guys in the carpool, because nobody in America wants to watch Super Tuesday alone."

Thoughts on AT&T break-up

As a result of its forced break-up by the U.S. government, the American Telephone & Telegraph Company lost $4,870,000 in the last quarter of 1983. It was the largest quarterly loss of any firm in U.S. history.

The most that was gained from the government's carving up of the phone company was the awareness of what service it was rendering and how efficient it was. Whoever you were, wherever you were, you could take the receiver off the hook, speak a number into the transmitter, and soon find yourself talking to a person — any person in the world you wanted to talk to — all at very moderate cost.

This service was made possible, not by, but in spite of government, which watched jealousy and seized every opportunity to trip the wheel. Being a public utility, AT&T was subject to government regulation.

We still have AT&T, but it is not the same AT&T. Seven regional corporations have been set up, to what purpose it is hard to see. Will a regional company, still big and still a monopoly, be a kinder master to local phone companies? The local phone companies of yore are still going strong, to their advantage or ours is not clear.

AT&T still exists, though an amputee. It now has competition in the rendering of long-distance calls. As a result, such calls are expected to cost less than formerly. The local monthly rates are higher, not lower, than formerly.

A subscriber can now buy or rent his telephone, having a choice of various styles instead of having to accept the standard instrument furnished by the company.

AT&T has been an important institution in the American economy for decades. It has been by no means a disaster. It was often pointed out to foreigners as a marvel of efficient communication service, at reasonable cost.

The American economy will survive. The break-up, consummated as of Jan. 1, 1984, has occurred at a time when general price levels were rising. The increases in phone rates will be assumed by many to be the result of inflation.

Some benefits may accrue. Competition in long-distance telephoning should result in cheaper, prompter and better service. In addition to long-distance, AT&T will continue to operate its research unit, Bell laboratories, and the big maker of telecommunications equipment, Western Electric Company.

AT&T will be free to expand into manufacturing and so to grow into new directions, such as computerization.

It will be free to succeed, also to fail. Its stock will no longer be a refuge for widows and orphans, but will be speculative. After two months of the "new freedom," Ma Bell still led the pack at the stock exchange nearly every day.

Dear Abby

Philosophy of living will have approval of the Pope

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I sent for the Living Will from the Society for the Right to Die, because if I should ever get to the point in my life where I am terminally ill and there is positively no hope for my recovery, I do not want to be hooked to any machines that will keep my old heart beating for another miserable six months or so. What is the Catholic Church's position on this?

DEVOUT IN WINONA, WIS.

DEAR DEVOUT: "When inevitable death is imminent in spite of the means used, it is permitted in conscience to make the decision to refuse forms of treatment that would only secure a precarious and burdensome prolongation of life, so long as the normal care due to the sick person in similar cases is not interrupted. In such circumstances the doctor has no reason to reproach himself with failing to help the person in danger.

"Life is a gift of God, and on the other hand death is unavoidable; it is necessary, therefore, that we, without in any way hastening the hour of death, should be able to accept it with full responsibility and dignity.

"It is true that death marks the end of our earthly existence, but at the same time, it opens the door to immortal life."

Pope John Paul II approved this declaration in Rome on May 5, 1980.

Those who are interested in obtaining a Living Will should write to: The Society for the Right to Die, 250 W. 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019. It is a non-profit organization, so please send a donation to cover the cost of the document and mailing.

I sent $10 for five Living Wills. (It is deductible.) And it's the best $10 I ever spent. I've given one to my physician, clergyman, lawyer and members of my family.

DEAR ABBY: What if a man (over 21) has sexual intercourse with a girl who is legally underage? (She is 15, but could pass for 20 easily.) OK, let us say that the man was no stranger to the girl, they had gone on several dates and she willingly agreed to have sex with him. He didn't ask her how old she was because he thought she was of legal age, and remember, he didn't have to talk her into having sex with him.

Is the man guilty of statutory rape?

NO NAMES

DEAR NO NAMES: Whether or not the girl cooperated willingly makes no difference. Neither does whether or not the man knew the girl's age. A man who has sexual intercourse with a girl who is not of legal age is guilty of statutory rape.

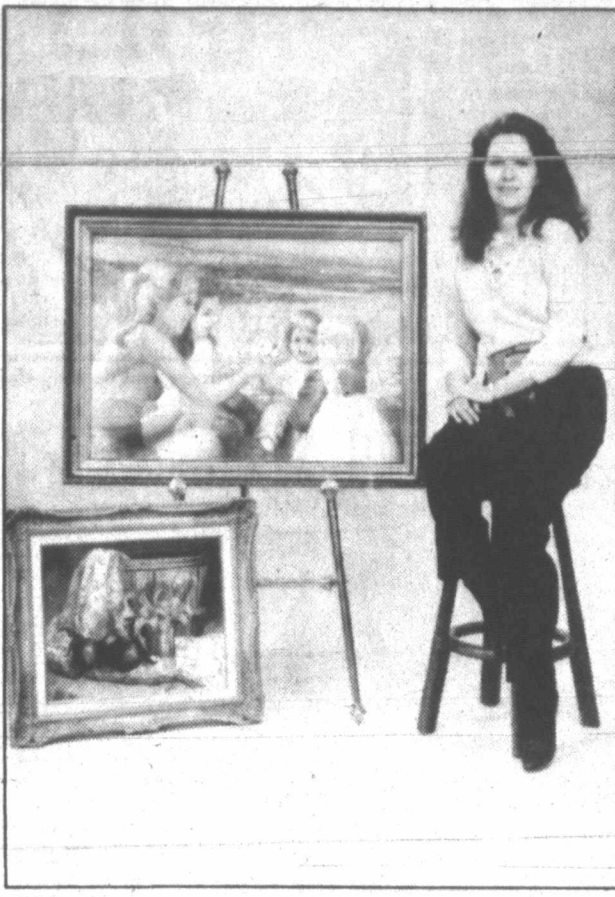

...

CONFIDENTIAL TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: What if tomorrow, as the prayer says, you should die before you wake? Will people near and dear to you find something in your drawer (at the office, perhaps?) that will shatter their illusions; fill their hearts with sorrow; tarnish their memories? Make a bonfire of the past. Toss in those letters and pictures, and be done with it. What was, was. Give your survivors a break.

(From Abby's Popularity booklet: "Good advice for people of all ages: Don't rush into an intimate relationship, regardless of how 'right' it may seem at the moment. To put it bluntly, that which is too easily acquired is seldom valued.")

More on Arizona and Arkansas

By GENA WALLS

ARIZONA was acquired from Mexico at the close of the Mexican War in 1848 for $10 million, becoming an organized territory in 1863. The country attracted few settlers, and in 1870, the entire area held less than 10,000 residents. The majority of the first settlers were of Mexican descent with others coming from Canada and the European countries.

Mortuary, Cemetery and Church Records published in two volumes by the Arizona State Genealogical Society, Box 6027, Tucson, Ariz., 85735. Arizona became our 48th state in 1912.

Many of the first settlers in ARKANSAS moved from nearby Kentucky and Tennessee and were mainly of English, Irish and Scottish stock during the early 1800s. In 1870 the area attracted large groups of south European emigrants, many coming directly from Poland. Arkansas also attracted large numbers of Italians to the northwest section of the state especially those interested in fruit raising as an occupation. If you are of Polish or Italian ancestry you might find the naturalization records in the district courts at Little Rock, Helena, Batesville, Fort Smith or Texarkana.

If your family history contains information about ancestors in Arkansas and you have not been able to locate them, try searching Missouri and Oklahoma. The boundaries of these states changed several times between 1812 and 1836 when Arkansas became the 25th state. Another source might be the State Land Office, Little Rock, Ark. 72201, has original plats of the surveys of Arkansas and the original entries listed by Township and Range.

Paths you've trod before will lead you to your greatest success this coming year. Stick to the familiar instead of trying to be a trailblazer.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
You are not apt to work too well under pressure today, so don't leave important tasks to the last minute. Try to maintain a steady, productive pace. Major changes are in store for Pisces in the coming year. Send for your year-ahead predictions today Mail $1 plus your zodiac sign to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Speculative situations could prove to be poor gambles today. Lady Luck may be taking the day off and might not be around when you really need her.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Your mate might be more insistent than usual today upon having his or her way. Someone will have to yield. There'll be fewer sparks if it's you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Most people won't be desisting of your disdain today, so look down your nose at no one if you behave haughtily, you'll create problems.

Important undertakings must be carefully thought-out each step of the way today, or you might trip over obstacles you've strewn in your own path.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Be extra-protective of your cherished possessions today. Don't lend things to persons who are known to be careless or irresponsible.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Do not send friends to a merchant about whom you know little. If your pals get ripped off, you'll have a lot of explaining to do.

Frantic finish leaves Houston with SWC title

HOUSTON (AP) — Arkansas' Charles Balentine said his shot felt good leaving his hand. Teammate Ricky Norton's shot didn't feel good and he wanted it back. Leroy Sutton's shot was good, but it was beaten by the buzzer.

The frantic series of shots came in the final four seconds Sunday and as a result of the misses, the Houston Cougars held on to beat back the Hogs 57-56 and captured the Southwest Conference Postseason basketball tournament for the second straight year.

"I didn't realize how far out I was on that shot," said Norton, whose last second shot had beaten the Texas Aggies in Saturday's semifinals. "When we look at the film, I'll see just how far."

"Maybe we'll learn from this but I'd sure like to have that shot back."

Norton's shot was followed by a shot by Balentine that bounced off the rim. Sutton grabbed the ball and scored but then the buzzer had sounded and the Cougars broke into celebrating.

"I heard the buzzer and I was already celebrating," said Houston Coach Guy Lewis.

Neither team left the Summit without an NCAA playoff invitation, however. The Cougars moved on to the Midwest Regionals at Memphis, Tenn. as the No. 2 seed behind DePaul and Arkansas will go into the East Regional as the No. 2 seed behind North Carolina.

The Razorbacks had to contend with seven-foot Akeem Olajuwon in the first half and forward Michael Young in the second half.

Olajuwon, voted the tournament's outstanding player, devastated the Hogs in the first half with 17 points and eight blocked shots. He was seven from the field in the first half.

"He was outstanding in the first half," Lewis said. "The guys were threading the needle to get him the ball and he was taking advantage of it. He blocked eight shots but equally as important was he made them alter their shots, trying to get around him."

Houston, 27-4, sprinted to a 41-26 lead early in the second half and appeared ready to make it a rout. But Olajuwon fouled out with 7:28 to play and that's when Young, a senior playing his final collegiate game in Houston, took charge.

Young broke off of a horrible scoring slump and finished with 19 of his 23 points in the second half.

"I felt I had to take over offensively and defensively," Young said. "I wanted to end my hometown career on a high note."

Arkansas, 25-6, is going into the NCAA playoffs for the eighth straight year and Coach Eddie Sutton isn't dwelling on his team's last second failures.

"I was proud of the way we fought back," Sutton said. "You can't ask for anything more than to get three shots in the last seconds."

Balentine led Arkansas with 14 points and Joe Kleine added 13 and equaled Olajuwon with 11 rebounds.

"I still feel we have the best team in the country," Olajuwon said. "All we have to do is win. I've just been waiting for the playoffs. The SWC referees call all the cheap fouls. I'm ready to really play now."

Houston's first round game will be against either Fresno State, which beat the Cougars earlier this season, or Louisiana Tech, the Southland Conference winner.

Arkansas will play the winner of a game between Memphis State and Iowa.

Southern Methodist, which lost to the Texas Aggies in the SWC quarterfinals, also got an NCAA bid and will play in the West Regional tournament against Miami of Ohio.

Harvesters win Hereford tourney

HEREFORD—Gary Clark and Devin Cross combined for a 5-hitter as Pampa defeated Hereford, 10-3, Saturday to win the Hereford Invitational Baseball Tournament.

Clark pitched 4 and one-third innings to gain the win while Cross went 2 and two-thirds innings to get the save. Clark struck out two while Cross mowed down seven Hereford batters.

"Both pitchers did a good job," said Pampa Coach Bill Butler. "Cross came in and really pitched well for us."

Pampa, 5-3 overall, has won five of its last six games. "We're playing excellent defense and we're starting to hit the ball. We turned two double plays against Hereford and almost turned another one," Butler said.

Alfredo Soto had two hits, including a triple, in three trips to the plate. He also scored three runs. Charles Wuest was two for four with two rbi. Jeff Steward was one for two with two rbi. Ritthaler also had a double for the Harvesters.

Pampa hosts its own tournament Thursday through Saturday at the high school field. The Harvesters' first-round opponent will be Hereford again with the game set to start at 3:30 p.m. Thursday.

Other teams entered include Pampa Junior Varsity, Borger, Dumas, Canyon and Dumas Junior Varsity.

Last season's tournament was snowed out.

"If I remember right, we had three inches of snow on the ground," Butler said. "Hopefully, we'll have better weather this time."

Pampa seventh grade third in track meet at Hereford

Pampa seventh-grade boys' track team finished third in a recent meet at Hereford.

Pampa collected 48 points while Canyon and Plainview had 86 points each to tie for first in the 14-team meet.

In the eighth-grade division, Pampa placed seventh with 42 points.

Pampa's next middle school meet will be March 17 at Dalhart. Pampa hosts the district meet April 28.

NCAA power in East ACC puts five teams in NCAA tournament

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Most of the power lies east of the Mississippi in college basketball this year, say the men who put together the NCAA Tournament.

The Atlantic Coast, Big East and Southeastern conferences bagged almost 25 percent of the invitations to the 53-team NCAA Tournament announced Sunday, including the top seed in all but one of four regionals. The ACC, which produced the last two national champions in North Carolina and North Carolina State, placed five teams in the tournament, and the Big East and Southeastern each had four.

Conspicuously missing from the ACC's entries was North Carolina State, last year's Cinderella champions who finished this year with a 19-13 record and had to settle for the National Invitation Tournament.

The top-ranked North Carolina Tar Heels, who have lost twice in 29 games, were installed as the top seed in the East Region, while Georgetown, the Big East champ and No. 2 team in the Associated Press Top Twenty, was shipped far from its Washington, D.C., campus to be the top seed in the West.

DePaul, hoping to give retiring Coach Ray Meyer his first national championship, said those 16 teams may represent the tourney's strongest field ever.

"The No. 1 and No. 2 seeds in each region look awfully, awfully tough," Gavitt, commissioner of the Big East, said at a news conference.

The tournament begins on Tuesday and runs through the rest of the month, with more than $600,000 awaiting the semifinalists when they get to Seattle.

Kicking things off, the champions of the 10 weakest of the 29 Division I conferences — as decided by the committee — go at each other in Philadelphia and Dayton, Ohio, on Tuesday. Those five winners will join the automatic qualifiers from the other 19 conferences and 24 at-large entries and begin first-round action at sites around the nation this weekend.

Moving the Georgetown Hoyas out of their natural region seemed certain to trigger controversy, and Gavitt admitted it was one of the committee's closest calls. The Hoyas might actually jump ahead of North Carolina Tuesday when the final poll is released since North Carolina lost to Duke over the weekend in the ACC tournament.

"North Carolina has been No. 1 all year," Gavitt pointed out. "They have only two defeats. It would have been committee over-reaction to seed North Carolina anywhere but in the East."

Also among the missing were Bucknell, 24-5; Tennessee-Chattanooga, 23-6; New Mexico, 24-10, and the one-time king of college hoops, UCLA. It's the first time the Bruins have not been invited to play in the NCAA Tournament since 1966, discounting when they were on probation two seasons ago.

The Big 10 and Southwest Conference each put three teams in the tourney. Dayton was the only independent taken besides DePaul.

One of the more intriguing matchups could occur early in the Midwest, where Kentucky and Louisville could meet in the regional semifinals in Lexington, Ky.

The preliminary round games in Philadelphia pit Northeastern against Long Island at 4 p.m. EST, Richmond against Rider at 7 p.m., and Princeton against San Diego at 9:30 p.m. In Dayton, Morehead State goes against North Carolina A&T at 6:30 p.m. and Alcorn State meets Houston Baptist at 9 p.m.

The regional championships will be held in Lexington (Midwest), Los Angeles (West), Atlanta (East) and St. Louis (Midwest). In the semifinals March 31 at Seattle, it will be the Midwest champion vs. the West champion and the East winner against the champion of the Midwest.

Snook dynasty puzzles experts

AUSTIN (AP) — The Snook basketball dynasty — now seven straight Class A state titles — even has the University Interscholastic League baffled.

During the seventh annual condolences to the losing Class A finalist on Saturday, UIL Athletic Director Bill Farney said the dynasty's end might not be in sight.

"I don't know what it's going to take to beat these guys," Farney told Nazareth Coach Joe Lombard.

Bryan, Port Arthur Lincoln, Shelbyville and New Boston also took state basketball crowns Saturday.

Snook's seventh straight title came in a 39-30 win over Nazareth. It was classic Snook — no blow-out, no awesome statistics and no doubt about who's the best.

"I don't know why, but this is probably the best for me," said Coach Donnie Victorick. "I don't know why this one sticks out in my mind, but it does."

Wesley Jackson, Walter Martin and Victor Swain were Snook's top scorers with eight points each. Martin is one of the reasons the dynasty might continue — he's a 6-7 freshman.

The win by Snook, 37-2, washed out Lombard's double-title dream. His girls team won the state title a week earlier.

Lombard said it's tough to topple a dynasty.

"They've been here so many times before. They never panicked," he said.

For 5A champ Bryan, the tradition is newer, only two state titles in a row. Bryan defended its crown Saturday by whipping Spring Branch Memorial 66-56. It's the first back-to-back 5A championships since Houston Kashmere did it in 1974 and 1975.

Viking Coach Larry Brown says it's easy to separate the two titles.

"Each one has its own identity. The players on this year's team wanted to make their own mark on basketball. We had a new group, a new identity," he said.

Bryan coasted home by breaking open a tight game in the fourth quarter. The Vikings, sparked by 5-4 Dennis Rhodes, overcame a strong performance by Memorial's 6-7 Andy Gilchrest, who poured in 31 points.

Rhodes struck twice in one crucial minute of the final period. With Bryan up by two and 3:22 to play, he lobbed a perfect pass inside to Mitchell, who hit the shot and was fouled. Mitchell missed the free throw, by Kenny Keller rebounded for Bryan.

Kevin Bradsher followed with a 15-foot jump shot that stretched the lead to six.

Gilchrest countered with a six-foot jumper, but Rhodes then rocketed down the middle and threw in a one-hand, running bank shot. He was fouled and added the free throw that built an insurmountable seven-point lead.

"To come back is not our game," said Memorial Coach

Don Coleman, whose Mustangs finished at 31-8.

Mitchell led Bryan, 31-6 including a semifinal win over top-ranked Fort Worth Dunbar, with 23 points.

Port Arthur Lincoln ran way with the 4A title by clubbing Corpus Christi Flour Bluff 61-52.

"When you've got the horses, all you've got to do is saddle them up," head Bee James Gamble said of his 32-2 champs.

Guard Walter Senegal led Lincoln with 14 points.
