

Controversy over 'devil play' apparently subsides

BY CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

MOBEETIE — The storm over the appearance of witchcraft in a school drama production has calmed, at least for now, between residents and a Wheeler evangelist as preparation for the one-act play "After Midnight, Before Dawn" continues.

The play, written by David Campton, is Mobeetie's entry in the south zone one-act play contest, to be held at 5 p.m. Tuesday at Wheeler High School. Also participating in the contest are Wheeler, Briscoe and Kelton.

The play focuses on six people awaiting execution on charges of witchcraft in 17th Century England. Four of the characters fall under the influence of one woman and are duped into committing their souls to the devil. The play ends with the four confused and frightened characters reciting the Lord's Prayer in reverse.

It was the witchcraft theme of the play, its occult terminology and references to Satanic ritual that raised the ire of the Rev. Rickey Pfeil of the Wheeler Christian Center. Pfeil recently gained national attention with his protest of showing R-rated movies at Wheeler's Rogue Theater.

Last week, Pfeil issued a press release protesting the production of the play and warned that demons may possess the student performers if the play is presented. While he said that a public appeal was the only protest he planned, he does plan to attend the performance.

Wary of what Pfeil might do at the performance, the Mobeetie School Board of Trustees met in emergency executive session Saturday with attorney Jim Fling of Shamrock to discuss possible legal action to keep the minister from interfering with the production.

The board agreed that no legal action against Pfeil would be feasible and chose to adopt a "wait and see" attitude.

"At this point, as far as I'm concerned, he's cooled down," said Mobeetie Superintendent Bob Mickey at the board's regular meeting Thursday. "I recommend no legal action unless he actually makes a threat."

While the board met Thursday, student performers, under the direction of instructor Belinda Masters, practiced the play dressed in Puritan costume and wrist manacles made from plastic pipe.

Pfeil's current position on the performance is on his knees. "I've been praying about this," he said Friday. "I do not want to commit myself one way or the other on it."

"I am greatly bothered that citizens felt like I was a threat, because there are a lot of good people in Mobeetie," he said, noting that he had held several children's crusades there.

Pfeil shared these sentiments in a letter in Thursday's issue of the "Wheeler Times" in which he said he has no ill feelings to the people of Mobeetie. In the same issue, Mobeetie residents ran a full page ad expressing support for school activities.

"I would have thought that a lot of them would object to the theme of the play," Pfeil said Friday.

"They may fear that I would cause some kind of commotion," he said. "But I do not plan to stand out there and protest. That would totally be out of line. I had been thinking of going, but simply because it is a public event in the community."

Wheeler speech teacher Rhonda Blanchard, who is helping coordinate the contest, said Pfeil is entitled to his opinions and to come to the performance "as long as he does not interfere with the play or the comings or goings of the cast or audience."

Showing their stuff

Youngsters put their animals on display for judges

Shownmanship event launches stock show

In a prelude to the Top O' Texas Junior Livestock Show, Gray County 4-Hers learned some of the finer points of displaying animals to a judge in the 1984 4-H Shownmanship Show.

When they strutted their animals' stuff across the dirt arena of the Clyde Carruth Pavilion Thursday night, the 4-H youngsters put months of preparation into action.

"Never get between your animal and the judge," one young man was admonished, as a judge for the event pointed out the proper way to take a lamb through a turn.

Scales will open at 8 a.m. Saturday, and judging will begin at 1 p.m. for the Gray County Livestock Show.

Sunday will mark the start of the four-day Top O' Texas show. Scales will open at 9 a.m., and lamb judging will start at 5 p.m.

The show will continue through Wednesday, when the 6:30 a.m. Bidders' Breakfast will help sustain the energy for the annual livestock sale that will follow at 8 a.m.

Nearly 100 4-Hers participated in the warm-up, Shownmanship Show Thursday evening.

Unemployment falls to below 8 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian unemployment fell to 7.8 percent in February, the lowest rate in 2½ years, as 700,000 Americans found work, the government reported today. It was the sixth straight month of falling joblessness.

The total number of people with jobs reached a record 103.9 million, but some 8.8 million remained officially categorized as unemployed, the Labor Department said.

The 7.8 percent overall civilian rate was down from 8 percent in January and was the lowest since joblessness stood at 7.6 percent in September 1981. The February rate was only 0.4 percentage point higher than the jobless rate when President Reagan took office in January 1981.

Since unemployment hit a post-Depression peak of 10.7 percent in November 1982, the ranks of the jobless have shrunk by 3.1 million, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

A separate unemployment rate, combining the 112.7 million-member civilian labor force with the 1.68 million members of the armed forces stationed in the United States, fell from 7.7 percent from 7.9 percent in January, today's report said.

Martin Feldstein, chairman of President Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers, said Thursday the economy continues to grow at a "very strong" annual clip of more than 6 percent in the first quarter of this year.

At the same time, the Labor Department released figures showing that new claims for unemployment benefits by the jobless fell in the week ended Feb. 25, and were well below 400,000 for the sixth consecutive week.

"I think the economy has been strong enough to generate more jobs," said David Ernst of Evans Economics, a Washington forecasting firm. "But it is going to be a bit slower since most of the (worker) recalls have already taken place."

Allen Sinai, of Lehman Brothers Kuhn Loeb in New York, said "we are expecting a good increase in employment once again amid indications that the economy

Texas unemployment rate falls to its lowest level in two years

DALLAS (AP) — Unemployment in Texas last month plummeted to its lowest level in two years — a reflection of the state's continuing economic improvement, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said today.

The seasonally adjusted joblessness rate dropped to 5.7 percent in February from 6.9 percent the previous month. More than 97,000 people unemployed in January found work in February, said the bureau's chief economic analyst in Dallas, Nic Santangelo.

Of the 10 largest industrial states, Texas tied with Massachusetts for the lowest unemployment rate, Santangelo said.

"It's just the general improvement in economic activity in the state. The February employment situation really reflects the favorable trends that we've seen since last year," Santangelo said. "Texas still has 'pockets' of depressed areas," Santangelo said. "But the future looks bright, he added."

"This improvement was achieved despite the lack of a full recovery of energy-related industry and the depressed levels of our border areas," Santangelo said. "When you look at the whole picture, we're really demonstrating the complexity of the economic situation here."

In February, 433,000 people in Texas were unemployed.

In February 1983, unemployment in Texas stood at 8.6 percent with 652,000 people jobless. Unemployment in the state peaked in the first quarter of last year, Santangelo said. "But Sinai said "reductions (in unemployment) will come a little bit harder the rest of the year as we anticipate slower economic growth."

Charged with killing wife

Former officer gets new trial

BY JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

A former Pampa police officer, whose 1981 murder conviction was overturned by an appeals court, is scheduled for a retrial on March 26.

Preston Wayne Maynard was convicted in the shooting death of his wife, Shirley Louise Maynard, 40, but a Pampa jury's 1981 guilty verdict was reversed.

The suspect was returned to Pampa and released on bond. Assistant District Attorney Joe Hendley said.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ruled that 31st District Judge Grainger McIlhany shouldn't have allowed a Lipscomb County deputy's hearsay testimony about the Dec. 10, 1980 shooting death, and the court ordered a new trial.

After a two-hour standoff at the Maynards' trailer in the Pampa Mobile Home Park, 1213 E. Frederic, armed city and county officers burst in and found the victim dead on a couch in the living room. She had been shot once in the heart with a .357 Magnum pistol. Former Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford pronounced her dead at the scene about 9:30 p.m.

An incoherent Maynard, who was wounded in the knee, was lying on the floor beside the couch, officers reported at the time. He was treated for the gunshot wound at St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo. The suspect, then 45, was charged with murder the day after the shooting.

Maynard's Pampa trial began July 27, 1981. On Aug. 3, 1981, a nine-man, three-woman jury returned the guilty verdict. Jurors also assessed a 30-year sentence.

According to testimony at the trial, the Maynards were married for 20 years but had divorced two months before the shooting.

On the fatal December afternoon, Maynard phoned his mother, Jean Duke, and stepfather, Basil Duke, who was then the Lipscomb County Sheriff, and told them he had decided to end it all, they testified.

"Wayne called and told me he loved Shirley, and he was going to be with her. He wanted them both buried in Booker," Jean Duke said her son told her on the phone.

"I talked and talked to keep him from committing suicide. They had a strange marriage, Shirley and Wayne," she testified at the 1981 trial.

Sheriff Duke said his frantic wife called him home from work about 5 p.m. He took the phone from his wife, and his stepson told him, "There has been a homicide - suicide. Shirley is dead," Duke testified.

A Lipscomb deputy said he went to the Duke home while the sheriff talked to his stepson on the phone. The deputy testified that Sheriff Duke told him what Maynard said about the shooting in the phone conversation. Defense lawyers objected to the testimony, but Judge McIlhany overruled their objections.

The appeals court, however, said that jurors should not have heard what the sheriff told the deputy about the phone conversation with Maynard.

The former sheriff testified that he sent two of his other sons from Booker to the Pampa trailer and told them to notify Gray County authorities.

A .357-caliber bullet that passed through the slaying victim's heart was removed from a chair in the trailer's kitchen, according to the testimony. It was also revealed that Maynard was legally drunk on the night of the shooting, with a blood-alcohol level of .19.

The case was prosecuted by former District Attorney Harold Comer. Amarillo lawyer V.G. Kolijs and Ken Fields of Pampa defended Maynard at the 1981 trial.

Maynard was employed as a janitor with the Pampa schools at the time of the shooting. He had previously worked as a police officer in Pampa, Spearman, Perryton and Brownsville.

Gallup gives Hart lead over Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Sen. Gary Hart, riding a wave of popularity from his New England victories, leads President Reagan by 9 percentage points in a new nationwide Gallup poll.

The Gallup poll gave Hart 52 percent support to Reagan's 43 percent among the 719 registered voters surveyed March 2-6.

Another poll, this one conducted March 2-5 among 1,190 registered voters and published today in the newspaper USA TODAY, showed Reagan with 46 percent compared to 40 percent for the Colorado senator.

Both polls showed Reagan with a sizable margin over former Vice President Walter F. Mondale — 54 percent to 34 percent in the USA TODAY poll and 50 percent to 45 percent in the Gallup poll.

Among Democratic voters surveyed, Hart and Mondale appeared to be neck-and-neck in both polls.

The USA TODAY poll of 534 Democrats showed Hart with a 34-32 percentage edge over Mondale, with a 3 percent margin of error. Gallup gave Mondale a slight edge, 33 percent to Hart's 30 percent, with a margin of error of 4 percent.

In surveys one month ago, Hart polled only 2 percent in both the USA TODAY and Gallup polls.

The other three Democratic candidates were far down the line. Ohio Sen. John Glenn was the choice of 8 percent of the Democratic voters surveyed, the Rev. Jesse Jackson 5 percent and former Sen. George McGovern 3 percent in the Gallup poll.

Mobeetie trustees getting ready to move into the computer age

BY CATHY SPAULDING
 Staff Writer
MOBEETIE - School officials want to be prepared when the computers come to town and the Mobeetie School Board of Trustees took a major step of preparedness as they approved the building of an additional computer classroom on the campus.
 At their regular meeting Thursday, trustees gave school superintendent Bob Mickey approval to look for affordable and adaptable computer systems. They also voted to seek bids on construction of a classroom addition to the school's home economics building to store the computers.
 Earlier, Rusty Owens, a representative of the Region XIV Service Center, visited the Mobeetie school to make suggestions on where to locate the computers.
 Mickey estimates that about six computers would be needed for the classroom. Owens had estimated that at a cost of about $2,000 per terminal, the cost of the initial set-up could be about $12,000.
 The State Board of Education has recommended that all students in Texas schools complete one-half unit (one semester) of computer literacy during seventh or eighth grades.

According to a listing of tentative curriculum requirements made by the state board, a school district may develop and implement a plan for teaching and assessing mastery of the essential elements of computer literacy in the elementary grades.
 Students who can master the essential elements may be exempted from the one-half unit course.
 The state board was scheduled to meet today for a third and final reading of the proposed curriculum rules. Mickey said that after the curriculum is amended and approved, he should have more detailed information on how the computer program is to be implemented.
 Before getting the computers, however, school officials must find a place to put them. Area carpenter and builder C.W. Burch surveyed the Mobeetie campus for the best location for a computer classroom.
 While such ideas as remodeling the school science room or other rooms were discussed, Burch recommended an addition west of the school's home economics "cottage."
 He showed the board two rough sketches of how the addition could be built onto the existing structure. Board members agreed on a 20 x 25 foot extension to the building.

In other business, a discussion on setting dates for the 1984-85 school calendar prompted a unanimous criticism of a state proposal to limit students to missing no more than five days per year or three days per semester for extra-curricular activities.
 Mickey, who attended a public hearing on the proposal last week in Amarillo said "out of probably two dozen people who testified at the hearing, not one was in favor of the proposal."
 "The 4-H Clubs were out there in force," he said. "If the state stays with this five day rule, we'll have to cut many of our programs."
 Mickey recommended that the next school year start in early August so that the first semester could end by the Christmas break.
 After meeting in executive session, Mobeetie trustees renewed the contracts of nine teachers, but tabled action on possibly building housing for some of the faculty members.
 Trustees also approved adoption of new textbooks for the 1984-85 school year. Mickey noted that the entire faculty was involved in the selection which included "practically all the v-ag books."

Lefors School Board discusses new gates, repair of gym roof

LEFORS - Members of the board of trustees of Lefors Independent School District discussed the installation of new gates at the school to be used by the Lefors Volunteer Fire Department in case of emergency.
 Supt. Jimmy Collins said the board and members of the fire department decided gates should be installed in the fence on the west side of the school building to provide easier access in case of fire or similar emergencies.
 Supt. Collins reported the high school gymnasium roof "has a few leaks." He said he had received an estimate from Persley Roofing Co. of Pampa for repairs. The board decided the roof should be checked for hail damage from a recent storm before proceeding with the repairs.
 Mrs. Virginia Archer, tax assessor and business manager for Lefors schools, reported 96.4 percent of school taxes have been collected.

Collins also discussed the new rules adopted by the legislative council of the University Interscholastic League (UIL) concerning junior high school competition. The new rules, adopted by the state agency Wednesday, require junior high school students to be under the same academic requirements recently approved for high school students.
 The rules state a student will not be allowed to participate in an interscholastic activity if the student will miss a class he or she is failing. Students must be passing four courses a week before an event in order to participate. Also, the UIL council restated its ban on "redshirting" of seventh graders - the practice of having a student repeat the seventh grade in order to gain an additional year of growth before high school.

 Collins reported a Texas Education Agency home economics consultant had made an on-site visit to the Home Economics Department. The consultant said the Lefors department was "in outstanding condition" and gave "high praise" to the entire program.
 In other business, the school board voted to rehire all 18 teachers from kindergarten through high school for the 1984-1985 school year, hired Chester Hill as a school custodian for the remainder of the school year and approved payment of outstanding bills.
 Board members also cast ballots for the election of two directors to the Region XVI Education Service Center board, headquartered in Amarillo. Nominees were R. C. Porter of Spearman and R. C. Neely, Jr., of Amarillo.

Ex-wife charged in assault

Raymond J. Ward, 41, of 518 S. Barnes, encountered the wrath of his ex-wife and wound up with a shattered television set and stab wounds all over his body, police reported.
 Ward told police that his former wife, Gladdis Vesta Ward, 34, of 522 Crawford, barged into his home about 4:30 p.m. Thursday and hurled a concrete cinder block through the screen of his TV set.
 Police said the man was subjected to a re-run of the violence about two hours later in Central Park.
 In the park, the ex-Mrs. Ward whipped out brass knuckles attached to a razor - sharp blade and began carving on the man with whom she had seen happier days, according to police reports.

 Ward suffered several minor stab wounds but managed to get to Coronado Community Hospital where he was treated and released.
 Gladdis Ward was arrested at the police station about two hours after the park stabbing. She was charged with aggravated assault.
 The woman was arraigned this morning by Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge, who set bond at $5,000.

Nurse was fired twice in previous year

DALLAS (AP) — A nurse who refused to immediately dispatch an ambulance for a woman who later died was discharged from two jobs she held in 1982, a television station has reported.

Nurse Billye Joyce Myrick was fired from jobs at two hospitals in the year before she was hired to screen emergency calls to the Dallas Fire Department, KDFW-TV reported Thursday.

The station said that among the nurse's previous jobs, she worked as nursing supervisor for the operating room at South Oak Cliff Hospital in Dallas, but was fired in April 1982, the TV station said. Her personnel file reads, "No rehire," according to the station.

KDFW reported that Ms. Myrick was a freelance nurse at Oak Cliff Medical and Surgical Hospital in Dallas from July to November 1982. Officials said she was terminated for being unreliable, and there were complaints that she was argumentative with her supervisors, the station reported.

The station said Ms. Myrick granted one of its reporters an interview but declined to go on camera. Throughout the interview, she cried and sobbed and repeated, "I'm so sorry. I didn't mean it," the station said.

Ms. Myrick also told the station that she "can't even go out of my house" and has been plagued by people driving by her house shouting "murderer, murderer."

The Texas Board of Nurse Examiners gave Ms. Myrick official notification Thursday that she is being investigated on allegations of unprofessional conduct.

A complaint was filed Wednesday by Clair Jordan, executive director of the Texas Nurses Association, said Margaret Rowland, executive secretary of the nurse examiners board.

Ms. Jordan said in Austin she filed the complaint as an individual, not on behalf of the association.

"I did it because I was concerned over the vast amount of press (attention) the incident was receiving. I think it is causing the public great concern over what kind of care they could expect," Ms. Jordan said Thursday.

The Dallas Fire Department, which received a second complaint about a slow response during a call for help this week, is considering whether to drop the nurse screening procedure.

During a Jan. 5 phone call, Ms. Myrick argued with Larry Boff, who was trying to get help for his dying stepmother. The nurse insisted on speaking with the woman, even though Boff repeatedly told her his 60-year-old stepmother, Lillian Boff, was incoherent and was having trouble breathing.

The nurse and her supervisor scolded Boff for screaming and cursing and insisted on talking with the woman. Boff hung up and a few minutes later his roommate called and pleaded for an ambulance.

Twelve minutes elapsed between the calls and the arrival of the ambulance. By the time paramedics arrived at Boff's home, his stepmother was dead.

Boff has filed a $315,000 claim against the city, seeking $15,000 in compensatory damages and $300,000 in punitive damages.

On Monday, while the Boff incident was being made public on KDFW, another family was having trouble getting an ambulance to help Beatrice Flores, who was suffering a heart attack.

Raynaldo Cardenas said he grew tired of listening to his sister argue with the nurse who took the call, so he put his mother in his car and raced to a hospital.

Mrs. Flores, 51, died shortly after arriving at Stevens Park Osteopathic Hospital Monday night, KDFW reported Wednesday. The fire department said the incident is under investigation. The nurse who took the call has not been identified.

Both incidents have sparked complaints and city officials are considering dropping the screening procedure, which was adopted in 1980 to reduce the number of non-emergency calls.

Mrs. Rowland said the nursing board would collect evidence, testimony, and a hearing could be held.

Plane crash kills three

ORANGE GROVE, Texas (AP) — A Navy accident investigation team searched the burned wreckage of a training plane today for clues to a crash during a practice landing that killed three people.

The identities of an instructor and two student pilots aboard the twin-engine Beechcraft T44A trainer were expected to be released today, said Radioman 2nd Class Ginger Freeman at the Naval Air Station at Corpus Christi.

A spokeswoman for the Naval Air Station in Corpus Christi said the trainer crashed at about 1 p.m. Thursday at an auxiliary field of the Kingsville Naval Air Station.

Julie Tourney, assistant public affairs officer, said the pilot was practicing touch-and-go landings on the runway in a "routine training mission" when the crash occurred.

The airfield is located 30 miles northwest of Kingsville, between Alice and Orange Grove. Navy officials said the field was closed following the crash.

An official Navy investigation is underway in the crash, said Gwen Newman, public affairs spokeswoman at NAS Corpus Christi.

"The tower reported that the aircraft caught fire upon impact following a routine practice landing at the field."

Venue change sought in nurse's trial

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The attorney representing convicted baby killer Gene Jones says he expects a state district judge to grant a change of venue today for the nurse's trial on charges she injured an infant boy with drug injections.

"I'd go into cardiac arrest if it wasn't moved," said court-appointed attorney Royal K. Griffin. "Unless you've been underwater here for the last 19 months, you'd have to have heard about Gene Jones."

Ms. Jones was convicted last month in the murder-by-injection of a young girl at a Kerr County pediatrics clinic.

She faces a pre-trial hearing today on a Bexar County indictment charging her with injuring a month-old boy at San Antonio's Medical Center Hospital. State District Judge Pat Priest has been considering motions filed by Griffin last month to move the trial and to quash the indictment against the nurse.

Ms. Jones, 33, was employed at Medical Center before moving to the small Kerrville clinic in spring 1982.

The nurse is accused of injecting Rolando Santos with a dose of heparin, an anti-coagulant agent that prosecutors say caused him to almost bleed to death in the hospital's pediatrics unit in January 1982.

Ms. Jones was convicted of murder in the September 1982 death of 15-month-old Chelsea Ann McClellan, whose mother had taken her to the Kerrville clinic for routine immunizations.

That trial was moved 100 miles northeast to Georgetown because of extensive publicity in the Kerrville area, and Griffin said his client couldn't get a fair trial in San Antonio either.

"The thorough and tremendous publicity has infected the entire community," Griffin said Thursday. "And if it is moved, we'll have to find a community with an extra courtroom that's willing to take it."

A Bexar County grand jury still is looking into a string of unexplained infant deaths at Medical Center from 1978 to early 1982, the period of Ms. Jones' employment.

Commissioners court authorized another $37,000 Wednesday for the investigation, which already has spanned more than a year.

Ms. Jones was sentenced to 99 years in prison for Chelsea McClellan's death and could receive up to life in prison if convicted in the Santos case.

She faces seven other child injury charges in Kerr County.

Governor says longer school day is unlikely

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Gov. Mark White says he advocates what he calls a very simple principle — a variation of the work ethic — to improve the quality of education in Texas schools.

"We need to get our work done before we go play," White said Thursday in an address to more than 500 county and district clerks attending a seminar at Texas A&M.

A longer school day — as some have recommended — probably won't be necessary if schools will persist in getting the basics across to students, White said.

"I've been lobbied strongest by my 9-year-old daughter not to lengthen the school day," White joked.

"Starting in the first grade, we have to teach kids how to read, and they can't move on to the second grade until they do," White said.

White said the Legislature will deal with education issues in a special session once the Governor's Select Committee on Education finishes its report.

But the governor indicated that strong emphasis will continue to be placed on sports and other extracurricular activities, despite the criticism aimed their way in recent weeks by Ross Perot, who heads the committee.

"It's important that we have strong football players," White said, "so they can go on and be good players and graduate from college and then be good pro players."

White also said: — Television, which is teaching children "more about cereal than you'll ever know," can become an effective teaching aid, especially in upgrading the level of science teaching in small rural towns that can't afford or attract highly educated teachers.

— Summer school courses could be extended to include English language courses for Spanish-speaking children and advanced courses for bright students who want to keep learning all year long.

— Teacher salaries should be raised and upgraded, and teachers should be required to pass a stronger admission test before being certification.

The governor said he hopes the Legislature will address the question of discipline in schools. He suggested a uniform code of conduct for Texas students so teachers would know what they can do to maintain discipline wherever they work.

Parents also should shoulder their share of the responsibility for disciplining children, White added.

"This is not a day care center we're operating, but a center for higher learning," White said. "When I was a kid, the most certain thing I knew was that when you got a spanking at school, I got another spanking at home."

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

If this is unusual we're in trouble

Leave it to the sociologists to take the oldest and most fundamental of human relationships and treat them as complex mysteries to be analyzed, explained and labeled.

In the coal country of Virginia, sociologists are dissecting a phenomenon they have chosen to label an "alternative economy" to explain how some laid-off miners are surviving tough times.

The discovery? The coal miners are relying on help from friends and family to tide them over.

Imagine. Rather than applying for rent subsidies, unemployed adult children temporarily move in with parents. Employed children support unemployed parents. Friends help friends to build porches and buy food. Researchers at Virginia Polytechnic Institute have discovered a reliance on such "interpersonal relationships" in coal communities that they say is different from society at large.

Well, maybe. Perhaps it is just easier to measure such things in isolated communities. We doubt that what is going on there is much different from the millions of "interpersonal relationships" among friends and family that occur each day in big cities and across great distances.

There may be special circumstances—geography, tradition, dependence on a single, cyclical industry like coal—that make Appalachian towns convenient laboratories for studying such things. There may well be benefits—historical, perhaps, rather than scientific—in studying family and community relationships in Appalachia.

Perhaps it is the scientific imperative to measure things that have drawn the sociologists' attention to the coal country. The slightly breathless "discovery" of an "alternative economy" of friends and families, however, is troubling.

If turning to friends and family is an aberration worthy of sociological investigation—an "alternative economy," no less—it is surely an indication of how much we have been encouraged to believe that the primary responsibility for caring for individuals rests elsewhere.

Have the architects and advocates of the welfare state been so successful that we now view the first, simplest and most natural of the "safety nets"—family and friends—as an anomaly to be analyzed and explained by social scientists?

If so, the world is turned upside down.

Jackson's slur may hurt Demos

NEW YORK (NEA) - Having recently honed the snickersnee of "ethnic sensitivity" to razor sharpness for the high purpose of disemboweling Interior Secretary James Watt, liberal Democrats are now in the unhappy position of watching it turn into a boomerang and start flying around among the candidates for their party's presidential nomination. Apparently those who live by the sword just can't seem to remember the fate in store for them.

Jesse Jackson's recantation of his reference to Jews as "Hymies" and to New York City as "Hymietown" was handsomely done, and probably went as far as anything could to minimize the damage caused by his ethnic slur. But there is a lingering doubt about the sincerity of his volte-face, and that doubt is rendered considerably stronger by the way Rev. Jackson behaved in the days between making the offensive remarks and retracting them.

For approximately 72 hours Jackson insisted that he had "no recollection" of making the statements, and that the accusation that he had done so was "not accurate." To reporters in New Hampshire he was tantalizingly equivocal: "I won't deny nor at any level will I admit it," a little later he asserted, "From my point of view it's a denial."

Now that Jackson acknowledges having made the statements in question, what are we to think of these interim utterances? Did he suddenly remember that he had in fact used the terms "Hymie" and "Hymietown"? Or, did he (as is surely more likely) know it all along? And, in that case, what were his ensuing assertions but deliberate attempts to mislead, little (if any) short of barefaced lies? And if the latter, what confidence can anyone repose in the sincerity of his subsequent recantation of the original remarks?

These questions could perhaps be glossed over if it were, say, Reuben Askew or Fritz Hollings who had made the remarks in question - candidates who, like Jackson himself, had no serious hope of winning the nomination. But Jackson, unlike Askew or Hollings, has a vital role to play in this year's Democratic election scenario. Sometime between now and the day on which Fritz Mondale is finally nominated in San Francisco, there must be serious negotiations between Mondale's representatives and Jackson's, in which Mondale privately but solemnly undertakes to do various specific things for Jackson if Mondale is elected president in November. Then Jackson must appear at the rostrum of the convention, put his arm around the delighted victor's shoulder, and pledge his most strenuous efforts to deliver the black vote to Mondale on Election Day.

Now, it appears, those undertakings and that pledge will have to be exchanged between Mondale and a black leader whose retraction of a gratuitous slur on Jews is, at best, less than totally convincing.

Mondale will make those undertakings nonetheless, because if push comes to shove the black vote in this country is both bigger and far more monolithic than the Jewish vote. But he can hardly be comfortable about it, or expect the Republicans to stop reminding him of his dilemma.

What has happened, of course, is that the old Roosevelt Democratic coalition, in which both Jews and blacks had honored places, has long since fallen apart. Black leaders in recent years have increasingly turned for support in other directions - most spectacularly toward the Arabs, and toward the PLO in particular. Arab-contributions totaling $200,000 to Jackson's Operation PUSH - contributions he contends he never learned about, or can't remember - are almost certainly just the tip of the iceberg. Pretty obviously, important Arab interests have made a command decision to finance certain black political leaders in this country, and in return are receiving sympathetic attention for their arguments on Middle Eastern issues.

As for Mondale, he has adopted a basic strategy of trying to build an electoral majority out of a broad spectrum of minorities. He is now discovering, painfully, just how difficult that can be.

Today in History

Today is Friday, March 9, the 69th day of 1984. There are 297 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On March 9, 1862, the five-hour Civil War battle between the ironclad ships Monitor and Merrimac at Hampton Roads, Va., ended in a draw.

On this date:

In 1977, about a dozen armed Hanafi Moslems invaded three buildings in Washington, D.C., killing one person and taking more than 100 hostages.

And also in 1977, President Jimmy Carter lifted a ban on American travel to Cuba, Vietnam, North Korea and Cambodia.

Ten years ago: Seven former Nixon administration aides pleaded innocent to charges of covering up the Watergate affair.

One year ago: President Reagan accepted the resignation of Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Anne Burford and said he would turn over all documents sought by a House panel investigating the agency.

Today's Birthdays: Mystery writer Mickey Spillane is 66 years old. Comedian Marty Ingels is 48. Actor Raul Julia is 44. Singer Mark Lindsay is 42.

Why the Lebanese army failed

The complete collapse of the Lebanese army came as a surprise to most Americans, who kept being reassured by the Reagan government that it was in shape to take on the "peacekeeping role" assigned to it by President Amin Gemayel.

U.S. military advisers in charge of training the Lebanese soldiers kept sending back optimistic reports that Gemayel's army was prepared to handle any situation.

What went wrong?

I asked a high-level official in the Pentagon if he had any ideas.

"The Lebanese army was well equipped, morale was high and the average Lebanese soldier could be counted on to hold his own against any fighting man in the world," the official said.

"Then why did the army fall apart?"

"We didn't count on the fact that the Christian soldiers would not take orders from their Moslem officers, and the Moslem soldiers would not take orders from their Christian officers."

"Why not?"

"Because we found out recently the Christians and the Moslems hate each other."

"Didn't we know that when we gave the army all that equipment?"

"Of course not. How could we know something like that?"

"It's been public knowledge for the last 2,000 years."

"It was our opinion that the religious differences would play no part once everyone wore the same uniform. We felt a soldier's loyalty toward his comrades in arms would overcome any antipathy one sect in Lebanon had for the other. This proved true when everyone slept in the same barracks. Unfortunately it didn't when the army took to the field."

"Didn't you have any inkling that the army would fall apart when the soldiers were asked to fire on their own people?"

"No, we didn't. The first hint we had that things weren't going as we planned was when half the troops went over to the other side with their weapons. When we complained about this, the Christian officers gave orders to shoot the Moslem soldiers, and the Moslem officers gave orders to shoot the Christian soldiers. That's when we realized we had a morale problem on our hands."

"Was the president informed about this?"

"I imagine he was. But our advisers were instructed not to worry about it, because the U.S. Navy should fire on Syrian-supported rebel positions to protect the Lebanese army soldiers from killing each other."

"Apparently the strategy didn't work."

"There was a mix up in signals. The White House said we were only firing at the Moslems to protect the peacekeeping force of U.S. Marines, and the secretary of the Navy said we were shelling the Druze, to support Gemayel's troops. Before this could be straightened out, the Druze started their own offensive against Christian positions, and this was the signal for the Moslem soldiers to stop fighting."

"So now the Moslems have half our arms, and the Christians have the other half. What did we accomplish by training the Lebanese army?"

"It gave the president an excuse to move the Marines out of Lebanon, something he's been wanting to do for some time."

"That's a big plus. But wouldn't you say this was a blow to President Reagan's Mideast policy?"

"He doesn't seem to think so. After all there is a lot more at stake in the Middle East than what happens in a tiny country like Lebanon. Once the Christians and Moslems settle their feud amongst themselves we can get back on the track again."

"What will happen to the U.S. advisers that were training the Lebanese army?"

"They'll be sent to El Salvador to beef up the government's army there."

We've had good reports the Salvadoran soldier can hold his own against any fighting man in the world."

House likely to be unchanged

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Although elections will be held this year to fill all 435 seats in the House of Representatives, knowledgeable observers generally expect the balloting to produce little political or ideological change.

The identities of the candidates in many races remain uncertain because filing deadlines have not arrived yet in many states. In addition, unexpected events could drastically alter political expectations in the coming months.

But the current assessment of experts in both major parties is that there are likely to be only 50 or fewer House "battle grounds" in 1984, compared with approximately twice that number of fiercely-contested seats in recent years.

Democratic strategists optimistically predict a net gain of five to 10 seats. This forecast is contingent upon Democratic victories in a number of Southern districts where Republican incumbents are retiring and where there is a relatively high proportion of black voters.

Republican strategists are hopeful of a net gain of as many as 10 to 20 seats. This would require victories in numerous targeted districts where first-term House Democrats were elected by narrow margins in 1982.

Neutral observers, however, expect a swing of no more than five to 10 seats in either direction, a sharp contrast with 1982, when the Democrats enjoyed a net gain of 25 seats, or 1980, when the Republicans were the beneficiaries of an even larger net gain of 34 seats.

The Democrats currently dominate the House by a 267-167 margin (there is one vacancy.) The Republicans privately concede that they not only have no chance of gaining actual control, but also will not be able to resurrect the ideological coalition which gave President Reagan working control of the House in 1981 when conservative Democrats joined Republicans in supporting his programs.

Even a strong showing by Reagan at the polls will not necessarily help Republicans improve their position in the House. Recent history indicates that even when voters overwhelmingly re-elect a president to a second term they do not provide similar support to his party's House candidates.

On the other hand, when voters reject a president seeking re-election, they typically punish his party's House contenders as well. "If... Reagan's re-election prospects start to unravel," says conservative political analyst Kevin

Phillips, "the impact on GOP congressional hopefuls could be grim."

An analysis of individual House races suggests that there probably will be only about a dozen contests in which incumbents of either major party are seriously challenged in primary elections this year.

The most likely prospects for such contests are in Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Texas.

One primary contest almost certain to attract considerable attention will take place in Massachusetts' 10th congressional district, where Democratic Rep. Gerry E. Studds is seeking re-election. Last year Studds acknowledged that he is a homosexual and had an affair with a congressional page. He is expected to be opposed by several Democrats.

In the general election, there could be as many as four hotly-contested House races in North Carolina and two apiece in Illinois, Minnesota, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Texas.

States where one House race is likely to be lively include Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Mississippi, New Hampshire, New Mexico, South Carolina, Utah and Virginia.

The House, however, is by far the most stable venue for practitioners of politics on the federal level. No president has served two full consecutive terms for almost a quarter of a century and fewer than 75 percent of all incumbent senators seeking re-election in recent decades have been victorious.

Incumbent representatives seeking re-election, however, have enjoyed a success rate of more than 90 percent in recent decades - and this year's elections are likely to reinforce that trend.

Steelworkers seeking imported steel quotas

HOUSTON (AP) — The U.S. steel industry, reeling from the effects of inexpensive foreign steel, wants Congress to limit imported steel to 15 percent of the American market by establishing quotas.

And to dramatize the push for legislation to slap quotas on foreign steel, a tractor-trailer rig carrying two symbolic pieces of steel is heading from Texas to other major steel manufacturing centers to collect signatures for delivery two months from now in Washington.

"We hope that tens of thousands of our fellow citizens will see it on its long journey to Washington," Ed Bell, United Steelworkers District 37 Director, said at a news conference Thursday at an abandoned Houston steel plant. "We can only hope that they translate their concern to their representatives in Congress."

"What we send them is cold steel — symbolic of the dashed hopes and aspirations of thousands of working people and other thousands who depended upon the prosperity of steel in America."

Steelmaking in this country is down 25 million tons from a peak of 160 million tons in 1977 while steelmakers abroad have expanded far beyond the world's ability to consume. U.S. Steel Corp. Chairman David M. Roderick said in a statement released Thursday.

Employment is down more than 40 percent and imported steel use in the country for 1983 topped 22 percent of the market, costing 75,000 steelworkers their jobs, he said.

"Our industry is now in a state of accelerated self-liquidation. We had a $5 billion net operating loss carried forth at the end of 1983," James F. Collins, executive vice president of the American Iron and Steel Institute, said.

Collins cited a Wall Street analysis by Merrill Lynch that shows steel from Europe should cost $465 per ton while Japanese steel should cost $500 per ton. A Commerce Department survey, however, indicated the steel was being sold at $403 per ton in 1983 and $378 in the first quarter of 1984, Collins said.

"Everybody operates from a protected home market except those steel manufacturers in the United States," he said. "We have tried and tried and tried to solve this problem through U.S. unfair trade statutes. It has not worked for us. It has reached the point where we need a blunt instrument."

The 15 percent quota, part of a proposed Fair Trade in Steel Act now before Congress, would limit imported steel annually over the next five years. Fifteen percent would represent the level foreign makers achieved in the mid 1970s, he said.

The campaign calls for steelworkers in the nation's industrial belt to sign the final half-ton steel beam produced at Houston's Armco Inc. plant — site of the Wednesday news conference — and a 38-foot section of 16-inch steel pipe made at a Lone Star Steel Co. plant near Dallas. The two pieces of steel, pulled by the tractor-trailer rig, began the 3,500-mile journey from the Armco plant, which was shut Jan. 27, leaving 4,200 people jobless. Two months from now — after stops in Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Illinois, Alabama, Georgia, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland — it is to be

Phone charges higher than air fares

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Travelers abroad this summer could learn an amazing fact of life — that just one telephone call might cost nearly as much as their air fare.

An Oakland, Calif., executive called his office from Barcelona and paid more than $500. A government official called Washington, D.C., from Beirut and was charged $686. A tourist called Peekskill, N.Y., from Munich and paid $353.

The population, listed at 160,113 in the 1980 census, was just 89,653 in 1970. When Jake Whitworth moved to Arlington in 1962, he read in an atlas that his new home was a small town of 10,000. Whitworth became the city's 50,000th resident, and helped celebrate the passing of the 200,000 mark. And Arlington may be able to handle 500,000 people, said Calhoun, city manager for the past 11 years and, city councilmen say, was responsible for shaping Arlington's boom as was longtime mayor and now U.S. Rep. Tom Vandergriff.

All calls were from hotels, and the bills were issued by the hotels rather than telephone companies.

The Oakland call cost the hotel $120; the rest was markup. The Washington call cost the hotel $270. The Peekskill call cost only $64; the hotel took a 450 percent markup.

A vacationing couple made a $39 call to the United States from Italy and was surcharged an additional $117. When they objected to the 300 percent surcharge the hotel threatened to call police.

All paid, but AT&T caught

REFUSES TO SIGN PAROLE PAPERS— Theodore Streleski, the convicted slayer of his Stanford University professor, sits in the California Medical Facility at Vacaville Thursday with his conditions of release forms he refused to sign. He was allowed to leave the prison with parole officers but was returned several hours later, still refusing to sign the papers. (AP Laserphoto)

Convicted killer violates his parole to prove 'I meant it'

VACAVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Theodore Streleski, who beat his Stanford professor to death with a hammer only 5½ years ago, was back in prison today after only three hours on parole because he didn't want to say he was sorry.

The bearded, long-haired Streleski, 47, told reporters in a confused statement Thursday he felt no remorse about the killing but that he was breaking parole "as a statement against the power and arrogance of Stanford."

The unexpected move meant authorities could keep Streleski prisoner up to 18 more months and that students and faculty at Stanford — terrified at his refusal to say he would not kill again — could rest easier.

Minutes after emerging from the California Medical Facility at Vacaville, Streleski said he had decided to violate parole with a "non-violent act ... like missing an appointment" with a parole officer.

Streleski said he wanted to serve out his eight-year sentence so that when he finally is freed he'll not be bound by any parole restrictions. Parole officials had ordered the former graduate student to stay away from Stanford.

"I don't want to do anything that says I didn't mean it," Streleski said of his 1978 beating of math professor Karel deLeeuw with a two-pound hammer. "I meant it."

"I don't want to say, 'Gee, I'm contrite,' or 'Gee, I'm sorry,'" Streleski, who attended Stanford for 19 years trying to obtain his doctorate in mathematics, has said he killed deLeeuw in part to protest the way Stanford's faculty of "tenured infants" treated graduate students.

He got the maximum sentence for second-degree murder. The top penalty later was raised to 15 years, partly due to his case.

Ten minutes before leaving Vacaville, about 50 miles east of San Francisco, Streleski refused to sign routine documents and promise to report to his parole officers and take medication for an undisclosed ailment. He also declined the $200 in gate money.

These would have constituted parole violations had they occurred outside the prison, officials said.

After Streleski read his rambling 20-minute statement to reporters outside the prison gates, he was driven by officers about 40 miles to Sacramento where, at the Department of Corrections, he again refused to sign the papers, officials said.

Because the refusals occurred outside the prison, Streleski was processed for re-entry and driven back.

"There's never been a case quite like this," said Corrections Department spokesman Phil Guthrie.

Cattle scabies confirmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Animal health authorities confirmed 10 outbreaks of psoroptic cattle scabies in January in Colorado, Iowa, Nebraska and New Mexico, says the Agriculture Department.

John K. Atwell, deputy administrator of the department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said Thursday that "all infected and exposed herds will remain under state quarantine until diseased cattle are successfully treated" by dipping.

Scabies, a contagious skin disease of cattle, is caused by tiny mites which burrow into an animal's skin.

From last Oct. 1 through Jan. 31, the agency has confirmed 32 outbreaks of scabies nationwide, compared to 39 in the same period of 1982-83, Atwell said.

Sewer accident kills two workers and fells 29

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Officials kept a carbon monoxide-filled sewer pipe sealed today while they pondered how to safely investigate the site where a construction worker and a would-be rescuer were killed and 29 others were felled trying to save them.

The carbon monoxide apparently was created by a malfunctioning gasoline-powered water pump in the half-mile-long pipe. Gordon Routley, a fire protection engineer with the Phoenix Fire Department, said Thursday.

The construction worker who died had gone inside Thursday afternoon to check the pump, and when he didn't emerge, others went in to try to save him. In all, 31 workers and firefighters were overcome by fumes and heat exhaustion, officials said.

The federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration sealed the entrance at a Papago Freeway construction site after the accident, Routley said.

"We really can't tell at this point what happened," he said.

Routley said the pumps are usually left unattended for several days, and two workers had initially entered the pipe to service the devices. Neither was wearing a gas mask.

"Somebody made a mistake," he said. "They should have never gone in there without breathing apparatus. It was like committing suicide."

Other workers at the site identified the two workers as Danny Van Zandt, 20, of Phoenix, and his father, Emmett, also of Phoenix.

When his son was stricken, Emmett Van Zandt was able to get out of the pipe and summon other workers, who called the Fire Department, said John Surratt, a backhoe operator.

J.C. Hines said he was one of four workers who traveled the length of the pipe in an attempt to save Danny Van Zandt.

Hines said he and other workers were met in the pipe by Gordon Willis, 26, a state highway inspector who had come through a manhole cover about 300 to 400 feet from where Danny Van Zandt was.

"We started to pull him (Danny) out. We got hold of him in the water and started dragging him out. Gordon went down in front of us and was yelling for help," Hines said.

Hines said the workers thought Van Zandt was already dead, and instead began pulling Willis out, but he was too heavy.

Hines said he told the other workers, "If we don't go now, we won't make it."

In the meantime, firefighters donned special suits and gear and entered the pipe, which is 6 to 8 feet in diameter. They found Van Zandt and Willis, but were running out of air by the time they got out, Routley said.

The Van Zandts and another worker were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital and Medical Center, where Danny Van Zandt was pronounced dead. The elder Van Zandt and the other worker were treated and later released, an emergency room supervisor said.

Willis, five other construction workers and 13 firefighters were taken to St. Luke's Hospital, where Willis was pronounced dead.

Man hospitalized after alleged torture by wife

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — A frail elderly man is hospitalized today after enduring three days of torture from his 77-year-old wheelchair-bound wife, who beat him with a cane and abused him to keep him from falling asleep, authorities said.

"I've been on the police force for four years and I've never seen anything as bizarre as this," said investigating patrolman Michael J. O'Brien.

Eighty-year-old Carlos Mello was in serious condition at St. Luke's Hospital with what police described as swollen genitals and bruises covering his arms and legs.

O'Brien said Mary Ana Mello denied that she beat her husband.

"No, he must have fallen out of bed," O'Brien quoted her as saying.

An innocent plea to a charge of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon was entered at an arraignment Thursday for Mrs. Mello. At a psychiatrist's recommendation, Judge John A. Markey sent her to Taunton State Hospital for 20 days of evaluation, postponing her case to March 27.

Firefighters in a station next to the Mello home said the man was frail and less than 5 feet tall. They said his wife is larger.

O'Brien called Mello an "old man who has lost his strength" and said Mrs.

Mello, although confined to a wheelchair, was a "healthy woman."

Mello accused his wife of constantly hitting him with a walking cane, glass vase and other objects over a three-day period that ended Tuesday, a police report said.

"Mr. Mello also said that his wife did not allow him to sleep during this same period, and when he tried, she grabbed his genitals (and) pulled, squeezed and twisted them until he could not stand the pain any longer and he would just stay awake," the report stated.

"Mr. Mello said this is not the first time that (his) wife had done this, but these three days have been the worst it has ever been."

O'Brien said in his report that Mello's left foot was swollen to almost double its normal size and that his genital area was "swollen to the size of a small balloon."

According to police, an unidentified caller summoned an ambulance to the Mello home Tuesday night, and emergency medical technicians notified the police after Mello told them he had been beaten.

O'Brien said he questioned Mello at St. Luke's on Tuesday but said he did not learn the cause of the fight because the man so exhausted he "dozed off a couple of times while speaking."

The Mellos shared a street level apartment in a two-story house.

Fire Lt. Donald Pinto said he sometimes heard the couple arguing as late as 2 a.m. or 3 a.m. and that firefighters sometimes were called when Mrs. Mello fell out of her wheelchair or bed.

Crucifix revolt spreads

GARWOLIN, Poland (AP) — A "crucifix revolt" has spread in the Polish countryside as students challenged riot police and gained the support of Lech Walesa in their defiance of Communist officials who removed crosses from classrooms.

Hundreds of high school students clutched crosses in the Roman Catholic Church of the Transfiguration as Garwolin's parish priest, Stanislaw Binko, shouted from his pulpit during a Mass Thursday: "There is no Poland without a cross!"

"They were not Poles who came against our innocents with gas and sticks and shields and guns. They were the enemy!" he said. "The cross will lead you to victory!"

The Mass, and the takeover of a nearby agricultural school by angry students Wednesday, marked the most significant student unrest since the Communist government declared martial law in 1981 and suspended Solidarity, the independent union founded by Walesa.

No one has been reported arrested or injured so far in the confrontation between youths and police in the farming region 40 miles south of Warsaw.

The crucifix controversy began three months ago when the director of the Stanislaw Stazik Agricultural School in Mietno, Ryszard Dominski, removed crosses from seven lecture halls.

Students and parents kept replacing the crosses, but Dominski kept removing them until Wednesday, when the protest began.

Authorities closed the school after more than 400 of the school's 600 students occupied it in protest. The youths gave up their occupation of the school late Wednesday after the "Zomo" riot police were called in.

At one point in the drama, police cornered the Stazik students in a cemetery halfway between the school and the Church of the Transfiguration. The students summoned priests by ringing a bell in the graveyard, and the clergymen negotiated their release.

Walesa said he was "watching the situation in Garwolin very closely" from his Gdansk, the Baltic port city which is his home. "They can expect help from me, and not only me, if they need it."

"It is good there are people determined to defend the faith," said Walesa, a Catholic, who won the Nobel Peace Prize last year for his efforts in leading Solidarity.

Xerox opens plant in Mexico

AGUASCALIENTES, Mexico (AP) — Xerox officially opened its new Latin American plant here Thursday, and a company official said the investment shows confidence that Mexico will overcome its economic difficulties.

"This plant ... was built during the harshest moments of the crisis through which the country is now passing," said Sidney Stieglitz, president of the board of advisers of Industrias Xerograficas.

there is no doubt that we will eventually overcome it," Stieglitz said.

Xerox of Mexico last year changed its name to Industrias Xerograficas.

Sexual abuse, jails

Conference on problems with children scheduled

A regional conference called "Spend One Day on Two Mage Issues: Child Sexual Abuse and Children in Adult Jails" is scheduled in Amarillo March 20.

Sponsoring the conference are the Panhandle Host Committee, the Texas Coalition for Juvenile Justice in cooperation with the National Association of Social Workers —

Amarillo Unit, the Panhandle Social Service Forum and Amarillo College.

Anita Marcus, executive director of Texas Coalition for Juvenile Justice, gave reasons for the groups' attention to these issues. "If we are serious about preventing juvenile delinquency, we are going to have to look at the terrible things that happen to kids which may lead to their breaking laws."

"Two such problems we need to address are the children who are sexually abused; they often run away, become involved in juvenile prostitution, and in criminal behavior. The other problem is the damage to children who are put behind bars in adult city and county jails. Many who are not criminal going in, will probably be when they come out," Marcus said.

The Panhandle conference for 150 professionals, public officials, community leaders and volunteers will feature several prominent Texans as speakers. Among the speakers are to be Bill Anderson of Austin, executive director of the Texas Juvenile Probation Commission. This commission is providing assistance to Texas communities responding to federal mandates and to recent federal court decisions regarding removing children from adult jails. Bill King, also of Austin, and juvenile public defender of Travis County will address the participants.

Judge Jerry Shackelford, chairman of the Host Committee and 320th district court judge, will moderate the day's conference. Amarillo speaker, Gerald Rogers, is to give an overview of the dimensions of the growing problem of child sexual abuse. Other speakers include Jane King, chief juvenile probation officer of Potter County; Danny Hill, Potter County district attorney; LeRayne Donelson of Stratford, president of Region 1 Child Welfare Board; Sandra Penn and Ann Ray, both of the Texas Department of Human Resources and Anita Marcus, Texas Coalition for Juvenile Justice.

Texas Coalition for Juvenile Justice figures show 25 percent of girls interviewed over three months in eight runaway shelters and two detention centers in Texas admit to a history of sexual abuse. In 1982, without all Texas counties reporting, nearly 6,500 children were held in adult jails. Only six percent of the children held in both separate juvenile detention or in jails were accused of violent offenses. By 1985, Texas is required to remove 4,000 of those children from adult jails.

Those attending the conference plan to explore alternatives and solutions to these child problems.

For more information contact Larry Watson at (806) 376-4571 or Anita Marcus at (214) 651-9084.

Dear Abby

'Marriage, cousins and the law' — Chapter 4

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: After all those "culpas," you asked, "How does one go about rescinding not only a 'mea culpa,' but a 'maxima culpa?'"

I have the answer: "Ego te absolvo." Go your way, and sin no more.

FATHER ANDREW L.J. JAMES, ATHENS, OHIO

DEAR FATHER: Thank you. I need all the absolution I can get. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: You have published a number of letters about the first cousins from Massachusetts who got married in a state where first cousins could legally marry, and then returned to Massachusetts, which forbids such marriages.

Your first response: "A valid marriage is valid in every state."

Then Elaine Trudeau, a registrar from Boston, challenged you with a Massachusetts law that stated otherwise, and you promptly withdrew your comment with a "Mea culpa. Mea maxima culpa."

Next, one Robert Turner of Hopewell, Va., wrote to say that the U.S. Constitution upheld your original position—you were right in the first place!

Abby, Mr. Turner is mistaken.

JAMES A. MARTIN, PROFESSOR OF LAW, UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

DEAR PROFESSOR: Let's review this: First I said, "A valid marriage is valid in every state." Then Elaine Trudeau, a Boston registrar, wrote to say that I was wrong, so I apologized.

Then a Robert Turner advised me that I was right in the first place and Ms. Trudeau was wrong.

Now you tell me I was wrong in the first place—that Ms. Trudeau was right, and Mr. Turner was wrong to say that I was right.

Should I rest my case? Or take it to a higher court?

DEAR ABBY: My nephew was married and I attended his wedding. I put $200 in cash in an envelope with a note saying it was from me. I gave it to the newlyweds at the reception and they put it in the wedding box with the rest of the envelopes.

I gave cash because I remember the trouble I had trying to cash a personal check on my honeymoon, and I didn't want that to happen to them. (Do you think I should have given them a check instead of cash?) It has been a year since this wedding took place and I still haven't had any kind of thank-you. I don't know if they got the money or not.

Don't you think it is up to the parents of the married couple to make sure the kids thank the people who gave them gifts?

UPSET UNCLE

DEAR UNCLE: "Kids" who are old enough to marry are responsible for acknowledging their own gifts.

Perhaps they didn't receive it, or possibly the note that accompanied it was misplaced. A year is long enough to wait. Write or call "the kids" (leave their parents out of it) and quit guessing. And yes, I think you should have given them a check instead of cash.

DEAR ABBY: After sharing that letter about the 6-year-old who walked over to his mother, unbuttoned her blouse and started to nurse, I suggest that you publish a warning to first-grade teachers in Hawaii:

"Wear blouses that button down the front at your own risk."

Magazine is for formerly married only

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Len Harris is emphatic.

"The divorced person is not a single person," he says, and that's why he started "Single Again," the magazine for people trying to survive in the wake of a shattered marriage.

"Once you have been married, your attitudes, your ambitions, your philosophies change," the 59-year-old former scriptwriter and newsman said in a telephone interview from his Union City apartment office.

Some six years ago — about the same time he was going through his own divorce — Harris created a 40-page monthly magazine for the divorced.

At first, he called it "Divorce," but the outcry about the depressing appellation caused the change to the more upbeat "Single Again." The magazine now has a circulation of about 5,000, mostly in the suburbs south and east of San Francisco.

Harris bills "Single Again" as "the only magazine published exclusively for the divorced, separated and the widowed."

It is a mix of advice, humor, the latest in family law and — as with all magazines dealing with singles — ads from the likes of "Romantic Italian Male," "Shy Lonely Virgo," "Sincere W-M" and "Overweight But Working on It," who are willing to try again, if not marriage, at least some kind of relationship.

Harris, a native of England who's been in the United States for more than 20 years, says the magazine is designed to help divorced people regain self-esteem and resume happy, productive lives.

"The main message is, 'We know you're hurt, we know you're raw, we know you're bleeding. You think you're alone and suspended out there in space, but you're not. There are many survivors out there,'" he says.

The magazine alerts readers to some of the frequent pitfalls of life after divorce, such as "tending to see images that are not really there ... The newly divorced are particularly vulnerable. They're so eager for recognition," Harris said.

"Somebody gives you a friendly hug and you take it as a declaration of undying love. Or somebody gives you a friendly word and you mistake it for protestation of eternal devotion."

Besides aiming for the divorced, widowed and separated, Harris further narrows his readership by saying it is aimed at those over 35, mostly because older people need more support.

"The younger person is much more flexible," he says. "The person 35 upwards is a little more emotionally brittle, a little more uncertain about what's going to happen. Generally, that person is looking for suggestions or advice and counsel."

A recent issue of "Single Again" offered an article on "Important Changes in Family Law" by a Hayward family law specialist, a preview of some romance novels, an article on marriage counseling, another on "Choosing the Post-Divorce Road" and a first-person account of dating through the newspapers.

In addition, there is a list of support groups for the divorced — and the ads.

Relax in easy-to-make sling chair

By STEVIE BALDWIN

Ever since I was old enough to know that naps were a rare treat, not punishment, I've tried to take them religiously. But the harder I try to sneak one in, the further away it gets. I can't even get away with "resting my eyelids" anymore.

When I do get the rare opportunity to relax, I like to do it outdoors — weather permitting, of course. In one of my more imaginative moments, I had a vision of the perfect atmosphere for relaxing. It was fairly exotic, and sinfully luxurious, so I forced myself to compromise. After giving the matter some serious thought, I designed and built the next best thing — the PVC Sling Chair pictured here.

Though I've never seen such a luxurious and unique piece of furniture in a store, you can make your own for a mere fraction of what it would cost to buy one. The PVC Sling Chair can be made in a weekend, using our easy-to-follow plans. Plans include complete, step-by-step instructions, materials list and assembly diagrams for both the PVC frame and the stuffed-fabric sling. Also supplied is information on buying and working with PVC pipe.

To order your plans, please specify Project No. 1920-2. Send $3.95 to: Makin' Things, Dept. 79065, P.O. Box 159, Bixby, Okla. 74008. Add $2.95 if you would like our new color catalog featuring hundreds of our newest and most popular creations.

As a very special gift to our readers, we are offering FREE plans to make a Checkerboard Parson's Table. It's made of PVC pipe, with a wooden top that doubles as a checker or chess board. To receive your copy, just send a business-size self-addressed, stamped envelope and specify Project No. 558-2.

The PVC Sling Chair is attractive enough to put indoors, and durable enough for outdoors. I moved mine to the patio to avoid waking up to overnight campers in the family room. The sling chair is so incredibly comfortable, I don't bother to sit in it unless I've scheduled a nap in advance!

The back of the PVC structure reclines at a most relaxing angle. Overall dimensions are approximately 50 x 40 x 27 inches. It's constructed from lengths of straight 1 1/2 inch PVC pipe that are easily joined together by preformed fittings. I used long bolts to attach the arms to the basic frame.

Five yards of 54-inch-wide decorator fabric went into the stuffed sling. The stuffed portion of the sling is gathered and divided into sections. I sewed this portion to a flat piece of the same fabric, and used about five bags of polyester fiberfill for stuffing.

The sling has a long flap at the top, and a shorter one at the bottom. Each has a casing at the end. I inserted a length of 3/4-inch CPVC pipe through each casing to securely attach the sling to the PVC structure. The upper casing is draped over the back of the chair, and the CPVC rod is attached to the frame at the bottom.

SCHEDULE A NAP before you decide to sit down in this ultra-comfortable sling chair made of PVC pipe. The chair is attractive enough to put indoors and durable enough for outdoor furniture.

More turning to pros for their lawn care

By CHANGING TIMES
The Kiplinger Magazine
If the grass is always greener on your neighbor's side of the fence, you might find that a professional lawn care service is at the root of it.

More and more homeowners are turning their lawn worries over to the pros. Why the trend? Probably because most of us just don't like that kind of work and, comparatively speaking, it doesn't cost that much anymore to hire a lawn care firm to do it for us.

A good lawn service treats a yard four or five times a season in most locations, whereas most homeowners usually only do it twice a year, in the early spring and late fall.

Basically, a lawn care service will reseed your lawn, fertilize it and treat it for various weeds and pests. Other services, such as aeration, rolling to smooth the turf and dethatching, may be offered by some companies for an additional fee. Exact treatment varies with climate, soil conditions, and the sunny and shady areas on your lawn.

An established lawn care service will usually give you a preliminary lawn analysis before you hire it. A standard analysis will tell you the true size of your lawn, what type of grass you have, and what weeds and insects are prevalent.

Some companies may boast that their treatment is better than that of their competitors because they apply liquid chemicals. Others may brag about their dry materials. In reality, it doesn't make a bit of difference which is used.

"There's no basic agronomic difference between the two methods," says Bob Earley, publisher of Lawn Care Industry, a trade publication, "and the customer shouldn't even be concerned about it."

The price for treating your lawn will probably depend on how big it is. For an average lawn — one measuring between 7,000 and 8,000 square feet — most companies will charge about $150 for the routine four or five applications.

Fees will be higher if your grass needs special care to combat fungus-related diseases or other ailments. There's little doubt a good lawn care service can be valuable in the quest for a healthy lawn.

But pick a poor one and it can be as frustrating as crabgrass and almost as hard to get rid of if you unwittingly sign a binding, long-term contract. (Most of the better services work under signed seasonal agreements that can usually be terminated without difficulty.)

The lawn care industry is one that's on the rise. Business is increasing each year at a better than 20 percent clip. Even though overall industry revenues for services and materials stand at a sturdy $1.8 billion annually, only a small percentage of firms are considered major companies. Most are small local businesses operated by a family or individual.

Of the 35 to 40 major lawn care firms in this country (those grossing $1 million or more a year), the majority are companies with wholly-owned branches located in selected areas. Some of the largest of this type are Tru-Green, serving the Midwest, Northeast and Mid-Atlantic regions; Ever-Green Lawns, Leisure Lawn and Davey Lawnscape in the Midwest; Hydro Lawn in the Mid-Atlantic area; and Orkin Lawn Care in the Southeast.

Chemlawn, largest of all lawn services in terms of corporate earnings, is truly national — make that international — with 167 branches in over 100 markets throughout the United States and Canada.

Also highly visible in the industry are franchised operations granted by organizations with names such as Lawn Doctor, Lawn King, and Lawn Medic.

Independently owned franchises from these and other services number more than 1,000 and are found from coast to coast.

No type of service (company owned, franchised, local independent) is automatically better or worse than the others. Any firm should be checked out before you hook up with it. Some industry watchers, however, say you should be particularly careful if you're leaning toward a franchised service or a local independent.

"In some instances you don't have to know very much about lawns to get a lawn care franchise," says Dr. Jack Murray, a grass and turf expert with the U.S. Department of Agriculture. "All you need is the capital." If you want the most out of a lawn care service, you've got to share some of the load. That means, primarily, cutting and watering the grass properly.

"Homeowners have to understand that they're partners in getting optimum results," stresses Chemlawn's Lund. "They shouldn't assume the service is going to take care of everything."

Cutting is the task that often sprouts trouble. More often than not, the worst offender is a dull blade that tears grass leaves and can result in an unsightly brownish cast over the lawn.

Grass should be mowed regularly, but that doesn't necessarily mean every Saturday morning. The frequency of cutting should be dictated by the rate of growth.

"Never allow your lawn to grow to the point where you have to cut more than about one-third of the leaf," warns Murray. He says some homeowners damage their lawn's root system by allowing the grass to grow excessively high and then chopping it down to crew-cut dimensions.

Contrary to popular belief, it's not necessary to rake up clippings when you're finished mowing if you mow regularly. Just leave them where they are and they'll nourish the lawn as they deteriorate.

If you want expert information about your lawn before you call in a professional service, contact your nearest Cooperative Extension Service or Farm Advisor. These agencies are jointly funded by federal and local sources. State universities or colleges often can provide the same assistance.

JOHN MCKAY

Concert at First Baptist

John McKay, formerly associated with the James Robison Evangelistic Association, will appear in concert at First Baptist Church at the 11 a.m. services Sunday.

McKay has sung in numerous crusades across the United States and on the nationally televised outreach, "James Robison Presents." He has recorded more than 15 albums.

A former football player, winning All-State honors in high school and various NCAA honors while at Texas Christian University, McKay resigned his athletic scholarship and turned away from a probable pro-football career to go into his singing ministry.

He enrolled in the North Texas State University School of Music and was named baritone soloist with the NTSU A Cappella Choir. He won a place with the St. Louis Municipal Opera Company at the end of his sophomore year. He was later awarded a full scholarship at the Juillard School of Music in New York but refused it in order to pursue his singing ministry.

DR. HARRY VANDERPOOL

Former Pampa pastor holds Borger revival

Dr. Harry Vanderpool, former pastor of Pampa First United Methodist Church, will be guest minister in the First United Methodist Church of Borger for revival services March 18 through March 21.

Revival services will begin on Sunday, March 18, at the 10:55 a.m. worship service, with evening services at 7 p.m. Early morning services will be held from 6:45 to 7:30 a.m. March 19 through March 21, with coffee and doughnuts on Monday and Tuesday and a full breakfast on Wednesday. Covered-dish dinners will begin at 6 p.m. each day of the revival.

Dr. Vanderpool, a native Texan, is the senior minister of Central United Methodist Church in Albuquerque, N.M. He and his wife Barbara have twin sons, Phillip, an attorney in Pampa, and Patrick, production manager for 7-Up Bottling Co. in Albuquerque.

He received his bachelor of arts degree cum laude from Southwestern University at Georgetown, a bachelor of divinity degree from Perkins School of Theology at Dallas, and his doctor of divinity degree from McMurry College at Abilene. He also has studied at the University of Texas at El Paso, the University of New Mexico and the Garrett Biblical Institute of Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill.

Before his appointment to the New Mexico Conference, he served churches in the North Texas and Northwest Texas Conferences. In addition to churches in Littlefield and Snyder, Dr. Vanderpool was minister at Pampa from 1964 to 1967. From 1967 to 1970, he served as pastor of Polk Street Methodist Church in Amarillo. He was also an exchange pastor to Ipswich, England.

His international travels have included most European countries, Israel, Jordan, Puerto Rico and many countries in Africa and South America.

Nursery will be provided for preschool children at the revival services.

Jehovah's Witnesses to hold circuit assembly

Jehovah's Witnesses will open a two-day Circuit Assembly at the Amarillo Civic Center auditorium Saturday. The program will stress the theme, "Speak the Word of God Fearlessly."

Elmer Reed, local minister of Jehovah's Witnesses, said, "This is a semiannual event that will attract over 1800 delegates from 20 congregations in northeastern New Mexico and the Texas-Oklahoma Panhandles."

Frank R. Bartell will be the assembly overseer assigned to this area by the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York. Bartell has been an ordained minister for more than 30 years. He and his wife have served in 23 states in full-time ministry. He presently travels in the areas of West Texas, New Mexico and Arizona.

Assisting him with the Circuit Assembly is David Binkley, Circuit overseer, who concentrates on the interests of Jehovah's Witnesses in the Texas Panhandle and parts of Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Both Bartell and Binkley have been working with the Plainview congregation this week. They will arrive in Amarillo today to finalize arrangements for the assembly.

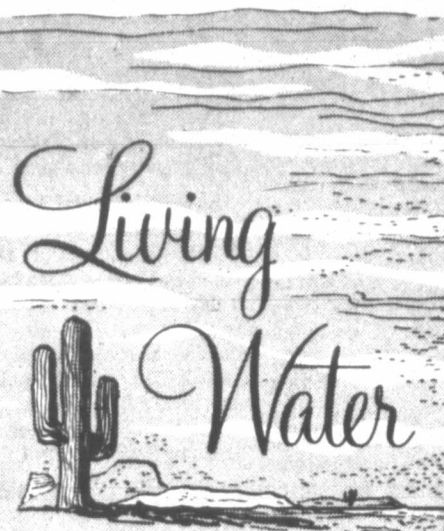

At the Kingdom Hall in Plainview, Bartell spoke of the coming event. The program for both days will emphasize the doing of God's will in every aspect of a person's life.

Bartell will be the featured speaker at 2 p.m. Sunday. His topic will be "Why Submit to God's Rulership Now?" He said submission to God's rulership is the greatest issue facing people of all nations today.

Saturday's program begins at 9:55 a.m. and closes at 4:15 p.m. Sunday's meetings last from 9:55 a.m. to 4 p.m.

All sessions are open to the public.

Join Us In Worship IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

What vision this living water would be to a desert wanderer! The nomad and the lonely prospector may dream of running water, but they depend on wells and canteens for their meagre day to day supply.

Most people dip their little store of joy in life from an evasive source and try desperately to store enough to last until the next oasis. What a vision a living eternal source of joy would be to them. Why, they would say, it's like being born again; like having a new life!

Christianity says that deciding to trust in God and trust in the day by day life He gives is like finding living water in the desert. And more, he who drinks from this water will never thirst again. Come to Him then who gives you life. Trust Him and live.

Is something wrong with your life — an inner restless dissatisfaction? The answer to every human problem comes only from God our Maker. He alone can forgive and reassure. Through the church God has committed the provision and proclamation of His forgiveness and redeeming love. Without a church relation no one is securely related to God. Everyone should be in the Church and the Church should be in everyone!

Americanization of Europe, from fast food to jogging

By MORT ROSENBLUM
AP Special Correspondent
BEAUNE, France (AP) — "Ketchup?" echoes a teen-aged French counterjumper, fixing her customer with that haughty stare reserved for Americans who defile something intrinsically French. "You mean ketchup?"

The word "ketchup," like "software" and "hard rock," is a staple of a growing lingua franca that spans borders and societies, the language of a new American-accented omniculture engulfing Europe.

A galloping Americanization now reaches the remote mountaintops and back alleys of the Old World, sped along by microchips, nourished by fast food and decorated by Jimmy Dean posters and Coca-Cola art.

Parisians jog — it is called le footing — in the Bois de Boulogne and Viennese ride a Texas-made mechanical bull in the shadow of the fabled Ferris wheel at Prater Park.

"We have colonized their subconscious," observes American author Paul Theroux, at a French ski hideaway, shouting over a nostalgic mangling of "At the Hop" by a French combo called the Citizens' Band.

American influence dates back generations. But the new omniculture is stateless, if rooted in the American Way. It affects how many Europeans eat, work, dress, shape intellects, create homes, relax and rear children.

Some are skeptical of the long-term impact. "True, we risk becoming a sort of Indian reservation of the post-Industrial Age," says French advertising executive Jean-Claude Nuti.

"But I think in the end the Americans will not change us deeply inside." Others call it fundamental.

"This subtle revolution is an absolute evolution, uncontrollable by any government," says Barry A. Goodfield, a California therapist who teaches psychiatrists in Europe. "It is undeniable and will change the world."

In rural West Germany, the picture is similar, with only der and die in place of le and les. The phenomenon holds, to varying degrees, from Scandinavia to Communist Eastern Europe.

Recently someone tried to open a Pizza Hut in Bulgaria, not so outrageous an idea for a country that sells 7-Up and Mars bars at its freeway rest areas.

Specialists say the move toward things American is seldom political and can flourish amidst anti-American outbreaks. "At U.S. bases in Germany, people protest missiles while wearing Coca-Cola T-shirts," says Alfred Mechttersheimer of the Institute for Peace Politics near Munich.

"Cultural colonization might transform into economic if not political dependence," Flaminio Piccoli, chairman of Italy's ruling Christian Democratic Party, told L'Espresso magazine.

After World War II, U.S. industry and investment spearheaded penetration of the American Way. Now Europeans, with their own time-is-money approach to life, are joining trends they cannot beat.

In the new Western omniculture, a backlash turned old-style Levi's into French designer jeans and made room for Perrier among the cans of Pepsi.

Turkey's coffeehouses will become youth reading rooms

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Turkey's traditional coffeehouses have served as community centers throughout centuries, successfully defying all attempts to bring them under some sort of official control.

Now a new education minister hopes to turn them into meeting grounds with a dash of culture.

In a recent statement to a Turkish wire service, minister Vehbi Dincerler announced plans to introduce "book corners" to the coffeehouses so that they could partially serve as reading rooms for the nation's youth.

"We are studying the matter. Perhaps we could supply the books free of cost. This way the young people could make better use of their free time," he explained.

Most of Turkey's secondary schools and universities lack sufficient library space, study halls, recreational or sport facilities.

With 3 million unemployed who are mostly young, coffeehouses have flourished as informal youth centers.

One of the most popular in this capital city is Baba's coffeehouse near the law and political science schools. There the students exchange notes, get some homework done and consume cups of darkly brewed tea or Turkish coffee.

The regulars at Baba's, however, do not think highly of the minister's plan.

"The coffeehouses already serve as reading and study rooms for us. The minister would do better to improve existing school libraries," says Kadir Bas, 21, a student of economics.

Says his classmate, Tuncay Karaartu, "We don't come here out of choice. Our school does not even have a student snack bar or any other place for us to meet for fun or study."

Turkish coffeehouses mean many things to many people. Some find them places for idlers where time is killed with playing of cards and backgammon and petty gossip.

Others view them as indispensable and valuable, mirrors of most of the society.

In Istanbul's coffeehouses the janizaries plotted the overthrow of the sultans. The Moslem clergy condemned the houses as "dens of evil" that kept the faithful away from the mosques for daily prayers.

A safer heating system developed for Korea

By C.W. LIM
Associated Press Writer

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A maker of "yontan," the coal briquettes most Koreans use to heat their homes, believes he has come up with something that will help do away with the fuel's "silent killer" reputation. It could save hundreds of lives every year.

The severe winters of Korea demand efficient heat, and for more than 15 centuries the answer has been "ondol," an under-the-floor, radiant heating system. It functions on the simple principle of distributing the heat from a stove, usually the kitchen unit, under the floor by means of a series of flues rather than letting it just go up a chimney.

Problems arose in the early 1950s, however, when the main source of fuel switched from wood to coal. The cylinder-shaped yontan briquettes were developed, with the most popular size weighing 3.6 pounds and containing 19 holes for easier burning. The danger is that a leak in the flue system or a crack or other flaw in the floor can allow carbon monoxide — odorless, colorless, tasteless and deadly — to escape. It was especially dangerous in rooms where people were sleeping on the floor, a normal Korean practice.

Government agencies declined to give figures of those killed or left suffering from carbon monoxide poisoning, but the Korean-language daily Joong-ang Ilbo reported recently an estimated 50,000 people were killed by the deadly fumes between 1953 and 1981.

With about 40,000 personnel based in South Korea, the U.S. Military each winter uses radio and television broadcasts along with service publications to warn of the dangers of the Korean heating system. Available records showed four American citizens have died from carbon monoxide poisoning in Korea in the past 10 years.

The popularity of the ondol heating system, along with the ever-present carbon monoxide danger, prompted 57-year-old Lee Chu-won, president of the Jin Hung Development Corp., to try for a better, less dangerous briquette. He said in an interview that after a 13-year effort at a cost of more than 1.3 billion won ($1.7 million U.S.), he had developed a poison-free heat unit, a coal briquette that burns more than 90 percent of the carbon monoxide and other gases emitted by coal fuel.

Lee, who operates a yontan factory at Incheon, the port city east of Seoul, said his fuel was also treated with chemicals that kept it from giving off toxic fumes.

"By adding some chemicals," he said, "it burns hotter. It burns like liquefied natural gas."

Other benefits, he said, are a longer burning time, quicker combustion and a price competitive with regular yontan.

He says the newly developed fuel still "cannot guarantee complete safety" against possible carbon monoxide poisoning, but it is a great improvement.

College basketball roundup

Turpin ties SEC conference scoring record as Kentucky races past Georgia, 92-79

HOYAS ADVANCE— Georgetown's Patrick Ewing (33) takes a pass as Providence's Otis Thorpe, left, and Sean Canty (22) look during quarterfinal action Thursday night in the Big East Basketball Tournament. The Hoyas defeated Providence 70-50, to advance to the semifinals. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press
Melvin Turpin had one of those nights that comes along every 32 years.
Kentucky's 6-foot-11 senior center scored 42 points and pulled down 16 rebounds Thursday night to lead the No. 3 Wildcats to a 92-79 victory over Georgia and a berth in the semifinals of the Southeastern Conference basketball tournament.

Turpin's 42 points tied the conference scoring mark set in 1952 by former Kentucky star — and current athletic director — Cliff Hagen.

"I wasn't thinking about the record. I just wanted to win," Turpin said. "It just happened that I was very hot."

Hot is a good word to describe a player who shoots 18 of 22 from the field and six of seven from the free-throw line.

Turpin started the game at a pace where a lot more than 42 points seemed possible. He scored 20 of his points in the first 10:30 of the game as Kentucky opened a 35-16 lead and was never threatened.

In other games involving teams in the Associated Press' Top Twenty, No. 2 Georgetown beat Providence 70-50; seventh-ranked Illinois defeated Minnesota 53-41; No. 10 Nevada-Las Vegas downed San Jose State 70-55; 12th-ranked Tulsa edged Wichita State 86-80; No. 15 Temple crushed Massachusetts 78-54; 17th-ranked Memphis State blasted Southern Mississippi 86-58; No. 18 Louisville beat Cincinnati 62-55; and 20th-ranked Oregon State defeated California 64-60 in overtime.

Two people who didn't want to talk about the scoring mark were Turpin and Georgia Coach Hugh Durham.

Turpin kept changing the subject when reporters asked him about the scoring mark and he gave credit to his teammates.

"We had other guys hitting from the outside — Sam Bowie, Jim Master, Dickie Beal," Turpin said. "It just so happened they were coming to me inside."

Durham was upset about Kentucky going inside.

"He was playing against a 6-foot-6 guy and got his confidence up," Durham said. "What do you want me to say, that he's the greatest thing since sliced bread?"

The record-tying basket came on a short jumper at the buzzer after sophomore forward Kenny Walker gave up an open layup to let Turpin take the shot.

"The one he got the record on, Kenny made an unselfish play," Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall said. "It was a medium-range jump shot, so it was honest."

Kentucky, the regular-season champions, will face Alabama, which needed an overtime session to defeat Louisiana State 72-70, in one semifinal tonight, while Auburn, a 59-58 winner over host Vanderbilt, will face Tennessee, which also needed an extra session to eliminate Florida 80-74.

Bruce Douglas scored 15 points and George Montgomery 14 as Illinois, 22-4 overall and 14-3 in the Big Ten, moved back into a first-place tie with Purdue.

Illinois has one game remaining, when Wisconsin visits Champaign on Saturday, while Purdue ends its conference season Sunday at Minnesota.

Charlie Sitton made all six of his free throws in overtime to lead Oregon State and keep alive its hopes for a co-championship in the Pac-10. Even a tie with Washington wouldn't get the Beavers the automatic berth in the NCAA tournament as the Huskies, who beat Washington State 67-51, have not represented the conference in a longer period of time.

Tournaments
Patrick Ewing scored 18 points as Georgetown rallied from a 25-23 halftime deficit for the easy victory over Providence. The Hoyas' semifinal opponent will be St. John's, the defending Big East champion and a 57-56 winner over Boston College. The other semifinal will pit Syracuse, a 73-58 winner over Connecticut, against Villanova, which held off Pittsburgh 75-65 behind Ed Pinckney's 21 points, 17 of which came in the second half.

Reserve Eric Booker scored a game-high 21 points to lead Nevada-Las Vegas, which will face Utah State in the semifinals of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. Chris McMullin canned a rebound of a blocked shot with four seconds remaining to lift the Aggies over New Mexico State 79-77. The other semifinal will have Cal-Irvine, a 77-65 winner over Long Beach State, against defending National Invitation Tournament champion Fresno State, which defeated Fullerton State 53-51.

Junior guard Steve Harris scored 26 points to lead Tulsa to the finals of the Missouri Valley Conference tournament. The Hurricane, 26-3, didn't take the lead for good until the second half and had to overcome an outstanding performance by Wichita State's Xavier McDaniel, who had 35 points and 14 rebounds. Tulsa will face Creighton, a 69-59 winner over Illinois State, Saturday for the title.

Terence Stansbury's 15 points led Temple, 25-3, over Massachusetts and into an Atlantic 10 semifinal game against West Virginia.

Tech women defeat Arkansas, 56-43

HOUSTON (AP) — The other teams in the Southwest Conference Women's Basketball Tournament hoped the top-ranked Texas Longhorns would show some effects of losing All-American junior center Annette Smith last week.

The Longhorns dashed that idea by breezing past Houston 96-76 in a semifinal game at Hofheinz Pavilion Thursday night.

Texas Tech downed Arkansas 56-43 in the other semifinal game and will meet the Longhorns in Saturday's championship game at 2 p.m.

Smith was the fifth Texas player to suffer a knee injury this season.

"I was beginning to feel like there was a cloud over my head," Texas Coach Jody Conradt said. "Now, I think I've got to be the luckiest person alive. I've got the kind of people who grab your heart and won't let go. They give everything they can and play as hard as they can play."

The Smith family was represented by sophomore Audrey Smith, who hit a career high 23 points on eight for eight shooting from the field.

"I knew I had to contribute a lot," she said. Leeta Whaley, sidelined since December with a knee injury, came off the bench in the first half to ignite a 27-8 spurt that buried the Cougars, now 16-12.

"I don't think there was any more pressure on me after Annette went out," said Whaley, who received medical clearance to play on Wednesday. "Everybody gave the little bit they could."

Nazareth advances, Dimmitt falls in boys' state basketball tourney

AUSTIN (AP) — Fort Worth Dunbar, 38-0, brings the only perfect record in Class 5A against defending state champion Bryan, 27-8, tonight in the spotlight game of today's play in the Texas high school boys' state basketball tournament.

Class 2A also has an unbeaten team in the tournament Shelbyville will throw its perfect 31-0 mark against Itasca, 21-8, in today's opening game at 9:30 a.m.

Somerville, 28-6, and Morton, 27-2, were paired in an 11 a.m. contest in the other 2A semifinal.

Saturday's championship brackets are already set in the three other classifications.

In Thursday's round of six state tournament games, Snook beat Teneha 56-45 and Nazareth defeated Ponder 53-47 in Class A semifinals. New Boston edged Dimmitt 60-59 and Hardin-Jefferson beat Sweeney 59-55 in 3A semifinals, and Corpus Christi Flour Bluff held off Jacksonville 46-43 and Port Arthur Lincoln thumped Cleburne 51-44 in 4A semifinals.

The winner of today's 8 p.m. game between Dunbar and Bryan will meet the winner of a 4 p.m. clash between San Antonio Fox Tech, 35-5, and Houston Memorial, 30-7.

Dunbar Coach Robert Hughes, who is making his fifth trip to the state tournament, said he thinks his club and Bryan are a lot alike.

"Neither of us has a lot of big men. They have some good jumpers and some good outside shooters. And we both like to run the ball. It should be a fast-paced game. The price of a ticket will be a bargain," Hughes said.

Whoever wins will be the favorite to win it all, Hughes said he, for one, wouldn't care who his opponent is if the Flying Wildcats get past Bryan.

"We know we have to win two games. It doesn't matter who they are against. We have two more to go," Hughes said.

Port Arthur Lincoln 51, Cleburne 44

Walter Senegal's back-to-back steals and lay-ups in the fourth quarter helped push Port Arthur Lincoln past Cleburne in 4A. Lincoln led by only 36-34 with 3:30 to play when Senegal got his first crucial steal and followed with the lay-up for a 38-34 advantage.

A half-minute later, Senegal duplicated the feat to put Lincoln up by six — too big a lead for the turnover-prone Cleburne team to overcome. Chris Hall, who hit just 5 of 14 shots, led Cleburne with 10 points.

Dimmitt, champions in 1982 and 1983, got the ball back on a traveling call with three seconds remaining, but McDonald's long shot at the buzzer was far off target.

Ben Griffin had 20 points for New Boston, 32-0, which has won its last four games by a total of eight points.

Dimmitt, losers of 13 games going into the tournament and only a runner-up in its own district, lost high scorer Brad Holcomb on his fifth foul with 56 seconds to go. Holcomb finished with 22 points, and McDonald had 17 for the Bobcats.

Hardin-Jefferson 59, Sweeney 55

Hardin-Jefferson defeated Sweeney in the other 3A semifinal by holding off a late charge after Sam Williams, its leading scorer with 23 points, fouled out. The Hawks led by 50-45 with just under four minutes to play when Williams went to the sidelines.

David Martel took charge, however, scoring the next six points and, with Sweeney going for a score-tying shot at 57-55, stole the ball and passed to teammate Rocky Rocquemore for the clinching field goal with only 10 seconds to play.

Martel, who jumps center at 5-11, scored 18 points. Williams had 16 rebounds, only seven fewer than the entire Sweeney team. Bennett Fields scored 17 for Sweeney's Bulldogs. Donald Lemon had 14 and Michael Houston 13.

Nazareth 53, Ponder 47

Nazareth, seeking its first championship, broke a 35-35

tie with Ponder on Mark Huseman's 10-foot basket with 1:48 remaining in the third quarter, and Ponder never caught up in the other 1A semifinal.

The Swifts scored their final 10 points on free throws, beginning midway through the final period, and outscored Ponder 13-1 on free throws for the game.

Nazareth was whistled for only six fouls and Ponder 17.

Huseman scored 12 points, including 10 in the second half, and Russell Hoelting, a bespectacled 6-0 junior who jumps center, pitched in 11.

Steve Pennington scored 15 for Ponder and Mike Lee 11 against a Nazareth defense that has allowed more than 50 points in a game only once in a 33-2 season.

Snook 56, Teneha 45
Snook, 36-2, seeking to extend its record of six consecutive state titles, is known for a full-court defense that forces mistakes, but beat Teneha in a 1A semifinal game despite 24 turnovers of its own.

everything they can and play as hard as they can play."

The Smith family was represented by sophomore Audrey Smith, who hit a career high 23 points on eight for eight shooting from the field.

"I knew I had to contribute a lot," she said. Leeta Whaley, sidelined since December with a knee injury, came off the bench in the first half to ignite a 27-8 spurt that buried the Cougars, now 16-12.

"I don't think there was any more pressure on me after Annette went out," said Whaley, who received medical clearance to play on Wednesday. "Everybody gave the little bit they could."

Rangers blanked, 5-0

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Bob Welch and rookies Orel Hershiser, Rich Rodas and Carlos Granillo combined on a four-hitter Thursday as the Los Angeles Dodgers recorded their first exhibition baseball victory, blanking Texas 5-0.

Ken Landreaux led an eight-hit Los Angeles attack with two doubles. Candy Maldonado, Pedro Guerrero and rookie third baseman German Rivera also had two-base hits for the Dodgers, who are 1-2 in the spring.

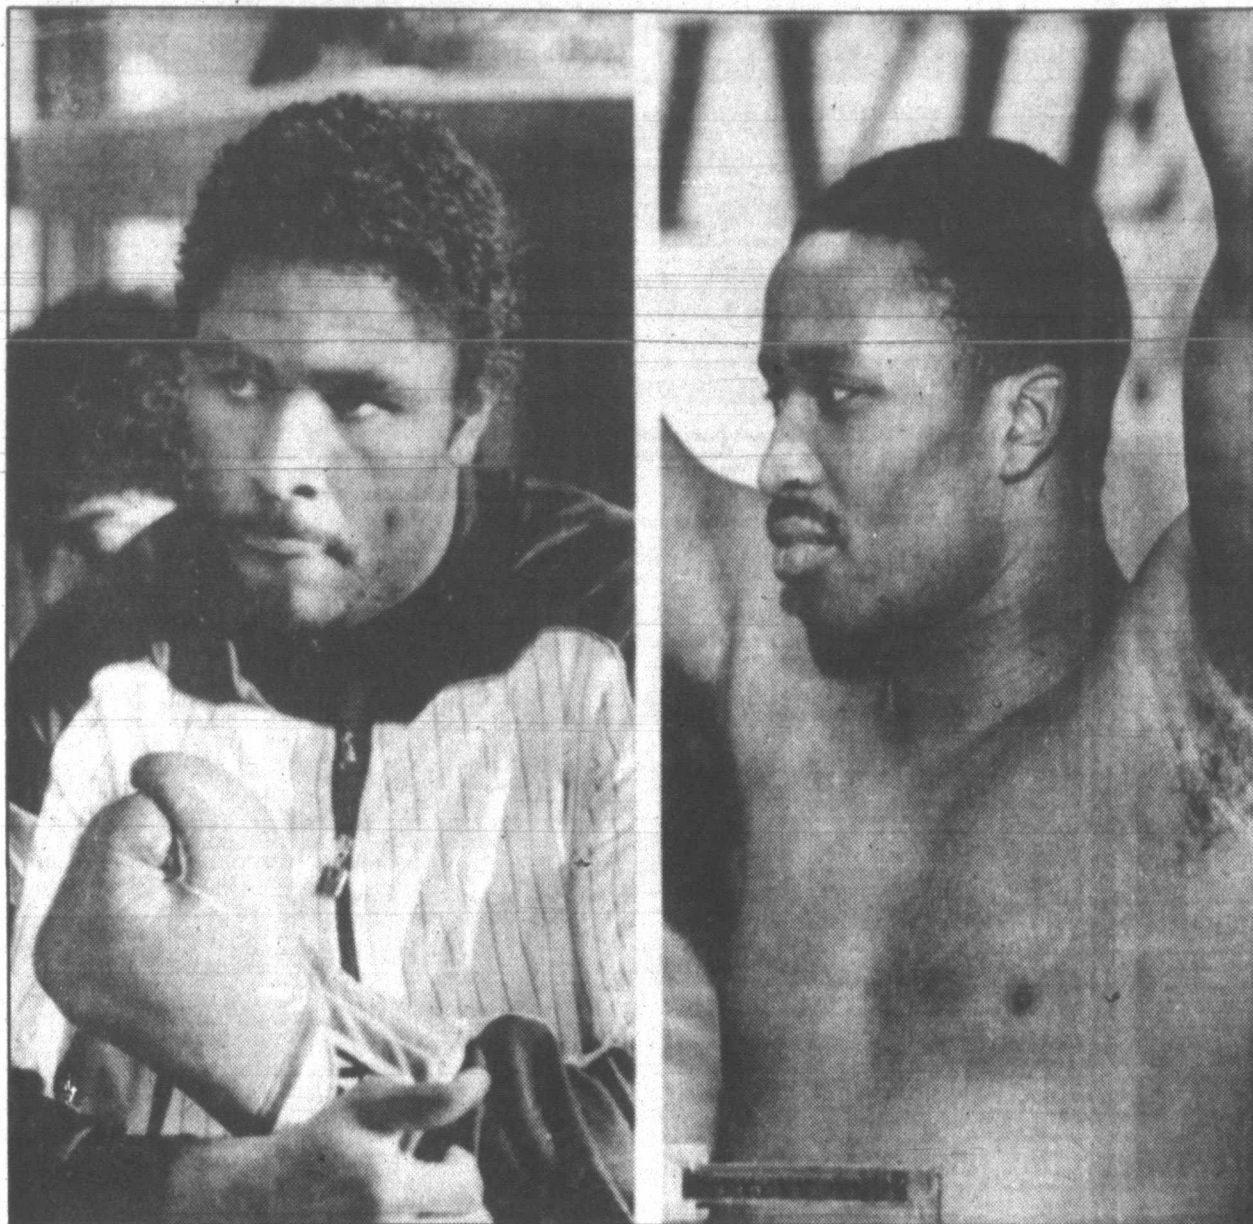

Welch, who allowed one hit over the first three innings, was the winning pitcher. Al Lachowicz started for the Rangers and took the loss. Lachowicz gave up only one hit in three innings, but it was a run-scoring double by Landreaux in the first.

An RBI double by Maldonado and a run-scoring single by Rivera off Dave Schmidt made it 3-0 in the fourth.

The Dodgers got their final two runs in the seventh off veteran non-roster hurler Jim Bibby on a run-scoring double by Guerrero and an RBI single by Mike Scioscia.

The loss dropped the Rangers to 0-2.
