Suspect arrested in assault

A 22-year-old Pampa man was arraigned Saturday morning in connection with an alleged rape involving an 18-year-old woman early Wednesday morning

Loyd Dean Remy, 1321 E. Foster, was charged with burglary of a habitation with intent to commit sexual assault. according to Pampa Police Department Lt. J. D. Laramore.

Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge set bond at $20,000 late Saturday morning Remy was then transferred to the Gray County Jail. where he remained Saturday night in vieu of board.

The suspect was arrested at his home about 9 a.m. Saturday by Detective Ronnie Howell on a warrant for the charge. Remy was brought to the police station for questioning, then escorted by Det Howell and Laramore before Justice Prestidge at the Gray County Court House for the arraignment and setting of the bond.

Laramore said investigation is continuing in regard to the alleged attack which began about 1 a.m.

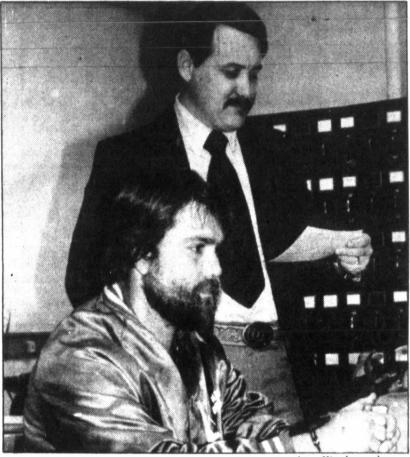

The young woman told police she had unlocked the front door of her residence in northeast Pampa to put out a cat while her husband was working a night

Before she could close the door, a man wearing a nylon stocking over his face and socks over his hands pushed his way into the victim's home, police reported

The teen-age housewife told police she battled the rapist to prevent his attempts to rip off her clothes. But the man delivered two blows to her face and commanded her to "shut-up or

Calm 'Candy Man' 'forgiving' in death

Ronald Clark O'Bryan calmly forgave the people who put him to death and asked for God's blessing moments before he was executed by injection early Saturday for the murder of his 8-year-old son with poison Halloween

O'Bryan, 39. asked "God's forgiveness for all of us" and then yawned, gasped and then was still within minutes after deadly drugs started flowing into his body.

Within hours of the execution, medical technicians followed O'Bryan's final instructions - the removal of his eyes for transplantation.

He was pronounced dead at 12:48 a.m., 10 minutes after the execution began in the Texas death chamber at a Huntsville prison. His body was quickly taken to the Harris County Medical Examiners office in Houston for autopsy and removal of his eyes.

A sister-in-law said the family felt "a definite sense of relief", but that "any tears that we have" are for O'Bryan's murdered son, Timothy Marc.

O'Bryan, nicknamed "the Candy Man" by prison inmates, was convicted of the 1974 Halloween murder of his son by cyanide-laced trick-or-treat candy.

The execution process began shortly after midnight when O'Bryan was led from a holding cell eight steps from the death chamber. He was strapped to a hospital gurney and needles were inserted into his arms.

The execution chemicals, released by an unseen hand from behind a one-way mirror, quickly took effect as they flowed down a tube into the condemned man's arm

O'Bryan was the third Texas inmate to be put to death by lethal injection and the second in March. James David Autry was executed March 14.

A crowd of nearly 300, mostly young people, cheered as witnesses emerged from the prison. Some of them had waved the type of candy O'Bryan had used to kill his son

Prosecutors claimed that O'Bryan adulterated five Pixy Stix, a powdered confection packaged in a tube, with cyanide and then handed them to his children and to three others during Halloween trick-or-treating Timothy O'Bryan was the only one to sample the poisoned candy. He died within a short

Michael McSpadden, the Houston judge who set O'Bryan's death date, said after the execution. "The system does work. It takes a lot of time. It can be frustrating. It can work and it did work in this case Darleen Tucker, a sister of O'Bryan's former wife and an aunt of the murdered 8-year-old, said the execution brought "a definite sense of relief.

n interview from her home in Mobile, Ala., Mrs. Tucker said the family felt justice had been done

Ron was a part of our family for 10 years. I loved him like a brother," she said, but adding that "any tears we have are for Tim. He was an innocent victim of a gruesome thing. He was cut down at the age of 8.

O'Bryan's fomer wife. Daynene, who divorced him after his 1975 conviction. could not be reached for comment. although she said earlier that she "had no pity" for her former husband. She has remarried and O'Bryan's daughter, Elizabeth, has been adopted by the new O'Bryan's attorneys spent his last hours in a series of fruitless legal maneuvers, including two trips on his behalf to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The high court voted 7-2 vote Friday afternoon to reject arguments that execution by lethal injection is "cruel and unusual punishment

Minutes after that decision, a federal judge in Washington ordered the execution drugs seized by the federal government on grounds they were not approved for such use by the Food and

Argentina bailed out with U.S. assistance

WASHINGTON (AP) - With hours to spare, the United States and four Latin American governments arranged a $500 nattion dollar loan deal to help Argentina meet today's deadline for payment of interest on its staggering foreign debt

Venezuela, Mexico, Brazil and Colombia will contribute a total of $300 million. an international consortium of banks will donate $100 million and Argentina will use $100 million of its own reserves to make the payment, the U.S. Treasury Department announced

The United States will provide $300 million in bridge loans to Argentina after the South American country reaches a new adjustment agreement with the International Monetary Fund. the department said

Argentina, burdened by a foreign debt of $43 billion, is behind in its payments by $2.7 billion. Principal and interest payments coming due on that debt in 1984 total $21 7 billion. Argentine officials have said

According to a Treasury Department spokesman, the Buenos Aires government needed $500 million immediately to pay overdue interest to banks, with less than half of that owed to American institutions.

Beyond the short-term rescue. Argentina is negotiating a more comprehensive aid package from the International Monetary Fund

Democrats shun Kentucky for New York

By JERRY ESTILL

Associated Press Writer Democrats caucused Saturday in Kentucky to pick 53 delegates to the national convention, but the party's three presidential candidates focused on New York in search of votes in Tuesday's primary there Gov. Martha Layne Collins and other Kentucky party leaders pressed for mostly uncommitted delegates, but strong efforts were being made by hackers of Walter Mondale, Gary Hart and the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

Mondale showed the most early strength and was expected to do well with support from labor and teachers, both powerful in party circles State party Chairman Joe Prather that about half the 53 "pledged" delegates among the total 63-member delegation will be uncommitted. Caucuses also were being held in the Virgin Islands, where voters were choosing three delegates But the candidates remained in New York, as they have most of the time since the Illinois primary nearly two weeks ago, which allocates 252 delegates in Tuesday's primary Jackson moved up and down Manhattan trying to attract homosexuals. Chinese. Hispanic and black voters into his Rainbow Coalition. Mondale, in Niagara Falls, criticized Hart for making comments about the governments of Europe that Mondale said a president would have to spend weeks explaining, calling it another case of Hart not being "sure-footed and Hart reportedly said Friday there is a growing cynicism and distrust of government in this country similar to that in Europe. The New York Post said Hart held up Europe as an example of cynicism and "systematic encouragement of people to disregard

Hart also said the U.S. tax system is so complex there's a risk of "encouraging people to have disrespect for the government and in the process I think Europeanizing this country

Hart told the Post later he meant that 'older societies' show more

"corruption or tilting of ideology to radical extremes

On Saturday. Hart was winning praise in Rochester from astronomer Carl Sagan for his record on nuclear arms control - "His dedication to the issue has not changed, it has only strengthened — and trying to explain in Syracuse his stand on federal gun control laws

Hart says he opposes federal laws banning guns because he does not believe such legislation could be enforced He likened federal gun control laws to prohibition of the 1920s. Until now, Hart has said gun control has simply not been a high priority issue with him.

yawn, a couple of heaves of his chest and a roll of his eyes. Ronald Clark O'Bryan died 10 minutes after a mixture of drugs began flowing through his veins in the Texas death chamber early Saturday

O'Bryan was strapped to a hospital gurney as witnesses filed into the small room The 24 witnesses were separated from the condemned man by bars and a waist-high rail

As the witnesses entered, his head turned toward them He recognized several in the group by winking or nodding. He wore dark trousers a khaki shirt and jogging shoes.

His gold-framed glasses, worn during news conferences early in the week

Warden Jack Pursley asked O'Bryan

if he had any final words In a strong, calm, level and unemotional voice, O'Bryan then recited a two-minute statement in which he said the death penalty was wrong but that human beings "make mistakes and this is one of them

He said he forgave those participating in his execution and asked forgiveness from any whom he had offended in his life

He concluded the statement with To my loved ones I extend my undying love. To those close to me, know in your hearts, I love you one and all God bless you all and may God's best blessing's be always yours.

Pursley then said "we are ready and at 12:38 a m the lethal drugs began to flow. There was a slight hissing sound and O'Bryan's eyes fluttered.

Kim Manganaro, a college freshman who was his pen pal, began to cry.

At 12:40 a.m. O'Bryan gasped and seconds later there was a choking sound, as if clearing his throat. His tongue lolled about his lips briefly and then his chest heaved, rising and Ving dramatically several times

O'Bryan's eyes became slits and his stare was fixed at the ceiling. At 12:43 a m., his lips took on a noticeable bluish tint and seconds later so did his right hand, extended toward the witnesses.

REV. RICKY PFEIL ... with his latest target

Rev. Ricky goes after girlie magazines

BY JEFF LANGLEY Senior Staff Writer

WHEELER - Wheeler's most famous, or infamous, protesting preacher, who earlier declared himself a movie and theater critic. now has turned his attention to the literary world by calling for a boycott of a chain of convenience stores that sell girlie magazines.

The Rev. Ricky Pfeil, pastor of the Wheeler Christian Center, has protested 'R' - rated movies shown at the Rogue Theater and wound up on the receiving end of a pending.

The self - proclaimed movie critic turned his attention to plays last month and spoke out against a Mobeetie High School production of the play "After Midnight Before Dawn." The Moral Majority member and preacher said the playinvolved devil worship and could result in demonic possession.

Citizens of the tiny, historic Panhandle town took out a full page newspaper ad supporting the school production. They asked the Rev. Pfeil to butt out, and the show went on

Now Pfeil wants his church members and other Panhandle residents to stop doing business with the Wil - Mart stores. The preacher's newest crusade is a result of a decision by the store chain's new management to sell men's magazines in its store in Wheeler, the fundamentalist said

Greg Galloway, of Pampa, vice president and part - owner of Southwest Convenience Stores Inc. the Beaumont - based firm that bought out the 22 - store Wil - Mart chain on Jan. 31, said Pfeil is "just trying to make a name for himself

"The man's nuts," Galloway said. We're going along with business The magazines (in the Wheeler store) are under the counter. The people have to ask for them, if they want them." he added.

The vice president pointed out that the same magazines are available in most convenience stores.

The preacher said no other store in Wheeler has sold magazines displaying photographs of nude women and men for the past seven years. Pfeil said he tried to persuade the new owners of the Wheeler Wil -Mart to keep the magazines out of the Galloway said he might have considered Pfeil's request if the preacher hadn't "stepped out of bounds" and threatened a boycott at their earliest meetings. Pfeil said some of the magazines for sale in Wheeler include Playboy. Genesis, Swank, Oui, Penthouse and Playgirl.

Pornographic magazines...promote adultery. lesbianism, infidelity and illicit sex These magazines degrade women and print articles and cartoons that mock and blaspheme God. Jesus and the says a news release Pfeil sent out to announce his call for a boycott. "I don't read them. Anybody has seen them if you've been in a convenience store or airport. People involved in sex crimes feed on that stuff," Pfeil told The Pampa News.

Asked whether he had ever looked a photo of a naked woman in one of he magazines he labels offensive, the preacher acknowledged. "Well.

"It's hard not to see them. In some of them, it's on the cover," Pfeil said. "It's filthy. You don't have to look at them but just a few seconds to see that they're just a bunch of trash...You really don't have to look at them to know they're nasty." he added. 'I'm not an expert on pornography...I know Playboy is not as explicit as some of the others. They don't like you to call them pornography. But it's all against the Bible. Sex outside of marriage is sinful.

"Looking at nakedness is forbidden by God - except in one instance that between a husband and wife, Pfeil said

"I am asking people across the Panhandle to boycott these stores as a protest of this filthy material," the See MAGAZINES, Page two

TEXAS/REGIONAL

Former madam considers releasing 'trick list'

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - It came to be called mply "The List." and word was that madam Theresa Brown's little index cards categorized the sexual proclivities of sports stars and political czars, lawyers and legislators, judges and just plain folks.

Ms Brown says there were plenty of well-known white-knuckled men in October 1980 after police raided her longtime brothel, an unobtrusive yellow brick-and-wood house in a middle-class suburban neighborhood.

More than three years later, a "bitter" Ms. Brown is putting together a flea market business and deciding when to release the copy of the infamous trick list that she contends she had secreted away when the police came

And more and more, she said, she's pondering the 'seriously flawed' legal system that charged her with aggravated promotion of prostitution and ignored her customers, who also were breaking the law.

"The kids at school tease my daughter, point at her and say, 'There's the madam's daughter,'' Ms. Brown said. "I want them to say, 'There's the trick's daughter' and

'There's the trick's son.' That's the only satisfaction I

"The whole system is very discriminatory toward women," said the former madam, who asserts that she has abandoned the business. "Anyway, if a girl can give it away, why can't she sell it?

The raid on the brothel drew banner headlines and spawned almost a miniature cottage industry when word leaked about the confiscation of some 3,000 customer Hastily printed bumper stickers, T-shirts and buttons all bragged, "I made Theresa's list," and a local singer cut a record. One newspaper said, "Being a trick list suspect is 'in' this season — but only if you're not really on it.

A small community newspaper published 19 of the names "to expose the double standard," but lost a court battle to publicize the rest, supposedly causing sighs of relief among some pillars of the community.

Ms. Brown pleaded no contest to the prostitution charge, but later unsuccessfully tried to withdraw her plea "so the list could come out during a trial.

A judge sentenced her to five years probation, but the 4th Court of Civil Appeals still is considering her case.

"Everybody in San Antonio knew about my place," Ms. Brown said. "What makes me mad is that we had policemen, judges and city leaders as customers. I don't know why they shut it down when they did

"I guess that goes to show that prostitution isn't the oldest profession in the world - politics is," she said.

Ms. Brown is 50 years old now, still attractive, and struggling to raise her 8-year-old adopted daughter, who almost was taken away after the swirl of notoriety and the public backlash that followed the raid.

The former madam still lives next door to the small house that operated as her brothel for 16 years — she's rented it to one of her two sons - and the residence looks like any other on the quiet, winding street

"I'm not going to move," she said. "I want to face the music, just like the tricks will face the music when the list

Ms. Brown said she was an "ordinary" prostitute who gradually slipped into becoming a brothel 'businesswoman," even requiring references from her well-to-do clientele.

She refuses to consider whether she was exploiting her stable of girls by renting them out — $35 for 30 minutes and $250 for all night, of which she took a 40 percent cut.

"They didn't have to stay," she said. "I remember when I used to work out on the street and my place was 99 percent better than being out in 30-degree weather and by which also was seized by the police. 'Sure, there were rules," she said, "but there are rules in any job. I had to be like a mother superior to please the girls and please the tricks too." Ms. Brown said she became a prostitute when she was 28, trying to live on a $100-a-month child support check for herself and her month-old son. But for a woman so long in the business, Ms. Brown still doesn't like to spell out exactly what she and her girls did.

Ms. Brown acknowledged that the girls called her a 'drill sergeant' because of her seven-page book of rules.

Emergency workers took more than five hours Friday to recover the remains of the truck driver, Robert Lee McCool, 48, of Athens, from the burning wreckage of his brick truck.

Engineers early Saturday completed their clean-up of the highly corrosive chromic acid that leaked from one of the cars on the 51-car train.

"The truck was coming north. The train was traveling west. Apparently the driver tried to beat the train, but he didn't come close," said Malakoff Police Chief Don McCord.

Diesel fuel burned after the crash and blanketed the downtown area of this East Texas town of 2,000 with clouds of greenish-blue moke. The smoke could be seen 75 miles away in Waco. and the wreckage continued no smoulder Saturday.

Residents within a half-mile radius of the burning train, about 250 students at Malakoff Junior High School and workers at a brick-manufacturing plant were evacuated for about seven hours after the 11:30 twice-convicted swindler Billie Sol Estes that blamed the late President Lyndon B. Johnson for the killing of a federal official is a "bunch of malarky," said a retired FBI agent who investigated the 1961 killing.

Tommy G. McWilliams Jr. told the Waco Tribune-Herald on Friday that his investigation found no link between Estes and the official, and he said he remains convinced that the 1961 shooting death of U.S. Agriculture official Henry Marshall was Estes told a Robertson County grand jury on March 20 that Johnson ordered Marshall's killing because he feared the official could link him with Estes' illegal business dealings.

District Attorey John Pascall said the grand jury changed the official cause of death from suicide to murder, but planned no other action because Estes' testimony was unsubstantiated and all other parties in the case were dead.

A spokesman for Lady Bird Johnson said earlier that the former first lady does not comment on such "scurrilous attacks." Former Johnson aides denied the allegations and dismissed them as the rantings of a convicted con-man and 'pathological liar.

Paschall said he was frustrated at the dearth of information left from the 1962 investigation which was opened into Marshall's death after Estes' swindling schemes were McWilliams said his month-long investigation into the death uncovered no connection between Marshall and Estes. He also criticized the testimony of U.S. Marshal Clint Peoples, whose book discusses the investigation.

"Peoples couldn't testify to a thing in the world because he didn't know what was going on," McWilliams said, adding that he believes Peoples and Estes, whose daughter has written a book about him, are trying to benefit from the publicity generated by their testimony.

(Peoples') theory was that somebody ordered it done, but he had nothing whatsoever to base it on then and he has nothing now," McWilliams said.

Peoples declined comment on McWilliams statements. The big question at the time of his investigation into Marshall's death, McWilliams said, was whether a man could shoot himself five times with a .22-caliber bolt action rifle. The penetration of a .22-caliber bullet, McWilliams said, would feel like the prick of an ice pick. Marshall, McWilliams theorized, aimed the gun toward his heart and shot himself When Marshall "didn't realize that he had fatally wounded

Teachers, in an open himself," he tried to asphyxiate himself, McWilliams said.

McWilliams theorized that Marshall tried to inhale carbon monoxide from the exhaust pipe of his truck, making a hood with his shirt to capture the poisonous gas Asked about a motive for suicide, McWilliams said his investigation found that Marshall had been in poor health, although Marshall's family had denied such reports.

A COMMENDABLE ATTITUDE

'And when he was entered into Capernaum, there came unto him a Centurion, beseeching him, and saying, Lord, my servant lieth in the house sick of the palsy, grievously tormented. And he saith unto him, I will come and heal him. And the Centurion answered and said, Lord, I am not worthy that thou shouldest come under my roof; but only say the word, and my servant shall be healed. For I also am a man under authority, having under myself soldiers: and I say to this one, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come and he cometh; and to my servant. Do this, and he doeth it. And when Jesus heard it, he marvelled, and said to them that followed, Verily I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel." (Matthew 8:5-10.) The Centurion recognized that Jesus was one having authority. He also showed tremendous respect for Jesus and the power he had He showed humility in that he didn't consider himself worthy to have Jesus come into his house

But the Centurion's greatest attribute was his faith. He believed to the extent that Jesus could simply say the word and his servant would be healed. Jesus told him, "as thou has believed so be it done unto thee. And the servant was healed in that hour." (Matthew 8:13.)

It is sad that there is so much lacking in our faith today There is evidence that people do not have faith in the words of Jesus. For instance, Jesus said, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved: but he that disbelieveth shall be condemned." (Mark 16:16) And yet there are many who argue that a person can be saved without baptism. There is no difference in this evident lack of faith and that evidenced by the Jews in the days when our Lord was upon this earth.

While the miracles of those days have passed away (I Corinthians 13:8-9), still the need for complete and absolute faith in Christ remains (John 8:24.) Without faith it is impossible to please God (Hebrews 11:6.)

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS' TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Files on Lennon should be public

It is difficult to believe that anything more than a human proclivity to avoid embarrassment is behind the government's reluctance to release about 200 pages of documents on FBI suveillance of the late ex-Beatle. John Lennon. You'd thing the government would just release the documents and deal with the embarrassment in one burst of publicity rather than prolong the agony.

What has been rleased already under the federal Freedom of Information Act to Professor Jon Wiener is embarrassing enough. Wiener has 26 pounds of material that he says indicates a a systematic government campaign to harass and even deport Lennon in the early 1970s. Whether that allegation is true or not, it is absurd that the FBI used even a penny of taxpayers' money to generate as much as a gram of material on Lennon.

To be sure. Lennon was involved in the peace movement after he moved to the United States in 1971. There is little or no evidence, however, that he was involved in supposedly subversive organizations or that he lusted to lead a political revolution. If the FBI had wanted to know about his activities, all they had to do was call his press agent. He wasn't exactly in hiding at

For the government to claim, on top of the embarrassement that the FBI had Lennon under surveillance for a while, that to release a few more pages of information would damage national security borders on the ludicrous. The case is a demonstration of the fetish for secrecy that afflicts all too many "servants of the people in government.

In a sense, of course, Lennon was a subversive influence. He urged people through songs and public comments to question authority, to question whether war was helthy: to question whether government officials were always right. By its very nature, however, his 'subversion' was open in character. Far from conspiring in secret, he sought the widest possible publicity for his occasionally naive and foolish criticism of things as they were.

A system that claims to be open and democratic should welcome such cricitism and questions. A system that responds to open criticism with secret surveillance and a determination to keep ancient breaches of civil liberties secret years later deserves to be questioned.

Farm handouts legalized theft

things. But if they seek instant agreement, they talk about handouts. Conservatives love to rail against handouts - like AFDC. food stamps and public housing.

Some conservatives, however, are selective in their railing against ALL handouts. They are AGAINST handouts to the poor, FOR those to the nonpoor, in this case they don't have a moral leg to stand on and deserve contempt by people of goodwill

At the risk of re - offending readers who say, "I agree with you about everything else but disagree with you about farm programs," let's talk about an article in the April Reader's Digest, "Fiasco on the Author James Bovard shares a few disgusting findings: National Farms is a huge agribusiness operating in Nebraska, Texas, and Arkansas. In 1983 it received a $3.5 - million federal corn and wheat handout. Belridge Farms, a Shell Oil subsidiary, received a $2 - million federal handout linked to these same commodities. California's South Lake Farms was visited by folks from the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA). When Santa Claus' helpers left, South Lake Farms was richer by $2.4 - million worth of federal cotton.

The USDA is an equal opportunity Santa Claus giving handouts to hundreds of thousands of other farmers.

You can bet Santa didn't get the goodies from the elves in the North Pole. Get your W - 2 form and take a look in the mirror; you're the elf. These goodies are a part of Payment in Kind (PIK) where farmers were given $10 billion of government - owned (meaning taxpayer - financed) farm surplus in return for giving their promise to leave 48 - million acres idle - in total, the size of Nebraska.

PIK is an insane program. It makes sense to people like Senator Bob Dole (R. - Kan.), who is wooing farm votes. First, it idled much of the world's best farm land in a year when millions were starving in other countries. Second, hundreds of farm equipment and supply shops closed down because farmers weren't planting crops and didn't need as many supplies. An estimated quarter - of - a million jobs were lost among suppliers and farms, canning, milling and transportation workers. And for good measure, the PIK program will add $20 - to $30 billion to your 1984 food bill.

But the PIK program isn't the only farm handout; it's just the latest. When Carter left office, farm subsidies totalled $3 billion. With the fiscally "conservative" Reagan administration in office, farm handouts are a whooping $19 billion, with PIK added on Honey farmers get some $33 million of your money. Then there's the $1.5 - billion crop disaster program which encourages farmers to grow crops in high - risk areas. If the crop is destroyed, the government (read: you) pays them. That's something. PIK pays farmers NOT to grow crops on good land; the farm disaster program pays farmers to grow crops on bad lands.

The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) has found that crop disaster payments go mostly to a small number of farmers who yearly plant crops on high - risk land

There are many farm handouts: but let's call them what they REALLY are: a form of legalized theft. Essentially, a congressman tells his farm constituency, "Vote for me. I'll use my office to take other Americans' money and give it to you." Now, the congressman doesn't phrase it just that way, but the end result is the same. These handouts have been so successful in getting votes that Senator Dole is designing a plan to give farmers their 1985 handout before the 1984 elections

But let's change focus a bit. Remember the hunger flap where congressmen got on their high horses to weep about hunger in America? How can one say on television he cares about hunger while in the privacy of his office, egged on by lobbyists and other hustlers, he votes for measures to raise prices of food? Such a person is at the same time an unprincipled, hypocritcal

If any congressman wishes to debate or sue this writer for what is in this column, then like my friend Bill Simon, who told them what they were. I welcome the opportunity. And I WILL win.

Alcohol fuel may save a nation

The late Ward Walker tried to imagine what it would be like if YOU had first discovered natural gas NOW

YOU could foresee enormous potential for this new energy source, for light and heat and power.

If you had to clear with the EPA. The very idea, the bureaucrats and the scardy cats would say - piping into the homes of our nation an ordorless, colorless, poisonous, explosive gas! Why, it could be ignited by a cigarette.

Or by an electric spark..

The humanists and the environmentalists would picket your house with posters saying such things as:

HE WANTS TO BURN US UP.

HE WANTS TO BLOW US UP ...

BOMMP STPETERS BURGTIMES

PROTECT THE INNOCENT FROM THIS POISON GAS. And environmental impact studies would question the safety of removing from underground the jillions of cubic feet, predicting cities like Houston would sink into the bowels of the earth. And what would happen should a major gas line blow up! And would not the air we breathe by polluted forever by all those jets of burning

The EPA would surely say... no way.

And our natio would be poorer. Baylor University's Institute of Environmental Studies has a long - run interest in alcohol as a fuel. Graduate students there built an ethanol production unit years ago, later an industrial size unit

This larger unit took the waste from the Mars Candy Company and distilled it into alcohol fuel. That fuel powered a cross country flight by a Baylor professor Recently, Baylor's Dr. W. Merle Alexander went to Honduras, noted that hard - working people remained impoverished largely because they could not afford to mechanize their agriculture. Gasoline prices were high and sugar prices were depressed.

So Honduras remains mostly thatched huts with an average wage for the few who can find work of 50 cents an hour.

But farmer co-ops can own their own farmland in Honduras. And Dr. Alexander returned to Waco to propose donating to Honduran farmers the solar - powered equipment necessary to convert some of their cheap sugar into precious fuel.

It's on its way. Within a very few years it is conceivable that one - third of that country's sugar could produce all of its fuel; that at least one country can go from total dependence on foreign fuel to total independence.

Baylor students will go there to help get it started.

Chambers' award long overdue

President Reagan's decision to award the Medal of Freedom to Whittaker Chambers, 23 years after Chambers' death, testifies to the President's strong personal conviction as to the major service this individual rendered to his country. When Mr. Reagan made this decision, he also surely knew that the Old Left and the New Left would be enraged.

One wonders how many young Americans know about Whittaker Chambers. His book, Witness, one of the most important books ever written by an American, is not readily available. In this book, published in 1952, Chambers described the Soviet spy network in the U.S. He described it from

By all accounts, including his own, Chambers was not an attractive personality, but he had the courage to confess his role and to name those who served the Soviet regime, notably Alger Hiss, a high - ranking State Department official.

Because of Chambers' dramatic testimony before Congress, which he offered at immense cost to himself, Hiss was convicted of perjury and went to prison.

Alger Hiss was not an ordinary servant of the Soviets. He was at President Roosevelt's right hand at the disastrous Yalta Conference when Eastern Europe was surrendered to the Soviets. Hiss had the proper background and connections, including a Johns Hopkins and Harvard education, a clerkship with Supreme Court Justice Holmes, and an important post with the prestigeous Carnegie Endowment. Nevertheless, Chambers' testimony fully documented the fact that Hiss was part of a Soviet spy ring. Extensive research since the Hiss trials in the 1940s has only made it more abundantly clear that Hiss was a servant of the Russian communist dictatorship.

Many prominent liberals couldn't bear Chambers' revalations. Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson said he wouldn't "turn his back" on Alger Hiss. The liberals raged at Chambers, instead of acknowledging the fact of subversion in the U.S. government in the 1930s and 1940s. The Washington Post recently continued in that vein, sneering at Chambers as a "turncoat communist." The important thing is that personal knowledge, for this editor of Time magazine had been Chambers did turn against communism and lay bare his soul, revealing the ugly intrigues that existed in the U.S. at the time.

The Hiss case was a watershed in American political and intellectual life. An entire generation was awakened to the peril from an ideology that depended on subversion and deceit. The Hiss case undoubtedly contributed to President Reagan's political awakening. He had seen the communist cadres at work in the Motion Picture Actors Guild.

Reading Witness today, decades after its publication, is still a consciousness - raising experience. The book is a confession that illuminates a terrible threat to America's free institutions. The posthumous award to Whittaker Chambers certainly is in order.

Walking around Pampa I have noticed several things that need attention, but at this time I think the most important one may be the dumping of used cooking oil on the north side of the old Capri Theatre building

When warm weather comes, the odor and flies around the area may be very annoying as well as presenting a health hazard. I mentioned this to the city manager a few weeks ago, but it appears that nothing has been done to alleviate the problem.

I do not know who is responsible for the dumping, but I should think the city officials should not have any great difficulty in determining who is at fault if they choose to pursue the matter

Red Cross also helps

Inadvertently, Red Cross was left out of those agencies who are trying to help families who face the threat of having their utilities turned off.

Red Cross, as an agency is funded by The Pampa United Way, and in all fairness to those people who believe that we will make right decisions with their money, we would be amiss not to let it be known that a substantial amount has been expended to help with utilities.

Families with children, or even without children-people living in zero weather constitutes a disastrous situation. Whether it is Salvation Army, Good Sam, Community Action, Red Cross or others unknown-it is a caring community trying to meet those hardship in peoples' lives. that is the all-important task for all of us

Anti-drug program

To the Editor

Pampa is desperately trying to get an anti-drug program started so future generation can grow up in a chemical-free environment.

Don't leave this up to someone else. You do something now. If you're a parent, don't let this happen to your child. Don't kid yourself under an illusion that it will go away or they will soon outgrow it. While you're feeling this way, brain cells that are irreplaceable are being destroyed.

Don't be ashamed to do something. Be ashamed that they are out sampling in the drug world and you are doing nothing

Every child is a candidate to become an addict everytime he or she steps out out the door. It's all around

Towns and cities in all the fifty states are doing something and already have a head start on Pampa. Don't you think we have kept out heads in the sand long enough? More is accomplished by the careful organization of concerned individuals than by federal, state or police.

Let's get involved. Let's make our society strong again. As concerned parents, we, as members of the Drug Alochol Total Education program are meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at St. Paul's Methodist Church, 511 No. Hobart.

But she's taking the memories of a 35 - year Pampa teaching career with her when she moves to the State Home for Retired Teachers in Waco.

She will remain at her home on Evergreen for another two weeks — just long enough to say good - bye.

"I have several friends at the retirement home, two of them from here in Pampa, and they just love it. So, I

"I always got paid, I was lucky," she said, noting that her teacher salary during those years was $60 per month. When she moved to Pampa in 1937, she faced another crisis of the 1930s: the Dust Bowl.

Once or twice at school, the sky got darker than midnight, and the electricity would go out. We couldn't see the faces in front of us." she said. "In one storm, I had a candle in the cabinet and when the dust storm hit, the electricity went out and I fumbled around to find the Wall Street gives mixed review

By The Associated Press

Private and government economists hailed a new report on factory orders as a sign of further improvement in the economy, but Wall Street traders found reason for worry in the report as the stock market closed the week with only a modest gain.

In a separate report Friday, the Agriculture Department said prices that farmers receive for raw products rose 1.4 percent in March and averaged 9 percent above the level of a year ago

The Commerce Department reported that orders to U.S. factories rose 0.7 percent in February. although it revised downward its estimate of January's orders to a gain of 0.6 percent from 1.2 percent.

In another revision.

new orders for durable goods and other optimistic reports - those expected to last three years or more - actually rose 0.9 percent in February instead of falling 1.2 percent as it earlier estimated in a preliminary report.

The increase reflects industry's plans to add equipment for future production and is considered an important barometer of future business activity. The latest gain put these orders at a record $26.9 billion, topping the old mark of $26 billion set in October

'This rounds out a picture of indicators for capital spending which all look quite strong," said Robert Ortner, chief economist for the Commerce Department.

And female felons, who are committing more daring crimes than in the past, are being sentenced to stiffer

"There are increases in the number of women sent to prison, particularly first offenders," Dr. Coramae Richey Mann, associate professor of criminology at Florida State University, said in an interview. "In the past, if they issued a few bad checks, they'd get probation and a slap on the wrist. Now they're putting them away.

The courts are responding to the public outcry that people who commit crimes, whoever they are, should be punished," said Ms. Mann. who completed a study on female offenders last year. "We do have more women coming in with more violent type crimes and crimes that they've committed alone and not with a man," said Ann Downes, warden of the Virginia Correctional Center for Women in rural Goochland, Va. "Women are in positions they were not in before. They've always been breadwinners, but now more

Lucille Plane, warden of the Mountain View Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections at Gatesville,

"Women are just taking more chances," Ms. Plane said, adding that 25 percent of the 632 inmates at Mountain View were murderers. compared to 12.14 percent in

According to Dr. Rosemary Sarri, a professor of social work at the University of Michigan who has studied sentencing practices toward male offenders, women who mmit serious crimes are usually given the same penalties as men. But women convicted of less severe crimes, such as shoplifting, drug use and abuse and fraud, sometimes than men, she said. Pat Canterino, an inmate who initiated a sex discrimination suit in Kentucky, was sent to prison for being an accessory to check fraud. She was given 20 years for four counts.

Her husband was sentenced to 15 years for writing the checks. Her sentence was later reduced to the same as her husband

"One of the reasons women get longer sentences is that they plead guilty more often than men," Ms. Sarri said. "This is probably due to whether or not you have good counsel. But it also has something to do with a woman's position in society. Women tend to defer more... Women more readily accept guilt because they do that more in society.

Although women may be committing the same types of crimes as men, and serving roughly the same sentences, they are not treated the same in prison.

Many women in the nation's prisons and jails are given vocational training only in the more traditional female jobs, such as cosmetology and typing. Men are trained in the more lucrative trades, such as plumbing, auto repair and electrical work.

For jailed women, 70 percent of whom are mothers and most of them single parents, there is the additional stress of separation from their children

Most states have only one prison for women, meaning long journeys for visiting relatives in many cases, said Ms. Sarri. "To have ongoing family contact is more difficult for women than for men," she said.

According to the American Correctional Association. women are locked up in 61 state institutions. New York and California each have four facilities, Texas has three and Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky, Florida and Tennessee each have two.

All the other states have one facility each - except for New Hampshire and West Virginia. New Hampshire keeps its female offenders in local city jails and at prisons in Massachusetts and Connecticut. West Virginia lodges female inmates at the federal facility in Alderson.

Ms. Mann said female prisoners often lived under stricter regulations than imprisoned men. She mentioned institutions where women were forbidden to smoke in the dining area or to shout or use slang.

"There are all kinds of strange rules related to a woman's menstrual period, she continued. "In some institutions, you have to report when you have your period. Some institutions only dispense a certain amount of sanitary napkins. It's unheard of what they put

But female inmates are beginning to protest such treatment.

Incarcerated women have filed federal suits charging sex discrimination in Idaho. Pennsylvania and Connecticut. Complaints over a disparity between men and women in such areas as personal rules, recreationand vocational training have been voiced in other states as

In a Kentucky case settled last year, in which discrimination was found. female prisoners charged that they had been required to live under strict rules of good behavior, while male offenders were not.

If a woman obeyed all prison rules for the first 11 months of her incarceration, she could wear her own clothing, stay up beyond 9:30 p.m., make three 10-minute telephone calls a month and occasionally sit on the grass.

Vocational training in Kentucky, the women complained, consisted primarily of clerical work and furniture upholstering.

Men in Kentucky prisons were allowed to talk on the telephone at least two hours a month and had no rules governing clothing or bedtime. Vocational training for men included plumbing and TV repair.

Like men behind bars, women also suffer loneliness and the isolation of being away from family, spouse or lover. They seek solace and companionship with one another in even simple endeavors, such as a stroll.

At the Bedford Hills Correctional Facility for Women in Bedford Hills. N.Y., two women walked the perimeter of a yard the size of a softball field. They took short, even steps as they strolled with their arms around one another, heads lowered.

They circled the yard three times before stopping. "It's the loneliness that grabs you the most," one said, asking that her name not be used. "Sometimes, you

Many women devise what Ms. Mann of Florida State called a "family network system" in order to survive their loneliness. She said it was not found at men's "Women play roles and set up pseudofamilies - a father. mother, grandmother, etc., she said. "It seems to be a way of coping with the loneliness and isolation.

Only about 5 percent to 7 percent of incarcerated women engage in homosexual activity, according to studies, Ms. Mann said.

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) - His favorite story is a variation of Hans Christian Andersen's "Thumbelina.

"An old woman with no child is given a gift by a witch and it turns into a little girl," relates Ralph Wallenhorst. "Finally, a little tiny fairy king discovers her and she realizes she's not a human being at all. She had tried to be a human being but she's really a fairy just like him. They go into a flower bulb for the winter, and she grows wings. And when she comes out in the spring, she's a fairy just like him."

Authoress still inspires after all these years

By SUSAN McCARY Sulphur Springs

News-Telegram SULPHUR SPRINGS. Texas (AP) — Celia Wright wanted to be a missionary, but she stayed home and wrote essays, books, newspaper columns and hosted a 15-minute radio show. Most were on a subject of which she is something of an expert - making the most of whatever resources one has at hand

Her columns, 'The Shining Path,' an inspirational essay. and 'A Watchman Speaks,' a political-social commentary, were regular features of the News-Telegram for more than 18 years between 1948 and 1966

Her 15-minute weekly radio program, 'The Shining Hour,' was heard on KSST in the days that the local radio station called the second floor over J.C. Penny's home and later when the station moved out to a newly developing area south of town.

In addition to her columns and radio program, she has written and published works on local history and a book. 'Hobby House Ideas,' which is a collection of suggestions of things that people can do that will help fill some void in their life or as a relief from boredom.

At age 81, she doesn't pen many words now But it's not for the lack of ideas or the opinions of a social critic with a keen eye. An injury which makes holding a pen painful for any length of time has slowed her activities as an authoress, but not her ideas and observations nor her inclination to speak out.

With a slight glint of pride in her eye and an ironic tone. she remarked that just saying things that would make her popular hasn't been her aim. "I spoke out against the United Nations. When they met in San Francisco and agreed to put it (the UN) in New York, I said it would become the Tower of Babel on the Hudson. I supported Sen. Joseph McCarthy. A lot of people didn't like that. But I spoke out against left-wing organizations.

She said that she disagreed (and said so in her columns) with Eleanor Roosevelt. Although she is no longer writing on political topics, she hasn't lost her interest in current affairs. Her conversation ranged from the state of contemporary education to advertising to government. She said that she approved of President Ronald Reagan because "he has backbone. But politics and ditoria favorite subject and activity. "I love poetry and would rather spend my time reading poetry rather than editorials. even my own editorials," she added with a slight pause and an elfin smile

She turns over ideas, facts on local and national history and social commentary so that a conversation with her is like leafing through a catalog with pauses to read descriptions of items displayed on the pages, each a separate item, complete in itself, but all being a part of the whole Shifting from politics to poetry, she recalled the many small poetry magazines that were once so popular. "Some of the people lived very dull lives. Many women who lived out in the country lived a dreary existence with much hard work and little beauty. but they could fall back on their writings. Some of those writings, they would send into the little poetry magazines. she said

Some of the bits of poetry and inspirational writings that she gleaned from these small magazines found their way, with the author's permission, into her own writings or she enclosed them in cards and letters that she has sent to others by the hundreds over the years

The beauty of the English language holds endless fascination for her. She will occasionally punctuate her conversation with recitations from English poet Alfred Tennyson or Shakespeare and the Bible or even a well-loved stanza from an old hymn christian literature such as Bunyan's 'Pilgrim Progress,' are another favorite topic. Celia Wright's enthusiasm for these great works is one that she has worked to share. In the past, she said she would try to find copies of works that she had enjoyed or found especially helpful in paper back editions so she could buy several to give away. "People are hungry for spiritual food, things that they can apply in their own lives. Many out here (Leisure Lodge Nursing Home) believe in an old fashion religion. So I try to send out little devotionals as well as cards," she explained.

Young woman vows to stay in home until baby returned

By PAUL RECER Associated Press Writer FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - To Barbara Landry, it is so simple: "I want my baby back. I love her. I'm her real mother."

But to dozens of institutions round the country, that plaintive demand threatens a process that tries to satisfy the yearnings of 1 million to 2 million childless couples competing for the 50,000 healthy babies available for adoption each year.

Barbara Landry is a 19-year-old unwed mother from the Bronx in New York City. And she is part of a burgeoning movement trying to change the traditional system of charity through which babies of unmarried girls and women are put up for adoption.

Ms. Landry became pregnant last year. Rejecting abortion and abandoned by her boyfriend, she learned of the Edna Gladney Home in Fort Worth, Texas, one of the largest and best known institutions that care for girls with "unfortunate" pregnancies. The home paid her way to Texas. At the Gladney home, Ms. Landry received care and counseling, comfort and protection. In return, the home asked only that she turn the baby over for adoption and leave quietly "to start a new life Up to a point, that's what

On Feb. 10, Ms. Landry gave birth to a 7-pound, 8-ounce girl. Four days later, she signed papers relinquishing any rights to the child. The infant was delivered to the adoptive

Ten days later, Ms. Landry changed her mind. She wanted her baby back.

The Edna Gladney Home says it is too late, that it would be harmful to the child and traumatic to the adoptive parents to take the child

Ms. Landry has hired a lawyer and is refusing to leave the home until the baby is returned to her. The home tried to evict the young woman, but a judge refused to issue the order Now there is an uneasy tandoff between two powerful forces - the motherhood of Barbara Landry on one side, and legal tradition on the side of the home. A state court hearing on April 14 may settle the Gladney officials say too much is at stake to lose. Other unwed mothers are challenging the system, including a Dallas woman who won her baby back. Organizations such as Searchline of Texas and Concerned United Birth Parents are backing the challenges.

Adoption advocates say the protesting women have no legal standing.

The girls understand that once they sign the papers, it's irrevocable," said Eleanor Tuck, the executive director of the Gladney Home. Mrs. Tuck has been with the home 20 years. The mother of two children and holder of a master's degree in social work, she exhibits the glacial calm and unflappable attitude of someone who hasn't been shocked, or even surprised, in years.

But Barbara Landry was a surprise.

"Nothing like Barbara has ever happened before," said Mrs. Tuck. Girls have changed their minds, some within hours of signing the papers, she said. Mrs. Tuck has gone with some girls to stand before judges and ask that papers be canceled.

Never, however, she said, had this happened at Gladney after a baby was placed in an adoptive home.

Mrs. Tuck said the birth mothers were supposed to make their decisions before the birth. During the months of pregnancy, they receive emotional and job counseling to help prepare them for life after labor, she explained.

Mrs. Tuck said that a lawyer comes to the house at least once a month to explain the legal elements of relinquishing their babies.

"Their rights are explained to the them again and again and again," Mrs. Tuck said. She emphasized the young women were not pressured to give up their children.

Ms. Landry has a different view. She said she believed the whole Gladney process was aimed at supplying babies to adoptive parents. She said the home discouraged consideration of single parenthood.

Ms. Landry was living independently and working as a groom at Belmont Park racetrack in New York when she became pregnant last summer

The father told her to get rid of the baby. Ms. Landry said she went to an abortion clinic "with the money in my hand" but balked at "cold-blooded murder.

Her lover abandoned her She was afraid to tell her mother or two sisters. The family was active in the Assembly of God Church, and Ms. Landry said, "I was ashamed. I didn't think my family would support me. I hated myself for getting pregnant.

Depressed and filled with self-loathing, she said she found immediate comfort at the Gladney home.

'They made you feel good," she said.

Ms. Landry moved into a suite with a bathroom and kitchen, shared with another woman. The home helped her create a cover story; she told her mother she was living in Florida, working for a racetrack there. The plan was to have the baby and then return to New York. Nobody would ever know.

Ms. Landry said the home offered lectures and movies showing what a "fantastic" thing adoption was. Adoptive parents met with residents and "and told us how much they love the baby and the who gave it up." restored her dignity, she said, and made her feel good and important and right. But in the night, there was the whisper of doubt.

"I used to lay awake and feel my baby kick," she said. Early in February, at the urging of a counselor, she wrote and told her mother the truth. On Feb. 9, her sister called and offered support, but Ms. Landry still felt uncertain.

The next day, she gave birth. Four days later, she was permitted to hold her daughter for one hour. She examined her closely and took pictures. And somewhere inside, a yearning

She was presented the surrender papers and, in what she said was a state of conflicting emotions, she

'I went back to my room and cried and cried and cried," she said. Ms. Landry said she felt it was a mistake. But how could she question the people at Gladney? They had provided her with refuge and medical care and protection when she needed it most.

On Feb. 23, as Ms. Landry was preparing to leave, her sister, Maria, called.

"She said, 'We've got so much love in our family, how could you give up the baby?" said Ms. Landry. Her sisters and her mother offered Barbara and her child a place in the family home in the It was the first alternative to Gladney's she had been offered. Barbara Landry grasped for motherhood. These days, her opinion of the Gladney program is embittered. The home, she said, "takes advantage of the trust and innocence and desperation of young girls." 'They never really give you a choice," she said

Ms. Landry said she now knows it was a mistake to sign the surrender papers.

NCAA Final Four

Cougars slip by Cavaliers in overtime

Winslow, the newest brother in the Phi Slama Jama fraternity, rescued Houston from another humiliating loss, and with one thunderous dunk propelled the Cougars to a 49-47 overtime victory Saturday over Virginia in the NCAA basketball semifinals.

Winslow, a highly recruited freshman, grabbed an air ball by Akeem Olajuwon and slammed it through the hoop for the winning points that sent the Cougars into their second consecutive final.

Last year, in a 54-52 loss to similarly unheralded North Carolina State, Olajuwon, a native of Nigeria, was at the foul line when Lorenzo Charles grabbed a desperation shot and rammed it home for the winning points as time ran out.

This time, Akeem was too close to the basket - almost beyond it - when he threw up an ill-timed shot

"Akeem still has a problem under Houston's pressure, with knowing the strategy of basketball;" said Coach Guy Lewis, whose band of dunkers were given the Phi Slama-Jama nickname last year. "There are probably 25,000 American players who would have known to throw that ball out. But he was trying to shoot it.

It went up, high over the basket, and down, into Winslow's hands. The Houston freshman, leaping to meet the ball from the left side of the rim, stuffed it home, giving Houston its final points - the winning ones and a four-point lead.

"I saw it go high off the glass and thought I had to go get it," said Winslow Olajuwon said he was "just happy to be the final again. This time, we are going all the way.'

And, asked how he felt as the clock wound down and Virginia refusing to buckle

Akeem said: "Scared!

Terry Holland, the coach of a Cavalier team which was not expected to even get into the Final Four, said he was disappointed at being knocked out one game short of the final.

"Any time you come this far and have as many opportunities to win, you'd like to say you've had a good season. Maybe we can say that in two weeks. Right now, we're disappointed. We'd like to still be playing." Holland

The basket by the 6-foot-8 Winslow offset a pair of foul shots by Virginia's Rick Carlisle with 18 seconds left.

As the final seconds ticked off, Lewis threw his famed checkered towel in the air as the Cougars advanced to Monday night's final against the winner of Saturday's other semifinal, Georgetown of Kentucky unheralded and unranked Cavaliers, who were never olajuwon, a 52.5 percent foul expected to get even this far shooter - 15 percent below without three-time Player of the Year Ralph Sampson, repeatedly fell behind and,

just as often, charged back, refusing to cave in to the taller Cougars. At the close of the first half and the start of the second, they ran off 10 consecutive points to turn a 25-17 deficit into a 27-25 lead.

And, in the closing minutes of regulation play, after Houston had strung together nine points for a 41-35 lead. the Cavs reeled off eight of the next 10 points. Othell Wilson's basket off his own steal tied it 43-43 with 27 seconds left to force the overtime. Seventy seconds into the overtime. Carlisle hit a iumper for Virginia, capping the Cavaliers' eight-point run and giving them their last lead of the game, 45-43 One minute later. his field goal percentage hit both ends of a one-and-one after being fouled by center Olden Polynice. That tied it at

A little more than a minute later, Michael Young scored to put the Cougars on top to stay. Then came Olajuwon's air ball, a shot that missed everything. But Winslow was there to grab the ball and ram it through, giving Houston a four-point cushion, 49-45.

Olajuwon, neutralized in the first half when he scored only four points, finished the game with 12. Young led Houston with 17 points and Winslow had eight.

Miller and Wilson shared Virginia's scoring lead with 12 points apiece. Polynice had nine - none of them after

Lotsa hoopla abounds at

Réstaurants and bars near the Kingdome filled to capacity with basketball fans fueling up for the Final Four NCAA playoff games Saturday

Even the weather copperated to help Seattle officials roll out the red carpet for an expected 30,000 out-of-town guests. Temperatures around 60 inched within a few degrees of records.

Blue-clad Georgetown Hoyas and Kentucky Wildcats, Phi Slama Jama red Houston Cougars and Virginia Cavaliers in orange baseball caps stood in lines awaiting admittance to nearby bars.

On streets and corners near the Kingdome, scalpers silently waved tickets they hoped to unload before the game. Although tickets for the event have been offered in the classified sections of local newspapers for two and three times their price, most Saturday morning sellers were asking only face value. Across the street from the Kingdome, fans stood in lines for a "Final Four Brunch" and to get into the bar at F.X. McRory's Steak, Chop and Oyster House.

Although it advertises "The World's Largest Bourbon Collection," selections from the long list of domestic and imported beers were more in evidence

To Darlene Amdal of Everett, Wash., a self-described "sports nut." the Final Four was the end of a long wait.

"I've waited five years for this. It's the most exciting event of them all," she said.

Because she was unable to get tickets to the event through a lottery system, Ms. Amdal said she bought season tickets to the University of Washington, which entitled her to tickets to the final four. "That didn't turn out so bad because the Huskies had a decent team for once," she said. "They should have been here today.

A block away, at the Occidental Grill near the city's historic Pioneer Square district, three Kentucky boosters waited before the first game at a corner table.

"Kentucky people would go anywhere to watch their team," said Ron Vines. "If they had it in Hong Kong. they'd go there "Vines, in the coal business, said he and friends Judge Conley and Duran Moore had attended all of the Wildcats' games this

The three arrived Friday night aboard a chartered flight, one of at least six bringing Kentucky fans to the

'This is one of the first games all year where people will be rooting for us," agreed Conley

West Coast.

One of those rooting for the Wildcats was Tim Creamer of Syracuse, N.Y., although his wife, Margaret, and friends Joe and Cindy Battaglia planned to yell for Georgetown, where Battaglia graduated

Prior to the first semifinal game, the foursome took in the sights under uncommonly sunny skies. "We've seen all the sights. My legs are killing me," said Creamer.

Although his school. Syracuse, didn't make it to the final four. Creamer said he hoped to make an impression

We're thinking about painting our faces orange to see if we can get on TV," he Panhandlers also appeared to be doing better-than-usual business, although the results may have been skewed by the sunny skies. Seattle residents always give better in good weather.

At the Westlake Mall, a block south of the Westin Hotel where the NCAA has its headquarters, Nick D'Ambrosia did a brisk business in hats, buttons and other novelties emblazened with the names of the final four schools

D'Ambrosia, from Hartford, Conn., said the NCAA-approved T-shirts, flags and other items sold best on consignment to gift shops in the hotels where the teams staved.

"Houston fans are the best spenders," D'Ambrosia said. Kentucky is second and Virginia's are last.

From his car parked at a lot about three blocks from the Kingdome, Tony Miller, a Seattle pharmaceuticals salesman, sold red and blue Final Four T-shirts.

It was his first plunge into capitalism, said Miller, who had 200 of the shirts silk-screened and planned to sell them all by Monday's championship game.

Downtown Seattle merchants went out of their way to make fans feel welcome, and possibly more willing to spending a few dollars

Brett out two months a team spokesman.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Kansas City Royals all-star third baseman George Brett will be sidelined for up to two months with a knee injury, the team announced Saturday.

Brett, a two-time American League batting champion, sustained a partial tear of the ligaments in his left knee during an exhibition game at Tampa, Fla., on Friday, said doctors in Kansas City Saturday morning. Royals spokesman Dean Vogelaar said doctors described the injury as a "grade B tear," and not a complete tear.

Brett was examined by Vogelaar said the knee will be immobilized for three weeks and that Brett will be out of action 6-8 weeks.

Dodgers are not without their soft spots. There's doubt about Brock at first base. Thon at short. Phil Garner at third. Thon is gaining recognition as a front line star. Houston's catching, however, is mediocre, and the best in the outfield is 36-year-old Jose Cruz. Overall, the Astros' biggest deficiency is hitting. One strong homerun slugger would mean a lot to this team The San Francisco Giants (in 83: 79-83) have such a hitter in Jack Clark, but you wouldn't want to stake your season on him. Clark is loved every place but in San Francisco, where his moody outbursts and periodic slumps have disenchanted the patrons. The Giants moved to reduce the dependency on Clark's bat by getting Al Oliver from Montreal, a sure .300 hitter even at the age of 37. With him at first and Manny Trillo at second, the right side is proficient.

At times, Johnnie LeMaster looks like a whiz at short, but he doesn't hold up a full season, and Chili Davis was a sophomore bust in center. So Manager Frank Robinson has his worries, not the least of which is the tender arm of southpaw Atlee Hammaker

Even so, the important thing is, this time of year you don't dwell on the negative aspects. In the spring, everyone looks like a winner.

Hagler TKO's Roldan

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) may have looked like a routine stop on middleweight champion Marvelous Marvin Hagler's route to another mega-bucks fight, for a brief time he appeared to be a major obstacle.

Roldan knocked Hagler down in the first round of their title bout Friday night, then landed a number of solid blows in the next.

That, however, ended the brief blaze of glory for the underdog challenger from Argentina

Hagler, who hopes to be able to meet Sugar Ray Leonard or Thomas Hearns in a fight that would produce a huge purse, took command of the fight in the third round and went on to the ninth successful defense of his undisputed middleweight title with a 10th-round knockout.

The tide turned in the third when Hagler landed a crushing uppercut to the challenger's right eye. Roldan stood straight up.

blinking, and Hagler landed a While Juan Domingo Roldan flurry of punches that sent the Argentine sprawling into the Wobbly, Roldan took an eight-count and continued, but the fight belonged to the champion from that point on.

Hagler used his boxing skill, cautiously punishing Roldan through the next six rounds, then unleashed an all-out attack in the 10th.

"The bell saved him a couple of times, but I said, OK, this is the bus stop, this is where he gets off," Hagler

Although some, including Leonard at ringside. contended the telling blow in the third round was a thumb to Roldan's eye, Hagler said: "I hit him on the bridge of the nose and the eye with a closed

"Also, if he wants to complain about thumbing, I got thumbed in the eye in the fifth or sixth round and had to back off till my vision cleared."

Referee Tony Perez backed

Hagler's claim that it was a clean shot.

But Perez and Hagler disagreed on the first-round knowdown of the champion. "That was no knockdown, it was a slip," said Hagler, who was backing away when Roldan caught him on the back of the head with a roundhouse left.

The champion said that he was "embarrassed" when the referee started counting.

Asked if he'd ever been knocked down before, Hagler replied: "No, and I still haven't. Don't you try to say I Roldan wasn't talking. He had his eye tended by doctors and retired to his quarters.

Hagler, winner of his last 34 fights, has won by knockout in eight of his nine title defenses since he took the title in 1980. He's now 59-2-2 overall, with 49 KOs.

Roldan, who collected some $100,000 for the fight, is 50-3-2. Hagler, who earned $1.25 million for the defense, next is slated to face Mustafo

Hagler issues another challenge

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) -Marvelous Marvin Hagler's quest for another multimillion dollar fight is temporarily on hold pending a mandatory title defense. But, after disposing of a tough Juan Domingo Roldan. Hagler complained again that Sugar Ray Leonard and Thomas Hearns are ducking

"How long do I have to put out the challenge?" Hagler asked after stopping Roldan at 39 seconds of the 10th round Friday night. "All they have to do is sign."

Hagler has made no secret of his desire to earn the mega-bucks that only a bout against Leonard or Hearns would bring. A $4 million payday last November for

Southern Cal, Tennessee meet in women's NCAA finals team than the club Southern Sunday's championship intensity and emotion."

LOS ANGELES (AP) -Southern California, seeking its second straight title, battles underdog Tennessee Sunday for the NCAA women's basketball championship.

Fifth-ranked Southern Cal, 28-4, meets No. 15 Tennessee, 23-9, Sunday night at UCLA's Pauley Pavilion.

The Lady Trojans advanced to the title game rith an emotional 62-57 ictory over No. 2-ranked Louisiana Tech in Friday's semifinals, while Tennessee easily defeated No. 13 Cheyney State 82-73 in the other semifinal.

Southern Cal posted two victores over Tennessee during the regular season, winning tournament games by scores of 78-64 and 81-66.

'Those games were closer than the scores would indicate," said Southern Cal Coach Linda Sharp on Saturday. "They have a good power game and play tough, ggressive defense. ennessee Coach Pat Head Summit said the Lady Volunteers are a different Cal beat early in the season: 'We're a much better team Our offensive execution is much better. We've been able to put the ball in the basket quite effectively lately. That's something we spent a lot of time on."

Both teams have talented front lines and that's where the contest could be decided. Mary Ostrowski, a 6-foot-2 forward, anchors Tennessee's attack. The senior from Parkersburg, W Va. scored a semifinal-record 35 points Friday night against Cheyney State. Southern Cal's front line is a bit more balanced with twin seniors Pam and Paula McGee joining sophomore Cheryl Miller.

Miller scored 22 points in Southern Cal's victory over Louisiana Tech, but the McGees were able to combine for only 16 points.

'We can't get 16 points out of the twins on Sunday and win," said Sharp. Both coaches expressed concern over officiating for contest. "I want to see a basketball game, not a fight," said Summit. "I thought the officials let both semifinal games get out of hand. At this level, it's an absolute war and the officials have to get control early.

Said Sharp, "It's an honor for the officials to be in the Final Four. But they still have to officiate. They have to deal with a great deal of

A victory Sunday would give Summit a shot at a rare coaching double in 1984. She's the head coach for the U.S. Women's Olympic basketball team and will be returning to Los Angeles for the Summer Games.

Demos agree on A

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - The three Democratic presidential candidates, quizzed about major civil liberties issues, generally appear to be in agreement in endorsing positions avored by civil libertarians.

The American Civil Liberties Union released answers Saturday to 19 questions posed to Sen. Gary Hart, Walter F. Mondale and the Rev. Jesse Jackson. Their responses reflect subtle differences, but few sharply conflicting views.

Questioned about whether Congress or the president should authorize "the initiation of military hostilities," Hart and Mondale provided contrasting responses.

Hart said if were president "I would fully commit myself to respect" the War Powers Resolution of Congress which places limits on a president's authority to send troops abroad.

The resolution requires an administration to report to Congress when it sends troops into possible combat and requires their withdrawal within 60 to 90 days unless Congress authorizes them to remain.

Mondale gave the resolution qualified backing. "If it spells out an accurate constitutional understanding of the legislative and executive authorities then I would support it," said the former vice president. He said he has not studied the resolution

Jackson, without commenting on the resolution, said he is more interested in "a world-wide war on poverty, disease and

Hart's responses sometimes appeared to reflect his status as a senator facing a "yes" or "no" vote on legislation, while Mondale appeared to be leaving room for added flexibility that a president would prefer.

For example, there are their views on President Reagan's highly controversial order that changed the government's polygraph test policy. The directive could mean dismissal for any of several hundred thousand government employees with security clearances who refuse to take a lie detector test in an investigation of leaked information.

The order also submits about 128,000 employees with access to the most sensitive classified information to lifetime requirements that any speeches or writing be cleared in advance by the government.

The order has been suspended through the end of this session of Congress. Hart said he would overturn the order if president.

Such an example of prior restraint would stifle needed public debate with little effect on the suppression of leaks," he

Mondale said he opposes wide-ranging use of polygraph exams and "so-called lifetime censorship requirements

But he said, "I support reasonable steps to ensure that government employees in possession of classified information do not endanger the national security by divulging that information to unauthorized persons.

Jackson said he favors "security agreements" to protect national security, adding, "security agreements should not violate the civil rights of the individuals involved." The same questions were submitted to Reagan, but the president has not responded. Roger Bolton, director of speechwriting for the Reag campaign, told the ACLU it would probably take six to eight weeks for the president to respond to the questionnaire.

While the differences among the Democratic candidates are generally subtle, the contrast with Reagan administration positions is obvious.

Hart, Jackson and Mondale all opposed any form of government-sponsored prayer in public schools. The administration strongly favors efforts to overturn a Supreme Court ban on organized prayers in the schools.

East Coast picks up the pieces

Associated Press Writer Another spring-defying storm, borne on 86 mph gusts that toppled tractor-trailers in Utah, socked the Plains from Colorado to Texas Saturday, while the East Coast picked up the pieces from a wintry blast of tornadoes, winds and snow that killed 83

A third storm forming on the Pacific Coast was expected to push into the Rockies Sunday night, with the potential for more snow than the 17 inches that fell in Utah on Friday, forecasters said

In Massachusetts, 99 utility crews imported from other states were assisting in a drive to restore electricity to 53,000 customers left in the dark since Thursday, when a deadly storm smashed the Northeast coast. About 10,000 people remained without power on New York's

Long Island, where flood and wind damage to homes and other property was estimated at $100 million in one of the island's two counties. The Coast Guard was searching for four commercial fishermen lost off the island since Thursday.

New Jersey Gov. Thomas Kean on Friday toured coastal towns including Atlantic City, where part of the famous Boardwalk was demolished, and estimated the damage from high tides that smashed sea walls at over $250 million. In Ocean County, he climbed new sand dunes which were bulldozed into place after the natural ones were swept away.

In North and South Carolina, offers of money, clothing, shelter and assistance poured into tornado-devastated towns Friday as the governors of both states sought federal disaster relief

Preliminary damage estimates from Wednesday night's tornadoes, which caused 61 known deaths, topped the $100 million mark in North Carolina and totaled $25.7 million in South Carolina, officials of the two states said Friday.

"March has just been a bear," forecaster Bill Sammler, of the Severe Storms Center in Kansas City, Mo., said today. "It has refused to let spring go ahead and do its thing.

As the Rocky Mountain storm slid eastward today. travelers' advisories for slick or snow-covered roads went up in eastern Colorado, southeastern Wyoming, western Oklahoma, the Nebraska Panhandle and western Kansas. Snow also fell in the Texas Panhandle.

Besides those killed in the Carolina tornadoes, at least 23 other weather-related deaths occurred since Wednesday, mostly in traffic. They included seven in New York, six in Massachusetts, three in Pennsylvania, two each in Washington and Connecticut and one each in New Jersey, Utah and Alabama

First Christian Church celebrates 75 years here

Pampa's First Christian Church as it is today

Pampa's First Christian Church congregation plans to spend the entire month of April celebrating its diamond anniversary 75 years of serving the Christian community. Sunday, April 1, is to commemorate 1909 through 1933. The Rev. Dick Crews, pastor of the church from 1952 until 1961, is scheduled to give the sermon. An historical moment and special candle ceremony is also planned. After the Sunday services, an old - time brush arbor meeting with fried chicken supplied by the church and trimmings brought by the congregation. The adult choir is to perform a musical in costume called "The Brush Arbor Meeting." Mrs. Georgia Mack is coordinating this day's activities.

April 4, 1909 is the actual date of organization for the First Christian Church of Pampa. To celebrate the day, a birthday cake party is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. with Jan Pyne and the Rev. Paul M. Ragle as coordinators.

The Rev. J. W. Doke, minister of the church from 1965 until 1972 is guest speaker for the Sunday, April 8, services. Rev. Doke's grandchildren. David and Shellie Doke of Pampa will be the candlelighters for that morning. Another luncheon is planned after the service, provided by the Chi Rho Youth group. Donations will be accepted. Following the lunch, the young people will put on a talent show.

Stacey Boddy Disney is to be guest speaker at the Sunday, April 29, services. She attended Texas Christian University as a Timothy of this congregatio... This is the concluding Sunday of the 75th anniversary celebration. At 2:30 p.m., that day, a time capsule, filled with memorabilia of the church will be dedicated on the church's front lawn. The capsule is to be opened at the 100th celebration of the church. A reception following the dedication in the church parlor will be hosted by the Christian Women's Fellowship, Monta Taylor, chairman Joyce Cockrell is chairman of the anniversary committee and Kris Gamblin is in charge of the time capsule.

The First Christian Church of Pampa was formerly organized on Sunday afternoon. April 4, 1909. The meeting took place in a small frame school house located at the corner of East Francis and North Starkweather where the Central Baptist Church now stands. John D. White, minister of the Amarillo Christian Church, directed the meeting.

Eight people signed the charter roll: Mrs. H. M. Bailey, Mrs. J. M. Bell, Suda Bell, Mrs. Frances Knox, Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Lippold, Mrs. J. F. Meers and Mrs. J. A. Newman. A few weeks later Mrs. Jennie Ledrick, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ledrick and Mrs. and Mrs. H. B. Lovett became members of the church.

The first church building was dedicated on April 16, 1911. The new church, a neat white frame building, was located at East Kingsmill and Ballard streets.

In 1926 a frame parsonage was built by the men of the church on Ballard Street. Gray County's oil boom and the influx of people to the city made it necessary for a larger church to be built. The large brick building was erected on the corners of East Kingsmill and North Starkweather and is now the Pampa Baptist Temple.

Four and a half acres of land was purchased in 1959 for a new Christian church at 18th and Nelson. Actual groundbreaking for the new church didn't happen until Feb. 11, 1968. Mrs. Letitia Hassell, a member of the church since 1916, turned the first shovel of earth for the new building.

The Sunday the congregation moved from the old church on Starkweather to the new church on Nelson, an impressive "split" church service was observed.

The bread (or loaf) was served at the old church — then the entire congregation traveled across the city to the new church to be served the cup (wine).

Everyone in Pampa is invited to join the First Christian Church in observing their 75th anniversary these next three weeks in April.

its End: It's your choice appointed to committee

Betty Henderson of Pampa, secretary of the Lovett Memorial Library Board, was recently named to the planning committee for the Texas Library Systems

Advisory Council Conference scheduled in October. The conference is conducted bi - annually for representatives of the advisory councils of the 10 Texas library systems. Mrs. Henderson is a member of the advisory council for the Texas Panhandle Library System. She replaces Mrs. Coleman Renick of Canadian

Mrs. Henderson also serves on the Texas Panhandle Library System's Automation Task Force, the committee responsible for implementing work of the Harrington Library Consortium. The consortium plans to link the resources of the Amarillo Public Library, the Amarillo College Library.

Sometimes I yearn for the good old days when cars were black, shirts were white and ice cream was either chocolate or vanilla.

No pressures. No decisions. No anxieties. Is it any wonder everyone is falling apart these days? We're drowning in choices. Do you want your bathroom to smell like a pine forest or a day at the gym? Pick a scent. Potatoes, rice or stuffing? Make a choice. First class, economy, coach, business or a folding chair on the wing? Smoking or non smoking? Window or aisle? When I ate out, I used to be able to place my order in a couple of sentences. Now I have a dialogue with the waiter that lasts longer than most marriages. 'How do you want your steak? Rare? Medium rare? Medium? Medium well? Well? Burnt beyond recognition? What do you want on your salad? Thousand Island? Vinegar and oil? Roquefort?

buttered peas, limas and asparagus for a vegetable. How do you want your potatoes? French fried? Home fries? Baked? What do you want on your baked potato? Butter, chives? Sour cream? Bacon bits?

And if you've ever made a decision lately on what phone to buy, you know you could make a profession out of it. The decision to have your phone rest on the table or hang from a wall was just the beginning. Next came what color do you want resting on the table or hanging on the wall. This was followed by all kinds of options. Do you want a cord on it? Do you want it to dial a number for you? One line or six? A hold button? Do you want one in the car? With or without a cord? How about a privacy release button? A receiver in Kermit the Frog's mouth? A button for conference calls? An extra long cord that will follow you to the shopping Zhivago"?

Television for me used to be an antidote for a life threatening day. I'd prop myself up in front of the. set like a lump and try one of three channels.

No more. Every night I have to decide what I want to watch: a 24 - hour mini - series called "Sleaze" ... a documentary on how scorpions mate ... Yugoslavian Battery Jumping team vs. the Polish team ... Convent Bloopers ... Your Car's Horoscope ... Sibling Face - Off ... the city council of Gary Ind., in session ... a weather feature tracking a colo front ... Michael Jackson riveting himself into the floor ... a spleen transplant ... watching celebrities floss for dollars or any one of 300 shows being

All my husband asked last night was, "Which one do you want to watch?" I fell apart.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack McAndrew of Pampa announce the engagement of their daughter, Jackie, to Mike Malone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Malone, also of Pampa

The wedding date has been set for June 9 at St. Vincent de Paul Church here.

Miss McAndrew is to graduate in May from Pampa High School. She is employed at Superior RV Center. Malone is a 1981 graduate of Pampa High School and is employed by General Oilfield Service of Pampa.

Combine chocolate, liqueur and pears

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor Some years ago a young

American living in Paris pleased her guests - both French and American - with a simple fruit dessert. She filled the cavities of canned pear halves with cocoa and served them with a calorie-laden sauce made with egg yolks, sugar and whipped cream. Recently we decided it was time to bring that good and simple dessert up-to-date. We ye you agree this new-sion makes a lovely offering for guests who try to stay away from rich desserts.

CHOCOLATE AND LIQUEUR PEARS 29-ounce can Bartlett pear halves

1 teaspoon sugar Orange, coffee, chocolate or chocolate-mint liqueur Whipped cream or soft vanilla ice cream, if desired Drain pears; refrigerate pear liquid for some other

Stir together cocoa and sugar. Fill the cavities of 3 of the pear halves with the cocoa mixture. Place a pear half on each filled half. Secure with toothpicks. Cover and refrigerate 6 to 8 hours or overnight.

At serving time, trim the base of each filled pear so that it will stand upright in an individual serving dish. Sprinkle each pear with one of the liqueurs.

If you like, pass whipped cream or soft vanilla ice cream as a topping. Makes 3 servings. Recipe may be doubled. Note: Most 29-ounce cans of Bartlett pears contain 6 or 7 large pear halves. Some of our tasters preferred having the pear cavities filled with plain cocoa rather than with the mixture of cocoa and sugar given in the recipe. You may want to try both methods.

Bonnell's stoneware is beautiful, functional and extremely strong, but her raku - an oriental type of pottery - is crude and fragile.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for helping to get the Living Will legalized in Georgia. It's long overdue.

I stood by helplessly and had to watch my terminally ill mother suffer for months when she begged to die. She was in her 90s and had always been such a proud and independent woman. How I wished I could have disconnected all those machines that kept her alive long after her life held any meaning.

Yesterday I went to an antique shop and asked the owner if I could come in and browse. She said, "Please come back later-we are just about to take Fifi to the vet to be put to sleep." In her arms she held a beautiful little white poodle with a bright pink ribbon in her hair. Her nails were painted matching pink. The woman said, "Fifi is very old. She's incontinent, lame and nearly blind. The vet said she should be put out of her misery." (Lucky dog!)

Abby, I agree with you. We all have a right to die with dignity. I for one will never go to a nursing home where people are alive but not living. I don't want my grown children to say, "You go to see Mama this Sunday. I went dignity is comfort

DEAR WIFE: Your husband is an alcoholic, and if you care about him (and I assume you do or you wouldn't have written), your problem is him. No one can help your husband unless he (a) admits he has a problem, and (b) wants to do something about it. Help is as near as your telephone, and the number to dial is Alcoholics Anonymous, but your husband must dial it. annuals to removing major branches of trees, pruning is the most important phase the gardener has to do. It is a year - round chore.

Use early grass clippings for mulch because they are very rich in nitrogen. Use them in your bed. Three or four inches of this will smoother the seed and you will have no problem. If you have sprayed for weeds, do not use the bottles for anything. Put them in the trash can. Honeybees are prime pollinators of fruit crops. They will not forage in temperatures below 50 degrees, or in winds stronger than 25 miles per hour or when blossoms are wet. You may have a tree that is not blooming. Borrow three to five branches from your neighbor's tree and place them under your tree. The bees will do the rest.

You might plant tomatoes. Put out eight or nine plants in a trench and cover them with a gallon bucket that has had both the bottom and top Thin the strawberries. You may want to save the young. vigorous plants, they can take some cold but keep a cover material handy should we have a late frost.

Put dahlia tubers in sand boxes the 3rd or 4th. After the young shoots make their appearances, they should be planted six to eight inches bulbs the 8th and 9th. For earliest possible blooms and for a longer season, follow with successive plantings every two weeks until June.

As they grow, fill the dirt in around them. Plant gladiola

The chrysanthemum have started their growth. They should be lifted and divided. Get rid of the woody, central portion, place the young shoots back into the bed Water them well and mulch. After they are well established, they should have their first pinching back. For bushy plants full of flowers. continue to pinch back new growth until the first 10 days of August. April is the month to plant your shade trees and fruit trees. They will be in your garden for many years. So dig the hole at least a foot wider than the root ball or roots. With the spill taken from the hole, mix in spagnum, sand and compost. Then set the tree in the hole with the bud union or crooked stem just above the ground. The soil should be filled in well. No plant will grow if the soil is loose around the root. When the tree is settled, we build a shallow bowl around the base to hold the water we give at the time and through the summer. The tree should be watered weekly all summer. When you water, allow the hose to trickle from four to six hours each time.

Wood chips make a very good mulch, but remember to use a light sprinkle of cottonseed meal before using the wood chips.

Some of the annuals that may be sown outdoors around the 14th and 15th include alyssum, phlox, snapdragon, baby's breath. chrysanthemums, colone. marigolds, scabiosa, tithonis and zinnias for early bloom.

Of all the flowering vin the clematis is the best for gardeners. It will grow in either sun or shade. It is rarely attacked by insects or diseases and the abundant blossoms last for several weeks. Its colors range from lavendar to purple, through pink and red, yellow and white. The first year, the vine may be a little sparse but in later years they develop a strong crown and root system and make a beautiful blaze of color. They will need support. We have them on our fence. A dusting of limestone around the hole when planting will be good. They like their heads in the sun and their feet in the shade, so plant them in a sunny spot and mulch the soil around the base

Sow your peas or Chinese peas or snow peas the 8th or 9th. Plant New Zealand also. It is very imporant to have the soil well prepared for sowing. The seed that lands on a clod has an underprivileged youth.

one occasionally. One eason is for appearance. Another important one is for protection of the surface. You can paint your home - inside or out - at a fraction of the cost of a contractor. However, it will be wasted savings if you choose the wrong paint.

Paints generally come in one of two types: oil base or latex. The oil - base paints are more durable, scrubbable, stain resistant and have better hiding properties. They also dry slowly, have a strong smell and need flammable solvents for thinning and clean - up. Latex paints have a water base, dry quickly, are odor - free and easier to apply and clean up. A new type of paint has recently entered the market - an exterior oil - base paint that cleans up easily with Both latex and oil base paint types come in a variety of finishes. Each finish has a different degree of protection, wearability and washability. Consumers need to consider all of these in choosing the right paint for the project.

Flat finishes are soft toned. They absorb light and reduce glare. They are prefered for woodwork, kitchens, bathrooms and children's rooms. Glossy finishes are highly reflective and the easiest to clean. Use them for woodwork, kitchens, bathrooms and laundry areas. If you want a bright touch for furniture to accessories, gloss works well. When you go to a paint store, you will face many more choices than types or finishes. Specialized paints can be just right for certain Texture paints are for problem walls and decorating effects. You can use them to seal and decorate old. cracked or rough walls and ceilings. To get a textured effect, use a sponge, brush, roller, broom, spatula comb, or crumpled paper. The paints come feady - mixed and the oil - base is in powder

Enamels are available in both latex and oil - base paints. They are high - gloss paints and extremely washable. You can use enamel aerosol spray cans to paint furniture, grills, toys and other small areas. Enamels can be specially formulated for porch and floors and can be used on wood, primed metal or

Transparent oil - base and polyurethane varnishes give a protective smooth finish for floors and furniture and they don't cover the wood grain

Finished include clear satin, high gloss, and satin luster with a woodgrain tint.

Sealers and primers are available in both latex acrylic and oil - base forms. They stop undercolors from bleeding and seal the pores of unpainted and painted surfaces so that the top coating is smooth. You can use interior primers and sealers on drywall, plaster, interior concrete, cement, brick and porous wallpaper. Exterior paint primers help preserve the surface to avoid blistering, peeling, mildewing and rotting. Sometimes estimating the quantity of paint to purchase is a problem for consumers. For large jobs, paint is usually bought by the gallon. The label usually indicates the number of square feet a gallon will cover when applied as directed.

To determine the number of gallons of paint you will need:

in square feet by multiplying the length of each wall by its

-Subtract from this figure one - half the total area - in square feet - taken up by doors and windows. This is done simply by multiplying the height and width of each unit, adding the results and dividing by two.«.

-Divide the figure obtained in the second step by the number of square feet a gallon of paint will cover. Then multiply that figure by the number of coats to be applied. This will determine the number of gallons needed.

Ceilings are often painted a different shade than the walls, and need to be figured separately. To find the square foot area of the ceiling, simply multiply the length by the width.

Remember that unpainted plaster and wallboard soak up more paint that previously painted walls and will require -Find the area of the walls more paint and primer. Extra paint may also be required to cover old colors if there is much change involved. It is more desirable to slightly overestimate the amount of paint needed in order to avoid the risk of having to buy a small second batch later that might not exactly match the original batch.

Celadon returns to Thailand

By DENIS D. GRAY Associated Press Writer

CHIANG MAI, Thailand (AP) - She can still hear the laughter: here was a foreign woman in a male - dominated Asian society trying to get people who either scooped up the rain or boiled tap water to pay for her bottled product.

n April 6.

That's Sid Caesar talking to himself on his cassette tape recorder. What he's telling himself these days is more positive, he says, than what he first began saying in '79. Shortly before, he'd spent four months in bed paralyzed by fear, gulping pills, planning suicide.

But, "How much can you desecrate yourself?" So he finally got up and began tape-arguing himself out of a 20-year depression that began with the cancellation his last TV series. "Caesar's Hour"; out of far more years of guilt and selfhate; out of the pills and alcohol meant to obliterate those feelings, but which only aggravated them:

Drunk, he'd actually send sinks flying out of walls and men who offended him, just flying. At home, he'd holler and throw chairs in the pool. to the fright and misery of his wife, two daughters and

All because he couldn't account for his natural com ic talent that had brought quick, uninterrupted success - to him, the son of a Yonkers, N.Y., luncheonette owner who'd been shattered by the Depression.

In '82. Caesar disclosed all that in his poignant autobiography, "Where Have I Been?" and how he ultiand how he ultimately managed to rebuild his mind and body. Now 62, he maintains an astonishing physique with at least 50 pushups, 80 chin-ups and 100 "stand-aways."

And into that body, he generally puts his own healthful concoctions.

This morning, breakfast in his hotel dining room is a 'Caesar's' salad of tuna fish, yogurt, carrots, lettuce, honey wheat bread; Jarlsberg cheese; orange juice; and oatmeal "for While he eats, dessert.' ooking and sounding robust and relaxed, he says, "You'd be surprised. Once you find out the enemy is yourself, life is so much easier.'

Talking yourself into that kind of awareness, though, is "too simple," he says, paro-dying a psychiatrist: "Your mother was, your brother was, your cousin was." He waves that away. cares? Just go think about yourself." Don't kill time on pointless anger; don't worry about "shouldas," "couldas" and "ifs." Pay attention to 'now and appreciate it," he says, "because it travels at the speed of light so it's going to be a 'that was' and then you've only got the gonna be'..." He laughs at how crazy we make

Serve at once or reheat in a microwave oven. akes 2 large main - dish

Actually, according to Caesar, a high school graduate whose lifelong passions include world history and physics ("I'd like to hear a dissertation between Da Vinci and Michelangelo.''). 'There's no such thing as time. There's only motion. And there's no one set of laws because there's no himself funny in the bathroom mirror in the morning," he says, with a hilarious cockeyed face. And that's what he shows in his comedy because it's important to reassure people they're not alone. "Nobody wants to die alone," he says, but if the whole world is 'one.' Even an atom has at going with you, it ain't that

His humor also comes as much by feel as by observation. He just knows how a character would behave and what he's doing, too, in the more serious roles he's begun playing now that he "knows what life is about."

In the recent film, "Over the Brooklyn Bridge," for instance, he was funny, but also quite moving in the climactic scene with Elliott Gould, who played his nephew. "That scene was a pleasure and easy to do, says. "It only took two takes. There was no written dialogue and the director was great. He left us alone

So after Caesar warned Gould to "grab my wrist because I'm going to grab you and if I go for some body, I go," they rehearsed the motions and then, on camera, they yelled, tussled and finally cried in each others' arms. And yes, Caesar says, at the time, he did think of the year he and his son weren't speaking. (They're reconciled now.)

And, certainly! he says, delighted, if anyone asked, he'd tackle "Death of a Salesman." Of course! Another weekly television show! "And I'd like to do a satire of those movies where they tear off noses." He attacks the air with comic rage. "I'm going to tear your teeth out and eat you with your own teeth!" That would be funny," he says, laughing. So bring it all on. The more, the better. He's ready for anything now. He's healthy. His mind is still running on that dizzying spin cycle of invention. Boy oh-boy-oh-boy - seeing him at peace with himself. he's more than ever a national living treasure

Peeking at Pampa

While the snow shovel and oil can for the lawnmower sit side by side and while winter winds and snow dart in and out of spring, let's see what else goes on around town.

It was Christmas volunteer recognition day at the Salvation Army Board luncheon meeting last Tuesday. Awards were made to individuals and organizations who extended help to the Army during the Christmas season Georgia Mack. Richard Stowers and Capt. Milton Wood presented the awards. The Kiwanis Club. Noon and Evening Lions clubs and React furnished bell ringers.

The canned food drive large enough to supply holiday needs plus stock for the emergency food store came from Wilson, Baker, Lamar, Austin and Horace Mann elementary schools plus Pampa Middle School and HECE of Pampa High.

Individuals and groups dressed dolls for Christmas distribution: Step Saver and Blue Bonnet Home Extension clubs. Home League, women of St Paul's Methodist. St Matthews, Barrett Baptist, Lefors Baptist Churches and Rho Eta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi As has been her custom every year for years and years. Florence Radcliffe knitted two complete outfits of doll clothes. Special awards were made to Chervl Mrs. W. A. Every and Miles Cooks. Pampans care - and

Some of the male residents are interested in beginning a stamp collection, but need to know where and how to begin. Will you help them?

Another activity at the Pampa Nursing Center residents are enjoying watching children from the Day Care Center, ages 7 to 9, practice for the Junior Senior Olympics to be held May 16 at the PHS football stadium. The closing activity will be a wiener roast at the center for students and residents.

Virginia (Mrs. Laven) Greer, Cora Mae Hood, plus Mary Johnson and Ruby Anderson of Borger - all retirees of Ma Bell - flitted all over town one day last week. It all began with lunch and progressed to shopping excursions to first one store and shopping center to another. There was so much fun that it spilled over for bystanders to enjoy!

Dr. Harry Vanderpool, currently minister of an Albuquerque Methodist church and a former popular minister of First United Methodist Church here conducted a revival series at the church in Panhandle

NEW YORK (NEA) Crime scares people, so if you get mugged, don't expect anyone to want to hear about it very much The public doesn't want to handle the emotional aftermath victims of crime undergo because it's too threatening to themselves, says Shelley Neiderbach, Ph.D. who has been mugged twice. "After a while they say, forget it, it's over, the stitches are out what are you worried about? They deny you're feeling badly and that intensifies your pain and makes you bottle up your feelings.

But you'll probably suppress your feelings without encouragement because that's what victims of crime tend to do That's what Dr. Neiderbach discovered after she herself was robbed and whipped in 1975.

In 1980, she was robbed again, at knifepoint in her apartment house in Brooklyn and, while physically unharmed this time, she was once more emotionally damaged. By then, however, she was a psychotherapist who recognized her own need for help and sought it from another therapist. she says, "I also wanted to talk to other crime victims, but I couldn't find any group therapy program." So Dr. Neiderbach decided to start one. She talked to people in the criminal justice system who work with victims She consulted Alanon because, "it's a peer group therapeutic communiand eventually she figured out a "useful treatment program" which went into operation free of charge in May '81.

Called Crime Victims' Counseling Services, Inc., it eonsists of two to three hour meetings once a week for a month Attendance is kept small one voluntary counselor either Dr. Neiderbach or someone trained by her - and no more than 10 victims of crime who know how it feels to be at the mercy of someone who, she says, can not only control you entirely, but kill you at a whim so that you do any thing he says out of incredi-

Later, what he put you through enrages you You want to kill him but, she says, "It's hard to acknowledge that because if you really let out the rage, you'd be just like him, so you try to fend off that identification with the criminal by taking on some of the blame for the crime You think, I should have been home before dark, or maybe I look like a victim. You deny the rage you're feeling which, I think, leads to the feelings of guilt and shame crime victims have." It also leads to depression and, as if that weren't enough, every time you encounter something that reminds you of the crime, your fear that it could happen again or that he's still out there, heats up. One way to purge all these emotions is to talk about them with others experiencing them, and that's what people do in Dr. Neiderbach's program. "At the first meeting," she says, each victim gives his or her first name and then describes their experience. Many cry. The others are very attentive and often say, I know what you're feeling.'

The counselor plays a minimal role and is there, she says, to "reinterpret emotions. He or she will say, how in the world would you not be scared after something like that? Also, they emphasize that this was a random act of violence by a total stranger, not a crime of revenge. You were in the wrong place at the wrong You did nothing to make this happen.'

Hearing that, hearing the other stories, empathizing and being empathized with enables the crime victim to accept his emotions and ultimately to calm down. So does role playing. "We reenact the crimes and switch the criminal. It's a way for them to get inside the criminal and to understand that he's someone who simply gets off on power and that the crime wasn't directed personally toward the

Also, during each session, victims engage in a written exercise. The first consists of completing the sentence. "If the perpetrator walked into the room right now, I would...." Says Dr. Neiderbach, "I tell people, don't think, just put down what ever comes into your head. Writing helps them make feelings more concrete.

Then, to give victims the sense of power the crime has robbed them of, they're given self-defense tips encouraged to take part in a community safety program such as a safety patrol, and paired up with a "buddy" from the group. "That way. whenever they feel threatened, they can call each other or me and we talk through the anxiety," she

Congressman urges investigation of FHA head

WASHINGTON (AP) - An Iowa congressman says there should be an investigation into the "curious relationship' between Charles W. Shuman, the head of the Farmers Home Administation, and the designer of a new $646,000 loan application system bought by the agency.

Rep. Tom Harkin, D-lowa. said Thursday that the designer of the new system is Thomas L. Frey, a professor of agricultural economics at the University of Illinois. Shuman's daughter, Carol, is a student at the university and is Frey's assistant, Harkin said.

Although Shuman was out of town and unavailable for comment, his agency referred calls to of it, that's his motivation -

Undersecretary Frank W. Naylor Jr., who oversees FmHA operations.

"Dr. Frey is a professor in the school of agriculture there," Naylor told a reporter. "Charley's daughter is a senior, honor student. It's very typical for them to be student aides. The amount of money she's carning is very minimal.

Frey could not be reached Naylor said Shuman's daughter was "hired about a year ago as a student aide at minimum wage" and works about 10 hours a week. Shuman "did not know who

Century, as part of the $646,000 package, is providing booklets, slides and other training aids that will be used in putting the system in operation. The training part of the package was put up for competitive bids, however.

Naylor said the new procedure was in the development stage before the Reagan administration came to office and that Shuman continued to push for changes. The Century system, he said, was the one best suited for the job

Secretary John R. Block like Shuman, a native of Illinois - had been apprised of Harkin's latest cricicism. Naylor said that he had been informed and that "I think I'm fairly representing both our reactions, that the contracts were properly let. that the product we have is a good one But Harkin said that the new loan application form already has produced some unfavorable reactions, citing a recent agency study of tests conducted in North Carolina that showed a majority of farmers filled out the new forms incorrectly "I have been concerned for some time now that these 20-plus page forms are nothing but an exercise in paperwork proliferation. Harkin said

By JOE VanZANDT County Extension Agent SHADE TRE

FERTILIZATION Shade trees usually don't need extra fertilizer in yards where a good lawn maintenance program is followed. Occasionally they may need additional fertilizer if their roots are confined by streets, curbs and other structural features. Or, if the trees are damaged by freezing weather. But in general, fertilizing trees once every three years is usually often enough. Over fertilization can force excessive top growth. makaing the trees vulnerable to storm damage.

The safest method of computing how much fertilizer a tree needs is based on the number of square feet covered by the branches of the tree. For a rule of thumb. figure two pounds of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of branch area. Apply three times throughout the growing If the root zone of the tree is confined by buildings, curbs, walks, or streets, the fertilizer application should be computed on the basis of actual root zone. Under these circumstances, it may be necessary to fertilize the tree every year in order to provide aN adequate supply of nutrients

Always spread fertilizer evenly beneath the branch spread of the tree and water thoroughly so the roots can absorb and utilize the nutrients. By following these simple 'procedures, you'll keep your shade trees at their

Check wheat fields for army cutworm. Although none have been reported to date, it is that time of year during which we usually see some feeding activity by these cutworms. Feeding occurs from late afternoon to dark on most days. During bright sunlight and relatively high temperatures, army cutworms are likely to be hiding under the clods and in

ALFALFA WEEVILS

In recent years, Oklahoma has successfully used accumulation of degree days to predict the development of alfalfa weevil in alfalfa. In this procedure, degree days are calculated from Jan. 1 based on a developmental threshold of 48 degrees F. At 150 degree day accumulation. alfalfa weevil eggs oviposited into alfalfa stems during the fall should begin hatching. As of March 11, degree day accumulations were 146 in Amarillo and 144 in Perryton. Alfalfa weevil eggs should begin hatching throughout the northern Panhandle area.

Summer camping programs abound for Texas 4-H'ers this year

The Texas 4-H Center on Lake Brownwood in central Texas offers unique camping experiences for 4-H'ers nine

For nine to 11 and 12 to 14 year olds, a three-day camp is available. Dates for six camps run consecutively from June 24 to July 21. Each camp is designed to teach or improve youth skills in a variety of areas. Daily sessons focus on shooting sports, canoeing and sailing, high adventure problem solving, nature crafts and outdoor education. In addition, nightly camp activities feature parties, folk games, movies and other entertainment. For the 14 to 19 age group, Special Interest Camp offers more of a challenge. It's a five day camp for in-depth training in these areas: computers, shooting sports, swimming and diving.

Michael Zaslow plays David on "One Life To Live."

Michael Zaslow brings a wealth of experience from the Broadway stage, films and prime time television to his role as enigmatic David Renaldi, orchestra conductor and a former revolutionary who has a way of attracting and intriguing women in ABC's "One Life To Live." And like the character he plays, Michael also is a pianist who writes songs.

Singer still can't pick the guitar

By JOE EDWARDS Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Country music singer Vern Gosdin says he can walk and chew gum at the same time. But singing and playing the guitar is another matter.

"I've been holding a guitar since I was 6 years old." Gosdin said in an interview with the Associated Press. "I still can't pick it.

"I admire a good guitar player more than anything in the world," he said. "I just can't concentrate on a song and play too. I get caught up in the song so much I forget what chord I'm in."

His coordination aside. Gosdin has become one of the most consistently successful singers in country music. In February, he was a finalist for a Grammy Award for "If You're Gonna Do Me Wrong (Do It Right)." He and the song also were finalists for song of the year last October from the Country Music Association

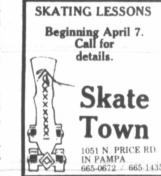

The 49-year-old Gosdin, known as "the voice," has been in and out of the music business for about 20 years. He's recorded six albums, had about 25 songs on the country music charts and half of those singles made the Top 10. He sings mostly about love themes in a mellow tone with a little chug-your-beer type of country styling.

His hits have included "Til the End," "Yesterday's Gone," "Mother Country Music," "Today My World Slipped Away," "It Started All Over Again," "Never My Love," "Break My Mind, "You've Got Somebody, I've Got Somebody," "All I Want and Need Forever" and "I Wonder Where We'd Be. Tonight

He also has become a noted songwriter, especially in the past few years, though 15 years ago he wrote "Someone to Turn To" for The Byrds on the soundtrack of the film. "Easy Rider.

Gosdin has just released a new LP, "There Is a Season, which includes his current single, "I Can Tell by the Way You Dance.

Gosdin said he has endured because of persistence and because he enjoys singing so much.

"I like country music and I love to sing. It's a chance to express your feelings toward your past, for instance," he said. "On most of the songs I've written; I've experienced them - a divorce, a love affair. I love to be on stage and feel I'm doing a good job When the audience responds, it's a good feeling.

He dropped out of the music business for six years in the early '70s to run a glass and mirror company in suburban Atlanta "I made good money and I only worked about nine hours a week," Gosdin recalled. "But something kept calling me back to the music business. One day I made up my mind to go to Nashville and do things like I wanted to do them.

And he's just as choosy with the tunes he does. One of the keys to selecting material is finding songs he can interpret

"I look for a song I can do my kind of song, one that appeals to me," Gosdin said Then I look at the words and see if I can make the song strong - if I can make a sad

Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas — A hundred years ago, men like Clinton Manges wore guns and defended their interests with lead. That was how 19th century empires often were protected on the South Texas frontier.

Manges is an empire builder of the 20th century and his range wars are fought at the courthouse with a posse of sharp-shooting lawyers toting high-velocity briefs. The 60-year-old rancher-oilman revels in the combat and probably could prosper in either century

"Hell yes, I like the fight," says Manges. "I haven't seen anything worthwhile yet that you didn't have to fight for."

Clinton Manges has been slugging it out for his piece of Texas for most of his life. He prepared for a bare-fisted lifestyle with a basic training of boyhood poverty and, later, by enduring what he considers to be injustice from an unbending establishment.

Now he is an embattled multi-millionaire. owning banks, refineries, oil-rich land and a pro football team. He is able to afford the expensive armament of modern legal wars and fearless enough to take on giants like Exxon or Mobil. He views himself as a militant "from the wrong side of the road" who outplays better-connected contestants in a game of making and protecting wealth.

And, above all, Manges is a man with the awesome, untiring conviction that he is right and with a drop-of-the-hat willingness to go to court to prove it.

'Manges is the most litigious man I have ever known," says Pat Maloney Sr., a San Antonio lawyer who represented Manges for years and is now suing him. "He always thinks he's right and he is not the soul of compromise.

Manges admits he can be irascible and stubborn, but believes that is the role cast for him by life.

FIRST GENERATION ALWAYS TOUGH When great family fortunes are made, he says, "the first generation is always a hard SOB. He has to be. It's the next generation that has the nice guys.'

Little is known publicly about Manges, the man. He avoids the press and is shielded ehind platoons of lawyers, secretaries and employees who claim to know his whereabouts rarely. When he does talk to reporters, he dodges personal questions. Most of what is known about the reclusive Manges comes, ironically, from lawyers or from court hearings.

Some believe Manges earned the right to be a hard case.

He spent his early boyhood in Cement, Okla., the son of a cotton farmer who was chased out of the Sooner State, as were thousands of others, by Dust Bowl seasons in the '20s and '30s. The Manges moved to the semi-tropical cotton fields of South Texas.

Along the way, Manges dropped out of school to serve a tour in the Coast Guard Maloney said Manges later worked for

Lloyd Bentsen Sr., the father of the U.S. senetor from Texas. Bentsen was then building his family fortune. Manges watched and learned and soon was trading

According to Maloney, Manges started dealing in land, oil and cattle — the classic formula for Texas wealth — and proved to be very good at it. "He has a degree of raw courage, Maloney said of his former client. "He's quick. He's tough. He's the best trader I've Another San Antonio attorney, James Ingram, says Manges has a artful skill and an unflinching nerve in making money.

FIGHTER WHO WON'T QUIT

"He has a real ability to smell out deals," says Ingram, who represents a Seattle bank that is suing Manges. "He's very tough and very shrewd. I doubt that you could ever apply enough heat to force him to his knees. He'll fight you 'til his last breath."

To build his wealth. Manges believes he overcame a major disadvantage — he is an "outsider." He was not born and raised within the charmed circle of power and money in South Texas, yet has become a multi-millionaire.

Manges claims that much of his litigation springs from his insistance on fair play from an establishment that he says resists

"You put a new bull in the pasture and the others don't want him in there," explains Manges. "They're gonna fight. That's just the way it is."

Manges moved into prominence in South Texas in 1971 when he and a group of smaller investors bought controlling stock in Groos National Bank, an old-line, establishment bank in San Antonio. In the tradition-bound Alamo City, the news struck like a Texas twister, raising screams of alarm

Officers of the bank investigated Manges and found that in 1965 he pleaded guilty to making a false statement on a Small Business Administration loan application. It was a technical charge, based on an error by an accountant, but Manges paid a $2,500 fine in federal court. U.S. Comptroller of the Currency W.B. Camp, informed of the record, probibited Manges from participating in the business affairs of the Groos National Bank, even though he owned the controlling stock. Manges also was forced to drop control of another bank. In testimony before the U.S. House Banking committee during the battle for warning of dangers from an control of the Groos bank, Manges told "establishment" of oldline oil, insurance, congressmen: "I am frankly a little tired of banking and law firms. Though he regularly hearing ... how the 'best' people in San associates with the powerful in state Antonio have been asociated with this bank government, Manges views himself as one and what fine social credientials are of "the common folks" and a champion of

"I do not claim to be very well educated. I "I came up on the wrong side of the road, have not had the time during my life to but you know what? I like it over there.

anti-Vatican CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas

More posters

(AP) - Posters identical in appearance to anti-Vatican signs that have shown up cities throughout South Texas are being printed and distributed by an Arkansas-based cult leader and his fundamentalist organization. In a telephone interview with the Corpus Christi Caller-Times, Tony Alamo acknowleged distributing fundamentalist posters nationwide that have typeface and wording identical to the anti-Vatican

But Alamo did not acknowledge responsibility for the anti-Vatican signs, prefering, he said, to "keep everyone in suspense."

The posters Alamo said his group distributes read. Warning! Blasphemy of the Holy Ghost is never forgiven in heaven or on earth."

In some cities these posters have been glued beside the anti-Vatican ones which state, "Warning! People Newsweek, Time-Life magazines are secretly owned by the Vatican.

Alamo, who heads the Tony and Susan Alamo Christian Foundation in Alma, Ark. said he would not say who was printing the posters. All he would say about the poster's origin was. "We must have hit a sore spot, or whoever is putting them up. The mysterious posters were pasted on downtown windows in Laredo, Brownsville, Corpus Christi and Houston last week. In Corpus Christi, students from the Jewish community worked to remove the posters from vacant shop windows.
