REAPERVILLE'S LAST STAND — Instructor Bill Mackey and the current slate of officers of Reaperville Enterprises consider current business trends in the sale of clip boards, the project this year for the Pampa Junior High Industrial Arts students. The boards were made and finished, hardware mounted and students "hit the street" to market them. Directing this activity were, from the left, Mackey; Paul Sloan, vice president for marketing; Gary Sanders, president and board chairman and Steve Cook, vice president in charge of finance. Industrial Arts Class Dissolving Corporation

By BILL MACKEY
Reaperville Enterprises is going out of business for the last time. Each year for the past five years students in the Pampa Junior High School shop classes have organized a company called Reaperville Enterprises. The company goal has been to manufacture, distribute and sell a product—the Junior Achievement idea adapted for school shop classes. The first year the plan was tried there were two industrial arts teachers at Pampa Junior High. Don Drinnen, now physical education instructor and coach, teamed with Bill Mackey to introduce the structure and concerns of a small manufacturing business on a realistic basis to their students. Reaperville Enterprises was organized with a ten-man board of directors and a full slate of officers. The school board meeting room was used for organizational meetings to give students the feel of sitting in a swivel chair and making important decisions. Stock certificates were designed and sold for 50 cents a share. A bank account was opened at First National Bank where banking officials assisted in explaining the mechanics of banking procedures for Reaperville Enterprises treasurers.

That first year, 1968-69, the company directors agreed to manufacture a small foot stool. One hundred units were made and all were sold at $2 each. The entire operation, from organization to company liquidation, required about six weeks of school time. Flushed with success, the next year's directors ambitiously undertook to manufacture a miniature four-drawer chest. It took 12 weeks to successfully complete 200 units. That was too long in the opinion of the arts teacher. Then came a kitchen-knife holder and last year a spice rack. This year—the student company has manufactured 180 clip-boards, using four different designs. Prices range from 75 cents to $2. Application of the Junior Achievement idea (Pampa Daily News, Wednesday, Jan. 17, Page 4, headline: "Typical American Does Not Understand Profit Systems") has offered excellent opportunity for class discussions on the Free Enterprise System—the profit motive—Wall Street and the Stock Exchange role in the American economy—capitalism versus communism—and what is involved in launching a small business. Officers of the Reaperville Enterprises Co. are Gary Sanders, president and chairman of the board; Frankie Lemons, vice-president; Steve Cook, vice president; Darrell Thompson, vice president; production, and Paul Sloan, vice president marketing. Other directors are Tom Taylor, Kenneth Gage, Monk Meers, Johnny Murrell and Jeffrey Parnell. The proclamation calls for persons in all walks of life to join in recognition of the war's end in Southeast Asia; at an area-wide meeting at 4 p.m. Sunday in the M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium. Preliminary plans for the program were outlined this morning at a breakfast meeting in Coronado Inn. Details were being worked out this afternoon by a committee headed by co-chairmen Rev. Francis J. Hines of St. Vincent's Catholic Church and Rev. Martin Hager, pastor of First Presbyterian Church.

Texas Weather: Snow Warning!

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Heavy snow warnings were issued for broad areas of Northwest, North Central and West Texas today as snow fell steadily, sometimes mixed with freezing rain, to glaze the highways and snarl traffic. The Texas Highway Department reported three to four inches of snow in Scurry County and two to three inches in other areas west of Abilene. The San Angelo office of the National Weather Service warned that accumulations up to eight inches could be expected in Reagan, Coke, Irion, Sterling and Tom Green counties before the snow ends later today. There was four inches on the ground in the Ballinger area. Temperatures were in the 30s and the snow was expected to turn to rain there by afternoon. It was raining over the eastern half of the state. In general the snow belt stretched across the Edwards Plateau from Del Rio to San Angelo, westward to Langtry and Midland and northward to Lubbock. It caused special warnings to motorists along and east of the Pecos River and across the western portion of the Hill Country. Rain fell nearly everywhere else across the state toward the east and north, sometimes at rates up to one inch per hour. Only the areas of the state farther west remained dry. It was partly cloudy here and there in the Texas Panhandle and elsewhere in that section. The cause of this adverse and unusual weather, the National Weather Service said in a special advisory, "is a complex upper level low pressure system just south of the (Texas) Big Bend in Old Mexico. Moisture is spreading northward into the Panhandle from South Texas and Old Mexico... mostly rain to the south but change to snow as colder temperatures are reached." Observers predicted the nasty weather would linger from the Pecos River eastward and from the Rio Grande northward into the Panhandle until this weather-producing system moved toward the northeast late in the day. Roads and streets were reported particularly dangerous around San Angelo this morning.

FOR PAMPA AREA Cease-Fire Thanks Service Set Sunday In Auditorium

By TEX DEWEESE
Pampans and area residents today were urged in a proclamation by Mayor Milo Carlson to join Sunday in a public thanksgiving and prayer service marking the cease-fire in Vietnam. The proclamation calls for persons in all walks of life to join in recognition of the war's end in Southeast Asia; at an area-wide meeting at 4 p.m. Sunday in the M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium. Preliminary plans for the program were outlined this morning at a breakfast meeting in Coronado Inn. Details were being worked out this afternoon by a committee headed by co-chairmen Rev. Francis J. Hines of St. Vincent's Catholic Church and Rev. Martin Hager, pastor of First Presbyterian Church.

Others attending this morning's planning session were Rev. Lloyd Hamilton, First United Methodist Church; Rev. Claude Cane, First Baptist Church; Jerald Sims, chamber of commerce president; E.O. Wedgeworth, chamber manager, and Warren Hesse, school board representative. Preliminary plans call for participation of all churches and schools including the Pampa High School choir, and stage band. Special emphasis was placed on attendance of young people. Members of the congregations of all churches will be urged at Sunday morning services to take part in the thanksgiving and prayer service in the afternoon. Plans also call for brief 5-minute talks by Vietnam veterans.

Special prayers will be offered for the safe return of POWs and fighting men who have been listed missing in action in the Vietnam conflict. Details will be announced tomorrow, according to Rev. Hager. "We are aiming at full participation of the people of Pampa and surrounding area," he said. "We hope for good attendance from nearby towns and especially invite them to join in this prayerful service of thanksgiving. It is a time to rejoice, pray and give thanks." Strong emphasis is expected to be made on the cease-fire agreement in Sunday church services, Fr. Hines stated. The agreement, to be finalized at the Paris peace table, is to become effective at 6 p.m. (Texas time) Saturday.

LBJ Funeral Cortège Leaves Washington For Texas Burial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The coffin of President Lyndon B. Johnson was carried in radiant sunshine today from the halls of his beloved Congress to a farewell service in his church. Four bursts of ruffles and flourishes and a final "Hail to the Chief" from a Coast Guard band signaled the slow, doleful procession down the marble steps and to a motorcade that bore the body to the National City Christian Church. Ladybird Johnson, smiling serenely and with her head held high, walked 15 paces behind the coffin. Behind her were the Johnson daughters, Luci Nugent and Lynda Robb, cousins and close friends. The 36th President's five-year-old grandson, Patrick Lyndon Nugent, 5, raised his hand to his forehead in salute, blinking his eyes in the sun. Nine years ago, another small boy, John-John, flashed a similar salute on the funeral of his father, President John F. Kennedy. Some 2,000 people, bundled up in the cold, stood in total silence on the Capitol grounds and watched as the coffin was placed in a hearse for the half-mile drive to the church. Another few hundred people waited there.

Through the long night the coffin had lain in the Capitol Rotunda, between the House, where Johnson served a Texas district from 1937 to 1949, and the Senate, where he represented the state from 1949 until his election as vice president in 1960. Thousands of ordinary Americans, many dressed casually, shuffled past the coffin to say a simple goodbye. President Nixon, who only hours before had proclaimed the Vietnam peace which had eluded Johnson so long, rode in the state procession behind the horse-drawn caisson. Inside the Capitol, he took Mrs. Johnson's arm as she heard her husband eulogized as a man "whose ambition for himself was nothing compared to his ambition for America." "He gave me one guiding principle," said J.J. Pickle, Johnson's home congressman. "He said, 'When you vote, vote for the people.'" Throughout, Mrs. Johnson remained impressively composed, staying to greet personally all the official guests and frequently managing a warm smile. Only when that task was completed did she apply a white handkerchief to her glistening eyes. But daughter Luci Nugent, always the most outwardly emotional of the Johnson women, frequently had to fight back her tears, as did several persons who came through. Even after the former first lady and the rest of the family had left to spend the night at Blair House—just across Pennsylvania Avenue from a more familiar white one—the two double lines, moving deliberately but steadily, continued to grow.

It was at the Capitol that Johnson started his long rise to power. He became, at age 22, an aide to a congressman in 1931. Six years later he was a congressman himself. He entered the Senate in 1949 and remained there until he became vice president in 1961 and president a thousand days later. A memorial service for former President Lyndon B. Johnson was held today at the Tan Son Nhut base chapel. Military chaplains for the U.S. Army, Navy and Air Force conducted the service. It was attended by U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, Premier Tran Thien Khiem and three other South Vietnamese cabinet ministers and Gen. Frederick Weyand, commander of American forces in Vietnam. In a eulogy, Army chaplain Emil Kapusta said of the 36th President: "As a legislator, president and world leader, President Johnson directed his efforts, not toward grandeur or personal gain, but toward the betterment of life for the individual." The eulogy noted Johnson accomplished much in his domestic programs, "even though the Vietnam conflict absorbed an inordinate amount of his time and energies, a most important and essential issue during his tenure as president." Press aide Tom Johnson said Wednesday night that the body of former President Lyndon Johnson will be flown from Washington to Bergstrom Air Force Base in Austin because of forecasts of bad weather in Texas Thursday.

The body will be carried from Austin by motorcade from the Air Force base to the LBJ Ranch, 65 miles west of Austin. There were previous plans to fly the body by Air Force DC9 directly to the Pedernales River ranch. According to Tom Johnson, "Private aircraft which had been scheduled for landing at the LBJ Ranch airstrip should consider alternate plans." "A liaison office has been established at the Ragsdale Terminal at Austin Municipal Airport." The following timetable, taking into consideration changes caused by expected inclement weather, has been announced for the graveside services of former President Lyndon Johnson. 3 p.m. EST—Air Force aircraft with casket and escort of Mrs. Johnson and close friends arrives at Bergstrom Air Force Base, near Austin. 3:15 p.m.—Motorcade begins to LBJ Ranch, 65 miles west of Austin. 5 p.m.—Graveside ceremony begins. 5th Army military band from Fort Sam Houston plays "Ruffles and Flourishes and 'Star Spangled Banner.'" The Rev. Father W. W. Schneider, pastor of St. Francis Xavier Catholic church, gives the invocation. Remarks by John B. Connally, former U.S. Secretary of Treasury and ex-Texas governor. Remarks by Evangelist Billy Graham. Twenty-one gun salute by 105mm howitzers of Texas National Guard. Musketry salute, three volleys by seven riflemen. Taps, played by M-Sgt. Patrick Mastroleo of Ft. Myer. Va. Miss Anita Bryan sings "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." Colors presented to Mrs. Johnson. 5:30 p.m.—Mrs. Johnson and party leaves gravesite and return to main ranch house.

Cease Fire Nears, Girding for Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a Vietnam cease-fire fast approaching, major participants are hurrying to gird for a complicated peace settlement and the uncertain days that lie ahead. In Washington, the Pentagon issued a stop order late Wednesday on virtually all pending movements of GIs to Vietnam. Only some personnel with special skills will be shipped over to help in U.S. withdrawal. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird announced. Under the war-ending pact to be signed in Paris Saturday, all U.S. forces are to be pulled out of South Vietnam within 60 days of the internationally supervised cease-fire that will go into effect at 7 p.m. EST Saturday. In Ottawa, Foreign Secretary Mitchell Sharp of Canada, one of four countries slated to help police the cease-fire, said the first contingent of Canada's observer force will be heading for the scene right after the signing. From Hanoi came word that Nguyen Duy Trinh, North Vietnam's foreign minister, is en route to Paris to join his Washington, Saigon and Viet Cong counterparts in Saturday's formal conclusion of the agreement. Secretary of State William P. Rogers plans to leave for the French capital Friday. The fast-moving diplomatic and military moves fit into the intricate scenario set forth Wednesday in a 12-page peace agreement, plus four side accords, made public by Washington and Hanoi.

Exuberance over the prospective windup of the long war was mixed with caution over whether the settlement will stick in a land where the fighting has been going on for a generation. President Nixon spoke to congressional leaders of "a peace, however fragile, which we have hopes will endure." Negotiator Henry A. Kissinger pledged a major U.S. effort for a permanently peaceful Indochina but cautioned that the success of the agreement rests also "on the spirit in which it is implemented." Joy soared among the families of U.S. prisoners of war. The first batch of American prisoners is due to be airlifted out of Hanoi within 15 days of the peace signing. All Americans held throughout Indochina—587 servicemen and 51 civilians by U.S. count—are to be set free within 60 days of the cease-fire as the 23,000 GIs in South Vietnam are brought home. Infiltration of fresh troops and military supplies into South Vietnam is banned. All foreign troops in Laos and Cambodia, now heavily infested with North Vietnamese soldiers, are to be withdrawn. South Vietnam's political future is to be determined by the South Vietnamese, with President Nguyen Van Thieu's government remaining intact at least until after an election. Any reunification of Vietnam is to come about only through peaceful means, not the use of force. The United States will help in postwar reconstruction efforts throughout Indochina and will enter into a new, peaceful relationship with North Vietnam. A four-nation International Control Commission of 1,160 men will supervise the truce deal. The countries are Canada, Indonesia, Poland and Hungary. An international conference including the great powers will be convened within 30 days to guarantee the ending of the war and the maintenance of peace in Vietnam. No withdrawal of North Vietnamese forces from South Vietnam is specified in the peace agreement. A pullout of Hanoi troops had been one of Thieu's prime demands. Instead, the cease-fire calls for a staying-in-place of the rival Vietnamese forces in the South pending agreement on a mutual reduction at some unspecified time. Kissinger told a nationally telecast news conference Wednesday that the agreement had to reflect battlefield realities. And he predicted the North Vietnamese forces in the South, 145,000 by U.S. estimate, should in time dwindle because of the pact's ban against reinforcement. The agreement carries with it no simultaneous cease-fire in neighboring Laos and Cambodia, a goal set forth last May 8 by Nixon in his conditions for a peace deal. In Laos, high diplomatic sources said a cease-fire will be announced Feb. 11. Cambodian Premier Hang Thun Hak said Phnom Penh's forces will stop all offensive actions against the Communists following the South Vietnam truce.

AT PUBLIC RECEPTION Retiring County Auditor To Be Honored Friday

By TRACY D. CARY
Nearly a half-century in the service of Gray County by retiring Gray County auditor Ramon Cary Wilson, known far and wide over Texas as "Mr. Congenial - with - the - pipe" and to his host of friends as "Ray," will climax Friday when a reception will be held in his honor from 2 to 5 p.m. in the County Court-Room hosted by Gray County officials and members of the courthouse staff. Friends of Wilson are invited to attend the open house during the afternoon. Wilson's service to Gray County began in 1926 when he was appointed a deputy in the then-combined office of Sheriff-Tax Collector Ernest S. Graves, and he continued in that capacity until 1928. That was the year the courthouse was moved from Lefors to Pampa where the Commissioners rented office space in the basement of the old First Baptist Church on the present site of the Combs-Worley building. In 1928 the office of Gray County auditor became vacant and a number of highly-qualified individuals were seeking the position. The firm of Thomas Y. Pickett & Co. of Dallas made an audit of Gray County books which Wilson had been keeping and evaluated them as one of the best kept sets of books they had ever appraised in Texas. The Pickett firm was so glowing in praise of Wilson's work they recommended him, although he was only 27 years old. For the vacant post to District Judge W.R. Ewing, who made the appointment in December of 1928, effective Jan. 1, 1929. That made him probably the youngest county auditor in Texas at that time. Subsequent reappointment to the office was made by District Judges W.R. Ewing, Clifford Braly, Newton P. Willis, Lewis M. Goodrich and Grainger W. McIlhenny. Wilson also has served as auditor through the administrations of County Judges T.H. Wolfe, Ivey E. Duncan, S.D. Stennis, C.E. Cary, Sherman White, Bruce Parker, J.B. Maguire, William J. Craig, Sherman T. Lenning, and Don Cain.

"RAY" C. WILSON
...47 years of service

population increases, new governmental regulations and the monthly payrolls of county officials, employees at Highland Hospital, the McLean Hospital, the White Deer Land Museum and expenditures for Perry Lefors Field. So much book work would fire the temper of a lesser man, but Wilson's trademark has been his cordiality, patience and courtesy in dealing with the public especially in his role as counselor to the county governmental employees. Wilson, who was born in Van Alstyne in 1901 came to Alanreed with his family in 1903. He was a quarterback on the first Pampa High School Harvester team in 1920 and while editor of the first PHS annual in 1921 he suggested the colors of green and gold which have been the school colors ever since. He was graduated in 1922 and the 1970 50th anniversary Edition of "The Harvester" in 1970 was dedicated to him. In 1941 Wilson was elected President of the Texas County Auditor's Association at their

Fort Worth Convention and procedures and budget forms devised by him have been widely adopted over the state. He has served as an Elder for many years in the First Christian Church, 25 of them as church treasurer, as president of the School Board of the Pampa Independent School District and as a member from 1943 to 1947, and last year received the 40-year member pin from the Downtown Lion's Club. Wilson was married to Miss Hazel F. Campbell, June 27, 1929, and their children are Miss Helen Kay Wilson, a teacher in the Aurora, Col. public schools and Jerry C. Wilson, a certified public accountant at Perryton. They also have three grandchildren. The second floor of the courthouse won't seem the same without Wilson's glowing smile, friendly pipe, and ever-ready humorous tales told in his dignified southern drawl: for a task well done, Gray County says, "Thanks a million, Ray Wilson!"

Shell Faces Strike

PASADENA, Tex. (AP) — Representatives of the Shell Oil Co. refinery here and the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union were to meet today in hopes of averting a noon Friday strike. Union and company sources said the talks, which affect about 1,800 men at the Pasadena plant, have bogged down on pension proposals and health and safety issues.

Man Stabbed

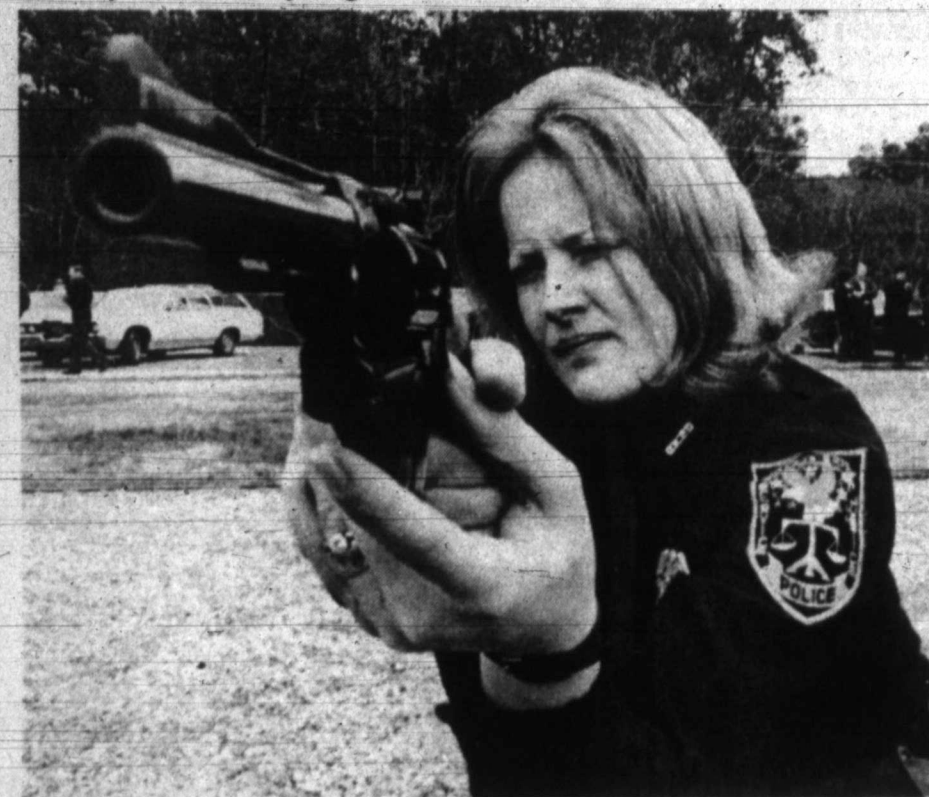

DALLAS (AP) — A man identified by police as A. Y. Sloan, 57, a wealthy business executive, was stabbed to death about midnight in his Highland Park mansion, officers reported. Investigators said a woman was held without immediate charge.

Old Kindness Halts Mercy Divorce for Pair in Love

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Thirty-two years ago, Vincent "Paddy" Byrne of London was an inmate of a Nazi prisoner of war camp near Frankfurt, suffering wounds in both shoulders.

"It was dreary there — dark and dreary for me — and then came a parcel," Byrne recalls. "It was the first sunshine that had come into my life in months."

"All I thought then was that these good people certainly have hearts of gold. And they sent some of that gold to me."

The tiny tin of cookies and candy from the St. Petersburg, Fla., Red Cross remained only a memory for the former Royal Air Force man until last week when his wife spotted a story in the Times of London.

It told of Howard Thomas of St. Petersburg, who says he plans to divorce his dying wife so she will be entitled to state aid to pay nursing home costs he cannot afford.

Ruth Thomas, 45, who married Thomas at the age of 13 and bore him six children, is dying of multiple sclerosis.

The newspaper account which Byrne read quoted Thomas, a steelworker, as saying:

"I had real poor or real rich I could take care of my wife. I'm going to get a divorce to help my wife. I love her, but I'm at the end of my ropes."

On Wednesday it was disclosed that Byrne had donated to a bank trust fund set up for Mrs. Thomas three vacant lots he had purchased in nearby Gulfport during a visit to St. Petersburg six years ago.

Byrne, who describes himself now as a gentleman farmer, says he and his wife were familiar with the St. Petersburg area even before the Red Cross parcel arrived at Stalag Luft 3 so many years ago.

Byrne's brother, the late Francis Joseph Byrne, was a real estate man here and the uncle of Dr. Joseph Byrne, a St. Petersburg surgeon.

"I could not believe it," Mrs. Byrne said of her reaction to the newspaper account. "I told my husband it is not possible that this could happen to someone in St. Petersburg, where everyone is so kind and gracious. It was, to us, a sordid story."

The reported value of the lots, about $2,000, will about equal the outstanding medical debts incurred in Mrs. Thomas' treatment.

"It sounds wonderful," Thomas said when he learned of Byrne's gift. "It's just been a miracle the way everyone's tried to help me. I just can't believe it."

Thomas said, however, that the help he has received has not caused him to change his mind about the divorce. Once the divorce becomes final next month, Thomas said, his wife will be guaranteed welfare assistance for the rest of her life.

The State of Florida notified Thomas in November that he could no longer receive medical benefits for his wife because his salary of $500 a month was above the minimum income requirements for the program.

Greenville Plans 'Audie Murphy' Day

GREENVILLE, Tex. (AP) — They're going to mark an extra holiday here in North Texas Feb. 22.

Civic leaders disclosed plans Wednesday to observe it as Audie Murphy Day as well as Washington's birthday.

A Chamber of Commerce spokesman said the arrangements were begun because Murphy, the Medal of Honor winner who later became a film star, had not been paid tribute in his home state since his death in a 1971 Virginia airplane crash.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe will come here to speak on the courthouse square at 10 a.m., and a number of government and military leaders have been invited along with an Army band from Ft. Hood, Tex.

A special guest will be the Texas hero's widow, Pamela Murphy of Los Angeles.

Coupled with the observance, the Army proposes a special effort to recruit an Audie Murphy platoon composed of young men from Northeast Texas.

High Court Rules On Texas Welfare

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The federal appeals court in New Orleans has ruled that Texas cannot deny aid to families with dependent children (AFDC) simply because a youth in the family has income greater than state-defined needs.

In Wednesday's decision, Leonor Rodriguez had appealed to the court here objecting to several sections of the Texas Financial Services Handbook.

"The regulations being challenged in the case deny AFDC grants to families in which the child has income in his own right which is greater than his own state defined recognizable needs, even where such income is less than the recognizable needs of both the child and his caretaker relatives," the 3rd court said.

Mrs. Rodriguez said the sections are inconsistent with the Social Security Act, but a Western District of Texas court ruled that federal eligibility criteria is not binding on Texas.

However, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals agreed with Mrs. Rodriguez.

"Although each state may refuse to participate in the federal welfare program, once a state decides to participate, it must maintain a system consistent with the Social Security Act," said the appeals court.

"Furthermore, the Supreme Court... held that eligibility for AFDC assistance is not to be determined by each state, but rather by reference to the federal eligibility standards. In short, federal criteria for AFDC eligibility are not optional, as the district court concluded; they are mandatory."

"Thus, in measuring need, the need of the family unit in the question, not the need of the child alone; for the goal of strengthening the family entity can only be achieved if the needs of the caretaker relative are included in determining eligibility."

City Police Search For Holdup Couple

A holdup, three theft cases and two hit and run accidents topped Pampa police reports today.

Charles R. Williams, 1313 Coffee, reported he was held up late last night in the 800-block of S. Gray and robbed of $120 by two men.

Williams gave police a description of the men and two suspects were being sought this forenoon.

Thefts of tools were reported by Marvin Todd, 415 W. Browning, and Don Cole, instructor at the Pampa High School machine shop on Huff Rd.

Todd said $100 worth of tools were taken from a pickup truck parked in his yard.

Cole reported someone broke a window, entered the school machine shop and made off with $85 worth of tools.

Sharon Lee told police someone stole her coat last night while she was at the Pampa Youth Center.

Mary Ellen Martin, 400 W. Harvester, told police her automobile was damaged as she drove south on Harvester and a pickup truck with a camper backed out and struck her car. She said the driver of the pickup drove away.

Jack Smith, Silida, Colo., reported his car was damaged while on a parking lot at 2400 Perryton Pkwy. by a motorist who left no name.

A 15-year-old Corpus Christi runaway girl was picked up by Pampa police last night. She was taken to Amarillo Air Terminal to be flown back home.

'Pot' Worth $400,000 Is A Lot Of Cabbage!

PIPE CREEK, Tex. (AP) — An overturned truck from the Texas border, ostensibly hauling cabbage, revealed a two-ton load of marijuana valued at $400,000, Bandera County Sheriff R. B. Miller says.

The truck "made the turn too fast and it tipped over" at the intersection of Texas 16 and Farm-to-Market Road 1283 at the center of this small community, said the sheriff.

The driver of the truck, which had a permit from McAllen on the Texas-Mexican border, talked for a moment with a man who rushed out of the general store at the intersection and then "ran off" on foot, said Miller.

The driver was not in custody late Wednesday.

Miller said he believes the weed, which was contained in 37 sacks under the sacks of cabbage, "was headed north" perhaps for Chicago or New York. He said he believes it originally came from Mexico.

"That much marijuana, we wouldn't have that kind of thing here," he said, when asked if it was possible the weed was destined for his Texas Hill Country area.

He said he believes the driver was in Bandera County possibly because he lost his way when he was traveling through San Antonio southeast of here.

State narcotics agents took custody of the marijuana and the truck, said Miller. He said the marijuana was taken to San Antonio, because, for one reason, "I don't have any place to store it here."

He said it was the largest drug seizure in his county's history.

Tentative Agreement Made In Chicago Teacher Strike

CHICAGO (AP) — A tentative agreement to settle the 16-day-old Chicago teachers' strike was announced early today by representatives of the teachers and the Board of Education.

Spokesmen for the Chicago Teachers Union and the board emerged from an all-night session just after 6 a.m. to announce the agreement.

No details were released immediately.

The terms still must be approved by the full board and then be ratified by the public school teachers.

The board agreed Tuesday to meet two of the union's four major demands, providing a 2½ per cent salary increase and reducing class sizes in all elementary schools. The current scale ranges from $9,796 to $16,716 a year.

Issues remaining included union demands for more preparation time between or before classes for elementary school teachers and a shorter work year without loss in pay.

Meanwhile, public school teachers remained on strike in St. Louis and Philadelphia.

In St. Louis, almost 3,000 of the 4,200 teachers represented by the St. Louis Teachers Union and the St. Louis Teachers Association continued into the fourth day of their strike for increased wages.

No meetings were scheduled to discuss demands by teachers, who have not received a raise in base pay since 1969; for a $1,000 mid-year raise on the $7,200 base salary. The school board has promised a raise by September, but said there is no money for one now.

In Philadelphia, negotiators for the Philadelphia Federation of Teachers and the school board met Wednesday night at the urging of Mayor Frank Rizzo in an effort to settle their 15-month-old contract impasse. The teachers struck the city's 280 public schools Jan. 8 for the second time during the current school year.

The union has asked for a starting salary of $9,273 in the first year, which would increase to $11,336 in the third year of a three-year contract. The board, which announced before the strike that it would have to close schools early this year because of lack of money, has offered to hold the teachers' starting pay at $8,900 in the first year, but to increase it to $10,336 by the third year.

War Crept Into All Spheres Of Life

By SID MOODY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

As the dominant fact of American life of the last decade, the Vietnam war reached directly or indirectly into public and private spheres alike.

The campus, the ghetto, the counting house all became something they hadn't been as the war crept step by little step across the Pacific from the jungles of Indochina.

This was the period when blacks rioted; cities burned; kids dropped out, a president dropped out, crime flourished, campuses revolted, gaps widened, the dollar wilted, Kent State ... communes ... Peace Now! ... do your own things ...

How much all of this was born of war will long be argued. But the war touched it all, for it was the linchpin of all those swift years of change.

Protest became a mode of expression for any complaint. The war, ROTC, the draft, high prices at the meat counter. The raised voice and the raised fist supplanted the letter to the editor.

The godfather of youthful dissent was the University of California campus at Berkeley. Clark Kerr, then head of the school, traces the initial outbreaks to the patterns of demonstration established in the South as well as the uproar of the 1964 Republican convention in San Francisco.

"I don't think we would have had Berkeley in 1964 without the convention, if we had not had the long, hot summer in Mississippi when if you didn't like something, you sat down," he said.

Campus violence began to focus on the war. Students protested with sit-ins and seizures at schools with ROTC units or whose endowment portfolios contained war-oriented securities.

Radicals such as Herbert Aptheker, theoretician of the American Communist party, could bring a packed hall of students at such schools as the University of Wisconsin to their feet with a repeated litany against the war: "Stop it! Stop it! Stop it!"

The draft was another focal point of resistance. Thousands of young sought refuge in Canada rather than face service in Vietnam. Some went to jail for burning draft cards. Storefront draft counselling centers became a campus fixture.

Radical youth groups such as the Students for a Democratic Society made opposition to the war one of their main causes.

Student draft deferrals were a sore point with some who served. "I was over there getting shot at when my peers were back home sipping gin at the country club," said Dean Phillips, a 29-year-old law student and member of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War who won 14 decorations as a paratrooper in Indochina.

But the nation's mood of what to do about draft evaders was ambivalent. Even a veteran such as Sgt. C.J. Huhn, who lost a leg to a land mine, was measured in his criticism.

"The veterans against the war I don't mind. They've been there. But the guys who haven't have no conception of what they're talking about." But if he didn't condone amnesty, neither did he demand jail.

The credibility gap pried at the generation gap.

"Young people in this war were more innocent than we were," said Maurice Mitchell, chancellor of the University of Denver and a World War II veteran. "But the virgin war to stop communism turned out to be a whore. The government blew its credibility right out of the water, and that has not yet come home to roost."

"Vietnam really destroyed that generation's faith in government, maybe for their lifetimes."

And maybe that had been part of the trouble, all the murk. There had been, at first, the domino theory. If the United States doesn't stop Red China, z-z-zap, there goes the rest of Asia. But in 1972 Richard Nixon himself, who had favored intervention in Vietnam in 1954 to aid the French, made peace in Peking. And the war was still there.

There had been the Gulf of Tonkin that spurred a moment of national cohesion, but even today it is not clear just what the radar saw out there in the night.

There had been My Lai and Lt. Calley and the national uproar at his conviction that became stuck in the throat when one reflected that whatever he was, William Calley was no hero.

Maybe that, too, was part of the trouble. A lot of people had said that. "And maybe no villains. Just victims."

Lyndon Johnson had been one. The immense credit he amassed in his landslide election in 1964 had so eroded four years later that he chose not to seek re-election.

And maybe part of the trouble was that it had gone on so long. Three presidents had gone on television beginning. "My fellow Americans ..." and then solemnly telling why advisers would be sent or bombs dropped or Cambodia invaded, and still the war was there, all tunnel and no light.

One looks back with surprise at photographs of Berkeley in 1964. Students wore jackets and ties and crewcuts. It seems no one has had a haircut since and fugitive students are on the FBI's most-wanted list.

Against the backdrop of a war that would not end, some young people simply decided that if it would not go away, they would. Into drugs. Into communes. Into Hare Krishna. Into their own thing.

"The war in Vietnam has had a tremendous influence on young persons wanting to drop out of society," said Dr. Dave Smith who worked in the Haight-Ashbury Free Medical Clinic before that garden of the flower children in San Francisco became a jungle of crime.

There were others who had nowhere to go. No figure can be provided to prove a negative, but many black leaders were to ask what could have been accomplished in the ghettos of America with the billions spent in Vietnam.

The Rev. Martin Luther King was to make the war a racial issue when he pointed out the high rate of black casualties, and black leaders began protesting that Negroes were fighting a white man's war.

If this did not kindle Watts and Detroit and Newark and Washington and other cities of the long, hot summers, it certainly was present in black resentment.

For the war was always there, right there in the newspapers and on the 7 o'clock news, night after night. It had come so quietly, like frost in the night, and as it slowly wound down, it seemed to have left a national boredom, an apathy.

"You just can't shock people any more," said Tom Wolzien, a Denver television newsman and veteran of the war. What could shock you after Kent State and Calley and the riots and Attica and the peace parades and all the shouting and bombing and marching? The war had been an immense binge, inflating the paycheck and deflating the dollar. And what had it bought?

Even those whose loss in Vietnam was direct seemed to have undergone a metamorphosis. Richard Hamm, a retired businessman and university official, sat in his home in the Colorado farming town of Longmont the day after Henry Kissinger said. "Peace is at hand." He wondered what that meant for his son, James, an F4 pilot missing in action since he was shot down during the Tet offensive in 1968.

"I don't think my war attitudes changed entirely because of our involvement with Jim, but I think now it's almost an impossibility for one country to set up a bulwark against communism. I think that unless we're asked, it's probably better to not to try and 'save' another country."

His wife, a calm, handsome woman, poured some coffee. "I don't feel bitter about it. Times have changed in the last four years. It seemed right at the time."

Right at the time. At what time? If it once was right, when did it turn wrong?

A nation of winners was left to seek somewhere in a distant jungle the something that had been won. If there was victory with honor, what was the victory and where was the honor? If there was defeat, what had been lost?

Had war brought some breakdown in the American ethic? A Rip Van Winkle walking across America after a 10-year sleep in 1972 would find porno shops and massage parlors advertising in hotel magazines and X-rated movies and sixth-graders on drugs and runaway kids and embittered vets and any number of people who would tell him, yeah, I guess it was all a mistake.

All a mistake and $60 billion and 50,000 lives? History would determine that.

But if there was to be peace, it would be a peace without parades. If there were no flags, neither was there crepe. A war that had lived almost too long for tears, died without cheers.

"It's not that people don't care," said Wolzien. "Maybe they just want to forget. They're tired of rhetoric and demonstrations. Maybe they just want to sleep a while."

Police Chief Fired

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Glenn Stanford, police chief here for the past two-and-a-half years was fired Monday and Police Lt. D. K. Lack named acting chief by City Manager John Unverferth. The firing ended a bitter year for Stanford which had seen the City Council pressure Unverferth to fire his police chief and several black groups demand his resignation.

Management Easier In Good Times

NEW YORK (AP) — Corporate management, in a generic sense, reacts with more assurance and unanimity to challenges of an expanding economy than to a recession or shrink situation, a study just completed suggests.

In more "normal" times, which have come to mean prosperity, you can predict just about what age group will supply the next corporate top man. Most likely he will be 7 to 12 years younger than the outgoing boss.

After studying leadership changes in three recessions since the early 1950s, Dr. Eugene Jennings of Michigan State University concludes that companies react to the relatively unfamiliar stress of bad times by:

1. Putting older men in the top spot, the intention seemingly being to utilize his experience and industry knowhow to get back on a track that will best protect it from the economic elements.

2. Putting younger men in the top spot, the intention apparently being to encourage innovation in areas that the rest of the industry may be overlooking.

The pattern shows up consistently and with amazing clarity. As Jennings puts it: "Rebels and conformists in a shrink economy pop out in bold relief."

In the '50s and '60s, for example, about 8 per cent of chief executive appointments were 15 years or more younger than their predecessors. But during recessions the percentage doubled.

In the same two decades, again only 8 per cent of the top spots were filled by men five years younger or older than the departing boss; in other words, by comparatively older executives. In recessions, that rate also doubles.

At the same time, the number of appointments coming from the middle-age ranges shrinks appreciably.

All this makes Jennings, whose statistical studies of corporate personnel patterns have led to numerous books and have made him widely sought as a management adviser, just a bit apprehensive.

He sees corporate management as being forceful and assured in periods of expansion, but he questions its ability to deal as effectively with recessions.

"We are apt to have agreement on what kind of manager we want in a growth situation," he said, "but we disagree violently on who is the best management ideology. We fall apart ideologically when it comes to paring the fat."

Prosperity, he indicated, has cost the nation some of its management ideology. We no longer know who is the good manager for recession's challenges and so we experiment with youth-ideas and age-experience.

Vietnam War Longest, One Of Most Expensive

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 11-year Vietnam War was the longest in U.S. history. It was one of the most expensive, costing nearly $137 billion. It killed more than 56,000 American servicemen, the fourth largest toll in any U.S. war.

These are some of the statistics which etch the scope of the Vietnam War and fit it into its place among this country's armed conflicts.

Until Vietnam, the eight-year Revolutionary War was the longest on the U.S. record.

Such documents as are available list only 4,435 battle deaths over that span but say nothing about other deaths such as those caused by disease, often a bigger killer than bullets in those days.

The four-year Civil War took the heaviest payment in American lives. A total of 498,332 Americans died in battle and from other causes, 394,511 in Union uniforms and 133,821 in the Confederate forces.

World War II ranks next in human cost. Over three years and eight months of fighting, 405,399 Americans died in combat, from injuries and disease.

World War I lasted 19 months for the United States and led to the deaths of 116,516 Americans.

Vietnam war deaths topped the 54,246 resulting from the three-year Korean War.

The more than 153,000 wounded and requiring hospitalization in the Vietnam War also ranked well below previous major wars.

In World War II, Pentagon records show, there were 676,846 listed as wounded. In the Civil War, the count was 281,881 on the Federal side, with no reliable records available for the Confederates.

Vietnam was the first war in which statistics were kept on lesser wounds which did not require hospital treatment. There were more than 150,000 of these.

War prisoners have received greater public attention in Vietnam than in previous wars, but the totals of Americans held captive are infinitesimal when compared with the two other recent conflicts in this century.

According to the Pentagon, nearly 600 Americans currently are listed as captured or interned in Southeast Asia, with more than 1,200 missing.

In World War II, there were 128,782 Americans taken captive by the Germans and the Japanese. In Korea, 7,152 American servicemen were imprisoned in North Korea. Missing figures were not available for those wars.

The nearly $137 billion cost of the Vietnam War is well below the estimated $330 billion price of World War II.

But the gap probably is much greater than that, because the dollar is considerably cheaper now than it was in the 1940s because of inflation over the last quarter of a century.

Government records list the cost of World War I at about $27 billion and Korea at $18 billion.

The United States has lost almost 4,900 helicopters and 3,700 jets and other fixed-wing airplanes throughout Southeast Asia.

U.S. warplanes unloaded a total of about 7.1 million tons of conventional bombs in Indochina, roughly triple the 2,057,244 tons dropped by U.S. air forces over Europe, North Africa and the Pacific in all of World War II. The bomb tonnage in Korea totaled only 635,000, or about 10 per cent of that spent in Indochina.

Television And Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Bouton, the former major and minor league baseball pitcher, soon may be brought before the sportscasting fraternity on charges of heresy and having a sense of humor.

"To be honest, there's nothing in sports today that's worth reporting," he informed viewers tuned to the 11 p.m. news on WABC-TV here, where he is the regular sportscaster.

It was a shining moment both for truth-in-sportscasting and for viewers who doze off watching other sportscasters emit 125 scores per minute and the latest poop on Slippery Rock's team.

There are dog days in sports news, but he was one of the few to admit it. He had admitted it once before, but on this occasion he told his viewers he would have to modify his stand.

This, he said, was because "tonight the producer said, 'You gotta have something because we'll have a large audience. We're being preceded by a Dean Martin movie.'"

His sports report, in its entirety, was: "Bob Fitch, defensive coordinator and line coach at Southern Mississippi, today was named an assistant football coach at Kansas State."

That was it. Bouton was just putting into practice what he's felt for some time.

"When I was growing up, I used to watch TV, and it always seemed the sports guy would take three minutes, no matter what was happening," he said. "Big news, no news, it made no difference."

Bouton, an admirably free spirit who wrote the best-selling "Ball Four" while on and between teams, has been WABC's late-night sports man for 2½ years. He got the job despite himself.

After "Ball Four" came out, WABC executives called him and asked if he'd like to go into television. At the time, he was a pitching for the Houston Astros, and the team was doing well.

"I said, 'Quit the Houston Astros? You must be crazy. Harry Walker's about to lead this team to the pennant, and I'm going to win the final game,'" he said.

"They said, 'We'll pay you a lot of money.' I said, 'Listen, I'm playing baseball. Are you kidding me?' I told them, 'A couple of years from now, if I get released or sent to the minor leagues, I'll give you a call.'"

"As it turned out, that happened in a couple of months. The Astros sent me to Oklahoma City. And I spent two days in Oklahoma City and one day in Indianapolis, and that was it."

"I called you WABC and said, 'Ah, you know that TV job you... Ah, you didn't get somebody for that yet, did you?'"

Has Bouton had any network offers? "Naw, not really," he said. "I think I'm a little too far out for the network."

Two Students On Dean's List

LUBBOCK — Two Pampa students qualified for the dean's honor list for the 1972 fall semester in the College of Home Economics at Texas Tech University.

They were Karen S. Burger, 2118 Chestnut, and Molly A. Meeker, 1132 N. Starkweather.

DO-IT-YOURSELF Fireplace Fire—How to Build

By MR. FIX

Modern heating systems notwithstanding, a fireplace remains a useful as well as a decorative feature in the house. That it isn't more useful to more people is due to poor maintenance or poor fire-building techniques.

The result of either is smoking and sputtering and a loss of enchantment.

Assuming that your fireplace was properly designed in the first place there is no reason you can't make it useful once more.

You need air for a working fire. The flow of air up the chimney makes a key. The fire burn properly and keeps the smoke from backing up into the room. This is what is known as the proper draft.

To get this, there is a movable plate at the top of the fireplace in the chimney that opens and closes the opening. This is the damper. Make sure it is fully open to provide the proper draft. A damper may sometimes get clogged with soot.

You also need ventilation in the room for a constant flow of fresh air. A slightly open window or door will provide the flow of fresh air needed for a working fire. This is especially important in a modern home with its airtight, weatherstripped construction.

With ventilation accounted for, next thing to check is your fire-building technique.

Build your fire close to the back wall of the fireplace, not up front. This heats up the otherwise cold wall. Place the second in front of it. Add a few more sticks for paper first (you can toss some on top of the unlighted logs beforehand) to pre-heat the chimney. Heating up the cold air and sources of cold air makes it easier to start the fire.

Use enough heavy fuel. One log isn't enough. Neither are two. Use at least three. While methods vary, the generally accepted way to build a fire is to use crumpled newspaper, kindling wood and logs in that order from the bottom up.

The fire is built on andirons so that air can circulate under and through the fire. With the kindling on top of the paper, place a large log on top and at the back. Place the second in front of it. Add a few more sticks for support and place a third log on top.

Remember to allow space for air to flow. The fire is then started by igniting the paper.

If trouble is still encountered, doublecheck for cleanliness in the chimney. Sighting up the chimney on a clear day with a mirror will tell you its condition. You may be able to do quite a bit with a brush on a long wire, and a vacuum cleaner.

Outside, take a look to see that the top of the chimney is clear to provide a proper draft. A chimney is generally built several feet higher than the roof but the presence of tree branches may cancel out this clearance.

House Adops Resolutions To Honor Johnson

AUSTIN (AP) — The House adopted two memorial resolutions praising former President Lyndon B. Johnson Wednesday, including one that attempted to make Johnson's birthday a state holiday.

The "Black Caucus" of the House wrote the resolution that called for the holiday, and it was adopted without objection.

House parliamentarian Bob Johnson told newsmen state holidays could be created only by statute.

Another resolution, sponsored by Rep. Joe Salen of Corpus Christi, asked school boards across the state to dismiss school Thursday in memory of Johnson. It was adopted unanimously.

The House and Senate will convene in joint session at 10 a.m. Thursday to hear Judge Homer Thornberry of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals deliver a memorial address on the former president.

The Senate voted 20-0 to set up a 27-member commission to do the preliminary work on possibly revising Texas' constitution.

There's another side to hitchhiking problem

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Please warn girls against hitchhiking rides with men. Girls who get into a car with a strange man are just begging for trouble, but there is another side to it which few people consider.

My husband has a problem he has been trying to overcome for six years. It's a compulsion to expose himself to young women. He is not a rapist, he only does this to get a thrill from their reaction. He has never touched a girl, tho many have encouraged him to go further. One of these girls reported him to the police and he is now facing the possibility of having to leave me and our three small children for a jail term on a charge of indecent exposure.

I am not condoning his actions, but he has finally faced his problem, and is getting psychiatric treatment. He is a good husband and provider, and the children adore him and so do I. I plan to help him thru this crisis, but I need help from everyone else of my sex.

Abby, please ask girls not to hitchhike with strange men. They may be giving someone who is trying to go straight an opportunity to stray again, and the price is paid by his family.

WORRIED FOR MY HUSBAND

DEAR WORRIED: I agree, hitchhiking is a risky business for all concerned. While I appreciate your understanding attitude and your empathy to your husband, he cannot shift the responsibility for his compulsion to the girls who are foolish enough to hitchhike with him. He is doing the right thing in facing up to his problem and getting psychiatric treatment. But public sympathy is more on the side of the hitchhikers than the man with such a problem.

DEAR ABBY: My husband sleeps all over the bed. He rolls on top of me or pushes me off the bed in his sleep. He sleeps so soundly it's impossible to wake him up. If I ask him to please roll over, he does—on me!

The next morning he doesn't remember a thing. All his life he's had a full-sized bed to himself, and he's accustomed to sleeping that way without giving anybody else a thought. We have been married for two years and I haven't had a good night's sleep yet.

We are buying new bedroom furniture and I want twin beds. He says he isn't ready for that yet, and he wants a ki g-sized bed. What is your advice?

SLEEPYTIME GAL

DEAR GAL: Compromise. Get the twin beds with a single headboard. That way you'll each have your own mattress. And if you can get the kind that "swing" apart, by all means do. I have an idea you may need them.

DEAR ABBY: Another miserable holiday season has passed and I made a New Year's resolution that rather than be in the middle of another power struggle between my parents and my inlaws, my husband and I are going to take a trip somewhere and not spend Thanksgiving and Christmas with either.

We started to "alternate," spending one Thanksgiving with one set of parents and Christmas with the other. The biggest problem was my mother. She felt that if she couldn't have all her children with her every holiday, she was neglected. My inlaws were willing to accept the every-other-year decision.

Last Thanksgiving was the last straw. After driving 300 miles to spend Thanksgiving with my mother, she said, "I wish you'd come for Christmas, too. Next year I may be dead, and then you'll be sorry you didn't."

Now, how could I go to my inlaws for Christmas and enjoy myself with that kind of goody?

HAD IT IN IOWA

DEAR HAD IT: I don't know. But why punish your inlaws because your mother is selfish?

DEAR ABBY: I sure hope that lady who said she and her husband didn't have any sex relations for more than 12 years doesn't find out [like I did] that SHE was going without, but her husband wasn't. My husband was being "served" by a waitress for six years, and all the time I felt so sorry for him. I thought he lost his manhood because he had had a prostate operation. We're divorced now, so it doesn't matter anymore, but some wives can be too trusting.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, JAN. 26
Your birthday today: Many activities come to completion, so you have broader functions to exercise. Relationships must be completely visible now. Today's natives have exact memory, are much given to contemplation.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: It's a great day for making peace. Don't take anybody's feelings for granted, include your friends and family.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Both the very young and the much older bring sunlight into your spirit—if you will let them. Be receptive to new ideas.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Prepare for changes of mind, second thoughts, have an alternative course ready. You can avoid sensitive topics.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Associates tend to be boisterous—let them be. Where a good buying opportunity exists, take immediate advantage of it.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Partnership, marriage, all forms of competition are emphasized today. Your fundamental beliefs come thru strong and clear.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: The broader view is beneficial, shows you how your needs and best interests fit in with your world and can be filled.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Adjustment of accounts, striking of bargains on your earnings and outlays are the favored area for action.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Detailed stories depend on error. Get away from casual distraction, find time for reflection on the past and what you can do.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Because things seem to go well, seek ways of confirming and continuing the trend rather than take things for granted.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: When things go off the track, find out what is wrong. Schedules are no problem unless you hold on too tightly.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: This is a day of demonstration in which you exhibit both virtues and faults in every activity. Your work draws attention.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Select work which emphasizes creative talents, demonstrate your ability. Emotional interests suddenly turn out serious.

Local Woman Receives Potty's Pointer Award

By BOBBY COMBS
Published today in Polly's Pointers is a suggestion for out-dated catalogues, which Mrs. Doris Heller, 2320 Charles, Pampa resident for the past 12 1/2 years, was awarded $1 from Polly Cramer. The item in today's column is signed "Doris."

Mrs. Heller, a 1966 graduate of Highland General Hospital School of Vocational Nursing, has been office nurse for J. Foster Elder, M.D., of Elder and Falkenstein Clinic, for the past six and a half years. She is the wife of Berlin Heller, who is associated with Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America; the mother of two married sons; Royce Heller of Wichita Falls and Lynn Heller of Bowie, both graduates of Midwestern University; and the grandmother of two grandsons, Ryan, 6 1/2 and Kyle, 2 1/2. Royce is an instructor and basketball coach at Wichita Falls High School, and possibly one of the reasons for Mrs. Heller's second best hobby, a Harvester basketball fan, as well as TV sports.

Lynn is a Pampa High School graduate and is comptroller for First Savings and Loan at Bowie. The Heller's are members of Central Baptist Church.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Catalogues Make Nice Booster Chair for Tots

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—When my large thick catalogues became out-dated I taped two of them together and covered the entire thing with pretty adhesive backed paper. This made an excellent booster chair for my grandson to sit on at the table. I wipe it off when the table is cleared and then store it away for his next visit.—DORIS

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I hope some reader will tell me how I can clean my wedding rings. I wear them constantly and they get very dirty as I cook and clean. I find ammonia does a fair job but not like the professional cleaning by a jeweler. I would have this done by a jeweler but dislike leaving them there for a day or two. Hope someone can help me.—VIRGINIA

DEAR POLLY—One of My Pet Peeves is with people who drive with their headlights on during holidays in the daytime. This only adds to the glare and confusion of traffic and we already have too much of that.—MRS. E. W.

DEAR POLLY—I am answering Mrs. L. B. who wanted to make a family tree as an anniversary gift. Last Christmas I made a photo-family tree for my grandparents which was easy and fun to do and much appreciated. I bought a large, wide picture frame and covered a piece of cardboard to fit into it, with beige burlap. I bought a straw basket which I cut in half and hooked to the burlap. I also bought green velvet stems and leaves and two shades of orange felt. Five star petals were cut out of the felt—one shade for grandchildren and one for great-grandchildren. These petals were large enough so a tiny snapshot of each child could be glued on a petal. Velvet stems to the flowers represented the parents and the flowers branched out from the proper stem in the order of their births. The first-born parent's stem was on the left and so on all around. Leaves placed on the stems represented those who had married into the family. Extra pictures could be stored in the basket. This photo tree could be made of any material and its size is dependent on the number of pictures to be used. I can assure you this was easier to make than to describe. New flower faces can always be added, too. A coat of varnish on frame and basket added an extra glow.—SONIE

DEAR POLLY—For breakfast my husband and I like perked coffee but he likes his weak and I like it strong. To make us both happy I have learned to make weak perked coffee and then I add half a teaspoon of instant coffee to my cup and get the extra strength I like.—VENICE

MRS. DORIS HELLER
Receives Polly's Award
(Photo by John Ebling)

Mrs. Nace Gives Talk On Women Of The Bible

Speaking on "Women of the Bible," Mrs. Evelyn Nace, Pampa author, entertained and informed members of Pampa Retired Teachers Association, recently in the Flame Room Pioneer Natural Gas Company. Mrs. Nace selected representatives of the "bad," the "good," the "career" women, etc., in the Bible and gave penetrating and humorous characterizations of each, closing with a humorous reading, "Jezebel." Miss Claudia Everly introduced the speaker. In the business session, with Mrs. Lula B. Owen, president presiding, Miss Pearl Spough reported that a new law has been passed whereby teachers who have retired with no social security benefits may qualify for medicare and medical insurance. She advised those concerned to consult the local Social Security office. Mrs. Earl New, Sr., reporting for the new Informative and Protective Committee, of which

Mrs. F. H. Jernigan is chairman, stated that there are only three convalescent or nursing homes in this area that qualify for medicare, all of these are located in Amarillo. McHenry Lane, chairman of the Legislative Committee, reported on research material and proposals submitted to the Senate Interim Committee for Studying Improvements of Retirement Benefits for Public School Teachers. The two major proposals are: that the retirement benefits for teachers who retired before 1969 be based upon the same formula used in computing benefits for later retirees; and that a retired teacher be placed upon the Teacher Retirement System Board. The president appointed the listed committee to nominate officers for 1973-74. Mmes. L. B. Penick, B.G. Gordon, and John Rankin. Hostesses were Miss Mellie Bird Richey, Mr. and Mrs. B.R. Nuckols, Mrs. Lonnie Hood, Mrs. Robert Sanford, and Mrs. L.K. Stout. Forty-eight members were present. The next meeting, February 19, will feature "Travels with Ray," by E. Ray Miller.

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Lancelot the peerless knight and bridge player looked at his partner Dinadan, the worst player of the roundtable. They are vulnerable and a five-diamond bid would insure the rubber, but there ought to be a good play for six or even seven. Lancelot decided to forget about the grand slam and rather than confuse Dinadan, Lancelot leaped right to six diamonds. The wily Mordred, sitting West, opened the queen of hearts and Lancelot had the doubtful pleasure of looking at the worst possible dummy. At first glance there appeared to be no play at all, but the peerless one never blinked. A second's thought showed him that he might develop a squeeze by ducking the first trick and Lancelot did just that. Mordred continued with the jack. Lancelot won that trick and discarded a low spade. Then he led out seven rounds of trumps and the ace of spades. That ace of spades cooked Mordred's goose. He had to unguard his king of clubs in order to hold two hearts and Lancelot made the last three tricks with dummy's good heart and the ace and queen of clubs. "Horseshoes!" grunted Mordred. "Not at all," said Lancelot. "You could have led the king of clubs at-trick two and set me."

New Type 'Prohibition'

There's good news today—for the underworld!

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is on record with a plan to ration gasoline starting in the mid-1970s.

Clean air is the avowed objective. That is to say, if you don't drive as many miles, the internal combustion engine on your car won't emit as much smog chemicals. So goes the theory.

Well, it is certainly true that people want clean air and that smog is a product of gasoline-burning engines. But it is also true that people desire freedom of movement and that gasoline rationing—a la World War II—will bring on a black market in rationing coupons.

In fact, governmental suppression of gasoline use—if it comes to pass—is reminiscent of governmental suppression of alcoholic consumption. If we grant for a moment that both endeavors were nobly intended, the fact remains that the first of the two attempts at suppression put the underworld squarely in control of the liquor business. With that experience as a base, it is predictable that the more remunerative gasoline trade will take the same course. Namely, the so-called black market will prevail over the government-sanctioned market. The more daring operators, the more ruthless, those with a connection in the government will thrive and honest businesses will wither. That is the normal situation in a politically suppressed market.

Moreover, the governmental hands are not exactly clean in the matter of smog.

For instance, since smog is partially a product of gasoline consumed, why does the government insist on the installation of smog devices that cut down on the number of miles that you get out of each gallon?

Second, why does the government insist on smog devices that work only if kept in top maintenance?

We are not trying to tell the EPA to cease and desist. That would be a waste of labor and newspaper. A bureaucrat has little option but to enlarge the bureaucracy at the expense of the private sector. But we believe that, when more people understand that the government is trying to use more force to solve a problem that the government itself helped to create, they will withdraw confidence from the bureaucracy. A political agency without public confidence is like a weed without moisture.

Point Of Clarification

When President Nixon was sworn in Saturday, Jan. 20, the Bible was open to display Isaiah 2:4. At that point, the Scripture says:

"And he shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

This was announced in the news. But a pertinent point was left out: namely that the antecedent of the pronoun "he" is the person who is going to do the judging and the rebuking. We think that is one thing that the news ought to have made perfectly clear.

Prejudice Is Gone

Gone is the stereotyped image of the motorcyclist as a "hippie," "greaser" or lawless member of a gang—at least in the eyes of juries deciding accident cases.

With the increased popularity of the bikes, it appears that previous jury prejudice has declined and a motorcyclist is more likely to win a favorable verdict, reports Jury Verdict

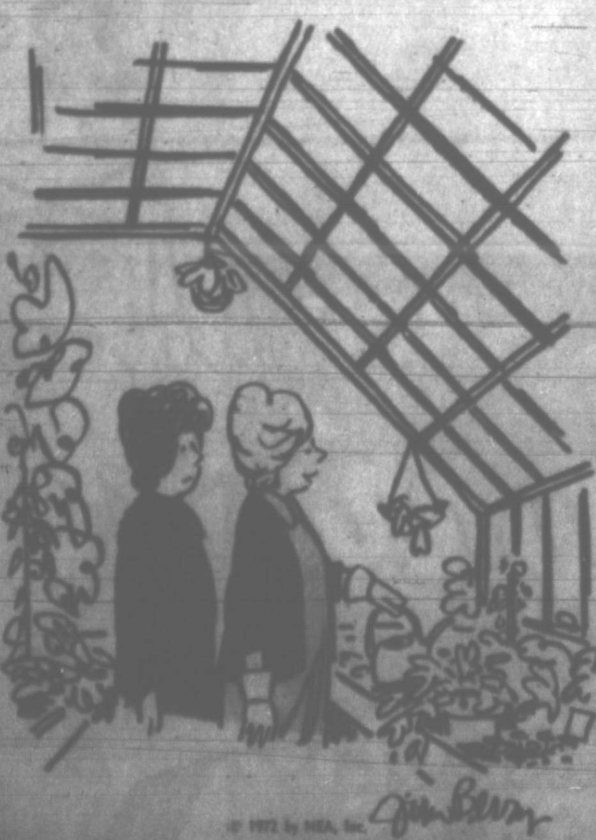

Research, Inc., based in Cleveland, Ohio.

In a recent study of trends in jury verdicts in liability situations involving motorcycles, the motorcycle driver or passenger was found to have a 58 per cent chance of winning his case.

Not only are motorcyclists winning more often, but they are receiving higher awards as plaintiffs, says the study group.

Temblors Point New Mysteries

By BRUCE BOSSAT WASHINGTON (NEA) — In the lonely cold of Pittsburgh's stadium, the electric scoreboard lit up with a sad epitaph: "Roberto Clemente — 1934-1972." There were no spectators, but cameras flashed to the nation this evidence that a great athlete's death touched the daily lives of many people.

In the literal sense, he died in a plane crash off the coast of his native Puerto Rico. In a larger way, he was the victim of an event which reflects a partially unraveled mystery about the earth's crust.

He would never have been on that faltering aircraft had he not undertaken personal overseeing of a mercy mission to Managua, Nicaragua, where two days before Christmas a violent earthquake killed several thousand, injured many thousands more, and leveled all but a fourth of the capital's buildings.

Earthquakes of course are a familiar story. In the past 20 years, there have been thousands of strongly measurable shocks. Heavy loss of life has resulted 26 times since 1900.

They were certainly not new to Managua. Quakes in 1865 and 1931 flattened the city as in 1972. But had leaders in Nicaragua in 1931 known and acted upon what scientists know today, there might have been no massive disaster this time, no mercy mission, and no early death for the great, generous-hearted Roberto Clemente.

Even in 1931, admittedly, a good deal was known about making buildings earthquake-proof. Managua itself has two such 18-story buildings still standing despite the earth's shocks.

But there is much more than this. The fact is that knowledge about the earth's crust has virtually exploded since World War II. Indeed, the science of the crust and its movement has been radically transformed in just 10 years. Who knows or cares? We all should.

A great new theory about that crust has now acceptance that is more than an interesting "mystery unveiled." If accurate, it touches the daily concerns: the very lives of millions living on the earth's widely plotted "fault lines," where crustal actions tears and blasts the surface. Along the Pacific rim from South America's tip to the islands a boye Australia, that movement has been steadily disruptive.

Abandoned is the old idea that the earth's crust is a rigid sphere, broken only by irregular seams where the disruptions occur. Geologists now believe the crust is composed of roughly 20 shifting "plates" which carry the continents and oceans. They slide over a hot, semi-plastic layer, moving at varying pace in different areas, often colliding at their edges in crashing upheavals (as at Managua).

No serious scientist today doubts that this plate movement causes "continental drift." It is accepted not only that South America and Africa were once joined (their sub-surface coastal rock strata match perfectly), but that all continents once were huddled in a single mass.

As humans gauge time, the drift is slow. The Atlantic widens an inch or two a year. But evidence shows that part of the Pacific floor, especially off the Latin American coast (including Managua's area) is moving four times that fast.

To know this is, in effect, to be able to predict more and more earthquakes and eruptions from Mexico to Chile's coldest tip. Will Nicaraguans take note when they rebuild Managua but a few miles from the destroyed site but still within the danger belt?

What moves the earth's crustal "plates" remains a mystery. But would anyone like seriously to argue that the new discoveries, if properly known, would still excite and concern only our adventuring geologists?

RAY CROMLEY

Phase III Presidency Power Is Nixon's Gamble

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Nixon is gambling that if he can control just several thousand major firms, he can regulate inflation. He is gambling further that he can, in fact, control those several thousand concerns.

In private talks, this reporter has been surprised at the spread of economists, conservative and liberal, in and out of the administration, who believe the Nixon theory has some logic.

The influence of the major

H. L. Hunt Writes

MURDER IN NEW ORLEANS

The sniper slayings in New Orleans shocked the people of this nation. It was a ghastly, brutal event that should have shocked the lawmakers into action on the death penalty. Only the Congress and the legislatures of the states can correct the mistake of the Supreme Court which last year wiped out capital punishment. The high court did leave an opening for the legislative branches of the government to rewrite the law on the death penalty and the time for action is now.

The one sniper brought to bay in New Orleans was fatally wounded. If he had accomplices and they subsequently are apprehended, the worst sentence that could be inflicted on them upon conviction would be time in prison. Society has a moral right to demand the maximum penalty when citizens, including police officers, are gunned down like dogs. Criminals who take the lives of others know they will not have to pay the supreme penalty themselves when they go on rampages. If the Congress and the various state legislatures pass the proper legislation, a deterrent will be set in motion.

Special emphasis should be placed on legislation to protect police officers. Attacks on officers are now a daily occurrence and they will grow in ferocity unless new laws with strong muscle are enacted. Some prosecutors in various states have already written such legislation and it is up to their state representatives to put it on the books. What is now considered misdemeanor assaults should be handled as felonies. We must put the criminal element on notice that society will not tolerate the current outbreak of attacks on the police. Your letter or telephone call to your representative or senator could help turn the tide and restore safety on our streets.

As has been widely publicized, the government can step in at any time and order price rollbacks. The major value here is the shock to industry as a whole if the administrators have the will to step hard and fast. It is recognized that if major U.S. firms make a concerted rush for higher prices, an attempt to roll back prices across the board will be futile.

As noted in a previous column, Mr. Nixon's ability to increase imports, decrease exports and otherwise step up the supply of products is a powerful tool indeed in controlling prices.

Overall, to be effective the Nixon Phase III program will require an enormous amount of bluffing or a tremendous amount of will.

companies is, of course, considerable.

First, in the percentage of total national production they control in a number of key fields.

Second, in the strong competitive position held by the larger firms. As a top administration economist puts it, if an influential company holds its prices down, very few firms can afford to raise prices appreciably.

Third, in the psychological example these big publicized companies set. The theory is that the "small boys" will see that the "big boys" are practicing price restraint, and come to believe the government's price and wage controls are effective and that the administration men must have some real clout (or the "big boys" wouldn't stay in line).

By the above logic, however, it is clear that if control of these few thousand major firms does not succeed, or if the success is mushy, Phase III will fall flat. Therefore it is wise at this time to determine what power Mr. Nixon has over the nation's major industrialists and their marketing organizations.

Basically, Mr. Nixon has four weapons.

—The bulk of these super companies depend directly or indirectly and rather heavily on government contracts, either military or civilian. Here then is a very strong pressure point if Mr. Nixon's men have the will to carry through.

—The big companies are especially vulnerable to repeated checks of their books, their operations, their methods of setting prices and to investigations of collusion. They are so few in number the government can afford this repetitive checking. They are vulnerable to the publicity which surrounds government-instituted court cases and to the bad press which follows government announcements of illegitimate price boosts. Harassment of a large company skirting the law can be very effective. But here again, effectiveness depends on the will of administration enforcers.

—As has been widely publicized, the government can step in at any time and order price rollbacks. The major value here is the shock to industry as a whole if the administrators have the will to step hard and fast. It is recognized that if major U.S. firms make a concerted rush for higher prices, an attempt to roll back prices across the board will be futile.

—As noted in a previous column, Mr. Nixon's ability to increase imports, decrease exports and otherwise step up the supply of products is a powerful tool indeed in controlling prices.

Overall, to be effective the Nixon Phase III program will require an enormous amount of bluffing or a tremendous amount of will.

Your Health

Reader Eats But Can't Gain

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I am one of your readers, but I never thought that I would write for advice. Lately, I have been eating constantly. No matter how much I eat or how often I eat, as soon as I've eaten, 10 minutes barely pass before I am starved again. I don't feel full at all. I do not and haven't gained weight except when I was pregnant.

I don't think that I am pregnant because I am taking birth control pills and I have not yet missed a period. Sometimes when I haven't anything that I want to eat or after I have eaten I get cramps in my stomach. Someone told me that there were such things as tapeworms, that if you have one in you, you eat constantly and never gain weight. Is this true or do you think there is a possibility of my being pregnant?

I was told that tapeworms are 30 feet long. I am worried half to death. I don't want to go to a gynecologist yet I don't know what to say or whether he would examine me. I don't have money to go to a private doctor. I go to clinics, so that is why I am consulting you.

Dear Reader—if you are really eating a lot of food and not gaining any weight you simply must have a medical examination.

I am not very much impressed with the idea that you might have a tapeworm, but I am more impressed with the possibility that you might have an important disease. One of these is diabetes in which a lot of the food energy a person gets is lost by losing sugar in the urine. Thus, an individual with fairly severe diabetes will eat a lot of food and not gain any weight. These individuals often drink lots of water and have to urinate frequently as well.

Another cause for this type of problem is an overactive thyroid gland. The metabolism is markedly speeded up and as a result, the body uses an awful lot more energy even without doing any significant amount of work. The amount of food a person with an overactive thyroid can eat and not gain weight can sometimes be tremendous. This is an important medical problem and deserves attention.

I hope not to frighten you, but there are other medical problems that also cause weight loss. Tuberculosis is still a fairly frequent disease, particularly in some communities and in older people (although the latter may not apply to you). Weight loss from tuberculosis is a serious sign and usually means considerable disease. Tuberculosis can usually be controlled or cured with proper treatment and it doesn't take as long as it once did. Of course, you may not have this at all, but you must find out.

I doubt that you are pregnant either if you are eating that much and not gaining any weight.

Inside Washington

Senate, House Deadlocked Over Foreign Aid Renewal

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Only insiders are aware of it, but the huge multi-billion dollar foreign aid program could grind to a halt March 1.

That's when the temporary funding authority (joint continuing resolution) expires. Under it, spending for foreign economic and military aid is on the basis of the budget Congress voted for fiscal 1972—$3.2 billion. Ironically, that is about $1 billion less than the new budget approved by the House last September.

Reason for this extraordinary backstage situation is a protracted deadlock between the Senate and House foreign affairs committees. Since last July, they have been at unyielding loggerheads over amendments written into the foreign aid budget authorization bill in the Senate.

Actually, there is little likelihood the worldwide foreign aid program will come to an end March 1.

For one thing, there is still plenty of money in the pipeline to keep it running well past that deadline—at least $2 billion or more unspent from previous appropriations.

Further, another fund-continuing resolution could be quickly enacted. That's the way this giant spending operation has been kept going since last July, start of the current fiscal year, when the new budget was supposed to go into effect—and is still nowhere in sight.

Whether one will be adopted before next July 1, start of the new fiscal year, is anyone's guess. So far, there are no outward signs of a break in the long Senate-House stalemate.

What's Behind It? Initially, when the House and Senate conferees first met last spring to iron out differences between the two authorization measures, there were around 85 of them.

After numerous closed-door sessions, the variances were finally whittled down to five—all Senate amendments, and all dovish and anti-administration.

Chief authors of these highly controversial provisions were Sens. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee; Clifford Case, R-N.J., and Frank Church, D-Idaho—critically aggressive critics of President Nixon's foreign policies and strident clamorers for "end-the-Vietnam war" legislation.

The bipartisan panel of House conferees, headed by Rep. Thomas Morgan, D-Pa., chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, stood pat in demanding either the outright junking of the five Senate amendments or their drastic revision.

Finally, in October, shortly before Congress adjourned under pressure of the approaching election, it looked as if a compromise would be worked out.

But that was torpedoed by Fulbright's petulant obdurance. The haughty Arkansas balked at giving ground on language aimed at enhancing the scope and authority of his committee (and indirectly himself).

House Chairman Morgan was just as adamant in refusing to give in to Fulbright.

And that's where it ended—a complete stand-off. On the last day, just before the adjourning gavel dropped, the continuing resolution was rammed through to officially keep the foreign aid program alive.

As recently revealed by this column, under this funding authority Chile, ruled by Marxist President Allende, is getting some $10 million in military aid, including a giant $5 million C-130 air force transport.

Also, 46 other countries are getting various forms of military assistance, and 66 countries are receiving economic aid.

More Foreign Spending. As if the bitter lesson were needed—what is currently happening in Latin America is another painful instance of the oft-repeated story that opened-ended aid decidedly does not win friends and influence people.

A little-noticed report of the Inter-American Development Bank discloses that last year it lent a record-setting $807 million to Latin American countries.

The U.S. provides 40 per cent of this bank's funds.

In other words, U.S. taxpayers put up a large share of the money to enable the IADB to extend hundreds of millions of dollars in low-interest credits and loans to Latin American countries. The 1972 total is $155 million more than the previous high mark in 1971.

Yet despite this huge largesse, U.S. prestige and popularity on that continent was never lower than it is now.

The blunt truth is the U.S. has few steadfast friends in Latin America. This country gets little if any credit for what it does, but denunciation and condemnation are virulently venomous and widespread. Largest loan last year went jointly to Argentina and Uruguay, $80 million, for construction of an integrated hydroelectric power plant built jointly on the Uruguay River. Argentina also got another $50 million loan to erect a hydroelectric plant in the Andean highlands.

Brazil got loans totaling $85 million for electric power production, particularly in its underdeveloped northeast region.

Mexico, a frequent U.S. critic, wangled four loans totaling $79 million for irrigation projects and other industry-promoting purposes.

Laudable Example. Alabama's Sen. James Allen (D) started the new Congress with an example that should be required of all members of Congress. He inserted in the Congressional Record for public scrutiny a detailed statement of his personal finances. Allen has been doing this every year since he came to the Senate in 1968. These statements are also filed with the probate judge of his home county.

GRAND OPENING — The public is invited to attend the grand opening Friday and Saturday of the Pampa Chrysler-Dodge, Inc., automobile agency at 811 W. Wilks St. It will mark the first time in more than three years Pampa has had a Chrysler-Dodge dealership.

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

Good health is a prized possession—something to be sought by those who don't have it and something to be held onto by those who do.

As in the case of a communicable disease, says the State Health Department, it is much wiser and easier to keep a person from having a preventable disease than it is to treat the victim.

During 1973 preventive health services will be extended to thousands of children in Texas through an agreement between the State Health Department and Department of Public Welfare.

The new title for this program is "early and periodic screening, diagnosis and treatment" for certain Texas youngsters who are on aid for dependent children rolls.

The State Department of Public Welfare is responsible for administration of the Texas Medical Assistance Program, and consequently, has responsibility for implementation of the periodic screening program.

But, the State Health Department has staff and experience in this field, particularly in providing regular maternal and child health and crippled children services.

Through a cooperative arrangement between the two big state agencies, the State Health Department soon will begin screening children who are eligible for medical assistance.

Children who are found to be in need of more definitive diagnosis and treatment then will be referred by the Welfare Department to practicing physicians and other appropriate sources for such services.

Although the Texas Medical Assistance Program currently provides diagnostic and treatment services to eligible individuals, it is hoped that early detection and treatment of disease in children will have a significant impact upon the lives of these children now and in the future.

State Health Commissioner Dr. James E. Peavy said the program can have a tremendous effect on what could be long-term illnesses.

"This program will allow us to catch these defects now, while they are still amenable to treatment," he said.

The medical screening will cover health and developmental histories, physical growth, physical inspection, inspection of the ear, nose, mouth and throat, vision and hearing testing, along with certain other tests for anemia, tuberculosis, lead poisoning, etc.

Pampa Students On Honor Roll

LUBBOCK — Six Pampa students were named to the dean's honor list for the 1972 fall semester in the College of Education at Texas Tech University.

Mulligan Named To 'A' Honor List

MISSOULA, Mont. — Richard Michael Mulligan, 2125 Lynn, Pampa, Tex., was listed on the straight 'A' honor roll for the 1972 fall semester at the University of Montana.

Doug Boyd Gets New Dealership

Doug Boyd, in the Used Car business in Pampa for the past 15 years, is moving into the new car field with the opening of a Chrysler-Dodge agency at 811 W. Wilks.

To mark the occasion, Boyd will have a grand opening for the public to inspect the new showroom and service facilities tomorrow and Saturday.

Boyd said, in taking on the new agency, there has been no Chrysler-Dodge representative in Pampa for more than three years.

Among highlights on the grand opening days will be tours of the facilities for showroom visitors and free coffee and doughnuts.

"Area residents are familiar with our fair dealings in the used car business," Boyd said, "and we plan to follow the same policy of sales and service in the new car dealership."

He added that the grand opening days Friday and Saturday have been set aside for the public to visit Chrysler-Dodge, Inc. meet the personnel and become acquainted with the new facilities.

Pampa Man Earns His Law Degree

LUBBOCK—M.E. Rake Jr. of 600 N. Wells, Pampa, received his law degree from the Texas Tech University School of Law at the end of the fall semester.

Rake had received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Texas at Arlington in May, 1970.

Forty-four Doctor of Jurisprudence degrees were awarded at the conclusion of the fall semester in Texas Tech's School of Law. The school is one of six colleges and two schools at the university including Agricultural Sciences, Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education, Engineering, Home Economics and the Graduate School.

Texas Tech's fall enrollment of almost 21,500 set a record high for the institution, which will conduct its 50th anniversary observance from 1973 to 1975.

Switzerland has not participated in armed conflict since the end of the Napoleonic wars in 1815.

Politics Was LBJ's Work, Rest And Recreation

LAST LEADERS — These two students were recently elected to serve as the student body mayor and vice mayor at Pampa Junior High. They will be the last two to serve before the school is closed down. Phyllis Gee, 15, 1009 S. Banks, was elected mayor, with David Skoog, 15, 515 N. Gray, serving as vice mayor. (Photo by John Ebling)

Editor's note: Whether Lyndon Johnson learned his politics as a barefoot boy at his Daddy's knee, as he liked to say, or just reacted instinctively, there is no doubt that politics was his work, rest and recreation. This article covers the formative years of a political career that would end in the white house.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS "It seems to me," Lyndon Johnson mused on the eve of his greatest political triumph, "that I have spent my life getting ready for this moment."

The next day, Nov. 3, 1964, the big Texan who had succeeded to the presidency when John F. Kennedy was assassinated, won the White House in his own right in what until 1972 was the biggest election landslide in history.

The 36th President of the United States spent most of Election Day resting at the sprawling LBJ Ranch on the Pedernales River in Blanco County, Tex. That night, he traveled a familiar 60 miles into Austin to await the returns and to celebrate with old friends in the historic, fading Driskill Hotel.

That little patch of Texas in which Lyndon Johnson passed this triumphant day once was so inhospitable that even the Comanches wouldn't live there.

"It is unrelenting country," Lady Bird Johnson said of that land. "And Lyndon is unrelenting, too."

"The land where I was born," the President told his countrymen one night, "was once barren land. The angular hills were covered with scrub cedar and a few large live oaks."

"Little would grow in that harsh caliche soil of my country. And each spring the Pedernales River would flood our valley."

There, in Blanco County, Lyndon Johnson had been born 56 years earlier. There, he grew to manhood and watched it change, and later he would exercise his own political skill to make it change even more.

"Men came," he said, "and they worked and they endured and they built. And tonight that country is abundant; abundant with fruit and cattle and goats and sheep, and there are pleasant homes and lakes and the floods are gone...."

Harsh, rugged land. But it produced a Lyndon Johnson—powerful legislator, president, millionaire many times over.

His "Daddy," Sam Ealy Johnson Jr., was a farmer, often on the edge of poverty. But he was a state legislator, too, and young Lyndon got an early taste of politics. Years later, as that momentous Election Day drew near, he would reminisce about it.

"It was here," he told a crowd at Austin, the state capital, "as a barefoot boy around my daddy's desk in that great hall of the House of Representatives, where he served for six terms and my grandfather served ahead of him, that I first learned that government is not an enemy of the people. It is the people...."

His mother, known to all in those parts as "Miz" Johnson, was Rebekah Baines Johnson, a deeply religious Baptist woman whose devotion to her eldest son was exceeded only by his for her.

The gangly youth left high school at 15, worked his way to California in a Model-T Ford, came home broke, and was finally prevailed upon by his mother to go to college. He worked his way through Southwest Texas State Teachers College at San Marcos and was graduated at 22.

The first of his nearly 40 years in Washington was 1931. He came to the capital as the secretary — top aide — to Rep. Richard Kleberg, arch-conservative part owner of the vast King Ranch.

Kleberg, absent much of the time, left Johnson to mind the office. At the age of 23—in his first term with the congressman—Johnson was elected speaker of the "little Congress," an association of assistants to senators and representatives.

Recalling the surprise that greeted his victory, Johnson's brother, Sam Houston, Johnson said in his book, "Had they known him better, had they ever observed his innate ability to organize his forces in a quiet, deliberate manner—always 'pressing the flesh' in a methodical approach to all prospective voters—had they really known his political instincts, no one would have been surprised."

In four years with Congressman Kleberg, Lyndon Johnson, the chain-smoking young aide with the curly slicked-back hair and the piercing eyes, wrote a mental "book" on Congress—a catalogue of strengths and weaknesses based on hours of socializing with aides and members alike.

In the 20s, Lyndon Baines Johnson successively wooed and won Claudia Alta "Lady Bird" Taylor, a dark-haired, quick-minded Texas girl, and Franklin Delano Roosevelt, the President of the United States. With slight variations, he gave them both "the Johnson treatment," proposing to Lady Bird the day after meeting her, backing FDR on what may be the most ill-advised legislative strategem ever devised by a president.

He married Lady Bird Nov. 17, 1934, in San Antonio, and the marriage lasted until the end of his life. The alliance with Roosevelt took a little longer. It began three years later in Texas' 10th Congressional District and lasted until FDR's death in April 1945.

"He was just like a daddy to me always," Rep. Johnson said upon the President's death, puffing a cigarette in a holder, the way Roosevelt had done.

Johnson had left Kleberg's office after four profitable years to become—with the sponsorship of Sam Rayburn—the Texas state director of the New Deal's National Youth Administration. He was the youngest state administrator of NYA in the country, and ran it until the death in 1937 of Rep. James Buchanan. The 28-year-old Johnson became one of seven candidates to succeed Buchanan in a special election.

In Washington, Roosevelt was in trouble. Fresh from his landslide victory over Republican Alfred M. Landon, but frustrated in several of his New Deal ventures by the Supreme Court, Roosevelt sent to Congress his now-famous "court-packing plan." It would have allowed him to enlarge the high court and pack it with sympathetic justices. It was doomed to defeat.

Most Democrats, opposed to the plan but fearful of backing a popular president, took no public stand. But Lyndon Johnson, campaigning at a cyclonic pace in Texas, proclaimed himself 100 per cent an FDR man and backed the court plan without reservation.

He won both the special election and the undying favor of the President, who invited him aboard the presidential cruiser in the Gulf of Mexico the next day.

"If you ever have any trouble getting things for your district," FDR told Johnson, "just come straight to the White House and talk to Tommy Corcoran or Sam Rosenman. I'll tell them to take good care of you."

Long-needed flood-control projects and rural electrification came quickly to Johnson's district.

As a congressman, Johnson continued to cultivate the sources of power in Washington—Roosevelt, Sam Rayburn, and Carl Vinson, chairman of the House Naval Affairs—later Armed Services—Committee.

While holding to his populist roots, he gradually developed essential ties to Texas' booming oil industry. It was not long before he set his cap on the U.S. Senate. He ran in 1941 and, although leading with 96 per cent of the vote reported, lost to W. Lee "Pappy" O'Daniel on some "late returns" from border precincts.

Seven years later, after repeated re-election to the House, Johnson tried again. He coped with the vastness of his native state by introducing a helicopter to his campaign. In a runoff primary against Dixiecrat Coke Stevenson, Johnson emerged a winner by 87 votes. With legal assistance from a close friend in Washington named Abe Fortas, Johnson turned back a court challenge and became a senator at the age of 40.

He had slid perceptibly to the right in winning the Senate seat—primarily through his all-out support of the Taft-Hartley labor law. He was to display the same philosophical flexibility in the Senate.

Johnson quickly mastered the mechanics of senatorship. Outwardly ebullient, but elaborately deferential to his Senate elders, in line with expected behavior, he was soon accepted into the inner circle and developed an intimate relationship with the most powerful of senators—Georgia's Richard Russell. After the outbreak of the Korean war, Russell appointed

Johnson chairman of a special subcommittee to investigate military preparedness. Johnson's loyalty to Roosevelt did not extend to the Democrat who succeeded him, Harry Truman, and Johnson gained national prominence through blistering attacks on the Truman administration's handling of the war.

His charge that Truman was trying both to fight a war and maintain a full domestic program—guns and butter—would come back to haunt him 16 years later. But in the early 1950s, it gained him wide bipartisan support within the Senate—and Johnson was elected assistant majority leader in 1951, only two years after he was elected to that body.

He was to be the assistant leader for only a year. The 1952 election brought Dwight D. Eisenhower to the presidency and gave the Republicans a bare Senate majority. Among the new Republicans was a young Arizona merchant named Barry Goldwater. He had defeated Senate Majority Leader Ernest McFarland.

Since 1952, the governors-general of Canada have been native-born.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Today is Thursday, Jan. 25, the 25th day of 1973. There are 340 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1915, transcontinental telephone service was inaugurated in the United States. The inventor of the telephone, Alexander Graham Bell, spoke the first words over the line from New York to San Francisco. On this date: In 1802, Napoleon Bonaparte became president of the Italian Republic. In 1831, the independence of Poland was declared. In 1863, during the Civil War, the first Negro regiment in the U.S. Army was formed. In 1944, in World War II, in Italy, the battle for Cassino began. Ten years ago: Five Negroes became the first members of their race to be admitted to Tulane University in New Orleans.

Pampa Junior Varsity Tourney Gets Underway

The Pampa Junior Varsity Basketball Tournament, delayed since the middle of December, got underway today at 3:30 p. m. in Harvester Fieldhouse.

Plainview and Hereford was paired in the opener of the eight-team tournament. In games following that match, the Borger C-team will meet Dumas at 5 o'clock. Borger and the Pampa C-team will tangle at 7 and the Pampa Shockers and Canyon will play in the nightcap at 8:30.

After tonight's action the tourney will be delayed until Saturday when the semi-finals and the finals in both the championship and consolation brackets will be played.

Friday night the Harvesters will meet the Palo Duro Dons in District 3-AAAA action in the Pampa gym. Both teams will be trying to improve on a 1-1 district mark.

Saturday morning the losers in today's opening round of the JV tourney will play to determine who will meet for the consolation bracket championship.

Those games will be held at 9 and 10:30 a. m. Saturday. The consolation finals game will kick-off at 4:30 p. m. that afternoon.

The winners of today's games will earn the right to meet in the tourney's semi-finals Saturday afternoon. Those match-ups will get underway at noon and 1:30 p. m. The championship game will begin at 8:30 Saturday night.

Tentatively slated to start for the Shockers in tonight's late game are Robert Young, Howie Lewis, Mark Murphy, Noel Hansen and Kory Gamblin.

GOLFER John Miller is the picture of versatility when it comes to expressing disgust with himself. In recent tournaments, he has used the throw-club-and-pout method, above, and the face-hiding, below.

Baseball HOF Names Pitcher Warren Spahn

NEW YORK (AP) — A Hall of Fame twinkle appeared in Eddie Spahn's 77-year-old eyes. He taught his boy how to pitch and now Warren was headed for Cooperstown.

"That twinkle was reward enough," said Warren.

Spahn pitched heroically for the Braves of both Boston and Milwaukee, winning a left-handed record 363 games with 13 seasons of 20 or more victories.

"It was almost midnight Tuesday when the call came," he said. "We were at my dad's house in Buffalo, N.Y. Suddenly I was in the Baseball Hall of Fame. I almost cried."

Spahn was an overwhelming choice with 316 of 380 votes from the Baseball Writers Association of America. A 75 per cent approval was needed, and he had received 83 in his first year of eligibility.

"The emotions flowed and I couldn't take my eyes off my father," he said. "He was the one who taught me to pitch instead of simply throw ... the high leg kick, the style ... everything."

The 51-year-old Spahn will be enshrined next summer at the Baseball Hall in Cooperstown, N.Y. "Right up there with Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb and Walter Johnson," he said.

Yankees, fell 29 votes short of the required 284 in his first shot at the Hall. By chance, he ran into Spahn at a restaurant after Wednesday's announcement.

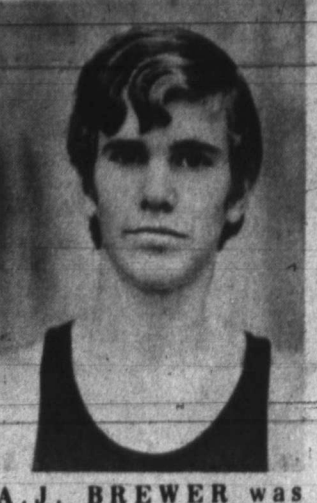

"Nice going, Spahn," he said. "Maybe Mickey and I can make it as a two-man entry next year." Mickey Mantle, the old Yankee slugger, becomes eligible in 1974.

Spahn is bald, but athletically trim at age 51. He pitched in the major leagues until he was 44 and still wings a few in batting practice for Cleveland as the Indians' pitching coach.

Bill Meyers, a scout for the Boston Braves, signed Spahn to an $89-a-month contract to play for Bradford, Pa., of the PONY League in 1940. Two seasons later, he was called up to Boston for the end of the season.

World War II horned in, taking 3½ seasons from him, and Spahn didn't win his first major league game until 1946 at the age of 25.

After that, it was gangbusters. Spahn was a 20-game winner 13 times in a 17-year stretch and wound up with a record of 363-245 plus a bushel of personal records.

A. J. BREWER was named Harvester of the Week by Pampa coach Robert McPherson today for his good defensive games against Caprock and Tascosa. Brewer also scored a career high of 19 points in the Caprock game.

Casey Says United Fund

DETROIT (AP) — Missouriborn Casey Stengel, former baseball manager of New York's Yankees and Mets, chose Detroit's United Fund as the recipient of a $10 contribution to a San Mateo, Calif., industrial psychologist could have his autograph.

Preston E. Smith, 29, said in a phone conversation he saw Stengel at Los Angeles International Airport and asked for his autograph.

"I knew how Ted Williams used to give autographs on checks," the industrial psychologist said. "Then he told people to send checks to charities."

He made the offer to Stengel and Stengel accepted.

"But why did it wind up in Detroit?"

"Billy Martin, he played for me, and the owner of the ball club I would say in Detroit is a very good friend of mine, and I used to manage years ago in Toledo for six years, and when I was in the major leagues, why Detroit on numerous occasions were the Yankee's best rivals because of the fact they had Red Rolfe running the club at one time, and also had some very prominent players," said Stengel, from a New York hotel room, unabashed by the English language.

Trial Scheduled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Wide receiver Lance Rentzel of the Los Angeles Rams, pleading innocent to charges of possessing marijuana and codeine, is scheduled to go on trial next Wednesday.

LA Rams Fire Prothro, Name Knox New Coach

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In a couple of breaths, Carroll Rosenbloom put both his new coach Chuck Knox and his quarterback Roman Gabriel on the spot.

The owner of the Los Angeles Rams wants to win now. Rosenbloom fired Tommy Prothro on Wednesday and appointed the 46-year-old Knox, who has been an assistant with the Detroit Lions for six years following tenure with the New York Jets.

"What I know of the Los Angeles Rams, we should have gone to the Super Bowl," said Rosenbloom at the news conference introducing Knox to Los Angeles. "I think we should have gone to the Super Bowl this year."

So out went Prothro with three years left on a contract of $90,000 give or take some thousands. In comes Knox who says, "The people I admire the most are consistent winners. I think football should be coached with enthusiasm."

"I think the players reflect what the coaches do. You can't stand on the sidelines with your hands in your pockets."

Criticized during the Rams' 6-7-1 season as the Motivation by Prothro and the throwing by Gabriel, the veteran quarterback who suffered tendonitis of the right elbow.

Knox skirted the question of what would be the quarterback situation, but Rosenbloom didn't.

"We think Gabriel can be a fine quarterback," the owner told the news conference. "But we have to go with more than one. We do need another proven quarterback and we're out to get one."

And perhaps shaking up more of the Rams organization, the owner said. "Everything we can do to improve ourselves, we will do, and we have other things in mind."

Prothro, 52, said he hadn't heard of his firing until his wife heard it at her dentist's.

UCLA Goes For Longest Streak

CHICAGO (AP) — Top-ranked UCLA's seemingly invincible Bruins tonight launch an historic two-game Midwest invasion which should gild their already phenomenal dynasty with collegiate basketball's longest skein of consecutive victories.

Against Chicago Loyola in the finale of a Chicago Stadium doubleheader, Coach Johnny Wooden's six-time NCAA champion Bruins are heavily favored to rack up their 60th straight victory since 1971 and match the record set by Bill Russell-peace San Francisco from 1955 through 1957.

The West Coast wonder club, 14-0 this season, Saturday afternoon presumably will try for record-breaking No. 61 at South Bend, Ind., against Notre Dame the last team to defeat UCLA with an 80-82 triumph on Jan. 23, 1971, on the Irish court.

Notre Dame (6-7) is also on tonight's Chicago Stadium card, facing Illinois (7-4), the club which gave UCLA its toughest tussle to date this season, bowing by only seven points, 71-64, in the Sugar Bowl tourney.

Wooden sent the Bruins through a brisk hour workout at De Paul University's gym after departing from the West Coast yesterday afternoon.

UCLA will face both Loyola and Notre Dame without guard, Tommy Curtis, who failed to make the trip because of the flu.

However, Bruin kingpin, 6-11 All-American Bill Walton, practiced snappily and showed no effects of a slight ankle sprain suffered Saturday night as UCLA made it No. 59 in a row with a 101-77 waltz over Providence.

Curtis will be replaced by Greg Lee, whose 4.9 point average is slightly under Curtis' 5.7.

Chinese Acrobats: Near Perfection

By JOAN RYAN

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Sun Kuan-yan, an acrobat of the Shenyang Acrobatic Troupe from the People's Republic of China, stood in a dancer's pose, feet splayed, knees locked loosely, one hip cocked, and hands momentarily at rest.

She looked relaxed but her controlled movements indicated that at the snap of a finger she could spring into a handstand, on the nearby tea table and not jingle a single saucer.

She gave me a bright smile, pantomiming an invitation to join her for a cup of tea — Chinese tea served in American cups with handles — at the reception given for the troupe in Washington, D.C.

The troupe was completing its first tour of America, having visited Montreal, Chicago, Indianapolis, New York and Washington. Their performances were hailed by critic and audience alike, for never before had such athletic perfection been on such casual display for American audiences.

Surrounded by airy sets, accompanied by the jangling, banjo-like accompaniment of the Chinese musicians and assisted by sparkling chrome accessories, the acrobats performed a series of juggling, tumbling and balancing acts that were enough to bring Ed Sullivan out of retirement.

Sun Kuan-yan joined the troupe when she was 11 years old, after beginning her studies in dance and gymnastics at 7. Her schooling was interwoven with practicing, and later, performing.

She studied language and mathematics but now performs regularly with the Shenyang troupe in Liaoning Province and "all over China. We fly and we go by train. When we're not performing, we're practicing."

She is a plate twirler and a bicycle acrobat.

The plate twirlers, dressed in loose-fitting, green silky pajamas, appeared onstage, three slim wands, each supporting a spinning porcelain plate, in each hand. As if that were not enough, the girls went through an intricate routine of handstands, somersaults and finally a breath-holding head-to-head stand. It's not the sort of game you'd encourage your children to play in the kitchen while doing the supper dishes.

The girl bicycle acrobats, dressed in black boots, white balloon pants and red blouse, whirled around the stage doing balancing tricks, all on the same cycle. As more and more girls appeared onstage, the bicycle finally became a fan of red and white clothed bodies, 10 in all.

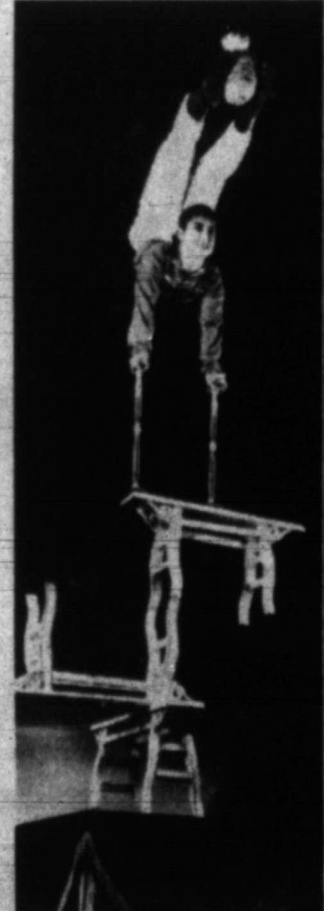

As Sun Kuan-yan declined an offered pastry at the tea, she was asked if the girl driving the bicycle had ever pleaded with her cohorts to keep their weight down. She giggled gleefully, but insisted dieting was unnecessary. "She is strong, really strong." And Sun made fierce muscles with both arms.

The bicyclists have never suffered a spill in performance. That's a small miracle, because the force of an uncharted smile could upset the perfect balance created by the nine girls clinging to the one at the wheel. Sun did admit that during rehearsals, a part of the troupe forms a ring of protection around the circling cycle, just in case. And she made a wry face to indicate that somewhere in the Shenyang past, there might just have been one small human error.

And what a relief to know they were human! An inferiority complex the size of a golf umbrella was circling and holding over my head until finally, during the performance, one of the girls muffed a flip of her diabolo, a yo-yo-like toy that is maneuvered along a string attached to two hand-held sticks. She was unembarrassed, of course, and went on to perform the most daring tricks of the trio she was in.

A chorus line appeared with batons with weighted appendages resembling flowers at each end. The sticks were tossed and interchanged, untouched by human hands. Two small sticks held in each hand were the only control the girls had over the batons and the faultless timing of their movement was enough to send all the half-time baton twirlers in America back to Alabama for a refresher course.

Sun Kuan-yan is on her way back to China with her memories of American ice cream, Indianapolis' steel mills, and the Washington Zoo's pandas. The memories she and her fellow artists left here deserve at least a thank you gift.

I have a small suggestion. Considering the Shenyang Acrobatic Troupe's transformation of Chinese childrens games into momentary athletic perfection, let's send them a crate of hula hoops. With the stipulation, of course, that they return next year to the United States to show us just what can be done with a mundane American backyard game.

Sam Houston State Retains First Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Unbeaten Sam Houston State and once-beaten Stephen F. Austin will collide this Saturday in Nacogdoches, Tex. to decide who is the No. 1 college division basketball team.

Sam Houston retained No. 1 in this week's Associated Press poll, with Stephen F. Austin in the No. 2 spot. Earlier in the season, the positions were reversed, with Stephen F. Austin on top and Sam Houston in the runner-up spot.

The teams also will meet Feb. 7 at Huntsville, Tex., Sam Houston's home court.

In the latest balloting, Sam Houston received nine of 15 first-place votes and 284 points in balloting by a national panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Stephen F. Austin had four first-place votes and 244 points.

Last week, Sam Houston beat McMurry 72-58 and Texas A&M 88-66, while Stephen F. Austin topped Howard Payne 78-70 and Southwest Texas 90-62.

Eau Claire remained in third place, followed by Augustana, Ill., Louisiana Tech, Kentucky State, Roanoke, Assumption, Mass., and a three-way tie for ninth among Wisconsin-Milwaukee, Capital, Ohio and Old Dominion.

Clemente Fund Grows

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pennies, poems and pictures from children, as well as checks and deeply personal letters from adults, are flooding the Pittsburgh Pirate office in memory of the late baseball great Roberto Clemente.

"As a housewife whose family lives from payday to payday, I can't send more — but I wish I could," wrote a woman from Kingston, R.I., who gave $1.

The donations, ranging from six tarnished pennies to $100,000, have come from every state in the union, as well as Puerto Rico, Germany, England and Ireland.

Nearly $350,000 has been received since Clemente and four others were killed in a Dec. 31 plane crash while flying relief supplies to earthquake-torn Nicaragua.

The money will be used to continue the earthquake relief and help fulfill Clemente's dream of a sports camp for boys in Puerto Rico.

"I only wish this check could reflect the many thrilling moments Roberto has given me," said the brief note from Larry Buckwalter of Pittsburgh.

Children at St. Luke's School in New York sent crayon drawings. One portrayed a body falling from a plane and carried the words, "Roberto Clemente was brave."

Driving Employees Honored

Employees at the Pampa camp of Halliburton Services, the Duncan (Okla.) based oil field service arm of Halliburton Company, were honored at a dinner Tuesday evening at the Red Keys Restaurant in Pampa for more than two million consecutive miles of accident-free driving in company vehicles.

Clarence E. Kirby, Halliburton Services district superintendent at Pampa, accepted a trophy symbolizing membership in the company's Two Million Mile Club.

The trophy will join another Two Million Mile safety award received by Pampa employees in 1965, a Three Million Mile award earned in 1967 and two Million-Mile Club trophies received in 1957 and 1963.

The trophy was presented to Kirby by W. E. Hinchliffe, northern region vice president of Tulsa.

Also on hand to compliment the Pampa district employees on their safe driving achievement were J. B. McCalla, Jr., of Wichita, Kan., manager of the Wichita division that includes Pampa; Homer O. Watson of Wichita, assistant division manager; O. M. Plemons, regional safety and training supervisor from Oklahoma City; and Roland W. Gay, manager of safety from Duncan.

Pampa employees completed the two million miles of safe driving on Jan. 1, 1973. The last accident for the district was in October, 1969.

Pampa Man To Perform In Ensemble

Stephen W. Higdon, son of Mr. and Mrs. B.W. Higdon, 1919 N. Faulkner, will play with the Tarleton State College Jazz Ensemble for the Texas Music Educators Association Convention to be held in San Antonio, Feb. 8-10.

He is the percussionist for the ensemble, which will present a concert for the convention. Higdon is a sophomore business and music major and is a 1971 graduate of Pampa High School.

Court Okays Privacy Right In Wiretapping

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court recognized the right of privacy in a wiretapping case today for the first time.

A Houston jury awarded Lloyd Billings $10,000 actual damages and $15,000 exemplary damages in his suit against Norman E. Atkinson, a former telephone company employee.

The trial judge granted judgment to the defendant despite the jury's verdict, and the court of civil appeals affirmed on the ground that there is no right of privacy in Texas.

The right did not exist in English common law—which was adopted by Texas in 1840—and no statute had granted it, the appeals court said.

The Supreme Court noted that eavesdropping was an indictable offense at common law. It quoted a dissenting opinion by the late U.S. Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black that said wiretapping was nothing more than eavesdropping by telephone.

"Measured by these considerations, we follow the rule that an unwarranted invasion of the right of privacy constitutes a legal injury for which a remedy will be granted," wrote Associate Justice James G. Denton.

Manpower Training Is Also for the Young

By SECRETARY OF LABOR JAMES D. HODGSON

E.A., of Laguna Beach, Calif., writes: Do the federally funded manpower programs do anything for young people? I have the idea that they are mainly for people in their 30s and 40s.

Dear E.A.: You may have gotten that impression from stories you have heard your parents tell about the help received from the state employment service. In recent years, participation in the various manpower training programs by young people under 22 has been steadily increasing. For instance, of the nearly two million persons who enrolled in the 11 major manpower programs in fiscal year 1972, about two-thirds were under 22.

This emphasis on helping young people gain the skills that lead to productive lives is sensible policy for the country to follow. J.H. of East Lynn, Mass., writes: Last summer was frustrating for me. I'm 18 years old, and had just graduated from high school. I was accepted in the college of my choice, and wanted to earn some money during the summer to help me with some of my college expenses. But I couldn't get a thing. And yet, I saw so many my age working during the summer. What's it all about?

Dear J.H.: Your frustrating summer experience is part of a national problem. Youth employment rose to an all-time high in the summer of 1972. This reflected the over-all employment growth in the economy evidenced over the past year. At 12.7 million, the number of employed 16- to 21-year-olds was 1.2 million higher than in the summer of 1971. So you can see why you came across so many in your age group working during the summer. But the problem is that there are more young people in the labor market than ever before. Competition for summer jobs is just that much keener. The situation, overall, is improving though. The number of jobless 16- to 21-year-olds throughout the nation edged down by 70,000 in the summer of 1972.

W.S., Toledo, Ohio, writes: As a manufacturer of machine tools, what are my obligations for making certain my products meet standards of the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970?

Dear W.S.: No legal ones. The act imposes requirements only on employers and employees. But, as employers, your customers probably will prefer to buy other products if yours do not meet standards with which they must comply.

C.A., Concord, N.H., writes: Where can I get copies of the industrial standards issued under the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970?

Dear C.A.: Quantities are available from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., at 20 cents a copy. Single copies can be obtained from any Regional Office of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. Ask for the Federal Register, May 29, 1971, Part II.

PERSONAL FINANCE Hospital Costs Can Fracture You

By CARLTON SMITH

Have you any idea what a hospital stay will cost, in dollars and cents, if a member of the family needs hospital care during the coming year?

And do you know what part of the bill would have to be paid out of your own pocket?

The answers to those two questions determine whether you have enough health care insurance, and of the right kind. Most importantly, make sure you're protected against a crippling financial blow.

Nationally, the expense per patient day in community hospitals averaged $81 last year, according to Social Security Administration figures. It ranged from $53 in Wyoming to $112 in California. Wherever the hospital, bills tend to be bigger in the larger hospitals, which maintain more specialized facilities and services.

That may come as a shock, if you haven't paid a hospital bill recently. Daily service charges have increased an average 14 per cent a year in the past seven years—enough to raise the $40-a-day room of 1966 to $100.

For the average patient, in 1971, private hospital insurance covered 36 per cent of the bill, again according to SSA figures. It also picked up 36 per cent of physicians' charges. And it paid only 4 per cent of "other health services"—such things as drugs, nursing services, appliances.

Since the average takes in the whole population—including the elderly, who rely less on private insurance because of Medicare—the patient who does depend on private insurance would find a larger share of his bill covered. Still, it's obvious that there can be quite a gap between what the insurance pays and what comes out of pocket.

Northwest Passaged
First navigation of the Northwest Passage by a single ship was completed by Norwegian explorer Roald Amundsen's Gjoa in 1903. His 47-ton ship is on display in San Francisco.

Arctic ice jams often pile up 10 to 20 feet above the ocean surface and sometimes plunge to 100-foot depths.

Every family should periodically review its insurance coverage, to find out what services are paid for, what the limitations are, and finally how much is left uncovered. You might well decide you need more protection.

It's a common mistake to try for "complete coverage"—trying to plug all the holes, large and small, to achieve what the insurers call "first-dollar coverage." That's expensive, of course. It's like buying auto insurance that would pay for a wash job whenever the car gets splashed with mud.

What both the car owner and the hospital patient need is protection against the bills of several hundreds—or several thousands—of dollars, which can spell financial disaster.

In the health field, that means major medical insurance. After your basic coverage stops paying the bills, major medical starts. Generally there is a deductible—a no-pay gap of $100 or $200; thereafter a major medical policy typically pays 75 or 80 per cent of the patient's expenses.

If, for example, you had bills for $1,500 of charges not covered by the basic policy, major medical would typically reimburse you $975 to $1,120.

These policies can also help pay the smaller bills, too, if you accumulate enough charges for office visits, prescriptions and other out-of-hospital expenses during the year. Add up all expenses not covered by the basic policy, and they can be submitted as a major medical claim, subject to the deductible and co-insurance feature (that is, you pay 20 per cent, the company pays 80 per cent).

For most families, the major medical policy is a good investment in protection against being financially crippled.

N.M. Bank President Faces Suit

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — The president of a New Mexico bank faces a nearly $1.9 million suit in connection with the Sharpstown, Tex., bank that last year was the center of a Texas fraud scandal.

The suit was filed in District Court here this month against Dallas Johnson, a former Sharpstown bank executive and currently president of the Farmers & Merchants Bank in Las Cruces.

Filed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., was receiver for the Texas bank, the suit contends that Johnson, while a Sharpstown executive, failed "to discontinue that bank's liberal and hazardous loan policies."

It alleges also that he failed to curtail the volume of brokered certificates of deposit and to desist from participation in obtaining and selling brokered certificate liabilities.

The suit says Johnson failed "to adopt effective collection methods as evidenced by the increasingly excessive volume of overdue loans, to curtail excessive loan volumes, to comply with applicable banking statutes and regulations to which the bank is subject, and to provide adequate capital funds to support the heavy volume of high risk assets."

WORRY CLINIC

Shakespeare diagnosed Rita quite well in his famous "Taming of the Shrew." Women's Libbers often reveal a "sour grapes" reaction when they demand the use of "Ms." for "Mrs." The best antidote for Women's Lib is more virile husbands who use the booklet below!

CASE W-509: Rita J., aged 28, is highly incensed.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I am demanding a public apology from you!"

"For in your daily 'Horse Sense Test' in our Boston GLOBE, you recently asked which woman would be LEAST interested in Women's Lib."

"Then you listed these 4 items from which we were to choose: (1) Frustrated wives (2) Spinsters (3) Lesbians (4) Happy wives"

"Well, Dr. Crane, I'd have you know that I am a Feminist and ardent Women's Libber."

"But I am also a happy wife, which you listed as the correct answer."

"Such blatant sexism in the GLOBE can only be eradicated by a public retraction and apology."

EMOTIONALLY IMMATURE
In Junior High School, boys and girls often try to argue for the superiority of their own sex.

But mature, well-adjusted adults look back in tolerant amusement at such violent adolescent debates.

The Women's Libbers thus demonstrate a throwback to an immature stage in their emotional development.

And their demand for the use of "Ms." instead of "Miss" or "Mrs." is usually a "sour grapes" device by the unmarried to hide the fact they haven't yet won a wedding ring!

For the goal of the usual young girl is to gain a husband and thus be able to flash a wedding band as evidence to her female associates that she has gained admittance to that elite group who can place a "Mrs." in front of their names.

Men regard as amusing this exaggerated fad of trying to substitute the "Ms." for "Mrs." So do most wives!

AT AUCTION People Buy Pony For Injured Girl

HUGO, Okla. (AP) — An 11-year-old Hugo girl, severely wounded by an accidental gunshot a month ago, decided to sell her pet pony Jacob to help pay her hospital bill, but she wanted to be sure his new owner would be good to him.

Little Linda Dean Melvin sold her pony for $1,137, probably the largest sale price for any horse that has ever gone through the Hugo Sale Commission ring.

And Jacob's owner will be good to him. The many people who helped buy him decided to give him back to Linda.

Linda's spinal cord was damaged badly and doctors fear she may never walk again, nor ride her pony.

Aware that her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Melvin of Hugo, had no hospitalization or accident insurance to relieve these financial burdens, Linda decided last week to sell Jacob.

"Dear auctioneer," she wrote, "I am Linda Melvin, 11 years old. I want to sell my pony to help pay my hospital bill. I love him very much, so be good to him. His name is Jacob. I rode him some with my daddy holding him and he threw me once, but he is a good pony. Thank you, Linda Dean Melvin."

Grady Holton of Hugo paid $73 George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

"Dr. Crane," one such mature housewife summed it up neatly, "it's the 'have-nots' who want to make all women omit the 'Mrs.'"

Indeed, the use of "Ms." is typical of the Communist attempt to reduce everybody to the same level.

But most wives resent this, for the "Mrs." indicates they are winners in Cupid's eternal contest!

Even when they get a divorce, they soon madly try to stampede into another marriage!

"But I am a happily married woman," says Rita.

"Do you readers believe her? And do you experienced adults think her husband is happy?"

Far too many wives who loudly claim to be "happily married" merely protest too much, a la Shakespeare's diagnosis.

Rita accuses me of "blatant sexism," yet she is the one who has a sex obsession!

From a long counseling experience with thousands of wives, I can wager that she is erotically maladjusted.

If you husbands have wives who are Feminists and Women's Libbers, but wish to domesticate such militant Amazons, send for my booklet "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

It will show you how to make them purr contentedly and actually boast of the "Mrs." in front of their name!

For Shakespeare ably diagnosed such Women's Libbers in his "Taming of the Shrew."

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

for Jacob shortly after he went into the ring Friday. Then he asked auctioneer Wren Shaw to run him through again.

Jacob sold a second time and a third, and on and on. The price may go still higher because some people who didn't bid have said they want to contribute too.

When Linda was told about the success of her "sale," her mother said, "she was speechless."

Mrs. Melvin said Linda was sad when she first heard the pony was sold, and then she asked who got him. "I told her she got him," Mrs. Melvin said, and she forgot to ask the price.

Linda was entering Hillcrest Therapy Center in Tulsa today. She already has received treatment in three hospitals and specialists fear she may never walk again.

Other efforts to help the Melvins pay Linda's hospital bills are being made.

A drive headed by polo victim Lynn Campbell of Boswell, Okla., has raised $1,182 for Linda.

The Bill Mack Fan Club, whose president, Mrs. Charlie Pettyjohn, lives in Hugo, is planning a benefit performance by the WBAP Radio personality Feb. 10.

And Hugo Junior High School pupils took up a collection for Linda at last weekend's basketball games.

Chile is the largest exporter of copper in the world.

(Last in a Series)
By GERARD M. BRANNON

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Much tax reform talk in 1973 will be to make the tax system more progressive by taking away tax breaks that help rich people. Some, however, will talk about tax reform pure and simple—how to make the tax system fairer between people with the same income, how to make it less distorting and simpler.

On capital gains that go largely to the rich, one can argue that the problem is not so much that capital gains of the rich are under-taxed but that dividends and business profits of the rich are over-taxed. Some of this view was in Senator McGovern's tax reform program. He wanted to increase taxes on capital gains and reduce the top rates on dividends and business profits.

Tax reform, pure and simple, has other concerns. One is the tax breaks available to ordinary people. These breaks cause significant differences in tax even between two families with incomes of, say, $10,000. For example, they favor home owners and car drivers over renters and bus riders. To get differences like these we have to put up with a very complicated tax system. Because of the complexity many average people are driven to spending money for help in preparing their tax returns.

One device is to refund to every family the tax payable on some basic amount of expenditure, say, $1,000 per person. A number of states with sales taxes do just this. A refund means no value-added tax on poor people and it reduces the tax significantly on middle-income people.

To assure whatever total progressivity we want in the system, we could, when we introduce a value-added tax, give extra income tax relief to middle-income people and even increase income taxes for high-income people.

In a world in which we put heavy strains on our limited resources and on our ability to control the waste products of our consumption, the idea of taxing consumption more and income less deserves a hearing.

In fact, an income tax tends to distort the economy because it falls more heavily on income saved than it does on income consumed. Income that goes into saving is taxed like income that goes into consumption, but the value of savings is further reduced because the earnings on savings are also taxed.

That a value-added tax will be adopted in 1973 is no more likely than that the income tax will be simplified. Even though a value-added tax could be approached as reform pure and simple, the fact is that the brief national debate that we had on the value-added tax in 1971-72 was dominated by the argument that it would be regressive. This made it so unpopular that even its supporters in the administration have backed off.

Both the simplification and the value-added issues emphasize how difficult it is to enact tax reforms pure and simple in the United States.

We really prefer to argue tax issues in terms of the relative impact on the rich and the poor, which may in the end be their most important dimension.
