Twister devastates town in Mississippi

Workers labored today to restore power and phone service to this tornado-ravaged town, as prison inmates and church groups joined to aid victims of a series of twisters that killed 15 people and injured at least 100 others in northern Mississippi.

Gov. Bill Allain toured the "totally devastated" community of Water Valley on Sunday after declaring 10 Mississippi counties disaster areas. Some of the town's 4,500 residents attended Easter services in littered church parking lots while state penitentiary inmates helped clear roads of debris.

Water Valley — where seven people were killed, 45 homes were destroyed and more than 50 other dwellings damaged — was the hardest hit when a wave of wind funnels spawned by thunderstorms raked northern Mississippi late Saturday afternoon.

We stood there like Dorothy in the Wizard of Oz and watched the house blow away around us," said Jo Alexander, who was visiting her that was left of Louis Edwards' house was the central hallway.

"I guess you might say we were lucky it wasn't worse," said Yalobusha County Sheriff Lloyd Defer. "I'll tell you one thing, as bad as it is, these folks are going to bounce back. We won't worry about this thing too long.

Three Water Valley churches were severely damaged, but many residents still managed to attend Easter

Britain giving Libyans the boot

LONDON (AP) — Libya reportedly has decided to evacuate its besieged embassy in London next Sunday just a few hours before a deadline set by Britain when it broke diplomatic relations with the North African nation.

We will go on the last day, on the Sunday, in the afternoon," Britain's domestic news agency, the Press Association, quoted a Libvan spokesman as saying today. The spokesman, reached by telephone in the embassy, declined to be identified.

There was no official confirmation from Tripoli, the Libyan capital

A Scotland Yard spokesman who declined to be identified told The Associated Press, "They have to make plans to leave and we are making plans to assist them As for where, when and how they leave, we know the answers to most of these questions, but we cannot make them public

Britain broke relations and ordered the evacuation Sunday in a move designed to end a diplomatic standoff that began last Tuesday when a submachine gun was fired from an embassy window at Libyan exiles demonstrating against Col. Moammar Khadafy's regime.

Constable Yvonne Fletcher was killed and 11 protesters were injured. The embassy has been ringed by police marksmen since then.

Libva expressed "astonishment and displeasure" at the British order and declared it, "holds the British government responsible for this decision and its consequences.

Nevertheless. Britain said the building in St. James's Square will lose its diplomatic status - and immunity from assault - at midnight Sunday. freeing police to search the embassy.

Home Secretary Leon Brittan said

the emerging Libyans would be searched for arms but will be given safe passage home.

Britain conceded the Libyans would be able to move out any arms in diplomatic bags, which are inviolate under the 1961 Vienna Convention on diplomatic relations, and official sources said there was little chance of finding the killer of Constable Fletcher

Brittain said the investigation into the shooting would continue as a "matter of record." He said police would be free to search the embassy. officially known as the Libyan People's Bureau, after Sunday administration scrambles for ways to salvage its policies in Central America. Congress returns to work on Tuesday to face the necessity of raising the government's borrowing authority by hundreds of billions of dollars to pay the bills for another year.

U.S. debt to pass $1.29 trillion

Despite general congressional agreement on additional taxes and spending cuts designed to shrink federal deficits by up to $182 billion over the next three years, the Treasury is just days away from bumping up ceiling of $1.49 trillion.

So the Senate, back from a 10-day Easter recess, must act soon on the administration's request to lift the debt limit to just under $1.6 trillion over the next five months and to $1.83 trillion through Sept. 30, 1985, the end of the next fiscal year. The new levels already have cleared the House.

Regardless of how the debate over current spending and taxes evolves, the bureaucracy could grind to a halt early next month without the new line of

Meanwhile, the White House is searching for new approaches in its efforts to salvage an aid package for El Salvador and other Central American

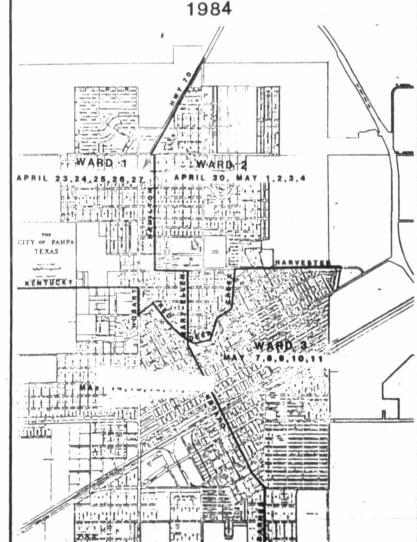

Before taking the Easter break, both the House and Senate passed non-binding resolutions that effectively condemned the mining of Nicaraguan harbors and expressed the sense of Congress that no such activities would be financed by U.S. funds in the future. The administration wanted to provide

$21 million in direct aid to Nicaraguan rebels, but that package is all but dead in the House, where Democratic leaders had steadfastly opposed it even before the disclosures about direct CIA involvement in the harbor mining and commando attacks against port facilities

Moreover. President Reagan has dipped into discretionary accounts to send assistance to El Salvador, lacking specific approval by Congress, and his broader program of $8 billion in aid to the Caribbean region

Nearly 58 percent of the victims of attacks by spouses or ex-spouses reported injuries, most of them minor, compared to only 38 percent of the victims of the attacks by other relatives and 27 percent of the victims of attacks by non-relatives.

Based on results of its National Crime Survey for the nine-year period, the bureau estimated there were 4,108,000 cases of violence in which the offender was a spouse, ex-spouse, parent, child, brother, sister or other relative of the victim. This is an average of 456,000 cases a year, but the bureau said that number understates the extent of family violence because many instances are not reported

The bureau said this total represented 7.2 percent of all the violent crimes uncovered by the survey during the nine years, by far the smallest source of violence measured.

By comparison, strangers were responsible for 58.2 percent of the violent crimes during the period, and acquaintances were blamed for 32.7 percent of them. The relationship between victim and offender could not be determined in 1.9 percent of the

The National Crime Survey is based on interviews every six months with about 132,000 Americans who are asked whether they have been a victim of crime, regardless of whether the crime was reported to police.

Texans favor measured service, Bell says

AUSTIN (AP) - "Numerous" Texans are "anxious" for state approval of a Southwestern Bell plan to allow local measured service as an option to flat-rate bills, company officials said today.

Past attempts to win Public Utility Commission approval for local measured service drew heated opposition. Sensitive to that opposition, Bell officials conducted " a wide round of public visits in recent weeks" to push the plan, according to a Bell release.

'Numerous customers have lauded our proposed optional pricing plans and and are anxious for the Public Utility Commission to approve our proposal, said Richard Harris, Bell vice president for revenues and public

The utility commission is planning regional hearings on measured service in seven cities. The company's request will be considered at a Sept. 24 hearing at the commission.

Under the Bell proposal customers could choose to pay for local calls on the basis of distance, time of day and duration. The flat-rate billing system would remain available "We're not trying to force any customers to take any of the services,' Harris said. "We simply seek to provide options to allow customers to decide how they want to deal with their telephone bill.

Public Utility Counsel Jim Boyle is fighting the Bell proposal. Boyle and other opponents have said the optional local measured service could be a forerunner of required measured Harris said "at least 225,000 Texas customers could save money right now with our suggested optional measured service plan.

The Bell executive said the company's "public visits" showed there are "three basic questions" about the proposal:

Whether customers would be forced to take any particular service. - Whether the company could arbitrarily raise rates if the service if approved by the PUC. - How to determine which service is better for individual customers.

Harris stressed that local measured service would be optional and the rates would be set by the commission.

Researchers reportedly discover AIDS cause

WASHINGTON (AP) — Researchers announced today they have discovered and isolated a virus they say is likely to be the primary cause of AIDS, the mysterious and deadly disease that destroys the body's protective immune

Details of the research, which closely parallels work by French scientists reported last week, were to be released today at a news conference held by the Department of Health and Human Services.

Scientists at the National Institutes of Health, which is part of HEW, and other institutions also were announcing that they have devised a system to routinely detect and grow the elusive virus, a major step for future research.

This system of specially cultured human cells provides large quantities of the virus that can be used for detailed analysis, as well as future work on a potential preventive vaccine and treatments for the disease itself.

In addition to today's announcement, four papers describing the work by Dr. Robert Gallo of the National Cancer Institute and many colleagues will be published this week in the journal

According to the papers and scientists familiar with the work, the virus in question appears to be a member of a family of viruses called human T-cell leukemia virus (HTLV)

previously suspected of having a role in

The NIH researchers said the new virus, called HTLV-3, shares so many characteristics with other HTLV viruses that it has to belong to this family despite some structural Scientists said they suspect HTLV-3 is very closely related, if not identical, to a recently publicized AIDS candidate virus called lymphadenopathy associated virus. LAV was discovered last year by French researchers at the Pasteur Institute in Paris.

Both viruses attack and grow in the same white blood cells that are defective or missing in AIDS patients.

Easter celebrated in unusual ways

By The Associated Press

From tornado-flattened churches to the decks of a luxury cruise ship, from the Hollywood Bowl to the Atlantic City Boardwalk, Americans celebrated Easter with traditional egg hunts, religious services, fancy hats and 'On this Easter Sunday, we're thinking about the power of God and the Resurrection," the Rev. Guy Reedy told parishioners in Water Valley. Miss., where a tornado killed seven people Saturday and ripped the top off the First Baptist Church Gazing at his small flock sitting on chunks of broken concrete, piles of brick and wooden chairs pulled from the ravaged church. Reedy added: "We can look around at all this, and see the hand of God. He has spared us.

Meanwhile, in New York City, more than 40 children boarded the Queen Elizabeth 2 in search of 500 chocolate-covered marshmallow eggs and one bonus egg redeemable for a three-day cruise on Long Island Sound.

After being handed a basket and a fluffy, stuff bunny, the children scurried from room to room of the huge luxury liner. Five-year-old Tara Schein of Manhattan was the lucky winner of the three-day cruise.

Across town, thousands of people lined up in cool but sunny weather to march in the Big Apple's annual Easter

Thousands of Los Angeles-area residents began their Easter Sunday at the traditional daybreak non-denominational service at the Hollywood Bowl. The program included a reading by actor Mickey Rooney and chorale singing of hymns and gospel music in the open-air bowl.

Holiday celebrators also donned Easter bonnets and spring clothes in parades and promenades in Philadelphia's Rittenhouse Square and along Atlantic City's famous Boardwalk In Wilmington, Mass., five anti-nuclear protesters were arrested for trespassing at the Avco Systems Division plant after slipping through a fence about 3:30 a.m. to celebrate Easter Mass, police said. The five, including a Roman Catholic

Supreme Court weighing Selective Service ties to federal school aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a case that recalls draft protests of the Vietnam War era, the Supreme Court is considering whether the government may deny federal aid to male college students who fail to register with the Selective Service

The court was to hear arguments in the case today and is expected to announce its decision by July

U.S. District Judge Donald L. Alsop in St. Paul, Minn., ruled in 1982 that it is an unconstitutional form of punishment to force students to forfeit federal loans or grants unless they prove they have registered for the draft

The Supreme Court suspended Alsop's ruling pending its review of the case. That left the government free to deny college aid to students who have not registered

Since last Oct. 1, colleges have been required to obtain statements of registration compliance before handing out federal aid for the current school

Draft registration - but not the draft - was reinstituted in 1980 under a law signed by then-President Jimmy

Some 11 million young men, more than nine out of 10 who are eligible, have registered. The law requires all male citizens and resident aliens born after Jan 1, 1963, and who are between ages 18 and 26 to notify the Selective Service.

The law is designed to make it easier to draft young men if that becomes necessary. It was also intended to demonstrate American resolve in the Afghanistan.

Failure to register carries a maximum penalty of five years in jail and a $10,000 fine. That is not at issue in today's case.

In 1982, President Reagan signed the legislation that disqualifies non-registrants from receiving college aid. Last October, the Labor Department also said it would deny eligibility for a new job-training program for failure to register.

Judge Alsop ruled in favor of six Minnesota college students who challenged the college aid law.

Alsop said the law is an unconstitutional "bill of attainder" - a law that legislatively determines guilt and inflicts punishment without a trial. He also said the law violates some self-incrimination because it may force

Houston officials say offers for black market adoptions — especially for healthy white babies — are growing at an alarming rate.

'All of our waiting adoptive parents get approached with an offer of private adoption," said Lynn Waldeman, a social worker at the DePelchin Faith Home adoption agency.

One or two teen mothers in DePelchin's maternity care division receive private adoption offers each year, said Agnes Zaccarro, a DePelchin mothers received such offers over the past year, more than half of them during the past month.

The Moores said they received one of their first black market adoption offers from a from a lawyer - who also was a priest. The man claimed he had a baby available for $12,000, said Moore. He said their lawyer refused the offer and tried to have the man prosecuted.

Then the Moores said their rabbi told them of a baby girl they could adopt

They had the infant, whom they named Ryan, for three weeks before the lawyer called again to tell them the natural mother had filed a writ of habeas corpus to regain her son. The Moores learned that the 25-year-old mother had married five times and given up four of her five children.

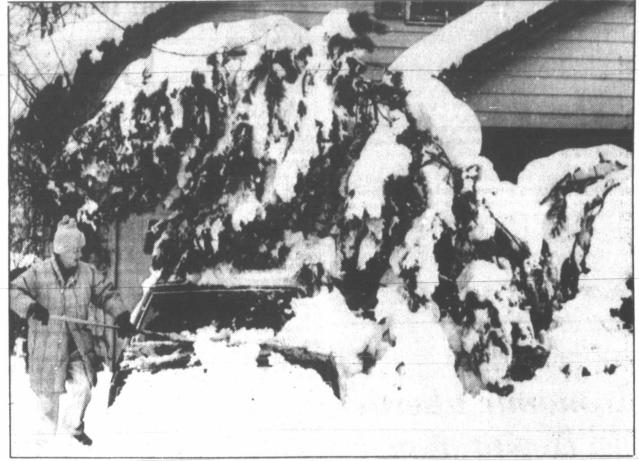

Moore said he contacted two lawyers and two judges about the matter and was told it would cost about $20,000 in legal fees to fight for custody and that the couple had less than a 1 percent chance of winning.

"When I had to hand my baby boy over to the attorney and kiss him and say goodbye, I went to pieces," Moore recalled. Moore said he and his wife decided against adopting through the black market after they lost Ryan, but they almost accepted another illegal adoption offer.

A friend told them her doctor knew a family that wanted to give up a baby. The Moores offered to adopt the baby if the natural mother would have counseling at least twice before the adoption and once afterward, but the mother refused. The Moores say they've received

FREEPORT, Texas (AP) -Brazoria County authorities say they will work with the state highway department to erect a barricade on a treacherous highway curve believed to have figured in the deaths of six people.

We had no idea it was as deadly as this," Freeport police Capt. Charles Wagner said of the highway bridge that crosses East Union Bayou, where divers found four bodies and four cars submerged in the murky waters on Friday night

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Economic liberties are constitutional

It is part of the conventional wisdom, and an important aspect of the American heritage, that the framers of the Constitution intended to protect the personal rights of Americans, such as freedom of speech, religion and the press, from encroachment. Did they also intent to protect economic liberties-the right to own and dispose of property, the right to buy, sell and trade without undue restraint from government?

In a path-breaking book, Economic Liberties and the Constitution, Prof. Bernard Siegan, distinguished professor of law at the University of San Diego, contended that such was indeed their intention. His argument, buttressed by profound scholarship and numerous citations from court decisions, has attracted increasing attention within the legal and academic community.

Siegan's contentions may be startling to some. He believes that the founders specifically revered life, liberty and property. To them, "economic freedom may even have been more important that the other liberties. He states flatly that "the economics of our Constitution is capitalist; the economic powers of government are limited and the economic rights of individuals are

From 1897 to 1937, Siegan demonstrates, the Supreme Court routinely struck down state and federal statutes and regulations that infringed on economic and property rights. Beginning in 1937, after the Roosevelt effort to "pack" the court, it did an abrupt about-face, permitting legislatures to work their will with economic rights. The result is that "it seems to be open season on the indidvidual's right to pursue a business, trade or occupation," according to Seigan.

Recently his ideas were subjected to an intensive form of peer review. The Liberty Fund of Indianapolis invited many of the most respected constitutional scholars in the country to a conference to discuss and criticize Siegan's thesis. The conference was closed to the press, but some participants have talked about it. It appears that Siegan did not instantly persuade all these eminent scholars, but he presented an intellectually compelling case for his views and more than held his own in the ensuing vigorous give-and-take

The significance of the conference is that many of the best and brightest constitutional scholars in the country have been exposed to a compelling presentation of the legal and constitutional grounds for economic liberty. It will not be easy for them to dismiss these arguments are 'lightweight Perhaps upon reflection, more people will agree with Siegan further, that "contemporary studies of government regulation show that these conditions (economic liberty) produce optimal results for society. There is consequently a sound pragmatic basis for implementing fully the intentions and purposes of our Constitution in the economic area.

William Rusher

Did we 'demand' all of this

NEW YORK (NEA) - You have probably spent a good deal of time in recent weeks figuring out just how much you owe the Collector of Internal Revenue. If your income is relatively low and largely in the form of paychecks, Congress has thoughtfully arranged to have so much of it withheld and paid directly to Uncle Sam that you may actually be "entitled to a refund." Since politicians are smarter than the average person, they know that taking your money before you see it and then giving a fraction of it back tends to ease the pain of exaction, and may even inspire a comical smidgin of gratitude

But the truth is that the income you earned last year was originally and rightfully yours - all of it - even if you never managed to lay a glove on a substantial part of it. That part was taken by the government by force - allegedly, to be sure, to help pay for all the governmental services you have "demanded" over the years.

Right there, however, I'd like to put a flag on the play. Where and when, precisely, did the American people "demand" all the expensive goodies that government insists upon raining down on them (or, more often, or certain selected groups among them)?

The Preamble declares, in a general way, that the Constitution was ordained and established in order to "form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty" to the American people and their posterity. But nothing in that language, or elsewhere in the Constitution, mandates the kind of deluge of unequal and widely unwanted "benefits" that a long string of Congresses, and especially the more recent ones, have insisted on voting into law and paying for with money forcibly extracted from you and

My learned brother James Jackson Kilpatrick recently fall back on opinion polls in an attempt to document the American people's supposed hunger for these sweetmeats: "Responsible public opinion polls," he declared, "find that the people not only oppose an increase in taxes, but also demand continued high outlays for social programs '

To use an expletive that will appeal to Kilpo, fiddlesticks. The questions in such polls rarely if ever allude to the fact that these nice - sounding proposals would cost billions - let alone remind the person being questioned that they would raise his own taxes significantly. "Should the government make sure that every American receives such medical care as he or she may need?' would probably generate a very respectable number of sympathetic nods; but that cannot fairly be interpreted as a "demand" for the Kennedy - Corman Bill, or for any other form of socialized medicine. Ask the same people whether the federal government should take over the provision of all health services and raise our income taxes enough to provide another hundred billion dollars to pay for them, and the reaction you get won't often be a sympathetic nod. The trouble here isn't the "demands" of the American people but the need of the typical workaday politician to find some new lollipop to offer to voters in his district. What can he promise to do for them that will be new and noteworthy and nice? Like Gary Hart, he soon discovers that generations of politicians before him have left the cupboard of new ideas pretty bare. But where there's a will, there's always a way, even if the idea is scarcely "new.

Promise a new post office building, or (where food stamps are popular) increased allotments, or subsidies for whatever is produced or grown locally. Never mention the expense - and if anybody else does, divide the cost of that new post office by the population of the U.S. and ask your tormentor teasingly if he really can't afford to contribute his one cent to this desperately needed project.

"Demand," my eye! It is the chronic necessity of politicians in a democratic society to outbid and outperform their opponent that keeps the upward pressure on so much government spending. Individually, the necessary expenditure rarely looms large, but there are 535 hard working ants in Congress, each contributing his grain of sand to the pile, and in Everett Dirksen's immortal words "pretty soon you're talking real money.

Yes - and your real money at that. Just remember, whether you accept a pitiful "refund" or make the government a little richer, that your congressman will be running for re - election in November, and that a letter telling him to cut government expenses or do without your vote counts as a

"Isn't it a beautiful thing to watch?' a Republican campaign manager said.

"No reason, except when someone runs for president of the U.S. you're supposed to rough him up a little, so you can see how he behaves under pressure. 'What issue could Mondale or Hart attack

Jackson on?

"They could mention Jesse's support by Louis Farrakhan, leader of the Nation of Islam, for starters. The good man has threatened the lives of Jews. excommunicated a black reporter from the black race, and compared himself favorably with Adolf Hitler, whom he called a

'wickedly great' man. You would think Mondale and Hart had something to work with there.

"Jackson can't help what his surrogates -I mean supporters - say.

"Aha," the campaign manager said. "But Farrakhan is one of Jackson's closest friends, and Jackson refuses to disavow him. Just think what Hart and Mondale would say if the Ku Klux Klan gave their official support to Ronald Reagan, and the Grand Dragon warmed up every white audience for Reagan.

"You want Jackson to get rid of Farrakhan?"

"Heck no. The Islam leader is ripping the Democratic Party to shreds. If Jackson refuses to dump him over the side, and Farrakhan keeps holding his crazy press conferences, the white liberal voter is going to be scared to death. Every so often a kook like Farrakhan comes along and the media can't give him enough coverage. At the moment he seems to be getting more time on television than Jackson. If you vowed to beat up on a reporter from The Washington Post and called Hitler a 'wicked great' man, you would get a lot of attention too "I still don't see what Farrakhan has to do with Mondale and Hart.

"You must be pretty dumb. Jackson is going to San Francisco with a number of swing votes. He could put one or the other candidate over the top. So both Mondale and Hart have to cater to him. But if Jackson is still carrying around Farrakhan as baggage, then Mondale and Hart will lose the independents and the liberals.

"In November, for every black voter Jesse brings out we get a white vote for Reagan, or one who stays at home.

"I don't see why you have to bring race into the Democratic primaries." "You can't lay this one on the Farrakhan has said in the past few month.' "But Farrakhan isn't in the government." "If the other candidates have to deal with Jackson, he could be. 'So your game plan is to link Farrakhan to Jackson to Mondale or Hart?

We have no game plan as far as Jackson is concerned. As long as Jesse sticks by his best friend we'll just sit on the sidelines and enjoy it. It's the Democrats' problem, not ours. All we can say at this time is 'Let Farrakhan be Farrakhan.

Vhat prevents full employment?

In all the talk, both in the media and elsewhere, about unemployment, one fairly important factor - wage rates - is never mentioned. The price of the goods, that is: One gets the impression that is of no

One does not have to be a professional economist to know that to keep the goods in a market moving, the price has to be flexible. If some force obstructs its movement, both up and down, sales do not take place, the goods stop selling and business goes into the doldrums.

Price important? There is nothing more important in the entire marketplace. In the stock and commodity markets, the prices are almost constantly on the move, bobbing up and down in response to the demand, which tries to pull them up, and the supply, which pulls them downward.

The labor market works exactly the same: demand pulls up, supply drags down, and the two match one another at what economists call the "equilibrium price," or price at which the quantity demanded equals the quantity supplied.

At this Equilibrium Price, there is a balanced condition. The demanders are getting all they want and the suppliers are giving up all they want to. Equilibrium Price in the labor market is the wage rate at which there is full employment. Employers have all the workers they want, and all the workers who want to work have it. There is no "unemployment." If there was some unemployment - labor roaming around the streets, idle - it would constitute over - supply. Offering their services, these over - suppliers would cause the price of labor - the wage rate - to decline just enough to induce the employers to hire them. Again, there would be fullemployment, the unemployment having disappeared.

Why doesn't this occur? For the reason that the U.S. government, for one, does not allow it to occur. The government frowns on drops in wage rates. For example, the government has a law against a drop in a wage rate below a certain level. Called the minimum wage law, it says that no one shall work for less than $3.35 an hour. To pay more than that is OK, but it is contrary to federal law to pay less. This has been so for nearly 50 years.

This creates rigidity in the price of labor. It forbids that free movement of labor's price which is necessary if our economic system is to work. Many workers - youth, 47 percent of blacks especially - are unemployed today, not because there are no jobs out there waiting for them, but simply and solely because the law prevents their wage from falling below $3.35 an hour.

President Reagan has asked that the minimum wage, voted by Congress, be set aside at least temporarily so that those unemployed youth (and others) could get jobs, but the labor unions have resolutely refused to allow it.

The question is before Congress at the present writing.

Dear Abby

Sometimes teachers need thanks for not giving up By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am the president of the South Philadelphia High School Alumni Association, and I have a confession to make.

We saw this item in your column in the Philadelphia Daily News, and we liked it so much we used it in our

"Dear Abby: What a thrill I just had! A former student of many years just telephoned from across the country to tell me that I had made a difference in his life. He wanted to thank me for not giving up on him.

"He began his conversation by saying, 'You probably won't even remember me ...' How wrong he was. Not only did I remember what he looked like, I even remembered his small, neat handwriting.

"Abby, if any of your readers had a schoolteacher who has made a difference in their lives, please urge them to take a few minutes to let that teacher know.

"One call from a former student has inspired me to hang in there with students I now have and will have in the future.—Ula Pendelton, Los Angeles "Dear Ula: Thank you for inspiring the following:

Readers: Did you have a teacher who made a difference in your life? A teacher who encouraged you to stay in school when you wanted to quit? A teacher who believed in you and your ability to succeed when you had no confidence in yourself? A teacher who stayed late to give you the extra help you needed? If so, please phone or write that teacher and say thank you. It will make that teacher's day."

Abby, because of that write-up, a lot of former South Philadelphia students contacted their former teachers, and it really made their day. Keep up the good work. I hope you don't mind.

BILL ESHER, HADDONFIELD, N.J.

DEAR BILL: It's a great idea that deserves to be repeated, and I'm delighted you found it useful. However, copyrighted material (and mine is) should never be reproduced without the permission of the author.

DEAR ABBY: It's class reunion time again, and I have a gripe to air. I've attended five reunions of my high school class (mid-50s), and at each one prizes were given to the "longest married," "member with the oldest child," "member with the most children," "member with the oldest grandchild," "person with the most grandchildren," and person who has traveled the farthest distance to attend." Year after year, the winner of the first five categories has been the same lady! As a girl she created the scandal of the town when she eloped in the 10th grade and carried a baby during her junior year. Now she is being "honored" or her "reproduction" record. (Tacky, tacky!)

We have alumni who have distinguished themselves. One was recently elected to a state office, another has published a book, another was just honored for outstanding volunteer service to his community, and we have a nurse who started a special program for disabled people in the hospital where she works. These people sit quietly and are not even acknowledged at our reunions.

Another thing: The planners always schedule a costly inner dance. Most of the kids I knew were poor then, and are poor now! Why can't they schedule a bring-your-own picnic somewhere in a park? I don't travel 500 miles to see everyone's new clothes and jewelry. I want to see old

GRAVITY AFFECTS YOUR BODY

If you had been a member of the crew on the 84-day Skylab space mission, you would have had a first -hand experience on how the body reacts in a gravity-free world. And if you thought your body had stop-ped "growing," you might be in for a surprise. All of the astronauts while on that mission grew taller, some of them almost two inches taller. Why? Without the pull of gravity, the body loosens up. The distance between each disc in the spinal column ex-

Taking Time" deals with cancer

When people are first given the diagnosis of cancer, their reaction can be disbelief. fear, and - often - anger. Sometimes that anger can be directed at fate. Other times it can involve lashing out at a family member or friend.

If you happen to be on the receiving end of that anger, recognize it for what it is - a reaction to fear and a feeling of helplessness. Your own reaction may even be similar. Say so. Sharing similar feelings will help the cancer patient and you to feel less alone and will also speed up the process of coming to terms with the disease. That means recognizing the fact that the cancer patient may not be around as long as you had anticipated. It may also mean a recognition of your own mortality.

"Our object is to make it back to Philadelphia," said 76ers Coach Billy Cunningham, whose club is trying to become the first team in 15 years to win the NBA title in consecutive years. "We don't lose three in a row in Philly very often.'

To get back home, however, the 76ers have to win one more time at Byrne Arena in East Rutherford, N.J. The Nets believe Sunday's loss will not adversely affect them mentally, although Cunningham said that "for the first time in the series they are in a position where they have to think.'

There's no reason to begin soul-searching," said Nets forward Buck Williams, who had 21 points and 17 rebounds. "We played well. We rebounded well.

Everything is still in sync." 'We still need one to win, and they need two," added Darryl Dawkins, who fouled out with 16 points.

In other playoff games, Los Angeles completed a 3-0 sweep of Kansas City with a 108-102 triumph, while New York outlasted Detroit 120-113, Denver edged Utah 121-117 and Phoenix tripped Portland 106-103. The Knicks, Nuggets and Suns each lead their

Marshall splurge sinks San Diego

The way he was hitting, Mike Marshall was due to break out any day. Sunday was the day.

name pitchers," said Darwin, "but we can pitch." Texas hurlers shut out the Yankees for two straight games and have not allowed a New York run for 24 consecutive innings. Saturday, starter Frank Tanana and Dave Tobik defeated New York 1-0. "We're not getting the timely hit," said New York Manager Yogi Berra. "I don't know when it's going to come, but it's gotta come. We had plenty of chances to break this game open."

Nuclear agreement may be near

HONOLULU (AP) - American and Chinese negotiators are close to hammering out an interim nuclear cooperation agreement that may be ready for President Reagan to sign on his visit to China this week, senior U.S. officials say.

"It is more than possible," said a senior aide traveling with Reagan, who arrived here Sunday. Such an agreement would be significant because it would clear the way for American contractors to bid on billions of dollars in lucrative nuclear equipment

But the aide, who insisted on anonymity, said the agreement would only partly address the major outstanding dispute, which is whether China will meet the U.S. requirement giving Washington final say over the disposition of nuclear fuel processed by American supplied equipment.

U.S. officials are anxious to have a major accord for Reagan to sign during his visit to China, which begins Thursday

Reagan, making his second rest stop on his way to China, arrived here Easter Sunday on a flight from Santa Barbara, Calif., saying in an arrival statement he was on "a long journey for peace.

Reagan and his wife, Nancy, later attended Easter services at St. Andrew's Cathedral, one of the few times in recent months Reagan has attended public church services.

At the evening service, Reagan heard the Episcopal bishop of Hawaii criticize the priority the U.S. government has given to nuclear weapons.

"We see a greater share of resources switched from the compassionate face of government to the expenditure of arms while we learn to think the unthinkable in the language of acceptable megadeaths and limited nuclear warfare," the Right Rev. Edmond L. Browning said in his sermon.

At Hickam Air Force Base, the lei-bedecked Reagan told a crowd of about 2,000 that "our prayers this afternoon will not just be for the success of this mission, but for an enduring peace among the peoples of all

The traditional flower leis were placed around Reagan's neck by Jean Ariyoshi, wife of Hawaii's Democratic governor, George Ariyoshi, who greeted the president in the bright sunshine. A U.S. Navy band played various songs, including "Easter Parade.

LOS ANGÉLES (AP) -Oscar-winning actress Patricia Neal says she's afraid that with publicity about her medical problems. some people may think her acting days are over.

"I want desperately to work," she says "I want a good film. It would do so much for my self-esteem.

Miss Neal. 58, who visits Los Angeles rarely, now makes her home in Martha's Vineyard, Mass., after her divorce last year from British author Roald Dahl, with whom she lived for 30 years. Dahl helped nurse her back from a series of crippling strokes she suffered in 1965.

'My problem is convincing people that I'm well again and able to work." she said on a recent visit here. "Of course, the right side of my body has been a bit of a mess since my strokes, but otherwise I'm fine.

She conceded that living so far away from Hollywood may have contributed to the crimp in her career. Nonetheless the actress, who won her Academy Award for 'Hud,' has roles in an ABC-TV pilot, "Glitter," and a Walt Disney cable-TV movie, "Love Leads the Wav

'It would be easier if I lived here, perhaps," she said. But I can't drive now. My right leg doesn't work properly, and I have trouble seeing out of the corner of one eye, so I can't get a license. Some people would probably say that's a good thing. I was little weak." said her physician, Dr. Robert Gerard. "Her nurse took her upstairs and gave a little oxygen. She responded fairly Kennedy preferred that his mother be treated at home rather than at a hospital, Gerard said.

Walker had his best game of the season Sunday, rushing for 152 yards on 25 carries in the rain at Pittsburgh as the New Jersey Generals downed the Maulers 14-10 before only 14,418

New Jersey trailed 2-7 Pittsbungh 10-0 before rallying in the fourth-quarter. But Walker went in from the 4 and Maurice Carthon's 16-yard scoring run with just over five minutes left won it.

The Generals, 7-2, staged a last-minute goal-line stand to preserve the victory.

Breakers 20, Gold 18

First-round draft choice Jordan was the star for New Orleans, but a big play by the defense also figured in the win. Denver, 7-2, lined up for a two-point conversion that would have tied the game with 31 seconds left. Breakers Coach Dick Coury and defensive coordinator Doug Kay figured out the type of pass play the Gold would use and called the right defense to stop it.

Jordan's longest run was a 61-yard sprint in the fourth quarter. Safety Steve Trimble caught him by his left sleeve and dragged him down.

Federals 31, Invaders 17

Bledsoe led the Federals, 1-8, to their highest scoring game of the season and Oakland, 0-9, squandered a 10-7 lead.

Washington went ahead for good with 3:38 left in the third period when quarterback Mike Hohensee handed off to halfback Billy Taylor. Taylor lateraled back to Hohensee, who ran two yards for a touchdown.

Nick Faldo fights off pressure

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) - Nick Faldo was title-holder, the only other Englishmen to win on the American under some unseen pressure, pressure applied from 3,500 PGA Tourin - Faldo underestimated - more than 40 years. miles and six time zones away, when he strode up the 18th fairway to his first American PGA tour triumph.

"It's not easy anyway, winning your first tournament," the 26-year-old Englishman said after he'd turned back Tom Kite's last-round charge Sunday and won by one shot in the Sea stroke short at 271.

Pines Heritage Classic. And, he said, there was the added pressure of the British press, which has been highly critical of his unsuccessful efforts in the 1983 British Open and the Masters, two weeks 'That put me under a lot of pressure," said Faldo, a three-time British PGA champion and the leading player in Europe last year

"I thought that whatever I shot, if I lost, even if I hadn't gone backwards, they would have written that I had blown another

'But," he said, and leaned back with a smile, "it all came right for me in the end. I got the last laugh.

He also got $72,000 from the total purse of $400,000 and, he said, "joined a very small club — only three of us in 20 years." It was a reference to Tony Jacklin, a former U.S. Open champion, and Peter Oosterhuis, a former Canadian Open

Faldo won it with a front-running, no-bogey, 2-under-par 69 and a 270 total, 14 under par and matching the record on the respected Harbour Town Golf Links. Kite made a run at him with a solid, no-bogey 66 that fell one

"No complaints, but I wish there had been a different

"It hurts to play that well and not win. But when you hit 16 greens, don't make a bogey, shoot 66, then somebody beats you, there's not much you can do about it."

Faldo, four shots in front at the start of the day's play, was challenged only by Kite. No one else really got in the race. Kite eventually tied him with a 10-foot birdie putt on the 12th, but Faldo, having trouble with his putter, rapped in a 6-footer to regain command on the 15th and nursed it home from there.

Dr. Gil Morgan, a non-practicing optometrist who tied for second in the Masters, came out of the pack with a 66 and tied for third at 274 with Ronnie Black. Black had a closing 67. Dan Pohl was next at 71-276. PGA champion Hal Sutton, 70, Chip Beck, 70, and Andy Bean, 67, followed at 278. Tom Watson struggled to a 75 and was at 282

Vicki Fergon wins women's tourney

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Gorgeous weather and generous pin and tee placements rendered the Pasadena Yacht & Golf Club course almost defenseless for three rounds of the LPGA S&H Classic. Six players tied the course record with rounds of 66 through 54 holes and when the field arrived for Sunday's finale, the leaders were threatening to smash the LPGA's 72-hole tournament mark of 17-under-par 271.

Betsy King. Hollis Stacy and Ayako Okamoto were greeted by a crosswind, however. And while that trio struggled, Vicki Fergon came on to win the $150,000 S&H by one stroke.

When the wind is blowing like that," said second-place finisher King, "you don't think about a 66. You know that a 68 or 69 can win it.

Fergon did just that, carding a 3-under-par 69 over the 6.023-yard layout to finish with a 72-hole total of 13-under 275. She came from two shots off the third-round pace set by King, Stacy and Okamoto and won $22,500 to boost her 1984 earnings to $28,864 "Everything seemed to fall into place," the two-time tour winner said. "When I made those birdies on the front nine, I knew I had a chance if I could just hang in there, make par and force the others to come back. The 1979 Lady Stroh's titlist bogeyed the first hole but birdied four of the next eight to pull into a tie with King midway through the round. She matched par on each of the last nine holes "On the back nine," she explained, "I just tried to grind it

Meanwhile, King, winner of last month's Women's Kemper

Open, and Stacy, the two-time defending S&H champion, While Stacy birdied No. 10 to move into a tie with Fergon at 13-under, King fell to 12-under with a bogey on the same hole. Fergon took sole possession of the lead when Stacy bogeyed No. 12 and her advantage was two shots after King and Stacy both dropped a stroke on the par 3, 156-yard 13th. King moved back into contention with a 9-foot putt for birdie on No. 16, but missed from the same distance on 18 where she went for a birdie that would have forced a playoff.

"I lost confidence in my putting. I think it showed," King said. "I don't think I was too conservative. When you start missing, it's hard to get it going.

King, who shot a 66 during Friday's second round, settled for a 72 on Sunday and a 12-under-par 276 total. Stacy shot 73 and was two shots behind Fergon at 277.

Alice Miller, meanwhile, shot a 66 to climb to fourth place at 10-under 278. Donna Caponi (9 under 279) was next.
