Governor welcomes House draft of state education reform bill

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White says a $2.4 billion "working draft" of public school reform laid before a House committee should help gather support needed to call a special legislative session.

"This is a timely working document that adds further impetus toward our agenda for education reform and advances our search for a consensus," White said Thursday.

Rep. Bill Haley, D-Center, chairman of the House Public Education committee, told a news conference the 76-page document would be a starting point for his committee when it begins meeting May 7.

"My staff and I have been working closely with the speaker's office, the lieutenant governor's office and the commissioner of education on the specifics of a reform package," White said. "Representative Haley's proposal parallels our ongoing discussions, and I look forward to working with him in this effort."

Haley said the draft, drawn with the help of the Texas Education Agency and the Legislative Budget Board, adopted numerous recommendations of the Select Committee on Public Education — but a number of controversial proposals were ignored.

"These were just not practical from a cost standpoint," Haley said of the overlooked SCOPE suggestions.

Among the SCOPE recommendations left out was one that would abandon the elected State Board of Education in favor of an appointed smaller board. Other spurned proposals called for a longer school day, a longer school year and full-time kindergarten for 4-year-olds.

White has said he will call a special session of the Legislature in late May or June to consider public school education and teachers pay, if there is a consensus of agreement by House and Senate leaders. He also has said he will seek a one-cent increase in the state sales tax and a five-cent increase in the gasoline tax to finance the school changes.

Lobby sources in Austin said Thursday the expected start of the 30-day special session is Monday, June 4.

Haley estimated the working draft would cost about $720 million to put the changes into effect before the end of this fiscal year, Aug. 31, 1985, of which about $600 million would be for teachers.

The bill calls for starting teachers pay of $1,520 a month, compared to the present $1,111, and the basic pay teachers could advance to $2,660 in 10 steps by additional experience and training.

In addition the measure also calls for a four-step "career ladder" whereby teachers would win $2,000 bonuses for each step they take after special examinations and appraisals. Haley, a former history teacher, said it probably would take at least a year to put the career ladder system into effect, if approved by the Legislature.

TEC fires its top administrator

AUSTIN (AP) — The former administrator of the Texas Employment Commission, fired after a 30-year career with the agency, will start his job-hunting in the courtroom, looking to get his $52,300-a-year job back.

Ernie Tullis, the apparent loser in a power struggle with the three employment commissioners, said he was "a little surprised" when the commissioners axed him Thursday.

"I said 'a little surprised,'" Tullis, 50, told reporters. "I didn't say I was totally surprised."

The commissioners fired Tullis during an emergency meeting called after Attorney General Jim Mattox said in an opinion Wednesday that the commissioners — not the administrator — are in charge of the agency that hands out unemployment checks.

In a lawsuit filed April 17, Tullis alleged the commissioners had violated the Open Meetings Act and overstepped their authority.

The five-minute Thursday meeting ended with a 2-1 vote that ended Tullis' career, which started with a $1.10-an-hour temporary clerk job.

Diane Van Helden of Austin, Tullis' lawyer, said she will ask a state district judge to rule that the commissioners illegally fired Tullis at an improper meeting.

"I think his concern is not as much with having the pleasure of working with those people as it is for the implications for the State of Texas and its (federal) unemployment grant," she said.

The lawyer said the U.S. Department of Labor, which sends unemployment funds to the TEC, might frown upon the firing of the man with whom they deal.

She said Tullis' lawsuit also will cite the state "whistle-blowers" act which protects employees who point out wrongdoing.

The spark that ignited the Thursday firing was a Wednesday letter from Tullis to the State Purchasing and General Services Commission in which Tullis offered to sell TEC's three buildings near the Capitol. The commissioners and the administrator have been squabbling over the sale for weeks.

Tullis said the 1983 Legislature authorized negotiations for the sale of the agency buildings, owned by the federal government, to the State Purchasing and General Services Commission.

TEC Chairman Ed Grisham said during the meeting that the letter was sent without commission approval.

"I was not consulted, although it purports to be an action of the commission," he said.

Tullis' actions left TEC without the atmosphere "necessary for harmonious operation of the agency," Grisham said before making the motion to fire Tullis. "There cannot be a harmonious working relationship with the present agency administrator."

Commissioner Ken Clapp was the lone vote against firing Tullis.

"Fellows, let's not act too precipitously. We're all grown men," he said. "I know there's been a lot of hard feelings."

But Commissioner Ronnie Luna joined Grisham in voting to get rid of Tullis.

Catholic nun turns government witness in alien smuggling case

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A federal prosecutor says a Catholic nun has agreed to turn government witness under an arrangement which could free her from a charge of conspiracy to transport illegal aliens.

Sister Dianne Muhlkamp, 36, of Fort Wayne Ind., applied for "pre-trial diversion," on Thursday, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Jack Wolfe.

Under the agreement, the nun waived her right to a speedy trial and will be on probation for one year, Wolfe said. If the probation period is completed to the government's satisfaction, the charge against Sister Dianne will be dropped, the prosecutor said.

Muhlkamp's attorney, Robert Yzaguirre, wouldn't comment on the agreement.

"I'm just not going to do nothing," said Yzaguirre, who first denied the agreement and then confirmed it.

A defense attorney for church worker Stacey Lynn Merkt, said he had spoken with Yzaguirre who said no concrete agreement had been reached.

"Yzaguirre told me that this morning they asked filed the motion and the U.S. attorney asked her to tell them what she knew," said Daniel Sheehan, a Washington-based attorney.

"The government told Yzaguirre that they would decide later if they wanted to use what she knew and if they'd give her probation in exchange."

"Yzaguirre didn't think they were too hot on using her because she agrees with Stacey on moral grounds. I guess they changed their minds," he said.

Ms. Merkt, 29, of Colorado Springs, Colo., attended her pre-trial hearing Thursday afternoon. Trial is scheduled to begin next week.

At the hearing, U.S. District Judge Filemon Vela ruled in favor of a motion asking the federal government to turn over all statistical information and internal policy statements regarding Salvadoran aliens.

Defense attorneys intend to argue the Salvadorans were bona fide refugees seeking political asylum and Ms. Merkt, therefore, was not transporting illegal aliens.

Sister Dianne, behind the wheel of a Catholic Diocese-owned car, and Ms. Merkt were stopped by Border Patrol agents before dawn Feb. 17 on a deserted South Texas highway. A Dallas Times Herald reporter and three Salvadorans were with them in the car.

Reporter Jack Fischer has not been indicted. Federal misdemeanor charges of illegal entry filed against the two Salvadorans were dropped Thursday.

Wolfe said Yzaguirre reached the agreement with Assistant U.S. Attorney John Smith of Brownsville.

Sheehan said the nun's testimony wouldn't hurt his client's case.

He said Yzaguirre told him Sister Dianne disputes statements made by the arresting officers that her driving was erratic and gave them cause to stop the car.

"There is a first amendment right to religious confidentiality," he said. "As a professional religious working with her (Stacey) in a confidential context Stacey has the right to object to having Sister Dianne say anything."

Ms. Merkt said the possibility of having the nun testify against her "doesn't make me feel bad or sad or alone or anything."

"I guess I just know she would only tell the truth about everything and that doesn't scare me at all," she said.

DA faces political fallout from Estes

FRANKLIN, Texas (AP) — A district attorney who reopened the investigation into the killing ruled a suicide 20 years ago.

His challenger in the May 5 Democratic primary, Jimmie McCullough, says the one-term incumbent hasn't been tough enough on violent criminals. But he also is quick to criticize Paschall for his handling of the Estes testimony.

"People think we've been conned by Billie Sol," McCullough told the Dallas Times Herald, noting that Estes' daughter just published a book about her father. "It has reflected badly on Robertson County."

Paschall said he is aware of how dealings with Estes helped end the political career of former U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough and several West Texas congressmen.

"It's in the history books," he said.

But Paschall said he was just doing his job in trying to solve and old, mysterious death.

"I would be remiss if I didn't bring him in to testify," said Paschall. "People would call that a coverup."

Estes contended that Johnson ordered the murder of Henry H. Marshall in January 1961.

A Robertson County justice of the peace ruled Marshall had committed suicide and federal investigators said they concurred with the ruling. Estes invoked his fifth amendment protection against self-incrimination at the time of the original grand jury investigation and the panel upheld the suicide verdict.

But a new grand jury last month decided that Marshall's death was a homicide.

However, since all three men implicated by Estes' unsubstantiated testimony are now dead, the grand jury saw no reason to pursue its investigation, Paschall said last month.

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — Eroy Brown took the stand this morning in his own defense and told jurors he knew two prison officials were capable of carrying out their threats to murder him the day he killed them in self-defense.

Yesterday the 33-year-old former Texas Department of Corrections inmate cried out and sobbed uncontrollably, halting his murder trial temporarily, startling jurors and causing courtroom spectators to weep in sympathy.

Brown's outburst came during cross-examination of the state's star witness, inmate James Solomon, who testified earlier he saw Brown drill a bullet through the head of prison farm manager Billy Max Moore at point-blank range in April 1981 while Brown was a trustee inmate at the Ellis Unit.

Defense attorney Craig Washington kept Solomon on the stand all day pointing out inconsistencies in the testimony he gave Monday and his earlier statements to law enforcement officers and investigators.

Defense cross examines state's chief witness

Solomon testified in the first of two trials Brown faced on charges of killing Warden Wallace Pack in the same incident.

Brown's first trial ended in a hung jury with one woman voting guilty because she said had a dream that told her to.

The second jury found Brown innocent of capital murder charges in November 1982, deliberating less than three hours before reaching their decision.

Solomon admitted that he had lied under oath during the first trial. After hours of cross-examination challenging his credibility, Solomon said he would never tell a lie that would hurt a fellow convict. Brown then left to his feet and cried, "but you hurt me. I keep having to defend myself."

"Eroy, Eroy sit down," said his attorneys, pulling him down to his chair.

State District Judge Darrell Hester called a brief recess.

During the recess, with his client weeping in the courtroom, Washington sat on the floor of the hallway outside surrounded by friends, reporters and staff and cried.

"I can't take it anymore," said Washington, who has represented Brown through all three trials.

"I've worked on this 'til two in the morning, for weeks, for years. I know everything they're going to say, every lie they're going to tell. I can't take the pressure anymore."

Walker County District Attorney Frank Blazek, whose case against Brown so far this trial has consisted of Solomon's testimony and testimony from a prison official who did not see the event, a ballistics expert and a medical examiner, said Washington "takes it all so seriously."

After the recess, Brown apologized for giving way to his frustration.

Movie dog is star, but no Lassie

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — If Champ were human, he'd be Clint Eastwood.

If he doesn't get out in editing — and the editor would be wise not to make Champ mad — the pedigree Doberman pinscher will soon be featured in the new Louis Malle film shooting in Rockport, "Alamo Bay."

The movie is the story of a young woman living on the Texas coast where native fishermen and recent Vietnamese immigrants are in conflict.

Last week, Champ, a.k.a. Wolfgang Von Brookhouse, made his film debut. The 85-pound "puppy" plays a deranged canine that bites anything that moves.

Champ's "master," R.H. Peterson, owner of a kennel and co-owner of a guard dog company, is donating the $200 he earns on the film to the Gulf Coast Humane Society. He hopes the money will save an "outlaw" dog.

Peterson says he is interested in changing the image of "bad dogs," those thought to be naturally and excessively aggressive. Dobermans, German shepherds, pit bulls and Rottweilers suffer from this reputation, he says.

Peterson says biting incidents reflect man's influence, not any natural meanness on the part of the dog.

But he forgot to tell Champ. When the dog and master arrived on the set, Champ, surrounded by strangers and cameras, "was willing to go after anyone but the right one," Peterson said.

The person agitating Champ off-camera during the dog's scene was a handler from Peterson's dog obedience school.

It took five or six takes until Champ, dogged as ever, finally did as directed.

Judge asked to dismiss charges when agent says notes discarded

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The judge in John Z. De Lorean's drug-trafficking trial pondered a dismissal motion based on allegedly destroyed evidence after a defense lawyer pressed relentlessly for the inside story of the government's cocaine "sting" investigation.

De Lorean watched with a bemused smile as his lawyer, Howard Weitzman, pried from an FBI agent the disclosure that he had thrown away original notes detailing the events of the De Lorean case.

It was the first volley in Weitzman's stated plan to "try the government" for its actions in the "sting," which resulted in the arrest of the maverick automaker in a hotel room with 55 pounds of cocaine.

FBI undercover agent Benedict Tisa, who spent nearly five grueling hours on the witness stand Thursday, confirmed Weitzman's statement that a prosecutor was "yelling and screaming" at Tisa during a break following his disclosure.

"He realized I must have made a mistake in some of the things I said," Tisa said of his volatile encounter with Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Perry.

"I may have conveyed to the jury that I destroyed evidence, but that's not true," Tisa said.

The heated dispute over notes arose when Weitzman examined a 28-page hand-scrawled "log" kept by Tisa during the four-month De Lorean investigation in 1982.

The documents showed some entries dated 1983. Tisa acknowledged that it looked as if he had written the notes not when the events occurred, but long after the investigation ended.

"Did you destroy your original notes?" asked Weitzman.

"I may have rewritten the notes. I may have added to them," said Tisa.

"I probably threw them away," he said at another point. "I may have rewritten a page because I spilled something on it."

"So original notes or portions of them were destroyed, is that correct?" asked Weitzman.

"Yes," said the agent.

The attorney asked if FBI agents are instructed never to destroy original notes.

"I don't believe I was destroying original notes," insisted Tisa. "I was rewriting to bring them up to date."

Weitzman and his partner, Donald Re, urgently requested a conference at the judge's bench and, outside the jury's hearing, asked U.S. District Judge Robert Takasugi to dismiss all charges and impose sanctions against the government for destroying evidence.

Playing the mortgage-securities game

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Financial advisers and brokers are introducing a lot of their customers these days to Fannie Mae, Ginnie Mae and Freddie Mac.

Despite their folksy nicknames, these characters are not barefoot refugees from Al Capp's Dogpatch. On the contrary, they are major players in the fast-growing game of investing in mortgage securities.

Fannie Mae (formally known as the Federal National Mortgage Association), Ginnie Mae (the Government National Mortgage Association), and Freddie Mac (the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp.) together reported the issuance of more than $80 billion in mortgage securities last year.

Though each organization operates differently, they are involved in a similar process — the government-sponsored packaging of pooled home mortgages for sale to investors interested in earning high income.

For example, a group of savings institutions may assemble a package of mortgages they have issued to homebuyers and submit them to the Government National Mortgage Association for review. If the loans are up to Ginnie Mae's standards, the association approves them with a government guarantee covering both interest and principal payments. Then the package is broken up into pieces and offered for sale to investors.

Once they buy a Ginnie Mae, these investors receive monthly "pass-through" distributions of principal and interest as the homeowners make their regular mortgage payments.

The primary buyers of these securities have traditionally been investing institutions. But individuals in growing numbers are being attracted by their high degree of safety and alluring returns — lately in the 12 1/2 percent to 13 1/4 percent range.

The standard minimum investment of $25,000 in Ginnie Maes may be a bit daunting for the small investor. But older Ginnie Maes that have been partly paid off, or were issued in times when interest rates were relatively low, may be available for considerably less.

In addition, several mutual funds and unit investment trusts have been formed that allow investors to get into the game for an ante as low as $1,000.

Ginnie Maes nominally are 30-year deals. But since many mortgages are paid off long before they mature, they are assumed to have an average life of 12 years.

Mutual funds investing in mortgage securities are widely considered to have appeal even for individuals who can afford to invest in Ginnie Maes directly. That is because the funds and unit trusts offer convenient programs for reinvestment of money paid out.

Direct investors in Ginnie Maes or other mortgage securities, by contrast, may have to make separate arrangements for reinvesting money received. They also must always bear in mind that part of the money they are getting is not interest, but a return of some of their original investment.

Naval exercises in Gulf of Fonseca

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Two U.S. Navy warships have joined maneuvers in the Gulf of Fonseca aimed at tightening surveillance of Nicaragua's coast and deterring arms shipments to leftist rebels in El Salvador.

The Pentagon says the U.S. ships, which joined Salvadoran and Honduran boats Thursday, will steer clear of Nicaraguan waters of the gulf, which lies between El Salvador and Nicaragua.

A U.S. military source in Honduras, meanwhile, said U.S. reconnaissance plane have been flying over Nicaragua and have sometimes drawn groundfire, according to reports today in The Los Angeles Times and The Washington Post.

The unidentified source said the Pentagon has denied there have been such flights but said Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government has denounced the aircraft take off from Palmerola air base in Honduras and Howard air base in Panama. The source was quoted as saying the reconnaissance flights are likely tied to U.S. intelligence efforts to track down alleged flow of war materiel from Nicaragua to the rebels fighting the U.S.-backed government of El Salvador.

Improving the interception of any Nicaraguan shipment of arms to Salvadoran guerrillas is a key aim of the naval exercises, Pentagon officials said. The maneuvers are to last until May 7, the day after presidential runoff elections in El Salvador.

In describing the maneuvers in the Gulf of Fonseca, the Pentagon said no blockades or mining of Nicaraguan waters will be attempted.

Revelation that the CIA directed anti-Sandinista rebels to mine Nicaraguan ports triggered protests in Congress, and U.S. officials said the CIA-directed mining had been discontinued.

The destroyer USS Deyo and USS Reid, a guided missile carrier, were doing exercises with Salvadoran speedboats and boats from Honduras' Tiger Island in the gulf, official U.S. and Salvadoran statements said.

Describing the exercise, the Pentagon said: "If any activity were uncovered contrary to the best interests of Honduras or El Salvador, we can assume they would take whatever action they deem to be necessary for their national security."

In Costa Rica, security officials said raids there Thursday turned up a cache of illegal weapons in offices of the Revolutionary Democratic Alliance, a Nicaraguan rebel group based in that officially neutral country.

Under Costa Rican law, leaders of the rebel group, known as ARDE and composed largely of dissident Sandinistas, may engage in political activity involving their own country but not in military activity.

Mondale: take Hart with a grain of salt

By the Associated Press

Gary Hart is chiding Walter Mondale for his special-interest backing and the economic record of his years in the Carter administration, but the former vice president is warning voters, "Listen to Mr. Hart with a grain of salt."

The 1984 presidential race has lost a potential third-party candidate with an announcement Thursday by John B. Anderson that he won't be running. Anderson, who got 7 percent of the vote in 1980, considered running again this year, a prospect Democrats feared would hurt their eventual nominee against President Reagan.

The third Democratic hopeful, the Rev. Jesse

Jackson, campaigned in Texas where he complained about its complicated caucus system and called for automatic voter registration: "From womb to tomb — you're registered."

All three Democrats were concentrating on the two states with the big upcoming delegate prizes — Texas and Ohio. Texas Democrats hold their caucuses Saturday May 5, with 169 delegates at stake; Ohio, with 154 at stake, is one of four primaries on May 8.

Hart, campaigning at a Johnstown, Ohio farm on Thursday, took aim at Mondale, saying farmers "have not done well under the Reagan administration or past Democratic administrations."

Mondale, in Texas, resumed concentrating his attack on Hart after spending the earlier part of the week focusing on Reagan.

Senate panel vows closer watch on the CIA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee says it will tighten procedures for overseeing U.S. spy activities following CIA Director William J. Casey's admission he did not adequately inform senators about the agency's role in mining Nicaraguan ports.

Senators said Casey made the acknowledgment, which one described as an apology, in a closed-door meeting Thursday at which Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., agreed to stay on as the panel's vice chairman.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., the committee's chairman, said the senators were in a "very happy mood" at the meeting, but Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said it was a "very spirited, sharp exchange" of views.

"There were strong statements made on both sides," Bentsen said. He said Casey "apologized for not having highlighted the question of the mining before."

In its formal statement after the meeting, the committee said: "The committee has agreed that it was not adequately informed in a timely manner of certain significant intelligence activities in such a manner as to permit the committee to carry out its oversight function.

"The director of central intelligence concurred in this assessment.

"The committee and the CIA agreed on the need for more thorough and effective oversight procedures, especially in the area of covert action. The committee will move promptly to develop new procedures to ensure that the Senate will be fully and currently informed.

Goldwater said, "I think everything will work out fine."

Goldwater wrote an angry letter to Casey and Moynihan announcing his resignation as vice chairman after learning of the CIA role in the mining, which Casey had mentioned in passing at a briefing last month.

The formula for patching up their differences was worked out by Bentsen and Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., and shown to Moynihan late Wednesday, Moynihan said he decided not to resign after seeing their memorandum and getting a telephone call from Casey saying, "I hope you won't."

Senators said proposals for improving oversight will be drafted between now and next Wednesday, when the panel will meet with CIA officials to discuss them.

Sen. Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., said the CIA did not inform the committee about the mining "specifically enough and, in our judgment and I think the director has agreed, they did not do it in compliance with the statute."

"It's not the responsibility of the committee or the members of the committee to be able to ask the exact right questions," he said.

Moynihan said a senator asked whether there were any other covert operations in Central America the committee had not been told about "and the answer was 'no.'" He said he did not remember whether Casey or one of his aides answered the question.

Moynihan, who has supported CIA funds for support of Nicaraguan guerrillas in the past, declined to say whether he will continue to do so.

"That is another and separate question," he said. "What is not clear is whether what we voted for is the program we have."

Goldwater predicted the administration, which is asking for $21 million to continue aid to the rebels in this fiscal year, would get the money.

"They will either get it in this bill or we will have to do it again," he told reporters.

The bill, which also contains $61.7 million in emergency military aid for El Salvador and a wide range of other appropriations totaling $1.3 billion, is in the hands of a House-Senate conference committee.

Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee on foreign operations and a key member of the conference panel, when asked how soon the conference committee would meet, said, "I don't think it is going to meet very soon."

In other developments: —Attorney General William French Smith declined a request by Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., and 12 other Democrats on the House Judiciary Committee that he appoint a special prosecutor to investigate whether the administration has violated the Neutrality Act in Nicaragua. Smith said there was "simply no credible support for the proposition that the Neutrality Act proscribes the committee rejected a request by Rep. James Shannon, D-Mass., that it call upon the House to demand that President Reagan turn over information "concerning the Central Intelligence Agency and death squads in El Salvador." The committee said its files showed no link between the two, and added that Casey had agreed to review CIA files to see if there was "any possible improper CIA involvement" in death squad activity.

—The Pentagon announced the start of a 12-day exercise in which two U.S. warships will work with naval patrol boats from El Salvador and Honduras in an effort to improve their interception of Nicaraguan vessels allegedly carrying arms across the Gulf of Fonseca, which is bordered by those three Central American nations.

—The Senate confirmed the president's nomination of Harry E. Bergold Jr., a career Foreign Service officer, to succeed Anthony Quainton as ambassador to Nicaragua.

Brightest people trying to make world liveable

By BARRY SCHWEID AP Diplomatic Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Next week, rain or shine, 70 experts on subjects ranging from forestry to population control will pack themselves off to Wye Island, a remote outpost on the Chesapeake Bay, to see if there are solutions to some of the world's most pressing problems or if we simply ought to give up.

They hope to persuade the government, the World Bank, businessmen and the media that their recommendations deserve attention.

The conference was organized by the World Resources Institute on a hopeful note. Once the key problems were identified, said James Gustave Speth, chairman of the steering committee, the next priority was "to try to move away from a gloom-and-doom psychology towards a more positive vision of an attainable future."

This is not the first time some of the brightest people have tried to make the future livable. Sometimes their efforts are dragged down by politics, sometimes by the very enormity of the issues.

Speth, who once clerked for an eternal optimist, the late Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black, hopes this time the message will be different. "There's no cause for despair or pessimism," he said in outlining the conference the other day. "We haven't really scratched the surface of actions that can be taken to correct these problems."

They include growing populations, food supplies, carbon dioxide buildups and preservation of species.

The Reagan administration will have to be convinced it has a stake in solving problems that mostly pinch the Third World.

Speth said the United States will not be able to resolve its security concerns in Central America, for instance, "until we have a more profound understanding of the relationship of resources and land-management to the future of people in the region."

A little more than half the 70 experts are Americans. They include former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, Robert O. Anderson, chairman of Atlantic Richfield Co. of Los Angeles, and Russell E. Train, president of the World Wildlife Fund.

The others are from overseas, including a forestry and wildlife specialist from Peru, a drought control director from Upper Volta, a chemist from China's Academy of Sciences and the director general of Mexico's National Institute for Biological Resources.

There will even be an environmental activist from Sri Lanka, who has led a citizen's peace march around the island to promote civil harmony in his troubled country.

They would seem to have more on their plate than any 70 specialists can handle in just three days. But the problems are so related to each other the conference has an almost awesome scope. Land problems rub against forestry problems. Fisheries and pollution are inextricably linked.

Defiant policeman recovers slain woman officer's cap

LONDON (AP) — A policeman defied orders and sprinted across St. James's Square outside the besieged Libyan Embassy before dawn today to retrieve the cap of a colleague whose death by a bullet fired from the embassy touched off the blockade.

The white cap, with a black-and-white checkered band, had lain on the street since April 17 when policewoman Yvonne Fletcher, 25, was shot in the back a sniper.

It had become a poignant symbol of the siege and a talisman to Britons angered by the murder.

The constable's dash came only hours before Miss Fletcher's funeral in the 13th century cathedral at Salisbury in southwest England, her hometown, and before Libyans began evacuating the embassy.

The unidentified constable "acted on his own initiative" in his 50-yard run from cover at the edge of the square, said Scotland Yard spokesman John Miller.

Police chiefs had ordered their men ringing the embassy to let the cap lie in the deserted square until the siege ended.

preservation of species.

The Reagan administration will have to be convinced it has a stake in solving problems that mostly pinch the Third World.

Speth said the United States will not be able to resolve its security concerns in Central America, for instance, "until we have a more profound understanding of the relationship of resources and land-management to the future of people in the region."

Almost 500 participate in district meet

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Lifestyles Editor

Almost 500 homemakers from 19 Texas Panhandle Counties converged on Pampa Tuesday for the Texas Extension Homemakers Association District I Spring meeting.

Gray County's Extension Homemakers clubs spent hours of work for months preparing to host the day-long meeting. Special guest speakers included Tony Brigmon of Southwest Airlines and Gary Condra of Lubbock. Final count of persons attending the meeting was 497.

Brigmon discussed "M-O-V-E to Improve," interjecting his speech and involving the spectators with his own songs. "M" means measure, check out where you are right now. "O" — operate. Do something different. "V" — Verify the results of your actions. "E" — Exit. Move on to something else.

flags. Lorean Clayton of Hartley County gave the thought for the day, followed by the welcome by Marilyn Butler of Pampa. Delinda McLaughlin of Hansford County responded to the greetings given by Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy.

Announcements and the luncheon invocation were given by Donna Walser of Hemphill County and Roxie Mae Hill of Collingsworth County, respectively.

District directors were elected during the noon hours. Nina Morton of Moore County was election judge. Election tellers were Lural Enns of Dallam County and Delores Wilhelm of Randall County.

Irene Wakefield of Sherman County introduced the citizenship - legislative workshop near the end of the meeting.

Dear Abby

Cook stretches panty hose a bit too far for friends

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have a friend who cooks catfish to perfection. We have always enjoyed it until he recently remarked that he prefers to strain the grease (to be reused) through a large panty hose given to him by a heavyset ladyfriend.

This offhand remark has disturbed me to the point of being unable to enjoy catfish prepared by my friend. Is his method of straining in any way dangerous? Even if the panty hose were well-laundered, is there a possibility of germ infiltration, with the danger of hepatitis or some other disease?

Please contact your experts and let me know if I have reason to worry, or is it just a silly hang-up I should overcome?

It seems to me that catfish strained through my laundered shorts wouldn't be any different than catfish strained through panty hose.

LOVES CATFISH IN MISSISSIPPI

DEAR LOVES: In all probability, you are needlessly worried because the high temperature of hot grease should eliminate the danger of germ infiltration. However, I can understand how the psychological aspect of the whole thing could conceivably spoil your appetite.

Buy your friend a pair of Fat Fanny Panty Hose (yes, there are such things) and ask him to replace the original panty hose "strainer" with a brand-new one.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old male college student with a serious problem: infidelity.

In the last six years, I've had four serious love relationships (one at a time) with four of the most terrific girls a guy could ever ask for, and they've all ended for the same stupid reason. I was caught cheating with another girl. Not one of these sexual encounters meant a thing to me. They were all one-night stands with girls I hardly knew.

Why do I keep ruining meaningful relationships with decent women I really love and care about? What is my problem?

HEARTBREAKER

DEAR HEARTBREAKER: Perhaps you unconsciously set yourself up to get "caught" because you don't really want a serious commitment. It's also possible that you feel you don't deserve a meaningful relationship with a decent woman.

Find a therapist who can get to the bottom of this destructive behavior, or the heart you will ultimately break will be your own.

DEAR ABBY: This is for all the lazy people in the world who don't want to accept any responsibility.

Once upon a time, there were four people named Everybody, Somebody, Nobody and Anybody. When there was an important job to be done, Everybody was sure that Somebody would do it. Anybody could have done it, but Nobody did it.

When Nobody did it, Everybody got angry because it was Everybody's job. Everybody thought that Somebody would do it, but Nobody realized that Nobody would do it.

So it ended up that Everybody blamed Somebody when Nobody did what Anybody could have done in the first place.

THERESA G. IN MILWAUKEE

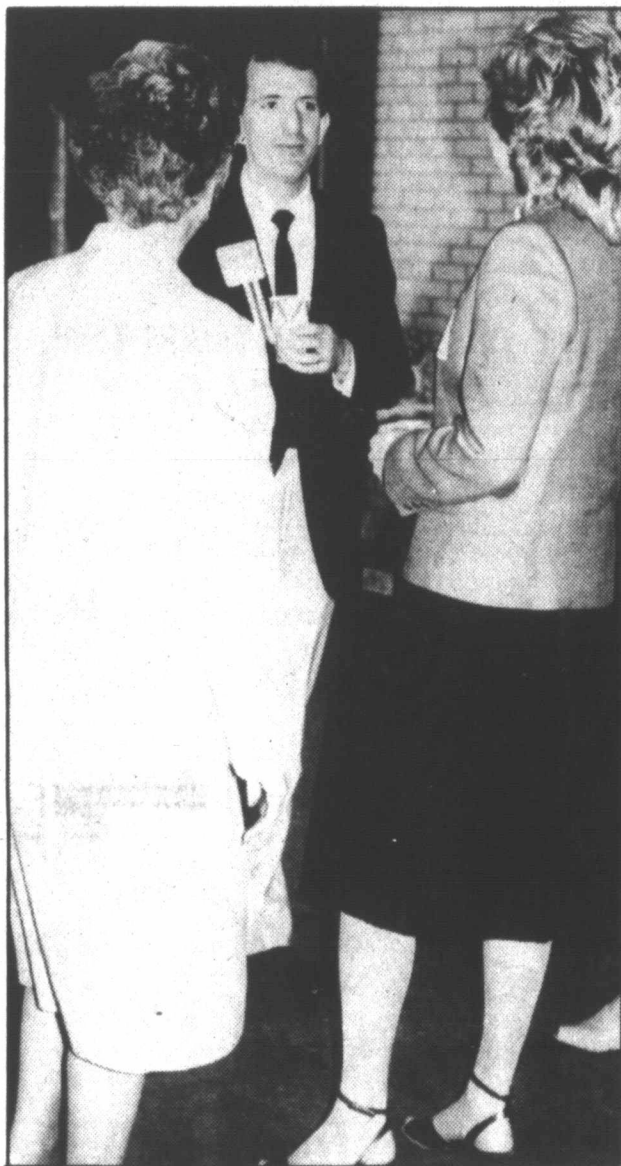

DEAR THERESA: I have seen several versions of this piece, but yours is the only one anybody can follow. There's a message for everybody here. I hope nobody misses it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO C. LEE IN SAN FRANCISCO: What did you expect? This is the year of the rat.

through a year of effort she has been able to have the Extension Homemakers clubs declared a non-profit organization.

Gary Condra of Lubbock is currently campaigning for the District 19 U. S. House of Representative seat. A county extension agent for 10 years who holds a doctorate in agricultural economics, he stressed the importance of voters from this agricultural area to become involved in politics. To get involved, he said voters should let a politically active person in the community know that you want to become involved, then get on the telephone, write letters and donate money to the political issue, the party or the particular candidate which would best meet the objective you want to accomplish.

"The decisions will be made with us or without us," he said. "It's for you to decide whether you will have a say in what is done, or not."

Billie Horn of Potter County was credential chairman at the registration early Tuesday, assisted by Gray County club members. Group singing was led by Helen Hogan and Boydine Bossay, both of Pampa.

Terri Jan Johnson, District One TEHA director, presided at the call to order, along with Ormalene Artho of Oldham County, secretary, and Mateel Brown of Potter County, State TEHA Secretary. Gray County 4-H club members presented the

Gena on Genealogy

By GENA WALLS
The first state of the United States, DELAWARE, consists of three counties. New Castle, Kent and Sussex and at least one county history has been published about each one. In the early days, the three counties were divided into districts, called hundreds. The hundreds correspond to a township today.

Most of the early settlers came to Delaware for religious purposes. Immigrants arrived from Italy, Poland, Russia, Ireland, Germany and England beginning as early as 1614.

Records for this state are scattered, but many are available. You might locate some in the archives of New York and still others in the Pennsylvania archives and some in the Delaware Archives in Dover. The two main sources of information today are the Bureau of Vital Statistics and the Hall of Records. The Bureau of Vital Statistics keeps records since 1913, filed by the year of occurrence, so a date is necessary before a search can be made. Researchers will be more interested in the Hall of Records, Division of Historical and Cultural Affairs, Department of State, Dover, Delaware, 19901. Write for a list of holdings as they have both public and private material.

Of particular interest is the collection of notes on more than 1,000 Delmarva families, a collection of Delaware tombstone records and manuscript and transcribed church records. For further information, telephone the Governor's toll free number (800) 292-9570 and that office will refer your inquiry to the proper department.

When requesting material, ask about the microfilm and microfiche records. Remember that many of these records have been copied by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and can be borrowed for use at their local church library. As with inter-library loans, the ordering must be done through the local church, as small fee is charged for usage and it usually takes four to six weeks after placing the order.

You do not have to be a member of the church to use the records.

Microfilm of the Index Cards of Delaware Marriages, Baptisms, Births and Deaths 1680 - 1913 is available and is an excellent source.

Are you planning a family reunion for summer? Notify your relatives through this column. Write to me, Gena Walls, Rt. 2, Box 505, Lot 26, Gonzales, La., 70737.

Beauty Digest

Exercise dressing

Workout fashion is very in today and actress Randi Brooks told Beauty Digest magazine how she handles it: "When I'm really into a heavy workout, I like to wear a tight leotard so that I can look into the mirror and see which muscles are working and which ones need attention. Even if I'm exercising alone I do take the trouble to wear something nice — perhaps designer sweat pants and a matching shirt. It's important to me personally that I enjoy myself while I'm sweating it out — that helps me keep going."

Potato face

If you have very oily skin, try this wonderful at-home facial mask. Cover your face with thinly sliced potatoes, but keep away from the eye area. If sliced potatoes don't appeal to you, try grinding the potatoes in your food processor until they are finely chopped. Then smooth the potatoes over your face. Either way — sliced or ground — leave on your face five to seven minutes, then rinse with warm water. Because the potato has a slightly acidic exfoliant (the reason to keep them away from your eyes), you'll find a healthy glow as the result of this treatment.

REV. BEAUFORD NORRIS

MRS. STACHIA DISNEY

Special services at First Christian Church

The First Christian Church, 18th and Nelson, will conclude its month-long celebration of its 75th anniversary Sunday with special activities.

Special guests will help conduct the worship service, with a formal reception from 2:30 to 4 p.m., following a time capsule dedicatory service.

Guests for the 10:50 a.m. worship service will be Rev. Beauford Norris, who served as minister here from 1939 to 1948, and Mrs. Stachia L. Boddy Disney, a former member.

Rev. Norris will fill the duties at the lectern and Mrs. Disney will be the guest speaker in the pulpit. Her sermon topic will be "A Reflected Look at Discipleship."

A graduate of Pampa High School, Mrs. Disney received a bachelor of arts degree in religion, sociology and social work from Texas Christian University in 1980. # Join Us In Worship IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

OUT OF THE EARTH...

Man receives his food and much of his clothing from the earth. God has been good to us. "... he did good, and gave us rain from heaven, and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness."

We as a nation, under God, have been especially blessed, and as long as we honor God and his house, our nation will continue to flourish. Let us not grow confident in ourselves... for we plant and water, but only God gives the increase.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — An international team of Lutheran and Methodist representatives, after five years of dialogue, has issued a report recommending that their churches take steps to "declare and establish full fellowship of word and sacrament."

As a first step, churches were encouraged to provide for pulpit exchanges and "mutual hospitality at the table of the Lord."

The recommendations resemble those made by U.S. Lutheran-Episcopal and Lutheran-Reformed dialogues in which joint Communion and exchange of clergy were endorsed.

The Lutheran-Methodist report says, "We rejoice that full fellowship in word and sacrament is currently practiced in some of our churches." In the United States, however, United Methodists are not invited to Communion in many Lutheran churches, while United Methodists welcome all believing Christians.

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 100 Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox bishops have written to President Reagan, urging more vigorous enforcement of federal anti-obscenity laws.

Astro-Graph
by bernice bede osol

If you're in the employ of another, do your best job this coming year. You never know who's watching. Exemplary work could lead to a substantial raise or a big bonus.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be careful today about exaggerating your accomplishments. Once you start to embellish your deeds you may have to layer them with little white lies. The areas in which you'll be the luckiest in the year ahead are revealed in your Astro-Graph predictions for the coming year. To get yours mail $1 to Astro-Graph Box 489 Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Although your suggestions may be well-intended, it could prove unwise to advise friends regarding their financial affairs today. Keep mum.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today, you'll know instinctively what to do to best serve your ambitious aims, yet you may let others dissuade you from your course of action.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) At a social gathering today get around and circulate so you can meet new people instead of huddling with old cronies and talking shop.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Overindulgence is the primary temptation you'll have to guard against today. Lots of goodies sound fine, but keep your waistline in mind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't spring a guest on your spouse today. He or she may have other priorities, and entertaining a houseful of people could be last on the list.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Something profitable could unexpectedly pop up for you today, but you might have so many things on your mind you'll fail to recognize the opportunities.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your extravagant whims could still be fighting for expression again today. Leave your credit cards at home so you don't yield to the plastic plague.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Avoid putting on airs in order to impress others today. It's their loss, not yours, if they fail to appreciate you for what you are.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Even though you may feel you have lots of interesting things to tell others today, be careful you don't try to dominate every conversation.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Material opportunities will be of a fleeting nature today. If you waste time considering them, they could be long-gone when you're finally ready to act.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may experience delays in solving your own problems today, but you'll have the ability to help others to find quick answers they're seeking.

Mavericks eliminate Sonics in overtime period, 105-104

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks got to celebrate their first-ever National Basketball Association playoff series victory, TWICE.

"It was the most bizarre call I've seen in my 16 years in the league," said Dallas Coach Dick Motta after the Mavericks defeated Seattle 105-104 Thursday night. "It was the best doubleheader I ever had. We got to celebrate twice."

Dallas advanced to the second round against Los Angeles Saturday at 12:30 p.m. PST after ousting the Sonics three games to two.

Forward Jay Vincent hit two free throws with 17 seconds to play in a wild overtime to give Dallas a 105-102 lead.

Tom Chambers of the Sonics made a basket with a second left and Vincent rebounded the ball by hitting Chambers' chest.

Chambers caught the ball but time keeper Cary O'Bryant never started the clock.

Referee Mike Mathis signaled the game over, saying, "If the ball hits a man in bounds the clock should start."

The joyous Mavs charged to their dressing room but alternate referee Tommy Nunez pointed out a second still remained on the clock.

Mathis was overruled by Jake O'Donnell after a 10-minute conference with O'Donnell saying, "The clock should have been started but it wasn't. We have to play it."

"It was very unusual. I have never been engaged in a situation like that."

The Mavs were called back from the dressing room where guard Brad Davis said, "We were having a good time. We tried to change our clothes as fast as we could, but that didn't work."

"It was a little scary to give them the ball back."

However, Steve Hawes' in-bounds pass was caught by Mark Aguirre and the Mavs secured the victory.

Motta said O'Brien "had no business stopping the clock. However, I never give up until the buzzer. I've seen too many crazy things happen in this league."

Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens said he wouldn't comment on the crazy ending except to say "it was ludicrous."

Wilkens was mad at the big lead Seattle blew in the final minute.

"I thought we had it then we threw the ball away," Wilkens said. "Dallas just never gave up."

Seattle lost a six-point lead in the final 66 seconds of regulation.

The Sonics suffered three turnovers and missed a free throw in the final 36 seconds.

A jump shot by Dallas' Rolando Blackman with 15 seconds to play tied the game 95-all in regulation.

Seattle's Jack Sikma had 26 points before he fouled out with 1:29 left in the game with the Sonics leading 93-86.

"When Jack fouled out it really hurt us," said Wilkens. "He was playing well. We had it in our hands and we should have handled the ball better."

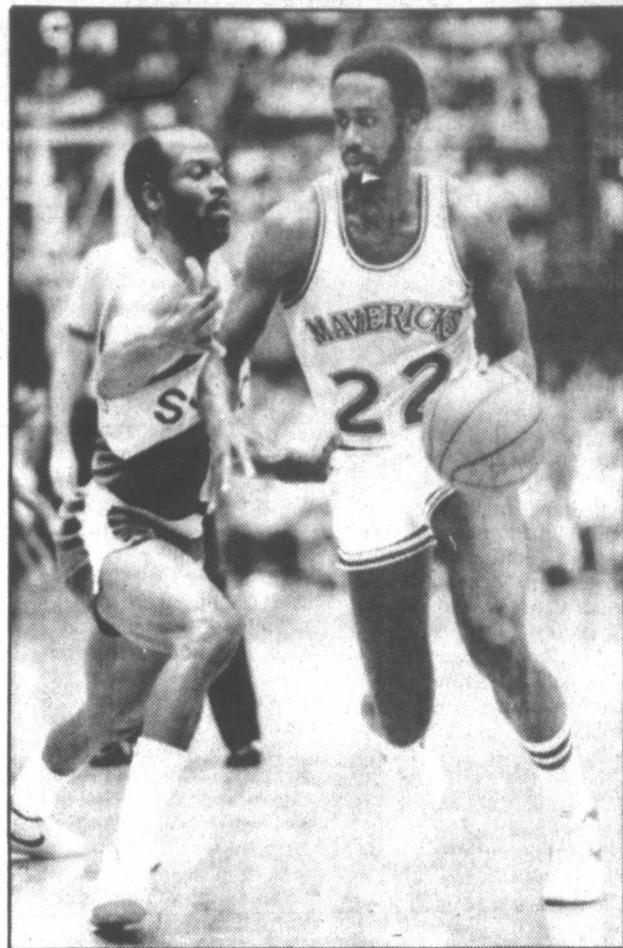

Gus Williams was high for the Sonics with 27.

Blackman scored a game-high 29 points for Dallas with Aguirre adding 25.

"I haven't been in a playoff game since Magic Johnson left Michigan State and now we're going to LA to play my old friend," Vincent said. "It's Magic here we come. I just hope we can give them a battle."

Motta said assistant Bob Weiss will stay up all night studying the Lakers.

"We will practice in the morning, then fly out, and Bob will give the scouting report on the plane on the way," Motta said. "It is a little short but every time I've gone into one like this it hasn't hurt us."

76ers surprised by upstart New Jersey

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The powerful Philadelphia 76ers fell flat on their faces.

The team that won the National Basketball Association title last season with the fifth-best record in the history of the league is gone this time in the first round of the playoffs.

The upstart New Jersey Nets beat the 76ers, 101-98 Thursday night to eliminate the defending champs, 3-2, winning all three games on Philadelphia's court.

Michael Ray Richardson and Otis Birdsong, each with 24 points and six assists, led the surprising Nets into the second round of the playoffs. The Nets will meet the Milwaukee Bucks in a best-of-seven series starting Sunday in Milwaukee.

But the story is not so much the Nets' upset, as big as it is. Rather it's the decline of the 76ers, a team many thought might have started a dynasty with last year's championship sweep of the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Sixers appeared capable of overcoming the first team since the Boston Celtics of 1969 to repeat as NBA champions. But whatever it is that catches up with the champions, grabbed the Sixers.

Julius Erving, the captain of the 76ers, was asked why his team couldn't repeat.

"Our season had more valleys than peaks and the playoff was indicative of the season — two peaks and three valleys.

"We didn't make the total shift and here (Thursday night) we reverted to things that buried us. We had plenty of incentive this season but we did not have the ideal circumstances of last year when we were a healthy team."

Erving pointed at Maurice Cheeks, who played most of the series with tendinitis of the knee, a slash above his left eye and back spasms.

"Look at Cheeks," said Erving. "He won't be able to walk for two weeks. Bobby Jones has a swollen ankle."

Erving didn't mention that he had a groin pull and a sprained ankle.

Erving repeated the question: "Will there be changes?"

"There always are going to be team changes. There always are going to be changes, whether you win or lose. But we have a good nucleus."

Detroit completes sweep of Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Thanks to a new scoreboard that has created new wind gusts, Arlington Stadium is a hitter's ballpark — much to the delight of the streaking Detroit Tigers and their manager, Sparky Anderson, who's in no hurry for the party to end.

The Tigers, who are off to one of the fastest major league starts in recent memory, took advantage of the conditions Thursday night and beat the Texas Rangers 7-5 to sweep the two-game series and improve their record to 16-1.

The win extended Detroit's latest American League winning streak to seven games.

"They say everyone is looking to knock off the Tigers," Anderson said. "I love that and I hope it is that way all year. We are a well-balanced team with no weak spots."

No one could argue with that as the Tigers led off the first inning with Lou Whitaker doubling to center, Rangers starter Frank Tanana then walked Alan Trammell and barked on the next batter, Barbaro Garbey, advancing the runners. Garbey then singled to center to drive in Trammell and Whitaker.

Larry Herndon continued the Tiger attack, doubling to right after Lance Parrish hit into a double play. Chet Lemon followed Herndon to the plate with a double off the left field wall to drive in the runner and make the score 4-0.

"Whitaker set the whole tone for the game with that double," said Texas Manager Doug Rader. "Tanana made a horrible pitch to Whitaker and believe it or not that one pitch to the leadoff man scored four runs for them. That's how it affected Frank."

The Tigers went on to score single runs in the third and fourth innings.

Lemon singled in Herndon in the third after Herndon doubled to reach base. In the fourth, Trammell drove in Darrell Evans after Evans drew a walk and advanced to third on Whitaker's single.

Bobby Jones, Marv Foley and Pete O'Brien homered for the Rangers.

The Rangers scored their first run in the first on a solo homer by Jones, and Foley led off the Rangers' second with a homer to cut the margin to 4-2.

Texas came within a run in the fifth on singles by Wayne Tolleson and Billy Sample and a home run by O'Brien.

However, Parrish countered in the seventh with a solo homer to give the Tigers a 7-5 lead.

Doug Bair, 2-0, took the win for the Tigers in relief, while Aurelio Lopez worked 2 2/3 innings to pick up his second save of the year. Tanana, 2-2, was the loser.

River Run aids health

By JEFF COLLINS
El Paso Times

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — West Texas' Big Bend country rolls out like an endless carpet of desert, anchored by mountains on the horizons.

"You can hear the quietness," observed Frank Pulattie, superintendent at the Terlingua School just outside the Big Bend National Park. "It's a shame you can't capture some of these scenes. ... It's some of the prettiest scenery that there is."

Despite this richness, however, the region is poor when it comes to health care.

Not counting El Paso, the state's five westernmost counties have almost as much land as the nation's five smallest states.

Yet, they have only 10 to 12 doctors and two hospitals, said Charles Mallory, regional immunization director for the Texas Health Department.

Until recently, this boundless borderland also had been a breeding ground for contagious diseases — particularly tuberculosis.

While five rural counties had just 5 percent of the West Texas population, it had 10 percent of the TB cases, Dr. Earl Gorby of the state health department said.

That picture is vastly changed today, however thanks to the River Run.

First organized in 1970, the River Run allows state health officials to take their clinics on the road in their battle against disease.

Armed with vaccinations and a mobile X-ray van, they first battled TB, then later added immunization clinics to control other contagious diseases.

Fourteen years later, the number of TB cases and unvaccinated school children have dwindled to acceptable levels.

For example, West Texas had an average of 42.6 tuberculosis cases per 100,000 people in 1972, compared with a rate of only 21 per 100,000 in the state as a whole.

In Presidio County alone, the TB rate was 425.3 cases per 100,000, state health statistics show. But by 1982, the West Texas TB rate had dropped to 15.5 cases per 100,000. That compares with a rate of 13.7 statewide.

Last month, state health officials from El Paso, Alpine and Marfa again took the River Run on the road. During the two-day trip, health officials had immunization clinics in four outlying villages and vaccinated more than 200 people.

Along the way, several people were examined for a variety of maladies, but only one of them was a tuberculosis patient.

Years ago, Gorby said, he would have 10 to 15 active cases just in Presidio, a border hamlet about 200 miles southeast of El Paso.

When Dr. John Bradley, the state's regional health director, first started the River Run, the trek wasn't as easy as last week's expedition, health officials said.

Roads were poor, making some areas inaccessible to all but four-wheel-drive vehicles. And many of the clinics had to be outdoors, sometimes off the tailgate of the health department truck.

"What they used to call the River Run was a weeklong of hard driving," recalled Doralene Lassiter, a state health department nurse for Presidio County.

"I was coming out for a week every two months," Gorby added. "Now I come out for two days three times a year."

Even though the main problems were under control by the late 1970s, the health department continues its expeditions for "maintenance and surveillance."

In an area where "there's no real border and no real border patrol," as Mallory put it, populations from Texas and Mexico mix with each other and are exposed to each other's diseases.

Health officials still check for tuberculosis on the River Run, their main tool being the TB skin test.

Tuberculosis is a slow-moving bacterial illness that usually is spread by coughing or sneezing, Gorby explained.

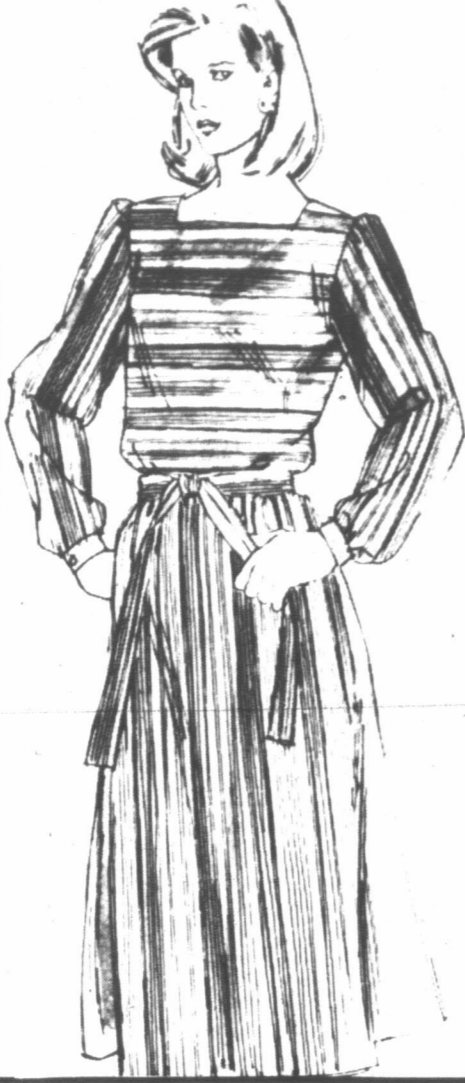

Once in the body, the natural immune system usually controls it, but some cases develop into full-fledged infections.

The lungs are the most common place for the infection to settle, and if unattended, tuberculosis will eat them away and leave big cavities.
