Oil producers claim drilling by state 'socialistic'

AUSTIN (AP) — Independent oil producers, outraged at the General Land Office would drill a well on its own, are accusing the state agency of socialism.

Land Commissioner Garry Mauro says that the well had to be drilled to protect the 15,000 leases, which the state got back from Mobil Oil Corp. as part of a lawsuit settlement in

But Houston millionaire oilman Michael T. Halbouty calls the state's drilling of the well an act of socialism.

"I don't think the state should get involved in any sort of industry business," he told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in a story published Sunday. "There's a lot of independents. They could have drilled that well under a lease for its production.

"If the state and federal government get involved in every aspect of private enterprise, then where does the entrepreneur come in?

William Abington, president of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association, agreed

'The state historically has leased its land to other people for exploration." he said. "They've never had to risk state money to explore for oil and gas. I don't want an elected official risking my money in any business.

Julian Martin, director of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association, was more

"Our attitude at this point is not to get too excited about this, accepting the land commissioner's word that he does not plan to go too far beyond this," he said.

By industry standards the 2,500-foot well in Duval County is small - it produced only 10 barrels of oil a day for a daily gross income of about $300. About 90 percent of what it pumped to the surface was salt water.

Mauro said the state had to drill the well because the original lease terms call for a well to be drilled once every 90 days. Because Mobil did not fulfill that requirement at various times during the leases' 50-year history, Mobil lost the leases, he said.

The state wanted to fulfill the leases' contract terms so there would not be future controversies. Mauro said.

"It's a hell of a deal when fulfilling a contract is called anything but free enterprise." Mauro said.

The controversial lawsuit surrounding the land involved the state, Duval County rancher Clinton Manges, Mobil Manges had filed suit against Mobil, claiming that the company had violated leases on more than 70,000 acres of land. The state, under then Attorney General Mark White, joined the suit in late 1982 becuase it owned mineral interests on the 15,000 acres.

The leases are scheduled to be sold Friday to American Resources Inc. of Dallas.

Austin lawyer Wally Scott, the state's trustee for the property, said the state is now leasing the property to itself, but he said those leases have to be maintained for the state to protect its interest in five wells are already are

The state also has a legal obligation to protect several minor royalty owners involved, Scott said.

Still, Scott says he can see the basis for Halbouty's

"I can imagine Mike saying something like that, and the state drilling wells is sort of a form of nationalism." Scott said. "But the land office had to do this as a defensive mechanism unitl they sold the property.

Officials think 'weirdo' drifter killed nine before he was slain

MANLEY HOT SPRINGS, Alaska (AP) — As authorities dragged a muddy river for bodies, townspeople spoke quietly of the "weirdo" drifter with a long knife who wandered in last week and is believed to have killed nine people before being gunned down by police

"Nobody will feel better until they can get some bodies out of the river." said Cleo Schnorf, a resident of this backwater mining town of 80 people about 90 miles west of Fairbanks. "Nobody will get any rest until they do."

Michael Silka, 25, drove to this community of log cabins on the Tanana River at the end of the Elliott Highway about a week ago and set up camp at a boat launching area about three miles from town

On Thursday, six residents of the village went to the boat ramp for one reason or another. None was ever seen again. Silka, shot to death Saturday by state police after he killed a trooper in a helicopter pursuing him, also has been linked to the death of a trapper in this rugged central Alaska wilderness, and was a suspect in a slaying last month in Fairbanks, officials said "I think this will be remembered every breakup (when the river ice breaks) for a long time," said Ed Crestin, 28. "Things may not be the same any time soon. I think the people here may be a little more leery of strangers.

A pregnant woman and a 2-year-old child are among those who vanished and are presumed dead. Residents said Sunday they are certain they were killed and thrown

Authorities presume the missing people were killed, Sam Barnard, a homicide investigator with the Alaska State Troopers in Fairbanks, said Sunday night. Dragging for bodies was to resume today

"It's a dangerous river, a horrible, horrible place," Barnard said. "This river doesn't give up its bodies very

Residents said the bearded Silka arrived about a week ago in a brown sedan with a canoe lashed to its roof, and camped by the river

"He was scraggly and he acted really weird ... This is the end of the road. All the weirdos end up here," said Patricia Lee, who with her husband Bob operates the Manley Roadhouse

Another resident Teresa Conger said that in her only meeting with Silka he could not stop fussing with a knife. "He had a huge knife that he just kept sharpening and sharpening " she said. "He was just obsessed with that

By Friday, townspeople had noticed that six people were missing and called state police for help. Troopers arrived at 2 a.m. Saturday They found marks at the blood-splattered boat landing indicating that objects had been dragged down to the edge of the muddy river, still clogged with ice from the spring Silka, already being sought for questioning in the April 28 slaying of Robert Culp of Fairbanks, was soon identified as the suspect, said Lt. John Myers of the troopers Fairbanks

Iranians to disrupt all Gulf shipping

By The Associated Press

Arab foreign ministers accused Iran of aggression in its alleged attacks against oil tankers in the Persian Gulf. but Iran's president said his country is prepared to disrupt all gulf shipping as long as its own oil exports are jeopardized

The speech by President Ali Khamenei was reported today by Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency after foreign ministers of the 21-nation Arab League adopted a resolution accusing Iran of attacks on Arab

The resolution was approved in Tunis, Tunisia, on Sunday despite opposition from Syria and Libya, Iran's only Arab allies in its 312-year-old war with Iraq. The resolution did not mention attacks around Iran's Kharg Island for which Iraq, a league member, has claimed responsibility. Also Sunday, diplomatic sources said Arab nations in the gulf have increased their military surveillance in response to the recent attacks on ships.

Khamenei, in a speech delivered in Tehran, said, "If the United States takes part in the adventurous games in the Persian Gune force from Lebanon following a suicide bomb attack that killed 241 U.S. servicemen.

The oil routes in the Persian gulf are either safe for all or unsafe for all," the IRNA report, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus, quoted Khamenei as saying."If the superpowers deprive us from deprived of oil.

The Arab League resolution expressed "extreme concern over the Iranian aggression against Saudi and Kuwaiti oil tankers in the territorial waters and maritime routes of the gulf nations," away from the declared zone of the Iran-Iraq war by attacks in the gulf since January. including five Kuwaiti and Saudi oil tankers in less than a month. Iran has denied responsibility for attacks for which Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and the United States says it is to blame.

Nobody in the Arab world seeks an escalation in the war." Saudi Foreign Minister Saud al-Faisal said after the one-day meeting in Tunis. "But the Iranian aggression has become so serious and so dangerous that the Arab League has no choice but to take action.

Conference sources, speaking on condition they not be identified, said the the Iraqi attacks took place in a previously declared and well-defined war zone while the attacks blamed on Iran came without warning in territorial waters of other gulf states.

Most of the damage to ships in the gulf has been caused by Iraq, which has vowed to attack any vessels approaching Iranian oil ports

Foreign ministers Farouk Sharraa of Syria and Abdussalam Treiki of Libya tried to block explicit criticism of Iran during the Tunis meeting.

Conference sources said they tried to invoke the league's traditional rule of unanimity, which gives each member country veto power. The resolution passed by a majority vote after the ministers decided not to apply the unanimity rule, sources said.

The resolution called on the U.N Security Council to take "firm and clear action" to end the attacks. It recalled that under the league charter. an aggressive act against an Arab nation "is considered an aggression against all other Arab nations.

The foreign ministers of Iraq and Kuwait arrived in Tokyo today to meet with Japanese Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe to explain the Arab League's position.

Japan has indicated readiness to use its good relations with Iran and Iraq to try to mediate an end to the attacks in the gulf. a major source of oil for Western Europe and Japan.

No dramatic announcements are expected from upcoming summit

By MAUREEN SANTINI

AP White House Correspondent WASHINGTON (AP) - With the economic summit of the Western industrialized nations nearly three weeks off, U.S. officials already have begun a favorite bureaucratic game of 'lowering expectations' to convince the nation that President Reagan's goals for the annual session are modest.

While just preparing for and holding the summit involves a multinational army of aides and security personnel, not to mention world press coverage, U.S. officials already are cautioning reporters not to expect any dramatic Administration officials involved in those elaborate preparations maintain that the president's main purpose in attending the session in London is to promote cooperation among allies.

Western European nations and Japan have their own opinions of U.S.-Soviet relations, the high U.S. deficit and interest rates, and U.S. policy in Central America, but administration officials told reporters recently that none of these issues was expected to be highly controversial among allies.

Although the three-day summit doesn't begin until June 7, the president is leaving the nation's capital on June 1 to make campaign-style appearances in Ireland, his ancestral home, and at the D-Day beaches of Normandy, France, before he sits down to talk with other world leaders.

It will be Reagan's third foreign journey in less than a year: he went to Japan and Korea last fall, and he returned from China just three weeks

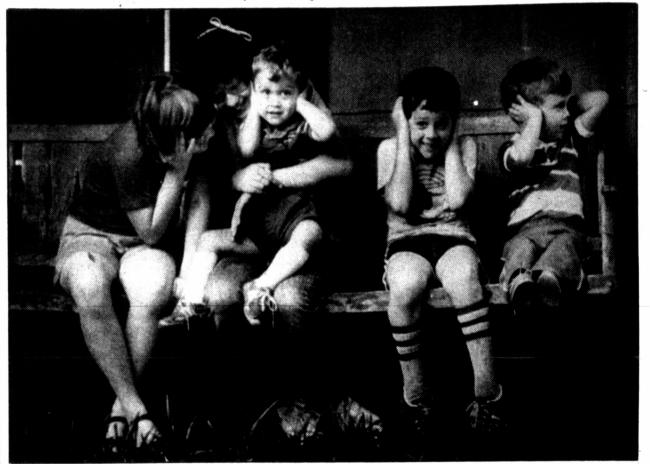

During their formal sessions, the summit participants — the United States, England, France, Italy, Canada, Germany and Japan - are likely to discuss protectionism, trade, economic recovery, Third World d U.S. deficit and interest rates and ot economic concerns.

But during meals, the leaders set aside time to talk politics, particularly the Middle East, including the growing conflict between Iran and Iraq; the Soviet Union, including arms control and undoubtedly the Soviet boycott of the Olympics, and such other topics as international terrorism. Central America also is likely to come up.

One U.S. official, who briefed reporters recently on the condition that he remain anonymous, said there are no current plans for the group to issue a joint statement on any issue, such as the one they issued last year on arms control, but it can't be ruled out, either.

This official stressed repeatedly that the summits are intended more as a way for the world leaders to discuss topics of mutual concern privately, than as a way of finding quick solutions to problems.

Since then, Irving police and reserve officers have spent days using wire screens and shovels to sift through dirt in the swampy snake-infested field.

They've turned up part of a rib and a jawbone with two upper teeth that had no fillings - valuable nuggets, police say, that may eventually help identify the young woman who was believed to have been killed elsewhere before her body was dumped into the field.

"It's a dirty job in a place filled with mosquitoes and snakes," police Capt. Tracy Bush says. But "we feel like we owe it to the person" they have dubbed "The Sturdy Lady."

County medical examiners estimate that the victim was a heavyset, possibly overweight white woman, about 5-foot-5, and about 30 years old at the time of her death two to five years ago.

She possibly was wearing a terry-cloth halter top and white underwear, because scraps were found near the bones, which had been scattered across a 50-foot area by periodic floods and animal scavengers.

LONDON (AP) - Amnesty International today accused El Salvador's government of ordering the executions of many of the estimated 40,000 people murdered there since 1979 and interfering with investigations of the deaths

The London-based human rights group said there had been "blatant failure" by El Salvadoran authorities to investigate the killings, and charged that the "authorities themselves lie behind the wholesale extrajudicial executions.

Parties back to work to choose delegates

Texas Democrats in many counties decided that the state's presidential delegates should be selected by a binding primary, while Republicans used their weekend caucuses to dwell mostly on platform

Saturday's meetings were held primarily to choose county delegates for presidential nominating conventions slated for this summer.

Final results of the county conventions weren' available today, but Walter Mondale was expected to keep the frontrunner's position unofficially awarded him in the May 5 primary.

At stake in Texas are 200 Democratic delegates who will attend the party's national convention in San Francisco July 16 through 19.

Republicans will hold their national convention in Dallas from August 20-23. It will be attended by 109 Texas delegates chosen at the state convention June 12 in Fort Worth.

Incomplete returns from the primary show 49.7 percent of voters favor Mondale, 27 percent supported Hart and 16.9 percent preferred Jackson. Another 6.4 percent were uncommitted. Reagan received 308,713 votes to 11,126

Edwards attended the senatorial District 13 convention, which lasted long into the night and was described by participants as a "zoo." Harris County Democrats meeting in Houston awarded Mondale 368 — or 45.8 percent — of county delegates who will attend the state convention in the city June 15 and 16, The Houston Post

Jackson was expected to come in second with an estimated 265 delegates - or 33 percent, and Hart's share was estimated at 170 delegates or 21.2 percent, the Post reported.

Nueces County Democrats also agreed that the caucus system should be abandoned and called for a halt to U.S. military aid to Central America.

Democrats attending conventions in and around Dallas also debated the system under which delegates are chosen, while Republicans expressed support for federal government involvement in school prayer and abortion issues.

At the 23rd senatorial district convention in Dallas, U.S. Senate candidate Kent Hance's speech was interrupted by chants of support for his opponent in the June 2 runoff, state Sen: Lloyd Doggett, who also used the caucuses to stump for support among Democrats. Abortion was by far the most controversial issue in the three Republican conventions in Tarrant County. Two districts endorsed resolutions supporting an amendment banning abortions. A third endorsed one supporting Reagan's "effort to protect human life." Reagan advocates an amendment banning abortion.

Most of those opposing the resolutions said they feared support of an abortion amendment would divide the party

Terrorism is not proper response

You might almost think that if Muammar Khadafy did not exist, the U.S. government would have to invent him.

Secretary of State Shultz a few weeks ago expressed concern about the growth of international terrorism, and edged markedly toward the position that the United States should take preemptive action against would-be terrorists. He didn't quite say so, but he came close to the position that state-supported terrorism is so serious that the United States should engage in some state-suppported terrorism.

Almost as it on cue, Khadafy's minions committed the outrage in London that left a policewoman dead and the world aghast.

What U.S. officials seem to have a hard time understanding is that pipsqueak bullies like Khadafy feed on such attention. Without minimizing the threat posed by the Khadafys of the world, we need to understand that, in the twisted logic of terrorism. attention from the Shultzes increases what they perceive as their strength. It validates them to the consitutencies they seek, makes them feel important, feeds their egos.

When the outrages of the pipsqueaks tempt the "great powers" into flirting with preemptive terrorism, the method of terrorism appears to be validated. The danger is that the result will be an upward spiral of terror rather than its elimination

There is a fine line between awareness of the dangers of terrorism and steps to defend against it and giving terrorists so much of the attention they seek that they are emboldened and feel themselves vindicated. Secretary of State Shultz seems to have stepped over that line. In the process, he has come periously close to erasing (or at least blurring) the distinction between states that embrace terrorism as an instrument of policy and the so-called civilized states of the world

Freedom with increasing age

NEW YORK (NEA) - Last summer I turned 60, and while I am under no illusion that that is any great age these days, it has changes in the way I think and feel. It occurs to me that it might be useful, or at any rate amusing, to my readers if I reported on some of these.

I realize that there are live - life - to - the hilt types who regard my recognition of their advancing years as beneath them. They reject any adjustments whatever, and frequently make good on their declared intention to keep on doing whatever they are doing until they drop in the traces.

Not I, however. Bar the occasional freak of nature whose constitution enables him to stay young virtually forever, we are simply kidding ourselves if we think increasing age doesn't make - and oughtn't to make - any difference in our lives.

At 60, the lengthy secret argument over whether one is "middle - aged" is mercifully over. Wherever "middle age" begins or ends, only a perverse mentality could regard a person above 60 as belonging in that category. "Elderly" may not be the right term either; perhaps there is none.

Personally, I'll settle for just saying I'm "getting there."

But that a person of 60 is slowing down, physically and mentally, there simply can be no doubt. Usually one's memory has already been deteriorating gently for a good many years. Now all sorts of physical phenomena associated with age - most of them trivial, but not all of them painless begin to put in their appearance. And, in addition to all the trivial ones, there are (or well may be) others, or premonitions of others, not so trivial. It has long been a rough rule of thumb of mine that, medically speaking, "in your 30s nothing will happen; in your 40s nothing should happen; in your 50s something may happen; in your 60s something will happen.

One symptom of age for which I was thoroughly unprepared was: you shrink. So help me, you actually shrink. Whatever your height was all your, it is commonly a half inch or so less than it used to be - and not, mind you, because you stoop now, but because the cartilage in your joints simply has less bounce to the ounce.

And then there's the matter of eyebrows

Among men at least, age for some weird reason brings on a mighty efforescence of the eyebrows. Luckily your barber can easily trim yours down to a normal size unless, like House Majority Leader James Wright, you decide to glory in the dratted things, and deliberately train the manic foliage to stick out until one could land a small aircraft on it.

Whatever ills befall me on the road ahead, however, I firmly intend to try not to reproach my Maker for them. Sixty years of largely exuberant health is all anyone has a reason to expect. If coming years bring discomfort, I hope to endure it fairly

If this account of what Winston Churchill called "the surly advance of decrepitude" has sounded a little gloomy up to now, let me give you the good news. With age, and only with age, come several good things. Perspective, for one. A person of 30 or 40 simply hasn't been around long enough to see how events repeat themselves, how lines that seemed parallel gradually converge.

At the same time, a person over 60 has a mortality that alters his attitude toward many things. For example, the old saying that "you can't take it with you," which has been familiar to the point of banality all one's life, now suddenly becomes a fresh and piercingly accurate insight into certain important limitations on the nature of money, and indeed of all property. A millionaire's fortune, which he has spent his life amassing, now stealthily but firmly detaches itself from his naked, creaking body, as they prepare to go their separate ways. Values, in one's later years, are quite likely therefore to change spectacularly and usually for the better.

Even courage to face life's disasters becomes a bit easier. If a tyrant were to threaten me with execution (let alone "life imprisonment"), I think I could defy him more bravely now than I might have been able to do 30 or 40 years ago. The ability of others to do me harm is severely limited these days, and to that exent age has actually increased my freedom. There will be many fine ways to use it before my

Maker calls me home

Move Olympics to El Salvador

The U.S. has a very serious problem. It doesn't want the Russians in El Salvador. but it does want them in Los Angeles.

The Soviets, according to President Reagan, are running all over Central America, but they don't want to send one weight lifter to the Olympics.

The State Department is now working day and night to reverse this situation

"What do you plan to do about this problem?" I asked one of the American diplomats working on the impasse.

'We're in touch with Moscow now and our message to them is that we have no objection to them testing us in Los Angeles, but we take a serious view of them competing with us in Central America.

"The Russians say the reason they won" come to L.A. is that it's too dangerous for their athletes.

We're trying to tell them they've read our signals all wrong. Where they are in physical danger is in Nicaragua and Cuba. They have nothing to fear if they show up in California

"I'm not clear why Ronald Reagan is unnerved about the Soviets being in El Salvador, but is not afraid of them in Los

"The reason is quite simple. Los Angeles is farther away from Washington than El Salvador is from Houston. The president is very hurt that the Soviets have decided to boycott the Olympics because they feel they won't get enough protection here. Russian lives are sacred to Mr. Reagan when they are in the U.S. At the same time, we have informed Mr. Chernenko the Soviets are not going to win any Gold Medals if they keep swimming in our hemisphere

"I guess both messages coming at the same time must have Moscow very

"I don't think so. We want the Soviets to compete in the Olympics. We'll give them all the visas they request to come to Los Angeles. But we're not going to give them permission to send one more hammer thrower into Central America.'

"Maybe the Soviets are retaliating because we refused to go to their Olympics

"We had a very good reason for not going to Moscow then. They invaded Afghanistan and we wanted to send a strong message that we wouldn't stand for this outlaw behavior. Just because we wouldn't go to their Olympics is no reason for them not to come to ours.

"I understand the other reason the Russians decided not to come to L.A. was because of the smog. Have you been able to assure them that there would not be any smog in Los Angeles if they agreed to

"There's always smog in Los Angeles. The Soviets damn well know that. We consider this excuse a red herring. If you want the truth we suspect that one of the reasons they are coming is because they will have to be tested for steroids. Everyone knows their athletes are full of it.

"Do you think the Soviets are using steroids in Central America?"

"We have a strong suspicion they are. But it's the arms they are shipping to the rebels. and not the steroids that we're concerned about," he said.

"I know this is a crazy idea. But if the Soviets are in Central America and we're there also, why don't we just move the Olympic Games from Los Angeles to El Salvador?

"That's the stupidist thing I've ever heard. Suppose the Russians come to El Salvador for the Olympics, and then refuse to leave after they're over? What do we do

"What guarantee did we have that they wouldn't stay in L.A. after the Olympics were over there?

"None. And frankly, we think that's the main reason the Soviets decided not to

Energy crisis bound to return

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Like the proverbial old soldier, the "energy crisis" caused by inadequate supplies of crude oil hasn't died but has just faded away - and could stage a dramatic comeback during the next decade

A growing number of energy experts are predicting that the current petroleum glut is almost certain to disappear by the late 1980s or early 1990s - but the public apparently is oblivious to those warnings. "The single most critical energy issue confronting this nation is our continued dependence upon oil," says Energy Secretary Donald P. Hodel. "Our oil supply is subject to interruptions and price swings at any moment. "The dismal possibility of another international oil crisis will be a fact of life for some time to come," adds Charles J. DiBona, president of the American Petroleum Institute, the industry's leading trade association.

In the near term, the energy outlook is pretty good, but it's not as good in the far term," says Dr. Daniel Yergin, an energy expert on the Harvard University faculty.

Recalling the energy crisis of 1979, Yergin says, "There's no question that it brought an end to an era of high economic growth that had been the linchpion of development since

The 1979 energy crisis was even more serious, he suggests, because it was "the driving' force behind a four - year - long worldwide recession.

The decline in this country's oil consumption every year since 1978 is, in part, attributable to that recession. Conservation, technological improvements and a shift in public attitudes have also contributed to that reduction.

This country's crude oil imports last year totaled slightly less than 4.25 million barrels of oil per day - less than half the more than 8.56 million barrels of oil per day imported in the peak year of 1977.

There also has been a dramatic shift in the source of that imported oil, with only about 15 percent now coming from the politically volatile Middle East.

Saudi Arabia, by far the largest Persian Gulf petroleum producer, ranked only fifth behind Mexico, Canada, Venzuela and the United Kingdom - among the nations exporting crude oil to this country last year.

But about 55 percent of the world's proven oil reserves remain in the Middle East, with almost half of that total in Saudi Arabia. Western Europe still depends upon that region for about one - third of its oil and Japan relies upon the Middle - East for more than half of its oil.

This country and other industrialized nations are expected to become more dependent upon Persian Gulf oil as an improved economy stimulates an increased demand for petroleum.

At the same time, the world's developing nations are expected to almost double their daily petroleum consumption during the next decade, from 11 barrels to 20 million So global demand will be rising at a time when production from two major sources of oil - Alaska's North Slope and the North Sea between Great Britain and Norway - will be inversibly declining.

Intensive exploration in Alaska has failed to produce any evidence of major new oil fields. Indeed, Yergin notes that a consortium of oil companies recently lost $1.7 billion in drilling "the most expensive dry hole in the history of mankind" off the coast of Alaska.

The results of exploration efforts in the Lower 48 have been almost as disappointing. Meanwhile, domestic petroleum consumption is expected to increase in 1984 for the first time in six years.

The long - term trend is unmistakable, but it's difficult to generate public interest

unless there are long lines at service stations. "We must find a balance between the crisis mode of the 1970s and the complacency of the 1980s," says Yergin "The most important lesson learned from the oil crises of the 1970s was the cost to society of being unprepared," adds DiBona. We need to get prepared now.

Dear Abby

Ancient Indian medicine can cure our modern woes

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you had a letter from a woman who for many years thought she had a wonderful marriage, then her husband died suddenly, and some evidence turned up that made her believe her husband had been having an affair with another woman. The poor widow then worked up an intense hatred for her husband's memory, making her bitter and miserable

I have been practicing Native American medicine and healing for many years, and I know that most sicknesses begin in the head. Anger, jealousy, fear, resentment and bitterness-all emotional reactions create physical ailments: headaches, ulcers, heartaches, etc. I believe that certain types of cancer are caused by emotional stress.

I help people cure their sickness by having them go outside, dig a hole in the earth, lie down on their stomachs and speak all their angry, negative thoughts into the hole, cover it over with the dirt and leave it there. That way, they actually "bury" all the negative, stressful emotions within them that made them sick. It works, Abby. SUN BEAR IN SPOKANE, WASH.

* * * DEAR ABBY: "Gary," the man I live with, informed me on Saturday night that we would have to be out of the house on Sunday afternoon because he promised to do his friend

'Johnny' a favor. When I asked him what kind of favor, he told me that Johnny wanted to use our house to meet with his lawyer. Johnny is married and has two young children. Well, I came home a little early and was shocked to discover that Johnny was using the house to commit adultery! Abby, Gary knew what Johnny wanted to use our house for and he allowed it. I never thought Gary would help anybody cheat on his wife because he caught his first wife cheating on him; that's why he divorced her.

I told Gary that I no longer respected him, couldn't trust him and I didn't want to sleep in the same bed Johnny and his girlfriend used to commit adultery. Then I packed up and moved out.

Gary says he can't understand why I left him. Can you? DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: Yes. Because you no longer respect him, can't trust him and didn't want to sleep in the same bed Johnny and his girlfriend used to commit adultery.

DEAR ABBY: We are having an ongoing battle at our house, which I hope you can settle. We have three children, Karen and Karla, 10-yearold twins, and Heather, who is 8. We live in a small apartment and have only two bedrooms for the three girls, so the twins have always shared one bedroom and Heather has had a room to herself.

When they were little, everyone was happy because the twins always wanted to be together. But all of a sudden the twins feel that it's not fair for them to have to share a room while Heather has a private room all to herself. So Karla and Karen want Heather to move out of her room for about six months while one twin moves into the private room, and the other twin shares a room with Heather. After six months, the other twin will get the private room and repeat the cycle.

Heather is heartbroken. She doesn't want to move out of her room because she has helped select the carpet, curtains, etc., and she feels it is "her" room for eternity. On the other hand, each twin feels she should have a turn at the private

They have been fighting like cats and dogs over this, and I want to do what would be fair for all concerned.

How would you settle it, Abby? MOTHER IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR MOTHER: All three girls should be treated as individuals. Having been born together should not deprive Karen and Karla of their rights as individuals. Each sister should occupy the private room for an agreed length of time.

Endometriosis: not quite normal

By Luella Klein, M.D. President The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists Any woman of childbearing age can be affected by a troublesome condition called "endometriosis." No one really knows exactly what causes the disease, but we do know that if it is not diagnosed and treated, it can lead to severe pain and infertility. Luckily, most women with this condition can be treated effectively.

Endometriosis is when a normal body tissue functions in the wrong place. When a woman menstruates, the blood - rich lining of her scarred patches may break open during menstruation and spread new patches of endometriosis to other parts of the pelvic area. The scarring and inflammation caused by the disease can block tubes and ovaries and cause infertility.

Although any woman may be susceptible to the disease. there is now some evidence that the disease may run in families. Because pregnancy and birth control pills both alter the growth of the uterine lining, they may protect women against the disease.

There are certain signals you should look for. Increasing discomfort and cramps during your period, or a sharp pain deep in your pelvis during intercourse could be signs of endometriosis. If you notice discomfort in your lower urinary tract or lower bowel just before, during and just following yourperiod which then subsides between periods, or any of the other symptoms, let your doctor

But quarterback Doug Williams threw three interceptions, two to Houston's Will Lewis, and fumbled once.

"They (Houston). did a great job on defense.' Oklahoma Coach Woody Widenhofer said. "It was 21-0 before we got started. Our defense did a good job in the last three quarters. We had the ball in good field position the first two possessions of the second half but we couldn't do anything.

Johnson now has 85 catches this year for 1,077 yards. His 85 receptions break the record of 81 set last year by Chicago's Turmaine Johnson.

"We've got everyone playing well," Houston Coach Jack Pardee said. "That's the only way to win it. If we keep getting turnovers and we don't have a lot of them, we'll be right in there."

The victory, coupled with Los Angeles' 24-17 victory over Michigan, gave the Gamblers sole possession of first place in the Central Division and a stroner position for a playoff berth. Michigan fell a step behind the Gamblers at 7-6 and Oklahoma dropped to 6-7.

Staying neutral, Costa Rica modernizes defense forces

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) - The government is modernizing its defense forces with weapons from the United States because of increased tension with Nicaragua, but it denies there is any move away from Costa Rica's traditional neutral stance.

"I know there are forces who want to see us involved in the conflicts that unfortunately are being suffered by our Central American brothers," President Luis Alberto Monge said in a recent speech. "But we, ... having no army, have proclaimed official neutrality in the conflicts of other nations.

But he also told reporters, "In an ideological battle between totalitarianism and democracy, we are not neutral, we are on the side of democracy. The newspaper La Nacion of San Jose later quoted Nicaraguan leader Daniel Ortega as contending that the United States is trying to draw Costa Rica into the Central American Within the plans of the United States to involve Costa Rica in the Central American drama is the arrival of troops in the next they respect Costa Rica's decision to stay neutral in Central America.

A U.S. diplomat here said in a recent interview, "Neutrality does not necessarily mean Costa Rica is distancing itself from the Costa Rica allows the Nicaraguan rebel Revolutionary Democratic Alliance to keep its political headquarters here, but it has been trying to avoid direct involvement in Central American hostilities.

There have been several border incidents with Nicaragua, most recently an exchange of gunfire May 3 at the border crossing point of Penas Blancas

Costa Rica quickly asked for a step-up in security aid it had discussed with Washington earlier

The equipment sought includes 4,000 M-16 rifles plus mortars, grenade launchers, machine guns and recoilless rifles, usually used against tanks.

Diplomatic sources here said at one point the United States was ready to deliver the weapons within 72 hours.

Since the unpleasantness on the border died down (Costa Rica) decided to continue with the original (security aid) schedule in preference to the rapid delivery of small arms," U.S. Ambassador Curtin Winsor said in an interview with The Associated Press. He said the weapons now will take at least 60 days to arrive, assuming Congress passes a security assistance supplement. The weapons would be the first "lethal" military aid of any size supplied to Costa Rica by the United States. Until now military aid has been generally limited to uniforms, tents, radio equipment, vehicles and other field gear. Costa Rica's constitution prohibits a permanent standing army. Although the immediate crisis at Penas Blancas has eased, relations between Nicaragua and Costa Rica remain tense. The two countries signed an agreement in Panama on May 15 to appoint a six-nation commission to try to prevent and arbitrate border problems. Two days later, Nicaragua sent more troops to its side of Penas Blancas, saying it. feared attack by American-backed rebels

Kremlin says more nuclear-armed subs stationed off U.S. shores

MOSCOW (AP) - The Soviet Union has increased the number of nuclear-armed o submarines off U.S. shores, and the missiles aboard them could reach their targets within 10 minutes of launching. Soviet Defense Minister Dmitri F. Ustinov says.

The official Soviet news agency Tass quoted Ustinov on Sunday as saying the increase was a response to NATO's deployment of new missiles in Europe.

The defense minister accused President Reagan of "drawing the world into another nuclear arms race," and said Reagan's hard-line policies had made arms control talks impossible

For the first time in public, Ustinov said Moscow had carried out the vow it made last November to respond to NATO's deployment of 572 new nuclear-tipped Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in western Europe by increasing the nuclear threat to the United

The NATO deployment began last year. with missiles scheduled to be installed in Britain, West Germany, Italy, Belgium and the Netherlands to counter Soviet SS-20 missiles aimed at Western Europe

Any nuclear attack on the Soviet bloc would bring "immediate and inevitable" retaliation against the United States and Western Europe. Ustinov said.

We have increased the number of our submarines with nuclear missiles aboard off the coasts of the U.S.A.. 'he said The Reagan administration counts on the possibility of reaching targets "in the Warsaw treaty countries in 8-10 minutes after launching of the missiles," he said. "But this is an illusory advantage.

"In terms of their characteristics - yield. accuracy, the ability to reach targets on the territory of the United States and the flight time to target — Soviet sea-based missiles create a counterbalance to the threat equal to that which is posed to us and our allies by the American missiles in Europe," he said.

Ustinov reiterated Soviet threats that "in case of further growth of the American nuclear missile potential in Europe, we will accordingly increase the number of SS-20 missiles in the European part of the USSR."

The Soviet Union announced earlier it was installing new missiles in East Germany and Czechoslovakia.

Ustinov said U.S. offers to resume arms reduction talks, which the Soviets broke off after the NATO deployment began, are 'mere words.

State Department spokesman Joe Reap said the department had no new comment on Ustinov's speech.

Navy Secretary John F. Lehman Jr., told reporters in February that there had been a 'substantial surge in Soviet missile submarines in the Atlantic." No similar activity had been detected in the Pacific, he said

But Lehman and the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Army Gen. John Vessey Jr., said they saw no cause for alarm. "The primary purpose of these redeployments is political," Vessey said in a letter to Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., chairman of the House Armed Services seapower

The Pentagon officials identified the subs as Delta-class boats.

Espinosa's heavily guarded body was claimed by one of his sisters Sunday and she was believed to be returning it to Matamoros, Jonathan Fernandez, who was on duty at the University Hospital morgue, told The Associated Press by telephone.

An autopsy showed that Espinosa died of a generalized infection that began in a bullet wound in his right lung, said Fernandez, who assisted in the post-mortem examination.

Espinosa was in the Clinica Raya in Matamoros for treatment of the wound.

Homer-happy Phillies score sweep

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

The Philadelphia Phillies came out of the West with their

We're getting timely hitting and starting to hit the long ball. That's the kind of thing a team needs to do, and we're doing it." Philadelphia Manager Paul Owens said after his homer-happy Phillies beat the San Francisco Giants 7-4 Sunday and completed a rare nine-game road sweep of the National League's three California teams.

Before winning three games in San Francisco, the Phillies won three each from the San Diego Padres and Los Angeles

Len Matuszek, Juan Samuel and Mike Schmidt each hit a home run Sunday to bring the Phillies' total to a major league-leading 44. In the nine-game winning streak, longest this year by an NL club, the Phillies have 14 homers.

Right now, I'm confident and extremely relaxed," said Matuszek. ' I'm very comfortable at the plate. Before we began this streak. I was searching up there and I wasn't finding it.

In other National League action Sunday, it was Atlanta 5, Pittsburgh 1; St. Louis 3, Cincinnati 2; Chicago 10, Houston 3; New York 4, San Diego 2 in 10 innings, and Los Angeles 3, Matuszek's fifth homer in nine games opened the scoring for the Phillies in the second inning. He added two singles and is hitting 433 in the winning streak, with 11 runs batted in.

Samuel is on a 15-game hitting streak, batting 403 over that period. In the three-game sweep of the Giants, he had seven hits, the biggest of which was a three-run homer in a five-run second inning Sunday. Schmidt hit his 12th homer in the ninth. Charles Hudson, 5-2, was the winning pitcher. Kevin Gross and Larry Andersen came on in relief, with Andersen earning his first save. Jeff Robinson, 3-5, took the loss.

Braves 5, Pirates 1

Glenn Hubbard's fielder's-choice bouncer drove in the winning run in a four-run ninth as Atlanta, no-hit by Jose DeLeon for seven innings, rallied to beat Pittsburgh.

Bob Watson followed Hubbard's tie-breaking bouncer with a two-run double, then Rafael Ramirez followed with an RBI-single for Atlanta's final margin.

Steve Bedrosian, 3-1, blanked the Pirates the last two innings for the victory, while Kent Tekulve, 1-4, took the loss. DeLeon flirted with a no-hitter for the fourth time in less than a year when he went into the eighth inning leading 1-0. But the Braves tied it, chasing the right-hander in the process.

'Any loss is tough, but this one is especially tough because of the way Jose pitched," said Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner. Cardinals 3, Reds 2 Darrell Porter's two-run homer with nobody out in the bottom of the ninth inning lifted St. Louis over Cincinnati Porter's homer, his sixth of the year, came on a 1-2 pitch from loser Tom Hume, 2-4, and gave the Cardinals a three-game sweep of the Reds. Ken Oberkfell led off the St. Louis ninth with a double and scored ahead of Porter. Neil Allen pitched two scoreless innings of relief to improve his record to 2-0. Earlier, Dan Driessen's infield out brought home the tie-breaking run for Cincinnati in the eighth, giving the Reds a "He threw me three great pitches and one that was not so

Houston for a sweep of their three-game series.

Durham hit his ninth home run with two outs in the first inning after Gary Matthews had singled and Sandberg's third homer ignited a five-run third against loser Mike Scott, 2-2.

Bordi, 1-0, worked five innings and allowed one run and four hits. He gave way to Dickie Noles, who was nicked for a two-run homer by Jerry Mumphrey in the sixth inning.

Mets 4, Padres 2

Center fielder Tony Gwynn's three-base error set up a tie-breaking sacrifice fly by Kelvin Chapman in the 10th inning as New York defeated San Diego.

Reliever Jesse Orosco, 4-1, opened the 10th by driving a fly ball deep to center that bounced off Gwynn's glove, allowing Orsoco to wind up at third. Chapman brought him home with another fly ball to center, giving the Mets a 3-2 lead.

Ron Gardenhire and Keith Hernandez followed with singles to put runners on first and third, and George Foster followed with a sacrifice fly for an insurance run

Craig Lefferts, 0-2, was the victim of Gwynn's error

Dodgers 3, Expos 2

Rookie Franklin Stubbs hit a two-run homer in the bottom of the seventh inning to lift Los Angeles over Montreal.

Stubbs' homer off loser Bryn Smith, 5-3, came after Montreal had taken the lead in the top of the seventh on a bases-loaded walk to Tim Raines.

Dodgers reliever Pat Zachry, 2-0, was the winner with ninth-inning help from Tom Niedenfuer, who gained his seventh save

'We just kept battling," said Dodgers Manager Tom LaSorda, who has four of his players on the disabled list and several others hampered by various injuries. "A win like this

"We pitched really well here but lost three one-run games." Dotson said after huring the White Sox to a 3-0 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays on Sunday.

On Thursday, LaMarr Hoyt threw a nine-hitter, but lost 3-2. On Friday, Britt Burns was a 4-3 loser although he gave up fewer hits than his opponent. Then, on Saturday, Tom Seaver tossed a six-hitter, only to lose 1-0.

The "help" came from second baseman Julio Cruz, a defensive specialist, who slammed a two-run homer.

"You don't expect Cruz to hit homers, and it sure hurt us." said Toronto Manager Bobby Cox.

In other AL games Sunday it was Detroit 4, Oakland 3; California 3, New York 0; Baltimore 5, Seattle 1; Boston 5, Minnesota 4; Cleveland 3, Milwaukee 2; and Texas 3. Kansas City 2.

For Dotson, who posted a 22-7 record last season. Sunday's victory was his 16th in his last 18 regular-season decisions.

"It's nice to be on a roll, but I'd like to see us win more games. I'd like to see the team get it together and start doing the things we can do."

With the victory, the defending American League West champions snapped a four-game losing streak and ended Toronto's five-game. winning string
