Spending bill still debated

Government runs on empty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most of the federal government opened for business today with an empty till as Congress struggled to enact an emergency spending bill and officials debated whether to send some workers home until the legislation is passed.

With more yawns than debate, the Senate kept itself in session past dawn. The more than 20-hour session stretched well past the midnight Wednesday expiration of a stopgap government spending measure.

But, as federal employees reported to work, the Senate seemed to be nearing a vote to pass the measure and keep the government solvent.

Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., gave his Senate colleagues a pre-dawn pat on the back for resisting the temptation to attach amendments to the measure that would have changed foreign aid programs, water policy and various social and legal issues such as civil rights, abortion and court-ordered school busing.

In a victory for President Reagan, the Senate kept the administration's crime-fighting program in the money bill — voting 97-0 to defeat a motion to kill the provision.

The chamber also voted 60-36 not to include in the bill a broad, new federal water policy that would have forced local governments in the nation to pay more for projects such as harbors and barge canals.

But the Senate's tardiness in passing the overall measure still left the bulk of the government technically broke.

"The country has now ceased to have money to run," Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., chairman of the Appropriations Committee, said shortly before 1 a.m. EDT in an effort to quicken the Senate's pace in completing the measure.

Action on the long-term money bill, and the expiring stopgap measure, became necessary because only four of 13 regular appropriations bills for fiscal 1985 have been signed into law. Congressional aides said a single measure encompassing nine appropriations bills is unprecedented in congressional history and will be a bill of about 1,000 pages.

The government was also without cash on Monday's start of the new fiscal year while the House worked to complete passage of the temporary spending measure to tide agencies over until today.

Shutdowns of the government are threatened every year because of lapses in financing, but they rarely actually occur. There was a partial shutdown in November 1981 when workers were sent home after a half-day on the job.

Employees involved in national security, health, emergency and other essential services would not be sent home in any case.

Appropriations already have been voted for the departments of Justice, Commerce, State and Housing and Urban Development, plus the Veterans Administration, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Environmental Protection Agency.

Before it completed action — which took a week — the Senate waded through more than 100 amendments that touched off disputes over items ranging from foreign aid and military spending to civil rights, abortion and water projects.

Senators jumped on the "must" legislation as an attractive vehicle on which to tack pet projects.

By a 54-44 vote early today, the Senate blocked a move to broaden the use of federal money to pay for abortions in cases where pregnancy is the result of rape or incest. The use of such funds is now restricted to cases where the mother's life is in danger.

Among other actions the Senate took was a 57-42 vote to reject a compromise calling for a $6 million phase-out of CIA backing for Nicaraguan rebels.

Lower gas rate hike proposed

AMARILLO — Energas Company has announced an agreement to a recommendation for a lower rate increase than the utility requested in a proposal earlier this year.

Energas officials said the company has agreed to a recommendation of a 4.3 percent rate increase proposed by a steering committee representing 63 communities served by its West Texas City Plant System.

The company had asked for a 7.7 percent rate increase in a request filed July 6 of this year.

Individual cities will still have to act before any rate increase becomes effective. The new proposed increase would be effective with bills on and after Nov. 1.

Energas has approximately 186,000 domestic and commercial customers in an area extending from Pampa, Hereford and Lubbock to Midland and Odessa.

After cities in the area received the July rate increase request, they appointed a steering committee and hired their own consultant to study the issue. After the study, the steering committee proposed the 4.3 percent hike and Energas agreed.

Energas officials said the average increase to a domestic customer under the proposed new rates would be about 20 cents per thousand cubic feet of gas. A domestic customer using 10,000 cubic feet of gas a month would pay an increase of $2.01, company officials said.

Based on historic gas sales, the recommended increase would result in an increase of about $5 million a year to the gas distribution company, officials said.

The new proposal is expected to be considered by city councils during October meetings.

Energas is an intrastate gas utility serving a 30,000 square mile region. Headquartered in Amarillo, the company has division offices located in Amarillo, Lubbock and Midland.

Child's injury is investigated

Pampa police are investigating the injury of a 16-month-old baby girl who was listed in critical condition this morning.

The child, Valerie Sigala, sustained severe head injuries Wednesday evening, according to police and hospital personnel.

Police were called to the child's home at 516 N. Starkweather about 6:30 p.m. Pampa Medical Services personnel took the little girl to Coronado Community Hospital and later transferred her to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

Police Chief J.J. Ryzman said officers are investigating the cause of the toddler's injuries. No charges had been filed at press time today.

Abilene woman tells jurors why she set husband afire

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A woman accused of setting her sleeping husband on fire testified she endured more than 14 years of "the worse kind of abuse you could think of" and doused her mate with gasoline as a last recourse.

Cheryl Kay Oates, 39, said Nick Eugene Oates, 38, had threatened to kill her and her six children so many times that she never felt safe, not even when she married another man and lived in a remote village in West Germany.

"Nick told me he'd find me wherever I went ... he'd hunt us down and kill us all ... and I believed him," she said.

Mrs. Oates took the stand in her own defense Wednesday afternoon. She is charged with murder along with her daughter by a prior marriage, Robin Renee Elliott, in connection with Oates' death.

Oates died April 12 from a heart attack attributed to the burns suffered after he was set ablaze while sleeping on his water bed.

Mrs. Oates said she eventually returned to Abilene because she felt safer. She said she remarried Oates because he agreed to marriage counseling and believed he had changed.

"But he hadn't," Mrs. Oates said, wiping her eyes but maintaining her composure.

In the statement to police, Mrs. Oates said the couple divorced in 1980, then remarried in 1982 after counseling.

Testimony resumes today.

Before Mrs. Oates took the witness stand, the highlights of the third day of the testimony had come from a third co-worker who claimed Oates was a "violent and aggressive" man who seemed to get "progressively worse" in the two weeks before his death.

Don Smithwick said Oates, a construction foreman, struck him in the mouth with some 1/2-inch steel wire "in a fit of rage" and without provocation while they were working on a power line construction project in March.

Smithwick said that Oates broke the back of another employee, Ben Waldrep, three days later.

Mrs. Oates and Miss Elliott were obviously "battered women," said Melissa Eddy of Austin, a professional counselor who said she had worked with 2,000 to 3,000 battered women in Austin's Battered Women's Project.

Defense attorneys Ed Paynter and Gerald Brantley have claimed the women were justified in using deadly force to protect themselves against Oates.

Prosecutors earlier Tuesday rested their case after reading to jurors a four-page statement by Mrs. Oates to police.

Voter registration deadline Friday

Gray County residents have until 5 p.m. Friday to register if they are to vote in the Nov. 6 presidential election, according to the county tax assessor-collector's office.

Deputy assessor-collector Alicia Heil said residents can register at the tax office on the first floor of the Gray County Courthouse during regular business hours.

She added that the office will accept voter registration by mail if postmarked no later than Oct. 7.

"What we'll do Monday is go to the post office and any (registration card) marked Oct. 7, we'll take," she said, explaining that Oct. 7 falls on a Sunday. "We will not accept those postmarked the eighth."

Registering to vote does not cost anything, Heil said. "Come by here by 5 p.m. Friday and fill out a voter registration card."

The new voter will get a blue voter registration card in the mail within a couple of weeks.

People who lose their blue voter cards need not worry, Heil said.

Indictment, guilty pleas keep court officials hopping

BY JEFF FLANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

A confessed killer and an accused killer, two cocaine "mules," a suspect charged with the rape of an adult and another charged with the rape of a child have kept lawyers and court officials hopping in Pampa this week.

On Tuesday, a 223rd District Court grand jury indicted 10 people, while three others entered guilty pleas and were sentenced this week.

Baby-faced Antonio Moriel, 17, of 310 W. Craven, was indicted on a charge of murder in connection with the Sept. 19 stabbing death of Pampan Earl Love, 32.

Assistant District Attorney David Hamilton said Moriel, and perhaps others, repeatedly stabbed Love near a Pampa convenience store early on the fatal morning.

Three suspects, Martin Rodriguez, 19, 421 Crest, Jay Casanova, 19, of 806 E. Browning, and Richard Gonzales, 19, of 320 Tignor, also were arrested in connection with the fatal stabbing. Each was charged with aggravated assault.

Charges against Rodriguez and Casanova have been dropped, Hamilton said, because though present at the scene the two young men didn't participate in the attack.

Moriel was the only suspect indicted by the grand jury Tuesday. The prosecutor said the jurors will again consider the case on Nov. 1.

District Judge Don Cain set a $50,000 bond on the murder indictment.

Charles Niblett, 65, of 517 Elm, was indicted on two charges of sexual assault of a child. The charges allege that the senior citizen had sexual intercourse with a girl under age 17 on Dec. 31, 1983 and on July 31. Judge Cain set bonds for Niblett totaling $20,000.

Indicted on a charge of sexual assault was Rodney Dean Donahue, 28, of 405 E. Browning. Police have charged Donahue raped a 26-year-old Pampa woman in an alley near downtown.

Authorities charge the six-foot, seven-inch Donahue grabbed the woman from behind on a darkened street, slammed her head on the sidewalk and carried the victim to the site of the sexual assault. Bond on the sexual assault indictment was set at $15,000.

Others indicted and their charges and bonds include:

John Joseph Rosalez, unlawful possession of a firearm on Aug. 10, $10,000.

Carlos Segura, felony possession of marijuana on Sept. 15, $10,000.

Martha Ferris Jackson Segura, felony possession of marijuana on Sept. 15, $5,000.

David Cook, burglary on July 30 and on Aug. 29, bonds totaling $20,000.

John Thorp, aggravated assault with serious bodily injury by striking Howard Hughes with a baseball bat on May 21, $1,000.

Daniel Gene Ming, kidnapping of Donna Jo Archey on Dec. 14, $5,000.

Stanley G. Brown, felony theft on April 8, 1983, $10,000.

In other action in the 223rd District Court this week, Josephine Payne pleaded guilty in the shooting death of her common-law husband. She was placed on nine years probation.

Payne shot and killed Robert Eugene Mitchell in the couple's home at 1106 Campanella early on July 26. The woman shot the man twice with a .22-caliber pistol following a lovers' quarrel.

Payne pleaded guilty Monday to a charge of voluntary manslaughter, admitting that she killed Mitchell "by shooting him with a gun, while acting under the influence of a sudden passion arising from an adequate cause."

A couple arrested on Interstate 40 with a car full of cocaine and cash also pleaded guilty before Judge Cain.

Alan J. Casey, 34, of Milwaukee, Wis., and his common-law wife, Teresa Aurine Casey, of Lighthouse Point, Fla., pleaded guilty to charges of possession of a

First charged with spying

FBI agent held without bail

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 20-year FBI veteran offered the Soviet Union a "very detailed" picture of U.S. intelligence activities for $50,000 in gold and $15,000 cash, authorities said after the first-ever spy charge against an FBI agent.

Special Agent Richard W. Miller was held without bail after his arrest Wednesday because "flight is a real strong risk," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Ray Edwards.

Authorities also arrested and detained without bail two Soviet emigres accused of conspiring with Miller.

Miller, 47, was a counterintelligence agent in the FBI's Los Angeles Office and was supposed to prevent foreign infiltration of American intelligence activities. He was charged with conspiring to gather defense information to aid a foreign government, which carries a maximum penalty of life in prison, and fired on Tuesday.

FBI Director William H. Webster, appearing glum at a Washington press conference, said the damage to U.S. security is not irreparable. The FBI still is conducting a "damage assessment" in the case and "a great deal more work is still to be done," he said.

According to an FBI affidavit, Miller admitted he was in financial trouble and demanded the gold and cash for supplying Svetlana Ogorodnikov, 34, an alleged KGB major, and her estranged husband, Nikolay Ogorodnikov, 51, with classified FBI documents.

Government sources in Washington, speaking only on the condition that they not be identified, said that Miller and Mrs. Ogorodnikov may also have been having a sexual relationship.

The affidavit said Miller detailed "personal, professional and financial problems" and "she seemed sympathetic."

Miller, arrested at his home in the rural San Diego County community of Bonsall, was to return to federal court in San Diego today for arraignment. He appeared before a magistrate Wednesday.

The Ogorodnikovs, arrested at their Fairfax apartment, were arraigned in a packed Los Angeles courtroom. Soviet natives who emigrated here in 1973, the Ogorodnikovs claimed to be destitute. The FBI said they were receiving welfare benefits.

The FBI affidavit said that around Aug. 12, Mrs. Ogorodnikov identified herself for the first time as a major in the Soviet intelligence agency and asked Miller if he would be willing to work for the KGB.

BUSH: "They socked it to me."

Bush battles ruling by IRS

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Vice President George Bush, complaining "they socked it to me," is battling an Internal Revenue Service ruling that hit him with $198,000 in extra taxes and interest by rejecting his claim that his seashore estate in Maine — not his home in Washington — is his chief residence.

The IRS increased Bush's tax bill last March after disallowing a tax deferral the vice president claimed in 1981 on profits from the sale of his Houston home, profits which he sought to "roll over" when he purchased his property in Maine.

"I think I've been singled out, but let's let the courts decide," said Bush, who later added that he didn't think he was being singled out personally but rather as the holder of the vice presidency.

The vice president's dispute with the government came to light

Wednesday with the disclosure of his personal income taxes for 1981 through 1983. For the three years, Bush paid 37.4 percent of his adjusted gross income as federal taxes.

Put another way, the vice president had an adjusted gross income of $810,447 during the period and paid $303,421 in federal taxes.

He paid 48.6 percent of his adjusted gross income in taxes in 1981, 24.2 percent in 1982 and 12.8 percent in 1983.

"I find it appalling that I had to pay so much tax," Bush complained at a news conference during a campaign stop here.

At the same time, the vice president said "I sighed with relief" when he saw his tax returns and discovered he had paid "what looked like a reasonable amount of tax every year... I've been worried about this, frankly."

The vice president's holdings have been held in a blind trust since he took office with President Reagan.

While he did not prepare his own taxes and was not supposed to know anything about them, Bush had his blind trust modified this week so he could make an election-year revelation of his taxes — matching earlier disclosures by President Reagan and White House challengers Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro.

Even though he has been kept in the dark about his overall tax picture, Bush knew all along about the dispute over the tax deferral because his real estate holdings were not included in the blind trust.

As to why he didn't mention the issue earlier when reporters had asked about his taxes, Bush replied: "You didn't ask me (specifically) about it and I didn't feel inclined to go out and say, 'Hey, I've got a problem with the IRS.' I didn't know what happened... except this one transaction when I sold the house."

The vice president also said, "This tax has been paid. I'm the guy that's been to the cleaners."

Bush's financial disclosures came as only he and Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro were on the campaign trail. President Reagan and challenger Walter F. Mondale were both in Washington preparing for their debate Sunday, with Mondale planning a brief appearance at a Jewish community center in a Maryland suburb of Washington.

Bush was joining Reagan in Washington this afternoon for a session with GOP congressional candidates, then flying to Memphis. Ms. Ferraro was in Ohio and flying to Pennsylvania and Connecticut.

The tax returns shed some light on the value of Bush's blind trust.

Committee claims warnings of terrorist threat ignored

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reagan administration officials had adequate warnings of a terrorist threat against U.S. facilities in Beirut last month, but failed to pay sufficient heed, the House Intelligence Committee says.

In a stiffly worded report, the Democrat-controlled committee said that prior to the Sept. 20 truck-bomb attack on the U.S. Embassy annex, "the probability of another vehicular bomb attack was so unambiguous that there is no logical explanation for the lack of effective security countermeasures."

The bombing that claimed 14 lives, including two Americans, was nearly identical to two other Beirut truck bombings against U.S. facilities in the past 17 months. A total of 260 Americans have died.

President Reagan has accepted responsibility for the failure to thwart the latest attack on the embassy annex, where security arrangements were 75 percent complete and a gate that could have stopped the truck was lying by the side of the road.

But he refused to "deliver somebody's head up on a platter" and added: "There was no evidence of any carelessness or anyone not performing their duty."

controlled substance.

Alan Casey was placed on 10 years probation and fined $10,000. He paid the fine "in full" and left for Ft. Lauderdale. Hamilton said the man has 30 days to find a job there, or the State of Florida will not accept him for probation.

Teresa Casey was placed on three years probation. She paid a $5,000 fine "in full" and also headed out for Ft. Lauderdale.

The DPS stopped the Caseys' vehicle on Sept. 2 for speeding on Interstate 40 about 20 miles west of McLean.

The troopers searched the car with Florida tags and found a large quantity of cocaine and cash stuffed inside dummy oil cans in the trunk of the vehicle. The tops on the phony Penzoil cans screwed off to reveal the cash and drugs.

A later search of the impounded vehicle at the Gray County Sheriff's office uncovered addition cocaine and cash in the vehicle.

The prosecutor has said the bust netted at least four ounces of cocaine worth "thousands and thousands" of dollars, depending on its purity. It also turned up $2,100 in $20 bills.

Alan Casey's Gray County probation makes him a three-time loser. The man has served time in a Wisconsin prison for possession of a controlled substance and also served time in a federal prison, Hamilton has said.

As part of the plea bargains, the Caseys agreed to the state's seizure of the cash and the impounded 1977 Oldsmobile, the state's attorney said.

The House committee, however, saw matters differently.

Comparing Beirut to a "war zone," the committee said intelligence on the terrorist threat in Beirut was "adequate" and that special alerts already had highlighted two threats against American personnel in September.

"This intelligence portrayed a situation where those responsible for security at U.S. installations in Beirut — both in Washington and on the scene — should have been on full alert and should have taken every precaution possible to thwart just such an attack as occurred," the panel said.

"Use of the alert mechanism should have gained the direct attention of top State Department and embassy officials, including security officers to such likely threats."

Moratorium is sought for waste sites

AUSTIN (AP) — A Texas House subcommittee wants the state's unsuccessful search for radioactive waste dump sites to stay unsuccessful until the Legislature convenes in January.

Rick Jacobi, general manager of Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority, told the group Wednesday that a site could not be purchased by January "even if a decision was made today."

"We are no closer to a decision now than we were a month ago," he added.

Rep. Gary Thompson, D-Abilene, chairman of the special subcommittee named by Speaker Gib Lewis, said there are still wide differences of opinion over what the state agency should do.

The subcommittee recommended last month that a moratorium be declared on site selection until a task force of legislators, experts and citizens reviews the agency's operations.

Lewis is expected to name the task force of about 15 members.

Jacobi said the agency had narrowed its search to three possible disposal sites in Dimmitt, McMullen and Webb counties.

He said he would see that the agency's six-member board was advised of the subcommittee's feelings about a moratorium before the board meets again in mid-November.

The Legislature created the agency in 1981 to secure and administer disposal sites. So far, it has not been able to secure a single site.

"Clearly, there appears to be many unresolved issues regarding the eventual disposal of low-level radioactive waste in Texas," said a report made by the subcommittee Wednesday to its parent House Committee on County Affairs.

"The testimony (from public hearings) reveals that those who hold themselves out on this topic have significant differences of opinion over a variety of issues."

"As a result, the subcommittee unanimously agreed that the most prudent course would be for a temporary moratorium on site selection pending the formation and subsequent recommendations of a task force."

Jackson tells students to 'bust' Reagan

HOUSTON (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson urged about 1,000 University of Houston students Wednesday to vote at school, not in their home towns, and said he hoped each of them would "be a Reaganbuster."

Jackson handed out voter registration cards to dozens of students and urged them to sign up in Harris County because "we all know you won't vote absentee."

Jackson told the group that former minorities — blacks, Hispanics and women — "are the new majority. You do have a choice. Your generation must determine right now what kind of people you want to be."

He also blasted the $1,000-a-plate Republican victory dinner conducted Tuesday night in Houston.

"You and I both know you can't eat a thousand dollars worth of food," Jackson said. "They were not buying food; they were buying the president for four more years."

Students have a right to complain about the policies of the Reagan administration, Jackson said.

"When you're locked out of the colleges to learn and grow and locked into Central America and Grenada to kill or be killed, you should complain," Jackson said.

Although a lone heckler asked loudly "about babies killed in abortions," supporters drowned the man out with shouts of "Jesse, Jesse."

"Just relax," Jackson said. "My brain has more than one cell, so I've got more than one issue."

Republican-backed cuts in education spending have hurt.

"Under Reagan, jail wardens are getting tenure while school teachers are losing their jobs," Jackson said. "Let's educate America."

Education board is going to work

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White's hand-picked Board of Education goes to work today amid warnings that their efforts might be subject to "sabotage."

But Chairman Jon Brumley of Fort Worth told his colleagues at a Wednesday swearing-in ceremony that he sees no reason to be anything other than "excited about being part of the effort... that will help over 3 million school children in our state."

"We can only succeed through cooperation, understanding and communication with all our citizens," Brumley said. "My efforts will be dedicated to that for I am convinced that we must succeed."

The 15-member appointed board, set up by the Legislature to replace a 27-member elected board, planned an all-day meeting today in a room named for Joe Kelly Butler, chairman of the extinct board.

At Wednesday's Capitol ceremony, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby cautioned the board that not all educators are working for smooth implementation of the sweeping reforms ordered by lawmakers.

"They tried before the passage of the bill and since the passage of the bill... to sabotage the application of this monumental piece of legislation," Hobby said.

"If people aren't available now who can do the job, I hope you get people who can," he told the board.

Commissioner Raymon Bynum said Hobby told him he considered Bynum one of the saboteurs. Hobby called Bynum to the lieutenant governor's office, according to Bynum.

Asked if he felt like a saboteur, Bynum said, "I think I've been painted as a non-reformist. But if you check the record, I probably did more reform than all the other commissioners combined."

Bynum, who was hired by the old board, told reporters he will retire as soon as the board is "oriented and moving."

The board sworn in Wednesday included only 14 of the 15 appointees originally picked by Gov. Mark White. Fred Bucy of Dallas, president of Texas Instruments, withdrew, telling White there might be conflicts of interest if the board ever dealt with matters that could involve business for TI.

White chose Geraldine Miller, 49, a teacher and language therapist at Highland Park Presbyterian Church, to replace Bucy. Sen. Ike Harris, R-Dallas, favored Ms. Miller and said he thought about using his senatorial privilege to block Bucy's appointment.

It was nothing personal against Bucy, said Harris, who called Ms. Miller a long-time friend and supporter.

"He (White) knew my preference," Harris said. "He knew I wasn't satisfied."

In opening remarks to the board, White spoke of resistance

Doggett raps Gramm's nuclear record

By The Associated Press
Republican U.S. Senate candidate Phil Gramm denies charges from his Democratic opponent that he "has already done everything in his power to help the giant Eastern nuclear utilities put their garbage here in Texas."

Democrat Lloyd Doggett, at a campaign appearance in Tulsa Wednesday, said Gramm is "attempting to hide his record... Phil's trying to accomplish a flip-flop on nuclear waste that even (Olympic gymnast) Mary Lou Retton, with all her skills, couldn't bring off."

Gramm's campaign denied the charges, saying the Republican congressman has opposed federal plans for a Texas dump.

"This is something that Phil has been involved in for a good part of this year," said Larry Neal, Gramm's press secretary.

Doggett also accused Gramm of distorting his record on the nuclear waste issue and vowed to oppose any federal government effort to locate a high-level nuclear waste dump in Texas.

Proposed sites in Deaf Smith and Swisher counties had been considered by federal authorities, but Neal noted that U.S. Energy Secretary Donald P. Hodel last month told a Houston audience he doubted they would be put there because of opposition from area residents and Gramm.

That statement speaks for itself, Neal said.

"What really sticks in the craw of Mr. Doggett and his cronies is that Phil Gramm was able to do something to stop the two waste repositories planned for the Panhandle and Lloyd Doggett was not capable of doing anything," Neal said.

"Who would you rather have knocking on Ronald Reagan's door about this — Phil Gramm or Lloyd Doggett?"

Doggett said Hodel's comments later were "repudiated by Department of Energy spokesmen, who said Hodel was just discussing 'the nature of politics.'

"The truth is that Hodel's remarks were rank election-year politicking and Texas is still being considered," Doggett said.

Doggett said Gramm has received more financial contributions from the nuclear power industry than any other congressman.

The Democrat also accused Gramm of failing to support a state's right to veto federal plans to locate a nuclear repository within its borders.

"Phil actually led the fight to weaken our right as a state to veto a nuclear dump site. He worked to weaken our veto right in subcommittee and on the House floor, even going up against the recommendation of (GOP) Gov. Bill Clements," Doggett said.

He cited an interview with Gramm from that time in which Gramm was quoted as saying, "If I were the governor of Texas instead of a member of Congress from Texas, I would feel the way he (Clements) does, but I'm not."

Doggett also said he doesn't believe that Gramm has worked to oppose a dump in Texas.

"My staff has contacted the offices of the governor, attorney general, agriculture commissioner, Congressman Jack Hightower and Kent Hance and have found no evidence of Phil Gramm's opposition," he said.

Responding, Gramm spokesman Neal said the Republican has talked with Energy Department officials in Washington rather than state officials.

"Maybe his (Doggett's) problem is he is just talking to the wrong people."

"There's more dangerous garbage in Lloyd Doggett's head and record than will ever be placed in Texas by any federal authority," he said.

RIDE SAFETY—Workmen check the construction of a roller coaster at the State Fair of Texas in Dallas Wednesday afternoon. The fair has hired four inspectors to oversee this year's amusement rides. The Consumer Product Safety Commission says the fair's safety program serves as a national model. (AP Laserphoto)

Inspectors work to ensure ride safety

DALLAS (AP) — Safety inspections will continue throughout the State Fair of Texas' one-month run in hopes of staying off a recurrence of last year's fatal gondola accident, officials say.

Fair workers and safety inspectors were scurrying all this week to make sure the fair's rides passed muster for today's opening ceremonies, officials said.

Inspections started two weeks ago, when the first of the fair's amusement rides began arriving at Fair Park, and will continue until the fair ends Oct. 28.

Concession director David Nixon, who is in charge of the rides, said rides that don't pass inspection will not be allowed to open.

Last year, one man was killed and 16 were injured when a gondola on the ride Enterprise ripped from the ride frame and flew 40 feet into the midway. In 1979, one man was killed and 17 were injured when four gondolas on the Swiss Skyride collided, knocking two gondolas to the midway below.

Inspector Dick Tracy approved the first ride, a looping roller coaster called America, and said only one major change has been made for this year's activities — an additional $1,200 in plywood padding has been installed beneath the Pirate Ship ride.

Wayne Gallagher, fair general manager, said other changes involving ride operators may be required.

"We'll know Friday," he said. "We can't guarantee perfection. We could have an accident an hour after the fair opens. But we are trying to do everything we can and go far beyond what anybody else has done."

He said he is concerned that some people think ride operators don't care if people get hurt.

"But nobody — other than the families of persons who get hurt — is more hurt than the ride operators or the fair. We are the ones who get sued," he said.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission has said the fair's safety program serves as a national model.

Red Wood, a longtime ride operator and ride inspector, helped set up the family's Hang Ten ride Tuesday. The Wood family is operating two other rides at the fair — the Skywheel and the Sea Wave.

Wood, of Mason, Mich., is chairman of the Outdoor Amusement Business Association's ride safety committee. He will remain at the fair as on-site inspector and safety coordinator during the fair.

Future uncertain for aliens who were charged extra smuggling fee

DALLAS (AP) — G. Segovia says he doesn't have time to wait for federal officials to build a case against the man who allegedly demanded a higher smuggling fee from him at gunpoint.

"I need to know if I can work right away," Segovia said. "I can't afford to be idle. I have too many mouths to feed."

Segovia was one of 10 undocumented aliens that a "coyote" — an alien smuggler — allegedly brought into Texas earlier this week. He says that he, five other adults and four children agreed to pay $450 each to be brought to the Dallas area in a 550-mile trek.

But in an unusual twist to smuggling sagas, the aliens actually ended up calling the police on their coyote after he allegedly held them at gunpoint and demanded $200 more from each.

Police have charged 46-year-old Salvador Barragan with eight counts of false imprisonment and one count of carrying a concealed weapon. Bond has been set at $200 on each of the misdemeanor counts.

Police on Tuesday also arrested a 36-year-old Dallas woman accompanying Barragan, but she was not charged.

Segovia told The Dallas Morning News Tuesday that he still hopes to get a job and earn money to feed and clothe his 14 brothers and sisters in Mexico.

But in the meantime, he says the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service has asked him to remain in the United States while they develop the case against Barragan.

Segovia said that in exchange for his cooperation, he and two other adults may get temporary permits allowing them to remain in the country for six months.

When the aliens first arrived in Dallas, they say the coyote demanded $650 from each of them.

"He wouldn't let us out of the van, and he pulled a gun out and put it in his shirt," said Rosa Rodriguez, who was traveling with her three children aged 13 months to 4 years.

She said relatives in Richardson, a Dallas suburb, called police after the group tried unsuccessfully to bargain with the smuggler.

Police arrested Barragan in a convenience store parking lot after Mrs. Rodriguez' brother-in-law, Armando Saavedra, told the man to meet him there so he could pay the extra money.

Segovia and Mrs. Rodriguez said the journey was their second attempt to use smugglers to enter the United States.

"There is no work for me or my husband in Coahuila," said Mrs. Rodriguez. Her husband stayed in Mexico because he could not afford to pay his way.

Segovia said the wages he made in his home town of San Luis Potosi weren't enough to put food on the table for his family.

"They pay us 300 pesos a day (about $1.50)," Segovia said. "For 14 brothers and sisters that's barely enough for a piece of bread."

He said he was among 23 Mexicans who waded the Rio Grande to Laredo with the help of a smuggler. In Laredo they contacted another coyote and paid 5,000 pesos (about $25) as a down payment to arrange their journey to other areas of Texas.

They also agreed to pay a total of $450 for each adult and each child in the group, he said.

They traveled by van to Austin and from there were transported to Houston in the back of a tractor trailer rig. Segovia said they were unable to stand and were forced to lie on top of the regular freight in total darkness.

Our opinion

'Gipper' scores with an end run

"The Gipper" may be in his seventies, but he can still make some pretty slick moves. Just consider his recent action on steel imports. President Reagan, trapped between the opposing philosophies of his conservative free-trade supporters and the protectionist-minded steel industry, appeared certain to be sacked by one of the two. But the game ended, incredibly, with both thinking "The Gipper" had scored a touchdown for their side.

The president had been under considerable pressure from both the steel industry and free-market advocates since July when the U.S. International Trade Commission recommended he impose quotas and tariffs on foreign imports to protect the troubled U.S. steel industry.

In case you haven't noticed, this is an election year and Mr. Reagan surely wasn't anxious to write off the vote of the United States steelworkers. The industry has lost more than $6 billion during the last two years and the number of domestic steelworkers has been cut in half, a situation caused mainly because steel can be produced in several foreign countries cheaper than in the United States. If Reagan didn't do something to help, he could kiss the steelworkers' vote goodbye.

But by the same token, if he imposed quotas and tariffs, the president would have been acting counter to the free-trade philosophy he and his conservative friends have espoused for years. You know, they say the American consumer should not be forced to buy high-priced American steel simply to preserve the high-salaried jobs of members of the United Steel Workers Union, most of whom earn more than the average consumer.

So what was Mr. Reagan to do? Well, he heroically announced he was not about to give in to pressure and impose those dreaded quotas and tariffs. Mr. free-trader was making his stand.

But did you think he was going to run the risk of alienating the steel workers' vote. Not a chance.

What Mr. Reagan said he'd do was negotiate "voluntary" import limitations with several steel producing countries so that they would restrain themselves from trying to sell so much of their product in the United States.

The president left no doubt, however, that he would not hesitate to slap quotas on any countries that did not accept the "voluntary" limitations.

What was the reaction? Steel industry leaders were delighted. They knew the president's less-than-subtle threat aimed at foreign steel producers would be sufficient to limit imports and force the American public to buy substantial quantities of higher-priced U.S. steel whether they wanted to or not.

Conservative elements were delighted. The president drew high praise from editorial writers in a number of conservative newspaper and from columnists such as William F. Buckley for his "courage" in standing up to the steel industry and preserving free trade by refusing to impose quotas and tariffs.

But there is one thing those conservatives apparently never considered: It makes absolutely no difference whether imports are restricted through quotas or through the "voluntary restraints" the president coerced out of foreign steel producers. The effect will be the same. Imports will be limited and American consumers will be forced to pay higher prices for anything made with steel — and steel workers union members can continue to draw their high salaries. That, of course, is what the "free traders" say they oppose.

We are not surprised that steel industry leaders applauded the president's action. We are astonished, however, that many conservatives are so blind to reality that they would praise Mr. Reagan for his "courage" in upholding free-trade principles. He has done no such thing. He has imposed quotas without calling them quotas—much in same way he raised taxes a couple of years ago and called his action "tax reform."

Liberal thinkers have always attempted to brand philosophical conservatives as rather simple-minded. In view of the way the conservatives were suckered by "The Gipper's" latest end run, you have to think those liberal charges may not be too far off the mark.

Don't blame wrong people

Another wildly careening car; another explosion; more human beings blown apart; more shrieks of pain, desolation, futility. And of course in Beirut (Where else these days?) "Islamic Holy War" strikes again.

It is not at all clear what Islamic Holy War may be. But if its claims are right - if it did perpetrate all the major Beirut bombings of 1983 - 84 - then it has achieved the basic aim of terrorists everywhere: it has rattled its enemies.

"The purpose of terror is to terrorize," said V. I. Lenin. And not only to terrorize, like a motorcycle gang shoving around a small - town cop. The purpose is to immobilize, and, having immobilized, to conquer. Once and for all.

The latest Beirut bombing finds Americans flapping their hands and their mouths. How'd it happen? Why didn't the concrete barriers work better? What new kinds of security measures should we now contemplate? Walter Mondale - surprise! - places the blame squarely on Reagan for letting terrorists "humiliate us and push us around and kill our people."

Sen. Gary Hart (D. - Colo.), striving as always for the cosmic perspective, saw the bombing as emblematic of the failure of U.S. diplomacy in the Middle East.

From Islamic Holy War's standpoint all this is perfect. Better the Americans should wring their hands in futility than raise them in righteous anger. Better they should worry more about the strength of barricades and less about the strength of American policy and resolve.

When this happens, one can forget that excessively evil men were behind the bombings - and that the deaths involved are their fault, not ours for having failed to anticipate every evil strategy of theirs.

Is this to downplay the need for strong security? It certainly isn't. It's to point out that, in the end, security isn't achieved by standing up to terrorist suicide squads. It's achieved by standing up to those who pay for and direct the squads.

The great terrorists paymasters, according to the best intelligence information, are Iran, Syria, Libya, and, above all, the Soviet Union. The terrorists are not free - lancers; they are, officially or otherwise, the agents of outlaw governments.

The governments in question don't admit this, naturally. They don't have to. The trail of evidence, wherever followed with diligence, leads to them. Thus, for example, when Claire Sterling began looking into the attempted murder of Pope John Paul II, she discovered unmistakable evidence that the murder had been planned and directed from Bulgaria. Aha! Bulgaria, a Soviet satellite, routinely does dirty work for the Kremlin.

Similarly with the Beirut bombings. Even if Islamic Holy War hasn't published a yearbook and list of officers, the group is likely directed by Iran. Or by Syria. Or perhaps even both, acting in collaboration.

In light of which it's a little hard to see Sen.

Hart's point that the bombing shows the futility of our Middle East policy. About the only way we could have a policy satisfactory to Iran and Syria is to come out for the new final solution to the Jewish problem.

What do we do? Well, for one thing, we quit talking about security lapses whenever a successful bombing is carried out. The U.S. Navy during the last year of World War II, armed and vigilant as it was, couldn't keep Japanese kamikaze pilots from hitting American ships: Neither can we stop all suicidal terrorists in their tracks.

For another thing, we beef up our intelligence. Preventive action is even more satisfactory than retaliation. The various victims of terrorism should pool their intelligence resources; there should be a counterintelligence version of Interpol. Here at home, the FBI and CIA should be allowed once more to infiltrate and gather information about potential terrorists - who, after all, may it please the courts, are servants of foreign governments.

Another thing: we can stop thinking of enemies, in the comfortable Western liberal way, as appeasable; just regular guys we could get along with if both of us Put Aside All Ideological Presupposition.

On the record, this country does have enemies, and they don't like us, and it's not our fault they don't like us. Let's quit blaming ourselves. RIGHT NOW!

Today in History

Today is Thursday, Oct. 4, the 278th day of 1984. There are 88 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Oct. 4, 1957, the Space Age began as the Soviet Union launched Sputnik into orbit around the Earth.

On this date:

Ten years ago: The Senate voted 56-7 to tell the Ford administration to retain custody of Nixon White House tape recordings and documents.

Five years ago: Pope John Paul traveled from Philadelphia to Iowa to Chicago. While in Philadelphia, he defended the church's ban against women priests.

One year ago: Workers in Argentina staged a 24-hour national strike to protest low wages and high inflation.

Today's birthdays: Comedian Jan Murray is 67. Actor Charlton Heston is 60. Actor Clifton Davis is 39. Actress Susan Sarandon is 38.

Thought for today: "The individual who has experienced solitude will not easily become a victim of mass suggestion." — Albert Einstein.

Time passes, tables turn

BERKELEY, CALIF. - What sent me here to the home office of student political activism, the campus of the University of California, Berkeley, were a couple of incidents that occurred on the ol' campaign trail.

Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale was making a speech at the University of Southern California and pro - Reagan students heckled him unmercifully.

Before the week was out, it happened again, this time at the University of Texas, where more pro - Reagan students gave the business to Geraldine Ferraro, who was speaking her mind on peace and urgent need for it.

What's going on here? Wasn't it just yesterday students were demonstrating for peace, were supporting such liberals as Eugene McCarthy and George McGovern, and were anti - practically anything for which the current administration stands?

What on earth happened to turn what may be a growing majority of college students into supporters of Mr. Right Wing himself, Ronald Reagan?

I was in the neighborhood on another mission, and I decided the best place to get an answer to that question was at Berkeley. If students here are turning right, even slightly, then such a movement must be rampant on other campuses.

It was a beautiful, cool, clear morning and the campus was teeming. In front of the student union, where many a protest has been launched, a young man beseeched students to register to vote. The sign on his van said, "Democrats register here."

"You're a Democrat?" I asked him.

"I'm not really for either side," he said. "I don't particularly like Reagan, but who can get excited about Mondale?"

Apathy, I thought to myself. How refreshing. "But you're out here registering Democrats," I went on.

"Actually," the young man, a graduate student, explained, "I'll register anybody, but I get a dollar per Democrat from national headquarters."

The reality of economics winning out over politics at Berkeley. Amazing.

I asked further if, indeed, students here were moving to the right politically.

"Certainly not everybody," said the graduate student. "But a lot of students are and it boils down to money."

"They figure Reagan has the economy moving and when they get out of school, they want big bucks. Chemical engineering majors especially feel that way. They can get out of here with a degree and make $50,000 their first year at work."

Before, flower children; now, tax shelter children.

I saw only one manifestation of anti - Reagan sentiment on campus. A poster advertising a "Berkeley Anti - Reagan Festival."

"They're calling it a 'BARF Rally,'" said another male student, dressed in a button - down shirt and jeans.

"You going?" I asked.

"I like Reagan," he said.

"Any particular reason?" I went on.

"I guess it's because I get tired of my father telling me what an idiot he is."

That's what I like about this country. Time passes, tables turn, and wonders never cease.

Overrating the black vote

ROANOKE, Va. (NEA) - Notwithstanding the flamboyant rhetoric of the Rev. Jesse Jackson and the fervent hopes of the Democratic Party, the impact of black voters in this year's elections may be vastly overrated.

During his unsuccessful bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, Jackson focused nationwide attention on the temporary surge of black participation in the electoral process.

Black, liberal and Democratic organizations have been attempting to capitalize upon the unprecedented degree of black political awareness - inspired by both enthusiasm for Jackson and hostility toward President Reagan. But their efforts are being matched voter-for-voter by white, conservative and Republican groups.

Nowhere are black ballots potentially more influential than here in the South. Although blacks comprise only 10.5 percent of the nation's voting pool, they constitute 16.7 percent of voting-age residents of this region.

The five states with the highest proportion of blacks in their electorate all lie in the South - Mississippi with 31 percent, South Carolina with 27 percent, Louisiana with 27 percent, Georgia with 24 percent and Alabama with 23 percent.

Earlier this year, there were reports of a ground swell of black political activism that held the potential to alter the region's electoral landscape. Prior to the presidential primaries, black voter registration increased 13.4 percent in Louisiana, 12.4 percent in Georgia, 10 percent in Mississippi and 8.1 percent in North Carolina.

But the vast proportion of Southern blacks who participated in the region's Democratic presidential primaries (many of whom supported Jackson) were not new voters.

In Tennessee, for example, turnout in black areas was up a phenomenal 58 percent - but only 4 percent of all blacks casting ballots in the primary were first-time voters. Similarly, black turnout in North Carolina was up 53 percent but only 11 percent of all blacks were first-time voters.

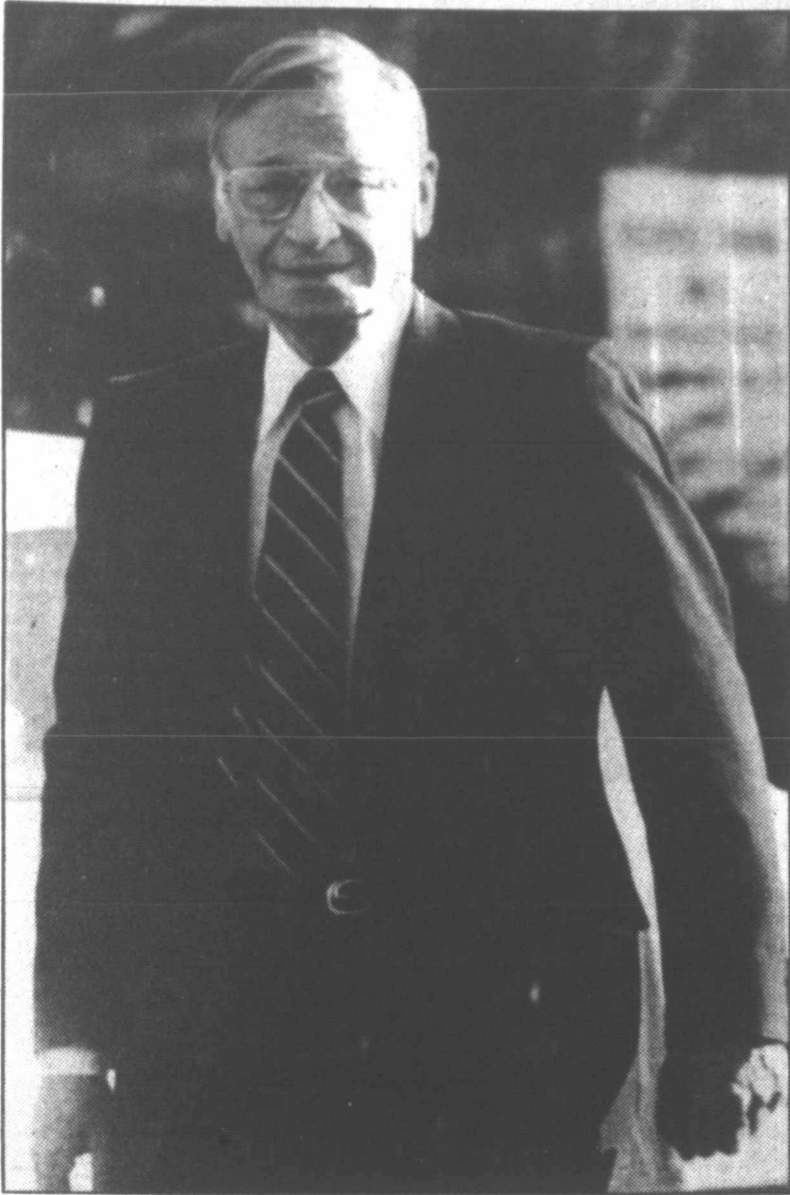

In those and other states, the blacks who were politically energized by Jackson's campaign may not be as enthusiastic about Democratic presidential nominee Walter F. Mondale.

The attention focused on the changes in the black vote this year has obscured the overwhelming difference between black and white voters in the South. The region contains about 5 million registered blacks but approximately 25 million registered whites.

Voter participation levels in the presidential primaries suggest that many of those white voters have been at least temporarily alienated from the political process in general or the Democratic Party in particular.

In both Alabama and Tennessee, for example, only about half of the voters who participated in Democratic gubernatorial primaries two years ago were motivated to cast a ballot in this year's Democratic presidential primary.

University's safety procedures reviewed

NACOGDOCHES, Texas (AP) — Safety procedures at Stephen F. Austin State University are going to get a stiff review after both stairwells of a 14-story dormitory were mistakenly blocked with smoke bombs during a fire drill, officials say.

The ensuing panic at the Garner apartment complex Tuesday resulted in six smoke inhalation injuries and forced the evacuation of about 100 students.

"The entire safety program is under review," SFA spokesman Ken Kenamer said Wednesday. "I think it is safe to say there will not be another fire drill until the review is through, and I think it is a safe bet that smoke bombs will not be used again."

On Wednesday, students were angry about what happened.

"This is the first time in my life I thought I was going to die. I thought I'd lose my life right there," Michael Olivarez, a 22-year-old pre-dental major from Richmond, Texas, told the Dallas Morning News. "I think it's a dirty little thing to do."

He said that when he heard the alarms, saw the fire engine outside and found the stairwell full of smoke Tuesday night, he thought his dorm was burning.

"You sure don't want to jump out of the ninth floor," Olivarez said. "Somebody could've really gotten hurt."

Kenamer said university administrators have not yet decided whether disciplinary action would be taken against the officials who planned the fire drill that used smoke bombs and a city fire truck for realism.

The smoke bombs were supposed to be placed in only stairwell, allowing students to escape via the one smoke-free staircase, Kenamer said.

He said there were 200 students in the dorm when the fire alarm was sounded.

But two bombs were incorrectly placed at the bottom of both the dorm's stairwells, and after the fire alarm sounded at about 6:30 p.m., the building's elevators automatically locked shut.

"Unfortunately, the plan was to have smoke in one stairwell and instead, there was smoke in both," he said. "The plan was to set a smoke bomb off in the base of one stairwell and then set another off in the same stairwell, but halfway up, so that there would be smoke all through the same stairwell."

He said students were forced to flee through the smoke-filled passages, and "some of them got too much smoke. But no one was gagging or anything like that."

Five students were taken by ambulance to Nacogdoches Memorial Hospital, where they were treated in the emergency room and released late Tuesday, a hospital spokesman said. A sixth was treated on campus for smoke inhalation, Kenamer said.

He said that the university safety officer, Carroll Bonnette, had complained of a "lack of response and apathy" in past fire drills on campus, resulting in slow evacuations during drills.

"And this was a plan on his part to bring realism into the situation and hopefully increase the evacuation time," Kenamer said. He said other university administrators was not aware of the new plans for the drill.

NOTICE

Energas Company hereby gives notice of its intent to implement new rates for domestic and commercial type customer classes residing in the unincorporated areas of its West Texas System. It is anticipated that the new rates will result in approximately a two tenths of one percent (.2%) increase in Energas Company's gross revenues, which increase is not a "major change" as defined in Section 43 (b) of Article 1446c, V.A.T.C.S.

A Statement of Intent to change said rates was filed with the Railroad Commission of Texas on or about September 21, 1984, and is available for inspection at the Company's Amarillo office, 301 S. Taylor Street. Further information may be obtained from the Railroad Commission of Texas, Gas Utilities Division, P.O. Drawer 12967, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711.

The proposed increase will not become effective until or except to the extent that the same rates are approved for service within the municipalities on the West Texas System.

Japanese making unique mark in advertising

By KELLY KING
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — Eye-catching Japanese ads, aimed at creating a lasting impression rather than explaining the product, have given a startling new look to Western firms doing business here.

California-based Apple Computer Inc. ran newspaper ads this summer picturing Buddha figures holding apples descending from one corner, a small sketch of its personal computer descending from the other, and the company name scrawled artistically across the bottom.

As a result of the Buddha ads, consumer recognition of the Apple brand name rose from 5 to 21 percent, said Hidekazu Kinukawa, sales and marketing director for Apple Computer Japan Inc.

In an interview, Kinukawa said the Japanese style reflects his company's policy of localizing business practices, something he feels American companies have been slow to do.

"Japan is a very promising market to explore once it's done properly," said Hideo Ishikawa, assistant to the president at Hakuhodo, Japan's second-largest advertising agency.

The McCann-Erickson Hakuhodo Inc. agency has found success after 24 years in Japan despite cultural misunderstandings and mistakes, according to Bernard Barber, the firm's executive vice president.

McCann-Erickson advertises for Coca-Cola Co., which sells 40 percent of the soft drinks sold in Japan, and Nestle SA's Nescafe coffee, which holds three-fourths of the instant coffee market here, according to Coca-Cola and Nestle officials.

Several other major American ad agencies have hooked up with Japanese counterparts more recently, including a 1981 joint venture between the major U.S.-based Young & Rubicam Inc. and Dentsu, the ad giant of Japan.

The newcomers from abroad are sophisticated and hard-working, according to Ishikawa.

The new agencies, instead of trying to export Western marketing concepts as expatriate agencies did 15 or 20 years ago, find they have little new to teach the Japanese and much to learn from Japanese commercial art techniques, which have consistently won top honors in international advertising competition.

Primarily designed to be remembered rather than to present a message, Japanese ads frequently combine new and abstract images, music, and slogans which can leave audiences confused about what exactly is being advertised.

A poster ad for a Tokyo department store pictured a clothesline with various colored shirts blowing in the breeze, accompanied by the statement, "He didn't know the distance between her and him, so they started to hurl stones."

Another, for a soft drink, depicts a woman standing in the desert holding a fake thunderbolt. The caption says, "She's born to be wild."

Prison inmate walks away

DENTON, Texas (AP) — Officials were searching for a state prison inmate who walked away from a North Texas junior high school where he was hanging curtains as part of a work crew.

A dispatcher with the Denton County sheriff's office said late Wednesday officers had been unable to locate 32-year-old Mark Byers, who escaped Wednesday afternoon from Calhoun Junior High School.

Guards noticed Byers was missing about 4:50 p.m., prison system spokesman Charles Brown said. By that time, he had probably been gone about an hour and a half, Brown said.

Brown said Byers was traveling with an industrial division of the prison system which works in state buildings and in schools.

SILICON VALLEY—This aerial view of California's high-tech industrial area known as Sunnyvale, Calif. shows the heart of Silicon Valley. (AP Laserphoto)

Defense and high-tech industries make California mecca for spies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some people move to California for the sunny weather and relaxed lifestyle, but it's the state's concentration of high-tech defense firms — the greatest in the nation — that attracts spies.

Northern California and its Silicon Valley computer industry is a center of industrial as well as foreign spying, while Southern California is favored by foreign spies, said a West Coast defense analyst who asked not to be identified because his firm does military research.

"From Vandenberg Air Force Base to San Diego, from Edwards Air Force Base to the ocean, you have the bulk of the leading edge of the aircraft and space industry located here, so this is prime hunting grounds for espionage," the analyst said.

Southern California has "over 3,000 companies performing some type of classified government work," FBI spokesman John Hoos said. "It's probably the richest piece of real estate in the country as far as technology being developed. That's why foreign, hostile intelligence services are interested."

Air Force spokesman Paul Sewell said California has the nation's largest concentration of military employees and contracts, with 14.3 percent of all Defense Department uniformed and civilian employees based in the state and estimated fiscal 1985 defense expenditures of $25.8 billion.

On Wednesday, the annals of California spy cases grew with the arrest by the FBI of one of its own counterespies, Richard W. Miller, 47. The FBI accused him of selling secrets about U.S. intelligence activities to a female Soviet KGB major. Also arrested were the woman and her husband, who both were born in the Soviet Union and moved to the United States in 1973.

The California arrests came on the heels of two other espionage arrests, one in Washington and one in New York, on Tuesday. Associate Attorney General Lowell Jensen in Washington said the three cases in one week "may mark some kind of a record."

The most notorious California spy case involved Christopher Boyce, a onetime employee of TRW Systems Group in Redondo Beach, who was arrested in 1977 after selling secrets to Soviet agents in Mexico City. He was sentenced to 40 years in prison, escaped, robbed banks and was sentenced to another 28 years in prison after he was caught in Washington state in 1981.

Boyce's exploits were detailed in the book "The Falcon and the Snowman." A movie version is due for release next year.

A more recent case involved James Harper, a former Silicon Valley consulting engineer. He pleaded guilty in April to conspiring to sell missile secrets to Polish agents, who delivered the information to the KGB. Harper was sentenced to life in prison.

Harper implicated Silicon Valley entrepreneur William Bell Hugel, 59. An FBI affidavit said Hugel introduced Harper to Polish agents in 1975. Hugel has not been charged with any crime. His lawyer says he believes Hugel is a target of a federal grand jury that has been meeting since October.

On June 28, 1981, William Holden Bell, a 61-year-old radar engineer employed by Hughes Aircraft Co., and Marian W. Zacharski, a Polish citizen employed as the West Coast sales manager of the Polish American Machinery Co., were arrested in Los Angeles for espionage.

Recruited in 1979, Bell provided Polish intelligence officers with classified documents pertaining to advanced radar designs and the TOW antitank missile, the main NATO defense against the large Warsaw Pact tank force in Europe. Bell pleaded guilty and testified against Zacharski, who was convicted on Nov. 16, 1981. Zacharski was sentenced to life in prison and Bell to eight years and a $10,000 fine.

Nationwide, only two people were indicted on espionage charges from 1966 to 1975. But from 1975 through 1980, 13 individuals were indicted. The number since 1975 has grown to 23 people, before the three arrests this week.

The increase in espionage arrests, spurred by growing concern over the theft by spies of high technology, began when Griffin Bell took over as President Carter's attorney general in 1976.

In his memoir, "Taking Care of the Law," Bell wrote: "I made it clear that we would stop shying away from sensitive espionage prosecutions for fear of revealing too much about our own intelligence apparatus."

The spying problem has prompted special care by government agencies and defense contractors.

The FBI's Hoos said the bureau operates a program in which agents speak to defense contractors to "make them aware of the effort by foreign intelligence sources to obtain information and how they go about obtaining it."

Earl Blount, spokesman for Rockwell International Corp., said defense firms have "a desire to cooperate entirely with the government's procedures which cover the release of classified and sensitive information."

Taxpayer cost for saving bank is termed 'comparatively modest'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government losses from its $4.5 billion rescue of Continental Illinois National Bank will be "comparatively modest," the head of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. predicted today.

FDIC Chairman William M. Isaac defended his agency's rescue of the giant Chicago bank last July and said any other approach would have cost the government much more in losses.

Isaac's defense came in prepared remarks before a House Banking subcommittee as it opened a second round of hearings into the near-collapse of one of the country's largest banks.

In earlier hearings, House Banking Committee Chairman Fernand St Germain, D-R.I., charged that the federal bailout could cost the government as much as $3 billion.

Isaac said while it was not possible to make an accurate forecast at this time, "we believe that any FDIC losses will be comparatively modest, and there is a possibility of a gain."

The ultimate total of government losses will be determined by how much the FDIC can collect on $5.1 billion in bad loans it took from Continental as payment for assuming $3.5 billion of debt the bank owed the Federal Reserve.

Isaac said, "There is little doubt that the FDIC would have lost more money had it handled Continental in some other fashion."

He said that "closing the bank and paying off insured depositors could have had catastrophic consequences for other banks and the entire economy."

He said that almost 2,300 small banks had nearly $6 billion at risk in deposits at Continental and that 113 of these banks had deposits equaling 50 to 100 percent of their net worth.

Isaac's statement was in line with testimony last month by Comptroller of the Currency C.T. Conover, who said that at least 100 of these banks would have failed had a rescue for Continental not been devised.

Congressional critics have attacked both the rescue package and the failure of federal banking regulators to sound alarms before Continental's condition deteriorated.

Isaac said his agency, which insures deposits up to $100,000, had been examining ways to instill more discipline in the banking system.

He said one option would be to raise a bank's requirements for capital, or net worth, to 9 percent of assets, from about 5.5 percent currently.

Meanwhile, officials of First Chicago Corp., parent company of The First National Bank of Chicago, said Wednesday the company will post a third-quarter loss of about $70 million because of bad loans but added it remains "a very sound institution."

Chairman Barry F. Sullivan told a news conference in Chicago the problems of First National, the nation's seventh-largest bank, are different from those that led to the near-collapse of Continental Illinois. He predicted his bank with show a fourth-quarter profit.

Most suspects rounded up in drug case

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — A large pre-dawn raid targeted at suspected drug pushers should help stem the flow of narcotics traffic in East Texas, prosecutors say.

"Anytime you have 95 indictments and 80 or so defendants, you are obviously going to make a dent in the drug trafficking business," said Angelina County District Attorney Gerald Goodwin after Wednesday's raid.

"The dope peddlers may still sell it, but they will wonder about it for a while now," Goodwin said.

A sheriff's dispatcher said late Wednesday that almost all of the 81 people named in sealed indictments have been rounded up by sheriff's officers, Lufkin and Diboll police and the Texas Department of Public Safety.

About 20 more suspects were booked into the county jail during daylight hours Wednesday after the raid, said Sandy Rains, dispatcher. Another 61 people had been taken into custody before 8 a.m.

"We even had about two of them come in and turn themselves in," Ms. Rains said. "I guess they got scared."

Of the arrest warrants, 65 were for alleged delivery of controlled substances and marijuana, and another 16 were for misdemeanor drug trafficking charges, authorities said.

Coyt Hight, investigator for the Angelina County district attorney's office, said law enforcement officials began the arrests at 5 a.m.

"We try to do this as often as we can to try to clean them out and get them off the streets," said Hight.

Undercover officers purchased marijuana, LSD, cocaine, phenmetrazine, methaqualone, hydromorphone, amphetamine and methamphetamine, officers said.

Almost 80 officers participated in the raid that followed a five-month investigation.

Ms. Rains said bonds were set at between $5,000 and $10,000 by Municipal Judge David Cook for each defendant.

The largest previous undercover operation in the county, Goodwin said, resulted in 45 indictments against 33 people in 1977.

Judge gives brewery three-year respite from paying foreign debts

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A civil judge granted the Moctezuma Brewery a three-year breathing space before it has to repay over $300 million it owes to foreign and national banks.

The decision handed down Tuesday by Judge Benigno Fernandez gives the brewery a respite from a legal battle with its creditors, which include the Chase Manhattan Bank, the Bank of America, Citibank and the Morgan Guarantee Trust, among others.

More than 30 banks with outstanding loans to the company filed a legal motion last week to have Moctezuma declared bankrupt, to allow for a court-administered restructuring of the company's debts.

The judge's ruling puts the bankruptcy motion on hold and freezes the peso value of the brewery's debts at the current peso-dollar exchange rate.

Moctezuma Brewery is Mexico's third largest beer producer and top exporter. According to the company, its popular Dos Equis brand is second in U.S. beer imports, after the Dutch brand Heineken.

Moctezuma's troubles with its creditors began with the first sharp devaluation of the peso in 1982. Since October of that year, the company has failed to make any payments on the interest or principal of its dollar debts.

The cost in pesos of repaying its debts has continued to increase, as the peso has steadily declined in value.

In granting the suspension of repayment, Judge Fernandez said he was acting in light of the country's economic situation, which has caught many companies short, as they cannot raise prices fast enough to make up for the peso devaluation.

Miguel Angel Hartasanchez, a lawyer who has been acting as the spokesman for the banks with loans to Moctezuma, said last week that the creditors were trying to force a declaration of bankruptcy as a "last resort," because the company had failed to make any "serious proposals" over two years of talks.

Nursing society announces speaker for Oct. 10 program

WTSU, Canyon: Delta Delta chapter of Sigma Theta Tau National Honor Society of Nursing is sponsoring their fall program, Oct. 10, featuring guest speaker, Teddy L. Langford.

Langford is dean and professor at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center School of Nursing in Lubbock. She is to present "Past Unification to Reintegration: Nursing as a Whole."

The program is to be presented

Wednesday, Oct. 10, at 6:30 a.m. in the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center Auditorium, 1500 Wallace Blvd. in the Amarillo Medical Center complex. It is open to all nurses and nursing students in the area. Participants may register at the door.

Dr. Langford received her nursing diploma from Wichita General Hospital School of Nursing and a bachelor of science in nursing from Incarnate Word College in San Antonio. She went on to receive a master of science in nursing from the University of Texas School of Nursing and was granted a Ph.D. from the University of Texas at Austin.

She has been dean at Texas Tech University's school of nursing since 1979. She has been involved in several research projects, workshops in and around Texas, as well as having been published in numerous nursing journals.

Trendy fabrics dress up rain wear

By Florence De Santis

NEW YORK (NEA) — Many women, when they reach into their closet for a wrap on a rainy day, reach for a trench coat. But the classic "men's" trench coat can be updated for a livelier look.

London Fog does it with contrast linings or facings in its fall collection. Winter white is a new color for the trench coat, and a French-style beret is the favorite accessory.

Currently popular coat styles have been translated into rainwear, such as a slate gray, asymmetrically draped wrap coat with buttoned band collar, and a reefer in celery color with a fly-front. Both are in the London Fog collection. Cotton-polyester blend poplin is the favorite fabric.

In waterproof coats, the slicker has recently become a leader. Made of polyurethane, with a bonded fabric lining, the slicker is generally sporty-styled. The somewhat stiff, smooth material takes bright colors and loose cuts.

Now there's a new version of slicker fabric in rayon-polyurethane blend that keeps the waterproof quality but is lighter and more supple, with a semi-gloss surface.

Searle uses it for an oversize raincoat with big drop shoulders, full sleeves ending in fitted band cuffs and an asymmetrical front flap. This fastens on the opposite shoulder when the winds blow.

Designers like oversize silhouettes for rainwear because they cover up even multi-layered sportswear worn beneath. Yeoh-Lee adds ample cape sleeves to a full-cut poncho body that buttons at the neckline under the scarf tie of an off-white or black rain cover-up that's half coat, half cape. At Mesco Rainwear, a black poncho is modified with full yellow sleeves and a deep yellow cowl.

For colder days, raincoats need linings, but designers are cutting their coats to conceal any bulk. Bonders use a new cotton-polyester fabric with iridescent sheen to brighten fall tone of tan, gray or soft green. Simulated leather piping tailors such styles as a pile-lined coat with band collar and capelets over the sleeves.

At Sportowne, fake furs are used for lining such styles as a waterproof trench coat that can be reversed to its brown simulated mink side, or a reefer, lined in simulated spotted cat.

STAR'S JEWELS — Actress Joan Collins displays some of the items from the "Joan Collins Collection," of affordable accessories during a reception in Beverly Hills, Calif., recently. The collection is now available nationally with prices ranging from $25 to $250.

Dear Abby

Bride's charming suitor has become a green-eyed monster

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: After being chased for three years by a charming Frenchman who begged me to marry him at least 1,000 times, I finally said yes. We've been married for four months, and now I'm afraid I made the biggest mistake of my life.

He was always jealous, but I thought he would change. I was wrong. Although I've never given him any reason to doubt me, he checks up on my every move.

If I say I'm going to my mother's, he phones her house to see if I'm there. If I say I'm going to the beauty shop, he phones me there. He says, "You should be happy I'm jealous. It proves I love you!" Well, I'm not happy. I'm miserable.

I am so fed up with his checking up on me, listening in on my telephone calls and going through my purse, I'm ready to end this marriage.

Could professional help straighten him out, or should I go ahead and divorce him now? Hurry your answer.

FED UP

DEAR FED UP: His jealousy does not prove that he loves you; it proves that he feels inadequate, insecure and unworthy of you.

Professional help may straighten him out, but now that you've already said "I do," don't say "adieu" without giving him a chance to shape up.

DEAR ABBY: I don't know if you ever heard of a case like mine before, but here goes.

My sister passed away in '78 and I still cry about losing her every day. We were very close. I know I'm not the only person who has lost a loved one, but I wonder if there is something wrong with me. I also cry about other things—things I see on TV, sad songs, poems I read, and even sad stories I read in the newspaper.

I took care of a neighbor's little boy for seven months, and when they moved away, I cried for a week.

Why do I do this? I'm 53 years old, have a good husband and a good life. People don't know how much I cry when I'm alone. If they did, they would probably think I'm crazy.

WEEPY

DEAR WEEPY: Don't be ashamed to cry. Tears are healing. You seem to be crying at appropriate times, but you may be crying longer than you should. See your doctor for a checkup, and be sure to tell him what you have told me.

DEAR READERS: I believe the following inspirational message from The Wall Street Journal is worth passing along:

ONCE AN ACORN
"Sometimes to make it big, you first have to make it small."

Conrad Hilton started out sweeping floors in a dusty New Mexico hotel. He cleaned up as owner of a famous hotel chain. John Paul Getty started with a $500 oil lease in Oklahoma and became one of America's richest men. David Packard baked the paint onto his first product in a kitchen oven. Forty-five years later, he was running a $4.7 billion company. There are anonymous men and women starting small today whose names will be household words in 20 years. Will one of those names be yours? Get started!

Beauty Briefs

No extremes

Never overdo anything when caring for your complexion.

Over-scrubbing is not more cleansing; it only irritates the skin. Pat on creams and makeup.

Rubbing them in can damage delicate tissues. Wash with warm, not hot, water.

Final rinses after soaping should be done with cool — not cold — water.

Using hot and cold water can cause capillary breakage which becomes visible as fine red veins.

Skin tone

Like everything with a color, skin is basically blue or yellow in tone.

If you can easily see the veins on the inside of your wrist and on your eyelid, you are basically blue-toned and should choose peach and coral tones in makeup.

If your skin conceals the veins, its basic tone is yellow and needs bluing-tinted reds and pinks to balance the tone.

Seasonal changes

Winter is hard on naturally dry skin.

Prepare for it by switching now to a non-soap cleansing bar, if you prefer to wash your face, or a cream-type cleanser.

Start now to form the habit of using a daily moisturizer. Begin now with a lotion, changing to cream when colder weather comes.

Happy times are ahead for you this coming year because your popularity will reach new heights. A major change in your personality will help bring this about.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're a trifle more perceptive and visionary than your peers today. Step in and take charge of matters if they begin to founder. Major changes are in store for Libras in the coming year. Send for your year-ahead predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your greatest joy today comes from being able to provide for others. Spend your resources and energies on those with whom you have the closest bonds.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's essential that you have worthwhile involvements today. Try to do things that promote the greatest good for the largest number.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There is a possibility that you may be the recipient of a material reward today. It may come as a surprise because you won't recall having done anything to earn it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Things you cannot do on your own today can be accomplished through the assistance of caring friends. Don't be afraid to ask pals for favors.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Wishful thinking is sometimes a frivolous endeavor, but not in your instance today. Your imagination can help bring fantasies into realities.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your mind works best on philosophical levels today. Valuable knowledge can be gained through discussions with equally wise friends.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A problem that has been vexing you concerning your career can be resolved today. You have an instinct for coming up with the right answers.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Others will be appreciative of your companionship today because you have the ability to make people feel important. They'll sense your sincerity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do not be hesitant to use your inventive concepts today to make tasks easier for you. Your innovations should work.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your managerial instincts are very sharp today. This should enable you to promote anything from a big deal to a successful house party.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The ship you've been scanning the horizon for may come into dock today. Share the cargo you've awaited with loved ones.

Cubs can win pennant tonight

CHICAGO (AP) — The San Diego Padres are locked in a precarious situation and the only way out will be a possible but improbable three-game sweep over the versatile Chicago Cubs.

Noted for their power, the Cubs resorted to daredevil base running Wednesday for a 4-2 victory over the Padres and a 2-0 lead in their best-of-5 National League Championship series.

Thus, the series could end tonight in San Diego, where the teams resume the competition after the flight west. If the Cubs don't get that one victory they need to get into their first World Series since 1945 tonight, they have chances again Saturday and Sunday in the Padres' park.

"Anything can happen but we're hoping to close it out tomorrow night," said Bob Dernier, whose base-running figured in two of the Cubs' runs Wednesday.

No team in the NL has ever come back from a two-game deficit to win a pennant although Milwaukee did it in 1982 to defeat California in the American League playoffs.

"We know their backs are against the wall, but we still have to go out there and play with the same intensity we have had all season," said Dernier.

"A 2-0 lead in a short series is a good feeling," said Keith Moreland, who scored all the way from first base on a double by Ron Cey to set up a two-run third and a 3-0 lead which left-hander Steve Trout never relinquished.

Dernier, who started Tuesday's 13-0 romp with a leadoff homer, opened the Chicago first Wednesday with a single. Ryne Sandberg grounded to third baseman Luis Salazar and while Salazar was throwing Sandberg out at first, Dernier raced to third and then scored as Gary Mathews grounded out.

With one out in the third, Moreland singled. Cey followed with a double to left-center and Moreland, not noted for his speed, raced all the way home to score. The throw home also enabled Cey to take third from where he scored on Jody Davis' sacrifice fly.

"When I was halfway to third, Don (Zimmer) waived me. I knew the play would be close and when the ball got to the catcher (Terry Kennedy) I was in. The big play was getting Cey to third."

The Padres never recovered although they finally scored a run in the fourth when Tony Gwynn, the National League batting champion, doubled, went to third on a ground out and scored on Kevin McReynolds' sacrifice fly.

The Cubs got this run back immediately. Trout singled but was forced by Dernier. Dernier stole second and scored on Sandberg's double.

"We were trying to peck away," said Padres' Manager Dick Williams, "but that hit (Sandberg's) gave them a three-run lead again and that was important. Trout was throwing strikes and worked out of the little trouble he was in."

Williams refused to use the breaks the Cubs have had as an excuse.

"You make your own breaks," he said. "The Chicago club has played great. Our backs are against the wall but we'll be going to our own park and that'll be an advantage. We have to win the next three, that's all there's to it."

"Losing three in a row would be embarrassing," said Cub Manager Jim Frey. "We still need 27 more outs before we can call ourselves National League champions."

Tigers beat Royals in extra innings

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The home team stands 1-13 in games between Detroit and Kansas City this year, which is no comfort to the Royals and seems not to worry the Tigers one bit.

The hard-to-figure home field disadvantage between the two American League division winners could go to 2-15 and still the American League pennant would fly from Tiger Stadium. The Tigers have two victories in the bank and need to win just one of the three weekend games in Detroit for their first World Series appearance since 1968.

The best-of-five series shifts to Detroit for Game 3 Friday night.

The Royals won five of six games at Tiger Stadium this year.

"It's a five-game series and that's the way we'll have to play it," said a smiling Aurelio Lopez, who tossed three innings of four-hit relief to get the victory in Detroit's 5-3 eleven-inning conquest Wednesday night. "But if we go less than five games, it's all the better for us."

The Tigers, whose 104 victories were the envy of every other major league club this year, battered their hosts 8-1 in Tuesday night's opener. They came back to beat the Royals' best in a nail-biter of a second game. John Grubb, hitting a pitch Dan Quisenberry said "might not have done what I wanted it to do," doubled home two runs in the eleventh.

It was the ninth straight victory here for the Tigers, the first team to sweep a season series in Royals Stadium since the facility opened in 1973. And it was a bitter loss for the Royals, who won the West with an 84-victory record which many baseball purists sneered at.

"When you lose like we did Tuesday night, you know there wasn't much you could do about it," said Manager Dick Howser, whose post-season record as a field boss has dropped to an embarrassing 0-8. "But tonight, a game like this, this takes something out of you. It's hard to feel confident after a game like this, but we'll regroup."

The Royals knotted it at 3-3 in the eighth. Quisenberry, who set a Major League record with 45 saves last season and led the league with 43 this year, started the ninth. Lance Parrish singled off the glove of a diving Greg Pryor at third leading off the eleventh.

Next was Darrell Evans, who tried to sacrifice but wound up safe when Don Slaught failed to pick the ball up cleanly. The next sacrifice attempt ordered by Tiger Manager Sparky Anderson backfired, with Quisenberry throwing to third to get Parrish, the lead runner.

But Grubb, on a 1-2 pitch, hit a Quisenberry sinker into the gap in right-center to score both runs.

"He started me with a fastball and then he came at me with a breaking ball," said Grubb.

Said Quisenberry: "He hit a sinker ball. Apparently, it didn't sink very well."

Howser merely smiled when asked about his dismal playoff record. He was the New York Yankee manager in 1980 when the Royals swept him three straight. He was the Royals' manager in 1981 when Billy Martin's Oakland A's swept three in a row in the mini-playoffs in the strike-ruptured season.

"I'm not worried about it," he said. "It won't stay this bad," he said. "It will change."

Hawkins an expert on winning and losing

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Burton Hawkins, who's been directly involved with baseball for 47 years and a fan for more than six decades, is an expert on the game — both the winning and, unfortunately, the losing varieties.

But Hawkins, who is retiring as media director of the Texas Rangers, nee the Washington Senators, says, "What the hell."

"It's been a lot of fun. I've been in the toy department all my life," he said recently if asked if he had any regrets about tying his life to the diamond and an estimated 7,000 major league contests.

Then, after a moment of thought, he admitted, "I probably could have gotten richer in some other profession."

Though some fans of the Chicago Cubs would challenge the idea that Hawkins, 70, has seen more losing baseball than most, he's certainly had his share.

Hawkins' lifelong love affair with baseball started during the 1920s, when he watched the Washington Senators, led by Hall of Fame pitcher Walter Johnson and player-manager Bucky Harris. Those were the glory days for the Senators, who won the 1924 World Series — their only world championship.

By the time Hawkins joined the Washington Evening Star as a copy boy in 1933, the Senators were making their last World Series appearance ever.

In 1937, when Hawkins began following the Senators as the Star's beat writer, the club was well on its way to earning its unofficial motto: "Washington, first in peace, first in war and last in the American League."

Over the next 2 1/2 decades, as Hawkins witnessed loss after loss, the Senators' chief claim to fame was the inspiration for the Broadway hit of the late 1950s, "Damn Yankees."

Still, Hawkins saw many Hall of Famers — most of whom played for the opposition.

"Certainly the most exciting hitter was Babe Ruth," he said. "For hard hitting, it was difficult to beat Ted Williams."

Walter Johnson stands at the top of Hawkins' pitching list. As far as managers went, "Bucky Harris was a guy that got a lot out of bad material."

Joe McCarthy, the New York Yankees manager during the 1930s and 1940s, was another great skipper, but "had better material," Hawkins said. Baltimore's Earl Weaver "was a damn good manager. Great strategist."

After the 1960 season, the Senators packed their bags and moved to Minnesota, but were replaced by a new Washington franchise that Hawkins went to work for as traveling secretary. The "new" Senators didn't do any better than their forefathers and finally moved to Arlington for the 1972 season — along with Hawkins and the losing tradition.

Of the 12 managers who have piloted the Rangers, Whitey Herzog, who managed less than a year in 1973, was the best, Hawkins said. Herzog later built winners at Kansas City and St. Louis.

"Bob Short (then the Rangers' owner) was enamored of Billy Martin, so he got rid of Herzog," he said.

As for Doug Rader, the current manager already signed by the Rangers for three more seasons, Hawkins said, "You've got to give him a chance. He learns by his mistakes — at least I hope he does. He hasn't had a hell of a lot to operate with."

Third baseman Buddy Bell is the top Ranger player as far as Hawkins is concerned.

"He's got talent, decency, at times spectacular. He projects the image of what you would like to accomplish."

If Hawkins had his way with the lowly Rangers, who finished last in the AL West, "I would fire about nine players immediately. They don't have the talent to play on a major league club level."

Wear Green Friday!

Pampa can forget about its 0-4 football record. It's a new beginning Friday night as the Harvesters host Dumas in the first district game of 1984.

The Harvester Booster Club is urging fans to wear green clothing all day Friday to give the Harvesters an added boost toward a possible District 1-4A championship.

Also, the Booster Club is asking Pampa merchants again to display signs at their business locations urging the Harvesters on to victory. Merchants with marquees are especially urged to help the Booster Club in its effort to gain more support for the Harvesters.

"We had some good response before Pampa's game with Perryton last week, but we still want more fans and business people to get involved in supporting the Harvesters," said Jon Wolcott, president of the Booster Club. "It's going to take some time, but we can get the whole community behind the Harvesters. Wear green!"

Persons interested in supporting Harvester athletic programs are invited to attend the weekly Booster Club meetings at 7:30 p.m. Monday nights in the high school football fieldhouse.

Next week, new tennis coach Pam Clark will talk about the tennis program. The Harvester tennis teams are unbeaten in district play so far. A film of the Pampa-Dumas football game will also be viewed.

Old rivals clash Friday night in homecoming game

By JEFF LANGLEY
Pampa News Sports Writer

WHITE DEER — White Deer and Panhandle, small towns separated by a 15-mile strip of U.S. 60, will send their finest young men into battle Friday night.

Neutral observers in the zone expect heavy casualties. Forget the records. Forget strategy. Forget the weather.

For this is a rivalry: The 2A White Deer Bucks versus the 2A Panhandle Panthers. More than a game, Friday's contest fuels a smoldering caldron of emotion, one heated to boiling by the spirit of a White Deer homecoming.

Pretty princesses — just one will wear the crown — football heroes, hot coffee, pop corn, hamburgers charred on an open grill and cool autumn air.

Come to White Deer Friday and take a bite from a slice of America. Kickoff is at 7:30 p.m. The records?

Panhandle falls a flea-flicker short of an undefeated season. The Bucks also fall one game short of perfection, having lost to a team that they whipped on first downs.

After four games, the Panthers are 2-1-1. It's hard to say just how good they are, since three of their first four opponents were bigger schools. Panhandle finally picked on someone its own size last week, another 2A school. The result was a 34-6 homecoming thrashing of Wellington.

The Panthers battled 4A opponent Borger to a 7-7 tie and beat 3A Boys Ranch, 14-3. Class 3A Canadian handed Panhandle its only loss, 21-16. The deciding play in Canadian's win was a flea-flicker pass, good for six points.

Some have picked Panhandle to win District 1-2A. The Panthers were 10-1-1 last year and have been to the playoffs five years in a row. The Panhandle team includes six all-district players.

The snake-bit White Deer team, 3-1, comes off a 14-13 thriller over the Stinnett Rattlers. Stubborn Stinnett, which was down 14-0 at the half, rallied in the fourth quarter. The Rattlers went for the win with a two-point conversion, but the Bucks held on. The White Deer defense preserved the win in stopping Stinnett's run for two points.

"We played exceptionally well, but we almost gave it away at the end," White Deer Coach Paul Wilson said after the heart-stopping victory.

Sunray is the only team to whip the Bucks this year. Even though the Bucks won the battle for first downs, 15-13, the Bobcats finished on top on the scoreboard, 21-7. In the single loss, White Deer was hurt most by penalties. Pass plays for gains across the field were brought back by miscues twice.

White Deer also took a close season opener over Spearman, 7-6, and rolled over Claude, 35-10. Buck quarterback Will Brown and receiver Bobby Martin have teamed up for an awesome passing combo.

White Deer, with a 2A front four averaging 200 lbs., can slug it out with any of the smaller schools.

Friday's contest could be influenced by Panhandle's winning tradition and a tough White Deer team fired up by homecoming.

In other area games Friday night, Groom hosts Lefors, Miami welcomes Goree, McLean travels to Turpin, Okla., and Wheeler hosts Phillips.

Texas heavily favored over Rice

By The Associated Press

Having become the fourth team this season to be ranked No. 1 in The Associated Press college football poll, Texas also about to become the fourth team to fall from that lofty perch?

It may happen to the Longhorns eventually, but probably not this week. They are whopping 29-point favorites over Rice despite Coach Fred Akers' protestations that "they (Rice) have got the same conference record that we do (0-0) and the only thing really that's important about all these games is how you do in your own conference. Anything else doesn't really make that much difference when it's all said and done."

Schedule-wise, Rice might be in a good position. The Owls are playing at home and catch Texas not only looking back to their impressive showing against Penn State but also looking ahead to Oklahoma. Rice, however, is looking ahead to a thorough beating... Texas 42-6.

Last week's prediction record was 34 right — including the Upset Special of South Carolina over Georgia — 15 wrong and one tie for a percentage of .694; on the year, it's 170-56-4—752. Against the spread, last week's score was 19-13-0—594; for the season, 61-56-1—521.

No. 2 Ohio State (favored by 8½) at Purdue. Ohio State 28-17.

No. 3 Washington (by 20) at Oregon State. Washington 35-14.

No. 6 Florida State (by 10½) at Memphis State. Florida State 31-14.

No. 7 Brigham Young (no line) at Colorado State. BYU 38-14.

No. 9 Oklahoma State at No. 8 Nebraska (by 9½). Nebraska 24-14.

Maryland at No. 11 Penn State (by 7½). Penn State 24-14.

North Carolina State at No. 12 Georgia Tech (by 14½). Upset special of the week: North Carolina State 24-21.

Michigan State at No. 13 Michigan (by 12). Michigan 28-10.

No. 14 Miami, Fla. (by 1) at No. 16 Notre Dame. Notre Dame 27-24.

Stanford at No. 17 UCLA (by 9). UCLA 28-14.

No. 18 Auburn (by 9½) at Mississippi. Auburn 21-14.

Tulane at No. 19 Vanderbilt (by 15). Vanderbilt 28-21.

No. 20 Georgia (pick 'em) at Alabama. Alabama 21-20.

Wisconsin at Illinois (by 5). Second Upset Special: Wisconsin 24-20.

O'Meara sets sights on Texas Golf Open

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Mark O'Meara, virtually unchallenged as the most improved player in pro golf this season, has his sights set on a much more prestigious title: leading money-winner.

"I've put myself in a position to make a run at it. I'd be foolish not to try to take advantage of it," O'Meara said before teeing off today in the first round of the $300,000 Texas Open.

"I have a (non-Tour) commitment for next week, but if I feel I have a chance to overtake Tom (Watson), if I feel I have a chance to win the money title, I'll play the rest of them," O'Meara said.

O'Meara scored his first Tour victory last month in Milwaukee and last weekend, in Abilene, Texas, scored his fifth runner-up finish of the season. The $37,800 check boosted him into second place on the year's money-winning list at $437,173 (more than double his previous career total).

Other major figures who will test the 6,525-yard Oak Hills Country Club course, which often yields some of the lowest scores of the season, include PGA titleholder Lee Trevino, defending champion Jim Colbert, Masters champ Ben Crenshaw, Calvin Peete and Tom Kite, a two-time winner this season.

Carcasses strewn along river banks

KUUJUAQ, Quebec (AP) — At least 7,100 migrating caribou trying to ford swollen rivers in the Far North drowned last weekend, and another huge herd is approaching the same treacherous stretch of rapids and waterfalls.

Government environmentalists and local Inuit natives traveled up the Koksoak River by canoe Wednesday to decide whether to airlift or float out the carcasses — perhaps as many as 22,000 — strewn along the banks of the Caniapiscau and Koksoak rivers.

"A lot of (the caribou) are on the bank along the river and unless they're removed the water quality in the river is going to deteriorate quite a bit," said Michael Barrett, an environmentalist with the Kativik regional government.

Inuit leaders blamed the high water levels and deadly currents on Hydro-Quebec for allowing too much water through its dam on the Caniapiscau River, which feeds the Koksoak River. But the power company blamed the slaughter on torrential rains last month.

Barrett said Newfoundland and Quebec biologists counted 7,100 bodies. But Quebec Environment Department spokesman Marie-Josée Gagnon said at least 10,000 had drowned and that the final figure could go as high as 22,000.

The drownings occurred 62 miles upriver from this town at the base of Ungava Bay.

The caribou will probably be tied together and towed by boat to Kuujuaq to be burned or buried, Quebec government biologist Francois Goudreau said Wednesday. He said towing shouldn't be too difficult. The animals are buoyant because their hair contains air pockets and they are now bloated from lying in the water for several days.

Taking the caribou out by air would be harder. "We're going to need a number of helicopters to sling them out," Barrett said.

Development of new crops is needed

By JIM DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. agriculture needs to develop new crops to diversify its production and reduce its vulnerability, but federal researchers have virtually halted their efforts in that area, according to a new report.

American farming is vulnerable to drought and reduced water supplies, increased soil salinity in irrigated areas, soil erosion and pests, said Paul F. Knowles, a retired University of California agronomist.

U.S. agriculture also is dominated by a relative few crops for which it already has production capacity far in excess of demand, the report noted — 26 million to 30 million acres of excess, by one estimate.

All of those problems, as well as the imbalance between U.S. imports and exports and the nation's need for certain materials critical for national defense could be addressed by the development of new crops, said the report by the Council on Agricultural Science and Technology.

But the council, based in Ames, Iowa, said only 3 percent of the 300,000 species of higher plants have been evaluated for possible value as crops. An Agriculture Department program to make such evaluations, begun in 1957, now has virtually dried up for lack of money, the report said.

"Even among species with some promise, there has been very little follow-up work in terms of developing types adapted to commercial production," Knowles told Congress' Joint Economic Committee on Tuesday.

New crops can be developed by domesticating wild plants, adapting plants from other parts of the world to the U.S. environment or by making genetic changes in established crops, the paper pointed out.

But it is at best a slow process, and usually is hampered by lack of coordination and by frustration over initial lack of markets. The U.S. success story of the century, soybeans, only became a commercial crop in the 1930s, 170 years after the plant was first introduced.

"It is difficult to now foresee another single new crop development of the magnitude of the soybean occurring within our lifetimes," said Ronald L. Sampson, a product development official with the Procter & Gamble Co. who was on the task force that wrote the report.

Rather, he said, new plant developments likely will come in the area of specialty crops. Examples of emerging new crops include kiwi fruit, avocados, sunflower seeds and pistachio nuts.

Other plants the report said will help make the U.S. less dependent on exports or bolster supplies of strategic materials include jojoba, a shrub whose seed oil is similar to sperm whale oil; guayule, a desert shrub that produces a quality natural rubber; kenaf, a fast-growing tropical plant that can be used to make newsprint; and cuphea, an oil-bearing plant that can be used to replace coconut and palm kernel oils.

Promotion of such new crops could diversify America's farming base, offer crops more tailored to their environment and give consumers new and better products, the report said. One such crop, grain amaranth, offers the possibility of a new snack food more nutritious than those now on the market, said another task force member, University of Missouri agricultural economics professor Melvin Blase. The report recommended increased research support for new crop development, expanded efforts by the Agriculture Department and the creation of an independent national new crops institute that could coordinate and fund research.

One possible incentive for producers, the paper suggested, would be allowing them to grow potential new crops on land idled under production control programs for major crops like wheat and feed grains.

HemisFair funds are rejected again

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Developers say they still plan to revitalize the dormant HemisFair Plaza, despite the federal government's five-time refusal to fund an urban development grant.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development again rejected the city's request on Monday for a $9.5 million Urban Development Action Grant.

The money would have been used to build a parking garage and improve a park in the area. It also would have helped developers secure loans for a $90 million, 950-room hotel.

The loan, from Citibank, was contingent on the grant's approval. The construction would have been at HemisFair Plaza, site of the 1968 World's Fair.

"My best understanding is that it was simply a matter of dollars," said Mayor Henry Cisneros of HUD's Monday decision against the San Antonio grant. "There just wasn't enough there."

But he promised the area would be refurbished "one way or another."

Linda Weaver, a spokeswoman for Encore Development Corp. which would develop the hotel in a joint venture with Doeblinger Development, said plans are still in the works for the project.

"It has not knocked us out of the project and we are considering other options," she said.

Cisneros said city officials would attempt to meet with federal authorities soon to seek advice on whether to keep the application alive.

U.S. Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez had objected to the area being used for private interests.

"It is important for San Antonio to have a full plan for the redevelopment of HemisFair Plaza," he said. "Such a plan does not exist to this day. It is also important that the plan spells out what part of the plaza will be for public uses and what part for private uses."

My Mommy Likes Me. PARENTING

An educational program for parents of preschoolers

He doesn't talk yet, but he's communicating. And he's learning many important things. He's learned what love is. And discipline. And confidence. He already knows the meanings of a few hundred words.

A child's education begins at home. Concerned, loving parents are the teachers. The lessons learned in the preschool years influence all future behavior and success.

There is a course that helps parents make the most of their roles as teachers. Registration for Parenting is free, but limited. Call for more details today.
