In Pampa...

Area unemployment continued to drop in August, according to figures released Thursday by the Texas Employment Commission.

Of the five counties served by the Pampa TEC office, only Hemphill County had an increased unemployment rate. Unemployment there rose from six percent in July to 8.3 percent in August.

Charles Vance, manager of the Pampa TEC office, said unemployment in Pampa dropped to 2.9 percent and Gray County unemployment dropped to three percent in August. Both are down from the July unemployment figures of 3.7 in Pampa and 3.8 for Gray County.

This represents 11,927 Pampa people with jobs and 14,661 jobs filled in Gray County.

"That's quite a contrast from this time a year ago," Vance said, reporting that the August 1983 figures showed Pampa unemployment at 9.3 percent. He expects this decline to continue through the rest of the year "if we don't have any unexpected problems."

Still, the figures are not as low as the "pre-recession levels." In 1982, the Pampa unemployment rate was 2.2 percent. Last year, it got as high as 10.2 percent.

Vance could not explain the jump in unemployment in Hemphill County, which listed a total employment of 1,918. He added that the figure seems low for a county with a population of 5,000, "but those are the figures we got."

"We're not as close to the economy in Hemphill County as we are in Pampa," he said. "There's not enough contact with them to make something of these. The figures sometimes show unusual

In nation...

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian unemployment edged down to 7.4 percent last month, the lowest since June, as the labor market resumed its improvement after two months of rising or standstill joblessness, the government said today.

The 0.1 percentage point drop from August's 7.5 percent — made possible by the creation of more than 270,000 jobs — seemed to bear out predictions by private economists that July's rise in unemployment was a temporary phenomenon.

The overall rate has fallen 1.8 percentage points since September 1983, from 9.2 percent to 7.4 percent. In June, however, the rate stood at 7.1 percent. Unemployment was 7.5 percent when President Reagan took office in January 1981.

The total number of Americans with jobs in September climbed to 105.2 million, but that was well short of the record 105.7 million in June, according to Labor Department.

September's minuscule decline in the civilian rate, when adjusted for seasonal variations, translated into a decline in the number of Americans officially categorized as unemployed from 8,526,000 to 8,460,000 — a drop of 66,000.

An alternate unemployment rate, which groups the 113.7-million-member civilian labor force with the more than 1.7 million armed forces personnel stationed in the United States, dropped from 7.4 to 7.3 percent last month, the report said.

The politically sensitive unemployment figures, coming just over a month before the presidential election, also showed that the number of Americans on business payrolls rose by 139,000 last month.

In Texas...

DALLAS (AP) — Unemployment statistics released today show Texas' economy making "a remarkable improvement" as the jobless rate continues its year-long plummet, a federal official says.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics in Washington, unemployment in Texas dropped only 0.1 percent between August and September.

But over the last 12 months, the seasonally adjusted jobless figure fell almost three percentage points from 8.4 percent in Sept. 1983 to 5.6 percent last month.

"This is a remarkable improvement and shows long-term improvement in the economy," said Nick Santangelo, chief of economic analysis for the Bureau of Labor Statistics in Dallas. "Texas and the U.S. economies are following the same patterns of stability."

More than 200,000 new jobs were added to the state's economy since Aug. 1983, Santangelo said.

For both Texas and the nation, the monthly change in unemployment was insignificant, Santangelo said.

The nation's jobless figure dropped from 7.5 percent in August to 7.4 percent, while in Texas the figure went from 5.7 percent in August to 5.6 percent.

Mining was the fastest growing industry in September showing a 4.3 growth followed by manufacturing and services, which increased 4 percent, Santangelo said.

Texas is expected to continue on its present course over the next few months, with additional hirings expected in November in time for Christmas, according to Santangelo.

"The businessman should expect a good Christmas," he said.

Mother charged in death of baby

A 25-year-old Pampa woman has been charged with murder in connection with the alleged beating death of her 16-month-old daughter.

Linda Armstrong, of 516 N. Starkweather, surrendered to authorities Thursday evening, about five hours after her baby, Valerie Jeannett Sigala, was pronounced dead.

Armstrong was arraigned on a charge of murder before Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge. Prestidge set the accused mother's bond at $30,000. Armstrong remained in custody in the city jail this morning.

Authorities allege that Armstrong shook the toddler and pounded her head on a carpeted floor in their home, causing fatal head injuries.

Pampa Medical Services, summoned to the Starkweather address, notified police of the child's injuries about 6:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Police said the child was having trouble breathing when they arrived.

The toddler received initial treatment at Coronado Community Hospital and then was transferred to Northwest

Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

The child was placed on life supports at the Amarillo hospital. According to Prestidge, the child's parents, Armstrong and Severo Sigala, also of 516 N. Starkweather, both gave written consent to remove the child from the systems, after three tests had indicated no brain activity.

Police Chief J.J. Ryzman said he doesn't anticipate the filing of any charges against the father.

At 12:44 p.m. Thursday, twenty minutes after the supports were removed, Justice Prestidge pronounced the child dead. She ordered an autopsy, which was performed by pathologist Dr. Ralph Erdmann.

Prestidge said Erdmann's autopsy found no skull fractures, but that the brain was badly swelled. Prestidge said the pathologist believes that the child was "brain dead almost immediately" after being injured.

Armstrong has four other children who were previously taken from her custody by the Department of Human Resources, according to officials.

Graveside services for the child will be at 10:30 a.m.

Linda Armstrong:

Saturday in Fairview Cemetery, with the Rev. Earl Maddux, pastor of the Fellowship Baptist Church, officiating.

Arrangements are by Carmichael - Whatley Funeral Directors.

In addition to her immediate family, survivors include her grandparents, Mrs. Tillie Sigala of Roswell, N.M., and Harold Dean of Pampa.

Shuttle sets stage for first U.S. woman's walk in space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Shuttle Challenger soared spectacularly into orbit today with a record crew of seven on an Earth-surveying mission that includes the first space walk by an American woman.

The spacecraft thundered away from its launch pad on time at 7:03 a.m. EDT, 14 minutes before dawn — its smoketrail brilliantly illuminated by the rising sun — and sped into the sky on a northeast path up the East Coast of the United States.

"The ship is on course and on time," Mission Control reported.

Slightly more than two minutes into the flight, the ship's two solid fuel rocket boosters peeled away and parachuted toward the Atlantic Ocean, where recovery ships waited. The boosters will be refurbished for use on a later flight.

Nine minutes later, Mission Control in Houston reported the liftoff was flawless and Challenger was in orbit more than 200 miles high, streaking through a weightless world at 17,400 mph.

During the eight-day flight, the crew of five men and two women will use radar sensors and cameras to study the Earth's atmosphere and oceans and search for ancient lost cities. The space walk will allow the crew to practice refueling a satellite in orbit for the first time.

Liftoff came exactly one month after sister ship Discovery returned from its inaugural flight. That's the quickest turnaround yet between shuttle launches and is good news to NASA, which plans to send the space planes into orbit at a one-a-month rate for the next 14 months, accelerating that to 16 flights in 1986.

The launching, as usual, thrilled tens of thousands gathered to view the fiery departure. Many will be back here on Oct. 13 when Challenger is to return to a landing on a runway just three miles from the launch pad. It will be only the second shuttle touchdown here. On two occasions, bad weather forced the shuttle to divert its landing from Cape Canaveral to Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. The commander both times was the man in command of Challenger today, Robert Crippen, and he vows, "We'll make it this time."

The seven crew members equal in number America's original astronaut corps, the men who blazed the trail into space in tiny one-man Mercury capsules two decades ago.

The astronauts were awakened at 2:43 a.m. and after breakfast and a brief medical exam were driven the seven miles from their crew quarters to the launch pad. They boarded the spaceship two hours before the planned liftoff.

In addition to carrying the largest crew, the 13th shuttle flight — the sixth for Challenger — features several other "firsts:"

— Two women in a spacecraft for the first time, Sally Ride and Kathy Sullivan.

— The first spacewalk by a U.S. woman, Ms. Sullivan.

— The first American woman to make a second trip into space, Ms. Ride.

— The first astronaut to make four shuttle flights, Commander Robert Crippen.

— The first flight of a Canadian astronaut, physicist Marc Garneau.

— The first test of satellite refueling in space.

— The quickest turnaround between shuttle flights, one month.

The other crew members are pilot Jon McBride, mission specialist David Leestma and payload specialist Paul Scully-Power, an Australia-born oceanographer who is now an American citizen working for the Navy.

"It's going to be crowded," Crippen said of the large crew.

City, neighbors say woman's 'business' has to go

BY JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

In the 2500 block of Mary Ellen, in a section of homes with values approaching $100,000, sets a junkyard.

The proprietor of this "business," self-proclaimed junk dealer Maudie Fay Morgan, 61, 2542 Mary Ellen, can't understand her neighbors' opposition to her back-yard dump and figures that it isn't their business, anyway.

"It's my business... my livelihood. It's no bother to anybody but me. It's my work. It's something to do," Morgan said of her residential dump ground.

The neighbors and the city disagree.

The neighbors worry about harm to the value of their properties. They complain of foul smell, potential health hazards, the unsightly appearance — and rats.

Since June, the city has issued Morgan five complaints: alleging violations of Ordinance No. 861.

"It shall be unlawful for a person in control of the premises (any property inside the city limits) to permit the accumulation of weeds, rubbish, or any other objectionable, unsightly or unsanitary matter of whatever nature on such premises. It shall be the duty of a person in control of the premises... to remove or cause to be removed all such grass, weeds, rubbish, brush, rubble or any other objectionable, unsightly or unsanitary matter of whatever nature as often as may be necessary to comply with this article," the ordinance says in part.

Violation of the ordinance carries a maximum $50 fine for each day of the violation.

After Morgan received her first summons in June, she had 10 days to clean up the property or appear in court, according to code enforcement officer Steve Vaughn. He said health inspector Elmer Young and city health officer Dr. Ed Williams inspected the property and deemed it a health hazard.

The woman ignored the city and continued collecting the discarded

Lewis promises priority to anti-cancer laws

AUSTIN (AP) — A plan to combat cancer in Texas will be a top priority of the 1985 Legislature, House Speaker Gib Lewis says.

After receiving a list of recommendations from the Legislative Task Force on Cancer, Lewis vowed Thursday to "do everything humanly possible to see that these recommendations become reality. Nothing less will do."

Among some three dozen recommendations are proposals to further limit smoking in public buildings, increase cigarette taxes and raise the minimum age at which people can smoke to 21.

"I will make the statewide goal of effectively combating cancer one of my priority programs for the next session of the Legislature and for subsequent sessions until we have achieved full effectiveness," Lewis told task force members.

The panel's chairman, James D. Dannenbaum of Houston, noted that cancer already extracts a heavy toll from Texans and said studies indicate it will get worse.

"About 44,500 Texans will be newly diagnosed with cancer this year alone. Texans will spend more than $400 million for cancer care in 1984. And the annual lost earnings of cancer patients in Texas will reach $1.5 billion," he said. "The emotional and physical tolls, of course, can never be calculated."

Among the recommendations made by the task force were:

— Raising from 16 to 21 the age at which tobacco may be sold, traded or given to individuals.

— Prohibiting cigarette smoking in schools and public buildings except in areas where it is specifically authorized.

— Increasing the state cigarette tax to at least 25 cents per pack as a deterrent. "The principal impact of new taxes has been shown to discourage potential smokers from taking up the habit," the task force said.

— Taking other actions to help Texans lower the risks of getting cancer, including establishing a goal of "a smokeless teen-age society" by the year 2000 and comprehensive in-school programs to teach children how they can avoid cancer.

— Stepping up cancer research.

— Compiling a registry listing information on the number and type of new cancer cases.

— Drawing up a complete inventory of cancer treatment facilities and programs in the state.

— Establishing programs for early detection and treatment of cancer, when cure is more likely.

Dannenbaum estimated that implementation of the full plan would cost $13.5 million the first year and $13.2 million the second.

Lewis said he already has begun talking with legislative leaders about sponsoring necessary legislation to implement many of the recommendations.

Lewis acknowledged that some proposals may be controversial in what lawmakers already predict will be a tight budget year, but noted that the costs would be small compared to the economic price that will accompany an anticipated near doubling of cancer cases in Texas by the end of the century.

"You have handed me the initial blueprint for the first major steps ever to be taken in a unified, statewide effort aimed at bringing the dread disease under control in our time," he told the task force.

"You have designed a plan to help us better know, and hopefully defeat, this killer which will strike down an estimated 84,000 Texans annually by the year 2000," Lewis said.

Congress approves funding to run country until tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal employees were back on the job today following a partial shutdown of the government, but Congress still must approve an emergency spending bill to avert further disruptions and allow the 98th Congress to adjourn.

Government offices were opening today thanks to a stopgap measure Congress passed Thursday to keep most government departments and agencies solvent until 6 p.m. tonight.

After word that President Reagan would sign the temporary measure came from the White House, the word went out for about 500,000 "non-essential" workers who were furloughed to report for work as usual today. And a House-Senate conference committee agreed the workers should be paid for their day off Thursday.

Still unresolved, though, was a spending bill that will provide money for most of the government for the remainder of the fiscal year that began Monday. Congressional negotiators worked through Thursday night trying to agree on a compromise version of the broad spending bill that has been passed by the House and Senate.

Before the full conference quit shortly before midnight, conferees agreed unanimously to pay federal employees for any time lost from work as a result of the money crisis. "I don't think they should be penalized," said Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass.

Subcommittees, meanwhile, met through the night in an attempt to hammer out agreements.

The House and Senate would have to ratify a compromise before it can be sent to the White House. Congressional leaders had hoped to adjourn for the year by the end of this week, but that cannot be done until a long-term money bill is enacted into law.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said Thursday it was "extremely unlikely... one chance out of 100" that action could be completed by tonight.

Meanwhile, another fiscal housekeeping measure Congress must pass before adjourning for the year is an increase in the government's borrowing authority — the national debt — to $1.823 trillion from its present level of $1.573 trillion.

The Senate today was tackling this and it had the potential to become as entangled with unrelated amendments as the money bill has.

New funds for the government will not be necessary until early next week because of the upcoming weekend and Columbus Day on Monday, a federal holiday.

The unprecedented, more than $460 billion legislation encompasses government operations from the Pentagon and foreign aid to water projects and agricultural programs.

In other congressional action Thursday:

—The Senate gave final congressional approval to legislation designed to strengthen the ability of the nation's health care systems to provide organ transplants. The bill, which goes to the White House, establishes a national organ network with a computer registry and telephone hot lines.

—The Senate also approved a formula for distributing $7.2 billion to the states to pay for highway construction. The money comes from federal tax on gasoline. A compromise with a House version of the measure is still necessary.

—The House passed and sent to the Senate a measure requiring states to adopt a regional striped bass conservation plan or face a federally imposed moratorium on fishing for that species.

White says foes of reform plan are not being positive

AUSTIN (AP) — Some Texas educators have failed to provide the "gallant leadership" needed for the statewide public school reforms approved by the 1984 Legislature, says Gov. Mark White.

That includes State School Commissioner Raymon Bynum and some local school superintendents and coaches, White told a news conference Thursday.

"I'm disappointed in these people that I had high hopes of taking the lead in making Texas not just another complacent state," White said.

White said he agreed with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's criticism voiced Wednesday to the new State Board of Education about Bynum and other TEA officials and staffers.

"What we were looking for was leadership, a positive note. I find that anyone would be derelict in these duties should bear the responsibility for the uncertainty that exists."

Hobby had warned the new board that some educators were trying to "sabotage" application of the school program revisions passed by the summer special session of the Legislature.

Hobby later told Bynum, and news reporters, that he considered Bynum one of the saboteurs.

In a recent speech to school board members and administrators in San Antonio, Bynum predicted the provision of the reform bill for competency testing of teachers would result in a teacher shortage.

"If it produces a shortage of teachers because of a shortage of competent teachers, then so be it," White said Thursday.

"Why not say the positive side of it that there will be new incentives for teachers to go into the classroom because of improved discipline and because of improved salaries?"

"That's the kind of positive statements that are in this bill and this legislation, and I hope that the (new state) board will hire people that understand that," White said.

"It's too bad we had a failure at the leadership of the Texas Education Agency to be a part of that."

Sheriff indicted

DALLAS (AP) — Kaufman County Sheriff Roy Brockway says he will not resign from office following his indictment by a federal grand jury in connection with alleged violations of the civil rights of two 23-year-old men.

Grand jurors on Thursday handed down the indictment on two misdemeanor counts. Brockway, 53, is unopposed this year in his race for a sixth term.

"We've contended all along that Sheriff Brockway has not violated anyone's civil rights," said the sheriff's attorney, Doug Mulder of Dallas. "But I think the time, place and forum for us to defend this is the courtroom before a jury."

odds and ends, he said.

"We kind of laid the matter to rest after filing the first complaint," Vaughn conceded. "It was out of our hands and in the hands of the court."

A warrant for Morgan had been issued but unserved. Following further complaints from neighbors, the warrant was served on Wednesday and police arrested the 61-year-old widow.

"Her contention is that it's her property, and she should be allowed to do what she wants. To an extent, she's right, except for the odor and smell and the drawing card for rats," Vaughn said.

"She just doesn't seem to think she's doing anything wrong," Young said.

"We consider it to be trash and junk and unsanitary, and it's got to go... It just looks terrible," Vaughn added.

On Thursday, Mrs. Morgan pleaded guilty to five violations of the city ordinance and paid fines totaling $150.

Vaughn said the woman agreed to clean up the property and remove the junk "in a roundabout way."

"We're going to wait about a week and see what happens. She said she doesn't think it's right for the city to do this," he said.

Young pointed out that each day the ordinance is violated amounts to a separate offense.

"We don't enjoy doing what we have to do. The city intends to enforce the ordinance to the fullest extent. We will continue filing on her until she cleans it up. The community is sick and tired of this trash," Vaughn said.

"It gives me joy and peace of mind...I have to work," Morgan told The Pampa News. "Sometimes I work out here until midnight."

The woman's stacks of junk fill her backyard, storage shed and a two-car garage to the ceiling.

Included in the collection are scraps of wood, doors and building materials, tarps and cloth, old boxes and cans, discarded toys, furniture and ruptured mattresses.

Neighbors said Morgan drives her pickup to dumpsters, picks out desired items and carts them home.

Morgan said she has accumulated much of her items and admits digging some out of the garbage.

The woman points out that a tall wooden fence shields the view of her backyard and she denies that the assortment puts off a foul smell.

She said she cleans and repairs the goods. She sells some of the things in periodic rummage sales at the front of the house and gives other items to the Salvation Army and "people who need them."

Mrs. Morgan is a native of McLean. Her husband worked 20 years for that city before retiring. When Interstate 40 bypassed McLean, the Morgans were paid for their home on the right of way of the new federal highway, she said.

The couple moved to Pampa and bought the home on Mary Ellen in 1980, shortly before her husband died, she said.

Mrs. Morgan has four sons and four daughters but lives in the home alone.

One of her daughters, Eva Hawley of Pampa, said her mother just isn't up to date on city rules.

"One person's trash is another person's treasure," Hawley said.

"She had lived in the country all of her life. It's hard for her to get used to living in the city. She knows she has to follow city rules, and she will," she added.

"I convinced her to plead guilty. I think she understands that it's trash. She's going to clean it up," Hawley said.

rises and decreases.

Unemployment in Hemphill county for August 1983 was 4.4 percent.

With 524 jobs filled, Roberts County had an August unemployment rate of 2.4 percent, down from 3.1 percent in July.

Wheeler County's unemployment rate dropped from four percent to 2.7 percent in August, with 3,989 jobs filled. Lipscomb County's rate dropped from 1.7 in July to 1.4

percent in August, listing a total of 2,137 jobs filled.

Vance attributed part of the better job market in Pampa to high retail sales.

"There's a heavy demand in retail sales, medical services, food services, domestic work and quite a variety of general labor," he said. "There is a moderate demand for construction, secretarial and clerical work and oil field and farm labor."

New education panel looks at problems

AUSTIN (AP) — The Legislature dictated what it wants done for public education in Texas. Now it's up to the 15 members of the new State Board of Education to figure out how to do it.

"There is a lot to do," said Jon Brumley, the Fort Worth oilman who serves as chairman.

"Once we see what the problems are, we'll be able to relax a little bit. But I think when you are in the midst of being told the problems it makes you anxious. There's a lot of anxiety," he added.

That the board faces a big job became obvious about 90 minutes into the Thursday meeting when everything already was behind schedule. Texas Education Agency officials did not have time to complete the presentations they planned.

"We're trying to do too much here," Brumley said, telling his colleagues to spend more time listening than asking questions during the sessions. "We're not moving as fast as we'd like to."

The goal Thursday was to brief the board members on the questions they face. Education Commissioner Raymon Bynum read a list of problems that need solutions. Some are problems caused by differing interpretations of the reform education package approved this year by lawmakers.

Many of the problems must be given an "extremely urgent" priority, Bynum told the board.

Among the most pressing issues is the teacher competency test program mandated in the new law. All Texas public-school teachers must pass an exam by June 30, 1986 in order to stay in the classroom. Bynum said work must begin immediately on developing a test program.

"I frankly think we are going to have some difficulty" getting a test together in time, he said.

The board also must interpret the new law's academic requirements, including a mandate against social promotions. The law says 70 is the passing grade.

Tom Anderson, a deputy commissioner, told board members the problem is, "What does a grade of 70 mean?"

"Right now, there is no consistency among the districts as to what a grade of 70 means," said Anderson.

He also raised questions about the high school diploma test mandated by the Legislature.

"How hard do you want the test?" he asked, adding that "a majority" of students would not be able to pass a test requiring a 12th-grade reading level.

The board also must determine what to do about students who do not pass the test, and students — such as some special education participants — who probably have no chance of passing it, according to Anderson.

Bynum said school districts across the state are looking for clarification of the new attendance requirements, including a provision requiring a failing grade for more than five "unexcused absences."

There is confusion as to what constitutes an "unexcused absence," he said.

The Thursday meeting was the board's first in the meeting room designed for the 27-member elected board abolished as part of the reform act.

Justice promises hard work, honesty

AUSTIN (AP) — Raul A. Gonzalez, the newest justice of the Texas Supreme Court and the first Mexican-American, promised Gov. Mark White that he would bring two things to the job.

"I'll give you hard work and honest decisions," Gonzalez said Thursday as White named him to the high court bench.

In making the appointment, White noted that Gonzalez is the son of migrant farmworkers.

"Raul Gonzalez remembers his earliest experiences as a migrant worker in Texas, and his appointment to the state's highest court demonstrates that the doors of opportunity are open to all persons in our state," White said.

"I am delighted that Judge Gonzalez has accepted this appointment, making this a historic day in Texas," White said.

Gonzalez, 44, has been an associate justice on the 13th Court of Appeals. He will complete the unexpired term of Charles Barrow, who stepped down from the Supreme Court last month to become dean of the Baylor University Law School. The term extends until Dec. 31, 1988.

The Texas Supreme Court is the highest state appellate court for civil and constitutional cases. Criminal cases go to the Court of Criminal Appeals.

White said that Gonzalez, as the second of five children, worked with his parents harvesting apples in Washington, cotton in Arkansas, and tomatoes and apricots in California before the family settled in Weslaco, where Gonzalez completed high school.

A graduate of the University of Texas, Gonzalez received his law degree from the University of Houston Law School in 1966 and currently is working on a master's degree in judicial process from the University of Virginia Law School.

He was appointed to the 13th Court of Appeals in 1981. Before that, Gonzalez was a judge of the 103rd state District Court at Brownsville, a post he held from 1978 to 1980.

From 1969 to 1973, Gonzalez was an assistant U.S. attorney for the southern district of Texas, and was chief of the U.S. attorney's Brownsville division. He also worked as an assistant city attorney for Houston.

"His legal and judicial experience makes him uniquely qualified to serve on the Texas Supreme Court," White said.

White had been under some pressure to appoint a minority to the Supreme Court bench. In announcing the appointment of Gonzalez, the governor's office noted that White has named 153 Mexican-Americans to state boards, commissions and other positions.

Asked if he had specifically sought a Hispanic judge, White said he was looking only for "a quality appointment."

The governor said everyone he consulted about Gonzalez "said he was first class, and that's why I made the appointment."

Gonzalez, who said he was a Democrat and would seek election when his Supreme Court term expires in 1988, was named to the 13th Court of Appeals by then-Gov. Bill Clements, a Republican.

"I did not ask to be appointed to that," Gonzalez said. "I did not know Gov. Clements at the time. I am a Democrat ... but when the brass ring came by, I hung on to it."

Mother says son frustrated with unsolved burglaries

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — The mother of a man charged with shooting an 11-year-old boy he believed to be involved in a string of burglaries said she understands what drove her son to violence.

Martha Francis Ballard, who lives at the Lakeview Trailer Park owned by her son, Evert Bowen Ballard Jr., said he had grown frustrated with failed efforts by local police to solve a slew of recent burglaries at the trailer court.

"They came out here every time we had one, but nothing was solved and they were getting worse," Mrs. Ballard said Thursday.

Ballard, 48, was released on a $50,000 bond Thursday afternoon after being charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon.

The victim, Juan Antonio Saucedo of Weslaco, remained in stable condition in the intensive care unit of Knapp Memorial Hospital suffering from buckshot wounds to his abdomen and arm suffered in the shooting Wednesday night.

Ballard, dressed in camouflage wounded by the burglaries, said Erasmio Bravo of the Hidalgo County Sheriff's Department.

Mrs. Ballard said most of the park's 175 lots are rented by elderly visitors who spend winter months in South Texas.

She said her son, a Korean War veteran, was frustrated by the 24 robberies at the park in the last four months and decided to take matters into his own hands.

Bravo said police investigators had been at the Ballard home less than two hours before the shooting occurred.

He said Ballard did not tell police he had discovered some of the stolen goods but had left them hidden so he could "stake out" the scene and wait for the robbers to return for the stereo equipment, televisions and electronic gear taken from the trailers.

Leader says restricted punishment lowers quality of the A&M Corps

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — New guidelines restricting punishment of underclassmen in Texas A&M's Corps of Cadets may lower the quality of the organization, the student leader of the group said.

The limitations were begun after a 20-year-old sophomore, Bruce Goodrich, died of heat stroke during an alleged hazing incident.

"There's a certain amount of harassment that needs to go on because of the way we're structured and what we're set up to do," said Chuck Rollins, the corps' commander.

The new rules limit immediate punishment to 20 pushups. Previously the number has been left to the discretion of upperclassmen in the corps.

The rules also abolish "bull rings," in which a cadet marches in a small courtyard carrying a rifle, and "sitting a weekend," during which a cadet must don full uniform and report every two hours to the corps' guardhouse.

"A lot of the pressure has disappeared and a lot of respect has gone with it," Rollins, 21, said in a speech to a sophomore honorary society Wednesday.

Rollins said older forms of punishment did a better job of instilling the corps' military discipline.

"As soon as you do it, you feel like you're cleansed of your sins," Rollins said.

He said "physical discipline is the easiest and quickest way" to teach military training to younger students.

Goodrich died Aug. 30, hours after he was awakened at 2:30 a.m. and forced to run and do situps and pushups until he collapsed. Even then, he was encouraged to get up and continue, university officials have said.

Such late night or early morning "motivational exercises" have always been frowned upon, but daytime versions of the grueling workouts have gone on for years, Rollins said.

Three juniors who were present when Goodrich collapsed and a senior have been indicted on misdemeanor criminal charges in the death. Juniors Anthony D'Allesandro and Jason Miles, both 21 and from Houston and 20-year-old Louis Fancher of San Antonio are charged with negligent homicide and hazing.

Senior Gabriel Cuadra, a 21-year-old from Houston, is charged with hazing and tampering with evidence.

The four belonged to the corps unit that Goodrich had joined that week.

Dr. J.C. Lee, a Bryan pathologist, said Thursday the final report confirmed Goodrich died of heat stroke.

"Essentially, he was a healthy young man," Lee said. "When you overdo it, (heat stroke) usually happens very abruptly without warning signs. It is rare, but not strange."

Goodrich, a transfer student from Webster, N.Y., may have been affected by the difference in climate between his home state and Texas, but Lee said that assertion would be impossible to prove.

A diuretic and an antibiotic prescribed to the cadet did not contribute to his death, Lee said.

'Blue Ghost' showing signs of age

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The Navy says the USS Lexington, its oldest aircraft carrier still in operation, could be docked soon for overhaul, according to documents obtained by a newspaper.

Unofficial Navy reports quoted by the Corpus Christi Caller-Times said the 41-year-old carrier is showing signs of age and will need substantial repairs at a Philadelphia shipyard.

The ship, which became known during World War II as the "Blue Ghost," should set a course out of the Gulf of Mexico for Philadelphia within the next few months, said Cmdr. Steve Glidden, operations officer for Naval Air Training.

Sailors gave the nickname to the carrier when she kept turning up after recurring reports that she was 40 fathoms down.

Officials said the Lexington's firepower downed more than 1,000 enemy planes and sent 300,000 tons of Japanese shipping to the bottom during World War II.

The Lexington has since served as the Navy's only full-time training carrier.

League supports partisan agenda

A Massachusetts woman recently sent a contribution to the League of Women Voters, which she recalled as a non-partisan organization. She got a thank-you form letter in reply from the league's national president, Dorothy S. Ridings. The Massachusetts woman was shocked to discover that the league wasn't what she remembered at all—it had adopted a quite partisan agenda.

The thank-you letter said the contribution would be put to use "right away" in one of the areas of interest to the league—such as "lobbying Congress in opposition to the building of space weapons" or fighting in favor of the Equal Rights Amendment or permissive abortion or environmentalism or similar causes. "Together," Ridings informed the contributor, "you and I can meet those challenges and have a lasting, positive impact on public policy."

The old gray league ain't what it used to be. On such issues, the League of Women Voters is much closer to the official "liberal" positions of the Democratic Party of Walter Mondale than the official "conservative" positions of the Republican Party of Ronald Reagan.

Yet is is the League of Women Voters which again has been entrusted with the task of sponsoring the presidential and vice presidential debates this fall, including the selection of debate sites and the moderators and journalists to participate in the debates.

Needless to say, the league's quite partisan agenda would have a considerably better chance of being attained in the November election if the victors are Mondale-Ferraro rather than Reagan-Bush.

Not that substantial manipulation of the debates seems likely despite league sponsorship. But what about the opportunity for little things, like a disproportionate number of audience admissions going to those supporting league goals.

Now that the league's agenda is so close to that of Reagan's foes, why not simply ask the Democratic Party to arrange the debates instead. Of, if plain old partisanship doesn't disqualify debate arrangers any more, why not have the debates arranged by the Libertarian Party? We wouldn't complain.

The shocked Massachusetts contributor said she was going to ask the league to return her donation. If Reagan-Bush don't like the way the debates work out, can they ask or some sort of refund, too.

Striking back at media

NEW YORK (NEA) — Possibly the most vicious single practice engaged in by our imperial media is their habit of publicizing some totally unwarranted charge against an honorable public official, then (after it is duly discredited) dusting it off and bringing it up, year after year, in some condensed and misleading form as a part of the victim's supposed curriculum vitae.

Thus Bert Lance, who was duly tried by a jury of his peers and never convicted of anything, is often casually described as "Lance, who resigned as Carter's budget director in the wake of charges involving improper bank loans." And of course the full name of Salvadoran conservative leader Roberto d'Aubuisson, who has not only never been convicted but has not even been specifically accused of a deniable crime, is "d'Aubuisson Whose Name Has Been Linked With Right-Wing Death Squads."

Another favorite punching bag of this type is Richard Allen, who lost his job as President Reagan's national security adviser in 1982 in a White House power play. About the same time, somebody discovered that he had told an aide to turn over $1,000, paid by a Japanese magazine for an interview with Nancy Reagan, to the proper authorities and had then forgotten it. (It subsequently turned up in a White House office safe.)

Allen and his wife had also accepted three $135 wristwatches from personal Japanese friends. Investigations of these sinister actions, by the Justice Department and the Office of White House Counsel, respectively, resulted in published findings that no crime was involved in either case, and the matter was dropped.

Except, that is, by the media. Last spring, when the usual mud-gunsners were warming up on Ed Meese, whom President Reagan had nominated to be attorney general, several of them fondly recalled previous uproars of the same general type. Even earlier, in April 1983, USA Today had casually asserted that Allen "resigned as National Security adviser for President Reagan following allegations that he accepted bribes from Japanese journalists."

So, The Wall Street Journal's liberal news staff had plenty of precedent for coming up with this beauty: "Mr. Allen, then President Reagan's national security adviser, received $1,000 from Japanese journalists for helping arrange an interview with Nancy Reagan." Joseph Kraft, in his column, recalled that President Reagan once "had a national security adviser who took watches from Japanese businessmen." Anthony Lewis of The New York Times was more detailed: "Allen," he said, "had resigned when found to have accepted $1,000 and three watches from representatives of a Japanese magazine for whom he had arranged an interview with Nancy Reagan."

According to an ABC network news report, Allen "set up an interview with Mrs. Reagan for a Japanese magazine, but resigned when it turned out he'd accepted $1,000 payment for his trouble."

Appalled, Allen took his problem to Arnold & Porter, one of Washington's most formidable law firms. I am glad to say that, as a result of letters from them, every one of the above-mentioned authors has retracted and apologized for his misstatements.

But what about the rest of the national media? Must Dick Allen suffer these calumnies, and hire expensive lawyers to force retractions and apologies, for the rest of his life?

Not if he can help it. Arnold & Porter have just advised every major news organization in the country — newspapers, wire services, magazines, television and radio networks and stations, syndicated columnists and others — that future misrepresentations of this type "will be actionable at law."

Bravo, Dick Allen! My hunch is that you have focused the attention of the media brilliantly, and are likely to disappear from the public smear-vats pretty fast. I hope you have blazed a trail for scores of others, victimized as you have been.

Today in History

Today is Friday, Oct. 5, the 279th day of 1984. There are 87 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Oct. 5, 1947, in the first address televised from the White House, President Harry Truman asked Americans to go without meat on Tuesdays and eggs and chicken on Thursdays to build up a stockpile of grain for Europe.

On this date: Five years ago: Pope John Paul delivered an address on religious policy at a closed meeting of 250 American bishops in Chicago. The pope reaffirmed the church's stand against birth control, divorce, abortion, homosexuality and extra-marital sex.

One year ago: Polish labor leader Lech Walesa was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts on behalf of Polish workers.

Today's birthdays: Producer-director Joshua Logan is 76. Actor Donald Pleasance is 65. Actress Glynis Johns is 61. Comedian Bill Dana is 60. Singer Steve Miller is 41. Actress Karen Allen is 33.

Thought for today: "Art is a lie that enables us to realize the truth." — Pablo Picasso, (1881-1973).

Let's drop the subject

Emotionally and intellectually, each of us can be two different animals. Who hasn't thought perhaps aloud, "half of me wants to be bad; half of me wants to be good"?

Each of us is a paradox, a contradiction, a combination of saint and sinner.

Voltaire likened each of us to "a chariot driver pulled by two horses - a white one and a black one - and the trick is to keep both pulling in the same direction."

Each of us is proud if our elected leader embraces our own religion; none of us wants a political leader imposing any religion.

I wish in the present confrontation between two nice guys wanting to be president the subject had never come up.

At the GOP convention in Dallas, packets of materials furnished to the delegates included a copy of the New Testament. Not the whole Bible.

Just the New Testament. In a secular gathering that was an unkind and stupid affront to Jewish delegates, to all Jews. Walter Mondale's assertion that Reagan is trying to sell the idea that "God is a Republican" is unworthy and devious.

And as this subject is admitted into the campaign debates, voter attention is diverted from pertinent issues of federal deficit, taxes, arms, Latin American policy, welfare, immigration, and Soviet relations.

New York's eloquent Gov. Mario Cuomo, Catholic, at Notre Dame, defended the overlap of principles and politics. "Unless we Catholics set an example that is clear and compelling, then we will never convince this society to change the civil laws to protect what we preach."

But then he limited that, "example." He said, "The use of religion for political gain is frightening..."

He, too, struggles with the grand dichotomy. The religious right, paradoxically, did not unanimously support the professed born-again believer Jimmy Carter. It is supporting a president who rarely attends church and whose contributions to church and charity are less than exemplary.

But President Reagan does espouse traditional family values, a timely response to a present national hunger.

David Little, professor of religious studies, University of Virginia, offers reassurance. He says, "There is a strong commitment to tolerance in this country. If any group pushes too hard, there is a reaction."

And sure enough the latest Gallup Poll shows that 75 percent of Americans wish the politicians would stop even mentioning religion.

Federal pensions ticking bomb

BY DR. HOWARD KERSHNER
The Grace Commission has reported that transfer payments in 1970 totalled $80 billion; thirteen years later, 1983, these payments had risen 460 percent, to a total of $454 billion.

Transfer payments continue to climb and are projected at $1,048.2 trillion in 1990 and, by the end of the century, $4,973.5 trillion, an incomprehensible sum!

An equally incomprehensible and impossible sum is the growth of public employee pensions during the same period. A mayor or governor is able to satisfy the employee unions by an increase of pensions rather than an increase in wages, or sometimes a very modest increase in wages along with a large increase in pensions. This does not upset his current budget. He is postponing the problem to a future generation rather than meeting it head on at the time.

U.S. Sen. John Tower, Room 142, Russell Building, Washington, D.C., 20510.

He will trade, say, $2 in pension rights 20 to 40 years ahead, for possibly half of that or less in increased wages at the time. This permits him to balance the budget by burdening future generations. It smoothes his life, probably beyond his term of office.

A year or two hence, he does it again and, a little later, once more. As a result, pension obligations go roaring upward. For instance, when Speaker O'Neill, a Democrat, and Senator Dole, a Republican, leave the House of Representatives and the Senate, they will be able to live comfortably on pensions that will cumulatively total well over $1 million each, if they live out their life expectancies.

In proportion, the same is true of every other senator, congressman, federal judge, on down to the lowest rank of federal employee. This, plus the already impossible but growing load of transfer payments, is what creates the huge deficits and is leading us down the road at ever-increasing speed toward the disaster of bankruptcy!

This crisis will come when the value of our printing - press money decreases to the point where the last so-called money will not buy enough paper to print another batch. This has happened over and over in other countries.

Will we never learn? If not, we are destined to go through the same suffering: loss of wealth, loss of our ability to provide health care and adequate education for our youth and older people and a severe decline in our scale of living. There is no escape. Arithmetic cannot be juggled to pay out more than we, the people, provide.

Transfer payments create a certain euphoria for a little while, but in the end they bring greater suffering and poverty for all. Pension commitments are an expedient way for public officials to satisfy excessive demands while appearing to hold the line on their budgets. And they both use up wealth that should be used to create additional working capital, jobs, and well-being for all the people.

Final arguments scheduled in trial

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Final arguments were scheduled today in the murder trial of a 39-year-old housewife who testified she and her daughter set her husband on fire while he slept because he constantly abused his family.

Cheryl Kay Oates and her daughter, 18-year-old Robin Renee Elliott, testified they could not recall who first suggested throwing gasoline on Nick Eugene Oates while he slept on a waterbed and set him ablaze in March.

Defense attorneys rested their case late Thursday. State District Judge Billy John Edwards set final arguments for 9:30 a.m. today.

Mother and daughter agreed in testimony that burning the construction foreman "seemed to be the only way out" of years of abuse. Both women are accused of murdering Oates, who died of a heart attack in April from the sustained burns.

Miss Elliott, an honors student, unemotionally demonstrated for jurors how she threw "about a quart" of gasoline on the 38-year-old Oates as he lay, "passed out," on the waterbed.

She earlier sobbed as she described how her stepfather beat her, Mrs. Oates, five other children and killed family pets.

Miss Elliott said officials withdrew a scholarship she had earned to the Air Force Academy after she was charged in connection with her stepfather's murder.

"You threw all that away when you did this, didn't you?" asked Criminal District Attorney Jorge Solis.

"Yes, sir, I did," she said.

Ex-agent admits aiding smugglers

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A former federal narcotics agent has pleaded guilty to helping drug smugglers who shipped millions of dollars worth of marijuana through the Memphis area.

Harold "Slim" Lawrence, 50, pleaded guilty Thursday to one conspiracy count of a six-count indictment, stopping a trial that had been under way in U.S. District Court for three days.

The other charges against him were dropped in exchange for the guilty plea.

A convicted drug smuggler, Robert Fullerton of Cheyenne, Wyo., testified early in the trial that he paid Lawrence "more than $500,000, less than a million" over several years of business dealings.

Just hours before his surprise change of plea, Lawrence resigned from the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, said his lawyer, Thomas E. Hanson.

Lawrence refused comment following his guilty plea, saying, "My attorney is answering those questions."

He faces a maximum sentence of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Lawrence was charged in the federal indictment with providing protection for marijuana shipments brought into the Memphis area and with supplying drug smugglers with confidential government information.

He also was charged with stealing marijuana from DEA storage and passing it along to an accomplice for resale.

Judge Odell Horton ordered a pre-sentence investigation, but did not set a date for sentencing.

Prosecutor Reid Weingarten of the Justice Department said the government reserved the right to make a statement at the sentencing hearing.

The plea came after a morning of conferences between defense lawyers and prosecutors.

"It's a fair resolution of the case," Weingarten said.

As part of his guilty plea, Lawrence stipulated that he would not testify against his brother, John Lawrence, who is also charged with helping Fullerton smuggle marijuana. John Lawrence remains at large.

Hanson said Lawrence will remain free on his own recognizance until a sentence is handed down.

He said Lawrence's concern about testifying against his brother was a major reason for changing his plea from innocent to guilty.

"I've been to trial with a lot worse cases and walked free," said Hanson, who has characterized the government's witnesses in the case as "sleaze-balls."

Fullerton, who is serving a five-year smuggling sentence at a federal prison in Colorado, testified that Lawrence provided "security" for shipments of marijuana flown into several Memphis-area airports beginning in 1978.

"He would cover the ground crew and make sure the police didn't get there while they were unloading," Fullerton testified.

One shipment, a DC-7 airliner loaded with 25,000 to 35,000 pounds of marijuana, was landed at an airport in West Memphis, Ark., just across the Mississippi River from Memphis, said Fullerton, a former narcotics agent with the Texas Department of Public Safety.

He said that shipment was worth up to $8 million on the wholesale market and Lawrence was paid $150,000 for his help in protecting it.

Officials seek herbicide drift source

AUSTIN (AP) — Penalties for improper application of a weed-killer will be levied in a few cases after the herbicide drifted and damaged cotton crops, state agriculture officials say.

A Department of Agriculture lawyer said Thursday that officials found "a lot of possible sources" of 2,4-D, a weed-killer used on wheat crops, but only a few violators can be identified.

The chemical killed some cotton plants and damaged others this past summer in Deaf Smith and Palmer counties.

"We found a lot of possible sources for each instance of drift and we found numerous permit violators," said Sam Biscoe, general counsel for the state agriculture department.

"In very, very few cases were we able to pinpoint one or two applicators" as responsible for the drift, he said.

The weed-killer has not been banned, and Biscoe said the season is "just about over."

"Next year we ought to at least suspend use of it on wheat during cotton season," he said, adding that the agriculture department is moving toward taking that action.

Offshore exploration dead - for now

By FRED BAYLES
AP Business Writer
BOSTON (AP) — After seven years of court battles over offshore oil exploration in the Georges Bank fishing grounds off New England, the simple question of dollars and cents may have settled the question — at least for now.

The failure of a single company to bid at last week's sale of 6.5 million acres in the area — the first time a lease sale was ignored by the industry — has been attributed to low oil prices and worries over court challenges.

But financial analysts believe the past investment of $1 billion for eight dry wells in the area led oil companies to write off — for the present — the watery frontier once thought to conceal as much as 530 million barrels of oil.

"I think the industry's enthusiasm for the prospects is lukewarm at best," said William Randol, of the investment firm of First Boston Corp.

The U.S. Interior Department had been scheduled to open bids Sept. 26 on some 1,000 tracts, 100 to 200 miles off Cape Cod.

But the sale, long opposed by state officials, was first blocked by a federal judge, then canceled after the Interior Department found there were no bids by oil companies.

U.S. District A. David Mazzone's injunction against the sale called the federal plan "hopelessly skewed." Mazzone said Interior Secretary William Clark failed to balance the benefits of oil exploration against its potential risks to the Northeast's $1 billion fishing industry.

Mazzone's ruling became moot when the sale deadline passed without a bid.

Norman Altstedter, of Shell Oil Co., said a number of factors kept Shell out of the sale, including a sixfold increase in the minimum required bid.

Also high on Shell's list was "the geology obtained in past unsuccessful drilling experiences in the North Atlantic and mid-Atlantic," Altstedter said.

Mobil Corp. also cited past experience. "The fact is our drilling programs in the Atlantic Georges Bank and Baltimore Canyon (area off the mid-Atlantic states) were a deep disappointment to us," said spokesman John Flint.

But Interior Department officials said that private conversations with oil company executives indicated there were other reasons. Oil companies, they said, expressed an interest in several hundred tracts removed from the sale because of environmental objections raised by state officials.

Industry analysts say oil companies do not want to gamble exploration funds on a doubtful bet. Instead, offshore exploration has centered on the proven oil fields in the Gulf of Mexico and off the coast of Alaska.

Analysts say activity in Georges Bank is unlikely for three to five years. But no one is willing to say that oil hunters will never return.

Neurologist's head wants boxing banned

CHICAGO (AP) — Spurred by the sight of Muhammad Ali having difficulty speaking in a television interview, the head of a 7,000-member neurologists' group is joining other physicians in calling for a ban on boxing, according to an article today.

Dr. Nelson Richards said he had previously agreed with an American Medical Association panel's stance that although boxing is harmful it cannot be outlawed and thus should be adequately policed.

"However, a few months ago, I saw Muhammad Ali on a television interview and I was struck that this man who previously was known for his glibness was almost unintelligible," said Richards, head of the Minneapolis-based American Acadadofaneurology.

"Even on TV, it was apparent to me that he had some kind of neurological damage," he said in an article in the American Medical Association's American Medical News.

"I changed my mind," Richards said. "Boxing should be banned."

Ali's physician, Dr. Stanley Fahn, is quoted in a separate article as saying Ali's mild neurological disease — parkinsonism — could have been caused by many things, but most probably was caused by blows to the head from boxing.

Physicians who oversee safety in boxing have argued that studies suggesting the sport produces chronic brain damage are inconclusive, and that boxers enter rings knowing that some amount of risk is involved in the sport.

"I cannot condone a so-called sport that defines itself by having one man try to destroy another," Richards said. "And no matter what the ringside physician does, no matter how thorough the medical exams, no matter how many CAT scans — there is no way of predicting who is at risk, and when," Richards said.

Genetic engineering may move from labs to outdoors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Genetic engineering, confined so far to laboratories and limited health uses because of fears that a mutant bacteria might run amok, could move to the great outdoors next year under new government guidelines.

The Environmental Protection Agency, jumping into the fracas over recombinant DNA research, plans to publish a policy statement next week laying the groundwork for allowing genetically altered microbes to be tested for Frederick Betz, an EPA biologist, said Thursday that the Monsanto Corp. "has come in for very preliminary discussions" in an effort to conduct field tests in 1985 on a genetically engineered insecticide it has developed.

Betz said several companies working on genetically engineered pesticides have approached EPA about developing a policy for allowing small field studies confined to 10 acres or less of land or one surface acre of water.

But he said Monsanto is the only company so far that has said it is "interested in moving ahead" with the experiments.

In announcing an interim policy Thursday for handling such requests, John Moore, EPA's assistant administrator for pesticides and toxic substances, said the agency wants at least 90 days to evaluate any specific proposed test for potential risks it might pose to the public's health.

"Although EPA does not have reason to believe that any harmful conditions will necessarily occur, the agency believes it should take a closer look at direct releases of these microbial pesticides into the environment," Moore said.

The new policy covers both naturally occurring micro-organisms to be used as pesticides outside their native habitat and bacteria that has been genetically altered or manipulated by researchers.

If after a 90-day review EPA is not satisfied with the data on laboratory experiments on the pesticides or still has serious environmental and health concerns about outdoor testing, it can require the researchers to obtain an experimental use permit.

Those permits, not normally needed for conventional chemical pesticides, require much more detailed information prior to an experiment and establish specific controls on any tests.

Computers track water use but humans decide shutoff

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Customers living under the city water rationing plan begin receiving bills this week, and those using more than their fair share will be targeted and threatened with loss of service, officials say.

Those on the first cycle will get bills in the next few days telling them how much water they used between the start of rationing Aug. 25 and Sept. 25.

The bill will inform customers of their allocation, whether it has been exceeded and the amount of surcharge on any excess. Customers who exceed their allocation by more than 4,000 gallons will pay $43 for that amount and $25 for each 1,000 gallons beyond.

Ration violators also will have taken the first step toward losing their water, said Eva Evans, customer service supervisor for the city's public utilities department.

According to the rationing ordinance, a residential customer could have his or her water disconnected if they go over the 4,000-gallon limit more than once.

The first time water is reconnected, it will cost $50. The second reconnect will cost $500, Ms. Evans said.

A computer is being used to calculate water use and charges for each customer and "flag" those who go over the allocation. The computer will print lists of first- and second-time violators.

The decision to disconnect permanently is not automatic and will be made by a member of the public utilities staff.

"Our goal is to conserve water, not collect money in fines or shut off people's water," Public Utilities Director Doug Matthews said.

He said when a customer has been found in violation of the allocation twice, a service representative will visit the customer's residence to discuss the problem.

Commercial users, including businesses, restaurants and industrial plants, have been allocated 75 percent of the average monthly usage for the same period last year.

Apartment complexes and mobile home parks received allocations based on the number of units in the complex.

While bills have only begun to be mailed, fines for violating water use rules have already been levied against a number of citizens, officials said.

Although the maximum fine is $200 for violations, most of the fines have been about $56, said Assistant City Attorney Gary Patterson.

Most citations have been issued against single-family residence customers.

"A few people have been a little huffy and we have one customer who has turned the matter over to his lawyer," Patterson said. "Other than that, there have been no problems."

Gena on Genealogy

By GENA WALLS
Are you a DUVALL descendant with a favorite family recipe? One that can be traced back several generations and that you would like to have included in a family cook book? The book has been sent to several printers for bids; however any new recipes will try to be included prior to printing. Send them to: Donald D. Duvall, 3414 Taylor St., Chevy Chase, Md., 20815.

Cookbooks are an excellent way to raise funds to pursue the family tree. The books make excellent gifts too, and can be as personalized as you wish them to be. For example, you might include a little about the recipe or the original cook or the location and a picture if available. Check with several printers before beginning the project to get an estimate of cost and format.

Do you have a family cemetery with unmarked graves? Please consider an inexpensive flat marker containing name and dates to help future generations. If a marker is not possible, draw a map of the cemetery, grave by grave, listing all known information.

Include other relatives or neighbors that might know more about the site and if it is on private property, give directions to location. When this is complete, make several copies placing one with the family Bible and give several to others. The local genealogical society would like to have a copy.

Remember to take chalk or a brush and flour with you to assist in reading the older monuments. Do NOT use anything that will deface the marker! Take your camera. Several pictures, one individually and then one of groups that appear to be connected. This might be helpful later in providing that missing link.

Watch for double markers.

markers that say "child of..." those with fraternal signs, veterans of various wars, etc. Also, if a different surname appears to be surrounded by the same family, try to connect it with the family. Usually, families were buried together but not always. For example, men were usually buried with the first wife, even if they had been married several times. Other wives might be buried in the same area or with children or with their parents.

If you find ancestors in a well kept cemetery especially a private one, locate the caretaker. This might be an excellent source to family history. Also, a grave that has flowers on it indicates that someone is caring for the deceased and that person might be a relative. Pursue every possible lead! Happy Hunting!

Dear Abby

Grandma claims sex is price that women pay for marriage

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: "Mismatched" said that her husband would be satisfied with sex three times a week, but twice a month was enough for her.

With all the frank talk about sex these days, I'm surprised "Mismatched" didn't know that men are every-nighters, and women are once-a-weekers.

Her grandmother could have told her that marriage is the price a man pays for sex, and sex is the price a woman pays for marriage.

GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: "Mismatched" was not speaking for all women—only for herself. She didn't "know" that men are every-nighters and women are once-a-weekers because it's not a fact—it's hogwash that's been handed down from mother to daughter along with, "No decent woman really enjoys sex; it's just something she has to put up with." Also, "Men need sex more often than women do."

Grandma, sexual appetites vary. Not all men are once-a-nighters; some are once-a-weekers, once-a-monthers, and some not-at-allers. Nor are all women once-a-weekers. Women range from once-a-nighters and once-a-weekers, to once-in-a-blue-mooners.

Furthermore, the person who says that marriage is the price a man pays for sex must have been unconscious for the last 25 years. It is not necessary for men to marry to obtain sex. And to say that sex is the price women pay for marriage labels all women as prostitutes.

Today's woman marries because she wants to—not because she needs a meal ticket. And women no longer submit to sex—they are equal partners.

Get with it, Grandma!

DEAR ABBY: My parents divorced about a year ago. My father is very bitter, and asks me all sorts of questions about my mother's social life. (Who is she dating? What do they look like? What do they do?) I have met many of her dates, but I feel very uncomfortable telling my father about them.

What should I do?

K. IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR K.: Be honest. Tell him you feel very uncomfortable answering questions about your mother's social life, and you'd appreciate it if he didn't ask. And if he persists, repeat the above.

DEAR ABBY: How do you think a girl would feel receiving an engagement ring that had been the engagement ring of her fiance's grandmother?

The grandmother is no longer living, and the girl never knew her. Except for sentimental value, the ring has very little value.

JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST: You are asking the wrong person. Ask the girl.

Panhandle museum exhibits lithographs

Political cartoons are by no means native to the United States as shown in the exhibit Daumier (do-me-a') Lithographs, which opened Oct. 4 at the Carson County Square House Museum.

Unlike other reproduction processes such as engraving, etching or wood engraving, all of which involve a translation of the original drawing, often by another craftsman, lithography permits the artist to draw directly on the printing surface, and the drawing is transferred unaltered and complete in every nuance of tone from a dense, velvety black to the white of the paper. The immediacy of the process appealed to publishers as well as artists and by the time Honore' Daumier made his first student prints in the early 1820s, lithography was well established as the preferred process for reproduction.

On loan from the Erie Art Museum, Erie, Pa., the lithographs in this exhibition were first printed in a French satirical journal founded in 1832 for the purpose of waging "warfare every day on the absurdities of every day." The new publication offered as one of its main attractions a full page lithograph on fine paper inserted in every issue. A regular contributor, Daumier soon revealed an unmatched mastery of the medium.

The works in Daumier

Lithographs are an arbitrary but representative selection of the artist's life work. Although the number of books and articles about Daumier is enormous, most of them reproduce many of the same examples again and again, something of a disservice to an artist who created nearly 5,000 prints and more than 1,200 unique works in his lifetime. For this reason, this selection should be of interest to the connoisseur as well as to the viewer less familiar with Daumier's work.

Daumier Lithographs are to be on exhibit at the museum through Oct. 28.

Jamaican to speak at Hi-Land Christian

Errol Bolt, a Jamaican minister, will be the guest of Hi-Land Christian Church, 1615 N. Banks, this weekend.

Hi-Land Christian Church is the forwarding congregation of the "Taking Christ to Jamaica Ministries" out of which Bolt works.

Bolt, a native of Jamaica, is minister at the Penwood Church of Christ in Kingston, Jamaica where he lives with his wife Carmen and their two daughters. He has been in the United States about five weeks visiting supporting churches and reporting on the progress of his work, as well as letting them know about future plans and projects.

Bolt will be giving the sermon at the 10:45 a.m. Sunday service at Hi-Land Christian Church and at 6:30 p.m. he will have a slide presentation of his work in Jamaica. A fellowship will follow the evening service. The public is invited.

Ghost town springs to life in 'roundup'

By BILL KACZOR
Associated Press Writer
PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — For 362 days a year, Bellview Junction looks like an old Western ghost town somehow transported to a pecan grove in the Florida Panhandle. The only thing missing is tumbleweed.

But for the other three days Bellview Junction and its 80-odd buildings, including Sweattfager's Hotel, Scalp's Barber Shop and a haunted house, are filled with people, food, ecumenical spirit and entertainment.

The celebration, known as St. Anne's Round-up, was started by a small Roman Catholic church to beef up its life and attendance and now attracts up to 150,000 visitors during its three-day annual run.

Proceeds aid charitable work among the needy at home and abroad.

Marking its 21st installment this weekend, the frontier-styled affair is the creation of the Rev. John Licari, pastor of St. Anne's Church in the Pensacola suburb of Bellview.

"As a kid I always liked westerns, although I'm from New York City," he said.

The 60-year-old priest says he began the event with a simple chicken dinner as an act of desperation to enliven his slumping parish. He had come to it with orders to expand its 40-family membership and build a new church.

His first Mass left him dejected. "The collection was $39 so I knew I had to do something," he says. "I was told to build a parish. You might as well tell me to go to the moon in a Piper Cub."

But Licari's brainchild caught on with an assist in 1968 from an acquaintance: retired heavyweight boxing champion Rocky Marciano.

"He came down gratis and we jumped from an attendance of 3,000 or 4,000 to about 30,000," Licari says.

Licari became convinced that celebrities were the only way to go.

Paid appearances since have been made by such actors as Martin Milner, Barry Newman, Robert Conrad, Jenilee Harrison, John Schneider and Patrick Duffy; television announcer Ed McMahon, and the late fried chicken magnate Col. Harlan Sanders. This year's guest is John James of the television show "Dynasty."

Licari knew the Round-up had arrived when a news reporter from Orlando called in 1971. He asked for verification that the Round-up, with a three-day attendance of 50,000 that year, had outdrawn the 10,000 opening-day visitors at Walt Disney World on the same weekend.

The Round-up now attracts visitors and 1,200 volunteers of nearly all faiths. Profits are shared with non-denominational charities.

"It's really a Round-up of a lot of talent and goodwill," Licari said.

The only dark cloud has been what Licari calls a "fringe group" that has distributed anti-Catholic literature just outside the grounds and once dropped leaflets from an airplane.

Licari said no effort is made to evangelize at the Round-up. Pensacola Mayor Vince Whibbs has characterized it as the greatest ecumenical effort in the Southeast.

Admission is free, but proceeds from food and games have aided orphans in India and Guatemala, a leper colony and numerous local charities.

The Round-up also has done what it was created to do. The parish has grown to 250 families and a new church was built debt-free in 1978.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The African Methodist Episcopal Church has reaffirmed its stand against abortion except in cases of rape or incest.

At its quadrennial governing conference, the 3 million-member, mainly black denomination also elected its first indigenous African bishop in recent times, the Rev. H.B. Senantle, 57, of South Africa.

The True Light

The true light that is intended for every man has come into the world. This light shines perpetually into the darkness in which man lives and the darkness cannot overcome it. It radiates from the manger stall at Bethlehem; it gleams from Calvary's hill; on Easter morn it broke the bonds of time and is eternally present in our world. Joy to the world indeed! Praise God from whom all blessings flow!

The light is here; we need not even ask it, but only open our eyes. Then why do so many walk yet in darkness? There is only one answer, they love darkness better than light. For those who stumble blindly about life and yearn for respite, there stands an eternal invitation — "Come unto me all ye who labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." For those whose hearts ache with emptiness — "Behold I stand at the door and knock. If any man will hear my voice and open the door I will come in to him."

Is something wrong with your life — an inner restless dissatisfaction? The answer to every human problem comes only from God our Maker. He alone can forgive and reassure. Through the church God has committed the provision and proclamation of His forgiveness and redeeming love. Without a church relation no one is securely related to God. Everyone should be in the Church and the Church in everyone!

British won an sues magazine over 'letter'

HOUSTON (AP) — A "letter" published by Time magazine was intended as a "light-hearted view of a news item" and was not meant to be taken seriously, a Time attorney said of a piece which has led to a libel suit.

Traci Lamb, 22, of London, filed a $1 million federal lawsuit Thursday against Time Inc., saying the magazine cast doubt on her morality, fidelity and chastity and caused her mental anguish and bodily pain with an article about a purported romp on the beach with a nude Prince Andrew.

Robert Marshall Jr., a lawyer for Time in New York, said Lamb's lawyers never asked for a retraction, but simply requested more information about the article. The item, he said, was written in such a way that "it's apparent on its face" that it is not intended to be taken as fact.

"It was intended to be a light-hearted view of a news item, and we will defend it in court," Marshall said.

The suit was filed over the text the magazine ran next to a picture of three women wearing bikinis. The item was written as if it were a letter from Ms. Lamb to her mother.

The piece ran in Time's People section April 18, 1983, about a month after three British tabloids reported Prince Andrew, on shore leave from the Royal Navy in Barbados, had "fallen" for Ms. Lamb.

News reports said the day after the two met at a cocktail party, Ms. Lamb and two other British women were spotted frolicking in the surf with the allegedly nude prince tugging at his companions' bikinis.

The "letter" read, in part, "We spent practically all day larking about in the pool. He couldn't keep his hands off us, but Mum, I promise, it was good clean fun."

"He told us his greatest fantasy was to go to a party dressed as a frog, kiss the prettiest girl and tell her he was a prince. Well, Mum, I've kissed a lot of frogs in my time, but now I've pecked a prince!"

The lawsuit says the implication Lamb wrote the letter is false and that the magazine published the material knowing it was false.

Physician leaves country after charges

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Authorities say that extradition proceedings are underway for the return of a 47-year-old physician who fled to Bolivia in the face of criminal charges.

Police said Thursday that Dr. Jorge Schultze has reportedly been living and practicing medicine in the South American country since his release on $50,000 bond from Fort Bend County Jail in connection with sexual misconduct allegations.

Schultze was indicted Aug. 20 by a county grand jury in connection with one count of indecency with a child and one count of aggravated sexual assault of a child, authorities said.

Paul Hughes, police chief of the Houston suburb of Meadows, said extradition proceedings are underway to return Schultze from Cochabamba, Bolivia.

Hughes said the two-count indictment stems from alleged attacks on a 10-year-old girl occurring between March and August.

Hughes said he and officers of the Metro-Dade County Police arrested Schultze Aug. 3 at the Miami International Airport, and that the doctor was indicted 17 days later.

The girl, who was returned to Texas in the custody of the Child Protective Services of the Department of Human Resources, has since been placed in a foster home, Hughes said.

Schultze was booked into Dade County Jail and later released to Hughes' custody.

Harvesters kick off District season tonight against Dumas

By L.D. STRATE
Pampa News Sports Editor

Pampa faces a much-improved Dumas club in the first District 1-4A football game of the season tonight at Harvester Stadium.

The Demons have a 3-2 record, having won their last two games against Dalhart, 18-6, and previously-unbeaten Guymon, Okla., 33-0.

Pampa downed Dumas, 21-3, last season, but Harvester head coach John Kendall looks for a much tougher battle this time out.

"Dumas is very much improved over last year," Kendall said. "They've got two of the fastest backs in the district (John Scott Burger and Jeff Coone) that I've seen so far. They scored three touchdowns in 10 plays against Guymon."

Dumas piled up a 21-0 first-quarter lead against Guymon, which was 3-0 going into the game.

Demon quarterback Shon Williams was District 1-4A's leading passer a year ago, hitting 52 of 168 passes for 700 yards and four touchdowns. In the last two games, Williams has thrown one TD pass, ran for a 35-yard score and kicked a 23-yard field goal.

"Williams throws the ball well. We've got to try to contain him and their speed in the backfield," Kendall said.

The Dumas defense is led by senior linebacker Bryan Cox, who had five solo tackles and nine assists in the win over Guymon.

"Defensively, we're about equal size, but Dumas is real quick," Kendall added. "We're going to have to control the line of scrimmage and hold their passing down."

Dumas opened the season with a 20-6 loss to Class 5A Amarillo Caprock, then dropped a 14-12 heartbreaker to Perryton.

Pampa seeks its first victory after four losses, but Kendall and the Harvesters remain optimistic.

"We're starting district and the kids know these are the games that will count as far as getting into the playoffs," Kendall said. "It's like starting a new season and the kids want to do well."

The Harvesters have shown improvement with each outing. In the last two games against Clovis, N.M. and Perryton, the Harvester had the lead before letting it slip away.

"We've improved a bunch. We moved the ball well against Perryton and Clovis, but the big plays hurt us," Kendall said. "Take away those big plays and both games would have been a lot closer."

Senior running back Brian Kotara leads Pampa's rushing attack with 362 yards in four games. He rushed for 112 yards against Perryton. The Harvesters have developed a passing offense around quarterback Jimmy Bridges and split end Wade Howard. Bridges has tossed two touchdown passes, both to Howard, who has caught 17 passes for 174 yards this season. Bridges has completed 23 of 42 pass attempts for 235 yards.

Bridges also does the punting and has punted 20 times for a 34.6 average.

Pampa has scored 22 points in the last two games after being shut out the first two.

"We've got to score when we get the opportunity to score. That's something we haven't been doing," Kendall said.

Pampa had a 4-3 district mark a year ago. Lubbock Estacado is the defending district champions and reached the state finals last season, but most observers feel Canyon is the team to beat in '84. Canyon has a 2-2 non-district record while Estacado is 1-3.

"I look for the district race to be a lot closer than it has been in the past," Kendall said.

Tonight's district opener kicks off at 7:30 p.m. Advance tickets are on sale at the high school athletic office, located just east of the football stadium.

Padres stay alive with 7-1 victory

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Maybe changing from road uniforms to the home whites did it. The Padres suddenly played like the Cubs had, and for that matter, Chicago now was troubled by the same shortcomings which tripped San Diego when it was the visiting team.

San Diego's 7-1 victory Thursday over Chicago in Game Three of the National League Championship Series was a reversal of the Cubs' victories in Games 1 and 2 in just about every way.

—Alan Wiggins and Tony Gwynn, the Padres' one-two hitters, were 2 for 16 in the Padres' 13-0 and 4-2 losses at Wrigley Field. They were five for eight Thursday, with Gwynn collecting three hits and scoring a run and Wiggins knocking one in.

—Bob Dernier and Ryne Sandberg, the Cubs' first two batters, had one hit, a walk and a fielder's choice to show for their eight trips to the plate. In their first two games, they had combined for seven hits and seven runs.

—San Diego, hitting .183 after two games, raked Chicago pitchers for 11 hits. The Cubs, 24 of 67 (.358) in the first two outings, were checked on five hits by Ed Whitson and, in the ninth inning, Rich Gossage, who was called upon for the first time in the playoffs.

—In the first two games, no San Diego pitcher lasted more than four innings. Whitson went eight, walking only two and striking out six. His counterpart, Dennis Eckersley, was chased after five and a third inning, nine hits and five runs.

As a result, there is new life in San Diego, where the Padres were left for dead and face the herculean task of trying to win a championship after losing the first two games.

"I can't explain it," said Graig Nettles, who contributed an RBI single to the Padres' four-run sixth inning, tying a championship series career record of 18 RBIs shared with Reggie Jackson. "It's a psychological game in some respects, and it may get to them. I hope it does."

"We knew it wouldn't be easy," Cubs' shortstop Larry Bowa said. "We know we have to come out Saturday and play well."

The Cubs still are in the enviable position of being one game away from a championship with a maximum of two left to play. Only one team in playoff history — the 1982 Milwaukee Brewers — has come back from a two-games-to-none disadvantage to win a best-of-five league championship.

"We're going to start over tomorrow," said Chicago Manager Jim Frey. "If the score is 2-1 or 13-1, I don't think it has any effect at all. We beat them pretty good in Chicago, but it didn't seem to have any effect on them tonight, so I don't think this will have any effect on us Saturday."

The Padres did everything in Game 3 that the Cubs had done in the first two outings, getting key hits, Whitson's solid pitching and an errorless defensive effort.

The Cubs rapped out three hits in the second inning, but got home only one run. Keith Moreland led off with a double, and Ron Cey and Jody Davis followed with singles, but Whitson got Bowa and Eckersley to pop up and Dernier to line out to Garry Templeton, who made a diving stab that saved at least one run.

Whitson then settled down using an effective palm ball to help set down 17 of the last 20 batters he faced.

Umpires still on strike

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Baseball's top league officials and Richie Phillips, the attorney for the striking major league umpires, continued their long distance talking in an effort to end the dispute.

"Yes, I have talked to both" American League President Bobby Brown and National League President Chub Feeney, Phillips said by telephone from his Philadelphia home. "But I'm not going to discuss anything about the details."

Three of the substitute officials who worked the AL playoffs in Kansas City — Bill Deegan, John Bible and Randy Cristal — are scheduled to be on the field tonight when the Detroit Tigers play host to the Royals. They will be joined by three Michigan men — Doug Cossey, Richard Runchey and Richard Fetchiet.

"We had many discussions today," Phillips said just before midnight Thursday of his conversations with the league presidents. "And we will have more tonight."

A new set of replacement umpires worked Game 3 of the NL playoffs in San Diego on Thursday night, where the Padres defeated the Chicago Cubs 7-1. The Cubs won the first two games in Chicago.

Crew chief Terry Bovey, 37, said he and his crew did an excellent job in their first postseason appearance.

Except for two incidents, Bovey said he felt comfortable behind the plate with familiar faces at the other three positions.

Bovey, Frank Campagna, Frank Fisher and John Stewart have worked together for 12 years, most of the time in college games and major-league spring training contests in Arizona. They also worked 33 spring training games and 18 regular season contests during the 1979 umpires' strike.

"I thought we did a good job, considering the TV timeout and the block between innings," said Bovey. "We've done this stuff before, but I'm used to going right away where you don't have to wait for the TV. Once we got used to that, it went okay out there."

Kaff-kaff!

'Huskers outclassic O-State 'Boys

By Major Amos B. Hoopie
Prognosticator of Punts

Yes, friends, here we have some exceptional college football on tap — classic confrontations within several top conferences. Um-kumph!

Going into this week's key Big Eight game, the home forces of Nebraska's Tom Osborne will be the favorites against Oklahoma State.

But — kaff-kaff — don't think for one minute they will take the Oklahoma State Cowboys lightly. Last year the 'Huskers had to come from behind in the closing minutes to beat the Cowboys, 14-10.

Nebraska has been averaging better than 40 points per game this year. With running back Jeff Smith maintaining a better than 100-yards per game average, Nebraska figures to pound the dogged Cowboys.

In a bruising battle, we look for Nebraska to prevail, 28-14. Har-rumph!

Also in the Big Eight, the Hoopie System sees Missouri dumping Colorado, 33-11; and Kansas toppling Iowa State, 35-10.

The Hoopie Upset Special of the Day, though, is a key Pac-10 game — Stanford will nip favored UCLA, 21-19. Coach Jack Elway, in his first year as head coach of the Cardinals, has seen his team improve each week. The Hoopie Hunch is they will hold on to whip the Bruins. Kaff-kaff!

In other Pac-10 meetings, Arizona will take Oregon, 31-21; Arizona State will level California, 38-14; and Washington will have an easy time with Oregon State, 28-7.

The Big Ten feature matches powerful Ohio State and dangerous Purdue in the Boilermakers' Ross-Ade Stadium. Purdue has passer Jim Everett and a solid running attack lead by Ray Wallace. Leading the Buckeyes are running back Keith Byars, a legitimate Heisman candidate, and QB Mike Tomczak. In a fairly high-scoring affair, we give it to Ohio State, 38-21. Har-rumph!

Elsewhere in the Big Ten, Illinois will slip past Wisconsin, 34-28; Michigan will stop rival Michigan State, 35-18; Iowa will turn back Northwestern, 40-14; and Minnesota will nip Indiana, 24-21.

In the SEC, Vince Dooley's "never-say-die" Georgia and Alabama will get it on for the 56th time. The Bulldog fans are still talking about Georgia's last-minute upset, 26-23, of Clemson. Now they'll be talking about another victory as the Georgia lads stop Alabama, 24-17. Hak-kaff! Look for Auburn to beat Mississippi 21-15 in the another SEC contest.

The SWC has Texas finishing ahead of Rice, 42-7; Arkansas over TCU, 27-21; Houston ahead of Baylor, 30-20; and Texas A&M, 13-10, over Texas Tech.

The ACC has resurgent Georgia Tech triumphing, 26-21, over North Carolina State; Clemson knocking off North Carolina, 28-21; and Duke finishing off Virginia, 31-24.

In the WCC, Brigham Young University will drop Colorado State, 38-14.

Among independents, Notre Dame will beat Miami of Florida, 28-21, in a hard-fought contest. And Joe Paterno's Penn State Nittany Lions will defeat West Virginia, 21-14. Har-rumph!

8th graders win two grid games

Pampa Blue coasted to a 58-14 win over Canadian in eighth-grade football action Thursday.

The Pampa eighth-graders are now 3-0 for the season and will open district play next Thursday at Dumas.

Pampa Blue coach Steve Porter played his reserves most of the game in the lopsided victory.

"Canadian has a fine team, but we really exploded on them," Porter said. "I played a lot of second teamers and they just went out and took it to them."

Benny Martinez scored four touchdowns, two on long-distance runs of 70 and 55 yards. Brandon McDonald scored twice, once on an interception. Vincent Nail, Ray Ward and Curtis Brashears had one score each.

Porter said linemen Clayton Brummett, Troy Gregg, Rankin Harvey and Don Rowell played an outstanding game.

In the other eighth-grade game, Pampa Red posted a 14-6 win over Valley View. Carey Brown scored one TD for Pampa on a pitchout from Scoeter Bradshaw that covered 20 yards. The other TD was scored by Ricky Sewell on a 30-yard pass interception. The extra point was kicked by Cam Moore.

Moore, along with John Cambern, played an outstanding game, according to the coaching report.

Pampa Red is now 1-0 in district play and 3-1 overall. They host Dumas at 5:30 p.m. Oct. 18 at the middle school field.

Pampa's two seventh-graders play at Canyon at Tuesday in a football doubleheader, starting at 5:30 p.m.

Bufs may join new league

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The West Texas State Advisory Athletic Committee voted Thursday to recommend to the Board of Regents that the Bufs join the Lone Star Conference.

The committee will make its recommendation at the November regents meeting.

Dr. Ed Roach, WT president, said the Bufs will continue to compete in the Missouri Valley Conference until the end of the 1985-86 school year.

The regents voted last August for WT to drop out of the Valley no later than the spring of 1986.

Joining the Lone Star means the Bufs will drop from NCAA Division I to Division II.

Ablene Christian, Angelo State, East Texas State, Texas A&I, Howard Payne and Eastern New Mexico make up the Lone Star.

"We believe the Lone Star will be a very exciting alternative for WT," Roach said. "If I didn't think it was a positive move, I wouldn't have opted for it."

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You should be lucky in most areas today because Lady Luck will be holding you in her good graces, but she could desert you if you take ridiculous risks.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll be fortunate today regarding financial interests, but not if you're involved with relatives or in-laws. Don't mix family and finances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be hopeful regarding the outcome of events today. Do not allow negative thinkers to dampen your spirits or get you off course.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Commercial situations can be reworked to your advantage today. Don't settle for a bum deal if you think you're entitled to something better.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Keep a cool head if last minute changes are imposed upon you today. The alternatives they offer will turn out to be more fun than your original plans.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The only thing that could stop this from being a productive day for you is your attitude. Take pride in your work and you'll have a lot to boast about.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Sometimes it's necessary to take a calculated risk, provided the odds are in your favor. Don't be timid today if you find yourself in a situation of this ilk.

10 dead in Bangladesh riot

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP)—At least 10 people were killed, hundreds injured and thousands left homeless when rioters attacked Bihari relief camps, witnesses said today.

Police and government officials, however, said 11 people were hospitalized for injuries and no one was killed.

The violence broke out Thursday after about 30 Biharis—Urdu-speaking Moslems who seek Pakistani citizenship—staged a religious procession in the Mirpur section on the outskirts of Dhaka, police and witnesses said.

A young boy belonging to the majority Bengali-speaking Moslem community was hurt in a scuffle with the marchers. The news of his injury spread quickly, and hundreds of people armed with sticks and knives attacked the procession, witnesses said.

The fighting groups dispersed after street battles, but thousands of Bengalis stormed the Bihari camps later Thursday night and burned hundreds of bamboo huts, witnesses said.

Police armed with rifles stood guard today amid the smoldering ruins of the poverty-stricken camps, where about 55,000 Biharis live in tiny shacks.

Ahmed Ali, a leader of the Biharis general repatriation committee, said between 15 and 20 people were beaten or stabbed to death and 21 were missing. More than 200 were injured, he said. About 500 dwellings were destroyed, leaving as many as 4,000 people without shelter, he said.

Names in news

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Democratic gubernatorial candidate Wayne Townsend responded to his challenger's rock 'n' roll political video by sending a Boy George lookalike to deliver a sequined glove and a note to Gov. Robert D. Orr.

The Boy George imposter also dropped off an outfit for Orr to wear in his next video. Included were a gold silk jacket, camouflage-patterned walking shorts, silver glitter socks, a pair of black-and-white checked sunglasses and a T-shirt proclaiming the rock group "Peter and the Test Tube Babies."

The response from Orr's office was puzzlement.

"I don't know whether those clothes will fit or not. They look a little short," said Orr's deputy press secretary, Nancy DiLaura.

Orr unveiled his rock video, "Stay With Me," Wednesday night at the Vogue, an Indianapolis nightclub.

booming population can be fed only if scientists "work with their hands" to teach farmers.

Borlaug, who received the prize in 1970 for his work in developing high-yield dwarf wheats to increase the world's food supply, delivered the D.W. Brooks Lecture at the University of Georgia College of Agriculture Thursday.

"The biggest obstacles to progress in the Third World countries are the senior scientists. They're fearful of change," Borlaug said.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Steve Martin is best known for his zany standup comedy routines, but the silver-haired star of such films as "The Jerk" and the current box office hit "All of Me" is also an avid collector of modern art.

Martin, whose collection reportedly includes works by such early 20th century modernists as Arthur Dove and Georgia O'Keeffe and contemporary artists Franz Kline, Willem de Kooning, Cy Twombly, David Hockney and Helen Frankenthaler, was elected Thursday to the board of the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, museum officials said.

Martin, who pledged $250,000 toward the county museum's new wing for 20th century art, becomes the 40th member of the museum's board, alongside such other Hollywood figures as Hal Wallis, Ray Stark and David Wolper.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—William S. Farish III, as competitive on the polo field as he is in the board room, wasn't too surprised when Queen Elizabeth II decided to stay at his 1,400-acre Lane's End Farm next week.

They first met on a polo field in 1973 while Farish was playing in the Queen's Cup in England. And it was their common interest in the sport that led to his invitation to the queen to stay at his home for her first visit to Kentucky, a spokesman for the British Embassy said.

Farish is a 45-year-old oilman and financier who has turned his full-time attention to horses in recent years. Forbes magazine recently estimated his net worth at $150 million.

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The ears, nose and throat of rock singer Wendy O. Williams are "perfectly normal," despite her claim in a $6 million lawsuit that she suffered permanent injuries in a police beating, a doctor testified.

S. Frederick Horwitz, a specialist who examined the self-proclaimed high priestess of heavy metal, said Thursday in Circuit Court her ears were normal and her throat was in excellent condition.

ATHENS, Ga. (AP)—Norman Borlaug, who won the Nobel Peace Prize for helping to increase the world's food supply, says the world's

News in brief

WASHINGTON (AP)—Thirty-four people have been arrested in a nationwide undercover investigation into illegal animal hunting and trading of animal skins, the Justice Department announced.

Attorney General William French Smith said Thursday the arrests and searches were made in 14 states. He said the three-year undercover investigation was carried out by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, whose agents secretly operated a tanning and taxidermy business in Colorado.

Smith said agents found many violations, including illegal guided hunts in Yellowstone National Park, clandestine markets for trading/protected species of big game and birds, and the smuggling of skins of endangered species into the United States.

Teams of agents made arrests or conducted court-approved searches in Montana, Colorado, Florida, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Wisconsin, Missouri, Alaska, Arizona, Oklahoma, Texas, Oregon and California.
