Testimony in Shreckhise trial ended

BY JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

Final arguments in the murder trial of Richard Lee Shreckhise got under way this morning after the defense rested its case following testimony of three more witnesses.

The defense questioned Donnie Lee Shipley Jr., of Pampa, who has testified he helped Shreckhise dispose of the body of Aaron Wade Lewis, and Chief Deputy Ken Keith this morning before concluding its case.

Four witnesses for the state have testified that Shreckhise confessed killing Lewis, 22, on April 15. Shreckhise, 20, shot Lewis twice with a .22-caliber pistol at the defendant's 916 S. Nelson residence, according to the state's charge.

The man said he killed his former friend out of anger over the victim's failing to deliver a purchased waterbed, jealousy for a woman, and because the suspect thought the victim was a police informant in drug cases, according to the state's previous witnesses.

Defense attorney John Warner questioned Shipley about an orange shirt found near the dry creek bed where Lewis' body was discovered. Shipley, who earlier testified he helped Shreckhise hide the body, denied it was his shirt.

Deputy Keith was questioned about tracks found near the spot where the body was found. He said they were made by a motorcycle.

The state called one rebuttal witness before testimony ended this morning. Gene Powell, whose address was not given, testified he picked up Shreckhise and two other men in his pickup truck on April 15, the alleged date of the killing, to help Shreckhise move a waterbed.

Powell testified they picked up Lewis at his home about 10 a.m. and went to a Kentucky Street address to get the waterbed. He said they took Lewis back home after being unable to get the bed.

Powell said Shreckhise became angry about Lewis' failure to get the waterbed.

"You going to get a piece of him," Powell said he asked the defendant.

"No, all of him," he said Shreckhise replied.

During testimony Monday, defense witnesses testified that they heard what sounded like a gunshot coming from the area of the defendant's home on Easter Sunday, a full week after the state claims Shreckhise murdered Lewis and a time his lawyer says the defendant was in Arkansas.

"We were home all day," recalled Henry Stoppman, who lives three doors up from the defendant's former residence on South Nelson.

The Pampa man said the details are vivid in his mind, because it was Easter Sunday, a day the man and his wife had several dinner guests, and the birthday of his wife's mother. The company had left the Stoppman residence when the man said he heard the noise.

"I was getting ready to take out the garbage...I heard a shot...It sounded like a gunshot...The best I can pinpoint it, from the echo, it sounded like it came from the alley to the north (in the direction of the defendant's home)," Stoppman said.

The state contends that after the murder, Shreckhise and Shipley loaded Lewis' body into the trunk of the victim's car and abandoned the vehicle in a dry creek bed south of Pampa.

But Stoppman and his wife, Geneva, also said a car resembling the victim's sat parked in front of the defendant's home for a week to 10 days after the alleged murder date.

"I saw a Grand Prix parked in front of 916," Stoppman said.

Anti-apartheid leader wins Nobel Peace Prize for '84

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Anglican Bishop Desmond Tutu, black anti-apartheid leader of the South African Council of Churches, today was named winner of the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize.

Tutu, 53, became the second black resistance leader to win the prize. Albert John Lutuli, former president of the African National Congress, won the award in 1960. The African National Congress has been outlawed by South Africa and is now the chief guerrilla group fighting to overthrow the white-minority government.

In announcing the award, the Norwegian Nobel Committee called Tutu "a unifying leader figure in the campaign to resolve the problem of apartheid in South Africa."

The committee said it was drawing attention "to the non-violent struggle for liberation to which Desmond Tutu belongs."

Tutu, who was among those considered a favorite to receive the peace prize, was at the General Theological Seminary in New York City when the prize was announced. He was told of the Nobel committee's decision by the Norwegian ambassador, Tom Vrolsen, who came bearing the news and a bouquet of flowers.

The bishop reportedly planned to meet privately with students in the seminary chapel in Manhattan before seeing reporters and photographers.

The Nobel prizes carry an award of $193,000 this year. On Monday, three researchers won the 1984 Nobel Prize in medicine for their studies in immunology. They were Niels Kaj Jerne, 72, a Dane born in London, his West German colleague at a Swiss research institute, 38-year-old Georges Koehler, and Cambridge University researcher Cesar Milstein, 57, an Argentine.

Last Thursday, poet Jaroslav Seifert of Czechoslovakia was awarded the Nobel Prize in literature.

Still to be announced are the physics and chemistry prizes on Wednesday and the Alfred Nobel memorial prize in economics on Thursday.

Only the peace prize is announced in Oslo. All the other awards are announced in Stockholm, Sweden.

After peace talks

El Salvador gains claimed

LA PALMA, El Salvador (AP) — Government and leftist rebel leaders, in their first talks of El Salvador's five-year civil war, agreed to meet again next month and set up a commission to search for peace "in the least possible time."

No date or location was fixed for the November meeting, and one rebel leader said "there can be no cease-fire" for the time being in the conflict that has claimed 59,000 lives.

After a 4½-hour conference Monday in the church of this mountain village, President Jose Napoleon Duarte and the rebels cautioned that they have a long way to go to end a war that has left the nation close to economic ruin. But both sides said progress had been made.

The joint commission will be made up of four members from each side, and include a mediator from the Roman Catholic Church. The commission is to study the issues raised at the historic session.

The agreements were contained in a joint communique read to a crowd of about 20,000 people jammed in front of the church on La Palma's main square. A roar of approval went up from the throng as Monsignor Arturo Rivera y Damas, archbishop of San Salvador, finished reading the message.

Later, Guillermo Ungo, one of the rebel negotiators, told the crowd: "We cannot say what we talked about inside, we can only talk about our opinion of the meeting. And our opinion is that it was very positive."

Ungo is president of the Democratic Revolutionary Front, the political coalition allied to the guerrilla movement.

Reuben Zamora, the front's vice president, said there was "complete unanimity" among the five rebel groups of Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front for the peace talks.

Speaking to the crowd in La Palma after the rebel leaders, Duarte echoed the rebel comments that some progress had been made.

"It was not possible to have a solution in just one meeting," Duarte said. "But we came out of the church with a communique with hopes of peace."

"We will continue going deeper into the different points of view so we can resolve them. We cannot offer miracles, neither can we offer peace from morning to night."

An hour after the meeting began and while the negotiators were still inside the church, government spokesmen outlined Duarte's proposals to the rebels on national television and by loudspeaker to the waiting throng.

The seven-page proposal offered a "general, immediate and unconditional amnesty" for the rebels if they accepted "the democratic process." There was no elaboration in the proposal.

Duarte also said he would submit to the National Assembly measures guaranteeing the guerrillas the right of free political association and safety from reprisals by the army and security forces.

The statement stopped short of calling for a cease-fire, and apparently offered the guerrillas no protection from independent, right-wing death squads blamed for thousands of political over the course of the war.

Feds urge tougher drunk driving sentences

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal highway officials are calling for harsher penalties for drunken driving to reduce repeat offenders, whom they argue are not deterred by the current system of sentences and treatment programs.

A study by the National Transportation Safety Board concluded Monday that far too often drunken driving accidents involve drivers who have past drunken driving records.

In an examination of 51 serious accidents — most of them involving fatalities — from 15 states, the board found that one third of the drivers involved had a suspended license and drivers in 37 of the cases had a previous traffic offense involving alcohol. In several cases both drivers involved were found to be drunk.

"Our system for dealing with drunken driving in this country is not a competent one.

"Some hole in the system all too frequently keeps it from working," declared Jim Burnett, chairman of the safety board and a former Arkansas traffic judge known for imposing stiff penalties for drunken driving.

The NTSB report concluded that it may take decades to change public attitudes toward drunken driving, but it suggested stiffer sentencing, especially for repeat offenders. The agency also said that revoking the licenses of repeat offenders might help reduce their number.

Burnett suggested long-term incarceration for repeat offenders might solve some of the problem, but he also chastized a legal system that too often prevents a swift trial and punishment.

Noting that habitual offenders often ignore license suspensions, Burnett suggested that license plates — or even the cars themselves — be confiscated from a repeat offender or a person found to be driving with a suspended or revoked license.

The accidents examined by NTSB field officers occurred between August 1982 and June 1984 in 15 states. Interviews with 40 repeat offenders also indicated that treatment programs often have little impact, Burnett said.

Week's campaigning ending

Polls reflect Mondale gains

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

President Reagan is playing to his strength among the young, calling his popularity on campuses "a phenomenon many of the pollsters can't understand," while challenger Walter Mondale accuses Reagan of ignoring the issue of toxic wastes until it became an election-year problem.

With both candidates looking to their second and final debate on Sunday, each was wrapping up his week's campaigning today before turning attention to preparing for the Kansas City confrontation.

The Democratic presidential nominee was in California today, spending part of the day in debate preparations and planning to attend a movie star-studded fund-raising gala in Los Angeles tonight before returning to Washington.

Reagan was flying to Illinois today, with his only remaining campaign event of the week coming Wednesday night at the annual Al Smith dinner in New York.

A new Louis Harris poll out today, meanwhile, said Reagan's lead over Mondale has been cut to 9 percentage points, 53-44. Last week the Harris Poll had Reagan ahead by 12 points, 54-42. The latest poll was conducted Saturday through Monday among 1,393 likely voters and had a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

With Mondale beginning to make inroads into Reagan's big lead following their first debate, Reagan's campaign was adjusting its plans accordingly. Reagan-Bush campaign director Ed Rollins acknowledged that the president's lead in California had slipped in recent days and said Reagan would return to the state next week for more campaigning.

In Los Angeles for a political dinner Monday night, Rollins acknowledged that he had said earlier that Reagan would not return to California, his native state and the largest electoral-vote prize.

But, said Rollins, circumstances had changed. He said latest polls done for the Reagan campaign showed he had dropped from a 20-point lead in California to a 12-point lead.

Vice President George Bush, meanwhile, was campaigning in Los Angeles, where he accused the Democrats of trying to scare elderly voters by charging the Republicans would cut Social Security. Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro was in Cleveland and heading for California to join Mondale tonight.

At Greenville Technical College in South Carolina on Monday, Reagan offered his explanation for polls showing a majority of those college age and in their early 20s backing him. The young, he said, have "rejected the politics of pessimism and are four-square behind a strong, vibrant and growing America."

"I don't think it is selfish for you to want a good job, to own a home, and to have a decent standard of living," he told the students. "You deserve that kind of future and we aren't going to let our opponents tax it away."

He said polls showing him popular among the young are "a phenomenon many of the pollsters can't understand."

In Weldon Spring, Mo., Mondale visited a radioactive waste dump, which he said the administration had refused to clean up until his campaign visit was announced.

"For four years, they wouldn't listen at all," Mondale said. "Not long ago I announced I would visit this site. And just by magic, three days before I arrived, they announced they were going to do something."

U.S. motorists warned about bandits on Mexican highways

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Reports of bandits preying on U.S. tourists on major Mexican highways have led the American Automobile Association to warn its members to use caution when driving in Mexico and to travel in groups, says Austin AAA manager Joyce Trebe.

Meanwhile, several U.S. families say their government hasn't done enough to warn them about the dangers of traveling in Mexico, and some say they've canceled trips to avoid problems, the Austin American-Statesman reported Monday.

Vietnam official says U.S. can help with peace in Asia

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Vietnam's foreign minister says he is ready to discuss with the Reagan administration ways of bringing peace and stability to southeast Asia.

"The role played by the United States in southeast Asia is indeed a very important role," Nguyen Co Thach said in an interview Monday with The Associated Press.

"Without the contribution of the United States, we could not have peace in southeast Asia," he said. "In this matter, we think we can cooperate."

Thach said he has not yet had any contact with Reagan administration officials.

"But this is a very important issue and I hope the Reagan administration will consider it. It will take time."

In Washington, Bill Lenderking, a State Department spokesman, said Thach's comments were being looked at but that no meeting is scheduled at this time.

Lenderking said the United States has been talking with the Vietnamese in Geneva on specific issues, including emigration of an estimated 10,000 political prisoners from re-education camps as well as an estimated 25,000 Amerasian children of American soldiers and Vietnamese women.

"We welcome Vietnam's willingness to discuss with us further our offer to accept for resettlement in the United States all persons now confined by Vietnam for their past association with the United States or the former South Vietnamese government," Lenderking said.

Pampans elected by state group

A local husband and wife team were recently elected as state officers for the Gymnastics Association of Texas during a convention last week in Richardson.

Fred Hughes, owner of Gymnastics of Pampa, was elected as vice president; his wife, Lola Hughes, was elected as state secretary.

Hughes also coaches the Pampa Dust Devils Gymnastics team. Mrs. Hughes is a Class 3 rated gymnastics judge in the state and helps coach the team.

Gymnastics Association of Texas (GAT) includes gymnastics coaches from Texas high schools, colleges and private clubs.

As vice president, Hughes' duties include serving as chairman of the program committee for the state convention; he also will oversee the Bio-Mechanical Task Force and the award recipient committee. His wife is in charge of keeping records for the association and executive committee meetings among other duties.

The couple were elected to one-year terms.

Officials indicated this is probably the first time a husband-wife team have been elected to state offices for GAT.

Testimony

of the victim's car as the vehicle parked at the residence until after April 22.

The man stayed firm in his testimony, despite cross-examination saying Stoppman gave police the vague description of a "General Motors" car and an erroneous "maroon" color.

Geneva Stoppman backed up her husband's testimony about the noise and parked car. Each, though, reported what sounded like a single gunshot.

In addition to the neighbors, defense lawyer John Warner recalled many of the state's witnesses in the testimony Monday, the sixth day of the murder trial before an eight-man, four-woman jury.

The state rested its case on Friday.

Warner has said he will show that someone else killed Lewis in retaliation for informing to police about drug cases.

The lawyer again questioned the witnesses, including a 14-year-old Pampa boy, about their admitted drug use.

The youth was instructed by 31st District Judge Grainger McIlhany that he wasn't required to incriminate himself about smoking marijuana, but the teen-ager testified about his and other witnesses' drug use, anyway.

Harold McIntyre, 31, a co-worker of Schreckhise and Lewis at V.E. Wagner Well Service Co., said he was told by four people, including the defendant, not to buy drugs from Lewis.

He said he declined to buy an offered "bag" of marijuana from Lewis after being told, "He'll tell on you."

McIntyre also said he had seen both of the men threaten to kill each other on several occasions.

Judge McIlhany released jurors about a half hour early on Monday.

Suicides have 'run course,' psychologists tells parents

HOUSTON (AP) — A series of six teen-age suicides that rocked an affluent Houston suburb in the past 2½ months has "run its course," but school administrators and psychologists warned worried parents "don't get too comfortable."

"The kids are seeing the reality that life goes on," Dr. Rion Hart, a psychologist, told about 500 parents Monday night at Clear Lake High School. "They're going to football games and forgetting about funerals. They're ready to get back on with living instead of fantasizing about what it means to die."

But one parent, Robert Williams, said afterward that he was unsatisfied with the seven-member panel's explanation.

"I think the problem is greater than what they're addressing," Williams said.

Three high school students in the Clear Creek Independent School District, which covers an area with a population of about 125,000 south of Houston, have killed themselves in the last two weeks. In addition, three 19-year-old former students of the district have taken their lives since early August.

Assemblies have been conducted at the high school to dispel rumors and to answer questions from 6,000 students. Counselors also are being retrained to recognize students who might have problems, and three additional psychologists have been hired to assist five already working with the district.

A similar prevention program would begin in the junior high schools and the group planned to do "psychological autopsies" of the six victims "to ensure this doesn't happen again," Hart said.

Some parents at the meeting expressed concern that the school's tough grading scale may be putting undo pressure on the students or that expectations of growing up in a predominantly white-collar community are too great.

But one student, Paul Kinze, an 18-year-old senior, insisted the problem had nothing to do with "drugs, grades or girlfriends. It's a lack of communication between parents and kids."

While school teachers and counselors can identify "high-risk" students, they cannot take responsibility for the mental health of every student.

"This kind of plan is akin to surgery on a battlefield," said Dr.

Janel Miller, a psychologist and consultant for the district. "The task is to identify those that are at risk, provide quick service and then funnel into therapy with professionals who can deal with the problems."

Superintendent John Ward also warned that teachers would not assume parental duties.

"Don't get too comfortable," Ward said. "Don't go home thinking that the school is going to take care of everything because we're not."

Meanwhile, a 19-year-old who made a suicide pact with one of the six victims is now in the care of a psychiatrist, police said.

The teen-ager who made the pact with Sean Woods, also 19, cited "vague and general things" as the reason for wanting to die, said Detective Swan Person.

Woods, a former student, shot himself to death Oct. 4 as he and the other teen were loading a pickup, Person said. The officer said Woods apparently was planning to move out of his parents' house, and while the other teen went inside the house to get a suitcase, Woods shot himself.

CLEANUP CONTINUES—Felix Orozco of Coastal Hydro-Vac Co. of Texas City cleans the Galveston Seawall using a hydro-blaster under 6,000 pounds of pressure to remove the tar deposited on the seawall in the recent oil spill. All that remains to be cleaned is the top of the seawall and the rocks at its base.

Doggett, Gramm exchange barbs

By The Associated Press
Republican U.S. Senate candidate Phil Gramm is again blasting his Democratic opponent — Austin state Sen. Lloyd Doggett — for what he calls unethical advertising practices.

Gramm, flanked by U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, whose seat he hopes to claim in November, said Monday in Wichita Falls that Doggett is the only office-seeker in the nation who has been cited for unethical advertising.

That charge appeared in a recent issue of Advertising Age.

Doggett, in a campaign swing through West Texas, downplayed the article, saying the magazine was simply exhibiting viewpoints of Eastern Republicans.

"I don't believe that I've ever been more popular on Madison Avenue than Wall Street, but I'm not running on Madison Avenue," he said.

Gramm — who with Tower also made campaign stops in McAllen, Corpus Christi, San Antonio, Georgetown and Dallas — said hearsay from an "unnamed government bureaucrat" is the source of a Doggett television commercial quoting Gramm as saying "they are encouraging people to be handicapped."

Mark McKinnon, a Doggett spokesman, said the statement was taken from an April 28, 1982, article in the Wall Street Journal.

He said the article quotes an unnamed budget committee aide who said he was present when Gramm scrutinized two items concerning aid to the handicapped in the education budget.

In other political developments

Monday:
— Former Gov. Bill Clements, a Republican, said the presidential race in Texas is closer than recent opinion polls suggest.

Appearing at the National Press Club in Washington, Clements also said Walter Mondale's opposition to defense programs such as cruise missile development and the B-1 bomber would translate into weak national security if he is elected president.

A Mondale defense program "would be a disaster, and our foreign policy would lose credibility because of that," said Clements, a former deputy defense secretary.

Clements, a former deputy defense secretary, said the large leads that pollsters give to Reagan in Texas are "unrealistic" because Texas is a heavily Democratic state.

"I don't know where the error is, but I just don't believe that in Texas today that President Reagan has an 18-, 19- or 20-percentage point lead," he said.

— The chairman of People for the American Way said the Religious Right has gained considerable power in politics today, and the public should be aware of what's happening.

"As a Republican, I'm concerned about the impact on the Republican Party, among other things, of this New Right-Religious Right force," said John Buchanan, a 16-year GOP congressman and now national chairman of the nonpartisan First Amendment organization.

New Grapefruit 'Super Pill' Gives Fast Weight Loss
No Dieting - Eat All You Want Pill Does All the Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA. (Special)—An amazing new "super" grapefruit pill has recently been developed and perfected that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose at least 10 pounds in 10 days. Best of all, it allows you to "eat as much as you want of your favorite foods and still lose a pound a day or more starting from the very first day until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."

This "super" grapefruit pill is a dramatically improved version of the world famous grapefruit diet. It is far more effective than the original and eliminates "the mess, fuss, and high cost of eating half a fresh grapefruit at every meal."

"Pill Does All the Work" According to the manufacturer, "the pill itself does all the work while you quickly lose weight with NO starvation "diet menus" to follow, NO calorie counting, NO exercise, and NO hunger pangs." It is 100% safe. You simply take the pill with a glass of water before each meal and the amazing combination of powerful ingredients are so effective they take over and you start losing weight immediately.

Pill Has ALL Daily Vitamins The powerful and unique combination of ingredients are what make this a "super-pill". It contains highly potent grapefruit concentrate and a diuretic to help eliminate bloat and puffiness. No need to take any vitamins to maintain your good health and energy. The pill is fortified with ALL (100%) of the U.S. Government daily vitamin requirements.

Contains Japanese 'Glucosannan' Each pill also contains an amazingly effective amount of "glucosannan", the remarkable natural dietary fiber discovery from Japan (used successfully for over 1500 years) that expands in your stomach and gives you a full and satisfied feeling all day long.

The super-pill is already sweeping the country with glowing reports of easy and fast weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Now Available to Public You can order your supply of these highly successful "super" grapefruit pills (now available directly from the manufacturer by mail order only) by sending $12 for a 14-day supply (or $20 for a 30-day supply, or $35 for a 60-day supply) cash, check, or money order to: Citrus Industries, 9903 Santa Monica Bl., Dept. 992, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. ## Judge postpones ruling in 12-year-old's shooting case

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A state judge is withholding until Wednesday a ruling on the fate of a 12-year-old girl convicted of "recklessly" causing the death of a young friend and playmate.

Juvenile Court Judge Scott Moore conducted a closed 30-minute hearing Monday and told attorneys for Patricia Dempsey he would notify them of his decision on Wednesday morning.

Moore could release Patricia on probation, place her in a girls' home or send her to a Texas Youth Commission facility.

A juvenile court jury ruled on Friday that the husky young schoolgirl did not intentionally kill 11-year-old Kerry Thomas but that her reckless use of a shotgun caused her best friend's death.

The verdict was the juvenile equivalent of involuntary manslaughter.

State attorneys maintained that Patricia killed Kerry in a fit of jealousy and that she demonstrated intent when she hid her friend's body in a thicket behind the Dempsey family's home in suburban Benbrook.

Prosecutor Dave Purcell asked Moore on Monday to send the brown-haired defendant to the Texas Youth Commission where he said she can get the rehabilitative treatment she needs.

"We know from the evidence that the girl has threatened two other people with a shotgun and that she is responsible for the death of Kerry Thomas," Purcell said.

He said the "recklessness" ruling indicated a "culpable mental state" and declared: "I don't think there's any question that the jury held her responsible for Kerry's death."

Patricia's lawyer, Harold Ray, appealed to the judge to grant probation and said the child would be sent to live with relatives in Altus, Okla., the remainder of the school year.

He said she would live with an uncle who has retired from the Air Force and an aunt who teaches child psychology.

"She needs a fresh environment," Ray said, "and she needs to get this nightmare behind her."

The lawyer said the child also needs psychological help because she's not sleeping well and is still having nightmares.

Likewise, he said, the family needs time to sell the home and relocate either in the Fort Worth area or elsewhere.

Ray told reporters that he would not go forward with his announced plan to appeal the jury's verdict if Judge Moore grants Patricia's request for probation.

Small towns without traffic

It's finished. Route 66, the 3,500 mile highway stretching from Chicago to Los Angeles, has now been bypassed by interstate.

With all the hoopla and honor a small town can muster, the town of Williams, a glorified gas station on the northwestern Arizona desert, officially declared their stretch of 66 closed Saturday.

But Williams was not the last town to have its historic highway bypassed by interstate. Traffic began running on the new Interstate highway, north of Williams, in mid-June. But McLean kept truck traffic moving along its two one-way streets until a little later that month.

McLean dignitaries dedicated the interstate in late July with a ribbon cutting that merited inclusion on an Amarillo TV station promotional spot. The Williams folks waited until Saturday to cut their ties, so they get the national media attention. Any self-respecting McLean resident should call foul.

But what's even more foul is what happens to these small towns after their main traffic thoroughfare is taken away.

A lot of sentimental goo has been written about the highway. With stories of starving Okies migrating to California on "America's Main Street," writers raised Route 66 to the same stature as the Cumberland Gap, the Pony Express route and the Chisholm Trail.

Articles on Route 66 are sure to include pictures of weed-ridden strips of pavement that crumble into the ground and decaying stucco tourist courts (Arizona's Wigwam Motel with its teepee-shaped cottages is a favorite) and an interview with some old codger who used to be on a state highway patrol.

But what these articles don't mention is how McLean, Groom, Alanreed and communities in Oklahoma, Arizona, New Mexico and Missouri must scramble to preserve their economic stability.

As the most recent Panhandle victims of the highway bypass, McLean residents watched as part of their economic core was sucked from under them. With no highway traffic, motels closed, gas stations closed, cafes closed within two months. The July 27 ribbon cutting ceremony was not as much a celebration as it was a call for help.

Mayor George Terry said then that he "wanted to take the occasion to tell everyone we want factories and industry."

But, like other towns that had their main trafficway moved, McLean is looking to the new highway for the new businesses. Residents have already bought land along I-40 to put up motels, restaurants, convenience stops and clothing stores.

Like Groom three years ago, Shamrock a couple of years before that and other farm communities, college towns, industrial centers and tourist stops that have suffered along the way, McLean will survive.

When Route 66 was bypassed in Oklahoma, communities there simply found other things to do. Vinita and Afton rediscovered Grand Lake O' the Cherokees. Claremore has always had hometown boy Will Rogers to boast about. Edmond and Yukon drew exurbanites out of Oklahoma City. Weatherford invited 3M Corp. to town and promoted its university. Elk City invited travellers to "come to bed with us."

Even America's Main Street will survive. It is still designated as a U.S. highway. And parts of Route 66, such as a scenic swing through southeast Kansas, are the best-kept and smoothest streets in the country.

So, let . . . .ams bid farewell to Old 66, it's time to put the curio shops, tourist courts and "Live Reptile" stands in the history books. The future is just down the interstate. Spaulding is a staff writer of The Pampa News.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Let them burn their own books

An outfit called "People for the American Way," a group affiliated with television producer Norman Lear, has been sending out a bunch of literature sounding the alarm that bookburning and censorship are on the rise in America.

The villains, according to the mailings we get, are the Rev. Jerry Falwell and his fundamentalist friends in the Moral Majority. They are allegedly removing books from the shelves of public schools and public libraries. The organization was also incensed at the efforts of parents in one community to get a book removed—banned is the word they used—from the high school library.

Censorship and book burning are harsh terms loaded with negative connotations. Their emotionalism hides the fact that Lear and his crowd are sounding a hollow alarm. The book burning and book banning they point to pose no threat to our fundamental freedoms.

An argument can be made that the people who burn books are misguided. But if a devotee of free-market economics wants to burn 20 copies of the Communist Manifesto in his front yard, fine. He infringes on no one else's freedom. The same goes for Christian fundamentalists who might hold a rally where secular humanist textbooks are burned.

As for having books removed from public school libraries, People for the American Way are equally wrong. Public school libraries are financed by taxpayer money. Surely taxpayers have the right to seek influence over what books are bought and made available within their money.

Removal of certain books from school libraries affect nobody's "right to learn." Parents who want their children to read the "banned" books need only visit a local bookstore and buy it. The only difference would be that the parents would have to fork over their own money rather than force someone else to buy the book for their children.

This false campaign against censorship blurs the distinction between pseudo-censorship and real censorship, which we abhor.

If religious "truth squads" stared ransacking homes in search of "subversive" literature, if bookstores were forbidden to sell books advocating certain views, if the government started screening and rejecting textbooks used in voluntary schools, then proponents of true freedom of speech would be alarmed.

Individuals have a right to read whatever they please, to buy and sell books freely and to expose their children to whatever books they deem appropriate. But our right to learn does not include the right to use government to make other people buy books for us or our children.

Protectionism won't work

One of the most serious economic issues facing the United States is the growing demand for increased trade barriers, quotas and tariffs to "protect American jobs." And the reason neither party wants to debate this issue is that neither has a record of which to be proud.

While Walter Mondale has promised everything but a new Maginot line around the U.S. economy to appease his labor union backers, President Reagan is also guilty of having succumbed to "voluntary import quotas" on autos and steel and fixed quotas on motorcycles and sugar, all of which have cost the consumer dearly.

Auto quotas have added $1,000 - $1,500 to the price of the average car, foreign and domestic. Yet the president told Detroit automakers on October 1 that he favored extending "voluntary quotas."

That was predictable, since the administration recently flunked the free - market test by calling for "voluntary quotas" on steel, not at the costly 15 percent the unions demanded, but still an expensive 20 percent. This move, the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) suggests, will cost consumers $10 - $20 billion, while bringing the president precious little political capital from Big Labor.

It also put him in a weaker position to veto the protectionist "Christmas tree" trade bill Congress sent him as an election - year frou - frou. Yet veto he must to avoid retaliatory measures that would not only drive consumer prices up - but would stagnate the U.S. economy. Indeed, protectionism and stagflation are synonymous. You can understand this by "inversion", that is, by seeing how much relatively free trade and a strong dollar has helped the U.S. economy achieve strong growth without inflation.

To this end we commend to the president (and anyone else who is interested) Wayne State University Professor David Fand's August 2 testimony to the Joint Economic Committee (JEC) of Congress. After debunking the gloomy views of both supply - siders, who fear another recession, and monetarists, who fear another inflation, Fand launched into the reasons why we seem to have temporarily conquered the theory that strong growth is inflationary.

"To rationalize our remarkably low inflation," Fand said, "I am suggesting that we are now living in a world where the supply curve of output facing the U.S. is relatively elastic. As a consequence, when demand increases in the U.S. it generates sharply increased output, but does not cause rising prices."

Why? Not only because U.S. productivity is expanding, but primarily because "the capacity that is available for meeting this demand is not domestic capacity, but comes from the rest of the world (imports)."

In other words, our huge trade deficit is a blessing to our inflation problems because our economic growth is being fueled in part by our ability to tap foreign "production capacity."

Fand predicts that "if we can continue to harness excess world capacity and unemployed world labor to help meet our growing domestic demands, the recovery could last through 1986 and possibly through 1987," and with low inflation.

The main reason for this, of course, is the very strong (many say TOO strong) dollar. "If the dollar rises by 40 percent against some currency, it means that the dollar price of imports from that country has fallen by 40 percent...keeping U.S. inflation down."

And, Fand told the JEC, since "many domestic goods are substitutes for imports, their prices must also be competitive with import prices...and this keeps down wage inflation."

But, of course, these growing imports of low - priced competitive goods have generated a tremendous $120 - billion trade deficit. The question is, why are overseas nations willing to accept so many excess dollars without driving the dollar down?

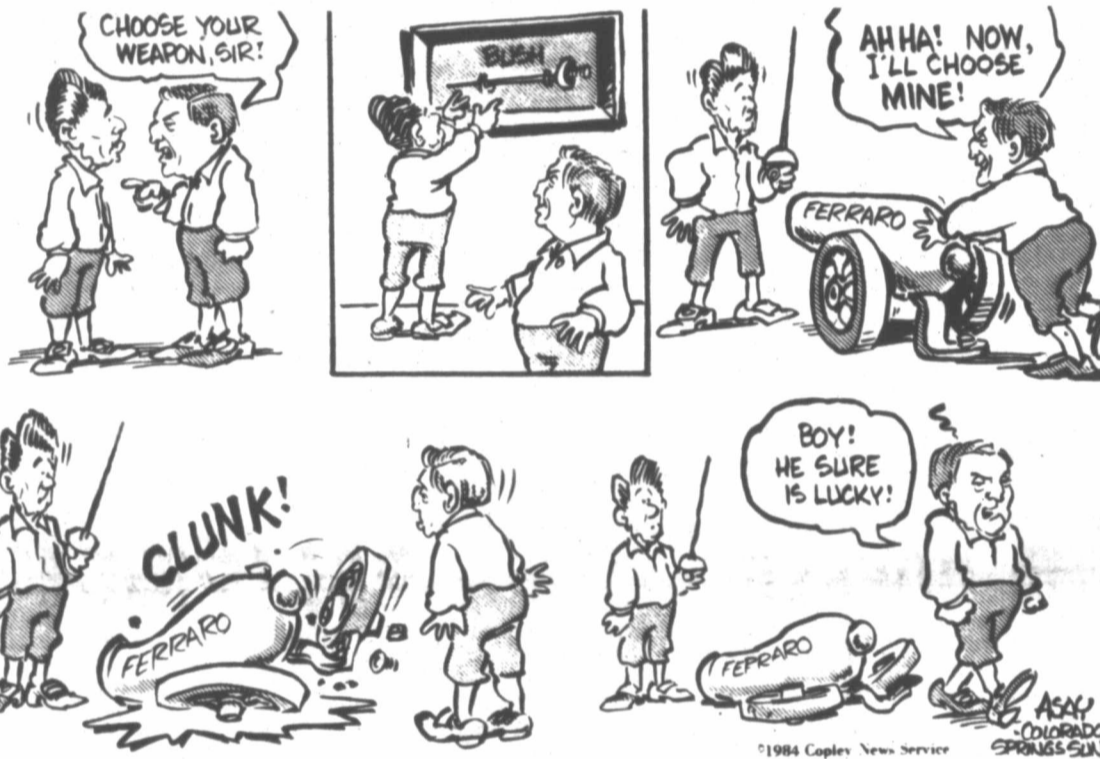

Fand says, "Confidence in the U.S. as a safe haven has increased. Foreigners are now eager to acquire dollars, in sharp contrast to the prior administration where they were dumping dollars to buy gold. This is why the rest of the world is using their own unused resources and capacity to supply our needs, and how the dollar can gain in value while the trade deficit is so high..."

As a result, he argues, our present expansionary policies "will result in increased output and employment, while inflation will remain the same, or even fall slightly...a condition in which demand creates its own supply...a very exciting development."

It accounts, Fand said, for the "best six - quarter rise for any economic recovery in the past thirty years."

Unfortunately, of course, such an "exciting development" has a down side that could force a return to protectionism. Fand admits, "Equities in the innovative and expanding industries should be doing well, while other equities in older stagnant industries with very little investment should be doing poorly."

Thus the extreme pressure from workers and companies in these stagnant industries to do exactly those things that would return us to a stagflationary economy. The question is: can we find a sensible compromise?

Today in History

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 16, the 290th day of 1984. There are 76 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Oct. 16, 1978, Polish Cardinal Karol Wojtyla was elected supreme pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church. The new Pope took the name John Paul II.

On this date: Ten years ago: In the Watergate cover-up trial, former White House counsel John W. Dean implicated four of the five defendants during 3 1/2 hours of testimony.

Five years ago: A Justice Department special counsel who had looked into dealings involving President Carter's family peanut business announced that his investigation had cleared the president and his brother, Billy Carter, of any criminal wrongdoing.

One year ago: The Baltimore Orioles shut out the Philadelphia Phillies, 5-0, to win the World Series.

Understanding Ferraro-ese

I remember when Jimmy Carter first ran for president in 1976. I was living in Chicago at the time and people in Chicago made fun of the way Jimmy Carter talked because he spoke with a Southern accent.

People from other parts of the country are always making fun of people who speak with Southern accents.

Take me, for example. I've been drawing for nearly 38 years. I say, "y'all," I say, "dawg." I even say, "I'm fixin' to go down yonder and git me a mess o' greens."

Whenever I visit some place like New York and say such things, people laugh and giggle and point and attempt to sell me things like bridges and swampland in New Jersey.

Well, guess what? I think people from New York speak strangely, and now that we have a New Yorker with an accent straight out of Queens running for vice president, the rest of the nation now has the opportunity to discover that Southerners aren't the only ones who talk funny.

Geraldine Ferraro, Walter Mondale's better half, stopped in Atlanta recently, and I was amused at how many locals who heard her speak kept turning to each other and asking, "Whadshesay?"

As a public service to the nation's voters, I've decided to attempt to decipher some of the words and phrases Geraldine Ferraro uses so voters can understand what on earth she is talking about.

I happen to be an expert on the way New Yorkers speak. I have been cursed at, ignored and told to bug off in New York on many occasions.

Here, then, is a glossary of what we perhaps may call Ferraroespeak:

- FADDAH: Father.
- MUDDAH: Mother.
- SWEADAH: What your faddah and muddah give you for your birthday.
- WOK: Walk.
- TOK: Talk.
- LOCKS: What you eat for breakfast in place of grits or hash browns.
- THE GAHDEN: Where the Knicks and the Raingubs play.
- HOWIE: Howard.
- HOIB: Herb.

WOILTUH: Mondale.

OUDAH HEAH: What you say to somebody when you don't want them around anymore, as in "Hey, Cahtuh, ouda heah."

DOLLING: Term of endearment. Pronounced "döllin'" in the South, as in "You don't have to call me dollin', dollin'."

YABUM, YA: What you say to Dave Winfield of the Yankees, who makes more than even George Bush, when he strikes out with the bases loaded.

SKOOL - UHL: School.

POO - UHL: Pool.

DROO - UHL: What you do when you see the results of the latest opinion poll showing Ronald Reagan ahead in the presidential race by 30 points.

SLEAZE: Secretary of Labor Donovan gets indicted.

MEESE: More sleaze.

GEEZ: What everybody in New York says, rather than saying "golly," as in "Geez, Woiltuh, think of something. It's almost Novembuh."

Where fairness still lives

ATCHISON, Kansas - Few of the ancient abbeys of Europe have sites that match in beauty and drama the setting of the Benedictine abbey that is the heart of Benedictine College in this Kansas city. It is a place ideally suited for scholarship and meditation.

Institutions such as Benedictine College represent an important part of the nation's educational, intellectual and moral resources. This college, like others of its type, depends on private support.

An especially important part of the Benedictine's educational work is its Institute of Entrepreneurship, which brings economists, journalists and other commentators on the national and international economic scene to the college to discuss economics in the perspective of enduring values.

Thoughtful people in many countries are discussing and debating economic issues and their relationship to the good society. This writer, who was privileged to speak here, addressed these issues, making the point that the U.S. economic system is fair as well as efficient. Unfortunately, there are many commentators who believe that the American economic system is unfair. They would involve the nation in massive new wealth redistribution schemes at home and abroad. They believe they are promoting justice, but they would scrap essential systems of wealth creation.

The moral basis of the capitalist system, as practiced in the United States, needs to be defended in a vigorous way. Defense is essential because the system is under attack from those who are shocked by the poverty of the Third World and think that economic leveling is the answer. They are mistaken. The end result of leveling would be to reduce the United States to the level of the Third World and eliminate its ability to be a bastion of freedom.

Abolition of the profit motive, which is urged by socialists around the world, would destroy incentives in the most productive part of the world. Where the profit motive is not allowed to operate, whether Cuba or Poland, government coercion of the working people becomes the standard operating procedure.

Such matters are at the heart of debates in colleges these days. Certainly, it is not enough for believers in free enterprise to stress the efficiencies of capitalism. The national and global fairness issue must be addressed in a thorough and comprehensive manner. All human institutions are fallible, but the U.S. economic system works better than any ever created. It can be improved, of course, but economic progress can be best achieved by utilizing and building on the system in place in the United States.

Students at American colleges and universities need to hear that point of view. Happily, Benedictine is open to a variety of responsible points of view. Larger institutions could learn a lesson from the thoughtful scholarly approach characteristic of Benedictine College. Intellectual fairness is alive and well there.

Pope grants permission to say limited Latin Masses

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II, acknowledging the attachment of some conservative clergy to the old-style Mass, is permitting priests in certain cases to say the rite in Latin as it was before the reforms of Vatican II.

The pope's decision, revealed in a circular released late Monday by the Vatican, strictly limits the days and places in which the Latin Mass can be conducted. It also warns that the Vatican has the right to ban priests from celebrating the old-style rite if they overstep limits on its use.

The warning brought to mind the rebellion by some conservative priests, most notably Swiss-based Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre, over the change in the Mass from Latin to local languages two decades ago.

The Latin, or Tridentine, Mass was established by Pope Pius V in 1570, and said for millions of Roman Catholic century after century until it was banned by Vatican II, as the Second Vatican Council is known.

American to appeal court rate decision

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — American Airlines and its president say they will appeal a federal appeals court decision that said the federal government can prosecute them for allegedly attempting to fix fares with Braniff Airlines in 1982.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Monday threw out a dismissal of the suit by U.S. District Judge Robert M. Hill of Dallas, Texas, and sent the case back to him "for further proceedings consistent with this opinion."

The lower court made a mistake in dismissing the government's complaint on the grounds that agreement by two parties to antitrust activity was required to bring the suit under the Sherman Antitrust Act, the appeals panel said.

According to the appeals ruling, former Braniff chairman Howard Putnam did not raise Braniff's rates in response to a proposal by American Airlines president Robert L. Crandall.

Instead, Putnam turned over a tape recording of their telephone conversation to the federal government.

According to the appeals court, Crandall told Putnam in their telephone conversation, "I have a suggestion for you. Raise your goddamn fares 20 percent. I'll raise mine the next morning."

When Putnam responded that they could not talk about pricing, Crandall said, "We can talk about any goddamn thing we want to talk about," the ruling said.

American Airlines said in a statement released Monday: "Both American Airlines and Crandall are disappointed by the decision by the court of appeals and are convinced it is incorrect." An American Airlines spokesman said the appeal would be made to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Judge W. Eugene Davis, writing for the three-member appeals panel, said, "one agreement is not an absolute prerequisite for offense of attempted joint monopolization, and two government's complaint sufficiently alleged facts that if proved would have permitted a finding of attempted monopolization by airline and its chief executive officer."

Hill ruled in September 1983 that because Putnam never agreed to raise Braniff's prices as Crandall suggested, no attempt at monopolizing the Dallas-Fort Worth market took place.

The suit asked that Crandall be removed as American's president for two years and sought to prohibit the company from discussing prices with competitors for two years.

According to the appeals ruling, in February 1982, American and Braniff together enjoyed a market share of more than 90 percent of the passengers on non-stop flights between Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport and eight major cities.

American and Braniff accounted for 76 percent of monthly arrivals and departures at the airport, the court said.

For some time before February 1982, the court said, American and Braniff were vying fiercely for passengers by offering lower fares and better service.

The appeals court said federal courts have generally rejected a rigid approach to anti-trust cases and that they have usually looked at the particulars in each.

The appeals court said it rejected the lower court's contention that more than solicitation was needed.

"We also conclude that the better reasoned authorities support the view that a highly verbal crime such as attempted monopolization may be established by proof of a solicitation along with the requisite intent," the appeals court said.

One of the council's reforms led to introduction of the Mass said in the languages of the worshippers. It also called for the priest to face the congregation, instead of turning his back to the pews, as had been the practice for ages. The new style also lets lay people read from the Bible during the service.

Latin can be said during the new-style Mass, but the rite is usually performed in the local vernacular.

The council hoped the new-style Mass, known as the Roman Mass, would make the rite more accessible to faithful who did not know Latin, which was the language of the learned in Europe for centuries.

John Paul II eased the ban on Tridentine Masses "out of concern for the groups attached to the Mass," said the circular drafted by the Congregation for the Divine Cult.

However, the document stipulated that "priests and their faithful using the Mass must publicly state that they in no way share the positions of those who doubt the legitimacy of and the doctrinal exactness of the Roman Mass."

The document, which was issued

Oct. 3 in Latin to the presidents of bishops' conferences around the world, stated that the Mass can only be celebrated "on days and under conditions set by the bishop" of each diocese.

It said the rite is also banned from use in parish churches except on "extraordinary occasions."

In addition, it said the Mass must be used "only for the service of those groups that request it" and "any mixing between the texts and the rites of the two Masses must be avoided."

Vatican sources have said the church was not opposed to allowing the Tridentine rite but to traditionalist groups using it as a "symbol" of their opposition to church reforms.

Nurse goes on trial in Bexar case

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Convicted baby killer and former vocational nurse Genevieve Jones could get up to 99 years in prison when she goes on trial here for allegedly injecting a child.

Ms. Jones already is serving 99 years for killing another infant in Kerrville.

Her trial on an injury to a child charge was scheduled for 1:30 p.m. today.

The former licensed vocational nurse waved a jury trial two weeks ago, so her case will be heard by 187th District Court Judge Pat Priest.

She is accused of injecting a 4-week-old boy with a blood-thinner while she worked at Medical Center Hospital in San Antonio.

The San Antonio case involves the alleged injury to Rolando Santos, a patient at the pediatric intensive care unit at Medical Center Hospital.

Ms. Jones is accused of injecting the child in January 1982 with heparin, an anti-coagulant drug prosecutors say causes "excessive bleeding."

She already has been convicted of killing a 15-month-old girl with injections of succinylcholine, a powerful and hard-to-trace muscle relaxant.

That death occurred in Kerrville, where Ms. Jones faces an additional seven charges.

ROCKIES SNOWFALL—Hunters Terry Schaeffer of Vail, Colo. and Gerry Riddle of Avon, Colo., left, loaded their horse in a trailer and cut short their hunting trip due to snow in the Rockies. They decided one elk was enough and two feet of snow at Two Elk Pass, near Vail, where they camped was too much. Snow has been falling in the Rockies since Sunday and more is in the forecast. (AP Laserphoto)

Snow hits Rockies, New Mexico

By The Associated Press
A blast of Alaskan air chilled the Rockies today after dumping 14 inches of snow on Gascon, N.M., and stranding 100 motorists for hours in drifts near Santa Fe. In Denver, fender benders were up fivefold, the airport closed and a nationally televised football game was played in blinding snow.
An 8-year-old boy died in a crash on an icy highway in Colorado. Two people died when a yingle-eng, its earliest start ever.
"A big blast of cold air from the Gulf of Alaska combining with warm moist air from Mexico" brought the snow to New Mexico and Colorado, said Paul Fike of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo.
Travelers' advisories were posted for much of Colorado and parts of New Mexico and North Dakota, some extending through today. Stockmen's advisories for rain were issued for today for western Kansas. Winter storm watches were posted over the Cascades of Oregon and the Shasta-Siskiyou area of California.
Three winter storm systems brought snow and wet rain to the central Pacific Coast, the northern Great Plains and the central Rocky Mountains and western Oklahoma panhandle, said Harry Gordon of the forecast center.

"Each one is moving in a different direction, not combining," and posed little threat east of the Plains, Gordon said early today.
A fourth system threatened thunderstorms from Oklahoma to Louisiana, Gordon said. A tornado watch was posted early today for parts of Missouri, Arkansas and Oklahoma.
The National Weather Service said the snow would spread east today to the western Plains, with strong gusting winds over portions of the northern and central Rockies.
About 100 motorists spent several hours stranded in snowdrifts on Interstate 25 between Santa Fe and Glorietta, N.M., before highway crews freed them Monday night.
A nationally televised National Football League game was played in the snow, but thousands of ticketholders stayed away from Denver's Mile High Stadium, missing a 17-14 Broncos' victory over the Packers.

A law requiring most vehicles to have tire chains was put into effect for most of the mountain passes, and fender benders around Denver were on the rise.
"Accidents are running about five times what we generally run. There are quite a few pileups, six to eight cars ... but nothing real serious," said State Patrol Duty Officer Fay Thurlow.

Hearing is postponed

SIERRA BLANCA, Texas (AP)—A judge has postponed until Friday a hearing to determine whether Hudspeth County Sheriff Mike Armstrong should be removed from office because of drug charges.
"It would be foolish for me to have (the hearing) today when we can do it Friday," retired State District Judge William H. Earney told a crowd of about 30 Monday at the Hudspeth County courthouse in this small West Texas town.
Earney and attorneys for both the state and Armstrong met behind closed doors for about 20 minutes Monday before announcing the postponement of the hearing.
The judge said uncompleted paperwork prompted the postponement.
"I know this is real important to this community. That's why we're rescheduling it," Earney said. "It's better for all concerned if we reschedule for Friday."
Attorneys for both parties declined to elaborate on the reason for the postponement.

Congress left behind lots of farm legislation

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — All sorts of agricultural loose ends were left dangling when Congress quit for the year, including a number that rural advocates had been pushing for many months, even years.

Among the bills to die was the Export Administration Act, an omnibus trade bill that included several features important to American farmers, notably restrictions on the use of embargoes to halt the shipment of U.S. agricultural commodities.

The trade legislation died when the House and Senate failed to reach an agreement on what government department should have the key role in policing shipments of strategic goods to the Soviet Union.

Another defeat for rural interests was Senate failure to take up a bill that would extend federal help to the nation's rural electric systems by forgiving some $7.9 billion owed to the Treasury by the Rural Electrification Administration.

Conservationists also took their lumps when hopes faded for "sodbuster" legislation that would have denied federal crop supports, operating loans and disaster assistance to farmers who plow land the government says is highly erodible.

The House and Senate had passed different versions of the sodbuster bill but failed to work out a compromise. A conference panel met once on the issue — last June — although there were many moves behind the scenes.

In the Senate, Republican farm leaders, including Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, chairman of the Agriculture Committee, objected to a House provision that would have set up a three-year, $225 million "conservation reserve" that would pay farmers to take their most fragile land out of production for seven to 15 years.

The administration, including Agriculture Secretary John R. Block, had supported the sodbuster idea but was against the new payment program. Officials contended that if a conservation reserve is needed, it would be more appropriate to look at it during the 1985 farm bill debate.

Although the House had passed the rural electric bill last March, the measure had languished in the Senate, where powerful lobbying by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and others had kept it in the background.

Under the plan — termed a "giveaway" by critics — the REA, an agency of the Agriculture Department, would be able to overhaul its lending practices, including forgiveness of $7.9 billion in loans scheduled for repayment beginning in 1993 over a 24-year period.

The REA serves as the main financing source for rural electric and telephone systems.

Bob Bergland, vice president and general manager of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, said the Reagan administration led the move against the bill, which actually reached the Senate floor last Wednesday night before being withdrawn after an objection.

"This farcical episode brought an inglorious finale to the year-long game plan of the administration to avoid forthright, on-the-record debate and vote on the bill," Bergland said in a statement.

Bergland, who was secretary of agriculture in the Carter administration, said the bill also would have raised interest rates on loans to rural electric distribution.

Competency trial to start for man charged in slave case

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — A competency hearing for Joe Ortiz, one of nine defendants accused in the torture death of a drifter at a Hill Country ranch, was second on the docket this week in 198th District Court.

Jury selection for the hearing began Monday, and attorneys said the case likely would be heard late today or sometime Wednesday.

Ortiz, 21, of San Antonio, is charged in an organized crime indictment alleging conspiracy to commit aggravated kidnapping and murder in the March 3 death of Anthony Warren Bates.

Witnesses said Bates was tortured for days with an electric cattle prod until he died at a sprawling ranch near Mountain Home, Texas.

Also charged under the indictment are Walter Wesley Ellebracht Sr., 52; his son, Walter Wesley Ellebracht Jr., 31; and the son's wife Joyce Ellebracht, 29.

Warrant issued for AP Newsman in India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Punjab police have issued a warrant for the arrest of an Associated Press newsman in connection with his reports on the Indian army assault against Sikh extremists at the Golden Temple in Amritsar last June.

Brahma Chellaney, 27, an Indian national who has worked in the AP's New Delhi bureau for six years, is wanted on a non-bailable warrant issued in the Sikh holy city of Amritsar.

Police searched Chellaney's home in New Delhi Sunday and came to the AP office Sunday and Monday to look for him. Chellaney was not in either location.

P.N. Mehta, a Punjab police inspector from Amritsar, said the warrant charges Chellaney with violating restrictions on press coverage of the army action in Punjab and provoking tension and trouble between Hindus and Sikhs.

His AP dispatches on the Golden Temple action were published abroad and did not appear in Indian newspapers.

Chellaney was the only representative of a foreign news organization in Amritsar during the June 4-7 army attack on the sprawling Golden Temple complex.

The government said it ordered the attack to flush out Sikh extremists waging a violent campaign for greater political and religious autonomy.

The foreign press was ordered out of Punjab before the attack, and the northern state still remains off limits to all foreigners.

Chellaney's reports quoted unidentified police and army sources as saying as many as 1,200 people, including 1,000 Sikhs, were killed in the battle. The government says about 600 people were killed.

Chellaney also quoted police and medical sources as saying several Sikhs were found shot at close range, with their hands tied behind their backs.

The death toll later was confirmed by the leading Indian magazine, India Today. The Indian Express newspaper, the largest circulating English language daily, quoting post-mortem reports, also said some Sikhs were found with their hands tied behind their backs.

Chellaney, who is single, has a master's degree in sociology from the University of Delhi and a master's degree in research on disarmament studies from Jawaharlal Nehru University.

Before joining the AP, he worked for eight months at the Press Trust of India news agency.

In New York, AP Foreign Editor Nate Polowetzky said, "The Associated Press is concerned by this threat to one of its reporters doing his professional job. We are watching developments carefully and trying to gather more information."

In Washington, Deepak Vohra, press attache at the Indian Embassy, confirmed that the warrant had been issued and said: "We think that his report on the army attack and other reports he has filed have been shown to be palpably false. In the emotionally

Phyllis George will get anchor tryout

NEW YORK (AP) — Phyllis George, the CBS sportscaster and one-time Miss America from Texas, is to be given a two-week tryout as co-anchor of "The CBS Morning News," starting Monday, network officials said.

A permanent spot with the show will be dependent on both her performance during the tryout and her ability to get along with the show's news crew. If all goes well Miss George would succeed Diane Sawyer, who left the program in August to join the staff of CBS' 60 Minutes.

News officials at CBS said the selection of Miss George would coincide with the introduction of a new format for the morning news program, which has undergone several changes over the years.

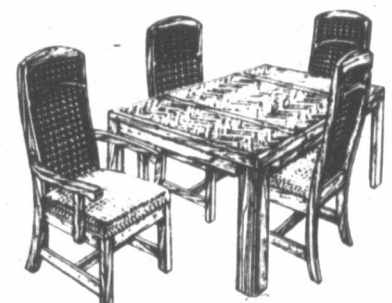

"We are putting Phyllis George on the air because she is well established at CBS and has a variety of skills required for that kind of job, and her availability comes at a time when we need someone to do the broadcast," said Ed Joyce, president of CBS News.

charged atmosphere in Punjab, his reports have created further bitterness. And so the government has taken the necessary action."

Wounded prison guard back on job

By ANTON RIECHER
Palestine Herald-Press
TENNESSEE COLONY, Texas
(AP) — Texas Department of Corrections Lt. Randall McFall has completed his first full week of active duty at a prison much changed since he was stabbed last July by a Coffield inmate wielding a homemade knife.

"Mine (stabbing) was why they did what was done here," McFall said. "They hired the bosses we needed and did the shakedown of the prison."

Changes that McFall returned to find included the addition of about 80 correctional officers to the security staff with the promise of more before the end of the year. A series of subsequent lock-downs reduced the rate of inmate stabbings from 15 a month to zero during the month of September.

However, last weekend saw another eruption of violence at the Coffield Unit that left one inmate dead and seven others injured. TDC spokesman Charles Brown said the Saturday morning attack in a dining room by six Mexican American inmates against six black prisoners appeared racially motivated.

"This comes as a surprise because we've been doing so well lately as far as violent incidents are concerned," Brown said Sunday. "I don't know what prompted this. I don't know what our next move will be."

The search that followed

McFall's July 18 stabbing recovered 489 weapons fashioned and hidden by Coffield inmates. More than 340 of those weapons were crude knives of the kind used on McFall.

TDC Director Raymond K. Procnier's move to identify dangerous inmates and separate them from the rest of the prison population was the improvement that McFall said won the most immediate approval.

"If you separate the hardened from the less hardened, at least you know where you stand when you go in with them," McFall said.

McFall said that all of the action taken by TDC at Coffield were measures he knew would eventually be instated. Still, he said he was surprised that the changes have been made so quickly after the stabbing that nearly cost his life.

No motive has been established in the attack on the 30-year-old McFall, then a sergeant, who was supervising the return of inmates to their cells in a protection wing of the unit. Turning to walk away, McFall was confronted by an inmate who had been standing behind him.

"It all happened so quickly that I don't know how to explain what happened," McFall said. "It was weird."

The homemade knife — known as a "shank" — plunged into the 11-year TDC veteran's abdomen before he had time to realize the inmate was armed. A 4-inch deep wound cut across McFall's pancreas, liver and stomach.

He pulled the knife out himself, and ran to the prison infirmary.

"It really didn't even hurt, so I guess I was already in shock," McFall said.

Wesley Johnson, 21, serving a 10-year sentence for armed robbery, was indicted for attempted murder by an Anderson County grand jury the following week. Trial was set to begin Monday.

McFall spent the eight days following the attack at Anderson County Memorial Hospital under heavy sedation. Other than a dim recollection of a handshake, McFall said he remembers very little about Gov. Mark White's visit to his hospital room.

"I don't remember a thing the governor said," McFall said. However, White's concern expressed in two letters to McFall has "meant a little something to me."

Other boosts to McFall's spirits during his seven-week recovery at Baylor University Medical Center in Dallas was the announcement of his expected promotion to lieutenant, a letter of commendation for bravery from the TDC and "the pretty nurses."

Although he still faces surgery in November, McFall decided to cut short his convalescence leave and return to work just two weeks out of the hospital.

"I'm not really back at work yet," McFall said. "I'm back here killing time and helping out because I got tired of watching those dull soap operas."

McFall's present duties are confined to office work but he has not been hesitant about working with guards and inmates in the prison hallways, the same job he was doing the day he was stabbed.

"You can't be scared and work in the penitentiary," McFall said. "You can't do your duty if you are scared."

Warden Jack Garner said that when McFall is fully recuperated, the job of supervisor on the night shift will be waiting.

"Some guards on a shift do a good job and one or two may do just enough to get by," Garner said. "Randy wasn't just good, he was always outstanding."

Eventually, McFall said, he wants Garner's job. With the hard work and education necessary, Garner said he saw no reason why McFall couldn't expect to make warden.

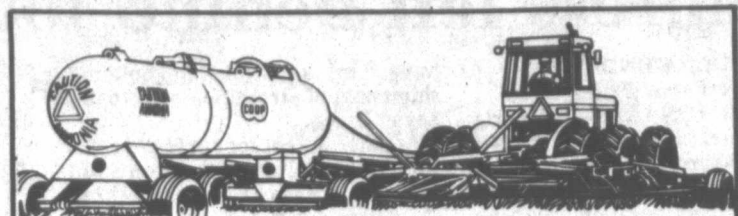

"There have been times in the past when I would have been glad to give him the job," Garner said.

McFall does admit that the thought of quitting "crossed his mind" after the stabbing, but said he decided that he still "wouldn't have any other job."

"My family was concerned that the stabbing would all 'flashback' on me when I went back to work," but that hasn't happened yet, he said.

For now, McFall's biggest problem at work is trying to duck the ceremonial dunking in the prison fish pond required when TDC employees make rank.

"We're going to give him one more month until he's healed up good and then it's in the fish pond," Assistant Warden Carl White said.

Fertilize for wheat PROFIT!

You may be looking for ways to cut costs. Who isn't? But one thing all agronomists tell us is: "Don't cut back in areas that cause yields to decrease!"

They are talking about fertilizer. They encourage the wheat farmer to select varieties and apply fertilizer for optimum yields — that's your most profitable yield.

Yes, your cost per acre will increase as you move up toward your optimum yield. But your cost per bushel will be reduced.

You not only get more bushels per acre, you get more profit from every bushel you raise!

Base your fertilizer applications on soil test results and your yield goals. Let our Fertilizer Specialist help you.

We're ready when you are, with both anhydrous ammonia and dry blends.

Creative process of Grandma Moses shown

BY JOAN BRUNSKILL
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — An exhibition of paintings by one of America's best-loved artists, Anna Mary Robertson Moses, better known as Grandma Moses, is on view at the Museum of American Folk Art here, before beginning a six-city tour.

Titled "The World of Grandma Moses," it glows with the joyous vision of its remarkable subject, the self-taught artist whose public career as a painter began when she was over 80 and whose creative energy flowed out with scarcely diminished freshness the rest of her long life.

This is the first traveling exhibition since Grandma Moses' death in 1961 at age 101. It consists of more than 50 examples of her work, with her familiar, but never exactly repeated, themes of country life, centered on her native upstate New York: the bustling winters with their sleigh rides, the harvest and sugaring-off times, the summer activities amid verdant, rolling landscapes.

The approach of this exhibition is unusual for a folk artist. It includes source material and preliminary drawings never included in a museum show before, sheds light on her working methods and traces her development — for almost alone among 20th-century folk artists, Grandma Moses did show growth and change during those late 20 or so years of full-time painting.

"The idea of the show originated in a dream I'd had for some time, to do a study of a folk painter's work in the manner usually reserved for academic painting," said Jane Kallir, curator of the exhibition.

The two and a half years of the show's preparation had been preceded by Ms. Kallir's search for the basic source material she needed: Grandma Moses' reference collections of clippings and illustrations — Currier & Ives reproductions, greeting cards, calendars, pages from magazines and newspapers. These were eventually found in an attic in Eagle Bridge, N.Y., the town in which Grandma Moses had lived most of her later years.

Items from that rediscovered hoard, as well as Grandma Moses' preliminary sketches, are shown in the exhibition beside the finished paintings in which they are transformed into something new and personal.

"In this way, the exhibition shows part of the creative process involved in Grandma Moses' work," Robert Bishop, the museum's director, pointed out.

The exhibition includes some of her most famous paintings, but covers a wide range from her earliest experiments to her last, vividly alive works.

There are also a few family photographs and handwritten notes. Two embroidered pictures are from the 1930s, done before arthritis in her hands caused her to abandon needlework and try painting instead. What is considered to be her first real painting is on show — it's a copy of a chromolithograph, done before 1927 in oil on an old scrap of threshing-machine canvas.

The greater part of the exhibition consists of the paintings she began to do following the death of her husband in 1927, when for the first time in her life, after the busy years as "hired girl," then as a farmer's wife and mother of a large family, she had time to spare — but not to remain idle.

Early paintings are closely based on some of her favorite illustrations: sometimes she began by painting over the original. Her first works were simply done, using simple materials. They were often, given away, later were sometimes offered for sale. In 1938 an amateur collector took some of her work to New York City, and her first exhibition in 1940 finally opened the way to recognition and celebrity.

Success enabled her to use better paints and brushes, while she continued to use as the base the pressed wood that she preferred to canvas, because she liked its smooth, rigid surface and durability. She tried out larger formats, and developed her characteristic, skillful way of combining wide panoramic backgrounds with foreground narrative detail, in scenes depicting timeless traditional themes.

Those on show here include "Cambridge and Valley" and "Sugaring Off," from 1943; "Christmas at Home," 1946; "The Picnic," 1947, and "The Old Checkered House (Winter)," 1950.

"Catching the Thanksgiving Turkey," 1943, "The Old Oaken Bucket in Winter," 1944, and "The Old Oaken Bucket," 1947, are among works shown together with their antecedents, the clippings and pencil sketches from which Grandma Moses developed the finished paintings.

From among her last works are three illustrations she painted in 1960 for the book, "The Night Before Christmas," with some of her richest use of color. And from the last year of her life, "Vermont Sugar," a winter scene sparkling with the "glitter" flakes she liked to sprinkle over winter scenes to give them the real look of frost.

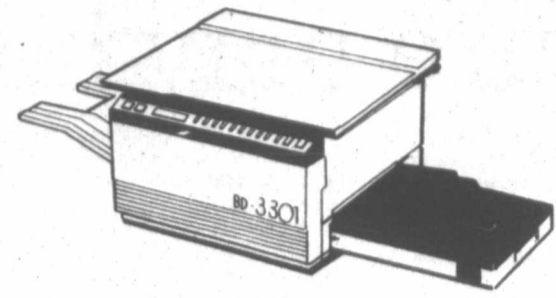

The exhibition was funded by grants from the American Express Co., and was organized by the International Exhibitions Foundation. Following its closing at the Museum of American Folk Art Oct. 28, it will be seen at the Baltimore Museum of Art, Nov. 18-Jan. 6, 1985; the Norton Gallery and School of Art, West Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 26-March 10, 1985; the Cheekwood Fine Arts Center, Nashville, Tenn., March 30-May 12, 1985; the Joslyn Art Museum, Omaha, Neb., June 8-July 21, 1985; and the Lakeview Museum of Arts and Sciences, Peoria, Ill., Aug. 10-Sept. 22, 1985.

Future may hold furniture to go

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures
 Are consumers willing to do some of the work in transporting their new furniture home and putting it together themselves to save time and money? That's the question furniture manufacturers and retailers have been debating for a number of years, as ready-to-assemble furniture has struggled to gain a foothold in the marketplace.

A recent event suggests enough consumers have said yes to self-delivery and self-assembly to make ready-to-assemble furniture an up-and-coming classification in the United States. More than 130 domestic and foreign companies, for example, participated in the first ready-to-assemble furniture trade show at the Coliseum in New York recently. Exhibitors pointed out that because the furniture is packed flat in a compact package, a consumer can self-deliver even a large piece — such as a complete wall system — hauling it home in the family car, instead of paying for delivery and having to wait at home for the furniture to arrive. Since self-delivery and self-installation constitute a savings for the retailer, costs should be lower than comparable quality store-delivered furniture — another plus. In fact, these advantages have made ready-to-assemble or KD furniture popular in Europe where it accounts for at least 20 percent of all furniture sold. So far, however, this type of furniture has accounted for only about 2.5 percent of furniture sales in the United States.

However, the growth of two-career families in which neither adult is available to stay at home to wait for delivery, the greater incidence of single adult households and the increase in the number of upwardly mobile well-educated young persons as furniture consumers have encouraged the industry to see major increases on the horizon for KD furniture. One reason why KD hasn't caught on here, according to Robert Schumacher, vice president of the National Home Furnishings Association is because "American manufacturers are so competitive and marketing-oriented." As a result, he says, they have been marketing already-assembled furniture for the same price as KD might cost elsewhere. "In 1966 you could buy a very nice sofa for $399," Schumacher recalls. "Today you can still buy a

Dear Abby

Great-aunt has great memory, but her timing is all wrong

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our son is engaged to be married. My great-aunt Emily, who used to live in this town, returned for the engagement celebration. (She's 81.)

When Aunt Emily was introduced to "Mr. Jones," the father of the bride, she recognized him as a man she had known 40 years ago. In the presence of Mr. Jones' wife and daughter, Aunt Emily asked him how his son was. Mr. Jones said, "You must be mistaken. I have no son." My aunt replied, "You certainly have—I attended a party for you, your cute French wife and your adorable little boy right after World War II."

our friends for a long time, and I had no idea she had the hots for my husband. Since then, I have forgiven my husband, but I can't forgive Laura. My husband can't understand why I don't want to continue seeing this couple. I feel uncomfortable in Laura's company. I suppose it's unfair of me to blame her more than I blame my husband, but that's the way I feel. Please advise me.

B. IN BINGHAMPTON, N.Y.

DEAR B.: Feeling as you do, I don't blame you for wanting to cool it with a "friend" who has the hots for your husband. To thine own self be true. I agree, Laura should be kissed off.

DEAR ABBY: "Tom in Cambridge, Md." wrote in part: "Your wisdom we value most highly. Your witty responses are fun. We love you, Dear Abby—but spare us 'The silly nonsensical pun!' Here's my rebuttal:

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, in accordance with an order from the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice it has filed a tariff to reduce the monthly rates for the Switched Access portion of the company's intraLATA Foreign Exchange (FX) Service offering that was implemented starting June 1, 1984. Simultaneously, the LATA-wide toll-free calling scope, also started June 1, would be discontinued and the calling scope would return to that in effect prior to June 1. The Commission has assigned this matter Docket Number 5891.

The net effect of the tariff will be a monthly decrease in total billing of approximately $700,000 until November 1, 1984. After that time the net effect on the company's revenue is estimated to be negligible.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 tele-typewriter for the deaf.

Aviso Público

En conformidad con una orden de la Comisión de Servicios Públicos de Texas, se anuncia mediante el presente aviso público que Southwestern Bell Telephone ha presentado una tarifa con el objeto de reducir las cuotas mensuales que se han cobrado desde el 1 de junio de 1984, por la porción de la tarifa para acceso a la red central necesaria con el uso del Servicio de Zona Exterior (Foreign Exchange (FX) Service).

Simultáneamente, el servicio de llamadas de larga distancia sin cobro dentro del área de servicio que también se efectuó el 1 de junio de 1984, se discontinuará, y el campo de llamadas será al igual que antes del 1 de junio de 1984. Se ha registrado la nueva tarifa bajo el Docket 5891.

El efecto real de la nueva tarifa se verá en la reducción del costo total de facturas de aproximadamente $700,000 hasta el 1 de noviembre de 1984. Se calcula que después de esta fecha el efecto real para nuestra empresa será despreciable.

Los usuarios de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company que estén interesados en participar en esta reunión, o que requieran mayor información, deben dirigirse por escrito a: Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. También se puede obtener información adicional llamando a Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division al 512/458-0223, al 512/458-0227, o al 512/458-0221 si requiere teletipo (aparato para personas con impedimentos de audición).

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures
Q. — My sister bought an old house recently. She did it without a real estate broker and without an attorney. The day after she moved in, she suddenly realized that a large toolshed which had been in the rear of the house before the closing was no longer there. When she confronted the seller, she was told that the toolshed had been taken down and given to a neighbor to whom it had been promised. The seller said she had never told her that the shed was part of the sale. Is she right?

A. — That's a question only lawyers can answer. If your sister had had an attorney to begin with, she would not be in this situation, since the lawyer would have insisted that the agreement state whether the shed was part of the transaction. That's a lesson for everybody. Lawyer or no lawyer, broker or no broker, make sure every little detail is included in the agreement of sale and is signed by both the buyer and the seller.

framework and I intend to finish off the walls with gypsum wall board. I would like to use gypsum wallboard for the ceiling also, but a neighbor is trying to discourage me from doing that. He says gypsum wallboard is difficult to handle when it is to be installed as a ceiling. What is your advice?

A. — Your neighbor is right. He knows that gypsum wallboard is very heavy and awkward to handle when applied to a ceiling. Either do it with the help of someone who has had some experience with it or have it done by a professional.

Q. — I am making a bar soon for my finished basement. Is it all right to finish the top with brush lacquer? I want something that will not turn white when water is spilled on it.

A. — Yes, lacquer will be fine. It will not turn white from water. You did not say what kind of bar it will be. If it is to be used for alcohol, see if you can find a finishing establishment that sells alcohol-proof lacquer. — (The techniques of using lacquer, varnish, shellac, stain, bleach, remover, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," which can be obtained by sending 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P. O. Box 477, Huntington, NY 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.)

Rewards you are entitled to are in the offing this coming year. Nature may have been tardy but she will follow through on her promises.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Financial conditions look promising for you today, provided you don't strew obstacles in your own path. Use sound judgment in money matters. Want to find out to whom you are best suited romantically? Send for your Matchmaker set by mailing $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Reveals compatibilities for all signs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Instead of wasting valuable time trying to fix the blame for a blunder, expend the same effort correcting the mistake.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may have trouble today discerning who your true friends really are today and end up rewarding the undeserving while ignoring one who should be treated kindly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Strive to be tactful and diplomatic when dealing with an authority figure today. If you get off on the wrong foot he may come down on you hard.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You're not apt to take readily to suggestions or advice from others today. You might feel they are dictating to you, rather than trying to be helpful.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you have to do business today with someone who has caused you problems in the past, keep your guard up. He may try to get the better of you once again.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Neglected promises may cause you difficulty today. The victims of your procrastination might pressure you into following through on your commitments.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your initial reactions to others today may focus solely on their negative aspects. Keep in mind that they have nice qualities as well.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Beware of inclinations today to gamble much in order to gain a little. Play it safe and stick with procedures that offer small, but steady returns.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Poor results are likely today if you are too demanding when trying to get others to do your bidding. Kind words work, curt ones won't.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Normally you are a rather self-assured person but today you might let negative thinking hold you back from something you're capable of accomplishing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Money has a way of slipping through your fingers today. If you fail to keep a tight lid on unnecessary expenditures, you'll destroy your budget.

Broncos hold off Packers, 17-14

DENVER (AP) — Defensive backs Steve Foley and Louis Wright returned two fumbles for touchdowns just 37 seconds into the game and the Denver Broncos held on for a 17-14 National Football League victory over the Green Bay Packers Monday night in a game played in storm that dropped ankle-deep snow on the field by game's end.

The Broncos, extending their winning streak to five games, raised their record to 6-1 and kept pace with the Los Angeles Raiders in the AFC West. Green Bay suffered its sixth straight setback after an opening victory.

The scores by Foley and Wright marked the second consecutive game Denver's defense had contributed two touchdowns. For the year, the Broncos defense has scored six times.

Despite a mostly anemic offense, the Broncos made the 14-0 lead standup with key defensive plays, the final one coming when defensive end Rulon Jones sacked quarterback Lynn Dickey and forced a fumble after the Packers had driven inside the Denver 20-yard line with 1:08 left in the game.

It offset a brilliant performance by Packers wide receiver James Lofton, who defied the elements by catching a career-high 11 passes for 206 yards, including a 54-yard score midway through the fourth quarter.

On Green Bay's first play from scrimmage, running back Gerry Ellis was hit in the backfield by linebacker Tom Jackson and fumbled. Foley scooped up the loose ball and dashed 22 yards for a score.

On their next play from scrimmage, the Packers duplicated their disaster. Jessie Clark ran five yards but was stripped of the ball by linebacker Steve Busick, and Wright ran it back 27 yards for another touchdown with 14:23 left in the opening quarter.

Green Bay, with Dickey beginning to connect with Lofton, subsequently threatened to score three times in the first half. But Eddie Garcia missed field goal attempts of 29 and 37 yards, and Dickey was intercepted by Foley on the third threat.

Denver quarterback John Elway completed passes of 16 yards to Steve Watson and 18 yards to Sammy Winder to set up Rich Karlis' 30-yard field goal early in the second quarter for a 17-0 Denver lead.

The Packers applied the pressure again, taking the second-half kickoff and driving to the Denver 5, where Dickey fumbled a snap and linebacker Jim Ryan recovered.

Green Bay finally got on the scoreboard late in the third quarter. Safety Mark Murphy intercepted a pass by Elway and returned it eight yards to the Denver 14. Four plays later, Ellis ran off right tackle for a five-yard scoring run with 1:15 left in the period.

Denver's offense, which failed to gain a first down from late in the first quarter until late in the third quarter, put together a short drive that expired on incomplete passes and helped set up the Packers' second score.

Lofton beat cornerback Mike Harden down the left side and gathered in Dickey's 54-yard touchdown toss as Green Bay drew within 17-14 with 7:31 left.

Denver gained only one yard on its next possession and, after a short punt, Green Bay had possession on its own 43. Dickey completed three straight passes, including a 15-yarder to Ellis.

But after reaching the Denver 19, Dickey dropped to pass and was sacked by Jones, the ball coming loose and into the hands of linebacker Karl Mecklenburg. The Broncos then managed to run out the clock.

Dickey finished the night 27-for-37 for 371 yards, with one touchdown and one interception.

Trammell wins MVP honors

DETROIT (AP) — Alan Trammell, the consummate team player, isn't used to going solo.

Trammell, the Detroit shortstop who was voted most valuable player of the World Series, picked up the keys to a shiny new Pontiac Trans Am on Monday, but couldn't help bringing up his teammates, especially second baseman Lou Whitaker.

"Anytime I'm referred to, Lou is always mentioned, too," Trammell noted. "I like that. Each year we've grown as a team, Lou and I have grown as a double-play combination and as friends."

"There are a whole lot of guys who could just as easily be here today and Lou is certainly one."

Trammell and the rest of the Tigers were to be honored with a parade through downtown Detroit today.

The car, which was promptly dubbed "Tram's Am," is awarded to the MVP by Sport Magazine. It was presented to Trammell during a brief ceremony in Tiger Stadium — on the grass just behind his infield position.

"I hope I don't miss 'em," Trammell said when photographers begged him to toss the keys in the air. "The season's over now, so we don't want an E6. That's happened before!"

Indeed, Trammell made one harmless error in Game 2 of the World Series, but it was just about his only mistake as he helped the powerful Tigers brush aside the San Diego Padres four games to one.

"I know how Detroit has waited and this is a special thrill," Trammell said. "The thing is, though, I think Jack (Morris) and Kirk (Gibson) were deserving of MVP, too. But, we've had somebody different every night. We weren't a one-man team this year."

Nor was Trammell a one-man gang during the series. However, he did hit .450, including a pair of homers in the fourth game. He drove in six runs and scored five.

"There's no question that Game 4 was the biggest one I've ever had," Trammell said. "I've had some nights during the season, but this was by far the biggest. This was the World Series."

Public invited

Meeting tonight on golf course

A meeting of all charter members of the Pampa Public Golf Association will be held at Lovett Memorial Library at 7:30 p.m. tonight.

Persons interested in becoming a charter member or who would like to help in building a public golf course in Pampa are urged to attend.

Because of the recent agreement with Gray County, the association is now in the process of raising funds for the public golf course. Last month, the county commissioners established the Gray County Public Golf Course account to receive contributions for the construction and operation of the proposed course.

Contributions can be mailed to Gray County Treasurer, P.O. Box 976, Pampa, Tex. 79065. Make checks payable to the Gray County Treasurer and designate it for the public golf course.

More information can be obtained by contacting drive chairman John McGuire at 665-3031 or 665-8762, Buddy Epperson at 669-6291 or 665-1801 or John Cleavinger at 665-7768 or 665-4325.

Epperson, who is president of the association, said charter members are considering a "Buy A Green," project, which will give anyone an opportunity to buy a green, tee box and fairway for $24,000. Epperson said a marker would also be erected at the tee box, listed the donor's name. All donors will have their names engraved on a bronze plaque that will be maintained in the pro shop, Epperson said.

Once enough funds are available to start building the course, Epperson said charter members will be divided into teams and assigned work projects on the course.

"People will be assigned according to their experience," Epperson added.

Longhorns should still be ranked No. 1, Akers says

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas coach Fred Akers says the Longhorns should be ranked No. 1 even though they tied Oklahoma 15-15, but he doesn't want any part of a rematch with the Sooners — or any other team.

Akers on Monday also got caught up in a controversy over a contested end zone call that went against Oklahoma.

OU coach Barry Switzer said defensive back Keith Stanberry had "clearly" intercepted a Texas pass. "There's a Big Eight official standing there, watching him catch the ball ... He's looking at the Southwest Conference guy signal him out of bounds and he won't fight for us," Switzer said.

After the Texas pass was ruled incomplete, Texas kicked a 32-yard field goal in the rain on the final play of the game to gain a tie against the Sooners. Texas had been No. 1 but fell to No. 3 in this week's Associated Press poll. Oklahoma moved up a notch to No. 2, behind Washington.

The Big Eight's supervisor of officials, Bruce Finlayson, talked to Switzer on Monday and told him "our official did make a mistake."

Akers was asked if he had any comment, and he replied, "No. He (Finlayson) didn't call me."

Asked if he thought there was interference on the play on which flanker Bill Boy Bryant of Texas collided with another OU defender before Stanberry grabbed the deflected pass, Akers said, "Without question there was interference. But not on who you're thinking about."

That call (on Bryant) "could have been either way," Akers said, "but they interfered with our intended receiver was (tight end) William Harris. No one saw all that."

Akers said when Harris ran past an unnamed OU linebacker "the man just shoved — turned him sideways, and he finally fell, but those things happen."

A reporter at Akers' weekly news conference said Switzer seemed to feel he had been "screwed around" by the officials, and Akers responded:

"That's always the way it is when you're ahead and someone comes and slides what seems to be like an apparent victory right out from under you. The team that does the tying always ends up with more momentum and better thoughts than the team that was just tied."

Georgetown loaded again

DePaul hopeful as basketball season opens

DIFFERENT PERSPECTIVE—Ray Meyer, former head basketball coach at DePaul, watches the Blue Demons practice. Meyer coached DePaul for 43 years before handing the reins over to his son, Ray. (Staff Photo)

By The Associated Press
The loaded DePaul Blue Demons are starting basketball practice with high hopes for the upcoming season and a Meyer in charge for the 43rd consecutive year.

But for the first time in all those seasons, the coach is not Ray Meyer, who retired last March. His son Joey, who assisted his father for seven years before taking over the head coaching position, led the team at its first official practice Monday.

"I thought I'd come in on this day and say, 'This is it,'" Joey Meyer said. "But it really didn't feel that way. I guess it's because I've been involved for so long and worked almost every detail but the top job."

The younger Meyer said he won't try to do things just to be like his father. "As far as personalities, we'll have to wait and see."

Meyer figures to inherit one of the top teams in the nation, with a powerful front line, including Tyrone Corbin, Kevin Holmes and Marty Embry, returning from a team that finished 27-3. Holmes or Embry could be replaced in the starting lineup by last season's freshman sensation, Dallas Comegys.

Defending national champion Georgetown, with four returning starters, also opened practice Monday.

"We've been doing this for 13 years," Coach John Thompson said. "The only difference is, we have one in the sack already. That's something they can't take away from you."

Thompson can take plenty of comfort in the fact that he doesn't have to worry about replacing many key players. Among those returning are All-America center Patrick Ewing and fellow starters David Wingate, Michael Jackson and Bill Martin.

While Georgetown and DePaul figure to be loaded again, perennial powerhouse Kentucky opened practice with several question marks following the departure of high draft choices Sam Bowie and Melvin Turpin and several others.

"It's nice to have the pressure (of being a championship favorite) off," Coach Joe B. Hall said, "but it's nice to have those type of ballplayers that bring on the pressure."

The only two starting spots conceded to be locked up are at forward, with Kenny Walker and Winston Bennett.

Meanwhile, UCLA went through its first practice session under new Coach Walt Hazzard, who succeeded Larry Farmer after he resigned last spring. Hazzard already has announced his starting lineup for the upcoming season.

Senior forward Gary Maloncon is the only returning starter for the Bruins.

No team was more anxious to get started than Wake Forest.

The Demon Deacons began their drills at 12:01 a.m. under the watchful eyes of Coach Carl Tacy.

A standing-room crowd of 1,500 the Wake Forest gymnasium to watch Kenny Green score 20 points in one half of action. Tacy has to find a way to replace key starters Danny Young and Anthony Teachey.

Huskies climb to top in AP football rankings

By JIM COUR
AP Sports Writer
For the second season in the last three, Washington football Coach Don James is on the hot spot: His Huskies are No. 1 in The Associated Press college football poll.

On Monday, the Washington Huskies became the fifth team to be ranked No. 1 this season.

"I know it's a tough spot to be in," James admitted.

"Being No. 1 is a position that's just going to make your opponents play their very best football against you. I think it also makes my job a little bit more difficult in dealing with my own players. I can sit there and tell 'em and tell 'em and tell 'em until I'm blue in the face but..."

Washington was elevated from No. 2 in the poll after its 37-15 Pacific-10 Conference victory Saturday at Stanford, Texas, last week's top-ranked team, and Oklahoma battled to a 15-15 tie.

The Huskies received 37 of 59 first-place votes and 1,135 of a possible 1,180 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Texas dropped to third place while Oklahoma jumped from third to second with 10½ first-place votes and 1,072 points. Texas received 4½ first-place ballots and 1,057 points.

James emphasized it was not important to be ranked first in the nation at this point in the season.

"The important one is to be there on Jan. 2," he said. If the Huskies are No. 1 then, they would be the national champions.

James, 51, dean of Pac-10 football coaches in his 10th season in Seattle, will send his Huskies against 4-2 Oregon at Husky Stadium Saturday. Washington has been installed as a 19-point favorite.

Boston College, a 24-10 winner over Temple, held fourth place with six first-place votes and 1,032 points, while Nebraska jumped from sixth to fifth with 884 points following a 33-23 victory over Missouri.

The other first-place ballot went to Southern Methodist, which came from behind with two touchdowns in the final 3:01 to defeat Baylor 24-20 and rose from seventh to sixth with 862 points. Brigham Young, which nipped Wyoming 41-38, slipped from fifth to seventh with 843 points.

Ohio State, a 45-38 winner over Illinois, remained No. 8 with 744 points, while Miami of Florida climbed from 10th to ninth with 688 points after trouncing Cincinnati 49-25. Florida State, which had been ninth, dropped to 15th after losing to Auburn 42-41.

Rounding out the Top Ten is LSU, up from No. 12 last week. The Tigers defeated Vanderbilt 34-27 and received 652 points.

The Second Ten consists of South Carolina, Oklahoma State, Auburn, Georgia, Florida State, Kentucky, Florida, Iowa, Penn State and West Virginia.

Pampa High girl golfers compete in Amarillo meet

Pampa High girls' golf squad shot a 389 last weekend in a triangular meet held at the Amarillo Air Base course.

The Lady Harvesters defeated Tascosa, which shot a 407, and Amarillo High defeated Borger, 365-405.

For the Pampa Green Team, Brianna Marsh shot a 90, Mary Cross 92, Beth Redell 97, Lisa Coon 110; and Kim Harris 111.

Pampa Gold shot a 448. Becky Starnes shot a 102 for Pampa, followed by DeLynn Ashford 111, Leigh Harnley 115, Robin Rodhe 120 and Kathleen Dunigan 123.

Heather Simpson of Pampa shot a 122 in singles play.

Hereford, the other team entered, did not field a complete team.

"In Amarillo, Amarillo High is considered the best girls' team and Tascosa is second best, so I felt like we played exceptionally well," said Pampa coach Frank McCullough. "This is the first time we've won a dual or triangular and the first time a Pampa team has broken 400 since I've been coaching here. That's really encouraging."

Pampa hosts a six-team tournament Saturday at the Pampa Country Club course. Other teams entered are Amarillo High, Caprock, Borger, Tascosa and Palo Duro.

Oilers find silver lining in 28-10 loss to Dolphins

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers Coach Hugh Campbell found a few fringes of a silver lining in Sunday's 21st straight road loss to the Miami Dolphins.

"We had to move the football against a tough and undefeated football team and we did that," Campbell said Monday. "On the defensive side, we started to play more as a team."

The end results, however, was a 28-10 loss and an 0-7 record going into Sunday's game against the once-beaten San Francisco 49ers. Despite the loss, Campbell liked his team's progress.

"We seemed to grow up a little in this game," Campbell said. "There were no holds and jumping off sides. The football team played its best game. I felt that in the dressing room there were mixed emotions. It was sullen because we lost but there was an air of optimism."

Campbell said the Oilers' young line, dotted with first round draft choices, was part of the plan that he intends to keep.

"We put all of our marbles on the offensive line," Campbell said. "It's a fine offensive line and it's going to be here for a long time."

"There is a plan, it makes sense and (General Manager) Ladd (Herzog) and Mike (Holovak) and myself are going to stick with it because it's going to work," Campbell said.

Sunday's game was the first for the Oilers without running back Earl Campbell, traded last Tuesday to the New Orleans Saints. Larry Moriarty and rookie Willie Joyner filled in at the position and Campbell praised both players.

"He's a pleasure to have on your team," Campbell said of Moriarty. "His position coach (Al Roberts) feels every time Larry carries the ball he improves."

"He made a couple of cuts that were very good. I've been critical of Larry in the past for running into his own blocking."

The Oilers complained about a fourth down play when Miami defensive end Charles Benson jumped off sides and tripped wide receiver Herkie Walls and jumped back on sides without getting a penalty.

"The official said he didn't see it," Campbell said. "If he didn't see it he couldn't call it. I've become more angry at officials calling something he didn't see."

Oiler General Manager Ladd Herzog was more outspoken.

"The officials would have to be blind not to see what happened on that play," Herzog said. "This is the worst officiated game I've ever seen in my life."

Herzog questioned officials representative Ralph Morecroft in the Miami press box following the play.

"He said that (tackle Dean) Steinkuhler tripped Herkie," Herzog said. "Steinkuhler didn't even move, so it was impossible to trip him."

The Oilers return to the Astrodome Sunday to host once-beaten San Francisco.
