THURSDAY, JAN. 8

Your birthday Thursday; Material success becomes somewhat more of an issue in your life in the coming year. You develop much ingenuity for getting the best out of business and commercial opportunities. Social and romantic interests become stronger this Spring and Summer. Thursday's natives tend to have intense emotional qualities which find few channels for expression and thus produce moody spells.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You can't get away with anything today, so make a straight-forward effort. See that your appearance is first-rate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Travels are hindered somewhat Thursday. Catch up on the loose ends of your work projects, correspondence. Friends are full of bright ideas and suggestions. Do a good turn for somebody this evening.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): Some extra money should be coming your way, although you'll have to earn it. Check signals with associates so as not to miss anything. New investments are under good influence now.

Moms Copeless With New Year

By BETTY CANARY

Aren't you just a bit suspicious of anybody who enjoys the first week of January? Perhaps you haven't had the same experience, but it seems that wherever I turn, I bump into enthusiastic people.

Here I am, just beginning to recover from Christmas—my husband calls it Tinseltitis—while others are planning spring cleaning. My best friend has even talked with an upholsterer about recovering her living room sofa. I don't know if she's actually chosen the fabric or not. Surely she can't be that enthusiastic.

Can you imagine anyone being able to sit there sorting through 1,400 little square swatches and being decisive at this time of year? The children haven't been back in school long enough. I haven't yet swept up all the peanut hulls and broken plastic.

This morning my friend Ellen stopped by and asked if I wanted to go shopping. "All the spring things are out and I can hardly wait!" was the way she put it. I didn't have the heart to tell her I am still looking for a nice navy sweater to wear this winter.

Another thing I didn't tell her was, I haven't even exchanged some shirts the boys' aunt gave them for Christmas. I am going to exchange them. But I'd rather not discuss it with Ellen. She would have had those shirts inside the department store at 10:05 a.m. Jan. 2. She would have marched right in and said, "I want to exchange this yellow size 12 for a size 14—here, I'll take this blue one with the stripes." Things never work out that way for me. No matter when I exchange the shirts there will be only one 14 left in the entire department. And it's going to be purple paisey.

Another depressing thing about the first week in January is that I keep meeting people who are lapping up raspberry yogurt. One can watch their hips literally melt away. They never seem to have any walnut raisin cake left over from the holidays. They have the thing down to an exact science.

As the clock strikes 12 on New Year's Eve, the last wedges of mince pie curiously disappear from their refrigerators and there's not a crumb left in their kitchens.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You were asked in your column, "Is a Jew a Jew because of his religion, or because of his race?" You replied, "I like Ben Gurion's definition: 'A Jew is anyone who says he is.'"

While Ben Gurion may be a very distinguished Jew, he's not an authority on religious matters; also, he's badly mistaken.

The accepted Jewish law is as follows: "A Jew is a person who was born into the Jewish peoplehood by a Jewish mother, and who never left his faith by accepting another religion, or one who has accepted the Jewish faith by an official conversion-to-Judaism ceremony."

In other words, a Jew is a Jew because of his religion, and not because of his race. Neither race nor nationality exclude anyone—from becoming a full-fledged Jew.

As you know, Sammy Davis Jr. is Jewish because he converted to Judaism. To which race does he belong? He certainly didn't change his race by becoming a Jew; he changed only his religion, but he remains a member of the race he originally belonged to.

Since your column is read by many intelligent people, I think they deserve a more authoritative answer to the above question. I'd appreciate it if you were to print this in your column.

Sincerely,
RABBI MOSHE MAGGAL,
NAT'L JEWISH INFORMATION SERVICE

DEAR RABBI: Thank you for a more authoritative answer to an oft-asked question. I'm amazed to learn that Ben Gurion's definition of a Jew was something less than "Kosher."

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago my ex-husband married his longtime mistress with whom he has been living for the past year. (I'll call her Joyce.)

My problem is that I've two teen-aged children who were old enough to know what was going on at the time, so you can imagine how they feel about Joyce. (Strangely enough, they still adore their father and place all the blame on Joyce.) Well, this stupid woman has been trying to win the children over with expensive gifts, so at Christmas time, in addition to the gifts from "Dad and Joyce," the children received separate gifts from "Joyce" alone. Her gifts are still sitting here, unopened. My children say they don't want to keep her gifts, and they've asked me to send them back to her so naturally, I don't have any love for this woman, either, but now I do not know what to do. What would you do, Abby?

BITTER, TOO
DEAR BITTER: I'd stay out of it and since the children still "adore" their father, why not let him handle it?

What's your problem? You will feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

A thought for the day: President Lincoln said, "Truth is generally the best vindication against slander."

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Maybe it's because I grew up in New York, New Jersey and Illinois, but the sports events I remember most warmly are usually associated with adverse weather conditions.

I can still remember football games I sat through in the cold, in rain—and in snow. But somehow I find it hard to recall the contests I watched under perfect conditions. The games may have been good—perhaps even better-played than those in bad weather—but the experience of participation was not as intense.

The warm memories of past games in the East and Midwest, in the snow and rain, came back to me Sunday as I watched the two pro football championship contests on television. (Although the Minnesota-Cleveland game in Minnesota was a rout, I loved watching it. You could feel the freezing weather. It seemed an experience. On the other hand, although the Oakland-Kansas City game at Oakland was closer, I felt little beyond normal interest in it.)

I think it is wrong to have the Super Bowl playoff between Minnesota and Kansas City in New Orleans next Sunday, when CBS-TV will broadcast it. What could be duller than having a relatively neutral stadium full of spectators watching a championship game? And since when can't championship teams play under any conditions? The Los Angeles Rams, for instance, played a fine game against Minnesota, in Minnesota, before losing in a recent big contest. There is no doubt in my mind that the Super Bowl should be played in Minnesota or Kansas City, before rabid fans, and maybe even in rotten weather.

For I admit that to be the experience is all, and the winning or losing is second. The technology of television is such that, while it brings us more events, it also makes them more impersonal because of the remoteness of distance; and because of the frequently nauseating public relations approach of some sports commentators who not only favor leagues but networks as well. Ironically, video's biggest job in sports now is to improve the words; the pictures are fine.

At any rate, it seems to me that as things become more perfect technically, there is an obvious human need to balance one's life with intense, personally felt experiences. I resent, for instance, the Houston Astro-dome and all such attempts to

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The main force of the 13-month bear market probably has been spent, Standard & Poor's says. While problems connected with the new tax legislation still remain and upcoming earnings evidence of some monetary relaxation would lend a firmer tone to the market, the firm feels. Meanwhile, the firm says, the current rally could go further as reinvestment demand seeks undervalued stocks.

The rally has continued long enough to lift a number of blue chip stocks above resistance levels as well as some secondary issues, TPO Inc. notes. Leading glamors also are showing steady improvement. Most intermediate rallies, however, don't begin without one or two tests of the lows, the firm says, so "it appears likely that the list will dip over the next week or two."

Hopkin Bros. & Co. anticipates heavy liquidation of U.S. Savings Bonds, savings and loan deposits, and savings accounts in banks, for reinvestment in government securities and the stock market. "The potential shift of funds could, if the fashion catches, involve billions of dollars," the firm says.

SOME CELEBRATION
WAIMEA — Hawaii (UPI)—While the employees of Waimea Airport were celebrating New Year's Eve, burglars took a safe out of the Hawaiian Airlines office, dragged it to the middle of the main runway, blew it open and stole $1,500. "Fortunately, there were no flights at that time of night," an airport employe said.
