

UAW targets Ford, GMC

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — The head of the United Auto Workers says a decision to target both General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. for possible strikes means the companies should "start all over" and make better contract proposals in time to avert a walkout.

UAW President Owen Bieber said Wednesday that GM and Ford should propose new contract terms "with haste because there's only 16 days left" to avoid a strike when the current contract expires Sept. 14.

Bieber's comments at a meeting of nationwide union locals came one day after GM and Ford offered nearly 500,000 domestic auto workers no increase in basic wages and no guarantee that more jobs won't be lost to foreign countries or non-union shops. GM offered a lump-sum payment to workers, while Ford offered a profit-sharing plan.

Ford's top negotiator said the decision to name GM and Ford as dual strike targets complicates the labor negotiations. GM issued a noncommittal statement calling the UAW move an "opportunity."

The union had made job security its No. 1 issue in this year's contract talks.

UAW bylaws provide for a strong presidency and in keeping with that, the 25-member executive board granted Bieber the right to pick one of the two companies later as sole strike target.

Wednesday's vote by the board initiated a move the UAW has tried only once before since pattern bargaining began nearly 30 years ago.

Discovery finally up

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — America's new shuttle Discovery finally soared into orbit today on its thrice-delayed maiden flight, carrying three communications satellites and a six-member crew that includes NASA's second woman astronaut and its first paying passenger.

After three frustrating postponements in two months and a last-minute wait to get two airplanes out of the way, Discovery lifted off into blue, cloudless skies on a mission critical to rebuilding the confidence of customers in the shuttle's commercial reliability.

Nine minutes after the fiery departure at 8:42 a.m., Mission Control in Houston reported the liftoff was perfect and Discovery was in orbit 184 miles high and streaking around the globe at 17,400 mph.

Also aboard is a drug factory that will manufacture a hormone whose identity has been kept a secret but which is said to be of potential benefit to millions.

"I know it's been kind of rough, turning this thing around... and getting it ready to go again," commander Henry Hartsfield, 50, told the control center shortly before launch. "We're ready to go, and we thank you for it."

The flight combines two missions into one as NASA struggles to get back on schedule and packs 24 tons of cargo, the heaviest yet for a shuttle.

Discovery's inaugural, the 12th shuttle flight, began almost seven minutes late because two private aircraft had penetrated the Kennedy Space Center airspace. One had to be chased away by a government plane.

With tens of thousands of spectators watching from the Kennedy Space Center and nearby beaches and highways, the blastoff culminated a countdown that was interrupted for 24 hours Tuesday night.

That halt was required because of an electronic malfunction that theoretically could have prevented the booster rockets and fuel tank from dropping off after they exhausted their fuel.

But a hastily redesigned computer program worked perfectly, and the twin boosters peeled away two minutes seven seconds into the flight to splash down in the Atlantic for retrieval. Hartsfield, who flew on a shuttle two years ago, is joined by five first-time space fliers. They are pilot Michael Coats, 38; mission specialist Judy Resnik, 35, America's second woman astronaut; Steve Hawley, 32; and Richard Mullane, 38, and payload specialist Charles Walker, an industry engineer whose employer, McDonnell Douglas, paid NASA $80,000 for his training.

The crew's main job will be to deploy the three satellites for commercial customers, while Walker will operate the drug factory to produce the hormone in greater purity than is possible on Earth. Also aboard is a 10-story-tall solar sail that will be unfurled in a test of a device that may one day convert the sun's rays to electrical power for space stations.

The flight is to end Wednesday morning at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

License tags tax gets another look

Gray County Commissioners will again discuss the proposed 1985 county budget and revenue sharing funds and will reconsider an earlier decision of turning down an authorized $5 tax for license tags in their regular meeting at 9:30 a.m. Friday.

Commissioners also will discuss action to collect taxes that they say the Rock Island Railroad owes to the county.

Other action on the agenda calls for the receipt of bids for three precinct ballot counters, for storm windows at the White Deer Museum and for leasing of county farmland around the McLean Airport.

The state had authorized the county to collect a $5 license tag fee, but commissioners previously declined to collect the approved fee. Now, however, the panel will reconsider that decision, according to the agenda for Friday's meeting.

Commissioners also will consider amending the county auditor's budget for the purchase of a typewriter and will consider county bills and financial statements.

Jury charge complex issue

Special to The Pampa News
LUBBOCK - After an all-day session that lasted until almost midnight Wednesday, the judge and lawyers in the Dorchester-Harlow trial were to have a charge to the jury ready this morning.

Barring any last-minute changes, the 11-issue charge was to have been read at 9 a.m. in 237th District Court here. Final arguments from lawyers representing the three parties involved were to follow.

The seven woman, five man jury was expected to get the case sometime late this afternoon. If so, the four and a half week old trial conceivably could end as early as tonight.

When the worn-out group left Lubbock County Court House late Wednesday, both sides seemed generally pleased with the charge in its tentative but almost final form.

Dorchester Gas Producing Company, which is suing the Harlow Corporation over gas rights in the West Panhandle Field near Pampa, failed to get definitions of dry gas and other terms into the charge as it wanted.

Visiting District Judge Robert Montgomery did allow the term

"Dorchester gas" to be used, however.

Harlow attorneys preferred the terms dry gas or gas-well gas as references to what Dorchester claims it owns.

They objected later that Dorchester gas is a term contrary to the Natural Resources Code and has no meaning in law. As he did with both sides' final objections, Montgomery overruled and denied them.

At one point, Dorchester attorney Robert Templeton requested additional issues. Montgomery refused, so Templeton moved to re-open testimony and introduce more evidence. That motion was denied as well.

It appears the jury will first have to decide whether Harlow has produced any of Dorchester's gas and, if so, how much and what it's worth. All three parties, including intervenors, have agreed Harlow has produced more than 239,000 Mcf of gas worth more than $590,000.

Dorchester objected that the first issue failed to place the burden of proof on Harlow and that the definitions used are vague and

Montana fires leap battle lines

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Windborne flames that have scorched 160,000 acres of forest and prairie leaped battle lines toward more homes, disappointing firefighters as air support and reinforcements from seven states joined the war against fire today.

Residents of the 15-home El Dorado Heights subdivision near Helena were told to evacuate Wednesday after winds shifted the 22,400-acre North Hill fire toward their neighborhood.

"We're not catching up with it now. If we get a break in the winds, we hope to," said Paul May, spokesman for the Department of State Lands.

Authorities classified 18 Montana fires as "major." Because of the number of state and federal agencies involved, there have been no firm figures on the total number of fires still burning. Most of them started last weekend or early this week, presumably by lightning.

The fires have destroyed more than 30 homes and routed more than 500 people.

The 5,000 firefighters on the lines Wednesday were supported by 42 air tankers and 21 helicopters spraying fire retardant chemicals, said Dick Guth, a Forest Service spokesman.

But efforts to control the 75,000-acre Hawk Creek fire that destroyed 30 houses in three hours in the Roundup area Monday were to no avail as gusts carried across fire lines.

Firefighters did make progress at containing a 13,000-acre blaze in north-central Montana and smaller fires elsewhere.

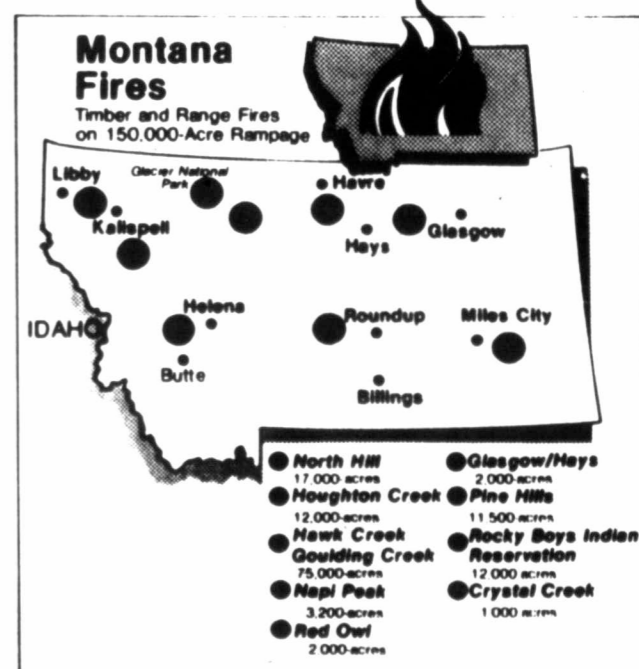

"It's been a disappointing day so far," said another spokesman, Don Kendall. "We didn't accomplish what we wanted today, but we're rapidly building our resources."

"We're in good shape as far as resources, and we have adequate manpower," he said. "Weather is still the deciding factor."

Kendall said one mobile home was destroyed Wednesday and that air tankers dropped retardant chemicals near ranch buildings threatened by the Hawk Creek fire.

May said the fire's perimeter covered an area roughly 30 miles long and eight miles wide. Winds shifted and pushed the fire south to within about eight miles of a housing subdivision near the town of Shepherd north of Billings.

But the good news, he said, was that the fire had moved out of the Bull Mountains onto the prairie. "It's easy to get tankers there," he said.

Passing grades required of teachers, too

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last in a four-part series of articles detailing some of the changes and emphasis in the public schools occurring under the directions of the recently passed House Bill 72 on education reforms in Texas.

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

Students may have some gripes about tougher grade requirements, stricter enforcement of absence policies and higher standards on examinations as outlined by House Bill 72.

But they may find some comfort in knowing teachers and administrators also face examinations they must pass successfully to keep their jobs.

The State Board of Education, under guidelines established by the Legislature this summer, will require satisfactory performance on an examination prescribed by the board as a condition for continued certification for each teacher and administrator, explained John English, assistant superintendent of the Pampa Independent School District.

The examinations will be designed to test

Education changes: Part IV

competency of basic skills.

The state board will prescribe examinations to test knowledge appropriate for teaching primary grades, with secondary teacher examinations testing knowledge in each subject area in which the teacher seeks certification.

In addition, administrator examinations will test administrative skills, knowledge in subject areas and other matters the board considers appropriate. School superintendents, principals and other administrators will be included in the testing.

The examinations also will test the ability of teachers and administrators to read and write with sufficient skill and understanding to perform satisfactorily as a professional teacher or administrator, English said.

In preparing the examinations, the state board will solicit and consider the advice of classroom teachers and administrators. Each examinee must be given more than one opportunity to perform satisfactorily on the exams, but the board may limit the number of retakes.

If a teacher is not tested in an area of certification for a subject, the teacher must take the appropriate exam within three years after beginning to teach that subject.

Each teacher now currently in a school system must perform satisfactorily on the applicable examinations on or before June 30, 1986, to teach a subject at a particular level, English noted.

A teacher may be allowed to teach without the exam if the district satisfies the Commissioner of Education that there is an emergency need; but a teacher cannot teach for more than one school year under a determination of emergency need.

In an effort to insure better trained and qualified instructors, the new rules require a competency exam of basic skills as a condition for admission into an approved teacher education program, English said.

In addition, the exams will be administered to college students from in-state or out-of-state teacher education programs after graduation. Satisfactory performance standards must be met before certification is granted under the new regulations. Separate exams will be prescribed by the state board for certification of superintendents and other administrators.

The examinations are intended to counter the problems of unqualified personnel becoming teachers and administrators even with a college degree. Personnel are expected to demonstrate their knowledge of subject areas as a condition of employment.

In conjunction with the school districts, the state board will provide teachers and administrators with an opportunity for board-developed preparation for the examinations. Those who fail to pass the standards will also have an opportunity for remedial aid, English explained.

Exemptions may be made for personnel who have taken previous exams, administered by the employing district, judged to be substantially the same or at least as difficult as the state board exams.

Education changes

Other changes also will affect teaching duties. Teachers employed in full-time positions will be expected to teach in the classroom at least four hours (or classroom periods) a day. This includes physical education classes offered during the regular school day for student credit. Personnel employed half-time must teach at least two hours a day in a classroom.

In most instances, each school district will be expected to employ a sufficient number of certified teachers to maintain an average ratio of not less than one teacher for each 20 students in daily average attendance.

Beginning with the 1985-1986 school year, a district may not enroll more than 22 students in a kindergarten, first or second grade class. The requirement will be extended to the third and fourth grades in the 1988-1989 school year.

In determining the number of students to enroll in any class, a district will consider the subject to be taught, the teaching methodology to be used and any need for individual instruction.

The Commissioner may except a district if he finds the limits work an undue hardship on the district. But the exception expires at the end of the semester for which it is granted, and the Commissioner may not grant an exception for more than one semester at a time.

The educational system in Texas is undergoing changes. And officials indicate further changes may yet occur as the current programs and requirements are implemented and studied.

It's a time of transition - for teachers, for students and for parents.

Jury charge

ambiguous Harlow objected that issue No. 1 provides an unwarranted comment on the evidence.

Subsequent issues ask the jury to determine whether Harlow's wells produced native oil from the brown dolomite formation, whether the intervenors - Lawrence Hagy, Sybil Harrington and the Harrington Foundation - aided Dorchester gas production and whether Dorchester owns gas by adverse possession. That doctrine allows someone who has used property over a period of time to claim it as their own if there have been no objections, even though they may not have legal title.

Harlow attorneys objected, saying that because the court has ruled on mineral rights ownership, the only thing Dorchester could possess adversely is casinghead gas. And that claim would be invalid because of the court's definition of casinghead gas being produced with oil and Dorchester's admission that they produce no oil, they argued.

The jury also will be asked to assess Dorchester's attorneys' fees and fees for paralegal and investigative assistance.

Harlow wanted only statutory definitions of terms in the charge.

Its attorneys requested a declaratory judgment based on a single issue: whether either of Harlow's two oil wells in question produce casinghead gas from the brown dolomite.

Throughout the course of the trial, controversial points have led to raised voices and flared tempers. As the proceedings entered their final phase Wednesday, lawyers clashed again in several verbal exchanges.

The most notable was Templeton's remark to a Harlow attorney, where he reportedly said,

"I don't give a damn what you think," Montgomery, however, was able to maintain decorum.

Harlow attorneys were overheard to say they felt the charge was as good or better than the one given the jury in the Amarillo Oil Company and Energy-Agri trial nearly two years ago over which Montgomery also presided.

In that trial, a Carson County jury ruled in favor of independents Energy-Agri over Amarillo Oil, a branch of Pioneer Corporation, over similar issues.

Free, reduced price meals guidelines told by schools

Students attending Pampa public schools may be eligible for free or reduced-price meals at school, according to information released by Tommy Cathey, assistant superintendent of support services in the Pampa Independent School District.

Cathey said children from families whose income falls within specified levels may qualify for the special meal price program. Applications for the program are being sent home with students.

To apply for the meal program, parents or guardians should fill out the application as soon as possible and return it to the school, Cathey said.

The application must be filled out fully before it can be processed.

Information which must be on the form includes total household income listed by each household member, food stamp number if applicable, names of all household members, Social Security numbers for all household members over 21 and the signature of an adult household member.

Cathey said the information on the application may be checked by the school or other officials at any time during the school year for verification.

If a student is approved for meal benefits, the school must be informed when household income increases by more than $50 a month ($600 a year) or when the household size decreases.

Benefits may be applied for at any time during the school year, Cathey said. Applications may be filled out if household income decreases, if a household member becomes unemployed or if the number of members in a household increases.

Applications may also be made for eligible foster children living in a household.

Cathey said no discrimination is made against children in the program. In the meal program, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, national origin, age or handicap, he stated.

Parents may request a hearing if they do not agree with the school's decision on the application or the result of any verification. Persons wanting a hearing should contact Cathey at 321 W. Albert or by calling 665-2376.

Information provided on the application will be treated confidentially and will be used only for eligibility determinations and verification of data, Cathey said.

Regular meals are at the following prices: elementary students, $1; Pampa Middle School, $1.10, and Pampa High School, $1.20. Elementary and middle school students may buy breakfast for 60 cents.

Income eligibility guidelines are as follows (listed by family size, yearly income range for free meals and yearly income range for reduced-price meals):

- 1, $0 to $6,474; $6,474 to $9,213.
- 2, $0 to $8,736; $8,736 to $12,432.
- 3, $0 to $10,998; $10,998 to $15,651.
- 4, $0 to $13,260; $13,260 to $18,670.
- 5, $0 to $15,552; $15,552 to $22,089.
- 6, $0 to $17,784; $17,784 to $25,308.
- 7, $0 to $20,046; $20,046 to $28,527.
- 8, $0 to $22,308; $22,308 to $31,746.

Each additional family member requires additional yearly income under $2,262 for the free meals and under $3,219 for the reduced-price meals.

Anyone having questions or needing help in filling out the applications may contact the student's school principal, Cathey said.

Persons will be notified when the application is approved or denied.

Easterner helps South Texans

ROMA, Texas (AP) - Wayne Sutton drove 1,500 miles from his New Jersey home to the Texas-Mexico border to help a poor South Texas mother he had read was clothing her children out of a county garbage dump.

"Helping one another" is "what I feel America is about," said Sutton, 47, of Northfield, N.J. "There are a lot of desperate people in need and yet some of us have so much."

Sutton was heading home Wednesday after going to the dump to visit Anita Navarro, the impoverished mother of five whose struggles were detailed in an Associated Press story that appeared in the Atlantic City Press earlier this month.

Ms. Navarro had been scavenging in the Starr County dump for recyclable aluminum cans, change and clothes for her children, ages 3 to 9. She said her children would be wearing to school the "rags" she finds at the landfill.

The $50 the unemployed Rio Grande City woman earns each week by selling aluminum cans is her only means of supporting her family, she said.

Sutton said he was "very touched, moved" by Ms. Navarro's plight and called friends and neighbors in Northfield asking for donations of clothes for her and other unemployed Starr County residents. He then called the newspaper to locate someone in Rio Grande City or nearby Roma to whom he could send the donations.

A church in Starr County agreed to accept and distribute the clothes and another article in the Atlantic City Press about Sutton's project generated additional donations.

"After the local newspaper article appeared, the whole thing just suddenly took off," said Sutton. "I wasn't prepared to handle all the clothes that arrived."

He said he eventually packaged 80 cartons of clothing for needy Starr County families. "I put them (the clothes) all over my house, in my neighbor's garage and finally on the front lawn, covered by a tarp. If I'd kept going I would have needed a warehouse," he said.

Sutton drove about 1,500 miles with a friend in a rented truck. He said the truck was paid for by Stephen Wynn, chairman of the board of the Golden Nugget Casino in Atlantic City.

When he returns to New Jersey, Sutton hopes to repeat his effort by collecting canned food for South Texas poor.

"I'm just one person. But if I can make an impact, if I can help, then maybe it will motivate others to do the same," he said.

Doggett hits GOP statement

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Lloyd Doggett says his opponent, U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm, should seek the removal of a state Republican Party official who criticized efforts to register Hispanics to vote.

Doggett called a news conference Wednesday to challenge Gramm to seek the dismissal of state Republican Party vice chairman Diana Denman.

Doggett issued a news release and played a videotape of Ms. Denman, both quoting her as saying the Southwest Voter Registration Education Project is "looking for people they can control."

The project, which works to register Hispanics to vote, registers "people in the left-wing areas of the churches that are not going for the betterment of their own people," she said.

"We (Republicans) are registering the right kind of people who go out to work and support the future of this country," she said. Doggett termed Ms. Denman's statement "a slap in the face" of Mexican Americans "and of every Texan committed to voter registration."

He said Gramm, who represents Texas' 6th District in Congress, apparently tolerates such statements.

He said Gramm had been asked about the statements during a news conference in Austin Tuesday, but he did not express disagreement with them.

Gramm, R-College Station, was contacted in Washington but did not respond directly to Doggett's challenge. "I for one, want to see everyone turn out and vote so that the November election will reflect the will of the people of Texas," he said.

"I see no evidence to lead me to believe that Walter Mondale and Lloyd Doggett are interested in a broad-based turnout. They have given up on winning the hearts and minds of the people and have based their campaigns on appealing almost exclusively to the special interest groups."

Doggett called on Gramm to "repudiate and disavow Ms. Denman's comments."

And he urged Gramm to "use all of his personal and political influence to remove Ms. Denman from her position."

HUGHES' TAXES SETTLED—Attorney William R. Lummis of Las Vegas, Nev., left, watches Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox prepare to sign an agreement under which the state of Texas would get $50 million dollars from

Texas gets $50 million from estate of Howard Hughes

AUSTIN (AP) — The estate of billionaire Howard Hughes will pay Texas $50 million in an agreement that settles what one official called probably the most complicated probate case in history. The agreement, signed Wednesday by Texas, California and Hughes estate officials, ended eight years of legal maneuvering over inheritance taxes that began on April 5, 1976, when Hughes died aboard a private jet that was en route from Acapulco to Houston. Texas will get $50 million cash. California will get between $119 million and $150 million in cash and land.

California officials said the federal government's share would be between $150 million and $180 million, but William R. Lummis, a cousin of Hughes and a Las Vegas, Nev., attorney representing the estate, estimated the federal tax at about $100 million. "The Howard Hughes estate case probably has been the most publicized and complicated probate case in this country's history," Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said. "You realize that when you look at the amount of money involved and also because of the rather eccentric lifestyle of Howard Hughes," Mattox added after signing the agreement. Lummis, who flew to Texas after signing the agreement in Sacramento earlier in the day, said he believed the settlement was the best for all parties involved. "I think they did nick us pretty good," he said. "Dealing with the payment of sums of this magnitude, it's hard to say you're elated... "It's a good settlement. Litigation tends to take on a life of its own. I think that's what was happening," Lummis said. Texas and California each had pursued inheritance tax claims on the massive Hughes estate since the reclusive billionaire's death. The case had been before the U.S. Supreme Court three times. Hughes left no verified will. More than 40 purported wills and hundreds of prospective heirs surfaced over the years. A series of trials in 1981 trimmed the number of heirs to 22. Hughes, the son of the inventor of an oil drill bit, was born in Texas and lived in the state for 20 years. He lived in Los Angeles and San Diego counties for about 41 years, but claimed during that time to still be a Texan, lived in rented or borrowed homes and said he was visiting California on business. In 1966, Hughes moved to a Las Vegas hotel from which he began acquiring hotels and land in Nevada. He later moved to the Bahamas, Nicaragua, Canada and London, including himself in posh hotel suites. Texas, saying Hughes was a Texan, claimed an 18 percent inheritance tax. California, contending Hughes was a resident of that state, wanted to impose the 24 percent state inheritance tax in effect in 1976. But the heirs said Hughes was a resident of Nevada, which had no state inheritance tax. Mattox said Texas officials had concluded that Hughes spent only about 48 hours in Texas after 1926. However, Mattox said, "He did claim himself as a Texas resident in a number of court cases and tax protests in California way past the time he left Texas and even paid his Texas poll tax (at least through the 1940s)." "We say once a Texan, always a Texan, and that was our interpretation in this case," he said. Mattox said the agreement apparently still needs court approval, but voiced confidence the settlement will be final. Under the agreement, Texas will be paid $25 million within 60 to 90 days. Mattox said the state decided to accept the settlement to avoid more delays. "We felt we could have gone on in litigation for the next 10 years, easy," he said.

Attorneys disputing GM's settlement on crippled man

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Attorneys in a $50 million lawsuit against General Motors have become more vocal about a settlement they reached for Patrick Davis, who was paralyzed in an accident involving a Trans Am auto. But they can't agree in public on the actual amount of the out-of-court settlement, which was reached Monday. Davis, 22, had sued GM after he was paralyzed in a 1980 accident in a Pontiac Trans Am. He was a passenger in a car traveling 90 mph when it hit a telephone pole and claimed the driver was trying to imitate racy television commercials aired by GM. Monday, attorneys refused to disclose the terms of the settlement. But Davis' attorney Sandy McMath said his client would get housing, transportation and rehabilitation, a package that could cost $300,000 a year according to testimony. However, Tuesday, GM attorney Thom Rumberger said Davis could receive less than $90,000 once attorney fees and other costs are subtracted from the settlement. His remarks prompted a statement Wednesday by another Davis attorney Pat Maloney Sr., who said his client "will receive 10 times the sum suggested by Rumberger." Davis had claimed in his suit that the Trans Am with a T-top roof was unsafe and that GM promoted it as a stunt vehicle. He has been under nursing home care since his injury. Rumberger, who earlier had refused comment on the terms of the settlement, flew to San Antonio from his home in Orlando, Fla., to tell reporters Davis would collect less than a half percent of the original damage claim of $50 million. "I frankly think that's kind of disgusting," he said of Davis' share of the settlement. "There was all this talk that Patrick Davis would be able to move into his own home and continue therapy and have his own car. The only way that young man's going to have that is if the lawyers give up their fee." Rumberger also said McMath had promised to stop filing lawsuits against GM if the company would pay him $100,000. McMath, a Little Rock, Ark., attorney, had settled two similar cases in Arkansas out of court. McMath denied Rumberger's claim about the $100,000 payoff. "It's just a matter of sour grapes on his part. They offered to do that but we turned them down," he said. Maloney issued a statement Wednesday saying Rumberger's remarks "about the settlement are as phony as General Motors advertising and as unreliable as the Trans Am roof." "The figures that he gave were untrue and he knows it," he said. Maloney said he would not breach the confidentiality of the settlement, but he said the dollar award "was greater than three quarters of a million dollars and General Motors paid more than a half million of this sum."

Restraining order issued against Rio Grande Valley 'cure' clinic

MCCALLEN, Texas (AP) — Investigators from the state attorney general's office have seized financial and patient records and medical machines from a Rio Grande Valley clinic run by a man who began as a foot masseur and "branched out" into offering cures for cancer, officials said. The items were seized Wednesday following the issuance of a temporary restraining order by State District Judge John Dominguez halting operation of the Reflexology Pain Control Center of McAllen, owned by J.D. Stroud. A hearing has been set for Sept. 7 on a request for a temporary injunction filed by the state attorney general's Consumer Protection Division against Stroud. A civil lawsuit filed by the state charges Stroud and three of his employees with violating the state's Deceptive Trade Practices Act, Dangerous Drugs Act and Medical Practices Act. The state is seeking civil penalties of up to $10,000 from the clinic as well as asking restitution for former patients. Stroud began by practicing reflexology, a form of foot massage, according to Nora Dominguez, an investigator with the Consumer Protection Division. "But then he just went berserk and branched out into all kinds of fields of medicine," she said. "He claimed to be able to cure a number of ailments that medical science has not yet discovered a cure for." Ms. Dominguez said clinic records show Stroud practiced acupuncture, administered medical treatment, dispensed prescription drugs, and performed chelation therapy. He claimed to be able to cure cancer, arthritis, heart disease, stroke, diabetes and varicose veins, she said. Ms. Dominguez said Stroud's whereabouts are unknown. It is also not known how many patients were treated at the clinic. However, a member of Stroud's staff told Ms. Dominguez "many patient files had been removed overnight" before investigators arrived.

Greyhound agrees to fine

AUSTIN (AP) — Greyhound Bus Lines, Inc., has agreed to pay a $10,000 penalty to the state for temporarily halting service to five Houston-area cities without approval of the Texas Railroad Commission. The commission said Wednesday the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1983 overruled the commission and authorized Greyhound to discontinue bus service to 38 cities, including all of those on the company's Houston-San Antonio route. However, Richmond, Rosenberg, Sugar Land, Missouri City and Stafford, all of which were on that route, were not included in Greyhound's original application to the commission. After the commission scheduled a hearing to investigate the matter, Greyhound reinstated service to all five cities and agreed to pay the fine, the commission said.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Patriotism back in style

It's the story of an Air Force colonel. And get this - he doesn't have a Neanderthal brow or a heavy Southern accent; he doesn't mutter menacingly about "them 'f---in' commies"; nor, by the end of the first episode of ABC's Call to Glory, had Col. Raynor Sarnac napalmed even one tiny Vietnamese village. Such restraint!

What Saynor HAD done was: a.) express deep loving for his family and his country; b.) comport himself like an officer and a gentleman; and c.) help to protect the United States during the Cuban missile crisis - that's all.

My friends, a new day has dawned on ABC, the home of Three's Company and the Love Boat. So, I suspect, is a new day dawning across America. God bless her.

A series like Call to Glory - upbeat, patriotic, respectful of the American military man - could not have been made even five years ago. Fifteen years ago - why, the poor scriptwriter who submitted such an idea would have been chased from the studio, amid gales of laughter. Military men, in those searing days, were not heroes; they were boobs and warmongers. Today there's not only Call to Glory. There's even a movie, Red Dawn, in which teenagers wage guerrilla warfare against a Soviet - Cuban army occupying America. Critics loathe it; teenagers love it.

Mass culture is your surest tip - off to what's really happening in America. Forget the high - brows, who are trend - setters only by courtesy.

In the '70s, MASH was TV's verdict on the U.S. armed forces. Well, MASH is gone, and so is the derision. ABC seems shrewdly to have concluded that patriotism is back in style.

The conclusion seems a safe one. The quite literal flagwaving seen at the Olympics - talk of a mass culture event! - caught nearly everyone by surprise. All over America there was unalloyed joy and pride in the accomplishments of American athletes.

As for the athletes themselves! No defiant fists thrust this time into the air, a la Mexico City 1968, during playing of the Star Spangled Banner. No, this time the winners stood erect, hands over hearts. Not a few sang along. Many wept.

The country ate it up with a spoon: for which breach of etiquette ABC and the fans have alike been sternly lectured by the high - minded. Not one word of the lecture will be taken to heart. Being American is too much fun these days.

It takes no scientific mind to understand that this extraordinary fervor is the Newtonian reaction to the vogueish America - hating of the '60s and '70s. Patriotism, in those awful and dimwitted years, came to be equated with jingoism and support for an immoral War in Southeast Asia.

Endless bilge got talked about the evils of America, a country with faults, certainly, but nothing like the sins so freely imputed to it.

Naturally the fallout contaminated the military. Service recruiters were chased off college campuses; ROTC programs were terminated much more damagingly, military budgets were slashed.

Ronald Reagan came to office in 1981, pledging not just to rebuild the military but to restore pride in America. Call to Glory and the Olympic whoop - de - do suggest that his efforts have not been unavailing.

If in doubt on that score, ask Walter Mondale and his advisers, who are striving earnestly to identify the Democratic ticket with "American values," including, of course, patriotism.

The strategy has its ludicrous side. Here are the Democrats, peddling a neo - isolationist, be - nice - to - Communists foreign policy: all the while trying to whip up patriotic zeal. Well, as Mark Twain said to his wife, who, trying to shame him, once repeated several curse words, "My dear, you have the words but not the tune."

What's the political tune, this Orwellian year of 1984? "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy, a Yankee Doodle Do or Die." Titillating, toe - taping stuff, wouldn't you say?

Opinion

Religious Right's actions not wrong

"The activism of the Religious Right represents a new and frightening phenomenon in American politics. It is a form of moral McCarthyism—an effort to suggest that one political faction has a monopoly on support for God, family and country, and its opponents are irreligious, unpatriotic and immoral."

That somber warning came in the mail this week from People For The American Way, one of the organizations having conniption fits about the influence the Religious Right apparently exerted over the recent Republican National Convention.

Our reaction to their warning is "poppycock!"

What, we ask, is new about one side in a political contest attempting to convince the public that it represents all that is good and moral, while painting its opponents as rascals at best and totally immoral at worst? Isn't that the way the game is played? Isn't People For The American Way doing exactly the same thing with its denunciation of the Religious Right?

There is more.

People For The American Way also objected to one organization's use of "religious scorecards" in deciding whether to support or oppose certain candidates and was highly alarmed because some preachers are talking about politics from their pulpits. "Of course, there is nothing wrong with religious leaders participating in the political process," the organization's press release said, but "ministers don't have the right to declare that you must share their political viewpoints in order to be good Christians."

Again, we say "poppycock!"

If some people want to use a candidate's religious view as a basis for their support or opposition, why is that any different than using a conservative or a liberal scorecard? While a candidate's religion or lack of it may not mean anything to some people, how can they say it is wrong for someone else to consider that important?

And, it is ridiculous to say that ministers don't have the right to make political declarations from their pulpits. In this country, they still have the right to say anything they want to say. They can say only blue-eyed vegetarians will go to heaven if they want to, even as everyone else has the right to say their views are absurd. Those who disagree are under no compulsion to listen to them.

What seems to bother People For The American Way is a forthright injection of the Religious Right's view of morality into politics. But that is nothing new. Almost all political activities involve moral judgements to some extent. Most candidates are elected because the public perceives their views to be morally right. Most laws are passed to prohibit what legislators think are immoral actions. It is against the law to kill, steal, gamble, engage in prostitution and use certain drugs because a substantial number of people think such activities are morally wrong.

Politics, in most cases, involves one group of people using the principle of majority rule to force its view of morality on others.

That is why The Pampa News believes political solutions to most of our problems are, themselves, immoral.

But as long as this country chooses to be governed by elective politics, it is no worse for the Religious Right to attempt to impose its views on society than it is for People For The American Way. It is hypocritical for those who believe in majority rule to claim otherwise.

No news is good news

NORTH FORK, Idaho - They have a saying in Idaho, a state that most Americans know only for its potatoes. The saying goes, "Idaho may not be the end of the world, but you can see it from here."

I came to Idaho for an experiment. I wanted to see what it would be like to totally abstain from news for five days.

Getting away from news is not an easy thing to do. Even if you manage to avoid newspapers, radios and televisions, somebody inevitably will tell you the latest news anyway.

I managed to find a place in Idaho, however, where that can't happen. Nobody else there had heard any news, either.

That place is a place of incredible beauty, the Middle Fork of the Salmon River, the "River of No Return," which carves its way through a primitive Idaho wilderness area that even James Watt could have loved.

No motorized vehicles are allowed in the area, with the exception of single - engine planes which drop dropouts like myself into the steep canyons and onto landing strips that would have whitened the knuckles of the Wright brothers.

Rarely in my life had I ever been completely away from what was happening in the world. What is happening in the world can grow wearisome, and I wanted a reprieve. I got it on the Middle Fork of the Salmon.

The trip began in Stanley, Idaho. The population there is 93. The pilot of the small plane that took off from the Stanley airstrip was a graduate of the Air Force Academy and a Vietnam Veteran.

"I got tired of bosses," he said. "So I came here."

We landed at the Flying "B" Ranch, midway down the Middle Fork, deep in the wilderness.

I got out of the plane. It took off again. For the next five days, I would be free from news.

There were no newspapers at the Flying "B," no current magazines, no radios, no televisions, the cook had a sign in the kitchen that read, "This ain't no Burger Chef. You get it my way or you don't get the S.O.B. at all."

The next morning I left the Flying "B" and I joined the river party headed down Middle Fork. There was a brain surgeon and his son from Seattle, a lawyer and his daughter from Houston, a businessman from Atlanta, and three guides.

The river was clear and brilliantly emerald. We paddled our raft through massive rapids with names like Porcupine and Rubber and Haystack and Cliffside.

We saw long - horned sheep, we saw eagles soaring above us. We saw the former dwellings of a group of Indians called the Sheepeaters that the U.S. Army ran out of the area a hundred years or so ago for the fun of it.

We sat around evening fires and talked of the untouched beauty of the place and somebody said, "You see something like this and you wonder why we build bombs that would destroy it."

When the trip was over, five days after I had begun it, we faced a five - hour bus ride out of the wilderness, back to Stanley.

An hour into the trip, we arrived in North Fork, a tiny settlement, where we stopped for a rest. One of the guides bought a newspaper.

"So," he was asked, "what's been going on in the world?"

"Ronald Reagan announced that he was going to bomb the Russians," the guide replied.

We thought he was kidding.

Lessons from the Red Sea

That's a strange business in the Red Sea. Not just the mystery of the mines, but from the historical point of view - and fairly recent history at that - the response.

The Egyptians couldn't be more gracious to the Americans, British and French coming to their assistance, not only waiving Suez Canal fees for the anti - mine ships but showering flowers on the crews.

The reception was very different 28 years ago come November. Then, the Egyptians fired back as British and French task forces sought to seize the canal.

The British and French said they wanted to insulate the waterway from the first Sinai war which Egypt and Israel were then waging. The real reason for their actions was retaliation for the seizure of the canal a few months earlier by Gamal Abdel Nasser.

The United States was also deeply involved - on Egypt's side, pressuring its own allies to back off. But it could be argued that American policy had brought about the whole mess. The abrupt withdrawal of an offer to finance Egypt's Aswan Dam was Nasser's cue to seize the canal.

The affair ended badly for all involved (with the possible exception of the Israelis).

The British and French had to withdraw. Suez proved to be their last gasp as imperial powers.

American policy makers got their way, but at the price of soured NATO relations for a time.

The Egyptians moved into the Soviet camp, a move which turned out to be less rewarding than anticipated. Least of all for the Soviets. They built the Egyptians their dam and were rewarded shortly after - after Nasser's death - by being kicked out as the Egyptians turned back to the West.

So what has that got to do with the Red Sea mines?

Well, we have the major participants in the Suez fiasco back in action again in much different circumstances - all on the same side in what might be called a constructive crisis, if such a thing is possible.

The mines are nasty, but damage remains minimal at this writing and the threat appears containable. No one wants to take credit for being the bad guy - not even the region's most obvious candidates and usual volunteers, Iran and Libya.

Further, the Western powers have been invited in by the locals - the Saudis as well as the Egyptians. This suggests that the repercussions in the Arab world from the precipitous retreat of these powers from Lebanon earlier this year were nowhere near as damaging as was once feared. (Score another one for Ronald Reagan.)

The Red Sea "crisis" is not over yet and it could still turn nasty. But at this point it appears to be mostly pluses for our side and that there is a lesson to be drawn from it.

That is that fallings out among nations - even when they lead to shooting - tend to be temporary and quickly buried if not entirely forgotten when long term interests dictate otherwise. Short - term policies should take that into account.

BOMBER REMAINS—The remains of an unarmed B-1 bomber prototype rest on the Mojave Desert Wednesday after it crashed and burned on a low-altitude test flight killing one crew member and injuring two others, according to the Air Force. # First B-1 crash is probed

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The first crash of a B-1 bomber, which killed the manufacturer's chief test pilot and injured two crewmen, will have little or no impact on the future of the controversial aircraft, proponents and critics say.

Rep. Robert Badham, R-Calif., a longtime B-1 supporter. "It's one of those unfortunate things that happen in a test program."

Nunn told CBS he did not think the crash "has any implications in terms of stopping the B-1B program. I think it may at most slow it down! Any aircraft can crash."

His comments were echoed by some of the plane's detractors, including Rep. Thomas J. Downey, D-N.Y., and Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga.

The dead pilot was identified as T.D. "Doug" Benefield, 55.

Air Force investigators converging on this desert base to study Wednesday's fiery crash of the $200 million prototype said it could be months before they determine the cause and why there were casualties when the three-man crew escaped in a parachute-equipped capsule.

The B-1A, one of four prototypes, crashed on sagebrush- and greasewood-dotted federal land about 10 miles northeast of the Mojave Desert base and 75 miles northeast of Los Angeles while on a low-speed, low-altitude test flight.

It came just six days before Rockwell International Corp., the prime contractor for the B-1, was to unveil the first production model of the B-1B, which is to be the bulwark of America's nuclear bomber force.

In Washington, Air Force Lt. Col. Ron Greer said the four-engine plane was engaged in "extremely low-level, extremely low-speed" tests on its 127th test flight.

Development of the B-1 began in 1970, and its history has been characterized by sharp debate.

The Defense Department has argued that the nation needs an advanced, multipurpose bomber with low-flying capabilities to penetrate enemy defenses. Critics say the B-1 is expensive, lacks maneuverability and that its job can be handled by existing B-52s.

After rejection by the Carter administration in late 1977, the B-1 project won a new lease on life from President Reagan. The House and Senate approved Reagan's request for $8.3 billion for 34 B-1 planes in fiscal 1985. Eventually, the Pentagon intends to buy 100 B-1s at a cost now projected at about $28.3 billion.

"Any tragedy like this is bad news," said Wolfgang Demisch, an aerospace analyst at First Boston Corp. "But in terms of the specific B-1 program, I don't expect it to have any impact."

"It shouldn't be a setback," said

Test pilot killed in crash was one of the best, Texas relative says

JEFFERSON, Texas (AP) — A relative of the pilot who died in the fiery crash of a B-1 bomber said he was "one of the top test pilots in the entire world."

T.D. "Doug" Benefield, 55, of Jefferson, was killed Wednesday when an unarmed B-1 bomber prototype he was piloting crashed and burned on a low-altitude test flight over the Mojave Desert, the Air Force said.

Two other crew members were injured in the crash, officials said.

He was "one of the top test pilots in the entire world," said Benefield's sister-in-law, Suzanne, late Wednesday.

"He tested the Concorde for France. He had an extremely impressive background and was a test pilot for many, many years."

Benefield was the chief test pilot for Rockwell International's B-1 program. Wednesday's crash was the first involving a B-1 bomber, said Air Force Col. Alan Sabsevitz.

Benefield, a retired Air Force colonel, graduated from Jefferson High School and Texas A&M University, Mrs. Benefield said. He had moved from Texas to Lancaster, Calif.

He was the son of Thelma Benefield and the late Allen Benefield of Jefferson. Other survivors include Benefield's wife, Suzanne, of Lancaster, Calif.; sons, Terry of San Diego and Tommie Jr., a U.S. Navy pilot stationed in Jacksonville, Fla.

In a statement Wednesday night, the Air Force said: "The crew escape capsule successfully separated and landed near the crash site. Two survivors were air-evacuated to the Edwards Air Force base hospital for treatment."

It wasn't immediately clear how Benefield died. His body would remain in the capsule until the coroner could take charge of the scene, said Senior Airman Tom Bennis.

The $200 million plane was seen trailing smoke before it went down at 10:30 a.m. near Boron, 75 miles northeast of Los Angeles, a guard at the nearby U. S. Borax plant said. She wouldn't give her name.

The injured were identified as Air Force Maj. Richard V. Reynolds, 35, of Hoquiam, Wash., the pilot, and Capt. Otto J. Waniczek Jr., 30, of Seattle, the flight engineer. Both were listed in stable condition at the Antelope Valley Medical Center, in Lancaster.

The charred and mangled wreckage was scattered in a circle roughly 200 feet in diameter, and was still burning six hours after the crash, according to Associated Press photographer Doug Pizac. A scorched white cylinder that appeared to be the escape capsule lay at the outer edge of the wreckage, an orange and white parachute draped nearby, e said.

The crash, which ignited at least three small fires that were extinguished quickly, came less than a week before a B-1B prototype was to be unveiled.

ALTRUSA ENTERTAINMENT — Pampa High School Junior Stacie Bennett, accompanied by pianist Cathy McCurley of First Baptist Church, sings gospel songs during the Pampa Altrusa Club's Executive Dinner Monday at the Starlight Room. According to Altrusa of Pampa president Ruby Royse, the dinner is held annually to honor executive and professional women. She said that 10 to 12 visitors attended. Altrusa members will serve squaw bread at the Chautauqua celebration Labor Day. Next meeting is 12 noon Sept. 7 at the Coronado Inn.

Sweater is versatile

By Judy Love

It's always a good idea to go through your wardrobe periodically and give away anything you've been saving but haven't worn in more than two years. Let's face it, if you haven't worn it for a couple of years, you're not likely to.

THIS ALLURING and elegant turtleneck will help you look your best all winter long.

Since pants are a major fashion statement this year, you're going to need lots of wonderful sweaters to fill out your wardrobe and replace the ones you're getting rid of.

Here's a stunning turtleneck that will look sophisticated and dramatic over all the pants and skirts you'll be wearing this winter. Whether worn belted or plain, this oversized sweater has up-to-the-minute styling with a tunic effect to make you look slim and elegant.

There is a seed stitch throughout the body of the sweater and an aran pattern in the sleeve. This interesting combination has the luxurious look of wool and acrylic for easy care.

To make this sweater you will need Unger's Aries Yarn, 3 1/2 ounce balls, (100 gr)-10, (11-12), size 7 and size 8 knitting needles.

Directions are for size small (8-10), changes for medium (12-14) and large (16).

Order your directions now by sending $2 plus 50 cents for postage and handling for each pattern to to Stitchin' Time, P.O. 503, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Ask for leaflet S664 and be sure to include your name, address and zip code.

Dear Abby

Woman's clothes are nearly new but not nearly enough

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell your readers not to ask, "Is that a new dress you're wearing?" or "Where did you get those shoes?" or purse, or whatever.

I can't afford to spend a bundle on clothes, so I usually shop at a "near-new" thrift shop, or Goodwill, and it's embarrassing for me to have to say, "No, it's not new, I got it at Goodwill." Once in a while I may splurge and buy a dress at K-Mart or Target, but not often.

And while I'm on the subject of embarrassing questions, I wish people wouldn't ask their single friends, "Are you seeing anyone special?"

I'm 39, divorced and nobody has asked me for a date in two years. I'm too embarrassed to tell anyone, so I just say, "There's no one special in my life right now."

SENSITIVE IN A SMALL TOWN

DEAR SENSITIVE: Most people mean to be complimentary when they ask, "Is that new?" They don't realize it's a very personal question, and also that it's none of their business. And the inquiry "Are you seeing anyone special?" is another well-meaning question better left unasked.

A good rule to follow: Be generous with compliments and stingy with questions.

DEAR ABBY: I have been reading your column since you started writing—nearly 30 years ago. Last year you told your readers to call or write to a school teacher who made a difference in their lives—a teacher who stayed after school to give a slow learner a little extra help, a teacher who encouraged a student to finish school when he wanted to quit and get a job.

Well, can you imagine how thrilled I was to receive a letter from a student I taught 62 years ago! He wanted to thank me for staying after school to teach him how to tell time when he was in the second grade!

Abby, I am 95 years old and live in a nursing home, and I don't expect to have many more surprises as happy as this one. Thank you! MISS ANDERSON

DEAR MISS ANDERSON: I hope your letter inspires others to pick up on the suggestion. Thank you for writing. Flowers mean so much more when the recipients can still smell them.

***

DEAR ABBY: I am in love with a handsome guy I'll call Joe. We had plans to get married next month.

Well, Joe rented a motel room for the two of us to be alone on the weekend. He called me on the phone and told me to go to the desk and ask for the key to Room 103 and he would be there. I was supposed to meet him at 12 o'clock noon on Saturday.

I got there 20 minutes early and found Joe in bed with another girl! I told him the wedding was off and I gave him back his ring. He says he still loves me and the girl I caught him with means nothing to him.

My friends say I should give Joe another chance. My family says I should forget him. Please help me make the right decision.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: I vote with your family. "Joe must go!"

Condiments add calories

Often, it's not the food itself but what you add to it that makes it too caloric. A virtually calorie-free salad becomes something else when you add oil, mayonnaise or salad dressing. Use skim milk with yogurt on potatoes, low-cal bottled dressings on cream on the potato adds at least another 100 calories.

Tailored suits return elegance

By Florence De Santis

NEW YORK (NEA) — The suit is changing. No longer confined to sporty casual or strictly man-tailored looks, the suit adds sophisticated elegance to our wardrobes this fall. But these new-look suits are still styled as separates. And this design play gives women the convenience of buying skirt and jacket in different sizes, even when they match.

NEW BUSINESS SUIT look goes softer in this navy-and-white glen plaid by Bleyle. Both jacket and skirt reverse to solid navy. Jacket about $210; skirt about $105; turtleneck about $52.

At Giuseppe, designer Joseph Greco likes the skirt softened with pleats, the jacket tailored but rounded in the shoulders. A shawl collar often replaces the mannish, notched, collar-lapel style. Pants are done in the easy pleating of the Katherine Hepburn-slacks look.

Not that man-tailored details have to be hard-edged. On a navy-and-white glen plaid jacket, Bleyle uses a flowing version of the notched lapel. Drop shoulders are accented by navy banding and rounded hem edges. It's an open jacket that reverses to a solid navy side, as does the matching easy skirt.

At Pendleton, long known for classically tailored suit separates in the firm's own fine woolsens, the cardigan jacket goes shorter and curvier. Blazers nip the waist and there's a long, soft, belted jacket shirred on shoulder yoking. Skirts include a side-pleated straight look and a graceful, bias-cut long swing that has nothing to do with mannish severity.

Suit designers are also veering away from the mannish shirt. The button-down is returning to the softly tailored blouse, for example, and there is a newer look of knit tops. Sero uses a white blouse with pleated-band collar and pleated front for its soft-skirted suit in plum and royal with a gently tailored long jacket.

Samuel Robert goes for a big, soft neck bow on a gray blouse to go with his two-button jacket. He uses a multicolored wool fabric of textured tweed worked in a ribbon weave.

Designers are taking a new look at the sophisticated suit, the kind that doesn't look like every other suit at the office. At Sir For Her, a gray wool optic herringbone jacket pares down to the hip from broad shoulders, nipping in softly at the waist. A Chelsea collar sweeps from shoulders to waistline, edged in black to match the slim skirt.

SOPHISTICATED suit look from Sir For Her is represented by a wool optic herringbone. It has a broad-shouldered tapered cut, Chelsea collar and white silk blouse with jewel-neck. Suit about $200; blouse about $85.

Knit suits are soft by nature, such as Lawrence Rich's long, big-sleeved cardigan patterned in "burn-out" blocks over a slim sweater tunic and flared skirt. All are in midnight blue lambswool-Angora blend. Adrienne Vittadini works a slim, long tunic cardigan with drop-shoulder sleeves and an eased skirt in cream double knit lambswool-Angora-nylon blend.

Length often is important to the new suit designs.

At Arthur Chapnik, white pin-striped beige wool is used for a long, curvy jacket with double-breast to wear over a swingy pleated skirt. Paula Saker teams a jacket in charcoal-and-gray block-check with a charcoal tweed skirt. The jacket is long and easy with deep-armhole sleeves. Her top is a plum sweater shot with red ribbon.

Here and there, especially in designer collections, fur trims bring the luxury look to long jackets. Longest of all are the coat suits, taking on a dandified Regency look at Russ in oatmeal tweed. The tweed is paired with a nubby sweater vest and a softly bowed blouse that may be worn with matching slacks and skirt.

Stopping the Killer Feet

Hallelujah, brothers! A miracle has occurred! Call the bishop, telegram the cardinals, yodel for the Pope, get them all here to proclaim this miracle so we can all get back to sleep.

I noticed it a few days ago while reading my Sunday paper. There, in an unobtrusive part of the entertainment section was an ad which screamed, "My feet were killing me... until I discovered the Miracle in Germany."

What visions the headline conjured up. I could picture the poor soul lying in bed trying to get a little shut eye, when suddenly his feet began creeping up the sheets until they got to his throat, where they began strangling him.

Or maybe he was working in the kitchen, making himself a little bologna and saurkraut sandwich, when his homicidal hooves grabbed the butcher knife and began stabbing him. I thought it might even have been that his errant tootsies had been systematically putting arsenic in his knackwurst, thereby slowly poisoning him to death. And then, I figured, an angel appeared and dealt a stern lecture to those naughty appendages, making them see the error of their ways.

I was so excited about the whole thing that I considered calling my friends to tell them about it. But, wanting more facts before I broke the news, I decided to read on.

Imagine my suprise when I found out that the miracle concerned a pair of foot supports that the guy put in his shoes to help his feet quit hurting. I was really disappointed.

Sure, the fellow had plenty of proof. There was a letter from a lady who had previously had "terrible" feet until she found these wonderful foot aids, and in two days, she not only was free from foot pain, but the pain in her knee had cleared up, and I imagine her dimples reappeared. There also was a confusing letter, from a man who apparently had six feet, which read, "I wore them in three different pairs of shoes from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m., which included two hours at a cocktail party. It was the first cocktail party I have left in years without wishing I could crawl out on my knees." I hate to tell this guy, but there are a lot of people who go to cocktail parties and actually end up crawling out on their knees. If those little old foot supports can get them on their feet the liquor industry can expect a big boost in sales.

I read on and on, trying to get to the angel part, but I never could find it. All I could find were claims of instant relief for corns, callouses and bunions, not to mention burning nerve ends, and an offer that no one in his right mind could refuse — a chance to share in this glorious miracle — for a small fee.

I think I'll pass on this particular miracle. I know that God works in mysterious ways, but I just can't see Him coming down to bless a pair of foot supports.

SPORTS SCENE

CONNECTION— Jimmy Connors, Mitchell, 6-3, 6-0, 6-2, Wednesday in first-round third-seeded in the U.S. Open, defeated Matt action. (AP Laserphoto)

Connors, McEnroe advance

NEW YORK (AP) — They like to talk about playing them "one match at a time." It's a cliché — but in John McEnroe's case, he takes it seriously.

McEnroe, the No. 1 men's seed in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships, says he can't afford to look too far down the road to a potential semifinal showdown with third-seeded Jimmy Connors.

"With this type of ball, which is relatively quick, it's a little bit tougher to play a big server — and (Sweden's Stefan) Edberg is a good server," McEnroe said Wednesday, looking ahead to his second-round opponent on Friday.

"That's the best part of his game and that's going to help him in the long run because he really has a different serve than a lot of people. ... I would have preferred to have a really easy draw to whatever round it may be, but it's just going to test me earlier."

McEnroe, ranked No. 1 in the world by the Atari-ATP Computer, was hardly tested in Wednesday's first-round match. He beat Colin Dowdeswell of Britain 6-1, 6-1, 6-1 while the unseeded Edberg, ranked 22nd, swept Larry Stefanki 6-4, 6-3, 6-0.

McEnroe wasn't the only highly seeded player to breeze to a straight-set victory Wednesday.

Connors, seeking to match McEnroe's mark of three consecutive U.S. Open victories, put away Matt Mitchell 6-3, 6-0, 6-2.

When asked at a postmatch news conference whether he felt any undue pressure to maintain his U.S. Open winning streak, Connors replied: "I haven't had pressure since you guys wrote me off five years ago."

Also Wednesday, No. 2 seed Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, the loser to Connors in the final each of the past two years, turned back Brian Teacher 6-4, 6-4, 7-5, and fourth-seeded Mats Wilander of Sweden defeated Canada's Glenn Michibata 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Martina Navratilova, the No. 1 women's seed, likewise had an easy first round, beating Lea Antonoplis 6-4, 6-2, and No. 4 Pam Shriver blitzed Beverly Bowes 6-0, 6-1.

A third seeded woman was ousted as No. 11 Kathleen Horvath fell 7-6, 6-0 to Susan Mascarin.

The recurring themes sung by the top seeds through the first two days here have been: (a) playing a "nobody" can be deadly; and (b) it's nice to survive the first round.

"When I was young and I played the top players," Navratilova said, "I was thrilled to be on the court and I played my best. I wasn't afraid of it. ... In a first match, you just try to win it in two sets and get it over with and go home."

Said McEnroe: "It's like no one really expects me to lose at this point. ... Sometimes they (unseeded players) play better because anytime they play me or Martina or any of the top guys, they really don't have anything to lose."

Texas Tech's top rusher out with injuries

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Texas Tech football coach Jerry Moore found Wednesday that trouble comes in twos after learning Red Raiders tailback Robert Lewis will miss a month of contact drills because of a fractured arm and tailback Timmy Smith has a broken wrist.

Lewis, the starter and the team's leading rusher with 750 yards last season, suffered the injury in a scrimmage Tuesday.

Trainer Ken Murray described the injury as a non-displaced fracture of the forearm. Lewis, a senior from Greenville, Texas, will be able to participate in all team drills except contact, Murray said, but he'll likely miss the season opener Sept. 15 against Texas-Arlington.

Smith, of Hobbs, N.M., had been a contender for the starting job in light of the Lewis injury but Murray said Wednesday that his broken left wrist, also suffered Tuesday, normally takes six weeks to heal.

With the first two tailbacks on the depth chart sidelined, juniors Ansel Cole of San Antonio and Gerald Bean of Houston will vie for the starting job.

Pampa's football fortunes may lie with offensive line

There's a lot of green troops in the Pampa High football camp, except in the offensive line this season. Head coach John Kendall has been doing some shifting around and taking a hard look at the veterans and prospects in this area.

Tackle Lyle Van Buskirk (6-2, 245) has been shifted to guard and tackle Dean Birkes (6-2, 195) has been moved to center.

"Lyle picked up some speed over the summer. He's really looking good," Kendall said.

Letterman Jimmy Leos (5-8, 150) will probably back up Birkes at center, Kendall said. He's also taking a close look at Derrick Smith (5-10, 175).

Travis Adams (5-5, 175), a two-year starter at guard, is Pampa's most experienced lineman, but he's been trying to overcome knee problems.

"Adams gives us good experience, but he's been slowed down," Kendall added.

Should Adams need help, there are currently four players Kendall can choose from to fill in. They include John Perez (5-4, 150), Bill Hopkins (5-10, 170), Todd Hardin (5-9, 160) and Shawn Greene (5-10, 175).

David McGrath, the biggest player on the squad at 6-4 and 245 pounds, and returning starter

Tyrone Evans (5-6, 210) are expected to start at tackles. Brothers John Stevens (5-11, 180) and James Stevens (5-10, 175) will be the backups.

Kendall said the Harvesters have been making good progress in this area.

"Our timing is a lot better and our backs are starting to hit the holes. I'm feeling pretty good about that," he added.

Pampa's offense will use the I-formation again this season, but with more options, Kendall said.

Pampa's "59" defense (five down linemen, two linebackers, four deep secondary) is getting better, Kendall said.

"We've really been working on the defense," Kendall said. "It's something I've been worried about, but it's been really picking up."

Pampa's final scrimmage is Friday night against Tascosa at Harvester Stadium. The junior varsity game starts at 5 p.m., followed by the varsity game at 7 p.m.

"Tascosa is going to be a good test for us," Kendall said. "They're supposed to be better than they were last year."

Season tickets go on sale Friday at the high school athletic office. Ticket holders from last year can keep their same seats if they buy their tickets before 4 p.m. Friday.

Tiger football signups today

Youngsters interested in playing Tiger League Football this fall can sign up today from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. at the Optimist Club.

Optimist Club members will have a booth during Chautauqua activities Sept. 3, and youngsters will be able to sign up then also.

Coaching the teams this year will be Don Carpenter, Colts; Dennis Kuempel, Packers; Wayne Barkley, Raiders; Robert Little, Rams; Bob Lowrance and Dick Henley, Redskins.

Collins displeased with scrimmage

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist University's football coach wasn't too impressed with what he saw on the playing field on the first day of scrimmage Wednesday and says the team will have to work hard on its mistakes.

"We were ragged, rusty, spotty," said coach Bobby Collins. "I know it's been hot, but we have to pick it up and fight our way through it. Our offense must be more consistent."

The SMU Mustangs were led in rushing by quarterback Don King who netted 30 yards on five carries, while tailback Reggie Dupard had 25 yards on five carries. King accounted for the Ponia's only touchdown, a 45-yard pass to flanker Marquis Pleasant. King completed three of five passes for 104 yards and one touchdown. He was not intercepted.

Freshman quarterback Bobby Watters also hit three of five for 53 yards.

The Mustangs will hold two drills a day with a full-scale scrimmage on Saturday before opening the regular season on Sept. 15 against Louisville at Louisville, Ky.

Volleyball leagues planned at Center

The Pampa Youth Center plans to offer a fall volleyball league in men's, women's and mixed divisions.

Entry deadline for teams is Wednesday, Sept. 5. Call 665-0748 for more information.

Gastineau denies assault charges

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Jets All-Pro defensive end Mark Gastineau has denied in a sworn statement to the Manhattan district attorney's office that he struck anyone in a fight at Manhattan's Studio 54 discotheque.

The statement, given voluntarily by Gastineau on Oct. 25, 1983, was read from the witness stand

Wednesday by Assistant District Attorney Robert Silvering in Manhattan Criminal Court.

Gastineau and teammate Ken O'Brien are being tried on misdemeanor charges for allegedly assaulting three men at Studio 54 during the early morning hours of Sept. 30, 1983.

AL roundup Red Sox in wrong division

By BEN WALKER
AP Sports Writer

What a difference a division makes.

The Boston Red Sox beat the Minnesota Twins 4-0 Wednesday night, leaving both teams with 60-63 records.

The Twins are leading the American League West by three games. The Red Sox are fifth in the AL East, a whopping 17½ games behind Detroit.

"I wish we were in it right now," Boston Manager Ralph Houk said when reminded of the disparity in the two divisions.

Mike Easler delivered run-scoring singles with two outs in the fourth and sixth innings to help Boston match Minnesota's mark this season.

"It's a little bit frustrating, and you think about it," Easler said.

In other AL games, California clubbed Baltimore 7-5, Chicago hammered Toronto 8-5, Cleveland tripped Milwaukee 5-2, Kansas City beat Texas 4-1, Seattle stopped Detroit 5-1 and New York downed Oakland 4-1.

Boston's Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, who has lost a trio of four-hitters this season, pitched a two-hitter for the victory.

"You expect to lose some close games, but I knew things would turn around," said Boyd, 9-9. "I was really concentrating with men on base and making sure I didn't give them any fat pitches.

"I love playing, I love pitching and right now I'm enjoying my season," he said.

The right-hander allowed only one clean hit — Kirby Puckett's line single that led off the fourth inning. The other hit came in the sixth when shortstop Jackie Gutierrez lost Tim Teufel's pop-up in the Metrodome lights and it fell for a single.

The Twins have lost four of their last six games and have scored just 12 runs during that time.

"We're due to break out," said Minnesota Manager Billy Gardner. "We'll bounce back tomorrow."

Mariners 5, Tigers 1
Rookie Mark Langston took over the AL strikeout lead while bedazzling Detroit with a two-hitter. The left-hander fanned 12 Tigers, boosting his strikeout total to 167, three ahead of California's Mike Witt.

Langston did not allow a hit after the second inning, when the Tigers took the lead on an RBI single by Rusty Kuntz.

Then, with the score tied 1-1 in the fifth at the Kingdome, Jack Perconte produced a one-out bunt single and Phil Bradley also singled. Alvin Davis blooped an RBI single and Ken Phelps followed with a three-run homer. Phelps' 22nd homer came off Dan Petry, 15-8.

The victory broke Seattle's five-game losing streak.

White Sox 5, Blue Jays 5
Greg Luzinski helped himself and his Chicago teammates get out of a power slump.

Luzinski, Carlton Fisk and Scott Fletcher each hit solo home runs as the White Sox scored as many as eight runs in a game for the first time since July 18 when they beat Detroit 10-6. All three home runs led off innings.

Luzinski's pinch-hit home run in the eighth was his 13th blast of the season, but his first since Aug. 7.

Floyd Bannister went six innings and raised his record to 12-8. Luis Leal, 13-4, took the loss.

Willie Upshaw and Buck Martinez hit consecutive homers for host Toronto in the fifth.

Royals 4, Rangers 1
Hal McRae homered and doubled as Kansas City continued its hex over Frank Tanana.

Tanana, 14-12, had won five straight decisions for Texas, but lasted just seven innings as his career record against the Royals sunk to 6-18.

Bud Black, 14-10, pitched a six-hitter for his fourth straight victory.

After Gary Ward's 16th homer put the visiting Rangers ahead in the top of the first inning, McRae's RBI triple tied it in the bottom half of the inning. Kansas City added two runs in the second and McRae hit his third homer in the third.

Angels 7, Orioles 5
It was a home run derby at Anaheim Stadium, where consecutive solo homers by Fred Lynn and Brian Downing with two out in the eighth won it for the Angels.

Both home runs came off Mike Boddicker, 16-9, who also surrendered a three-run blast to Rob Wilfong and a solo shot by Bobby Grich.

NL roundup Mets edge LA to keep pace with Cubs

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

Keith Hernandez had seen the scoreboard and realized the New York Mets needed another victory to keep pace with the high-flying Chicago Cubs.

"With Chicago winning the way they have, the gun barrel has been pointed right between our eyes," said Hernandez, whose double in the bottom of the ninth inning gave the Mets a 3-2 victory Wednesday night over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Cubs had beaten Cincinnati 7-2 earlier in the day for their fourth consecutive victory, and the Mets had to match that streak just to stay within 5½ games in the National League East. They had the right man in the right place at the right time.

Hernandez, whose hit produced his 16th game-winning RBI to tie him with George Hendrick of St. Louis for the league lead, rifled a double into the left-field corner to score Danny Heep.

"This team's got guts," Hernandez continued. "We've risen to the occasion all year."

The latest victory, which gave the Mets a sweep of their three-game series with the Dodgers and a 9-3 edge for the season against Los Angeles, was a textbook example of clutch hitting.

First, with the score tied 1-1 in the seventh, Rusty Staub, with only one pinch hit in his last 22 appearances, doubled to score Mookie Wilson, whose hustle had just turned a routine single to right field into a double.

Then Heep, hitless in his last 19 at-bats as a pinch hitter, started the ninth against Pat Zachry, 5-4, with a bad-hop single. He scored all the way from first on the gamer by Hernandez.

Elsewhere, it was San Diego 2, Philadelphia 0; San Francisco 4, Montreal 3 in 11 innings; St. Louis 10, Atlanta 6; and Pittsburgh 4, Houston 2.

The Mets success has not been lost on the opposition, particularly Dodger starter Jerry Reuss, who allowed only five hits and one run in six innings.

"It seemed like the Mets were supposed to win from the very start," Reuss said. "Like it was God's will."

Reliever Jesse Orosco, 9-5, set the stage for Hernandez by blowing a 2-1 lead when he surrendered an eighth-inning home run to pinch hitter Candy Maldonado. Orosco was trying to protect the lead of starter Ron Darling, who had yielded just three hits in seven innings and struck out a career-high 12 batters. Cubs 7, Reds 2.

Chicago won for the ninth time in 11 games with Leon Durham leading the way with a home run, a single and three runs batted in. Bob Dernier broke an 0-for-20 slump with a homer that started a four-run third inning to give Rick Sutcliffe his 11th straight victory. He has a 13-1 NL record since coming over from Cleveland June 13.

The Cubs broke open a tie game in the third. Dernier reached Jeff Russell, 6-15, for his third homer. One one later, Durham hit his 20th, a two-run blast.

Durham said he has been concerned with his wife, who was kind of tumbled across home plate."

He hit the first pitch from reliever Dick Grapenthin, 0-2, on the fly to right-center and center fielder Tim Raines missed a diving catch.

The Giants tied the game in the ninth when Expos third baseman Tim Wallach threw away Joel Youngblood's grounder, allowing Scot Thompson to score. Pirates 4, Astros 2.

Winning pitcher Don Robinson's RBI single in the ninth inning scored Marvell Wynne to lead Pittsburgh over Houston.

Wynne started the inning with a single and was sacrificed to second before Robinson, 3-5, singled to make a loser of Frank DiPino, 4-7.

"Hitting as a hitter is different than hitting as a pitcher," said Robinson, a .333 hitter who was swinging with two outs. "As a hitter you don't care if you strike out. But as a pitcher hitting, you must produce."

Kevin Bass and Enos Cabell had run-scoring hits for the Astros.

Steve Garvey's double-play grounder and a sacrifice fly by Kevin McReynolds accounted for the scoring. Cardinals 10, Braves 6.

Willie McGee drove in four runs, three with a bloop double in the fourth inning and another in a five-run eighth as St. Louis whipped error-prone Atlanta. Trailing 6-5 in the eighth, the Cardinals used three hits and errors by pitcher Donnie Moore and second baseman Jerry Royster to spark their outburst.

"We hit some high choppers, for a muddy field," Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said of the eighth inning in Atlanta. "If we'd been on Astro turf, they would have been doubles."

McGee's three-run double came when left fielder Brad Kommsink missed a diving try.

Rafael Ramirez drove in two runs with a single in the Braves' five-run fourth inning. Giants 4, Expos 3.

Catcher Bob Brenly hit the first inside-the-park home run of his major-league career as San Francisco handed Montreal its sixth straight loss, all by one run.

"My feeling coming around third base was 'I hope I don't have a heart attack,'" Brenly said of his 19th homer. "I didn't have enough left in me for a pretty slide, so I

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol
Aug. 31, 1984

In areas where you were previously denied creative self-expression, hindrances will be removed this coming year. Your imagination will help open up profitable new vistas.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You should be very capable today in handling projects of a mental nature. Slack off on your muscles and put your bright mind to work. Major changes are in store for Virgos in the coming year. Send for your year ahead predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you follow your instincts today, your chances for acquisition are better than usual. Play your hunches when something of value is at stake.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Concentrating on matters that are personally important to you is not selfish today. Sometimes it is essential to think of yourself first.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It could prove wise today to keep your own counsel. If a problem is disturbing you, go off by yourself until you get it sorted out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A smile and a kind word will work wonders in opening doors for you today. Treat others the way you would like them to treat you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You have an air about you today that will command the respect of your peers. You'll use sincerity, instead of affectations.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Believe in yourself today and those with whom you deal will follow suit. Your magic formula is to say, "Yes, I can," and truly believe it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A complicated financial matter in which you're involved could take an unexpected turn for the better today. However, you must be in charge every step of the way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The best things happen for you today when you're involved in some form of collective effort. Be a team player, instead of a loner.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Do not while away your hours on frivolous pursuits today. Keep your shoulder to the wheel because industriousness pays extra dividends.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Try to relax and enjoy yourself today regardless of your involvements. The more at ease you are, the smoother your road will be.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be kind and considerate to outsiders today, but do not put their needs above those of your family. Loved ones must know they come first.

Bargaining begins in autos

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—It isn't quite true that as autos go so go the rest of the big union-management negotiations, but what happens in Detroit this month could have a big impact on them.

It could also have a sizeable impact on the general economy over the next few years, as unions seek to regain during prosperity what they lost during the recession.

Closely watching the auto talks are more than 1.5 million union workers in basic industries whose agreements run out over the next two years. Among them: 300,000 truckers in March and 130,000 electrical machinery workers next June.

Many of the industries and workers who will be negotiating new contracts have their own problems, from imports to the future of unions themselves. But all share a common concern too, best expressed in a question:

Will bargaining and agreements revert to the pre-recession style, when unions demanded and industries acquiesced in settlements so large they often turned out to be inflationary?

Even before the recession, considered the worst in more than three decades and by some measures the deepest since the Great Depression of the 1930s, many industry officials complained loudly about the size of union demands.

They talked, and then they signed, and among the signers were officials of the automotive industry, confident that they could pass on higher costs to the public. The public rebelled. The economy rebelled too. The public rebelled by purchasing smaller cars, a rising number of them imported. The economy rebelled with inflation; many of the union-management deals erased productivity gains, the best defense against rising prices.

Both management and unions got the message. Management, especially in the automotive industry, was finally pushed into cutting overhead. The efficiency experts sought savings with an intensity that industry hadn't seen since the years immediately after World War II.

By no means was the inefficiency all blue collar. White-collar staffs were cut by the thousands, along with announcements that the cuts were permanent rather than temporary expedients. Robots and other creatures of automation and modern electronics were introduced into assembly lines.

The mood of management was that if efficiency was to be improved, it was now or never. To the surprise of some, unions agreed, reasoning that a weak industry meant job insecurity. In the new environment, big demands were seen as weakening the company, and union give-ups became a way of saving jobs.

In the prosperous years that followed the recession, made so in part by restrictions on imports from Japan, management resolved not to fall back into the same pattern as before.

Management had sound reasons for so thinking. It was uncertain about its ability to pass on wage increases to consumers in higher sticker prices, and certain the companies themselves couldn't simply absorb the added costs.

Wraps will come off Derek film

LOS ANGELES (AP)—When is an X-rated film not an X-rated film? When it's not rated at all, as is the case with "Bolero," an erotic adventure from Bo and John Derek that opens Friday in 1,022 U.S. and Canadian theaters.

"Bolero," described in radio ads as showing more of Ms. Derek than Playboy magazine did, will not have a rating from the Motion Picture Association of America Classification & Ratings Board.

Cannon Films, which produced "Bolero," decided not to seek the rating because of unofficial word that the film would earn an X—a classification that makes it difficult to book a film into first-run theaters and to promote it through ordinary channels.

Cannon is not an MPAA signatory and therefore has no obligation to seek a rating.

"There are exhibitors and there are radio and television stations that have a firm policy against advertising X-rated films," explained Micky Hyman, Cannon's chief operating officer. "We wanted to ensure the public has an opportunity to see the movie, enjoy it and make their own decisions on it."

"The film is a love story, and there's lovemaking in the film," he added. "But we don't think it's a dirty movie or a pornographic movie."

Cannon, which is also distributing "Bolero" through its newly formed Cannon Releasing Corp., already has begun a massive print and broadcast advertising campaign for the $7 million, 110-minute film.

"Bolero" was written and directed by Derek, and produced by Ms. Derek, who stars as an adventure-seeking 1920s heiress.

Information about your changing telephone service from Fred Epperly, Network Services Supervisor

Tele-Help has the answers

"My phone's not working... who should I call? What can I do to save money on my phone service? Why are there so many pages in my phone bill? How do I pick the long distance service company that's right for me?"

These are some of the questions I've been getting from many of you since Southwestern Bell Telephone became an independent company on Jan. 1.

Last year we anticipated many of these questions and began telling our customers about the changes in our business using advertising, bill inserts, news stories, brochures and public talks by our employees.

But we found that people aren't likely to listen until the message directly affects them. Our research shows that only about 17 percent of our customers fully understand the changes brought on by the Bell System split up.

We're concerned about this confusion. That's why we've started a new informative program to help you. It's in the public interest. You've been good customers too long. We split from AT&T, not you.

The new program is called "Tele-Help," and it will give you more information about your phone service, what to do, when and how. Perhaps you've already seen and heard some of the advertising. It's all designed to help clear up any confusion and make sure your phone service remains as useful as we can make it.

You can still "call on us" for help

Tele-Help is our way of saying we hope you'll still "call on us." Just as you've turned to us in the past, we want you to continue to do so in the future.

In talking with you, we identified six major areas that most of you want to know more about. These topics comprise the first six Tele-Help booklets: phone service in general, phone bills, repair, telephone sets, long distance service and money-saving tips. Other booklets are in the works, and I'll tell you more about them in subsequent columns.

We feel the booklets are easy to understand and they're available at no charge. You can order the entire set if you like.

To get Tele-Help is easy! Just call toll-free 1-800-325-2686 (and ask for "extension 84") Monday-Friday, 8 a.m.-8 p.m. Or, fill out the coupon below and mail it to us.

HUBERT de GIVENCHY ORSON WELLES

Names in news

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — The rotund image of Orson Welles has filled television screens for years touting the man who would "sell no wine before it's time." Now the maker of the movie classic "Citizen Kane" is putting his weight behind the state of Oregon.

Bill Taylor, Oregon's travel director, says the entertainer is taking part in the state's new radio and newspaper campaign aimed at bringing more tourists to Oregon during the fall months.

Welles' 60-second radio spot is being broadcast in 13 West Coast cities in northern California, Washington, Idaho and British Columbia. The cost of the project is estimated at $70,000, with $3,100 going to the 69-year-old Welles.

Welles' opening line in the radio commercial is: "As you might expect, we sell no state before it's time. That time is now for the full pleasure you richly deserve — in Oregon."

NEW YORK (AP) — French designer Hubert de Givenchy will be draping his creations on a line of dolls starting next year. But this isn't Ken and Barbie we're talking about. These china porcelain and vinyl creations will sell for up to $2,500.

Givenchy has signed a three-year agreement with World Doll Inc. to produce a line that will feature his idea of "the ultimate woman." Jessie Josell, a spokeswoman for the doll company, said Wednesday. The dolls will be created by Givenchy and will wear clothes designed by him.

They will range in price from $100 for an 18-inch vinyl doll and a vinyl baby doll to a 16-inch china porcelain doll that will sell for $2,500. Ms. Josell said. The latter will be a limited 500-piece collection.

News in brief

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Four unfinished nuclear reactors have become "too expensive an option," the power manager of the Tennessee Valley Authority said in announcing that the plants will not be completed.

Directors of the TVA voted 3-0 Wednesday to cancel two reactors at Hartsville near Nashville and the twin-reactor Yellow Creek plant near Corinth, Miss.

"The cost of Yellow Creek alone would be more than we've invested in the entire power system," said TVA power manager Hugh Parris said.

The dolls will be available in stores beginning in February.

In addition, Ms. Josell said World Doll will also preview a sculpted collection of Krystle Carrington and Alexis Carrington Colby dolls from the "Dynasty" television show. The "Dynasty" dolls will be done in real furs and jewels and will sell for $10,000, she said.

BOSTON (AP) — Ellen DeGeneres has had to live up to the title of "America's Funniest Person" for the last year, but her reign as the queen of comedy is about to end with her crown possibly passing to the likes of Ryan Reilly or a guy billed only as Tony V.

Kiley and Tony V were among 35 aspiring comics who took the stage Wednesday to strut their stuff as part of Showtime search for new talent. The winner, to be chosen in October, will get to perform on the cable television channel next year.

About 100 spectators laughed, groaned and sometimes just stared as the comics took their best shots.

The young and balding Kiley tickled the crowd's funny bone when he said he used a shampoo called, "Gee, your head smells terrific."

The man who calls himself "just Tony V" is a very pudgy fellow who swears he weighs only 160 pounds because he's hollow.

First to take the stage was Ms. DeGeneres, who displayed the form that won her last year's contest.

"People are stupid," she told the crowd. "Ever notice when you're with someone and they have something that tastes bad, they ask you to taste it?" she asked. "And we do."

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — New Jersey-bred Frank Sinatra says this isn't his kind of town anymore, blaming a state casino commissioner for insults that prompted the entertainer to cancel his appearances at a gaming hall.

Kenny Rogers will replace Sinatra and Martin at the Golden Nugget from Sept. 5 to Sept. 9.

Lebanon mourns fallen leader

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Rival Moslems and Christians united today in mourning Pierre Gemayel, the father of Lebanon's president and a dominant figure from the nation's fight for independence through its long civil war.

As preparations got under way for the burial, Gemayel's Phalange Party militia clashed with Druse fighters south of Beirut, and rival Moslem militias battled in Tripoli, bringing the death toll in that city to 23 in three days.

In much of Lebanon church bells tolled, flags flew at half staff and radio stations played sad music in tribute to the nation's most prestigious Christian leader, the fallen founder of the Phalange Party. He died Wednesday at age 78 of a heart attack.

The government has declared a three-day national mourning for Gemayel, beginning today. His funeral was scheduled for this evening in Bikfaya, his mountaintop hometown where he died, 10 miles northeast of Beirut.

In his will, Gemayel wrote that he wanted to be buried at the family cemetery in a simple wooden coffin next to his slain son, Bashir, and Bashir's daughter, Maya, who was killed in a car bomb blast at age 4 in 1979, an official announcement said.

Bashir was elected president by Parliament in 1982, but was assassinated before his inauguration. His brother, Amin, was then elected president and has held the office for the last two years.

Pierre Gemayel's death casts a further shadow on the nation's already dimming chances of halting the nine-year civil war. Only former President Camille Chamoun, a fellow Christian and political rival, came close to Gemayel in national influence.

Lebanon's Shiite Moslem warlord, Nabih Berri, and his Druse ally, Walid Jumblatt, offered their condolences in separate telephone calls to President Gemayel. Prime Minister Rashid Karami, a Sunni Moslem, praised Pierre Gemayel in a statement read over radio stations.

Arab heads of state and one Israeli leader expressed sympathy with the Lebanese people over the loss of Gemayel.

"I share your sadness over the loss of a father and a leading Cabinet member of your administration," Syrian President Hafez Assad said in a message of condolence to the Lebanese head of state.

King Hussein of Jordan and Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak cabled similar messages, and Israeli premier-designate Shimon Peres issued a statement praising the elder Gemayel.

The hostilities broke a five-month truce in the region abutting Jumblatt's strongholds in the Chouf mountains. No casualty estimates were available in the battle.
