

PRIMING PUMP—Dr. Robert Jarvik, inventor of the Jarvik mechanical heart, primes the model before it is placed inside the chest cavity of William Schroeder Sunday during the implant operation at Humana Heart Institute in Louisville, Ky. (AP Laserphoto)

Plastic heart pumps; recipient 'doing well'

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — William J. Schroeder, the world's second recipient of a permanent artificial heart, was in critical but stable condition today with a plastic pump beating in his chest despite losing half his blood when his aorta began bleeding after the implant.

"I'm happy to tell you the patient is doing very well this morning," said Dr. Allan M. Lansing, chairman of Humana Heart Institute International, where Schroeder's distorted, malfunctioning heart was replaced with softly clicking air-driven device in a seven-hour operation Sunday.

"He is not bleeding," Lansing said. "He is warm, pink and dry, indicating excellent circulation... There appear to be no major complications."

Schroeder is sedated and will continue to be on a respirator to assist his breathing today because of some haziness shown on X-rays of his lungs, Lansing said. He shows slight kidney and liver problems, but these are to be expected after open-heart surgery, he said.

Before the operation, doctors had said Schroeder would have had less than a week to live without the artificial heart.

The Jarvik-7 heart, similar to the one that kept Barney Clark alive for 112 days in Salt Lake City two years ago, was functioning normally, as was its drive system, Lansing said.

Dr. Robert Jarvik, the artificial heart's inventor, said in an interview on "CBS Morning News" this morning that Schroeder had "done very well over the night, considering the bleeding problem,

Wife, son visit Schroeder which seems to have alleviated overnight."

Shortly after the operation, Schroeder had been wide awake, squeezed surgeon William C. DeVries' hand, and even tried to get out of bed, Lansing said.

But at 8:30 p.m., less than six hours after the heart implant was completed, the 52-year-old retiree was rushed back to the operating room when doctors could not stem a flow of blood accumulating in his chest.

By the time the bleeding was stanch, shortly before 10 p.m., Schroeder had lost about half the blood in his body, Lansing said.

Schroeder, who received massive transfusions, was returned to a coronary intensive care unit, where he was in critical but stable condition today, officials said.

Lansing said some internal bleeding had been expected because of scar tissue on Schroeder's arteries from earlier bypass surgery.

The blood was leaking from a hole where the artificial heart was stitched to the aorta, the principal artery that carries blood from the heart to the rest of the body.

Dr. Robert Jarvik, the artificial heart's inventor, said the mood in the operating room during Schroeder's implant surgery differed sharply from that in the University of Utah operating room where Clark became the first recipient of a permanent artificial heart.

"It was an entirely different situation here — a great feeling in the operating room of deliberate, calm progress," Jarvik said. "There was never a point when we felt we might lose him."

Clark lived for 112 days after the Dec. 2, 1982, implantation of his artificial heart. He died of circulatory collapse caused by multiple organ failures.

DeLea Vicars, Pampa pioneer, dies Sunday

R. DeLea Vicars, 93, a long-time Pampa resident who had seen the city grow from horse and buggy days, to oil boomtown, to its present size, died at 7:15 a.m. Sunday at the Coronado Community Hospital.

Services for Mr. Vicars are to be at 11 a.m. Tuesday at the First Christian Church, 18th and Nelson. The Rev. Bill Boswell, pastor, and the Rev. Dan March, associate pastor, will officiate. Burial will follow in Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Carmichael-Whately Funeral Directors.

Born Sept. 9, 1891 in Fincastle, Va., the son of Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Vicars, Mr. Vicars moved to Pampa with his family in 1908 from Pond Creek, Okla., when he was 17 years old. He married Beryl Wynn in 1922 in Pampa. She preceded him in death in 1974.

Mr. Vicars personified the American success story, moving from sweeping floors at the First National Bank to becoming the institution's president. He began sweeping floors at the bank on May 25, 1909 at age 19 following his graduation from Pampa High School. He quickly progressed to assistant cashier, a position he held for almost 30 years.

In 1927 he was witness to the bank's only robbery and was among the 20 people who were locked in the bank's vault by the robbers. On Sept. 28, 1934, Mr. Vicars took over as president of the First National Bank, heading the institution for the next decade. He was also a former director of Security Federal Savings and Loan Association. He served on the Pampa City Commission and was a member and organizer of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Vicars has served as president of the Panhandle Bankers Association.

Mr. Vicars played the clarinet with the Schneider Band, Pampa's first band conducted by Alex Schneider Sr. Other band members included M.K. Brown, C.P. Buckler and Ed Warminski.

Following his retirement from the First National Bank until his death, Mr. Vicars remained in business here managing estates and handling investments. He attended the First Christian Church.

A member of the Masonic Lodge No. 966, Mr. Vicars became a Master Mason on Nov. 4, 1919. He later received his 32nd degree in Dallas. He was Worshipful Master for Lodge No. 966 from 1924 to 1925 and received a 50-year Masonic service award on May 25, 1965. Mr. Vicars was also a member of the Knights Templar, Dallas Scottish Rite Temple, and Khiva Temple Shrine of Amarillo.

Mr. Vicars was the last surviving charter member and a past president of the Pampa Rotary Club, and a charter member of the Pampa Country Club.

Survivors include two brothers, Edwin Vicars and Kermit Vicars, both of Pampa; a niece, Virginia Smalz of Detroit; and a nephew, James Vicars of California.

Masons are asked to meet at Masonic Lodge No. 966 at 10 a.m. Tuesday, prior to Mr. Vicars' funeral.

Former officer's retrial moved to Wheeler County

31st District Judge Grainger McIlhany approved a last-minute continuance and change of venue this morning in the scheduled murder retrial of a former Pampa police officer.

Prospective jurors were summoned to the Gray County Courthouse this morning, when lawyers for Preston Wayne Maynard asked the judge to delay his trial and move it to another county.

The lawyers said an advance story about the murder trial in Sunday's Pampa News and other pre-trial reports would prevent their client's getting a fair trial here.

The defense lawyers filed the motions this morning, when the trial was scheduled to start.

McIlhany delayed the trial until Dec. 17 and ordered it moved to Wheeler County, a county also within The Pampa News' circulation area.

The state did not oppose the defense motions.

Maynard is charged with the Dec. 10, 1980 shooting death of his ex-wife, Shirley Louise Maynard, 40.

The defendant's first Pampa trial began July 27, 1981 and ended a week later. A nine-man, three-woman jury found Maynard guilty on the murder charge and sentenced him to 30 years in prison. After a two-hour standoff at the Maynards' Pampa trailer house, officers forcibly entered the home and found the woman dead on a living room couch. She had been shot once in the heart with a .357 Magnum pistol. The suspect, reportedly lying in a drunken stupor on the floor near the dead woman, also had shot himself in the knee, officers said.

According to the previous testimony, the couple was married for 20 years but had received a divorce about two months before the shooting.

Maynard was employed as a janitor with the Pampa schools at the time of the shooting. He previously had worked as a police officer in Pampa, Spearman, Perryton and Brownsville.

'Wrong girl' buried after accident

SIoux CITY, Iowa (AP) — Authorities say they will take fingerprints and check dental records of a badly bruised teen-ager who awoke from a two-week coma after an automobile crash and said she was another girl who had been declared dead in the same accident.

The crash survivor was originally identified as Shawn Lake after the Nov. 10 accident, but emerged from a coma and said she was Patricia Noonan, authorities said.

A funeral had been held for Miss Noonan, even though it was actually Miss Lake's remains that were apparently laid to rest. No one in this western Iowa city knows how the mistake could have occurred.

"Everything was done in the usual manner," including viewing of the body before burial, said Steve Baumgarten, owner of the funeral home where services were conducted for the dead girl. "What can I say? It's just bizarre."

"No, I'm Patty, Patty, Patty," the girl who had been identified by family and police as Miss Lake, said when she regained consciousness Saturday afternoon, said Dr. B.E. Krysztofiak, a neurologist.

At the Marian Health Center, Miss Lake's mother, Colleen Lake, had been keeping a vigil at the bedside of the girl she believed to be her 16-year-old daughter, who was the same size, age and build as Miss Noonan.

"I think it's very interesting that family members and other people did not notice," said Krysztofiak. "I am surprised it wasn't caught the first day or at least the first week."

Noonan family members, notified Saturday of the girl's claim, traveled to Sioux City and confirmed that she was Patricia Noonan.

"We're really stunned," said Mrs. Boyd McFarland, Miss Noonan's grandmother. "We're so happy for our family, but we feel so badly for Mrs. Lake."

"She sat by her side for two weeks and I don't know why she didn't realize it wasn't her own child."

Krysztofiak said Miss Noonan's face was bruised and swollen.

Lenis Lake, 42, of Primghar; John Noonan, 45, of Hartley; and Noonan's daughter Patricia were declared dead by police after the accident involving their car and a

Oil industry could strike it rich in China

DALLAS (AP) — A new spirit of economic freedom sweeping through China could spell big business for Texas oil, high-tech and construction industries, say business and academic leaders.

The Chinese government has rolled out the red carpet for foreign businesses and Enserch International Development subsidiaries are building four major coal-fired power plants in China and have letters of intent to build two more.

China also said it is opening 14 special economic zones along its coast where wholly foreign-owned subsidiaries and joint ventures will operate exempt from import and export taxes.

"It's probably the largest market open in the world today. Once you get the door open and are doing a decent job for them, there is an unlimited amount of work to do there," John Boosey, president of Enserch International Development, a subsidiary of Enserch Corp., told the Dallas Times Herald.

Dallas-based Dresser Industries recently sold $90 million in trucks, plus parts, service and training, to be used in a giant coal mine 250 miles west of Peking. The mine will be operated jointly by the Chinese and a subsidiary of Occidental Petroleum.

Michael Jenkins, a former Six Flags Over Texas vice president, plans to open the first U.S.-style amusement park in China in 1986.

Ding Chen, who heads the Shanghai Investment Co., recently told a trade conference at Southern Methodist University that China is undergoing a change.

Shanghai Investment Co. is a government agency that oversees foreign investment in China and Chinese investment abroad.

Ding said the Russian model of highly centralized planning simply has not worked for China, which is now working hard to attract foreign investments in energy, transportation and high technology.

Five years ago, Communist Party chief Deng Xiaoping gave the nation's 800 million rural residents permission to keep some of their crops and sell them in free markets. As a result, agricultural production boomed.

"Farmers faced an entirely new problem. Cash income has increased so much they are having difficulty buying consumer goods," Ding said. "They are no longer satisfied with a wristwatch and a bicycle anymore. They want to buy TV sets."

Ding said the government plans to free many products from price controls, to encourage individuals to run small businesses now owned by the state and to limit central planning to industries producing major products like steel, coal and cement.

"Our object is to improve the living standard of the people as fast as possible," Ding said.

Stephen Guisinger, who heads the international management graduate programs at the University of Texas at Dallas, said UTD professors will start teaching masters of business administration courses in China next May.

"It is an opportunity for these people to learn financial management western-style — to see American management in the flesh," he said.

Guisinger, who has visited China frequently, said the shift announced by China's Central Committee in October represents "capitalism without individual ownership. It will be the price system."

SEARCH—A Lebanese Army soldier searches a young man for weapons along one of West Beirut's major thoroughfares Monday. The Lebanese Army launched a new security plan in Beirut involving 6,000 troops. (AP Laserphoto)

Withdrawal talks resume; Lebanon army in Beirut

NAQOURA, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli and Lebanese military delegations resumed troop withdrawal talks today while Lebanon's army was deployed to take full control of Beirut from sectarian militias.

Shortly before the fifth round of negotiations began, Israeli delegation spokesman Lt. Col. Yona Gazit told reporters that Israel wanted to increase the pace of the talks, which began Nov. 8.

"We hope they will start moving faster," Gazit said. "We hope that more progress will be achieved at a faster rate."

A government official in Jerusalem who spoke on condition he not be identified said Israel wanted as many as five meetings a week instead of the current two.

The Beirut deployment was part of a three-stage plan to extend the control of Lebanon's army down the coastal road to the front line held by Israeli troops in the south and along the Beirut-Damascus highway to the east where Syrian troops are stationed.

Lebanese government sources said an immediate objective of the plan is to ensure round-the-clock traffic between Beirut's Moslem and Christian sectors with a minimized threat of kidnapping for motorists and pedestrians.

Sectarian abductions have been frequent on both sides of the line that separated the two sectors since the outbreak of civil war in 1975.

The army's 3rd, 5th and 6th brigades, whose combined 6,600-strong units have been stationed in the capital since July, were assigned to enforce the plan, under which armed militiamen are to leave the streets.

Prime Minister Rashid Karami said successful execution of the plan would show Israel that the Lebanese army is capable of carrying out security duties in south Lebanon.

Israel has been critical of the Lebanese army's abilities, and the success of the current maneuver could have a major impact on the course of the withdrawal talks.

Only hours before the talks resumed today, guerrillas launched two attacks against Israeli troops in south Lebanon. Israel's military command reported on guerrilla was killed during a fire-fight near the Ansar detention center where hundreds of Lebanese prisoners are being held by Israeli forces.

Computers change home mortgage study

By BILL McCLOSKEY
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The time-honored tradition of shopping for a mortgage by phoning lenders one after another until you got bored or fed up with the project is changing.

Computers are taking the drudgery out of finding a way to pay for the most expensive thing most people will ever buy — a home.

The idea is simple enough. Lenders list their loan options in a computer network. Borrowers, usually for free, can have personal information and the type and size of loan they are looking for punched into the system. The computer sorts out the matches.

The computer screens are located in the offices of lenders, in which case only that lender's loans are listed; in the offices of Realtors; or in a few cases in the offices of a service set up to match lenders and borrowers.

The more sophisticated operations are called ORIGOs, for computerized loan originators networks.

Not only will those systems find you a loan, they will enter your salary and other personal information, tell you if you meet the basic qualifications, transmit your application to the lender and keep track of it for you, telling the you the status of the approval process.

For example, an applicant will know if an employer has sent in a verification form, or if the appraiser has turned in a report.

While the computer printout presents a wide choice, it is not a complete choice. And the consumer trying one of the new services should understand what is offered.

A woman who identified herself as Colleen Lake declined comment Sunday when reached by telephone, but the family issued a statement saying the girl had extensive head injuries that prohibited further identification.

Neither of the families were well acquainted, therefore neither had seen the other girl before," the statement said. "Both girls were the same size, similar build, same hair color and same age, making the identification doubly difficult."

Hospital public relations director John Rodeen said Sunday the Iowa Highway Patrol would fingerprint the girl today and check her dental records. "In 10 years at the Marian Health Center and in all my life, we've never run across anything like this," Rodeen said.

"The patients were identified for us by the Highway Patrol," said Kenneth Hobson, administrator of Sioux Valley Memorial Hospital in Cherokee.

The patrol, which investigated the crash involving the car and a bus carrying the Aurelia girls' basketball team, declined to comment. Sixteen people were injured in the accident.

PAMPA CRIME STOPPERS

Since its inception in February, 1983, Pampa Crime Stoppers has been instrumental in obtaining information regarding crimes committed in Pampa through citizen involvement and a cash reward incentive offered to those citizens who anonymously volunteer information. Due to anonymous tips received through Crime Stoppers, the Pampa Police Department has been able to clear a significant number of offenses and recover an appreciable amount of stolen property and illicit drugs. Citizens may witness all or part of a crime without being aware of what they have seen and unknowingly possess key information that could aid police in solving the crime. In some instances, citizens, in fear of retaliation, do not contact police with information unless they can be assured of complete anonymity. Crime Stoppers has solved this problem.

Cash rewards of up to $1,000 are available for information leading to the arrest and indictment of persons committing crimes in Pampa. The board of directors of Crime Stoppers urges citizen involvement in reporting crimes in our community. Call Crime Stoppers at 669-2222.

Thanksgiving holiday traffic toll soars to 30 in Texas

By The Associated Press
At least 30 people lost their lives in Texas traffic during the Thanksgiving holidays, but the toll is down from the same weekend a year ago, when 49 lives were claimed on the state's roadways.

The holiday traffic death count compiled by The Associated Press began at 5 p.m. CST Wednesday and continued until 11 p.m. Sunday.

Beatrice Taylor, 42, of Houston died at 10 p.m. Sunday, the victim of a hit-and-run motorist. She was standing in a Houston street talking to someone when a car that was reportedly driven by a man hit her and sped away. Police arrested someone later in connection with the incident.

An unidentified man died on Houston's West Belt about 3:30 p.m. Sunday when his car crossed the center line and smashed into another car. A motorcycle and pickup truck also became involved in the wreckage. Authorities said the man, whose name was withheld pending notification of relatives, died of massive head, chest and torso injuries.

Three Austin residents were killed in separate one-vehicle accidents late Saturday and early Sunday, officials said.

Daniel Cory Jones, 23, of Austin was killed after his car struck the guard rail on a low-water crossing in north Travis County about 1:55 a.m. Sunday. The car flew into the air, struck a concrete embankment and slid into a creek, bursting into flames, authorities said. Jones, thrown from the car, died of massive internal injuries.

Charlie Gentry, 35, of Austin died of internal injuries suffered about 9:15 p.m. Saturday when his car hit a drainage ditch in southwest Travis County, about one-half mile west of U.S. 183. His car rolled over several times and Gentry was thrown from the vehicle.

Oswald Emanuel Mercer, 36, an Austin truck driver, was killed about 6:45 p.m. Saturday when the empty gravel truck he was driving veered off U.S. 290 about three miles east of Elgin in Bastrop County.

State leaders renew drive to fund high-tech industries

AUSTIN (AP) — Public and private business leaders say they are confident Texas will come through with a $23.5 million commitment to bring a high-technology computer research center here, even though pledges are lagging behind schedule.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the money is going to eventually come in. We're counting on the end of the year, because all these contributions are tax deductible," said Harden Wiedemann, a top lieutenant to Gov. Mark White.

Texas outbid three other U.S. cities to help Austin lure Microelectronics and Computer Technology Corp.

In 1983, MCC announced it was locating in Austin, turning down bids from three other finalist sites — San Diego, Atlanta and Research Triangle, N.C.

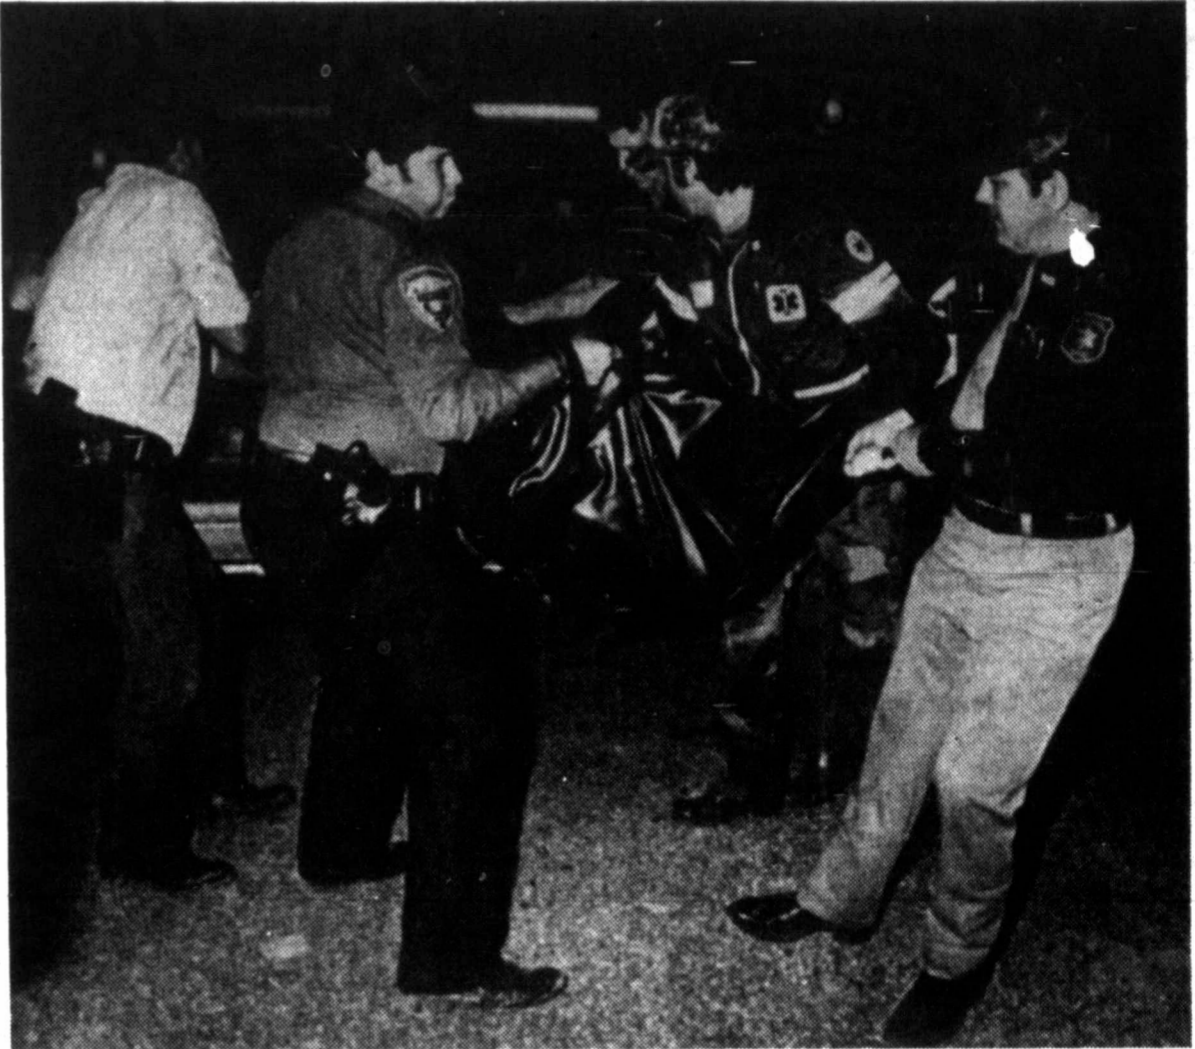

But in recent months, the statewide drive to raise the pledged amount has faltered, according to Pike Powers, White's former executive assistant.

Only $12.7 million has been raised so far during the 18-month drive, and the prestige of the governor and of the state rides on whether a renewed effort over the next 30 days succeeds in raising the remaining $10.8 million, White's advisers say.

"We're in a sensitive period," said Powers, who spearheaded the campaign to bring MCC to Texas.

"I'm hopeful that a lot of things will happen in the next 30 days."

White said it would take $23.5 million to pay for the commitments he made to MCC. The governor pledged the incentive funds to help MCC as a statewide commitment since MCC is viewed as a research organization that would benefit the entire state.

Oilman: Spindletop heirs' claims 'poppycock'

HOUSTON, Texas (AP) — Thousands of people have filed suits alleging they're entitled to share in the legendary Spindletop gusher's royalties, but a Houston oilman says their claims are just "poppycock."

Last summer, Pittsburgh attorney Richard Ferris filed a suit in federal court in Beaumont on behalf of James Clark of Ohio and Dan Profit of Kentucky. Clark and Profit are co-administrators of the estate of two brothers who owned an interest in Spindletop.

The suit Ferris filed seeks royalties starting from 1931 — when the brothers were last seen — and names among its defendants Amoco, Texaco, Mobil and Standard oil companies.

But Houston oilman Michel Halbouty, who wrote a history on Spindletop, said the royalty claims are simply "poppycock."

"What amuses the hell out of me — I'm going into my sixth decade in this business and every 10 years somebody comes up with something like this," Halbouty said in a Houston Post article published Sunday.

Mining engineer Capt. A.F. Lucas drilled Spindletop outside Beaumont. The gusher erupted in 1901, spewing thousands of barrels of oil before the well could be capped.

Spindletop is credited with bringing the oil industry to Texas.

The well has produced more than 153 million barrels of oil and still yields about 600 barrels a day, industry experts say.

People who have sued for a share in Spindletop's profits have claimed they should share in royalties ranging from $20 billion to $15 trillion with interest. But Halbouty disputes even the lower figure.

"That's way too farfetched," Halbouty said. "My goodness, there's no way. Those people are whistling in the dark."

Larry Laurent, of the Texas attorney general's energy division, said the $20 billion royalty figure is possible but not realistic.

"It's hard for a person to really comprehend the magnitude of production that has taken place from Day 1 to the current day," Laurent said. "In Texas alone, just hundreds of billions of dollars worth of revenue have been generated."

Ferris said the money figures involved in the case are "mindboggling."

"There are hundreds and hundreds and hundreds of leases, subleases and assignment of leases," Ferris said. "It's impossible."

Spokesmen for Amoco and Texaco would not discuss the claims because of the pending suit, but an unnamed source told the Post that the $1.5 trillion royalty figure "is outlandish."

Similar suits involving Spindletop royalties have been dismissed over the years.

In 1968, an appeals court ruled against a Texas couple who claimed they were descendants of William Humphries, a colonist who once had an interest in the field. The court also ruled against plaintiffs in two other cases filed by thousands of people claiming to be Humphries' heirs.

Meanwhile, Ferris, who represents about 125 claimants to Spindletop's profits, said the list of alleged heirs is growing.

New cameras make it easy

Many persons, especially older folk like me who grew up during the age of the Kodak box Brownie, never did make the jump to the more complicated cameras with f-stops, focusing and variable shutter speeds, unless they were forced into it or very curious and adventurous. Too many things to learn and remember!

Those simple point and shoot cameras, with the fixed focus lens, were okay for the snapshots for the family album, but for the better quality picture the more complicated, adjustable cameras were necessary.

But, today there is hope for those who like to have quality pictures, but have been unable to master the various controls and seemingly complicated details of advanced amateur and professional cameras.

There is no longer any need to fear the camera and picture taking. They've taken all the guesswork out of the new cameras. No need now to understand depth of field, focal plane, shutter speed and f-stop combinations, ASA-ISO, guide numbers or circles of confusion. The camera does that and more for you. You just point and shoot.

Professionals call these "idiot cameras," but don't let the name fool you. They are very sophisticated! Many of the pros, especially photojournalists who normally work with black and white film, are buying them as a small, lightweight camera to always have handy and for use in taking quick color shots when there isn't time to switch cameras and lenses or film or think about adjusting f-stops, speed and distance settings for a film with a different ASA than the one they normally use.

Many news and feature writers are buying or being issued these cameras to illustrate their stories. Some newspapers are issuing them to outlying correspondents.

The thought of a writer taking pictures is sacrilegious to most journalists. The writer should concentrate on his story and the photographer on the pictures, they'll argue, and it's true to a point. Any really good story deserves good pictures to illustrate it and, with few exceptions, writers may be good writers but are lousy photographers. Any experienced writer knows this, as does any good editor, and will have a photographer assigned to the story with him.

But, in these days of economic hardships, it just doesn't make sense to send a photographer along at extra expense when all that is required to illustrate the story is a simple headshot or scenic. In most cases, if the writer returns with a story obviously crying for better illustrations, the photographer can be sent in later.

Since I started out in the newspaper business as a photographer who also wrote stories, later becoming a full-time photographer before returning to the newsroom, I have tried to stay abreast of the changes in equipment used by photojournalists and whenever I can I still like to "take" pictures for the paper.

While I normally use a manual model 35 mm. camera which requires setting of the various controls to properly expose the negative, I occasionally use an automatic camera which requires only that I make sure it is set for the speed of the film I'm using.

Surprising as it may be, normally the pictures made with the automatic camera are usually of good quality and can be published in the paper. Of course, there are special conditions when knowledge of the old, tried and true adjustments of the manual camera for various lighting conditions come in handy, along with the use of filters to enhance picture quality are a must.

Here at the paper we have cameras ranging from that expensive import touted to be the camera of the professionals to one of the new automatic cameras that does the thinking for you.

In recent years some of our writers swore they could never take a picture, but were pleasantly surprised at how simple it really was with today's cameras which do the thinking for you. At least one model available which talks to you, telling you when you are making a mistake.

Still, it is good to know just what all those photographic terms mean, why they are important to understand, just how they can help you make better pictures. That's the key.

With today's cameras anyone can make a picture. With a few simple lessons you can make better pictures.

Judge considers venue change

HOUSTON (AP) — Prosecutors say they plan to show this week that a teen-ager charged in the murder of a female letter carrier can get a fair trial in Houston.

Meanwhile, State District Judge A.D. Azios said he would watch a videotape of television news reports today and would decide this week whether the trial of David Port, 17, should be moved.

Port is charged with murder in the shooting death of Debora Sue Schatz, 23, who disappeared June 7 while delivering mail in Port's fashionable neighborhood. Her body was found two days later in a wooded area.

Attorneys for the youth submitted the videotape and hundreds of pages of news stories and broadcast transcripts to Azios last week to show the case has attracted extensive news coverage.

Defense attorney Jack Zimmermann said it would be difficult to find impartial jurors in Houston because the media has frequently reported that the youth told police during his arrest that he killed Ms. Schatz.

"Our legal opinion is that people in Houston have concluded that David Port is guilty," Zimmermann said.

But District Attorney John Holmes said he believes a fair trial is possible in the city.

"I think realistically the concept of change of venue may have been appropriate when we were a small town, but not anymore," Holmes said.

Investigators searching the Port home after the killing found bullet holes in the stairwell wall and blood on the steps.

Woman, kidnapped as child, now looks for other missing children

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Carolyn Huebner remembers too well the three years she spent in captivity after being abducted from her front yard. She now spends most of her time reuniting missing children with their families.

Ms. Huebner was abducted from her Pennsylvania home at age 6 and vowed "if I got away, I'd do something about such things."

Texas Child Search Inc., begun in San Antonio in 1982, is a direct outgrowth of her pledge. Last year, the organization handled 28 missing child cases and helped solve 20 of them.

"I kept my promise and I think that's why I'm successful (in finding missing children)," Ms. Huebner told the San Antonio Light. "It's what God wants me to do."

Ms. Huebner attributes her success to being able to understand the emotional trauma experienced by missing children and their parents.

Authorities say about 2.5 million children are reported missing each year across the United States, with about 500,000 never being found.

Ms. Huebner said the memories of her own childhood trauma have motivated her. She still vividly recalls the closed darkness of a tiny closet and the leg irons used to shackle her to a bed on the rare days she was allowed in the lighted world.

Memories of the daily beatings and small rations of rice and water never can be erased, she said.

"I never gave up hope," Ms. Huebner said. "I kept praying, and God was with me every day."

Ms. Huebner works closely with law enforcement officials, talks with the friends of missing youngsters, uses police computers, fingerprints and — in the case of murdered children — compares dental records in her diligent detective work.

Among the children she has helped was a 12-year-old girl named Karen, who was bleeding and weeping near a park a night before Easter.

Disregarding her thawing turkey and a head full of hair rollers, Ms. Huebner stopped the truck she was in and spoke to Karen.

Ms. Huebner said she knew almost instinctively that the cut on the girl's face was not caused by a run-in with a tree in the park, as the child first said.

She determined in a matter of minutes that the waif was a child prostitute and had been battered. She took the child home for the night and reunited her with her parents the next day.

Texas Child Search Inc. does not receive state or federal funds. As a result, there is more time to look for missing children and less time spent filling out forms, she said.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Time to privatize the space program

The sight of astronauts hauling a satellite out of a bad orbit may not be as exhilarating as watching men walk on the moon, but it gives us more than a tickle of excitement just the same.

The moonwalk inspired a lot of poetry, and it certainly helped keep the doors of the federal treasury open to NASA. The ability of the shuttle to salvage an off-course communications satellite is exciting because it is precisely the sort of commercial application of the space program that helps move it along toward privatization—a closing of the door of the federal treasury.

Billions of people watched the moon walk. The audience of the satellite retrieval was considerably smaller, but we expect it may have included a high proportion of executives—engineers and money men—in the communications and other industries that might profit from the industrialization of space and have been watching the progress of the "space truck."

The chances of the private sector substantially replacing government in the exploration and exploitation of space depend in some measure on the extent to which the government gets out of the way and lets it happen.

A good place to start might be something as simple as a review of antitrust laws that now make it difficult, if not illegal, for competing corporations in some industries to pool resources for research and development. Such cooperation among large corporations seems likely to be essential for private-sector space exploration, given the huge sums of money involved.

Interestingly, while the shuttle was retrieving the satellite, the congressional Office of Technology Assistance released a report that said it might be time to invite the public to help assess—and broaden—the goals of future space projects, specifically NASA's proposed permanent space station, because it is the public that must pay NASA's huge bills. Congressional committees, the report said, tend to listen only to scientists.

As long as average citizens—in their role as taxpayers—are footing the bill, perhaps they ought to have a hand in designing the space program.

The best hope for the future of space exploration, however, is to turn it over as much as possible to the private sector. It is the best way to assure that it will meet the most needs of the most people at the least cost.

Under that condition, average citizens—in their role as consumers—could really have a hand in designing the program.

A threat to the Southland

A body has to feel downright sorry for Ms. Beverly Inman - Ebel of Chattanooga, who, by reason of what she calls a humanitarian impulse, has apparently got herself clobbered right and left.

Ms. Inman - Ebel, a speech pathologist, started a class at Chattanooga State Technical Community College for people who want to lose their Southern accents in order to enhance their commercial prospects. Directly the news got out, Ms. Inman - Ebel, it seems, was set upon roundly.

To defenders of Southern culture, the plain implication of the course offering is that the dulcet tones of the Southland are offensive, hence should be abandoned.

What kind of accent does Ms. Inman - Ebel favor? Why, suh, she is for no accent whatever. She bids the successful - oriented Southern sound like the Ohio, Indiana, and California brethren - stale, flat, and presumably profitable.

Ms. Inman - Ebel's ignominious campaign was unknown to me until the other day, when I read of its completion. I rejoice at having lived, if for only a few weeks in ignorance of such a scheme. The sons and daughters of the Southland are right. This is a discreditable enterprise. The lady needs a good talking - to.

This I say as one who, though Southern to the bone, speaks without trace of Southern accent.

Never mind: I don't have a dog either, but I approve on principle of kindness to animals.

In this lamentable day of television culture, the Southern accent is one of the few remaining vestiges of Southern culture. Another is the black-eyed pea. Take away one, and the other is threatened.

There is not in fact "a" Southern accent; there are various kinds. There is the kind that sits up in Mississippi mud. There is the "r" - less diction of Georgia, where "farm" is "faw - um." Charlestonians have a delicious and leisurely way of stretching out "pizza" into a word of six or seven syllables.

Then there's Virginia, where they say "hoose" for "house" - and worse. A few years ago, my wife and I were conducting on a tour of a James River plantation by a descendant of the original builder: The gentleman's accent wholly disguised two of every three words he spoke.

Ah, well, what of it? Better a spot of confusion than the smoothed - down homogeneity of the CBS evening news. California talk is splendid for Californians. Not for Southerners.

The myth to which Ms. Inman - Ebel's class gives currency is that Southern talk is somehow "country." As if that made it automatically a thing of reproach!

The beauty of the Southern accent is precisely its ruralness. Long rows of whitening cotton are in that accent, and warm country twilights, the faroff bay of houn' dogs, the squeak of porch swings, the dampness of smokehouses.

The contemporary southerner is likelier to live in the city - or at least the suburbs - and in a small town or on the land. Still, emotionally, he values the country. He'd like to get back there some day and just sit a spell. Let our speech therapists respect that laudable ambition.

Ms. Inman - Ebel apparently has her converts and disciples, to whom she is welcome. But is de - Southernization the wave of the future? Shoot, I simply shake off thoughts of her course and with relief pick up Rby Wilder, Jr.'s newly published book, "You All Spoken Here" (Viking, $16.95).

Brother Wilder lives in Gourd Hollow, N.C. He argues indignantly that time and television are making English "as homogenized and bland as blue john and grits." The South, says he, will have no part of it: Hooray for suck - egg dogs and plunder rooms! One is reminded that, without the right words, the accent counts for little.

Brother Wilder glories in such invaluable expressions as "my hind foot," "tough as a boot," "hog - killin' weather," "I swan," "tell how the cow ate the cabbage," and "out like Lottie's left eye." Now THAT'S how Southerners talk. May it ever be so.

Today in History

Today is Monday, Nov. 26, the 331st day of 1984. There are 35 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

Nov. 26, 1789, was a day of thanksgiving set aside by President George Washington to observe the adoption of the U.S. Constitution.

On this date:

Ten years ago: President Gerald R. Ford briefed congressional leaders on the tentative arms-control agreement that he had completed with the Soviet Union.

Five years ago: With the Iran hostage crisis continuing, the State Department said the United States had told its embassies in about 10 Islamic countries to "voluntarily" evacuate dependents, non-essential personnel and private U.S. business people.

One year ago: A Colombian Boeing 747 jetliner crashed five miles east of Madrid's airport, killing almost all of the approximately 200 people aboard.

Today's birthdays: TV commentator Eric Sevareid is 72. "Peanuts" cartoonist Charles M. Schulz is 62. Singer Robert Goulet is 51.

Budget cuts must be made

I was waiting the other evening with Bill Graham of Baxter - Travenol (manufacturer of medical products).

We were talking about the several cost containment factors which have recently affected the health care industry, depressing those stocks.

And hurtful as government belt - tightening has been to his industry's earnings, Bill said, "We all realize it had to be done."

As in any surgical procedure, however necessary to long - term recovery, cuts hurt!

President Reagan has affirmed that he will do what he was re - elected to do: keep cutting the size and scope of big government.

Uncle Sam, as is, is headed for a budget deficit of $190 billion. That's enough red ink to drown any other nation in the world.

But our country is managing a miracle right now. Our government's expenditures - compared to our nation's output of goods and services - is down in one year from 24.6 percent to 23.5 percent.

In dollars, granted, our deficit has increased. But in percentage of the GNP it is less. And this president is committed to continue the "lessening."

The Reagan years have shown us some things we didn't know before: you can run a tight monetary policy despite large deficits.

You can even have falling interest rates with a high deficit.

And you can even have recovery and disinflation simultaneously.

The president's political party does not control this Congress, but the president's philosophy does. Because if the campaign served no other purpose, it put the Democrats on record as agreeing that "deficits are a problem."

There are only two ways to siphon off this red ink: higher taxes or reduced spending.

And Congress has heard the electorate say a loud and clear "no" to higher taxes.

So - the cutting begins.

The loudest cries will be heard when the cuts cut school aid, nutrition programs, health care. Sixty - nine billion dollars a year is more Medicare than we can afford. So is $107.5 billion for "welfare."

As a tradeoff with Congress, I expect the president will be willing to sacrifice a portion of his military budget.

He has vowed that Social Security will not be reduced but the Grace Commission proposed 2.478 other items of federal expense which may be. Any insider knows that our government is still grotesquely overfat.

But, again, cuts hurt. Dieting is no fun even when your health depends on it.

Liberal media lost election

The biggest loser in the presidential election was the electronic media - liberal pundit complex. For the last four years, these major media elements campaigned furiously against President Reagan and his conservative economic and foreign policies.

Dan Rather of CBS sought to make it appear that Mr. Reagan's America was a land of homeless people living on iron grates in the sidewalk. John Chancellor of NBC fumed when the Reagan administration declined to let the stacked deck of the World Court rule on America's actions with respect to Nicaragua. National Public Radio, operating with taxpayer funds, used so - called news programs to propagandize against the Reagan administration. NPR's Morning Edition lavished time on congressional critics of the President. NPR's "All Things Considered" let Nicaraguan government spokesmen have a field day. It provided air time for spokesmen from such hard Left organizations as the Institute for Policy Studies. In the final days of the presidential campaign, NPR let applause for the President's opponent run on and on. Liberals, who say that tolerance is one of their highest values, were utterly intolerant of President Reagan and his policies.

A battalion of big name liberal pundits also were arrayed against Mr. Reagan. Anthony Lewis was indignant about the President's intervention in Grenada - and dozens of other administration actions. Tom Wicker characterized the President as reactionary. Carl Rowan expressed the view that administration policies were oppressive to black citizens. Richard Reeves launched one abusive attack after another. The Chicago Tribune's stable of liberal columnists were part of the pack that sought to bring down Mr. Reagan. The Washington Post writers also were doing everything possible to achieve a political kill.

All this was to no avail. Despite the liberals' near - monopolization of the media, the American people refused to be brainwashed. Forty - nine states voted for Mr. Reagan and his policies. The electronic media - pundit complex should be in a state of shock.

Not so, however. The liberals don't give up on the propaganda battle. James Reston of The New York Times, who for years never referred to Mr. Reagan without mentioning his acting career, had the nerve to suggest changes in the Cabinet, proposing the substitution of liberals for conservatives.

The liberal media, however, would do well to reassess their goals and strategies. If the old New Deal coalition is dead, so is the political power of the liberal media - pundit complex which reached its peak during the Vietnam War when it helped destroy America's will to win.

The network anchor men looked sick on election night, for they saw their political propaganda efforts come to naught. The networks would do well to consider the folly of their ways and strive now for accurate, non - political reporting. Press giants such as the New York Times and the Washington Post also would benefit from a reassessment. If they want to have greater influence, they will have to eliminate their partisan ways and open their editorial pages to a wider spectrum of views. The Times and Post, for example, would do well to begin by inviting conservatives to have a say on their Op - Ed pages. The intolerant must learn to practice some of the tolerance they preach.

The liberal media - pundit complex has a long way to go to regain the confidence of the American people.

Glynis Meyer presented a Thanksgiving reading as the program, followed by a baby shower for Marilyn McPherson and her new baby, Eloise Woldt was also welcomed as a guest. Hostesses were Betty Beyer and Glynis Meyer.

Next meeting is to be a progressive Christmas dinner hosted by the executive board on Dec. 9 at 6 p.m. beginning at the Energas Flame Room, then Esther McAdoo's and Glynis Meyer's.

Circulo de Amistad

The Circulo De Amistad Extension Homemakers Club met Nov. 16 at the Spanish Mission at the First Baptist Church. Hostess was Judy Ybarra and Esther Rodriguez. Club members welcomed new members, Lucy Arebalo and Grace Alaniz who joined Nov. 9. Other guests were Paula Garcia and Maria Miranda. Yolanda Garcia, club president, read Bible verses as the refreshments were served.

Beaded cross stitch Christmas ornaments are to be made at the Nov. 30 meeting at 9:30 a.m. in the Spanish Mission, to be hosted by Teresa Campos. Dec. 7 is the date for the club's Christmas luncheon. Everyone is asked to bring a covered dish.

Pampa Garden Club

Plans were discussed for the Pampa Garden Club's participation in the Festival of the Trees at their Nov. 19 meeting.

The club Christmas party is to be Dec. 10 at 2 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Holly Gray. Members will exchange gifts.

After the business session, Nov. 19, members conducted a workshop making decorations for the Christmas tree to be entered in the festival. Nosegays were made from dry materials gathered by several of the members.

Next meeting is to be Jan. 7, 1985, at 2 p.m. in the Energas Flame Room.

Sunshine Girls

Sunshine Girls Extension Homemakers Club are to meet for Thanksgiving dinner, Nov. 27, at 6 p.m. in the Energas Flame Room.

All club members and husbands are invited to attend.

The Council sponsored Christmas Party is scheduled at 1:30 p.m., Dec. 3. Members are to bring a gift for a child at the Community Day Care Center. Secret pal names are to be revealed at the Dec. 4 luncheon. Bring a $5 gift for exchange. Plans are to be made at this meeting for the coming year.

Jan Pyne presented the program at the club's Nov. 20 meeting. She taught tin punch and copper tooling. Each person made an 8x10 picture to take home. Thelma Robinson of Springfield, Ore., was welcomed as a guest. Ellen Boyd hosted the meeting and Helen Douglas won the door prize.

Varietas Study Club

Laura Penick hosted the Nov. 13 meeting of the Varietas Study Club.

Members agreed to contribute to the Statue of Liberty restoration fund and to make a contribution to the Chamber of Commerce Christmas tree lighting fund.

Eula Cary presented an inspirational and humorous report on life in the colonies as the program and history of Thanksgiving.

Next meeting is to be a Christmas party in the home of Hesta Hestand, Dec. 11, at 2:30 p.m.

Dear Abby

Preacher practices deception with everyone but his wife

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I was raised in a good Christian home. There was no drinking, no smoking, no cursing and no dirty talk. I was brought up to avoid people with bad habits, but the man I married had me fooled with his sweet talk and the God-fearing act he put on.

A year after we were wed, I learned that he was being unfaithful to me. I was already pregnant, so there was no leaving him. I forgave him and had four more children, and now, after 52 years of marriage, he is no better, he's worse. He drank a good bit, which put a stone wall so thick between us that I couldn't get over or through it. His foul mouth, vile temper and cheating ways are shown only in private.

He has never shown me one bit of tenderness or consideration. I am just a convenience for him, but I took a vow to stay with him till death do us part, and with God's help, I will.

I am starved for love, but I just get on my knees and ask the Lord to keep me strong enough to keep from killing him.

Abby, this man preaches the gospel of Christ! He sins all week and preaches on the Sabbath. He is well-respected in the community and is good at fooling people because he preaches the word of the Lord. How do I handle this mess? I'm 69 and he's 74.

ON MY KNEES IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR ON: You seem able to handle "this mess" very well. If prayer and your faith in the Lord keep you strong, keep right on praying. Come Judgment Day, that gospel-preaching hypocrite will have to face his Creator and account for his actions.

DEAR ABBY: I have some advice that might help some parents. Don't push your children through school too fast. I did, and now I'm sorry. Our oldest son graduated from high school when he was barely 17. Now he's gone away to college and his room is empty. What was our rush?

He was always a fine student and way ahead of his classmates, but I'm afraid we encouraged him to skip grades because we were so proud of him. If I could turn back the clock, I would have kept him in classes with children his own age.

I don't expect to see this in print, Abby. I guess I just needed someone to hear my heartache.

DAVID'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Perhaps you shouldn't have sent him away to college at such an early age, but please don't regret not holding him back in school.

Children who are far ahead of their classmates intellectually become bored. To have kept him in classes with children his age wouldn't have been fair to him.

Kids should be seen and not hurt.

DEAR BRUCE WILLIAMS: About a year-and-one-half ago, I ordered a large amount of furniture from a local furniture outlet.

We visited the showroom and selected the furniture we wanted for our home from samples displayed on the floor. We made a large deposit at the time of the sale and were required to pay upon delivery the balance due, which we did.

Upon examination, we found the furniture delivered was nothing like the furniture we had selected at the showroom. The quality was substandard and the furniture had been damaged in transit.

After numerous complaints to the store, the furniture was picked up and we were assured that we would be receiving a refund in due course.

Needless to tell you, no refund came. We pursued the matter in small claims court and won. Now we've found that the company has gone bankrupt. Where does that leave us? — F.P. Danville, Ill.

DEAR F.P.: I hate to be the bearer of unhappy news, but it probably leaves you holding the empty or nearly-empty bag.

You have just become a general creditor of a bankrupt corporation. I would urge you to contact the referee in bankruptcy action and get in line, but don't hold your breath anticipating that you'll recover anything other than a very tiny portion of the money you spent.

The lesson here is that you should always be certain you're dealing with before you give deposits, and always examine merchandise on delivery before you make the final payment.

DEAR BRUCE WILLIAMS: My husband and I are fortunate to have enough money put aside for the purchase of a new home. We're now in the process of applying for a mortgage for our first house. We disagree on one point and we've decided to let you arbitrate.

I believe that we should take as much of our savings as we can afford and put it down to reduce our mortgage payments. My husband says it would be better to keep that money in savings and take the largest mortgage our lender will give.

Both of our parents agree with my husband but I can't see any reason to go any deeper in debt than is absolutely necessary. What do you think? — E.L., Princeton, N.J.

DEAR E.L.: Unfortunately, it looks like we're all ganging up on you.

I agree with your husband and parents for the following reason: You should not be paying an exorbitant amount of interest because you have the funds for a relatively large down payment, and this would indicate that your income is sufficient and you are far better advised to take the longest possible mortgage for the most amount of money.

There are several reasons for this: 1) It allows you to keep your other monies in a liquid situation where, if an emergency develops, the money is available to you; 2) the strong likelihood is that as the years pass you and your husband will earn even more money with just incremental raises, not to mention moving up the executive chain, and so forth.

As you make this upward move, the government will become more and more participant in your mortgage reduction. That's a fancy way of saying that because of the additional taxes that will be assessed against your new earnings, the interest that you are paying the bank becomes less and less a factor.

Because you have the extra money doesn't mean that you should go out and spend it. The income from that extra money can be used to offset the higher mortgage payments that you will have at the outset of this endeavor. But for most young people, the best rule of thumb is to take the longest mortgage for the most money.

Good luck, and welcome to the land of the mortgage poor.

DEAR BRUCE WILLIAMS: Things are a bit slow in this part of the country and I've been offered a job 500 miles away.

Our house has been on the market for the past three months and not so much as a nibble. The house is on the market for $49,500; we owe $45,000. Frankly, I'm ready to give it back to the bank, lose my $4,000 and start again.

Is that a good idea? — B.N. Fargo, N.D.

DEAR B.N.: You've probably had a few worse ideas in your lifetime, but I'll bet you'll have to scratch to find them.

The bank is not in the property business — it's in the money-lending business. The bank doesn't want property, it wants money. If you default, even voluntarily, here is the scenario:

First, the bank will advertise the property as being in default and have a public auction. Such auctions are conducted by the sheriff or a bank officer, depending on the laws in your jurisdiction. In any case, the property will be sold, frequently at a price much less than you owe on it.

The bank itself might bid, say, $30,000. If there are no other bidders, there is a deficiency of $15,000. Of course, the bank isn't going to take that loss. It will come after you whether you are 500 miles away or 3,000 miles away.

No, don't do this. What you should do is to start aggressively selling your home. Reducing the price, if you will, to $45,000 so you just get out with a whole skin.

Seattle's Largent with another catch

Bears gain playoffs first time in 21 years

By The Associated Press
In a moment of triumph, the Bears' first title in 21 years. Coach Mike Ditka's thoughts went back to Chicago's rich football past. He remembered Papa Bear.

The year was 1963. The Chicago Bears were coached by George Halas, one of their better players was a tight end named Mike Ditka and they won the National Football League championship.

"I think that the most important thing is that this game go to the man that deserves it most, Mr. Halas," Ditka said after the Bears beat the Minnesota Vikings 34-3 Sunday to wrap up the NFC Central title with a 9-4 record.

Another division title was wrapped up Sunday as the San Francisco 49ers crushed the New Orleans Saints 35-3 to win the NFC West title.

Two other divisions remained close as the season finished its 13th week.

The Seattle Seahawks beat Denver 27-24 to create a tie in the AFC West at 11-2 and break the Broncos' 10-game winning streak.

In the NFC East, the Washington Redskins beat the Buffalo Bills 41-14 and New York Giants rallied to edge Kansas City 28-27 to tie them with Dallas at 8-5 atop the division. St. Louis, 7-6, remained one game behind with a 17-16 victory over Philadelphia.

In other games Sunday, Pittsburgh crushed San Diego 52-24, Cincinnati beat Atlanta 35-14, the Los Angeles Raiders defeated Indianapolis 21-7, the Los Angeles Rams edged Tampa Bay 34-33 and Cleveland downed Houston 27-10.

Last Thursday, Dallas beat New England 20-17 and Detroit edged Green Bay 31-28.

Tonight, the New York Jets visit Miami, which has already clinched the AFC East title.

49ers 35, Saints 3
Rookie linebacker Todd Shell had two sacks, six tackles and an interception that he returned 35 yards for a touchdown as the 49ers clinched the NFC West.

The Saints, 6-7, managed only a second-quarter field goal by Morten Andersen as New Orleans' quarterbacks were sacked seven times.

Seahawks 27, Broncos 24
Dave Krieg and Darryl Turner combined for an 80-yard touchdown on the first play of the game, but the Seahawks needed help from the Broncos to tie them for the division lead at 11-2. Denver drove to the Seahawks' 8 with 39 seconds remaining, but Rich Karlis missed a 25-yard field-goal attempt.

The teams meet again in the Kingdom on the final day of the season.

Redskins 41, Bills 14
Joe Theismann became the Redskins' all-time passing leader as he threw for 311 yards and two touchdowns. Theismann passed Sonny Jurgensen as the Redskins' passing leader as he completed 26 of 33 passes. Art Monk, who caught one of the touchdown passes, finished with 11 catches for 104 yards.

Giants 28, Chiefs 27
Phil Simms threw two touchdown passes in the final 7½ minutes to rally the Giants over the Chiefs, who lost their fourth straight game. Simms hooked up with Bobby Johnson on a 22-yard scoring play with 7:30 left and connected with tight end Zeke Mowatt on a 3-yard touchdown with 2:22 remaining.

Cardinals 17, Eagles 16
Neil O'Donoghue kicked a 44-yard field goal with eight seconds left to give the Cardinals, 7-6, the victory. Philadelphia's Paul McFadden had given the Eagles a 16-14 lead with a 32-yard field goal just two minutes earlier.

Steelers 52, Chargers 24
The Steelers maintained their two-game lead in the AFC Central and scored the most points in an NFL game this year as Mark Malone made a complete recovery from the concussion he suffered last Monday night. Malone connected with John Stallworth on three touchdowns and threw a fourth in the fourth quarter as he completed 18 of 22 attempts for 253 yards.

Lost in the Steelers' offensive show was San Diego's Charlie Joiner becoming the NFL's all-time leading career receiver. With six second-half catches for a career mark of 651, Joiner passed Washington's Charley Taylor.

Bengals 35, Falcons 14
Turk Schonert, making his second consecutive start in place of Ken Anderson, completed 11 of 12 passes in the first half as the Bengals took a 21-0 lead and never looked back. On the game's fourth play, Schonert and wide receiver Cris Collinsworth combined on a 57-yard touchdown. The loss was Atlanta's seventh straight and leaves them one shy of the club record set in 1974.

Raiders 21, Colts 7
Marc Wilson threw two touchdown passes and ran for another score as the Raiders, 9-4, kept alive their chances for the second AFC wild-card berth.

Indianapolis 4-9, did not have the ball in Los Angeles territory until the third quarter, and that was on a recovered fumble.

Cleveland improves record by ending Houston 'streak'

CLEVELAND (AP) — Perhaps the Houston Oilers figured a two-game winning streak was all they deserved. Or perhaps the Cleveland Browns really aren't as bad as their record.

Whatever the reason, the Browns, behind three touchdown passes by Paul McDonald, coasted past the Oilers 27-10 in a National Football League game Sunday to end Houston's modest streak and improve new Browns' Coach Marty Schottenheimer's record to 3-2.

"It just doesn't seem like we came mentally ready to play," said Houston quarterback Warren Moon, who was intercepted twice after throwing 86 straight passes without an interception. "I don't know why."

The Browns, 4-9, capitalized on both the second-quarter interceptions in taking a 20-7 halftime lead.

McDonald hit rookie Brian Brennan with a 14-yard touchdown pass to put Cleveland ahead 7-0 in the first quarter. Five minutes later, Oilers' safety Keith Bostic blitzed, grabbed the ball from McDonald and ran 25 yards for Houston's only touchdown.

Bostic said he considered plowing into McDonald, but thought better of it.

"I was blitzing and I was wide open. I just took the ball from him," Bostic said.

Cleveland's Matt Bahr, however, capped a 16-play drive with an 18-yard field goal that put the Browns ahead for good 10-7 four minutes into the second period.

Moon then suffered bad fortune on each of the Oilers' next two possessions.

Browns' defensive end Keith

Baldwin deflected a pass to teammate Hanford Dixon in Oiler territory to set up McDonald's 12-yard touchdown pass to Ozzie Newsome, and linebacker Tom Cousineau tipped a pass to teammate Al Gross, who returned it 47 yards to set up Bahr's second field goal, a 29-yarder.

"They were just tipped. I didn't see the guys," Moon said. "They were quick, rhythm throws. Those two balls really hurt us."

After a scoreless third quarter, Joe Cooper connected on a 39-yard field goal to pull Houston within 20-10, but McDonald came back to clinch it with his second scoring pass to Brennan, a 7-yarder with 4:20 to go.

McDonald finished with 16 completions in 26 attempts for 151 yards and three touchdowns, with one interception. Ozzie Newsome, who led the AFC in receiving entering the game, caught 10 passes for 102 yards and moved into fifth place among tight ends on the NFL's career receiving yardage list.

"If you take the entire game, it was probably my best all-around game," McDonald said.

"He threw the ball well," Schottenheimer said. "He's realizing he doesn't have to be Superman for us to win games, because we're finding out we've got some guys who can run the ball and catch the ball."

Moon, who had completed more than 70 percent of his passes in the Oilers' previous two games, was nine of 20 for 84 yards Sunday.

He was also sacked four times — including three times by Reggie Camp — as the Browns limited Houston, 2-11, to just 147 total yards.

Houston favored to host Cotton Bowl

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Two weeks ago not even the Independence Bowl wanted the University of Houston.

Now, the resilient Cougars are odds-on favorites to be the host team in the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day as the host team representing the Southwest Conference.

Houston can clinch the host spot in the Cotton Bowl against Boston College with a victory over the Rice Owls Saturday night.

However, if the Cougars lose then look out.

Should Houston go down, Texas could claim the Cotton by defeating Texas A&M in Austin Saturday night. Should BOTH Houston and Texas lose, then Southern Methodist would have to say aloha to the Aloha Bowl and take the Cotton Bowl bid reserved for the SWC champion.

The SWC football follies on Saturday included Texas succumbing 24-10 to Baylor in Waco and the cinderella Horned Frogs turning into a midnight pumpkin with a 35-21 loss to the Texas Aggies.

SMU clinched at least an SWC co-championship with a 31-28 victory over Arkansas while Houston sets itself up for the Cotton Bowl by defeating Texas Tech 24-17 in Lubbock.

Skins win breaks Nicklaus reserve

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — It was an unusual scene: Jack Nicklaus flipping his putter in the air in an uncharacteristic display of emotion, then whooping and yelping around the green like a small boy.

He had just drilled in an 8-foot birdie putt on the final hole of the Skins Game Sunday that was worth $240,000 and climaxed the two-day match with Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Tom Watson.

Some 35 percent of the country was unable to see it, however. At least on a live basis.

In California, the Mountain Time Zone, portions of the Southeast and an area around Indianapolis, an NBC spokesman said, the network cut away from the made-for-television competition.

Player, Palmer and Watson all had birdie opportunities from 12-18 feet — and all missed — on the 18th hole before Nicklaus sent home the winner and tossed his putter in jubilation, something he said he hadn't done since winning the 1970 British Open.

"I wanted the putter out of my hand and the ball in it," said Nicklaus.

"I was just happy to be here, to be able to play," Nicklaus said, a reference to orthoscopic surgery which was performed on his left knee less than three weeks ago.

The surgery made it impossible for him to squat down to line up putts. But the 44-year-old Golden Bear converted three clutch putts as the first eight holes of the day were halved and the purse kept building and building, growing and growing until all the money — almost one-quarter million dollars — was riding on the par-5 18th hole at the Nicklaus-designed Desert Highlands course.

"After we got past the 17th, it was obvious that at least two of us were going to be shut out," Nicklaus said. "No one wants to be embarrassed."

"So, at that point, it became a matter of pride as much as anything else."

Watson shut out his three Hall of Fame opponents over the first nine holes Saturday, winning all $120,000 available, including $70,000 on the last hole.

Then the first eight holes Sunday were halved, with the prize money mounting on each hole.

Palmer, who drove into a fairway bunker, Nicklaus and Player were unable to reach the 18th in 2. Watson, with the best drive, got it pin-high but well off the green to the right. Palmer, Player and Nicklaus all pitched on and Watson, facing a delicate little chip, saw it take an awkward kick from the fringe and run well beyond the cup.

Three putts missed before Jack made the one that provided him with the biggest payday of his legendary career.

A busy season is underway

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — This is the Christmas selling and buying season, according to the business calendar, a time of year when many merchants do 25 percent or more of their volume.

It is a crowded season, a busy calendar. It is the season for taking income tax losses while it's still possible. And if you work on Wall Street or anywhere near the money, it might be Christmas bonus time too.

Time seems to speed up at this time of year. Swiftly, you'll find yourself in the midst of the post-Christmas clearance sales, when toys, cards, decorations and the like go on sale. Simultaneously, it is "white sales" season.

The business calendar runs right through the year, and for those who stick strictly to business, it erases any other "time of the year," including holidays, holy days, and historic days, and even days of the week. Sunday is now a shopping day, and barbers seldom close on Wednesdays anymore.

It is becoming more like that too. The New York Stock Exchange remained open on Election Day for the first time. Labor Day and Washington's Birthday are big retail sale days. And Valentine's Day isn't really for lovers so much as for candymakers.

The business calendar sort of works this way:

January is the season for getting the books straightened out in anticipation of the annual report season, which exists side-by-side with the tax season, close on spring.

Before spring, however, there comes the convention season, when all sorts of business seminars are provided at elegant resorts.

Automobile promotion season manages to squeeze in around this time and a somewhat smaller season in which housing sales rise oddly in some areas, perhaps because the real estate people are so hard up.

Just as the tax season is ending, generally about April 15, there comes the annual meeting season, when the boss orates to the stockholders about their mutual success or failure.

As that season wanes in May the summer vacation season begins heating up, and that means spring promotion time — and Christmas gift buying time — for the department stores and other places that take your money.

It is also time for graduations and marriages, which means warmth and pride for family-oriented folks. It is a time of great expectations too, especially for those who live by the business calendar. It means sales.

If Wall Street is having a good year, it soon may be the yachting season for many folks, but deep summer generally remains a time when the business calendar is often blank. It is America's siesta season.

Surviving quint is critical

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Four infants born 14 weeks prematurely remain in critical condition at Lackland Air Force Base hospital, a spokesman said. A fifth infant died about six hours after birth.

Their mother, a 30-year-old Greek woman who had taken fertility drugs, was "resting and recovering," Stanley Bass, a spokesman at the Wilford Hall U.S. Air Force Medical Center, said Sunday.

The two boys and three girls born Friday night are believed to be the first quintuplets born at the base hospital in 25 years.

One of the boys died six hours after the birth because of small size and prematurity, hospital officials said.

Bass said a ventilator was being used on the four infants, who were born by Caesarean section, "to improve severe lung problems resulting from their extreme premature birth."

The mother, Kyra Afentakis, who had taken a fertility drug, was a patient at the hospital two weeks before the birth, officials said. She is from Volos, 200 miles north of Athens, and her husband, Lt. Col. Dimitrios Afentakis of the Greek air force, is from Kalamata, 200 miles south of Athens.

At birth, the quintuplets ranged in weight from 1 pound, 3 ounces to 1 pound, 10 ounces and were 14 weeks premature, said Sgt. Karl Grulhkey, a spokesman for the hospital.

Problems face Reagan's new term

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is facing some big problems as he sets a second-term course for a Cabinet agency that provided some of the most unlikely successes of his first four years — the Education Department.

The unbidden resignation of Education Secretary T.H. Bell has set off a succession scramble among conservatives who chafed at Bell's leadership and who feel it is high time to put that post in the hands of a true Reaganite.

Regardless of who gets the job, Washington's powerful education lobby is girding for a fight over what the lobbyists say are inevitable Reagan efforts to seek billion-dollar budgets cuts in student aid.

William Clohan, a former undersecretary of education, predicted, "I think 1985 is going to be just like 1981" when Reagan tried to push through major reductions in education spending.

Congress went along with some of the first cuts as part of Reagan's overall tax- and budget-reduction plan in 1981, but even conservative Republicans rebelled in 1982 when the president came back with a plan to pare the education budget by a third to less than $10 billion.

Bell, trying to fulfill Reagan's promise to abolish the Education Department, proposed downgrading it in 1982 to a non-regulatory foundation, with most programs intact. But that scheme died with barely a whimper.

An AP News Analysis

Reagan had no success in pressing other conservative education proposals, including tax breaks for private schools and prayer in public ones.

But Reagan got better results after Bell's National Commission on Excellence in Education sounded the alarm about mediocrity in U.S. schools in 1983.

Suddenly, the president, who had not set foot in a public school during his first two years in office, was at the head of the school reform bandwagon. To the dismay of Democrats who had planned to blister

Report: Americans drinking more alcohol than milk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are drinking more alcoholic beverages than they are milk, but soft drinks are the most popular of all, says a new Agriculture Department report.

Overall, per capita consumption of "commercially produced beverages" rose to an average of 133 gallons in 1982 from 114 gallons consumed 20 years earlier. That includes milk, coffee, tea, beer, wine and liquors, soft drinks and fruit juices.

Milk accounted for 20.3 percent of the total drinks consumed in 1982. Beer made up 18.3 percent, while wine and liquors accounted for 3.1 percent. The 1962 consumption included: milk, 29 percent; beer, 13.2 percent; and wine and liquors, 2 percent.

In other words, using those figures, Americans on the average drank about 27 gallons of milk in 1982, compared with slightly more than 33 gallons in 1962.

Meanwhile, beer consumption rose to 24.3 gallons in 1982 from about 15 gallons 20 years earlier. Wine and liquor consumption increased from about 2.3 gallons in 1962 to 4.1 gallons.

Thus, alcoholic beverages in 1982 comprised about 28.4 gallons, compared with 27 gallons of milk. In 1972, the ratio was 17.3 gallons of beer, wine and liquor to 33 gallons of milk.

Over the 20-year period, soft drinks showed the most spectacular changes in consumption patterns. In 1982, those accounted for 29.7 percent of the beverages consumed — about 39.5 gallons — compared with 14.1 percent or 16 gallons in 1962.

"Meanwhile, coffee plummeted from a first-place share of 33.4 percent of the total in 1962 to fourth, at 18.3 percent, 20 years later," the report said. "These shifts in consumption patterns, in turn, have affected calorie intake."

In 1982, soft drinks, beer, wine and liquor accounted for almost 10 percent of all the calories consumed by the average American, compared with 5 percent in 1962.

"These beverages added about 343 calories a day to per capita calorie availability in 1982, almost double the 175 calories 20 years earlier," the report said.

Milk consumption may continue to lose ground in the next decade as the 1945-60 "baby boom" generation gets older.

The fate of 466 Mexican citizens remains a mystery

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — They are called "desaparecidos," Mexican citizens who have vanished without a trace after encounters with Mexican authorities between May 1969 and August 1983.

Now the families of 466 of those Mexican citizens say they are pressing Mexico's government to account for their missing loved ones.

Amnesty International, the London-based human rights group, issued a report last month saying its "main concerns" in Mexico "were the arbitrary arrest and prolonged detention of political detainees, convictions based on confessions reportedly obtained as a result of torture and ill-treatment and continued reports of 'disappearances.'"

Much of the responsibility for the disappearance in Mexico has been laid at the door of a secretive paramilitary group known as La Brigada Blanca, which Amnesty International said was composed of members of various police forces.

Pressing the issue in Mexico is a group known as the National Committee for the Defense of Prisoners, the Persecuted, Disappeared Persons and Political Exiles.

The group's leader, Rosario Ibarra de Piedra, who was the female candidate for president of Mexico in 1982, said her son, Jesus Piedra Ybarra, was abducted by security forces nine years ago.

In September, Ms. de Piedra and a number of allies staged a 23-day hunger strike in Mexico City to draw attention to the missing. They have asked President Miguel de la Madrid for a meeting, but the president has made no commitment.

"The government of Mexico is very hypocritical," Ms. de Piedra said. "On the one hand, they criticize the governments of Chile, of Guatemala... but in reality, they commit the same violations of human rights as in those countries."

The government's official position, according to Amnesty

International, has been that many of the missing died in clashes between leftist factions.

"There are no political prisoners or people missing for political reasons in Mexico," said Alberto Blanco, information director for the Ministry of Gobernacion, which manages the nation's internal affairs. "No one has ever proved the existence of political prisoners or 'disappeared' in Mexico... It's all rumors — rumors are bad."

But committee members say their activism during the past five years has contributed to the release of as many as 100 prisoners who were accounted for. They believe the majority of the missing are still alive in jails. For the dead prisoners, they want to be shown the burial grounds and exhumed bodies so doctors can determine how they died.

"We plan to keep on fighting until they give us answers," Ms. de Piedra said. "We're never going to rest. The only way we'll stop our fight is if they give us back the disappeared."

Claims victory in Uruguay

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Julio Sanguinetti, a centrist candidate for president, claimed victory Monday in elections to replace an 11-year-old military regime and restore a long tradition of democracy.

As Sanguinetti, of the Colorado party, was giving his victory speech, a chief challenger, Alberto Zumaran of the National Party, another moderate group, made a surprise appearance to concede defeat in Sunday's election.

In official returns from 2,560 of the country's 7,873 polling places, Sanguinetti's party captured 237,753 votes, or 39.6 percent.

The National Party had 208,492 votes, or 34.7 percent. The Broad Front, a coalition of leftist parties running Juan Crotogini as its presidential candidate, had 98,880 votes, or 16.5 percent. The rest of the vote was split among smaller parties.

blaring and party banners streaming from windows and bumpers as the people toasted the revival of their once-proud democratic tradition.

Pedestrians waved pennants and gathered to chant party slogans in the warm spring night here in the southern hemisphere. One chant went: "How it makes me laugh, that the dictatorship is about to end."

Cabinet candidate says college grads lack humanities knowledge

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leading candidate to succeed T.H. Bell as secretary of education says in a new report that colleges run the risk of becoming "little more than an educational garage sale" by churning out graduates who lack "even the most rudimentary knowledge" of the humanities.

William J. Bennett, chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities, laid the blame partially on educators, saying the "decline in learning in the humanities was caused in part by a failure of nerve and faith on the part of many college faculties and administrators."

In a report released Sunday and crafted with the advice of prominent scholars and college leaders, Bennett called on colleges to "reshape their undergraduate curricula based on a clear vision of what constitutes an educated person, regardless of major."

He said the academic community must place "study of the humanities and Western civilization... at the heart of the college curriculum."

By their "indifference and intellectual diffidence," too many educators have abdicated "the great task of transmitting a culture to its rightful heirs," Bennett said.

He cited these statistics:

- The number of majors in English has dropped by 57 percent since 1970, in philosophy by 41 percent, in history by 62 percent and in modern languages by 50 percent.

—A third of all colleges required some foreign language study for admission in 1966, but only 14 percent in 1983. And less than half now require foreign language study during college, down from nearly 90 percent in 1966.

—Students can graduate from 75 percent of U.S. colleges and universities without studying European history; from 72 percent without studying American literature or history, and from 86 percent without studying ancient Greek or Roman civilization.

Bennett, a former philosophy professor, is considered a leading candidate to succeed T.H. Bell as secretary of education. He has strong support from conservative activists who were hostile to Bell.

Bennett's study, "To Reclaim A Legacy," did not suggest any federal role in trying to solve the problem.

The report echoed charges recently leveled at the quality of undergraduate education and the state of the liberal arts by a panel set up by Bell's National Institute of Education.

"Too many students are graduating from American colleges and universities lacking even the most rudimentary knowledge about the history, literature, art and philosophical foundations of their nation and their civilization," Bennett said in his 42-page paper.

The report singled out a few collegiate "bright spots" with sound common curricula: Brooklyn College in New York; St. Joseph's College in Rensselaer, Ind.; and Kirkwood Community College in Iowa.

Highway accidents kill more than 360

CHICAGO (AP) — More than 360 people died in accidents on the nation's roads and highways during the long 1984 Thanksgiving holiday weekend, authorities reported.

The death toll at 6 a.m. EST Monday stood at 366.

California, with 33 deaths, Texas, with 30, and Florida, with 28, led the nation in holiday traffic deaths.

The National Safety Council had predicted last week that highway accidents during the weekend could claim between 400 and 500 lives. Council statisticians said 480 people could be expected to die in traffic during a non-holiday period of the same duration at this time of the year.

The holiday began at 6 p.m. local time Wednesday and ended at midnight Sunday.

Last year, 400 people were killed in traffic accidents over the Thanksgiving holiday. The worst such observance was in 1968 when 764 were killed.

Information about your changing telephone service from Fred Epperly, Network Services Supervisor

Serving you and the community

What do you think about when you think of Southwestern Bell Telephone?

A company that provides telecommunications? "The telephone company?" A company that connects you across town and is your connecting link to towns across the world?

We're all those things, but we're more.

As I look around the state, I see we're a company that's committed to, and involved in, the communities we serve. Our children go to the same schools. We attend the same churches. We shop at the same stores. So just like you, we have a stake in our community.

We're volunteers in 2,200 Texas organizations

How are we helping Texas communities?

Our employees are volunteers. They are active in literally hundreds of organizations. It's a diverse group, too: American Business Women's Association, Soroptimists, United Way (and its affiliated agencies), American Diabetes Association, Rotarians, Jaycees, neighborhood Crime Watch groups, local Food Banks, among others.

Thousands of employees are also active in our own service organizations — Telephone Pioneers of America and local Community Relations ("CR") Teams. These two groups are involved in hundreds of community service projects in Texas each year, like Special Olympics, hospice programs and Lighthouse for the Blind, to name just a few.

Our employees are also very active in many organizations for the advancement of minorities, like the National Urban League, NAACP, LULAC, Texas Association of Mexican-American Chambers of Commerce and many others.

Giving more than our time to good causes

We also make many donations to support key public and private facilities in many Texas communities, like a hospital expansion fund. However, we give only when there's a proven need for the company to contribute. For example, a hospital expansion benefits the entire community.

Our 35,000 employees in Texas give much more than their time. Over the last 12 months, they donated 6,564 pints of blood to local blood banks (that's about 821 gallons), gave more than $4 million to the United Way, made 2,315 talks about changes in our industry to clubs and organizations and donated more than $327,000 to colleges and universities.

Texas heroes: The true spirit of service

The spirit of giving goes even further. Several have risked their lives to save another. These Texas heroes include folks like Waco employee Ken Tucker who administered first aid to a woman after she had suffered a near-fatal motorcycle accident and McAllen employee Rey Soto who saved a woman from drowning in the Rio Grande.

As you can see, Southwestern Bell Telephone's "spirit of service" goes beyond our top priority of providing you with quality telephone service. It's also being actively involved in our communities, helping our neighbors and friends and doing our best to make Texas an even better place to live.

That's the true spirit of our Texas service.

As of November 1, 1984 in most cases, Southwestern Bell Telephone is no longer billing you for your charges for leased equipment from AT&T Information Systems. AT&T is now sending you a separate bill and you should return your payment directly to AT&T.

If you use AT&T long distance (AT&T Communications), you'll still get a bill from us for at least two more years. AT&T Communications signed a contract for us to provide customer billing for them for three years, ending on December 31, 1986.
