BUILT IN 1886

Little Red Schoolhouse Holds Lots Of Memories

By BEN KECK
News Staff Writer

WHEELER — Indians were raiding apple orchards along the banks of Sweetwater Creek when the red, rock schoolhouse was built in 1886.

It was the second school for the county, the first being in Mobeetie, and its students lived nearby in dug-out type shelters on the banks of the creek.

Today the school still stands, nine miles east of Wheeler, on the Tom Britt ranch.

All of Britt's children went to school at the one room structure and today, Britt keeps up maintenance on the place.

Britt said things had settled down by the time he moved to the area from Childress County in 1913.

The Indians were no longer organizing raiding parties, families had moved from the dug-outs, there was more of a peaceful existence than there had been in the last century.

But through all the change, the modernization that came within the first three decades of this century, the red, rock schoolhouse survived.

Today it stands, on Britt's ranch, a state historical medallion set in its walls, collecting dust on the inside and being taken care of by Britt on the outside.

The door is broken, but Britt said he had one ordered. The inside smells of dust and decaying paper, but the smell is not sickening. It is a smell of the historic, the prominence which the past is given in the minds of Wheeler residents.

The school closed in 1935. The county school district had consolidated with the school in Kelton and the red, rock schoolhouse was no longer needed.

There are some papers in the desk that seems to sit with authority at the front of the large room.

The papers consist of themes and math tests, spelling exercises and records of the school. The papers were written in the later years of the school's activity. One theme was found to be entitled "The Best Time I Ever Had."

"One day in July I went to the rodeo and got drunk," the student wrote.

It wasn't the writing of the average student of the day, Britt assures anyone who might see the theme.

"Unfortunately," he said, "the fellow turned out to be that way."

During the last five years of the school's active days, budgets were simple. The 1930-31 budget listed the teacher's salary at $894 for the nine month school year.

At one time the school taught all 12 grades. In later years only the elementary grades were taught.

The one room structure served as a community center for the rural community. Dances and banquets were held there. Meetings of organizations and meetings to organize organizations were held at the school.

The red rock was quarried from the surrounding hills. Stone masons built the school to last.

And it has lasted. It lasted for nearly 50 years as an educational institution.

Today it stands, catering only to dust and field mice and the care of Tom Britt. It stands not as an old schoolhouse that was made a relic of history, rather, it stands as a monument to the pioneer determination of Wheeler County.

DESPITE ODDBALLS

Boy Staters To Stay At U Of T

BORGER, Tex. (UPI) — The state athletic director of the 1970 American Legion Boys State program has promised Boys State will continue to meet at the University of Texas at Austin despite radical infiltrations and sexual intercourse on the university campus.

"The University of Texas has always bent over backwards to furnish us all the meeting and sports facilities we need," E.B. Hanna said Tuesday. "But I think we are going to have to stop using the Student Union building because that belongs to the students and it is difficult to keep the troublemakers out."

"But we are going to stay at the University of Texas," he said. "These oddballs aren't going to run us off."

Hanna said the recent Boys State program was troubled by "oddballs" and "troublemakers" and "Yippies" and "radicals" during the program which is intended to teach high school boys principles of government.

"It was the worst situation we have ever had," Hanna said.

"They tried to infiltrate the Boys State program because in this program we have the top high school students of the state."

"The Yippies are out to destroy everything America stands for," he said.

"It's a shame that we have to have the interference of 14 radical type elements on the university campus at a program such as Boys State," Hanna said. "They tried to infiltrate our dormitories and our chow lines and our governor's ball."

Hanna said the most brazen incident occurred while a group of boys, marching to an 8:15 p.m. meeting, were exposed to a public act of sexual intercourse on the campus mall.

"When the boys marched by, a Yippie couple, lying under a blanket on the mall, threw back the blanket and were having sexual intercourse," he said.

Hanna is the assistant principal at Borger High School and commander of Borger Legion Post 412. The Legion's Boys State program originated at Borger. Under the program, the boys meet for a week every year in Austin. They divide into 18 "cites," from two political parties and elect state officers. This year's meeting was held from June 6-13.

Hanna said various campus groups "passed out lewd literature" to the Boys State participants. He said much of the literature came from the Austin underground newspaper, "The Rag."

"It contains pictures of naked women and men and is all about sex," he said.

Hanna said The Daily Texan, the student newspaper at the university, denounced the Boys State program.

He also said some of the radicals who harassed the boys "are assistant professors. But most of the leaders of these radical groups are not even enrolled in the university. They have been kicked out. I think it is a shame we have to put up with this on the campus."

"Why do they let these oddballs stay on campus when they aren't even enrolled? A lot of these radicals are enrolled in only three-hour courses and call themselves students."

IT'S NOT RAINDROPS

That Tinkling Sound's City's Cash Registers

By TEX DEWESE
News Staff Writer

Cash registers in the City Water Department are ringing merrily these hot days as daily water consumption keeps reaching out for a new record all-time high.

Residential and commercial waterusers came within about a million gallons short of breaking that record yesterday. City Hall figures show the all-time high consumption of water in Pampa was 8,270,950 gallons on July 25, 1963. Yesterday's figure was 7,250,000 gallons.

For April, May and June of this year, the city has raked in $147,300 in water sales. For the same period last year the total was $135,000.

B.M. Wofford, city utilities director, attributed the heavy water consumption to the hot weather and far below normal rainfall in the Pampa area.

Darrell Seaborn, in charge of the U.S. Weather Bureau substation here, said today Pampa has had only 4.81 inches of precipitation since Jan. 1, which is about five and one-half inches below the normal of 10.13 inches for the area. Last year at this time Pampa had received 11.12 inches of moisture.

Wofford stated he believed the reason Pampa had not already broken the all-time record for water consumption this year, was because "a lot of people have just given up on trying to keep their lawns green."

MATHIS, Tex. (UPI) — U.S. Rep. George Bush, R-Tex., has joined those seeking an FBI investigation of the death of Dr. Fred Logan Jr. shot last weekend by a San Patricio County deputy sheriff.

Bush said Tuesday he asked the civil rights division of the Justice Department for "a full and fair FBI investigation of the events leading to and including Dr. Logan's death."

Deputy Eric Brauch said he killed Logan because Logan resisted arrest and attacked him when Brauch answered a disturbance call.

The utilities director also stated that part of the water consumption figures could be attributed to the city which has been using approximately 1-million gallons a day in its automatic sprinkler systems in public parks.

The city has 14 water wells and three pumping stations to keep the water supply up to needs of its 8,311 customers. Three elevated tanks plus ground storage facilities, Wofford stated, keep about 5,000,000 gallons of water in reserve at all times.

And just to show how much water is being used in Pampa for watering lawns and many other purposes, both residential and commercial, the pumping stations turned 92,309,000 gallons into the city distribution system mains during the first two weeks of July.

If these figures cause worry about that next water bill, the weatherman says there is a 20 per cent chance of scattered showers tonight.

States Given Deadline To Approve 18-Year-Old Vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General John N. Mitchell has told the state they have three weeks to assure the government they will give 18-year-olds the vote. Those not doing so, he said, will face federal lawsuits.

Such lawsuits would give the government a court test of the new lower voting age law, which President Nixon signed while expressing doubts about its constitutionality.

Mitchell, at a news conference Tuesday, also told the states they will face legal action if they fail to signify before the same three-week period expires — Aug. 3 — their plans to suspend literacy or "good character" requirements for voters.

He said a court test on either matter could come before Aug. 3.

The 1970 Voting Rights Act amendments giving 18-year-olds the vote do not specify when persons between 18 and 21 must be permitted to register. Mitchell said states also must change their procedures to permit registration in time for voting "in any election" held in 1971.

The 18-year-old voting provision takes effect Jan. 1, 1971 and could put an estimated 11 million new voters on the rolls for the 1972 presidential elections.

The literacy test ban and the removal of residency requirements in presidential elections took effect when Nixon signed the bill last month.

Lach Trial Taken To Ft. Worth Court

FORT WORTH (UPI) — Benjamin Lach, 26, has been transferred from Lubbock to Fort Worth for a pretrial hearing today in connection with the murder and attempted decapitation of a Texas Tech University cleaning woman.

District Attorney Blair Cherry Jr. of Lubbock said the pretrial hearing before Federal Judge Leo Brewster will dispose of objections to various kinds of evidence in the case and thus save time when Lach goes on trial. The hearing was expected to last two days.

Voting Took Less Than Half Minute

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Parliament today confirmed both Alexi N. Kosygin and Nikolai Podgorny in the troika leadership by unanimously reelecting them to their posts of premier and president, respectively.

Both men were nominated by the senior member of the troika — party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev — and the 1,517 members of the Supreme Court.

Parliament accepted the nominations with a unanimous show of hands. The senior member of the "troika" — party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev — nominated Kosygin to succeed himself and the 1,517 members of the supreme soviet parliament accepted the nomination with a unanimous show of hands.

The voting took less than half a minute. Brezhnev made the nomination in his capacity as a deputy to the supreme soviet, which took up the Kosygin nomination as its first order of business in a joint session that began at 10 a.m.

The nomination ended any speculation that Kosygin was on his way out. His imminent removal from the leadership had been predicted in widespread reports in the West.

Technically, Kosygin's mandate as head of government and partner in the three-man Kremlin leadership group expired June 14, the day of the parliamentary elections, and he has been merely a caretaker premier since then.

In accordance with the Soviet constitution, parliament convened for the first time Tuesday and approved an agenda that included the election of new government, a new leadership group (presidium) for itself and other items of business for today.

The third member of the so-called troika leadership, President Nikolai V. Podgorny, also figured in today's round of ceremonial votes.

His title as "president" is Westernized short-form for chairman of the presidium of the supreme soviet, the 27-member executive group also elected anew on today's agenda.

Cambodian Invasion Upped Reds' Prestige

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. incursion into Cambodia, according to Secretary of State William P. Rogers, has allowed Mainland China to increase its influence in North Vietnam.

And that influence in Hanoi, Rogers said, still plays a large role in determining the course the Vietnam War.

Rogers said he was doubtful China and North Vietnam would, at this time, seek a negotiated solution to the conflict. While hostilities might diminish, he added, the long-term result could be a state of "no peace and no war."

Rogers' views emerged from his 11-day Asian tour which ended Sunday. They were aired in an interview with Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. correspondent James Anderson carried Monday and Tuesday.

On the China situation Rogers said: "We don't know much about Communist China. We do know they have increased their influence with Hanoi as a result of the Cambodian incursion. We think Soviet influence has decreased at the expense of Communist China."

"Whether the Communist Chinese have any reason to bring an end to the war we don't know. We rather doubt it. We think it serves their purposes to have the war continue. In effect, they use Hanoi as their instrumentality for causing trouble. We don't expect the Communist Chinese will get directly involved, but one never knows for sure."

State Department aides said further analysis have concluded Peking's influence has grown in North Vietnam on the basis of various indicators including propaganda statements, visits of Communist officials and other unspecified intelligence. The aides said the assessment of China's influence in Hanoi was more a judgment than a definitely probable fact.

As for the fighting, Rogers said the United States was no closer to a conventional end of the war than it was a year ago, although he thought it possible the level of combat would decline and U.S. casualties would continue to decrease.

Bearded Man Has Eating Problem

SALINAS, Calif. (UPI)—A hold-FBI agents and sheriff's officers that Schlosser had picked them up as they hitchhiked near Big Timber, Mont. Baker also told them he had eaten Schlosser's heart after shooting him to death, officer added.

Stroup refused to talk and patrolmen said Baker tried to clear him of involvement by admitting that he had fired the fatal shot.

At Park County, Mont., Sheriff Don Guintoni said Tuesday night a site had been found where he believed Schlosser had been killed.

The site, four miles north of Gardiner, was about a mile from where a dismembered body was found Saturday.

Positive identification has been hampered by a lack of fingerprints.

Guintoni said a military-type knife with a six-inch blade was found at the scene in addition to dried blood, teeth, particles of flesh and bone fragments.

Skeptics Suprised By My Lai Report

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Four "hawkish" congressional investigators have surprised skeptics on all sides by reporting that U.S. soldiers "deliberately" shot down innocent civilians in the South Vietnamese hamlet of My Lai.

Furthermore, the special House armed services subcommittee said, Army and State Department officers in South Vietnam suppressed a stream of reports they received about the alleged "massacre." The lawmakers however refrained from a blanket condemnation of what took place when "C" Company swept through the village on March 16, 1968.

"At this late date," said the subcommittee at the end of its 53-page report Tuesday, "who can judge the cumulative effects of the horrors, fears and frustrations which the men of 'C' Company had been forced to endure just prior to their action at My Lai on March 16, of that year."

The panel said what happened was obviously wrong, and that it violated the Geneva Conventions, the rules of engagement and directives from the highest Allied commands in Vietnam on the treatment of civilians. It said "some" innocent civilians were "deliberately killed" by American troops.

"In fact it was so wrong and so foreign to the normal character and actions of our military forces as to immediately raise a question as to the legal sanity at the time of those men involved," the panel concluded.

The subcommittee was formed and assigned its task by committee Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C. Rivers has complained bitterly since the Pentagon began seriously investigating the My Lai allegations and charging servicemen with crimes. He has accused the Army of persecuting American fighting men who were just trying to do their job. But today Rivers said of the subcommittee report which speaks of "a tragedy of major proportions":

"I agree with everything in the report. They've done a masterful job."

On the other side of the fence were those Vietnam doves and others who privately scoffed at the notion the subcommittee would produce the objective report promised by its chairman. They noted that all four members were dedicated supporters of the U.S. effort in Vietnam and generally pro-military.

Today some of them conceded the subcommittee report carried some surprises.

Although the panel declared American troops shot down innocent civilians, it emphasized that "a relatively few" men were responsible and these troops may have acted under extreme combat pressures. It cautioned against passing judgment on battlefield decisions from the "quiet comfort and safety of the Pentagon, or a courtroom."

The subcommittee included Reps. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., chairman; Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y.; Charles S. Gubser, R-Calif., and William L. Dickinson, R-Ala.

The subcommittee said it could not find "a shred of evidence" that a formal investigation of many allegations that abounded was conducted by anyone in the American Division as claimed by its then commander, Gen. Samuel Koster and Lt. Col. Oran Henderson, commanding officer of the division's 11th Brigade.

Phone Company Sued For Giving Wrong Number
NEW YORK (UPI)—The telephone company gave multi-millionaire Huntington Hartford a wrong number and it could cost them $2 million if the damage suit of the heir to the A&P food chain fortune is successful.

In a claim filed in Manhattan Supreme Court Tuesday, Hartford said the 1970-71 directory published by the New York Telephone Company had misprinted the telephone number of his culture and show business periodical, Show Magazine.

Hartford said that $2 million was the amount of money his publication lost as a result of the error.

Investors Wait For Inspiring News In Market
NEW YORK (UPI)—Investors sat on their hands awaiting inspiring news Tuesday as most prices edged lower during a dullish session on the New York Stock Exchange.

The 7,360,000 shares traded was the lightest turnover since June 15 when 6,926,000 shares changed hands.

The Dow Jones industrial dipping as low as 2.12 early in the session. The UPI market indicator, measuring all stocks traded, fell 0.35 per cent while the New York Stock Exchange average common share price trickled downward 4 cents.

Of the 1,553 issues crossing the tape, declines topped advances by 704 to 543. There were 59 new lows and three new highs.

The slow session indicated many investors were sitting on the sidelines for some inspiring news or for a clearer pattern on second quarter corporate earnings which began appearing last week.

Extinguishers Recovered For Wilson School

Police Tuesday reported the recovery of four of the seven fire extinguishers taken in the Sunday night burglary of Woodrow Wilson School, 801 E. Browning St.

Officers said the fire extinguishers were found by a city sanitation crew in an alley near the 400 block of Wynne Street about 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Fire-Ruined Store Still Smouldering

Firemen this morning were still on duty at the sight of United Feed Store, 625 S. West St., as the ruins of the store continued to smolder.

Officials at the fire department said the smoldering was caused by feed burning under the debris left by a $200,000 fire Tuesday morning.

Firemen have not been able to get water to penetrate the ruins, and are standing by at the scene to assure another blaze does not start.

The greatest hazard should another blaze begin is three fuel storage tanks containing a highly flammable substance less than 100 feet from the smoldering ruins.

OVERCHARGE CITED

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A congressional watchdog agency claims defense and space contractors overcharged the government more than $33 million in the 12 months ended June 30.

The renegotiation board said its findings for fiscal 1970 were 50 per cent more than the excessive profits it had discovered during the previous fiscal year and was the largest amount determined since 1960.

Occupants Hurt In Car Wrecks

A Lefors man, Larry Wayne Smith, 25, was reported in fair condition at Worley Hospital following a one-car accident about 3:30 a.m. today two miles south of Lefors.

According to Highway Patrolmen investigating the accident, Smith received facial lacerations when his car went out of control, off the road and rolled several times.

Damages were estimated at $700 to the car.

Highway Patrolmen also investigated a one-car accident near Cuyler Lake, one mile west of White Deer on U.S. Highway 60, at 8:10 p.m. Tuesday.

Officers said the car, driven by Martha Ann Huffman, 18, of Gladewater, went off the highway and hit a pole.

Miss Huffman and her passenger, Leslie H. Sullivan, 16, 2104 Lynn St., were taken to Highland General Hospital, treated for minor lacerations and bruises, and released.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—It may be midsummer, but it's a lively week for network television programming.

Last night, for instance, there's the annual major league All-Star baseball game at the new stadium of the Cincinnati Reds, with NBC-TV carrying the broadcast live at 8 p.m. EDT.

And later, CBS-TV had a one-hour documentary, "The World of Charlie Company," which looks at the day-to-day life of American combat soldiers in the Vietnam War.

Wednesday morning, NBC-TV's "Today" series introduced a new feature—a regular segment of "live interviews with newsmakers from Chicago and the Midwest."

Originates Week of Broadcasts
"Today" recently originated a full week of broadcasts from environs. And, of the new segments, "Today" producer Stuart Schulbert says:

"This feature will enable 'Today' to extend its live interviewing capability into the heart of the Midwest."

And, of course, this means there will be more opportunity to hear from grassroots sources—or, if you will, the so-called "silent majority" and some of its firsthand observers.

On Thursday, Chet Huntley offers his final documentary before leaving NBC Aug. 1. It is called "Migrant—an NBC White Paper," and it reports for an hour on the living and working conditions of migrant laborers in Florida.

Martin Nair Produces
The program has been produced by Martin Carr, whose credits include the documentary "Hunger in America," which won a number of awards and upset some officials in the Department of Agriculture.

Also on Thursday, NBC-TV offers the return of the summer series "Dean Martin presents the Goldiggers," which replaces the singer's show until fall.

This summer the replacement show originates in London. And, in addition to the Goldiggers, a group of attractive girls who sing and dance, the series features comedian Charles Nelson Reilly as master of ceremonies.

As usual, "Dean Martin presents the Goldiggers" does not star Dean Martin.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Interior Department reports that aerial surveys in Canadian and U.S. nesting areas reveal the highest populations of breeding age waterfowl in recent years.

"Breeding mallards and pintails increased about 30 and 20 per cent respectively with mallards at their highest level since 1958 and pintails the highest since 1960," a spokesman said. The department credited the increase to breeding areas in Alaska, the Northwest Territories and Northern Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

Dear Abby

By ... Van Burro

DEAR ABBY: My brother asked me to write to you to see if you can help him get any closer to marriage with his girl friend of 10 years—I'll call her "Zelda."

Zelda loves the big city and my brother likes the quiet of the countryside. Zelda doesn't come alive until 10 p.m., and at that hour my brother is ready for bed.

Even though they live 300 miles apart, they see each other on week-ends and holidays. (My brother flies his own plane.)

Zelda is jealous of anyone who looks at him twice, but she doesn't care for sex herself. (She was in a concentration camp when she was young.) My brother would like a family, but since he is 40 and Zelda is 43 and they aren't married yet, that looks doubtful. What do you think, Abby?

HIS SISTER

DEAR SISTER: I think if your brother wants marriage, he should look for someone who likes the quiet of the countryside, sex, and won't take 10 years to make up her mind. A 40-year-old man who flies his own plane should have no trouble landing a girl.

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged professional woman. Several months ago a person whom I considered to be a loyal friend accused me of repeating some confidential information she told me about another person. I did not repeat the information, but I know who did, and if I were to tell my friend who repeated it, she would be terribly upset.

My friend just assumes that I am the guilty one, and she refuses to believe otherwise. This has hurt me deeply. It is impossible to communicate with someone who has a closed mind. Is there any way I can reach this friend? I want to set her straight to clear myself, but in so doing I will have to put someone else on the spot.

A SINCERE FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Too bad your friend with the "closed mind" doesn't have a mouth to match. If she passed on "confidential information" which created trouble (which appears to be the case)—shame on her. To you, I say, in the future don't listen to that kind of "information," and for the present, don't knock yourself out trying to prove your innocence.

DEAR ABBY: I know you can't give any medical advice, but my daughter-in-law and I are so worried about my son that if it is becoming a serious problem.

My son was buried in a mine cave-in about a year ago. Thank God he has recovered from this physical injury, but we think something else may be wrong with him and we're afraid the doctors will laugh at us.

His whole personality has changed. He is so depressed, impatient and moody. No one in his family can get along with him. We are all so thankful to have him alive, but he's making everyone around him miserable, and he is miserable, too. Could it be the lack of oxygen he suffered a year ago, or is this just a coincidence?

SO WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: The shock of such an experience could easily have upset your son emotionally. Don't be ashamed to discuss this with your doctor. I promise you he won't laugh. There is no more "shame" in admitting an emotional disorder than a physical one, and treatment to correct it is equally as vital.

DEAR ABBY: An obviously misinformed correspondent recently wrote and said, "so many countries, like Samoa, have relaxed marital codes," and you let it pass as though it were a fact.

As a native Samoan, I must protest. Margaret Mead notwithstanding, Samoan culture embodies the highest ideals of Christianity, which in all likelihood surpasses those found in 1970 American society. Certainly in Samoa today one doesn't find the disintegration of the family unit found in the United States.

So please inform your uneducated and misinformed correspondent, as well as your readers who may still be relying on outdated information: that modern-day Samoans are not living in a free love paradise.

Weather Woman Watches Storms In Canal Zone

HOWARD AIR FORCE BASE, Canal Zone — If the weather is sometimes unpredictable, so is a woman who tries to predict it. In this case Air Force Capt. Marina E. Menzies, a WAF weatherwoman.

Being a weatherman —oops, weatherwoman — is not easy in a place like Panama. To help her prepare for excursions throughout Latin-America, Captain Menzies went through the Air Force Tropic Survival School in the Canal Zone, the only female in a class full of males.

The final day of the course includes a trek through the sweltering jungle and several meals of roast iguana, boa constrictor and other jungle delicacies common to the Indians of the region.

"The iguana tastes very much like chicken," she quipped. But she admits you must be very hungry to sit down to a meal of it.

Because weather personnel is encouraged to fly often, Captain Menzies has taken the opportunity to visit most of the capitals and countries where the U.S. Air Force Southern Command operates in South America.

Captain Menzies, who doubles as a first basewoman for the local Panamanian women's softball league is well qualified for her job.

After graduating from high school in La Verne, Calif., she attended the University of California at Santa Barbara where she received a bachelor of arts degree in history and geology.

She took a job as a statistician in Sacramento, but got bored and joined the Air Force so she could see more of the world — or the world's weather.

COVENTRY, R.I. (UPI)—The Coventry Police Department plans to equip three of its cruisers with propane gas engines as a method of fighting air pollution.

Chief Harvey Simmons said Tuesday the conversion would cost about $400, but estimated maintenance costs would be reduced about 50 per cent after the conversion.

Skellytown WMU Presents Report On Youth Camps

SKELLYTOWN (Sp) — Members of the W.M.U. of Skellytown First Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. J.C. Jarvis recently as Mrs. Clarence Kaiser gave the invocation. Mrs. Walt Shair read the prayer calendar and gave special prayer.

The lesson taken from the Mission Study Book was taught by Mrs. Wanda Rogers.

Mrs. Jarvis, president, presided over the business meeting. It was reported the W.M.U. paid for one boy to attend a week of youth camp at Panfork. Six boys and three girls from the church attended the camp this week. Sponsors this week were Mrs. Butch Rogers for the girls and Ralph Fox Sr. for the boys.

Mrs. Rogers gave the benediction. Attending were Meses. Clyde Horner, Bill Price, Wanda Rogers, Bill Campbell, M.L. Mills, Walt Shair, J.C. Jarvis, Bill Thompson, Clarence Kaiser, and Harry Carter.

Ex-Marine Earns Title Of Sister Nellie

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Commander of the Father Vincent Post of the Catholic War Veterans is Sister Nellie O'Connor, a former lady leatherneck.

She almost became commander of Rainier Valley American Legion Post 139, but she lost by two votes in a recent election.

During World War II, Sister Nellie was Lt. Nellie O'Connor of the U.S. Women Marines. In 1947 she became Sister Edward James, a name taken from those of her father, James, and a brother, Navy Lt. Edward O'Connor.

The latter was lost with his submarine in the South Pacific early in World War II.

She reverted to her own name after a Vatican Council decree this year that nuns should have that choice.

Sister Nellie joined the Marines shortly after her brother was reported missing. She served 32 months as a recruiting and supply officer in the United States.

She has been a French language teacher at Holy Names Academy in Seattle for eight years. Previously she taught in Oregon for five years.

Asked why she chose to become a nun she replied: "For the same reason I joined the Marines. I wanted to help people. I want to make the world a better place in which to live. That also is why I accepted the post of commander of the Catholic War Veterans."

POLLY'S POINTERS Child's Inactivity Creates Mom's Problem

Polly's Problem DEAR POLLY — Our foster child, 8, gets almost no physical exercise as she alternates between the television set and the refrigerator. She is becoming overweight and I know her inactivity cannot be good for her. My teen-age sons are no help and there are no playmates near our rural home.

What can I do to encourage this child to get out in the sun and get some exercise? How can I help her learn to be active even without other children to play with? I do hope someone can help me as I am really worried about this.

—DONNA

DEAR POLLY — Tell Mrs. M.T. to soak her jar tops that smell of pickles and relishes in a solution of baking soda and water and the odor should disappear. An overnight soaking should do the trick but, if not, repeat the process.

—ANN

DEAR POLLY — Mrs. M.T. should be able to remove the pickle odor from jar tops by washing, scalding carefully and then laying them (inside up) in the sunshine for two or three days. This always works for me.

Highlights And Sidelights From The State Capitol

By VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association

AUSTIN — Cold figures submitted in major agency budget proposals left top state officials and legislators little room for optimism about the amount of next year's tax bill.

Texas Education Agency calculated public school operations during the next biennium will cost about $2.3 billion — $2 billion in state money alone. This is an increase of about $377.1 million over the present level.

Nobody was too surprised about that, but the Texas Public Welfare Department came up with a shocker.

Welfare staffers figure that the rising assistance rolls will require a budget of nearly $2 billion overall for the 1972-73 fiscal period. That represents an increase in state welfare funds of $300.4 million over the current biennium.

So, two vital functions of state government alone — public education and welfare — are seeking some $677.5 million in additional revenues. It's expected that most of the other agencies will request more than their present appropriations instead of less.

Welfare requests, as large as they are, do not take into consideration large grants for the needy and ill.

However, a Senate committee has recommended the $80 million a year ceiling for state spending on categorical assistance be abolished and aid payments be matched to actual need. If enacted by the Legislature, this would mean millions more in welfare spending.

Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes expressed grave doubts that legislators would accept tremendous increases in welfare spending without "substantial reform" of the entire welfare system.

Welfare officials note that assistance rolls continue to expand uncontrollably (due largely to federal court rulings and rising population).

COURTS SPEAK — Supreme Court upheld tough rules defining guests and required food service at private drinking clubs. In another decision involving the Alcoholic Beverage Commission, the Court refused to outlaw the purchase of liquor by "agents" for the private lockers of members of dry area clubs.

In a Texarkana-area case, the Court held that victims of uninsured drivers must prove there was no insurance coverage on the other motorist before he can collect on his own uninsured motorist policy.

A Houston nurse, who claimed purchases were charged against her on a bogus credit card, lost her appeal to the top court in her effort to collect damages from a discount house and bill collection service which persistently tried to make her pay.

EAGLE RULING NEAR — Railroad Commission soon will rule as to whether the famed Texas Eagle passenger train can be discontinued by the Missouri-Pacific Railroad.

Eagle is one of three passenger haulers now operating across the state.

M-P claims that the train is losing money and wants to cut it off. Railroad attorneys argued that the Commission has no right to force it to continue to lose money.

Contending that the train should be kept in service, the National Association of Railroad Passengers said if M-P tried harder it could sell more passenger service and make a profit.

Train runs from St. Louis to Laredo, through Texarkana, Palestine, Austin and San Antonio.

DRIVING SCHOOL — Drivers who collect too many moving traffic violations may be going to night school to learn better behavior.

Thirty new sets of driver-training equipment will be provided to 20 regional education service centers over the state to teach students by day and adult traffic violators by night. This is in line with a new plan approved by the State Board of Education. National Highway Safety Bureau will pay $698,100 for simulator equipment and supplementary educational programs.

APPOINTMENTS — Gov. Preston Smith has reappointed Francis A. Flynn of Austin to the Texas Board of Licensure for Nursing Home Administrators and named Edward G. Fisch of Austin to the Texas State Board of Podiatry Examiners.

Manuel DeBuck of Dallas, Tom Sealy of Midland, Hunter McLean of Fort Worth and Harry Provence of Waco are members of a sub-committee to study problems of private colleges and universities.

Dr. Charles M. LeMaistre was designated as new chancellor of the University of Texas system.

Santos L. Garza, native of Mission and now of Austin, will be public health advisor at the regional Office of the Economic Opportunity headquarters here.

INTEGRATION AID ASKED — U.S. Justice Department has called for state aid in meeting federal integration guidelines by 48 Texas school districts.

Among the larger districts named as not in compliance were Amarillo, Austin, Odessa, Lubbock, Midland, Port Arthur, Beaumont (South Park), Temple, Richardson and Wichita Falls.

State education agencies, federal authorities noted, have control over local districts in such vital matters as state aid, accreditation and textbook distribution.

indicated they will seek state assistance next year.

Garnishment Of Wages Of Divorced Fathers Studied

AUSTIN (UPI)—A Senate committee studying the state's welfare problems is backing a proposed constitutional amendment to garnish the wages of divorced fathers who fail to pay child support.

The Texas Constitution prohibits the garnishment of wages for any reason.

The proposed amendment would have to be approved by the legislature and also by Texas voters in a general election. If approved, employers could then be ordered to pay the portion of a divorced man's salary directly to his children's mother or legal guardian.

Six members of the committee voted for the amendment Thursday. Two voted against and there was one abstention.

"Garnishment of any kind opens the door to garnishment generally," said Rabbi David Jacobson of San Antonio. Jacobson was one of the committee members casting a negative vote.

"I really believe that a father of children should be charged with their support and it should be collected," said Public Welfare Commissioner Burton G. Hackney.

Hackney said 30 per cent of the children on state welfare rolls were supposed to be receiving payments from their fathers but are not. He said authorities can take a father to court for not paying child support but all a judge can do is "throw him in jail or take his word that he'll pay up."

Under Texas-welfare laws, a child receives less welfare funds if its mother or guardian is supposed to be receiving child support.

The committee also voted unanimously for the enactment of a paternity law to hold fathers responsible for illegitimate children. Hackney said such a law would help state authorities force unmarried fathers to contribute to the support of their children.

The committee also adopted a

Attending were representatives of the VFW, the American Legion, relatives and friends.

Sgt. Malone's parents also received for him on July 14, 1969, the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster for heroism, Army Commendations Medal, Purple Heart, Good Conduct Medal, National Defense Service Medal, Vietnam campaign ribbon, combat medal, infantryman's badge, expert marksman badge with machine bar and marksman's badge with automatic rifle and rifle bar.

resolution urging Congress to amend pending welfare legislation to delete provisions the committee said would make the state pay more for medical.

The committee also said legislators should "appropriate funds sufficient to satisfy the basic human needs of persons who reside in Texas who are unable to live at a normal and decent level of human dignity, decency and health."

But Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes said "it's going to be a near political impossibility to get a great deal more money for welfare" unless the welfare department makes "some real substantive changes" in the welfare system.

"The legislature is going to be reluctant to pour millions of more dollars in our present system," Barnes said. "If (the committee) can come up with recommendations that will save $10 to $15 million or as much as $20 million a year in administrative costs as they think they can then their recommendations are going to be taken much more seriously by the legislature."

The council is composed of Premier James Chichester-Clark, Development Minister Brian Faulkner, Northern Ireland Police Chief Sir Arthur Young and Brigadier Sir Ian Freeland, commander of the 12,000 British troops in the province.

NL Extends All-Star Victory Streak

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Did Pete Rose, baseball's peppery "Charley Hustle," win the All-Star game with a brilliant, bold play? Or, by driving headfirst into young catcher Ray Fosse and dumping him sprawling at home plate to score the winning, 12th-inning run in the National League's 5-4 triumph, did Rose risk serious injury to both Fosse and himself unnecessarily?

"He was about two feet in front of the plate," explained Rose. "If I slid in there, I could have broken both legs. If I slid head first, I could have broken my neck."

"I know he didn't mean it," said Fosse, "but who knows? Maybe he should have run around me."

The big play happened with two out in the last half of the 12th inning, three innings after the National League had rallied with three runs in the last half of the ninth inning to send the game into extra innings.

Rose, who had been frustrated all night like other members of the Cincinnati Reds before a hometown crowd of 51,838 that included President Nixon, finally broke through with a single. Bill Grabarkewitz of the Los Angeles Dodgers also singled, and Rose went to second.

Then Jim Hickman of the Chicago Cubs laced a pitch by Clyde Wright of the California Angels into center field for a single and here came "Charley Hustle" around third base headed for the plate and here came the throw from center fielder Amos Otis of the Kansas City Royals.

Instead of sliding, Rose lowered his head and charged into Fosse in a collision that would have done credit to a pro football line smasher.

Both men wound up hurt—Fosse going to Christ Hospital for X-rays of his right shoulder and Rose nursing an injured knee. Bill Carroll, Reds' trainer, said it would be 24 hours before he would know whether Rose would be sidelined for a while.

The hospital reported that Fosse had suffered "no fracture, no dislocation—just a bad bruise."

Earl Weaver, deeply disappointed Baltimore manager who piloted the AL team, said he thought Rose "had the throw beaten anyway."

Whether the collision was necessary or not, it capped an extremely painful loss for the AL, which now has lost eight straight midsummer classics. This was a game they had all but won, carrying a 4-1 lead into the last half of the ninth inning. Fosse had scored one run in the sixth inning on a single by Carl Yastrzemski and driven in another with a sacrifice fly in the seventh, and Fosse Robinson had tripled home two runs in the eighth.

Jim Hunter of Oakland went in to pitch the ninth for the AL and gave up three hits—all of which were turned into runs. Dick Dietz of the Giants torched it off with a homer. Willie McCovey drove in one run with a single and Roberto Clemente delivered the tying run with a sacrifice fly.

Yastrzemski, who had three singles and a double to become only the third man in history to get four hits in an All-Star game won the "Most Valuable Player" trophy.

"It was richly deserved," Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn told Yastrzemski.

"I wish it could have been a winning cause," said Yaz.

It's a yearly wish with the AL.

Rose, Fosse Mingled Before All-Star Game

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Pete Rose, Cincinnati's little dynamo, and Sam McDowell, Cleveland's big pitcher, are friends.

When you ask Pete Rose what kind of friends he says, "good friends," and when you ask Sam McDowell, he says, "very good friends."

On Monday night, the night before the All-Star game, one of the big commercial concerns held a get-together for a lot of the players and when the affair was over, Pete Rose invited his friend Sam McDowell to his home here.

McDowell wanted to know if it was okay to bring his buddy, Ray Fosse, the Cleveland catcher making his first appearance in an All-Star game, and Pete Rose said, "Sure Sam, bring him along."

Ray Fosse, 23, and all excited about being part of the All-Star scene, accompanied Sam McDowell to Pete Rose's and everyone had a great time. McDowell wound up playing the guitar, Rose sort of sang along and Fosse sat around eating up the whole thing.

The three had such a fine time that it got to be half past one in the morning before they realized it.

Rose drove McDowell and Fosse back to the hotel and there wasn't the slightest doubt what kind of impression Rose had made on Fosse. The young Cleveland catcher liked Rose immediately. Why not? Hadn't he welcomed him into his home and showed him a great evening?

Then came the All-Star game Tuesday night and you know how that came out. Jim Hickman singled with two on and two out in the 12th and Pete Rose, who was on second base, scored the run that gave the National League a 5-4 victory by barreling into Ray Fosse and knocking him ears over teakettle.

Fosse did not blame Rose. Not completely, anyway.

"He didn't mean it," Fosse said. "You got to give him credit for trying to score. I never got hit like that before. I dunno, I thought I gave him some room to get past. Maybe he should've gone around me."

Rose insisted he couldn't.

"I saw I couldn't slide so I just ran into him," he said. "I certainly don't want to hurt anybody. You know how I play today, I always play to win."

Pete Rose can say that again. He didn't get the name Charley Hustle for nothing.

A LITTLE OFF-SEASON footwork, presumably, is all it takes to stay in shape for the football season. Jim Nance, left, of the Boston Patriots finds time for some football during one of his National Guard weekends, and a modish (and the longer hair?) Johnny Unitas sticks to an older man's game—golf—for the rest of the year.

McDowell wanted to know if it was okay to bring his buddy, Ray Fosse, the Cleveland catcher making his first appearance in an All-Star game, and Pete Rose said, "Sure Sam, bring him along."

Ray Fosse, 23, and all excited about being part of the All-Star scene, accompanied Sam McDowell to Pete Rose's and

NEW YORK (UPI)—A $30,000 satellite tournament, called the Sea Pines Open, was added Tuesday to the golf action scheduled for the last week in November at Hilton Head Island, S.C.

Joseph C. The Heritage, now an invitational event with a field of 100, will be staged at Harbour Town Golf Links and the Sea Pine at the Ocean Course.

This is the second dual tournament sponsorship on the PGA tour this year. Earlier, the $150,000 Florida Citrus Invitational was held together with the $35,000 Florida Citrus Open invitational.

Game Gave Hickman Chance To Be Winner

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Jim Hickman, one of the original Mets, is a guy who always seems destined to be one of life's losers.

But he was a winner Tuesday night in the finest moment of his long and checkered career. He singled in the winning run of the 41st All-Star game in the 12th inning to give the National League a 5-4 victory over the American League.

Of course, it's only natural that Hickman was robbed of the limelight by Pete Rose's controversial sprawl into catcher Ray Fosse at home plate. Long after the fans forget who singled Rose in, they'll be debating Rose's play at the plate.

Hickman, though, will always remember the hit.

"I was so nervous," he said after the game, "you have no idea."

He popped out and struck out twice in his three previous appearances after replacing Rico Carty before he got the chance to win the game in the 12th.

"I know I looked bad when I struck out but I was just jumping at the ball. I've never been so nervous and I guess I showed it. I've never played in a game like this before. When Gil Hodges came down and told me I was going in, I didn't know what to do."

He seemed almost in a state of shock as he accepted congratulations after the game.

The All-Star game gave Hickman one of his few opportunities to be on a real winner. He was the last of the original Mets to leave that team—but naturally he was traded away to the Dodgers in 1967 before the Mets became winners. In 1963 he was traded to the Cubs and he thought he was going to get his chance to be on a pennant winner last year—but the Cubs lost out to the Mets in the final three weeks.

But Hickman, now 33, wiped out a lot of the past frustration with a line single to center in the 12th inning Tuesday night.

College All-Stars Vote To Leave Training In Support Of Players

NEW YORK (UPI)—Another coal has been thrown on the fire in the current dispute between the National Football League Players Association and the 26 NFL club owners.

John Mackey, tight end for the Baltimore Colts and president of the players association, disclosed Tuesday night that at the request of the association, the College All-Stars currently in training at Evanston, Ill., voted unanimously to leave their training camp pending the outcome of the dispute.

The players association is asking for a pay increase for exhibition games, more pension benefits and other contract improvements. Until their demands are met, the association has asked its members not to report to their training camps.

NEW YORK (UPI)—A $30,000 satellite tournament, called the Sea Pines Open, was added Tuesday to the golf action scheduled for the last week in November at Hilton Head Island, S.C.

Joseph C. Dey Jr., commissioner of the PGA Tournament Players' Division, said the Nov. 25-28 Sea Pines event will be held in conjunction with the previously scheduled $100,000 Heritage golf classic at that site on Nov. 26-29. The Heritage, now an invitational event with a field of 100, will be staged at Harbour Town Golf Links and the Sea Pine at the Ocean Course.

This is the second dual tournament sponsorship on the PGA tour this year. Earlier, the $150,000 Florida Citrus Invitational was held together with the $35,000 Florida Citrus Open invitational.

Game Gave Hickman Chance To Be Winner

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Jim Hickman, one of the original Mets, is a guy who always seems destined to be one of life's losers.

But he was a winner Tuesday night in the finest moment of his long and checkered career. He singled in the winning run of the 41st All-Star game in the 12th inning to give the National League a 5-4 victory over the American League.

Of course, it's only natural that Hickman was robbed of the limelight by Pete Rose's controversial sprawl into catcher Ray Fosse at home plate. Long after the fans forget who singled Rose in, they'll be debating Rose's play at the plate.

Hickman, though, will always remember the hit.

"I was so nervous," he said after the game, "you have no idea."

He popped out and struck out twice in his three previous appearances after replacing Rico Carty before he got the chance to win the game in the 12th.

"I know I looked bad when I struck out but I was just jumping at the ball. I've never been so nervous and I guess I showed it. I've never played in a game like this before. When Gil Hodges came down and told me I was going in, I didn't know what to do."

He seemed almost in a state of shock as he accepted congratulations after the game.

The All-Star game gave Hickman one of his few opportunities to be on a real winner. He was the last of the original Mets to leave that team—but naturally he was traded away to the Dodgers in 1967 before the Mets became winners. In 1963 he was traded to the Cubs and he thought he was going to get his chance to be on a pennant winner last year—but the Cubs lost out to the Mets in the final three weeks.

But Hickman, now 33, wiped out a lot of the past frustration with a line single to center in the 12th inning Tuesday night.

A Way To National Unity

Most people will agree that national unity would be desirable in our country. But it is something that cannot be simply called for—whether it is termed "national unity," or "togetherness," or any other name. It cannot be imposed from without, nor roused by fiery words in an instant; it is what grows in the hearts of men as they share common goals of what they deem good.

It is high time we believe, that citizens of the United States look harder at common goals than at differing ones.

Richard Armour, Scripps College professor who usually treats us to a humorous look at the world, had some serious comments after his recent lecture tour in Europe.

One thing Americans have long agreed on is the value of human life. As long as they continue to remember this agreement, they will work out ways to solve arguments about differences in methods.

A young Belgian who had seen much war and had come to California to live made this memorable statement to us: "You know, I love this country. I can't get over how alike all the different parts of the country are. You are all alike." To remonstrations that people in the South speak softly with a drawl while Midwesterners tend to a nasal twang, and so on, he replied: "But no, it is still all the same language. At home we can't go 20 miles but what we run into a different language altogether. And here you do all the same things; the people in Montana chew the same gum as the ones in Florida, everyone smokes the same brands of cigarettes, the restaurants save generally the same food. You see, you are all alike."

Our likenesses are very important and deserve emphasis, not just our differences. This pertains to principles and objectives as well as little things in our "way of life." Perhaps our very zeal to achieve our goals, to protect the lives of citizens, to seek spiritual guidance and fulfillment, to be knowledgeable about the world, has led to a wrong source of supply—the government.

"There's a great interest in America throughout the world," reported Dr. Armour. "Many Europeans think they would like to live in the U.S., and this is probably one reason for their intense interest." He feels there is a great reservoir of god feeling for the U.S. Many Americans continue to merit it, working individually, respectfully and peacefully for our great common goals. Then national unity will be a reality.

Those Monday Holidays

The holiday schedule, at least for federal and state employees has been re-shaped. Commencing in 1971, it will follow a theory of Monday celebration of four special holidays, no matter the original date slated for observance.

The subject of holidays has long been overdue for rethinking.

Of course, the custom began when holidays were holy days. The days when work was suspended were spent in consecration and the celebration was a religious festival. Today they have, it seems, become hollowdays, with all the accent on cessation of work and on jubilant play, and with little thought about the purpose of the day.

As long as work is going to suffer stoppage, perhaps Mondays are logical days. It will cause less damage to flow since it is merely extension of the weekend, already a stoppage. Add to the fact that the calendar itself has undergone changes which make modern dates not the original ones anyway.

A Peculiar Characteristic

It seems to be a peculiar characteristic among some business people that the harder they have to fight city hall and certain opposed groups and in the schoolroom and enacting a scene of outfitting the Pinta and Nina and the Santa Maria than by a "day off" gambling on the green and munching popples. Washington's Day does not necessarily have to be his birthday, but certainly deserves observance. Whether proper homage to Washington is cessation of job effort is debatable.

According to the U. S. Chamber of Commerce Veterans Day will be celebrated on the fourth Monday in October. First Register reports on the proposed "vacationettes" in 1968 affirmed the October date, while the story on the bill's approval by states last January listed Veterans Day on the fourth Monday in November.

Actually the date for this one seems unimportant. Veterans Day is a change in title from Armistice Day, the date which was to celebrate an end to the war to end wars. From the first day of World War II this was given the lie, and the day was eventually renamed. But it exists unnecessarily and is in conflict and confusion with Memorial Day. On Memorial Day veterans should be remembered as well as all loved ones who have died. An end-of-war date is only a mockery in a nation which has been in almost constant wars for 20 or more years.

Individuals to obtain a license or franchise to operate, the more opposed they are to permitting a competitor to get into the same business.

THE REASON FEDERAL BUREAUCRACY GROWS

The size of the federal bureaucracy is increasing faster than our population. As bureaucracy grows, its cost also increases. Many citizens wonder why the number of bureaucrats continues to grow at such a fast rate.

One of the main reasons for this growth is that federal officials continually create new jobs even when their workload remains the same. Rarely do they eliminate any jobs. One small example of this tendency of bureaucracies to expand can be found in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, where former Secretary Robert Finch created 86 new political patronage positions since he took office last year.

The estimated cost of these new positions is $2 million a year. The necessity for them is very doubtful. For example, there are nine "special assistants to the secretary for special programs." One office in the Department has a "special assistant to the deputy special assistant to the secretary." There are four new "confidential assistants" to the undersecretary of H.E.W.

These job titles are meaningless, and the taxpayer may legitimately ask just what these new employes are going to do to earn their $2 million each year.

H.E.W. is no exception among government bureaus; nearly all grow in size and cost every year. If the increases are not simply needless, they are usually due to increased government interference in private lives and businesses.

If personal enterprisers created jobs with no real need, their unproductive costs would soon drive them out of business. Unfortunately, the federal government has no such check on its expansion.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. — Much water has run under the bridge since I was here five years ago. The town is like the falls, it keeps eroding around the edges.

This used to be a town for the newlyweds, but now all the young people seem to have a baby with them. I don't know whether the fad has changed, or the times.

It might explain why the New York side has 102,000 population while the Canadian side has only 22,000. Did you know that the Horseshoe Falls are 160 ft. high and 2500 ft. wide? It would take a mighty big horse to fit it.

We took a ride on the little railroad that runs around Goat Island and to the falls on the Canadian side. You can get off and catch the next train in 30 minutes. It's the only railroad in New York that is always on time.

The falls aren't the only sights to see. I saw one woman in Niagara Green shorts with a face to match. She had been poured into them when wet. For the coverage they gave she needn't have bothered.

We found a little motel out in Grand Isle that was so isolated the natives didn't know where it was. This made it very nice when we got lost. The later it got the faster we drove, which don't help when you're on the wrong road—or heading in the wrong direction.

I always seem to appreciate a motel after spending two hours trying to find it. Now I know how Gen. Braddock must have felt. He got lost too.

VA Hospitals Hit Hard By Lack Of Funds, Personnel

By DON OAKLEY
NEA Staff Writer

The Vietnam war is the most crippling and seriously disabling war the United States has ever fought. The irony of this is that it is because in no other war has the wounded received such swift and effective medical attention.

Seriously hurt men are saved on the battlefield by unprecedented medical and surgical field procedures, including rapid evacuation by helicopter often minutes after being hit. One out of every 10 men wounded in the Vietnam war is wounded so grievously that he would have died in a previous war.

The result has been an increase in seriously disabled veterans—more quadriplegics, more veterans with multiple injuries, more amputees. Amputation or paralysis of the extremities together comprise almost 54 per cent of all those discharged for disability. This compares with about 28 per cent in the Korean conflict and 21 per cent in World War I.

More than 275,000 men have been wounded in the Vietnam war, and Vietnam veterans now constitute about 10 per cent of VA medical workloads.

Unfortunately, notes Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., who brought these facts to the attention of his senatorial colleagues recently, "this high-intensity, almost miraculous care they (the wounded) received in the service is not often sustained when they end up in a Veterans Administration hospital, despite the dedicated efforts of highly trained and skilled VA medical personnel."

Cranston, who is head of the Senate Veterans Affairs Subcommittee, makes the charge on the basis of a six-months investigation of VA hospitals.

Deteriorating conditions are not the rule at every VA hospital, he reports. In some of them, high-quality care is being offered, and in all of them, a dedicated and highly skilled staff is doing its best—but too often under medieval working conditions.

Cranston has recommended that Congress raise the VA's budget for fiscal 1971 (July 1, 1970, to June 30, 1971) by $189 million. Nearly $174 million of that would go toward improving medical care in the VA's 16 hospitals and 203 outpatient clinics around the country, which are experiencing "a dangerously enlarging crisis" because of shortages of funds and personnel.

It is a crisis, says Cranston, caused by assuming that things could be done without adequate funds, of deferring year after year, needed expenditures for equipment and supplies, renovating old facilities, constructing new facilities and acquiring and replacing staff.

Administration spokesmen counter that the proposed VA budget is already a record. The nation can't afford more. Inflation, you know. Get to balance the budget.

But medical care, educational and other readjustment benefits, disability and indemnity compensation and other veterans' costs should be

JOHN GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — While it is conducting a rescue operation for the giant C5A cargo plane the Pentagon is quietly preparing for a new type of plane—procurement one which will carry a Nixon Administration trademark.

There will be a sharp contrast with the C5A "package" as it was originally purchased several years ago under the direction of former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara. Fly-before-you-buy will be the new watchword.

The new plan involves a prototype competition between the two companies whose versions of a new plane look best on paper. The idea is to get a pre-purchase look at the operating hardware and give competitors the best incentive to avoid cost overruns like those which have plagued the C5A.

The projected A-X plane with which the Air Force plans to provide better close air support for Army ground units is now scheduled for such a prototype competition. At stake is a purchase of nearly 1000 such planes at a cost of perhaps $1.5 billion over the years.

Half a dozen plane makers have indicated an interest in the A-X competition. Their technical proposals are due at the Pentagon in early August. Cost estimates are to be submitted a couple of weeks later. Late this year two finalists will be selected by the Air Force on the basis of those submissions. Each will sign a fixed-price contract for about $30 million to build two prototype planes which will compete against one another for the big production contract.

$15 MILLION PER COPY — The Air Force timetable calls for the first flight of the two competing planes about 18 months after the prototype contracts are awarded. After a couple of months of manufacturer test-flights the official Air Force "fly-off" will begin.

To minimize change orders in the planning process (since they are one of the factors which cause cost escalation) the Air Force is providing a rather simple set of performance specifications for the new A-X.

Envisioned is an airplane costing about $1 to $1.5 million after all research and development is completed. The Air Force wants a single-seat plane, weighing up to 35,000 pounds with a speed of 400 to 500 nautical miles per hour. One important air force requirement is a "loiter" capability — fuel and arms to stay airborne over a contested area for at least two hours. Specifications call for, short takeoff and landing capability so that small airfields and even highways can be used by the A-X.

Another important Air Force requirement is "survivability" — an ability to take unaimed fire. The A-X prototypes are being touted as the first planes to be designed with survivability as a principal goal.

The Air Force expects competing plane makers to use existing technology and existing hardware to meet the performance goals. It has not specified a power plant for the new plane or even required that it be turbofan or turboprop.

CONGRESSIONAL HURDLES — Like many other new weapon systems the A-X has some problems on Capitol Hill. As a support plane for ground troops the A-X seems to some House and Senate doves to be a Vietnam-type weapon and it is therefore suspect.

Consequently Air Force experts have been stressing the plane's armament (including a 30 millimeter gun) which suits it for anti-tank warfare and other attack missions which have not been required in Indochina.

As we have previously noted, the A-X is also the possible focus — with the Army's projected Cheyenne helicopter — of an old-fashioned interservice controversy. The question is whether the proposed A-X or the Army's projected Cheyenne is better qualified to provide close support.

For the present, at least, the official Pentagon line is that both the helicopter and the fixed-wing aircraft are needed — that the two are complementary and not competitive. Congress — and especially the Senate — may not be buying that one, however.

NOTE — H Congress provides the necessary funds and the prototype competition goes ahead on schedule. Industry sources believe General Dynamics and Northrop should be viewed as favorites to wind up in the final "fly-off."

Unemployment's Two Sides

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA)—There is considerable misunderstanding on the growth in unemployment.

At such a time it is wise to look at the figures.

This is not to downgrade the seriousness of men and women out of work. Men are not statistics and one husband-father walking the streets for a job he cannot find suffers pangs that no one who has not been through the experience can understand.

But it is important to get straight what the causes of that unemployment are.

First: Employment has been going up, not down. In May 1969, 77.3 million men and women were at work in May 1970, some 78.4 million had jobs. This is an increase of 1.1 million men and women in gainful employment in the past year.

Second: More than 80 per cent of the 1.3 million increase in unemployment this past year can be traced directly to Defense Department cutbacks as President Nixon winds down the Vietnam war.

In the past year the size of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps has been cut 360,000.

Defense Department civilian employment has been reduced by 73,000. Other Defense-related cuts bring this civilian reduction to almost 100,000.

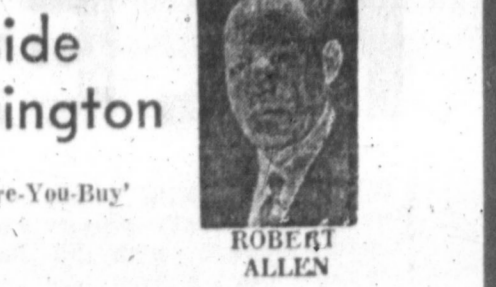

That's a direct Defense outback of 400,000.

The $1.7 billion reduction in Defense spending this past year has caused private defense industries to cut their payrolls by 300,000.

That brings the total reduction to 700,000 jobs.

Now an outback of 700,000 jobs in turn has a strong effect on sales of autos, refrigerators, washing machines, houses and a host of other "durables."

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Because almost everyone is either male or female, it is difficult to obtain a truly unbiased opinion of the Women's Liberation Movement.

I think you will agree, however, that if anyone is qualified to render a completely impartial judgment, that person is Christine Jorgensen.

So when Miss Jorgensen came to town this week for the local premier of "Christine," a movie based on her biography, I solicited her comment on the controversy.

Miss Jorgensen is, of course, one of the few people ever to view such an issue from both sides. Now 44, she has divided her time equally between the 60's.

Perhaps for this reason, her view of women's lib is almost neutral.

would indicate that she was predominantly influenced by the second part of her life, which she has spent as a female.

Despite the difficulty, however, Miss Jorgensen does not regret the celebrated transsexual operations and hormone treatments she underwent in the early 1950's.

Is an Old Maid

"I certainly don't feel subjugated in any way, shape or form," she said. "And I'm an old maid."

Miss Jorgensen went on to say that "if I had been married for a couple of years, I might be ready to join Women's Lib."

But then she added that "no happily married woman wants to be liberated."

And by this time I was having some difficulty figuring out where Miss Jorgensen stood.

"There's an art to being a woman," she continued. "Some of it might be lost if a woman tries to compete on equal terms with men."

She also said she disagreed with the Women's Lib contention that sex symbol manifestations such as beauty contests are degrading.

On balance, then, I would say that in the battle of the sexes, Miss Jorgensen would make a pretty good referee.

Finds Male Influence

"I never found that women weren't liberated," she said when I introduced the subject.

This being the conventional male viewpoint, I assumed that Miss Jorgensen was predominantly influenced by the first part of her life, which she spent as a male.

But later on she asserted that "it's more difficult being a woman." Which is the conventional viewpoint and which
