Nixon Abandons Hope For Budget

Deficit May Exceed $1.3 Billion Level

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration has abandoned hope of keeping the current federal budget deficit down to the officially projected $1.3 billion, Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy said today.

Treasury officials declined to speculate on how much federal spending would exceed revenue, but they emphasized that actions by Congress on appropriations on the administration's request for more than $3 billion in additional revenue would be crucial.

But Kennedy clearly acknowledged in a speech prepared for delivery in Salt Lake City that the deficit would exceed the $1.3 billion level originally estimated by the administration. The text of Kennedy's speech was made public by his Washington office.

The Washington Post, quoting high administration officials, said today President Nixon had been informed that the deficit for the fiscal year which ends next June 30 probably would hit $10 billion and the budget for the fiscal year after that might be in the red between $15 billion and $25 billion.

A different administration official told UPI earlier that a deficit of up to $10 billion this fiscal year would be acceptable in light of slumping economic conditions which have reduced federal revenue from corporate and individual income taxes.

The official also said a tax increase during a business slump would be foolish.

In a prepared speech for a joint meeting of Salt Lake City civic groups, Kennedy said the administration was determined to keep a tight rein on government spending.

He recalled the administration officially estimated last May 19 that the budget for this fiscal year would show a deficit and added:

"The evidence since that forecast was made in May indicates that the deficit will be larger than the $1.3 billion indicated at that time.

"But we cannot permit the budget again to become so unbalanced as to rekindle the inflationary pressures that we recently have died down."

He summarized: "In the three years prior to the last election, the federal government spent some $38 billion more than it collected in taxes."

The government ran a $2.5 billion deficit, largest since World War II, in the fiscal year that ended June 30, 1968. The deficits for the two previous fiscal years were $9.7 billion and $3.8 billion.

The fiscal year that ends June 30, 1969—almost equally divided between the Johnson and Nixon administrations—showed a surplus of $3.2 billion, the first black ink balance in nine years.

The fiscal year that ends last June 30 recorded a deficit of $2.1 billion.

Nixon has asked Congress for a $1.6 billion annual tax on the lead used in gasoline and for acceleration of gift and inheritance tax payments to yield a one-time windfall of $1.5 billion this fiscal year.

The House Ways and Means Committee has scheduled hearings on the bills beginning Sept. 9. The official deficit estimate assumes approval of the two revenue measures.

US Ambassador Absent From Deadlocked Talks

PARIS (UPI)—U.S. Ambassador David K. E. Bruce today stayed away from the 80th session of the deadlocked talks on the Vietnam War. A brief statement avoided the word boycott but said the United States was awaiting a change in the Communist attitude.

North Vietnam' chief negotiator, Xuan Thuy, had boycotted the talks for the past 10 months.

Philip C. Habib, Bruce's deputy, delivered the shortest U.S. statement to date in the negotiations, saying that the talks "should be conducted in a genuinely conciliatory atmosphere and without demands for obviously unacceptable preconditions."

Habib announced that Bruce would not attend shortly before the session started.

"Ambassador Bruce will be working in his office all day," Habib told newsmen. A U.S. spokesman said the American delegation was "not going to interpret" Bruce's absence but Habib made it clear Bruce was not staying away because of illness.

Habib declined to say whether Bruce's action was connected with the continuing boycott by the chief negotiators for North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

"I really don't want to comment about it," Habib replied when asked if there was a connection.

Xuan Thuy left the talks last November when Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge resigned and President Nixon did not immediately name a successor. Bruce was appointed Lodge's successor earlier this summer and has made two appearances as the chief U.S. negotiator. At the end of last week's session, the North Vietnamese delegation announced that Xuan Thuy was returning to Paris, but no date was mentioned.

Habib's official statement submitted at the session today, covered only half of a typewritten page and was the shortest since the talks began 19 months ago.

It called for genuine negotiations by the Communists and added:

"We are fully prepared to proceed on this basis. We continue to look to your side for a similar attitude toward these meetings."

North Vietnam and the Viet Cong reiterated previous statements at the meeting today. They demanded total, rapid and unconditional withdrawal of all American troops from Vietnam and the removal of the existing South Vietnamese government. Pickup 6th pgh: Hanoi delegate

Two More Cases Of Diphtheria In San Antonio

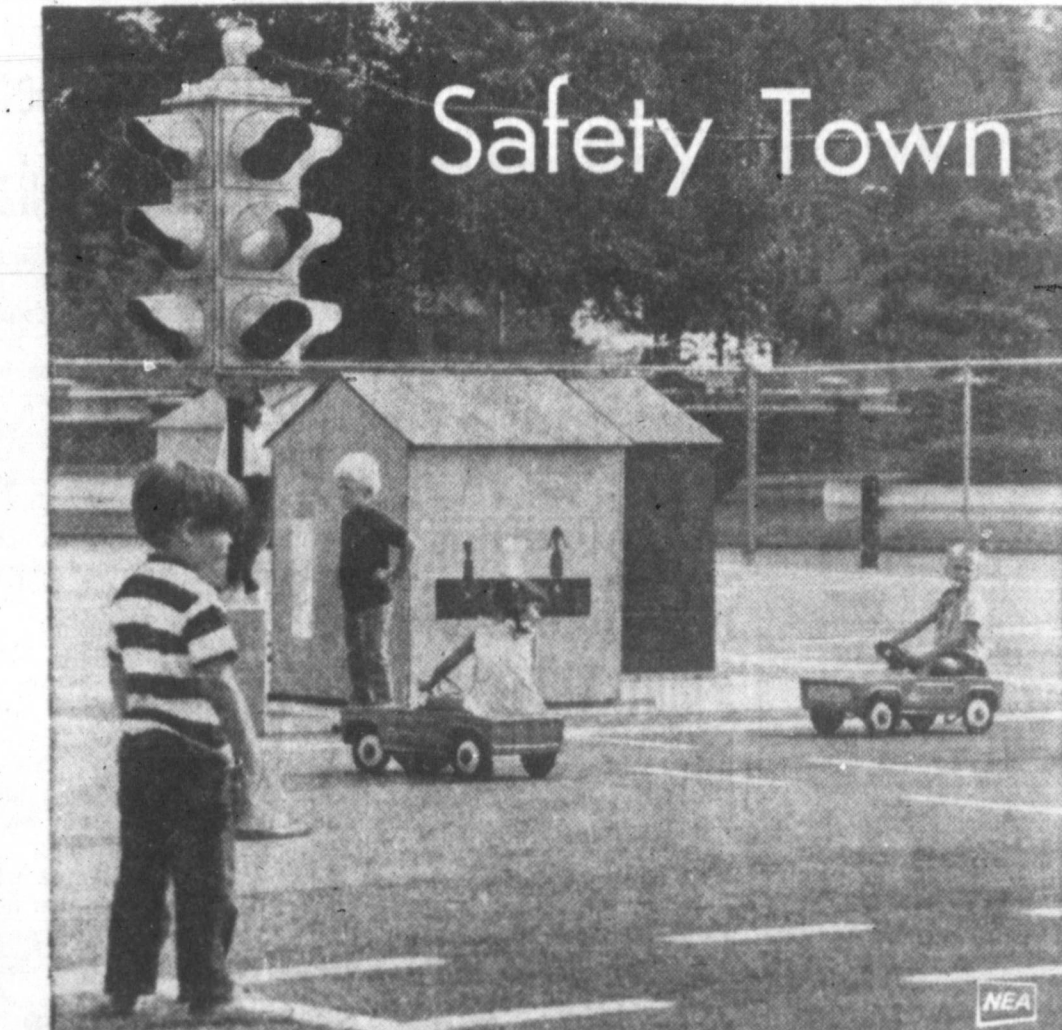

SAN ANTONIO (UPI)—Two more cases of diphtheria were reported Wednesday, and the epidemic forced cancellation of a rock music concert. The disease has struck 54 times in San Antonio this year.

The Metropolitan Health Department said a rock concert crowd would be the perfect place for diphtheria to be transmitted and asked that the concert, scheduled for Sunday, be cancelled.

This year's 54 diphtheria cases compares with 96 cases reported during the entire past decade.

The health department asked for aid from the U. S. Army stationed at Ft. Sam Houston in inoculation centers around town. In addition, private doctors report a heavy demand for the vaccine. Military units are inoculating their own people and at least two business firms said they have started an immunization program for their employees.

The city transferred 30 policemen to work at crowd control at the five inoculation centers.

WITH THE beginning of school next week, Pampa motorists are urged to become even more safety conscious and students are reminded some of that responsibility is also theirs. A safety idea instigated in Shaker Heights, Ohio, this summer allowed preschoolers to learn safety principles in a miniature city in which they play-act parts of pedestrians and motorists. After training in Safety Town, they are ready to walk or ride to school with confidence.

TASK FORCE STUDY:

Vietnam Troops Unimpaired By Alleged Use Of Drugs

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A task force report said today a study of drug usage among U.S. troops turned up no evidence of impairment of readiness of units in Vietnam.

The report by a special task force was made public by Defense Department witnesses as they appeared at a Senate hearing to testify on drug abuse in the military.

The task force concluded that "a serious and growing" national drug problem extended into the armed forces. But it said the extent of the problem was no greater in the military than outside.

Drug abuse by men in uniform "is not such that at this point military readiness is considered to be endangered," the report, dated June 24, said.

At another point it said that there was "no evidence that drug usage has had an adverse impact on unit readiness" in Vietnam.

Some witnesses earlier this week at the hearings testified that drug usage was quite high among men in Vietnam.

Changes In Medicare Rules To Be Fought

BRENNHAM, Tex. (UPI)—House Speaker Gus Mutscher Wednesday said he will appoint a committee within the next few days to fight proposed changes in federal medicare regulations that could force 170 Texas hospitals to close.

Mutscher said federal offices are considering doubling nursing care requirements for moderate-size hospitals. He estimated 170 Texas hospitals would be ineligible for medicare payments under the new regulations and might be forced to close.

In a speech to the Region 10 Municipal League, Mutscher said he is "quite disturbed" over the situation and will appoint a committee to work with interested citizens, federal administrators and Congress "in trying to head off this medical crisis."

"I feel that the federal government should find some better method of handling these problems than is used by the present administration," he said. Mutscher said there's some consideration of making the new requirements retroactive and denying ineligible hospitals back payments for treatment of medicare patients.

Accused Bank Embezzler Held For Observation

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—An accused bank embezzler, who stood off police with a pistol for 18 hours until disarmed by his wife, was held today for psychiatric observation.

John Stenger, 40, was taken into custody Wednesday in connection with the embezzlement of $125,000 from the Farmers and Merchants Bank in Matawan, where he was employed as assistant cashier. Farmers and Merchants last Friday bought the main office of the insolvent Easton National Bank which had been closed by the government after its president, Douglas J. Schotte, allegedly misapplied $5 million in bank funds.

But Charles Schock Jr., president of Farmers and Merchants, said there was "no connection whatsoever" between the two cases.

Schock said he telephoned Stenger Tuesday at Booth Bay Harbor, Maine, where Stenger was vacationing with his family, because "one of the ladies in our commercial department discovered a discrepancy."

Stenger returned to his home and barricaded himself inside at 8 p.m. with a .38-caliber pistol, ignoring the pleas of Schock, a priest and others to surrender to police.

The siege ended at 2 p.m. Wednesday when Mrs. Stenger arrived from Maine, entered the house and grabbed the pistol which she said her husband had left on a dresser. She said she ran from the room and tossed it to an FBI agent.

Another agent rushed into the room and seized Stenger as he was reaching into a closet for a rifle.

Industry Asks For Less Stringent Pollutant Rules

AUSTIN (UPI)—New proposals for regulating discharge of mercury and other heavy metals into Texas waters were labeled inadequate Wednesday by spokesmen for the Federal Water Quality Administration and the Texas League of Women Voters.

Industry representatives said the proposed new standards are too strict and accused pollution control officials of overreacting because of "emotional public concern."

The Texas Water Quality Board is expected to adopt the proposals in spite of criticism from both sides.

The new regulations would lower the allowable levels of mercury and 10 other metals permitted in industrial discharges into streams.

Hearing examiner Robert H. Lloyd said the water board staff will try to present the results of Wednesday's hearing to the board Aug. 28, but may have to wait until the Oct. 2 meeting.

The proposed standards would limit mercury discharges to 0.005 micrograms per liter, but would permit up to 5.0 micrograms per liter of zinc, chromium and barium in discharges.

"Water quality standards are our principal goal," Hugh Yantis, executive director of the Water Quality Board, said at the hearing.

"We are not simply trying to set effluent standards. We are trying to fill a gap. We must immediately move on the basis of what evidence we do have and what common sense we do have to adopt some form of a regulatory order to fill this gap that we have."

Yantis predicted the board will pass an order in the immediate future lowering allowable metal discharges.

Ray C. Stubblefield, regional representative of the Federal Water Quality Administration, told officials all man-made mercury discharges should be banned.

Stubblefield said studies show widespread evidence of mercury in Texas fish in such areas as the Houston Ship Channel, Lavaca Bay and the Rio Grande near Big Bend. He disputed state reports pollution from mercury and other heavy metal discharges has not already created a public health hazard in Texas.

Stubblefield said six of the 10 standards proposed by Texas officials to limit heavy metal discharges would allow more pollution than the U.S. Public Health hazard in Texas.

Stubblefield said six of the 10 standards proposed by Texas officials to limit heavy metal discharges would allow more pollution than the U.S. Public Health Service advises for drinking water.

House of Conforte

RENO, Nev. (UPI)—In Joe Conforte's view, anyone who runs the finest house of prostitution in Storey County can hardly be accused of "lack of financial responsibility and managerial capability."

Particularly if he is a public-spirited citizen who also wants to start a bus line for Reno, which has been without one for more than a year.

Nevertheless, the Nevada Public Service Commission holds that skeptical view of Conforte, whose Mustang ranch 10 miles east of here has long been a landmark in Storey County, where prostitution is legal.

Conforte, an amiable type Mayor Roy Bankoffier had pressured the PSC to turn down the application. In the next election, he said, the people should "throw the rascals out."

Forgotten Man's Banquet Slated

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — The choice is a tough one: Pay $100 to dine with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and hear his speech, or sit in a parking lot and eat a hamburger for 50 cents while listening to a replay.

The 50-cent-a-plate "forgotten man banquet" will be held by several Republican legislative candidates Sept. 23 as a follow-up to the $100 affair the previous night.

"We might even come out a little ahead," said Rep. John D. Peoples, one of the sponsors of the 50-cent special.

Hippie Life Still Choice Of Witness

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Linda Kasabian, free after 18 days of testimony in the Tate-LaBianca murder trial, intends to "go into the wilderness" with her two young children and continue to live like a hippie.

But she says she will never take drugs again.

Mrs. Kasabian, 21, finished her testimony Wednesday. She was followed by three state witnesses who substantiated in every detail covered in their testimony the story she told during her long ordeal on the stand.

Mrs. Kasabian was granted immunity from prosecution for her part in connection with the slayings. After completing her testimony she held a news conference to discuss her future.

The trial today was to open with a hearing on Manson's complaint that he is being mistreated and harassed in jail by the sheriff's office.

Following Mrs. Kasabian on the stand was Timothy Ireland, an instructor at the Westlake School for Girls about half a mile from the Tate estate.

Ireland said on the night of the slayings a number of girls were having a campout on the school grounds and he was supervising them. At about 12:45 a.m. Aug. 9, 1969 he heard a man's voice screaming:

"On God, no, please don't. Oh, please don't, don't, don't. Please don't."

The prosecution witness said he checked to make sure the sounds had not come from any of the young women and then drove around but could find nothing wrong so he returned to the school.

The next witness, Rudolph Weber, whose home is not far from the Tate residence, said he was awakened about 1 a.m. Aug. 9, 1969, by the sound of running water and thought there was something wrong with his plumbing.

He said he discovered the garden hose was running. He said he saw four young persons, one man and three girls. He testified he asked the young man, "Just what the hell do you think you are doing?" and the man replied, "Hi, we're just getting a drink of water."

He said they got into their car and that he reached in the window as if to grab the keys but actually he was hoping to scare them off. He said the man drove away at a high rate of speed.

The third prosecution witness was Jim Asin, 16, a neighbor, who said he saw Miss Tate's maid, Winifred Chapman, running out of the estate for help later in the day of the slayings.

It was the maid who discovered the bodies.

Canadian Hitchhiker Doesn't Care For Benefactors' Talk

A 28-year-old Ontario, Canada, hitchhiker decided to part company with his transportation benefactors, shortly before noon Wednesday, after they began talking about robbing him.

Charles Robert Ellis said he jumped from a pickup truck, which was traveling at an estimated 40 mph, near Lark A construction crew, working along 140, took him to Groom Memorial Hospital, where he was treated for multiple lacerations on the head, arms and legs.

Ellis said he accepted a ride near the Oklahoma-Texas state line with two shirtless men driving a pickup truck bearing a Georgia license plate.

Ellis told investigating officers two other hitchhikers were picked up at the same time, but they got into the back of the pickup, and he rode with the two men in the cab.

After leaving a McLean service station, Ellis said the two men started talking about robbing him and he decided not to wait around to see if they meant it.

He jumped from the cab of the pickup leaving his suitcase in the bed of the truck.

The construction crew contacted authorities by citizens band radio.

Ellis will remain in the Groom Hospital until he receives money from home to continue his journey to California, where a job is reportedly awaiting him.

Markets Soon To Be Affected By "Helminthosporium Maydis"

By United Press International — It's technical name is "helminthosporium maydis." Most farmers can't pronounce it, but they know it when they see it—wilted leaves that give a brown tinge to green fields of corn.

Supermarket managers can't pronounce it either. They'll explain to angry housewives at some later date that many of the higher food prices were caused by the "Southern corn leaf blight."

This blight has attacked the nation's corn crop from the Gulf of Mexico to the Canadian border. Early estimates are that as much as 10 per cent of the current $5 billion corn crop has been ruined.

"My whole crop has been affected," said Pete Deas, who planted 150 acres of corn at Jasper, Fla. "I normally get 60 to 80 bushels an acre and it looks like I'll get about 20 to 30."

It takes around 45 bushels to break even.

Most of the corn crop is fed to livestock or exported as feed and any major shortage could eventually force meat and poultry prices up. That's where the housewife will feel the sting of the blight.

The Southern corn blight is a new mutated form of a previously minor fungus, and prevails in damp conditions, wilting leaves and later rotting corn stalks and ears. It is spread by the wind.

"It caught me by surprise," said A. J. Singletary of Blakely, Ga. "This is the first major type disease that has hit corn in many, many years."

An Illinois agricultural official said the blight has ruined 25 per cent of the current Illinois corn crop and the loss may exceed $300 million. That would be about $3,000 of the average Illinois farmer's income.

Service Of Teenage Volunteers To Be Recognized By ACHD

In the Teenage Appreciation Day sponsored Friday by the Amarillo Center for Human Development, 13 Pampa area teenagers and three adults will be recognized for volunteer assistance to children with learning disabilities.

Of the 20 teenagers who volunteered this summer to help with the Pampa Satellite Class, the 13 who can attend will be Cassandra Sweet, Kim Loyd, Susan Morrison, Jo Forsha, Kathy Altman, Cora Wallin, Laura McAnelly, Michelle Norton, Rhonda Mangham, Linney Tucker, Gisele Hudson, Nancy Featherston, all of Pampa, and Cynthia Richardson of White Deer.

Adult aides from Pampa who will attend the appreciation day also will be Mrs. J.B. Maguire, Mrs. Harry Patton and Mrs. R.H. Nensiel.

"The day of recognition is especially for all those teenagers who have worked with these children in the 12 satellite classes in the Texas Panhandle. The teenagers and adults who will be honored will have a tour of the Amarillo center, hear programs by the center's staff, attend a picnic in an Amarillo park and see a demonstration on physical education for the handicapped child," Mrs. Stanley Harmon, Pampa teacher, said.

Six other Pampa teenagers who have worked this summer will be unable to attend the appreciation day are Jackie Emrey, Raynetta Covalt, Debbie Bray, Teresa Akst, Margo Gregory and Mary Price.

Other Pampa adult aides who have worked this summer are Mrs. Warren Mayo, Mrs. Walter Davis and Mrs. J.R. Reeve. Mrs. Wayne Hill and Mrs. Jerry Dunn. Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Dunn are the weekly Bible story teachers for pre-school and post-school classes, Mrs. Harmon said.

Mrs. Kopechne Says Romance 'Plain Silly'

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mrs. Joseph Kopechne said Wednesday talk of romance between her daughter and Sen. Edward Kennedy was "just plain silly" and the senator did his best to save Mary Jo from drowning in Chappaquiddick Pond.

Mrs. Kopechne, in a copyrighted story in the current issue of McCall's magazine, also was critical of two Kennedy aides for not immediately reporting the accident and of the inquest judge for implying Kennedy had not told the whole truth about the tragic affair.

She said she was writing the McCall's story to end speculation and "the ugly rumors" that have been torturing us, since Mary Jo, then 28, drowned July 1, 1969, when a car driven by Kennedy plunged off a bridge on Chappaquiddick Island, Mass.

"Among Mary Jo's boy friends," Mrs. Kopechne said, "there was not one named Sen. Edward Kennedy. All those stories about a romance between the two of them are just plain silly. She got to know him only after Robert Kennedy's death, and even then, she rarely saw him."

In fact, Mrs. Kopechne said, Mary Jo was in love with a foreign service officer she wanted to marry.

Mrs. Kopechne took strong exception to the report issued by Edgartown District Judge James A. Boyle who presided at the inquest into the drowning and its related events, calling it "very hurried and inappropriate."

San Antonio Girl Jumps From Car To Escape Kidnapers

SAN ANTONIO (UPI)—A 6-year-old San Antonio girl escaped from her kidnaper a mile west of Alice, Tex., Wednesday by jumping from a car and hiding in the brush beside the highway.

A statewide warrant was issued today for a man the girl described as a youthful Anglo wearing a white T-shirt and blue pants and driving a four-door sedan.

Two San Antonio detectives, Frank Castillon and Dave Osterveen, drove to Alice early today and returned Margarita Ortiz to Robert B. Green Hospital here for examination.

Margarita's 10-year-old brother said the kidnaper picked up the two children Wednesday morning at a San Antonio Youth Organization center near their home, where their mother had left them.

He said the man drove to a store, gave the boy 50 cents and told him to run in and buy some cigarettes and some candy. When the boy went into the store the kidnaper drove away with Margarita.

Her brother then ran home and reported what had happened to his mother, Mrs. Angela Ortiz.

Harrelson Trial Temporarily Recessed

ANGLETON, Tex. (UPI)—District Judge G. P. Hardy recessed the murder-for-hire trial of Charles Harrelson unexpectedly Wednesday to allow the prosecution time to change the order of its witnesses.

Harrelson, 31, of Houston is charged with the murder of Aal Berg, a Houston carpet firm executive who disappeared from a Houston nightclub May 28, 1968.

Defense attorney Percy Foreman told the all-male jury shortly before the afternoon recess, that the defense agreed the skeleton found on Sirside Island was Berg's. It has two bullet holes in the skull and a rope around the neck.

Foreman's statement may have caused District Attorney Ogden Bass to drop witnesses he planned to use to prove the skeleton's identity.

Only two witnesses have appeared in six days of testimony. They were Harrelson's former girlfriend, Sandra Sue Ataway of Houston, and the private detective, Robert W. Leonard of Houston, who found Berg's remains.

Foreman used Leonard's case notes on Berg to portray the victim as a gambler, deep in debt, who consorted with criminals and underworld characters and who "spent money like there's no tomorrow."

Foreman won the right to use the notes after Leonard said he "refreshed his memory" for the trial by reading them.

Bufano Dead At Age 70

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Benny Bufano, considered by many the greatest sculptor since Rodin, is dead at the age of 72.

The body of the diminutive Italian-born artist, famed for his works of heroic proportions, was found in his studio Tuesday by friends who were worried because they had not heard from him. The coroner's office tentatively blamed a heart attack and said he had been dead for 36 hours.

Bufano was born in the Italian village of San Felece and came to the United States in 1900.

His works are part of the landscape in many open areas in northern California. Many are on display in major museums and the United Nations, where he donated a 35-foot copper hand with a mosaic in the palm depicting the world's children.

Lefors' Band Practice Set

Lefors' new band director, Don R. Adams, announced band rehearsals for grades 7 through 12 will begin Monday, Aug. 24 at 7 p.m. in the high school band hall.

The rehearsals will consist of marching and playing. Adams and his wife, Beverly, who have lived in Lefors only a week, make their home at 406 6th Street.

Both Adams and his wife have been students at West Texas State University.

Laugh-A-Minute Promised For Those Attending Jaycee Fair

A Pampa Little 500 Tricycle Slalom Race, an Egg Toss and a Smiling Broad Grin Contest will be featured special events at the Jaycee Fair to be held August 24-29 in the Coronado Center.

The tricycle race will be held Monday at 7 p.m., said Mike Holmgren, chairman. "We will have different categories according to the size of tricycle and will have free ride-tickets and ribbons for the winners. Every child entering the contest will receive a free-ride ticket."

There is no entry fee for any of the contests and no charge for spectators.

The Egg Toss event will be staged Tuesday. "Contestants must be in spurs," Holmgren explained. "A contestant will throw an egg to his partner and then take a step back before the other returns it. At the end of one minute, the pair that has not broken their egg and is the farthest apart will be the winner."

Wednesday night the Jaycees will determine who has the largest grin in this area with the Smiling Broad Grin Contest. Categories will be by age.

Various civic groups throughout the area will operate game booths and concession stands. Rides will be furnished by Golden Spread Amusement Co.

Fruit 'Happening' Welcomes Summer

This is the high season for fresh pears, nectarines, grapes, blueberries, peaches and practically every other warm weather fruit. After you have eaten enough of them singly, we suggest a "fruit happening."

Take several. Place together in a glass bowl with a block of ice. Then pour over a mixture of cranberry juice cocktail and ginger ale. Let the fruit steep in this mixture awhile, then serve.

CRANBERRY FRESH FRUIT BOWL

2 cups cranberry juice cocktail
1/4 cup sugar

1 cup ginger ale
1 pint strawberries, hulled and halved
2 pears, peeled, cored and diced
2 peaches, peeled, pitted and sliced
2 cups stemmed, seedless green grapes
1 small pineapple, peeled and diced
Fresh mint.....

Mix cranberry juice with sugar and stir until sugar is dissolved. Add ginger ale. Layer all fruits in a serving bowl. Pour liquid over fruit and chill until ready to serve. Toss gently just before serving in small bowls topped with a sprig of fresh mint. Eight servings.

Vanilla Ice Cream Cools Off Summer

Ice cream is one of Summer's joys — especially when it's homemade vanilla ice cream — an all-time favorite.

Folks in Texas are especially fortunate. You can make vanilla ice cream using a vanilla flavoring which doesn't freeze out and gives your finished ice cream the full-bodied vanilla taste you expect it to have.

Besides, there's hardly a better way to cool off during these hot Texas Summer days than with a big dish of icy homemade vanilla ice cream — especially when you get to lick the dasher. Remember?

VANILLA ICE CREAM (makes one-gallon)

4 cups milk
4 eggs
1 1/2 cups sugar
2 tbs. flour
1/2 tsp. salt
4 cups light cream or half and half
4 tsp. vanilla.....

Scald milk. Combine beaten eggs, sugar, flour and salt. Add to milk. Cook in double boiler until custard forms. (approximately 15 min.). Cool. Add light cream and vanilla-freeze.

OLD FASHIONED NO-COOK VANILLA ICE CREAM (makes one-gallon)

3 eggs
1 1/2 cups sugar
1 tbl. vanilla
1/2 tsp. salt
1 large can evaporated milk
1/2 gallon whole milk....

Beat eggs in electric mixer until they are light in color. Add sugar to eggs and beat at high speed until mixture is thick. Add vanilla, salt, and evaporated milk; continue beating until sugar is dissolved. Mix thoroughly into the whole milk. Freeze. (If frozen or canned fruit is added, it must be well drained.)

For richer ice cream, use 1 quart whole milk and 1 quart cream instead of the 1/2 gallon whole milk.

FRESH PEACH ICE CREAM

When the above No-Cook Ice Cream mixture is partially frozen, stir in one-pint crushed fresh peaches sweetened with 1/2-cup sugar and 1/2-tsp. almond extract.

Diet Drink Idea Decreases Hunger

Versatile unflavored gelatin can be used as a diet drink. To allay "diet hunger", a half hour before mealtime, pour one envelope unflavored gelatin into a small glass of skim milk, vegetable juice, or bouillon. Stir briskly and drink at once... and you'll find yourself satisfied with a smaller food intake at mealtime. Each envelope unflavored gelatin has only 28 calories.

Unmolding is Snap!

To unmold gelatin, dip the mold in warm (not hot) water to the depth of its contents. Loosen around the edge with the tip of a paring knife. Place a serving dish tightly on top of the mold and turn it upside down. Shake, holding the serving dish to the mold. If gelatin does not readily slip out, repeat the procedure. The same process applies for unmolding loaf pans.

Cook Outdoors For Labor Day

For the big Labor Day holiday cookout select sirloin of beef, tender and rich. Then try these two "high hat" kabobs. A juicy way to say farewell to the good old summertime.

SIRLOIN KABOBS, ONION MARINADE

SIRLOIN KABOBS—ultimate in eating.

2 to 3 pounds beef sirloin, steak cut into 1 1/2-inch cubes
1/2 cup salad oil
1/4 cup lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon leaf oregano
1 green onion, finely chopped
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon coarsely ground pepper
12 med.-sized mushrooms
12 stuffed green olives
4 12-inch metal skewers

Combine salad oil, lemon juice, oregano, onion, salt and pepper. Pour marinade over meat. Cover and refrigerate 8 to 12 hours. Remove meat from marinade, reserving marinade. Thread meat, alternately with mushrooms and olives, on skewers, allowing 4 steak cubes, 3 mushrooms and 3 olives for each kabob. Place meat on grill

3 to 4 inches from heat. Brush meat, mushrooms and olives with reserved marinade during cooking. Broil 15 to 20 minutes, turning frequently, until browned. Four servings.

Remove bone and cut steak into sixteen 1 1/2-inch cubes. Combine oil, lemon juice, salt, paprika, dry mustard, sugar and onion powder. Add marinade to beef cubes. Cover and refrigerate 4 hours or overnight. Alternate meat cubes with pepper wedges. Place on grill making certain coals have burned down. Grill 15 to 20 minutes, turning occasionally, until browned. Four servings.

Chicken-spread rolls for lunch.

To Entertain, Try Zodiac Sandwiches

Couples tend to entertain more at home. A top request by young wives is for recipes to prepare partially or totally in advance. Snacks suitable for a luncheon group or to be used as hors d'oeuvres fit this category.

In keeping with the current bent for anything relating to the terrestrial, small, filled sandwiches may be cut and decorated on top with food coloring with signs of the zodiac. This adds a decorative zip to a party.

A savory chicken spread or spicy deviled spread are best chilled overnight to allow the ingredients to blend.

SAVORY CHICKEN SPREAD ROLLS

1 1/4-oz. can chicken spread
1 tablespoon piccalilli
1 tablespoon mayonnaise
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 tablespoons chopped cucumber
1 hard-cooked egg, chopped
1/4 teaspoon seasoned salt
14 (or possibly 16) tiny rolls.....
Combine all ingredients except rolls, chill. Slice rolls in half horizontally. Partially hollow out rolls to make room for filling. Fill each with about 1 tablespoon chicken spread mixture. Makes 14-16 servings.

SPICY DEVILED SPREAD

2 1/2-oz. cans deviled ham
1/4 cup butter, softened
1/4 cup chopped dill pickle
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons minced onion
2 tablespoons catsup
Combine all ingredients until well-blended. Pack into a lightly oiled small loaf pan (5 1/2 x 3 1/2 inch) or shape on a serving dish, cover and chill well or overnight. Unmold in loaf pan, serve with crackers and breads for spreading. Makes about 2 cups spread.

Hijackers Have Strange Ideals

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI)—Charles Manson is their hero. Violent revolution is their cause. But Clyde McKay and Alvin Glatowski, the two Americans who hijacked a U.S. minutions ship to Cambodia five months ago, stand little chance of meeting Manson or joining the battle to "overthrow the pigs" they say control the United States.

They are prisoners of the Cambodian Government. During the last three months McKay and Glatowski have been confined to a rusting World War II landing ship moored in the Mekong River beside the Chruai Changwar naval base two miles east of Phnom Penh.

American and Cambodian officials have not talked to them in an official capacity since they diverted to Cambodia the U.S. merchant ship Columbia Eagle, which was carrying war materials to U.S. bases in Thailand.

But the two merchant marines, described by a crewman of the ship as "pot-smoking pill-popping hippies," said they have no regrets over their actions as part of a plan to set up a center here for American military deserters from Vietnam.

Their guards, they said, bring them whatever they can pay for, including marijuana, which is plentiful supply. "We get marijuana in our ducks' egg soup. Great flavor," Glatowski said.

In reply to one question, McKay said: "I think we have reinforced our views since coming here. We came to a country that was neutral for a long time and it seems that through their meddling, the United States has extended the war to Cambodia."

"It seems that there is nowhere in the world that is safe. We thought that the third world might be a refuge sooner or later. But it's not," Glatowski said. "I am prepared to return to the United States with a gun to participate in guerrilla warfare. Today there are many organizations in the United States having guerrilla warfare. The heads (drug addicts) are joining other suppressed minorities. Manson was starting that. Manson is a good American revolutionary. Speaking for both of them, Glatowski said: "We are Marxist revolutionaries, without an American revolution today. But it's building up."

Elusive Angela Davis Still Missing

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The discovery of Angela Davis' 1959 Rambler in front of a Black Panther Party member's home late Tuesday resulted in an intensive but unsuccessful search for the Black militant wanted on a California murder charge.

Miss Davis, a self-professed Communist who was placed on the FBI's list of 10 most wanted persons earlier in the day, is sought on a court affidavit that she bought all four guns used in a San Rafael, Calif., unsuccessful courtroom escape that left four persons shot to death.

The guns Miss Davis purchased in 1968, 1969 and 1970 were smuggled into the courtroom by accomplice Jonathan P. Jackson, 17, but it was reported late Tuesday that a search for the Black militant wanted on a California murder charge.

The weapon had turned up in the militant's apartment here during a police raid but was returned under court order and not seen again until the San Rafael shootout.

Miss Davis, ousted UCLA faculty member, was placed on the FBI list after escaping a series of police raids in her hometown of Birmingham, Ala.

FIGHTING CITY HALL
 MADISON, Wis. (UPI)—John C. Kelly filed a $25,000 claim against the city and its officials Tuesday, charging he was arrested and jailed for not paying the fines on 27 parking tickets that were not his. Kelly said he has not owned a car for nine years.

COTTON-PICKING HASSLE
 DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (UPI)—About one million Tanzanians face a ban on drinking cotton as they start picking cotton. Regional Commissioner Omari Muhajo of Mwanza—Tanzania's prime cotton growing area—warned cotton farmers in the region Tuesday that unless cotton crop picking is brought up to schedule within a week, he will order a complete ban on drinking until the end of the year.

BACKYARD ZOO BUNGLES
 HALMSTAD, Sweden (UPI)—Goesta Backer of nearby Steninge, who claims he is an animal psychiatrist, told town authorities he would release a lion he kept in a cage in his backyard unless they gave him permission to open a local zoo. The health authorities refused permission so, police said, Becker carried out his threat. The lion promptly attacked Backer, clawing and biting him badly. Police killed the animal.

A FORD FOR $896
 MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI)—The Ford Motor Co. has plans to build what a company official calls a "modern Model T Ford—for-the-masses"—to sell for $896.

William O. Bourke, chief executive officer of Ford in Australia, said the car would be marketed only in Australia, Asia and the Pacific at first. "It will be a very basic car—it could even have a plywood body and canvas seats," he said.

NO WOODSTOCK HERE
 OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)—Gov. Dewey Bartlett said it cost the state $32,500 to close the Turner Falls Rock Festival before it began. The governor says it was a bargain.

"This was far less than it would have been if we had tried to provide services for the 30,000 persons," Bartlett said Tuesday. "But far more important is the fact we maintained respect for law enforcement." He also said it was good field training for National Guard troops who patrolled the area to keep festival goers away from the park.

GUILFORD, England (UPI)
 —A five-year-old boy appeared in a Guilford juvenile court Monday on charges of shoplifting shampoo, batteries, photographic equipment, rubber balls, a pot plant, cosmetics and a toy car. The boy sat in court holding his parents hands. Welfare officials were ordered to check on the child for three years.

RECORD HIGH INTEREST
 WASHINGTON (UPI)—The average interest cost for a mortgage on a new home remained at the record high rate of 8.48 per cent during July, according to the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

That record was established in June. The average interest cost for used home mortgages remained at 8.36 during July.

FAR FROM SATISFACTORY

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Daniel A. Okun, a professor at the University of North Carolina, says residents of small towns may be getting water that is far from satisfactory because "the smaller a water system, the more deficient it is."

Okun made the statement Wednesday during an appearance before the fifth International Water Quality Symposium. He said the nation's 23,000 water utilities should be reorganized into large regional systems.

Tricia Back In White House

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Tricia Nixon is back at the White House after several days in the company of her favorite boyfriend, New York socialite Edward Finch Cox.

Miss Nixon, 24, spent Saturday with Cox, who was an usher in a friend's wedding at Grosse Pointe, Mich.

She then flew to New York with the 23-year-old Harvard law student and has been partying with him and his friends. The White House had consistently declined to give Miss Nixon's whereabouts, but Tuesday she turned up strolling down the street with the president during his New York visit.

Forgotten Men

Silence has answered their requests for political asylum. Written pleas to Premier Lon Nol for permission to visit diplomatic missions in Phnom Penh to arrange asylum in a country that does not have an extradition treaty with the United States have not been acknowledged.

McKay, 26, of San Diego, Calif., and Glatowski, 20, of Long Beach, Calif., admitted in an interview that they picked the wrong time to hijack the ship. The day after they sailed the vessel into Kompong Som (Sihanoukville), the 15-year-old regime of Prince Norodom Sihanouk was overthrown and war broke out with the Vietnamese Communists.

NEW FACES IN 1970-71 PICTURE

Would-Be Stars Don't Lack Ambition

By JOAN CROSBY (First of a Series)

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—Success dangles like a toy on a baby's crib just within grasp, as another hopeful batch of actresses and actors reach for stardom with the start of the new television season.

This year's crop of rating fodder is large and varied. The newcomers range in age from Bonanza's Mitch Vogel, just 14, to Ted Knight, 40-plus, a veteran actor playing an egocentric newscaster on Mary Tyler Moore's new CBS-TV series.

Unlike series stars in the Era of the Pretty Parking Lot Attendants, which was long on looks and short on talent, this season's group comes well-established with credentials. Some series, like Storefront Lawyers, The Young Rebels and The Interns (with Broderick Crawford the nominal star) are entirely in experienced hands.

The newcomers all agree that whether or not their particular series is a success, they are already well ahead of the game in recognition and experience for having done it.

How ambitious are they for stardom?

Rick Ely, one of the stars of The Young Rebels on ABC-TV, says, "I'm ambitious enough to get me where I am and where I want to be."

Sandra Smith, the lady among CBS-TV The Interns, says, "I'm not at all ambitious and I could give it up as easy as pie."

Robert Foxworth, who gave a memorable performance last season in the CBS Playhouse production of "Sadbird," and is now one of The Storefront Lawyers on CBS, says he doesn't know what "ambitious" means but, "I'm fairly interested in the development of my career. If that can be construed as ambition, I suppose I have a good deal of it."

Andy Griffith's wife on his new CBS-TV series, Headmaster, is played by delicate-featured Claudette Nevins, an actress with a solid stage background and excellent reviews from all who have seen her work.

She says, "As I look at what I have done, I must be ambitious because the facts clearly indicate that. But I have a daughter, 5½, and if for any reason my career were to jeopardize her happiness, I'd have to do what is right for her."

Lou Gossett, a fine actor who starred on Broadway in "My Sweet Charlie," and is in the film, "The Landlord," is one of The Young Rebels.

He says, "I think the best way to gain recognition is on a TV series. A successful one is the most powerful way, and it gives you a chance to do all the things you want: drama, humor, excitement."

It's not supposed to be chic for actresses to admit their ambition, but Elaine Gittos, who plays Mike Farrell's wife on

The Interns, says she's "terribly ambitious and I'm honest about it."

Renne Jarrett, an actress destined for stardom, is Nancy on NBC-TV. She says she also wants to raise a family. She doesn't know if she could give up acting, something she has done since childhood, "because I don't know anything else."

Susan Dey, a New York teenage fashion model, is, at 17, the oldest daughter in The Partridge Family on ABC-TV. "I'm very ambitious," she says, "although I still don't know where I am."

Valerie Harper, who is playing Mary Tyler Moore's best friend, says, "I have always wanted to be in show business but I have never thought in terms of stardom."

Sheila Larken, another of The Storefront Lawyers, says, "I'm not a hustler. But my ambition hasn't really been tested. I've been very lucky since I left school. I've always had a job and been able to support myself. I might whine a lot but I won't go out and hustle for a job."

David Cassidy, the oldest boy in The Partridge Family and the son of Jack Cassidy, seems to sum up the thoughts of most of this exciting new crop of performers when he says, "I want to succeed. But most of all, I want to be respected as a good actor. That will fulfill my ego."

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Mayor Walter Washington told President Nixon Tuesday he believes "we have turned the tide on crime in this community." Washington wrote the President that the crime rate in the District of Columbia had decreased since January and that there was less crime last month than there was in July 1969.

KUALA LUMPUR (UPI)—Malaysia's new Yang Di-Pertuan Agong (king) Abdul Halim, 40, will be in Sept. 21. According to tradition the sultans of Malaysia's 13 states are to the throne for fixed terms. The present king, Ismail Nasiruddin Shah, made his last official rance Aug 31.

LONDON (UPI)—London's air raid sirens—unused since World War II—may soon wail again to warn residents of flooding. A Ministry of Agriculture spokesman said Monday 100 sirens have been restored for possible use in the coming flood season which could wash the river Thames over its banks.

BELGRADE (UPI)—reported Yugoslavians "of the century" Monday thieves made off with estimated $120,000 from Yugoslav bank. News quoted police spokesman Kavardaci, Macedonia ailing the thieves pulled "clean job" cutting concrete and cast iron the bank from a vault

Dear Abby

By August Van Guren

DEAR ABBY: I am 23, married with a five-year-old son. My husband brings home Playboy magazine, which is not unusual for a man, but yesterday I saw our son sitting quietly, looking at the pictures. I didn't yank the book away from him. I just told him that the book was "new" and his father hadn't read it yet, so he had better give it to me, which he did, but reluctantly. (He said he liked looking at the pictures.)

Abby, I am not old fashioned. When my son asks a question about sex, I try to answer him the best I can for his age with the truth. This is hard for me to do because I never heard one word from my mother about sex.

I know some women don't like for their husbands to look at Playboy, but I really don't see anything wrong with it. But how about my son?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: I can't see anything wrong with a five-year-old boy looking at Playboy. It could, however, lead to disappointment and frustration when he reaches manhood and discovers all girls are not built like those he has seen in the centerfold.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is shy about disrobing in front of me. He covers up fast if he hears me coming. He sleeps in the altogether, but he never takes all his clothes off until the lights are out. I have never seen all of him, except for an occasional accidental glimpse. We have been married for 19 years, and believe it or not, we have a family.

After so long, I wonder if there is something wrong with him for being that way? Or is there something wrong with me for wondering?

CURIOS

DEAR CURIOS: The only thing "wrong" with your husband is his attitude about nudity. It's the way he was reared, no doubt. Since it doesn't seem to hamper your relationship, don't let it bother you. Maybe he's saving "all of himself" for your 25th wedding anniversary.

DEAR ABBY: I don't know who started that silly rule of etiquette that one should always leave "something" on his plate. To me, it's wasteful and sinful. If someone is served more than he can eat in a restaurant, it's understandable, but when I see people pile up a plate full of food and then leave half of it, I think it just shows their ignorance and greediness. What do you think?

HATES WASTE

DEAR HATES: Agreed. Anyone who helps himself, and then leaves half of it on the plate, may as well tell his hostess that her food wasn't nearly as good as it looked.

DEAR ABBY: Here is one secretary who really saw red when she came across that letter from "THE BOSS' WIFE" who was jealous because her husband "honored" his secretary during National Secretary Week.

She said the bosses send their secretaries flowers and take them out for lunch and dinner. Where did this happen? I didn't get any flowers, and as for the lunch and dinner treat — my boss didn't take me, I took him, along with about 30 other secretaries who took their bosses. And by the way it was a luncheon for secretaries who wanted to honor their bosses. And it came out of our pockets, not theirs.

So if you want to be jealous, all I can say is, "Eat your heart out," ..... if you have one.

SECRETARY
— SCRANTON, PA.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Candle Wax On Carpeting Creates Cleaning Problem

DEAR POLLY — We have new green outdoor carpeting on our patio. A large candle was knocked off the coffee table while it was still warm after being lit. This left an ugly tallow spot on the carpet. A blotter was put over it and then pressed with a warm iron but this only made it worse. Ice cubes do no good. Does anyone know a safe solution to this without injury to the carpet and its color?

—LENA

DEAR POLLY — My letter is for Marilyn and all others who are driven to distraction by unsolicited items and junk mail that come through the mail. I solved the problem by marking "Refused, Return to Sender." Sometimes a company does not admit to having received the item from you and they send bills and threatening letters, even from attorneys and collection agents. Ignore them. If you answer as much as one, they know you are worried and will keep sending more.

I handled junk mail in an even simpler way. I had a rubber stamp made that says, "Not Interested. Stop Sending Me Junk Mail." Most companies took the hint at once and removed my name from their mailing lists. A few hard-heads were treated in the following manner: I took every bit of advertising they sent and stamped it with the above stamp. I then stuffed it into that postage-paid envelope they often send and mailed it back. For those that did not have such an envelope, I put all the advertising into a regular envelope without a stamp or return address on it and just addressed it to them. When they have to pay postage on my clever little letter, they take me off the mailing list. Only one company refused to give up. I offered to bet the president of that company that my rubber stamp would hold out longer than his patience, so he gave up. It has been two years since I have received any junk mail other than that addressed to "Occupant" or "Resident." Try it. It works.

—JACK

DEAR POLLY and Marilyn — I solved the problem of unsolicited items coming through the mail by marking them "Deceased. Remove from mailing list." I may be crazy but it worked.

—MARY C.

DEAR MARY C.—Mrs. W.C.S. wrote that she did just this and soon began to receive booklets on cemetery lots and caskets. Glad you had better luck.

Professor Predicts Computer Teacher

CHICAGO (UPI)—Teachers in the 1990s will be directors of computer-based learning systems, says a University of Chicago educator.

Kevin A. Ryan, associate professor of education in the university's Graduate School of Education, said more time to develop the students' social, moral, and esthetic dimensions will be major benefits of the "new efficiency that will come with computer-assisted instruction."

"The schools of the 1990s will be imbued with respect for human diversity and originality," Ryan said. "Our present grading practices will be looked upon by future generations as dunce caps."

"Students will spend a good deal of time on field trips, and the student will do much of his exploring of the world at his computer-information bank console where, in two or three hours, he may well learn three or four times what he is presently learning in school," he continued.

Ryan predicted that students at all grade levels will have much more time to work and play together and that all students will be involved continually in independent study.

Professionally produced films and tapes will be available on almost every subject for teaching purposes and children will learn languages through conversations with children in distant countries.

Said Ryan: "A child may have a Telestar pal in Paris and another in Peking and daily talk to each using his own videophone."

"The educator also saw drastic changes in the school pattern as we know it now.

"The old egg-carton school building is passing, and with it is going the school day dominated by the bell signaling the beginning and the end of neat slices of time; 45 or 50-minute packages of knowledge to be uniformly consumed by all.

"We are moving away from the idea that education is something that a teacher does to a student... we are rejecting the idea that we can train teachers for today's classrooms using the same old mold and the same tired formula.

"Industry, too, has a vested interest in the schools. It looks to the schools to provide it with the scientists, managers and technicians to support and expand the technological society."

"We are slowly realizing," Ryan concluded, "that the new frontier is not outer space — our interest here is already wanting — but the human potential."

'Homey' Feeling Helps Eliminate Child Anxiety

NEW YORK (UPI)—Children who come home to warm homes permeated with the smell of good cooking are less apt to seek sensations such as drug taking, in the opinion of author and social commentator Sam Levenson.

Levenson, who has written two best sellers on the simple virtues of life, is working on a third book which argues that the "sympathetic, automatic, electronic, noise-infected, soot-laden, oxygen-free, peace-free" atmosphere in which children are raised promotes addiction.

"A home should smell like a home," Levenson said.

"Children have got to touch, see and feel they are home. Mothering requires smothering — children whose senses come alive at home do not need to take a trip in search of what is so freely available to them.

"We need to retrace our steps to the days when this kind of home was the rule and not the exception it is today. Too many children do not come home to something cooking in the oven. Over and over they say they 'come home to nobody all the time.'"

Levenson, who wrote "Everything But Money" about life in the ghetto and "Sex and the Single Child" about the basic innocence of youth, does not consider the old-style home a universal panacea. But it can, he says, help eliminate the "boredom, loneliness, sense of personal irrelevance and leisure without purpose" that plague the younger generation.

TELEPHONE HANGUP

COWLING, England (UPI)—Local residents have complained to the post office about calls by Graham Varley, 17, to his girl friend, Vicky Lambert, 16, in Lotresdale, four miles away.

The trouble is Varley uses the only public telephone booth in the town and because it has not been converted yet, he can talk as long as he wants for four pence (4 U.S. cents).

Your Horoscope

JEANE DIXON

FRIDAY, AUG. 21, 1970

Your birthday Friday: The key phrase for the coming year is "to get started." Much inertia has to be overcome, and any new venture requires continual readjustments. This promises expansion in later years. The first seven months are the most difficult; the last five are ones of consolidation. Friday's natives have a propensity toward social activity and finding ways of getting acquainted.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take nothing for granted; work on well-established projects. You hear many wild tales, some so calmly told that they seem real. See the humor of it all, and laugh!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Wait for the full story; double-check any information you have. Meanwhile, do not neglect your regular work. A family conference later on clears the air.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Cope with unsettled conditions in the spirit of a youngster going through a carnival. Verify facts, because there's serious business under the confusion.

CANCER (June 21-July 21): Fanciful schemes are all about you. You have a stroke of luck investigating obscure matters. Romantic urges aren't likely to result in lasting happiness.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22): Make your wishes and feelings known in very simple terms. Keep your own actions on the surface, above any doubt, and refrain from casual promises.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your plans now should be mainly your own. Keep things simple and direct. Starting on long journeys is not favored Friday — wait a couple of days if possible.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Notice what-types of people you have attracted lately. Their doings Friday should tell you much about them. Their financial schemes are not really appropriate for you at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your drive leads you to overeffort and some wishful thinking. Double-check any pledge before relying on it. Secret deals are almost certain to backfire.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The world holds a rose-colored tint for you now — enjoy it while it lasts. Enthusiasm can lead you to do more than is appropriate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Caution is the keyword for Friday. Much depends on self-discipline. Home life can be very comfortable now, but don't bring your career problems home.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Indecision is normal for the early hours, as you lack the full story. Wait for clarification where important people have made complex statements.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Nothing is quite what it seems — some things are no better than expected, others are much brighter. Make the best of it; avoid offering drastic comment either way.

FOR GIRL SCOUTS

Council Announces Senior Opportunity

Green Mountains and Far Meadows is the 1971 Senior Opportunity theme sponsored by the Vermont Girl Scout Council for which Quivira Girl Scouts may be eligible.

Girl Scouts from Quivira Girl Scout Council interested in applying for the opportunity should get an application form from Girl Scout Offices in City Hall. Deadline for applications is Sept. 15.

Senior Opportunities are a part of the nationwide and international activities offered for Girl Scouts beyond the individual troop.

Participants in Green Mountains and Far Meadows Opportunity July 15 to 25, 1971, will drive or walk as they view the Green Mountains of Vermont. For the first three days of the event, they will live at Vermont Technical College in Randolph, Vt.

During the three days of orientation, participants will get acquainted with each other and with the state. The working dairy, cattle farm, and apple orchard at the college will provide orientation for the next five days of farm living.

"At the end of orientation, participants will go in teams of two to live for five days on farms. While at the farm, they will participate as members of the family in the daily activities of farm life; enjoy church suppers, festivals and auctions and will visit craft or antique shops," Miss Celia Fowler, executive director, said.

Girl Scouts will then return to Vermont Technical College for two days of evaluation, longest exchange of experiences, and a concluding speaker. Possible nationally known musicians, writers, and artists who live or summer in Vermont will be available during the three days of orientation and the final two days of evaluation.

The purpose of the opportunity is to offer Cadette and Senior Girl Scouts an opportunity to live with a farm family to appreciate past and present contributions of Vermont's varied farms and her people. The girls will also experience first hand the working of "grass roots" government and life and learn of the folklore and crafts of the Green Mountain state, Miss Fowler said.

Smoking Warnings Cause More Worry

NEW YORK (NEA) — You are sitting in front of your television set, sucking a 100mm, filter-tip menthol, and the man on the screen announces that cigarette smoke contains tar, nicotine, hydrogen cyanide, nitrogen dioxide, acrolein, aldehydes, phenols and carcinogens, whose combined effect can kill you.

You get nervous. And well you should.

Trouble is, though, many smokers subjected to the anti-smoking commercials get so nervous their response is counterproductive. They become so worried they relieve the anxiety by — you guessed it — lighting up another 100mm.

This discouraging paradox has been observed in repeated surveys. Says a spokesman for the American Cancer Society: "We've gone as far as we dare trying to scare people out of smoking. By now everyone knows the dangers. So it's not good just beating them over the head."

Instead, the fight against tobacco is taking a new and more subtle direction, appealing to ego rather than emotions.

Milton Robertson, of the National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, explains it: "Smoking has always had a romantic, sophisticated image. Like Humphrey Bogart taking a long drag just before a love scene with Lauren Bacall. We want to destroy this illusion and make smoking out to be an ugly, socially unacceptable drag."

Robertson directs the radio-television office of the TB Association. His job is to come up with punchy, appealing commercials that will make puff a "four-letter" word.

Some examples: A gay at breakfast opens his morning paper and knocks his ashes into his coffee; a woman playing bridge drops her cigarette into the lemon meringue pie; a lovely young mother feeding her baby absent-mindedly crushes her cigarette into the child's cereal spoon.

"The thing is to make people laugh at the habit," says Robertson, "and at the same time make them think about about smoking. We'd like to reverse decades of thinking about smoking. We'd like to turn it from a mature thing into an immature thing. We'd like to reach a time where, if a guy lights up in a crowded cafe, other patrons will make him feel like a crude, imposing bum."

Antismoking officials believe their campaign has already put smokers on the defensive and point to these developments as evidence:

Some print shops report sales of "No Smoking" signs have increased substantially in the past few months; airline companies are setting aside "no smoking" sections in the new 747 jumbo jet; the federal government is seriously considering a tobacco ban on interstate transit; three pro hockey teams banned spectator smoking at home games last season; legislation is pending in several states to stiffen penalties for violators of smoking laws; several television personalities have refused sponsorship by tobacco companies; many businesses have removed ashtrays from their office waiting rooms; a few companies have even offered cash bonuses to employees who give up smoking.

One Cancer Society official, himself a smoker, says the force of this trend was brought home to him recently when he lit up a cigar in a Chicago haberdashery. "Someone handed me a printed card. It read: 'If you want to kill yourself, go ahead. But do it somewhere else. No smoking!'"

Encouraging as all these actions are to misocapists (tobacco haters), they do not mean unqualified success for the campaign to change the smoking image in the critical area of youth. The rate of smoking among 13-18 year-olds has jumped alarmingly in the last year.

Nevertheless, the campaign is moving into higher gear, and authorities are optimistic. Per capita cigarette consumption is at its lowest point (11.1 per day per person) in a dozen years. And the National Clearing House for Smoking and Health estimates that two to three million people a year are quitting.

"We hope," Robertson says, "that we can make smoking as noxious to the public as spitting in the street. Years ago, it was very popular to spit in the street. Then we found out it transmitted tuberculosis. So we started a campaign to make spitting ugly, unhealthy and unpopular. We succeeded. I think we'll do the same with smoking."

Limits On 70-Day Duck Season Told

AUSTIN (UPI) — The State Parks and Wildlife Commission today approved a 70-day duck season for Texas that will allow hunters to kill from two to 10 ducks daily — depending on the kind and sex of ducks.

The commission also okayed a 75-day goose season to run from Nov. 4 to Jan. 17. There were no changes in the bag limit for geese.

The new duck limits will be based on what wildlife officials call a "100-point plus" system. Under that system, rare ducks such as mallard hens, black ducks, wood ducks, canvas backs, New Mexican ducks and hooded mergansers will be worth 90 points each. Mallard drakes, pintail hens, ringnecked ducks and mottled ducks will have a 20 point value, and all other ducks will be valued at 10 points.

The new bag limit provides a hunter must stop shooting when the last duck he kills puts him over the 100-point limit for the day. A maximum of 180 points is permitted. Thus a hunter could only kill two of the 90 points ducks, but could kill as many as 18 of those valued at 10 points each.

The duck season will open Nov. 4 and close Jan. 12. It is 15 days longer than the 1969 season. A. J. Springs, a parks and wildlife staff member, told the commission most duck populations are increased over 1969, and some are at their highest points since 1956.

However, Springs said geese populations are about on a par with last year, and added "some types of our geese are in trouble."

The goose season was shortened from 85 to 75 days.

Springs said the new point system on duck bag limits "is quite a relaxation from the season we had last year." In 1969, Texas hunters could kill only four ducks per day during the 55 day season. Department spokesmen said the 1970 duck season will be the most liberal for Texas in the past 25 years.

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM,
UPI Foreign News Analyst

As the United States, and the Soviet Union move with an accord rare in their history toward a relaxation of world tensions, the headlines reflect the hopes and fears their efforts arouse.

"Moscow-Bonn Treaty—Key to New Europe?" that was one. "French Hail Bonn-Moscow Treaty, But..." was another. Of the Mideast, they declared: "SALT: Some Ground Has Been Broken," declared The New York Times. Said the Christian Science Monitor: "Arms Talks Fall Short of Hopes."

But as one perused these headlines running the gamut, Moscow-to-Bonn, Moscow-to-Peking, Washington-to-Jerusalem, Washington-to-Paris-to-Saigon, it seemed permissible to entertain for at least a moment a small hope that perhaps the world would become a better place in which to live. At least people were talking.

Yet, as American forces continue their phased withdrawal from Vietnam and as hopes mount for a new era of peace Europe, it is well to take a look at history lest euphoria overcome reality.

In 1955, the Soviets suddenly agreed to sign a peace treaty with Austria after blocking it for years. It was only part of a peace offensive which had several objectives.

First, the Soviets sought to establish a line of neutral states protecting their western flank from Sweden to Yugoslavia. By various means, including holding out the plum of German reunification, they sought to prevent the rearming of West Germany and to oust the United States from Europe.

The new Moscow-Bonn treaty could indeed be the beginning of a new and peaceful era for Europe.

It also could be a means to woo West Germany away from its close western ties with promises of huge economic gains through trade with eastern Europe and to weaken the West European economic community before it can be joined by Britain.

Cubs Gain On Pirates, Mets

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

Unnoticed and unheralded, the Chicago Cubs are slipping back into the National League's Eastern Division race.

Both the Pittsburgh Pirates and the New York Mets lost Wednesday while the Chicago Cubs routed San Diego, 12-2, for their fourth victory in their last 12 games after having lost 12 straight prior to that. The Cubs are now just four games behind Pittsburgh and 1½ games behind the Mets.

Jim Hickman, the last of the original Mets, hit two homers and drove in five runs to pace the Chicago victory. Winning pitcher Ferguson Jenkins, (15-14), Billy Williams, Joe Pepitone, Johnny Callison and Glenn Beckert also homered for the Cubs.

In the other games, Houston topped New York, 9-4. San Francisco beat Pittsburgh, 7-4. Montreal beat Cincinnati, 8-6. Atlanta nipped Philadelphia, 3-2, and Los Angeles beat St. Louis, 4-2.

The Mets made four errors and Ken Singleton turned Denis Menke's fly into a three-run triple in the third inning. Tom Seaver gave up 10 hits in six innings and suffered the loss, his third in his last four starts.

Pittsburgh was presented a golden opportunity to gain a game on New York since the Mets played Houston in an afternoon contest and the Pirates played the Giants at night. But Willie McCovey's two-run homer and Bobby Bonds' two-run double paced the Giants to the victory.

"Pittsburgh has one of the best hitting teams in the league and they have the best infield but their pitching is hurting them," winning pitcher Juan Marichal said. "They need too many runs to win. If they get some pitching, they're better than the Mets and Cubs."

Luke Walker gave up four runs in five innings and took the loss while Orlando Pena allowed three runs in one inning and was put on waivers after the game. The Pirates called Fred Cambria up from Columbus to replace him.

San Diego, continuing to play well against the top clubs, completed a two-game series sweep of Cincinnati. A six-run rally in the fifth inning gave the Padres the victory as Rusty Staub, hit a bases-loaded single and Ron Brand added a two-run triple. Bob Bailey drove in three runs with a homer and a single.

Cassius Loses Legal Round

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals refused Wednesday to hear an appeal by Cassius Clay, sentenced to five years and a $10,000 fine by a Houston court on a draft evasion charge.

Clay's first trial resulted in a conviction in June, 1967, in a Houston district court. In April, 1969, the U.S. Supreme Court sent the case back to Houston when it was discovered some of the evidence used against Clay was illegally obtained through wiretapping.

The Houston court, under District Judge Joe Ingraham, said the wiretapping had nothing to do with the case and sustained the sentence.

Clay was convicted on a 1967 indictment charging he refused to be inducted into the U.S. armed forces. Clay was stripped of his world heavyweight title April 28, 1967, just 15 minutes after he refused to be inducted.

The 29-year-old undefeated champion argued he should not be forced into the Army because he was a conscientious objector and a Black Muslim minister.

Clay's attorneys, encouraged by a U.S. Supreme Court decision deferring conscientious objectors, filed the 5th Circuit Court appeal July 20.

The appeals court, headed by Circuit Judge John Minor Wisdom, did not elaborate on the reason for the denial of the appeal, but simply refused the hearing after polling all 5th Circuit judges.

NATIONAL MEET SET

HOUSTON (UPI)—Walter Hedman of Gary, Ind., will defend his world checker championship title starting Sunday at the National Open Checker Tournament.

Prospectus — Lou Saban's talent shuttle has slowed down, which would indicate progress. But it's not really tangible. Broncs do not have those two or three super stars to separate them from pack and paint them upward — and they've got that tough Western division to contend with.

Offense — Expect tall Steve Tensi and his mended back to return to regular season, but that's no guarantee of anything. He yielded to Pete Liske couple of times last season. Pete doesn't have Steve's strong arm. And young Al Pastrana merely fills out cast. Rating — C.

Receiving — No shortage. You start with Al Denson, among class of league. Can pick from Mike Harfner, John Embree, Billy Van Heusen and ace rookie Jerry Hendren to be his deep running mate. In even-odd swap of tight ends, Jim Whalen (ex-Patriot) replaced Tom Beer at tight end. Not big, but he's more threat as receiver. Rating — B.

Running — When Floyd Little was healthy, Broncs' condition as team was likewise. Old Bowlegs (straighten him out and he'd be 6-3) was superb last year when able to play (barely more than half time). Now they've added Bob Anderson, Colorado All-American, who'll be either his mate or support, and Willie Crenshaw, former Cardinal who has had some great moments as pro. Fran Lynch is steady fill-in. Rating — B PLUS.

Line — Greatest attribute is togetherness. No change for three years now in basic unit, which features underrated Larry Kaminski at center. George Goeddeke, former Notre Damer, has best chance to achieve star rating at guard. Important feature is that starters are all young and should get better. Rating — B.

Defense — They can tear up a team which relaxes. Rich Jackson at end and Dave Costa at tackle don't have many equals as pass rushers. The other end, Pete Duranko, comes on strong, too. And there's a backup rookie named Alden Truche they like. Other tackle slot is filled by any of three vets — most likely Paul Smith. Rating — B PLUS.

Linebacking — Pretty well set with John Tward in middle. Carl Cunningham and Chip

To Be A Long, Hobbling Summer?

DALLAS (UPI)—The Dallas Cowboys—limping, hobbling and suffering—will work out on the Cotton Bowl's astroturf today and Friday in preparation for Saturday's Green Bay Packers game.

There will be more bad than good legs in the offensive line when the Cowboys line up for battle against the Packers.

At tight end Pettis Norman is out with a strained groin muscle and Mike Ditka has a pulled hamstring. Rayfield Wright, normally a tackle, and Ken Bailey, a rookie, will fill in at the position.

Guard Ralph Neely is in bed with fluid on the knee. Center Malcolm Walker and tackle Tony Liscio have the same problem.

"The negative point of our whole training camp was the veterans reporting late," coach Tom Landry said. "The result is that they're now being penalized because we've had to press our team so strongly for conditioning that a lot of our people who have had knee operations are suffering from them."

"Overall, this is the reason we're in such bad shape physically at this point. Most of the trouble is in the offensive line. Neely probably won't be able to play this week. Liscio will play but he's far from being in top shape right now and Walker is coming along slowly and remains questionable."

On defense, cornerback Mel Renfro also is having knee fluid problems and safety Mike Gaechter has yet to play a down this summer.

Namath Ready, Willing And Able Headline Hunter

NEW YORK (UPI)—When you've got it, flaunt it, and one thing Joe Namath has is great timing.

He doesn't pick just any old day, he picks one that counts. Like Tuesday. Maybe you weren't paying attention but Tuesday was a day in which 67 tons of nerve gas were dumped into the Atlantic, Wyoming went through its worst forest fire in history and Yemen had its first rain in three years.

Yesterday was an eventful day on another count also.

Joe Namath finally showed up!

In the flesh. Well, if you're gonna sit there and get absolutely technical about it, in a sleek brown Jaguar he was a little tardy. Only 11 training days.

Arrived In Silence

Joe showed up at the New York Jets' training quarters in Hempstead, N.Y., dressed in mod clothes and looking rather glum. The first thing he said was he didn't want to talk to any newspapermen. They always misquote him.

He got into the elevator in one of the Hofstra College dormitories the Jets use and punched the button for the 10th floor, where he shares a room with safetyman Jim Hudson. Namath walked into the room, closed the door and within a few minutes teammates Mike Battle, John Elliott and Don Maynard dropped in to visit him.

Hudson soon emerged from the room laughing.

"Namath said 'I got no room for my clothes,'" Jim said.

Frank Ramos, the Jets' publicist, came along, entered

Avco Classic

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI)—A field of 156 professionals launch bids for one of the richest prizes of the year today in the opening round of the $160,000 Avco Classic.

Most of golf's richest winners were present and swinging at Pleasant Valley Country Club for the start of a four-day, 72-hole campaign that will reward the victor with $32,000, the fifth highest single prize on the tour to date. Among the few missing were Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Frank Beard.

While any of a dozen entries could be regarded as favorites, Gary Player soared suddenly into the top spot Wednesday when he apparently cured the putting problem that has kept him from a tour tournament victory for more than four months.

Player shot a one-under-par 71 during the pre-am preliminary while putting with a cross-handed style that he said he had used only once before in tournament play.

3—How to Concentrate

I imagine the touring pros were as thrilled as the fans this year when Ben Hogan came out of retirement and played in Houston and Fort Worth. Played unbelievably well, too, for a man who is nearly 60 and who laid off for so long.

Ben's concentration always has amazed me. I believe he concentrates intently on his game from the time he gets up in the morning until he makes his last putt of the day. That is a span of probably eight hours, and I could never do it. It would flat wear me out.

I try to concentrate hard for about 30 seconds before each shot. Then after I make that shot I like to relax and let my mind wander. I'll talk with my caddie, or lollygag around, or look at a pretty girl in the gallery. I can't play this tour otherwise.

I like to use a mental image of a big stage curtain coming down in my head 30 seconds before I hit the ball. That's my curtain of concentration falling. In that next 30 seconds I'll size up the shot and decide how I want to hit it. I find it's enough time, and I don't worry before or after the shot. Each shot becomes a separate little game. Especially if you play only once or twice a week, you probably could benefit from adopting this attitude toward concentration.

Orioles Stretch Lead To 11 Full Over Yankees

By United Press International

Mike Cuellar, whose idea of playing it cool on the mound is to toil in weather where the humidity and temperature meet at 100, picked up his 18th triumph of the season Wednesday night as the Baltimore Orioles edged the Milwaukee Brewers, 3-2.

The Oriole triumph, coupled with Minnesota's 3-2 triumph over the New York Yankees, enabled Baltimore to push its lead to 11 games over the Yanks in the American League East.

Cuellar, working eight innings for the triumph, posted his seventh win in nine starts since the All-Star game break.

Hits Run-Scoring Single

Merv Rettenmund hit a run-scoring single in the eighth to help the Orioles take the victory. Cuellar, who allowed six hits, departed in the ninth after Ted Kubiak led off the inning with a double. Eddie Watt retired three straight batters to preserve Cuellar's win.

In other games Oakland thrashed Detroit, 7-0; Chicago outscored Boston, 13-5; Kansas City edged Washington, 2-1; and Cleveland stopped California, 2-0.

Prediction — Fourth in Western division, which is more tribute to competition than knock on Broncs.

Cassius Loses Legal Round

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals refused Wednesday to hear an appeal by Cassius Clay, sentenced to five years and a $10,000 fine by a Houston court on a draft evasion charge.

Clay's first trial resulted in a conviction in June, 1967, in a Houston district court. In April, 1969, the U.S. Supreme Court sent the case back to Houston when it was discovered some of the evidence used against Clay was illegally obtained through wiretapping.

The Houston court, under District Judge Joe Ingraham, said the wiretapping had nothing to do with the case and sustained the sentence.

Clay was convicted on a 1967 indictment charging he refused to be inducted into the U.S. armed forces. Clay was stripped of his world heavyweight title April 28, 1967, just 15 minutes after he refused to be inducted.

The 29-year-old undefeated champion argued he should not be forced into the Army because he was a conscientious objector and a Black Muslim minister.

Clay's attorneys, encouraged by a U.S. Supreme Court decision deferring conscientious objectors, filed the 5th Circuit Court appeal July 20.

The appeals court, headed by Circuit Judge John Minor Wisdom, did not elaborate on the reason for the denial of the appeal, but simply refused the hearing after polling all 5th Circuit judges.

Pro Charts

BY MURRAY OLDERMAN

Denver

PROSPECTUS — Lou Saban's talent shuttle has slowed down, which would indicate progress. But it's not really tangible. Broncs do not have those two or three super stars to separate them from pack and paint them upward — and they've got that tough Western division to contend with.

OFFENSE — Expect tall Steve Tensi and his mended back to return to regular season, but that's no guarantee of anything. He yielded to Pete Liske couple of times last season. Pete doesn't have Steve's strong arm. And young Al Pastrana merely fills out cast. Rating — C.

RECEIVING — No shortage. You start with Al Denson, among class of league. Can pick from Mike Harfner, John Embree, Billy Van Heusen and ace rookie Jerry Hendren to be his deep running mate. In even-odd swap of tight ends, Jim Whalen (ex-Patriot) replaced Tom Beer at tight end. Not big, but he's more threat as receiver. Rating — B.

RUNNING — When Floyd Little was healthy, Broncs' condition as team was likewise. Old Bowlegs (straighten him out and he'd be 6-3) was superb last year when able to play (barely more than half time). Now they've added Bob Anderson, Colorado All-American, who'll be either his mate or support, and Willie Crenshaw, former Cardinal who has had some great moments as pro. Fran Lynch is steady fill-in. Rating — B PLUS.

LINE — Greatest attribute is togetherness. No change for three years now in basic unit, which features underrated Larry Kaminski at center. George Goeddeke, former Notre Damer, has best chance to achieve star rating at guard. Important feature is that starters are all young and should get better. Rating — B.

DEFENSE — They can tear up a team which relaxes. Rich Jackson at end and Dave Costa at tackle don't have many equals as pass rushers. The other end, Pete Duranko, comes on strong, too. And there's a backup rookie named Alden Truche they like. Other tackle slot is filled by any of three vets — most likely Paul Smith. Rating — B PLUS.

Agriculture And Politics

What started out 37 years ago as a cure-all for poverty on farms has now been turned into a political vote-swap routine in Congress, with 80 per cent of the $3.5 billion in 1968 subsidies going to 785,242 out of 2,371,647 farmers. Two-thirds of the "little guys" got less than $1,000 each, and 400,000 of the poorest farm families were not benefited in any way.

The May Reader's Digest reviews the situation and comes to the conclusion that the congressional seniority system is to blame for not changing the fixed pattern of farm subsidies.

Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee is 70-year-old W.R. "Bob" Poage, a 33-year veteran in Congress, who has sidetracked several attempts to put a $20,000 limit on federal payments to any one farmer.

He also has bottled up President Nixon's proposal to extend food aid to every needy American. Commenting on this, Rep. Paul Findley (R-Ill.) is quoted as saying of Poage: "He's holding the hunger program hostage in order to corral votes for his $2 billion for cotton."

It's the same old story. When the government begins to give away money, whether for welfare or for farm subsidies, the politicians soon build up a following large enough to make changes extremely difficult.

President Nixon is trying to use the food paid for by tax payers to distribute to people on welfare. But the political plum is in the hands of Congressman Poage of Texas, who is more interested in maintaining high subsidies for well-to-do cotton growers. The "little fellow" has been pretty well squeezed out of producing cotton, too.

Of necessity, "good politics" requires compromises, and that means that principles go by the board. This makes for a system of trading votes. "I'll help you with your bill if you'll help me with mine." That's the game Poage is playing now. He wants to get as much for Texas cotton growers as possible, even if he has to "play politics" with distributing food to the poor on welfare.

Other politicians who are dependent on welfare votes will make a "deal," supporting high subsidies for cotton, and eventually some kind of a compromise on both issues will be reached.

Schools, the post office, welfare and anything else that the government supports with large appropriations of tax money, must suffer through the agonies of waste and delay inherent in politics.

That's why the less government we have the more responsive it will be. The bigger our government gets the further away from the people it becomes, and the more taxes it demands.

First Big Deal - The Axle

As every school boy knows, man's first great invention was the wheel. Right?

Nonsense! writes an anonymous sage in "Through the Meshes," a modest compendium of ohmly wisdom published by the W.S. Tyler Co. of Mentor, Ohio.

No one invented the wheel, he avers, because the wheel always existed. Every round stone was a wheel. Every fallen tree trunk was a wheel, as was anything that could roll.

But they were all useless until someone invented the axle, on the ends of which wheels could be made to turn, and on top of which a platform could be built to carry things.

Thus not the wheel but the axle was the first great invention.

Watch out for old duffs like us, says the author. We're still able to think pretty well.

Hate-Engendering Labels

If it is legitimate to call all policemen "pigs," then college students can't complain if they are called "bums," as they were by President Nixon during a recent visit to workers in the Pentagon.

But if there is one thing we ought by now to have learned from this country's restless and frustrated youth, it is that hate, of which name-calling is both a symptom and weapon, only generates more hate.

If there is one thing every American, from the President and Vice President on down, can do to help heal the terrible wounds inflicted on the national soul, it is now and henceforward to forswear the temptation to fling deprecatory labels against one another.

As for college students, they could do worse than to begin by heeding some words spoken recently by Charles J. Hitch, president of the University of California, a school which has seen its share of trouble:

"As the president of the university, I must lay down the warning to the university community that it is wrong to resort to easy rationalizations about the impotent. The foundation of universities is that ideas and the words to express them can be more powerful than any bomb."

"In the university, above all other institutions of American society, we have a profound duty to resist and oppose shoddy thinking and lies, and rhetoric which inflames and shocks but does nothing for the truth."

"Free speech means careful and skeptical listening, not taking a rhetorical trip. Free expression includes, especially in the university, the duty to oppose cant, dogma and ideological harangue by reasoned and disciplined counter-argument. The crowd that turns into a mob is an insult to the principles of democratic society, and it is a moral insult to the fundamentals of a university."

H. L. Hunt Writes

RED SPY SHIPS
The maiden flight of the new U.S. Poseidon missile, launched from a submerged submarine, attracted the curious eyes and electronic ears of a Russian ship in a critical Navy test 35 miles off Port Canaveral recently.

Like all U.S. weapons tests at Cape Kennedy and near its port, the firing of the Poseidon from the nuclear-powered submarine U.S.S. James Madison got response from the Russian trawler Laptev, a sleek ship obviously equipped for spying on our successor to the Poseidon missile. The Poseidon will be capable of delivering a multiple-warhead H-bomb package.

While Russian spy vessels have prowled the test area before, there had been no "confrontation" such as developed between two U.S. Navy surface ships and the Laptev. The Red trawler seemed desperate to collect debris samples that were a by-product of the underwater firing. Twice it cut into the path of a U.S. vessel. A collision was avoided and the Russians didn't get their specimens.

The bold antics of the Laptev illustrates the determination of the Russians to learn our secrets. The maneuver was not in territorial waters so the moves were "legal." But the incident is indicative of the expanding operations of the Russian surface fleets, both Naval and commercial. The high seas operations of the Communists complement their military posture on the land and their subversive work worldwide.

GOD BLESS
MIDDLE AMERICA

Did you display Old Glory on the Fourth of July? Or feel proud of the U.S.A. as you watched "Honor America Day" on television? Did Billy Graham's plea to honor God and our Nation "hit home" in your heart?

If so, you are obviously one of the outdated, simple-minded people contemptuously known in sophisticated circles as "Middle Americans."

Would you like to know what the proper, cosmopolitan, with-it reaction was to the celebration of America's 194th birthday? You need go no further than the hallowed pages of the New York Times where, on July 5, Tom Wicker analyzed the doings of the preceding day. Picture Mr. Wicker, staying up through the wee hours of the morning to produce this immortal distortion:

...many Americans do not wish to honor America as they perceive it today...

"Honor America Day could not attract men and women who believe little honor is due a nation that persists in a brutal and destructive war... a war that has uprooted the society of South Vietnam, blasted its cities and countryside, slaughtered and made homeless its bewildered people by the hundreds of thousands, all in the name of saving their right to self-determination..."

Wicker went on to say that "The number of color TV sets or automobiles America turns out... or the fact that the annual increase in her gross national product is greater than Italy's entire output does not change the case."

People like Mr. Wicker are forever berating such "materialistic" indices of American prosperity as automobiles and refrigerators. From their lofty perches, they shudder at the clods who put such value on things instead of ideals. At the same time, however, these liberal pundits demand that the poor be upgraded. How? Surely not spiritually! Culturally, perhaps? Can you picture the social workers passing out sympathy tickets in lieu of welfare checks? No - upgrading is material - to buy such tacky items as refrigerators and cars and - yes - television sets. And the money for same doesn't come from Italy. Could it be that the Liberal objection is not at materialism at all - but to America?

As for our "slaughter" of the Vietnamese people, did our bleeding-heart friends never hear of the Communist aggressors who started the war in the first place? Does the Times not have, somewhere in its archives, the unbelievably horrible list of Communist atrocities in Vietnam?

Listen to Mao Tse-tung, in his statement of May 20: "...The Chinese people firmly support the revolutionary struggle of the American people. I am convinced that the American people who are fighting valiantly will ultimately win victory and that the fascist rule in the United States will inevitably be defeated. The Nixon Government is beset with troubles internally with utter chaos at home..."

Who are you for, Mr. Wicker? Or is that a simplistic question in this sophisticated age?

STRAIGHT TALK: On Britan, China and Mr. Nixon's Plan

By TOM ANDERSON
Britain's Socialist Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain told Parliament shortly before he was voted out of office that if the alleged My Lai massacre in Vietnam is proved true, Britain would disassociate itself from support of the Americans and condemn them.

What support? Anyhow, that would be the only good thing that has resulted from the horrible My Lai disclosures. Too bad Britain didn't disassociate herself from us prior to World War I and World War II. Too bad we've thrown billions of dollars into Britain's ratholes, trying to save an arrogant, decadent nation which doesn't deserve to be saved. Hundreds of British ships have carried supplies into Haiphong harbor to our Vietcong enemy - and they still do. Britain would do anything for money. As I have remarked before, Britain would bomb Britain for cost plus 20 percent.

Please "disassociate," Limes! With friends like you, we don't need any enemies.

Two Americans released from months in Communist Chinese captivity say Peking is mobilizing its population for a war with the Soviet Union and the United States, which is like the University of Texas football team taking on Vassar.

I'll still bet a 38-cent dollar to 3 doughnuts that the only war Red China and Russia will fight will be over our grave. Their most serious argument is not over Manchuria but over how to bury us. Russia's Chinese antagonism involves Mao Tse Tung more than it does China itself. And history's greatest murderer, Mao, won't be around much longer.

If our leaders ever take us to war again on Russia's side, they should be tried for treason. They should have been before I went to war once, to make the world safe for Communism. I'd never do it again.

Another "news" report says U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers assured the new Socialist government of West Berlin of President Nixon's full support in its attempt to negotiate agreements to reduce tensions in Moscow. Socialist Willy Brandt, incredibly elected recently to head West Germany, has opened talks with Moscow on a non-aggression pact. Brandt has always been pro-Communist. Brandt will, if he has his way, reunite West Germany and East Germany. And then deliver Germany into the hands of the Communists. I suppose there could be no surer way to Armageddon.

Mr. Nixon's widely ballyhooed "Nutrition and Health" announced, incredibly-generous, something-for-everybody program look cheap. Whereas President Nixon urged a $1600 income floor for every "family," work or not, the "conference" raised the graft to $5500 guaranteed annual income to be confiscated from workers and paid to shirkers. In some areas, of course, a

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BRANDSTADT
Five-day Egg-Free Diet Tests Allergy to Eggs

Q-How can a person tell whether he is allergic to eggs?
A-Eat an egg-free diet for five days. In addition to eggs per se, you must avoid anything made with baking powder:

coffee that is clarified by adding egg shells; root beer; Ovaltine; breads, pancakes or waffle mixes, unless the label states that they contain no egg; Bavarian cream; angel food and sponge cake; meringue; macaroons and other cookies; such pie fillings as custard, lemon cream, coconut cream and pumpkin; blanc mange; ice creams and sherbets, unless made from mixes that do not contain egg; sausage, meat loaf or croquettes; noodles; salad dressings, unless known to be made without egg; hollandaise and tartar sauce; and alphabet soup, bouillon, broth or any soup cleared with egg shells. Many commercial candies made without eggs are brushed lightly with egg white to give them a luster.

At the end of your egg-free period, eat a small portion of egg, especially the white, and see whether within two or three hours you have an attack of asthma or hives.

Q-I have a spot on my forearm that my doctor says is eczema. I've prescribed an ointment but I now have similar spots all over my body. What causes this? Is there a cure for it? Can my children catch it from me?

A-True eczema is caused by an allergy to something you eat or come in direct contact with. The first step in treatment is to discover through skin tests and elimination diets what is causing it in your case, so that you can avoid it. Allergies are not contagious but your children could inherit a tendency to some form of allergy - not necessarily eczema - from you.

Q-Whenever I wear metal next to my skin, I break out. What causes this?
A-This contact dermatitis is caused by an individual sensitivity and is a form of allergy.

Q-My doctor says I have urticaria pigmentosa but that by the time I am 21 I won't have it. I hate to wait that long. What do you recommend?
A-This itching skin eruption rarely persists into adult life. Calamine lotion with phenol will relieve the itching and pyribenzamine by mouth often helps to clear up the pigmented spots.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt can't answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

CAPITOL EYE Japan Protests Withdrawal Of American Troops

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) - The Japanese government has secretly protested strongly to the United States about President Nixon's proposed withdrawal of some 20,000 American troops from South Korea, this reporter has learned.

The Japanese say this withdrawal will be harmful to East Asian stability. It will endanger the independence of South Korea. They imply it will encourage North Korea's Kim Il Sung, Communist China's Mao Tse-tung and Ho Chi Minh's successors in Hanoi. It will have effects in Nationalist China and Southeast Asia. The action, therefore, would have unhappy results for Japan.

The Japanese protest is based, of course, on psychological considerations. Military specialists believe South Korea's ground troops are a match for the North Koreans. That is, they can more than hold their own so long as the United States provides arms, logistical and technical support - and air and sea forces if and when North Korea invades the South.

The U.S. government has assured Seoul it will provide this backup - and also funds to upgrade Korea's forces in arms and material.

What the Japanese foresee is that the withdrawal of U.S. troops will be taken as a symbol of a retreat of American will. They think this "retreat" will create a vacuum, which will lead to the instabilities mentioned above.

As is well-known, Japan is not alone in this worry. The South Koreans have protested with the greatest vigor. The Thai foreign minister, in private and in public for the past two years, has told his government that if the United States shows signs of backing off in the Far East, then his government, however painfully, must make what deals it can with Peking and Hanoi, for it will face very serious problems indeed. The heads of state of Malaysia, Laos and Singapore, in one way or another, have made it clear to their neighbors and to Washington that they believe a continued strong American presence in Asia is essential to their national independence. Prince Sihanouk of Cambodia made similar statements before his overthrow.

American discussions on the possibility of withdrawing sizable numbers of troops from Germany has likewise caused consternation among the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) nations of Western Europe. It has brought the strongest of representations from Bonn.

Now all this is not to pass judgment on the wisdom of a partial troop withdrawal from South Korea or Europe. Nor is it meant to imply that Nixon should not continue his troop pullouts in South Vietnam.

What this reporter does suggest most strongly is that the U.S. recognize the great political and psychological effects worldwide of American troop shifts. Major U.S. military withdrawals must be preceded by physical actions which will not only inform but convince our allies and their enemies what American intentions are.

It is not enough to make statements or explanations, however logical. The Russians, the Red Chinese, the East Europeans and the North Vietnamese do not believe statements. Neither do the Japanese, the South Koreans, the Chinese Nationalists, the Southeast Asians, the West Europeans, the Israeli or the Arabs.

GIs are a very strong and effective expression of American will and intent. If they are removed for partly removed, an equally convincing physical expression of American intent must be substituted. It need not always be wholly military.

Reform Of Labor Laws Is Overdue

Reform of Labor Laws Is Overdue
By DON OAKLEY

The nation faces another railway strike threat on Sept. 6, just before Labor Day, ironically. This is the expiration date of the 60-day cooling off period invoked by President Nixon under the emergency provisions of the Railway Labor Act.

Background music to the dispute is a familiar tune, the "third man" theme - the question of whether a fireman is needed in a diesel cab in addition to an engineer and brakeman.

A nationwide rail shutdown may be averted if the United Transportation Union accepts a solution just recommended by a presidential emergency board. Firemen would gradually be eliminated through attrition by retirement or death, and no new firemen would be hired. None of the 17,500 firemen now on the job would be dismissed and those holding seniority would have an opportunity to bid for a new job classification of fireman-brakeman.

In the meantime, Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., has introduced a joint resolution in Congress to establish a Commission on Labor Law Reform. Charging that the Railway Labor Act has proved ineffective throughout its 45-year history, he cites the fact that its emergency provisions have been invoked 188 times since its enactment in 1925. Twice Congress has had to legislate to end rail disputes.

"The transportation industries represent just one area of concern in labor-management relations," says Tower, adding that "our outmoded labor laws are a prime contributor to this dangerous state of affairs."

Tower is also author of another major and controversial labor law reform measure which would strip the National Labor Relations Board of its jurisdiction in unfair labor practices cases, which constitute the bulk of the board's business, and restore that jurisdiction to the federal courts.

The NLRB has long been under attack for alleged pro-union bias, often to the subjugation of individual workers' rights.

The fate of Tower's legislation may well be determined by the outcome of current negotiations in the rail dispute.

A settlement would tend to shunt the drive for labor law reform onto a stilling, less a strike, followed by a possible one in the automobile industry, could build up enough pressure to prod Congress into finally taking an overdue look into the tangle of labor laws it has written over the decades.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Beware of stock and bond market rallies predicted on declining prime interest rates, January Service warns, because nothing could be more unrepresentative of the actual money situation at this time than a lower prime rate. "The Brazilianization of U.S. finance" is on its way, the firm says, with U.S. interest rates headed for the extortionate and intolerable levels "which characterize the chaos that is stabilized in the Brazils of this world." At the moment, the prime rate sector is the only area in which "money is worth less than it was last spring" and even this bargain is temporary, it adds.

There's a good argument for the volatile glamor stocks and high-multiple issues to rebound somewhat from last week's lows, Walston & Co. says. Short-interest in these issues is expanding, suggesting that a growing number of traders are attempting to catch quick moves on the short side.

Even during this troublesome period, in which high-multiple stocks are falling and others see-sawing, there are groups and individual securities that should be bought, Hardy & Co. says.

Kent State Disturbance Found National Guard Unprepared

KENT, Ohio (UPI)—A member of the president's Commission on Campus Unrest said today National Guard troops were "absolutely unprepared" to cope with the May 4 Kent State disturbance which resulted in four students being shot to death.

"The soldiers were absolutely unprepared for the type of situation in which they were involved," said Revis O. Ortique Jr., a former president of the National Bar Association. The four students were shot to death during a confrontation with National Guard troops following a demonstration to protest expansion of the war in Indochina.

Ortique said after touring the site of the shooting the soldiers should never have fired from a knoll because they did not have a clear view of everything within the range of their weapons.

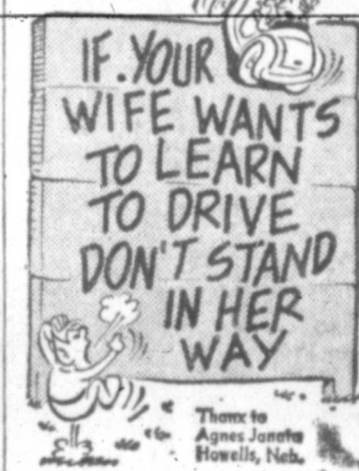

"When you have a .30 caliber weapon you should never fire unless you can see everything beyond the muzzle of that gun that is within range," he said.

The commission opened hearings here after President Nixon rejected an appeal from Gov. James A. Rhodes to postpone them. The Commission Chairman, William Scranton, former Governor of Pennsylvania, said it was not the purpose of the hearing to determine guilt.

"We are not seeking to establish in this inquiry the names of any person who might be guilty of any state or federal criminal offense," said Scranton. "Specifically, it is not our purpose to seek to identify persons who fired their weapons or persons who may have caused the destruction of property."

Scranton said a special state grand jury should determine if any laws had been broken.

President Nixon Re-Visits Old Manhattan Neighborhood

NEW YORK (UPI)—President Nixon paid a walking visit to his old Manhattan neighborhood Tuesday, enjoying the abundance of well-wishers and the lack of the usual antiwar demonstrators.

Nixon came to brief the editors and executives of the New York Daily News. There also was a bit of nostalgia in his visit when he took an impromptu stroll from the Hotel Pierre to his former apartment residence at 810 Fifth Ave. with his daughter Tricia, 24.

The president not only stopped but seemed to seek out long-haired youths, young men and women for brief chats. The crowds which trailed him were friendly and enthusiastic. The visit, kept secret until Tuesday morning, was free of the militant antiwar demonstrations he and his predecessor, Lyndon B. Johnson, faced on previous New York trips.

He told reporters: "I think the climate is . . . better—yes, its better. It's the hope that people have." "I think whether it's the Middle East, Vietnam or the rest—that we are moving—even though they must disagree in various ways. That we are moving toward a period when we can have a peaceful world."

The president spent two hours discussing foreign and domestic policy with the editors and executives of the nation's largest circulation daily. Nixon recalled that five years ago he brief daily news officials and promised to return if he ever became president. "I don't think they believed I ever would win," he said.
