Drug Possession Trial Moves Into Final Argument

Final arguments began this afternoon in 31st District Court in the narcotics possession trial of two Pampa men arrested in a raid March 16.

Testimony was concluded Monday with four witnesses for the prosecution called and none called for the defense.

The defendants in the case, Don Ray Thompson and Ronnie Blair Campbell, are charged with possessing and making marijuana available to a minor. Defense attorneys have contended that the search warrant used by police to carry out the raid on a home occupied by Campbell was illegal in that the warrant did not specify who or what was to be searched.

A motion, based on the illegality of the warrant, to dismiss charges, was overruled by Judge Grainger McIlhenny Monday.

A seven-man, five-woman jury was impaneled Monday afternoon and the state began its evidence.

Called as witnesses were George Wallace, assistant chief of police; Police Sgt. Gene Aufferger, Texas Ranger Bill Baten, Pat Conley, a Texas Department of Public Safety Chemist, and Paula Hulsey, an 18-year-old girl who was arrested with Campbell and Thompson.

Defense attorneys Rowdy Bowers and David Holt made an attempt throughout the testimony to prove that the witnesses were not experts on marijuana.

Conley's testimony, however, told of how chemical tests performed on the substance taken in the raid proved it to be marijuana.

Both sides closed their cases Monday to prepare for jury argument today.

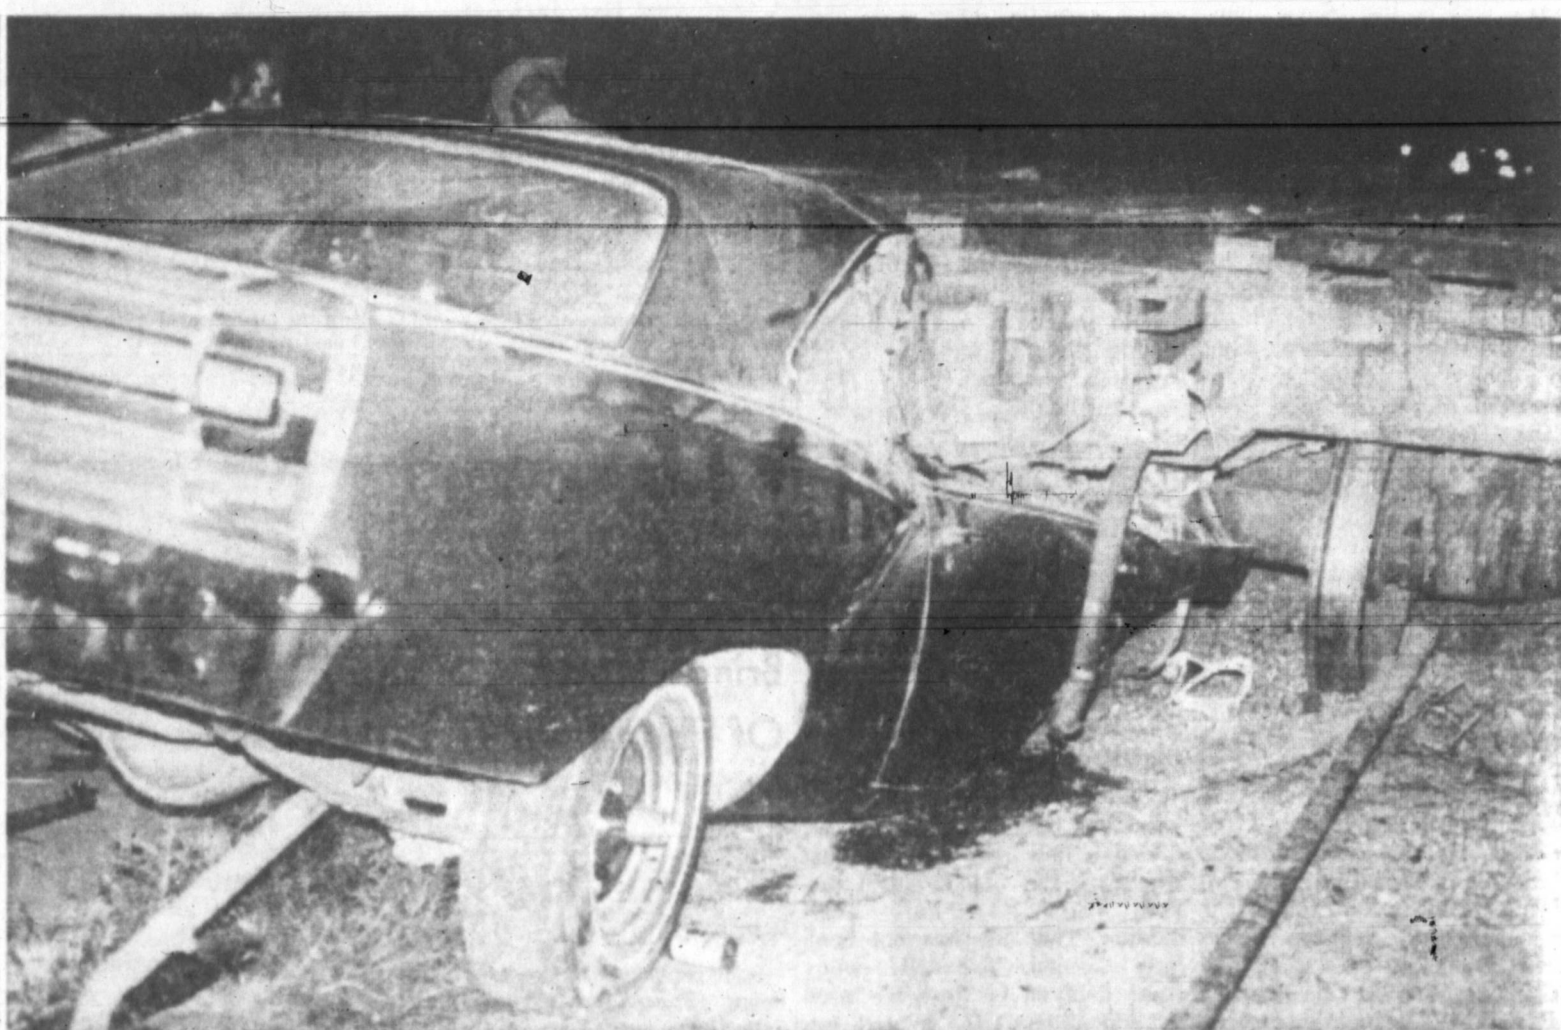

Communists Driven From Kompong Thom

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The Cambodian army has driven Communist troops from Kompong Thom in one of its bloodiest battles yet, military spokesmen said today.

Spokesmen said at least 22 Cambodians were killed and 74 wounded in driving the guerrillas from Kompong Thom, an important communications center 80 miles north of Phnom Penh. The town was encircled and under attack for three days.

Communist losses were listed as at least 111 killed, with an undetermined number of dead and wounded carried off the battlefield.

The Cambodian casualty figures were among the heaviest officially confirmed since Cambodian troops began fighting the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese following the March 18 ouster of Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

FOUR DEAD is the result of a one car crash into a flatbed railroad car about one-half mile West of Pampa on U.S. Highway 60 about 11:50 p.m. Monday. The crash was the result of the car going out of control, over a curb and into the rail car. (Staff Photo by Mike Casey)

REMARKS BY NIXON

May Bring Mistrial Demand In Hippie Cult Murder Case

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — President Nixon's remarks about the guilt of Charles Manson in the Tate murder case was expected to bring a renewed demand by the defense today for a mistrial of the motion but it was expected to be renewed today.

Prosecution lawyers pointed out the jury is locked up nightly in hotel rooms and has no access to newspaper, radio or television accounts of the case and therefore could not be prejudiced.

On grounds that it was impossible, Superior Court Judge Charles H. Oiler declined to rule on the motion but it was expected to be renewed today.

The word of Nixon's comments about Manson and the press coverage of the trial came as a thunderbolt Monday and led Manson's lawyers to demand charges be dismissed.

Nixon told newsmen in the cross examination of the state's key witness, Linda Kasabian, who still was on the stand when the trial recessed Monday.

Under caustic cross examination, the 21-year-old blonde admitted she did not try to flee the Tate murder scene, that she never tried to tell police what happened and that she accompanied the "Manson family" on a savage foray to the LaBianca home the next night.

Israel Militant Party Quits In Protest Over Middle East Peace Plan Acceptance

By United Press International

Israel's militant Gahal party formally resigned today in protest over Premier Golda Meir's acceptance of the U.S. plan for Middle East peace.

Israeli warplanes tightened military pressures on the Arab world with the 76th consecutive day of air raids along the Suez Canal.

Even as the Gahal party turned in its formal resignation to Mrs. Meir, her cabinet took another step toward implementing the American blueprint for peace.

The Israeli parliament followed up by giving Mrs. Meir a resounding 64-5 vote of confidence. The 26 Gahal members of parliament boycotted the session which turned down a motion of no confidence submitted by Shmuel Tamir, an opposition legislator.

The move in Jerusalem gave Israel a more flexible peace stance and added impetus to efforts at U.N. headquarters in New York to work out the mechanics of a Suez Canal cease-fire. The U.S. plan envisages peace talks under the auspices of U.N. diplomat Gumar V. Jarring.

A communique from Tel Aviv said Israeli jet fighter-bombers swept across the Suez Canal today and raided Egyptian

"military objectives." A spokesman said all planes returned safely.

A Cairo report said 34 Israeli planes took part, and that Egyptian air defenses "prevented them from reaching their targets."

Fulbright Labels President's Use Of TV 'A Dangerous Power'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. J. William Fulbright said today exclusive access to television, which he said a president comes close to having, "is a dangerous, unchecked power."

Fulbright said "as matters now stand, the president's power to use television in the service of his policies and opinions has done as much to expand the powers of his office as would a constitution amendment formally abolishing the coequality of the three branches of government."

Contending there can be no justification for denying equal time, the Arkansas Democrat suggested adoption of a bill requiring television and radio to give Congress air space at least four times a year to present its views on issues of public importance.

All Occupants Killed After Auto Jumps Curb, Hits Railroad Car

By BEN KECK
News Staff Writer

Four persons, including an Army veteran with three tours of duty in Vietnam, were killed late Monday night when their car jumped a curb and crashed into a train of railroad cars less than one-half mile West of Pampa on U.S. Highway 60.

Pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Ed Anderson, acting coroner, were SSgt. Coy Ray Jackson, 33, 308 Christy, who had just completed his third tour of duty in Vietnam and was home on leave from Ft. Knox, Ky.; Paul Johnny Boles, 32 of Munch; Robert E. Tollison, 35, and his wife Joanna, 31, both of Skellytown.

Highway Patrolmen investigating the accident said the car, driven by Sgt. Jackson, jumped a curve on the highway just West of the city limits, jumped the curb, and traveled about 140 feet before striking a flat railroad car.

The flatbed car struck by the auto was the first of nine cars in the stationary train. The impact of the auto knocked the rail car about four inches from the track on which it was resting.

Officers estimated the vehicle was traveling in excess of 100 mph at the time of impact. The brakes were never applied.

Two Highway Patrol units, available city police, sheriff's deputies, and both of Pampa's ambulance services were dispatched to the scene.

Some police units directed traffic while others attempted to locate witnesses and assist in removing bodies from the wreckage.

The front end of the automobile was buried under the flatbed car, and house jacks had to be used to raise the flatbed before the auto could be removed.

Two wrecker trucks, one pulling the other, were used to unjangle the wrecked auto from the railroad car.

Westbound traffic slowed considerably while passing the wreckage scene and the long line of police cars, ambulances, and cars abandoned along the roadside by spectators, caused minor congestion in the west-bound lane.

Police asked spectators to leave the scene, but few obeyed. Some observers climbed atop flatbed cars on an adjoining track to watch.

Across the highway, people gathered in groups to watch as the bodies were loaded into waiting ambulances.

The last body was removed from the wreckage about 1:05 a.m., more than an hour after the accident occurred.

Local funeral arrangements for Mr. and Mrs. Tollison are pending with Duengel Funeral Home, with services to be handled by Simpson Funeral Home in Borger.

The couple is survived by three children, Vicki, 18; Bobby, 11; and Dennis, 6, all of Skellytown.

Mr. Tollison, owner of a body shop in Borger, is survived by a brother, Paul E. Tollison, and a sister, Tolla Lynch, both of Tacoma, Wash.

Mrs. Tollison, a supervisor at Marie Foundations in Pampa, is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G.A. McWhorter, Pritch; one brother, Rev. Don McWhorter, Hereford; and three sisters.

Funeral services for Sgt. Jackson and Mr. Boles are pending with Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors.

Sgt. Jackson was born in Pampa April 15, 1937. He attended Pampa schools.

He had served three tours of duty in Vietnam, winning the Purple Heart, five Bronze Stars with Oak Leaf Clusters, the Army Commendation Medal, and recommendation for two Silver Stars.

He had been awarded 33 military medals.

Sgt. Jackson is survived by his mother, Mrs. F.E. Lamke, 308 Christy; his father, Nolan Jackson, Santa Barbara, Calif.; three half-brothers, Lewis Tollison, stationed with the U.S. Air Force in the Aleutian Islands; Johnny and Jesse Tollison, both of the home; and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F.F. Jackson, Santa Rosa, Calif.

Mr. Boles was born in Pampa Feb. 2, 1938, and was reared here. He was married to Ruth Kirk on June 27, 1966, and moved to Quanah in 1966.

He was a member of the (See FOUR, Page 2)

He was dead on arrival at Highland General Hospital about 7 p.m. after he had fallen into the Municipal Swimming Pool, 800 Sloan St.

The young Mr. Brown had been a lifeguard at the pool and when he fell in, witnesses said they thought he was not in trouble.

His body was found a short time later and attempts to revive him at poolside failed. He was rushed to the hospital by Carmichael-Whitley ambulance.

The hospital called for a fire department resuscitator, but all attempts to revive the youth failed.

He had been a resident of Pampa since 1956. He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church, the Pampa High Key Club and Concert Choir.

Honorary pallbearers will be members of the Pampa High School Key Club.

The young Mr. Brown is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Brown, 1206 Charles; and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F.B. Brown, Bellaire.

Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery. The casket will not be opened during services.

Gov. Kirk Asks Alternate Plan In Gas Dumping

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Florida Gov. Claude Kirk threatened today to take the Army to court in an effort to block the dumping of 67 tons of nerve gas in the Atlantic Ocean east of Cape Kennedy.

The Pentagon insists that the disposal, scheduled later this month, would be perfectly safe. But Kirk, appearing at a congressional hearing on the matter, said he had serious misgivings.

"If the ocean along our east coast became contaminated because something went wrong — if these (gas) missiles released their content in a manner not planned — it could be disastrous for us," Kirk told the House merchant and fisheries subcommittee.

Kirk said the Army should explore the possibility of some other means of disposal of defective nerve gas rockets.

Army officials told the subcommittee Monday that all other alternatives had been considered and rejected. They said that ocean disposal was the safest and most effective means of destroying the rockets.

The Army also said that time was running short and that the threat of an explosion from propellants in the rockets made it imperative that they be removed from their present storage sites.

Hurricane Celia Still Alive After Battering Gulf Coast

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (UPI)—Hurricane Celia, which battered the resort coast with 161-mile-an-hour winds Monday, knocked out power, spread floods and fire and devastated scores of towns today on a 250-mile path up the heart of Texas.

Shattered palm trees were snapped and jammed into rooftops. Streets, farm fields and shops and homes—those still left standing—were flooded.

"We ain't got no lights, no water, no power—nothing but trouble," said Corpus Christi Police Cmdr. C. C. Hagan.

Police and Civil Defense reported four persons dead and hundreds injured.

Celia was still alive today. She kicked 89-mile-an-hour gales through Del Rio, a Texas town on the Mexican border 250 miles northwest of where the storm swirled ashore 13 hours before at Corpus Christi.

The search for the dead began at daybreak. Hagan said one of the victims was a baby crushed when his home caved in around him.

"I'm just afraid we're liable to find more," he said.

Daybreak showed an unbelievable mess in town after town. Many were completely sealed off because communications were knocked out. There was little food or water.

"We have a bad situation everywhere," said Corpus Christi Mayor Jack Blackmon. "We anticipate many injuries. We just don't know about all of them yet. The primary job at the moment is determining the nature and extent of casualties and getting water and other essential services back on."

Texas Sens. John G. Tower and Ralph W. Yarborough asked President Nixon to declare Celia's path a disaster area.

Police set up roadblocks in ravaged areas to keep out looters. The first light showed cars' stacked headlights up against buildings. Camper trucks and tourists who came to the gulf coast for the summer resort season were piled crazily in trees. Foundations were all that remained of many buildings.

Cities heavily damaged included Corpus Christi, Aransas Pass, Port Aransas, Ingleside, Gregory, George West, Taft, Mathies, Robstown, Alice, Del Rio, Rockport, Port Lavaca, Refugio, Sinton and Beeville.

Aransas Pass was leveled. Police reported more than 200 persons injured there. A hospital was destroyed and its patients, already injured, scattered through rooms and halls.

Corpus Christi, a city of 201,548 population, also was heavily damaged. "Not 2 per cent of the structures are not damaged to some extent," said Bill Reed, a mayor's assistant.

A quiet, eerie darkness settled over Corpus Christi as the storm passed. A total loss of electricity prohibited any organized search for injured or dead until sunrise.

Maj. Martin Haskett of the Army National Guard said the damage was 70 per cent major and 100 per cent minor in the 50-mile stretch from South Corpus Christi north to Gregory, Tex., where the main force of the storm struck the shore.

"It's a damn site worse than Beulah," said Billy Allen, who operates a tour boat in Corpus Christi Bay. Hurricane Beulah struck south Texas three years ago.

Aransas Pass was almost totally destroyed.

Ann Dubbs, who owns a trailer park there, said, "everything was blown away. I saw some of them (trailers) go. They rolled on their sides and then over again and the wind exploded them. One of them was just slapped against a tree and it burst open."

AFTER POLICY REVIEW

No Major Changes Made By Board

In a five-hour session Monday night to examine in detail school district policies and update the policy manual, school trustees, studied each word in the district's 705 policies, but made no major changes in the philosophy or organization of the school system.

The last comprehensive policy review was in 1961. Since then, the board has been operating with two policy manuals, the 1961 and a later edition in 1964.

Besides the 705 policies, the approved manual includes names of present board members and their offices; list of past boards of trustees since the first board in 1917, a foreword stating the purposes of the manual of policies and administrative procedures, and the board's philosophy of education.

The foreword states the booklet is to outline policies on operation of Pampa Public Schools. The policies, prepared by the administrative staff and approved by the board, are to serve as a guide for all administrative, teaching and non-teaching personnel.

"This is an effort to make clear to all concerned the responsibilities, obligations and duties of all persons connected with or interested in Pampa Public Schools. Any subject not covered by these regulations should be referred to the employee's immediate supervisor for necessary decision," the foreword states.

One section of the board's philosophy of education stated "the program of the school is designed to provide for each of its pupils, regardless of abilities or environments, the opportunity to develop and achieve success mentally, physically, socially, morally and spiritually."

Number Mix-Up Brings Flood Of Phone Calls

If you have ever had any doubt about results from classified advertising in The Pampa News, Mrs. Pat Johnson, 1306 Coffee, can remove it in a hurry.

She reported today she had been swamped with telephone calls in answer to an ad offering a 3-bedroom unfurnished house for rent at Lefors. The ad carried the phone number 835-2860. That's in Lefors, a fact not mentioned in the ad.

Mrs. Johnson's Pampa phone number is the same with exception of the prefix numeral 66. Pampanas apparently pay attention only to the last five numerals in a phone number.

Consequently, the flood of telephone calls to the wrong number Mrs. Johnson said the phone had literally been "ringing off the wall" since the ad first appeared last Friday.

She breathed easier today when advised the ad had expired.

MRS. ROMNEY FACES FIRST TEST

States Hold Primaries For Variety Of Offices

By United Press International Mrs. Lenore Romney faced her first political test today in her effort to become the junior senator from Michigan, the state that elected her husband George Romney governor for three terms.

Mrs. Romney's race in the Republican primary against State Sen. Robert Huber was the featured race among four states holding primary elections today.

In addition to Michigan, a variety of nominations for state and federal offices were to be decided in Idaho, Kansas and Missouri.

Interest is also centered this week in Thursday's Tennessee primary elections, where Sen. Albert Gore, a relentless critic of the Nixon administration, will face three opponents in his effort to become the Democratic candidate for the Senate in November's elections.

In Michigan, Mrs. Romney, whose husband is now Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, is expected to win the GOP nomination to face incumbent Sen. Philip A. Hart, who is unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

In Missouri, Sen. Stuart Symington is expected to win Democratic primary nomination easily over four minor opponents. Missouri Republicans choose between Attorney General John Danforth and St. Louis Councilwoman Doris Bass.

No Senate seat is up this year in Idaho and Kansas.

Nominations for governor are being decided in Michigan and Kansas. Idaho's Gov. Robert B. Docking is unopposed in that State's Democratic primary.

In Michigan, Gov. William G. Milliken has taken opposition for the GOP primary and is expected to win in November. Four candidates sought the Democratic nomination.

In Idaho, Gov. Don Samuelson is favored over one opponent in the Republican primary. Three Democrats are vying to oppose him in the November elections.

Candidates for the House of Representatives are being nominated in all four states.

'ABSOLUTELY MEANINGLESS'

Nutritionist Blasts Critical Rating Of Breakfast Cereals

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The chairman of Harvard's nutrition department today denounced a critical rating of breakfast cereals as "absolutely meaningless." He said a breakfast built around cereal and milk is better for most people than bacon and eggs.

"For the information of Mr. Choate and associates, Popeye's spinach doesn't begin to compare with the overall nutritional worth of breakfast cereal—any cereal—although it, like other 'greens,' makes a contribution to the total nutritional value of a meal," Dr. Fredrick J. Stare said in prepared testimony.

Stare and four other witnesses appeared before the Senate Commerce Committee's consumer subcommittee in a vigorous industry rebuttal to testimony July 23 by Robert B. Choate, a Washington, D.C., civil engineer who has worked on a number of government nutrition projects.

In his appearance, Choate rated 60 brands of cold cereal on a nutritional scale. He said the bottom 40, including many of the nation's best sellers, offered little except "empty calories."

But Stare, testifying at the request of Kellogg Co. and the National Biscuit Co. (Nabisco), said Choate used an "absolutely meaningless" rating system and ignored the fact that milk is poured on cereal 95 per cent of the time. He said the ratings were so badly in error that "No. 60 on Mr. Choate's list, shredded wheat, is one of the best and because it is made from whole wheat and includes the wheat germ, it even ought to satisfy my many food faddist friends."

"Breakfast cereals are good foods," Stare said.

"Breakfast cereals with milk contribute importantly to the nutritional quality of the total breakfast. They provide approximately the same amount of protein and calories as a bacon and egg breakfast, substantially more calcium, riboflavin, niacin, thiamine, and iron, and substantially less saturated fat and cholesterol."

Texas, Oregon Test 18-Year-Old Voting

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Texas and Oregon, both of which are challenging the new federal law granting 18-year-olds the right to vote, flipped a coin Monday to decide which state would take the lead in pressing the suit, Oregon won.

Texas will play a supporting role in the first test case of the new law. The legal question, according to the Texas suit, is whether Congress or each individual state has the constitutional power to decide the minimum voting age.

Both Texas and Oregon officials arrived in Washington Monday to file suit in the U.S. Supreme Court. Texas wants the court to rule the new voting act unconstitutional as exceeding the power of Congress, and to prohibit Mitchell from enforcing it.

"In enacting Title III of the act, Congress has exceeded the powers, either expressed or implied, reposed in it under the Constitution of the United States and has usurped the power of the states to determine the qualifications of voters," the Texas brief said.

Both the Texas Constitution and Texas statutes set the minimum voting age at 21.

"The decisions of this court have long held that each state has a wide scope of authority for the imposition of standards and conditions upon the right to vote," the suit said.

The right to vote is a privilege to be exercised as the state may direct, upon such terms as may seem proper to the state, provided there is no discrimination between individuals or classes in violation of the Constitution of the United States."

The suit cited three earlier Supreme Court decisions stating "as long as qualifications and conditions regarding voting are reasonable and nondiscriminatory, they are permissible."

Cast Of 'The Crucible' Comes Up With Pleasing Performance

The cast of "The Crucible" put on a memorable performance at the High School Auditorium last evening.

The play will be presented again at 8 tonight in the same place.

The purpose behind presenting the play was to give persons with an interest in drama but little or no performing experience a chance to see what they could do.

One could sense the "first time" tenseness of the actors when the play began and one could feel their disappointment in having a small audience; however, as the play progressed, the performers forgot their tenseness and disappointment.

Mimi Miller became Elizabeth Proctor for two hours; Jack Bonner lived the life of John Proctor; Liz Silcott turned into the vicious Abigail Williams and Cindy Gill took on the voice and characteristics of the slave, Tituba.

The characterization of those and all the other cast members never broke perceptibly after the first five minutes of the play, when everyone was getting "into character."

The audience, though small, was very attentive and responsive. The people laughed and cried in the right places and they certainly applauded.

Back stage, after the performance, there was much hugging and crying and clapping of shoulders among the cast, and they shouted, "We DID IT! We DID IT!" And indeed they did.

Panther Leader Sees America Is Prison

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (UPI)—Black Panther leader Huey P. Newton, who considers himself a prisoner of war in a continuing American revolution, is "going back to the front lines."

Newton, 28, faces a bail hearing in Oakland, Calif., this week which will probably result in his being "out on the streets" for the first time in nearly three years.

"But I will not really be out, because America is truly a prison," Newton said in a prison interview Monday interrupted by such preparations for his release as changing the heavy blue uniform of the inmate of the California Men's Colony at San Luis Obispo for a "traveling uniform" of khaki.

"Outside A Prison Too"

"Look around," said Newton, cofounder of the militant black group. "You don't see any bars here. But those windows are really steel. They are designed so you can live in an illusion. If you were not alert, you might think this is a minimum security prison, which it is not."

"It is the same on the outside. You might have tendency to think you were out of prison. But if you are socially conscious, you can see the barbed wire around the black community.

"Here everything is divided into four quadrants and authorities have their plans. In case of trouble, each quad is shut off and Plan 1 or Plan 2 is put into effect.

"Outside, the Pentagon has its master plan and the local foot soldiers that we call police are similar to—or even synonymous with—the prison guards here. So maybe I'm going back to the front lines."

He Hopes For Acquittal

The probability of Newton's being released on bail arises from a reversal last May by the state Court of Appeal of his 1968 conviction on charges of voluntary manslaughter in the slaying of an Oakland policeman.

The appellate court voided a 2-to-15-year prison sentence and ordered a new trial for Newton because the Superior Court judge at his trial failed to give the jury proper instruction.

"That reversal was not in the cause of justice, but because of the power of the people," Newton said.

In the retrial there will only be the single charge of voluntary manslaughter, making Newton eligible for bail.

Newton was expected to be acquitted, said he would devote his time to expanding the base of the Black Panther party.

"We will continue the American war of national independence, only this time the Black Panthers and other national minorities are striving to attain the same rights as free humans that most whites received in 1776."

24-Hour Bank Gets 50 Per Cent Business Boost

By HARRY LORBER
HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (UPI)—"It's gotten so bad," said the man with a chuckle, "that we've had to hire off-duty policemen to go out and direct traffic at 3 a.m."

Coleman Trainer wasn't talking about a race track or an outdoor theater. He was talking about the bank he heads, First Huntington National Bank, the first bank in West Virginia to offer 24-hour banking service.

The youthful bank president decided to stay open around the clock in the belief that people needing service will visit at any time of the day or night, especially if they're in a community which has three different work shifts.

Trainer says the project has been successful beyond his most optimistic thinking.

"We've picked up 50 per cent more customers since the first week in March, when the bank started staying open 24 hours," Trainer said. "We wouldn't think of discontinuing it now."

First Huntington operates only through its drive-in windows after regular hours but offers all services except loans. Other than that, a customer can cash a check, make deposits and get change.

Naturally, the extended hours put a strain on Trainer's staff. He got around that by hiring college students to man the teller's window on the "graveyard" shift, midnight to 9 a.m.

Gimmicky as it may sound, round the clock banking makes sense in an industrial community such as Huntington. People there go to work at hours that would keep them from banking between the traditional hours of nine to three. Now they can stop in the bank on the way to work at midnight or whatever hour they go or come from work.

It's believed that the first 24-hour bank in the nation was First Virginia Bank in Arlington, Va., which began such an operation on Feb. 2.

Churchmen To Play More Active Role In Congressional Elections

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

Churchmen will play a more active role in this year's congressional elections than they have in any campaign since 1964.

The issue that brings them into the political arena is the same now as then: Opposition to the Vietnam War.

In 1964, a number of prominent clergymen and religious leaders endorsed Lyndon B. Johnson for president because they feared that Barry M. Goldwater, might involve the United States in a major war in Vietnam.

When Johnson proceeded to do exactly what they had feared Goldwater would do, many antiwar churchmen became disillusioned with presidential politics.

They were relatively inactive in the 1968 presidential campaign, professing to see little difference between Hubert H. Humphrey and Richard M. Nixon in their stands on ending the conflict.

Nixon's recent statements on the war and his action on ordering U.S. troops into Cambodia have caused antiwar influencing the White House through public protest or private appeal.

They are now pinning their hopes on Congress to stop the war.

Their specific objective is to help elect senators and representatives who will support measures, such as the McGovern-Hatfield Amendment, which utilize Congress' power of the purse to fix a definite deadline for complete U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam.

At a recent meeting in Washington, the policy-making general board of the National Council of Churches unanimously approved a political program which has frequently been communicated to the NCC's 3 member denominations.

It recommends that "all church members be encouraged to use the political processes with increased participation and vigor" and points out that "the congressional elections this autumn present an important occasion for church members to make their convictions felt."

This can be done, the NCC leaders said by asking candidates, where they stand on the war, by making known your own views to candidates, by working actively for a candidate in his campaign, and finally—most tellingly—by voting for antiwar candidates.

Commission On Campus Unrest Begins Kent State Investigation

KENT, Ohio (UPI)—Eight staff members from the President's Commission on Campus Unrest have started a three-week investigation of the Kent State shootings as groundwork for a hearing by the select panel later this month.

Kenneth G. McIntyre, former assistant U.S. Attorney at Detroit headed the team which arrived here Saturday night. The group began at once to familiarize itself with the campus and community.

McIntyre said they would seek "the causes of the trouble not just what happened" May 4 when four students were shot to death in a confrontation with National Guard troops.

"We are not here to conduct a criminal investigation," McIntyre said.

The investigators spent a month in Washington in preparation for the visit and will make recommendations to a commission report to be released next month.

Senator Introduces Legislation Against Internal Combustion Engine

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., Monday introduced legislation designed to outlaw the internal combustion engine in automobiles within four years.

To pay for the changes, Nelson suggested that the auto industry make no more yearly style changes until it developed a low-pollution alternative to engines used in today's cars.

ment to the clear-air act that would prohibit the sale of any automobile with an internal combustion engine after Jan. 1, 1975.

He also introduced a sense-of-Congress resolution — which would not be binding if passed — calling on the automobile industry to re-allocate $1.5 billion, now spent annually for style changes, toward conversion to new type engines.

Attorney General Says Government Will Take Action In Desegregation

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Attorney General John N. Mitchell says the federal government will take court action against any Southern school district that fails to carry out voluntary or court-imposed desegregation plans.

Mitchell said Sunday that if 800 more Southern school districts carry out integration plans this year, "the desegregation process will be almost complete."

Department and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare will be dispatched soon to assist these districts when necessary, he said, but "the number of federal people... will depend on the requests we have for assistance."

Mitchell said the federal representatives only would assist local school districts with the educational and legal problems of desegregation and would not help in putting down any disorders.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I caught your radio program and heard you rattle off a long list of things a person stands to lose if he is arrested for possession of marijuana. I'd like to show them to a few kids I know. Thank you very much. Sign me, was, "Your father and I have been giving wedding gifts for 30 years and these people owe us a gift for you." Furthermore, she says the parents (she and Dad) announce the marriage, and the bride (me) has nothing to say about it. Is she right?"

MARRIED IN CONN.
DEAR MARRIED: The parents do "announce" the marriage of their children, but rarely without the approval of the bride. Since you don't want announcements and "at home" cards sent, I think your mother should respect your wishes.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married only a few months and already I have a very serious problem. My husband divorced his first wife because she had an affair with another man. Believe me, now I can understand why she did, because even though he has many good qualities, this man has got to be the world's worst lover!

I have tried to make him think he's great, because I know how hurt his pride was when he found out about his first wife's unfaithfulness. But, Abby, I don't know how I can stay married to him with this constant frustration.

I have considered seeing some old boyfriends I really think it could save our marriage, because we get along so well in every other department. I'm in my mid-thirties and this is my first marriage. I know it won't be easy to find another husband as good as this one at my age, but marriage with no sexual satisfaction is worse than being single.

FRUSTRATED
DEAR FRUSTRATED: Since you get along so well in every other department, I suggest you initiate a truth session with him. As long as you keep telling him how "great" he is, when he's the "world's worst lover," why should he improve? There are plenty of excellent books on this subject. Your doctor can recommend several. So can your public library.

And so can I. If you're interested, please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 5
Your birthday Wednesday: A rather mixed year begins. Material earnings increase only if you make special efforts, while spiritual development comes in many encouraging incidents. You may find a sideline activity in which you must learn specialized skills, or hobbies may develop more practical use. Wednesday's natives flourish as indefatigable craftsmen, specialists.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Set a schedule and pursue it. Some people cannot keep pace with you—have patience. Find some entirely different activity for a bright evening.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Concentrate on creative activities, fresh ways of saying or doing whatever expresses your own values. Taking unnecessary chances now seems very unwise.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Just a little more effort and continued tact resolve some of your family worries. Listen carefully—people reveal more than they realize.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Intellectual activity crowds out routines. Travel, shopping, chores are interrupted by minor incidents and surprises, mostly favorable. This evening, have some fun.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Avoid extremes, but do something for yourself and those you care about. Put together a good, conservative plan for your business. Keep evening expenditures modest.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Smooth out recent misunderstandings. On personal projects, make a determined effort now. Acting on impulse complicates relations with older people.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Now many things require care, a second thought. Institutions show up in the news, perhaps in your activities. Romantic interests thrive if kept free of any secrets.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Cooperation comes to a high point—ask and offer help, politely. Family affairs can be improved by sharing plans for the near future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your talents are in greater demand—with more to do. You rise to the occasion with better than usual tact. Pursue sentimental interests Wednesday evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): During this rather normal day you can get a number of old issues settled. People from a distance offer helpful view. Romance thrives.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be sure all concerned understand your plans before you act. More can be done, with less confusion later. Home life is better Wednesday evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): This promises to be a peaceful day of progress in your work, the sharing of experience with family and friends. Find or give a small party Wednesday night.

HOME-GROWN VEGETABLES HELP CUT FOOD BILLS

NEW YORK (ED)—Vegetables are rapidly becoming one of a good gardener's favorite pastimes. Next to roses and lawns, they receive much of a gardener's loving time and care. Home-grown vegetables are a savings to food budgets and should be fresher and more nutritious than their store-bought cousins.

Good vegetables can be grown in almost any soil if it is prepared properly. Ideally, it should be loose, fertile and well-drained.

Garden size will vary with your vegetable needs, family size and, of course, available land. Look for a level spot conveniently located but away from trees and large shrubs that will rob your garden of plant nutrients and block sunlight.

Next, make out a crop plan. There are a number of "old favorites" that can be grown, but newer varieties should be tried, too. Disease resistance has been bred into many new varieties, as well as improved flavor and larger size.

In selecting your favorite vegetables, be sure to note recommended planting dates. These will vary with different species, but it is also somewhat up to you, depending on when you wish to harvest them. Plant several varieties of the same vegetable to assure a season-long supply of the produce.

While you're still in the planning stages, arrange your crop. Spacing of individual crops and rows is important. Don't leave these decisions until you start planting.

Make your garden as compact as possible. You'll find that less space means fewer weeds and later in the summer you'll appreciate that.

Plant short rows—perhaps several parallel rows of the same crop. This is especially important for crops like corn where wind must blow pollen from tassels to silks in adjoining rows.

Once your garden is planted and growing, you'll find that weeding and watering vegetables are no more difficult or demanding than the annual flower border. In fact, if the vegetable garden is situated where it is not in view, a mulch of straw or other material around plants will cut weed growth and help soil retain water.

Insects don't need to present a problem, either. When a non-persistent insecticide can be used for vegetables and flowers, such as Spectracide lawn and garden insect control, all spraying can be done at one time. This saves time needed to mix individual sprays for vegetables and for flowers, too.

Many gardeners worry about leaving chemical residues on garden vegetables. With a non-persistent insecticide like Spectracide you don't need to worry. You can spray plants within two weeks of harvesting. In fact, tomatoes can be safely sprayed the day before they're picked.

Naturally, all table vegetables should be washed well before eating. You have every assurance of serving nutritious, insect-free vegetables.

So do as more and more smart gardeners are doing. Plant some vegetables. They're not only easy to grow, but you'll be making a real contribution to the household.

Empty Egg Cartons Have Several Uses In Home

DEAR POLLY—I want to tell Mrs. D.D.S. Jr., that I am just back from visiting my daughter in Oregon. She has an herb "garden" in her kitchen window. It is made with those new plastic egg cartons. They also would be nice for starting flower plants for the garden or to take plants to shut-ins.

I remove rust from metal Venetian blinds? Can the slats be painted? —B.W.

DEAR POLLY—Pam wanted to know what to do to the leather straps on her beige linen skirt that had faded during dry cleaning. I believe the best way to restore them is with shoe dye. I have found this popular shoe dye, when used as directed on leather (not plastic), works wonderfully well to restore scuffed items or to change the color. I do hope this works well for PAM.

—MARY ELLEN

DEAR POLLY AND Mrs. D.D.S. Jr. — Our high school class used plastic egg cartons to fashion a "brick" wall as part of our prom decorations. We stapled several together and then put them on wooden forms, using the lids as well as the bottoms. Two rough sections were put together and then two smooth sections to create alternating squares. They can be spray-painted any color. We draped paper flowers on our "brick" walls.

DEAR READERS—The following suggestions for the use of plastic egg cartons were sent to us by the president of the company which makes them. Our sincere thanks for his interest.

Mr. R.L.G. suggests their use for storing bulbs for starting seedlings and for planting seeds after one cuts holes in each of the cells and then walks along shaking the carton. They could make wall decorations with the bottom halves stapled to an unfinished wall in patterns or completely cover it. Also the handyman could use these cartons for storage of nails, nuts and bolts. The lady of the house can use them for jewelry boxes. Children use them in a sand box or hill of snow. These trays can serve for freezing ice-creams. The home sewer can file her sewing aids in them. They are useful for mixing paint to obtain various colors, and also used to store and deliver decorated Easter eggs.

A Popular College President Gives Views Of Student Unrest

(Editor's note: During the Earth Day observance at North Texas State University last spring, students gave President John J. Kamerick a standing ovation when he appeared. Last December, 10,000 signed a petition in his honor on "John J. Kamerick Day." Tributes like these are rare in an area of general student unrest. Dr. Kamerick, after two years at NTSU, left Denton Friday to take over the presidency of the University of Northern Iowa. As he left, he gave UPI these thoughts on students, the times and the problems of modern higher education.)

ion was a dead issue; whites and blacks would never successfully live together and revolution was the only answer from the black viewpoint. On the other hand, some Negro groups get along well with whites.

Dr. Kamerick said there is a tendency among Negroes not to involve themselves in the problems of whites. After National Guardsmen killed four white students in a riot at Kent State University last spring, Dr. Kamerick feared an open outbreak among his white students.

While the white students were marching in protest against the Kent State shootings, members of a Negro sorority were holding a parade, as if to say they could not care less about the whites' demonstration.

—A new tenure statement, containing safeguards against arbitrary action by the administration.

Relaxed Regulations
—Liberalization of dormitory regulations for women.

At 50, Dr. Kamerick has six children, some of them university students.

He said he does not agree with cartoonist Al Capp's theory that about all young hell raisers are genuine expert on is puberty.

He said 60 per cent of the North Texas student body is over 21 and 10 per cent is over 31.

By PRESTON MCGRAW
DENTON, Tex. (UPI) — Dr. John J. Kamerick believes the troubles of universities and colleges with students, already the worst in the nation's history, are going to get worse.

Dr. Kamerick, former president of North Texas State University, said one thing makes him believe this: "Every class that comes out of high school is a little more radical than the one before it."

Sensed Would March
The night before the North Texas parade for the Kent State students, Dr. Kamerick sensed the students would march with or without a required permit from Denton police.

If they marched without the permit, Dr. Kamerick feared trouble. The night before the planned march he told student leaders:

"You ought to at least apply for a permit even if you don't receive it. You can make your own decision and you must take the responsibility for that decision."

He doubts that the radicals are under Communist control. "There might be an occasional Communist involved," he said. "But they are too radical for the Communists. The Communists can't control them."

Dr. Kamerick said that outsiders who urge college administrators to crack down on students for demonstrations, long hair and bizarre dress do not realize that courts have laid down fairly narrow guidelines as to how far administrators can go.

He agrees that some students and professors are tending to become a minority into themselves. But as for growing suspicions that the nation's young people should not enjoy higher education as a right, he said: "I guess what it comes down to is whether it is better for them to be intelligent or not. I would have to come down on the side of intelligence. The university is the best place to become intelligent."

Two-Year Memory
"One of the things about students is that their memory is about two years. If you say blacks are better off now than they were 10 years ago that doesn't make much of an impression on students."

"Some are in revolt against capitalism. Some have psychotic complaints that are being externalized."

"Of course, there is this thing about the war. They get up in arms because of the length of it."

He said that on the outside, the number of dissidents in a student body frequently seems larger than it relatively is. For instance, he said, 5 per cent of NTSU's 16,000-member student body seems like a lot of students in a protest.

Ties With College
Dr. Kamerick has ties with Kent State. For 12 years before coming to North Texas, he was a dean and then vice president and provost at the Ohio school. He said he sensed toward the end of his stay that there was unrest among students but he could not have predicted last spring's riots.

When Dr. Kamerick announced last May that he was going to become president of Northern Iowa University, he said he was a native of Iowa and he thought his family would be happier there.

He did not go into other reasons, if he had any, for not trying to prolong his stay at Denton. Many said that his two years at NTSU were the fastest changing in the school's 80-year history. He put into effect a dozen innovations, among them:

—A faculty senate with substantial policy-making authority.

—A code-of student conduct, written by students and faculty, which detailed and elaborated guarantees of due process for students.

Urges More Listening
And he believes university president might do well to listen to complaining students, remembering that in the long view students come to a college to receive an education.

And Dr. Kamerick believes students should be brought into some decision making.

For instance, he tried without much success to get numbers of students to attend meetings about establishing an ombudsman, a person who acts as a spokesman for students to the administration, at North Texas.

Rejecting Values
"Many students are genuinely rejecting the values of a society they have been taught is good," he said. "This rejection is deeper and stronger in some than in others. We have gone through a sort of revolution."

Perot Research Firm Recommends Replacement Of Welfare Board

AUSTIN (UPI) — H. Ross Perot's research firm today called for replacing the State Board of Public Welfare with a single manager appointed by the governor and revamping the agency to eliminate paperwork and emphasize efforts to help people get off welfare.

The researchers told a Senate reform that Texas could save $8.5 to $19.4 million in 1972 with a streamlined agency and improved computer systems.

The report recommended that the present three-man board be abolished and replaced with a commissioner who would report directly to the governor.

The report said welfare rolls for needy children are expected to increase from 63,000 families to 119,000 families by June 1972. Pending federal legislation could double the projected figure.

"Unless improvements are made, costs of administering expanding programs will be prohibitive," the report said.

Agencies Urged To Keep Budget Requests Down

AUSTIN (UPI) — State budget writers today instructed all state agencies to keep their money requests at the lowest possible level next year because of the "critical financial condition" facing the state.

A letter signed by all 10 members of the Legislative Budget Board went out to every agency advising them to make budget requests for "only such amounts as are necessary for the efficient and economical operation of state government."

Unless improvements are made, costs of administering expanding programs will be prohibitive," the report said.

Texaco, Ecuadorian Gulf Oil, To Construct 318-Mile Pipeline.

HOUSTON (UPI)—Texaco Petroleum Co. and the Ecuadorian Gulf Oil Co. has awarded a contract for the construction of a 318-mile crude oil pipeline stretching from southern Ecuador across the Andes Mountains to the Pacific Coast.

The pipeline will be made up of 26-inch and 20-inch main lines and more than 57-miles of gathering lines. It is being built by a subsidiary of the Williams Brothers Co. of Tulsa, Okla.

Construction will begin immediately and is expected to be completed in late 1972.

Oil companies, subsidiaries of Texaco Inc. and Gulf Oil respectively, will initially transport $250,000 barrels of oil from Amazon Basins wells.

The line will initiate at Lago Agrio and terminate at the Pacific Port of Esmeraldas. Studies are already underway at that port for a large marine terminal which will receive oil for shipment by tanker.

Crossing the Andes at a maximum elevation of more than 13,300 feet the Trans-Ecuadorian pipeline will be one of the world's highest altitude lines, nearly 2,000 feet higher at its peak than the Trans-Andean pipeline recently built across southern Colombia by subsidiaries of Texaco and Gulf.

India-Down Road Of Agrarian Reform?

By S. G. ROY
NEW DELHI (UPI) — Is giant India heading down the same road of agrarian revolution that swept Mao Tse-Tung and his comrades into power in China 20 years ago after a two-and-one-half decade struggle with Chiang Kai-Shek and Japanese imperialists?

No one can give a firm answer to that question yet, but in the last six years a growing guerrilla movement called "Naxalism" has raised the possibility. Already more than 500 peasant landlords, money-lenders and traders are dead at the hands of Naxalite terrorists, and the movement has spread to many parts of the country. The Government is distinctly, though quietly uncomfortable.

Naxalism is a variant of Communism, and its name derives from the town of Naxalbari, where it started. The town is 700 miles east of here in North Bengal, in the narrow neck of land that connects Central India to the eastern regions of Assam, the Northeast Frontier Agency, and Nagaland.

It started out as a land-grab movement for the peasants by a local group of militant, Bengali Communists who wanted to augment their political prestige. But in the six years since it was founded, the Naxalite movement has developed into a vehicle for the masses to achieve a land reform the Indian Congress party has long promised but never delivered.

Moreover, Naxalism now seems to be developing into a Maoist movement that aims at destroying much of India's rich cultural, historical and religious heritage, because it sees these traditions as tools used by the reactionary landlords and bourgeoisie to suppress the poverty-stricken peasants. As well as Maosim, it contains elements of the philosophies of Cuban revolutionary Che Guevara and Guevara's French chronicler, Regis Debray.

Giant Still Growing

Many U.S. tax payers—at least those who had given the matter any real thought—were startled a few months ago when Richard Nixon admitted that taxes at all levels were running at 35 to 37 per cent of the total income of all the people of this country.

The President went on to add that, "When a nation takes a substantially larger portion of its national income for taxes (than .35 to .37 per cent), that nation loses its character as a free, private enterprise economy and turns over and becomes primarily a state-controlled and oriented economy."

Aside from reminding Mr. Nixon that income is produced and earned by individuals, therefore, that in reality there is no such thing as "national income," we are moved to inquire how the President came up with that "35 to 37 per cent" figure.

Persia's Drug Solution

One of our Freedom Newspaper readers has sent along an account of what is being done about the drug problem in Persia.

H. L. Hunt Writes

BUSINESS. — LABOR HELP UNDERPRIVILEGED YOUTH
In the Watts area of Los Angeles, personal enterprises and labor unions working together have given practical training to high school students to prepare them for work in the construction industry.

For 16 consecutive Saturdays, 20 Watts high-school pupils worked to renovate a dilapidated house. First they cleaned out refuse, hauling away six truckloads. Then they rebuilt the garage, installed new electrical, plumbing and heating systems, and shored up the floor.

Local building supply firms donated the materials for the renovation. The young men received technical advice from journeymen workers belonging to the building trades unions.

The success of the project can be measured in several ways. The renovated house is now a showplace, attracting many buyers willing to pay the $17,000 asking price.

John Konweiser, one of the homebuilding executives who conceived the project, pointed out that earlier attempts to interest poverty-area youth in the construction industry through lectures in high schools had failed.

But our once-secure physical isolation and our growing pains kept us apart from them until, twice, we saw our free friends going down and langued over the ocean to save them.

The trouble with being young (and some of the wonder) is that it makes you, as a nation or an individual, terribly impatient. By the time we had fought World War II, we had elevated impatience to a high science.

And there have been a rash of duzy jury verdicts: Two men were sentenced to 1000 and 1001 years each for rape. One Herman who was strictly from Mt. Shasta was handed 1500 years for selling heroin.

With Some Reservation

The citizenry of Dallas has had it with the hoods. They have put their boots down. Recently, when a 40 year old stick-up artist with 25 previous convictions elevated a dry-cleaning store the jury foreman announced the sentence: 1000 years in jail!

Welfare, Racial And Urban Mess Sign Of Immaturity

By BRUCE BOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA)—Americans hate to be called immature—but they are. If you listen hard while you're in Europe, you'll realize it, even though it isn't easy to accept.

I can say this without giving away any free points to the British, the Germans, the French, the Italians or any of their smaller neighbors. After all it was they, not we, who stumbled into two catastrophic world wars despite their ages and ages of political and diplomatic experience.

But our once-secure physical isolation and our growing pains kept us apart from them until, twice, we saw our free friends going down and langued over the ocean to save them.

The trouble with being young (and some of the wonder) is that it makes you, as a nation or an individual, terribly impatient. By the time we had fought World War II, we had elevated impatience to a high science.

And there have been a rash of duzy jury verdicts: Two men were sentenced to 1000 and 1001 years each for rape. One Herman who was strictly from Mt. Shasta was handed 1500 years for selling heroin.

The number of Hot Squat sentences in Dallas has more than doubled. A protester who helped burn an American flag was sent to the grey hotel for four years and a pimp was given employment making little one's out of big one's for ten.

Has this had any psychological effect on the Loosans? You betcha sweet babbitt it has! Over in the county jail the Hip Gees are going gaga with the heat and have begun to accept whatever sentence are offered by the D.A. rather than try to stand with this new type of juries.

And the annual rate of increase in robberies has fell off 26 percent in the first six months of 1970. The criminals are crawling and hotfooting it out of Big-D. Juries in other cities may feel free to take notes.

More recently, I heard moderately well-educated west Germans out-argue fairly experienced adult Americans by wide margins.

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BRANDSTADT

Many Whiplash Injuries Require No Treatment

Q—What is a whiplash injury?

A—It is one that occurs when a person is sitting in a vehicle that is suddenly hit from behind. As his body is propelled forward, his head snaps backward then, a few seconds later, it jerks forward. The severity of the injury varies widely depending on whether a ligament in the neck is torn, a cervical vertebra is injured or an intervertebral disk is ruptured.

Q—I suffered a whiplash injury in an auto accident a year ago. What are my chances for a complete recovery?

A—In those victims whose symptoms (weakness, pain and limitation of motion in the neck) do not subside promptly with cold and hot compresses, rest and hydrocortisone, a thorough study should be made to determine the exact nature of the injury.

Some persons who have had dizziness, headache and other symptoms persisting for 20 to 25 years after a whiplash injury have been cured by the combined efforts of an orthopedist and a neurosurgeon.

Persons who have not had a whiplash injury and don't want to get one should equip their car with head supports.

Reflector tape on the rear bumper also helps to prevent rear-end collisions at night. Watch the car in back of you in your rearview mirror. If its driver persists in following you too closely, let him pass.

Q—What could cause big white blotches on my wrists? They will not tan like the rest of my skin. Is there anything I can take for this?

A—The cause of this condition, vitiligo, in most cases is unknown. In some persons it occurs on the hands and wrists as a result of using an antiseptic cleansing agent that contains paratenitry butylphenol or other phenol compounds.

Trioxsalen or methypsoralen, both prescription drugs, when taken by mouth help some persons but should be used only under medical supervision. Small spots may be treated by tattooing with gold salts. A simple alternative is the use of masking cosmetics.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt can't answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

WASHINGTON, — Storage of nuclear weapons by the United States at bases around the world may be the next target of Pentagon critics on Capitol Hill.

The ingredients for a major controversy have been simmering for several weeks. So far, several congressional committees have become involved, along with the Pentagon and the State Department.

It is Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., who is the prime mover in an effort to learn more about how and where nuclear weapons are stored. He is acting as chairman of a Foreign Relations Subcommittee on U.S. Security Agreements and Commitments abroad.

Symington's interest in nuclear weapons storage surfaced briefly about a week ago when that subcommittee made public previously classified hearings on U.S. security arrangements on Taiwan. In his questioning of Maj. Gen. Richard G. Cicciolla, former chief U.S. Military Adviser there, Symington asked the general about nuclear weapons maintained on Taiwan.

Symington expressed disbelief when Cicciolla testified that he was not the operational U.S. commander — just an adviser — and didn't really know about nuclear weapons. In a subsequent exchange, Symington declared:

"We have weapons in countries not a foot from the Soviet Union. Do you think that is right?"

While the testimony was only recently released, Symington made his statement — without elaboration — in May. We have learned that he has pursued the matter vigorously and under unusual circumstances since that time.

Less than a week after his exchange with General Cicciolla, Symington pressed for weapons storage data in another forum, knowledgeable sources say, a closed-door session of the Senate Military Appropriations Subcommittee. By virtue of his membership on the Senate Armed Service Committee, Symington is an ex-officio member of that Appropriations subcommittee.

According to our informants, Symington sought information from Vice Adm. Lloyd M. Mustin, director of the Defense Atomic Support Agency, a seldom publicized Pentagon office which studies the effects of nuclear weapon blasts and manages the nuclear weapons stockpile.

In the course of his questioning Symington asked Mustin to supply for the record

Mao Trying To Block Any Mideast Peace Settlement

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA)—The final barrier to a settlement in the Middle East may turn out to be neither Egypt nor Israel, but a bevy of terrorist groups and aided and abetted by Communist China.

Over the past several months, contacts in Hong Kong with sources on the mainland have repeatedly informed this reporter Mao Tse-tung and his advisers are now regularly supplying arms, supplies and guerrilla instructors to Middle East commando and subversive groups.

In messages sent through his Middle East agents, Mao has made no secret of the fact that his aim is to prevent a peaceful settlement and to promote a protracted people's war aimed at overthrowing virtually all established governments in the Middle East, both Arab and Israeli, whatever their complexion.

Most groups Mao is aiding are violent, antigovernment and unco-operative. The Red Chinese are not even working with mainstream Communist parties, which are mostly loyal to Moscow in the Mideast. Where Peking deals with Communists, it is with terrorist splinters.

In their instructions, Mao's officials make it clear that Peking's interests will best be served at present by keeping the Middle East in turmoil through long-term, slowpaced,

Nuclear Weapons Storage Under Symington Fire

a list of nations where the U.S. has nuclear weapons. The upshot of his request, we are told, was that the subcommittee staff and official stenographer were banished from the already secret hearing room so that the information could be supplied — but, off the record.

Symington also renewed his criticism of nuclear weapons storage arrangements in that session of the appropriations subcommittee. He is reported to have said that in at least one instance — it cost the United States large sums of money when a host nation discovered that the United States had nuclear weapons within its borders.

The senator is also reported to have stated that unusual storage arrangements for nuclear weapons in foreign nations are common knowledge, except in the United States. Symington is understood to have complained that the U.S. maintains a nuclear weapons stockpile in one nation where the government can be overthrown at any time. He asked what would happen to the weapons if that should happen.

AND ANOTHER — Two weeks after the discussion with Mustin, Symington arranged for a Foreign Relations Committee briefing by State Department officials on nuclear weapons deployed in foreign nations. That session was also held under extreme security precautions.

Only one transcript was made of the testimony of Ronald L. Spiers, director of the Bureau of Politico-Military Affairs, and custody was given to the State Department. The arrangements were similar to those employed when taking testimony from Richard Helms, the director of Central Intelligence.

The question now is whether Symington, and his Foreign Relations Subcommittee, will seek to get the weapons data on his subcommittee record, even if it remains classified. The senator has said he does not want to publicize the nation-by-nation listing of storage sites.

FRENCH A-TEST

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI) — France exploded another nuclear device at its South Sea island testing grounds Sunday in a test delayed twice by bad weather.

Atmospheric explosions over the lagoon of Fangataufa was one in a series that began in May and is scheduled to end September. For the first time in the memory of veteran observers, the military communique did not give the strength of the explosion.

DAVIS ELECTRIC COMPANY, 124 S. Frost, has electricians ready for any job safely and without cutting corners. Its reputation, now under the ownership of Robert Burns, has allowed it to serve Pampans for more than 20 years. (Staff Photo)

Davis Electric Co. -- Reputation For Safety

Repeat business and widespread reputation are some of the best advertising a business can have.

124 S. Frost, has had both for many years. Since 1915 Davis Electric has been serving Pampans. Robert Burns began his employment at the business in the late 1940s and acquired full ownership in 1952.

It's over these many years that Davis Electric has established its reputation — a reputation for giving safe, professional wiring service. Safety and dependability are big words to Burns. Neither he nor his employees believe in taking chances with families and property of their customers. No corners are cut. Shoddy workmanship is not tolerated.

And Davis Electric Company. The correct size wire is always used and all jobs are done according to code.

Davis also holds a complete stock of all necessary items for electrical installation. And professional advice is available for the home electrician.

There's no need to worry about wiring done by Davis Electric, 124 S. Frost.

The tanker charges, doubled since April and quadrupled since last year, have increased the cost of Middle East and African crude oil at U.S. East Coast refineries to 75 cents a barrel more than the cost of delivered domestic oil, spokesmen said.

"Normally the price edge is on the other side," one company said. "The imported crude usually costs $1.45 a barrel less than American oil."

The increased costs have reduced U.S. imports of foreign crude and are mirrored in domestic production plans.

The Texas Railroad Commission has increased the amount of oil that state's wells will be allowed to produce in August.

Moonlighting Executives Inexpensive

By LEROY POPE
 UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Moonlighting by executives often upsets their full time employers, but the many small companies hiring moonlighters think it gives them the best of two business worlds.

"It's a marvelous way to get talent you couldn't afford full time," says President George Neumann of Camp Affiliates, Inc., a Brooklyn chemical distributor. Neumann has added a new wrinkle in the use of moonlighters. He and Chairman Bill Vernon of Camp have persuaded 18 moonlighting executives to buy stock in Camp which sells household and industrial cleaning and maintenance chemicals.

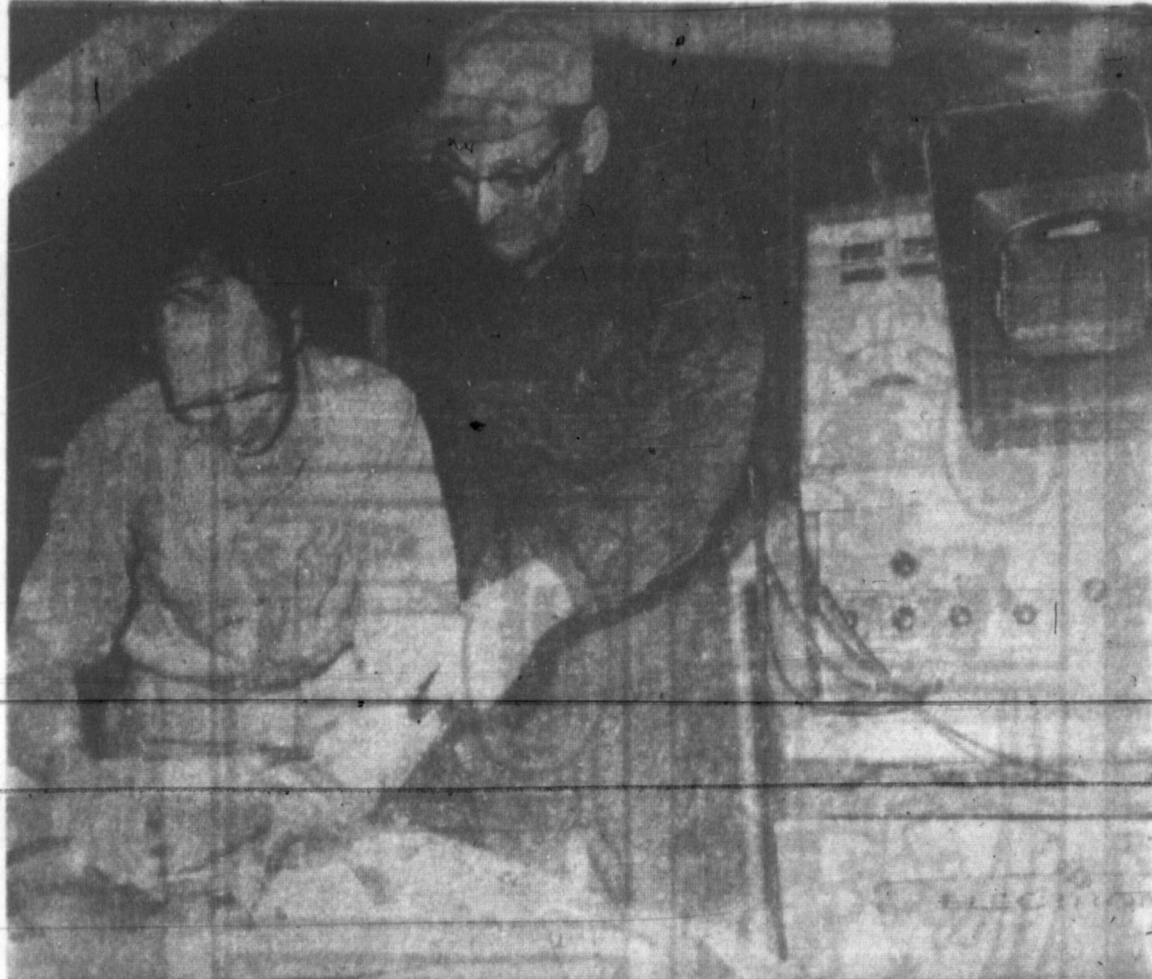

Moonlighting skills and energies have worked so effectively at Camp that, despite the recession, its sales are running 70 per cent ahead of last year. Few of Camp's moonlighters are motivated primarily by money, Neumann said. "It's the challenge that gets them. Their regular jobs simply don't use up all their creative energies."

This appears to be generally true of executive moonlighting which is on the increase although many big companies are trying to stop it.

Some moonlighters like Roger Weller of Chicago are compulsive money makers. Weller moonlights even though he makes $60,000 a year as president of a graphics firm. He says work is the only way he can use up excess energy. He just doesn't care for golf or other recreations.

Other moonlighting executives have longer range motivation. E.A. Butler, head of a New York executive recruiting firm, says some executives moonlight as a hedge against being merged out of regular jobs. One asked frankly, "Why should I worry about conflict of interest? If my firm decides to drop me, you can bet I won't be told in advance."

Fall Is Time For Cold Weather Back-To-School Car Tune-Ups

A fall and winter tune-up could be a blessing to Panhandlers who have experienced cold weather stalls and hard starting in the past. Olen Anderson, owner of Olen's Tune-Up, Brake and Front End, recommends cold weather tuning to all Pampans. Electronics has eliminated the guesswork from tuning, wheel balancing and alignment at Olen's.

Anderson's Dyna-Vision Motor Analyzer uses a 10-step motor check to precisely analyze performance and point out trouble areas and potential troubles a customer may have. An electronic wheel balancer gives the same accurate appraisal for wheel balancing. And front end alignment is done with the Alemite cross-tight wheel aligner. Each instrument waves time and costly mistakes on repair work to your car. Only necessary work is done — and done correctly.

Olen's also specializes in brakes to give you, your family and friends the assurance of safety preparedness. Of course, everything can not be done with instruments. They can only analyze. Good repair work depends on good mechanics.

Anderson and Jimmy Gilliam, a Chrysler products specialist, both have the ability and concern to find mechanical problems and correct them. They have a special stock of parts and experience for Chrysler products. Check your car in at Olen's Tune-Up, Brake and Front End, 310 N. Ward and get it back ready for safe, trouble-free winter driving.

HOLY SMOKE PISOGNE, Italy (UPI)—Rosalia Francesconi, 59, tried to calm the fury of a thunderstorm Friday by the old religious folk remedy of throwing holy water on the kitchen fire. But by mistake, she picked up a bottle containing gasoline instead of holy water. Police said she was seriously burned when the gasoline exploded. Two brothers, Simone, 58, and Domenico, 60, suffered minor burns and explained the accident to police Saturday.

Soaring Oil Tanker Rates To Cause Gasoline Price Jump

By GUY A. GOODINE
 TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—There will be another increase in gasoline prices because of soaring oil tanker rates, industry sources predict.

Foreign tanker rates went up recently when Syrian pipelines were closed down and production cuts were forced in Libya. A UPI survey indicates most American oil firms feel the only way to offset increases is through higher pump prices. It would be the second major hike in gasoline prices since February.

The tanker charges, doubled since April and quadrupled since last year, have increased the cost of Middle East and African crude oil at U.S. East Coast refineries to 75 cents a barrel more than the cost of delivered domestic oil, spokesmen said.

"Normally the price edge is on the other side," one company said. "The imported crude usually costs $1.45 a barrel less than American oil."

The increased costs have reduced U.S. imports of foreign crude and are mirrored in domestic production plans.

The Texas Railroad Commission has increased the amount of oil that state's wells will be allowed to produce in August.

and Louisiana's oil regulatory body also has increased the August production rate.

Louisiana's August per-well production rate will be the highest since the Suez Canal crisis cut off the flow of foreign oil in 1956. Oklahoma's Corporation Commission is increasing that state's allowable and Canadian oil into the U.S. was double last year's rate the first week in July.

Repairs Refused The trouble stems partly from a ruptured oil line in Syria. A bulldozer rammed the Trans Arabian pipe line and though American oilmen say it would be a 24-hour job to repair the damage, the government has not allowed the work to begin. The line carried oil from the Arabian American Oil Co., owned jointly by Standard Standard Oil of New Jersey and Mobil.

Compounding the problem is the Libyan oil crisis. That country last month ordered seven producers to cut their output 500,000 barrels a day, 15 per cent of Libya's total output. That order hit Occidental Petroleum Corp., Continental Oil, Marathon Oil, Amerada Hess Corp., the Royal Dutch Shell group, Texaco and California Standard. Persian crude also is more costly now on the West Coast than California crude. One solution, a large refinery official said, would be for the government to ease restrictions on Canadian oil.

Otherwise, the spokesman said, "You can look for increased costs to the consumer because some of us already are borrowing from future quotas to boost Canadian imports now at the expense of November or December."

Napoleon Braves Shreveport Braves

By United Press International
 Danny Napoleon got Arkansas on the right track with a grand slam homer in the first inning Monday night and the Travs went on to overpower Shreveport 10-7.

The Braves led off the inning with one run and came back in the second with a three-run rally to tie the score 4-4. But Arkansas got three more runs in the third and never fell behind after that.

The win put the Travs a half game further ahead of their Texas League Eastern Division runners-up, San Antonio and Memphis, who split a doubleheader with each other.

San Antonio took the first game easily, 5-2. In the nightcap Memphis scored a run in

Twins Split Twin Bill

STU CAMEN
 UPI Sports Writer
 The Minnesota Twins may have gained more than they lost Monday night when they split their twinght doubleheader with the Milwaukee Brewers.

The Twins dropped the second game, 4-2, but the contest marked the return of Luis Tiant to the Minnesota pitching staff. Tiant had been sidelined since May 28 when he suffered a fractured shoulder in a game against the Brewers. At the time, he had posted a 6-0 record.

Tiant pitched the first five innings and allowed only one run on four hits. A pair of walks got the 29-year-old Cuban righthander in trouble in the first inning when he gave up a run-scoring single to Dave May. Tiant's return may have come just in time for the Twins, who are leading the American League's West Division by seven games, since ace hurler Jim Perry, who won the opener 2-1 for his 16th victory, pulled a groin muscle in the ninth inning and had to leave the game. In addition, the Twins also lost the services of pitcher Dave Boswell Monday. Boswell, a 20-game winner last year, was placed on the 21-day disabled list with an injured back.

Krause Won Nightcap
 Stan Williams relieved Tiant in the sixth inning and was touched for Bob Burda's two-run homer which proved the key blow. The Twins were on the verge of suffering their first shutout of the season before nicking winning pitcher Lew Krause for two runs in the ninth.

Rich Reese drove in both Twins' runs in the opener with a double and single as Perry lamed the Brewers on five hits over eight innings to raise his record to 16-0. Milwaukee's only run came in the fifth when Roberto Pena singled, stole second and tallied on Gerry McNertney's single.

Elsewhere in the AL, California blanked Oakland 5-0, Washington shut out Detroit 4-0 and Kansas City beat Chicago 7-2. All other teams were idle.

Is That A Scapegoat On The Cub's Mound?

By VITO STELLINO
 UPI Sports Writer
 The only time anyone notices Ferguson Jenkins is when something goes wrong.

The most consistent and the most overlooked pitcher in the major leagues, Jenkins wins his 20 games every season and no one seems to pay much attention. He's pitched in only one All-Star game and never seems to get much notice on a team where Leo Durocher is popping off, Ron Santo is serving pizza and Ernie Banks is talking about how nice it's to be to play a tripleheader.

Meanwhile, Jenkins just keeps quietly going to the mound every fourth day for the Chicago Cubs. He hasn't missed a start in four years and was 20-13 in 1967, 20-15 in 1968 and 21-15 last year. He's attempting to become the first National League to win 20 for four consecutive seasons since Juan Marichal of San Francisco did it from 1963 to 1966. The last Cub to do it was Mordecai "Three Fingers" Brown, who reeled off six straight 20-victory seasons from 1906 to 1911.

But Jenkins got off to a 2-6 and 3-7 start this season and suddenly people were paying attention to him and wondering what was wrong.

They can start to forget him again now.

He's back to his usual form and boosted his record to 13-12 with a three-hit performance against the New York Mets Monday night that gave the Cubs a 6-1 triumph. With 13 or 14 starts left, Jenkins seems a good bet to get his 20 wins again.

He Had Other Worries
 Earlier this season, Jenkins studied movies of his form and said he's lost his rhythm and that was the cause of his poor start. But now he admits that personal problems made it difficult to concentrate on his pitching. His wife had a miscarriage and his mother, who has a lung tumor and is still ill, was hospitalized. "My mind wasn't on baseball," he admits.

With Bill Hands hospitalized with a possible case of appendicitis, Jenkins is the key man as the Cubs attempt to overtake the Pirates and Mets. They're 2 1/2 games behind Pittsburgh and 1 1/2 behind New York. But you can bet that even if the Cubs do come on with a rush, Jenkins won't get his share of the credit.

Elsewhere in the National League, Montreal routed Pittsburgh 8-0, St. Louis nipped Philadelphia 4-1, San Diego routed Cincinnati 10-3, San Francisco nipped Los Angeles 5-2 and Houston beat Atlanta 7-5 but lost the second game, 3-1.

Dallas Rookies Cut As Veterans Return

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI)—Making way for the return of the veterans, the Dallas Cowboys staff cut eight rookies from the squad Monday, including No. 3 draft choice, Denton Fox, free safety, from Texas Tech.

Also cut were No. 17 draft choice Den DeLong, the tight end from Tennessee, and six free agents: Mike Edwards, center, Iowa; Dale Evans, center, Kansas; Dick Faucette, quarterback, Dayton; Larry Hol.

running back, Iowa State; Bob McLean, offensive lineman,

North Carolina State, and Tom Massey, defensive back from Stanford.

Most of the Cowboys veterans planned to report to training camp today, after having broken their own training camp at Southern Methodist's Ownby Stadium in Dallas.

To a man the veterans were pleased to learn of the contract agreement between the NFL Players Association and club owners.

"I don't know yet what we got, but whatever we got is more than we had," player representative Mike Gaechter said.

"I don't care what they settled for," said 265-pound all-pro tackle Ralph Neely. "I'm glad they did."

Even Mel Renfro, a star defensive back who has threatened to sit out the season or play out his option because of a salary dispute, joined his fellows on the trip to California.

"I'm going out and try and work things out," Renfro said. "The strike has been a thing on everybody. I've been on edge and so has everybody else."

"But I'm a football player and I want to play. I'm hoping we will be able to work things out, now that the pressures are off."

Coach Tom Landry planned a team meeting tonight and said he hoped to get in two practice sessions Wednesday.

The Army gold squad edged the Georgia civilian team 1175-1174 in the four-man match.

High police officer was Allen Arrington, a state trooper from Charlotte, N.C., 883; top reservist was Navy P. O. Heavyweight Bout To Test Foreman As Pro

By WILLIAM VERIGAN
 UPI Sports Writer
 Foreman's biggest victories so far have been over Scrap Iron Johnson and Argentine Gregorio Peralta, who are hardly considered in the same class as Chivalo.

Over the past three years, Chivalo has run up 24 victories and 23 kayoes in 26 bouts, and only last December he got the biggest victory of his career with a knockout over Jerr Quarry. Chivalo was in danger of being stopped by cuts when he landed the punch that knocked Quarry to his knees for a 10 count.

And even if the 21-year-old Foreman is still untested as a professional, the oddsmakers have put all their faith in him by establishing him as a 3-1 favorite. The purses, however, are another matter—Foreman gets only $17,500 compared to Chivalo's $50,000.

Some believe it may be the 32-year-old Chivalo's last big payday. He has been battered for 14 years as a professional fighter, running up a 59-15-8 record, including 51 knockouts. The scar tissue around his eyes now opens easily, and even in some of his recent victories he has come out looking like a bloodied loser.

brightest prospect in the heavyweight division with 21 consecutive victories, including 18 kayoes. Experience is all that he will be lacking against the Canadian veteran.

Foreman, heavyweight champion in the 1968 Olympics, tries to prove tonight he is ready to become ascendant in the pro ranks when he fights George Chivalo in a 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

General Leads Pistol Match

CAMP PERRY, Ohio (UPI)—The record 721 entries headed by Air Force Maj. Frank Green switched to center-fire weapons today at the National Pistol Championships.

Green of Rantoni, Ill. who won the individual title two years ago, tallied 891 out of a possible 900 points Monday in four 22-caliber matches to get a four-point lead over Ralph O. Thompson of West Point, Ga., and Marine W. O. Francis Higginson of Quantico, Va.

Mustang's Reprieve

DOVER, Del. (UPI)—David Pearson has received special permission from NASCAR to drive his 1970 Mustang in the Blue Hen 200 Grand American Challenge Series race Sunday at Dover Downs.

WINEGARVER NAMED WICHITA, Kan. (UPI)—The National Baseball Congress has named former major leaguer Ralph Winegarner to the post of administrative director. Winegarner, 60, played five seasons with the Cleveland Indians as an outfielder, third baseman and pitcher.

And Pete Rozelle Said: 'Let There Be Football'

NEW YORK (UPI)—The pro football war is over, but neither side is claiming victory.

Under heavy pressure from Commissioner Pete Rozelle, the club owners and the Players Association ended five months of bitter negotiations by agreeing Monday on a four-year contract of $19.1 million. The agreement came after a 22-hour bargaining session but did not meet the approval of either side.

"In a situation like this there is no winner, only agreement," said John Mackey, president of the Players Association and one of the prime leaders in the movement.

Compromise Verdict
 "I still don't think either side is happy," said Ken Ewman of the Green Bay Packers and a member of the Players' negotiating committee. "We were told when the negotiations started that neither side would be happy. I'd estimate that we came down about 60 per cent from our original offer and they went up about 40 per cent. We got the best contract we could have gotten, but we still don't think it's representative of what a professional player should receive."

What the players got was a contract which calls for 785,000 annually to be contributed to the pension fund plus another $250,000 annually for other benefits.

The players also obtained disability payments for the first time, and additionally will receive increased payment for pre-season games and meal allowance on road trips to the sum of $2.6 million annually.

While the benefits total an increase of $11 million based on 1969 levels, it was far less than the players had hoped for and far more than the owners had wanted to give. One owner, who preferred to remain anonymous, admitted he was upset at the settlement.

Exhibitions On Schedule
 "I'm not happy with the settlement, but it's done and I didn't think it was possible. I'm just exhausted," he said.

Even though the players were not totally satisfied with the deal, they were happy the long negotiations were finally over so they could go about the business of getting ready for the 1970 season.

As soon as the agreement was announced, veteran players who had refused to report to the training camps until the contract was settled, began joining their respective teams. By late today all 26 clubs are expected to have their full complement of players in camp. Of the 1,300 members of the Players Association, only 21 players crossed the picket lines.

The settlement came just in time to avert postponement of Saturday's first round of exhibition games.

Marti Fifth In Pro-Am
 COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Fred Marti likes to play golf in Columbus.

For the second straight year Monday, the University of Houston graduate was the low pro in the fifth annual Columbus pro-am golf tournament.

Marti's 33-33—66 over the 6,873-yard, par 72 Brookside Country Club course was one stroke better than Dave Eichelberger and three shots better than a group of five other pros, including Jack Nicklaus and Larry Hinson who played to a dramatic second-place tie Sunday in the Westchester Classic.

Marti earned only $1,000 of the $20,000 prize list for the charity event, but said the win would give him "a big lift."

Nicklaus, a hometown favorite with the gallery of about 12,000, birdied three of the first four holes, but played even the rest of the way for his 69. The others scoring 69s were Ted Hayes, John Lotz and Dick Crawford.

Chi Chi The Pro Golfer Doesn't Like The Rules

By MILTON RICHMAN
 UPI Sports Writer
 NEW YORK (UPI)—"I think most of the rules of golf stink." Chi Chi Rodriguez is a little fellow, no more than 129 pounds after a full-course dinner, but he never shilly-shallies. You always know where he stands on any issue.

Rives McBee, affable pro on the tour, was sitting at the table when Rodriguez spoke up about what he thought of the rules of golf and McBee asked him what he meant.

"Exactly what I'm saying," Rodriguez said. "Most of the rules were written by guys who can't even break a hundred. I think what they let happen to Ben Hogan was awful. He had to get up in the middle of the night to play, they gave him a ridiculous starting time before 7:30 in the morning, and they knew he had to treat his legs before he went out. He never asked for a cart—he wouldn't—but that's what I mean about the rules of golf. What's wrong with letting someone have a cart in a tournament if he wants one. I like to walk myself but I'm all for giving anybody a cart who wants it."

"I disagree," McBee said. "Why?" Rodriguez wanted to know.

"Rules are rules," McBee said. "Don't get me wrong: I think as much of Ben Hogan as anyone and it was a shame he had to withdraw after one round. But if you're talking about rules I feel they should be the same for everyone and needs somebody like Ben Hogan—the same way baseball needs a Koufax, Mays or Mantle—and that golf should show somebody like him extra consideration."

"What do you mean by 'extra consideration'?" McBee asked Rodriguez as they sat talking during the final round of the Westchester Classic.

"If I'm a sponsor of a tournament and I'm lucky enough to have Ben Hogan in it, I'd get out there and carry him around the course myself if I had to," Rodriguez said. "That's how much I think of him."

Wall Street In A Period Of Consolidation

NEW YORK (UPI)—Wall Street is in a period of consolidation which may linger a while if there are no dramatic news events, analysts believe.

This was shown Friday when Israel announced it had accepted U.S. peace proposals for the Middle East. This pumped a bit of life into the market, but the rally didn't last long.

The closely-watched Dow Jones industrial average rose several points then fell to selling and finished the day down 0.61 at 734.12. The New York Stock Exchange common share index dropped three cents on a volume of 11.64 million shares.

Large Cotton Crop Predicted For South Plains

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—The largest cotton crop since 1965 which including price support payments would pump some $38 million into a dropping regional economy was forecast today for a 25-county South Plains area around Lubbock.

The season's first official cotton estimate, issued jointly by the Lubbock Cotton Exchange and the Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., placed the expected output at 1,840,000 bales. The first estimate is made annually on Aug. 1, and is updated the first of each month prior to the cotton harvest.

Agricultural officials said cotton, said Dr. L. L. Ray, coordinator of cotton research at the Texas A&M Agricultural Center north of Lubbock. "If we don't get some rain soon, however, dryland cotton could start going downhill in a hurry. After the subsoil moisture is exhausted, dryland cotton conditions can change considerably in just a few days."

Weathermen offered little hope for watchful farmers, however, with a forecast of only 20 per cent chance of light showers over the area. The last measurable rainfall at the Lubbock Weather Bureau was .66 which fell June 30.

Fight Starts Unusual Chain Of Accidents

FRANKFORT, Ind. (UPI)—his mother was one of two wounded women, gathered up five friends and headed for the blast, and an accident, and another accident.

It began Saturday after Henry Ricks, 34 and another man fought outside a local tavern. The other man Estes Ricks, who returned with a shotgun and fired a blast in the direction of the pub, slightly wounding two men, police said.

Then—Kirkland Town Marshal Robert Davis, responding to a call for assistance at the scene, crashed his cruiser. He was not injured.

—At about the same time, Clinton County Deputy Merl Sroc stopped on the way to the scene. His patrol car had burned a piston.

—Larry Winnett, hearing that —his mother was one of two wounded women, gathered up five friends and headed for the blast, and an accident, and another accident.

Frankfort Hospital for treatment of minor injuries suffered in an auto accident.

Ricks fled in his car and ran into another auto several blocks from the tavern.

—And both the Frankfort city police and Clincon County sheriff's office radio networks went out of commission for the duration of the incidents.

Police said Ricks was booked on a charge of intoxication, and will be charged with assault with intent to kill. Nothing was said about the accidents.

Americans ate 18 billion pickles of 36 different types in 1969, says the Pickle Packers International.

"We should feel very little effect from Hurricane Celia this far inland," said a Weather Bureau official. "If Celia hit near Brownsville or further to the south up the Rio Grande we might get a little rain from it. But probably all we can expect is a little wind."

The estimated cotton crop would be up more than 450,000 bales. The 1965 crop produced 2,264,994 bales. The estimated 1970 crop would compare with winnings two years ago of 1,652,748 bales. The all-time record stands at 2,461,061 bales in 1961.

Grain sorghums, which ranks second only to cotton in cash farm income on the Texas Plains, would produce a tonnage equal to last year's 29-county yield of 161,596,000 bushels, grain observers said.

BASIC TRAINING

Today's newspaperboys—tomorrow's leaders. Statistically, that's how it stacks up. In view of this, your newspaperboy is on the first chapter of what will probably be a success story. Not that he's destined for the Hall of Fame—but he might be. For example, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Herbert Hoover, Eddie Rickenbacker, Thomas Edison, Joe DiMaggio, Walt Disney, and Bob Hope all started as newspaperboys.

Newspaper route experience helps mold those special character ingredients so necessary for success in any field: self discipline, punctuality, getting along with people, responsibility. And all the hundred and one other character-makers that are built into the management of a newspaper route.

The newspaperboy is skillfully guided by men trained and experienced to bring out his talents. This combination could well be the most important training in his life. In the long range picture, the money he earns on his route almost seems like a fringe benefit.

Although only one boy in ten ever gets a crack at a newspaper route, our Circulation Department people are always glad to talk it over with youngsters and parents. If you have a son or know a boy who might profit from newspaperboy experience, we'll be happy to hear from you.

British TV—Few Bounds On Freedom

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI)—What did the Yippie call President Nixon?

The word is unprintable (and inexcusable) but a nationwide TV audience heard it without a ripple of shock.

They're used to four letter words on British television. They've seen full frontal nudity. Love scenes so explicit they would get a station shut down in the Midwest are fairly common.

But sensationalism apart, the freedom offered TV workers here has generally worked in favor of the programming. Thus, many Britons think they have the best all-around TV setup in the world and quite a few American visitors are sometimes inclined to agree with them.

The British theory is that you can use any word and show practically any kind of action providing it is dramatically justified by the type of program. There is no barrier on subject matter. One prime time comedy concerned a man who had to be given an organ transplant after an automobile accident. The ultimate transplant, so to speak.

The insurance company wouldn't pay on the donor on the ground he couldn't be adjudged dead if a vital part of him was still functioning. The widow was called to identify the transplant. The rest of the plot would have to be mostly asterisks and a good supply of these written bleeps is essential when writing about British TV for American family audiences.

Britain has three networks. Two of them do not carry commercials and are supported by the license fees ($14.40 a year black and white, $26.40 a year color) paid by set owners. These are called BBC 1 and BBC 2. The third network is financed by commercials. It is called ITV (for independent television), and it is supervised by a government appointed body.

With the rich American production to draw on British TV is a melange of the best on both sides of the Atlantic. At the moment ITV is transmitting Hawaii 5-0 and the Engelbert Humperdinck Show (the latter produced here primarily for the American market) among such homegrown programs as two weekly news-feature programs.

World in Action and This Week, several comedy and variety shows and old films, mostly American.

BBC and ITV believe good comedy is so hard to find it must be seized wherever a laugh is lurking. But the United States, they say, misses many bets because it avoids working class backgrounds and the church—the former presumably as not the right image for a sponsor's products, the latter to forestall protests.

"Steptoe and Son" is about a junkman and his son, their horse and cart and cluttered home. It was bought but shelved by an American network. "Me Mammy" pokes gentle fun at a devout Catholic mother determined with the help of a closetful of saints to keep her middle-aged son a virgin.

STOCKHOLM (UPI)—U.S. astronaut Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin Jr. was honored as Swedish-American of the Year Sunday in Swedish-American Day ceremonies attended by about 7,000 persons. Aldrin's grandparents moved to the United States from Sweden at the end of the last century.

War Threatens Cambodian Industry

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—A multimillion dollar hydroelectric and irrigation project that promised an agricultural revolution for thousands of Cambodian farmers and the base for industrial development is being threatened by the present war.

Project officials said they expect the Japanese contractors for the almost half-completed scheme 42 miles southwest of Phnom Penh to make a final decision within the next month on whether to go ahead with the Prek Thnot development, in the center of the fighting.

Riding with that decision will be what government officials describe as Cambodia's "image" abroad. To stop work would be to admit to international investors and the world at large that the present Phnom Penh government is not in control of the countryside, they said.

The Prek Thnot project calls for $20.3 million to be spent on building an earth and rock dam, a diversion weir and an 18 megawatt power station, the biggest development so far in the Mekong Valley stretching the length of Indochina.

Cambodia is meeting two-thirds of the cost, half of it being raised by loans on easy terms from abroad. The remainder is being put up by Australia, Canada, West Germany, India, Italy, Japan, The Netherlands, Pakistan, The Philippines, Britain and France.

According to the original plans, the scheme was to be completed by the end of 1972 and would have provided irrigation for 72,200 acres in the poorest and most densely populated area of Cambodia as well as providing 80 per cent of Phnom Penh's power needs.

The hydro-electric power would save foreign exchange now spent on oil for generators and provide the basis for industrial development, now almost nonexistent.

A Japanese combine of Maceida Construction and Toyomenka won the contract in July 1969 and a 15-man team from the Australian Snowy Mountains Hydroelectric Authority was sent in as consulting engineers. The Australians, whose job will cost the Canberra government $2 million, are overseeing the project.

Firm To Test
Flight Conversion
For Automobiles

VAN NUYS, Calif. (UPI)—A Pontiac Firebird may be winging over the San Fernando Valley before the end of this year while its assembly-line brothers crawl along the clogged freeways.

The Advanced Vehicle Engineered Tuesday plans for a "flying automobile" which would utilize an airplane frame and engine that could be attached to a modified standard automobile.

It plans to make a test flight with the Pontiac Firebird before the end of the year.

Henry Smolinski, engineer-president of the firm, said Detroit would have to do it modify the dash board slightly to allow for air instruments and make some minor adjustments in the roof so the airframe could be attached.

The plan is to make it possible for anyone to convert his automobile into a flying car by merely backing into the air frame and snap the pieces together.

The only drawback is tires. The company said improved tires might have to be developed to aid in landing at 80 m.p.h.
