Faubus Faces Challengers In Arkansas

By United Press International

Former Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus, who once used the National Guard to prevent integration of Little Rock schools but was later upstaged with federal troops, today faced seven challengers in his bid for the Democratic nomination to become governor again.

If the onetime six-term governor wins, he may face a stiff contest in November against incumbent GOP Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, who also had a contest on his hands today in the Republican primary. Rockefeller faced three challengers.

The Faubus contest was the featured race among primary elections in Arkansas, Alaska and Oklahoma.

Still Goodness, Beauty In World Classic Pageant Opens Sunday

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)—Like the calm in the eye of a hurricane, the Miss America Pageant—the yearly attempt to remind America that there is still goodness and beauty in the midst of turmoil—opens here next Sunday.

At the end of the week, there will be a new Miss America and the pageant will have celebrated its 50th anniversary and middle America will have seen itself reflected once again in the faces of the 50 youthful contestants.

But this year, even though the pageant will still epitomize President Nixon's middle America, there will be some changes. For the first time since the first Miss America was selected here in 1921, there will be a black contestant. She is Cheryl Adrienne Brown, 20, of Bedford, Iowa—Miss Iowa.

In addition, pageant officials promise, newsmen will be able to ask a contestant almost any question about any subject. Executive Committee Chairman Albert A. Marks Jr. said all restrictions except two have been lifted on questions.

Restricted by chaperones will be queries the contestant feels to be personally distasteful and any "espousal of an active political candidate."

The pageant's theme, "What It Was and What It Still Is—Beautiful," reflects over the past 50 years. But the music, according to producer George Cavalleri, will include some rock sounds typical of today's generation.

"We are, I guess you might say, trying to keep abreast of a constantly changing youthful America," said Marks. "We are trying to travel the standard middle of the road as would befit an American institution—to provide pleasure and enjoyment to everybody...to cater to no special minority group, but rather to middle America." Marks said the pageant is operating on a philosophy that the contestants should be themselves—not what somebody else thinks you ought to be. We want to judge and get today's youth as they themselves think they are...not as somebody else thinks they ought to be.

Contestants Start Arriving
The contestants seeking the crown now worn by Pamela Ann Eldrid, Miss America 1970, will begin arriving here Friday with official registration on Sunday and Monday, Labor Day.

The pageant parade will be held Tuesday night on the boardwalk, with preliminary competition in swim suits, evening gowns and talent set for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights.

The 10 semifinalists are picked Saturday night, and then the five finalists. The judges will ask each a question, and the new Miss America will be crowned.

Pageant officials say some 20 of the 41 living former Miss Americas will attend and participate in the pageant.

Speed Factor Nets Driver Citation

Pampa police investigated two accidents involving parked cars and moving vehicles, but reported no casualties in the accidents, which caused about $815 damage to the four vehicles involved.

Steven Leon Weatherly, 16, of 2708 Rosewood, was charged Monday by police with failure to control speed to avoid an accident after the car he was driving allegedly struck the rear of a parked car at 515 N. Hobart St. Officers estimated the parked car, owned by Ira B. Carlton, 331 N. Faulkner, sustained $225 damage, and Weatherly's car $250 damage.

Linda Carol Williamson, 16, of 2201 Beech, was charged by officers with unsafe change of direction of travel, when her car allegedly swerved to the right near the South Cuyler Street underpass and struck a pickup parked in the 300 block of South Cuyler.

The pickup, owned by Robert E. Crouch of 237 Anne St., sustained $290 damage and the Williamson car, $50, according to officers' report.

SA Board To Greet New Commander

Members of the advisory board of the Salvation Army will meet for a luncheon Thursday at the army's headquarters, 701 S. Cuyler, to greet Colonel Gordon Foubister of Dallas.

Col. Foubister is the new divisional commander for the Army and will spend the day touring Pampa.

Capt. L.Z. Sullivan, head of the Pampa Salvation Army, has called the luncheon to welcome Col. Foubister and also to bid farewell to Charles Hill, Hill is advisory board chairman and will be leaving Pampa to be city manager at Beaumont.

Coroner Refutes Theories Of Orgy In Sharon Tate's Home

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Sharon Tate had not been drinking and had taken no drugs the night she was killed.

Los Angeles County Coroner Thomas T. Noguichi Monday knocked down any theories that an "orgy party" was in progress the night of Aug. 8, 1969, when the pregnant actress and four other persons were stabbed and shot to death at her Benedict Canyon estate.

Noguichi told the jury in the murder trial of the 'Manson family' that blood tests on the bodies of the victims indicated neither Miss Tate nor hair stylist Jay Sebring, to whom she once was engaged, were under the influence of alcohol or narcotics.

He said tests showed Polish writer Voityck Frykowski and coffee heiress Abigail Folger each had taken small amounts of the drug MDA, known as "super speed," and both apparently had been drinking.

Noguichi said none of the victims had been sexually molested.

Defendants Charles Manson, Leslie Van Houten, Susan Atkins and Patricia Krenwinkel sat quietly at the counsel table during the coroner's gory testimony.

Explosion Ruins Building; Kills Young Researcher

MADISON, Wis. (UPI)—The police dispatcher received the call at 3:40 a.m. Monday.

"Hey, pig," the voice said. "There's a bomb in the Math Research Building on the university campus. Clear the building."

Two minutes later a shattering explosion ripped into the Army Mathematics Research Center on the University of Wisconsin campus, killing a researcher and injuring four other persons.

Authorities literally pieced together the first clue Monday night—a stolen truck in which the explosives were detonated. The truck was parked in a driveway near the math building. The force of the blast shredded the truck and for a time it was thought the explosion had occurred in the building.

Pieces of Truck Found
Madison Police Detective Stanley Davenport said small—but identifiable—pieces of the truck were found in the area of the destroyed six-story building.

He said the truck, a white 1967 Ford Falcon Econoline, was traced to its owner, Larry Travis of Madison. Travis told police the truck was stolen while he was vacationing in California.

Police Lt. Kenneth Buss said the dispatcher received the warning call at 3:40 a.m. "At 3:42," Buss said, "the building exploded. There was a flash fire."

Killed was Robert E. Fassnacht, 33, father of three. His wife said he was catching up on research because the family planned to move Wednesday and then go on a vacation.

Pampa Man Accidentally Shoots Self

Jessie Lee Polk, 22, of 551 S. Gray, discovered Tuesday morning a bed while holding a loaded gun can result in an accidental shooting and a pre-dawn trip to Highland General Hospital emergency room. Polk was released from the hospital Tuesday morning after a 22 caliber bullet was removed from his left hand.

Police officers reported Polk said he heard someone at his back door and took a 22 caliber revolver out of the dresser, went to the door and tried to block it with a bed.

In their report, officers stated the revolver accidentally discharged wounding Polk in his left hand. After he woke his brother, Jerry Polk, 30, Jackson James, of 522 Crawford, arrived and the three went to the hospital, where the bullet was removed from Polk's left hand.

Jackie Revisits Amalfi Coast

CONCI DEI MARINI, Italy (UPI)—Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis today was back on Italy's Amalfi Coast, where she last visited in 1962 as first lady of the United States.

Her arrival coincided with publication of the magazine, Gente, of a photograph said to show her shipowner husband kissing soprano Maria Callas, a former yachting companion.

The kiss was photographed, Gente said, when Aristotle Onassis flew to the Greek island of Tragounisi to visit Miss Callas on her name day.

Mrs. Onassis was accompanied to Italy by her husband aboard the yacht Christina. They anchored briefly at Capri, cruised to this hamlet of 735 persons, then returned to Capri for a shopping tour by Mrs. Onassis and her sister, Lee Radziwill.

Those breathtaking tri-cycle races at the Jaycee Fair last night provided some hair-raising moments as six winners crossed the finish line... coming in for first and second places in their respective classes were Terry Scobee, Phillip Reagan, Michael Lancaster, Sandy Warner, Mike Warner, Meride Baldrige... and tonight it's the Egg Toss... which should provide a very goony good time for all... the Harvester football team running hurdles in preparation for the 1970 foot ball season... nobody seemed to be out of breath... Mrs. Stephens and her daughter Judy visiting and dining... Jo Lynn Page bidding good morning to friends from behind her screen door... Barbara Vance studiously working on her yard... mowing, raking, and clipping... Gene Brown, taking time to help his mother, Mrs. Fred Brown by mowing her lawn and cutting grass for her neighbor... Mrs. Georgia Hinton sweeping fresh-cut grass off her front sidewalk and talking about her new roof while her husband, Leon trimmed the lawn with a edger... Mrs. E.E. Shultz, visiting her next door neighbor, Mrs. Jud Jones... Rev. Ed Boyte driving west on Browning Street... Cayson Evans helping move Missy George and her doghouse back home to Fisher Street... Harlin Keating checking dog food brands in a Hobart Street minimart... Mrs. Waldon Haynes driving north on Sloan Street on her way home...

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I know a lot of men go for young girls, but my husband is just the opposite, and that's my problem.

There's a woman in town with one of those long-legged, slim-waisted figures, and she has to be at least 45 years old. Well, my husband can't keep his eyes off her, and he is only 30.

Even though it's out of his way, he drives by her house every morning on his way to work, hoping to get a glimpse of her. Abby, I'm ashamed to tell you some of the things I've thought of doing to try to get her to move. I know it's not her fault, but I could explode every time I think of how my husband drools over this old lady.

How can a person her age be so well preserved?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: I don't know what kind of "preservative" she uses, but I'm sure she isn't pickled in alcohol.

And what makes you think a woman past 45 is ready for the glue factory? The world is full of women who will never see 69 again who have more pizzazz than dolies one-third their age.

DEAR ABBY: After reading the letter from the woman whose husband wanted her to put on sheer black underwear, high heel shoes, and let him tie her up with ropes, I got the courage to write in with my problem.

You see, my husband likes me to get completely undressed, except for my shoes, and put on a dumb trench coat, and then go riding around town with him for about half an hour. He says that just knowing I have nothing on underneath the trench coat "arouses" him. Of course, he is fully clothed. He says it will "arouse" me, too. Well, I did it once, and it didn't arouse me. It scared me half to death.

Abby, I just hate that idea, but he keeps fighting with me to go along with it. I keep thinking, "If we should have an accident, what would the police and the people at the hospital think of a girl riding around with nothing on but a trench coat?"

My husband claims I am childish and inhibited. I don't think I am, Abby. I love him, and this is the first plan for arousal I've refused to go along with. Is there something wrong with me?

Women Sponsor Senior Citizens' Party In Lefors

Lefors Senior Citizens Party was sponsored recently by the women's group in the Lefors Church of Christ. Youths of the church presented music programs in the meeting at the Community Bldg.

Senior Citizens who attended were Mr. and Mrs. W.B. McAninch, Mrs. Charles Weese, Bill Wall, Clarence Robertson, Vellie Gathrie, Charlie McAninch, Mrs. R.C. Ogden, and Ola Davis.

The monthly party is sponsored by Lefors organizations, churches and residents. Pat Burk, minister of the Church of Christ, is director of the parties this year. The next scheduled party is Sept. 3.

DEAR TRENCH: No, Your husband likes to live dangerously. Tell him he'd better come up with another plan for "arousment" — but to keep it within the privacy of your four walls.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you mentioned that 15 minutes ought to be long enough to wait dinner for tardy guests before going ahead with a meal.

A few years ago we invited my brother and his wife to a family dinner on Christmas Eve. Since they have a reputation for "always being late, we told them the dinner would be at six o'clock, and we invited everyone else for seven.

At eight o'clock they telephoned, saying they were still downtown shopping and had some presents to wrap yet, so they'd be detained a little longer, and we had better go ahead and start eating without them. Of course we did just that.

Well, they arrived 54 hours later! What I would like to know is, is this some kind of record?

REYNOLDSBURG, OHIO

DEAR OHIO: Probably not—but close!

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 26

YOUR BIRTHDAY WEDNESDAY: Some definite change in your career is promised during this coming year; in fairly rapid steps, depending on what you would like to do, how well equipped you are to cope, and how strongly you want the change. If you simply drift, the changes will be mixed; quite a few good, some not so good. Wednesday's natives have strong intuitive powers which they seldom put to use.

ARIES (March 21-Apr. 19): — Make this a day of consistent, accurate work: quit at the earliest possible time. The evening brings significant insight, so seek serenity.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): — A pleasant atmosphere prevails, with no special event or crisis. The evening hours hinder travel, provide information. Decisions are best put off a couple of days.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): — It's difficult to avoid scattering your energy as people change their minds. Your own thinking ranges from one extreme to another; make notes of ideas for future testing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): — Easy does it — there's no short cut now open. Just play it straight, get as much done as you can. Instead of squabbling at night, seek areas of agreement.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): — Focus your attention on unfinished business instead of experimenting. Let people express themselves) postpone

Smog-Irritated Eyes Need Extra Protection

NEW YORK (UPI)—Nature's windshield wipers, the eyelids, help to protect the eyes of most persons from irritating substances in air pollution on an unclear day.

But the elderly, those with sensitive eyes and those who wear contact lenses are apt to suffer the most from soot and chemical particles deposited on the eyes.

Dr. Alden N. Haffner, a consultant to the Society for Visual Care and director of the Ophthalmic Center of New York said reports of pollution-troubled eyes go up markedly at the center's clinic when days are very smoggy.

In the normal or well eye, the lids sweep most of the irritants toward the tear ducts, gutters that empty into the nasal passage. Some grit settles in or about the ducts. This is what city dwellers frequently brush away from the corners of their eyes after a night's sleep.

But in the elderly and those with sensitive eyes, bothered by pollen as well as pollutants, the tear ducts plug up. The resultant malfunction of the ducts causes excessive tears that have no place to go but down the cheeks. Sometimes there is burning and itching, too.

Dr. Haffner said the best protection is sun glasses or staying in an air conditioned room at times when the air is extremely polluted.

If you don't have an air conditioner, an electrostatic screen will work just as well, catching the noxious particles.

Those wearing contact lenses are advised to remove them for about an hour extra a day and cleanse them thoroughly.

Asked if air pollutants eventually can cause permanent damage to the eyes, Dr. Haffner said no one yet knows the long-term effect.

"If it's bothering eyes to this extent, the irritation is at the concern level," he said. "We know, of course, that we all would be better off without pollution."

When soot or ashes blow into your eyes, don't rub. Pull the upper lid down over lower lid and let tears wash foreign matter out.

"But if that doesn't work the first time, seek professional help," Dr. Haffner said.

Americans Prefer Pushing Buttons

Americans like to push buttons, especially when a button is attached to one of the nearly three billion aerosols used each year in this country ranging from whipped cream to shaving cream, from lemon flavoring to lemon oil furniture polish, and from hair dye to paint spray.

According to a leading contract packager of aerosols, the aerosol-psychology is based on consumer preference for these conveniences: ready to use without preparation or cleanup; streamlined packaging; elimination of waste; purity of dispensed product, including medicinals, allowing use of the same personal care product container by the whole family.

Callan Families Organize Reunion

WHEELER (Spl) — The family of the late Mr. and Mrs. J.A. Callan attended a family reunion at the Pioneer Gas Company Recreation Room in Pampa.

Clarence Smith gave the invocation for the dinner hour. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Smith and Mrs. Virginia Douglas, all of Clovis, N.M.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Douthit, Renee and Karmen, Pam and Linda, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Callan, Mr. and Mrs. Billie Joe Chance and children, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood DCallan, all of Pampa; Mr. and Mrs. Dean Bryant and family of Sunray, Mrs. Veaulah Goodin and P.O., of Dimmitt, Mrs. Ruby Wilson of Follett, Mr. and Mrs. Vance Ray and family of Carlsbad, N.M.

Others were Mr. and Mrs. William Riley, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Riley of Elkhart, Kans., Mr. and Mrs. Leon Riley, Chris and Kathy of Beaver, Okla., Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cox of Oklahoma City, Mrs. Willa Dean Devolt of Tulsa, Okla., Mr. and Mrs. Russell Barker of Shamrock, Rusty Barker of Houston, Mrs. Lone Miller of Dumas, Mr. and Mrs. William McChristian of Borger, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson of Follett.

Scouting Scoops

By CELIA FOWLER

Girl Scout Executive Director

Are you looking for fun, learning and adventure? Well, being the leader of a group of active and enthusiastic little girls may not always be easy, but it is rewarding and like all dividends it does pay off. If you think that YOU can't do a good job or that YOU don't even matter, you are wrong!

For a insight into what you can GIVE to our youth through the Girl Scout Program, Girl Scouts in Quivira Council wrote letters explaining what Girl Scouting means to them.

"There are many different reasons why being a Girl Scout is so special to me. We learn about things we can use now and in the future, like cooking, sewing and care of pets. We are able to do things that help others too."

"I enjoy Girl Scouts because we have so much fun!! I also learn a lot. I've learned how to act and have respect for others, because that's what it means to be a Girl Scout."

"I am a Girl Scout because I want to be a better citizen, a better friend, a better person, and learn to take responsibility as I grow older."

"As a Girl Scout I've learned to appreciate the efforts and ideas of others. I've learned to be patient and listen."

"Girl Scouting is a world of exploring, excitement, and fun. It offers exciting roads to follow

In action and service. In duty to God and Country.

"Scouting means a lot to me for it provides opportunities for good fellowship and fun along with character training and travel."

"Scouting will help me become a better citizen because it teaches me to love and understand all people no matter what race or color."

"Girl Scouting teaches you to get along with others, to give and to take, to make plans and carry them out and learn from your own mistakes."

"In Girl Scouts I learned that people in foreign countries are people just like me!!"

"I like being a Girl Scout especially at camp because there you can see God."

"Being a Girl Scout helps you be a better person, not only on troop meeting days, but every day."

Girl Scouting teaches service to God and Country, the joy of helping others, the wonder of foreign lands, the beauty of nature, the excitement of making your own plans, and most of all the fun of doing it together!"

The values of Scouting are many. But what if there weren't leaders? What if you weren't there?

Smith To Name New Man For Mexican-American Affairs

AUSTIN (UPI) — Gov. Preston Smith said Monday he will meet with Mexican - American leaders in San Antonio Thursday in his search for a new assistant for Mexican - American affairs.
He said Johnson had not yet replied to the invitation, but an aide said "we're hoping he will be able to come."
Smith said he declined to speak at a meeting of state leaders of the National Association of the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) in Lubbock Saturday because "I had some business to attend to in Lubbock."
"I told them on June 6 that I couldn't come, so nobody should have been surprised," Smith said. Some of those attending the meeting criticized the governor for not speaking to the group.
The governor said he had no interest in the "Preston Smith Realty Company" in Lubbock. He said he had given permission to J. W. McCulloch to use the governor's name "because he's a friend who has worked for me all my life and if I can help him out a little bit, then I want to do it."
A spokesman for Smith said state Rep. Frank Lombardino, D-San Antonio, will make arrangements for the meeting which will begin at 10 a.m. in the Gunter Hotel.
Smith is looking for an assistant to replace Humberto Aguirre of Del Rio, who was fired last month. The governor said Aguirre was fired "because he was not producing the results we were wanting."
Aguirre accused Smith of showing "callous disregard" for problems of minority groups at a news conference Aug. 7.
The governor also said at an impromptu news conference today that he has invited former President Lyndon B. Johnson to speak at the state Democratic convention in Dallas Sept. 14-15.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Discovery that many conventional insecticides eventually wind up in human tissues has started the Agriculture Department on an intensive search for other means of bug control.
Many new methods have been tested with varying degrees of success. But to laymen, at least, the most recent experiment in this field appears to have the greatest potential.
Under the latest approach, you don't kill a bug outright by spraying it with poison, you cause it to become infected with a virus.
In short, pestilences rather than pesticides.
The reason this concept makes such an impression on laymen is because we have had some experience with viral diseases and are aware of how incapacitating they can be.
Since initial studies, involving cabbage loopers and armyworms, are just now getting started, it is perhaps too early to anticipate the outcome. Theoretically, however, many benefits could ensue.
And the beauty of it, is that the insects would become the agents of their own undoing.
Entomologists simply would catch a few, haul them into the lab and infect them with a virus. Then the bugs would be freed to go out and infect their family, friends and coworkers.
Let us take an advance peek into a cabbage patch which is heavily infested with cabbage looper.
"You don't seem to be looping much cabbage this morning, Henry. Is anything wrong?"
"Yeah, I don't feel so good. My head aches, my eyes are hot and watery and my legs feel like they have lead weights tied to them."
"Hoo, boy! Sounds like you've got a touch of the armyworm virus. There's a lot of that going around."

Lack Of Socks, Not Long Hair Major Issue In Some Schools

By PRESTON MCGRAW
United Press International

Socks will be more relevant in Texas high schools this fall than long hair and sideburns. Many Texas schools open this week and a United Press International survey of high school dress and grooming codes throughout the state shows that boys can get away nearly everywhere with long hair, sometimes hair hanging over their shirt collars.

Sideburns are all right, just so they don't come below the bottom of the ear. But shoes without socks? The general rule statewide is a flat "no." T. B. Stovall, the principal of Fort Worth's Western Hills High, explained why school administrators will wince at long hair that hangs down on sockless feet.

"When a boy wears shoes without socks any length of time, the shoes begin to smell. Put 35 or 40 days without socks together in a classroom and you can't stand it. Phew!" The codes let girls wear extremely short dresses. Some schools specify lengths. Others merely specify that miniskirts must not be so short that underwear shows, standing or sitting.

Anticipating a possible fad for long dresses next winter, some schools forbid dresses longer than ankle length because girls trip on them and fall. Several schools even allow pants suits for girls and teachers.

Play It Cool
School boards tried to play it cool on dress and grooming standards. Most of them laid down a general rule, like "neat and clean" and turned the problem over to committees of teachers, parents and students at each school.

A few principals said off the record that they wished school boards had faced up to the hair and dress problem squarely, set up uniform rules for an entire district and given principals the authority to enforce the rules. But school boards may feel that they are on uncertain legal ground setting a broad range of rules, even though in several hair cases last year, courts ruled in favor of school regulations.

"We realize it (code) is not enforceable in court," said Mrs. Bernice Gale, assistant principal of Waltrip High in Houston. "We only ask that parents cooperate."

With a directive from the school board that students must "be clean, free of odors and wear clothing free of odors and not indecent in any manner," committees in Houston high schools drew up codes.

At Houston Waltrip, girls will not attend classes in slacks. Pant dresses are not acceptable. Maxi skirts may be worn if they do not come below the ankle. Boys must wear socks. Boys and girls must wear shirt tails tucked in, unless the tails are designed to be worn outside. Hair should not be worn below a normal collar. Beards and mustaches are not acceptable, but sideburns may be worn to the bottom of the ear. The code does not mention short skirts.

In the Nederland School District, miniskirts are not taboo, but must cover undergarments while girls are sitting or standing. Blue jeans, pedalpushers, shorts and slacks for girls are out. Boys must wear their hair above their eyes and above their collars. Beards and mustaches are out. Shirt tails are in.

Using Common Sense
The rules in essence say that no mode attire will be considered proper that disrupts classroom decorum," said Nederland Superintendent E. H. McKenzie Jr.

The Pasadena School District has some of the most specific rules in the state: skirts may be no longer than three inches above the bend of the leg behind the knee but disciplinary action will be taken only if skirts are five inches above that point. No slacks or pants dresses for girls. Hair (for boys) is to be tapered into a thin edge at the back—not blocked, no beate cuts, surfer cuts or other styles will cause the hair to fall over the face or in the eyes.

W. C. Hollander, head of the communications council in the Pasadena district, said he opposes long hair and loud clothes but knows kids will be kids. He has six of his own.

Dallas Rules Outlined
Dallas schools in most cases permit hair at least to the tops of collars, mustaches as long as they are not wider than a boy's mouth, miniskirts "as long as they are long enough so that undergarments cannot be seen." Slacks and pants suits but no maxiskirts.

Socks are required for boys, even though they are allowed to wear sandals. The committee that worked up the rules at Dallas Bryan Adams High even said it is all right for boys' hair to reach the bottom of their collars, though it would be better if it is not longer than the top of collars. "Our basic rules emphasize health, safety and good taste," said H. S. Griffin, Dallas assistant superintendent of secondary education.

San Antonio school superintendents leave it up to individual principals. Pat Holmes, superintendent of the Central District in San Antonio, said he generally requires dress and hair style that a student would wear to get a job.

No Disruptive Styles
"We don't want styles to be disrupting and distracting to an educational atmosphere," an educational atmosphere," a spokesman for the San Antonio Independent School District said. Ed Cody, superintendent of San Antonio's Northside District, told his principals not to permit extremes in hair styles. As for the rest, he left it flexible and up to the principals.

Austin school superintendent Irby Carruth said girls dresses in his schools must be no shorter than four inches above the top of the kneecap. "That sounds short enough to me," Carruth said.

Austin high school girls may wear slacks if the weather is freezing or below. Boys must wear belts, socks and shirt tails in, if they are designed to be worn in.

Neatly Groomed Hair
As for hair, beards, mustaches, long sideburns and extreme hair styles are not considered appropriate. "Hair should be neatly trimmed and groomed" in Austin high schools.

Fort Worth Principal Stovall said guidelines laid down at Western Hills are "not mandatory or anything." But he did sound firm about socks. "Sideburns should extend no longer than the corner of the jawbone and be squared horizontally. In the back.

Skunks Could Be Weapons Of War

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Skunks may provide a smelly and effective means of achieving military victory in Vietnam, according to a constituent of Rep. Clarence D. Long, D-Md. In his newsletter to residents of his district, Long reported an unnamed constituent has an "idea for ending the Vietnam War by forcing the Communists to come out of their underground holes and fight."

The idea: "Ship thousands of skunks to Vietnam (where there are none now) and turn them loose."

Long said his constituent "guarantees that the polecats will head for the nearest dugout, driving the Communists out into the open, so our soldiers can get a shot at them."

The idea has been forwarded to the Pentagon by Long.

The American Red Cross has a new president, George M. Elsey to succeed General James F. Collins. Mr. Elsey was a former aide at the White House and the Department of Defense. Elsey also served from 1953 to 1961 as assistant to two ARC presidents and as vice-president for international activities and safety and nursing services. Elsey is a native of Palo Alto, Calif., he graduated from Princeton University in 1939 and received his MA degree from Harvard a year later. He was in the navy during WWII and served until 1947. He spent the next 5 years as administrative assistant to the President of the United States. We feel that Mr. Elsey is a capable leader for our Red Cross organization.

US Flag Becomes Controversial

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The flag of the United States, its nation's symbol, has become an object of controversy. Those who support the nation's policies display it on lapel pins, car decals, in advertisements, even in clothing. Those who do not support these policies have used the flag both as an object and symbol of protest. Some of them have been arrested and jailed. United Press International reporters checked the legal controversies over the use of the flag and its current role in political dissent. The following is their report.)

By DAVID SMOTHERS
UPI Senior Editor

Arthur Goldberg, who has been many things and is currently Democratic candidate for governor of New York, took his campaign entourage on a hiking trip into the Adirondack Mountains this month and was moved to make a confession. It seems that, back in 1931, Goldberg and his new bride took a honeymoon hike in the same mountains. They had hoped to find shelter in a forest ranger's cabin. But, when they reached it, the ranger was gone and the cabin was locked.

Night was coming on. The future secretary of labor, associate justice of the Supreme Court, and U.S. ambassador to the United Nations climbed with his wife to the ranger's observation tower, which was open.

"I have to be honest about it," Goldberg now admits, "and the statute of limitations has run out. But the only cover we could find was the American flag and we used it."

BOSTON — Femenist leader Betty Freidan, letting politicians know what is in store for them:

"This year women will not lick the stamps, look up the zip codes, man the polls unless they also make the decisions in the smoke-filled rooms."

"I guess, today we'd be arrested." Carries New Threat Goldberg could be right. This year, the old dare of the flag of the American Revolution, "Don't Tread On Me," carries a renewed threat of arrest and prosecution.

In a time of mounting internal tensions, the flag seems dearer to many than ever before; and the cost of trifling with it in the cause of protest has become dearer, too.

A Dallas court gave Gary Allen Deeds, 19, a four-year sentence for burning what he said was a replica of the flag in a demonstration.

At Manteo, N.C., two teenagers from Baltimore were sentenced to maximum 30-day terms for spreading a flag in front of their tent in such a manner that persons entering or leaving could walk on it. Judge Pentress T. Horner said, "I wish I could give you more. If you're not satisfied with our country go to Russia or some other Communist country."

Flag Code Cited
Most of the laws under which offenders have been prosecuted follow the lead of the Federal Flag Code enacted by Congress in 1942.

Police officers in many parts of the country have taken to sewing miniature flags on the shoulders of their shirts. Construction workers decorate their hard hats with flag decals. A Teamsters local in New York City has been on strike since July 31 protesting a policy of the United Parcel Service (upheld by an arbitrator and a federal judge) against the wearing of any unauthorized insignia, including flag replicas, on their uniforms.

When New York police Patrolman Patrick Dolan reported for duty in the Bronx wearing a flag pin over his shield, he was at first threatened with suspension. He won his battle and received a personal letter of congratulation from President Nixon: "Now New York's Finest have another proud badge to wear."

Most Americans, of tolerant mind might be inclined to shrug off, even to sympathize with, such instances, although some of those cited might fall technically on the wrong side of the law. After all, under strict interpretation, Uncle Sam could get himself jailed dressing the way he does.

But there are those, not all of them friends of protest, who fear a double-standard is being applied in the enforcement of the laws; even, that the laws put on the books in times of greater national unity might not now stand the test of a constitutional challenge.

Conviction Overturned
In a decision which has aroused controversy in Pennsylvania, the state Supreme Court overturned the conviction of a young man who displayed a flag with the words "make love, not war" upon it. The court decided July 2 that such action is not illegal "if the desecration takes place at a political demonstration."

A federal judicial panel has ruled that New York State's anti-desecration law is "impermissibly broad and cannot be constitutionally invoked."

Sometimes, a note of poignancy surfaced in the judicial rulings. Such was the case when the Lucas, Ohio, County Court of Appeals reversed the conviction of John Sainz, accused in Toledo of slitting a flag so he could wear it as a poncho, making burn marks upon it, and attaching to it a peace sign.

The appeals court, in a 2-to-1 decision, ruled it was not proven that Sainz meant to cast "contempt" on the flag. The majority opinion added: "This is a hard decision. It is our flag, too, but our love for it will not permit us to waive these rules."

Pollution World-Wide Problem

United Press International
Two cartoon characters plugging an advertisement on television used to hold up a hand-printed poster proclaiming "Plan ahead." But the letters of "ahead" trailed down the edge of the cardboard because they misjudged the width of the sign.

Like the two pitchmen, much of the world misjudged and failed to plan ahead to combat the pollution which has made part of the globe unhealthy for human beings.

A survey of 21 UPI correspondents around the world showed that nine countries have done little or nothing about pollution; seven have plans to do something and only five have existing anti-pollution programs rated average or better.

In Japan the sudden and acute illness of a Tokyo high school class brought home the fact of air pollution. The city instituted a program closing downtown sections of the area to vehicular traffic in an effort to reduce smog. Concrete steps to permanently control pollution in Japan have not been taken.

Sweden, on the other hand, considers itself relatively pollution free. It has had laws against pollution in one form or another since 1956, and since July 1969, has had legislation governing pollution of air and water and noise disturbances.

Other laws restrict sulphur content in fuel oil, restrict lead and other pollutants in motor fuel, and prohibit water pollution by ships and other sea-going vessels.

Israel has no anti-pollution laws. As officials in Tel Aviv put it, they have other more pressing problems at present.

Little has been done to fight pollution in Italy. Several bills have been introduced in parliament, but it is unlikely they will be acted upon soon.

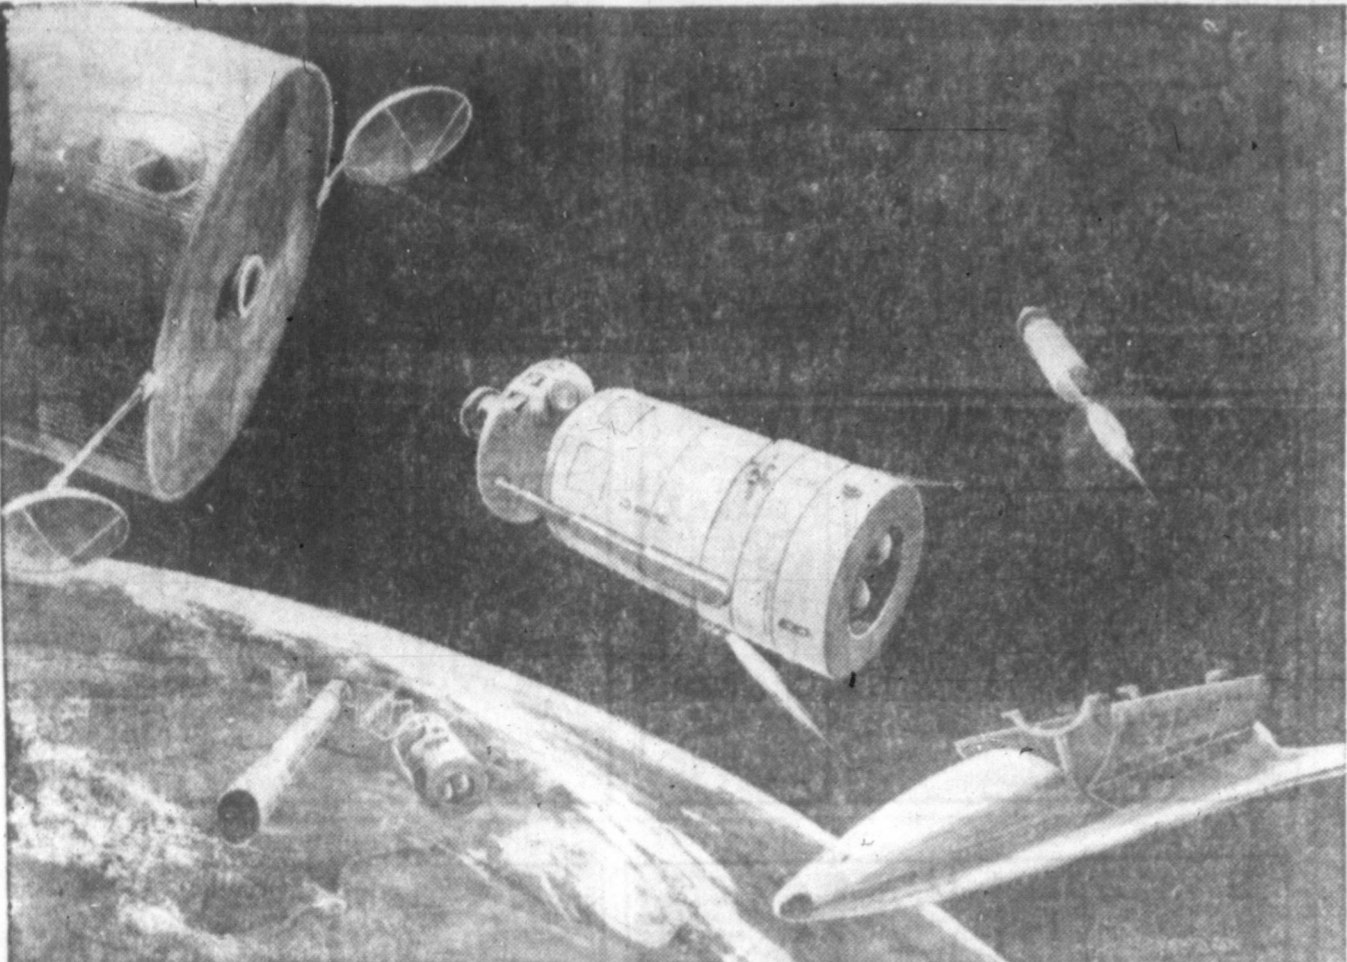

London's traditional pea soup fog and serious smog are no longer a problem. Thanks to the clean air acts of 1956 and 1969, local authorities in Britain are empowered to declare whole or part of their districts "smoke control areas" within which emission of any smoke from chimneys of all buildings is prohibited.

Small cities' light industries and the absence of heavy generating plants have left the air of Switzerland relatively clean. But effective control of water pollution is hampered by vast decentralization of authority. Pollution control is left to the canton governments, of which there are 25.

In the Soviet Union the pollution problem is considered serious but it is less critical than in most industrial communities of the West. To improve the quality of air in Moscow, officials have planted more than 20 million trees since the end of World War II.

The Soviet Union is one of the few countries that has concrete anti-pollution measures. Buildings are no longer heated individually, but form part of a central heating system. Motorbuses are rapidly being replaced by electrically-driven buses. Discharge of industrial waste into rivers is forbidden. Smoke from factories is being filtered.

Argentina's government agencies have finally acknowledged they are faced with a serious air pollution problem, but efforts to combat it are disorganized.

Hollywood In Review

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The graduating class of "Peyton Place," television's defunct nighttime soap opera, has distinguished itself beyond all expectations.

Mia Farrow has starred in a couple of movies, married and divorced Frank Sinatra and borne a set of twins out of wedlock.

Leigh Taylor-Young also has starred in movies and married Ryan O'Neal.

O'Neal is another "Peyton Place" star who is prospering in movies.

Over the long haul the most successful of the bunch may be Barbara Parkins, who played sexy, sultry Betty Anderson in the series.

Barbara is Back
Barbara is back at her alma mater, 20th Century-Fox (that's where "Peyton Place" was ground out) for a co-starring role in "The Memphis Waltz."

Miss Parkins looked beautiful, cool, poised, self-assured and, well, like a movie star.

"If it weren't for 'Peyton Place' I don't know where I'd be today," the brunette beauty said.

"I turned down the feminine lead in 'Goodbye Columbus' because I didn't want to play that type of role. Actually, this picture is the best I've done."

To date her other films are "Valley of the Dolls," "The Kremlin Letter" and "Puppet on a Chain,"—none of which are

Oklahomans Pick Democratic Nominee At Polls Today

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)—Oklahomans pick a Democratic nominee for governor today, at the end of a non-spectacular campaign expected to produce the smallest vote in 24 years.

David Hall, 39-year-old former Tulsa County prosecutor, is expected to finish first. This has focused interest on the No. 2 man, who will be in a runoff Sept. 15 if the front-runner does not get a majority in the primary.

Vying for the second spot are state Sen. Bryce Baggett, 38, Wilburn Cartwright, 78-year-old corporation commissioner, and Joe Cannon, 45, former safety commissioner.

Of the three, Baggett has conducted the most active campaign and appears to be gaining ground, although neither his organization nor activities have matched Hall's.

No Democrat in state history has ever won a first primary majority. This year, interest is so light, no one can be sure of the outcome. All four candidates made the usual victory predictions in the campaign's final weekend.

Republican incumbent Dewey Bartlett, seeking to become the first governor to succeed himself, is unopposed in the primary and for the present an apparent favorite for reelection. There are no Republican primaries for any statewide office.

American party Chairman Renee Little will also be on the November ballot for governor.

Only two of Oklahoma's congressional delegation of four Democrats and two Republicans face primary opposition. They are House Majority Leader Carl Albert, 3rd District, and Tom Steed, 4th, both Democrats. Both are heavy favorites. Albert, in line to become the next speaker of the House, has no opposition in November, meaning a victory Tuesday will assure him of another term.

Clinics Close So Workers Can Rest

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Three of the city's four immunization clinics were closed at noon Saturday to allow volunteer workers inoculating citizens against a diphtheria epidemic time to rest before the start of school Monday.

Health officials said that despite the mass immunization program for the past two weeks more than half the city remained unprotected. What the effects to the opening of area schools would be were not known but were generally feared by doctors.

An 18-year-old girl on the city's southwest side has become the 60th diphtheria victim this year, 30 of them have been discovered in the last month. Fifteen victims remain in local hospitals. An additional 12 persons are under observation and are listed as possible patients.

Dr. William R. Ross, city health director, said if one child in a classroom is discovered with the disease all his classmates will be checked for diphtheria infection. He said one person can infect from eight to 10 classmates. Even if the persons have been inoculated against the disease they can become carriers.

Anyone showing the symptoms of the disease has been given throat cultures by city doctors. The symptoms begin with a throat and mild fever with perhaps a cough. The victim may have trouble swallowing and as the disease gets worse—a grayish membrane begins to grow in the throat, slowly closing off the air passage.

Stone Misses Date, Pitches 6-0 Game

By United Press International
George Stone lost a date Monday night but he settled for winning a baseball game.

His girlfriend, a Louisiana gal named Louellen Aden, was recently named "Miss Dogpatch USA" and is in New York for promotional appearances so Stone was planning to come down from Montreal to see her.

But all the plans went awry when the Braves' game with the Expos was rained out Sunday and rescheduled for Monday night. So, Stone settled for pitching a three-hit shutout that gave the Braves a 6-0 victory over the Expos.

"I had to cancel the date and I was so mad I knew I would beat the Expos because we had to stay over the extra day," Stone said.

In the only two other games scheduled in the majors, Kansas City beat the New York Yankees for the first time this year, 8-7, and the Chicago Cubs topped Los Angeles, 4-2.

Mike Lam homered for the Braves in the first inning and the Braves scored five unearned runs in the seventh to wrap it up. Ron Brand and Dan McGinn made errors to set up the splurge and Rico Carty, Gene Boyer and Gil Garrido hit 1-1 scoring singles.

Kansas City finished its season with an 0-12 mark against Baltimore and the Royals were 0-9 against New York before beating the Yanks Monday night. Paul Schaaf, who went 3-for-3 and drove in four runs and the rest of the Royals can't understand the 1-for-21 mark against two teams.

"We don't have a defeatist attitude when we play them. But I don't know, it's just hard to explain," Schaaf said.

Ferguson Jenkins pitched an eight-hitter for his 16th victory as Chicago beat Los Angeles, Jenkins, who may be the most underrated pitcher in the majors, seldom gets in the spotlight but he's attempting to win 20 games for the fourth consecutive season. Jenkins is now 16-14.

Joe Pepitone, counted on for a late-season surge by the Cubs as they attempt to sneak past Pittsburgh and New York in the National League East, hit a two-run homer.

Pepitone's homer was the first hit off Dodger starter and loser Sandy Vance and came in the fourth inning. Ron Santo's sacrifice fly and Bill Sudakis' error in the sixth handed the Cubs two more runs and a 4-1 lead in the sixth and that's all the help Jenkins needed.

WOULD YOU SAY the occasion went to their heads? Nun's Day at Fenway Park brought out some interesting headgear as well as a good crowd.

Roger To Start Saturday, Dallas Against Houston

DALLAS (UPI)—Roger Staubach, who "had his bell rung" by the Green Bay Packers, will start again at quarterback for Dallas Saturday when the Cowboys take on the Houston Oilers in the Astro Dome.

Other starting assignments announced Monday by Cowboy coach Tom Landry included Ren East who will start at defensive tackle; Malcolm Walker, who will start his first game at center; and Cliff Harris, the rookie who will be starting his second game at free safety.

Lance Rentzel and Bobby Hayes, who made their first appearances in the second half last weekend when the Cowboys dropped a one-point decision to the Packers, will start at wide receiver.

As it was last year when it kept him sidelined much of the last half of the season.

On the questionable list for this Saturday were placekicker Mike Clark with a bruised knee and tight end Pettis Norman with a charley horse.

On the "definitely out" list was rookie wide receiver Reggie Rucker, who broke a bone in his wrist against Green Bay. Rucker, a Boston College product, will have his wrist in a cast for the next three to six weeks.

"We'll continue to play all the people possible" against the Oilers, Landry said. "But if the fire is on, we'll keep it going."

Translated this means if the Cowboys on the field are either making touchdowns at will on their own or 2) successfully defending their own territory from the Houston hosts, they will be kept in the game.

Landry said he wanted to start Staubach again because he didn't play much against Green Bay.

"He had his bell rung and didn't really get a chance to show what he could do," Landry said.

Staubach said last week's game was his chance to prove he can be a starting quarterback in the National Football League.

The Cowboys will continue with two-a-day practice sessions today and will stage another one on Wednesday.

Arkansas Regains Lead, Memphis Drops Two

By United Press International
The Arkansas Travelers needed only a first inning homerun by Jose Cruz Monday night to win the second game of a doubleheader and with the help of the slump-breaking Albuquerque Dodgers moved back into first place in the Eastern Division of the Texas League.

The Travelers dropped the first game of their doubleheader with the Amarillo Canals 4-3 but came back to win the nightcap 6-0. The Dodgers, who had gone without a win for more than a week yet continue to lead the Western Division, blanked the Memphis Blues twice by scores of 3-0 and 4-0.

The twin loss by the Blues knocked them out of the Eastern Division lead and into second place a half game behind the Travelers.

Charger - Bears

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Young San Diego Chargers' quarterback Marty Domres is gaining a reputation as pro football's Frank Merriwell, the fictional sports hero of the '30s who was noted for gaining victory when defeat seemed certain.

Domres entered Monday night's exhibition game against the Chicago Bears in the fourth quarter, down 9-7. He guided his club 72 yards in 13 plays, handing off to Dick Post on an oft-tackle run for the final 14 yards to give San Diego a 14-9 win.

Casper Wins Avco, Edges Nicklaus In Tour Money

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI)—The cost of vacations is going up. Ask Jack Nicklaus.

He had been top cat on the pro golf tour's money list before taking a week off. He comes back for the rich Dow Jones event this week as No. 2 and, presumably, trying harder.

But Casper, who has spent a lot of time either on top or close to the money winning lead, jumped from seventh place in the high income bracket to the top spot by making $32,000 in the Avco Classic while Nicklaus was away. Casper now has $139,585 to $134,660 for Nicklaus.

Casper won one of the largest prizes on the current tour in a virtual runaway, a three-stroke victory on Monday after the tournament's scheduled final round was rained out Sunday.

Billy, upset at photographers and the gallery in earlier rounds, made peace with everyone except his fellow pro tourists in the windup, calmly withstanding a series of charges mounted by Dave Sikes, Rod Funseth and Tom Weiskopf.

"I really enjoyed the day off and I felt very good out on the course today. I was a little more determined to shoot well here," Casper said in noting that last year's failure was the only time he's missed a cut in 15 years on the tour.

Casper wound up with a three-under-par 69 to finish at 277, 11 under par for the 72-hole distance and three strokes ahead of Funseth and Weiskopf. They had scored 66 and 71 respectively to keep the pressure on and collect $14,800 each.

Sikes, the tournament's opening-round leader, briefly pulled even with Casper midway in the final round before falling away on three back nine bogeys to skid into a four-way tie for ninth place.

Lou Graham, Larry Hinson, Charles Coody, Mac McLendon and Larry Ziegler, who tied for fourth with 281 totals, collected $5,936 each while Sikes joined host Paul Harney, Dave Hill and John Schroeder with $3,840 paychecks.

Shaving Strokes
by Frank Beard

A common fault of the average golfer is incorrect weight transfer. He shifts too much weight to his right side taking the club back. Or too little. Usually it is too much.

If you are not getting your weight back to your left side on your downswing it probably is because you shifted it too much to the right on your backswing. Strive to keep your weight on the inside of your right foot on the backswing. This will prevent body sway, which can throw your entire swing out of whack.

I cock my right knee slightly toward the ball as I address the ball and also cock my foot

This diminishes the chances of getting too much weight to my right.

I also like to have the feeling that my right hip has begun to turn before I start my swing. Just barely, but enough so there is a guarantee that I won't slide to my right and get out of balance. You might want to develop some favorite little trick of your own to guard against a bad weight shift. There's no book from heaven on golf and whatever works for you is what's best.

BY MURRAY OLDERMAN

PROSPECTUS — Jets don't think complacency dropped them off Super Bowl peak last year. Injuries were a bigger factor, particularly on defense. Moreover, they had Kansas City sweating in the divisional playoffs before losing. So Coach Weeb Ewbank's not contemplating any big changeover. Why should he?

OFFENSE
PASSING — After making like a cowboy and simulating lovemaking (to Ann-Margret) in the off-season, Broadway Joe has been reluctant to face blitzes again. Namath's no playboy when it comes to football. Yet there's always the risk of those battered knees, so there'll be bigger stress on the developmental program of young Al Woodall. Rating — A MINUS.

RECEIVING — No sense tampering with the established unit of George Sauer wide left, Don Maynard wide right and Pete Lammons inside to block and catch short third-down passes. They all do their jobs superbly. Stringy Maynard has scarcely slowed a step in a dozen pro seasons. The other two are still kids and little Ed Bell is exciting rookie prospect. Rating — A MINUS.

RUNNING — It'll be business as usual here, too, with Matt Snell and Emerson Boozer, who had their best seasons as pros. Snell's unrecognized forte is pass protection blocking. Boozer's over his hangup on a knee operation. Chances are Bill Mathis' retirement will stick this time, but Lee White is eager to make himself useful — and has 225 pounds to do it with. Rating — B PLUS.

LINE — One possible change in offensive cast could find Dave Foley, back from knee operation, ousting young Roger Finnie at right tackle. Not that there's anything wrong with Finnie. Foley's a top talent. Winston Hill at other tackle is all-pro caliber. Guards are rugged Dave Herman, Randy Rasmussen, with John Schmitt unbudgeable over ball. Rating — B PLUS.

DEFENSE
LINE — On paper, and individually, they don't look like much, but they have one valuable asset — great quickness for big men. That includes all four — Gerry Philbin, Verlon Biggs, John Elliott, Steve Thompson. But Philbin will miss first half of season with shoulder repairs. Only Biggs measures up physically to classic pro standards. But Philbin's already all-time AFL star, and Elliott's work draws coaches' raves. Rating — A.

LINEBACKING — Hurt by disability last year, Ralph Baker and Larry Grantham, corner incumbents, and Al Atkinson, middle man, all missed time. Paul Crane compensated for the absences on the outside, but Atkinson's injury hurt the defense and Namath's fustiness spurred announcement to retire. They're looking for depth from couple of Penn State rookies, Dennis Onkotz and John Ebersole. Rating — B PLUS.

SECONDARY — Most vulnerable department on Jets. That's why they drafted Steve Tannen of Florida No. 1 and immediately tabbed him for corner job. Also picked up vet W.J. Hicks from Houston and have other rookies such as Terry Stewart (and Onkotz) getting close look. Jim Hudson's knees made him doubtful asset. John Dockery is only sure starter. Rating — B MINUS.

KICKING — Jim Turner is consistently one of the strongest field-goal kickers in pro football. Steve O'Neal finished fourth among AFL punters last season, and was only a rookie. Should be better in '70. Rating — A.

PREDICTION
Second in Eastern Division because they can't afford injury to any key men.

URBAN RENEWAL IN SAN FRANCISCO

In May of this year, San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto led a delegation of 100 mayors to Washington to ask Congress to appropriate huge additional sums for urban renewal. A proposed urban renewal project in San Francisco illustrates why these funds should not be granted.

This project, known as the Yerba Buena redevelopment program, would demolish a 12-block area containing homes, hotels, restaurants, and other businesses. These would be replaced by an expensive complex designed to attract tourists to the area.

Approximately 4000 housing units would be destroyed to make way for a convention center, sports arena, luxury hotel, and other similar structures. The residents of the existing homes, who are mostly elderly pensioners and minority families, would be left homeless, since the plan calls for only 276 new housing units to replace those demolished. Obviously these displaced people cannot live in the luxury hotel or the sports arena.

Past San Francisco urban renewal projects have destroyed 6000 housing units, while building only 662 new ones.

Mrs. Mary Hall, of the San Francisco Fairness League, testified against the proposed plan, and asked that at the very least "the citizens may determine whether they desire such urban renewal and renewal-related programs or not."

She went on to describe urban renewal as "an idealistic, unworkable, tremendously expensive failure."

Instead of granting vast new sums of federal money for urban renewal, Congress should begin now to phase out this program and provide in existing projects that people will not be made homeless for the sake of grandiose schemes.

With Some Reservation

By INJUN WOODY

It used to be that if a fellow had two chickens and sold one he could keep the other one for himself. These days, if he sells one chicken the government takes the other one, then guarantees that he can borrow enough at 6 percent to buy a third chicken to feed his family. In this fowl play the chickens are getting the best of it.

The poor farmer thought he might have hopes for a change. But he has been poached by the Poage-Hardin Bill. It passed the House on roll-call vote of 212-171, an extension of the 1965 Agriculture Act — and what an act it is.

What it does is continue the "authority to wreck market prices and keep farmers dependent on subsidy payments as a substitute for making an honest and respectable living."

There is not one single major farm organization in the country which has given its blessing to the Poage-Hardin setup. Probably that's why the mis-Representatives passed it.

It's a sad commentary that political speeches are like chaff in the wind. Mr. Richman received a lot of swinging votes from agriculture sectors of the country by promising — "We will strengthen markets which will give you higher prices, more income and greater freedom to manage your own farm affairs."

Well, anyway, the agri. dept. has come up with some figures that are important. The U.S. nut count is up. This country showed a sizeable increase in nuts over the 1968 figure. The production estimates included almonds, filberts and Macademia nuts.

Well, that ain't hard to believe.

Woman VC Leader Seeks More Power For Her Sex

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A document written by the top women's rights advocate in the Viet Cong has been acquired by this reporter.

This strong-willed woman is a top member of the South Vietnam Liberation Army Military Affairs Party Committee and, some say, the single most important woman in the Communist underground.

Her name is Nguyen Thi Dinh.

The document is actually a military order (directive) to party committees and commanders "at all echelons."

In this directive, Madam Dinh minces no words; she bluntly directs that party committees and commanders throughout South Vietnam:

"Bodily assign women to appropriate combat missions in (partial) replacement of the male sex."

"Indoctrinate . . . party members . . . especially of the male sex, on the role and revolutionary capability of women . . . Be resolute to dismiss the feudalistic and narrow-minded tendencies of disregarding women."

"Pay more attention to the recruitment of female cadre for the party . . ."

organize separate caucuses for women once a month."

Train female cadre in every technical service.

Step up "indoctrination on the revolutionary concept toward sex relations" (in the past, Madam Dinh says, this indoctrination "was not carefully considered," and as a result "guidance on the relationship between male and female was not good. This gave way to several cases of illicit love and murder. A number of women due to the influence of the United States and (the South Vietnamese government) . . . still displayed many signs which did not suit the Resistance . . .")

Stop disregarding, and begin to implement fully, all policies concerning the living and health conditions of women.

Began promoting female cadres on their talents and capabilities.

Madam Dinh notes that there are approximately 4,000 female cadre working at various agencies of the (Viet Cong) military staff, the political staff and rear service staff of the Viet Cong, "not including an unspecified number of female cadre serving in assault youth groups and work sites."

In a special marginal note directed to the women themselves, Madam Dinh warns that their own estate is partly their own fault. It must be known, she says, "that the weak points of women are that they are credulous and cannot resist love . . ." This is why "they are often not considered for various jobs and are slow in making progress."

There is no report yet on whether Madam Dinh's orders are being obeyed by Communist party males and Viet Cong military leaders in the south.

But she strikes at the right time. The growing scarcity of local men, and the increasing need for women to fill the Viet Cong party, political, economic, administrative and military posts, must serve as a strong assist to determined women aiming to achieve greater power unless, as Madam Dinh worries, they succumb to love and forget their revolutionary spirit.

How To Price Yourself Out Of Good Job

By DON OAKLEY

NEA Staff Writer

This spring, construction workers in the Cleveland Ohio, area won a $3-an-hour wage increase over the next three years. Beginning May 1, 1972, and a carpenter, for example, will be paid $10.93 an hour in wages and fringe benefits.

"A 20-year-old going to work at that rate, and working steadily until he is 65, could earn more than $1 million in his lifetime," observes William J. Hunkin II, president of one of the largest general contracting companies in the city.

All without working any overtime, and without any further hourly increases during his 45-year career.

This is only a statistical possibility. The fact is, says Hunkin, building tradesmen, some of who earned as much as $30,000 last year, are running the risk of pricing themselves out of work. Other workers earning $4 or $5 an hour can't begin to pay $10 or more an hour, to craftsmen, not to mention high interest rates.

What will happen is that the low cost, single-family house will begin to disappear, he warns. More average-income people will have to live in multifamily units. There will be a growing movement toward housing that is at least partially assembled before it reaches the building site.

A union official counters that the average carpenter does not work a full-time work year.

"This year is bad and it will be a slow summer," says Carpenters Union secretary Alex Brackemridge. "It will be about 1,400 hours. Last year it was 1,600."

Yes, and the way the trend is going, some day a few lucky workers will work only a few hundred hours a year at $100 an hour building a handful of houses for the rare individuals who can afford them. Which will be nice work for those who can get it.

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BRANDSTADT

A new mother can't start protecting her baby too soon. With this thought in mind, Dr. S.C. Southard has produced an excellent pamphlet, entitled "Congratulations to the New Mommy." The booklet is built around three key words — protection, obedience and responsibility. It can be had for 15 cents from your local Easter Seal Society or the National Easter Seal Society, 2023 W. Ogden Ave., Chicago, Ill., 60612.

Q — My 13-months-old son wakes up screaming nearly every night. What could cause this? Will he outgrow it?

A — Night terrors are usually seen in children who are high-strung or sickly. They usually outgrow them after several years. You may be able to shorten the period by making your son's waking environment as calm as possible and by making sure he is in good physical condition.

Q — My daughter, 7, jerks and tosses a lot when she is sleeping. Is this serious?

A — A certain amount of shifting of one's position during sleep is normal at any age. A child who is overtired, however, will jerk and have a very restless sleep, especially in the first two or three hours after going to bed. You should see that she gets to bed a little earlier and that she avoids exciting games or television just before her bedtime.

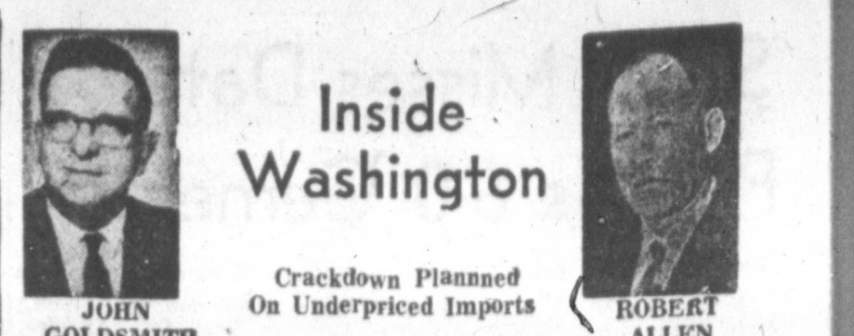

Q — My niece, 4, wakes up almost every night. Should we ignore her, spank her or give her paregoric?

A — Every effort must be made to assure her that her parents or guardians love her. Try to find out why she wakes up. Usually it is from a sense of insecurity. Above all, don't spank or drug her for waking up.

Q — Our son, 3, has ringworm. How did he get this fungus disease? Is it serious?

A — The three parasitic fungi that cause ringworm are common in our environment. Infection with them depends on a personal susceptibility rather than on contagion. The organisms grow best in areas of the skin that are warm and moist. The disease is not serious but is often hard to get rid of and has a tendency to recur. Several effective fungicides are available, such as half-strength Whitfield ointment, undecylenic acid (Desenex), tolnaftate and triacetin.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Inside Washington

Crackdown Planned On Underpriced Imports

WASHINGTON — Japan's unyielding insistence on continuing its tidal wave of low-priced exports to the U.S. is heading for drastic crackdown. Within a few weeks, forceful official measures will be taken to sharply curtail the importation of Japanese radio and TV sets.

The Treasury Department will order these products subjected to close customs examination and price evaluation — on the ground they are being dumped here at prices well below what they are being sold for in Japan.

Virtually certain result of this restrictive action will be to raise the price of the Japanese devices to U.S. standards.

This vigorous crackdown is authoritatively understood to be the first of other similar restrictive measures on low-priced imports — from Japan and other countries.

Foremost among the latter are leading members of the European Common Market.

They are not only charged with dumping large quantities of low-priced goods in the U.S., but resorting to improper and deceptive trade practices.

An extensively used example of the latter is the imposition of excessive border taxes in U.S. goods while this country has reduced tariffs on similar European products.

Glaring instances of such unfair trade practices by Common Market members are already under official scrutiny.

The administration's Trade Information Committee has scheduled public hearings next month on reputed Common Market discrimination against U.S. oranges and other citrus fruit. The Proceedings were initiated at the request of the California-Arizona Citrus League.

It charged that the Common Market entered into preferential trade agreements with Tunisia and Morocco that violate the GATT accord.

And the Treasury Department is investigating reports that the French government is subsidizing malt barley and sugar-beet molasses shipped into the U.S. Confirmation of this information could result in the imposition of countervailing duties.

WIDESPREAD RESENTMENT — The administration's impending forceful measures against the constantly rising tide of low-priced foreign imports are indirect response to both congressional and public clamor and pressures.

Resentment in Congress has become so pronounced that prestigious Ways and Means committee has drafted a bill for the purpose of protecting textiles, shoes and various other products. The highly controversial measure is slated for House consideration shortly after that chamber reconvenes in early September.

Most significant aspect of the legislation is the support it is getting from many previous backers of liberalized trade practices.

Foremost among them is committee Chairman Wilber Mills, D-Ark., who now feels the U.S. "has become the only open market in the world. We simply cannot afford that as a matter of self-protection."

Mills says he is not unduly concerned about the possibility of a retaliatory trade war.

President Nixon has publicly warned he will veto any bill that gives him too much authority to limit imports. He particularly disapproves of provisions to set up quotas for U.S. industries adversely affected by foreign competition.

That position is challenged by Robert Murphy, former high-ranking career diplomat and current board head of Corning International. The one-time undersecretary of state contends it is necessary to enact safeguarding measures.

"They can be extremely useful," he declared. "Several years ago, when Britain cornered one-half of our bicycle ad edp mon ins wash market, we notified them that we wouldn't stand for it. They quickly came to terms. The same thing happened when European countries raised their tariffs on our Poultry. We bluntly informed them we would take retaliatory action, so they lowered these crippling tariffs."

"There were other instances of this; notably in steel several years ago. But the situation is quite changed now. Trade competition is tougher and more aggressive. With some of our major industries severely hurt by such competition, it is vital that we move forcefully and quickly to protect our workers and interests."

"I am convinced that the sentiment in both the U.S. and other countries is distinctly changed regarding trade policies. I think protectionism has a wide appeal and is going a long way."

—That the freezer was free if the customer purchased the food?

If so, you would be stuck, as each of these claims was found to be false.

You'll be less likely to be trapped or disappointed if you assume that a freezer plan is most apt to pay off in convenience rather than savings. It's nice to have meats and vegetables delivered to your door, but you aren't likely to save much in the process.

It will inject a note of realism into a freezer plan if you can estimate the value of the freezer alone. Sometimes, fascination with the machinery pushes the rest of the deal out of focus.

Today, you can buy a perfectly acceptable freezer — either chest or upright — for about $12 per cubic foot. In other words, an 18-foot freezer can be bought for approximately $216.

Any housewife should have a fair idea of the value of the foods involved in a freezer plan. Adding the estimated value of the freezer to the supermarket price of the food will yield a good idea of the value of the purchase plan.

If it still sounds appealing, you may want to give it a try. Just be sure you know how you can back out, and at what cost, if you want to change your mind.

Movie Misses The Point

"Getting Straight," a movie currently enjoying box office success in California seems to be a rather accurate commentary on the trying times of the university campus.

We suppose the title is used in reference to some aspect of the young generation's special definition, because the movie didn't quite "get it straight" if it was attempting to explain the causes of turmoil.

But the movie has all the ingredients for financial success; shockingly frank language, bedroom scenes, excellent camera work, unusual technique and a story line of confrontation between student and campus authority and, in general, between the young generation and the "establishment."

It should be a big hit with the young because they are the heroes and the older people are the villains, and it's all painted with cliches that appeal to impressionable young people who seldom are given an opportunity to wrestle with basic truths.

But there is enough truth in the movie and in the life it depicts to provide ample ammunition to feed the disorder. We would suppose, in fact, that viewing the movie might well qualify as a field trip for extra credit for the protest generation. It might even serve as an outlet for their anger.

Tragic, however, is the fact that with a vehicle which quite obviously will get the attention of the university student, the movie maker did not seize the opportunity to examine the root cause of the turmoil. And even more tragic is the probability that the movie maker himself isn't aware of the cause.

For those who understand that education is a result of individual effort, the opening scene of hundreds of young people crowding, pushing, shoving their way on the stairs and through hallways of a university building, where by some "miracle" professors are supposed to mass-produce learned graduates, is sadly comical.

U. S. Deserters In Sweden

Just as draft evaders head north for the safety of Canada, military deserters in Europe seek asylum in Sweden.

Many such deserters and draft evaders find themselves in a deeper dilemma as a consequence of their flights. Some discover that they aren't cut out for life in exile. How to explain to the folks back home? How to erase what can become the lasting stigma of evasion of duty?

Equally important, will these confused youngsters always be welcome in their new homes? We don't know about the Canadians, but there are growing signs of disillusionment in Sweden. Many Swedish citizens are becoming hostile to deserters who have taken refuge in their country. A recent meeting of anti-war Swedes in support of the deserters was broken up by pro-American Swedes. The pro-American group took the anti-war group's hammer-and-sickle posters and publicly turned them into torches, a welcome contrast to the too-frequent American flag burnings we have seen in other demonstrations.

Observers report that often the U.S. deserters are not politically motivated. Many are taking refuge to avoid disciplinary action, domestic problems, pregnant girls and other non-military problems. They soon find that the only refuge available in Sweden is offered by the Soviet and North Vietnamese-supported indoctrination farm near Tor-saker, Sandviken, north of Stockholm, according to a Copley News Service report.

The report states that there is great apprehension in Sweden that the U.S. may get fed up with the official Swedish position on deserters and take counter measures against the government. This could force the Swedes to turn toward the East European nations of the communist bloc, which it appears they do not wish to do.

One alternative would be to close the door to the deserters and return them to the U.S. to face the consequences. We wonder if any Vietnam War veterans would be allowed to sit on the court martial boards.

Bean Bag Protection

It's a commentary on our times — and you can read it as either encouraging or discouraging — that a lot of inventive energy is going into the development of nonlethal weapons against lawbreakers.

One of the latest devices is a gun that fires four-inch-wide "bean bags." The bags contain steel shot and weigh about half a pound and, fired at about 120 miles an hour, deliver a blow hard enough to stun or incapacitate a person.

But because the impact is distributed over an area the size of the flexible bag, it is not hard enough — theoretically, so far — to kill or inflict serious wound, except in a freak case.

A California rocket maker, MB Associates, started working on the idea months ago in an attempt to find an alternative to situations where campus and other riots produce overreaction by law enforcement personnel and result in needless deaths and injuries.

Another potential use is in household defense against intruders. The stun gun could be very effective in the average home, says an engineer on the project, "yet eliminate possible accidents that happen when used against someone you did not mean to shoot."

If we must arm ourselves, by all means let's look into the possibility of doing it with "bean bags."
