WORK AROUND CLOCK Crew Skim Slime From Gulf Waters

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Good weather held a mile-long oil slick at bay today while cleanup crews worked around the clock to skim the slime from Gulf of Mexico waters before a predicted wind shift.

A U.S. Coast Guard spokesman said Sunday the week-old slick, fed by three spraying wells on Chevron Oil Co.'s "Charlie" platform, formed an oval around the platform and posed no immediate threat to land.

At its longest extension, the slick stretched 19 miles to the north-northeast of the platform, 30 miles east of Venice, La. Both the Coast Guard and Chevron declined to estimate the slick's exact size.

"Now it all depends on the weather," the Coast Guard spokesman said. "If the weather stays good we will have no problem. I can't say what will happen if the weather gets bad. I don't think anybody knows right now."

The U.S. Weather Bureau predicted light, variable winds would shift to east to southeast today and clock around to a northerly direction Tuesday.

Southeast winds would tend to push the slick toward oyster and shrimp fishing waters 22 miles west.

A Chevron representative said the company's flotilla of barges equipped with skimming equipment made some headway Sunday in containing oil from the platform, as well as cleaning some of the accumulated goo.

Sunday was the first day the flotilla was fully operative since it was routed by high winds and seas last week. Before that, it contained 75 per cent of the slick.

The spokesman said a "light mist" of oil hung in the air above the platform and at times hampered workers trying to shut off the spewing wells by drenching their work platform, adjacent to the "Charlie" structure.

Of the eight wells originally contributing to the spill, only three were still gushing Sunday night. A fourth well was spewing natural gas.

The Chevron spokesman said an attempt would be made today to cap the No. 1 well.

IMPOSSIBLE SITUATION US Involvement In Laos Is 'Involved'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—With the increased Communist military and diplomatic offensive in Laos, Hanoi strategists are trying to "whipsaw" President Nixon on two fronts.

Their aim is to make it impossible for the United States to withdraw from Southeast Asia except under conditions which would probably mean surrender of the entire area to the Communists.

The Communist Pathet Lao "peace proposal" advanced after new military gains by them and the North Vietnamese, underlines what U.S. officials have always recognized—Hanoi considers the Laos and Vietnam conflicts all one way. Nixon himself has said neither can be settled in isolation of the other.

Familiar Proposals

The Laotian situation appears to constitute Hanoi's "ace in the hole" for use if it were ever confronted with a situation in South Vietnam it was not willing to accept.

It has been obvious to U.S. officials the Pathet Lao and their North Vietnamese comrades-in-arms have had the ability for some years to take much more territory than they have from the comparatively weak "neutralist" government headed by Premier Souvanna Phouma and supported by limited military assistance from the United States.

The fact the Communists have not moved in has indicated to analysts in the past they were delaying a takeover of the Central Laotian Government until such time as it might be necessary to gain all their objectives in South Vietnam.

Communist control of Laos, which flanks much of South Vietnam's western boundary, would put the Saigon government in a highly precarious position once most American forces were withdrawn.

The Pathet Lao "peace proposal" is remarkably similar to the one put forward by the Viet Cong in South Vietnam after its military operations had achieved some success and the American public was demanding an end to the conflict.

The current assumption here is Souvanna Phouma will find it impossible to reach any peace agreement with his half-brother, Prince Souphanouvong, the Pathet Lao leader. If this assumption proves correct and Nixon's program to "Vietnamize" the war in South Vietnam appears to be succeeding, then the predictable Communist tactic would be to turn on full-scale military pressure in Laos in an effort to topple Souvanna Phouma and outflank the Saigon government.

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson would never permit his administration to officially admit U.S. bombing raids against targets other than the Ho Chi Minh Trail or acknowledge the activities of the CIA and the Green Beret advisers. It was not until recently Nixon decided that further failure to acknowledge the American role was leading people to believe it was greater than it actually was and that public confidence in this administration was eroding.

The Soviets today rejected U.S. and Royal Lao proposals for international "consultations" on the Laos situation, leaving Souvanna Phouma at the mercy of the political and military pressures of Hanoi and the Pathet Lao unless Nixon can decide on some way to help him short of increased U.S. involvement. The Soviets declined to intervene so long as U.S. bombing raids in Laos continued.

The euphoria of the American public that has been generated by the beginning of withdrawal of U.S. forces from Vietnam may very well prove temporary because of Laos.

Winter Reluctant To Leave Pampa

By United Press International.

Light rains began peppering the Pampa Sunday night as wind gusts near 50 miles an hour blew into the Amarillo area. It was the first break in an otherwise mild weekend.

The U.S. Weather Bureau predicted cloudy skies and mild temperatures over the state today. Light drizzle was expected in South Texas and a few showers were forecast for North and Northwest Texas.

Skies were partly cloudy and temperatures mild over the entire state Sunday afternoon. Gust winds hit the Panhandle and along the Gulf Coast towards dusk. At 5 p.m., Corpus Christi recorded gusts up to 38 miles an hour.

Temperatures ranged from Wink's 61 to Amarillo's 63.

Cloudy skies crept across South Texas after nightfall. Skies were partly cloudy in other sections. Temperatures ranged from El Paso's 70 to Daltart's 43.

Light showers were reported in the Panhandle, the first precipitation of note the entire day. Amarillo reported winds up to 47 miles an hour.

Tulsans Adopt War Orphans

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—Five orphans, who jammed a lifetime of tragedy into the last two years, start a new life today as 40 workmen begin construction of a three-room addition to their new home.

The children and millions of television viewers saw April 26, 1968, Lillburn Stow crash in flames over As Show, Vietnam, on a news broadcast. It was that day they received a letter from their father's commander about the pilot's fiery death in a C130.

"I don't know what went on in their minds, but I'd guess it might have been better that way than never knowing how he died," said Richard C. Freeman, the children's guardian. "From that day on, they really had it tough."

Threatening Calls

The children and Mrs. Stow began receiving threatening telephone calls after the death of their father. "I'll order you like your father murdered the people in Vietnam," said one caller.

Doctors said the calls and tension caused a worsening in the condition of Mrs. Stow who had a rare muscular disease.

So they took a short summer vacation.

When they returned the house was in a shambles. Furniture was smashed, their father's medals were strewn over the floor and his picture was stabbed to the wall with a knife.

Dies in Surgery

Mrs. Stow died Feb. 17 during open heart surgery.

Freeman and his wife and five children had known the Stow family seven years, beginning at the Eastwood Baptist Church where Freeman is now chairman of the board of deacons.

"Their father was a test pilot at the time and our flying interest gave us something in common," Freeman said. "We got to be very good friends. We took care of the children during the last year and we have grown to love them. Their mother asked us to take care of them if something should happen to her."

"It's not a matter of adoption," he said. "We voted to join forces and press on together. We explained to the children what all the problems would be, but they wanted to stick together."

Freeman said ground breaking on the addition to his home was Saturday. They did not work on Sunday. But six days a week starting today, the workers, mostly from the church, will donate their time and equipment and "a lot of love for the children."

"The whole project should be finished short of a month if we don't hit any bad weather," he said. "Then we are planning a celebration. One person has pledged enough hamburger for a huge open house and celebration for everyone who has been involved with helping us."

Crisis Talks Begin Today In Cambodia

NON-VIOLENT SIT-INS NMC Plans National Week Of Protesting

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The New Mobilization Committee to end the War in Vietnam today begins a week-long nationwide protest against the draft that includes non violent sit-ins and an attempt "to strangle the draft system by its own bureaucracy" by generating mountains of paperwork.

A spokesman for the New Mobe group that organized November's massive Washington demonstration said the sit-ins would occur Thursday in about 70 of the more than 100 cities where antidraft demonstrations will be held.

It was the first time the New Mobe openly advocated civil disobedience in its antiwar campaign.

"Civil disobedience means people will be having non violent sit-ins at induction centers and draft boards, blocking entrances to those buildings," the spokesman said.

In addition, New Mobe leaders will spur scrupulous compliance with a section of the draft law that requires men of draft age to notify the Selective Service of anything that may affect their classification. This includes such items as a change in health, address, or indications they may wish to seek conscientious objector status.

Planners said antidraft participants could begin notifying their draft board each day of any change in their health or a change in address for the weekend. Participants could also mail to their draft boards copies of bibles, books or anything they have read that might have affected their thinking on war in general, spokesmen said.

The paperwork resulting from efforts to file and otherwise record such material could, they believe clog operations of the draft centers.

Some participants will visit the boards and deluge employees with questions about the draft. In some cases, women will register for the draft by mail, giving only the first initial of their first name to disguise their sex.

The sit-ins Thursday will coincide with the opening of Senate Armed Services Committee hearings on the nomination of Curtis Tarr to become the new director of the Selective Service System. Committee members blocked the nomination of Charles J. DiBona before it was formally offered because he strongly supported abolition of the draft.

Other demonstrations planned include guerrilla theater performances such as the "Spectre of Death" begun a few weeks ago in Philadelphia, where a man dressed in a long black robe and black hood sits silently in the draft board office every day.

Government Wants Guerrillas To Go

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—The Cambodian government opened crisis talks with the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese today with thousands of Cambodians in the streets demonstrating against the presence of guerrilla troops in their country.

Foreign Minister Norodom Phourissara was meeting with Vo Anh Tuan the Viet Cong charge d'affaires in Phnom Penh, and an unidentified Hanoi official to discuss the government's demand the Communist remove their soldiers at once.

Political sources said that if the Communists refuse to agree to withdraw the troops, then the possibility is strong that Cambodia will sever its diplomatic ties with them.

Cambodia said Friday it wanted the estimated 40,000 guerrillas off of its soil by Sunday but the deadline passed without a sign of any large-scale movement by the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese.

The government kept secret the site of the talks, apparently for fear of making the meeting place a target for the same anti-Communist students and workers who attacked the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese embassies Wednesday.

Thousands of demonstrators marched peacefully to the National Assembly Building this morning and presented a petition demanding the withdrawal of the Communist troops immediately. Government officials told them everything possible was being done to assure this.

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese went into the talks deploring Cambodia pay for the damage done to their embassies in Wednesday's attacks and seeking assurances the incidents would not be repeated.

Tensions Mount

Phourissara, the Cambodian foreign minister, issued a statement Sunday night saying his government will "ensure normal functioning of the two Vietnamese embassies... and consider compensation for the damage caused."

Feelings against the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese appeared to be at a flash point because of increased infiltration into the country by guerrilla troops. Anti-Communist factions were waiting for the outcome of the crisis meeting before acting.

The Cambodian chief of staff, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, began the fourth day of his Moscow visit today and informed sources said he has delayed his departure for Peking for another day, until Tuesday.

Sihanouk has been asking the Kremlin for help in ousting the guerrilla troops. He has said if the soldiers remain, anti-Communist sentiment in Cambodia could lead to him being replaced by a government more sympathetic to the United States.

Drama Students Take Top Rating At Invitational

Pampa High School speech and drama students received a superior rating for their one-act play, in the 16th annual Eastern New Mexico-West Texas Invitational Drama Festival at Portales, N.M., over the weekend.

Out of 11 plays entered from New Mexico and Texas high schools, the Pampa group received one of the two superior ratings given for a 40-minute performance. Superior rating was the highest rating given.

Mrs. Rochelle Wilkins, play director, was named best director of the festival which was held on the campus of Eastern New Mexico University.

The Pampa play, "The Horse of Bernarda Alba," will be entered in the University Interscholastic League district one-act play contests in Canyon April 11, according to Mrs. William Sargent Jr., head of the PHS Drama Department.

Individual students winning awards were Kathy Lewis, superior rating; Debi Stewart, Liz Silcott, Paula Johnson, Sara Walker, and Retha Jordan, all excellent ratings.

Others in the play cast are Jane Dingus, Lou Ann Fulcher, Pat Jernigan, and Lil Carson, a crew member.

Festival adjudicators were Dr. Richard Knaub, University of Colorado speech and drama department director, and Dr. Ralph Culp, head of the speech and drama department of University of Texas, at El Paso.

Spy Ship Down

DA NANG, Vietnam (UPI)—A U.S. Navy EC121 spy plane with 31 crewmen aboard faltered today during its landing approach and crashed in flames into a hangar, killing 22 of them.

The remaining nine crewmen and two U.S. Air Force men in the hangar were injured.

The four-propeller aircraft slammed into the building and burst into flames. A $2.9 million F4 Phantom fighter-bomber inside was destroyed.

All aboard the EC121, jammed with electronics equipment for its aerial reconnaissance mission, were U.S. Navy men. The plane, a converted Constellation, carried no bombs or weapons.

Military authorities attributed the crash to a "mechanical failure."

The craft broke in two on impact. Only the white tail section and part of the fuselage were distinguishable amid the scattered wreckage.

Debris from the plane heavily damaged a nearby hut used as a makeshift snack bar for mechanics on alert status at the Da Nang air base on South Vietnam's northern coast.

It was one of the worst air disasters of the Vietnam War involving American troops. The heaviest toll of American lives was recorded on Jan. 25, 1966, when a C123 transport plane crashed near An Khe, 240 miles northeast of Saigon, killing 46 U.S. servicemen.

On Oct. 21, 1968, an Air Force C47 transport en route from Saigon to Da Nang crashed near Bao Me Thuot, 157 miles northeast of the Capital, killing all 24 U.S. servicemen aboard.

The EC121 carries a 31-man crew, all skilled technicians needed to operate radar equipment and other listening devices aboard the converted Constellation. U.S. spokesmen refused to discuss where the plane had been flying Monday.

These Prices Are Good In Pampa March 16, 17, 18, 1970

By ABIGAIL VAN BAREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 78, and my wife is 73. We've been married 56 years. I am now retired. My problem is widows who live on both ends of my street. On my way to the store I have to pass by the house of one widow who is 75 years old. She has tried to get me into her house by asking me to come in and fix her leaking radiator.

I was able to forestall her plans by walking around the block to get to the store. But recently the widow at the other end of the block (she is 69 years old) asked me to come in and have coffee and freshly baked coffee cake, but I am wise to such tactics, so I always make up some excuse like I am in a hurry.

To avoid such situations I now climb the back fence and take a short cut to the store. Another problem arose. The neighbor's dog tore the seat out of my pants for trespassing onto his yard.

My wife accuses me of getting septic for climbing the back fence and I can't tell her why I do it because she is a very jealous woman. So what do I do?

TRAPPED IN BRIDGEPORT DEAR TRAPPED: Keep climbing that fence. It's the lesser of the evils. Better to be accused of "scullity" than infidelity.

DEAR ABBY: I have written a lot of songs which my friends tell me are better than some of the big hits we have today. Mine aren't of the new far out variety the kids go for. I write the old fashioned love songs with words that rhyme and everybody can understand, and my tunes are easy to sing and easy to remember. Anyway, I must have about 300 songs in all.

I have never tried to get any of my songs published, and that's why I am writing to you, Abby. Could please send me the names and addresses of some famous song writers? I would like to send them my songs and possibly they could help me get them published. Of course I would be willing to share the profits with anyone who could help me if I became a success. Thank you.

DEAR SONG WRITER: The last person to whom I would advise you to send unpublished songs would be a "famous song writer." His lawyers have undoubtedly instructed him to return all such material unopened in order to protect himself. Furthermore, no one is obligated to return unsolicited material, in which case you might never see your songs again. Your best bet (and cheapest investment) is the most reputable publishing agent you can find.

DEAR ABBY: The woman who asked your opinion on "wife swapping," then signed herself, "LOVES HIM," will soon be hating him, and herself, if she goes along with crummy idea.

I went along with it for 10 months, and never have I met such a collection of dull, insipid creeps in my life! They were all little boys trying to show each other what big "men" they were. Most of the wives weren't attractive enough to get a second glance from another man, so they allowed their equally insecure husbands to trade them like "toys."

But, guess what, Abby? When we "swapped," I just sat and listened to these sad little boys pour their hearts out, after informing them that I was not a "swinger." None of them was angry. They seemed to feel that "sex" was available everywhere, but good, intelligent, interested listeners were few.

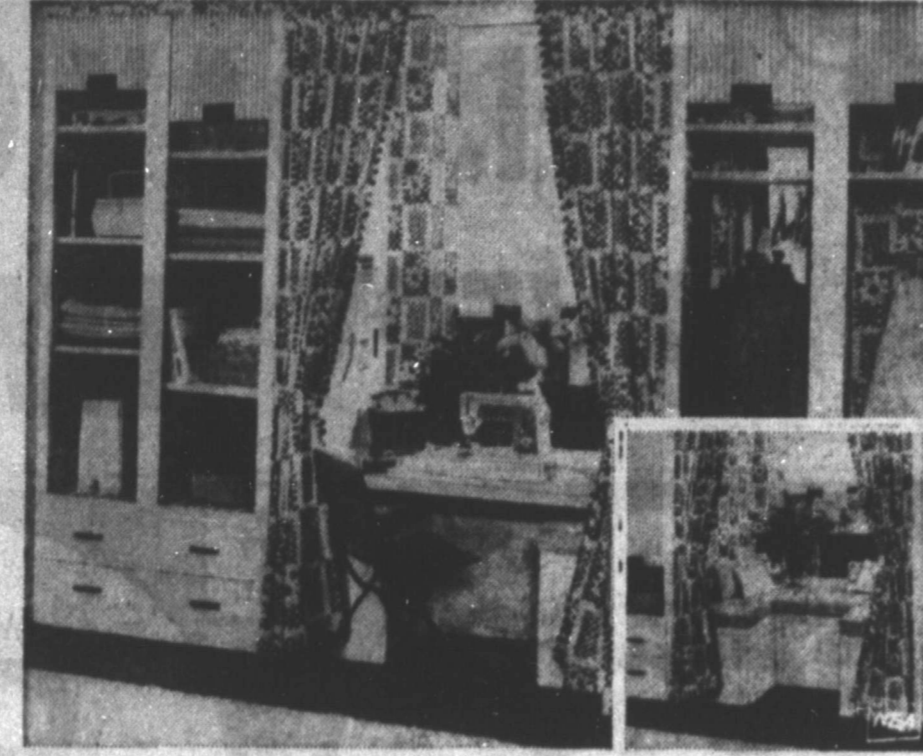

I don't feel degraded. Just terribly disgusted with myself for not being able to judge my second husband better.

PAMPA DAILY NEWS PAMPA, TEXAS 2nd Year Monday, March 16, 1970

The Stow-away is a home sewer's dream. Open for action, it has a generous 5-foot work surface and plenty of storage space for ironing board, dress form, portable machine, sewing aids. Full-length mirror simplifies fitting. Singer's exclusive print lines the closets and window alcove, is used for draperies and valances. Close shades and draperies to hide work-in-progress. The handsome window seat (inset) hides the sewing room. Striped shades by Joanna Western cover closets, decorate the window. Sewing table lifts up to become part of wall.

Build Mom A Sewing Stow-Away With 36 Inches Of Creative Space

By JOANNE SCHREIBER Are you looking for a home sewing center all your own? A place to keep all your sewing materials, where your sewing machine may be kept out during heavy sewing sessions and converted to decorative use between sewing spurts? A place where working progress can be hidden without putting it away? If you can spare 36 inches at the end of your bedroom, the playroom or family room, the laundry room or dining room, this stow-away center is for you. To create the unusual design we show today, the experts made a study of exactly what a home sewer needs to do a professional job in a small area. Based on that research, the stow-away sewing center was designed by Shirley Regendahl, easy for a home handyman to construct, easy for a home handywoman to use, practical, pretty and inexpensive.

The Stow-away was built against a window - wall, to take advantage of natural light. Between the two pairs of ceiling-high storage units is a fashioned seat, framed in handsome double-checked cotton covering the walls and making the curtains. A striped shade with black-lacquered slat decorates the window.

When it's time to sew, the left hard-wall panel drops down to form the five-foot-long sewing table, and reveals a peg-board on which to hang the scissors, pin up the pattern instructions and park the pincushion. Pull up the matching shade-o-doors to reveal the storage areas housing the iron and ironing board, the dress form and full-length mirror, the spot for the sewing machine, plus plenty of drawers and shelves for all the items that clutter up a busy sewing room. Storage areas are lined with matching material, so the unit is attractive open or closed.

When the day's sewing is over, draw the curtains and drop the shades on the clutter. It will be waiting for you in the morning, just as you left it - and only a woman who sews knows how much time can be saved by not putting-away and taking-out every evening.

The shades eliminate the problem of hanging doors. The window seats may be made with lift-off tops for additional storage. If building drawers sounds like a hard job, two-drawer cabinets of unpainted wood may be built into the structure.

For plans and measurements for the Stow-away, write to Stitches 'n' Time, c/o this newspaper, Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10017. ## Scouting Scoops

By MRS. CARL BRUGGER Junior Troop 167, led by Mrs. David Bronner, spent a weekend at Camp Mel Davis recently to practice for the Junior Camporee. Four members of Cadette Troop Three helped the girls lay trails, read compasses and pitch tents. Helping were Vickie Carter, Merita Carter, Jeri Bolander, and Debra McDonald. Co-leaders of Troop Three are Mrs. Ralph McDonald and Mrs. Jerry Carter.

Troop 87 and sister Troop Three went bowling together recently and had dinner at a Pampa restaurant. Mrs. N.G. Kadingo is leader of Troop 87. The juniors have recently completed the Drawing and Painting Badge.

Fireplaces create an aura of warmth and elegance in any room. This graceful ponderosa pine mantel, in Georgian design, is one of several styles available in stock sizes.

Fireplace Gives Room A Glow

A fireplace—like an elegant woman—lights up a room just by being in it. No matter what the room decor or function, from formal living room to country kitchen, a fireplace fits in beautifully. One reason is the aura of warmth and conviviality that a fireplace creates. Another is the wide variety of fireplace styles. Actually, it is the mantel that sets and reflects the fireplace style. One of the most popular is the 18th century Georgian mantel which graced Colonial drawing rooms. In those days, the mantels were hand-crafted by artisans skilled in the decorative use of wood. Today, authentic reproductions are available in mantels of ponderosa pine. They come in stock sizes, ready for assembling and installation.

In addition to traditional designs, ponderosa pine mantels also include Provincial, classic and contemporary styles. In homes that do not have operating fireplaces, the mantels are often used as dramatic wall accents.

POLLY'S POINTERS Converts Sewing Machine Into Pleasant Planter

By POLLY CRAMER DEAR POLLY - I want to tell Mrs. L.S. that I, too, had a pedal, stationary-head, sewing machine. The head was removed and a metal planter, bought at a garden shop, was placed in the opening. Plants could be placed in it or planted flowers in their containers. The drawers were left in the body of the machine and small articles are kept there. My machine was painted a soft Swedish red and the metal base sprayed with bronze paint. We have had 10 years of service from a machine used this way. -ARLINE

DEAR POLLY - I use silver cream on the stainless steel around my stove and refrigerator and on the glass tile in my bathroom. It works like magic and the tile shines like a mirror. -ANNIE

DEAR POLLY - When sending articles in packages that need some stuffing to keep them from bouncing about, partially fill plastic bags, which you can get at the produce counter at the grocery, with air so they are like balloons. Fasten securely so the air can't escape and, presto, no jiggling and no additional postage. -M.S.B.

DEAR POLLY - Only last week, when I bought half a cake at my favorite bakery, the saleslady slipped the cake into a plastic bag, let it partially fill with air, fastened it and put it into a cake box. I thought this a great idea as no icing stuck to the box as the cake shifted in the box on the way home.

DEAR POLLY - Antique furniture frequently needs something under one leg to level it. In our antique shop, we use pennies. They do not show and do not slip. You can use one, two, three or whatever is needed. Hope this helps a lot of readers. -VIOLA

Polly's Problem DEAR POLLY - I would like to change the color of a light-green, acrylic coat laminated to polyfoam. I do not believe this could be put in hot water and dyed but thought some of the readers might know of some other way to change the color. Has anyone ever sprayed such a coat with the dye that is used to change the color of furniture? -MARJORIE

THOSE ICEHOUSE BLUES

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—The Icehouse Blues Band, a rock group from Miami, Fla., was playing when the roof collapsed.

Fred J. Clark, the building's owner, didn't think it was a coincidence. He blamed the collapse on musical reverberations and said his 75-year-old warehouse had survived "three major earthquakes."

Hollywood In Review

UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Yugoslavia may be a Communist nation, but at least its motion picture industry is thinking capitalistic, according to one of that country's top directors.

Director Veljko Bulajic's "The Battle of Neretva" is a nominee for best foreign language film of the year by the Oscar people.

When he was wished good luck during our interview, Veljko Bulajic said—through an interpreter—"I hope God is listening."

Quickly, he added with a grin, "You see we do believe in God."

Cosmopolitan Demeanor

Bulajic would look the part of a foreigner in almost any country. His cheekbones are prominent, his nose sharp, his eyes intelligent and his hair combed straight back in a pompadour. Most of the time his speech is impassioned.

While Bulajic is here to promote his film, which faces overwhelming competition in the Oscar category from "Z," he also is working on a larger mission.

"The film industry in my country wants to set up a direct production and distribution deal between the United States and Yugoslavia without having to go through France, Italy or Germany on coproduction."

Censorship Dimming

If that isn't capitalistic talk, then Marshal Tito is a corporal.

According to Bulajic, the Yugoslavian government exercises no censorship or control of movie content as it once did. The result is that 35-40 Yugoslav films are made each year along with 300 documentaries. Some 25 coproductions are made with other countries.

"Thirty-five per cent of our imports are American movies. Italian, French and Swedish movies equal 40 per cent combined. The rest are from Russia, Japan, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia," Bulajic said.

"But I think Yugoslavian films are the most free in the world. We know now that a country isn't going to fall apart on the basis of movies with social themes."

Bulajic said that no strident antigovernment films have been made in Yugoslavia, adding that the same could be said of the United States.

"Today you cannot separate capitalism and socialism, even in your own country," he said. "There is no black and white to economic systems."

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Although the general market level adequately discounts a period of disappointing profits immediately ahead, that does not mean that the market is about to shoot up. The Contrary Investor observes. "Profitless prospectivity" is the name of the game, the firm says. Market stability has hopefully returned and, from here on out, perhaps, each stock will act more independently of the market.

Thomson & McKinnon Auch-Incross are encouraged by the "sharp buying waves" which have developed recently on hopes of an early change in monetary policy. If the market has "strong reasons to believe that vigorous economic policy will prevent a serious tailspin from materializing" in the economy, then it is likely to regard the probable decline in first quarter corporate earnings "philosophically."

Last year practically the only stocks which advanced against the general decline were those which were overpriced to begin with, but this year there seem to be fewer "bigger fools" who are ready and willing to buy last year's overpriced favorites. Wright Investors' Service says. Quality and value are replacing glamor and growth as attributes of this year's stock market.

The stock market may be stronger than one would at first assume. E. P. Hutton & Co. says. Odd-lot statistics have moved back to the sell side in recent sessions, accompanied by an increase in odd-lot short selling. A similar move in mid-February enhanced the market's technical position prior to the rally later that month, the analyst points out.

Pete Pumps Season Low As LSU Nips Georgetown, 83-82

NEW YORK (UPI)—The idea of March did not bode well for Pete Maravich.

"I stunk, I played the worst game of my career," said Maravich Sunday after he was held to a season-low 20 points as his Louisiana State team nipped an inspired Georgetown team 83-82 in a first round National Invitation Tournament game.

Maravich, who averaged 46.7 points per game this season while setting NCAA single season and career scoring records, had only five points before the half. He was able to take only four shots in the opening half as Georgetown's defense swarmed all over him.

The 6-foot-5 All American did respond in the second half, however, hitting 15 points and sparking the Tigers to victory. He threw in seven points in a row at one stretch and tossed in two foul shots with nine seconds remaining to put the game out of reach. The Hoyas drew to within one point as they scored uncontested at the buzzer.

Disappointed Maravich was visibly disturbed by his performance. He slammed his fist into the dressing room door after the game and refused to talk to reporters until ordered to do so by his father, LSU coach, press Maravich.

Maravich will lead LSU into Tuesday night's quarter-finals against Oklahoma, which stunned Louisville 74-73 Sunday afternoon behind Garfield Heard's 34-point performance.

Other quarter-final matchups tonight are Manhattan, which upset North Carolina Saturday night, against Army, a conqueror of Cincinnati, and St. John's of New York meeting Georgia Tech in a battle of opening night winners.

Utah will take on Marquette in the first game of Tuesday night's doubleheader. Utah downed Duke 78-75 and Marquette held off determined Massachusetts 62-55 in Saturday night action.

Bobby Knight's Army team, featuring the no. 1 defense in the nation, bottled up Cincinnati's offense and put on a sensational foul shooting exhibition in the second half to bump the Bearcats.

Marquette has Trouble

The Cadets allowed Jim Ard, Cincinnati's high scorer, only eight shots throughout the game. Jim O'Key scored 20 points and Mike Gyoval 16 to pace the cadets.

Utah had to overcome a sensational 35-point performance by Randy Denton, Duke's 6-10 center, to advance. Mike Newlin, a smooth junior guard, and Wayne Hawkins sparked a second half surge that led the redskins to a mid upset.

Al McGuire's Marquette team, generally considered the toughest in the 33rd annual NIT had its hands full with an inspired Massachusetts team led by sophomore Julius Erving. Marquette never really pulled away from the Yankee Conference team and only the Warriors' superior height and strength prevented Massachusetts from pulling off the biggest upset of the tournament.

St. John's, which features a balanced scoring attack led by Ralph Abraham and Joe DePre, must stop Rich Yunkus, the Yellow Jackets' 6-9 center who averaged better than 30 points per game last season. Yunkus, who must battle 6-10 Billy Paulitz of the Redmen, hit for 28 in tech's first round victory over Duquesne.

The Manhattan-Army game shapes up as a battle between the determined Jasper offense and the Cadets' defense, one of the most physical on any basketball court.

The winners tonight will advance to Thursday night's semi-finals. Finals are scheduled for Saturday, beginning at 1 p.m. EST.

Turns Confidence Into Cash—Lotz

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI)—What changed Dick Lotz from a struggling young pro golfer who was having trouble making ends meet into the leading money winner on this year's tour?

"Confidence," insisted the 27-year-old Californian after winning the $150,000 Monsanto open.

"I agree," interjected his pretty blonde wife Sharon. "You can feel the difference when you are around him. Dick now has the confidence it obviously takes to be a winner."

Lotz, who previously won only the "satellite" 1969 Alameda open in six years on the tour earned $30,000 Sunday with his three-stroke victory in the Monsanto. That raised this year's earnings to just shy of $55,000—$17,000 more than he won all of last year when he earned more than he had in the first five years put together.

Miserable Start

"Those first few years were miserable years," said Lotz who came on the tour in 1964 with his older (by 18 months) brother John. "If I had to do it over again, I don't think I would."

Dick, who calls Hayward, Calif., home, never made as much as $5,000 in official money in any of his first four years. But he "made expenses" in 1968 when he won nearly $36,000 and "started getting ahead" last year when he earned more than $38,000.

"Getting exempt, that was the big thing," Lotz said. "Once I started playing with the better golfers and realized that I could beat them, I started getting the confidence I needed."

"That exemption (not having to qualify on Mondays for the next tournament) is worth its weight in gold," said Sharon. "That is, if you then make the cut."

Lotz, who has now shot in the 60s in 10 of his last 11 competitive rounds, had a closing 3-under-par 68 Sunday for a 9-under-par 275 that enabled him to beat runnerup Dave Stockton, a fellow Californian, by three strokes.

Blanca Still Gets 10G

Stockton, who walked the course for nearly an hour Saturday night, had a 67-275 to finish a stroke ahead of PGA champion Ray Floyd who had second-place money of $17,100 seemingly locked up until he suffered a double bogey on the comparatively easy, 377-yard par-4 71st hole.

Floyd, finishing with 72-280 still earned $10,650.

Homero Blancas, turning in a closing 7-under-par 64 for the best round in the tournament, was in a tie for fourth at 281 with England's Tony Jacklin.

Atlanta Hangs On To NBA West Lead By Full Game

By United Press International

Time is running out on the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Lakers rallied in the final six minutes Sunday night to beat the Eastern Division champion New York Knicks, 106-101, but the victory still left Los Angeles one game behind front running Atlanta in the Western Division with each team having only three games remaining.

The Hawks managed to stay ahead in the race for the Western title, which rewards the winning team with $20,000, by downing Phoenix, 126-111, in an afternoon contest.

Hazzard's 38

In other National Basketball Association action, Chicago beat Milwaukee, 126-107; Cincinnati got by Seattle, 116-113; Baltimore defeated Boston, 130-127, and San Diego topped Philadelphia, 137-126.

Los Angeles saw an 18 point lead disappear when the Knicks took a 91-90 lead with 6:05 left to play behind the scoring of Dave DeBusschere and Cassie Russell who finished with 31 and 21 points, respectively. Two free throws by Happy Hairston, his only points of the game, put the Lakers back in front and they were never headed. Jerry West, the NBA's leading scorer, paced Los Angeles with 36 points and Elgin Baylor chipped in with 19.

The Indiana Pacers made it official Sunday night.

The Pacers, comfortably leading the American Basketball Association's Eastern Division nearly all season, locked up the title with a 114-110 victory over the Carolina Cougars and now have nearly five weeks in which to prepare for the playoffs.

Bob Netolicky's 28 points enabled Indiana to extend its current winning streak to seven games while Roger Brown contributed 23 points to the Pacers' attack. Bob Verge paced Carolina with 26.

In other ABA games, Denver beat Miami, 126-111; Washington edged New Orleans, 124-122; Kentucky whipped Dallas, 146-125; and Los Angeles stopped Pittsburgh, 117-110.

Atlanta Hangs On To NBA West Lead By Full Game

Walt Hazzard tallied 36 points, 12 of them in the first quarter, to help Atlanta past Phoenix. Lou Hudson added 21 and Joe Caldwell had 20 for the Hawks while Connie Hawkins led the Suns' attack with 30.

The loss dropped Phoenix two games behind Chicago in the battle for third place in the West.

Chicago sued Bob Love's 47 points to beat Milwaukee for its fifth win in a row and assure itself of at least a tie for a playoff berth. Clem Haskins had 20 points for the Bulls while Lew Alcindor tallied 30 for the Bucks. However, Milwaukee's super rookie had to leave the game in the fourth quarter with a jammed finger on his right hand but coach Larry Costello said he didn't believe the injury was serious.

...And 'The Pearl's' 35

Jim King's five points in the final 36 seconds of play gave Cincinnati its triumph over Seattle and seriously damaged the SuperSonics' playoff hopes. The defeat kept Seattle one and a half games behind fourth place Phoenix in the West with only three games remaining for Seattle and four for Phoenix.

The Royals, who had lost five straight games to Seattle, were led by Oscar Robertson's 37 points. Bob Rule tallied 25 for Seattle.

NCAA Crown Narrows Down To Four Top Contenders

NCAA Basketball Roundup By United Press International

St. Bonaventure and New Mexico State face problems as they attempt to advance to the finals of the NCAA basketball tournament.

St. Bonaventure, third ranked in the nation, must go into battle against Jacksonville Thursday at College Park, Md., without All-American Bob Lanier. And New Mexico State must face — for the third straight year in this tournament — the awesome UCLA team which is seeking an unprecedented fourth straight national crown.

Lanier, the Bonnies' 6-11 center, underwent surgery Sunday after tearing ligaments in his right knee in Saturday's victory over Villanova. His teammates must now face twirling Jacksonville which whipped Adolph Rupp's No. 1 ranked Kentucky.

UCLA is driving to the finals, just as it did a year ago, and a year before that, when in the process the Bruins brushed aside New Mexico State.

Dolphin's Strong

The Bonnies, in Thursday's semi, must go against Jacksonville, which boasts two seven-footers in Artis Gilmore and Pembroke Burrows. Against them, with Lanier helpless in a Buffalo, N.Y., hospital bed, St. Bonaventure can only offer 6-1 Matt Gantt at center, 6-3 Greg Gary and 6-1 Paul Hoffman. The Bonnie guards will be 6-1 Mike Kull and 5-10 Bill Kalbaugh.

But it is not only the towering forwards of Jacksonville St. Bonaventure must fear. Against Kentucky, it was the backcourt work of Rex Morgan and Chip Dublin that decided the issue. Morgan led the Dolphins 28 points, then cashed two free throws with 27 seconds left to clinch the 106-100 victory.

"When the chips are down," said Jacksonville coach Joe

Williams, "Morgan will always come through and win the ball game for us."

UCLA Wins

Revenge will be the prime motive spurring New Mexico State in the second semifinal contest between the Aggies and UCLA and Bruin coach John Wooden is keenly aware of this fact.

New Mexico State is led by Jimmy Collins and Sam Lacey, both of whom were members of Aggie teams the last two years which bowed to UCLA in tournament play.

"They have a senior team and I know they are going to be really inspired," Wooden remarked about New Mexico State.

Collins scored 26 points while Lacey added 20 more and pulled down 24 rebounds in leading New Mexico State past Drake 87-78 in the Midwest Regional finals.

UCLA dumped Utah State 101-78 in the Far West Regional final thanks to the fine play of forwards Curtis Rowe and Sidney Wicks who each tallied 26 points.

Flood's Loss Brings Stardom To Hisle

By United Press International

Manager Frank Lucchesi says the loss of 290,000-year outfielder Curt Flood may be "a blessing in disguise" for the Philadelphia Phillies because it is speeding the development of Larry Hisle toward stardom.

"Hisle is just super," said Lucchesi Sunday night after the 22-year-old outfielder drove in three runs in the Phillies' 7-5 victory over the Kansas City Royals. "If I had to choose between Hisle and Flood right now I would choose Hisle."

An argument could be made that Hisle has the hardest job of any player in baseball this spring. First, the Phillies counted on him to make up for some of the power they lost in trading Richie Allen to the St. Louis Cardinals. Then, they moved him to center field when Flood refused to report to them and brought his suit against baseball's reserve clause.

Rico Petrocelli had four straight singles and George Scott each went 3-for-4 in leading the Boston Red Sox to a 4-1 triumph over the Detroit Tigers.

On other fronts: Hank Aaron hit his fifth homer of the spring and Orlando Cepeda and Rico Carty also homered as the Atlanta Braves defeated the Baltimore Orioles, 8-7. Johnny Callison and Billy Williams homered for the Chicago Cubs in a 7-5 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Ron Woods' two-run triple in the 11th inning gave the New York Yankees a 9-8 decision over the Montreal Expos and their fourth straight win.

Reserve catcher Bob Stinson hit two homers in a nine-run 17th inning as the Los Angeles Dodgers topped the Washington Senators, 14-6.

Lou Brock had three hits as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Chicago White Sox, 3-1.

Rookie Danny Breeden singled home Pete Rose climaxed a three-run ninth-inning rally and Woody Woodward had four hits in the Cincinnati Reds' 7-6 win over the New York Mets.

John Edwards singled home an unearned run in the eighth inning to give the Houston Astros a 5-4 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Manny Sanguillen hit a two-run homer as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Mexico City Tigers, 6-4, in Mexico City.

Bob Bolen pitched five shutout innings as the Seattle Pilots downed the San Diego Padres, 8-1.

Jim Driscoll, Joe Rudi and Tito Francona homered as the Oakland Athletics defeated the Pilots "B" squad, 12-7.

Catcher Joe Azcue signed with the Cleveland Indians, who beat the California Angels, 6-3, with the aid of two-run doubles by Vada Pinson and Eddie Leon in the third inning.

Merger Major Item At NBA Meet Today

CHICAGO (UPI) — Merger with the American Basketball Association was expected to be the major topic today at a special meeting of the National Basketball Association owners.

The major item on the agenda was a report from the NBA's merger committee which includes Sam Schulman of Seattle, Ned Irish of New York and Abe Pollin of Baltimore.

There was no indication what the report would be, but informed sources doubted that approval would be voted today of any merger proposition.

However, the ABA recently has signed two graduating college seniors, including Purdue's All American Rick Mount, even before the NBA has held its draft of available personnel.

Other subjects expected to come before the meeting will be determination of dates for the coming championship playoffs and realignment of the divisions.

Four new teams, Cleveland, Portland, Buffalo and Houston, will enter the league next season, forcing realignment to absorb them.

Continental League Adds For Distance

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The Continental Football League will institute a couple of scoring innovations next fall.

League President Lee Baldarelli said Sunday the CFL will award additional points for long distance field goals and give teams that have fallen far behind on the scoreboard a better comeback shot.

Baldarelli said the normal three points will be given for field goals 35 yards or under. For kicks between 35 and 45 yards, four points will be earned and boots exceeding 45 will be worth five points.

In perhaps a more radical development, teams that fall behind by eight points or more will have an option, after a touchdown is scored, of kicking or receiving.

"In a real sense, CFL football will not be over until the final second of play," said Baldarelli.

"Our purpose is to bring good professional football to our communities. We further wish to be known as the innovators of the new rules of football. The National Football League cannot take these chances of change. They must first be proven, and that is where the CFL will come in."

14 St. Louis, 2nd NL East

PROSPECTUS — Red Schoendienst has traded away much of the old Cardinal gang that swept NL in late '60s. Cards no longer have power up and down batting order. Pitching is strong, as long as Gibson keeps winning. Biggest question, of course, is Richie Allen. His temperament is a gamble, but when he's happy he hits. Few in baseball better. Therein lies Cards' fate.

PITCHING — Gibson won 20 again last season, for fourth year in row, remains No. 1. Steve Carlton won 17, had second best ERA in NL (2.17) and even struck out 19 Mets in one game last year. Closest thing in baseball to Koufax. Nelson Briles, 15-game winner in '69, is No. 3 in rotation. Mike Torrez, who won nine straight last year, rounds out starters. Bullpen has Rich Nye from Clubs, Chuck Taylor, Tom Hilgendorf. Sleeper could be Sal Campisi, 13-2 at Tulsa and Pitcher of Year in American Association. Rating — B plus.

CATCHING — Joe Torre has no rival if he doesn't have to play first base. Led Cards in RBIs last year with 101. Ted Simmons, a 20-year-old rookie, will back him up when he completes service hitch in May. Rating — B plus.

INFIELD — Will change of scenery make a new man of Richie Allen? If so, Cards very well set at first. Allen just reaching his prime years. Julian Javier back at second. He had his best hitting year (.282) last season. Dal Maxvill has great glove at short, but hit only .175 last season. He'll be pushed by rookies Steve Huntz, Gerry Davanon, Mike Shannon, .254 still at third. Rating — B

OUTFIELD — Lou Brock, .286 with 53 stolen bases, only face remaining from past, in left. Jose Cardenal, acquired from Cleveland gets first crack at center. Carl Taylor, who couldn't supplant Clemente in Pittsburgh, gets chance in right. Also in picture is Joe Hague, power hitter from Tulsa. Rating — C plus.

TOP ROOKIES — Simmons, a switch-hitter, is highly regarded in Cards' system. So is Jerry Reuss, 6-foot-5 200-pound outfielder who, like Simmons, will be in service until May.

Prediction: 2nd in NL East

Those Over-30 'Squares'

It's a square world after all — or a square country, anyway. In spite of popular fears and publicity in the news media to the contrary, most Americans still see themselves as "happy, home-loving, clean and square."

This is the opinion of William D. Wells, professor of psychology and marketing in the Graduate School of Business of the University of Chicago, after analyzing a recent large-scale survey of American attitudes made by Market Facts, Inc. and the Leo Burnett Co.

The findings give little support to those who proclaim that Americans are depressed, confused and weary, that their traditional ideas have crumbled and that the "old-fashioned virtues" mean nothing any more, says Wells.

On the other hand, they confirm that a wide gap exists between bearded, swinging youth and the over-30 "squares" who comprise the large majority of American adults. But one thing is quite clear, he says: "Vocal and visible though they are, 'mod' youth have not had much impact on the central values of the average man."

If you really want to know why the young are so angry with society, try a little experiment, suggests John Holt, teacher and author of education-reform books like "How Children Fail."

What you will see in the faces of a good many people, says Holt, is the thought, deeply felt and very clearly communicated, "If I could, I would kill you."

Time For Economic Restraint

How to curb inflation without creating a severe recession is the chief economic problem facing the Nixon administration.

Thus far, the administration has sought to cool the economy through tightening of credit and other monetary controls. But this already has produced something of a crisis in the home construction industry.

The cooling also has had hurtful effect on the automotive industry. One of the biggest auto manufacturers has had to order substantial layoffs at a number of plants.

The Nixon administration feels that some success has been achieved in slowing inflation, but the price of making gains is very high. And even the slowdowns and cutbacks in the economy don't seem to have any special effect on the wage spiral.

The country's economic problems may prove insoluble unless restraint is developed with respect to wage demands. One of the reasons many companies are feeling a pinch — and are reluctant to expand facilities — is that they have been faced with rapidly mounting wage costs in the last few years.

Wage increases are acceptable when there is a rise in real productivity. For a time, productivity was moving upward rapidly, making possible higher wage scales. But the last few years have seen wage concessions obtained which have no sound relation to productivity per employee.

Americans should be deeply concerned about this, for the root cause of Britain's postwar economic deterioration was the gap between wages and productivity. British union members obtained frequent increases, with the support of the Laborite government, but the productivity of British workers was not on a par with the productivity of workers in Germany and Japan, for instance.

High labor costs are a menace to America's economic future. The U.S. merchant marine is dying because American shipowners can't afford to operate vessels at the rate of pay demanded by maritime unions. European automobile makers have a substantial part of the American car-buying market, and not because European designs are better — but because European prices on many vehicles are more in line with what prospective car purchasers can afford. It is noteworthy that the wage scale in the automotive industry is above $5.00 an hour, whereas in West Germany it is $2.20.

Industrial workers in the United States are determined not to drop down to the scale in Germany, let us say. But they also had better start practicing self-restraint and bear in mind the need of withholding new demands at this time. Another round of wage demands in major U.S. industries could bring on a king-size recession in the United States.

The U.S. public has no taste for government-decreed wage restraints. But the only substitute is voluntary restraint. Industry, of course, is restrained in its profits demands by the realities of the market. Businessmen know that prices can't be hiked because the market won't bear an increase. But this realism hasn't seeped into the minds of union leaders. They are still thinking they can tack on new costs.

"So You're Wise, Well-Educated and Sincere, but Do You Smoke Pot?"

Question Box

We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.

QUESTION: — If the government were not in the educational business would the problem of integration be voluntarily solved, or at least, reduced?

ANSWER: — The problem would not be completely solved, because there will always be some people who will be prejudiced against certain people, just as there was prejudice against the Irish and the Italians and the Poles, and the Chinese. But the problem of integration would virtually disappear if the government, that is, the state, were not in the educational business.

The state compels the youth to attend schools, and it compels all people to pay for the schools whether they use them or not and no matter whether they believe them to be beneficial or harmful. Then the state tries to compel all students to love one another and all parents to love one another.

Naturally there is resistance to this, for it is against the nature of human beings. We can only love that which we have grown to know and to find lovable. Love, like everything else, has to be earned, on an individual-to-individual basis, and it can't be forced as the state tries to do.

If the state quit trying force integration, and got out of the schooling business, people would send their children to free market schools of their choice. Those who did not wish their children to associate with children of another race or religion would seek restricted schools. But schools like that would be far more expensive because there would not be as much demand for them. Most parents would seek schools that would give their children the best possible education and the best possible training. Therefore there would be a tremendous demand for these schools. And schools which educated as well as trained would certainly produce graduates whose understanding of the real world would be far better than those coming out of the present state schools. That in itself would eliminate a great deal of prejudice.

For young people with that kind of understanding would respect the rights of all other people, and they would know that the important things in men are their character and integrity and the quality of their minds, not the color of their skin or the shape of their eyes or the name of their religion.

The state-run schools do not, and can't, produce real understanding. For instance, up until recent years, the state-run schools in the South forced segregation whether or not all people wanted it. Those who did not want it had to abide by it. The sole criteria of whether people should associate in certain ways was the color of their skin, and the association of different colors was forbidden.

Now the state does just the opposite, but it is still just as wrong. The state compels association of all colors of skin and the sole criterion is the color of skin and the percentage of each in a given school.

To make an irrational and irrelevant factor such as the color of skin the standard of anything is pure foolishness. Yet that is what the state does in both cases. So it merely perpetuates the problem of prejudice.

For over 20 years The News has been saying that tax-supported schools cannot teach moral ideas. This is a very good example of the fact that they cannot. Even when they try to teach morality, they end up teaching immorality, by example. They are perpetuating the irrational criteria of skin color as the value of a man, and they are using coercion, which is always wrong, to enforce their idea.

If people believed in the Golden Rule and didn't want any special privileges which no one else had a right to have, things would certainly be improved. But the state schools cannot teach the Golden Rule because their very existence is a violation of it.

Senate Warned Of Court Logjam
By JOHN GOLDSMITH
By ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON — The work of the U.S. Supreme Court has been seriously impaired by the protracted delay in filling the vacancy caused by the forced resignation last May of Justice Abe Fortas.

A large accumulation of important cases has piled up that will take several or more years to dispose of.

Unless the ninth justice is installed on the tribunal before it adjourns in June for its regular four-month summer vacation, the already critical logjam will be still further increased — possibly to the point where the Court may be forced to take exceptional measures to cope with the situation.

That's the alarming condition Chief Justice Warren Burger has reported in private discussions with bipartisan leaders of the Senate.

In these backstage talks, he has stressed he was not in any way attempting to intervene in the controversy over the appointment of Judge G. Harrold Carswell to the Fortas vacancy. He is meticulously avoiding any expression of opinion on that.

At the same time, Burger emphasized that as Chief Justice he considers it his responsibility to make clear to the Senate the increasingly disturbing predicament in which the Supreme Court finds itself because of the long delay in filling the vacancy.

The Chief Justice pointed out that virtually a whole court term has passed with only eight justices functioning. Also the equally significant fact that one of them (Hugo Black) is 84, and another (William O. Douglas) is 72. Further, of the other six, only one (Byron White) is under 60. White is 43. All the others are in the upper 60s.

In other words, the import of what Burger pointedly told the Senate leaders is that the "Eight Old Men" are literally old and can do only so much — and urgently need the Court relatively abreast of the heavy demands on it.

Thus, in effect, he bluntly warned that if the present situation is allowed to continue much longer, the tribunal could become gravely logjammed.

What effect Burger's privately-voiced warning will have remains to be seen. Democratic opponents of Carswell are making no bones of their intention to stall action on his appointment in the hope of winning more votes against him. At this writing, only 20

U.S. Ground Combat Troops Not What's Needed In Laos

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In the guerrilla operations of World War II this reporter served with a brilliant young Lao. Now considerably older, he is a seasoned veteran holding a key post in the Laos army.

He is one of the three or four men in Laos best able to estimate his country's military situation and military needs.

Having served after World War II with Ho Chi Minh in the war against the French, he also understands Hanoi's military strategy.

A while back he passed on to me his opinions of the Lao war. Because of the misunderstandings of that conflict in the U.S., what he has to say seems pertinent at this time.

In this Lao officer's personal estimation, American ground combat troops are not what Laos needs.

It's not that kind of a war. The logistics aren't right. The terrain isn't right. It would be impossible to supply them. Laos has the manpower. The standard of living in many areas is so low that even the wretched army pay attracts volunteers in sufficient numbers.

What the Lao army needs is arms. It requires a good many weapons but most of all it needs more AR-16 rifles. These are light and suitable for the Lao. But, secondly and perhaps even more important, what the Lao forces require is more training — for officers, non-commissioned officers and men. Especially, they need guerrilla training. "Almost a year has passed since Justice Fortas submitted his resignation," said Hansen, "and the Supreme Court has remained without its full complement of justices. Common sense dictates that the highest court in the land must have an odd number of judges so that the votes can be resolved in favor of one party or the other. "I urgently call on this body to consider Judge Carswell's nomination without further delay. Only then will the Supreme Court resume its position as a functional third branch of the government. It is not operating that way now. Further delay cannot be permitted."
