City, County Asked To Endorse NPRCD

By TEX DEWESE
News Staff Writer

A plea for the City of Pampa to endorse the proposed 7-county North Plains Resources Conservation and Development Association was taken under consideration today by the Pampa City Council.

Harry Frye of Shamrock and William Brooks of Wheeler appeared before city commissioners with a plea that Pampa endorse the proposal for which an application soon is to be filed with the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Frye and Brooks went from the city meeting to a session of the Gray County Commissioners' Court to ask county endorsement of the proposal. The seven counties included in the application area are Gray, Hemphill, Wheeler, Hall, Briscoe, Donley and Collinsworth.

Brooks explained that the aim of the R.C. and D. plan is to get joint effort of cities, towns and counties for the conservation, development and utilization of natural resources in the 7-county area.

"This is a local effort," Brooks said. "It does not necessarily involve federal and state aid, although there may be instances when it could. It has to be sponsored locally."

City Manager Charles Hill and Mayor Milo Carlson questioned the benefits Pampa might receive from joining.

The two city officials pointed out that it appeared that R.C. and D. could not do anything for Pampa that Pampa cannot do for itself.

Brooks stated, as an example, that the organization might be of assistance to Pampa in efforts to build a municipal golf course, establishing local marketing cooperatives, irrigation projects, etc.

He said it would like to have Pampa's endorsement because of the influence that would lend to the formal application.

He said Gray County already had been brought into the plan.

George Cree Named To Head PIF Board

George B. Cree Jr. was elected president of the Pampa Industrial Foundation at a meeting of PIF directors in the Chamber of Commerce offices this forenoon.

Cree will succeed Audrey Steele, who was elected a vice president.

Others elected included E.L. Green, Jr. and Frank Culbertson, vice presidents; Floyd Imel and A.A. Schueman, treasurers, and E.O. Wedgeworth, executive vice president and secretary.

A PEACEABLE TOWN

SUNPRAIRIE, Wis. (UPI)—Devotees of law and order might consider a visit to Sun Prairie, whose 10,000 smiling citizens got along in 1969 with no reported criminal homicides, robberies, rapes or aggravated assaults.

There were only 16 burglaries, five auto thefts, 38 cases of larceny over $50 value and 85 cases of theft under $50. Stolen property totaled $11,550, and $7,750 of that was recovered.

through endorsement of the Soil Conservation District.

Thomas F. Gray, 1013 Terry Rd., spoke to the commissioners as an individual whom he said was opposed to Pampa's participation in either the R.C. and D. plan or the Regional Council of Governments.

"I am concerned about the trend to the loss of local control," Gray said. "I think probably the sponsors of these groups have good intentions, but there is nothing the C.R. and D. HUD or the COG can do for Pampa that we can't do for ourselves. I hope Pampa will not join."

Gray suggested that the city governing body adhere to local effort and organization.

"Let's reject the sugar-coated projects," he added.

In other business today the council voted to contribute $25 a month of maintenance costs for a local National Guard unit. The action was taken after an appeal from David Crossman, local guard commander.

AFL-CIO President George Meany, who strongly opposed Haynsworth, called the Carswell nomination a "slap in the face" at Negroes.

Congress Has Last Word On Veto Right

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has vetoed the $19.7 billion health and education bill, calling it too much money at the wrong time for the wrong things. He asked Congress and the American people not to surrender to inflation.

With the scratch of a pen in front of millions of television viewers, Nixon sent the spending measure back to Congress only a few hours after the lawmakers put it on his desk. His action — the first Presidential veto of a major bill in more than a decade — set up an election year clash with Congress, which will vote Wednesday on whether to overturn Nixon's veto.

The bill would have provided money for the current business year for the Departments of Health, Education and Welfare. Nixon said he objected to it because Congress gave him $1.262 billion more than he asked for, with over $1 billion of that going for education.

He said the goals of the bill were not at issue, but government spending was. He called the measure "the wrong amount for the wrong purpose at the wrong time."

Democrats disagreed. They said Congress actually cut enough from other Nixon budget requests to justify increasing the education bill.

Republicans predicted Congress would sustain the veto. Democrats were a bit more guarded. The House will vote Wednesday, with a two-thirds vote of both houses needed to overturn the veto.

The last major veto, by President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1959, was of a rivers and harbors bill. Both houses overwhelmingly overrode that veto the next day.

"If I approved the increased spending contained in this bill, I would win the approval of many fine people who are demanding more spending by the federal government for education and health," Nixon said. "But I would be surrendering in the battle to stop the rise in the cost of living — a battle we must fight and win for the benefit of every family in this nation."

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon cited three main reasons why he vetoed the $19.7 billion health and education bill Monday night:

—The amount, $1.262 billion more than he asked for, was a 13 per cent increase over last year's health, education and welfare spending and thus intolerable in a time of inflation.

—The money increases were marked for old and questionable programs, without making needed reforms. It perpetuated the program which sends education dollars to areas with heavy federal employment so that $3 million went to the poorest 100 counties, but $6 million went to one wealthy county.

—The money would have to be spent by June 30, the end of the current business year, and might be wasted in haste. "There is no good time to waste the taxpayers' money, but there is no worse time to waste it than today."

Lagos (UPI) — An international team of military observers is divided over the seriousness of starvation and pillage in the former secessionist state of Biafra, diplomatic sources said today.

The team of observers from Britain, Canada, Sweden and Poland made its second visit to the former rebel state last week but has been unable to agree on its report, the sources said.

The group, to make another tour of the area Wednesday, reported after its first visit that conditions were not as bad as initially had been reported.

Cost Of Vietnam War Evaluated By Auditors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Besides paying $25 billion a year to fight in South Vietnam, the United States is paying $1 million a month taxes to Saigon, according to government auditors.

The General Accounting Office (GAO) said in a report it is "inappropriate" for the government to spend "billions of dollars annually" for defense of Vietnam and elsewhere, and then pay foreign taxes.

In a sample audit covering 24 months, the GAO found $28 million in property taxes was paid by the Defense Department and other agencies to South Vietnamese landlords who included their taxes in rental charges for leasing facilities to the U.S. government.

In the Vietnam review, the auditors said during this 24-month period defense agencies paid $55.6 million in rent, property, license, and income taxes included in the rent

Former City Engineer To Seek Commissioner's Job

George W. Thompson, former city engineer (1945-47) and local consulting engineer, announced plans today to become a candidate for the post of county commissioner of Precinct 2 on the Democratic ticket.

Thompson said, in telling his intent, "Pampa and Gray County have been good to me in the twenty-five years that I have lived and worked here. I feel that I want to return some service to my community. Since a major portion of a county commissioner's work consists of building and maintaining county roads, I think that this is an ideal place for an engineer to serve his community."

Thompson is a 1939 Civil Engineering graduate of Texas Tech. During World War II, he served as an instructor in an Army Specialized Training Program at Texas Tech. He came to Pampa in 1945 as city engineer. In 1947, he resigned to go into consulting engineering practice here.

In 1955, Thompson was elected president of the Panhandle Chapter of the Texas Society of Professional Engineers, and later was

TO APPLY FOR $625,000

City Council Gives Nod For HUD Funds

Formal application to the Regional Housing and Urban Development Agency for a $625,000 federal aid grant for Pampa's water treatment plant was authorized today by the city council.

The unanimous vote came on a motion by Commissioner Hugh Burdette and seconded by Clyde Carruth.

City Manager Charles Hill said regular procedure on the application now calls for its presentation to the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission for approval or rejection before it is submitted to HUD regional officials in Fort Worth.

Hill said he expects to present the application to the PRPC at Amarillo tomorrow.

The city manager then expects to file the application with HUD in Fort Worth on Friday.

Hill told city commissioners total construction costs for the filtration plant to treat Canadian River water will be $1,300,000. Engineering and contingency costs will add $111, 400 to that figure for a total project cost of $1,411,400.

The City of Pampa, he stated, has $786,400 in available bond money, leaving $625,000, amount of the federal aid request, still needed.

The city manager said if approval of the federal grant comes within two months as expected, it could mean that work would be started on the treatment plant and water lines in time for completion by the summer of 1971.

The authorization today came in the form of adoption of two resolutions, both required in order for the formal application to be presented.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate was told today American devotion to the right of privacy at home lets drug pushers flush the evidence away while frustrated narcotics agents knock at the door.

But Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., said it was well worth it. He urged adoption of an amendment, deleting a controversial "no knock" research and seizure provision from a bill that also would sharply reduce penalties for sale of possession of marijuana, heroin and other drugs.

The provision Ervin objected to would let agents barge into a home for a surprise search if they first convinced a judge the evidence might otherwise be destroyed, or the alleged pushers might attack them.

Vote On Privacy Right
A vote on Ervin's amendment was scheduled at 1 p.m. EST. "Narcotics and dangerous drugs are usually kept near the commode or the sink where they can be instantly flushed down the drain," said Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., the bill's sponsor.

"Even a small amount of narcotics such as heroin is extremely valuable in the illegal market," Dodd said.

Senate To Examine Carswell's Fitness

WASHINGTON (UPI) — G. Harold Carswell, repenting his 22-year-old white supremacy views, submitted himself today for examination by the Senate Judiciary Committee on his fitness to serve on the U.S. Supreme Court.

President Nixon nominated Carswell, 50, of Tallahassee, Fla., judge of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court, to the Supreme Court seat left vacant when Abe Fortas resigned under fire last year.

Carswell was Nixon's second choice for the vacancy. His first choice, Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., was rejected by the Senate, chiefly for his off-the-bench financial dealings. There also were complaints, however, Haynsworth was hostile to civil rights of blacks.

No one so far has raised ethical questions about Carswell's personal finances. But before his Jan. 19 nomination was one week old, views he expressed on white supremacy

State's Lieutenant Governor To Guest Speak At Jaycees' Dinner

Lieutenant Governor Ben Barnes is scheduled to be the featured speaker at the annual "Jaycees Bosses' Night" in Pampa, Friday, February 6.

Barnes, named this month by the U.S. Jaycees as one of the 10 Outstanding Young Men in the country, will speak on "Texas Faces the Seventies — Challenge, Involvement and Change."

Barnes was elected lieutenant governor in the 1968 election, receiving 2,040,380 votes and carrying every county in the state. At 31 years of age, he is the youngest lieutenant governor in the history of Texas.

Before his election as lieutenant governor, Barnes was the fourth man in Texas history to serve two terms as speaker of the House of Representatives. A native of Comanche County, Lt. Governor Barnes attended Texas Christian University and Tarleton State College before entering the University of Texas, where he studied business and law.

Jaycees will also name the "Boss of the Year" and present the Distinguished Service Award to an outstanding young man in the community. The dinner is planned for 7:30 p.m. in the Coronado Inn. The public is invited. Tickets,

Estes Looking For Gift Of Freedom On Birthday

(Editor's Note: Billie Sol Estes, the fallen financier, has a chance this week to become a free man. It is a slim chance but a man behind prison bars likes any odds on freedom. A team of United Press International reporters talked with friends and foes for the following report on what the former boy wonder of Texas farm financing has done and is doing.)

By MIKE WESTER
United Press International

When the man whose name meant easy money became just another number at 2:32 p.m. March 5, 1963, at the back gate of the federal lockup at Leavenworth, Kan., he carried a paunch and a Bible.

"I don't have hate in my heart for anybody," he said with an owlish, horn-rimmed grin.

"Business and money are no longer my gods. I am not on any one's side any more except God's." He works in strange ways," said the man who rose from the dust of West Texas to hobnob with the rich and reknown in a hundred cloakrooms.

The man turned 45 two weeks ago on Jan. 10. He has switched states and switched prisons in the past five years and he didn't have much of a birthday party.

Gift of Freedom

Billie Sol Estes is waiting for a present that may come Friday. It is the gift of freedom.

The U. S. Parole Board meets Friday in Washington to decide if the former boy wonder of Texas farm financing should be set free after serving one-third of his 15-year sentence for fraud.

The chance for parole is slim and one Texas judge said he has let the Justice Department know his objections to freeing Estes.

"He got caught red-handed in as brazen an exhibition of perjury as I have ever seen in the 40 years I have been going to the courtroom," said Fort Worth Federal Judge J. G. Brewster in a statement to the Parole Board.

But Patsy Estes, wife of the fallen financier, said things have changed in five years.

Paunch Is Gone

Billie Sol still has his Bible but has lost his paunch.

"On his own time, he's been doing a lot of running, jogging, you know, to keep in shape," Mrs. Estes said from her home in Abilene, Tex. "He tells me he jogs about two miles every day."

NEW YORK (UPI)—Common stocks, unsatisfactory as they have been over the past year, are the only sensible refuge for long-term investment desiring a degree of liquidity, Hoppin Bros. & Co. believes. With the exception of the high-flying glamor stocks of late 1969, most issues "have had their blood-bath during the past few months so that present estimates of their long-term risks and rewards are probably reflected in their price levels with fair accuracy," the firm says.

When the long-awaited economic downturn finally makes its appearance it will undoubtedly prove constructive for investors, Argus Research Corp. says. Though any strong rebound of equity prices probably will be delayed until Monetary Policy eases and the bond market rallies, the stock market is not likely to decline much further. The firm recommends active accumulation in areas of the market where earnings are going to be well sustained or where share prices have been knocked down to bargain levels.

A stock that is down is not necessarily a bargain, Flor, Bullard & Smyth points out. The "real bargains" are those companies that will be able to achieve earnings growth of 10 to 30 per cent or more in a tough economic climate. The firm cautions against "following the crowd into the so-called 'Hot groups,' or stocks with high price-earnings ratios, as these can create quick, substantial losses.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The biggest hits, both critically and financially, in the motion picture line lately have been such low budget productions as "Putney Swope," "Alice's Restaurant" and "Easy Rider."

Meanwhile, a couple of lavish musicals like Hollywood used to make have been disdained by the reviewers and are in big trouble at the box office.

"Well, try to keep abreast of cultural trends in his country so I arranged an interview with Eric von Frugal, the producer-director known as "the king of the quickie-cheapies."

Von Fruga first achieved international acclaim for his film treatment of the "The Threepeny Opera." He made the picture so economically it was renamed "The Onepenny Opera."

Scores Triumph

He then scored a triumph with his award-winning production of "Tightwad," a psychological thriller. His latest release is "Skinflint," a sociological Western, and he has just finished filming "Cheapskate," a zoological comedy.

"How is your new picture doing, Mr. Von Frugal?" I asked.

Great. Just great. It has already grossed 29 million and is still playing the art houses. Once it hits the neighborhoods, the sky's the limit."

"How much did it cost you to produce it?"

"Our budget was 49 cents, plus postage, based on a shooting schedule of 2 and 1/2 days. Unfortunately, we had a 4-cent overrun."

"I said, 'Skinflint' has been getting rave reviews because of its photography. Did you use a hand-held camera as so many movie-makers are doing nowadays?"

Absolutely not. Our budget wouldn't permit us to use any kind of movie camera. So I borrowed a brownie."

"A Kodak Brownie or a Girl Scout rownie?"

Pastes Prints Together

"Both. I would shoot a roll with the Kodak Brownie and would take the negatives to the drugstore to get them developed. When the prints came back, we pasted them together to make a movie film."

"That was how we created the jerky effect that the critics described as 'a sensual Joycean montage with sixth dimension overtones of spatial timelessness.'"

I said, "Did you use professional actors?"

"Horros, No! The entire cast came from the express check-out line at the Feathercut Barber College commissary."

I said, "Could you sum up for me the cultural significance of the low budget trend?"

"I certainly can," Von Frugal replied. "I means that America has finally learned to make foreign movies."

PHS Speech Department Hosts Tournament

Snyder High School was named "Sweepstakes Winner" when the first invitational speech tournament of Pampa High School closed Saturday night.

The winner chalked up 75 points while Spearman High School, runner-up earned 73 points.

Events were judged by 70 volunteers, all Pampans.

Over 50 Pampa Speech students acted as hosts, student chairmen and time-keepers in the all-day event which was entered by 165 area high school students. No Pampa students took part in the competition.

Your Horoscope
JEANE DIXON

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 29
Your birthday Wednesday: This year's symbol is for drastic change to occur at short notice according to timing factors in your individual horoscope. You may make a series of changes, each of them a bridge to another phase of personal development. Grasp every chance to move up to higher rewards, more feasible situations.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): It is now easier for you to prevail in any reasonable question — with clarity of expression. You fall unless you know precisely what you want and how to ask for it properly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): There are good new ideas floating around, not to be dismissed abruptly, but not yet worked up into usable form.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Cover your search for better answers with an amiable surface. Current puzzles last over the next several days; some details elude you altogether. Trust intuition; if the general direction is right, don't worry about the fine points.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Approach life today as a stylized, pleasant ritual — every move a foreshadowing of inner double meaning. There is immense satisfaction and plenty of laughter in such play-acting.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Talk fills the day but without much result. Trust, people come to know each other better through these encounters which may be more worthwhile than the business that never comes to pass.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Indirect approaches from you meet similar tricky questions from others in the crossfire.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Confident, extrovert behavior brings immediate benefits. None of Wednesday's deals carry very far into the future; expect open-end or renegotiable situations. Neither make nor accept sweeping promises now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): What you learn now puts a different light on recent events. Think about it for a day or two before making radical changes in plans.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your intuition struggles frantically to tell you something, probably a reason for delaying action. Allow a moment of calm so it can cope to the surface in usable voice.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Things happen rather rapidly; not all are very significant but combined form a pattern which still lacks a strong direction. You can help form the essential local trend by your actions and reactions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your energies are quite scattered for the time being, so keep notes of where you are interrupted. This is not a day to sign any contract.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Where the main lines are already set, routine details are about normal. Major changes started now get out of hand and upset much earlier progress which needs to be disturbed. Light entertainment at night brightens your mood.

To Be At Home On Moon, In Sea
Man Must Create New Colonists

NEW YORK (SpI) —Time may bring the evolution of three kinds of human beings, each specially suited to its own environment, predicts noted science writer Isaac Asimov.

Discussing "Outer Space" and "Wet Space" in the January "Seventeen" "Soar into '70" issue, Asimov foresees three types of humans: the air-breathing normal gravity people who inhabit the earth now; air-breathing, low-gravity people who would colonize the moon; and water-breathing, high-pressure people who would colonize the continental shelves (sloping layers of land that rim the continents below shallow ocean). These divisions are not likely to take place for a very long time to come, Asimov concedes, but he estimates that colonization should begin by the end of this century.

"The moon civilization will have to learn to live on limited resources and to cycle all its supplies carefully. It will not be able to afford pollution or overpopulation," the author points out. Its manner of solving these problems may give useful lessons to Earthman.

Since the moon has only one-sixth of Earth's gravity, its residents may enjoy some new

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Have you ever seen a bald Indian? No! That's because they shampoo their hair only a few times a year. I am not an Indian, but I am living proof that this is true. I am in my sixties and I have thick, luxuriant brown hair. People think I dye it, so I have a standing offer of one thousand dollars to anyone who can find one dyed hair in my head.

I shampoo my hair only a few times a year. Most Americans wash the life out of their hair. They scrub it, brush it, tint it, dye it, curl it, straighten it, tease it, spray it, and burn it to a frazzle. No wonder we are becoming a nation of bald women and well into the wig age.

DEAR ABBY: In your column, I read, "Confidential to M. G. M., I did write to President Nixon. He ignored my letter."

Welcome to the club! I know many who have written to President Nixon regarding important matters (including this writer), and we were not even given the courtesy of a "form letter" reply.

Whatever President Johnson's faults may have been, ignoring those who took the time to write to him was not one of them.

On several occasions I wrote to Lyndon Johnson while he was President, and I always received a prompt and courteous reply. True, it may have been written by one of a very large corps of secretaries, but I did receive a reply from the President's office.

In closing, it has been my observation that a truly big man has time to listen to little people. A little man listens to no one. Sincerely,
R. T. MONTGOMERY,
SANTA ANA, CAL.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married nearly 10 years and we have a real nice family. I have always trusted my husband, but about a month ago he told me that he had propositioned my younger sister who is a very pretty divorcee. He said she turned him down. I told him I'd forgive him if he'd promise never to do it again. He promised, and I really forgave him.

Now last Sunday he came to me with another confession. He said that twice last week when he was over at my sister's trying to get her to change her mind.

I didn't say much, but of course I was hurt. Now here is the part I can't figure out. My sister was here today and I told her that my husband had confessed to me about how he had been after her. I told her I was proud of her for turning him down, and Abby, she swore with one hand on Mamma's Bible, and the other hand to God that my husband never made one move toward her! I believe my sister. But why would my husband want to tell lies like that?

CAN'T UNDERSTAND
DEAR CAN'T: He is either

CONFIDENTIAL TO "ON THE SPOT" IN ONTARIO: You shouldn't have made a phony fuss over a gift you thought was "hideous." But now that you have, it might be wise to wear it at least once in the presence of the giver. (And for goodness sake, don't give it to a mutual friend, even though you think it might suit her better.)

Adopt Styles of Yore
Costume is the fashion key for special days and beyond. It's your reason to do someone else's thing as well as your own. Design a gown reminiscent of Norma Shearer (you remember her), a tailored suit that smacks of Jean Arthur, a hat pulled down over the eyes when you want to be Garbo.

FASHIONETTES
When cleaning closets, take a good second look at worn clothes. You know you'll never wear them again so why not discard them?

Three fashion winners to knit and crochet for great new looks. The vest and pullover patterns will fit sizes 10-16, and the perky cap pulls on properly to fit all head sizes.

Needleworkers Can Win Fashion Game

Needleworkers are getting younger all the time, and one reason for the new generation's interest in the craft may be that patterns to knit and crochet are in step with the latest fashion trends.

Work these three and see. Each is easy, so even the newest needleers can add these fashion accents to their wardrobes. The openwork crocheted vest and quick-knit turtle-neck pullover in sizes 10-16 are great go-togethers — but each has a special snap to perk up separates of all sorts. The cap, of course, is great with all sports looks and even with maxi coats.

To receive a leaflet of instructions for all three, just send 50 cents to Stitchin' Time, in care of your local newspaper, Radio City Station, Box 503, New York, N.Y. Be sure to ask for leaflet S184 and include your name, address and zip code.

KNIT KNACKS
DEAR JUDY: I've just completed a series of stripes for an afghan. My problem is to knit them. Each strip is a different color, and I want to avoid showing the yarn used in joining. Can you help?

—R.L.
DEAR R.L.: Your best bet is a means of joining called invisible weaving. Believe me, it lives up to the name.

Here's how to do it. Place two pieces which are to be joined right side up and side by side. The edges should touch, but just barely. The weaving is done with a blunt tapestry needle and the yarn — if thick it should be separated.

Senior Center Corner

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hills, Del City, Okla., visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A.D. Hills, over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. H.M. Norris are at home recuperating from an illness and hospitalization in Groom Memorial Hospital.

Door prizes were won by Frank Carter and Mrs. Gladys Higgins. Prizes were given by the hostesses, the Twentieth Century Forum Club.

Mrs. Rudell Lightfoot, sister of Mrs. Genia Noland, visited the Center last Thursday afternoon and participated in the games.

Mrs. Cora Long is in Highland General Hospital, but may receive cards and letters.

Ben Cates attended a two-day horse show in Amarillo recently. He states he saw some of the finest cutting horses he had ever seen, and was reminded of his days in the saddle many years ago.

Rae Jeane Perkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.K. Perkins, and granddaughter of Mrs. D.S. Buckner, is visiting in Long Beach, Calif., with friends before returning to Portland State University, where she is a junior student.

Mr. and Mrs. H.G. Lawrence are spending several weeks at Rock Port, fishing.

Mrs. Mae Meadows and daughter, Mrs. Marilyn Trollering have gone to Dallas for the wedding of Mrs. Meadows' granddaughter.

We welcome Frank Carter and Mrs. Nellie Seiber back to our group. We always enjoy having them. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hollon have been absent also, but were welcomed back Thursday.

The Twentieth Century Forum was represented by Meses, Lora Barber, Susan Dunigan, Jeanne Zlomke, Suzie Wilkinson, Alta Lane, Linda Holt, Priscilla Downing, Mary Johnson, Nancy Stolla, Sharon Simpson, Zee Halloway, Cathy Cotter, Joy Waddell, Connie Cornman, and Connie McDaniel.

Altrusa Club members assisting Jay Flanagan, chairman, were Geneva Tidwell, Fidelia Yoder, Louise Sewell, Lillian Snow and Lalar Wilkerson. Red Cross Volunteers were Meses, Gail Hamantree, Olive Hills, Lalia Clifford, and Jess Hatcher.

Television In Review

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Notes to watch television by:

The Shows: ABC-TV's new medical series with Robert Young, "Marcus Welby, M.D.," finished No. 1 in the national ratings for the week ending Jan. 11. "Following 'Welby' in the ratings were 'Family In' and 'Hawaii Five-O,' a police series that has picked up strongly in popularity since being switched to its late Wednesday time slot.

Danny Thomas will return to television on a weekly basis this fall in a new, half-hour, ABC-TV situation comedy, "Make Room for Granddaddy," a sequel to his old series, which originally was titled "Make Room for Daddy". Thomas also will have an hour variety show on CBS-TV Wednesday, with his guests including Bob Hope, Carol Channing, Dionne Warwick, Juliet Prowse and Tim Conway.

NBC-TV's "Smothers Brothers special on Feb. 16 will feature Peter Fonda (currently of "Easy Rider" fame), Glen Campbell and David Frye.

The March 7 total eclipse of the sun will be the subject of an hour special on CBS-TV the same day. The title is "Earth in the Shadow of the Moon—The Solar Eclipse". NBC-TV's "First Tuesday" offers a report on the Israeli air force Feb. 3. Same network has also concluded a new long-term arrangement to continue "The Wonderful World of Disney" series, which maintains its popularity despite the death of the cartoonist-executive-host.

The Headliners: Vice President Spiro Agnew is interviewed on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" this Sunday. California Gov. Ronald Reagan visits the same network's Carol Burnett series tonight. Richard Chamberlain, formerly video's "Dr. Kildare," will star in a two-hour production of "Hamlet" on NBC-TV's "Hallmark Hall of Fame" next season. He got good reviews in the role in England last year. Ex-movie star Don Ameche directed the Feb. 17 episode of NBC-TV's "Julie".

Bing Crosby hosts the final broadcast of ABC-TV's "Hollywood Palace" Feb. 7, and the show will offer reruns of performances by Fred Astaire, Ethel Merman, Ella Fitzgerald, Jimmy Durante, Ed Wynn, Martha Raye, the Tijuana Brass, Ray Bolger, Dean Martin and Gene Kelly. Troy Donahue becomes a regular on CBS-TV's soap opera "The Secret Storm" this week, playing "a baby-faced opportunist". And Jan Sterling has joined another CBS-TV soap, "The Guiding Light," portraying a maid.

Telephone Operator Gives Aid

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—Mrs. Betty Jo Kenney, a telephone operator for Pacific Northwest Bell, answered the late night call.

At first there was only silence on the open line. Then the thin, uncertain voice of a child identified herself as "Ann."

Mrs. Kenney listened patiently as the confused-sounding child rambled on about her younger brother Russ and the fact that the two had been alone for days since an aunt and uncle disappeared.

Getting another operator to call police, Mrs. Kenney began asking questions.

"Can you read your telephone number?"

"No."

"Do you know where you live—what street?"

"No."

Finally, the girl was able to give the name of her mother. A quick check of police records showed the mother was in jail charged with violating the city hotel ordinance.

While Mrs. Kenney continued to ask Ann questions, telephone company technicians traced the call to an apartment here.

Police went to the address Thursday night and found Ann, 10, and Russ, 8, both retarded, amidst clutter that included an empty whisky bottle and hypodermic syringes.

Thief Steals Blind Man's Accordion

DETROIT (UPI)—Before a Detroit area businessman gave James Mass $200 to pay initiation fees and three months' tuition dues, the blind accordion player couldn't get a job.

Mass, 22, is now a card-carrying member of the American Federation of Musicians, but he no longer has an accordion to play.

Somebody broke into his home at the downtown YMCA and stole the instrument, he told police during the weekend.

Two Deaf Mutes Die In Hotel Fire

CHICAGO (UPI)—Two deaf mute boys were killed and 36 other persons injured Sunday when a fire swept through a floor of the Conrad Hilton, one of the world's largest hotels.

The two boys, seniors at the Jacksonville, Ill., School for the Deaf on a weekend outing, might have lived had they remained in their rooms; authorities said.

The bodies of Donald Sanger, 17, and Bruce Kennedy, 18, were found in the hallway of the ninth floor. They apparently died of smoke inhalation. They and 29 other handicapped students were in Chicago to attend a Chicago Bulls professional basketball game and to tour the Museum of Science and Industry.

The fire struck about 6:50 a.m. Sunday in a furniture storage area on the ninth floor and spread quickly through the hallways.

Fire Commissioner Robert Quinn said damage to the 3,000-room, 30-story hotel was about $150,000, but "could go higher."

Quinn said it was "miraculous that there was not more loss of life."

Eighteen persons, including 10 of the deaf mute boys, were taken to hospitals for treatment of smoke inhalation or burns. All but six were treated and released. About 20 other guests and firemen were treated at the hotel.

Top Picked Today

NEW YORK (UPI)—The odds are that the top draft pick in pro football today will be either Mike or Terry Bradshaw because there are three Mike's among the four most sought-after college football players. The other is Terry Bradshaw of Louisiana Tech.

Quarterback Mike Phipps of Purdue, along with Bradshaw, had clubs in need of signal callers frantically making 11th-hour trades for high draft picks.

Mike McCoy of Notre Dame and Mike Reid of Penn State are All-American linemen.

Green Bay gained Chicago's No. 2 pick in the first round by trading three players to the Bears. Cleveland acquired Miami's No. 3 pick when it traded flanker Paul Warfield to the Dolphins Monday.

Warfield became expendable when the Browns traded three players to New York for Homer Jones.

For the first time pro football is operating as a single, two-conference, 26-team league.

The Pittsburgh Steelers will choose what they consider the best player in the country—for them—when they select first in the draft. They earned this right by tying Chicago for the world record in pro football, 1-13, and then winning the coin toss from the Bears.

Standings Determine Order

Boston and Buffalo of the American Conference select fourth and fifth in the rotation. The order of drafting was a result of the inverse standings of the 26 teams at the end of the 1969 season. Ties involving 11 teams were settled by coin tosses.

Philadelphia picks sixth, followed by Cincinnati, St. Louis,

San Francisco, New Orleans, Denver and Atlanta. The New York Giants draft 13th, with Houston, San Diego and Green Bay next.

San Francisco has the rights to Washington's first draft and will choose next, followed by Baltimore, Detroit, the New York Jets, Cleveland, Los Angeles, Dallas, Oakland, Minnesota and the world champion Kansas City Chiefs.

Kansas City and Minnesota, the super Bowl teams, are the lone exceptions to the inverse order lineup and draft last.

A total of 442 players will be taken in the 17 rounds, spread out over two days.

Dolphins Give Up Number 1 Pick For Pro

MIAMI (UPI)—In bad need of a wide receiver with speed, the Miami Dolphins weren't in the mood to gamble on the fortunes of the college player draft.

That's why they jumped at a chance to trade away their first-round pick in exchange for Cleveland Browns star receiver Paul Warfield.

Warfield, 27, a former All-America at Ohio State, had his best season at Cleveland in 1968 when he caught 40 passes for 1,087 yards and 12 touchdowns. Last year the six-footer caught 43 passes for 886 yards and 10 touchdowns to help the Browns grab the Eastern Conference title in the National Football League.

Under terms of the deal, Miami must pick a quarterback, which the Browns badly need. The pick probably will be either Terry Bradshaw of Louisiana Tech, Mike Phipps of Purdue or Dennis Shaw of San Diego State, the top three in the consensus of pro scouts.

Channels The Same—Just Names Change

NEW YORK (UPI)—The names of the leagues have changed but the channels remain the same.

The National Broadcasting Company (NBC) and the Columbia Broadcasting System (CBS) have signed four-year television contracts with the National Football League. It was announced Monday by Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Under the new setup resulting from the merger of the National and American Leagues, NBC will televise American Conference games while CBS will air those contests played by National Conference foes. The American Conference includes the teams who formerly played in the American Football League as well as Baltimore, Cleveland and Pittsburgh, all transfers from the old NFL.

NBC had handled AFL games since 1966, while the NFL action had been carried over CBS since 1966.

The two networks will alternate annual coverage of the Super Bowl and All-Star game. NBC is scheduled to televise the 1970 season.

When interconference games are played, NBC will cover all home contests of the National Conference. CBS will televise when the American Conference hosts their interleague rivals.

Both networks will pay the same price for rights to the Super Bowl and All-Star game but the budgets allotted for regular season games will vary. Rozelle refused to release monetary figures.

It was previously announced that the American Broadcasting Company (ABC) would televise NFL games on Monday nights during the next three years.

ABA Draft Picks Remain Secret

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Basketball Association today refused to release the names picked in a secret league draft, but at least two clubs are known to have Pistol Pete Maravich and Dan Issel as their No. 1 choices.

The Carolina Cougars were open in their selection and announced Monday they would conduct a price war, if necessary, with the National Basketball Association to sign Maravich of LSU, the nation's leading scorer.

Sources close to the Kentucky Colonels indicated Issel was drafted No. 1 by that team. Claude Virdee of Murray State was reported to be the second choice, while Bob Linehard of Georgia was Carolina's No. 2 pick.

Skiping Across The Sports In Brief

Tech Beats A&M

RUSTON, LA. (UPI)—Louisiana Tech, getting its most accurate shooting performance of the season, defeated defending Southwest Conference champion Texas A&M 100-94 Saturday night.

Tech hit a blistering 49.3 per cent of its field goal attempts, while the Aggies could only manage a 40.9 per cent from the floor.

The winners were led by 6-foot-10 rookie Mike Green, who finished with 29 points. Green hit on 10 of 12 field goal attempts and nine free throws. Mike Heilmann of the Aggies led all scorers with 30, including 18 of 22 free throws.

West Texas Beaten

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI)—Weber State, led by Willie Sojourner with 23 points and 17 rebounds, beat West Texas State 76-68 Saturday night in a non-conference basketball game.

It was Weber's 12th victory in 14 starts, while West Texas fell to 7-7.

Sessions Harlan scored 17 for the victors and Kent Ross had 12.

Ed Fitzgerald hit 22 along with 18 rebounds for West Texas and Dale Blaut had 21.

Most Courageous

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Fred Steinmark, University of Texas safety who lost his leg to cancer after helping the Longhorns become the nation's top college football team, fought back tears Monday night as he was named America's most courageous athlete of 1969 by the Philadelphia Sports Writers Association.

Steinmark, celebrated his 21st birthday today. "I never had time to feel sorry for myself, everybody was so good to me. The response was just great."

Harvesters In Amarillo Tonight

The Pampa Harvesters will travel to Amarillo tonight for the opening game of the second half of the season with the Palo Duro Dons.

Pampa won their balgame against Palo Duro in their first encounter and finished up the first half of the season winning two district games; the other one against Caprock.

Palo Duro is a strong free-shooting team with a lot of experience. They won over Berger last week.

Stallings Attends

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (UPI)—Texas A&M football coach Gene Stallings flew to Youngstown to attend Tuesday's funeral of Mike DeViro, a two-time all-Southwest Conference end at A&M who drowned in an auto accident.

Stallings went to Youngstown with chief assistant Elmer Smith for the funeral services, scheduled for 11 a.m. in the St. Brenan Catholic Church.

Mystery Surrounds Pilots

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—A light-tipped group of American League baseball club owners get together today to decide the future of the floundering Pilots franchise, whose fate hangs on a mysterious "new" plan devised to keep the club in Seattle.

Just what that plan was, no one knows for sure—except theater owner Fred Danz and his band of Seattle associates.

"All I can say is that we have a plan that will solidify the Pilots' financial situation and enable the team to remain in Seattle," said Danz. "We wouldn't be here if we didn't think it would work."

If league officials and club owners decide the plan won't work, businessmen from Milwaukee and Dallas-Fort Worth are waiting in the wings to pull the expansion team out of Seattle.

Today's meeting, at the rambling and stately Claremont Hotel in the Berkeley Hills, follows weeks of futile scrambling by Danz and his group to pay off a $3.5 million bank loan left over by the original owners of the Pilots.

American League President Joe Cronin says the Pilots won't be offered for sale until he and Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, plus a committee of club owners, agree the team has no future in the Pacific Northwest.

Title Bout Soon

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Cassius Clay, the deposed heavyweight champion, said Monday he will personally hand over his championship belt to the winner of the Joe Frazier-Jimmy Ellis bout Feb. 16 in Madison Square Garden.

somewhere in the mountains around Hot Springs, Va., and flows into Sam Snead's bathtub.

Samuel Jackson Snead is a baldish, wrinkled fellow of nearly 58 whose body somehow seems impervious to time.

Example:

One of the first things Chi Chi Rodriguez does when he meets a rookie on the professional golf tour is to make him a bet. "See that door facing," he says, pointing to a seven-foot entrance to the locker room. "I bet you $20 Sam Snead—that old man—can kick the top of that door facing." It is a bet Chi Chi has never lost.

Example:

In Augusta, Ga., each spring, a hard-core group of hardening arteries gathers around the 18th green to watch Sam Snead finish his round. They sigh wistfully and titter unanimously when Snead sinks his final putt and then reaches down and extracts his ball from the hole—without bending his knees.

"I don't do it any more, but I used to jump over hedges and bushes and things on the golf course," Snead said. Such behavior, he says, does not become senior citizens.

Julius Boros, 49, the next-oldest member of the PGA tour, is a young whipper-snapper compared to Snead. The years have rolled away and Snead's peer group—the Hóigans and Nelsons and Demarets—also has rolled away. Only Snead survives, his fluid, classic swing still so sweet you should not see it if you're on a diet.

How does he do it? How has Sam Snead lasted—winning at least one tournament of assorted prestige for the past 34 years—while others have faded into scrapbooks? Here, says Snead, is how:

"First, I like to get a lot of sleep. Sleep is rest and rest is important. I normally get to bed about 10 o'clock and get up at about 7:30. That's nine-and-a-half hours.

"In the morning, I do a few situps in bed before I get out. Then I've got some hand weights that I exercise with. I also lift some weights but no more than 75 pounds.

"I do not have to watch my food too much. Nothing bothers me that I can think of. I usually have eggs and bacon or maybe a steak for breakfast—something with a little background to it. I think some of the boys are missing the boat when they do not have a good breakfast. You have to have something to hold you up out there.

"Sometimes I take vitamins, mostly for iron. It seems like my whole family suffers from an iron shortage.

"The main thing, however, is to keep active. Unfortunately, Hogan just didn't play enough. You have to be tournament tough. I can't say for a man of 57 to be as active as a man of 25, but he can move around and keep at it. Myself, I don't hit the ball quite as far as I used to, but I can still get there with the same clubs most of these young fellows are using, and with less than some.

"I think the golf cart will increase the average golfer's playing career by, say, 10 years. It'll save him that much wear and tear on the legs. But it'll still be important to stay in shape. Trotting and running are the only exercises that are really good for golf."

These days, Snead works two jobs. During winter months, he is club pro at Boca Raton in Florida. In the summer, when he isn't on the pro tour, he works at The Greenbrier resort in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Sam Snead says he doesn't have much time to think about mauling subjects like old age.

"The thing I think about," he says, "is winning a tournament on the tour this year."

UCLA Remains Unbeatable

NEW YORK (UPI)—These are frustrating days for the Kentucky, St. Bonaventure and Jacksonville basketball teams.

All three have glittering, unbeaten credentials, but are making little or no progress in attempts to overtake UCLA, the country's fourth unbeaten team, in the United Press International board of coaches' major college basketball ratings.

UCLA was an overwhelming choice for No. 1 for the fourth straight week Monday when it received 28 of a possible first-place votes and 342 of a possible 350 points. The Bruins, who have lost only two games in four seasons, ran their season winning streak to 14 through games of last Saturday with an 80-80 victory over UC Santa Barbara and a 115-77 rout of Wyoming.

Kentucky, which defeated Louisiana State 109-96, for its 14th straight Saturday night, was a distant second with 302 points. The Wildcats received six first-place votes, 26 second-place votes and one each for third and ninth.

St. Bonaventure moved from fourth place to third in the new

OUR CAPSULE POLICY

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TEXAS PANHANDLE

TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me!

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

(Permission is hereby granted to reproduce in whole or in part any editorials originated by the News and appearing in these columns, provided proper credit is given.)

Independent Editors

Pufficians who profess to be liberals are often the quickest to criticize editors when they fall to the "liberal" line or when they see merit in the views of others and reprint them as expressions of editorial policy.

The majority of editors are more independent in their thinking than the politicians. They do not key their words to getting votes. They concern themselves with informative comment for their readers on local, national, industrial, labor and tax questions affecting employment, production and the economy.

The United States is unusually fortunate in having some 10,000 weekly and smaller city daily newspapers, in addition to its large dailies and national publications. They're generally owned by local citizens who are property owners, taxpayers and employers. Their editors are members of all political parties. They are not afraid to express their opinions of public officials. They are not afraid of being liquidated as writers and publishers have been in communist nations. They do not take kindly to political dictation and attempts by officials to intimidate or censor what they say or how they use it. If they did, there would be no free press.

'Coercion Toward Virtue'

There is one way to slash America's crime rate, destroy organized crime, empty the prisons, unclog the courts and ease the burden of overworked police: Legalize nearly everything.

This may be a simplification but it is not a falsification of what more and more lawyers, judges and professors of law and sociology are coming to believe must be done if respect for the law is to reign in America and if the battle against crime is to be won.

Too much of the time and energy of lawmakers and law enforcers, these critics charge, is spent on so-called crimes by definition or crimes without victims — gambling, drunkenness, private sexual practices and so on.

In 1968, for example, of the 6 million nontraffic arrests in the nation, more than 2 million were for simple drunkenness.

"Its prime function of criminal law is to protect our persons and our property," says attorney Norval Morris. "When criminal law invades the spheres of private morality and social welfare it exceeds its proper limits and neglects its primary tasks."

When law is used, "to coerce men toward virtue," he adds, it always fails. Even worse, it breeds criminal cultures. Crime syndicates grow rich, bribery flourishes and corruption of police and politicians is invited.

Morris, together with criminologist and penologist Hans Mattick, is co-director of the University of Chicago Law School's Center for Studies in Criminal Justice. If they had their way:

—Public drunkenness would no longer be a crime. Instead of clogging the courts and jails with drunks, at a cost of $100 million a year, they recommend city-wide networks of overnight houses, in combination with voluntary detoxification programs.

—Purchase, possession and use of any kind of a drug would not be a crime — but the sale of certain harmful and addictive drugs would continue to be a criminal offense. The peddler would be prosecuted, not the user.

—No form of gambling would be prohibited — but certain fraudulent and cheating gambling practices would remain criminal.

—The catch-all offenses of vagrancy and disorderly conduct would no longer be criminal charges. Instead, laws would specify exactly what type of conduct is prohibited and define the circumstances in which police should intervene.

—Sexual activities between consenting adults in private would not be subject to criminal law. Prostitution would be legalized.

—Abortion performed by a qualified medical practitioner in a registered hospital would not be a crime.

According to Morris and Mattick, if these proposals and a few others became law, arrests in the U.S. would be cut in half, from 6 million to 3 million a year, and police and courts could concentrate on "real" crime — murder, assault, robbery, theft, fraud.

We might suggest a few more "crimes" which contribute to the lack of respect for law. For instance, in local circles it sometimes appears that the greatest of "crimes" is to start a business in one's home or garage, or to fail to get a permit from some bureaucratic agency, or commit a zoning violation. On the state level, one of the most serious "crimes" is not to have a state license or to charge less than the law allows for milk, haircuts or beer or not conforming to state prescribed building edicts.

The reformers aren't optimistic that any of these proposals will be adopted in the near future.

—But when law is ludicrous and corruption and serious crime are rampant, the health of a nation is not good. Perhaps we do need to elevate our sights.

Education's Revolution

One of the ways in which modern public school educators seek to justify their regular requests for ever-increasing amounts of money is to come up with some new program which they claim will "revolutionize" education. Our schools have been "revolutionized" so often that a year in which this does not occur is exceptional. These programs follow a regular pattern. They sound very good, great claims are made for them though their promoters seldom like to answer detailed questions about them, and after a few years a great silence falls about them and they are often forgotten. This clears the way for still another program which will "revolutionize" the schools all over again... at the expense of the taxpayer.

Pollution And Protest

Many shrewd political observers conclude that prevention of air and water pollution will be one of the big issues of the 1970s. The way candidates for office are climbing aboard the anti-pollution bandwagon suggests that these observers are right.

There's potential for both good and bad in the enthusiasm for environmental protection. Certainly, air and water pollution is very important. The air we breathe and the water of our streams are priceless national resources. The health of our people depends on success in dealing with pollution. Progressive industry is just as concerned as any other group with checking pollution — more so, in fact, since innumerable companies are devoting large sums to preventing air pollution and to cleaning up water used for industrial purposes.

The danger is that the anti-pollution drive will fall into irresponsible hands and be guided by emotionalism rather than logic. The Ultra-liberal Washington Post, among other journals, has suggested that the fight against pollution is a "new focus for student protest." If there's one thing the anti-pollution campaign doesn't need, it is the irresponsibility and emotionalism that has characterized organized student protest in recent years.

To be sure, activity by responsible, informed students is desirable. Volunteer community efforts to get rid of pollutants and litter are very much needed. Anyone who has traveled in Western Europe knows that the countries on the Continent are doing a far better job than we are in getting rid of street litter.

What would be hurtful, however, is an anti-pollution drive that has political overtones of a fight against free enterprise. Unfortunately, such overtones can be detected in some areas and some pollution controversies. If the New Left becomes heavily involved in the anti-pollution struggle, it undoubtedly will seek to portray industry as a demon that wants to pollute America.

Progressive industry already is fighting pollution — for common sense economic reasons, if no other. In industrial operations, pollution is synonymous with waste. Thus modern companies are trying to trap pollution emitted from smokestacks and endeavoring to transform the wastes into useable by-products. American industry already has devoted huge sums to this end.

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BRANDSTADT

Cause of Mononucleosis Remains Unidentified

Q—My grandson, 14, has infectious mononucleosis. What causes it? What is the best treatment?

A—Although the cause of this disease has not been positively identified, a herpeslike virus is strongly suspected. There's no specific treatment but drugs of the cortisone group have benefited some victims whose attack was unusually severe.

LEGAL BARRIER — The basic atomic energy act, approved after World War II, has always restricted the proliferation of data on nuclear weapons and submarines. As early as 1956, however, pressure began to build for sharing submarine technology with Britain.

Q—What are the symptoms of infectious mononucleosis? Could it cause brain damage if the temperature reached 105?

A—Like many other acute infections, this disease is characterized by fever, sore throat and tender enlarged lymph nodes. The diagnosis depends on finding an increased number of white blood cells with a single nucleus and other blood tests. Although inflammation of the brain may occur in very severe cases, complete recovery is the rule.

Q—My nephew, 15, got glandular fever with swellings in his neck. Is this disease contagious?

A—The term, glandular fever, has been replaced by infectious mononucleosis. It has been called the kissing disease because it is spread by close contact. It is not very contagious as large-scale epidemics are very rare.

Q—What is Meekerson's syndrome? Is it serious? Can it be cured?

A—I assume you are referring to Melkerson's syndrome which is characterized by chronic swelling of the face and lips, facial paralysis and inflammation of the tongue. It usually has its onset in childhood or the early teens. The cause is not known. It is troublesome but not fatal. No effective treatment is known.

Q—What is Milpren given for? What are its side effects?

A—This is a combination of a mild tranquilizer and a female hormone. It is given chiefly to combat menopausal symptoms. Side effects are rare if the drug is taken in the prescribed dosage, but anyone who is taking it should check with her doctor every three or four months.

Q—What is meprobamate given for? Must I take it indefinitely?

A—This is a minor tranquilizer. Since it will not cure your anxieties it should be taken only as a stopgap while steps are taken to eliminate the cause of your trouble.

NATO Allies Renew Bids For Nuclear Sub Data

JOHN GOLDSMITH

ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON — The National Security Council has been wrestling anew with an old problem: what to do about requests for nuclear submarine technology from old and trusted friends in Europe?

So far, only Britain has had full U.S. assistance in a nuclear submarine program. Other NATO nations have been, and are, interested in strengthening their navies with nuclear submarines, but the United States has dragged its feet.

Now, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird says "some" European allies would like to get U. S. submarine technology in order to build nuclear attack submarines. Those are the subs which are designed to fight other subs.

Laird has advised congressional committees that "certain inquiries" are being reviewed by the National Security Council. It is, as always, a touchy question.

Led by Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, who has developed much of this country's nuclear submarine know-how, the Pentagon has long had a couple of serious reservations against broad sharing of the technology with NATO nations:

—Rickover and his aides assume that it would be all but impossible to give the submarine technology to some of our European allies while refusing it to others. That, in their eyes, would mean that the carefully guarded classified know-how would go to some nations whose security systems are far from spy-proof.

—Moreover, Rickover and his close-knit group of technicians feel that some NATO nations lack the basic nuclear know-how to mount a submarine program even with U.S. assistance. They have expressed concern that their own efforts would be channeled into development programs abroad, while U. S. technology suffered vis-a-vis the rapidly advancing Russians.

BILL KENNEDY SAYS:

Beware Russian Promises

By BILL KENNEDY

I don't like the idea of having any more secret agreements between the U. S. and the U.S.S.R. That is the way we lost Eastern Europe to the Communists — before, during or after fighting to free it from the Nazis.

Communist Russia has broken every agreement ever made with the West when she wanted to. Why our present crop of gliberal liberals think they can the Russia down with promises now (if they really do think it) is beyond me. No "agreement" with the Communists is any good; they break them all whenever breaking them may serve to Communist advantage.

But secret agreements are the worst of all.

If the press is not barred — or spoon-fed — at negotiating sessions between nations, then at least the Free World is partially informed about what is going on. Agreements made under the watchful eyes of a free republic are not nearly so apt to sell the people of said republic down the river — or across the Iron Curtain.

No one man, not even the President — and no closed group, especially not any in our State Department — should be permitted to sign secret agreements with Russia on any matter, much less the matter of armaments (or disarmaments — we may not find out which in time). It is something too vital to the survival of our country and indeed the entire world.

An armament agreement known and publicized throughout the world, with all people knowing its terms and with built-in mechanisms to detect violations, might do a data with respect to the original Nautilus was finally sent to Britain although there was congressional opposition.

In 1958 the Administration proposed an easing of the basic law on exchange of weapons data and certain weapons hardware. Leaders in the House and Senate sought to assure that the information would go only to Britain, which had a substantial nuclear energy program.

France was seeking submarine technology at that time, but congressional sentiment, as crystallized in the influential Senate-Atomic Energy Committee on Atomic Energy, was against any broad transfer program. In the end, Britain got a reactor for a submarine of the Skipjack type and later received more sophisticated data. France got nuclear fuel for a land-based reactor prototype.

In December 1962, at the end of the Nassau conference, President Kennedy appeared to offer, in ambiguous language, Polaris submarines to Britain and to France. Once again, the prospect of such a sharing with France raised the hackles in the joint congressional committee. There was no show-down, however, because General de Gaulle tartly rejected the offer.

AGAIN, THE GERMANS — There are good reasons why NATO nations may grow even more anxious to obtain the submarine technology from the United States. In the first place the Polaris concept, mobile defenses hidden underwater on nuclear submarines, now appears to be the wave of the future in strategic warfare.

There are other, more specific reasons, however. For example, the Dutch have a NATO nation which has long sought nuclear know-how. Holland is, of course, a major shipbuilding nation, and it has anti-submarine responsibilities to NATO which could be served by nuclear attack submarines.

There is also a new version of the old European concern that the Germans may be stealing a march on their neighbors. With help from Euratom, the West Germans have built a nuclear surface ship. Some European experts think its power plant is, in substance, a prototype plant for nuclear submarines.

Nixon To De-Crime Capitol

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon Monday pledged support for a proposed $12.5 million anticrime program for the nation's capital, where he said even congressmen who live only a few blocks away are afraid to walk home from the Capitol at night.

Washington Mayor Walter Washington outlined the program to Nixon at a White House meeting and told reporters afterward the city administration intended to meet the "cancerous crime problem." The mayor said Nixon "offered his full support."

The program, if approved by Congress, would increase the city's uniformed police force from 3,900 to 5,100 men by June 30, largely to combat an increase in armed robberies and narcotics violations.

Nixon said in his State of the Union speech Thursday that Washington should become a model for law enforcement for the country. He said, "I doubt if there are many members of this Congress who live more than a few blocks from here who dare leave their cars in the Capitol garage and walk home alone tonight."

The plan presented to Nixon today also is designed to increase treatment facilities for narcotics addicts and to help streamline the court system. Mayor Washington said more than 3,400 accused criminals were either in jail awaiting sentencing or were walking the streets on bond.

The mayor said the additional funds would be requested in supplemental budget requests to be sent to Congress within 10 days.

Crazy World Of Washington

By LEON BURNETT
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Odds and ends from the nation's capital—mostly odd:

Arthur L. Schawlow of Standard University was talking at the Smithsonian Institution about the laser, that marvelously powerful light beam he helped invent and which came on the public scene 10 years ago.

"Once we began to produce powerful beams like this, people began to get ideas that this was the old dream, the H. G. Wells-type death ray. There were many articles like the one which appeared in the Sunday papers a few years ago called 'the incredible laser.'

"On the first page it had an artist's drawing of some cannon-like devices shooting out beams of light and shooting down enemy—well I hope they are enemy—missiles. We liked this picture so much that my secretary had a copy made for the door of our laboratory.

"But we couldn't resist adding a subtitle 'For Credible Lasers See Inside.'"

At a background briefing by some top State Department officials, one reported that the United States and the Soviet Union had reached a rather peculiar diplomatic status on the Middle East.

"This is what we call constructive ambiguity," he said.

Another reported that during travels in Latin America, he discovered in one locale that the lady in charge of family planning programs was named Conception.

"She was married," he added, "so we couldn't call her Miss Conception."

John Frier of St. Louis sent in a critique of apparently everything he could think of involving the government, writing in part:

"The new National Geographic Building in Washington, D.C., has been so well insulated that heat from the warm bodies of the occupants plus that of the light when fed through a heat exchanger has been sufficient either to heat the building in cold weather or cool it when needed.

"If we could only harness the hot air and mullarky (sic) from Congress, maybe we could gradually reduce the national debt."

Rep. Lawrence J. Hogan, R-Md., has been in Congress only a year—but he's staying right in there in the newsletter sweepstakes.

One day's mail contained no fewer than seven separate ones from him, coming to 11 pages.

Jackie Declines Pat's Invitation

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis still is a member of a White House Preservation Committee which she created but has not attended a meeting since she left the White House.

This was told Monday when the White House said Mrs. Onassis had declined an invitation from Pat Nixon to attend a luncheon meeting of the committee Wednesday—the first that the First Lady has called. Mrs. Onassis' main project while first lady was restoring the White House to its colonial era elegance.

Her successor, Lady Bird Johnson and Mrs. Nixon, kept Mrs. Onassis on her committee but the White House said the widow of President John F. Kennedy has never attended a meeting since she left the White House.

Man Loses Family Of Five As Flames Engulf Modest Home

LOWELL, Mass. (UPI)—Barney Dussault couldn't support his family on the Army pension he received so to supplement the income he worked 15 hours a day, five and six days a week, driving a cab.

Barney Dussault, 44, was a man "to whom his family was his life," said Ralph Mosher, a dispatcher at the A & L Taxi Co. where Barney worked 4 p.m. to 7 a.m. "He was a real family man."

Barney has no family today. His wife and four children died in a pre-dawn fire Sunday at their modest home.

Dussault was driving his cab about 5 a.m. Sunday when Mosher received a call from one of Dussault's neighbors that "his house is on fire."

"I called Barney on the radio and told him to get right home," Mosher said. "I told him here was trouble at his house, that his house was on fire."

Mosher said Dussault was about a mile from his home when he received the call and he said "Thanks, I'm going right over."

According to police reports, when Dussault arrived the house was engulfed in flames. Firemen already had brought out the bodies of Dussault's wife, Gertrude, 38, and their four children, Gertrude, 12, Christian, 11, Elizabeth, 6 and Jenny, 22 months.

Fire Chief Walter Kane said probable cause of the blaze was a space heater. He asked the state fire marshal to investigate.

The mother and children were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. Dussault followed and was informed all were dead on arrival.

"Barney called me about 15 minutes later," Mosher said, "and all he could say was, 'I lost them all. They're all dead.'"

"He brought his cab back here about three hours after the fire," Mosher said. "We sat and talked. Barney didn't say much, and believe me, I couldn't think of a hell of a lot to say either. We just talked, me mostly listening to all the things he said about what a swell family he had."

"Then Barney said he was going to the home of some relatives. We shook hands and he left," Mosher said.

A & L employees have begun a collection for Dussault and the city's two other major taxi companies, Diamond-Yellow Cab and City Cab, have offered to join.

"All the guys are pretty shook up about this," Mosher said. Barney was a nice guy. Everybody liked him."

Attractive Widow Unloads Art Treasures On California Museum

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Tullah Hanley is an attractive widow with form as fair and language as colorful as the $3 million worth of art objects she is giving to San Francisco.

And she's not a bit bashful about either her form or her language.

"I'm part of the exhibit," said the former exotic dancer, as she watched 210 treasures being uncrated Sunday at the De Young museum. "I am a unique and original piece of the Edward Hanley collection."

Tullah did seminoide Egyptian interpretive dancing in Europe and the United States until 21 years ago, when she met and married Hanley, a millionaire who died in April at the age of 75.

The 46-year-old Hungarian-born beauty still likes to wear "nothing, baby, nothing" beneath her Pucci gowns.

fortune in art, which has been hanging in their Bradford, Pa., home.

She gave part of the collection—including works by Gauguin, Matisse, Manet, Boucher and Renoir—to San Francisco because "everybody here has treated me so marvelously, without anybody knowing there could be a gift."

She said another portion of the collection will go to Denver for similar reasons.

Tullah recently prompted these reports from club owners and society types to a local columnist:

"Tullah came to my party last night. She arrived topless, wearing a dress about seven inches long—under a mink coat, of course. She turned everybody on."

"You should have seen Tullah over at the Oakland Museum. The young people, and then, oh my!"

Drafted College Students Are Entitled To Day In Court

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court declared Monday that college students who lose their deferments and are ordered into service as draft delinquents are entitled to fight the action in the courts prior to induction.

The unanimous, 8-0 ruling repudiated an argument by Attorney General John N. Mitchell that war protesters and others could not challenge their reclassification before being summoned into the service.

The law has given the ordinary draftee no recourse but to refuse induction and subject himself to criminal prosecution or to submit and try to get out of uniform afterward through a habeas corpus proceeding.

But today's majority opinion by Justice Hugo L. Black held that college students who lose their deferred status by action of a draft board can challenge the reclassification by a civil suit.

The ruling came in a case involving Timothy J. Breen of Bridgeport, Conn., an undergraduate at the Berkeley School of Music in Boston. He was declared a delinquent and classified 1A after he handed in his draft card at a Vietnam protest meeting.

In other actions, the court: Rejected without comment a move by Gov. Claude R. Kirk Jr., of Florida to delay the court-ordered Feb. 1 deadline for school desegregation ordered in 14 school districts in Florida and four other Southern states. Kirk had sought reconsideration of the deadline order.

Ruled against a group of Negroes who sought to prevent closing of a once all-white public park in Macon, Ga. The park had been willed to the city by a former Confederate soldier on condition it be segregated. The Supreme Court ruled previously that the city could not maintain the park on a segregated basis and city authorities moved to return the land to the heirs of the donor. The Negro plaintiffs sought to block the move but lost their appeal in today's decision.

In the draft case, Mitchell had submitted the government's arguments to the court after Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold refused to sign the brief.

Justice Black held however that the court found no indication in the law that "Congress intended to allow the draft boards to deprive otherwise qualified students of their deferments for the reasons relied upon."

The court acknowledged that the law prohibits prior court challenges for ordinary inductions to prevent the draft machinery from being snarled by a deluge of individual court suits.

But it cited a ruling of last term which protected the deferment status involving a divinity student.
