

Third Man Named For Court Seat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Turning as promised to the North for a "strict constructionist," President Nixon has picked U.S. Circuit Court Judge Harry A. Blackmun of Minnesota as his third choice for the Supreme Court seat he has had so much trouble filling.

Blackmun, 61, known here as a civil rights moderate but a stickler on law and order, is a close friend and boyhood companion of Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, also a Minnesotan. His selection had been rumored since Friday.

Those senators willing to comment did so tentatively but favorably. None said an unkind word about him.

The White House said Nixon made his choice at 10 a.m. EST Tuesday after having met for 45 minutes Friday with Blackmun and Attorney General John N. Mitchell.

Meeting After Rejection — The meeting came two days after the Senate's rejection of G. Harrold Carswell and one day after Nixon, in a statement that rocked the Senate, said he was convinced the Senate "as presently constituted" would not confirm a "strict constructionist" from the South.

Some senators saw his statement as political, some as simply angry, some as a combination of both.

In White House parlance, a "strict constructionist" describes a judge who is unwilling to impose his own views of how society should behave in determining how the Constitution requires it to behave.

Blackmun himself said he had been called "both a liberal and a conservative."

"I've tried to call them as I've seen them," he said in St. Louis and described himself as "overwhelmed" by his selection.

In his 11 years on the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, sitting in Minneapolis, Blackmun earned a reputation as a (See THIRD, Page 2)

Electoral Procedure Under Study

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Judiciary Committee summoned presidential campaign chronicler Theodore H. White and Yale Law School Professor Alexander M. Bickel to testify today in opposition to direct popular election of the president.

The committee is under an April 24 deadline to vote on sending to the Senate floor a proposed constitutional amendment eliminating the Electoral College.

The amendment, sponsored by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., has passed the House. It provides that the presidential candidate receiving the most votes nationwide wins the election, if he gets at least 40 per cent of the total vote cast. If no candidate received that percentage, there would be a runoff election between the two highest.

Bayh forced a vote in the committee on the amendment by tying it to a vote on the Supreme Court nomination of G. Harrold Carswell, Southern Democrats on the committee, including Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., the chairman, generally are opposed to direct elections. But to get the Carswell nomination onto the Senate floor they agreed to a vote on electoral reform.

Both White and Bickel have written extensively against direct elections. White, who wrote three "Making of the President" books, has cited the danger of election frauds. Bickel fears direct elections would weaken the power of minority groups in large states where they frequently provide the margin of victory.

In his call for new hearings, Eastland said that since House passage of the amendment, "many political analysts have noted the political instability in many countries of the world which could result here from proliferation of political parties under the direct election plan."

Conserving Critical Life-Giving Supplies

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Apollo 13's astronauts rose their stricken spaceship into the welcome grasp of earth's gravity today with most systems idling to conserve life-sustaining oxygen, water and power for two more long days in the emptiness of space.

The prayers of millions went out to James A. Lovell, John L. Swigert and Fred W. Haise for a safe splashdown at 12:54 p.m. EST Friday about 600 miles southeast of Pago Pago in the South Pacific. They should be back home in Houston Saturday.

Apollo 13 left the dominance of the moon's gravity and felt the earth's influence at 8:38 a.m. EST. It was 208,027 miles from earth and 38,894 miles from the moon at the time.

The big rocket engine that would have lowered them into a valley on the moon tonight was fired Tuesday night after Apollo 13 swung around the moon. The blast hastened the pilot's return and aimed them toward an awaiting recovery force.

The supply of water, oxygen and electrical power was carefully rationed, but Flight Director Eugene Kranz said there was a more than adequate supply to get the astronauts home.

LM In Excellent Shape

"I think the LM spacecraft is in excellent shape and fully capable of getting the crew back," Kranz said.

The astronauts were looking ahead toward splashdown, well aware it will be preceded by a tougher-than-normal return into earth's atmosphere. The pilots must jettison their ruptured service module and the trusty lunar module that saved their lives, and dive into the atmospheric blanket in the cone-shaped command module.

Weathermen kept an eye on tropical storm Helen in the South Pacific, but the latest forecasts were that it would be 600 miles south of the splashdown site Friday. Five-foot seas were forecast with scattered clouds.

"That all sounds pretty good," Haise said.

The top stage of the Saturn rocket that pushed them toward the moon Saturday smashed into the moon as scheduled Tuesday night. Controllers told the pilots, "It's rocking the moon a little bit."

"Something Worked"

"Well, at least something worked on this flight," Lovell said with a bitter laugh.

The cause of the explosion that ruined the nation's third attempt to land on the moon was still a mystery. But Flight Director Glynn Lunney indicated that he thought it probably resulted from a ruptured oxygen tank in the aft service section of the Odyssey.

Whatever the cause, the explosion was a major setback. (See APOLLO, Page 2)

IN VIENNA

Caution Ordered In Talks With Soviets

VIENNA (UPI) — Diplomatic sources said today President Nixon has ordered a flexible but cautious line in the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) with the Soviets opening Thursday.

The President told U.S. negotiators to make a determined effort to reach agreement with the Soviets without endangering American security, the sources said.

Diplomats from both sides have termed the talks among the most important and decisive in modern arms control efforts. They follow encouraging explorations by the two powers in Helsinki last November and December.

Though both the United States and Russia expressed their willingness to talk business, neither left any doubt that the task ahead was difficult and complex.

The chief U.S. negotiator, Gerald C. Smith, said on his arrival Tuesday "The United States will do all it can to assure progress in the talks."

Vladimir S. Semenov, the Soviet delegate, pledged his side would take a "business like and constructive attitude."

Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev announced in a speech Tuesday that Russia would welcome "a reasonable agreement" on limiting strategic arms, but he firmly ruled out any agreement that would allow U.S. military superiority.

Among the most important immediate problems is the issue of antiballistic missiles (ABM). Defense experts believe that American ABMs could, if widely deployed, become as great a threat to the Soviet deterrent as the new Soviet multi-headed SS9 rockets could be to the U.S. deterrent.

Senate Would Limit Spending On Campaigns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has voted to limit the spending for political campaign radio-TV commercials. Republicans protested the bill would help incumbents in general and Democrats in particular.

The bill passed 38 to 27 Tuesday, also would repeal the "equal time" requirement for presidential and vice presidential candidates. If passed by the House and signed by President Nixon, it would enable presidential candidates to appear on television free in 1972 for the first time since the Kennedy-Nixon debates of 1960.

Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., chairman of the Senate commerce subcommittee on communications, said the networks promised several half-hour slots for the 1972 Democratic and Republican candidates plus any major third party entrant like George C. Wallace. Each candidate would choose his own program format. Pastore said

Legal Maneuvering Ensnarls Kopechne Inquest Documents

BOSTON (UPI) — Secret documents from the Mary Jo Kopechne inquest, which were to be released to the public today, may become ensnared in months of legal maneuvering, authoritative sources said today.

The latest roadblock to airing the testimony of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, in whose car Miss Kopechne died last summer, and others at the inquest involves a dispute over who has the right to reproduce and sell copies of the 764-page transcript because that is his livelihood. Lipman and his staff received only expenses from the Edgartown District Court, and it was agreed with District Attorney Edmund S. Dinis, who sought the inquest, that Lipman would be able to sell the transcript.

Caffrey's ruling on the case, if unfavorable to Lipman, would not mean the long-awaited transcript would be made public. Sources said the stenographer plans to fight the case up to the U.S. Supreme Court, Caffrey issued the order at

PRIMARY 18 DAYS AWAY

Jury Resumes Probe Into Heatly Matter

By MIKE WESTER

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — A federal grand jury resumes its probe today into charges economic pressure was applied to two men challenging state Rep. W. S. "Bill" Heatly, D-Paducah, for his seat in the Legislature.

Heatly's two opponents, Democrat Leon Williams of Quanah and Republican Zack Fisher of Memphis, said they suffered political and economic pressure shortly after they announced their plans to run against Heatly.

U.S. Attorney Eldon Mahon said he did not know how many witnesses would testify today, but that he thought the investigation could be finished "in one or two more days."

The May 2 Democratic primary is only 18 days away.

Mahon refused to comment on whether his office would ask for one or more indictments from the grand jury.

"We have not yet heard anything from Mr. Heatly, and therefore I do not know if he will go before the panel or not," Mahon said. "I'm sure the jury would be interested in hearing anything he might have to say."

Fines and Prison Terms

A federal law passed in 1968 makes it illegal for anyone to intimidate or interfere with another's right to qualify or run for public office. Convictions could bring fines of $1,000 and prison terms of one year.

Heatly, who testified at an earlier grand jury hearing in San Antonio, has not been subpoenaed by the Lubbock panel.

Little Time for Voters

If the grand jury returns indictments it will leave very little time for voters in the nine-county district to decide about the May 2 primary.

This year is the first time Heatly has faced an opponent in both elections and the first time since 1964 he has had any opponents at all.

Williams said right after he announced his candidacy he was fired as manager of the Quanah Chamber of Commerce and his wife Gail was fired as Hardean County home demonstration agent. Fisher said his association with four of six loan officers of the Memphis First National Bank was terminated after he announced.

As chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Heatly is one of the most powerful men in the statehouse.

When the investigation recessed March 20 Mahon and his assistant Frank McCown said they were about half finished with the investigation. They predicted another three or four days and at least 10 witnesses would be needed before the investigation was complete.

But McCown later said, "We covered more ground during the first week of our investigation than we had anticipated." He said another 10 witnesses would not be needed.

"With additional time to study and to review the transcript the evidence already gathered and to review the transcript presented us by the San Antonio jury, we have been able to determine that we covered much more ground than we first thought," McCown said. "We now think the investigation will be completed within 48 hours."

The Lubbock jury has heard from 12 witnesses, including Williams and Fisher.

Cancer Drive Nets Nearly $5,000

Members of Gray County's unit of the American Cancer Society collected $4,740 in their house-to-house crusade Tuesday night.

Mrs. Jim Terry, crusade chairman, said the amount was $150 more than last year's total and more donations are expected over the next few days.

Mrs. Terry said she expects late donations to total around $250.

The funds, collected by more than 600 volunteers, will be used for cancer research.

Apollo 13 Plight Of Little Concern To Some Pampans

By BEN KECK
 News Staff Writer

The very idea that tax dollars are being wasted because "something went wrong" with Apollo 13 might bother some people, but not Pampans interviewed late Tuesday.

Those Pampans were seemingly unconcerned with the millions of dollars put into the aborted moon landing — while three men are in the vastness of outer space not knowing for sure if they have enough water and oxygen to last them until they get back to Earth.

In fact, they didn't seem too concerned the Apollo crew might not make it home.

In a random survey made Tuesday afternoon by this reporter, these results were compiled:

None of the 25 persons interviewed showed any indication of thinking the explosion that cut off power and oxygen in the command capsule and forced the spacemen to move into the lunar module was a great tragedy.

"They've always made it back before," said one high school girl in a telephone interview.

They have always made it back, but never before has an expedition into outer space been so ill-fated.

Apollo 13 was delayed for more than a month because of an ordered cutback in spending. Only a week before the launch date the astronauts were exposed to German measles, the result being one member of the original crew grounded and a substitute readied for the flight.

On the morning of the launch, the rocket suffered temporary power failure. Then, late Monday night, the mysterious explosion occurred.

"Maybe we've just played around with this thing too long," said one man on Cuyler street. He expressed the opinion of many other persons interviewed.

A young male office worker expressed this opinion: "All I can say is, they will make it if God is willing. If they don't, well, it proves we still have to learn there are factors beyond our control."

"If the Lord has meant for us to be on the moon, he'd have put us there," one elderly lady said.

And so went the sentiments of Pampa — vague and seemingly unconcerned — until the News' reporter talked with one man — sporting a stubby beard and shabby clothes. He gave an indication he might be concerned later.

"What's to think about it?" he said. "Nothing's happened to them yet."

Dear Abby
 By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I think the world has gone mad with fashions for men. It's bad enough that men are now sporting velvet and ruffles and crazy color combinations in shirts and ties. But how about those skin-tight pants, Abby? The pants are so tight they are made without pockets.

Where is a man supposed to carry his wallet, keys, handkerchief and pocket comb?

WONDERING
 DEAR WONDERING: In his purse, silly!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in our early 60's and have had a very happy marriage, but now my doctor tells me that I have an incurable disease and will soon be a helpless invalid, and I'll probably linger on for years as a "vegetable." No good to my husband, or anyone else.

My husband is healthy, handsome, and virile, and I haven't had the heart to tell him the awful news that he is tied to a doomed wife who will bring him nothing but misery and anguish for the next few years.

I love my husband too much to ruin his life this way, and am seriously considering getting a divorce and setting him free to seek new happiness with someone who can be a real wife to him.

What should I do, Abby? I would also welcome suggestions from your readers — especially the men. Thank you, all.

DEAR I.M.: Ask your doctor to tell your husband, in your presence, what he has told you about your condition. Then do not try to second-guess your husband's reactions, or blueprint his future, however well-intentioned. You won't "ruin" your husband's life — you may enrich it. Because, after a long and happy marriage, he may want to put more into that marriage now than he ever has before.

Now, ask yourself this: "If your husband were dying, would you permit him to divorce you in order that you could seek happiness with another man?" I doubt it.

DEAR ABBY: Ten years ago, when we were married, we decided to have four children. Through the years we were blessed with three healthy sons, and on sharing in the happiness of dear friends who had adopted an infant, an idea grew in our minds.

Since it is true that so many babies are born out of wedlock, and the world population is increasing so rapidly, why should we bring still another child into the world when there are so many children who desperately need the love and care of a family — truly the right of all children?

We made an appointment with a licensed adoption agency in our state. All we needed was a medical checkup, showing us to be physically fit, three character references and a letter stating our religion. (In this state, the adoptive parents must be the same religion as the baby's natural mother.)

We were interviewed both at home and at the agency and within two months we had a beautiful, healthy, alert 6 months old daughter!

Please pass this on to others, Abby. I think "natural motherhood" is vastly overrated.

Women Change Shopping Habits

COLUMBUS, O. (UPI) — An America without supermarkets?

"Housewives' shopping patterns are changing," Gerald Collings, a research economist at Battelle, told UPI. "They want more convenient, quicker leisure time."

Collings said a preliminary study of consumer food shopping habits by Battelle showed a definite trend away from supermarket buying. Conversely, the study showed an increase in catalog sales, telephone ordering and home deliveries.

The supermarket came into being to give the housewife a vast array of goods from which to choose, he said. But this no longer is necessary.

The acceptance in recent years of proven-quality brand names and labels makes home delivery workable, not only of staple goods, but meats, vegetables, pastries and other groceries as well, he said.

"If she knows the canned soup, cube steak, or cream pie she orders this time will be the same as the one she bought a week ago, the housewife doesn't need to see it before she buys it," Collings said.

Consider the Spoon

The very first craftsmen of silverware were the ancient Greeks, who knew a good thing when they saw it! Long before that time, however, our cave-dwelling ancestors used shells to scoop up food.

Almost every conceivable material has gone into the making of spoons of all sizes and shapes. American Indians, for instance, used the materials at hand to make this 11th century clay ladle.

In southern Alaska, hollowed-out wooden spoons were decorated in abstract designs that seem to reflect today's contemporary art.

Natives of the Admiralty Islands made spoons of horns. This one had a handle 18 inches long!

It's been a long step in time from the primitive shell to the lovely and lasting sterling silver spoon of today. Of all materials, solid silver is by far the most beautiful and durable — the rightful heir to centuries of evolution in spoon-making.

Children's Cartoons Rate As PTA Study

NEWTON, Mass. (UPI) — It thought it was time for action all started with a PTA meeting on the matter and they when the subject of television organized—Action for Children's Television (ACT). They proposed that all commercials be banned on children's shows and that all television stations be required to carry at least 14 hours of children's programs weekly.

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC), in an unprecedented step, asked for public comment on the suggestion and will meet after the April 15 deadline to decide whether to propose regulations.

"There's hope they'll move on to the proposal stage, but it's not certain," said Mrs. Christopher (Evelyn) Sarson, 32, president of ACT and one of the four young mothers who founded it in January, 1968.

Act began with an informal PTA meeting at the Newton home of one of the four, Mrs. Stanley (Peggy) Charren, mother of two.

"We started by talking about horror cartoons," said Mrs. Sarson. "There were over a dozen of us."

"Six months later we were down to four and we became the executive committee."

The group now claims 2,000 members at $3 each in "almost every state," Mrs. Sarson said. There are some business firm grants and applications are in for two foundation grants. The Ford Foundation denied a request for funds.

The broadcasters claim ACT's no-commercial idea would threaten the quality of what children's shows there are because production costs would be too high to be borne by the stations.

POLLY'S POINTERS
 Mother Offers Pointers On Training Children

DEAR POLLY — The complaints from many mothers about how messy their children are often are not the children's fault but the mothers'. The following Pointers have been of great help to me. We keep building blocks in colorful wastebaskets and, believe it or not, they seldom end up in the wrong places. My husband made small book racks for their many little story books and they love putting the books back on these shelves because daddy made them. I drive nails or hooks inside their closets, within easy reach, for their belts, caps, jackets and toys with pull strings. Both children have wastebaskets which they have been taught to use in their rooms. Let them put away the laundry and in no time they will learn where all clothes should go. Each child has a clothes hamper or bag—hang a bag where it can be reached and see that the soiled clothes are put in it.

Make the child's room important. Many mothers just treat them as places set apart because of the untidy appearance so why should Junior feel any different about it. Put toys away no matter where they are used. Mine keep things out as long as they want to play with them but they know nothing else can be brought out until the first things are put away. Mom's attitude is most important — our children are what we make them.

We must give our children a chance to use their own minds and imagination. Mine have more fun with a flat box and a rope than with a shiny new red wagon. Small boxes become trains, building blocks, etc. For the past half-hour they have been building with clothespins, a few drinking straws and some popsicle sticks. They are having a ball. As a treat they play with my plastic fruit and flowers and make their own

Political Club For Women Plans Special Speaker

Dr. Robert Morris, Republican candidate for Texas United States senator, will be guest speaker for the Top of Texas Republican Women's Club meeting at 9:45 a.m. Friday in the Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room.

Other guests for the "Meet Your Candidate" program will be Pampa's Republican candidates for office, according to Mrs. Scott Nisbet, club program chairman.

Dr. Morris is president of the University of Plano, and will go on a campaign tour in the Panhandle. He also plans to speak at a breakfast in Panhandle Friday morning before the women's club meeting here. He was a candidate in the 1964 Republican primary and is an editorial writer and columnist on domestic and foreign affairs for 300 United States newspapers. Mrs. David Pitcher, club president, said.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Temple University doctors worked four hours Sunday night to sew back the foot of a teenage boy injured when he was struck by a train.

Joseph Hines, 14, fell in front of a freight train Sunday while playing on the Reading Co. tracks in North Philadelphia.

Dr. Robert Beilen led the surgical team which sewed the foot. He said there was a "very slight" chance the foot could be saved.

Increasing Hospital Expenses May Keep People At Home More

AUSTIN (UPI) — A Florida physician told a governor's conference Monday hospital costs will continue to rise, and the only way to keep the increase in bounds is for people to go the hospital less often.

Dr. H. Phillip Hampton of Tampa, Fla., said as hospitals are required to pay their workers more the costs will keep rising.

But he suggested that total hospital care expenditures "can and should be diminished" by hospitalizing people only when there is no reasonable alternative.

Hampton was a speaker at the two-day conference called by Gov. Preston Smith to seek ways to reduce the costs of health care. Smith told the conference the problem for rising health costs is "threatening our pocketbooks."

Hampton said money spent on health care has increased by $5 billion a year since 1965. He said the increases were caused by population increases, general inflation, medical inflation and more accessible facilities, more older people, new services and the fact that people use hospitals more often.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The announcement that James Garner will appear in a one-hour prime-time series for NBC-TV in the 1971-72 season is a symbolic one for television.

For it was out of television, specifically, ABC-TV's satirical Western series, "Maverick" — that Garner came to become a movie star.

And now he is returning to the home tube, along with others who left for the movies, and also along with some big motion picture names who once felt it was a status (and financial) comedown to appear on video.

But the tide definitely has turned. Many film stars see not only greater security in a long-run television series as opposed to the uncertain condition of the movie industry, but also know the value of one-shot specials as video heads for new, profitable forms, including pay-TV and cassettes.

Thus we see that Dean Martin has contractually hitched his career to television for the long haul, using the home tube as his real home base.

Tony Curtis, too, has made the move to video, for in 1971 he will appear in a weekly ABC-TV one-hour series with Roger (The Saint) Moore. Their show, "The Friendly Persuaders," will be a light adventure series about a couple of fellows who try to bring justice to those bad guys who have escaped it.

Stewart Granger is another example. Next season he will start as a regular on NBC-TV's "The Virginian." Don Knotts, who left television and had success in movies, is coming back in the fall to NBC-TV, as far as a variety series. Tony Randall also will turn up in the fall as a star of ABC-TV's "The Odd Couple" series.

Shirley Jones, who succeeded in movies, will be on hand come September in a new ABC-TV situation comedy, "The Partridge Family," as a mother who travels with her children's rock 'n' roll group.

Hal Hoibrock, whose stage and television versions of his one-man show about Mark Twain brought him stardom, will be a regular in NBC-TV's "The Bold Ones" as an altruistic politician.

And, as a capper, Elizabeth Taylor is scheduled to make her dramatic debut on television in an NBC-TV special next season. In fact, a trade paper reported from London the other day that Miss Taylor, her husband Richard Burton and actor Stanley Baker are forming a company to produce television dramas "in which one or more of the trio would appear."

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Because his two most recent Supreme Court nominees were Southerners, some people are saying that President Nixon is discriminating against the South.

A White House aide with whom I discussed this matter assured me, however, that the President has no regional bias of any kind.

"Being a great humanitarian, the President naturally is distressed when he has to put someone through the ordeal of a Supreme Court nomination," the aide said.

"But this is one of those unpleasant duties that is imposed upon him by the Constitution, so he has no choice in the matter. Furthermore, he is not asking the nominees to do something he wouldn't be willing to do himself."

"The President would gladly spare others the rigors of a nomination and appoint himself to the post if that were constitutionally possible."

Tries To Be Even-handed

The aide went on to say that "somebody's gotta do it" (he nominated to the Supreme Court) and that Nixon was striving to be as even-handed as possible in choosing the nominees.

Since the South was called upon to provide the two most recent nominees, the blow will fall upon another region next time, the aide said.

"I'm sure that Nixon does try to be fair in making these agonizing decisions. But it seems to me too much for him to have to carry the responsibility alone."

I think that we should have a national Selective Justice System. It would work something like this:

All students entering law school would be required to register and would be assigned numbers which would be placed on capsules at Selective Justice headquarters.

Classified And Reclassified

The students then would be classified IS and would be given deferments until their graduation. Upon passing the bar exam, they would be reclassified and would become liable for Supreme Court nomination should their number be drawn.

That definitely would be the most equitable method of obtaining nominees. But even it would be far from perfect.

Although the danger of his actually being nominated would be small, a lawyer would have that threat hanging over his head and the uncertainty could interfere with his plans for marriage and a career.

The ideal arrangement, of course, would be to have an all-volunteer Supreme Court. But as long as the nominees come under fire in the U.S. Senate, there is no chance of getting an adequate number of volunteers.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — A bull market should start again sometime this year, prodded by a continuing easing of money, king-sized wage boosts, the Dines Letter predicts. What all renewed fear of inflation, and this means is that "we will have to learn to accept inflation as a way of life," the firm said.

TPO Inc. finds a more cautious attitude developing among investors as the excitement over the commercial bank prime rate cut fades into the background. While most equities appear to offer little technical over the near term, select performers have maintained basic uptrends, the firm says.

Spear and Staff, Inc. sees "ominous overtones" in recent light trading that it believes has to break out into either a substantial rally or a sharp decline. The firm observes that the surcharge on commissions on securities transactions comes at a time when the average investor "is anything but enthralled with the idea of trading up, down, or sideways."

NOW--hot water

Roughing it is OK, but even the hardy outdoorsmen will agree a cold shower is a little too much. This is why the Oklahoma Industrial Development & Park Department has a continuing program of installing more hot water facilities in parks and recreation areas. In preparation for the summer camping season, 63 additional water heaters have been installed in 28 recreation areas increasing the total hot water capacity by 5,166 gallons.

NOW--electricity

Now you can take your toaster to 300 more Oklahoma campsites. The OI&PD recently completed installation of 300 additional electrical outlet facilities. There are now 1200 electrical outlets in Oklahoma's 23 parks and 22 recreation areas. Another reason more and more campers are making Oklahoma their home away from home... Oklahoma is one of the few states still offering free camping facilities. For a brochure on things to do and see in Oklahoma write Director, Tourist Information Div., 500 Will Rogers Bldg., Okla. Rebels Rip Pampa

By DAN PACKARD
Sports Editor

AMARILLO — Pampa suffered its third defeat of the District 4-AAAA baseball season here Tuesday at the hands of the Tascosa Rebels, who pooted 10 hits for a 9-2 victory on wind-swept Rebel Field.

The loss dropped the Harvesters to 3-3 in loop action while Tascosa advanced to 4-4.

Coach Buddy Williams inserted three Pampa hurlers in an effort to halt the Tascosa offensive. Doug Thompson (3-1) started the contest and gave up four runs, three hits and four free passes before Mike Edgar, who performed brilliantly in relief against Palo Duro Monday, came on in the second. Edgar allowed five runs and an equal number of hits before turning over the chores over to Clifford Gage in the fifth. Gage kept the Rebels hitless in their final two at-bats.

Tall right-handed Gary Bogan went the distance for Tascosa, allowing only six well-scattered hits and striking out 10. Bogan's record is now 6-3 for the season.

Harvester right fielder John Jenkins scored the first run of the contest with a towering shot over the left field fence to lead off the second inning and scored Pampa's final tally in the fourth on Tommy Hawkins' sacrifice fly to center field. Jenkins wound up in scoring position as he walked, stole second and scooted to third when a bad throw from the catcher sailed into center field.

After Jenkins scored the second Pampa run, the Harvesters did not manage to move another runner as far as third base and could plant only two on second.

The Rebels, however, had no problems at all in providing baserunners or base hits. A single by David Herber, a double by Rex Hoving, and Tim Curtis' single, followed by a Pampa mixup that found nobody on second base to catch a peg from catcher Wyatt Earp, accounted for four Tascosa runs in the second inning. Tascosa sent 10 hitters to the plate during that explosive frame.

Coach Johnny Lowry's club came out strong in the third also, scoring three runs on three hits to take a 7-1 advantage.

Hoving's in-side the park homer in the fourth brought in the last two Rebel runs as Herber scored from first and Hoving himself came in when Pampa left fielder Jerry Lindsey had trouble picking up the ball as it bounced off the fence.

Hoving paced the Rebels at the plate with three safeties during four times at bat with a double, a single and a homer. Hawkins and Dan Hood each collected two hits for Pampa.

The Harvesters, who stole 10 bases during Monday's 6-2 conquest of Palo Duro, robbed only two from Tascosa.

Two crucial road games face the Harvesters Friday and Saturday. Lubbock will play host Friday and Lubbock Monterey will entertain Pampa Saturday afternoon.

In other district battles Tuesday league-leading Monterey beat Plainview, 4-2. Coronado downed Lubbock, 10-0. Borger clipped Palo Duro, 5-0 and Amarillo High walloped Caprock, 14-3.

Shaving Strokes

by Frank Beard

10—Aim For Smoothness

Until you have played a few rounds, you will feel stiff, even if you warm up before a round. The inevitable result is that you will try to offset this stiffness by swinging harder. The green on that 350-yard par-5 looks to be eight miles away, and you're determined to reach it in regulation figures.

Fight off the impulse to swing harder. Be acutely aware that it will be a problem to control your swing early in the season.

With your driver, especially, remind yourself each time you pull it out of your bag that you are going to swing fluidly and well within your power. Never mind that you may lose 15 yards and Joe will outdrive you if he catches one just right.

With every shot except the driver, I will deliberately go up on club early in the season and swing as smoothly as I can.

Unanimous Vote Picks Alcindor Rookie Of Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lew Alcindor got a small bit of consolation after one of the most frustrating nights of his life on a basketball court.

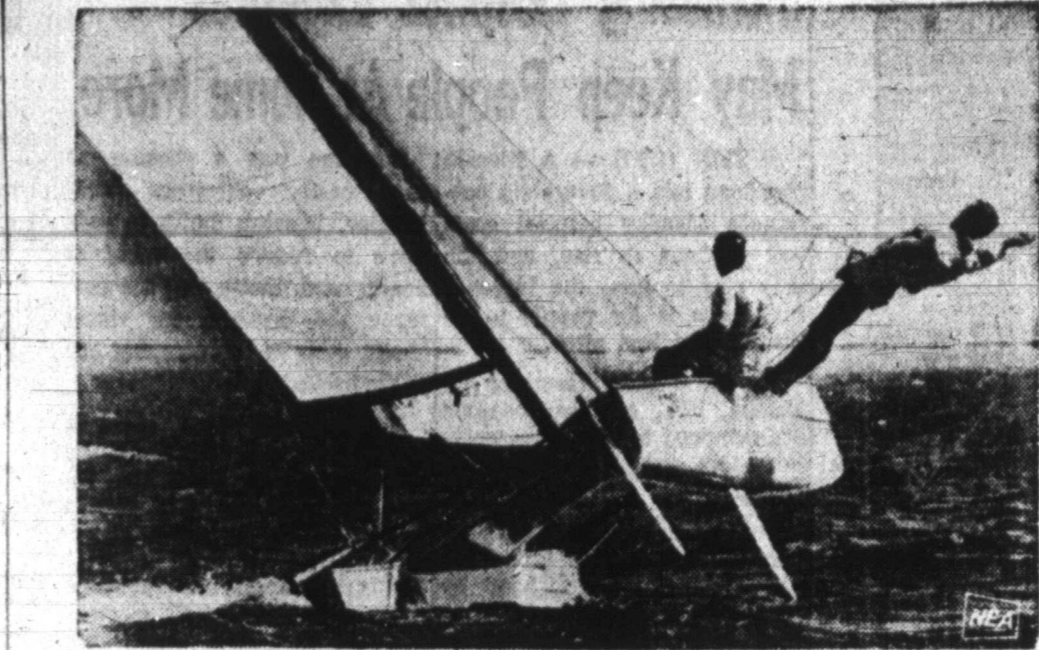

Alcindor, who missed two free throws in the final minute of his team's 112-111 playoff loss to the New York Knicks Monday night, was named Tuesday as the National Basketball Association Rookie of the Year by a unanimous vote.

The 7-foot-2 center will receive a check for $500 for the award.

Alcindor scored 28.8 points a game in his rookie season in the NBA to finish second behind Jerry West of Los Angeles. He also pulled down 1,190 rebounds for a 14.5 average that was third in the NBA. Alcindor also led NBA centers in assists with 337.

But Alcindor's biggest contribution was taking Milwaukee from a last-place club into one that posted the best record in the league over the last 50 games of the season.

Alcindor, though, may be on the verge of ending the season as a loser for the first time in his life in the playoffs against New York. The Bucks are trailing 2-0 in the best-of-seven series.

Giants Rally To Claim 15-11 Win Over Braves

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

It was this kind of game: One player got a single and was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the same inning.

That was just one of the unusual developments in a marathon at Atlanta Tuesday night when the San Francisco Giants spotted the Braves an 8-0 lead and came back to win, 15-11.

Braves' Manager Luman Harris brought in Larry Jaster to face Willie McCovey in the eighth after Hoyt Wilhelm, walked Ken Henderson, McCovey hit a two-run homer to tie the game, 11-11. In the ninth, Harris brought in Milt Pappas to face Henderson after Gary Neibauer walked the first three batters. Henderson, who had three singles and two walks, hit a grand slam to win the game.

Giant pitcher Frank Reberger led off the fourth inning with his club trailing, 10-5, and singled. That touched off a four-run rally and rather quickly, Reberger was due to bat with the bases loaded and two out with the Giants trailing only 10-9.

But Reberger's earlier single wasn't considered by Manager Clyde King, who called on pinch-hitter Bob Taylor. Naturally, Taylor hit into a force to end the inning.

Frank Linzy and Don McMahon held the Braves to three hits over the last six innings and the Giants eventually caught up.

In other National League games, Pittsburgh edged New York, 6-4, in 10 innings. Chicago beat Philadelphia, 5-4. Cincinnati drubbed San Diego, 6-1. Los Angeles edged Houston, 3-2, and St. Louis nipped Montreal, 6-5, in 10 innings.

In the American League, Boston beat New York, 5-3. Detroit routed Cleveland, 12-4. Oakland blasted Milwaukee, 9-1, and Chicago beat California, 3-1. Washington-Baltimore was rained out and Kansas City, Minnesota was snowed out.

The Mets' return to Shea Stadium as world champions before 41,679 fans wasn't a triumphant one. It was rainy, dreary day and the Mets twice lost the lead before bowing in the 10th to Pittsburgh. Eob Robertson tied the game in the ninth with a homer and Matty Alou singled in the deciding run in the 10th after a wild throw by reliever Tug McGraw.

Solo homers by Tony Perez and Johnny Bench in the fourth inning and Bobby Tolan's grand slam in the seventh gave Cincinnati its victory over San Diego.

Willie Crawford hit a solo homer in the fourth and Jim Brewer pitched three innings of hitless relief ball to preserve Alan Foster's win as Los Angeles downed Houston.

Johnny Callison doubled home two runs in his first Wrigley Field at-bat as a member of the Cubs and Chicago survived a four-run ninth inning by Philadelphia to beat the Phils. The Cubs drew a sellout crowd of 36,316 fans who were ready to forget last year's collapse.

Aggies Ahead In SWC

By United Press International

Southern Methodist center fielder Jim Lincks turned the game around in the ninth inning Tuesday by tagging a three-run home run off Baylor pitcher Bill Duncan. SMU won 4-3, only their second win in 22 starts this season.

The Mustangs remain in the Southwest Conference cellar with a 2-10 league record. Baylor remains in sixth place with a 15-13 season record, 3-6 in SWC play.

At College Station the league-leading Texas Aggies kept their conference record virgin-pure by beating Rice 4-2. Cris Sans drove in two runs and Bruce Katt pitched a three-hitter for A&M, whose SWC record now stands 9-0.

Singles by Sans and Boyd Hadaway drove in two runs in the bottom of the first to give the Aggies a quick lead. Another single by Sans drove in a run in the sixth.

Dave Elmendorf tripled and came home in the eighth on a sacrifice fly by Billy Hodge for A&M's insurance run.

Until Lincks' dramatics in the ninth, it looked as if Baylor had the game locked away. The Bears opened scoring with two runs in the fourth inning and added another in the sixth on Lloyd Bathrop's solo homer.

SMU scored a lonesome run in the fifth and did not threaten again until the rally in the ninth.

Chamberlain Leader In Lakers' Triumph

ATLANTA (UPI) — Will Chamberlain, a "controversy back home," according to Los Angeles Coach Joe Mullaney, is the difference in the National Basketball Association Western Division playoff finals.

Chamberlain was the offensive spark when the Lakers needed it and a bulky intimidator all night long who kept Atlanta players unnerved in a ho-hum, 105-94 win over the Hawks in what had been billed as a possible blood-letting by Atlanta Coach Richie Guerin.

The victory was the second in two playoff games for Los Angeles. The two teams go to Los Angeles for games three and four, to be played Friday and Sunday.

The New York Knickerbockers also hold a 2-0 edge on Milwaukee in the Eastern Division playoff finals, with game three Friday in Milwaukee.

"There's been a lot of controversy back home about Chamberlain," Mullaney said. A lot of folks thought we were a better team—quicker and more exciting—without Chamberlain."

Chamberlain hurt his knee early in the season and sat out most of the year while the Lakers finished second to Atlanta in the Western Division

Hearing Set For Ruidoso Racing Tiff

CARRIZOZO, N.M. (UPI) — Dist. Judge Richard A. Stanley Tuesday set April 23 for a hearing on a lawsuit asking liquidation of the assets of a group seeking control of Ruidoso Downs racetrack.

The suit was filed earlier in the week by minority stockholders in the Ruidoso Racing Association. The scheduled hearing was to enable the association to show cause why its assets should not be placed in receivership.

The suit, filed by minority stockholders, was aimed at NEWCO, Inc., which held 87 percent of the racing association stock.

Richard Parsons, attorney for the plaintiffs, said the suit alleged NEWCO had violated New Mexico state law by entering into a 10-year concession contract with New Mexico Sports Services, a subsidiary of Emprise Corp. of Buffalo, N.Y.

The State Racing Commission last Feb. 21 denied NEWCO's bid for a license for racing scheduled to begin in May because of testimony from Rep. Sam Steiger, R-Ariz., linking Emprise with La Cosa Nostra.

Walt Bellamy led Atlanta's scoring with 20 points—14 in the first half. Joe Caldwell paced Atlanta in the first half with 15, but got only three in the second half, while Chamberlain clogged up the middle.

ABA Chief Is Confident Of Merger

NEW YORK (UPI)—Commissioner Jack Dolph of the American Basketball Association is "quite confident" the league will merge with the National Basketball Association after the next three seasons.

Dolph said Tuesday that the ABA has agreed to the general terms of the merger outlined between the merger committees of the two leagues.

The general agreements call for the ABA to pay $11 million to have all 11 of its teams included in a merged league. The terms also call next season for mixed-exhibition games as well as a championship series and an All-Star Game between the two leagues. However, the leagues would remain separate for the next three seasons and retain separate negotiating rights for national television. There would also be a common draft, beginning next year.

"I'm quite optimistic that the merger can be worked out," Dolph said. "If we don't merge both leagues will have made a serious mistake."

Franklin Mieull, president of the San Francisco Warriors of the NBA, threw up a roadblock in the path of the merger, however, by saying he needs only one more vote from NBA owners for a veto.

"I've got three votes to block this merger and I hope to have a fourth which would guarantee defeat," Mieull said. He added that the admission of all 11 ABA franchises would bring the NBA "to its knees."

Lolich, Tigers Stop Tribe

By STU CAMEN
 UPI Sports Writer
 Mickey Lolich is quickly earning his pay.

Lolich, counted on to lead the Detroit Tigers pitching staff, at least until the return of suspended Denny McLain on July 1, pitched his third complete game in nine days Tuesday as the Bengals opened their home season with a 12-1 triumph over the Cleveland Indians.

The chubby southpaw beat Washington on opening day with a seven-hit shutout; lost an eight-hitter on Friday to Baltimore in 10 innings, then came back to beat the Indians on a gutsy if not artistic, 12-inning and Rich Hand, the first lineup scored at least once and everyone but shortstop Cesar Gutierrez batted in at least one run to the delight of the crowd with a homer in the eighth inning and Rich Hand, the first of seven Indian pitchers, suffered his second loss.

In other American League games, Boston beat New York,

Cleveland rookie Ted Ford got his first major league hit

Baltimore was rained out and Kansas City at Minnesota was snowed out.

In the National League, Chicago edged Philadelphia, 5-4; Pittsburgh topped New York, 6-4, in 10 innings; Cincinnati defeated San Diego, 6-1; Los Angeles topped Houston, 3-2; San Francisco outslugged Atlanta, 15-11; and St. Louis nipped Montreal, 6-5, in 10 innings.

Reggie Smith, who had driven in only one run in Boston's first five games, celebrated the Red Sox opener at Fenway Park by homering and doubling in two runs to help defeat the Yankees. Ray Culp went the distance for Boston to even his record at 1-1 while Fritz Peterson took the loss.

Tito Francona's bases-loaded single in the sixth inning broke a 1-1 tie and Rick Monday put the finishing touches on Oakland's victory over Milwaukee with a three-run homer in the eighth. Monday's blast capped a five-run outburst, and insured Al Downing's first victory in an Athletics' uniform.

Tommy Davis' line drive to deep center and scored on Rader's groundout.

Parker drove in the first run in the first inning with a two-out single that brought in Willie Davis, who had singled and stole second. Willie Crawford's 400-foot homer in the fourth accounted for the other run.

Houston, held to seven hits in two games as the Dodgers swept the series, scored in the fifth on a walk to Denis Menke, a single by Tommy Davis and Doug Rader's sacrifice fly.

Menke scored the Astros' second run in the seventh when he doubled, took third on Tommy Davis' line drive to deep center and scored on Rader's groundout.

Baseball Tryouts Scheduled Today

Tryouts for the 20 Pampa little league teams will be held today at Optimist Park at 5 p.m. for 11 and 12-year-olds.

Nine and 10-year-old youths tried out Tuesday afternoon and will practice again Thursday. Another tryout for the 11-12 bracket will be held Friday.

Each boy must report his name, address and date of birth to Optimist Club of Pampa at the Park.

Dallas Takes 129-113 Win

By United Press International
 The Dallas Chaparrals have finally clinched second place in the West Division of the American Basketball Association.

Glen Combs scored 25 points and Many Leaks added 22 Tuesday night as Dallas defeated the Los Angeles Stars, 129-113, to take the No. 2 spot in the West on the next-to-last night of the regular season.

In the only other game, Han Whitney made two free throws and Bob Verga-hit a layup to give the Carolina Cougars a 104-98 victory over the Washington Caps.

Washington, scoring only 12 points in the first quarter and 20 in the second, trailed by 27 in the third period but shaved the margin to two points before Whitney and Verga scored. Mike Barrett led Washington with 3 points and Verga wound up with 38 for Carolina.

HOUSTON (UPI) — The University of Houston-Oklahoma State football game, originally set for the Astrodome in mid-October, has been rescheduled for Sept. 26 in Stillwater.

A Question For The FCC

"Free TV," like "free public schools," is a gross, deceptive misnomer and, as such, should be expunged from the language. The so-called free television programs are made possible by the commercials, the costs of which are, in turn, added to the selling prices of the products and services advertised.

the Wall Street Journal, the FCC, which has generally avoided establishing any strict regulatory limits (on the number and length of commercials) in this area, is being forced to take another look.

In a day and time when prices are shooting skyward as a result of rising taxes, government inflation of the money supply, and union wage demands unmatched by increased production, it is only natural that the operating costs of television networks and stations should be rising, too.

If we know how the FCC "brain" works, and we believe we do, the word "forced" would have been more appropriate.

Assuming that a network or station is being operated efficiently, the only ways they have of meeting these rising costs are either to increase the prices charged for commercials or to increase the number and length of commercials by decreasing the air time devoted to entertainment.

As a hint of what the bureaucrats of the FCC have in mind and, to some extent, have already set in motion, the Journal item went on to note that "at least one FCC insider concedes the FCC is 'toying with the notion' of a full inquiry aimed at deciding whether the FCC should impose specific limits on the number of television commercials, the number of commercial interruptions and the total advertising time."

Therefore, in view of the foregoing economic facts of life in the real world we live in, the people who seem to be on the point of tearing their hair over what they call "over-commercialization" of television, whatever that is, must be looked upon as spoiled children who believe that they can "have their cake and eat it, too." And, to add to the air of unreality pervading the whole squabble—the same people who so vehemently object to the proliferation of television commercials are, more than not, the very people who oppose "pay television" which offers entertainment without commercials.

Recalling the deluge of blatant government propaganda put out over the airwaves under the cloak of "public-service programs," one impelled to ask, if the government is really interested in fewer commercials, rather than more bureaucratic controls, why doesn't it reduce the number of its own "commercials" which it forces the networks and local stations to air?

Of course, the networks and stations are already government licensed (which acts to bar the entry of healthy competition in the field) and heavily regulated, to include tacit regulation of the entertainment-commercial mix (which acts to increase their operating expenses while operation and response to market demand); however, now, according to an item in

HOW TO ADDRESS OUR LAWMAKERS
You may want to write your senators and representatives in Washington and Austin. Here are their addresses:

H. L. Hunt Writes

CONSUMERS THANK SENATORS

In pointing out the inconsistencies of those who would leave U.S. oil and natural gas consumers to the mercy of foreign oil monopolies, Senator Clifford P. Hansen of Wyoming has performed a major service. Citizens concerned about our domestic economy and national defense are much in his debt.

He had the courage to stand up for a much-maligned industry, comprised of thousands of independent producers and tens of thousands of small businesses, and expose the truth about the assaults on the U.S. industry. The Democrat leader in the Senate, Mike Mansfield, found himself praising Senator Hansen's knowledge and ability.

"I think the distinguished Senator from Wyoming is one of the outstanding members of this body. He's especially proficient and expert in the field of wool, in the area of oil imports and on the question of beef imports," Mansfield said of Hansen after a discussion in the Senate about states hurt by cheap-textile imports.

Senator Hansen, noting that oil prices had been the most stable among most of the major commodities, questioned the wisdom of tampering with oil policies. He pointed out that Senator Proxmire of Wisconsin fought long and hard to protect Wisconsin's high-cost dairy industry while leading the fight against the thousands of independent oil men in almost every state in the union.

"It is a mystery to me why Senators Proxmire, McIntyre (New Hampshire), Muskie (Maine) and other Senators have singled out oil prices to be pushed down by imports, while at the same time advocating quotas (on imported dairy products, shoes and textiles)." He might have added that oil is the most vital element in national defense, not butter, shoes and textiles, which foreign monopolists can't control as they could oil.

With Some Reservation

By INJUN WOODY

I just received a letter from my brother in Oklahoma. I always said he was a funnier writer than I was — just don't do it often enough. See if you don't think I'm correct.

Here is part of his letter, verbatim, as he wrote it:

"Funny thing happened on the way to work — tuther mawwin— This guy in one of those Dwarf (VW) cars was cutting in and out on the slick, icy-roads and ended up straddling the guard rail with river bed 30 feet below — No one noticed if he had a passenger, but the impact caused the doors to fly open and a woman's head went bouncing out across the highway. The first guy to stop — ran over there, but was afraid to pick it up. Another motorist ran to the balanced car looking for the rest of the girl — One woman spectator took one good look and started vomiting all over herself and every body else in the back seat —"

"I'm worried about some Knot Head making contact from the rear, causing me to Carom off of one of the cars ahead and knock the VW to the river bed below—My flashers were effective (everybody stopped), they balanced the VW until Reckless Sam got out and retrieved his prize Wig which he was a Salesman of — everyone agreed — two heads didn't help him much —"

"When we come by today the Hwy. Dept. was making repairs to the guard rail — So-o-o I guess ails well that ends well — Yours, Moody"

Capitol Eye New Left Is Way Off Base On Chairman O'Brien's Aims

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA)

Some members of the young and adult New Left who seem more or less open-minded about developing a fairly consistent link with the Democratic party need to shed some serious misconceptions they have with regard to new National Chairman Lawrence O'Brien.

Largely lost in the shuffle at the time O'Brien resumed the chairmanship a month ago was a statement issued by 30 New Left members. Basically, it assailed the choice of O'Brien as a "backroom" process.

While the document itself specifically exempted O'Brien from criticism, at least one among the 30 signers indicated a principal concern was whether he would give full support to the McGovern and O'Hara Reform Commissions mandated by the 1968 Democratic convention to reform procedures both for delegate selection and for the convention itself.

Whoever these doubters are, they are poor readers of the print media and poor interrogators at the most elemental level.

In late 1968 I reported, and I could hardly have been alone in this, that O'Brien was laboring doggedly to put together the best-balanced and most-qualified membership he could muster for the two reform commissions. The task consumed a high proportion of his time in the chaotic months after Hubert Humphrey's defeat by President Nixon.

To anyone who troubled to talk to O'Brien and find out what kind of man he is, he would today) utterly convincing on the reform issue.

As a matter of fact, he said then — and I gave it full account — that he did not believe the reform commissions could do more than scratch the surface in the remaking of the riddled Democratic party.

It was O'Brien's view, and it still is, that his party's councils at all levels need to be opened wide to participation by the young. He believes large numbers, are qualified by knowledge and developing maturity to play significant roles in party decisions now. He thinks the days are gone when a qualified young individual with an intense interest in politics can be denied such a role until he has climbed the old political ladder and "earned his way" by grubby, even menial, service.

Inescapably, this view embraces the quest of young people for elective office. O'Brien unqualifiedly favors widening their opportunities to help give his struggling party the leavening of intelligent, creative, ambitious youth.

Obviously, not all those of the New Left who are prepared to associate with the Democratic party in one degree or another are ready to see the new chairman in this light.

Few men in modern American politics have as small a number of political enemies as O'Brien has acquired in his long, active career. A handful do exist. There appears to be hard evidence that one such is Adam Walinsky, former aide to the late Sen. Robert Kennedy, present candidate for the Democratic nomination as New York state attorney general, and one of the 30 signers of the March 4 New Left document.

Informed word reaching here is that Walinsky, a firebrand reformer, has been consistently slashing at O'Brien for weeks. It may not be incidental that they developed serious differences as contrary advisers to Kennedy in his losing Oregon presidential primary fight in 1968.

Beyond all this, if is perhaps inevitable that a man with O'Brien's proven capacity to win the confidence of Democratic figures across most of the left-to-right spectrum should have at least a little trouble with some of the people near the fringes.

Yet the March 4 New Left document fell into absurdity when it assailed party consultations leading to O'Brien's selection as "few, secret, usually on the telephone and among a small group which has neither been selected nor, indeed, is even fully known."

Your Dental Health

By Dr. William Lawrence

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE:

Please go into some detail about X rays. Our dentist X rays our teeth every six months. This includes my two children, 3 and 8 years. Are X rays harmful for children? And are X rays necessary every six months?

—Carol J.

ANSWER: Much has been written, here and elsewhere, about possible harm from dental X rays. But because of continuing interest, let's review current beliefs.

Two "prestigious scientists" at the AEC's Lawrence Radiation Laboratory at Livermore, Calif., have only this week publicly stated that "...and level of radiation poses health problems." Therefore, "no X ray dose is acceptable since the smallest dose can produce mutations (irreversible changes) in body cells."

Beginning with that controversial, but widely held belief, here are some suggested guidelines for use of dental X rays.

1. Patients should not be routinely X rayed. And, fullmouth multiple X rays should be limited to special situations.

2. Children and pregnant women should not be exposed to dental X rays unless shown to be vital to their health. And when patients should be protected with a lead apron. This is required by law in California and Wisconsin.

But it also must be recognized that dental X rays are important diagnostic tools in preventing dental disease and in maintaining dental health. Therefore, use of X rays cannot for the present be entirely eliminated.

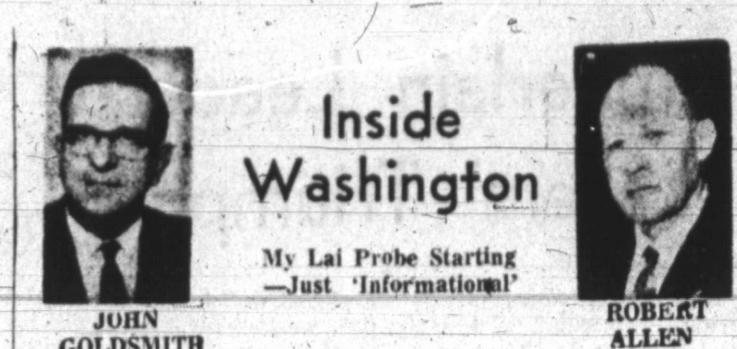

Many molecular biophysicists are unequivocal concerning danger from exposure to even the smallest amount of dental X rays and often refuse them, sometimes unwisely, for themselves and their families. Yet they are often little concerned with radiation which they themselves produce and to which many an innocent person is exposed.

For instance, it was recently revealed that a nuclear experimental lab located on the edge of a large university had "sprung a leak." The leak was of a magnitude large enough to disrupt unrelated experiments in other labs at least as far away as a few hundred yards.

Thus, the "leak" exposed people living and working within this radius to radiation over and above the amounts they are usually exposed to from bomb-testing, atmosphere, diagnostic medical and dental X rays, TV sets, etc.

Officially, the "leak" was only 5 per cent of the minimal dose harmful to humans, "whatever that means."

Was it, in fact, harmful to people living in the area? No, say the scientists, but they hurriedly added a few hundred tons of concrete to the already-thick walls of the leaky laboratory.

My Lai Probe Starting — Just 'Informational'

WASHINGTON — The long-awaited investigation of the sensational My Lai incident by a special House Armed Services Subcommittee will finally get underway tomorrow — and behind closed doors.

All the hearings and other proceedings of this inquiry will be in executive session. Also, no list of witnesses will be announced.

A transcript will be made of all testimony, and a report will be submitted to the full Armed Services Committee. Publication of the testimony and the subcommittee's findings will be determined by the full committee.

This procedure was unanimously decided by the five-member investigating subcommittee, headed by Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La.

Actually, the My Lai probe has been informally underway for some time.

Around 100 witnesses, directly and indirectly involved in the affair, have been privately interviewed by Hebert and other subcommittee members. This testimony already comprises 3,900 pages of stenographic transcript.

This testimony will be included in the subcommittee's record.

Reason for the secrecy surrounding the inquiry is to protect the legal rights of the principals involved. All of them face trials on murder and other serious charges, and the investigators are taking every precaution not to jeopardize the defendants' rights.

It is known they have been offered the opportunity to present their cases to the subcommittee if they so desire. But they will not be required to do so.

The probe, do want to interrogate certain individuals whose accusations and charges brought the My Lai incident to light. The subcommittee wants to explore information from other sources regarding reported "financial" dealings involving the case.

Chairman Hebert has stressed that the purpose of the inquiry is strictly informational.

"Our intent is to separate the facts from fancy," he said, "and to let the chips fall where they may. We are not out to get anyone or to exonerate anyone. Our sole aim is to determine what happened and why."

AX WIELDERS — A bipartisan group of House Foreign Affairs subcommittee members is seriously considering making a determined effort to abolish the increasingly controversial Peace Corps.

Foremost among them are three committee leaders — Representatives Clement Zablocki, Wis., and Wayne Hays, O., second and third ranking Democrats, and H.R. Gross, a ranking Republican. All have long been critical of the Peace Corps, and last year led the fight that sharply cut its funds.

With the Nixon Administration favoring retention of the Peace Corps, the chances of doing away with it are doubtful. There's considerable sentiment among both Republicans and Democrats for that. But whether it's enough to overcome the White House's support of the Corps is questionable. The opponents concede that.

But that is not deterring them. They are going ahead with their plans and will move to kill the Peace Corps both in the Foreign Affairs Committee, where its authorization bill is now pending, and later in the full House. In both places they will demand record votes.

Also, if unsuccessful in junking the Corps outright, the opponents will seek to drastically slash its budget.

President Nixon recommended the Corps be given $96.8 million. That is $8.8 million more than Congress voted last year. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee already has reduced the new budget to the 1969 figure. The committee's recommendation is now pending before the full Senate.

The House opponents will undertake to cut the Corps' funds to $75 million.

They will also propose a number of restrictions and limitations on the Corps' personnel and activities. These came under angry attack at a meeting between committee members and Joseph Blatchford, director of the Corps.

UNDER FIRE — Rep. Hays, after caustically denouncing Blatchford for a highly partisan speech he made at a Lincoln Day dinner in Albany, N.Y., asked why Neil Armstrong was named head of a Peace Corps Advisory Council.

"What special qualifications does an astronaut have for this job?" demanded Hays.

"He's a very fine engineer," replied Blatchford.

"So that qualifies him," retorted Hays. "I was thinking in terms of cutting your funds by 25 per cent, but now I think perhaps 50 per cent would be better."

Rep. Gross read a news item quoting a Peace Corps official to the effect that he contemplated "converting" congressional critics of the agency. Demanded Gross, "What business does he have converting congressmen? He's a government employe, being paid with taxpayers' money. What business is it of his to convert anyone to anything?"

"No business at all," admitted Blatchford. "But he assured me that he was misquoted; that he didn't say that."

"Yes, I know," said Gross skeptically, "that's the old alibi. They're always misquoted. What about Nigeria, didn't a lot of taxpayers' money go down the drain there when the civil war broke out?"

"The Peace Corps was doing a lot of good in Nigeria," contended Blatchford, "but we weren't able to prevent the outbreak of the civil war."

Rep. Zablocki bluntly raised the question of abolishing the Corps.

"In view of the fact that the Corps is under widespread attack," he said, "and it's very possible that half of its funds will be cut, wouldn't it be better to drop the Corps entirely and turn its work over to AID (foreign aid agency), where it really belongs?"

"No, I don't think so," argued Blatchford.

Rep. E. Ross Adair, Ind., senior Republican committee member, asked whether "political activism" is increasing among corpsmen.

"I hope and think there is less of it," replied Blatchford. "Our most difficult time was during the anti-Vietnam moratorium. Most of those involved in this activism were recent college graduates. We are now getting more responsible volunteers, that is people who are older, and we are having fewer instances of political activism."

As an illustration of this new trend, Blatchford cited the Corps' new policy of sending entire families abroad. He stated that 2,216 families have applied for assignments, and that so far six have been accepted and 200 others are undergoing training.

"We are selecting families where the wife as well as the husband has technical or specialist training and experience," said Blatchford, "so both can be used in the countries to which they are sent. The children will also be able to help if they are of age. I think having whole families getting involved will make a big change. We are very hopeful this new program will work out well."

Rep. Thomas Morgan, D-Pa., chairman, asked about a Corps official who bought an ad in an underground newspaper in Philadelphia seeking recruits.

"Did that money come out of your budget?" asked Morgan.

"No, it did not," replied Blatchford. "That ad cost one dollar and this recruiter paid for it out of his own pocket. Some of them do that on occasion."

Smith Tolerated Only The Best

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The White House Correspondents Association Tuesday established a Merriman Smith Memorial Fund to honor those who carry on the standards of excellence set by the veteran UPI reporter who died Monday.

Smith's widow and son suggested that friends make contributions to the fund rather than send flowers to a memorial tribute which will be held at the new National Presbyterian Church at 2 p.m.

Friday. Contributions to the fund may be sent to the White House Correspondents Association, Room 1029 National Press Building, Washington, D.C. Presiding at Friday's service will be the Rev. Dr. Edward L.R. Elson, pastor of National Presbyterian and chaplain of the Senate. Several of Smith's colleagues and friends will speak.

Acting in accord with the family's wishes, the correspondents association arranged to set up the fund to make an annual award "honoring that excellence in Washington reporting for which Merriman Smith stood: Outstanding skill, scrupulous objectivity, swiftness and honesty."

Smith, 57, was the dean of the White House press corps and twice president of the association.

President Nixon ordered the White House flag flown at half staff until Thursday, and Mrs. Harry Truman, from Independence, Mo., said she and the former president were saddened to read this morning of the death of Merriman Smith.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said in the Senate that "Smith was a great journalist and a unique figure on the American political scene." He said his brother, President John F. Kennedy, had "great fondness and respect" for Smith and that his father, Joseph P. Kennedy, "enjoyed and cherished his friendship."

Sens. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., and Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., also praised Smith on the Senate floor.

One of the warmest tributes came from a colleague, Robert J. Donovan of the Los Angeles Times: "It's a cliché to say that an era begins or ends with one man. But for many of us who have been around newspapers for a long time, we must say that Merriman was the last and finest example of the kind of reporter who was around newspapers a generation ago."

"Today, the spotlight is mainly on the columnist and the commentator. Smith was the last of the authentic great straight news reporters."

Memorial Fund Established For Journalistic Excellence

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The White House Correspondents Association announced today the establishment of a memorial fund to honor the journalistic excellence exemplified by Merriman Smith, the UPI correspondent who died Monday.

The association's executive committee, acting in accord with the wishes of Smith's widow and son, said contributions may be sent to the "Merriman Smith Memorial Fund," White House Correspondents Association, 1029 National Press Building, Washington, D.C. 20004.

Mrs. Smith suggested that the correspondent's friends make contributions to the fund instead of sending flowers to the services which will be held sometime later this week.

The purpose of the fund will be to make an annual award appropriately "honoring that excellence in Washington reporting for which Merriman Smith stood: Outstanding skill, scrupulous objectivity, swiftness and honesty."

Smith was the dean of the White House press corps and twice had been president of its association.

Evergreens Are Assets

By Sheila and Allan Swenson
Nea Garden Specialists

Evergreens are useful in every garden. They have many assets that will enhance any type of size of landscaping — dignity, permanence and richness of color and texture. Their greatest asset is their ability to give definition to a landscaping design.

Use evergreens for backgrounds, hedges and as a contrast for deciduous plants.

Most evergreens are quite adaptable. The juniper thrives in sunlight. Yews do best in moist soil. Taller evergreens are ideal plants for focal points in a yard. Low-growing plants are preferable for foundation plantings.

Evergreens, both broad and narrowleaf, are seldom sold bare root, because they are always in leaf.

Plant evergreens according to their eventual size at maturity. This allows them to spread out and grow quickly. When you have set them and partially filled in the hole, "loosen" the burlap and push it down into the sides of the hole. It will eventually rot away.

Water the plants deeply about once a week, particularly during dry periods. When they have begun to grow, feed them lightly with balanced fertilizer.

Use good mulch, peat moss or compost to provide good growing soil conditions for the plants.

To pick the best evergreens for your area, see your local nurseryman or reputable garden center.

Avoid bargain plants that won't stand up well. Evergreens are a lasting investment, so pick and plant properly. They will add value to your home in beauty and dollars in the years ahead.
