American Troops Pulling Out Of Cambodia Battle

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said today the United States already has pulled "several thousand" troops out of Cambodia. But he urged Congress not to impose any limitation on President Nixon's authority there.

"We have a restriction that we will be out of there by the end of June," Laird told the Senate Armed Services Committee concerning the U. S. thrusts against Communist sanctuaries in Cambodia.

"Already we have withdrawn American forces from Cambodia," Laird said. "We have withdrawn several thousand this week and we will withdraw more this week."

The secretary declined to say specifically how many American fighting men had been pulled back into South Vietnam from Cambodia.

He said the Cambodian operations were going better than expected and that all U. S. troops would be out by June 30. Laird said the United States did not plan to send its forces back to Cambodia if the Communists reclaimed the sanctuary areas.

Jane Fonda Arrested At Fort Hood

KILLEEN, Tex. (UPI)—Actress Jane Fonda was arrested Monday on Ft. Hood military reservation for distributing anti-war handbills. She said she is now considering legal action against the secretary of the Army.

Miss Fonda has taken a leading role among the movie star activists upstaging the likes of Paul Newman, Marlon Brando and Burt Lancaster. She has traveled from Alcatraz to Seattle to Denver to Albuquerque to protest the plight of the American Indians and to voice her objections to the war in Vietnam.

She arrived in Killeen Saturday and lived at a house in a rundown district town with the operator of the Oleo Strut, a coffee house catering to antiwar GIs at Ft. Hood.

The handbills she wanted to distribute concerned a planned demonstration through downtown Killeen Saturday demanding the United States get out of South Vietnam, Black Panther Bobby Seale be freed, and the "Kent State Five" be avenged. The handbill said a fifth Kent State student died of bayonet wounds. She tried to enter Ft. Hood at its East gate and was stopped by Lt. John T. Hoffman. She asked for permission to distribute the handbills on the base. Hoffman told her it was illegal.

"You'll have to arrest me then because I consider it unconstitutional," she said.

Two Ft. Hood soldiers took her handbills and the actress was taken under arrest to the provost marshal's office where she was then escorted off the base.

Oh, Go Fly A Kite In Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House has voted to make kite flying legal in the District of Columbia. But it left untouched other old laws against playing bandy and shindy—not to mention football—in the streets of the nation's capital.

The kite-flying repeal was sent to the Senate Monday. Rep. Andrew Jacobs, D-Ind., said "We have a long way to go. I promised members I will be back with bills to repeal some of these other measures if you help me get this one off the ground."

Among other things, the old law forbids tying of horses to trees, throwing rocks or playing the games of football, bandy and shindy in the streets. Jacobs declined to guess what the last two sports are or were.

Seniors Become Courageous In Remaining School Weeks

This story of course, is a farce. The "Senior Follies" program presented this morning at Pampa High School was a farce. But, the seniors here like high school seniors everywhere, deserve to have their fun at graduation time.

It was a magnanimous moment in the lives of those seniors, those future leaders and explorers of all things American, as they demonstrated their ability to do unto others as it has been done unto them.

They poked fun at such great Americans as Lyndon Johnson, Hubert H. Humphrey, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences (better known as "Oscar"), Tiny Tim, and Rochelle Wilkins.

John Worley started the program with an imitation of David Frye, a TV comedian who does imitations of LBJ and HHH. Had someone not mistakenly said John was doing an imitation of Lyndon Johnson, it may have been hard to figure out he was doing David Frye.

As the program progressed, the graduating class presented "Elroy's." PHS's answer to "Oscar," to, among others.

Rockets Slam Into Cambodian Capital

By WALTER WHITEHEAD

SAIGON (UPI)—Three long-range rockets slammed into this war capital before dawn this morning in another apparent guerrilla response to the Allies' 40,000-man offensive into Cambodia. Four Vietnamese civilians were wounded.

One of the 100-pound missiles landed on the grounds of President Nguyen Van Thieu's palace downtown, a second hit in a residential area, and a third crashed five blocks from where Vice President Chiang Ching-kuo of Nationalist China, on a state visit, was sleeping.

The rocket that hit the palace grounds at 2 a.m. struck a tree and downed some power lines. The four Vietnamese were wounded in the residential area blast. A building was damaged in the explosion near Chiang's guest house.

It was the first shelling of the capital in four weeks. South Vietnam's three largest cities—Saigon, Da Nang and Hue—now have come under attack in response to the offensive into Cambodia which has killed an estimated 5,400 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese.

Updated official reports said a total of 88 Americans have been killed and 319 wounded in the drive. Government losses were put at 235 dead and about 1,000 wounded. The Allies, in addition have turned up thousands of tons of guerrilla munitions, weapons and supplies.

The deepest thrust into Cambodia, a South Vietnamese naval drive up the Mekong River to Phnom Penh, had a nonmilitary objective to bring home thousands of Vietnamese refugees now being gathered in detention camps in the Cambodian capital.

South Vietnamese officials in Phnom Penh estimated the naval flotilla will need at least four round trips to take all the refugees down a winding 60-mile stretch of the Mekong River to the Vietnam border and beyond.

Spokesmen said the U.S. Command was investigating reports that American advisers remained on the South Vietnamese boats all the way to Phnom Penh in violation of President Nixon's orders that no U.S. troops were to be allowed any deeper than 21.7 miles inside Cambodia.

The vessels were reported unloading medicine and supplies today, with the first return trip to begin Wednesday. Helicopter gunships caught a guerrilla unit on the move in the Fishhook on Monday and killed 37 soldiers without a loss of their own, spokesmen said. It was one of the only encounters reported by Allied troops searching for more caches in the former sanctuary.

Nixon Grants More Benefits To Veterans

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon Monday signed a bill liberalizing disability compensation for veterans in certain hardship cases.

The existing law was found to work a hardship in a few cases in which the veteran's disability became worse after his discharge and payments were blocked during a waiting period. The new law permits a veteran to begin receiving the larger payments immediately.

In other legislative action Monday:

—The Senate passed and sent to the House a permanent extension of the special milk program for children with an authorization of $120 million a year.

—The Senate passed by voice vote and sent to the House a bill to require special packaging of products containing substances harmful to children who might handle or swallow them.

Lubbock Counts Dead, Injured

Worst Twister In Many Years Death, Destruction 'Defies Imagination'

By MIKE WESTER

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—A tornado, spawned without warning from the blackness of a rain and hail storm, tore an eight-mile gash through Lubbock Monday night, causing death and destruction that "defies the imagination" and injuring as many as 1,000 persons.

The twister that roared up the "Tornado Alley" of Texas killed at least 26 persons.

The spring down over this west Texas city of 161,000 showed damage over 2,300 square blocks.

Skyscrapers—the tallest 20 stories—stood rocked and battered. At least one building was in danger of collapsing.

"It hit us where it hurts," said City Manager Bill Blackwell. He said the list of injured could run as high as 1,000.

The tornado was the worst in Texas since a twister reeled through Waco 17 years ago on the same day. On May 11, 1953, 114 persons were killed in the Waco tornado.

Automobile dealers downtown were wiped out. There was not a car without a broken window.

"It was a hell of a way to start a new business," said the assistant sales manager of a dealer that opened just this week.

The tornado touched ground in the southwest section of the city near the Texas Tech University campus.

"It moved northeast through the downtown area and into the vicinity of the municipal airport," said regional DPS commander Maj. Charles Bell. "There is 'extremely heavy damage in the total path of the storm. It is estimated at eight miles long with bad damage in the downtown area."

The damage covered an area of 2,500 square blocks in the middle of the city. Lubbock Mayor Jim Granberry declared a state of emergency.

Smiley Wilson Junior High School was turned into a temporary morgue. Several other large and undamaged buildings were made into shelters for the homeless.

Granberry, over the city's only broadcasting radio station, urged citizens to conserve water until the city's system gets back into operation.

Drinking water was scarce. Emergency supplies were rushed into town from Muleshoe, Tex., 35 miles northwest of Lubbock. The tornado broke water lines, and faucets from downtown into residential districts spewed air.

Supply Low
City officials said Lubbock uses 35 million gallons of water a day and was down to reserves of four million gallons from gravity flow towers.

"We think we've made one round up and down all the streets but there's no reason for us to even think we've got all the dead or injured," said Police Chief J. M. Alley.

The 20-story Great Plains Life Building swayed in the morning breeze. Its glass windows were blown out and bricks were ripped out. Officials said it was unsafe and roped off a two-block area around it.

Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, acting governor with Gov. Preston Smith out of the state, flew into Lubbock to survey damage. Barnes ordered out the National Guard to prevent looting of downtown stores that began before the wind died down.

"We were sitting here and all of a sudden the roof just raised up," said Mike Reed, assistant city editor of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal. "There was a loud pop in our ears and then the roof settled down. The next we knew, all the water on top was falling in on us. I dove underneath a desk and waited."

The building was badly damaged.

ORDERS CUTOFF
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Health, Education and Welfare Department (HEW) and the Federal Reserve Board ordered a cutoff of federal funds to the Pawnee Independent School District in Omaha, Neb., for operating segregated schools.

The order, which takes effect in 30 days, was the first by HEW Secretary Robert H. Finch since July 7, when he cut off funds to three Southern school districts.

Peaceful demonstrations should not be banned.

Nature's Battleground Spring Shift Brings Texas Into T-Alley

LUBBOCK (UPI)—The call of violence together and tornado-producing thunderstorms erupt.

"We don't know exactly what causes the tornadoes," Cook said. "The air mass becomes extremely unstable. This can result in very large and intense thunderstorms."

"This time of year we are still getting cool air in the middle and upper atmosphere. But we have begun to get quite warm air near the surface," he said.

Cook said the temperature at 18,000 feet could be 1 above zero while the surface temperature is 90.

"Unstable Situation"
"This is a considerably unstable situation," Cook said. "When a cloud forms, the air and cloud become warmer than the air in the atmosphere. It starts to boil up into a thunderstorm."

"Around Lubbock yesterday (Monday), the index showed air jet stream mixes the elements."

Senator Tower Spells Out Difference In Bush-Bentsen

HOUSTON (UPI)—Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., said Monday that George Bush, R-Tex., is a more liberal than his opponent—and would become more liberal if elected to the Senate.

Bentsen, generally regarded as a conservative, defeated liberal Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough, D-Tex., in the May 2 Democratic primary. Bentsen will face Rep. George Bush, R-Tex., in November for Yarborough's Senate seat. Tower, of course, is supporting Bush.

Why?
"Well, for one thing, George is a Republican and Lloyd is a Democrat," Tower said.

Says More Liberal
"I don't know much about Bentsen's public record—and I have not examined his congressional record—but Bentsen appears somewhat more liberal than George Bush," Tower said. "I think that George would wield considerably more influence in his party because it is controlled largely by the Kennedy-Muskie type Democrats, and to get along with them, he would have to accept their liberalism."

On other issues Tower said: "Vice President Spiro T. Agnew should be able to speak in strong terms, even in harsh terms if necessary."

College administrators were at fault in some cases for allowing and promoting campus disruptions with "permissiveness," Peaceful demonstrations should not be banned.

Marvin Bowman for being the most liberal minded faculty member at the school. (Somehow, such great liberals as Rap Brown were overlooked.)

Larry Gill dressed up like Tiny Tim and, as he sang "Tip Toe Through the Tulips," members of the sophomore class sneaked out the auditorium to patronize an algebra teacher who was selling used burp bags at the low everyday discount price of three for five cents.

Mrs. Rochelle Wilkins, speech teacher at the school, was presented an old army boot, as were Nancy Kaster and Gail Greiner. Rather than saying "We are presenting these fine ladies with this old Army boot," the masters of ceremonies in the presentation said, "These gals are the winners of our 'Mod Squad' award."

In a moment of paying tribute to the more cultural things, Jack Gindorf and Mackie Brown performed a ballet with the finesse one would expect of Gomer Pyle.

Robert Moultrie and Lindale Woodard went through the final exams of their Monday night Laugh-In 4 class by performing the dirty old man routine wherein the dirty old man makes advances to a woman and she slugs him with her handbag. Every red-blooded American girl should know the art of slugging dirty old men with her handbag before she accepts their propositions.

And so went "Senior Follies, 1970." And so went the hearts and minds of the underclassmen at PHS.

Lubbock Counts Dead, Injured

Worst Twister In Many Years

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—The tornado that struck this town of 161,000 Monday night was the worst in Texas since a twister reeled through Waco 17 years ago on the same day.

On May 11, 1953, a tornado killed 114 persons in Waco and injured another 597. Damage was estimated at more than $41 million. That twister destroyed or damaged 1,235 homes and buildings.

The Waco tornado was one of the two worst ever to hit Texas. On May 18, 1902, a twister raked a large part of Goliad, Tex., killing 114 and injuring more than 230. Damage was estimated at $50,000.

Only last April 18 a cluster of tornadoes ripped a patch across the Panhandle and South Plains of Texas, killing 26 persons and injuring hundreds. Towns hit by that storm included Whiteface, Whitarral, Clarendon, Plainview, Lazbodie, Hale Center, Cotton Center, Pampa, Claytonville, Silvertown, Hedley and Kress.

Other destructive Texas tornadoes: —Jan. 4, 1946, Palestine, 15 killed, 60 injured, damage $500,000.

Death, Destruction "Defies Imagination"

By MIKE WESTER

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—A tornado, spawned without warning from the blackness of a rain and hail storm, tore an eight-mile gash through Lubbock Monday night, causing death and destruction that "defies the imagination" and injuring as many as 1,000 persons.

The twister that roared up the "Tornado Alley" of Texas killed at least 26 persons.

The spring down over this west Texas city of 161,000 showed damage over 2,500 square blocks.

Skyscrapers — the tallest 20 stories — stood rocked and battered. At least one building was in danger of collapsing.

"It hit us where it hurts," said City Manager Bill Blackwell. He said the list of injured could run as high as 1,000.

The tornado was the worst in Texas since a twister reeled through Waco 17 years ago on the same day. On May 11, 1953, 114 persons were killed in the Waco tornado.

Water stood a foot deep on some Lubbock streets. Complete blocks of homes and businesses were blown away. All electricity in the city was knocked out and hospitals went on auxiliary power. The only lights in the streets came from automobiles and the spinning red flashes atop police cars.

"Our first priority is to tend to the living, bury the dead and clean up the city," said Mayor Jim Granberry, elected only three weeks ago.

"We have a disaster plan in effect but Lubbock at this time is a dead city," Granberry said. "The destruction is so extensive it defies the imagination."

Drinking water was scarce. Emergency supplies were rushed into town from Muleshoe, Tex., 35 miles northwest of Lubbock. The tornado broke water lines, and faucets from downtown into residential districts spewed air.

City officials said Lubbock uses 35 million gallons of water a day and was down to reserves of four million gallons from gravity flow towers.

"We think we've made one round up and down all the streets but there's no reason for us to even think we've got all the dead or injured," said Police Chief J. M. Alley.

The 20-story Great Plains Life Building swayed in the morning breeze. Its glass windows were blown out and bricks were ripped out. Officials said it was unsafe and roped off a two-block area around it.

Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, acting governor with Gov. Preston Smith out of the state, flew into Lubbock to survey damage. Barnes ordered out the National Guard to prevent looting of downtown stores that began before the wind died down.

ORDERS CUTOFF — WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Health, Education and Welfare Department (HEW) has ordered a cutoff of federal funds to the Pewitt Independent School District in Omaha, Tex., for operating segregated schools.

The order, which takes effect in 30 days, was the first by HEW Secretary Robert H. Finch since July 7, when he cut off funds to three Southern school districts.

Junior Highs Slate Year's End Awards

Principals at Pampa's two junior high schools announced today they expect to send 477 ninth grade students to high school next year. Paul Payne, Pampa Junior High Principal, said his school has 210 ninth graders. Lee Junior High has 267 ninth grade students, according to Principal Jack Nichols. The two schools have awards assemblies scheduled for later dates. Pampa will hold its assembly in the school auditorium at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday. The Lee Assembly is scheduled for May 20. The first, second, and third rated academic students for each school will be honored during the assemblies. Both principals announced numerous other awards would be presented during the scheduled ceremonies. An honors banquet for the Pampa students making the honor roll at least one time during the year was held Friday. Payne said 70 students were honored and presented pins for their academic proficiency. Nichols said Lee eighth graders nominated candidates for next year's office of mayor and vice-mayor Monday. Elections for the posts will be held Friday. Payne said the elections at Pampa have already been held. Elected as mayor was David Nipp. Elected as vice-mayor was Darrell Carey.

This permits upper currents to become quite strong, support large hail and produce tremendous winds. "All I am trying to say is we can recognize where intense thunderstorms can occur. But to say there one thunderstorm or another can produce a tornado, we generally don't have the capability," Cook said. The meteorologist said the up and down currents in a thunderstorm, called "convective activity," causes a twisting effect.

County Solons Slate Meeting Gray County Commissioners will meet in regular session at 10 a.m. Wednesday in the County Court room. Scheduled for the agenda is the approval of pay for special commissioners in condemnation at the rate of $25 per day, retroactive to Aug. 1, 1969. The special commissioners are appointed by the county judge whenever property condemnation suits are filed in County Court. Judge Sherman Lenning Jr. said the commissioners set the value on property condemned within the county. Also on the agenda is the creation of a city county airport board for McLean. The commissioners must appoint board members in accordance with Federal Aviation Agency regulations, Lenning said. A report of the Board of Equalization will be heard by commissioners. The board sets values of industrial properties in the county. Lenning said the Thomas Y. Pickett Co. of Dallas does the appraising of industrial property for Gray County. Commissioners are also scheduled to approve a lease on a building at 800 N. Sumner which is being used to house welfare and agriculture offices. The building was leased at the rate of $300 per month after the county annex building was destroyed by a tornado April 18. Commissioners are also scheduled to approve a lease on a building at 800 N. Mayor Authorized To Cement Agreement With Foundation Authorization was given to Mayor Milo Carlson today to reach agreement with M.K. Brown Foundation trustees on terms for the construction of a municipal auditorium for Pampa. The action was taken at this forenoon's city commission meeting along with instructions to City Manager Charles Hill to have a fiscal analysis made of the Foundation's recent offer which has been accepted by the city. The city manager said he thought the first step would be to determine the total amount of money that will be available from the Foundation's $400,000 cash offer plus $60,000 a year pledged in income from current holdings. The commissioners also met with E.L. Green Jr., chairman of the Brown Memorial Auditorium Committee and members of the architectural subcommittee headed by Dean Heckman. Other members of that committee present today were Homer Johnson and Tex DeWeese. Heckman brought the commissioners up to date on the committee's activities and interviews with architects since it was formed in 1967. At Mayor Carlson's suggestion the present architectural committee was asked to continue with the addition of two members named by the city. The city officially received the general auditorium committee's May 1 recommendation that first priority be given to a building for the performing arts. The mayor also stressed that action on various steps be taken as fast as feasible in order to comply with the Brown Foundation's request that there be no delay in getting the auditorium to the construction stage.

City Signs With Gov't For Filtration Plant

Approval was given by city commissioners today for the signing of a contract with the U.S. Government for participation in the construction of Pampa's $1.4 million water treatment plant to be built with $750,000 already available and a $650,000 federal grant. Also approved was certification by Forrest & Cotton, Dallas consulting engineers, of the plant site on the west city limits near Kentucky Ave. Received copies of the annual audit of city books by Nensiel and Doggett. The audit covers fiscal 1968-69. Commissioners will act on the report at their May 26 meeting. The following contract awards were made to low bidders: Patrick's School Supplies, 79 cents each for three meals a day to city prisoners. Public Health & Equipment Co., $1,695 for the purchase of a fogging machine. Mobil Oil Co., $20,000.19 for furnishing gasoline, oil and lubricants for one year, and the Rockwell Mfg. Co. for lowest prices on water meters ranging from $33.46 to $208.70. Approval was given for the payment of city and library bills for April totaling $32,756. City Manager Charles Hill gave a brief report on progress in the city's study of methods to improve Pampa's disaster warning system including emergency generators for radio stations and sirens for placement atop elementary school buildings throughout the city.

East Berliners Meet West Berliners At Wall

BERLIN (UPI)—Soon it will be girl-watching season at Checkpoint Charlie in this divided city. It's hard to recall that American and Russian tanks confronted each other there nine years ago.

The tourists will be flocking to the East-West Berlin border to see the Berlin Wall and hear stories of dramatic escapes and refugees gunned down by East German soldiers.

But they'll have to wait a long time to see an incident or hear a shot. A Russian at the wall will be even rarer.

Spec. 4 Robert Damico, 28, of New York City, can remember when a refugee was shot as he tried to climb the wall near Charlie but he has been on duty there the relatively long time of 14 months.

Spec. 4 Robert Spezia, 20, of Rochester, Mich., has seen no incidents in his seven months there.

"It's the best seven months I've had in the army," the tall, husky soldier said.

Why? "The girls" he said, pointing to a group of tourists posing at a sign reading "You Are Leaving the American Sector."

"It's not too much now but soon it will be the tourist season and the girls will be flocking in," he said.

Except for the girls it's a dull life at Charlie.

"Anyone would be a fool to try to escape here," said Lt. Larry Schroeder of Hamburg, N.Y. "Years ago, yes. But the wall has been so reinforced that it's virtually impossible to get through safely."

Since the days the American and Russian tanks faced each other across the dividing line at Charlie soon after the wall was built on Aug. 13, 1961, the name Checkpoint Charlie has had a dramatic ring to it.

But in reality duty at Charlie is unexciting.

"Our basic mission is to register American servicemen, their dependents and American civilians who work for the U.S. Government before they enter East Berlin," Schroeder said. "We also will register American tourists if they wish but they do not have to register."

The Americans have a white shack in the middle of the road at Friedrich Strasse with a sign on the roof reading, "Allied Checkpoint."

Just behind it is another shack without a sign shared by the British and French.

"Once in a while we stop an East Bloc diplomatic vehicle entering West Berlin to check its occupants," Schroeder said. "We observe Russians coming in and out but I've been here since August and I've never seen a Russian vehicle stopped."

The Americans run the crossing point for foreigners is on the border of the American Sector.

There are other guarded crossing points through the wall for West Germans and the rare West Berliner with an emergency pass. But foreigners must go

Northern Natural Honors 25-Year Employees

SKELLYTOWN (Staff)—Five employees of Northern Natural Gas Co. were presented gold watches, an extra week's paid vacation, and cash bonuses for 25 years service to the company at a banquet held in Omaha, Neb., April 27.

Those honored were Earvin Carper, shift foreman; Lewis Collins, district clerk; Ben Hand, utility repairman; Melvin Beigle, gathering and dispatching clerk; and Cecil Hoskins, maintenance repairman.

The five joined the gas company in 1945. They were among 46 company employees recognized for a quarter century of service to the company.

AMSTERDAM (UPI)—Denver, one of four cities bidding for the 1976 Winter Olympic Games, will present pins carried on the Apollo 13 flight Committee. Astronaut John L. Swigert of Denver carried the U.S. Olympic pin and Denver City pin on this flight.

through Friedrich Strasse. Charlie registers Americans entering East Berlin so that they can be looked for if they do not return around the time they said they would.

"Are you an American?" asked Spezia, who was on duty and wearing his American uniform.

"You see what I mean?"

HABIT IS STRONG

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Chicago Women's Liberation Union announced that a boycott of unnecessary consumer items would begin today as an antiwar demonstration.

The announcement was made in a news release that cited a "spokesperson" as source. The ladies slipped the second paragraph. "spokesman was referred to."

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court has been subjected to so much abuse in recent years it is only fair to give the justices a hand when they do something you agree with.

So I would like to extend my compliments to the court for its recent decision upholding the constitutionality of a law dealing with sexy junk mail.

Nice going, fellows!

Under this law, you can have the post office order a mailer to stop sending you advertisements for "erotically arousing or sexually provocative" material.

Allows You To Judge
The beauty of it is that it allows you to be the judge of what is "erotically arousing or sexually provocative." And the advantage of that has just been pointed out to me by Jim Atkins, publicist for a national trade association (not the Direct Mail Advertising Association).

"I find federal income tax forms erotically arousing and sexually provocative," Atkins said. "Therefore I am asking the Post Office Department to order the Internal Revenue Service to stop sending them to me."

I said, "What is it about the tax forms that arouses you?"

"The language," Atkins replied. "Tax forms are written in a highly provocative style. Some of the passages are more erotic than the gardenhouse scenes in 'Lady Chatterley's Lover.'"

I said, "Could you cite some examples?"

"Be glad to. Heres a passage from Schedule D:

"If held for more than one year, enter the results of multiplying the smaller of (1) column 1, or (2) column F-2 less than amount of depreciation computed for the same period using the straight line method, by the percentage obtained by subtracting from 100 per cent, one percentage point from each full month held in excess of 20 months."

Pretty Erotic Stuff
I gave a low whistle.

"That's pretty erotic stuff all right," I said. "No wonder you are trying to get it barred from the mails."

"Yes, and I have young people around my house," Atkins said. "Imagine the effect it would have on someone of an impressionable age. And get a load of this:

"If line 10, Part I, shows a net loss, the loss shall be allowed as a deduction, only to the extent of the smaller of (1) line 3, schedule T (or line 15C, form 1040 if tax table is used), computed without capital gains (losses), or (2) $1000!"

I said, "Jim, I do believe you were blushing as you read that."

"I never see it without getting red in the face," Atkins said.

Hollywood In Review

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bill Cosby is the bravest star on television, surrounding himself with appealing children — a quagmire of distraction eschewed by every actor since Edwin Booth.

Worsuc—D Cos allows the little rascals to toss in their own dialogue when the mood seizes them; which is often.

When they lip or pipe an startled reaction is priceless, something he couldn't rehearse or practice.

Ad lib is the comedian's forte. During the "I Spy" years it was Cosby's humorous patter that buttressed weak scripts. Off-the-cuff quips are a way of life with him.

"Man, I don't like too much rehearsal," he said on the set the other day. "This season we're doing three-day rehearsals. Next year, two."

"I've been teaching the kids to ad lib. I let them read the lines in the script, and then have them put the thoughts in their own words. It works."

Cosby looks like a spectator on the set between shots. He lounges in baggy trousers and sweatshirt with a floppy hat falling down around his ears. Purposely or not, he is so casual the children are relaxed and at ease with the star.

"I try to play my character as the establishment with authority," he said. "And every time he makes a mistake he rubs it out, as if he had made it in the first place."

While competing against little kids, he is really in charge. And they know it.

"It may be difficult for many people to understand the human being I play who happens to be a part of all of us. I think most parents get the message.

"You ask a kid to go to bed and when he asks why, the mother or father answers, 'because I said so!'"

"Maybe parents need parents. If you've had too much to drink or you're sleepy but don't go to bed, perhaps there ought to be someone around to tell you about it."

Cosby is the father of two young daughters and an infant son. He has impressive rapport with small fry, speaking to them on their own plane of comprehension.

He never laughs at a child or pulls rank as an adult.

"If you listen to what a child is saying to you carefully, you'll see that invariably he has a point to make," Cosby said. "No matter how humorous his voice may sound, the serious thought is behind it."

"So I listen. And I answer them just as seriously as possible. And if I don't know the answer, I tell them I don't know."

To the kids, Bill Cosby is a big one of them. They like him, but they also respect his size:

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Fears and suspicions are characteristic of the more emotional phases of stock market corrections, just as over-optimism and over-confidence are evident during the late stages of advances, Harris, Upham & Co. says. The 1970 market which has been acting up to now like "a suspicious man who is afraid he will find a ghost in the closet" is doing the very things it should do to remove the distortions that were created in the past five years.

"Despite the magnification which is inherent in the immediacy of today," the market should be able to weather the crisis of 1970 without collapsing, says Wright Investors' Service. The investor's best course is to retain confidence in "the basic strength, profitability, and value" of the blue-chip stocks, the firm says.

Since the principal victims of the market's "panic" to date have been professional or at least "sophisticated" investors, the selling has been directed orderly, Hoppin Bros. & Co. says. It may well turn out that this bear market will end without the classic seething climax, simply arriving finally at a point where a small amount of buying encounters a vacuum of offerings. The firm believes that anyone who can afford short-term risks should be a buyer of stocks at this point, since the market is probably near or at a classic, major turning point.

Crazy World Of Washington

By LEON BURNETT
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Odds and ends from the nation's capital—mostly odd:
A dove couple built a nest of twigs in a ledge of the sandstone structure, just outside the balcony of the diplomatic lobby at the State Department, and hatched two eggs.
"I'll be darned," one official commented. "I didn't think anything would ever hatch in this place!"

"Can you imagine," said the news release, "a patrol of soldiers, loaded down with combat gear, crossing the desert with portable air conditioning units strapped to their backs?"
"No, well, neither can the Army's Combat Developments Command (CDC)." Sorry, CDC.

"Soil fills the flowerpots in Baltimore, serves as a garden in Minnesota, produces an orchard in California and bears wheat in North Dakota," Rep. Thomas S. Kleppe wrote or had written for the Congressional Record.
He got onto the subject because the week just past was Soil Stewardship Week, and went on about it in this wise:
"Soil on earth lies as far as the eye can see. It covers millions upon millions of acres around the globe. Yet, it is a rare thing and cannot be replaced."
"This soil is a living thing, yet it can be destroyed."
"This soil is fruitful, yet it can become sterile. This soil produces crops and grasses and trees. It cannot be duplicated by chemistry or physics. This soil is an intricate house of myriad elements."
"Yet it is so commonplace as to be known as dirt."

During floor debate on Vietnam, Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., recalled that 10 days earlier President Nixon said he was confident peace was in sight.
"We have heard that we have turned the corner repeatedly," Gore said. "I might observe that when you turn the corner four times you are then going over old ground."
"And," put in Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, "the light at the end of the tunnel turns out to be Cambodia."
Here's the title of a piece of legislation before the Senate: "Recommendation of Senate Concurrent Resolution 64, a concurrent resolution to terminate certain joint resolutions authorizing the use of the Armed Forces of the United States in certain areas outside the United States."

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Southern Christian Leadership Conference plans to launch a letter-writing and petition campaign against the Indochina War, according to Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D.
"From here on out, the poor, those who suffer most from our society's mad involvement in Indochina, will no longer sit silently while the conflict continues," McGovern said.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough, D-Tex., said Thursday he was beaten in the Texas Democratic primary by the three W's. His victorious opponent Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr. said he's now after the 40 per cent.
Yarborough also said he would not campaign in November as a write-in candidate or as an independent. He said he plans to either teach or practice law when he finishes his 13-year Senate career in January.

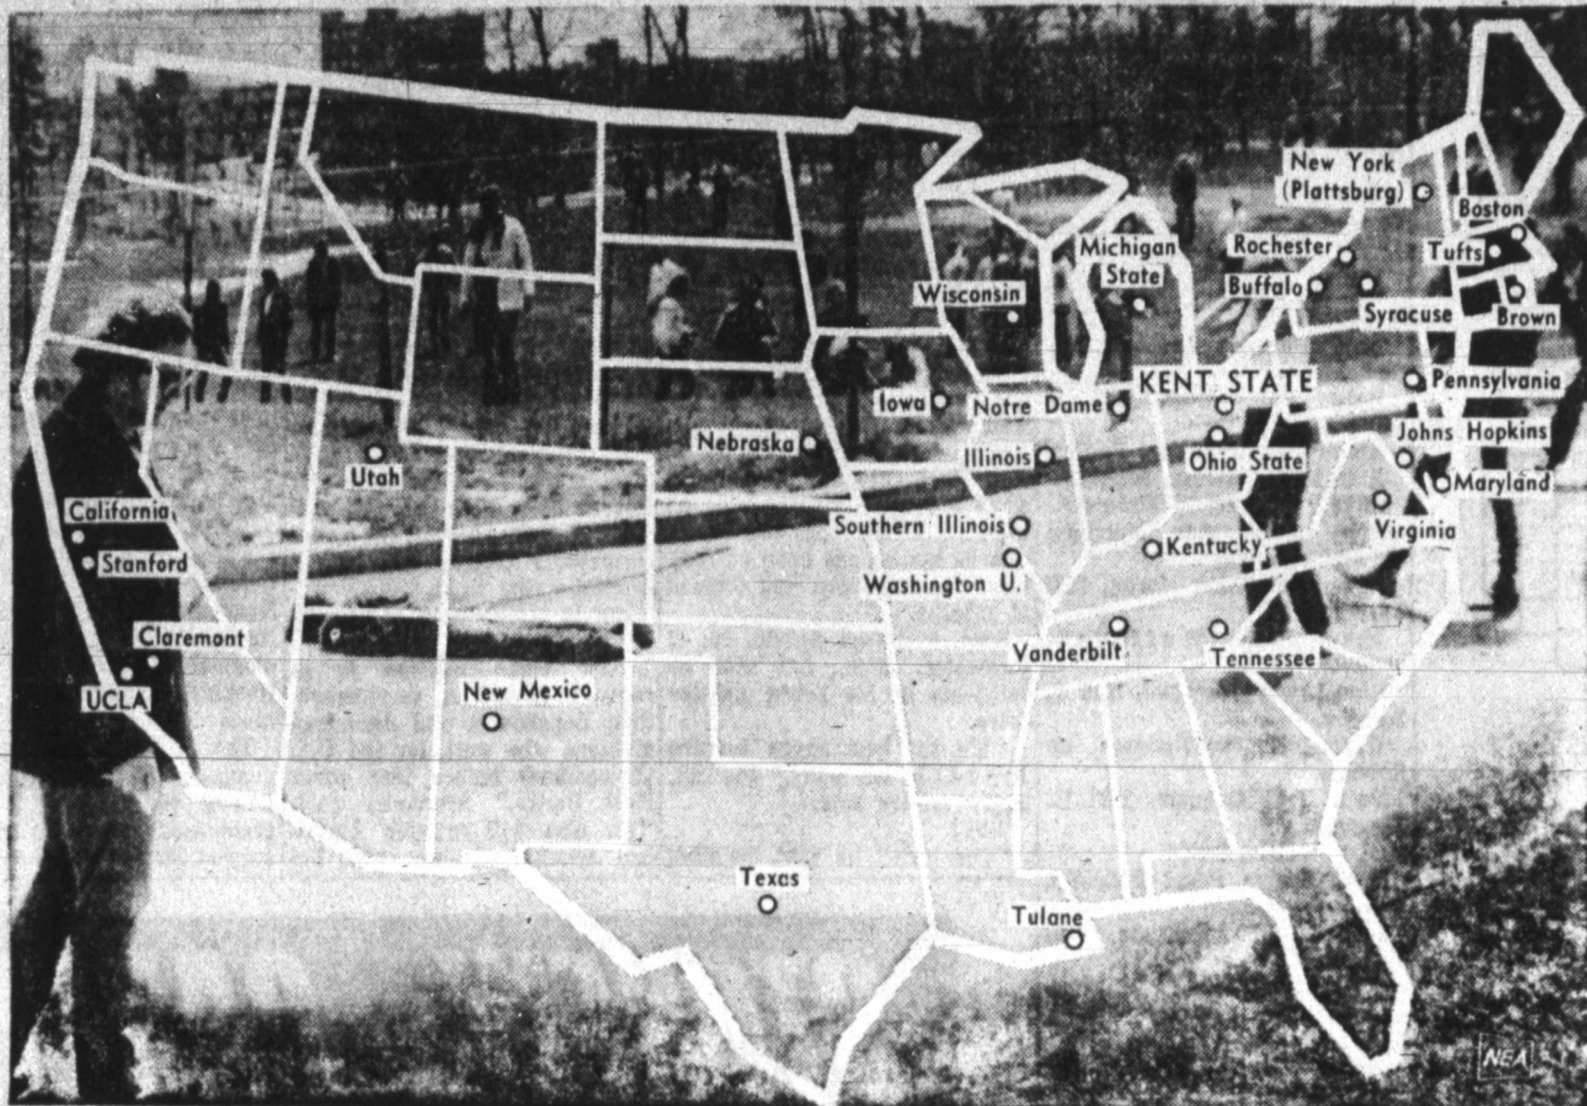

Bentsen said his toughest race—the primary—is over but he will still have to start strong in his campaign against the GOP senate nominee Rep. George Bush, R-Tex.
Yarborough said the three things that beat him were wealth, weather and war.
"The most effective was the $6.5 million spent against me," he said.
"Maybe $700,000 or so
"Six million? I wish I had had it," Bentsen said. "Let's see, it will run something between $700,000 and $800,000 I guess."
"And the weather — we had the worst weather I had ever seen" on an election day, Yarborough said.
Bentsen didn't mention the weather.
"And the war—the Cambodian thing hurt. Bentsen was running on a platform that we ought to fight this war. Nixon came out that day (it was the night before) and said he was willing to be a one-termer, that he would rather give up another term to end the war."

Bentsen said he opposed "escalation of the war," but feels Nixon should receive bipartisan support of his efforts "to scale down the fighting."
Will Back Ticket
Yarborough said he sent a telegram to Bentsen but added: "If I campaign for anything, I will support the straight Democratic ticket."
"Mr. Yarborough sent me a very nice telegram saying he wished me well and was going to support all the Democratic nominees," Bentsen said. "I sent him a telegram back thanking him."
"We found the apathy even deeper for the election than it was for the campaign," Yarborough said. "And, we know that more than 100,000 Republicans voted in the Democratic primary."
Bentsen said a poll revealed 45 per cent of the voting Texans consider themselves Democrats, 40 per cent say they are independents and "only 15 per cent say they are Republicans."

JAMES L. ROLLINS

Army Sgt. James L. Rollins, son of Mrs. W.W. Bratcher of Lefors and A.J. Rollins of Odessa, is presently on leave enroute to assignment in Korea. Rollins has served in Vietnam and Germany. He's on a second three year enlistment. He is a graduate of the 6th Army Non-Commissioned Officers Academy at Ft. Lewis, Wash. He served as a motor pool foreman at Ft. Lewis before being assigned to Korea.

Rollins is married to the former Linda Fay Milford of Quincy, Fla. He has one daughter, Lynn Marie, 2.

WILSON H. HATCHER

Navy Petty Officer Third Class Wilson H. Hatcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd M. Hatcher, 1816 Coffee, participated in a major SEATO training exercise near Manila aboard the guided missile destroyer USS Somers. Among the six nations taking part in the exercise were the U.S., Australia, England, New Zealand, Philippines and Thailand.

RAY AND JOE CARTER

Third Class petty officer, Ray Carter and Second Class petty officer Joe Carter will both be serving in Saigon in the near future, according to their parents Mr. and Mrs. J.E. Carter, Lefors.

Joe arrived in Saigon April 22, after 12 years on Guam as an electronics and nuclear technician. He won highest honors in basic training. Ray will spend one month in San Diego in special communications training before his departure for Saigon.

Both are Lefors High School graduates and attended West Texas State University before entering the service.

ROY D. BLEVINS

Roy D. Blevins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil L. Blevins, Wheeler, was recently promoted to Army sergeant while serving with the 25th Infantry Division near Ft. Nin, Vietnam.

A radio-telephone operator with Headquarters Co., 4th Battalion with the division's 23d Infantry, he entered the Army in September, 1968, and completed basic training at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo. He was stationed at Ft. Knox, Ky., and has received the Bronze Star Medal for heroism and two awards of the Army Commendation Medal for heroism.

FBI Director Has No Retirement Ideas

Director J. Edgar Hoover celebrates his 46th anniversary on the job Sunday with "no intention whatsoever" of retiring. Now serving his eighth year, Hoover turned 75 years of age last Jan. 1, five years past the mandatory retirement age waived for him in 1964 by an admiring President Lyndon B. Johnson. He is even more highly regarded by President Nixon and Attorney General John N. Mitchell.

Hoover, who has not granted a personal interview since late 1968, declined even to answer written questions on this anniversary, citing "the very heavy responsibilities facing me at this time." He told UPI in a letter, however, "that I have no intention whatsoever of retiring."

Pressures of his 17,000-member bureau were at a peak as Hoover celebrated the anniversary of his appointment May 10, 1924, by Attorney General Harlan Fiske Stone.

Present FBI concerns range from the Black Panther party to investigations of campus disorders, crime in the streets, national internal security, aircraft piracy and the Mafia, to name a few Hoover mentioned in recent testimony before the House Appropriations Committee. Hoover's hard-hitting testimony apparently reflected the change in administration. He even included a reference to his differences with former Attorney General Ramsey Clark during the Johnson administration.

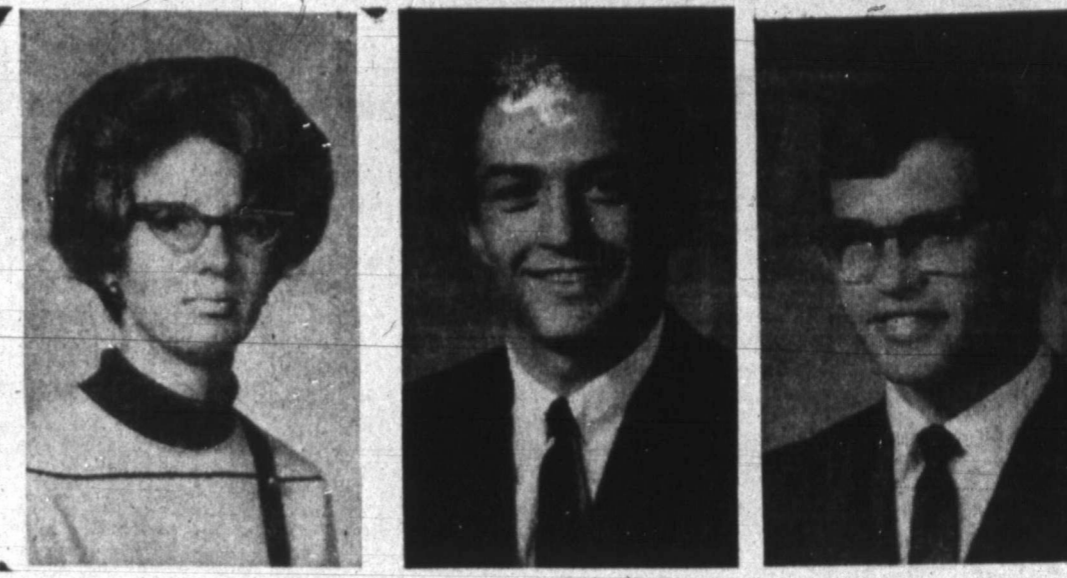

Hoover is quite close to Mitchell, and entertained him and Nixon last fall at a dinner in his Rock Creek Park home. The FBI chief works a minimum of five hours a day, has a ruddy complexion and a quick step, and is nearly as trim as he demands of his agents.

Rarely seen by the public, he speaks only through the monthly FBI bulletin, which is distributed to local law enforcement agencies, and in his annual testimony to Congress.

May Step Down

Despite his firm disavowal of any retirement plans, close observers believe Hoover might step down within the next year. His second in command Associate Director Clyde A. Tolson, will be 70 years old May 22. He is Hoover's closest personal friend and it was expected he would stay on the job even if his mandatory retirement is not waived.

Tolson would continue without pay, which was not considered an unlikely prospect.

THREE GRAY County students of Frank Phillips College will graduate on May 31 with Associate in Arts Degrees. Valerie Jean Moran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Casebier, 2232 N. Dwight, will receive an Associate in Arts Degree in Medical Technology. Billy Ray Earles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie B. Earles, Lefors, will receive an Associate in Arts Degree in Chemical Engineering. Harold W. Sims, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sims, Lefors, will receive an Associate in Arts Degree in Mathematics.

Lack Of Choice Responsible For Rebellion

FORT WORTH (UPI) — The lack of choice in life is responsible for much of the youth rebellion, a California sociologist told the Southwest Regional Conference of the Child Welfare League of America Monday. "Life becomes proscribed for people," Prof. John G. Milner of the University of Southern California School of Social Work said. "There is less and less choice for the individual. Much of the rebellion of the young today is a realization of this lack of choice in our lives. Organized religion is losing followers for this reason; there is no choice, you are not allowed to question the dogma." At the same time, Milner said, a young person's values depend on the quality of his home life. If his is a happy home, he will want to work for the same things his parents have worked for. If not, he will want to change the status quo—"the middle class misery."

"Because of technology, the modern youth knows more about the world than his parents did at this age," Milner said. "By the age of adolescence, the individual can have experienced so much human misery through the communication media that his adult life is tarnished and he is caused to make early decisions about changing the human situation or to feel disillusioned and hopeless about the world."

"Immortality to today's teen is not in breaking with the old Victorian ways of his parents, like the hush-hush of sex. The only immortality he sees in today's social behavior is the inability of his elders to uphold standards they set forth."

Milner said studies at USC indicate that the unhappiest young people come from the upper and middle income brackets.

Carswell Off Campaign Trail

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Former Federal Judge G. Harold Carswell underwent prostate surgery Monday which was expected to take him off the campaign trail for about a month in his quest for a U.S. Senate seat.

Carswell's condition following the operation was described as "excellent" and Dr. Lawrence Smith, who performed the operation, termed it "a complete success."

Human Interest Stories Are In Wake Of Antiwar Protests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vignettes of an antiwar demonstration:

She was a gorgeous blonde in her early twenties. She wore red slacks, a white blouse and big sunglasses. She stood on a street corner near the Ellipse, and held aloft a cardboard sign which said:

"If you're busted, call this number and we'll get you out," she shouted to students thronging past her.

To commit the number to memory, some of the students repeated it aloud. Soon the whole line was chanting the refrain:

"466-2330... 466-2330... 466-2330."

The young man was clean-shaven. He wore horn rimmed glasses and a square haircut. He stood in the hot sun on the White House side of the Ellipse, politely steering pedestrian traffic off the concrete sidewalk.

"Please walk on the grass," he said. "We're keeping the sidewalk open for the first aid teams."

The sign on the wrought-iron gates at the southwest entrance to the White House grounds said:

"Closed to the public." It seemed rather redundant.

In order to read the sign, one had to get through a barricade of city transit buses parked bumper to bumper in the streets to form a two-block hollow square around the White House.

Behind the barricade police stood at 20 foot intervals, ready to cope with anyone who tried to crawl under or climb over the big buses.

Behind the police line, waiting quietly in the shade of a small park, were members of the District of Columbia's highly trained Civil Disorder Unit, otherwise known as the Riot Squad.

It was the kind of day that gives Washington weather a bad reputation: hot and muggy.

By 1:30 p.m., the temperature was 88 degrees in the shade. And most of the demonstrators weren't in the shade. They were standing, or sitting, or lying on the grass, in blazing sunlight.

Many boys stripped off their shirts to take sun-baths. Girls rolled up the legs of their slacks. The oppressive heat, and the marathon oratory, seemed to have a soporific effect. In early afternoon, the mood of the crowd was one of torpor rather than tension.

The crowd reached its peak about 1 p.m. At that hour, a reporter counted 150 persons a minute moving down the sidewalk of 15th Street—one of the six streets which were used by crowds to reach the Ellipse.

By 1:30 p.m., people had begun to drift away. At 3 p.m., the exodus was in full swing. But many thousands still remained at the Ellipse. And some of them were proclaiming their intention of camping there indefinitely.

The protesters did a little blockading of their own.

When an Army truck carrying food for police and troops inside the White House "perimeter" appeared, demonstrators massed in front of it and started chanting, "Turn it back, turn it back."

Police worked their way through, spoke with the driver and the truck went back the way it had come. "We told them to turn back," one officer said. "They'll never get a truck through here."

Another band "liberated" a soft drink truck parked on Constitution Avenue near the Washington Monument grounds, and a big crowd gathered for thirst-quenching.

Once all the pop was consumed, somebody yelled, "Let's liberate the hot dog stand"—and about 30 youngsters did just that, tossing hot dogs and rolls into the crowd.

Lots Of Action In Reflecting Pool

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reflecting Pool, man, that's where the action was.

With the temperatures boiling up toward the 90's, several thousand of the demonstrators in town to protest the war split off from the speechifying and found cool refuge in the shallow waters of the long rectangular pool that stretches from the Lincoln Memorial to the Washington Monument.

At the outset, a few of the males waded in stripped to the waist. In a short while, others went skinny dipping. Several girls bobbed about in the water bare breasted. Others cooled off only in their slips.

The frolic drew hundreds from the main scene—the Ellipse within clear view of the White House where hot weather and hot rhetoric prevailed.

Thousands remain at the Ellipse to hear an array of antiwar leaders demand peace in intense speeches scattered here and there with blunt four letter words.

Dress and hair styles covered a wide spectrum. Youths in campus-style shorts, sport shirts and loafers mingled with those in jeans, buckskin jacket and bare feet.

During the ceremonies, a Negro allowed himself to be symbolically strapped to a cross.

Ronnie Chico, a corner ice cream vendor, did a thriving business. "It was my biggest

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Jeanne C. Riley's hit song, "Harper Valley P.T.A." was the basis of a commercially interesting one-hour country-Western special on NBC-TV during the weekend.

You may recall the tune dealt with a mini-skirted mother who was at odds with some self-righteous hypocrites in a fictitious town called Harper Valley.

Saturday night's NBC-TV special had a more geographically ambitious title. "Harper Valley U.S.A." was what it was called. You get the message.

And even if you didn't, Miss Riley was on hand in a miniskirt, and that's message enough. All those maxi things don't stand a chance so long as there are girls who look like Miss Riley. She is some sexy dame.

Well, anyway, "Harper Valley U.S.A." was a very clever attempt to combine, commercially, some hot entertainment items. And it looked very much like a pilot for a possible video series.

With the song as basis, the setting for the hour was the town of Harper Valley. And the hour itself was a sort of country-Western revue of music and comedy—with occasional moments that aimed at a slightly higher level of sophistication.

A lot of regular characters—"townspeople"—were introduced, and most of them were double-threat talents, doing

WASHINGTON (UPI)—So far as the symbolic political uses of the event are concerned, it makes no difference now whether there was a radical sniper in every tree at Kent State University.

No matter who or what is found to be at blame for the deaths of the four students, the episode will be exploited. Like a religious relic, it will be enshrined and used to reassure the convinced and persuade the wavering that their cause is right.

Obviously, those who want to (reform) (change) (disrupt) (destroy) the existing political, economic or moral value system in this country will try to make Kent State the kind of "bloody shirt" that politicians once used to keep alive bitter memories of the Civil War.

To wave aside the proposition that there are people in this country who accept the necessity of killing, or indeed are ready themselves to kill for what they believe to be right is to ignore the recent increases in both bombings and gun sales in the United States. For them, Kent State evoked feelings more of vindication than of sorrow.

How successful extremists will be in their efforts to use Kent State for their own ends can only be guessed. If the tragedy somehow brought both

WEDNESDAY, MAY 13
Your birthday Wednesday — Progress is the motto for the coming year. Your spiritual resources evolve by doing something every day that remains with you for still further strength. Material welfare improves almost automatically in proportion to your overcoming or outgrowing inner conflicts or inhibitions.

ARIES (March 21-Apr. 19): — Your imagination brings in vivid images of all sorts of wonderful possibilities.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): — Material concerns pose no serious concern. The stress is on fine overtones of human relations; you're very sensitive, so is everybody else.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): — Creative work fortunately goes well. A sparkle of excitement pervades the atmosphere, so that some confusion is to be expected. Pay careful attention to details.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): — Wednesday you are the one who must keep the wheels turning, make the choices — and take the responsibility.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): — Your own program can be furthered by a close association with family and relatives as to what you are doing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): — Confidential matters must remain so Wednesday. Attend to your regular routines in preference to drastic experimental moves, speculative risks.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): — This is a window-shopping type of day — you look but refrain from getting involved in the schemes of your friends. Much is to be gained by keeping matters serious and very simple.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): — The temptation is to change plans without much thought of the results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): — Self-improvement programs continue very important today. Pursue your plans despite superficial distractions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): — Check your plans and estimates with technical advisors. Friends have a wide range of projects in mind, none of them quite perfect for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): — Large issues seem clear enough — it is the trifling, petty details of circumstances that tie up everybody's time and cause dissension.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): — Major decisions have a way of being suddenly at hand, with no time left for consideration. Let small discrepancies ride while you concentrate on the bigger problems.

A lightweight portable washing machine simplifies several laundry situations. From the nightly light laundry to the daily dunking of an infant's clothing, to use in vacation cottage or trailer, this washer answers the need nicely. Weighing only 17 pounds, the machine will handle a 1½ pound dry weight load. It features an automatic timer, an unbreakable and rustproof tub, plus molded handles for easy toting. Plugs into any 120-volt outlet.

Movie Crew Involves Teenagers, Children In Inter-Racial Film

By PATRICIA McCORMICK
NEW YORK (UPI)—Gang warfare and violence did not make the scene when a movie crew moved into Hanover, N.H., to put a "one-to-one" program on film.

The subject: confrontation between black slum youngsters and affluent white suburbanites. Involved were teen-agers from Hanover's comfortable homes and children from New York City's Harlem and similar ghettos.

For many years the New England college town of 1,600 residents has been among 2,000 communities involved in the "Friendly Towns" project under the aegis of the Fresh Air Fund—which arranges free summer vacations for thousands of children from Manhattan's ghettos.

But Hanover is a "friendly town" with a difference—and that's why the film crew went on location there.

Four years ago the community began to experiment with a program called "One-to-One." Each visiting child was paired with a volunteer local high school student who became the child's "big brother" or "big sister" and—confidant, counselor and guide.

Though the one-to-one relationship is informal, it aims to upgrade the reading, writing and verbal skills of the city youngsters through a number of adventures in learning.

These may range from a museum trip to a sailing outing; from informal classroom sessions to a wide-eyed tour of a local art gallery.

The film made last July is out now. Through frequent showings it's hoped the "one-to-one" program will catch on in other towns nationwide.

Richard Slot, whose credits include CBS television's award-winning "Twentieth Century," directed it. Underwritten by the Reader's Digest Foundation, Slot and his crew filmed for two weeks—from the moment the buses from New York disgorged their small passengers in Hanover until the departure to return to the city two weeks later.

"We all learned from each other," Slot said. "We came away from the program convinced that these young people—the disadvantaged from the ghetto and the privileged children of the all-white community—are grappling with one of the knottiest social problems we face."

"What's more they may be finding solutions that have eluded even the most highly qualified professionals."

Hanover, home of Dartmouth, has more college professors than policemen.

The Fresh Air people feel any community has resources for the program.

As a spokesman put it: "Its teen-agers will find them if resourceful enough."

ESA Group Wins District Awards

Kappa Alpha Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha met recently to announce awards won in a district meeting and discuss the state ESA convention which will be held in Dallas.

Mrs. Joel Plunk, Pampa chapter president, reported the local chapter won first place in the district in their History and Disasters fund, and second place in yearbook. Mrs. Robert Rose won Outstanding Pledge and Mrs. Irvin Hungerford Outstanding ESA Girl.

Those planning to attend the state convention May 15-17 in Dallas are Messrs. and Mmes. Ira Bewley, Irvin Hungerford, Joe Miller, Joel Plunk, Robert Rose and Glen McConnell.

Mrs. Rose will represent District X in the Queen contest and Mrs. Hungerford will be the district's candidate for Outstanding ESA Girl at the state convention.

Mrs. Robert Yost also presided for the candlelight officer installation of Mrs. Joe Miller as president; Mrs. Milton Jones, vice president; Mrs. Tommy Seils, secretary; Mrs. Horace Henley, treasurer; and Mrs. James Frazier, education director.

During the social hour, Mrs. Houston Fleetwood was honored with a baby shower.

Those attending were Mmes.

Skellytown WMU Studies Buddhism

SKELLYTOWN (Sp) — WMU members of the First Baptist Church met in the church recently for the regular meeting and Royal Service program. After Mrs. Bill Price read the prayer calendar and gave the special prayer, the lesson was taught by Mrs. M.L. Mills on "While It Is Yet Day" on Buddhism in Thailand.

At noon, those attending a covered dish luncheon in the Fellowship Hall, were the pastor, Rev. Murle Rogers, Mmes. Wanda Rogers, Bill Thompson, Ethel May Thurmond and grandson Bryon, Della Grant, Curtis Prescott, Frieda Sturgill, John Kenney, Walt Shair, A.B. Baker, Jack Baker, M.L. Mills, Clarence Kaiser, Bill Campbell, Bill Price and three guests, Rev. Rogers, Bill Thompson and Walt Shair.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, a junior honor student in college, came home for Easter vacation and told us she wasn't going back because she was five months pregnant and beginning to "show."

She said the man (a graduate student) agreed to marry her; but wanted a divorce after the baby was born because "marriage didn't fit into his plans." She refused his offer of marriage and has decided to keep the baby? She says she doesn't believe in signing a child away like a piece of property she can't use right now.

Her father and I are behind her. We are educated, and considered "nice" people.

We've decided to tell people that our daughter's "husband" went to Vietnam and when he returned he had "changed," so she divorced him. Our clergyman advised us to tell that story and to stick with it.

We still haven't worked out the problem of the baby's name. Any suggestions?

NO NAME OR TOWN, PLEASE
DEAR NO NAME: With all due respects to your clergyman, I say the less lying the better. "O, what a tangled web we weave when first we practice to deceive."

DEAR ABBY: Re a letter from "IRKED" whose "beef" was a nurse who talked too much about her profession at a dinner party. My "beef" is just the opposite. I, too, am a nurse, and I wish people would let me forget it when I'm off duty.

When I'm in uniform I am constantly cornered by strangers who want to give me their complete medical history, and expect an instant diagnosis and even suggestions for treatment. I can be standing in a cafeteria line, in a grocery store, or waiting for a bus. When I'm out socially, my friends will do the same. I try to cut them short by asking, "Have you spoken to your family doctor about this?" but it rarely shuts them up. So you may sign me.....

IRKED, TOO
DEAR IRKED: Try the standard squelch used by a doctor-friend of mine when he is asked for professional advice at a cocktail party: "I can't discuss it without a physical examination first. Take your clothes off!"

DEAR ABBY: I am a happily married woman with three children. There is something about which my husband and I disagree, and I want your opinion.

I am a fairly good housekeeper and I have a lot to do. Lately I have been getting up about 4:30 in the morning. I can't get back to sleep again once I'm up, so I very quietly get out of bed, close the bedroom door, and find some housework to do. I'm not "sick" or anything. I'm just all slept out and I wake up. I sometimes wash and wax my floors, do some ironing, and mending and other chores I can't do with three children running in and out.

My husband says I am "nuts!" In fact, we've gotten into some real fights over it. I say it doesn't matter what time I do my work, and as I can't sleep, what's the difference? I never disturb him. Am I "nuts" or is my husband being unreasonable?

EARLY BIRD
DEAR EARLY: You are not "nuts." Your husband is unreasonable. (And I am not merely taking the woman's side.) If your husband were to get up at that hour and busy himself, if you objected, I'd say you were "unreasonable."

POLLY'S POINTERS

Reader Requests Method To Make Coat Sweater

DEAR POLLY — While shopping I saw a lady wearing a lovely coat sweater made of two large towels. I would like to know how to make one of these. We spend every weekend at our camp and such a jacket would be just the thing to wear.

—MRS. J.B.C.

DEAR MRS. J.B.C. — I feel sure someone will write and tell you how to make such a coat. But you should not have hesitated about asking the lady wearing the one you admired. Most people are very flattered when someone compliments them on something they they have made.

—POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I do not believe that L.A.M. can get rid of the screw threads at the top of her lovely green bottle. She can cover them by coating with glue or shellac and then winding gold or silver cord (Polly's note — Or green like the bottle) round and round until the neck is even. If the bottle is straight at any place she could put on another strip of the cord.

—MRS. R.D.

DEAR POLLY — After I wash and hang my draperies, I repeat them with a pants presser. I have some that are not worth the price of dry cleaning so I hit on this idea, and it works fine. I hold the pleats in place with a wide tape and then go down the pleats with the presser.—KAY

DEAR POLLY — I am one of those larger women who have trouble buying half-slips that are large enough but have found my own solution. When the top begins to wear on a nylon gown

You may lose 10 lbs. in 10 days with the chilled Grapefruit Juice Diet

DATELINE, U.S.A.

This is the revolutionary grapefruit diet that everyone is suddenly talking about. Literally thousands upon thousands of copies have been passed from hand to hand in factories, plants and offices throughout the U.S. and Canada.

Word of its success has spread like wildfire... Because this is the diet that really works. If you follow it exactly, you may lose 10 pounds in 10 days. There will be no weight loss in the first four days. But you may suddenly drop 5 pounds on the 5th day. Thereafter you may lose one pound a day until the 10th day. Then you may lose 1½ pounds every two days until you get down to your proper weight. Best of all, there will be no hunger pangs. Now revised and enlarged, this new diet plan lets you stuff yourself with foods that were formerly "forbidden", such as big steaks trimmed with fat, roast or fried chicken, rich gravies, mayonnaise, lobster, swimming in butter, bacon, sausages, and scrambled eggs. You can eat until you are full, until you cannot possibly eat any more... And still lose 10 pounds in the first ten days plus 1½ pounds every two days thereafter until your weight is down to normal. The secret behind this new "quick weight loss" diet is simple. Fat does not form fat. And the grapefruit juice in this new diet acts as a catalyst (the trigger) to start the fat burning process. You stuff yourself on the permitted food listed in the diet plan, and still lose unsightly fat and excess body fluids. When the fat and bloat is gone you will cease to lose weight and your weight will remain constant. A copy of this new and startling successful diet plan can be obtained by sending $1.00 to Gardner House, 1506 Oakland Tribune Tower, Oakland, California, 94612. Tear out this message as a reminder. Decide now to regain the trim, attractive figure of your youth, while enjoying hearty breakfasts, lunches and dinners.

AARON NEARS 3,000-HIT MARK

Braves Nip Cubs

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

The countdown is in earnest for Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves but it's over for Tom Seaver of the New York Mets.

The magic number for Aaron is five—the number of hits he needs to become the ninth player in major league history to make 3,000 hits during his career. The eight now in one of baseball's most exclusive clubs—Ty Cobb, Stan Musial, Tris Speaker, Honus Wagner, Eddie Collins, Nap Jajoie, Paul Waner and Cap Anson—are all in the Hall of Fame.

The 36-year old Aaron moved to within five hits of the 3,000-level Monday when he hit his 14th homer of the season and three singles in the Braves' 7-6 victory over the Chicago Cubs. The homer, the 568th of Aaron's career, led off the 10th inning and was a 425-foot drive into the wind off rookie Archie Reynolds. Aaron's hits figured in four run-scoring innings.

Rico Carty extended his hitting streak to 29 consecutive games with a single that put the Braves in front, 6-4.

Seaver, who lost his last National League game on Aug. 5, 1969, ran into a three-hit shutout by Dan McGinn, who pitched the Montreal Expos to a 3-0 victory over the Mets.

Jim Fairey homered for the Chicago White Sox topped the Detroit Tigers, 9-5, the California Angels beat the Boston Red Sox, 2-1, in 16 innings and the Milwaukee Brewers and New York Yankees played a 5-5 tie halted at the end of nine innings by rain.

Bob Veale pitched a three-hitter and Bill Mazerowski doubled home the tie-breaking run in the fifth inning for the Pirates, who dealt Jim McGlothlin his third loss of the season.

Richie Allen hit his 10th homer of the season with two on in the ninth inning to break up a pitching duel between the Cardinals' Steve Carlton and the Phillies' Jim Bunning. Carlton pitched a four-hitter and struck out 10 in winning his second game.

Ken Henderson scored the 14th-inning winning run for the Giants on first baseman Nate Colbert's error on a grounder by Bob Burda. Gaylord Perry, who went 13 innings, was credited with his fourth victory of the season.

Former Harvesters Net Houston Letters

HOUSTON — Four former Pampa High School football players have earned varsity football letters at the University of Houston.

Ted Heiskell, Jim Arthur, Glen Lewis and L.D. Rowden are among a list of 38 lettermen from the 1969 Cougar squad that posted a 9-2 record, including a 36-7 win over Auburn in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

The award is the third for Arthur and the first for Lewis, Heiskell and Rowden.

Arthur, 5-11, 205-pound center, is a senior. He captained the Pampa grid squad in 1964 and also lettered in baseball and basketball.

Heiskell, junior fullback, was an all-district choice and captain of the 1966 Harvester team. He also won letters for track and baseball.

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Al McBean, Pittsburgh pitcher, was placed on waivers Monday by the Pirates, who recalled hurler Gene Garber from their Columbus farm team. McBean joined the Cubs only last month after getting his release from the Los Angeles Dodgers. He had pitched 10 innings for the Pirates and showed a 7.20 ERA.

A 6-3, 230-pound junior tackle, Lewis was an all-district middle guard and an all-zone center on the 1966 Pampa team.

Rowden was selected to the all-zone squad and was a captain for the 1966 Harvesters. He also lettered in basketball. Rowden is six foot-two inches tall and received the award for his play at the safety position.

Houston finished among the nation's top 20 teams for the fourth consecutive season, the only major college team in the state of Texas to do so for four straight years.

The Cougars will open the 1970 season Sept. 19 against Syracuse in the Astrodome. Houston will also make a national television appearance against Florida State Thanksgiving night and be on regional television against Miami of Florida Dec. 5.

Top Names Absent In Colonial Tourney

FORT WORTH (UPI) — A hurried shifting of places and faces in the 100-player field of the Colonial National Invitation golf tournament has a few top names missing and a few unexpected names taking their places.

John Schroeder, the 24-year-old pro who matched Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus better than stroke for stroke in the final two rounds of the Nelson Classic 10 days ago, accepted his invitation Monday along with five-time champion Ben Hogan and South Africa's Gary Player.

Hogan, who ended a three-year layoff last weekend at Houston Champion's International and Player had been invited from the first, but Schroeder got his bid when Larry Mowry was forced to withdraw from the tournament which opens at Colonial Country Club Thursday.

Billy Casper, on tour in Japan, and Mike Hill, who has a sick wife, also withdrew from the tournament and were replaced by Rives McBee and Dudley Wyson.

statement to an organizational meeting of the Top O Texas chapter of the West Texas State University Ex-students Association Monday night in the Security Federal Savings and Loan building.

Although Valley officials will make one more visit to the WTSU campus at Canyon, May 18 the head football mentor calls it only procedural.

"This will be the visit we thought the previous two were going to be," Kerbel, who is also athletic director, explained. "They won't try to find any ghosts in the closets, it will be a mere formality and West Texas will be voted into the Missouri Valley Conference within a very short time after that."

The MVC is composed of eight schools: Tulsa, St. Louis, Memphis State, Bradley, Wichita State, Drake, North Texas State and Louisville. Out of these eight, however, only six, Memphis State, Tulsa, North Texas State, Drake, Louisville and Wichita State compete in conference football.

In an effort to snare additional television revenue, the league wants to add two more schools to its football roster and WTSU is presently the only team under consideration.

"I like to be in that position," Kerbel happily commented.

Eventually, four more schools will be taken in by the Valley to boost its program in other sports, but as Kerbel pointed out, there are no definite prospects at the present time.

"Asking permission to join the Missouri Valley Conference is like asking to fight Cassius Clay," the Buff coach continued.

"It's a tough conference, but

Shaving Strokes by Frank Beard

The rules permit you to carry 14 clubs, or more than enough. Most average players don't pay enough attention to which ones they put in their bags and which ones they leave out. A pro is very careful about it.

I carry the 1-3-4 woods, 2-9 irons, two wedges and a putter. One wedge is for fairway shots, one for sand shots. I wouldn't recommend that combination, though.

You probably would be better off, if you play only once or twice a week, removing the 2- and 3-irons and replacing them with the 5- and 6-woods. Most people can't effectively play the long irons, so why not just avoid them? Swallow your pride and you'll be amazed how often your score will drop two or three shots.

A lot of people believe only women carry 5-woods, but I know some fine pros, players like Homero Blancas and Jim Wright, who carry 5-woods, and use them frequently. The loft in the clubhead of a 5-wood is comparable to the loft of a 2-iron, and you can get out of a bad lie easier with a 5-wood. Also, the longer shaft on the 5-wood means you will get more distance. Swing the 5-wood easily, as if it were a short iron, never forcing the shot, and I think you'll be delighted with the results.

If you are an erratic driver, consider carrying a 2-wood, or brassie as it used to be called, instead of a 1-wood. You won't get quite the distance you would with a driver, but your consistency will improve.

DALLAS (UPI)—Gene and Joe Pouncy, one half of the high school 440-yard relay team which set a national record last weekend, signed binding letters of intent Monday with Southern Methodist University.

The Pouncys signed letters of intent with SMU earlier in the recruiting wars which restricted them only to the Dallas school among the other seven members of the Southwest Conference. They could still sign a national letter of intent with another school outside the conference.

But the Pouncys decided to stick with their original plan and signed the national letter with SMU. The University was not as lucky with two other signees.

Rufus Shaw, a third member of that relay team who signed a conference letter with SMU, signed a national letter Monday with Stanford. Quarterback Mike Gilyard, who played football on the Dallas Lincoln school which produced the

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Re-Inventing The Wheel

There are strident voices urging resistance to law in the name of freedom. They are not seeking freedom for themselves—they have it; they are seeking to enslave others. They who break the laws are the slaves of their own crime. It is not for the advantage of others that the citizen is abjured to obey the laws, but for his own advantage. What he claims a right to do to others, that he must admit others have a right to do to him. His obedience to the law is his own protection.

America lays no claim to the discovery of the theory of freedom or self government. Its glory lies in the ability of its people to put those theories into practice, not merely the power to state them, but the capacity to live up to them.

Who said that? Vice President Spiro Agnew? Attorney General John Mitchell?

No; these are the words of Calvin Coolidge, who served as President of the United States from 1923 to 1928. Mr. Coolidge had much to his political credit, having served in several elected offices in the state of Massachusetts. However, the main reason why he became President was because in 1919, as Governor of Massachusetts, he cracked down hard when the Boston police went on strike. Coolidge sternly pronounced that "there is no right to strike against the public safety by anyone, anywhere, any time." As a firm advocate of strict law and order, Mr. Coolidge became a national hero. He was elected Vice President in 1920, became President on the death of Warren Harding in 1923, was re-elected by a landslide in 1924, and left office when he chose not to run in 1928.

It is said that the value of history is in the lessons it teaches. Noting the antics of some in America today, we wonder if they ever cracked a history textbook. They seem not to realize most of the "great decisions" they feel called upon to make today, have already been made, and by others much wiser than they, a long time ago. Why is it that some people insist upon re-inventing the wheel?

About G, X And M Films

The movie industry has classified its product from "G" for General to "X" for Verboten but it hasn't been able to classify the customers of that product, says NEA writer Don Oakley.

How many potential ticket-buyers are roaming around looking for a nice "G" picture? asks the writer of an article in Film Bulletin, suggesting some sort of census of movie-goers or potential movie-goers.

Think of the headaches and deficits that could be avoided, he says, if producer, distributor and exhibitor knew for sure whether the "X" people are the great silent majority or merely a noisy minority the box office cannot rely upon for long.

For that matter, it would be helpful to know the potential patronage for the "M" (Mature) pictures and how many purses will pop open to buy tickets for an "A" (Restricted) epic.

In all other "canned goods" businesses, says the writer, the manufacturer and retailer know pretty well beforehand what the public wants so they don't stock up on stuff which market research indicates will not sell. Maybe the movie business needs something like that.

The foregoing indicates that the only thing the film industry has learned from history is that it has not learned from history.

"Things were so simple a couple of decades ago, when all pictures were "G" pictures and all movie-goers were "G" people. Then along came television, the "G"-est of all possible "G"-type entertainment.

Sure, people complain that there are so few pictures suitable for the whole family, but they also stay away in droves from those that are showing, especially with tickets costing $2 or more a head.

"M," "R" and "X" pictures may entice them away from hearth and tube temporarily, even as 3-D, wide screen, panoramic sound and 4-hour epics enticed them away temporarily.

The moviemakers don't need a market survey. They need sympathy.

Cashing In On Fem-Libs

The ingenuity of the American businessman is apparently a match for any challenge. One manufacturer of appliances for housewives has even figured out a way to capitalize on the women's liberation movement.

Just introduced on the market is a new vacuum cleaner called the "Lifeguard," whose claim to fame is seven easily replaceable parts.

Should any component in the cleaner, including even the motor, go on the blink, your average housewife can order a new one and simply snap it in place. No tools are needed, including that simple tool called a husband. The machine thus liberates a woman from that much dependence on the "man around the house."

It's rather doubtful if the Fem-lib battalions will rush out to buy the vacuum cleaner, desirable as it sounds. They don't seem to be the types who go in much for housework of any kind.

Now if some manufacturers really wanted to strike a blow for liberation—for housewives and house husbands both—he'd come up with a car with replaceable snap-on fenders.

Wit and Whimsy

A man returned to his office one Monday morning showing signs of a very strenuous weekend. One of his good friends found him hunched over his desk with his head buried in his arms.

Mr. Smith (the friend) — What in heaven's name have you been doing?

Mr. Stone (the sufferer groaned) — Fishing through the ice.

Mr. Smith — Fishing through the ice? For what?

Mr. Stone — Cherries and olives.

Mr. Lee (the angry father from the head of the stairs) — Young man, didn't I hear the clock strike four when you brought my daughter in?

Larry (the boyfriend) — You did, it was going to strike 11, but I grabbed it and held the gong so it wouldn't disturb you.

The father muttered, Mr. Lee — Wonder why I didn't think of that one in my courting days!

Two campers bedded down for the night in their sleeping bags. Immediately they were set upon by a horde of thirsty mosquitoes. Pulling blankets over their heads helped, but they were nearly suffocating. Finally one peeked out to see if the coast was clear. Noticing some fireflies he groaned, "It's no use. We might as well give up. They're looking for us with lanterns!"

H. L. Hunt Writes

SOVIET CENSORSHIP

Many reporters and broadcasters in the mass media are quick to point out, and sometimes to exaggerate, the problems in our country. But we see and hear very little about problems in the Soviet Union from Western correspondents stationed there.

Aaron Einfrank, a correspondent for the Toronto Telegram who was in Moscow from May 1967 to November 1969 and then was expelled by the Soviet government, has given us some of the reasons for this situation in an interview in the Telegram. He points out that the Soviet secret police, the KGB, censors almost all television reports from the Soviet Union.

According to Mr. Einfrank, Soviet officials "are scared of death of the printed word and photographs. Pictures of collective farms are not allowed... because they would show the poverty of the country."

Newsmen in Moscow are often afraid to present the truth about life in the Soviet Union for fear that they will be expelled. Since they do not explain this situation, our citizens could assume that what they see on television and read in magazines and newspapers about the Soviet Union is the whole truth.

Mr. Einfrank has urged news correspondents working in Russia to tell their readers and viewers that "what they are reading about that country is censored news."

The information provided by defectors from the Soviet Union shows that life there is far less pleasant than it is often pictured to us in our mass media. Our reporters and broadcasters would demonstrate real professional integrity if their news releases portrayed the truth about life under communism.

I would like to give a little advice to those kids who wish to make a career of being delinquents...

First, get everything you want from your parents—make them look grody. Keep pulling their jugs till they're out of their sockets. You'll be turned on at how far they'll go to make you happy.

Try a few bad words on them—they'll laugh. Then you can work up to some groovies that will make them just flip. Unravel all spiritual strings from your gourd. Don't think!

Be a real mover—take up with the gief. Satisfy your every craving for food, drink, and sensual strings from your gourd. Don't think!

Spend all your time tooling around. Be sure you avoid all hairy talk with parents and never let anyone punch your ego!

Pick up and read any printed smut you can get your hands on. Be sure your drinking glasses are sterilized and your silverware is clean, but clutter up your top with garbage...

Leave all doinkys lying around in your room, books, clothes, etc. Let mother pick them up for you, it makes her feel more subservient...

Yack neighbors, teachers, policemen—show them your prejudices against all society...

In no time you'll be a swinging delinquent. And in a few years more you will be able to rap with lifers at the grey hotel...

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

British physicist Ernest Rutherford paved the way toward the Nuclear Age when he observed that nuclear reactions released great quantities of energy. In 1901, his discovery of the spontaneous disintegration of radioactive substances revealed that energy released in a nuclear disintegration is roughly a million times the amount of a chemical reaction. The World Almanac notes.

THE KENT STATE TRAGEDY

Truth Of What Happened May Never Be Determined

By DON OAKLEY NEA Staff Writer

The shooting to death of two young men and two young women by National Guardsmen at Kent State University in Kent, Ohio, was a terrible and deplorable thing. It is one of the worst stains on any page of this country's history.

So confused was the situation on the beleaguered campus that the truth of what actually happened, what caused guardsmen to loose a fusillade of bullets into a crowd of students — whether it was the result of an order, a misunderstanding or in self-defense or out of sheer panic — may never be known.

What is certain is that when two groups of youngsters chase each other playing Good Guys and Bad Guys — both sides armed, one with stones and the other with guns — someone is going to get hurt.

Before assessing responsibility for the deaths, however, it should be remembered why the Guard was present in the first place. Consider these events which took place in a small town of 18,000 with a university population of 20,000 during two nights preceding the tragedy:

On the first night, students swarmed into the downtown business area, tearing down signs, demolishing phone booths and painting revolutionary slogans on their walls.

On the second night, students set fire to the ROTC building on the campus. When firemen arrived, they pelted them with fire rocks and machetes — not pen knives but machetes. The building was destroyed.

Students also set fire to two other small structures on the campus, broke lights and destroyed parking meters in the parking lot, scooping up the scattered change.

Students also allegedly threatened to kill reporters from a local newspaper if they took pictures and telephoned threats to merchants to display "peace" signs in their windows "or your stores will be burned."

How does Vietnam or Cambodia or black studies or curriculum reform or any other excuse justify this senseless destruction and gangster behavior?

National Guardsmen are not trained to deal in psychological persuasion against rampaging rioters. These men — boys, really — were already under strain from duty during a violent Teamsters' strike in Cleveland.

The ultimate blame for what happened at Kent rests squarely on a small core of instigators — some of them students at Kent, some of them from outside — and indirectly on the masses of students who, while they did not actively participate in the disturbances, watched and applauded from the sideline.

Beyond them, blame falls on faculty and administrators — not just at Kent but at a dozen other colleges and universities. For too long, the one has egged on the dissenters and the others have permitted law-breakers to go unpunished out of fear of "radicalizing" the other students.

Now, we are all radicalized. Almost exactly two centuries ago, in 1770, nervous British soldiers fired into a crowd of rioters in Boston, drawing the first blood of the American Revolution.

If there be any who believe that a second revolution has begun at Kent State University, let them ponder the words of John Adams, who defended the soldiers at their trial:

"Revolutions are no trifles," wrote Adams years after the war. "They ought never to be undertaken rashly; nor without deliberate consideration and sober reflection; nor without a solid, immutable, eternal foundation of justice and humanity; nor without a people possessed of intelligence, fortitude and integrity..."

How much reflection, how much humanity — was displayed by the rioters at what radicals will undoubtedly call the Kent Massacre of 1970?

Young people have shouted long and raucously that they are going to "turn this country around" and set it straight. The time is overdue for them to turn around and take a sober, reflective look at themselves, at what they have done.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and the proper function of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION: — Negro militant Harry Edwards recently was quoted as saying, "Violent demonstrations against Mormon-owned Brigham Young University will continue until the church accepts Negroes to the priesthood." Does not the Constitution assure the populace their religious freedom? If this is so, then are not the Negroes in violation of federal law when they attempt to interfere with the religious doctrines of this church?

ANSWER: — The Constitution prohibits government from legislation either establishing religion or "prohibiting the free exercise thereof." We do not know how far the courts have stretched the meaning of the First Amendment, but we believe any peaceful demonstrations cannot be prohibited by private individuals against any organizations. Violent activities, which deprive others of their equal rights, are legally and morally wrong.

We believe the Mormons have a right to practice their religion in any way they choose, even though we might not agree with their practices. We also believe Mr. Edwards and his group have a right to practice any religion they choose, or to have no religion at all.

Mr. Edwards has a right to take any peaceful means to try to persuade the Mormons to change their practices. He has no right to use violence against any individual.

The Doctor Says

Illness of Skin May Be Hereditary

Q — What causes excessive oiliness of the skin? What can be done for it?

A — Oiliness may be a hereditary trait and it may be aggravated by nervous tension. Even though the amount of oil is not increased in warm weather, active sweating will make the oiliness more noticeable. There is no drug you can take internally to control the oil but 5 per cent sulfur in a nongreasy cream will help to dry your skin. Astringent pads that can be used when it is not convenient to wash with soap and water are also available.

Q — My doctor says I have neurobiosis fiboidica on my leg and that there is no cure for it. What do you think?

A — This disease is characterized by small nodules in the skin. They heal slowly, leaving scars. Most, but not all, victims have diabetes. Controlling the diabetes does not cure or prevent the disease and no effective treatment has yet been found.

Q — I am a man, 30. My doctor says I have Schamberg's disease and that it will clear up in two or three years. But I have had it since I was about 16 and it is slowly getting worse. What do you think?

A — This disease, progressive pigmentary dermatosis, is a form of hemioderoidosis, a condition in which iron is stored in the skin without damaging it. It is usually limited to the legs and thighs and is characterized by patches of light brown pigmentation. There is no treatment but, since the distribution of the lesion is such that it doesn't show and since it doesn't affect your health, this isn't too important. The pigment does fade out in time but it may take many years.

Q — What can you put on a small skin cancer to dry it up?

A — Although surgical removal as soon as the cancer is discovered is still considered the best treatment by many doctors, some new drugs, obtainable only on prescription, have been used successfully. These include 5-fluorouracil, methotrexate and dichloroacetic acid. Other treatments useful in properly selected cases include freezing and radioactive isotopes.

Q — What causes trichophtheloma and ecrrine spiradenoma? Is there any cure?

A — A trichophtheloma is a relatively benign form of skin cancer and an ecrrine spiradenoma is a benign tumor of the sweat glands. Their cause is unknown. For the treatment see the preceding answer.

Inside Washington

F111 Testing—for Safety. Or for Costly Reassurance?

JOHN GOLDSMITH

ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Each plane in the grounded force of F-111s fighters will be proof-tested, under current plans, in a giant icebox, under peak wing loadings and at temperatures down to minus 40 degrees before the planes are returned to duty.

Two of the king-size cold "cells" are being built at Fort Worth and a third at Waco, Tex. The cost is estimated at $31 million. Additional testing costs for each of some 230 planes are estimated at $70,000.

That is the Rubie Goldberger testing plan which has been outlined to congressional committees. Air Force Secretary Robert C. Seamans Jr. says the program will "revalidate" each of the F-111s, which were grounded in December after a crash disclosed a structural failure.

The heavy wing loadings, to simulate a force equal to 7.33 Gs, and the very cold temperatures are designed to subject each plane to conditions and stresses similar to maneuvering at high altitude.

The government will pay 85 per cent of the testing costs and the contractor, General Dynamics Corp., will pay the rest. However, those costs will not further inflate the bill for the F-111 program in which the government will soon have invested some $6.8 billion.

The testing program will be charged off against the new budget's $483.5 million outlay for F-111s. Under that arrangement, the Air Force will purchase 36 rather than 40 of the planes in the new fiscal year.

MORE LATER — The first of the grounded F-111s are expected to begin clearing the proof-tests and other extensive inspection procedures some time in June. All are due back in service by May 1971.

Later, when the already delivered F-111s are due for regular overhaul, they will be fitted with a new wing component. The new wing "box" is designed to stand up for a longer period under the stress of high altitude flight.

Newer models of the F-111 will get the improved wing component at the outset. Cost for refitting the older models is estimated at $150,000 per plane.

All of these demedical procedures were recommended by a special Air Force board failure which caused the grounded planes are faulty. The recommendations were based on a finding that one faulty metal casting had ripped, like a piece of fabric, under flight stresses.

According to the new board, there is no certainty that other castings in wings of the grounded planes are faulty. The elaborate, ice-box procedure is devised to make absolutely SURE that others are not.

LOW ACCIDENT RATE — Some congressional military experts are not sold on the validation plan, and there are some indications that it may be altered or curtailed. Some members of the House and Senate have commented that, despite all the furor over the years, the F-111 has shown a low accident rate.

"It is statistically true," says Lt. Gen. Otto J. Glasser, deputy chief of staff for development, "that for the number of flying hours and the number of flights in which the aircraft has been employed, it is below many of the other aircraft that have successfully entered the Air Force inventory."

There is also some concern that the accident record for the already delivered planes will not be improved by subjecting each of them to peak pressures in a testing program and then returning them to the flight line.

In its formal report on the annual defense procurement bill the House Armed Services Committee called the F-111 safety record "superb" as compared with other combat aircraft. It said the idea of reducing plane purchasers to finance safety tests is "unprecedented."

Without elaborating on the testing program, which has not been generally publicized in detail, the House committee recommended that the Defense Department review its financing decision which, according to the committee, jeopardizes the current goal of a four-wing F-111 force.

The question is clearly one of how much should be spent to shore up public confidence in the F-111—and whether the rather large sums now involved should become a charge against the number of F-111s made available to the Tactical Air Command.

VIEWPOINT

U.S. Policy Toward Rhodesia

By JESSE HELMS

It must be noted with sadness that the main defect of the Nixon Administration, thus far, may well prove to be a fatal one: It is forever trying to be all things to all men—and a more self-defeating goal cannot be imagined. In simple words, it won't work. Worst of all, millions of Americans who voted for a change in November, 1968 are beginning to realize that they didn't get it.

This nation's posture concerning the tiny nation of Rhodesia has become a symbolism of contradiction. There was small cause for surprise when, during the days of Lyndon Johnson, Rhodesia declared her independence from Great Britain only to find that participating in a boycott of the United States was par-Rhodesia.

For reasons that defy logical explanation, the United States under Richard Nixon is pursuing the identical policy that existed under Lyndon Johnson—that we must appease Great Britain, which is seeking to crush Rhodesia. Fortunately, Britain has thus far botched the job. Meanwhile, the British continue to trade with our enemies and, indirectly, assist the communists in killing our men in Vietnam.

Every communist country in the world is hopeful that the independent republic of Rhodesia will fall. Russia is a particularly bitter foe of Rhodesia-independence. Britain, meanwhile, circulates the nonsense that Rhodesia is not qualified to govern itself when, as a matter of historical fact, Rhodesia has been self-governing for 47 years—since 1923!

The United States closed our consulate in Rhodesia. But Great Britain keeps hers open in Hanoi!

glimmer of hope when the U.S. representative to the United Nations cast this country's first veto in the U.S. Security Council. Led by the communists, a bloc of Asia and African countries had demanded that all U.N. members be commanded to "isolate" Rhodesia. It was a command that even Great Britain could not swallow; so, like an obedient puppy dog, the United States joined Britain in the veto. It was, by strange paradox, this country's first honorable action in the entire history of Rhodesian independence.

Yes, indeed, irony abounds throughout our "foreign policy" concerning Africa in general. We have for years embraced, and helped finance, ever so-called "emerging nation" in Africa, no matter how primitive, no matter how incapable of self-government. We have shown disdain for only two—Rhodesia and the Republic of South Africa which happen to be the most progressive (and most strongly anti-communist) countries on the entire continent.

If things look dark for the Rhodesians, they are darker still for America. At least in Rhodesia, they can say they stuck by their principles and went down fighting. Our epitaph may be that we went down compromising—American Way Features
