Nixon Won't Balance Budget

Opposition To Increased Auto Insurance Premiums

DALLAS (UPI)— Sen. Mike McKeel, D-Dallas, says he will vigorously oppose a move by automobile liability insurance companies who want to raise their premiums by 15 to 20 per cent.

These rates were increased 18 per cent only last November.

McKeel said if the insurance board agrees to these rate hikes, state insurance policies will become a major issue of next year's session of the legislature.

He said before the rate hike last November, the rates were rarely raised more than 1 per cent at a time.

"At this rate, we can look forward to a 100 per cent increase in our auto insurance within the next five years," McKeel said Tuesday. "I feel certain that if no one stands up to these companies they will continue to raise the rates 15 to 20 per cent each year."

McKeel said he will go before the board when it considers the premium increase and tell it a special commission appointed by Gov. Preston Smith to study the Texas insurance situation agreed insurance companies' investments income should be considered in the rate making formula.

"It seems strange to me that the findings of this commission have been ignored by the insurance board," McKeel said. "I think the insurance lobbyists in Austin must be the strongest group in the state.

"I have an idea what this new request, if approved, will cause a lot of young people to take a chance by driving without automobile insurance," he said. "If they don't have the money to pay the premiums, there won't be any other choice for them."

McKeel said he also opposed the last premium increase.

"It's ironic for the insurance companies to turn around and ask for this new raise after being granted an 18 per cent jump only six months ago," he said. "They are reporting record profits to their stockholders each year and yet continue to ask for higher and higher premiums."

$1.8 Million Deficit Expected This Year

WASHINGTON (UPI)— The Nixon administration has abandoned — at least for the next couple of years — its goal of keeping the federal budget balanced.

"We are not 'balance the budget, come hell or high water' people," Budget Director Robert P. Mayo said Tuesday in announcing the government now expects to run into the red by $1.8 billion this fiscal year and $1.3 billion the next one.

President Nixon proposed an antipollution tax on leaded gasoline, amounting to about 2.3 cents a gallon, to take up some of the slack in the sagging budget. Leaded gasoline is added to fuel that is used in cars and other motor vehicles to keep engines from "pinging."

But administration spokesmen said the $1.6 billion the tax was expected to raise is a secondary consideration to the primary purpose of discouraging the use of leaded fuel considered a prime pollutant.

Nixon said he will propose more general tax increase next January after the congressional elections, if government spending exceeds "the potential yield of the tax system."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., predicted the budget deficit might soar as high as $3 billion to $4 billion. Proxmire joined two Republicans, Gordon L. Allott of Colorado and Jacob K. Javits of New York, in welcoming the use of voluntary wage-price restraints.

In his two-page statement, Nixon said: "I am determined to curb inflation." He also said the deficit now projected for fiscal 1971 would not occur if Congress had passed the Tax Reform Act last year in the form he wanted it.

Mayo explained "potential yield" is the revenue present taxes would produce if the economy were operating at its theoretical full capacity. The figure is almost sure to be higher than actual tax collections.

He said preliminary work on the 1972 fiscal year budget, to be sent to Congress in January, indicates it will also show a deficit.

The revised budget estimates, distributed to newsmen at the White House, showed a deterioration in the government's fiscal position since February when Nixon sent his detailed budget to Congress. Surpluses of $1.5 billion for this fiscal year and $1.3 billion for the next one were projected in February.

The new deficits will be the government's ninth and 10th in the last 11 years. Only once since 1960 — in the fiscal year that ended last June 30 — have the books balanced.

Lubbock Tornado Claims Life Of 8-Year-Old Girl

By MIKE WESTER
LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)— An 8-year-old girl died Tuesday night in the intensive care unit of Methodist Hospital to become the 24th victim of the tornado which ravaged the city May 11.

Marie Angela Moore, who was playing under her home when the tornado struck, died at 9:40 p.m. The girl was taken to the hospital the night the tornado hit and remained in critical condition until she died. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Florencio Mora, located in one of the most devastated sections of the city, was completely destroyed.

The tornado also destroyed hundreds of other buildings and the city is thinking of salvaging the rubble and using it to build a museum which is being developed on the campus of Texas Tech University.

"For community morale now and in the future, some useful public facility should be created from the tornado rubble,"

Jerry Rogers said Tuesday, Rogers is the assistant director of the museum and is head of a committee appointed by the City Council that was asked to find something to do with the debris.

"An outdoor facility should be created at the Texas Tech Ranch headquarters to serve as an historical museum where the names of those who died in the storm can be permanently memorialized," Rogers said.

In Washington, the Department of Housing said it has established a special program to aid home financing for the Lubbock victims of the tornado.

Woodward Kingman president of the government's National Mortgage Association said the program provides for GMNA purchases of FHA and VA mortgages at part or the full amount of mortgages. He said this would eliminate the "points" normally used in financing arrangements and make for a more favorable method of obtaining money for new homes.

The tornado, the first to ever strike downtown Lubbock killed 24 persons, injured 1,500, left 10,000 homeless and caused $135 million in damage.

More than enough reconditioned homes will be provided within the next 10 days to house all the homeless. So far 600 families have been relocated. Another 80 are awaiting homes.

"Never before can I recall such a massive disaster as this one in which we have been able to house all the people left homeless so fast," said George Hastings, chief of a 600-man federal relief force called into action when President Nixon declared Lubbock a major disaster area.

The Small Business Administration has taken 1,300 inquiries and received 650 applications for loans. Of these 125 have been approved and 30 checks issued.

Lad Gets Anxious To See New Pampa Home

By BEN KECK
News Staff Writer
When you're eight years old, 12 miles from White Deer, Pampa can be a long way — especially if you're walking.

Sammy Kitchens is eight years old and he started walking from White Deer to Pampa shortly after noon Tuesday.

"I wanted to see my mother," Sammy told Pampa police after a couple who had picked him up on Highway 60 halfway between White Deer and Kingsmill left him with the officers.

Sammy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kitchens, 301 Henry, had recently moved to Pampa from White Deer. Sammy was staying with an aunt, Mrs. Wanda Fogue in White Deer until school is dismissed Thursday.

Mrs. Hogue said Sammy came home for lunch Tuesday, but after lunch he began his hike to Pampa rather than going back to his second grade classroom.

The couple who gave Sammy a ride into Pampa said they could not understand where he lived, so they requested the aid of police.

After officers here checked with Carson County deputies in White Deer, Sammy's aunt was contacted. She, in turn, contacted Mrs. Kitchens.

Sammy's mother went to the police station to get him.

"I'll drive him to White Deer for school these last three days," she said.

After Sammy and his mother left police headquarters it was discovered the couple who spared Sammy a long walk were his new Pampa neighbors.

The couple, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Townsend, live across the street from Sammy's new home. Until Tuesday, the two families had never met.

Tax On Additives Strongly Opposed

WASHINGTON (UPI)— President Nixon's proposed "antipollution" tax on leaded gasoline raised questions in Congress today about the administration's earlier pledge to ban leaded gasoline additives—a move strongly opposed by the oil industry.

"They can't have it both ways," said Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis. "If it does improve the environment, it won't raise the money, and if it raises the money it won't stop the pollution of the environment."

A spokesman for Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, said Muskie was anxious to find out whether the tax proposal, announced Tuesday, was offered as a substitute for outlawing lead additives.

Muskie favors the administration's earlier proposal under which the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) could regulate or ban any gasoline additive. The House Commerce Committee approved the provision Tuesday, and Muskie's Senate air and water pollution subcommittee is considering the same proposal.

Leaded gasoline is added to auto fuel to keep engines from "pinging."

Russel E. Train, chairman of Nixon's Council on Environmental Quality, said lead additives not only cause pollution but also would damage the improved emission control systems "at will be required after 1975."

In his announcement, Nixon emphasized the tax was intended to fight pollution by discouraging use of leaded gasoline. He said his proposed tax of $4.25 per pound of lead additives would amount to about 2.3 cents a gallon, and raise $1.6 billion a year.

The tax would be collected from manufacturers of the lead additives sold to the oil refiners. The Treasury Department said it expected the tax increase ultimately would be passed on to the consumer in the form of higher per gallon prices for gasoline.

The oil industry has strongly opposed the ban on lead additives, contending it would cost them 4 or 5 cents a gallon extra to make unleaded highest gasoline. The proposed ban also has been fought by E. I. DuPont de Nemours and Ethyl Corp., the leading producers of lead gasoline additives.

Profile Of Tribulations Of American Billionaire

GENEVA (UPI)— Bernard Cornfeld has made $100 million and lives on Lake Geneva in a 20-room villa with a gold toilet. Yet things are not going well for him.

Cornfeld, who in 10 years built Investors Overseas Services (IOS) from a one-room operation in a Paris hotel to a billion dollar financial complex, was forced to resign as chairman and chief executive last week because the company was faltering.

Since then the 42-year-old bachelor has been in seclusion in his Geneva villa, built for Josephine by Napoleon.

Though he retained a position on the 27-man board of directors of IOS and has many other interests—from girls to racing horses — Cornfeld's career as perhaps the biggest influence on European capitalism is in at least temporary eclipse.

It was outside interests that apparently led to his downfall. "Bernie" spent much of the past year roaming the world in his jet in the company of various pretty girls and personalities such as Playboy magazine Hugh Hefner.

He affected a beard and wore Pierre Cardin suits and bright patterned scarves instead of conventional business suits and ties. Instead of an overcoat, he draped a cloak around his shoulders.

The financial picture at IOS was deteriorating and when Cornfeld came back to take the reins it was too late and he was forced out.

"He put on a white shirt with tie and a dark suit," an associate remarked. "That meant there was trouble."

IOS assets now have fallen to about $1.9 billion from a peak of $2.3 billion, though European financial experts find it difficult to conceive that it could actually go under.

It is doubtful, too, that Cornfeld is feeling any particular financial pinch, since his personal assets are estimated at more than $100 million.

Cornfeld, a native of Istanbul who grew up in Brooklyn, found it hard to make friends within the staid European banking establishment. Even the hiring of such men as James Roosevelt Jr., Erich Mende and Sir Eric Wyndham White did little to enhance the respectability of IOS.

Now that Cornfeld has lost most of his power in the organization, IOS has changed. Its employees talk quietly, with none of the brassy boasting of people who thought nothing could go wrong.

There have been numerous dismissals to cut costs and no one knows who will go next.

Newsday is published in Garden City, N.Y., a suburban Long Island area of New York City.

Jack And Jim Are Betrothed

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI)— Two 28-year-old Minneapolis men say they will go to court if they are refused a license to wed each other.

Jack Baker, a law student at the University of Minnesota, and Jim McConnell, 28, a librarian from Kansas City, Mo., applied for a license in Hennepin County Monday.

Robert Anderson, senior deputy clerk of District Court, said they filled out the form and paid $10 and will be able to pick up the license Friday "unless there is a legal impediment."

Anderson asked Hennepin County Attorney George Scott to rule on whether a license could be issued.

Baker said Minnesota law does not forbid the marriage, but the state's law does forbid homosexual relations.

Baker said he and McConnell met three years ago in Norman, Okla., and hope to have a church wedding Dec. 31, so the reception can be a New Year's Eve party.

ASKS FPC PERMISSION
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. of Houston has asked permission of the Federal Power Commission to build $3.35 million in new facilities in the Louisiana tidelands. The FPC said Friday that the firm proposed building about 11 miles of pipeline and other facilities from the block 95 field to its existing offshore line near the Block 6 field, Main Pass area.

BANS FROGS
SLOUGH, England (UPI) — Youth club leader Terence C has banned frogs from the club after teen-age boys began using them to start romances. C says the boys took the frogs from a nearby canal at night into the club to scare girls; then started a friendship comforting them. "I want them to use more gentlemanly methods for introduction," Case said.

Television In Review
By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—President Nixon has asked the television networks to deal with the narcotics problem head-on. And a sample of network cooperation has come from ABC-TV's boss of daytime programming.

By the end of the month, says the ABC-TV executive, Marshall Karp, a daytime serial will be offered "a compelling story of teen-age drug addiction."

The serial (soap opera) is called "One Life to Live," and it is already on the air daily. It will incorporate the narcotics story.

And, says Karp, the story will run throughout the entire summer period when so many children and teen-agers are at home and available to television.

Real Addicts Appear
He adds: "We will have real teen-age drug addicts appearing. They are not actors, but youngsters who are actually living through the terror of drug addiction. Their stark and sometimes brutal stories will be integrated into the plot."

"Particularly important to parents, these young people will present an authentic indictment of drug abuse to their peers the other side of the TV screen."

Karp notes that this "unique blend of real life and fiction" has never been done before "in the history of daytime television."

The idea of offering such a meaty, significant subject in the framework of a soap opera is not surprising to industry experts.

For often in the past, viewers of daytime serials have seen them handle controversial social subjects—from abortion to adultery—with more realism and frankness than prime time shows.

Soaps are Frank
Soap operas may lack a sense of humor—surely their chief failing—but their firm grip of viewers is undeniably related to their willingness to be frank with topics that many can share.

Marvin Kitman, the television critic of Newsday, has observed: "It is in the nighttime programs, after nine when the kids go to bed, that television refuses to come to grips with real life."

At any rate, ABC-TV has lately gone very heavy on social statements in its soaps.

BONN (UPI)—The shock wave touched off when President Nixon dispatched American troops into Cambodia apparently has not reached the East-West negotiating tables in Europe.

American-Russian negotiations in Vienna on Strategic Arms Limitation (SALT) seem unaffected by the Cambodian offensives—at least so far.

West Germany's attempt to get Russian agreement to an agenda for a formal negotiation on a nonaggression pact also is going forward despite Cambodia.

Poland has continued bargaining with West Germany about a treaty to normalize their relations.

East German Prime Minister Willi Stoph remains committed to meet West German Chancellor Willy Brandt in the West German city of Kassel this Wednesday.

Agree To Continue Talks
The Soviets, agreed last week to continue their talks with the Americans, British and French about improving the situation in and around West Berlin.

Many of Brandt's advisors feared Nixon's decision to go into Cambodia would have a negative political fallout in Europe. They feared that the Russians would start stalling in the SALT and Berlin talks with the Americans and recess their exchanges with Bonn in retaliation.

Such action by Moscow would have fit into the West German theory that Russia's actions in Europe are directly related to events in Asia.

According to this theory, Russian willingness to negotiate a settlement in Europe increased in the same proportion

Highlights And Sidelights From The State Capitol

AUSTIN, Tex. — In the space of less than an hour, the State Finance Commission accepted the retirement of "Mr. Banking" himself, State Commissioner J.M. Faulkner; named a new banking commissioner; fired State Consumer Credit Commissioner Francis A. Miskell; and named a new credit commissioner.

These actions brought to an end long-time controversies over Faulkner's replacement and Miskell's position.

Commissioner Faulkner, who has been with the banking department nearly 50 years; (23 as a commissioner), has been waiting to retire for some time, but the Finance Commission could not agree on someone to take his place.

Faulkner wanted his deputy commissioner (since 1965), Robert E. Stewart, to fill the post, but there was dissension on the board. However, the problems were worked out before the meeting, and Stewart was picked unanimously.

In a surprise move, Commission voted 6-2 to discharge Commissioner Miskell and named Asst. Atty. Gen. Sam Kelley to succeed him immediately.

Miskell weathered one storm threat in this year, when it was reported that some of the loan industry were out to "get him" because of administrative actions against them. After stern talk, Commission refused to accept Miskell's resignation in February. There was no warning in this latest round.

Commission members blamed administrative differences and the fact that four key agency staff positions had not been filled.

COURTS SPEAK — State Supreme Court overturned lower courts and held that Texas Aeronautics Commission had full authority to grant the Air Southwest Company of San Antonio a certificate to operate a commuter flights linking Houston, Dallas-Fort Worth and San Antonio. Three major airlines have fought the application in a two-year-old legal battle.

Court of Criminal Appeals ruled that Amos Gaines of Houston, convicted of murder in Harris County in 1967 and sentenced to 99 years, should have a new trial. Court said the record of his first trial had been destroyed and the only way to make sure no error was made by the lower court was to have a new trial.

AG RULES — A member of the legislature cannot be paid from funds appropriated by the legislature for goods or services the lawmaker or firm of which he is a member sells the state, Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin said in a recent ruling.

Opinion concluded that whether the corporation in which a legislator owns stock is precluded from contracting with the state or county must be determined on the basis of each individual case.

In another ruling, Martin said state agencies may sponsor seminars on appropriate matters and charge registration fees to defray expenses. State employees and officials may be reimbursed for registration expense.

APPOINTMENTS — Gov. Preston Smith named Sam Kinch Sr. of Austin and John T. Steen of San Antonio chairman and vice-chairman of American Bicentennial Commission of Texas to plan a nation's 200th anniversary program. Other members of the commission include Marcella Perry of Houston, Dr. George Woolfolk of Prairie View, Ina May McAdams of Austin, Dr. Charles Ray Ritcheson of Dallas and Frank Tolbert of Dallas.

Secretary of State Martin Dies Jr. serves as ex-officio commission secretary.

Smith announced creation of Texas Urban Development Commission and named Arlington Mayor Tom J. Vandergriff chairman and Dr. Earl Lewis of San Antonio vice-chairman.

He designated James Goodwin of Austin to represent the state in the Southern Regional Environmental Conservation Council of Southern Governor's Conference.

Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes named Sens. Bill Moore of Eryan, Jack Hightower of Vernon and David Ratliff of Stamford to the Committee on State and Local Tax Policy.

Speaker Gus Mutscher named former Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr; Harry Hubbard Jr., Texas AFL-CIO; Houston Attorney Searcy Bracewell; and Rees James Sluder of Naples, Jack Ogg of Houston and Joe Hawn of Dallas to the Committee to Study Alternative Methods of Attracting New Industry to Texas.

CHEMICALS — Agricultural chemicals containing DDT will not be accepted for registration by the Texas Department of Agriculture until a study on their effect is completed, Commissioner John C. White announced.

Suspension of registration "does not mean that any ill effects from the agricultural use of DDT compounds have been reported or found," White said. He added that household products containing DDT will continue to be registered for use. Governor Smith has appointed an advisory committee to study the use and effects of DDT and other pesticides. It will report its findings, probably before the end of August, White said.

OYSTERING — Parks and Wildlife and State Health Department officials report that tests on oysters shrimp and fish from state approved Gulf Coast waters show no significant contamination from mercury or other heavy material.

One sample from San Antonio Bay during a period when it was closed to oyster ng revealed a trace of mercury. But samples from Chocolate Bay — also closed to commercial oyster harvesting — Have shown no trace of mercury although borderline amounts of heavy metals were found.

MASSIVE DISASTER — Acting Gov. Ben Barnes immediately called up state agencies for emergency duty in Lubbock following the devastating tornado which struck there May 11. Cleanup and security details were coordinated by the State Defense Council.

An estimated 3,000 are homeless. Death toll is figured at 21 and injuries at 500. Property damage, highest in state history from a tornado, may reach $200 million.

President Nixon declared the battered and bruised South Plains city a disaster area. He also applied the same designation to Hockley, Hale, Briscoe, Donley, Swisher, Gray, Cochran, Lamb and Farmer Counties which were hit by storms April 17-18.

Maximum federal assistance thus will be made available in recovery operations.

Hollywood In Review

By VERNON SCOTT

UPI Hollywood Correspondent HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—"Butch Cassidy and The Sundance Kid" lost the Academy Award, but it brought new life to producer Paul Monash who never expected the Western comedy to become one of the top 20 boxoffice films of all time.

Monash is the same man who produced television's sudest soap opera, "Peyton Place," and "Judd for the Defense."

The television series and "Butch Cassidy" were all in production simultaneously. They were completed or canceled in the same month, January, 1969.

"It all came to a shattering end at one time," Monash recounted at Universal Studios. "I was out of production and times were hard in the industry. They still are. Then we began to get an idea of the kind of picture we had in Butch Cassidy."

Did Not Sell Interest

"After a sneak preview I was offered a quarter million dollars for my interest in the picture. Thank God I didn't sell."

So far the film, starring Paul Newman and Robert Redford, has earned its makers—including 20th Century-Fox—$35 million and it's just getting started.

"I was encouraged enough to acquire three motion picture properties," Monash continued.

One is the best-selling novel, "Slaughterhouse Five."

"When I read it last year I trembled with anticipation, so I bought the book for a considerable amount of money, ($185,000). Later everyone I talked to said it was a great book but couldn't be made into a film."

Getting Script Ready

"Universal saw things differently and now we're putting the script in order and getting pre-production work done."

Monash is an impact man with graying hair, a prizefighter's nose, a copper tan and dapper wardrobe. He is one of the new video producers to move up to the movie screen with a major hit.

Now he is in the uncomfortable position of attempting to top himself with another movie success.

"I don't want to sound immodest," he said, "but I think 'Slaughterhouse Five' will win the Oscar for best picture two years from now."

COURT MEETS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court meets at 10 a.m. EDT today to hand down orders and opinions for some of the more than 40 cases under advisement.

The court will meet every Monday for this purpose from now until the end of the term in June. Arguments have been completed until the start of the new term in October.

KILLING HEAT WAVE ...

NEW DELHI (UPI)—A heat wave has killed more than 190 persons in Northern India in the past two weeks, the Press Trust of India said Sunday. Temperatures up to 119 degrees have been reported in several states and wells have dried up in the states of Bihar and Uttar Pradesh.

Backstairs At The Whitehouse

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Your chances of getting rich yourself are pretty remote, and if you aren't rich your chances of being invited to hobnob with rich people are practically nil. Nevertheless, there is always a slim risk that some rich friend will ask you out to his place for dinner or a weekend, so it is a good idea to prepare yourself for that eventuality. Otherwise, you will just make yourself sick worrying about it. Fortunately, the information you need is readily available. A "Guide to Modern Etiquette" book, written by the editors of Esquire magazine, includes a chapter on being a "Guest of the Rich."

In case you can't afford to spend $7.95 for a copy, I'll give you a free briefing on the key points.

Judging from the amount of attention the Esquire editors give it, the most difficult part of the problem is getting adjusted to the servants.

"The guy standing in the front hall is the butler, not to be hailed as host or fellow guest," they tell us in one place. In another place they caution that "if you shake hands with the butler you will embarrass him, his 'master' and, presumably, yourself."

They also admonish that "you must not give orders to your hosts' servants. . . . If you're stranded without a drink . . . you must just go dry unless a servant comes to you and asks

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The pursuit, ven of the best things, ought to be calm and tranquil. The counsel was offered to the impetuous citizens of Rome more than 2,000 years ago by one of their wisest statesmen, Marcus Tullius Cicero.

It is a maxim that contemporary Americans might well take to heart.

Earnest young people who are seeking a more authentically human existence, angry black people who are demanding long-overdue equality, and frightened white people who are trying to preserve a fabric of stable order in a chaos-threatened society all have one thing in common.

Leave Little Room

They are pursuing their separate goals with a vehemence that leaves little room for the kind of rational discussion that is necessary to achieve consensus in a democratic society.

Not since the stormy days which preceded the Civil War has public discourse been conducted in this country in such a vociferous tone.

Intemperate charges fly back and forth as if each alienated group were trying to outdo all the others in hyperbole.

America is depicted not as a country in which negroes are subjected to unjust discrimination, but as a "racist society" bent upon "black genocide."

Student activists are accused not of getting too boisterous, but of "dragging America to the brink of anarchy."

This kind of verbal extravagance is harmful not only to national unity but also to the

PUSHES LUCK

ALICANTE, Spain (UPI)—A new inmate at Alicante Prison wrote to the station master of a Madrid railway station, asking him to send baggage he had checked at the station to him in jail.

In view of the unusual address, police opened the luggage and found it full of new clothing recently stolen from a shop in Seville.

Police said they will use the stolen goods as evidence for a new charge against the 17-year-old convict, who was not identified.

Fish With Colored Lures

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI)—A psychologist from Brown University has a suggestion for fishermen: Use colored lures.

"Fish can discriminate colors," said Dr. Dean C. Yager, an assistant professor at the Ivy League school, "though I'm not certain if they are attracted to any certain color."

Yager said in an interview he has been using fish in his studies of color vision because fish and humans have similar retinal structures.

Yager has trained goldfish to strike a target with their noses only when the target contains a noticeable amount of colored light. He has found the fish continue to strike the target even when the colors are dim or very pale.

Have Trichromatic Vision

Psychologists say this tendency indicates presence of normal color vision—or what they call trichromatic vision—which is the mixing of the three primary colors of red, green and blue to obtain the full color spectrum experienced by those with normal vision.

Yager's fish undergo a training regimen that would make any weight-conscious woman wince.

"The fish are deprived of all food for a week before they start their initial training," he said, "then an automatic feeder

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—In response to widespread public apathy, here's another new board game: It's called "Ecology."

The game begins with just a few players, but more and more players join the game as play proceeds until finally there is no more room on the board for any more players.

However, the game does not stop at this point. More players continue to join the game, pushing other players off the board. This phase of the game is called "Population Control."

As each player enters the game he selects a marker, which looks like a small white pill. The markers are placed on the square labeled "Go." The goal of the game is to reach the square labeled "Clean Environment."

If, however, a player lands a square labeled "Air Pollution," "Water Pollution" or "Garbage Dump," or if he gets pushed off the board by the other players, he is out of the game.

Cards Determine Progress

When it becomes his move, a player determines his progress by drawing a card from one of three decks. The stacks are labeled "Congressional Action," "Political Promises" and "Volunteer Industrial Action." Here are the key cards:

—Large industrial plant in your city volunteers to stop burning waste materials in open incinerator. Advance 3 spaces.

—Ralph Nader reveals that waste materials formerly burned in incinerator are now being dumped into river. Go back 3 spaces.

—Big 3 automakers introduce new electric cars that operate without exhaust fumes. Advance 10 spaces.

—Federal Power Commission reports that 5,000 new generating plants must be built to supply power for new electric cars. Go back 15 spaces.

"Miracle" Ingredient

—Major soap company announces discovery of the "miracle" ingredient that gets clothes so clean they can never get dirty again, yet leaves no detergent scum in the city's water supply. Advance 2 spaces.

Moonman Takes Desk Job

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Neil A. Armstrong, first man to step on the moon, Monday took a desk job in Washington. But he hinted he could return to manned space flights.

Armstrong announced he had accepted the post of deputy associate NASA administrator of aeronautics in the Office of Advanced Research and Technology at the Washington headquarters of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

Armstrong will be responsible for coordinating research and technological work on aeronautics between the government and private industry. He will succeed Charles W. Harper who is moving to Dr. Werner von Braun's office, which is responsible for planning future space missions.

"There is a great challenge in hypersonics, supersonics and research that leads to new generations of aircraft one can't even foresee now," Armstrong said Monday. "I've been a long-time space enthusiast and been in research a long time in my career with NASA. This is a chance to move back into research."

Armstrong was a former Navy pilot and a civilian test pilot. He holds an aeronautical engineering degree from Purdue University and this year received his master of science degree in aerospace engineering from the University of Southern California.

He piloted the experimental X-15 and the Gemini 8 space mission. Last summer he piloted the three-man crew of Apollo 11 which put the first men on the moon. Accompanied by Edwin E. Aldrin, Armstrong took over the controls of the lunar lander from its automatic piloting computer and flew it to a safe touchdown in the Sea of Tranquility.

"That's one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind," Armstrong said when he touched the lunar surface.

Armstrong's engineering knowledge won him a spot on a board of inquiry investigating the explosion which crippled the flight of Apollo 13. The board was to design against any possibility of a recurrence of the oxygen tank explosion which aborted the Apollo 13 flight 205,000 miles from Earth.

"I have a lot of reservations about leaving my friends and my colleagues at the Manned Spacecraft Center," Armstrong said. "I don't think it will be a permanent parting."

Armstrong said he would "keep current and maintain a flying status" but he ruled out future Apollo flights.

"I'm not certain if there would have been another Apollo flight for me anyway," he said. But he added: "I suspect when we are both 70, we will still both be flying in space."

Backstairs At The Whitehouse

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Backstairs at the White House. It isn't every valet who accompanies the President of the United States on a pre-dawn sightseeing tour of Washington.

But Manolo Sanchez wasn't particularly surprised when the President asked him to drive to the Lincoln Memorial last Saturday morning for some instant dialogue with student protestors.

"They were very respectful," was Sanchez' reaction to the young people.

The Cuban-born valet then tagged along as Nixon paid a sentimental visit to the deserted House chambers in the Capitol and then breakfasted on corned beef hash and eggs at a downtown hotel.

It was an unusual morning, but one that illustrates the unique status of Nixon's Man Friday. As the President's valet, Sanchez takes care of

A boy in business for himself doesn't worry about summer jobs

Or fall jobs, or winter jobs, for that matter. Because the boy with a newspaper route—a junior independent merchant—has a year-round income. The few hours he puts in each week not only provide monetary returns but the even more significant dividends of learning how free enterprise operates.

The business of learning the value of money, of keeping books, collecting, buying at wholesale and selling at retail is important. But not even money can buy the other skills acquired from route experience—learning to deal pleasantly with people, for instance, or the value of punctuality.

Your newspaperboy is learning all the time. His route experience helps him acquire the intangible skills so necessary for success both socially and professionally. He makes money at it, too.

Only about one boy in ten gets the opportunity to have a newspaper route. If you think your son or some other youngster might profit by newspaper route experience, why not suggest that he come in and talk to us.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My problem isn't an uncommon one from talking to some of my friends, but I've never seen anything in your column about it.

My husband and I have been married for 5 years. We have two small children, and another on the way. Abby, we wanted these children!

We haven't told my parents about the one on the way yet because we know they are going to take fits! (Especially my mother.)

Every time I get pregnant there is a noisy scene. We're well able to support these children, and we've never asked our parents to baby-sit or help out financially, but they make us feel so guilty. They say we are "crazy" to tie ourselves down to so much responsibility while we're young — that we should enjoy ourselves and be "free" for the first 10 years. But, Abby, we want to be young with our children.

I'm a nervous wreck! How should I break the news that No. 3 will be here for Christmas?

NERVOUS

DEAR NERVOUS: Save the news, appropriately enough, for Father's day — since you just missed Mother's day. In any case, it sounds as though you're strangling on a cord between you and your mother which should have been cut years ago. Live your own adult life and do not feel guilty.

DEAR ABBY: I am a married woman who has had a very unsatisfactory marriage for nearly 20 years, but I won't go into that because that's not my problem.

My problem is my gentleman friend. Walter is not married. (He's divorced.) We've been seeing each other (discreetly) for nearly three years, and it's no cheap love affair, Abby, it's the best thing that has ever happened to me.

Walter and I can't be seen together in public because my husband is a fairly prominent professional man, and I still put up a good front as a happily married wife and mother.

Every once in a while Walter takes a lady out. He says he has to, because if he isn't seen in public once in a while with a woman, people will think there is something wrong with him.

Well, every time Walter has a date with another woman, I go to pieces. I suppose it's wrong of me, but I can't help it. Do you think if he really loved me he'd date another woman? Even for appearances sake?

TEARS IN MY WINE

DEAR TEARS: I can't tell you if Walter "really" loves you or not. But the "suffering" you endure every time he dates another woman is part of the price you're paying for this affair. (The "best" things in life are very expensive.)

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a man who publicly refers to his secretary as his "office wife"?

HIS HOME WIFE

DEAR HOME: He's either looking for trouble. Or has found it.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell that man whose wife rejected him 97 times last year to send her to San Francisco and let her ride the cable cars. I understand a woman there claims that after she got shook up in a cable car she couldn't say "no" to anybody.

RESPECTFULLY YOURS,
D.W.

JEANE DIXON

THURSDAY, MAY 21, 1970

Your birthday Thursday: The Sun enters Gemini at 8:32 a.m. Eastern Daylight Time Thursday. In other years the time are Taurus while those born later are -Gemini. Both Taurus and Gemini with birthdays to day face a year of testing, social pressures, and demands which are likely to awaken and bring into fuller use latent intuitive powers, musical talent, and spiritual awakening.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): This is a relatively quiet day which you should put to good use by getting as much done as your energies will cover without undue fatigue.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): An early start gets you on top of a fairly complex day, gives you added chances to attend personal matters as well as your regular work. Health care items are up for consideration.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Close co-operation on details comes a bit easier. Take advantage of a tranquil mood for thinking rather than just idle chatter.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Anything well started should be pressed vigorously with all available means. It's worth the effort to overcome a streak of laziness. Being a bit different is refreshing, attracts helpful attention.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): It takes determination, perhaps vision beyond ordinary, to stick to the planned schedule.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22):

Domestic and family affairs are amenable to changes and improvements Thursday. Unfinished chores can be cleared off or dispensed without strain.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Let well enough alone now and just float through the day doing a nominal coverage of the high spots. Complicated matters can be worked out later.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Original solutions to outstanding problems occur to you. Check for feasibility, and find some way of implementing them. Not all will fit but some will bear results at once.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Start early and get the chance to set a good example. You may try a novel approach or short cut to good advantage.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Obscure information comes to your attention, possibly for immediate and profitable use. Confidential matters proceed smoothly with continued care.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Seek introductions, contracts with people who have access to whatever you most want to know or develop. Business deals are not ready for settlement, but can be brought forward considerably.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): At present you must scrupulously take into account the feelings of all those associated with you in either business or purely personal ventures.

Youths Protest Methods Of Child-Raising Arena

NEW YORK (UPI)—Parents contribute to the generation gap by yelling, nagging and embarrassing their children in front of others.

Ditto for parents who "say one thing and do another." These belong to the "do as I say not as I do" child-raising arena.

So found investigators in the U.S. Children's Bureau, who asked a cross-section of contemporary teen-agers about the generation gap.

Many among 251 youths participating in the survey aimed their protests at moms and dads who "fail to grant teen-agers full status as persons entitled to respect and trust."

A preliminary report on the bureau survey of its kind by the bureau appears in "Children," journal of the agency. Among teen-agers participating were a few grateful for Uncle Sam's interest.

"Thank you, great impersonal governmental edifice — for the first chance I've had to express myself," one said.

"This is just the typical kind of ineffectual thing the older generation would do."

"I don't think it (generation gap) is a problem that can even be solved by good luck, anyway. Maybe the government is good for something."

Elizabeth Herzog and Cecelia E. Sudia, investigators from the bureau's child studies branch, applauded the fact that the survey drew a response rate of 63 per cent. Mail interviews, as a rule, evoke less than a 33 per cent response.

That a generation gap exists. "From the way my grand-parents talk I'm pretty sure that my parents weren't understood," one of these said.

"Of course, I probably won't understand my kids either."

Among things considered more important than the generation gap by the teen-agers were—poor quality of education, racism, poverty.

These noted that difficulties between people are a matter of individuals, not of generations.

Some view the generation gap as an excuse for adults to avoid real problems. A few said the problem is "a people gap" or a "love gap"—not a generation gap.

little niche in society and are fearful lest change will destroy it."

Session On Sex Disrupted By Insulting Exchange

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Psychiatrists and militants from homosexual and feminist groups exchanged insults Thursday in an impromptu encounter that disrupted a session on sex research at the American Psychiatric Association.

The two dozen demonstrators crashed into the meeting while the psychiatrists listened to a paper describing treatment of shocks and nauseous drugs.

During another paper on pornography, they shouted "Cambodia is obscene—sex is not obscene!"

Finally Chairman Dr. John P. Brady of the University of Pennsylvania told them to restrain themselves.

"We've restrained ourselves for 5,000 years," shouted one demonstrator from the Gay Liberation Front. A psychiatrist in the audience said "It won't hurt you to restrain yourselves for another half-hour."

The psychiatrists became so angered they stood around after the meeting was adjourned, arguing with the members of the Women's Liberation and Gay groups.

Meanwhile, a task force report of the association today avoided making a clear judgment about the controversial encounter sessions which already have involved thousands of Americans.

The encounter group experience, the report said, can be either good or bad it all depends on the leader.

In encounter groups, also known as sensitivity training groups, about a dozen people gather with the promise to be absolutely honest and open with each other and their feelings of the instant.

The report said a few psychiatrists, writing about some "psychiatric casualties" of the groups, have labeled the movement as dangerous and irresponsible.

But the task force concluded that evidence of the groups' dangerousness was "meager," and the data difficult to evaluate because little is known about what happens to people after they quit their groups.

Older boys and girls are invited to join the Texas State Library's Reading Program and enjoy summer reading while earning the special certificate from the State Library.

Price Introduces Legislation To Effectively Control Imports

Citing the need for more effective import control, Rep. Bob Price has introduced legislation to provide an orderly import quota system for textiles and leather footwear.

In introducing the bill, Price stated he has long been in favor of free international trade. But, he said, "in trade as in life, unbridled freedom often creates more problems than it solves."

Price noted in the last decade inexpensively produced foreign textiles and footwear have flooded domestic markets. The result has been "cow hide prices have been driven down, and consumer demand for cotton products has been reduced."

The Texas Republican declared, "Foreign businessmen should simply not be allowed to continue using their competitive advantages as a bludgeon to add to the internal economic problems this country is already facing." Foreign inflows have already forced some American textile and footwear manufacturers to close their doors — this has added to rising unemployment rates, cut back domestic job markets, adversely affected the cotton and the tanning industries, and lowered federal tax revenues.

Price's bill would establish legislative standards by which orderly trade in imported cotton textile products and footwear could be affected. As such, it joins a growing number of import control bills recently introduced on Capital Hill.

The Nixon Administration has been attempting to achieve a voluntary multinational agreement in trade restraints. Commerce Secretary Stans has reported present prospects for reaching international agreements are bright.

Price has stated, "If the Executive branch fails to promptly arrive at a set of agreements designed to establish orderly import quotas that will not disrupt domestic markets and will not harm American businessmen and workers, I believe Congress has the responsibility to take strong and decisive action."

A member of Kappa Alpha Fraternity, he was a teacher and coach for Olton Independent School District, before entering the Army. His wife, Teresa, lives in Colorado Springs, Colo.

"You are a master of obfuscation. Your talent for semantics is making a shambles of the congressional-executive relationship."

Rudy May won one Tuesday night for a guy who really needed it. That guy just happened to be Rudy May.

"I thought I'd dedicate this game to myself because it took me so long to get my third win," the California Angels' left-hander said after he pitched a two-hitter to beat the Chicago White Sox, 3-0.

May, who retired 22 of the last 23 batters, gave up two singles—to Ken Berry and one to Walt Williams.

Roger Repoz drove in two runs with a homer and a double as the Angels remained one-half

Missouri Valley Finds Everything Okay At WTSU

CANYON, Tex. (UPI)—West Texas State "could become" a member of the Missouri Valley Conference by the middle of next month.

Conference officials inspected the West Texas campus for two days and a spokesman said Tuesday "We found everything in order."

Last week, the MVC announced it wanted to add four teams to the conference. This expansion would increase the size of the MVC's football teams to 12 and the basketball teams to 12.

If West Texas is approved and joins the conference, it could begin competing for titles in spring sports next year. But scheduling problems would probably keep the Buffaloes out of competition in basketball and football title play for at least two more years.

The Buffs have North Texas State and Wichita of the MVC on their football schedule and are negotiating with other teams.

Dr. Leland Johnson, the faculty representative from Drake University and a member of the inspection party, said Tuesday the vote on West Texas State's membership would not come before the conference for at least a month because other faculty representatives were not available to vote on the matter.

He said the conference would vote on the application "no later than July 16 and we hope as early as June 20."

"All records were in excellent shape and the institution is meeting all eligibility and other requirements commensurate with a quality program in athletics," Johnson said at the end of the inspection. "We are most pleased with the cooperation and our findings."

Flood Opens Court Battle

NEW YORK (UPI)—Speaking softly, almost inaudibly, Curt Flood said in federal court Tuesday that "I don't think that after 12 years I should be traded like a piece of property."

Flood and Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, were the only two witnesses Tuesday as the trial in Flood's case to overthrow the reserve clause opened in U.S. District Court.

Judge Irving Ben Cooper, who is hearing the case without a jury and will make the ruling that will be appealed by the loser, kept the trial on a pleasant level and made an occasional joke.

Much of the testimony by Flood and Miller simply put on the record the details of how the reserve clause operates.

But it was revealed that his chief counsel, Arthur Goldberg, a former Supreme Court justice who is now a candidate for governor in New York, is acting without a fee.

It also was revealed that the Players Association is paying the expenses of the trial.

When Goldberg said the association is picking up the expenses but so far we have received no money."

game behind the Western Division-leading Minnesota Twins, who won their sixth straight victory with a 5-4 decision in 10 innings over Kansas City.

Dave Morehead of Kansas City was one out away from his first complete game since 1968 and a 4-3 victory when Cesar Tovar's two-out single in the ninth tied the game. Rod Carew scored the deciding run in the 10th on a wild pitch by reliever Tom Burgmeier.

In the other AL games, Baltimore topped New York, 5-1; Boston edged Detroit, 3-1; Washington beat Cleveland, 3-1; and Milwaukee downed Oakland, 6-3.

In the National League, Philadelphia blanked Pittsburgh, 2-0; New York beat Montreal, 7-4; St. Louis downed Houston, 12-3; Cincinnati beat Chicago, 3-1; Los Angeles topped San Diego, 8-3; and Atlanta edged San Francisco, 4-2.

The Orioles boosted their lead back to six games in the Eastern Division over the Yankees as Jim Palmer pitched a four-hitter. New York was hoping to vault into the race with a sweep of their two-game series but Frank Robinson and Boog Powell each drove in a pair of runs to make it easy for Palmer.

Tony Conigliaro's bases-loaded single in the ninth inning gave Boston the victory over Detroit. The Red Sox tied it 4-4 in the eighth on George Scott's run-scoring single after Norm Cash's two-run homer in the fifth put Detroit ahead. Carl Yastrzemski hit a two-run homer for Boston.

Ed Stroud got three hits including a three-run homer as Washington downed Cleveland. Stroud's homer was all Joe Coleman needed as he pitched a five-hitter. Barry Moore gave up the homer and took the loss.

Tommy Harper, who sat out the last two games, played with a sore thumb but got four hits as Milwaukee beat Oakland. Harper had a homer, single and two doubles and scored twice while knocking in a run. He also stole his 17th base. John Morris pitched a seven-hitter for Milwaukee.

Shaving Strokes by Frank Beard

8—Shift Your Weight

Shifting the weight correctly during the swing is difficult for many of the amateurs I play with in pro am events. I give them two or three things to think about that are conducive to good weight transfer.

First, you must address the ball properly. The weight should be evenly distributed between the right foot and the left. To make the impending weight shift easier, flex your knees as if you were starting to sit down. That will keep your legs from locking up. And try to feel as though you have your weight on the insides of your feet and determine to keep it there throughout the swing.

A common fault is swaying on the backswing—letting the body lurch to your right instead of coiling, as we discussed a few lessons ago. A slight sway is O.K. It will combat tenseness. But no more than a few inches. To keep from swaying, I conjure up a mental image of myself standing in a big pickle barrel. My hips are just about as wide as the barrel. Then I try to swing so that my hips won't move too far and knock out the sides of the barrel. I try to turn away from the ball along the circumference of the barrel.

My weight shifts from 50-50 to 25-75 on the backswing, 75 per cent on the inside of my right foot, but my hips stay in pretty much the same position, turning only slightly as I make my big shoulder turn. Remember, we're swinging a golf club, not doing a rhumba. Then I slide and turn with my left hip to lead the downswing, and my weight naturally will shift to 75-25, 75 per cent on the left foot.

Braves' Pappas Beats Giants, 4-2

By GARY KALE
UPI Sports Writer

Milt Pappas' broken ring finger on his pitching hand hardly proved to be a break for the San Francisco Giants. The Giants, facing a less durable Pappas who had pitched a total of five innings going into Tuesday night's game, were limited to five hits by the veteran righthander as the Atlanta-Braves defeated San Francisco, 4-2.

"The funniest thing from my mind was going nine innings tonight. In fact, I felt like a lost kid during the first four innings because I didn't know where my pitches were going," Pappas said.

The Giants didn't know where this pitcher was going, either, as Pappas struck out nine and walked only one batter. In other National League games, New York bombed Montreal, 7-4; Cincinnati topped Chicago, 3-1; St. Louis routed Houston, 12-3; Philadelphia shut out Pittsburgh, 2-0; and Los Angeles mauled San Diego, 8-3.

In the American League, Minnesota retained first place in the West by edging Kansas City, 5-4, in 10 innings; California whitewashed Chicago, 3-0; Baltimore defeated New York, 5-1; Boston nipped Detroit, 5-4; Milwaukee beat Oakland, 6-3; and Washington stood Cleveland, 3-1. Atlanta, breaking a three-game losing streak, pinned Marichal with his second loss in three decisions. Rico Carty started a three-run Brave rally in the fourth inning with a single and then touched Marichal for his ninth homer of the year in the ninth inning.

The Mets, who socked three homers against Montreal pitching Monday, hit five more Tuesday as Tommie Agee collected a pair and Ron Swobodia, clean Jones and Don Clendenon connected to give Ray Sadecki his second straight win. Dan McGinn, was the loser.

Cincinnati retained its five-game lead in the NL West on rookie outfielder Bernie Carbo's two-run triple in the seventh inning. Gary Nolan went seven innings and allowed five hits in notching his sixth win in eight
