Reds Attack Major Cambodian City

U.S. Planes Hit Enemy Convoy

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist troops beyond the range of the U.S. offensive attacked the major Cambodian city of Kompong Cham Saturday and heavy fighting was reported. Cambodian commanders rushed reinforcements toward the front but part of a vital supply road was cut.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong units appeared to be stepping up operations as the 16-day U.S. drive into Cambodia was deescalating.

Headquarters announced that one U.S. thrust across the Vietnamese border had ended with the withdrawal of 5,000 Americans. About 10,000 GIs remained on Cambodian soil but President Nixon has promised to get all of them out by June 30.

As fighting raged around Kompong Cham Saturday, U.S. fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships mauled a convoy of North Vietnamese trucks moving deeper into the Cambodian jungles with supplies the Communists were trying to save from the American offensive in the Fishhook area.

Field reports said the American aircraft knocked out six of the trucks and triggered two secondary explosions, indicating that the vehicles were packed with ammunition hauled from Communist caches being searched out by men of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division.

"We had been assaulting this huge cache site for two days, yet they (the Communists) still pushed a 15-truck convoy in there to try to extract some of the equipment they had stored," said Col. Edward C. Meyer, chief of staff of the 1st Air Cavalry Division.

Meyer predicted heavy attacks by Communist troops on U.S. troops in the Fishhook. North Vietnamese infantrymen attacked two U.S. artillery bases in the area on separate nights this week, killing six Americans.

Kompong Cham, Cambodia's second largest city, is a province capital on the Mekong River west of the Fishhook about 10 miles beyond the 21-mile limit President Nixon has imposed on American troops in Cambodia.

Mansfield Says Cambodian Bill 'Has The Votes'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Saturday that legislation to end U.S. operations in Cambodia "has the votes" to pass despite intense White House opposition and Republican efforts to work out a compromise.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, cosponsor of the amendment to cut off funds for American ground or air operations in Cambodia, meantime accused the White House of using "massive political pressures" in an effort to defeat the proposal.

And Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, said President Nixon was using free network television time as a "privileged sanctuary" for pro-war propaganda. He demanded equal time.

But Sen. Jaem Miller, R-Iowa, said it was the administration's foes, not its spokesmen, who were using propaganda. Without naming them, Miller said some columnists, commentators, editorialists and politicians were using the same critical phrases about the Cambodian operation as were Radio Hanoi, Peking and Moscow.

The amendment, sponsored by Church and Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., would end funding of U.S. operations in Cambodia. It would not take effect until after June 30, the date by which Nixon promised complete U.S. withdrawal from Cambodia.

"I think Cooper-Church has the votes," Mansfield told newsmen Saturday, disagreeing with Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott's statement that neither side was sure of Senate victory on the issue.

Mansfield ruled out a compromise, which Scott has sought to hammer out although the White House has insisted it opposes any legislation limiting the President's powers. "Frankly, I don't think Church, Cooper is strong enough," Mansfield said. "But it's a start."

He said the Senate would hold initial votes next week, probably on proposed changes in the amendment or substitutes for it. If passed by the Senate, the amendment then would be considered by the House.

U.S.-MEXICAN EFFORT

Roundup Cracks Narcotics Ring

TIJUANA, Mexico (UPI) — U.S. and Mexican officials have cracked an international narcotics ring which authorities said Saturday had been supplying heroin, cocaine and marijuana for the past 15 years.

A raid by Mexican officers at the headquarters of the so-called Hernandez organization netted uncut heroin valued at $2.4 million. It was estimated the ring smuggled more than $4.4 million worth of heroin into the U.S. each week.

In Washington Attorney General John N. Mitchell said 10 suspects, including two U.S. citizens from Los Angeles, were arrested Friday by the Mexican officers who conducted the raid. He said the arrests climaxed four weeks of intensive surveillance by agents of both countries.

The roundup began Friday afternoon with the arrest at the U.S.-Mexican border of two female couriers, Esta Gonzales Fregoso, 38, of Guadalajara, Mexico, and Santa Flores Leyva, 23, of Los Angeles, who authorities said had 10 pounds of heroin in clear plastic bags taped to her body under her clothing.

From there, officers swooped on a home in Tijuana and arrested Roberto Hernandez, 40; his wife Helen, 39; his brother Juan, 43, and Mercedes Coleman, 32, a friend of Roberto who owned the house.

"Roberto, known to be dangerous, put up a struggle and had to be forcibly removed from the Coleman home," the department said. Two ounces of heroin were found on Mrs. Hernandez.

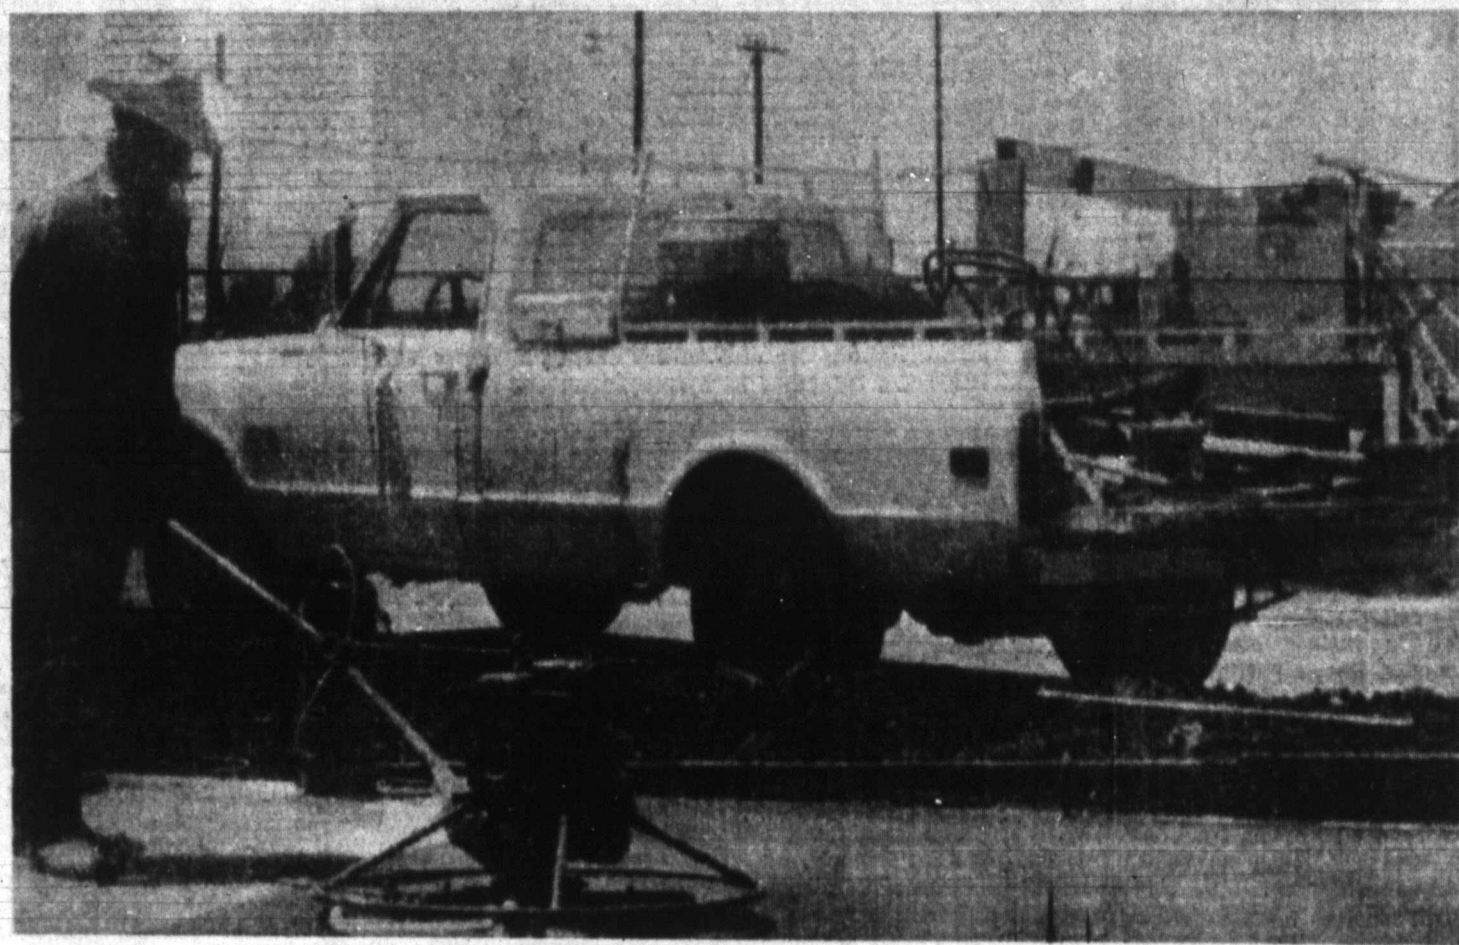

Arrested later in Tijuana were Andrew Delaney, 46, and Roberto Navarrete, 41, the two U.S. citizens from Los Angeles, and Roberto Rubi, 31, and Andria Montes, 22, of Jalisco, Mexico.

One of the couriers led Mexican police to an unoccupied home where they found 15 pounds of cocaine, a grenade launcher, a bazooka, a machine gun silencer and an arsenal of small arms, which were seized.

A department official said the Hernandez organization is alleged to be implicated in several gangland-style murders in Mexico.

Officials of the U.S. Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs in Los Angeles said one of the two female couriers allegedly transported 10 pounds of heroin and a pound of cocaine to Anaheim, Calif., last April 28, where it was seized by U.S. officials. The two sub-

Disaster Fund Talk Slated

By BEN KECK
News Staff Writer

Disaster relief officials of the federal government will be in Pampa Monday to explain the distribution of funds authorized for Gray County to rebuild public buildings destroyed by a tornado April 18.

A public meeting will be held at 2 p.m. in the district courtroom on the third floor of the courthouse.

Vernon Watkins, Precinct 2 county commissioner, said officials from Gray County, Pampa, and surrounding areas are urged to attend the meeting regardless of whether or not their communities were affected by the tornado.

Heading the team of federal officials will be Jack Schlueter, regional liaison officer of the Division of Defense and Disaster Relief in Lubbock.

Gray County was declared a major disaster area along with eight other Texas counties Wednesday. The action came almost a month after tornadoes ripped their way across a seven county area, and two days after a twister destroyed the business district of Lubbock.

Damage estimates for Gray County varied, with insurance adjusters claiming around $500,000 in damages to more liberal estimates of $2 million.

The county received in excess of $120,000 in insurance coverage on the Precinct 2 barn and the annex building destroyed during the storm.

Watkins said he did not know exactly how much federal money would be available to Gray County.

Reconstruction of the precinct barn began last week after commissioners asked for bids and awarded a contract to Pam-Tex Construction Co.

Watkins said the contract on the barn was just under $19,000 and included a ten foot expansion in addition to heating and electrical outlets.

Commissioners declared an emergency in rebuilding the barn, therefore were not required to advertise for bids.

Offices housed in the annex were moved to a leased building at 800 N. Sumner St. Commissioners authorized a building committee, headed by John Spearman, to look into all aspects of reconstruction and design before advertising for bids.

County Judge Sherman Lenning Jr. said if the annex is to be rebuilt, it should provide adequate facilities.

County Engineer Gene Barber was ordered to get with the committee and draw up tentative plans.

Federal funds could make possible an elaborate structure for the county to house welfare, agriculture and other offices.

Watkins said officials aren't sure whether federal funds would come in the form of loans or out-right grants.

"We want two things," he said. "We want to rebuild the facilities to provide the space we need and we want to keep the county out of debt."

Although no figures have been released, unofficial speculation indicates the county could receive as much as $1 million in loans or grants to clear debris and rebuild.

Lawmen Have Day

Mayor Milo Carlson has signed a proclamation designating today as Peace Officer Appreciation Day in Pampa.

The local chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution is sponsoring the observance from 3 to 6 p.m. in the mall of Coronado Center.

Invitations have been sent to all local peace officers, judges, commissioners, and other officials making and enforcing the laws that protect the citizens of Pampa.

Police Chief Jim Conner and Sheriff Rufe Jordan have arranged an exhibit of weapons and other police equipment for public inspection.

Also on display will be a narcotics kit showing the types of drugs and related paraphernalia used by drug addicts.

Mrs. Henry Merrick, DAR regent, said the observance is to allow the public to get acquainted with and express appreciation to the peace officers for their work in keeping the city from harm.

2 Dead In San Marcos Flood, Hundreds Left Without Homes

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (UPI) — Swift and high floodwaters that swept cars away like toys, damaged hundreds of homes, shops, churches and schools and loosed 31 alligators from a tourist spa, receded Saturday, leaving this quiet college town a sodden mess.

"I've never seen anything like it," said Charles Brewer, who lives two blocks from the San Marcos River that rose from its banks Friday under 14-inch rain. "This is the worst thing that ever happened to San Marcos."

Although floodwaters receded, they left behind large ponds of water standing on fields and yards and silt damage hanging as high as the treetops.

Cars were deposited against buildings. Signs, broken fences, household appliances and debris of all kinds littered the city of 17,000.

Hundreds Homeless — The floods left two dead and hundreds homeless. Darryl Craig Crittendon, 3, and his 6-year-old sister, Glenda Rene, drowned at the height of the flooding Friday when the motor of a rescue boat driven by a fireman shut down, jerking the boat to a halt.

The youngsters tumbled into the flooded waters of the San Marcos River. The bodies were recovered later and taken to a local funeral home.

"The town is so torn up that we can't possibly have a property damage estimate until Sunday night," said City Manager Richard Bean.

Alligators Escape — The homeless were fed and lodged in fire stations, churches, motels and schools on higher ground. A total of 383 refugees spent the night after the flood in the San Marcos Baptist Academy. They were expected back Saturday night.

Friday's torrential rains spread across the Texas Hill Country into South Central Texas, killing a third youngster. Thunderstorms roamed over Southeast Texas and the coastal plains.

Juan Gonzales, 10, drowned in a rain-swollen stream in Houston. Aqurarena, a tourist attraction, reported 31 alligators floated to shore. (See FLOOD, Page 2)

Israeli Planes Bombard Egyptian Naval Base; Say Destroyer Sinks

By United Press International — Israeli jets raided an Egyptian naval base on the Red Sea Saturday and sank an Egyptian destroyer and a missile boat, Israeli military spokesmen said.

In ground action, a large Arab guerrilla force was reported battling Israeli troops in the Jordan Valley in fighting that broke out after Arab guerrillas attacked Israeli positions with rockets and ran up a Palestinian flag over an Israeli post.

A guerrilla spokesman said the Israelis rushed reinforcements to the Kasrei-Yahoud region and sent in warplanes to force the guerrillas to bring the flag down. He said the guerrillas also sent in reinforcements and a battle was still going on late Saturday.

A spokesman said the Israeli planes hit the Egyptian naval base of Ras Banas, 280 miles south of the Sharm El Sheikh fortress, in retaliation for the sinking Wednesday night of an Israeli fishing trawler by an Egyptian missile boat.

The Israeli raid also was in reprisal for an explosion at the southernmost Israeli port of Eilat Friday which killed one Israeli civilian and wounded three others, the spokesman said.

The Eilat explosion took place when a team of Israel workmen attempted to pull up the wreckage of an Israeli naval auxiliary vessel sunk by Arab frogmen last February.

A brief Israeli military communique said the Egyptian destroyer sunk Saturday was of the "Z" class.

Pampa School Board Slates Night Meeting

For the first time in 10 years, Pampa School Board will start Monday conducting its regular monthly sessions at night. Trustees will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Carver Administration Center and plan to discuss the 1970-71 salary schedule, use of Carver auditorium, teachers' insurance coverage, and summer recreation.

According to the published agenda, Mrs. Helen Warner, PCTA president, has requested to present an insurance report to the board for Pampa teachers. A request was also made for use of Lee Junior High School June 15-July 31 for a summer recreation program with Carl Miller of the school coaching staff in charge of the program. Mrs. James Morgan has requested additional discussion with the board on its future use of Carver auditorium.

The board will also consider personnel changes, resignations and employment, hear a counseling and guidance report, and continue discussion of the district's building program.

Trustees stressed the night meetings are scheduled to permit more time for the board to fully discuss school business questions, and to permit more interested persons to attend board sessions.

The board is also expected to hear reports on an immunization policy from the Texas Education Agency, out-of-district transfers, and a study of a possible pilot project in vocational education for handicapped students.

The latest two tornado victims were Joe Garrett, 29, a Lubbock roofer, and Rafael Leyva, 13, of Brownsville, Tex. Garrett died at 2:30 a.m. and the boy died at 9 a.m.

Left 10,000 Homeless

The twister left an estimated 10,000 homeless, injured as many as 1,000 and caused more than $100 million in damage. The previous most destructive tornado was the one that struck Waco on May 11, 1953, causing $45 million in damage.

The Leyva boy was passing through Lubbock Monday night with his mother, father, two brothers and four sisters. They were on their way from Brownsville to Nebraska, officials said, to work in the fields.

The family and other migrant workers were in four cars. One car, the last, was caught in a red light. While it waited for

Meeting Set For Monday on Plans For Auditorium

The architectural sub-committee of the M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium Committee will meet with City Manager Charles Hill and other city officials at 1:30 p.m. Monday in City Hall. Dean Heckman, sub-committee chairman, said the meeting has been called by the city manager to bring city officials up to date on activities of the committee during the past three years. Heckman's committee comprised of Homer Johnson, Tex DeWeese, former city manager Jim White and Jim O'Connor, former manager of Coronado Inn, conducted a series of interviews with architects in 1967 and finally selected George W. Dahl, Dallas architect, to submit several preliminary plans for the Pampa auditorium. Results of the committee's work and the architect's proposed are expected to be discussed and turned over to the city. Mayor Milo Carlson has proposed that the current architectural sub-committee of the General Auditorium Committee continue to serve with the addition of two city-appointed members to carry out planning of the structure. The city has accepted a proposal of the M.K. Brown Foundation trustees to take over building of the structure with a $400,000 cash contribution plus income from Foundation holdings to pay off revenue bonds at the rate of approximately $60,000 a year. The city currently is studying the financial plan with the objective of determining just how much money the Foundation offer will provide.

"We do have the two big ones captured," Rod Baughn, director of operations at Aquarena, said of the 10-foot-long alligators. "They were the ones that could have killed someone. They were man-eaters. But I don't want to minimize the danger of those we haven't found." Cows Enter House Cows swept from a nearby farm field escaped the current by squeezing inside an apartment house fr married students at Southwest Texas State College. Mayor Hollis Smith praised the aid given the homeless Friday night. "Everyone pulled together in an amazing way," he said. The National Guard said all but 10 of the 42 men sent in Friday were sent home. Those remaining planned to stay until Sunday, helping families move back into their water-logged homes. Twenty highway patrol units manned blockades into the city Saturday. Only residents or persons with business there were admitted. Keep Spectators Out "The only problem now is keeping the spectators out," a Department of Public Safety official said. Tony Lerma, 21, a Southwest Texas State student who lives just a block from the San Marcos River, inspected the damage outside his home. As he did, small fish flopped in puddles left in streets, stranded when floodwaters dropped just as rapidly as they had risen. Railroad Track Goes "People just took their personal belongings and got the hell out and let it come," Brewer said. "You could see it coming but you didn't think it was moving that fast, and the first thing you know, it was on you," he said. About 450 feet of Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railway track was washed out inside the San Marcos city limits. An equal amount was destroyed outside town. A group of 150 children were evacuated from a flooded elementary school. "I've never seen anything like this," said Luther Paris, 65, who worked for 20 years at a federal fish hatchery on the banks of San Marcos River. "I've been here 46 years and the water has never been this high before."

Rescue workers Saturday pumped all the water from a triple underpass previously flooded by 16 feet of water. They pulled out a six-wheel truck and two cars but found no bodies in the flooded area. "Let us give thanks that so many were spared and that those injured are recovering," Granberry said in his proclamation. "Let us give thanks to many friends here in our city, our state and our nation who have given of their time, money, food, clothing and shelter to comfort those who needed help."

Churches Clean Up Lubbock churches, some whose ornate stained-glass windows, pews and other facilities were damaged, cleaned up and got ready for memorial worship services today. Dr David Ray, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Lubbock, second only to the Dallas First Baptist Church in size in the Southern Baptist Convention, said his church might have to use supplementary power but it would observe the mayor's day of prayer. "I think we do have to be very thankful. My sermon will be on tragedy and the will of God," Ray said. "Two questions we'll try to answer are: if God is the sovereign God and the God of love, why does he allow things like this to happen? Also, what is God trying to say at a time like this? My position is that God does not cause everything to happen—he allows some things. Then he seeks to bring something good out of it when it does happen."

Federal Officials Help The Rev. Curtis Halfmann of Our Lady of Grace Catholic Church, said, "We will observe the mayor's request and proclamation—not only for the victims, but for those in hospitals and as thanksgiving for those who did survive." The Seventh Day Adventist Church of Lubbock, completely destroyed, will hold services at a church of another faith. Granberry said 90 per cent of the city's electricity and 30,000 of 36,000 telephones knocked out by the tornado have been restored. He said 500 federal officials are in Lubbock to help confer in Jackson Monday with Mayor Davis, and Dr. John A. Peoples, president of Jackson State College, a predominantly Negro school. Bay Of Pigs Rerun? # Court Martial Slated For Marines Accused In Vietnam Massacre

DA NANG, Vietnam (UPI)—The U.S. Marine Corps Saturday ordered a court martial for four Marines accused of murdering 16 Vietnamese civilians last Feb. 19. A fifth Marine involved in the case was freed from confinement April 26 with charges held in abeyance, military sources said. The 1st Marine Division also announced that 1st Lt. Louis R. Ambort, 23, of Little Rock, Ark., was given a letter of reprimand and forfeiture of $500 pay for making a false official statement about the incident involving members of his company. A preliminary investigation of the charges found sufficient evidence of a crime to try the four. Maj. Gen. Charles F. Widdecke, 1st Division commander, Saturday referred the men to trial. The accused are Pvt. Randall D. Herrod, 20, Calvin,

Protestors' Shadows Dull Military Brass By United Press International The glitter of military brass was dulled slightly Saturday by the shadow of demonstrators who grouped to express their displeasure with the Indochina War, but many Armed Forces Day parades were staged without incident. The Pentagon said 23 observations had been canceled by military authorities under the threat of demonstrations, which, according to one fort commander, posed "a possible dangerous situation for families and children who are expected to visit the post." But 10,000 police, war veterans and armed services groups marched down New York City's Fifth Avenue to the cheers of about 5,000 onlookers. There was no trouble, though 30 grotesquely-dressed demonstrators who said they were a

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group diffidently named "The World's Greatest Jazz Band" currently is raising the decibel count at the Shoreham Blue Room with nightly exhibitions of welkin ringing.

The story behind this sound and fury is now familiar but I will tell it anyway because it is a gladsome story and stories of that type are getting hard to come by.

Seems a wealthy Denver music lover, Richard D. Gibson, upon being notified that jazz was dead, rounded up nine well-tempered practitioners of the art and bade them revive it, which they more or less have done.

The band Gibson underwrote struck sparks almost immediately and is now breathing life into jazz in concert halls across the land, not to mention television appearances and a recent performance at the White House.

Story is Familiar
The story behind Gibson also is by now familiar but I will tell it too, for it likewise has a gladsome glow.

Seems that he was able to back the band because he got on the ground floor of "a wild invention" that turned out to be the Water Pik. Or should I say he got in under the ground floor.

Water Piks were being made by hand in a basement workshop when Gibson organized a company in 1962 to impress them upon the public. Five years later the firm sold for $30 million.

The Water Pik, as you probably know, is a dental appliance that cleans teeth and stimulates gums with pulsating jets of water.

When I learned of its connection with "The World's Greatest Jazz Band," it occurred to me that perhaps the Water Pik also had musical possibilities.

I got to thinking that if I could learn to play jazz on a Water Pik I might have a gladsome story behind me. I figured I could join the band as a Water Pik soloist. Or maybe trumpet duets with Billy Butterfield.

Test soon proved that the only sound a Water Pik makes is an unmelodic monotone. The pitch can be varied slightly, by upping the pulsation rate, but it remains an unmelodic monotone.

I have discovered, however, that my teeth, being of varying sizes, give off different tones when the water jets hit them, sounds a bit like a vibraphone, with the molars in the bass range and the bicuspidals treble.

Already, with just a few hours of practice, I've mastered the "South Rampart Street Parade." The trouble is that until someone invents a tooth amplifier nobody else can hear it.

SAN FRANCISCO—Smog expert S. Smith Griswold, condemning auto pollution control devices which he says does not do the job intended:

"The fact that the American people have spent nearly $1 billion to date on exhaust control devices which are not providing the benefits for which they were purchased is reprehensible and a reflection on both industry and government."

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State William P. Rogers, asserting the U.S. will not stay in Cambodia:

"The United States has no intention of getting involved in Cambodia with American troops in support of the present government of Cambodia or any other government in Cambodia."

Hollywood In Review

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton took their places quietly when director Jerry Priz holediered, "All right, let's take a fine run-through for the day."

"Taylor and Burton are pros. Real professionals," a stagehand said. "Look at 'em. They do exactly what they're asked."

A gnarled electrician agreed: "Some of the stars in this business think they're too good for the rest of us. But not the Burtons."

Liz and Dick weren't even the stars of the show. They had asked Lucille Ball if they could appear in a guest capacity on her half-hour "Here's Lucy" situation comedy.

Lucy was flabbergasted. Lucy, naturally, was flabbergasted. Stars of the Burton-Taylor magnitude look down on video sitcoms. But they rehearsed for a week with the enthusiasm of tyros and performed their comedy sequences flawlessly, adding bits and pieces of business as the show progressed.

Lucille Ball's perfectionism was infectious.

"I didn't know so much blasted work went into one of the shows," Burton said good naturedly. "Thank God I'm not drinking."

The Welshman has pared down from 190 pounds for his role as Henry VIII in "Anne of the Thousand Days" to 160 pounds for yet another movie.

His wife, nearing 40, continues to be an object of beauty. Obviously it is something she cannot help.

"I have no beauty secrets," she said. "I don't use any creams and special makeup or wear false eyelashes. I use plain soap and water. The rest of that junk just clogs up your skin."

Both stars portray themselves in the episode which will be aired next fall.

Often characterized as being overpublicized or overrated, the Burtons bring excitement with them wherever they go. This sense of excitement doesn't dissipate during the day.

"Hell never walk and will probably not live," was the professional opinion of doctors after a near-fatal auto accident charged the direction of Verbon Smith's life in 1955. With a broken neck, back, pelvis and a ruptured kidney, Smith sold his farm near Perryton, in Ochiltree county to get out from under his debts. Both of his children were lost in the wreck.

Six months later, Smith decided that he was going to walk again and bought a 480-acre farm near Wheeler, to replace the one he sold. The acreage was rented out and the tenant reported that 9 acres of sudan on the farm provided more grazing than the rest.

In a farming area where an average of 16 farm families a year were throwing in the towel and quitting, Smith decided he was going to have to change tactics or give up the farm.

"Hopeless-pile of blowsand," was the most fitting description that would be applied to the place. A pickup truck would get stuck anywhere on it. Needgrass, grass burs and ragweeds growing in piles of blowsand 15-feet deep were all the grazing cattle had. One neighboring ranch still stocks 100 head of cattle on 2000 acres.

"I decided that I was going to starve to death the way things were going," Smith said. That was the day back in 1965 when he called on Bill Brooks, district conservationist with the Wheeler County Soil and Water Conservation District.

Smith says that he approached Brooks and told him that he would appreciate any help the district could give, but if they could not give any, he was going to do something anyway.

Working closely with the district, he signed a Great Plains contract in April 1967. The program, which supplies around seventy thousand dollars to cooperating farmers each year in Wheeler County, helped Smith finance as much as 80 percent of the cost of leveling the sand dunes, drilling water wells, constructing windmills and stock troughs, fencing and initial grazing establishment.

Today, 140-head of cattle graze peacefully on 285 acres of Ermele Weeping love grass. The grass will be properly utilized. He has today enviable system of cross-fencing and watering facilities second to none. His biggest problem has been keeping up with the grass that he has. Several hundred farmers and ranchers have toured his set up to get ideas on restoring worn-out farmland through the Northwest Texas Research Demonstration program.

He has been very active in the Northwest Texas Research Demonstration Program, cooperating with the Extension Service on a whole farm Grassland Result Demonstration. In this demonstration, average daily gains for a selected group of cattle will be recorded over the growing season.

Picking himself up after a great personal loss and physical tragedy epitomizes the character of Verbon Smith. In a larger sense, he has also helped other people get back on their feet. No less than 17 children have been kept in his home off and on over the last 21 years. His life work has been helping the troubled and disadvantaged.

In 1949 he helped keep an epileptic for a year and helped him re-gain confidence in himself again. One 14-year-old girl that he and his wife sheltered when her folks separated, is now happily married and has two children of their own.

He and his wife along with their two adopted children Cindy 15 and Joe Lee 18, operate a skating rink in the rural area, offering a vital community recreation need.

Lassater's Sentence Is Revoked

WHEELER (Spl) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin affirmed Wednesday the revocation by 31st District Court here of the probation of William R. Lassater, 36, now of Dallas and a former Twitty resident.

Lassater, formerly of Wheeler County was convicted in March 1968 on a charge of possession of marijuana and given a five-year probation sentence.

The probation was revoked last December in 31st District Court on charges of several probation violations, including possession of stolen property and consumption of alcoholic beverages.

District Attorney Guy Hardin of Shamrock, said that Lassater has ten days in which to file for another hearing in the appellate court.

He will be incarcerated in Huntsville State Penitentiary if the motion is not filed, Hardin stated.

Sanitation Chafeur Speaks

(First of a Series)
By TOM TIEDE

MONTCLAIR, N.J. (NEA) — It's 6:30 a.m. Cool. Windy. And just as he has been almost every day for the past 22 years, Scott Stroud is again behind the wheel of his truck, doing the dirtiest job in town.

He's a garbage man. Oh, that's not his official title. He's actually a "sanitation chafeur" whose list of city responsibilities includes "refuse disposal."

Honest.

Yet garbage by any other name still stinks. And so Scott Stroud, 49 years old, graying, but very sturdy, never tries to impress anyone.

"I collect garbage, pure and simple," he says. "Eggshells, cantaloupe rinds — it's just plain garbage to me. But I suppose it don't make no nevermind what it's called. Slop, trash — anything folks here don't want or can't eat has got to be loaded up and hauled away. It'd be hell if it just stood around gatherin'. So I see to it that it don't."

Stroud sees to it eight hours a day, six days a week, in fair weather or foul, while small boys call out remarks as his truck passes, and while frumpy housewives in bedroom slippers ask him not to make so much noise.

It's a lousy, lousy job. It would be nice to say otherwise. Garbage collecting is so vital and important to the nation's health and well-being here are hidden benefits to the job. But there aren't. It's arduous, it's grimy, it's unrewarding. It frankly is the bottom of the employment heap.

For these reasons, and others, most cities around the country are finding it increasingly difficult to recruit new garbage men. Montclair, for example, is currently short 16 men and in desperation has reduced its job qualifications to "practically zero."

"We still refuse rapists and murderers," says the public works director, "but we take just about anybody else."

As it happens, "just about anybody else" usually means poor, luckless or exconvict laborers. In this part of the nation, anyway. An estimated nine out of 10 garbage men in the East are black, a good number of them with records of unemployment, shifting employment or legal entanglements.

On the other hand, many garbage men, black or white in any part of the nation, have fine records — both past and present. And nobody in America works any harder at any more necessary job.

Scott Stroud is a good example. He's black. World War II veteran. Married. Seven kids. He takes his responsibilities, including his job, serious to the point of solemnity. "He does not kid around," his colleagues say.

Scott Stroud
He just works like hell.

Working now, early in the morning, Scott Stroud is dressed in the old knit sweater he once found in a trash can ("Anything we find we can keep"). He started out on this job in 1948, lifting up cans at $35 a week. He's a senior man today, and he doesn't do as much lifting; he has been promoted to full-time truck driver ("chafeur") at "about $128 a week take-home money."

Up Wachtung Ave., over to Main St., then through the residential area. Stroud's hands tear at the truck wheel and his feet beat against the foot pedals. There is sweat on the backs of his knuckles. A smudge on his forehead.

Get that cardboard behind that shrub — be careful with that broken glass — pick up what you drop, pick up what you drop — watch for that hole in the sidewalk — hold it, let me help you lift that refrigerator.

Stop. Go. Stop. Go. Into the truck. Out of the truck. A hundred times an hour. Fifty-pound cans. And old orange juice running down the neck.

Man, says Stroud, it's wearing.

"There's a lot of bad things about this job. Like the cold in the winter; you can't pry orange peelin' out of ice. And like stink in the summer; I take two loads (26 tons) of junk a day to a local land fill and, man, I tell you the smell's enough to make the dead. And like the dirt is bad all the time; at the end of the day you gotta wash twice just to get the first layer off.

"But I'm used to it now. I don't mind it so much. I get some overtime money usually every week, 'cause we're shorthanded. I pick up some change now and then by sellin' some things I find to the junk dealers. It's a livin'. I ain't gonna badmouth it. Besides, I'm payin' my way. Nobody givin' me nothin'. Whatever work a man's got, it's a lot better than being on welfare."

Scott Stroud. Garbage man. Stop. Go. Stop. Clean out the bottom of those cans — keep off the lady's grass — take all those broken sacks, too — be careful of that dog by the fence — pick up what you drop, pick up what you drop

Foreign News Commentary

SAIGON (UPI)—The Allied campaign into Cambodia has yielded the Vietnam War's largest caches of Communist weapons. But American troops have so far failed in the mission given them by President Nixon to break up a floating Communist headquarters called COSVN.

A main objective of the massive foray across the border was the so-called Central Office for South Vietnam (COSVN), the field command post from which Hanoi runs its military operations in the southern half of South Vietnam.

Pentagon officers can describe COSVN in great detail. More Skeptical

Field officers are more skeptical. They believe in COSVN, too, but they are not sure what it is going to look like when and if they finally find it.

There is a feeling here, among GIs as well as U.S. military experts, that Nixon may have oversold the possibility of wiping out COSVN.

U.S. military experts haven't yet given up on finding COSVN, but the ones here certainly don't expect to capture any top strategists there. Nor do they expect to kill a lot of people left there to defend it. The Communists do not operate that way.

When the Americans moved into Cambodia, the North Vietnamese leaders, apparently decided to leave their gigantic supply depot and save their troops.

The fleeing Reds did not even linger long enough to booby-trap their caches, much less seriously defend them.

It is significant that Allied forces have not taken a single prisoner of high rank.

Still, U.S. military experts here say the Cambodian campaign is a great success. They say it will force the Communists to lie low for the five-month rainy season, which

Nixon's Ag Boys Hide Hot Dog Ingredients

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Agriculture Department has again refused to let consumers find out, from federal meat plant inspection files, how much fat individual processors are putting into hot dogs and other cooked sausage.

But while the plant inspection files on fat remain closed department spokesmen disclosed they now plan to give consumers access to brand-by-brand reports on fat in hotdogs from another source—a projected program of testing sausage samples purchased in retail markets.

Those developments this week capped a series of press and public demands for access to information on the fat content of hot dogs. The controversy began after the department, late last year, adopted a 30 per cent limit on fat in cooked sausages including hot dogs, bologna and similar foods.

On April 27, after the department had released the first of a planned series of reports showing the national average fat content of federally inspected sausage, newsmen revived earlier requests for specific information by plant and brand. Reporters also

Lumber Market Price Adjustments Scheduled For Sales After June

A new method of adjusting stumpage prices for National Forest timber sales will be used for sales with bids to be opened on and after June 15, 1970, Southwestern Regional Forester Wm. D. Hurst announced today. The new procedure will apply in those areas where timber sale contracts normally provide for adjusting bid prices every calendar quarter, based on lumber market changes.

Hurst said present adjustment procedures have not been satisfactory when an extreme market change has occurred, especially when prices have fallen rapidly, resulting at times in mill shutdowns and unemployment.

The new procedure is similar to the old one, in that it provides for stumpage price adjustments every three months, depending upon movements of a lumber price index in relation to this index when the timber was appraised. It differs in that adjustments

4-H Corner

By RICHARD GUGGISBERG and JENI D. FINCH, (Asst. Agents)

The month of May has been set aside for record book training in all the 4-H Clubs. The Assistant Agents are giving this training at all the 4-H club meetings to assist the members in filling out their record forms correctly. These record books will be due in July. A definite date will be set later.

The Tractor Operator School was very successful this past week. Twenty-seven boys, 14-15 years of age participated in the program. Some of the boys have summer jobs lined up. The ones who do not will be on file at the Texas Employment Commission. The boys received training in safety, controls and daily maintenance.

Fifteen teams represented Gray County at the District Eliminations in Canyon last Saturday. Three teams are eligible to go to State competition which will be at Roundup June 3 and 4 in College Station. Those eligible to go are Lisa and Willa Friend in Safety Demonstration, Isaac Baggerman in Tractor Driving, and Lonnie and Cheryl Robbins, Ray Kenny and Ted Reeves in Rifle Team. These members will be sponsored by the Assistant Agents.

Henry Elder, Texas Hereford Association, was in the Pampa vicinity visiting several Panhandle Hereford Breeders, Roy Richerson, American Hereford Association from Fort Worth, was also visiting in the Pampa Area. Both of these fellows are probably the best known in Hereford circles of anyone in the Southwest. It is good to have them in our area. Frank Carter passed the information on to me that they were in our area.

Local farmers have been very busy plowing up excess wheat as well as moving cattle. ASC regulations prohibit the grazing of diverted acres after May 14. This cut-off date on grazing means a lot of cattle are moved and a lot of excess wheat destroyed. Plowing has been extremely tough due to the heavy tramping of cattle during a winter that had above average moisture. Many farmers are pre-irrigating milo ground. Very little milo has been planted to date. The recent dry spell has taken a heavy toll in the potential wheat crop. Most of the irrigated wheat that is intended for harvest looks exceptionally well.

The ASC office is located on Alcock Street (Borger Highway). This is where the old Foxworth-Galbraith Lumber Company used to be located. We have had a number of people come by our office looking for the ASC. We are located at 800 North Sumner, just west of Culberson-Stowers Chevrolet in what used to be the Humble Office Building.

On May 13 the Commissioners' Court voted unanimously to proceed with rebuilding plans for the Courthouse Annex which was destroyed by a tornado on April 18. Mr. Gene Barber was instructed to proceed with the drafting of plans at the earliest date possible. All members of the Court asked that high priority be placed on the rebuilding of this building. So many have been inquiring and have been concerned that I thought you would like this report. The insurance on the three thousand, which is building was slightly over sixty, somewhat short of what would be required to replace the building over the present foundation. Now that Gray County has been officially declared a disaster area as a result of the tornado, substantial assistance can be received from the Federal Government.

The Commissioners' felt that better building should be erected than the one that existed. The Building Committee and many others feel an area in back of the building should be paved for the employees as well as an area in front for those that transact business at these offices. In addition to the Agricultural agencies that are housed in this building, the Welfare Department and the Superintendent of Schools have offices.

The meeting room is used almost nightly by a host of organizations. There are many day-time meetings as well. Many area meetings of various Panhandle organizations have been held in this building. The Court is to be com-

This "thing" called ecology has really caught the imagination of those so-called "do-gooder" groups who are always looking for a cause that enables them to project themselves personally upon the people through the various news media. After watching a television show on ecology recently, I was not at all certain ecology was the main theme. The cameramen on the nationally televised program spent so much time showing the narrator from his best photogenic angles that one might have concluded the narrator was having a screen test for a movie role.

The program began well enough, but as it progressed the narrator with his well practiced and modulated voice, began to put words in the mouths of the ecologists who were really supposed to have been the program.

There is a definite place and part for the ecologists in the development of the planning for the future development of the country. The nation should

Pacers Beat Stars

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—Mel Daniels, saddled with foul trouble early, came off the bench in the fourth period Friday night and led the Indiana Pacers to a 109-93 triumph over Los Angeles in their opener of the American Basketball Association playoff finals.

Indiana, making its second straight bid for the ABA title after losing to Oakland last season, held only a 73-72 edge as the final period began. But Daniels bagged 16 of its 18 points in the last period and Indiana outscored the Stars, 36-22, to win going away.

Daniels, the league's "most valuable player" last year and the No. 2 rebounder in this campaign, picked up three fouls in the first 8½ minutes of the game and was benched by coach Bob Leonard. He started the second half but was quickly sidelined when he picked up his fourth personal.

The Pacers, Eastern Division champions, had six players in double figures, led by team captain Freddie Lewis with 22 points and Bob Netolicky and Roger Brown with 19 each. But it was the 6-9 Daniels who sparked the fourth-period charge.

The Stars, Western Division playoff champions making their appearance in the "cup" playoff finals for the first time, had five players in double figures led by Bob Warren with 20 and Mack Calvin, George Stone and 7-foot Craig Raymond with 16 apiece.

Los Angeles, primarily on the shooting of Calvin and Warren, took a 24-21 first period lead but the Pacers ran off eight straight points at one spot in the second period and nine straight at another to take a 49-44 halftime edge.

The score was tied eight times and the lead changed hands eight times before the Pacers took the lead for good at 69-67 on a fielder by Brown late in the third period.

Personality Takes Preakness Stakes

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI)—Personality, a disappointing eighth in the Kentucky Derby two weeks ago, held on with a world of gameness in the homestretch Saturday to beat favored My Dad George by a neck in the $203,800 Preakness Stakes, richest "Triple Crown" race ever run.

Dust Commander, the surprise Derby champion, rallied to show the same late speed and staggered home ninth in the 14-horse field on the kite-shaped Pimlico track.

Jockey Eddie Belmonte steered Personality, owned by Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs, wide coming off the final bend and brought him down the middle of the track to victory, a winner's purse of $151,300, and a winning mutual payoff of $11.00.

But it took every ounce of strength the bay colt had to get home safely, because My Dad George, who also was second in the Derby at Churchill Downs, started a long and bitter drive when straightened out for the final dash to the wire.

At the start of the stretch My Dad George and Dust Commander were racing side by side in pursuit of Personality. Suddenly Dust Commander began to shorten stride while My Dad George continued to drive.

Personality, a home-bred son of the hard-luck horse Hall to Reason paid $11.00, $4.40 to place and $3.20 to show. My Dad George, winner of the Flamingo Stakes and the Florida Derby, paid $3.20 and $2.60. Silent Screen took third and paid $3.80.

Personality ran the 1 3-16 mile distance in 1:56.15.

Silent Screen, the 1969 juvenile champion, had taken the lead as the field streamed down the backstretch while the crowd of 42,474 urged on their favorite. Personality lay right back behind the leaders while Dust Commander and My Dad George were back in the middle of the pack. Suddenly, jockey Mike Manganello shifted Dust Commander into high gear.

Ray Broussard, on My Dad George, stirred up his colt at the same time and the two horses started to close in on the front runners. They raced outside to avoid those ahead of them but swung back to the turn before they completed the final turn.

What's In A Name? Color That's What!

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

NEW YORK — (NEA) — It occurs to us there's an identity crisis in American sports. The thought was stimulated by the whirlwind final championship series of the National Baseball Association between the New York Knicks and the Los Angeles Lakers.

The athletes—Willis Reed, Jerry West, Dave DeBusschere, Walt Chamberlain, et al — were magnificent.

But when you come right down to it, Jerry and Willis and Dave and even Elgin (for Baylor) are fairly prosaic names which don't really convey the excitement of the performers.

It wasn't always like this. Years ago, the Detroit Tigers had a pitcher named Boots Poffenberger, his real name, known only to those who pore over baseball encyclopedias, was Cletus; the origin of Boots was vague, but it was graphic enough. Cletus took his seven-league boots wherever the whim struck, and eventually he vanished in a Poffenberger of wispy smoke.

One of Boots' pitching contemporaries on the Tigers was Lynwood Rowe, but hardly anyone would recognize him by that name. He was Schoolboy Rowe during his tenure in baseball, and he lived up to it. When he pitched and won a World Series game in 1934 and was promptly put on the radio (which was big bananas in those days), he blurted back home to the folks in El Dorado, Ark., "How'm Ah doin', Edna?"

Today a pitcher for Detroit can be just as colorful, in his own fashion, but he'll be named Dennis.

Nicknames that stick seem to be out among current heroes. Big Will had a natural when he first shoved his 7 feet 2 inches into the scene — Wilt the Stilt. But he objected so strenuously to it — he preferred to be called Big Dipper — that writers automatically deferred to him. You don't argue with the world's strongest man. (But they ignored the other nickname, too.)

The point is that a lot of color has gone out of sports names. Men were labeled, and it became part of their image. In fact, it was so much a part of them that only their mothers really remembered how they were christened.

Who ever bohered to learn the first names of Pee Wee Reese (Harold), Yogi Berra (Lawrence), Pepper Martin (John), Whizzer White (Byron), Sweetwater Clifton (Nathaniel), Bear Bryant (Paul), Bulldog Turner (Clyde), Boom Boom Geoffrion (Bernard), Iron Man McGinnity (Joseph Jerome), Pie Traynor (Harold) or Gabby Hartnett (Leo)? Dizzy Dean, from the moment he arrived on the big league scene, was nothing else — in fact, there's still an argument whether his given name is Jerome Herman or Jay Hanna.

The above is just a sampling of the colorful names which, helped along by some writers' lively imaginations, became symbols of their times. Any baseball fan who had the price of a bleacher seat could quickly identify Twinkletoes, Big and Little Poison, Kiki, Dazzy, Ducky, Bing, Rube, Arky, Cookie, Puddinhead, Snuffy and Vinegar Bend — without a scorecard. You had some great ones in football, too: Big Daddy, Buckets, Biggie, Crazy Legs, Hopalong, Bucko and Bruiser, to name a few.

Pee Wee, Yogi, Boom Boom, Bear

Maybe Bart Starr, John Unitas or Gale Sayers don't need the extra elegance of a flashy title. And Arnold Palmer wouldn't be any richer. But Richard Gonzalez occupies a special niche for all eras of tennis and remains a serviceable and still alluring relic as Pancho.

If there's one good thing to be said for Charles O. Finley as a baseball entrepreneur, it's that he has had the acuity to populate the pitching staff of the Oakland Athletics with people such as Blue Moon Odom and Catfish Hunter. At least they sound livelier than the team mascot he used to parade into hotel lobbies — a donkey, name of Charley O.

Founder Of Modern T-Formation Is Taken By Death At Age Of 78

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI)—Clark Shaughnessy, patron saint of modern T-formation football coaches and considered one of the great brains of the gridiron game, is dead at the age of 78.

Shaughnessy was a fullback for the University of Minnesota from 1911-1914 but never played professional ball. He was an obscure college coach for many years until he revived the T-formation and took Stanford University to an undefeated season in 1940 and beat Nebraska in the Rose Bowl.

Later he became head coach of the Los Angeles Rams and was an advisor to owner-coach George Halas of the Chicago Bears.

Halas, a friend for 40 years, said when he learned of his death: "He had one of the great inventive minds of all time in the game and he lost none of his enthusiasm or devotion even in recent years. Clark was a master strategist and organizer and it was my privilege to have had him as a technical adviser on the Bears staff for 12 years."

OAKLAND A's Don Macher appears to have sprouted horns. He lined himself up with sign on outfield fence and camera was there.

Seaver Twirls I-Hitter For NY As Phils Take 8th Straight Loss

By JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Sports Writer

The New York Mets' "rotation program" soon may find them moving back into the National League's Eastern Division lead.

On Wednesday, Gary Gentry limited Chicago to one hit as the defending world champions beat the Cubs Friday. Tom Seaver duplicated the feat allowing only a third-inning single by Mike Compton as the Mets sent the Philadelphia Phillies to their eighth straight loss, 4-0.

The victory, Seaver's seventh against one loss, moved the Mets to within a half game of division-leading Chicago, which lost to the St. Louis Cardinals 1-0.

Seaver struck out 15 batters to raise his major league lead to 88 as he pitched the Mets' third one-hitter in less than a month. Nolan Ryan recorded a one-hitter earlier this season.

In other National League play, Atlanta edged Cincinnati 3-1, Montreal nipped Pittsburgh 2-1, Los Angeles whipped San Francisco 11-5 and San Diego outslugged Houston 10-8, in 10 innings.

In American League action, Baltimore beat Washington 4-3 in 11 innings, Cleveland blanked Boston 3-0, New York beat Detroit 4-1, Chicago downed Kansas City 9-3 and California edged Oakland 5-4. The Minnesota at Milwaukee game was rained out.

Henry Aaron homered and doubled to draw within three hits of the coveted 3,000-hit mark and Rico Carty extended his hitting streak to 31 games with two singles as the Braves beat the Reds.

Dan McGinn pitched a five-hitter for his second straight victory as a starter as the Expos nipped the Pirates. Montreal scored both its runs in the sixth on singles by John Bateman and Ron Fairly.

Jose Cardenal's broken bat single drove in Joe Hoag from third base in the seventh inning with the game's only run as the Cardinals edged the Cubs.

Two-run homers by Willie Crawford and Tom Haller highlighted a six-run first inning that carried the Dodgers past the Giants. Wes Parker also homered for Los Angeles. Willie Mays hit the 607th and 608th homers of his career, each with a runner on, to account for four Giants' runs.

Nate Colbert's two-run homer in the 10th inning gave the Padres their victory over Houston and snapped the Astros' five-game winning streak. Colbert's homer, his 11th, came after Ed Spiezio's pinch-hit double.

Mustangs Sign Running Back

DALLAS (UPI)—Ann Maxson who averaged 8.2 yards each time he carried the ball last season for Beaumont Hebert High School, Saturday signed a football letter of intent with Southern Methodist University.

Coach Hayden Fry said Maxson is "one of the top break-away runners in the state." He is a 9.8 sprinter. The 5-11, 185-pound halfback carried 117 times for 999 yards last year. Beaumont Hebert is the same school that produced SMU all-America Jerry Lewis and all-SWC guard Rufus Cormier.

ORLANDO CEPEDA was once referred to as a "Baby Bull." Pirates' Richie Hebner thinks he still is one, after Orlando's slide sent him flying through the air.

DOUGLASS FIRES RECORD ROUND

Trevino Leads Colonial Tourney

FORT WORTH (UPI)—Lee Trevino dropped in a 35-foot birdie putt on the ninth green Saturday then forged a steady string of pars for a 34-35-69 that gave him the Colonial National Invitation third-round lead with a five-under-par 205.

The 1968 U.S. Open champion who leads the touring golf brigade in both money winnings and points by a comfortable margin got his chance to take over the lead when another Mexican-American, Homero Blancas, trapped his tee shot on the par-3 13th, blasted out 15 feet short and missed his saving-par putt.

Blancas wound up with a 34-35-69 that put him at four-under 206.

While Trevino was a picture of comaisness through the third round, skinny Dale Douglass of Denver made the big headlines with a sensational 32-31-63 that shattered the 24-year-old course record of 65 Ben Hogan set in the initial Colonial tourney in 1946 — the first of his five Colonial titles.

Hogan, incidentally, playing perhaps his last competitive golf, again had his troubles on his old home course, shooting a 32-35-73 that left him far back in the pack at 219. Little Gene Littler shook off a shaky start to make a run at DeVicenzo and Smith saw the leaders, but back-to-back they games fall apart. The Argentine wound up with a 37-37-74 and joined the group of 210 par shooters. Smith had a 37-36-73 and was a stroke better at 209.

Hofheinz Has Mild Stroke

HOUSTON (UPI)—Judge Roy Hofheinz, the owner of the Houston Astros and operator of the Astrodome, was resting comfortably Saturday from a slight stroke, a Methodist Hospital spokesman said.

Hofheinz, 58, suffered the stroke on his left side early Thursday, although the hospital would not confirm it was a stroke until Saturday.

The stroke did not result in loss of speech or other functions. "At this time he is making a satisfactory recovery," the spokesman said. "His present condition is good."

Hofheinz was first admitted to the hospital last Sunday for what the hospital said was an "evaluation of symptoms of dizziness and weakness suggestive of some vascular disorder." He underwent treatment at the hospital all week and was put on a diet.

RAIN HALTS QUALIFYING

Al Unser Wins Pole Spot For Indy Race

By KURT FREUDENTHAL
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—Al Unser, Albuquerque, N. M., speedster who missed the show last year because of a freak accident, Saturday was the fastest of 17 drivers in a rain-shortened qualifying session to win the coveted pole position for the 500-mile Memorial Day auto race.

Unser, who turns 31 the day before the race, averaged 170.221 miles per hour on his trial ride to beat out Texan Johnny Rutherford by a whisker for the inside spot in the front row that goes to the fastest first day qualifier.

More than two hours of qualifying time remained when showers closed down the famed 2 1-2 mile oval. However, qualifications will resume today, and will be completed next week end with the fastest 33 cars comprising the field for the richest auto derby of them all.

Sixteen positions remained to be filled. Rutherford of Fort Worth, who astounded the racing fraternity because he had not been among the leaders in practice, was clocked at 170.215 m.p.h.

Defending police champion A. J. Foyt, the three-time race winner from Houston, was clocked at 170.004 m.p.h., the third fastest-making this the first year that the front row on race day has averaged better than 170 m.p.h.

Other qualifiers, in order of their speeds, were Roger McCluskey, Tucson, Ariz., 169.213; Mark Donohue, Media, Pa., 168.911; Art Pollard, Medford Ore., 168.595; Bobby Unser, Albuquerque, N. M., 168.508; Mario Andretti, Nazareth, Pa., 168.209.

Jim Malloy, Denver, Colo., 167.895; George Snider, Bakersfield, Calif., 167.600; Dan Gurney, Santa Ana, Calif., 166.860; Mike Mosley, Brownsburg, Ind., 166.651; Lee Roy Yarborough, Columbia, S.C.,

166.559; Bruce Walkup, St. Paul, Ind., 166.459; Rick Mather, Laguna Beach, Calif., 165.654; Tony Adamowicz, Torrance, Calif., 164.820; and Steve Krisloff, Parsippany, N. J., 162.448.

Mather, Adamowicz and Krisloff became the first rookies to qualify.

Unser, runnerup to Foyt in the 1967 race, was the eighth qualifier but missed the one and four lap records hunt by Joe Leonard in a turbine-powered car two years ago.

Leonard, who did not get a chance to qualify before the rains came, holds the one-lap mark of 171.953 m.p.h. and the four-lap mark of 171.559.

Unser's royal blue machine, powered by an eight-cylinder Ford engine, is owned by former Speedway champion Parnelli Jones, who no longer competes in this race.

Unser might have cracked the records had he not slipped sideways a bit "a couple of times" during his four-lap sprint.

"The track was getting a bit slippery, but I'm thrilled to be in the race," he said.

PAMPA FINISHES WITH 15-10 SLATE Harvester Baseball Coach Pleased With Performance

By DAN PACKARD
Sports Editor

"As a whole, I was very pleased with the team's performance this season," reflected Pampa baseball coach Buddy Williams, who along with Marvin Lay guided the Harvesters to a 15-10 season record and a fourth-place tie in District 4-AAAA standings with a 9-9 mark.

Pampa forced a deadlock with Borger for the fourth spot with a 10-8 upset victory over loop champion Monterey in the Harvesters' final outing.

"From the beginning I thought we had a chance to win district, but we ran into a four-game period when we couldn't hit and it killed us," Williams lamented.

"In fact, hitting was our weakest point all season," the first-year baseball coach continued. "Early in the year we weren't disciplined enough at the plate and we'd swing at anything, but during the last part of the year we only swung at strikes and the pitchers were forced to get the ball over. Then we started hitting like we should have."

"Our strongest points were pitching, defense and good speed."

Although Pampa's 9-9 district record is lower than Williams would have liked it, he praised his charges for doing an outstanding job of coming back from a 4-22 season, the year before.

And it must be noted that six of PHS' nine district losses came by only one-run margins and the Harvesters outbit their opponents in each of those contests.

Monterey (15-3) won the district banner by one game over Tascosa (14-4), followed by Amarillo High (10-8).

The team that most impressed the Pampa mentor, however, was Lubbock Coronado, which finished in a tie for fifth place with Plainview, at 8-10.

"On the day we played, Coronado was the best team we faced all year, especially defensively," he said.

"Monterey had good pitching and good defense. Tascosa had to rely on good hitting because it didn't have much speed and its only successful pitcher was Gary Bogan."

In reviewing the Harvester roster, several names drew praise from Williams, including pitchers Sammy Heasley, Jeff Hogan, Mike Edgar and hitters John Jenkins, Dale Ammons and Gregg Schulz.

"Heasley did a fine job on the mound and Hogan and Edgar got a lot of people out in relief," Williams added.

Schulz, only a sophomore, posted a .519 average at the plate and was called Pampa's "most consistent hitter" by his coach.

Looking to next season, Williams said, "We will be a much better ballteam. That doesn't mean we'll win more games because that depends on the players and their desire to win, but our physical qualities will be improved."

"We'll have much better hitting and our pitching should be stronger."

"Defensively, we'll be as good as, if not better than we were this season. However, we won't have near as much speed."

After Pampa bested Monterey, the players presented the game ball to Coach Lay. The assistant is in his last season at Pampa and will attend East Texas University on an assistant instructorship while working on his doctor's degree in education.

Lay and his family came to Pampa in April of 1968 and will reside in Commerce in September.

"I was highly impressed with the fine attitude and desire of this ball club," Lay commented. "I think our seniors have to be given a lot of credit for instilling a feeling of pride in our younger players. In that way they have helped to make Pampa a contender for next season."

IOC Expels South Africa

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — The International Olympic Committee wound up its 60th international congress by expelling South Africa from the organization because of the country's apartheid policies.

South Africa, which earlier this year was banned from the Davis Cup tennis competition, was voted down 35-28 with three abstentions in a secret ballot Friday to mark the final day of the congress. The Supreme Council of African Sport, which presented the charges against South Africa, had threatened an African boycott of the 1972 Munich Olympics if the republic was not expelled.

The next international step expected to be taken against South Africa will be to press the Cricket Council to cancel a scheduled cricket tour of England by the republic this summer.

The week-long congress also was marked by the awarding of the 1976 summer and winter games to Montreal and Denver, respectively, and an extension of IOC President Avery Brundage's running war with the International Ski Federation (FIS).

"I have nothing against the sport, but FIS delegates have been forced to admit that there are under-the-counter payments made to top men. As long as this state of affairs exists, I shall be against its inclusion in the Olympics," Brundage said.

The IOC and FIS will get together between now and the next congress at Luxembourg, Sept. 13-18, 1971, to see if a compromise formula can be arrived at.

Double-A Alters To Race

AMARILLO — Al Marcellus and Willie Borsch have been associated with Drag Racing as much as any two men in history. And their partnership is one which has remained intact despite the conflicts and hardships which have put an end to others.

The presence of that pair alone should, therefore, be enough to attract the genuine drag racing purists to today's 2 p.m. races at Amarillo Dragway.

The occasion is the first double-A fuel altered competition in the history of Amarillo Dragway — four cars, each racing the other to determine an overall champion.

The Marcellus and Borsch "Winged Express" is one of the four and "Wild Willie" Borsch is anxious to "do his thing" for Texas race fans.

Borsch's "thing" consists of driving a short wheelbase, lightweight, open cockpit roadster to speeds of 200 miles per hour in less than seven seconds. Borsch adds his own touch, however, driving the "Winged Express" with only one hand while resting the other on the car body. The technique has earned him the titles of "Wild Willie" and "One-Handed Willie" and made him a legend in his own time.

Opposing Borsch will be Leroy Chatterling ("Magnificent 7"), Leon Fitzgerald ("Pure Heaven") and Don Green ("The Rat Trap"), three other veterans who earn their living driving the most unpredictable machines in drag racing.

Gates will open at 8 a.m. today with all entries due by 12 noon.

First round of fuel altered competition is set for 2 p.m. with Bob Riggle and the new "Hurst Hemi Under Glass" wheelstander performing between rounds.

Shaving Strokes by Frank Beard

5—Unwinding Down

In our last lesson, I left you hanging at the top of the backswing, having made a good, full shoulder turn. I guess I owe it to you to get you down from that position, which can become uncomfortable after a few days.

By maintaining a relatively stable lower body, and fully turning the shoulders, the "spring" is coiled tightly with potential power. The trick now is to expend that power at the ball, remaining in control.

Just as we did not start the swing with our hands and arms alone, so we do not want to initiate the downswing with the hands and arms. I might say here that there is too much talk about pausing at the top of the backswing. It might be good to FEEL as though you are pausing, but any pronounced hesitation is liable to disrupt momentum. Dan Sikes, a tremendously strong player, pauses for what seems like 30 minutes at the top of his swing, and he is a champion. But I couldn't do that — I'm not strong enough. And neither are you.

Start down to the ball with your left hip. With me it is a slide-turn with my left hip that keys my downswing. I slide and turn it in that order. It is a small slide, only a few inches. But it prevents me from "flycasting" with the club, or bringing it into the ball from outside the intended line of flight, or making any one of a hundred other errors that can result if you start down with the hands and arms. The hands and arms will follow naturally the lead of the left hip, and slip into what the pros call "the power slot." From then on, there isn't much you can do to control your swing. It freewheels.

UMP CHANGES MIND
Orioles Register 4-3 Victory Over Senators

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer
If Ted Williams suffers through many more frustrating games, he may decide to go back to fishing.
He thought he had that good feeling of having a victory on the line Friday night — but it got away from him as Washington Senators after the umpire signaled the third out of the ninth inning.
Instead, Washington wound up losing its eighth straight by a 4-3 margin to the Baltimore Orioles in 11 innings.
The confusing situation came up when Boog Powell apparently hit a game-ending double play grounder with the bases loaded and one out in the ninth inning. Ed Erinkman, the shortstop, fired to second baseman Dave Nelson for the force and Nelson tossed to first baseman Mike Epstein. First base umpire Bill Kunkel raised his right arm and the senators thought the game was over.
But suddenly, Kunkel gave the safe sign and the Orioles had a 3-3 tie since Dave May

Player Chief Still Hoping For Solution

NEW YORK (UPI)—The executive director of the Major League Players' Association said today he still hopes to negotiate a settlement with the club owners despite the fact that they are standing hard on their original offer.
The owners announced Friday that the original package, rejected by a player vote of 505-89 this week, has been reoffered. They observed that "is entirely fair and generous."
"There's not much prospect of renewing an offer that the players in a free secret ballot election rejected by 505-89," said Marvin Miller, the player association's director. "I'll be in touch with the player representatives shortly but they'll have the information before that."
"As far as we're concerned, the players will examine what their position is at this point. We will attempt to negotiate a...
The owners' offer is to raise retroactively for this season the minimum salary from $10,000 to $12,000 and then to $12,750 in 1971 and $13,500 in 1972.
The offer was made after a 4½ hour meeting during which the owners and Commissioner Bowie Kuhn discussed security and groundwork for Curt Flood's suit against baseball's reserve clause.

Giants Blank El Paso, 7-0

By United Press International
Bob Long's two run homer in the fourth inning tied the score and the Albuquerque Dodgers scored another pair in the top of the ninth inning Friday night to hand the Dallas-Fort Worth Spurs their fourth straight loss 4-3 and move two games ahead of El Paso in the Western Division of the Texas League.
Tom Sowinski, a 24-year-old righthander, won the game in the relief.
Meanwhile the Amarillo Giant behind the five-hit shutout performance of Gary Lavelle and two homers blanked the El Paso Sun Kings 7-0 to drop the Kings two games back of the Dodgers.

In the only other game Friday night, the Arkansas Travelers nudged the Shreveport Braves 8-6, San Antonio was rained out at Memphis.

The Amarillo - El Paso game was scoreless going into the top of the eighth inning. But then Rosenda Cedeno of the Giants hit a two-run homer and the Giants pushed across five more in the ninth, two of those coming on a round tripper by Bob Frazier. Lavelle went the distance to record his third victory in five decisions.

Danny Napoleon hit a three run homer in the bottom of the first to send Arkansas on its way to a win over the Braves. Eddie Crosby collected another one for the Travelers in the next inning with one man on base. But it still took a three-run sixth inning to propel the Travelers to its victory.

Albuquerque, which went into its series with the Spurs one game behind El Paso, swept the four-game set from the slumping Dallas-Fort Worth club. Last year the Spurs narrowly lost the division title to the Amarillo Giants.

Williams Brushes Second-Guessers

NEW YORK (NEA)—Ted Williams has been fed by the nation's press.
As other public figures before him, he has been pilloried. Criticism has not always been deserved, however. Nor was it when no one could understand why President Lincoln, for example, stuck with that sort of a general, Ulysses Simpson Grant. And all Grant did was what no other northern general had done—end the War Between the States.

Now Williams, after a year long honeymoon with the press, has again called a halt to tranquility. The Senators' sophomore manager is sometimes' sophomoric, though he is always bursting with animation and often good sense. To some this makes him—and he would groan under the yoke of this phrase—practically endearing.

Recently, Washington sports-writers, climbing the platform of the First Amendment, took their liberty to "second-guess" the last 400 hitter in baseball and last year's Manager of the Year.

They asked in print why he did not pinch-hit for the pitcher in a given situation, a situation which turned out to be detrimental to the Senators' chances of winning that particular game.

"It's bush, just plain bush," he told them. "I'm going to refuse to discuss strategy with you guys if you keep on second-guessing me in the papers."
No one enjoys being judged, especially to be judged and found wanting, especially when there was substance (like losing a game) in that judgment. "A writer rarely pleased the people he was writing about if he tried to write with honesty," wrote Gay Talese in "The Kingdom and the Power." We all have our warts, though few of us have them painted for us in the daily press.
Writers themselves, in fact, forget about their own thin-skinnedness when an editor mows a blue pencil through a pet or pretty phrase.
It is easy to understand Williams' view. His life had been devoted to mastering the game of baseball. Few have equaled his physical and intellectual attainments in the field. And with much justification he believes he knows more about this game than the "knights of the keyboard," as he calls the press. Once he spit in their direction after hitting a home run to let them know his ruminations on that subject.
But freedom of the press in this country is predicated on the belief that reporters, writing honestly, can air their opinions, or at least give voice to the unseen world of grandstand managers.
"When there is much desire to learn, there of necessity will be much arguing, much writing, many opinions; for opinion in good men is but knowledge in the making," wrote 17th century poet John Milton.

Williams himself is not above the second guess. In a magazine article a few months after the World Series, Williams wrote about Baltimore's Dave McNally pitching to the New York Mets: "But geez, he frogged around and frogged around and the count went to 2-2 and 3-2 and then he threw Charles a high fast ball. Pow! Line drive, base hit... I have to say I was disappointed the way they

Twentieth Century Club Members Use 'Good Earth' Theme For 1970 Spring Luncheon, Officer Installation

Hostesses for the Twentieth Century Club's annual Spring Luncheon in Mrs. Rex Rose's home were Mrs. W.A. Skoog, Miss Elsie Cunningham and Mrs. Rose.

Mrs. F.M. Culbertson reviewed values received from programs through the year on "The Good Earth," based on the premise "In the beginning God created the Heaven and the Earth and God saw that it was good."

"One of the good joys of this good earth was brought out in the program on Western Art given by John L. McCarty of the High Plains Galleries. The learned understand the reason of art, the unlearned feel the pleasure of its blessing."

Discussing the program of the Albatross National Monument, Mrs. Culbertson said "How true it is that we go through life and seldom see the extraordinary world we live in, the beauty, the historic, and the unusual right at our finger tips. In any program on our 'Good Earth,' we must return often to the creator, God."

In speaking of the club's Christmas program, Mrs. Culbertson said, "Whatever else is lost among the years, let us keep Christmas still a shining thing, and remember, Jesus, the only Son of the Creator of this good Earth."

"Exploration of the seas created by God has proved science surpasses old miracles of mythology. Mrs. Marian George's program on 'Galapagos Islands' or wood sculpture made us artistically aware of another of the treasures of our good earth."

"One of the greatest gifts of the good Earth is America. The gift of our creator and our ancestors, a gift I'm sure we realize is far from all good, but worthy of great appreciation and cherishing."

"There is no better tie between friends than being united in their objectives and wishes. We have also learned that man's past victories have multiplied his present dangers. We have studied 'The Good Earth and You,' 'The Good Earth and Me,' and 'The Good Earth and Us.'"

Program chairman was Mrs. William G. Easley, with her committee, Mrs. Jack Foster, and Mrs. Rex Rose.

The club's guest, Mrs. Kermit B. Lawson, incoming president of the Top of Texas District of Federated Clubs was introduced for the installation of officers and used as her installation theme, "The Soil."

"Soil is defined as any place or condition providing the opportunity for growth and development; therefore, the Twentieth Century Club could be likened to the Soil of the Good Earth. Mrs. Paul Harbaugh was installed as Federation Counselor. We could compare her to the atoms, for without her club would be lost in space," Mrs. Lawson said.

Mrs. Lorene Locke, as reporter, was named as the galaxy of stars giving light for all to see and know of the education, service, friendship, and fellowship found within the Twentieth Century Club.

Mrs. Fred Neslage, as parliamentarian, was described as similar to the chart of the Solar System. Mrs. Lawson said, "From this chart we are made aware of the exact place, function, timing, of those things which make up our world. You will assist the president in creating a club of harmony, courtesy, understanding, and love."

Mrs. Bob Andis as treasurer was compared to the water of this Good Earth without which there is no life. Mrs. Lawson said.

When Mrs. W.A. Skoog was installed as secretary, Mrs. Lawson said, "You respond to all nature of this earth. You are the one to record treasures of the search, kept in such a way as to illuminate club members' minds to the fact all nature is the sum total of the record of God and Man's achievements working together to enrich the world and mankind."

Mrs. Charles Fagan, as vice president was described as the landscape architect. Mrs. Lawson said, "You are the one to draw a plan of design for the purpose of achieving the fulfillment of the original plan to protect and sustain this Good Earth."

Mrs. William Easley, as president, was classified as the sun. Mrs. Lawson said, "May you be as constant in your position as leader of this club to bring light and life — activity and growth, to all the members and their endeavors. Without that constancy of purpose and brilliant light of leadership the other cannot function effectively to insure enrichment within which is necessary for the service of enrichment without to fulfill God's purposes for the world He created as a home for His people."

Members present were Mmes. W.R. Campbell, F.M. Culbertson, Charles Fagan, J.W. Gordon, Tom Greenwood, Paul Harbaugh, Lorene Locke, David E. McGahey, Fred Neslage, Rex Rose, R.W. Sanford, W.A. Skoog, R.W. Stowers, Jack Thomas Stroup, and Miss Elsie Cunningham.

Optimist Teams Select Candidates For 1970 Baseball Royalty Crowns

Optimist baseball queens selected by team members will be honored at 2 p.m. today with the annual tea and style show at the Pampa Optimist Club, 601 E. Craven.

Models in the style show will be former queens, Becky Taylor, Ellen Curtis, Jeanie Fischer, Karen Carie, Kathy Kyle, Carol Rose, Paulette Howard, and Valerie Olsen, and "future queens," Conni Jones, Stephanie Secrest, Sabrina Houck, and Penny Summers. Narrators will be Kay White and Beth Watson, with Jere Pitts playing the guitar.

Winner of the Pampa queen contest will compete in July in the state event. Jeanie Fischer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Fischer, was the regional queen in 1969. Our two-state queens were Mary Ann Johnson and Pam Martin. Mrs. Mary Summers, queen contest director, said.

"During the tea, activities for June will be discussed on methods the teams will use for their money-making projects. June 1-July 1. The team which makes the most money will name their queen as the Pampa queen. Votes cost a penny each," Mrs. Summers said.

Candidates are Mary Anna Greene, Marcie Holcomb, Lea Lunsford, Pernie Fallon, Janie Price, Kim Wilson, Meredith Dingman, and Pam Howard.

Since the Babe Ruth Regional Tournament is being held in Pampa the week of August 9, our queen will automatically be a candidate for the regional queen title. "Mrs. Summers said, "In the regional event, we will have delegates here from New Mexico, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas."

Miss Greene, daughter of Mrs. Hildegarde Green, 420 Letors, was a cheerleader one year, football queen attendant, FHA president, mayor and volleyball captain. She has been a Pampa High School choir member three years, plays softball, made the honor roll one year and is a member of Central Baptist Church.

Miss Howard, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Howard, 1809 Dogwood, is a member of First Baptist Church, plays baseball, sings in church choir, and likes playing on a trampoline.

She has won ribbons for swimming, and a gold medal for a gold ring made in art, was homeroom vice president, and was selected as a Rebel of the Week.

Miss Lunsford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G.L. Lunsford, 2132 Lynn, was selected Miss Smile and Rebel of the Week. She is a member of First Presbyterian Church and to the Youth Fellowship. An honor student, she was selected homeroom secretary three semesters and is a member of Robert E. Lee Student Council.

Miss Wilson, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Wilson, 1808 Grape, is a Robert E. Lee member of the All-Region Choir, freshman choir secretary and member of First Baptist Church and church choir. An eighth grade cheerleader, she is on the school newspaper staff, maintained an A-B average three years, held offices in Sunday school, has held homeroom offices, and won seventh place in Kid Pony Show pole bending.

Miss Holcomb, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Holcomb, is a freshman student at Lee, and is a member of the choir. ### ENGAGED

Cheri Lenning

Judge and Mrs. Sherman Lenning Jr., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Cheri Lou Lenning, to David R. Burton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phill Burton, Pampa. Miss Lenning is a Pampa High School student. Her fiancé is a graduate of Odessa High School and is stationed with the United States Navy at San Diego, Calif. The couple plan a late June wedding.

proves Indians and Eskimos occupied the land long before the white man ever knew the peninsula existed, but Alaska's history began with its discovery by Bering in 1741.

After several attempts to find new land for Russia, Bering sighted and named Mt. S. Elias in Southern Alaska. After this first recorded visit of a white man to Alaska, discovery of Alaska's fur wealth caused a fur rush from Russia," they said.

When Russia's fortunes and foothold in Alaska began to crumble, the United States Secretary of State, William H. Seward, convinced President Andrew Jackson to accept Russia's offer to sell Alaska for $7,200,000. After the purchase of the frozen land three miles from Russian soil, people called the purchase, "Seward's Folly," "Seward's Ice Box," and "Jackson's Polar Bear Garden," Mrs. Hogan said.

When Gold Rush fever hit Alaska, she was besieged by money hungry people called Sourdoughs because they lived on sourdough biscuits and hot cakes, when eggs cost $1.00 each and a plate of ham and eggs was $10. Several newcomers died, though, from pneumonia, smallpox, typhoid fever, and from the freezing cold, the speaker said.

"Jack McQueston invented a thermometer of four bottles, one containing mercury, another whisky, a third with kerosene and the fourth a potent patent medicine called Perry Davis' Painkiller. If the mercury froze, it was about 40 degrees below zero. If the whisky froze, it was colder, but when the kerosene froze, you best not get far from your shack. When the painkiller froze, it was unsafe to be more than a step from the fire, because the temperature was probably 70 degrees below zero," the speakers said.

After railroads were laid and the economy eased upward, President Truman endorsed statehood for Alaska in 1946, but it was not until 1959 that President Eisenhower signed the bill making Alaska the 49th state.

The Eskimo woman works extremely hard as a tanner, tailor, bootmaker, and seamstress. She skins, carves and preserves seal-blubber, fishes, drive dog team's gathers blueberries. She knits, darns and embroiders. Her specialty is Eskimo Ice Cream, made from reindeer fat or seal oil, whipped into fresh snow until creamy. Sometimes blueberries or bits of frozen fish are folded into it," they said.

In Alaska, homesteading continues with modern highways, railroads, and the Oil Rush, since Alaska is still a rugged wilderness. Oil-drilling platforms stand among the salmon in tidal waters, snowmobiles have replaced snow sleds, and jets have shrunk the dimensions, since 134 out of every 1,000 Alaskans are licensed pilots, they said.

The Whitehorse, Yukon Railroad from Skagway to Whitehouse, is the world's greatest tourist attraction, but it was built in 1896 to 1900 to haul gold-seekers and supplies. Today it hauls freight, tourists, campers and natives past waterfalls, roaring rivers and emerald green lakes and runs through the St. Elias Mountains. Warren Hasse, J.L. Chase, Weldon Carter and Dan Cameron.

One third of Alaska's population lives in Anchorage, a sophisticated city with its University of Alaska branch, a military base and Alaska's Methodist University. Two museums and the University of Alaska are located at Fairbanks.

"Onion Portage in Alaska is an unusual archeological site where Brown University archeologists are working on the bank of the Kobuk River 120 miles east of Kotzebue to uncover some of the oldest clues of man found anywhere in the interior of western Alaska.

"Caribou still cross the river by thousands at Onion Portage, and have for centuries. Salmon migrate up this stream, and the prized shoe fish, scarce in other Alaskan rivers, is caught by local eskimos," they said.

"The real treasure of Onion Portage is its wealth in razor sharp blades of chert, each about one inch long. Identical blades were found in Siberia and in Japan's northern Islands. They have found fishing lures, combs, and harpoon points carved from bones and antlers. Carbon-14 test put the evidence of remains at about 2,000 B.C.," they said.

"The International Date Line falls so near to this island of Little Diomedes that one can gaze across the ocean and see tomorrow," Mrs. Chase said. "Members present were Mmes. L.J. Zachry, N.D. ## WRINKLE-REMOVERS

Woman's Beauty Treatment Starts With Idea To Smooth Facial Lines

TRENTON, N.J. — More than 40 years ago face lifts were virtually unknown. It was a time of trolly cars, ice boxes, silent movies. Beauty treatments were in the embryonic stage.

But the theory of tightening excess skin to eliminate the tell-tale creases on the face made good sense to Alice Taylor.

She hit upon a specialized adhesive-back cloth which, purely from a sense of whimsy, she cut into the shape of wings.

The best time to stick it on, she figured, was at night. Facial muscles are relaxed during sleep and can be manipulated more easily. As a working woman, proprietor of ready-to-wear dress shop, she also knew it was most convenient to apply the wrinkle fighting wings at night.

Thus began a nightly regime of cleansing, massaging and tightening. Soon, and almost as much to her surprise as her friends', the hateful wrinkles disappeared. And equally surprising she found herself the entrepreneur of a thriving — if non-paying business: producing hundreds of her patented "wings" for friends with similar problems.

Aided by her good friend, Trenton's woman banker Mary Roebing, she launched what was to become a thriving business. One request followed another and "Hollywood Wings" were born — the Hollywood added in recognition of the many demands pouring in from filmdom where a wrinkle could mean unemployment.

Today the business, marking its 40th anniversary, is carried on by the inventor's daughter, Betty Taylor Kerney, also of Trenton.

mostly a case of one woman telling another."

"Wings" scrapbook of letters reads like a "Who's Who of Beautiful Women," but they're not for publication.

"We've become a very public kind of society," Mrs. Kerney said. "But a lady's wrinkles still are just between her and her Maker."

Regarding beauty advice, Mrs. Kerney will only quote her mother in saying — "Start early."

"Don't wait to see that first wrinkle. Replenish the natural oils daily with a good rich cream, massage the face and neck methodically and religiously, apply a frisky astringent to spur circulation and, of course, use Wings in the danger zones."

The danger zones: between brows, on the forehead and around the mouth.

Susan Nannette Richardson, 2214 Beech Lane, announces the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Susan Nannette Richardson, to Danny Eugene Winborne, son of A. W. Winborne, 713 N. Dwight. Marriage vows will be pledged July 24 in the First Baptist Church. Miss Richardson is a freshman at West Texas State University, majoring in secretarial courses, and is a 1969 Pampa High School graduate. Her fiancé, a 1968 PHS graduate, is majoring in management science at WTSU.

DEAR ABBY: "Drop in" guests have no legitimate complaint if they are ignored in favor of the idiot box. "Drop ins" are persons whom we never invite because almost anything the boob tube has to offer is preferable to their company.

I wish you would say a few words about people who invite you over — coaxing even, so that after several invitations you finally give in, so as not to be stigmatized as an "unfriendly" neighbor. And then, when the invited guest shows up at a prearranged time, the host or hostess has the television on — and loud!

Even so, the guest is not permitted to concentrate on the program because conversation must go on, despite the blaring emanating from the unwatched, but raucous, box.

Well-mannered persons would appreciate your comment on this. As for me, I've solved the problem: (Sign me)

UNFRIENDLY BOOR

DEAR BOOR: Of all the reasons for accepting an invitation, not wanting to be "stigmatized as an unfriendly neighbor" is the poorest — for after having accepted, good manners demand that you reciprocate. And why get on that kind of a merry-go-round with persons you'd never invite to your home because you feel that "almost any offering from the boob tube is preferable to their company?"

DEAR ABBY: I am being called a "poor sport" because I refuse to go along with the following deal:

My husband (I'll call him "Paul") and I go around with a couple I will call "Bill and Angie."

Paul digs Angie and Bill says I am a "poor sport" — that it's three against one and I'm spoiling their fun. Angie keeps telling me that Bill is really great, and if I tried this wife swapping deal just once I might like it.

I just can't see it. What is your opinion?

ONE MAN WOMAN

DEAR WOMAN: I can't see it either. Ask Angie what she wants with your husband if hers is so "great."

DEAR ABBY: This jazz about women being upgraded to the same status as men is, to me, a most attractive idea — if we go all the way with it.

Lefors School System Plans Party To Honor Four Retiring Teachers

Mrs. H. L. McCarley

Mrs. C. A. Hamner

To keep latex paint surfaces clean, use soap or detergent suds to wipe up drips and splatters within 30 minutes. Delay makes it more difficult to remove such spots.

Keep a spray bottle filled with water and several capfuls of detergent in the bathroom to take care of tub, fixtures, and the floor.

Packaging for the freezer must be airtight to assure success. Containers and wrappings should be moisture-proof and sealed carefully to keep natural moisture in, and air out. Use special freezer foils, papers, tapes and containers.

Avoid the practice of over-drying clothes which have synthetic fibers in the fabric. This may cause fibers to become brittle and thus reduce wear, or cause excessive shrinkage.

Four teachers retiring from the Lefors Independent School District will be honored with a reception and open house at the Lefors High School library from 3-5 p.m. May 24.

Lefors School employees and school board members are sponsoring the reception for friends and former students of the four retiring teachers. The reception will be held before the school's Baccalaureate services for seniors.

McCarley has been industrial arts teacher at Lefors High School the past 26 years. His wife has taught also for 26 years in the fourth grade of Lefors school. Mrs. C. A. Hamner has taught the second grade for the past 19 years. Mrs. Ruth Natho, a teacher in the Lefors system 20 years, retired before the 1969-70 school term began.

Two large bouquets of tulips were placed in the center of the serving table and one on the fireplace mantle.

After a short business meeting was conducted by the leader, Mrs. Margaret Simmons, members were weighed in by the weight recorder, Mrs. Odell Hassler.

Mrs. Gloria Franks was crowned weekly queen with a loss of 2 1/2 lbs. and also received the fruit basket. A total loss of 14 1/2 lbs for the week and gain of 9 lbs were reported.

Spring-Planted Bulbs Insure Color All Summer For Home Gardeners

Spring is the season when most gardens are afloer with colorful blossoms, but it's no time to rest on your laurels — or your trowel. A few hours invested in bulb planting virtually guarantees a great Summertong garden yield.

Fortunately, the flowers that add maximum color and beauty to the warm weather landscape are easy to plant. Dahlias, gladioli, anemones, lilies, tuberous begonias and ranunculus are among the Summer-blooming Dutch bulbs that offer color and character plus diversity.

Get the Summer garden off to a good start with the selection of quality bulbs. The strict controls established by growers in Holland plus Dutch developments in hybridizing insure reliability and a wide choice of varieties.

In general, Summer bulb flowers should be planted in well-drained and prepared soil. Occasional fertilizing is necessary, and the ground should be kept moist as the buds develop.

Dahlias are one of the favorite Summer Dutch treats in American gardens for good reasons. There's something for everyone in the variety of dahlia colors and types — from mini pompons to lavishly petaled piezied blooms. The choice of heights is especially agreeable for Summer landscaping. Tall dahlias, which may reach to heights of 3 to 5 feet, are excellent background frames for clusters of shorter dahlias or gladioli and they are especially effective when planted in a single row against a fence or wall.

Dahlias of medium heights are equally intriguing in borders or clusters of 4 to 6. The smaller varieties which grow 10 to 20 inches are particularly versatile. Use them in your Summer garden to edge a border, trim a walkway or patio or as informal groupings.

Dahlias should be planted after the final Spring frost. When the ground has warmed, prepare the soil for each root by digging a hole a foot wide and deep. Then, enrich the soil with a half cup of bonemeal plus some compost or peatmoss.

The dahlia tuber should be placed into the prepared soil at a depth of two inches. Be sure the growing tip is pointed upward. Large dahlias will require stakes for support, and it is wise to insert the stake before planting the tuber to prevent damage during early growth.

Like dahlias, many of the Dutch Summer blooms — including gladioli, anemones and ranunculus are lovely cut flower choices for bouquets and arrangements.

GLADIOLI: The range of bright and pastel colors in the gladiolus and its ability to grow nearly anywhere in the United States make this stately flower a seasonal favorite. The bulbs should be planted in the Spring as soon as the soil is warm enough to spade. Set them into the ground 6 inches apart at a depth of 3 to 5 inches. Repeat plantings every two weeks during the Spring and early Summer months to insure continuous bloomings.

ANEMONES: This lush, exotic flower may look like greenhouse material, but it's actually easy to grow in the home garden. The bulbs should be planted one inch deep with the pointed end down. Water the soil well before planting and then water somewhat less until the plants are fully grown. You can choose white or deep shades of purple, blue, red and rose.

RANUNCULUS: Whether planted with their close relative, the anemone, or by themselves ranunculus blooms give the garden a fine show of color. Their double globe-like flowers blossom not only in white but also in shades of yellow, crimson, scarlet and pink. The bulbs should be planted with claws down. Planting and watering procedures are the same as for anemones.

LILIES: These dignified flowers are sturdy souls at heart. They can be planted in either the Fall or Spring, just as soon as they are received. Planting depth varies from 5 to 10 inches, depending on the type you choose to plant. Lilies need shade for their roots, and their growth will be helped by a thick mulch kept in place all year.

TUBEROUS-ROOTED

BEGONIAS: Many gardeners compare the begonia's good looks to roses, carnations or camellias. To grow them, plant indoors in boxes filled with damp peatmoss. When the sprouts reach two to three inches, transplant them to pots which can be put outdoors after June 1. Tubers also may be planted in the garden after that date.

Red Cross News

By LIBBY SHOTWELL
Executive Secretary ARC

The annual meeting of the Gray County Chapter of the American Red Cross was a great success, good food, good music and an entertaining speech by Rev. Leon Hill. We were so very happy to have Donley County Red Cross members, Lefors Red Cross Youth with adults from Lefors, and Shamrock Red Cross with Sam Pakan, and Miss Cindy Clay bring guitar numbers. Miss Kay Greer from Cleardon sang "With a Song in my Heart" and "Who Will Buy" for the group. Mike McCulley, chapter chairman for the past 7 years with Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Neece were also from Donley Co. All chapters who work with Gray were invited to attend and we were grateful these chapters came.

During the election of officers, D.V. Biggers accepted the chapter chairman for another year with Mrs. Don George as vice chairman. Mrs. Malcolm Denison, as secretary and Bill Kindel as treasurer.

Three new directors were elected. They are J.C. Randall, Rev. Amos Harris and Joe B. Pafford. These directors will serve three years on the Red Cross Board. Outgoing directors were Joe M. Daniels, James Trusty and Bill Fraser. Plaques for their service were given to these persons.

Plaques for outstanding service to our Red Cross chapters were given to Pampa Daily News, KPND and KGRO for continued service to the Red Cross through the news media. Those who were not able to be at the meeting and receive their plaques, may come by the Red Cross office and get them.

Miss Lelia Clifford was elected to be the Hospital Volunteer chairman for the coming year. Mrs. Augusta Yealy gave red carnations to the Hospital Volunteers present and commended them for their unselfish work during the year.

Another terrible tornado has hurt our neighboring community of Lubbock. The Red Cross workers are busy feeding and assisting those who lost their homes with recovery assistance. 21 dead, 300 injured and 430 homes destroyed, 462 with major damage, and 662 minor. The American Red Cross has opened emergency shelters to provide immediate assistance in the form of food, clothing and temporary housing for families whose homes were destroyed or damaged by the tornado. Trucks with coffee and sandwiches are covering the area to feed many volunteers workers and persons who have remained within their damaged homes.

More than 30 volunteer nurses are on duty to assist with the medical needs, while other volunteers are serving hot meals to the victims. All chapters are urgently requested to announce that contributions for the relief of disaster victims in Lubbock will be accepted by the Red Cross office and they will be earmarked for the Lubbock Disaster or for the Panhandle of Texas Disaster. Thanks to those who have sent contributions for the disaster victims.

The City Swimming registration will be Monday afternoon, May 18th at the Patio of the United Methodist Church beginning at 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. The swim program will begin June 22 and last two weeks Monday through Friday. Then July 6 to July 16 and the last session will begin July 20 to July 31. The charge is $1 for the use of the pool and there's no charge for the Red Cross instruction.

There's More Than One Way To Kick Cigarette Habit

BOSTON (UPI)—There's the story of one smoker who wanted to quit cigarettes so he taped his pack to his thigh. Consequently, whenever he wanted a cigarette he would have to lower his pants. He quit in three days.

And how about the mother who locked her cigarettes in the cellar freezer and then put the key under her child's mattress at night. She felt that to risk waking her child, walking downstairs to the freezer and unlocking it was just too much bother to go through for a smoke. It helped her cut down.

These are just a couple of extreme examples cited in a new book, The Smoke Watchers' How to Quit Book, detailing the program used by Smoke Watchers, Inc., of New York.

Find Ingenious Ways

Bentley Blum of New York, president of the two-year-old organization, said not all smokers go to such extremes to reduce their cigarette consumption, but that many find ingenious ways of making the habit inaccessible during their reduction program.

Blum, himself a former smoker, underwent the "extremely painful" process of kicking the habit and felt that "certainly there must be an easier way."

He feels the book will help smokers find that easier way. "The book is organized in such a way that it allows the smoker to gain a complete picture of his own habit," Blum said.

Begins Attack On Habit

"From that point on he can begin to attack parts of his habit piece by piece. Beyond that, hopefully, he might get down to zero (nonsmoker)," Quitting "cold turkey" is extremely painful and really doesn't accomplish what the smoker wants to do—break the habit, Blum said.

"Cold turkey" surprises the habit but doesn't get rid of it," he said. "The habit involves not only the act of smoking, but the multitude of little things that go along with it."

Blum feels that because the cigarette habit was started one smoke at a time, it can be eliminated or reduced the same way. That is what the book tried to accomplish.

Communicable Disease On Increase

ATLANTA (UPI)—A marked increase in syphilis cases in the United States was noted in the first four months of this year, the National Communicable Disease Center said today.

The infectious disease jumped as much as 50 per cent or more in some areas while the nation as a whole experienced an increase to 6,861 cases from 6,203 for the same four-month period last year.

A boy in business for himself doesn't worry about summer jobs

Or fall jobs, or winter jobs, for that matter. Because the boy with a newspaper route—a junior independent merchant—has a year 'round income. The few hours he puts in each week not only provide monetary returns but the even more significant dividends of learning how free enterprise operates.

The business of learning the value of money, of keeping books, collecting, buying at wholesale and selling at retail is important. But not even money can buy the other skills acquired from route experience—learning to deal pleasantly with people, for instance, or the value of punctuality.

Our newspaperboy is learning all the time. His route experience helps him acquire the intangible skills so necessary for success both socially and professionally. He makes money at it, too.

Only about one boy in ten gets the opportunity to have a newspaper route. If you think your son or some other youngster might profit by newspaperboy route experience, why not suggest that he come in and talk to us.

Schools Are In Trouble

The tax-supported school system in America is in considerable trouble.

In common with all other public projects, it is the victim of a philosophy that money will solve everything. It won't. Local school boards, reaching out for more money, have accepted help from the state and now from the national government. With this search for more money comes the parallel requirement—further loss of local control by the school boards. Throughout many states today the school boards must follow state regulations because they are dependent upon the state for funds.

Proposed legislation indicates they'll be still more dependent upon the state, and lose still more of their independence.

Half of the teachers in Los Angeles, Calif., have been demanding more money and changes of conditions which call for vastly increased budgets. There have been strikes and sanctions elsewhere, too, along with demands for more money and there is a growing evidence of inability of teachers to motivate students, as well as charges of waste and mismanagement.

In varying degrees these problems are faced by schools throughout the country. The Denver Public School District is using a system of volunteers to take the non-teaching load off the teachers. Over 2,000 volunteers contributed more than 120,000 man hours between October and May, with the Denver system receiving the equivalent of $253,280 in service from volunteers.

"These voluntary efforts are a result of a community that was determined to be committed," declared Gene Carter, supervisor of the voluntary services. Charles B. (Bud) Wilkinson, executive director of the National Center for Voluntary Action said: "The Denver program is an outstanding example of the sensible utilization of dedicated volunteers to meet an established need."

The trend toward volunteers not only promises more attention for each individual student, but acquaints the volunteers with how their school system works, with its merits and its faults, with inefficiencies and wastefulness, with the merits and faults of tenure. The community itself becomes more involved and hence would be in a better position to adequately appraise the true meaning of sanctions and the selfishness involved in strikes.

A volunteer system might well lead to a further study of the three-month vacation pattern, which—virtually removes a large public investment from use for one-fourth of each year. Establishment of a four-quarter system might greatly reduce costs of tax-supported schools.

Why We're Concerned

None of us like to think of it. But if you're worried about the future of our country and what is happening to your children and your grandchildren, you have only to look around you to justify your concern.

What epitomizes our worries is the fact that the postal workers struck during March and by early April, Congress, normally a slow-moving body, had already agreed to give every federal employe a 6 per cent boost in his earnings. A few months from now, Congress promises to give another boost in wages to postal workers.

That's fast results, with an ominous meaning.

For all of us know that what proves successful once will be tried again and again. In other words, workers in key positions in government may strike now—even though striking is against the law—and force Uncle Sam to foot whatever demand they wish to impose upon him. In this sense, the labor leaders have replaced Congress.

Note that soon after the postal strike the air controllers took their "sick-out." It's against the law. Courts ruled it illegal. And the air controllers remained out.

In recent years there has been an increasing number of teachers going out on strike.

Original authority to go on strike was granted to organized labor leaders by President John Kennedy in 1962 when he issued executive order 10988: "Employees of the Federal Government shall have, and shall be protected in the exercise of the right, freely and without fear of penalty or reprisal, to form, join and assist any employee organization or to refrain from such activity." By recognizing that employes may join an organization whose principle weapon is to strike, President Kennedy set the stage for a strike against the U.S. government.

In due course it came. It promises to become a regular thing. When President Kennedy issued that order there were 670,000 Federal employes in a union. By 1965, U.S. News and World Report shows, this had increased to 635,000, and by 1967 to 1,239,000. Latest report as of November, 1968, shows 1,416,000 civil service employes as members of organized labor.

Organized labor's main goal, let's recognize it, is to get higher and higher wages. Wages and benefits overshadow all other objectives. Just as we've had industry-wide strikes.

What's the answer? The only recourse of the government is use of the army, calling up the reserves. Habitual resort to the military would soon lead to a military form of government—a form of dictatorship. Our treasured remaining freedom, even the privilege to strike, would be lost.

This is why we're concerned.

This Vietnamization program is killing us off at a rapid clip. If they don't stop this type of "disengagement" soon we won't have anybody left to send. Of course, a poll that was taken showed a 2-1 ratio in support of the President's decision. I don't think they contacted the campuses, though...

HELPING OUR ENEMIES: IGNORING OUR DEFENDERS

The United States has begun secret negotiations in Warsaw with representatives of the Communist Chinese government. Our government hopes to "relax tensions" between the U.S. and Red China and is prepared to grant concessions to Peking.

Already the U.S. State Department has decided to relax restrictions on trade with Red China. Previously, virtually no exports to mainland China were permitted. The U.S. allowed only ten items of the 2,829 on the government's commodity control list, which covers 90 percent of the products made in the U.S. to be exported to Red China. The new policy would relax these restrictions so that nearly 1,000 items could be exported.

No comparable concession has been granted by Peking. At the very least, our negotiators should have refused to grant any economic benefits until Red China releases the U.S. citizens whom they hold prisoner. The Department of Defense had urged that our negotiators in Warsaw ask for the release of these men, but the Administration refused to include this on the agenda.

Among the American prisoners in Red China are two U.S. airmen shot down by the Communists over the Gulf of Tonkin. Captain Philip Smith has been held prisoner since September 1965. Lieutenant Joseph Dunn was captured in February 1968. The Red Chinese also hold two army civilian employes captured during the Korean War and Bishop James Walsh of Cumberland, Maryland.

Before receiving any economic favors, the Communists should have been required to free these prisoners. Instead, our government has continued its policy of making unilateral concessions to our sworn enemies.

Don't you know what is going on in Southeast Asia? Mebbe it is because you can't understand the baffle gab of our leaders...

You just have to understand that air raids against the North Vietnamese is "not an escalation" of the war. Why, bombing of air defense sites is only "protective reaction." See?

Now then, in order to save lives the best way is to send massive ground troops against the Cong in Cambodia. But, these are "not efforts to increase pressure" at all. Nossir.

The secy. of state, Willie Rogers says we will just use "suppressive fire." I guess we are going to only plaster them with leaflets, and hope they do the same...

Now again, it must be explained that this absolutely is not "an effort to force them to negotiate for peace." Nope. This is the best way for following a policy of withdrawing U.S. troops from the war zone...

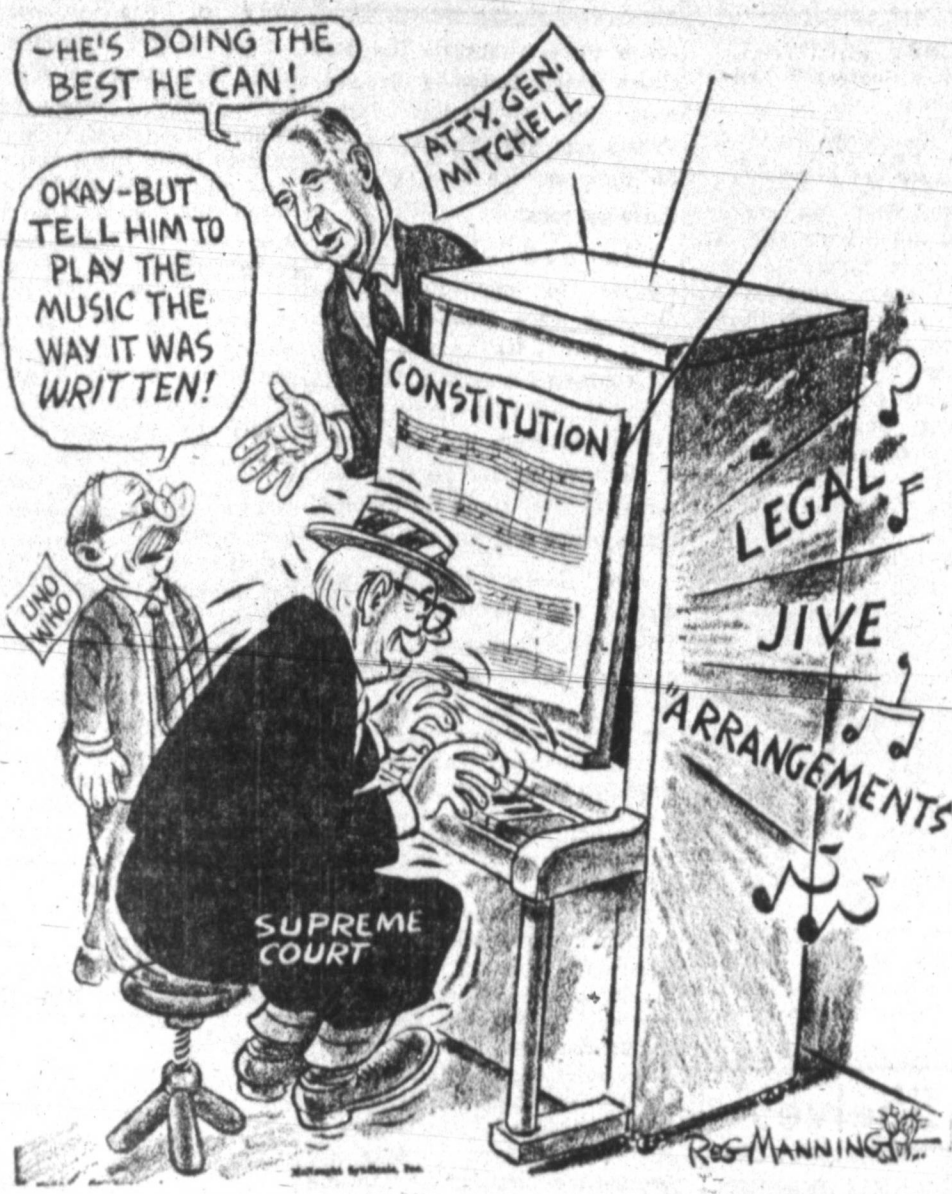

According to the V-P, this is the natural way to lose a war. He says, "We can't win a land war in Southeast Asia... this is the proper course to pursue to disinvolve American fighting men from this war..."

This Vietnamization program is killing us off at a rapid clip. If they don't stop this type of "disengagement" soon we won't have anybody left to send. Of course, a poll that was taken showed a 2-1 ratio in support of the President's decision. I don't think they contacted the campuses, though...

President Nixon A 'Loner' On The Making Of Decisions

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent WASHINGTON (NEA)

What we have been looking at in the past few weeks—probably more clearly than ever before in his long public career—is the purest Richard Nixon.

I mean to say much more by that than simply to endorse the President's own televised assertion, backed up by the findings of diligent reporters, that he alone made the decision to send troops into Cambodia to assault Red sanctuaries.

There is nothing new at all about U.S. Presidents making basically military decisions or operating as their own secretaries of state. They know and commonly accept, that the big burden of judgment is theirs.

What is possibly inique about Richard Nixon is not his heavily stressed reliance upon his own judgment but the magnitude of his distrust in others.

One reason so much has been made of his seeming dependence upon the advice of Attorney General John Mitchell is that he is one of the few in Nixon's hierarchy who could be detected in any kind of continuing relationship with the President.

But I have it from a closely attuned Nixon-watcher that Mitchell's role in key decisions of many sorts probably has been grossly overplayed, and that the attorney general almost surely was telling it straight when he told some students he had little to do with the Cambodia decision.

None of this means Nixon does not consult. Of course, he confers with military and foreign policy advisers, though probably with far fewer than some presidents have done. But the evidence is that their judgments have a much smaller place in the "final mix" than might be the case with someone other than Nixon.

Surely this whole town—and by now the nation—knows that the President keeps not only his good friend, Secretary of State William Rogers, in the dark on impending decisions, but a wide range of lesser, yet important, foreign affairs specialists.

Absolutely astounding is the word that Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird, on the eve of the announcement, was unaware the President was about to fix a 150,000 troop withdrawal figure for next day; this is far more revealing than the evidence that Laird expressed reservations about the Cambodian undertaking. For Laird has long been presumed to be in intimate understanding with the President on the political necessity for troop withdrawals and a winding down of our role in Vietnam.

When confidences are not exchanged at the crucial moment of decision, it suggests more than some notion about a need for "secrecy." It suggests the President's unwillingness to test his judgment in the still smoldering fires of doubt among his aides.

Here his much-advertised penchant for "working isolation" has a major bearing.

It is easy to pass off his habit of sequestering himself with yellow pad and pencil as a wise means of buying "think time," and to argue that Americans could not care less how he works so long as the results are productive in the fields of policy and action.

But one perceptive Nixonite believes, and he is persuasive, that Nixon uses the "isolation" device to wall himself off from the emotional content which may mislead the judgments of people he might see in person. He wants to weigh their arguments coldly from a sheet of paper.

Is there a paradox in this? Is he saying he distrusts the judgments of others, yet fears to hear them because they might be persuasive.

Both things, I think, may well be true. The President unmistakably believes he has "strong points"—a grasp of foreign affairs is one, of politics another. Moreover, he wants to be perceived by the nation and the world as strong, not weak.

Nevertheless, in the view of at least a few of his associates and critics, Nixon has a shaky, soft inner core. Even as he distrusts astonishingly the judgments of others, he distrusts his own capacity to resist them in personal confrontation. So he has set a new record for not talking to his cabinet—and many within the White House itself.

And from this shakiness, deep-rooted, comes a strange blend of boldness and caution which plagues him now more than ever in his public life.

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BRANDSTADT

Daily Study, Sound Sleep Beat Cramming Fatigue

Examination time is a time of increased tension for all school children. This tension is normal and in 90 per cent of the pupils it helps them to do their best. For the remaining 10 per cent, which includes good as well as poor students, the tension may paralyze thought and create a mental hazard similar to that experienced by some golfers.

This is accentuated when the outcome is critical and fear of failure grips the student. Often the worry preceding the examination is far worse than the exam itself and it may be responsible for such symptoms as headache, nausea or severe depression. Parents should be watchful for these symptoms.

There is no drug that should be given to tide the student over. Drugs taken for this purpose often cause drowsiness or may even accentuate the jitters, but words of encouragement will bolster the self-confidence of the student. The best treatment, however, is the proverbial ounce of prevention.

The student who does his work conscientiously day by day is spared the frustrating fatigue of cramming and needs only a brief and relaxed period of review, which he should accomplish in less than two hours. A good night's sleep before the examination beats all the cramming in the world.

Q—Would dental X-rays taken when I was three months pregnant cause my child to have cancer? No lead apron was used to shield my pelvis.

A—The hazards from X-rays are deformities rather than cancer in the baby. With the short exposure and modern equipment, there would be no hazard to your baby from X-rays directed solely at your teeth.

Q—A short time ago my son, 8, developed two lumps in his groin. They were removed surgically and found to be the result of a cat scratch. How contagious is this disease? Will it recur?

A—Cat scratch disease is usually mild and often goes unrecognized. It's caused by an unidentified virus and, when the scratch is on the ankle or leg, it may cause swelling of the lymph nodes in the groin. Incidentally, it is possible to get the disease from the scratch of a pin or a thorn if they are contaminated with the virus. It is not contagious and never fatal. It will not recur. The antibiotic, tetracycline, may shorten the course of the disease.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt can't answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

PAMPA'S HAM radio operators were among the unsung heroes who put in many sleepless hours in the aftermath of that Lubbock tornado.

For three or four days following the devastation that caused a score or more of deaths and hundreds of injuries, the Pampa operators were on the air around the clock trying to assist Pampans in getting messages to and from relatives who were in Lubbock when the disaster struck.

Anxious parents wanted to know if sons and daughters attending Texas Tech had been caught in the storm's path. By Wednesday noon, according to Dale Greenhouse, one of the radio operators who stayed on the air here, it had been determined that practically all Pampans in Lubbock had been spared injury. Greenhouse said the local civilian band radio operators were swamped with requests for aid in making contact during the hours immediately following the Lubbock holocaust.

The ham operators always are among the first on the job in time of disaster. To them we extend the printed page bouquet.

THIS AFTERNOON will be a good time to let your local police, sheriff and state highway patrol officers know that you are on their side.

The Las Pampas Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution are holding "Peace Officers Appreciation Day" from 3 to 6 p.m. today on the mall at Coronado Center. The time has been set aside for that observance in a proclamation by Mayor Milo Carlson.

It seems that law enforcement officers lately have come in for more than their share of criticism from certain sources such as SDS rebels who stir up trouble on college campuses across the land. The "pigs," as the SDS and Panthers like to call them, always are among the main targets when it's time to tear down the buildings, throw rocks, molotov cocktails and encourage sniping.

FOR YEARS, responsible police administrators have tried to acquaint the public with law enforcement's needs. In some instances the public has responded, as is being manifest in Pampa this afternoon.

Too often, though, requests for help and cooperation fall on deaf ears. As J. Edgar Hoover says, communities cannot expect superior police protection if local police are given inferior support.

A local citizen can be of great help to a local police officer by speaking out and defending him against unwarranted attacks.

AN AVERAGE citizen can also help by urging and participating in a public education program, particularly directed toward young people—a program designed to build public respect for law enforcement and the crucial role it plays in the American way of life.

A program of that type should include teaching individual responsibility in the observance of law and prevention of crime. Mr. Hoover points out that each citizen owes a moral responsibility to law enforcement on all levels. That obligation entails a positive and constructive attitude toward police officers, and it includes encouragement and active support for the highest of standards in the law enforcement profession.

THESE ARE among things the local chapter of the DAR is trying to emphasize in this afternoon's observance of "Peace Officers Appreciation Day."

Local officers—police department, sheriff's department and state highway patrol—are lending cooperation to the DAR in the observance. They will be on hand with displays of guns, mobile equipment, illegal weapons and all kinds of law enforcement paraphernalia, much of which the general public will have its first opportunity of viewing. The officers also will be available to answer questions about matters that fall within their province as lawmen.

The DAR has performed a community service, by this effort to awaken Pampans to an appreciation of services performed by the men in uniform. Stop by Coronado Center this afternoon and get better acquainted with what your lawmen are doing and what they are up against.

CITY MANAGER Charles Hill who spent Tuesday night and Wednesday in Lubbock reported that destruction in the Monday night tornado there was almost unbelievable. The city manager's mother is a Lubbock resident. Her home on the city's southwest side was not in the twister's path.

Hill spent some time Wednesday touring the devastated areas and conferring with city and state officials.

The Pampa city manager said Civil Defense officials were on the job immediately after the tornado and throughout the week continued a wonderful job of civilian aid and rehabilitation through the Emergency Center set up in the basement of Lubbock City Hall.

Story Of One Week In April

By PAUL HARVEY

One week in April the world held its breath in anxiety for the safety of three American spacemen.

It was good to see that universal outpouring of compassion for our endangered men and their frightened families. It was good to know that our government would spend millions, move mountains, to try to save three lives.

But that same week a hundred young Americans died in combat almost unnoticed.

When our moonbound astronauts radioed Houston "We have a problem here—these words tied a knot in the collective stomach of the world."

A Paris newspaper, Paris Jour, headlined "Pray for them."

London's Daily Sketch said "God forgive a blasé world."

In Italy, even a Communist publication said "Nothing in the cosmos is worth one human life; let the moon go to hell and give us back our three brothers."

In Moscow and Warsaw and both Germanys, readers read and listeners listened for the latest developments with relief at the slightest encouragement.

While in Vietnam, other American sons endured endless danger, involuntarily—and a hundred died, and a thousand were hurt.

In Vatican City the Pope celebrated a private Mass and led public prayers for the lives of three men.

Through pouring rain President Nixon went to Goddard Space Center to "stand by" President Georges Pompidou offered the resources of the entire French fleet for rescue operations.

Premier Alexei Kosygin dispatched ships to possible splashdown areas without waiting to be asked.

Then Italy, West Germany, Holland, Spain—even tiny Uruguay—offered ships.

Britain sent some ships to the Southwest Pacific, others to the Indian Ocean.

Telecasters hovered around the homes of the spacemen's families.

The father of one, Mr. Swigert, said "Mrs. Swigert is cracking up."

The wife of one, Mrs. Lovell, said the flag will fly over the house day and night until...

The wife of another, Mrs. Haise, remained glued to Mission Control radio.

And in Washington the U.S. Senate passed a resolution calling upon the entire nation to pause for prayer.

Telephone calls and telegrams arrived in Houston in an avalanche.

Engineers and laymen offered advice. Wives and mothers offered consolation.

And all this was as it should have been.

In a climate of callousness and indifference, this outpouring of compassion was and remains reassuring. It says we are, after all, made not just of mud.

But our young are not as overawed as are we by the conquest of space. And they remain confused, confounded and suspicious of our magnificent concern for the three.

And our strange indifference toward the hundred.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The name Dixie is associated with the southern states. The World Almanac says the name is believed to have been derived from a man named Dixie, a kind-hearted slave-owner, who lived on Manhattan Island, N.Y., in the late 18th century. When slavery moved southward, Dixie's former slaves sang of their old home, longing to return. The song's origin was forgotten and was applied to their southern home.

Hollywood In Review

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Without question the finest video drama of the season, "The Andersonville Trial," directed by George C. Scott, will be presented coast-to-coast on National Educational Television Sunday night.

The two-and-a-half hour production, in color and without commercials, is Saul Levitt's distinguished work about the trial, by a military court, of a commandant whose notorious Southern prison camp in the Civil War was responsible for the death of many men.

The commandant's defense is that he was just following orders in his running of the camp, and that personal moral responsibility is irrelevant in such a military situation.

Producer Lewis Freedman, by attracting Scott as the director, was able to line up an exceptional cast for this premiere presentation of the Hollywood television theatre—the kind of name performers who will make the general public more conscious of educational video.

Richard Basehart, with German accent, portrays the Swiss-born commandant, who has been shattered emotionally by the camp and his trial. William Shatner is the military prosecutor, Jack Cassidy the civilian defense attorney and Cameron Mitchell the general who heads the court.

The striking array of witnesses, strikingly played, includes Buddy Ebsen, Albert Salmi, Michael Burns, Harry Townes, John Anderson and Lou Frizzell.

Arizona Miss Wins Title

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—A slender blonde teen-ager from Phoenix, Ariz., who wants to represent "the better side of youth," began her reign today as America's 1970 Junior Miss.

Karen Stenwall, 18, composed after the excitement of winning the title over high school seniors from the other 49 states Wednesday night, said she considered it "a great honor and responsibility."

"I'm going to try to represent youth in a positive way. There have been so many demonstrations. I would like to represent the better side of youth."

Karen, one of six blond sisters in a family that has no boys, accepted the crown from 1969 titleholder Jackie Benington of Huntington Beach, Calif.

The pageant finals, hosted by singer Jimmie Rodgers, was nationally televised.

"I wasn't nervous when they were naming the winners because I didn't think it would be me," she said.

"I was shocked when they picked me. I don't think I realized it even now."

Miss Connecticut, Carol Elizabeth Buckland, 17, of Farmington, was first runner-up; and Laura Elaine Boyette, 18, of Jackson, Miss., second runner-up.

The other finalists were Rhoda Kay Martyn, 17, of Huntington Beach, Calif., and Debbie Ann Steiner, 17, of Elm Grove, Wis.

New Look For Salvation Army Lassies

Army lassies have traded their coal scuttle bonnets for jaunty felt bowlers and raised their skirts above their knees in the organization's first major uniform revision in 92 years.

The men will wear white shirts and blue neckties instead of button-up tunic collars. Their military style bill caps remain.

Capt. Sylvia Dalziel and Capt. Peter Dalziel, the husband-and-wife Salvation Army team who organized the army's Joystings pop group several years ago in a drive to modernize the organization's image, showed off the new uniforms Tuesday.

"We've gone modern now," Dalziel said to patrons of a Fleet Street pub where the fashion show was held.

Perhaps the biggest change was the end of the Victorian style bonnet and the long skirts that had characterized the appearance of Salvation Army women for nearly a century.

The new skirts show the knees and the modern hats are faintly reminiscent of those of women's Navy personnel.

It was the first extensive change in Salvation Army attire since Gen. Williams Booth organized the Salvation Army in 1865.

Cancer Treatment Machine Powerful

HOUSTON (UPI)—A cancer treatment machine, so powerful it is being buried in six feet of concrete in the hospital's parking lot, will be ready for use in two months.

The installation process began Thursday and will take another six weeks. It will take another two weeks to run performance tests.

The machine emits nearly six times as many volts of radiation as any other cancer treating machine in the world. Doctors at M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Clinic say it is easily the most powerful weapon in the fight against cancer.

The machine is designed to treat cancer, not prevent it. The machine will be located in a 14-room underground complex under the hospital's parking lot. The walls around the treatment room are made of high density concrete. They are six-foot thick. The ceiling is a 12-foot slab of lead. The lifting door is also made of lead. It is 185,000 members, who may keep quarters said the new styles wearing their old uniforms if they choose.

14 inches thick and weighs 12 tons. It will treat an area 18 inches square or the entire chest of a patient. The machines used in other hospitals cover a maximum area of six inches.

By flipping a switch the machine can be converted from treating a cancerous tumor close to the skin to one deep in the body. This is a complicated conversion procedure in other machines.

The machine cost $534,000. The engineering and design cost another $500,000. The machine was received by Dr. Gilbert Fletcher, head of the department of radiotherapy at M. D. Anderson.

Saigon To Call For Pause In Battling

SAIGON (UPI) — The Allied offensive into Cambodia went into its third week today with South Vietnamese troops within 20 miles of Phnom Penh and U.S. units reporting 10 more GIs slain and 13 wounded. Saigon said it would begin a 24-hour truce Monday for Buddha's birthday.

Military spokesmen said the latest U.S. casualties in Cambodia came in three small skirmishes and the downing of a helicopter. The copter carried four men to their deaths — the 16th American helicopter lost since the cross-border drive began May 1.

Four other U.S. troopers died Thursday in a second "copter crash, this one in South Vietnam a half mile from the Cambodian frontier. Military spokesmen said the craft was hit by groundfire and went down 73 miles northwest of Saigon.

The assistant commander of U.S. troops in Vietnam, Lt. Gen. William B. Rosson, told newsmen in Saigon there are indications the Communists have moved their war headquarters, the target of the Allies' Cambodia drive, away from the border regions toward Phnom Penh.

"Such evidence as we do have-and it is far from complete-would suggest that the enemy is attempting to establish himself farther inland from the strip in which we are operating," he said.

The Saigon government said its 24-hour truce for Buddha's birthday would begin at noon Monday. It did not say whether it would cover the estimated 16,000 American and 24,000 government soldiers in Cambodia. The Viet Cong so far have not said they would join the standstill.

A South Vietnamese tank column pushed to within 20 miles of Phnom Penh this morning and reported a total of 250 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed in its drive to clear Highway 1 from Saigon to the Cambodian capital.

Tall People Claim It's A Small World

BERLIN (UPI)—The tall people of Europe claim they are being discriminated against, and they are organizing to do something about it.

They insist it's a small man's world and a big man only has an advantage on the basketball court.

The third European Congress of Tall People has ended with a plea for tax reductions to help meet the cost of being big.

There are 520 men and women in West Berlin for the three-day meeting, from West Germany, Denmark, Sweden, Austria and Switzerland.

Gets Double Room

One man 7-feet, 7-inches tall swore he always gets a double room in a hotel and then joins the twin beds so he can sleep comfortably.

"But that won't work for bathtubs," said Heinrich Karner, head of the West Berlin "Tall People's Club."

"And what does a man do when his head hits the shower nozzle," asked Karner, who at 6-foot-3-inches describes himself as relatively short.

"Consider the cost of getting suits made. Small persons can buy off the rack. Or shoes. How about the cost of beds and bathtubs at home?"

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The Smothers Brothers, who seem to cause a fuss wherever they go, will try their third television network, ABC, with a weekly one-hour summer series starting July 8.

And at a banquet here this week for representatives of ABC-TV affiliate stations, the brothers displayed their acerbic wit again and gave little indication they will change their pattern.

The Smothers, of course, were fired by CBS-TV. And not too long ago, in a comeback special on NBC-TV, they aroused the ire of the Los Angeles police chief with a sketch satirizing policemen.

At this week's banquet, they did a short stunt in a show that also included Johnny Cash, Petula Clark, Danny Thomas and The Young Americans. And they got a lot of laughs.

"It's Great"

"It's great to be here," said brother Dick, playing again the fellow who is upset and impatient with Tom's jokes and insults.

Replied Tom: "It's great to be anywhere."

Tom then said he'd "like to speak on behalf of my brother and myself and say..."

Dick interrupted: "I'd kinda rather you just speak for yourself. It's a new policy I instituted about a year ago..."

Tom now speaks for himself.

Tom then launched into a backdoor needling of General Sarnoff of RCA-NBC complex and Dr. Frank Stanton of CBS.

His device was a refer to a high ABC official, Elton Rule, first as "General" and then as "doctor." Dick kept correcting him. Tom, meanwhile, was making playful digs at several top ABC executives.

Aims Another Shot

Tom also aimed another shot at CBS-TV, which, in canceling the brothers, said they were delivering their shows too late.

He told the audience his new staff has been "working very hard to get our scripts-in-to-the networks five years in advance and my son and my mother are being held hostage."

Dick: "We did meet a lot of fine affiliates, didn't we? And we should say something nice about them."

Tom: "We should... they're the people... they're the people who got us off last time."

That got a laugh too. But it also indicated the Smothers are hardly likely to change into the Rover Boys on their summer show.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif.—David J. Gosselin, a five year police veteran, accepting responsibility for the April 18 shooting death of a University of California student:

"I was consciously sure that the weapon had fired but subconsciously I didn't want to believe it."

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The clamor for "selling climax" on the stock market comes mainly from people who don't know what they are talking about, according to Wright Investors' Service.

"The convulsion of another Black Friday now" could spread "instant epidemic" across the country, bringing "bankruptcy" to many, paralyze the nation, and "destroy the administration's credibility" at home and abroad, the firm says.

The price level or timing of an eventual bottom cannot be predicted because the background psychology is mainly bearish and human emotions are so susceptible to sudden news changes, Hayden, Stone Inc. says.

There appears to be too many reasons both technical and psychological for the market to make much headway without a necessary period of prior price consolidation or a tangible and definite break in the generally somber news, the firm says.
