Sales Tax Gains Up, Evaluations Down

By TEX DEWEES, News Staff Writer
The City of Pampa got some good news late yesterday afternoon in the form of a check for $62,922 in sales tax money from the office of John Calvert state comptroller in Austin.

The one per cent city sales tax which went into effect Jan. 1 grossed $67,415 for the first quarter, January through March. The state kept $1,348 as a collection fee and $3,145 was deducted for contingencies.

City Manager Charles Hill said today most of the $3,145 held back should be received by the city on the next quarterly payment. This amount, caused by some bad checks and errors, would increase Pampa's first quarterly payment in sales tax receipts to approximately $65,000.

Comparing the first quarterly sales tax revenue with comparable cities with a full year's experience, the city manager stated it can be anticipated, the full year's income from that source will meet the previous estimate of $250,000 a year. That was the figure estimated when the sales tax proposal was put to a vote of the people last year.

The history of quarterly sales tax receipts in other cities shows first quarter collections to be the lightest of the year. The amount then increases with each quarter.

"If that holds true for Pampa," Hill said, "we could reasonably expect to receive around $280,000 this year in sales tax receipts."

Along with today's announcement on the sales tax, there was what Tax Collector-Assessor Aubrey Jones described as a first estimate report, revealing that for the first time since 1948 Pampa had a decline in property valuation for 1970.

The 1970 property valuation first estimate total for both real and personal property is $50,151,530, a loss of $90,020 or approximately 0.18 percent. The 1969 total valuation for tax purposes was $50,241,550.

In summarizing the loss in assessed real estate value, minutes of the City Tax Equalization Board show that in order to equalize property values in downtown Pampa, the 1970 equalization board was of the opinion that a 10 per cent reduction of land values on Cuyler St. from Brown to Browning would more easily achieve equalization. That resulted in a loss of $56,610 tax values on Cuyler St. properties.

Loss from normal real estate depreciation totaled $396,390 and loss from railroad valuation was $15,160 which, with the Cuyler Street loss, gives a grand total loss for the year of $468,000. The gain from normal construction during the year was $435,260 which brought the net loss in property valuation to $32,900. The net loss in personal property valuation for 1970 was $57,120. These two figures account for the total $90,020 drop in Pampa's 1970 assessed valuation total.

The history of property valuation figures in Pampa has been an average 4 per cent annual increase down through the years since 1948.

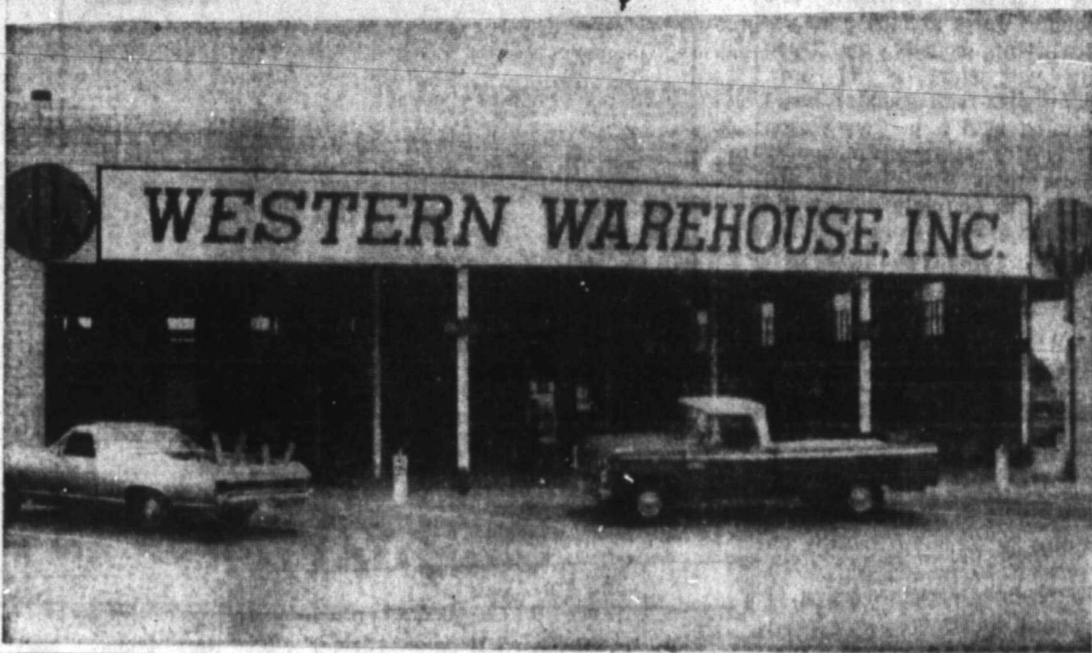

For the first time this year the figure has dropped into the minus percentage column.

"That's why it was nice to get the sales tax check," City Manager Hill said. "The drop in property valuations was something we had anticipated when we asked voters to approve the sales tax."

The city manager added, "the point has been reached where property tax should not be a city's only source of income. You can't depend solely upon it any more."

In commenting on the drop in property valuations, Tax Collector Jones stated in his report:

"It is a known fact that new residential construction in Pampa was at a standstill in 1969, only a few commercial buildings were constructed, and remodeling was not on an extensive scale as in the past few years."

Tries To Solicit Policy Support

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon today hosts about 50 top news executives in an attempt to solicit support for his Southeast Asian policies.

The session is another step in the President's campaign to win acceptance for the whole spectrum of his foreign policy, particularly his plan for gradual disengagement from Vietnam.

It is expected to be a preview of the hourlong, nationally televised interview Wednesday night on U.S. global involvements.

The editors, publishers and broadcast executives representing a cross-section of the nation's news media, will be with the President at the poolside of his bluff-top overlooking the Pacific and attend about three hours of background briefings by State Department experts and Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's chief foreign policy adviser.

The New York Times and the Washington Post were not among the papers invited to the session.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Zeigler said, "We selected a cross section of newspaper publishers and television executives. Obviously every newspaper could not be represented."

Elated by what he termed the warmest reception of his presidency during a speech to the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce Convention in St. Louis, Nixon announced plans for the televised foreign policy discussion on his arrival here for a long stay at the Western White House. He will return to Washington Monday, July 6.

The program, titled "A Conversation on Foreign Policy with the President," will be broadcast live from Nixon's Spanish-style vacation home at 10 p.m. (EDT). The President will be interviewed by three newsmen, Howard K. Smith of ABC, John Chancellor of NBC and Eric Sevareid of CBS, on all aspects of foreign policy from Vietnam to the Middle East.

The Tuesday report will be in written form and will coincide with the June 30 deadline for the withdrawal of all American ground troops from Cambodia.

True Predictions Outrank Mistakes

If you believe the stars hold the key to the future, watch for the Sunday edition of The Pampa Daily News, which will publish Jeane Dixon's 1970 Mid-Year Predictions.

Miss Dixon forecasts her predictions for the next six months on world-wide topics and national issues, including President Nixon and his cabinet, division in America, radicals, the economy, the 1972 election, narcotics, religion, environmental control, internal politics, people in the news, and problems in other major countries.

Six months ago in her annual predictions for 1970, Jeane Dixon foresaw many things that make up the current scene today, such as "an increase in crime and violence and the internal strife that threatens America." Her hits were slightly offset by one miss.

She predicted the economic problems that plague the country, "I do not see a depression such as we had in the 30s," she wrote. "I see that the high rate of interest will increase inflation instead of decreasing it—thus, a money panic depression with inflation."

Another of her January predictions — concerning Jacqueline Onassis — was misquoted in the news: A news service stated that divorce papers for the Onassises were going to be filed in New York on June 10, and a spokesman for Mrs. Onassis blamed the rumor on Jeane Dixon. "She made some prediction that the Onassises would be divorced this year in June or July," said the spokesman, in denying the divorce rumors.

What Jeane Dixon predicted in January was the rumors, unfounded, not the divorce. "I see some difficulties ahead for Jacqueline and Aristotle Onassis around June and July of this year," she wrote. "There will be rumors about Jacqueline, some of which will be unfounded." Moreover, Mrs. Dixon went on to say: "However, in October, there seems to be a beautiful rainbow embracing her."

She predicted the acceleration of the Mideast War, eventually into "a full-scale war." But, she wrote, "I see no direct U.S. vs.

USSR clash in the Middle East."

She also predicted "four important changes in President Nixon's official family." She said, "One member of the Cabinet will be asked to resign." This has not yet occurred.

Jeane Dixon's one real miss concerned Sargent Shriver, who was then ambassador to France. She predicted that Shriver "will win a governorship which will be a stepping stone for his aspirations to the presidency." Shriver did go back to his home state of Maryland and did investigate the possibility of getting the nomination for the governorship, but then he dropped out.

She was correct, however, on another governorship. "George Wallace will again obtain political office," she wrote. Mr. Wallace won the run-off election this month.

Israeli Tanks Seize Syrian Positions

By United Press International
Israeli tanks supported by warplanes and artillery swept across the Golan Heights ceasefire line today and seized control of Syrian positions, a military spokesman announced in Tel Aviv. Heavy fighting raged in the area for the third consecutive day.

As the Israeli armored task force crossed into Syrian-held territory at noon, waves of Israeli jet fighter-bombers blasted military bases on the outskirts of Damascus and battled Syrian interceptors that rose to challenge them. An Italian jetliner flying over the city was hit and damaged.

Syria said it shot down six Israeli planes. Israeli reports acknowledged the loss of one plane and claimed two Syrian MIG21s were shot down.

On another Middle East front today, Egyptian and Israeli warplanes exchanged air strikes, and artillery fire boomed across the waterway.

Pampa Jaycees Meet In St. Louis

Pampa attorney John Warner, legal counsel for the Texas Jaycees, Jaycees Jack Potter and John Goes are expected to return Sunday from attending the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Jaycee organization in St. Louis, Mo.

In a telephone call today from Warner, it was learned the Texas Jaycee candidate, Bob Buck of San Antonio for the office of national president, came in second to winner Gordon Thomas of Ohio for that office.

Warner said keynote speaker, President Richard Nixon, attending with his wife and daughter, Tricia, received a 30-minute standing ovation from the conventioners.

Nixon told Jaycees they were the key to bridging the generation gap, since the membership is nearer the young age group and would better understand the problems.

Jaycees, also heard Bill Brownfield, author of the Jaycee Creed, speaking from a wheelchair ask Jaycees to speak out for what they believe. "because," as he said, "that's the only way to keep the country free."

He Doesn't Stop—Even For 103rd

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco's jogging waiter says he didn't change his routine much on his 103rd birthday.

The sun came up two hours after Larry Lewis slipped into his clothing Thursday for what he said was his daily 6.7 mile trot through Golden Gate Park.

For 23 years Lewis has waited table at the St. Francis Hotel, sometimes hauling heavy trays for as many as 13 hours, he said.

Every second day he does "a little boxing at the Olympic Club," and he also finds time for eight or nine handball games a week.

Navy Jet Crash Kills Four In San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — A Navy P-9 Cougar jet crashed into a residential area Thursday night, killing four persons and hospitalizing six others.

Two houses were destroyed and a third damaged by the plane which, the Navy said, was on a training mission and was making a practice instrument approach to Kelly Air Force Base when it crashed.

Two persons on the ground were killed. They were Saul T. Martinez, 43, and S. Sgt. Edward Martinez, 23. The Navy identified the other two dead as instructor pilot Lt. (j.g.) Wesley B. Duerr, 26, of Cant Springs, Md., and student pilot Lt. (j.g.) John B. Weller, 25, of Convent, N.J., both assigned to training squadron 23, Naval Air Station, Chase Field, Beeville, Tex.

A 12-year-old boy, Mark Lotson, was in critical condition with third degree burns over 85 per cent of his body. Doctors performed emergency surgery early today at the Bexar County Medical Center.

Flo Featherston saw the airplane crash into a neighboring house.

"We were looking at a program on TV," she said. "We heard it kind of hit the house (next door) . . . we heard the boom and the blast. We went to the back porch and saw this little boy on fire where the plane had hit the house. He was just standing there in a daze. We told him to roll over on the ground."

Lotson's friend, Willie McDaniel, 12, was walking with him just before the crash. "We were walking down the street and we saw the plane coming and I said 'run' and he just stood there," McDaniel said.

Sgt. William Turner was patrolling a mile and a half from the crash scene when he got a radio call.

Houston Appeals Court Upholds Injunction In Air Pollution Case

HOUSTON (UPI) — In what may become a landmark opinion in Texas air pollution cases, a Houston appeals court upheld Thursday a lower court's temporary injunction prohibiting the burning of a railroad boxcar.

The ruling of the First Court of Civil Appeals generally affirmed the legality of the Texas Clean Air Act and the authority of the Texas Air Control Board. Assistant county attorney James R. Doxey said the case was the first test of the Texas pollution law before a higher court.

"To us, this opinion is strike one against the polluters," Doxey said. "Now maybe we can get strikes two and three and get the polluters out. This opinion most definitely will help us in future cases."

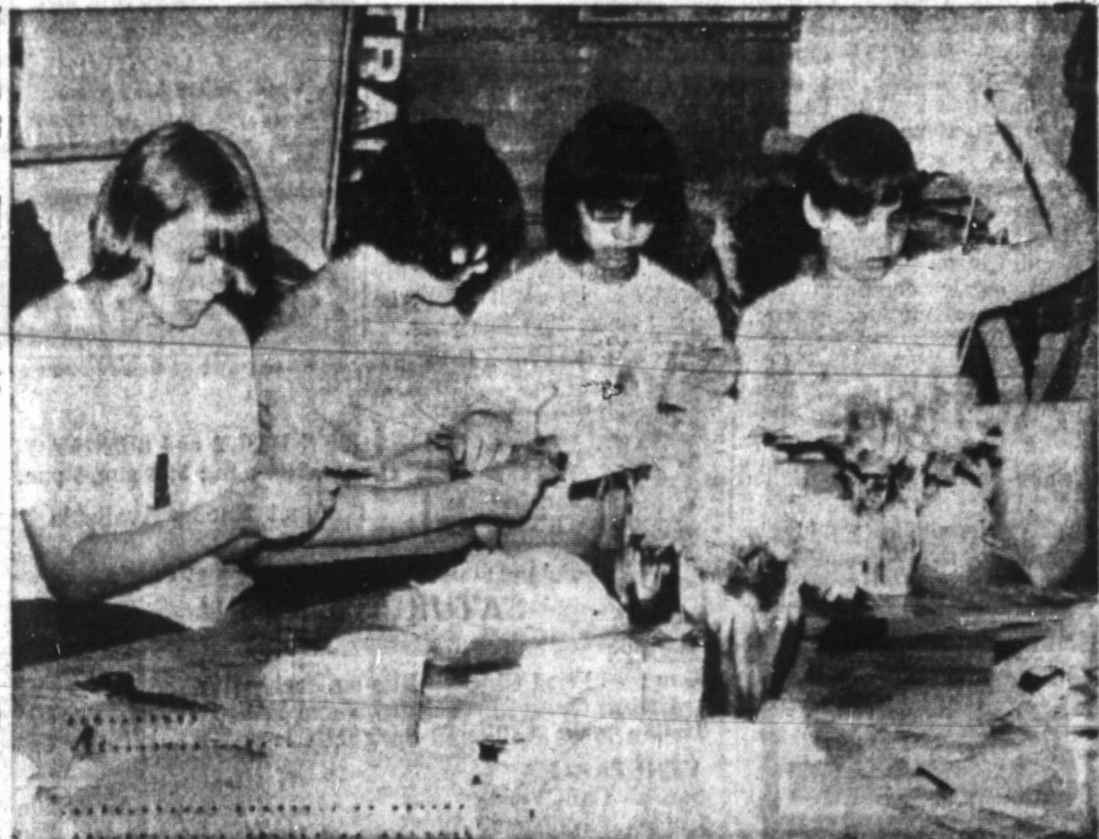

The opinion, written by Associate Justice Phil Peden, rejected seven of the eight points raised by the defendant's attorney and refused to dissolve the injunction issued by District Judge Wyatt Heard on Feb. 27.

An earlier injunction, issued by Heard on Feb. 17, was declared faulty by the appeals court. But this injunction was superseded by the later one.

The case came back to court when county officials accused the Byer's Barge Terminal of violating the terms of the Feb. 17 injunction. It permitted Byer's to burn 48 boxcars within specified hours at the rate of four a day.

County officials asked that Sidney Byer, head of the salvage firm, be found in contempt of court.

Judge Heard delayed a ruling of the contempt issue, but ordered a halt to the burning of the remaining 16 boxcars. Byer's later was denied an air board variance to burn the cars.

The department said Thursday the increase would be substantially above last year's $1.3 billion trade balance but still less than the $5 billion a year the Nixon administration has set as a goal. Exports in May totaled $3.7 billion and imports were $3.36 billion, setting record highs for monthly totals, the department said.

Suspect Arrested In Morning Breakin

One suspect was arrested and arraigned on charges of burglary this morning and a man believed to be his companion in two break-ins early this morning was being sought by police. Donald Louis Provence, 23, of 604 E. Denver, was arrested inside the Royal Bar, 534 S. Cuyler, after police found a window open on the south side of the bar and investigated. According to police reports, Provence and another suspect were seen by officers near the bar about 1:15 a.m. Upon questioning, the pair told police they were looking for a dog. The questioning officer said he left the area of the bar and contacted his supervisor. The men agreed the suspects might be attempting to burglarize the bar. Reports said the officers waited about ten minutes and returned to the bar. The second suspect was believed to be acting as look out for Provence. A warrant was issued this morning for the suspect, whom police requested not be identified until arrest was made. Under interrogation, Provence reportedly signed a confession stating he and his accomplice burglarized the bar and Radcliff Supply, 112 E. Brown. A peanut vending machine was broken into and an undetermined amount of pennies were taken from the supply firm. Provence was being held in Gray County jail in lieu of $1,500 bond set by Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford this morning. Police said Provence had only recently been taken off probation for burglary in Potter County. The accomplice, police said, is believed to be on bond from Gray County jail and scheduled for trial July 13 on similar charges.

COULD BE FINED Water Quality Board Warns El Campo To End Pollution

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Texas Water Quality Board warned the City of El Campo Thursday the state could take over the city government if it fails to solve its pollution problems. The board told El Campo's mayor and city manager the city could be fined up to $1,000 a day for violating water quality standards. The board also said the city could be placed under a court order to meet regulations. The city officials were also told courts in other states have placed cities in receivership and taken over municipal operations. "That's a harsh remedy but it's one that might be sought and granted," board attorney Elbert Hooper said. El Campo City Manager Danny Hyden said voters in his city rejected a $1 million bond issue to finance necessary sewage treatment facilities. "This board hopes it doesn't have to resort to unpleasant means to get you people to do what they need to do," said board chairman Gordon Fulcher. "But if we have to get ugly about it we will." El Campo Mayor Harlan Nelson said the city would raise sewage rates by 50 per cent to finance necessary improvements and also resubmit the bond issue "in the very near future." The board also cited the City of Timpson for failing to adhere to water quality operations and not cooperating with the board. But the panel said the city's voters recently turned out the old administration and they agreed to wait until it saw what kind of cooperation it received from new Mayor Robin Hooper.

Lt. Governor Plans To Testify Against Portion Of Welfare Plan

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Texas Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes plans to go to Washington to testify against a portion of President Nixon's welfare plan. Barnes said he is especially disturbed by the family assistance program in Nixon's welfare package. He said Texas would have to come up with $100 million a year in new taxes to pay for the program. Barnes urged other state officials attending the 24th annual Southern Conference of the Council of State Governments to follow him to Washington to speak against Nixon's proposals. "The Nixon welfare program is misleading," Barnes said Thursday. "They're increasing the welfare programs, but at the same time they are shifting the burdens to the state. Under this plan, every state would have to have a big tax increase just to take care of the added burden of Medicaid. From the direction they're headed, the federal government will ruin the ability of the states to meet their own financial needs," he said. "The federal government is either going to have to take over the entire welfare program or they're going to have to come up with a major program of sharing the federal tax dollar with the state." Texas House Speaker Gus Mutscher, also a delegate to the council, said preliminary census results will cause rural districts in the state to lose about 10 seats in the Texas House of Representatives. Barnes said eight incumbent Congressmen may be put into joint districts and as many as six incumbent state senators could be thrown together. Barnes and Mutscher jointly sponsored a resolution to push for legislation for revenue sharing with the states. The legislation is now bottled up in the U.S. House and Barnes said Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., was personally holding it up. "If we could get Wilbur Mills to change his position on this legislation, I would say its chances of passing would improve by 100 per cent," Barnes said.

Gus Water Skis - And Is Miss Wool

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (UPI) — Gus plays a pretty mean fute. She also likes to cook, bake, swim and water ski. She made the dean's list at Millikin University and is listed in Who's Who in American College and Universities. Thursday night she became the first entry from Illinois selected as "Miss Wool." Her real name is Gail Heinzmann but somehow she got tagged with the nickname "Gus" back home in Carlyle, Ill. The name stuck at Millikin University in Decatur, Ill., and so she brought it with her for the 1970 Miss Wool pageant. Actor Glenn Ford, one of the judges, said Miss Heinzmann (34-22-35) was the unanimous choice of the panel. "Where is my sister," she said when her name was announced as the new Miss Wool succeeding Frances Mitchell of Virginia. She then turned to the other finalists and said "You sweethearts." Catherine Anne Clemens of Boise, Idaho, was first runner-up; Barbara Elaine Bailey of Xenia, Ohio, was second runner-up; and Jeanne Beard of Enid, Okla., was third runner-up.

Agnew, McCormack Swear Off Dirty Politics For Rest Of Year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and Speaker John W. McCormack today formally swore off dirty politics for the rest of the year. The Republican vice president (who also is president of the Senate) and the Democratic leader of the House took the customary election year fair campaign pledge for their respective parties and the hundreds of candidates each will be fielding in congressional and other elections this year. At a Capitol signing ceremony set for 12:30 p.m. EDT, the nonpartisan Fair Campaign Practices Committee had scheduled announcement of its new plan to put some muscle into its efforts. The committee arranged with the American Arbitration Association (AAA) to render impartial rulings on complaints of alleged unfair campaign tactics, congressional sources said. The AAA this year will make their rulings public before Nov. 3, "in time for the voters to punish with their ballot those who resort to dirty politics," the sources said. The arbitration plan grew out of a test run in the 1968 elections. In each of several cases where arbitrators found that candidates had breached the committee's campaign code, the committee said the offender lost the election. Agnew, who won't himself be seeking office this year, has been and no doubt will continue to be among the GOP's most free-swinging spokesmen. McCormack, also a highly partisan orator in earlier years, has assumed a more statesmanlike posture in his role as house speaker. At 78, he recently announced he will not be seeking re-election this year.

Rep. Boggs Concerned About Department Of Interior's Actions

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., says he is concerned about "deliberate effects" the Department of the Interior's actions on offshore lease sales have had on the economy of his home state and other oil producing states. "I am particularly concerned about the noticeable increase in unemployment among service industries," he said. "The increasing threat of valuable offshore drilling technical personnel and equipment, now idled, being moved to other parts of the world; and the loss of revenues to my state and to the federal government." "At a recent hearing of the Ways and Means Committee," the Democratic whip continues, "Treasury Department officials reported to me that estimated revenues from offshore operations have had to be revised downward by almost $500 million." In a recent House speech, Boggs blasted the Interior Department for actions "taken in the name of environmental control," that have caused the suspension of offshore lease sales, shutting in of fields and "overly harsh enforcement of new, stringent regulations and orders that are seriously curtailing routine day-by-day operations." "The new restrictions not only are having a devastating effect upon the state of Louisiana and its citizens," he says, "they are causing, and unquestionably will result in substantial loss of revenue to the United States."

Records indicate production from offshore Louisiana is about one million barrels of crude oil and condensate a day—about 10 per cent of the total domestic rate. Oil and gas production in that state have been growing at a rate of 15 per cent per year. Now about 3.4 million acres of the Continental Shelf are under lease. "Since offshore operations started," Boggs says, "the oil industry has paid $2.8 billion in lease bonuses and rentals to the state and federal governments, and $1.8 billion in royalties and production taxes." "It is estimated that industry has invested a total of $6.3 billion in offshore Louisiana. For the past 15 years an average of more than $1 million per day has been spent in offshore Louisiana for capital investment." Boggs says, in his opinion, reports of the damages caused by recent oil spills have been magnified out of proportion. "In my opinion," he says, "the continued suspension of offshore lease sales will result in a devastating economic crisis to the state of Louisiana and its people, and to the public interest of the U.S." "Offshore Louisiana exploration is conducted through the use of expensive platforms and drilling rigs. These rigs cost millions of dollars. Their owners cannot possibly stand by and allow these rigs to remain idle. The only alternative is to move them to foreign waters where no drilling restrictions exist. "The trend toward this move has already commenced," he says. "If it is continued, there will be a serious decline in the discovery and development of new domestic reserves in the offshore waters of the United States." "This definitely would be harmful to the national interest."

In Senate It's Getting Hard To Tell Hawks From Doves

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., says he will move to table his own "amendment to end the war" if Nixon administration supporters bring it up prematurely in an effort to defeat it.

The upside-down, inside-out, rear-end-forward situation developed as the Senate lurched into its seventh week of debate on the war, the U.S. military strike into Cambodia—and the Constitution.

Here is what is happening: —Members voted to repeal the 1964 Gulf of Tonkin Resolution Wednesday but Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., who has called the resolution one of the greatest mistakes Congress ever made, voted against its repeal.

—The Cooper-Church Amendment to cut off funds for future sustained incursions into Cambodia is still pending, but many members now have doubts about what it means because of new language added to it Monday.

—Now, Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., a supporter of Nixon administration policies in Southeast Asia, says he is giving "serious consideration" to calling up McGovern's amendment to deny Nixon funds for Southeast Asia for the year beginning Dec. 31. And McGovern says if that happens, will move to table his own amendment. This would put administration allies into the bizarre position of voting to force Nixon to end the war, and vice versa.

"It's getting so you can't tell who the hawks and doves are around here any more," said Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., the "owl" of the Senate and dean of Senate Republicans.

"A lot of us are getting pretty well fed up with political maneuvering," Aiken said. "Before April 30, I never saw better cooperation between the legislative and executive branches. But chaos seems to have taken over since. We've got a lot of work to do. For the good of the country, I wish we would get to work and get rid of a lot of this political nonsense."

AMA Ethics Code Revision Recommended

CHICAGO (UPI)—A revision of the American Medical Association's code of ethics which would free physicians to perform abortions in states where the operation is legal has been recommended by an AMA Reference Committee.

The proposal, sent to the AMA's policy-making House of Delegates Wednesday, modified an AMA Board of Trustees' recommendation that the decision to terminate pregnancy be left solely to a doctor and his patient.

AMA policy forbids doctors to perform abortions except for therapeutic reasons, despite liberalization of abortion laws in a few states.

GETS SEAT—AND BRUISE

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—When Linda Dunson, 20, failed to give up her seat to a little old lady, she said the elderly woman called her names, hit her with a cane, relaxed for a while, and then hit her again.

The bus driver stopped the bus and the woman, about 65, disappeared. Miss Dunson was treated at a hospital for a bruise on the forehead.

DIDN'T LAST LONG

ORANGE N.J. (UPI)—The President of the Orange Board of Education hired as stenographer to take minutes of the meeting.

Ten minutes into Tuesday night's meeting she noted that the board had decided to fire the stenographer.

Christian Science

Instructions given by Jesus to his twelve disciples and to seventy other followers, who were sent out to heal and save mankind, are included in the Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches this Sunday.

The Lesson-Sermon subject is "Christian Science," which is explained in passages from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy. One of the passages states: "Now, as then, signs and wonders are wrought in the metaphysical healing of physical disease; but these signs are only to demonstrate its divine origin, — to attest the reality of the higher mission of the Christ-power to take away the sins of the world."

First Baptist

Rev. Dan B. Cameron, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will be in the pulpit for both services of worship Sunday. In the eleven o'clock morning worship he will continue preaching the sermon series, "The King and I," from the subject, "The King's Refusal."

David Campbell, minister of music, will sing a solo, "Here Is My Life" and will direct the Sanctuary Choir in the choral worship number, "High in the Heavens." The offertory will be a flute duet played by Mrs. David Campbell and Miss Jane Egerton. Their selection is "Ivory Palaces."

"Door in Heaven" is the topic the pastor has chosen for his seven o'clock evening worship sermon. The Sanctuary Choir will occupy the choir loft. Mrs. Campbell will sing a solo for the special music. Miss Eloise Lane, organist, will play "Theme from Finlandia" for organ offertory.

Vacation Bible School continues through Wednesday morning. Each department will have open house from 6:15 until 6:45 p.m. and at 6:45 the commencement service will be held in the Sanctuary. Roy Konegny, minister of education, invites all the congregation and parents of the vacation Bible School children to attend these two services. The fellowship supper precedes these vacation Bible School services, beginning at 5:30 p.m.

First Christian

The Rev. Shelby H. Anglemeyer will deliver the morning message for Sunday worship. He has chosen for his Sermon Topic "A Voice from the Cloud," with Scriptures selected from Matthew 17:1-8. The Choir under the direction of Miss Rosemary Lawlor and accompanied by Mrs. John Gill will present the Anthem.

June 26 will be the climax for the Vacation Church School, which has been going on this week under the Direction of Mrs. Harold Comer. There will be an open house and program beginning at 7 p.m. to invite all parents to come and view all the crafts and work the children have completed this week. The ladies of the Christian Womens Fellowship will serve refreshments following the program.

Sunday Evening will begin with our regular Snack Supper at 5:30 p.m. Youth Groups at 6 p.m. and the Vesper Hour at 7 p.m. The Summer Sponsors are Mrs. Eugene Reed for the CYF, Miss Jennifer Cunningham, Summer Youth Director, for Chi Rho, and Mr. and Mrs. Will Breazeale for the JYF. Many wonderful summer programs have been planned.

The Evening Vesper Hour will be led by the Rev. Shelby H. Anglemeyer and is to be a Bible Study of Matthew, Chapter 5.

First Presbyterian

Rev. Martin Hager, First Presbyterian pastor, will use "Christian Persistence" as the topic for his sermon at both the 8:30 and 11 a.m. services this Sunday.

His text will be taken from Jude 1:17-25. Ruling Elden Roy Sparkman will be the pulpit assistant at both the worship services.

Story Of German Pastor Executed By Nazis Told

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer
DIETRICH Bonhoeffer was a Lutheran pastor executed by the Nazis for his stubborn and forthright opposition to the Hitler regime in Germany.

He also was—by no means incidentally—one of the most profound and perceptive Christian theologians of this century. A disservice has been done to his memory in recent years by some so-called Christian radicals who quote out of context a letter he wrote from prison in which he used the phrase, "religionless Christianity."

The impression has been created that Bonhoeffer was prepared to dispense with God and turn Christianity into a social-service movement. Nothing could be further from the truth. Bonhoeffer believed deeply in the reality of God and the lordship of Jesus Christ. To the end of his days, he was a praying Christian.

The intensity of his personal devotion is plainly evident in a very small but very moving book he wrote under the title: "Prayers: The Prayerbook of the Bible." An English translation has just been released (by Augsburg Publishing House, Minneapolis, Minn.).

Although spontaneous prayers are always in order, the German pastor said, it also is necessary to set aside a special time each day, preferably in the early morning, to approach God in prayer. And it is not only acceptable, but highly advisable, to make use on these occasions of prayers given to us by others more experienced in speaking with God.

The Psalms contain every type of prayer—adoration, thanksgiving, penitence, and petition. There are Psalms appropriate to every facet of human experience—joy and sadness, triumph and defeat, fellowship and loneliness.

Bonhoeffer suggested that Christians, in using the Psalter as a prayerbook, consciously think of themselves as praying in unison with Christ. This will help them to pray "in the spirit of Christ," which lifts prayer above all self-centeredness and makes it not a means of trying to manipulate God but a way of bringing our own hearts into submission to God's will.

When Nazi guards came to escort Bonhoeffer to the scaffold, they found him kneeling on the floor of his prison cell, praying. He responded cheerfully to their summons. As he was led away, he whispered to a fellow prisoner:

"This is the end. But for me, the beginning of life."

If that is "religionless" Christianity, we could do with some more of it in churches today.

The Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Friday, June 26, the 177th day of 1970 with 188 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn.

The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1900 Dr. Walter Reed led a medical team in a campaign to wipe out yellow fever in the Panama Canal Zone.

In 1917 the first troops of the American expeditionary force reached France to fight in World War I.

In 1944 the third largest French port, Cherbourg, was liberated from the Nazis by the allies.

In 1948, the U.S. began operation "Berlin Airlift" to bypass the Soviet blockade of the German capital.

A thought for the day: French critic Anatole France said: "We have medicines to make women speak: We have none to make them keep silence."

Farmers Losing Freedom

Some of us were startled recently when a representative from California Rural Legal Assistance (federal attorneys who handle cases for the poor) classified farmers in the same category as third generation welfare recipients. He said it is only a matter of semantics whether we call Uncle Sam's help a subsidy or welfare aid.

He has a point. It goes much further than just farm subsidies, which are provided for forty per cent of total farm production. Uncle Sam is subsidizing big truck transportation companies by providing highways. Which contrasts with railroads, who have to build and maintain their own rail lines. Again, Uncle Sam's tremendous airports, thus subsidizing all the airlines. Yet, in contrast, railroads must build their own depots and freight terminals, and pay taxes on them.

The American Farm Bureau for many years has been worried about subsidies. It has seen the help extended during the Great Depression develop into a political fixture. It has witnessed a gradual decrease in farm population, partly as the result of the semi-political business built up by aggressive farmers who profit from subsidies. Bureau President

Charles B. Shuman urges Washington to "... reduce farmers' dependence on government payments for their incomes." He asks new farm legislation that would gradually change to permit a market-oriented agricultural industry. He writes President Nixon, "... it comes down to the question as to whether you and the administration have faith that the competitive market price will sustain a viable agriculture. We in Farm Bureau have this faith based on a long experience with the markets for the 60 per cent of U.S. farm production not subject to the government programs."

While Shuman doesn't say so, there's a fear lurking in the background that Washington, faced with a continued decline of farm population, will convert farm subsidies into a kind of utility-type control that would make farming still more of a political football.

Farmers have always been known for their independence. This traditional characteristic is changing under the subsidy program. Like other groups, farmers take federal gifts when it is handed to them in the guise of subsidies.

Too many subsidies from big government are undermining the independence of our people. and other interesting information while coerced to listen will educate one who closes his mind to them. Shifting the responsibility to others, to parents, schools or levels of government will not do the job. Choosing to open one's mind and gain education is a matter of being self-responsible.

Misplaced Responsibility

It is the proper role of those in Congress to act in the interests of those they represent, to protect their persons and safeguard their property. Of late, it seems they are bent upon a different view and consider their job to be one of re-distributing the earnings of not only those they represent but of all workers throughout the country, heaping ever heavier tax loads upon their backs. It is our conviction that such an attitude stems from a misplacement of responsibility.

In this field of education, the line of demarcation between devotees of "for free" and followers of "for freedom" is becoming daily more evident. Freedom follows recognize that there is no such phenomenon as "free schools" and that the schools are bound by controls from the state which would be deluded to consider those controls as instruments for protecting persons or safeguarding property. They are the result of seizing property to promote the ideas of those at the time in charge of the controls.

Hate Cauldron

Hate, of which name-calling is both a symptom and a weapon, generates more hate. If there is one thing every American can do to help heal the wounds inflicted on the country, it is now and henceforward to forswear the temptation to fling deprecatory labels against one another.

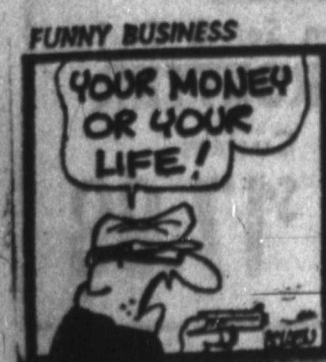

As for college students, they could do worse than to begin by heeding some words spoken recently by Charles J. Hitch, president of the University of California, which has seen its share of trouble: "As the president of the university, I must lay down the warning to the university community that it is wrong to resort to easy rationalizations about the impotence of words. We really do not believe that words are impotent. The foundation of universities is that ideas and the words to express them can be more powerful than any bomb."

to resist and oppose shoddy thinking and lies, and rhetoric which inflames and shocks but does nothing for the truth. "Free speech means careful and skeptical listening, not taking a rhetorical trip. Free expression includes, especially in the university, the duty to oppose cant, dogma and ideological harangue by reasoned and disciplined counter-argument. The crowd that turns into a mob is an insult to the principles of democratic society, and it is a moral insult to the fundamentality of a university."

Sensing The News

EXIT MR. FINCH
In relieving Robert H. Finch of his Cabinet-level post as Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, President Nixon has taken long overdue action. Mr. Finch was more mindful of the opinion of holdover liberals in his department than he was of the wishes of an increasingly conservative electorate.

While Mr. Finch has been assigned to the White House, the presidential action clearly constitutes a demotion for Mr. Finch. He is likely to fade from public sight. Unable to manage the unruly HEW staff, his advice to the President surely won't count for much.

In ceftly sidetracking the unpopular Finch, Mr. Nixon also has created an opportunity for reform of that swollen federal department. Whether Elliot Richardson, the new nominee for the post of Secretary, is the man to institute the necessary reforms is another question. Mr. Richardson doesn't belong to the conservative wing of the Republican Party.

For many months Mr. Finch irritated parents and local school officials by his attitude towards the public schools. He seemed determined to follow in the path of his Democratic predecessor at HEW in trying to impose unreasonable formulas on school boards. It seems reasonable to suppose that Mr. Finch's arrogant and unreasonable attitude was a contributing factor in the recent Alabama election in which former Gov. George Wallace won a term as governor. With Mr. Finch out of the way, the Nixon administration is in a better position to strengthen its position among the voters. What Mr. Richardson does will affect the political situation, of course. Hopefully, Mr. Nixon has instructed Mr. Richardson to pay greater heed to the voice of the people.

In recent weeks, Mr. Finch seemed to completely lose control of his department. Employees of HEW took part in protests and issued demands to their boss. They were rude and abusive because he did not accept their dictation. Mr. Finch suffered humiliation.

Proof Of The Pudding

VIEWPOINT

It's A Fact--Many Sincere Youths Being Used In Plot

By JESSE HELMS
For what must have been the better part of an hour last Friday afternoon, some Daddy's little girl -- and that, really, is what she is: a little girl -- sat in our office and discussed her own personal involvement in the campus protests against her country. Except she doesn't see it that way. In her mind, she is "fighting for peace."

She said repeatedly that she is sincere. And she is. There was something paradoxically melancholy about her determination to prove her country wrong, to bring it down, if necessary, to win her point.

We didn't communicate, heavens no -- she with us, or we with her. She recited the catechisms of opposition to fighting communism in Asia, or anywhere else. And as she spoke, one could almost hear a political science professor -- or, worse still, a member of the "Chicago Seven" -- coaching her from the wings. She recited all the catchphrases, and she did so with all the innocence of a young, wide-eyed attractive child swept over her head, in a turmoil not meant for her.

The painful part of it, as we contemplated later, was that she is -- as she had said -- sincere. Sincerely wrong. She is being used; she has been duped. One day she will realize it. But not this week, or next. She may never, in fact, ADMIT it.

country. Nobody took seriously the carefully-detailed format for provoking a Negro rebellion -- but that was the first step, Richard Whitney wrote, to be used by the communists.

Then, he wrote, there were to come efforts to infiltrate the college campuses of America, first by planting only a few communist professors on a few campuses, then adding more and more as years went by. Then, student uprisings were to be incited. Labor unions were to be taken over. Editorial staffs of prominent newspapers were to be influenced to endorse and demand what was to be called "liberal" laws and "liberal" government.

Significantly, Mr. Whitney wrote, the plan was to convert America into a welfare state, with more and more federal controls, more and more federal subsidies. At the proper time, he warned, there was to be a great protest in the streets against national defense, and accusations that our military men are "war mongers."

There is no room today, of course, in the academic world for an examination -- let alone a study -- of Mr. Whitney's book. But after the little lady left our office last Friday, we wondered what effect it might have upon her if she should read the book. Perhaps none. Then again, it's just possible that a faint glimmer of light might somehow get through to her and make her wonder, after all, if she is not being used in a plot that began more than a quarter of a century before she was born.

Inside Washington

A Cabinet Level Department of Education? JOHN GOLDSMITH ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON -- A priority problem for Elliot Richardson, the new secretary of health, education and welfare, is the credibility of President Nixon's commitment to public education.

There is disarray and doubt within HEW's Office of Education and in the professional societies and associations which help to make up the nation's educational "establishment." It amounts to a kind of domestic credibility gap.

The issue is much broader than the firing of James E. Allen who, as commissioner and assistant secretary, was boss of the Office of Education. More to the point are the frustrations which have pushed Allen to a point where he was considering a resignation.

It is one of those little governmental ironies that some Republican senators -- notably Jacob J. Javits of New York -- were trying to persuade Allen not to resign at about the same time that President Nixon and his White House assistants were deciding to hand Allen his walking papers.

In the end, the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee approved a formal resolution commending Allen on his "outstanding service" as the country's top educator. That is an unusual accolade for a departing, second echelon official.

"POLITICAL CONSIDERATIONS" -- Allen's enforced resignation has been generally attributed to his comments questioning the "rationale" of moving into Cambodia as a way of getting out of Vietnam. He also defended some administration officials by taking a hard line on what he called "the educational value of integration."

At the present time however, virtually all major educational policy decisions and statements are being made at other governmental levels with only perfunctory recognition of the existence or the role of the Office of Education," Gallagher says.

Various administrative spokesmen, from the White House down, seem willing to make education and education the scapegoat for a multitude of social problems not of their making, but at the same time are not willing to provide the high priority and necessary resources to get needed educational tasks accomplished," he declares.

"The credibility of the federal government is under serious and justified attack because of its failure to follow through on programs, once they have begun," adds Gallagher, asserting that odds now appear to be against realistic long range planning at the federal level.

Your Horoscope JEANE DIXON

SATURDAY, JUNE 27

Your birthday Saturday: Whatever your personal goals, the tide of this year's changing circumstances is likely to place you in a better position than you had planned. Your main energy through all this must be within yourself, as it is primarily an inner transformation, despite the probable external changes. Saturday's natives usually must overcome a strong desire for possession for its own sake.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You have a choice: a weekend of needless turmoil or one of active, noisy but productive adventure with associates. Your tact tips the balance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Details escape notice, and you can expect to pick up the pieces later, when it's least convenient. Any delay might be very worthwhile.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20):

Designer Says Women's Equality Starts In Office

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI)—The uprising of women seeking equal job rights gets the full support of one man, especially so far as equality of their office decor and space are concerned.

Ernest Jackson knows well the status of women in business. He should. He designs the buildings and the offices in which they spend their working days.

"There definitely is a women's revolution coming about," said Jackson in an interview. "I even feel it at home. My wife is suddenly giving me a lot of static. In fact, she wants to know how come I know so much about the entire subject (of the Women's Liberation Movement)."

Jackson consults with the women whose firm serves them. He is chairman of the board of a 13-year-old architectural services business which grossed $1.5 million last year.

Jackson feels that the female office worker uses her office more than her male counterpart and should be consulted on its decoration.

There is nothing so sensible as minding your own business today. Social activities are lively, exciting, and probably quite expensive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Don't allow difficulties over money disturb your serenity. Some delay in your tasks is almost certain, so prepare to be patient. The evening's entertainment is apt to be beyond your usual preferences.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Smooth out any existing differences, particularly new disagreements. For once try being a peacemaker first, before promoting your own interests.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): If you must get emotional today, take it out within your personal relationships rather than complicate your career or vocational situation. The evening can be refreshing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Expect nobody to agree with any request today. By listening instead of proclaiming you can achieve more. Pastimes arouse your enthusiasm—just don't overdo.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may have to cope with opposition from overly vehement people. Your best course is moderation; avoid harshness and direct contradiction.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your eagerness Saturday brings you to an expansive pitch. You may be tempted to overspend, overdo social activities. Save some of your resources.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Spend some time in your home at hours you are not usually there. Just for the novelty, turn your schedule around and see what can be learned.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): This weekend is unfavorable for travel or entertaining. Your expenses are up. Seek free time for a new field of interest, an intellectual vacation.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't bring any recent stress forward to spoil the present moment and your chance of doing something wonderful. With inner serenity this can be a very good day.

The girls' knits were designed by Gianni Ferri; the men's knits by Normano.

For Greater Comfort, Designers Create Knitted Fabrics For Men

NEW YORK (NEA)—"He" used to be the one to wear the pants in the family. But now that "she" also wears them, and very matter-of-factly, "he" has taken a cue from her good taste and likes the looks of knitted pants.

Men have worn rigid woven pants for years and never questioned them or even thought there might be a more comfortable way to dress. Ignorance was not bliss in this case because now they know a whole new freedom of movement made possible by knits.

Actually, some of the male contingent have been buying knit pants, many styled like jeans, in offbeat boutiques for some time. But it is only within the last few years that men's pants are available from manufacturers who are well-entrenched in the ladies' knit market and have mastered the mechanics of knitted clothes.

His knits should not look like hers or vice versa. But men should have all the advantages of dressing in knits that women enjoy so much. In fact, the time should soon come when men's business suits will be in knitted fabrics.

Years ago knitted sport shirts were a novelty, yet now nearly every man owns several.

More inroads will probably be made in knitted everyday business or dress shirts just as soon as laundering ceases to present problems. It should not be long before this happens.

With knits the basis of dressing, the gap between the double standard closes more tightly, but the manufacturers' rule of thumb is to keep the men looking like men and the ladies looking like ladies. The chief thing they will have in common is the comfort of wearing clothes that will give them freedom to move with ease.

The need to turn a mattress more frequently to overcome hollow spots and lumps is a serious sign of mattress age and wear.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This is the third time I've written to you about my problem. I tore the other letters up, but I am determined to mail this one.

A while ago, I overheard my clergyman talking to a young woman who is a member of his congregation. (She is married and has three children, too.) He told her it was all over between them, and that if his wife hadn't been in the hospital it never would have happened. He said they should go on as though nothing had happened.

I was so shocked, I could hardly believe my ears. This minister has done so much for the community and is so loved and respected by all who know him. He also has a lovely wife and family.

I told my husband about it, and he said we all make mistakes and I should keep quiet because if this ever got out it would hurt the church.

Now I can't even look at that worthless man without thinking what a hypocrite he is to preach about "honor and fidelity." I would like to be able to forgive and forget, but I just can't do it. I have lost all faith in him. Can you advise me?

DISILLUSIONED: I think your husband has the right attitude. Clergymen are not saints. They are men with all the human frailties that men are heir to. One swallow doesn't make a summer. And one flaw doesn't make a man worthless. You CAN forgive if you sincerely want to, which you seem unwilling to do. And THAT'S your problem!

DEAR ABBY: This isn't really a "problem," it's a question: When you have overnight guests, and they don't specify that they want to be up at a certain time and no arrangements have been made by either party prior to bed time, is it proper etiquette for the guests to get up before the hosts? This happened recently, and we thought it rather unusual since we more or less took it for granted that they wanted to sleep in since there were no plans for them to leave early. By the time I had gotten up they were already sitting at the kitchen table.

WONDERING: Genuine hospitality is making guests feel as comfortable as possible. (I hope you didn't let your "wonderment" show.) But when no mention is made of what time breakfast will be served, the guests get up whenever they feel like it. Your, did. You shouldn't have expected them to stay undercover until you were up and about.

DEAR ABBY: In answer to DOUBLE IN SPADES who had problems with a man who tried to play "footsies" with her under the bridge table:

I find that whenever a pass is made under the table or over the table, the best way of handling it is to openly make a remark about it as though it were an accident, such as, "O, excuse me, did I kick your foot—or bump your knee?" Then move your leg. This will let everyone at the table know that you are not a footsie player.

This also works with men who try to get overly affectionate. I say so everyone can hear, "Hey, are you making a play for me? You MUST be kidding." Sure cools them off fast. BEEN THERE AND IT WORKS

CONFIDENTIAL TO NANCY: If your "steady" objects to your writing to a male pen pal in South America, quit the pen pal and tell him why. (A bird in the hand is worth two in the mailbox.)

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69706, Los Angeles, Cal. 90068. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hinson Takes 1-Stroke Command With 5-Under Total At Cleveland

AURORA, Ohio (UPI)—Young Larry Hinson, who says he is spending a little time thinking while swinging the golf club, fired a first-round, 5-under-par 65 to take a one-stroke lead into the second 18 holes today of the $15,000 Cleveland Open.

Dave Hill tried the same technique on the 6,661-yard Aurora Country Club course Thursday but wasn't as successful. Despite a record-breaking 29 on the front, nine, his 37 over the last half of the course grouped him at 66 with four others for second place.

"That's what comes of thinking out there," Hill moaned later. "I was trying to settle for a bogey. If I'd just taken a five iron and whaled the ball, I'd probably have landed near the green."

Tied with Hill at 66 are leading money winner Lee Trevino, Tommy Aaron, rookie

Bill Brask and Grier Jones, the 1969 PGA tour rookie of the year.

Thirty-two players broke par. The leaders said the good scores came about because of heavy rains before the round, which caused the greens to hold iron shots well.

Billy Maxwell, Bob Menne, and Dick Carmody tied at 67. Among 10 players bunched at 68 were Frank Beard, Bob Charles, Bert Greene, Mason Rudolph and Tim Weiskopf.

Bob Goalby, Tom Shaw, Lee Elder, Bruce Devlin and nine others had 69s. Ray Floyd, Doug Sanders and Charlie Sifford were in the group at 70.

Among the trailers were defending champion Charley Coody (72), Gene Littler (73), Dick Lotz (74) and Orville Moody (78).

Berty Yancey withdrew because of sore rib muscles after nine holes.

U.S. Open winner Tony Jacklin, Billy Casper, Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player did not enter.

Cougar Golfers Hold 5-Stroke NCAA Edge

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—The University of Houston, with more good golfers than it knows what to do with, has taken over first place going into today's third round of the NCAA golf championships here.

The Cougars of coach Dave Williams had a five-stroke lead at the end of the first round and now hold a five-stroke margin over Wake Forest and the University of Georgia, 284 to 289.

Wadkins, were turned in by Don Powers of Arizona State and John Mills of Houston, both with 69s.

Mills, a last minute replacement for Bobby Walzel on Houston's roster, shot an 82 in the opening round.

Lanny Wadkins, Wake Forest's smooth-swinging sophomore from Richmond, Va., moved into the top spot in the battle for individual honors by firing a three-under-par 69 to go with his first round score of 70.

Wadkins holds a two-stroke margin over Tommy Valentine of Georgia and John Mahaffey of Houston and is 3-up on the first round leader, Don Padgett of Indiana, who went to a 75 Thursday after an opening 67.

The day's lowest round was posted by Bernie Averett of North Texas State, who had a 68 to go with a first round 76 and an even 144. The day's other sub-70 rounds, besides

Mets Boost Lead

By FRED DOWN, UPI Sports Writer
 The New York Mets know the Chicago Cubs are down but they're not counting them out of the National League's Eastern Division race yet. That was the consensus in the world champions' clubhouse Thursday after an 8-3 victory completed a five-game sweep of the Cubs and vaulted the Mets into a 1 1/2-game lead in their division.

"They certainly don't look like the same team we played last year or the first series this year," commented Ken Boswell, one of the Mets' 1969 miracle men. "But I think they're beyond the point of choking up. And as soon as their pitching gets back, they'll be hard to beat again. They can still catch us as easily as we caught them."

A certain Mr. Broadway—Joe Namath—hasn't been doing much thinking about his old nemesis, Ben Davidson, and all the other defensive linemen who will soon be charging after him. The Jets' quarterback is too busy making films. He's in Italy now, shooting a Western called "The Last Rebel," and although the picture doesn't show it, he's got saddle sores.

The Mets completed their humiliation of the Cubs when they bombed Ken Holtzman for six runs in the second inning, stole four bases including home and got a sturdy seven-inning pitching performance from Jerry Kosman.

The key hits in the Mets' six-run second inning were doubles by Ron Swoboda and Bud Harrelson and singles by Donn Clendenon, Wayne Garrett and Tommie Agee.

In the American League, it was Baltimore 13 Boston 8, in 14 innings, New York 3 Cleveland 1, Detroit 2 Washington 1, Milwaukee 4 Minnesota 1, and California 7 Chicago 3.

Byron Browne's sacrifice fly drove in the winning run for the Phillies in the 11th inning and completed a performance in which he hit a two-run homer in the second inning and started a double play with a leaping catch in the sixth. Joe Hoerner, who worked one scoreless inning of relief, received credit for his fifth victory against two losses while Claude Raymond suffered the loss. Rusty Staub homered for the Expos.

West Will Seek 3rd Straight Win Saturday

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—The East will call upon the passing of underrated Gordon Slade and the devastating running ability of Jim Otis Saturday to try to stop the West from taking an unprecedented third straight victory in the 10th annual Coaches All America game.

West Coach Dan Devine of Missouri said he would not name a starting quarterback before game time. He is expected to lean toward Shaw over his own McMillan. He said both men would be alternated continuously.

Possibly the largest crowd in the history of the game will be on hand to watch Slade, the fourth leading passer in the NCAA last year, and Otis, the All-American from Ohio State, square off against the passing attack of the West at 9:30 p.m. EDT. The game will be televised nationally in color.

West Texas State's Duane Thomas at running back, Missouri's Ron McBride at fullback and Arizona's Ron Gardin at flanker get the other backfield starting roles.

The West, which leads the series, 5-4, is expected to base its attack on the strong passing of San Diego State's Dennis Shaw and Missouri's Terry McMillan. Shaw will probably start.

Charles McClendon, the coach of the East team which hasn't won since 1967, will start Slade of Davidson at quarterback, Otis at running back, LSU's Eddie Ray at fullback and Indiana's John Isenbarger at flanker.

Laver moved closer to his goal of three consecutive Wimbledon crowns with a 6-2, 3-6, 6-0, 6-3 victory over Frew McMillan of South Africa.

Mike Hillman of LSU will share signal calling duties with

6 Yank Netters Win Wimbledon Matches

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI)—The 84th All-England lawn tennis championships went into their fifth day Friday dominated as usual by Americans and the Australians but without the drama of past years.

Laver had an easy passage Thursday, as did the other surviving men and women seeds who saw action, except Taylor, who had a tough set while defeating Charles Pasarell of Santurce, P.R., 6-6, 17-15, 6-4.

Top-seed Rod Laver of Australia, the defending titleholder, leads five seeded compatriots and six Americans, including four seeds, into the fourth round in the men's singles battle.

In the women's singles, joint title favorites Billie Jean King of Berkeley, Calif., and Margaret Court of Australia spearheaded eight other Americans and three other Australians into the last 32 survivors.

The only surviving seeds of other nationalities are Andres Gimeno of Spain, Ilya Nastase of Romania, Britain's Roger Taylor and Virginia Wade, and Helga Niessen of West Germany.

Thursday's only surprises, but not big ones, came when Tom Gorman of Seattle ousted 12th-ranked Cliff Drysdale of South Africa in straight sets, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2, and Bob Carmichael of Australia disposed of sixth-seeded Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia.

PRO: Frank Beard On The Golf Tour Inside Stuff

(Eight of 12 Pieces) By FRANK BEARD
 Some of the pros, have regular caddies they use most of the time, but I don't. I prefer to use a local boy, especially a high school or college student, if he's available. I like to stay away from the traveling caddies, the few dozen who follow the tour, moving from tournament to tournament the same way the golfers do.

Of course, some of them are good, hard workers, but I feel they're the exceptions. I just don't want to get involved with the touring caddies. It's not that they're bad caddies. They're good. But they think they're too good. They want too much money.

They want to get paid at a minimum what they call "10-and-three." That's $10 a day and three per cent of your winnings. Last year I averaged about $3,000 a tournament in prize money.

In a normal tournament, you'll use a caddy for six days. Tuesday through Sunday, and that means he wants $150 for working about 30 hours. That also means if you win a tournament and collect an average first prize of $25,000, the caddy expects $810, more than $25 an hour. It's not worth it to me. It's the easiest possible work.

I don't expect the caddy to tell me what club to hit; if I don't know my own game better than he does, I ought to be in a different business. I don't expect him to read the greens for me; I trust myself first. Once in a great while, you find a caddy who really helps you, but the majority are just bag-toters. The better ones carry your bag and clean your clubs after each shot and clean your balls on the green and obey the rules, and that's all. I don't want to pay as much as $25 an hour for that.

Whenever I use a touring agreement with him in advance; I pay him what I think he's worth. The touring caddies know the way I figure; they know I don't pay well by their standards, so generally they stay away from me. I stay away from them, and we're both happy.

Flat golf courses in the desert are much more difficult to gauge by the eye than hilly courses. When you have hills, you get some depth perception. In the desert, you can't trust your visual judgment; you've got to walk off every yard.

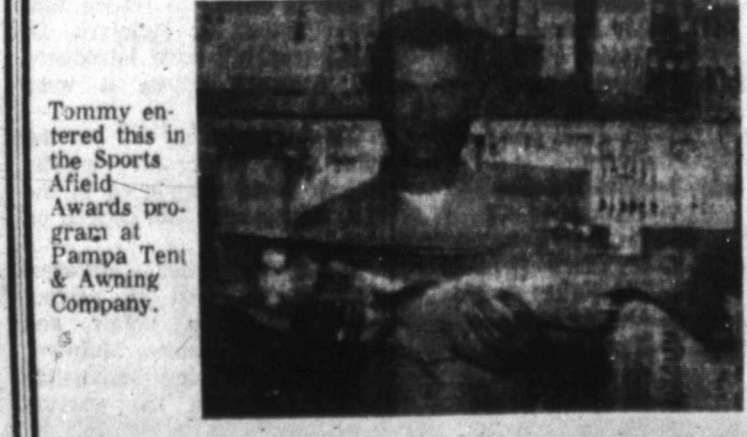

Golf is an art, and in miserable weather, you can't execute your art properly. People pay money to watch you, and you can't perform any better than they would in this kind of weather. You are all bundled up. You can't swing freely. Your footing's unsure, and your grip's treacherous, and you feel as though you're going to fall down or let a club go flying any moment. Half the time, you're trying to punch the ball into the wind, keep it low, you're improvising. You're not doing what you do best. Your swing gets all fouled up. It takes me about a week after I escape from bad weather to get my swing back into its groove.

Some players seem to thrive in bad weather. Doug Ford was always a great bad-weather player, and he has given me a few lessons on playing in rain and wind. Little tips like not to overswing and to take a little more club on each shot. But nothing seems to help me enough in this kind of weather. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Several major programs with highly patriotic overtones have been announced by the television networks, ranging from coverage of "Honor America Day" ceremonies July 4 to a musical about George M. Cohan.

NBC-TV will offer separate day and night specials this July 4 for "Honor America Day." In the morning, along with ABC-TV and CBS-TV, it will present a lengthy live report of religious and patriotic ceremonies at the Lincoln Memorial. Starting time is 11 a.m. EDT.

This special program, expected to last an hour or more, will include such participating personalities as evangelist Billy Graham and singer Kate Smith, who has been famous over the years for her rendition of "God Bless America."

According to ABC-TV, the daytime national memorial service is expected to include "an opening salute, rendition of the National Anthem, prayer and scripture reading, soloists and choirs performing traditional American songs, patriotic readings and addresses, a benediction and a final 50-gun salute."

On the night of July 4, meanwhile, NBC-TV, in the 90-minute slot usually reserved for the "Tonight Show," will present an "entertainment" program taped earlier in the evening at the Washington Monument. Bob Hope will be master of ceremonies.

According to NBC-TV, "Fred Waring and the Pennsylvanians will provide the music in the nighttime program. Activities will include performances by various entertainment personalities and a fireworks display."

Hope and Graham are co-chairmen for the nationwide ceremonies of the day. Honorary chairmen for "Honor America Day" are Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, widow of the late president; and former Presidents Harry S. Truman and Lyndon B. Johnson.

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—"Darling Lili" is a festival motion picture with music, dancing, World War I aerial combat, romance, comedy, a chase and surpassingly beautiful photography.

Most of all it is Julie Andrews at her best. After her disastrous failure in "Star!" Julie plays back to her roles in "Mary Poppins," "The Sound of Music" and "Thoroughly Modern Millie."

She is captivating as a not-to-serious spy for Kaiser Bill. Julie sings, laughs, weeps, makes love, and gives full scope to all her talents.

The English-born beauty has regained her place as America's movie sweetheart. She acts as if she is having the time of her life. It's infectious.

Husband Adds Dimension
 Doubtless the fact that her husband, Blake Edwards, directed the film, provided an added dimension to the array of Julie's talent.

There are no nude scenes. Clinical sex exposition has been by-passed. Nor is anyone freaked out on pot, acid or speed.

Hollywood's top musical talents pooled their expertise with Henry Mancini writing the music and Johnny Mercer the lyrics. Hermes Pan staged the musical numbers.

Julie Sings Delightfully
 It's a delight to hear Julie sing "It's a Long Way to Tipperary," "Pack Up Your Troubles," "Keep the Home Fires Burning" and "Madelmoise from Armentiers."

Director Edwards has masterfully provided some of the most stunning aerial photography ever lensed. Many of the old crates in the picture were built specifically for the film.

With Rock Hudson as a dashing airman and Jeremy Kemp as a spy master, "Darling Lili" rolls along with humor, gaiety and a romantic story that doesn't pretend to tell it as it is.

PARIS (UPI)—North Vietnam said today that, despite President Nixon's public optimism, the United States has suffered major defeats during the past months in South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

The charge by the North Vietnamese chief delegate to the stalemated Paris peace talks came at the 72nd session, dominated by charges about the Indochinese fighting and no discussion about peace terms for Vietnam.

The chief U.S. negotiator, Philip C. Habib, again pleaded for "serious negotiations."

"Once again," he said, "we reject your charge of aggression by the United States. We do not accept your demands that the United States simply agree to withdraw and abandon the government of South Vietnam as a precondition to negotiation of the issues in concrete and specific fashion. To repeat those demands is not conducive to genuine negotiation."

The South Vietnamese delegate, Pham Dang Lam, introduced a new angle to the trading of accusations when he said North "solidarity" of all rebels in Indochina was the same as Moscow's "limited sovereignty" policy used to justify the invasion of Czechoslovakia or any other Communist nation.

The North Vietnamese delegate, Nguyen Minh Vy, said that President Nixon's speech of April 20 was "a distorted picture full of imaginary victories for U.S. and puppet troops... painted to deceive the American people and world public opinion."

them to speak up..."

One Aspect of Criticism
 Speaking of one aspect of the criticism of television, Goodman said:

"In a period of rapid social change, most issues and developments become controversial. Public opinion divides sharply. Very few people like everything that is happening in the world. Some don't like anything. Most of what they like or dislike is learned from television. And they react accordingly."

But, he added:

"When the average NBC nighttime network program attracts one American in nine, and you multiply the networks by three, this hardly represents public rejection. When in the course of an average week, television attracts more than 106 million adults 18 years and older, it must command some support."

Hollywood Reports

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The president of the National Broadcasting Co. says "television has its own silent majority"—and that he'd like to hear it speak up in defense of the medium.

"The public which supports television with its viewing should now support it with its voice," says the network chief, Julian Goodman, adding:

"The millions of viewers who enjoy television and rely on it should be clear in their support, just as the much smaller number of detractors are loud in their attacks."

Goodman made his remarks in an address this week to the Rocky Mountain Association of Broadcasters, at Jackson Hole, Wyo.

More Favor Than Oppose
 "There are many more constituents who favor television than there are those who oppose it," he said.

"I think it's time television's silent majority became vocal."

Goodman said video welcomes constructive criticism. But, elaborating on his theme, he said "the great body of the population... gets its information and entertainment in the versatility and freedom of American broadcasting."

"This majority seldom registers its view. It has no official spokesman. It uses no rhetoric. It commands little public notice. Yet its stake in the future of a vigorous and healthy commercial broadcasting service is enormous."

Goodman encouraged broadcasters to tell "our constituents... what the issues are, alerting our viewers to what they stand to lose, encouraging them to speak up..."

To Believe In What's Left

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Once when I was a mere lad my wise old father drew me upon his knee, patted my tousled head and spoke unto me thusly:

"Son, as you slog along through the quicksands of life you will oftentimes be disillusioned. But remember there are three things you can always believe in."

The eternal trio that he then set forth as worthy of my credence consisted of:

—The solvency of the railroads.

—The reliability of political polls particularly as they pertain to British elections.

—The honesty and forthrightness of used car warranties.

Might Be Misled
 Until recently I never crossed my mind that I would ever have occasion to question my wise old father's admonition. But now I must sadly conclude that he might have misled me on one of those points.

For there currently is pending in the U.S. Senate a bill to set federal standards of clarity and accuracy for product warranties including, I assume, used cars.

And it stands to reason that Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., wouldn't have introduced the measure unless it were needed.

(As I was telling my son the other day, unnecessary legislation is never introduced in the U.S. Senate—you can depend on that.)

I am concerned, however, that in his zeal to protect consumers from unfair and ambiguous warranties McIntyre may be imposing impossible requirements on the warrantors.

Washington Report

BOB PRICE NEWSPAPER EDITOR, WASHINGTON, D.C. - SENATOR

Last week the House acted on two major issues: the 18 year old vote, and postal reform. This week's newsletter is devoted to a discussion of these two vital matters.

VOTING RIGHTS LEGISLATION

Despite the fact that I personally feel the voting age should be lowered, I voted against the House proposal for two major reasons. First, the overwhelming majority of others in the 18th District who have expressed an opinion on the subject oppose reducing the age limit. I base this conclusion on the letters, telegrams, phone calls, and personal conversations. I have had on the subject. These have generally tended to confirm the results of the voter opinion poll I conducted last summer. Second, I agree with President Nixon that any change in the voting age should be made by constitutional amendment and not mere statute. However, since Congress has made the change by statute, the constitutionality of its action is questionable and for this reason the legality of the 18 year old vote will have to be tested in the courts.

Our government is founded on laws not men. Consequently, since the U.S. Constitution provides that states rather than the federal government have the primary authority to establish voting age limitations, I believe the Constitution is the final word on the matter. Moreover, to the extent the federal government ignores the Constitution and acts as the mood moves it, to that extent the sovereign rights of the fifty states are diminished. We have seen far too much erosion of states rights in recent years, the 91st Congress should not contribute further to this unfortunate trend toward centralized government.

The reasons why I voted against the proposal to lower the voting age, however, do not affect my personal evaluation of the concept itself. I believe persons old enough to fight for our country are old enough to vote. Throughout this century, young men have borne the brunt of our national defense. In Vietnam, this point has been driven home with stark clarity. With the aid of modern computers, casualties of war have been broken down, in age groupings. According to the Department of Defense, 38,864 American soldiers were killed in action as of last September. In the 18 to 30 age group, the fatalities broke down as follows: 18-23: 19,423; 20-10: 139; 21-6: 449; 22-3: 215; 23-2: 359; 24-1: 762; 5-1: 309; 25-869; 27-526; 28-428; 29-400; 30-317.

This means that of all the Americans killed in Vietnam as of the beginning of the 1969-70 school year, over 65 percent were between the ages of 18 and 21.

As of June 4, 1970, 42,534 Americans were killed in action, and 280,782 were wounded. It is safe to say that well over half of the individuals who made these sacrifices were too young to vote under present laws. They were not too young to fight, to die, to spend the rest of their lives crippled or lying in a Veterans' home, but they were too young to vote. I believe this condition should be rectified.

I also believe that due to rising levels of education, youths of today are better qualified to vote than the youth of past generations. We all are well aware of instances of lawless behavior by some young people, particularly on college campuses, but we must not let the media blind us to our young. Over half of all 18 to 20 year olds are not in college at all, instead they work and pay taxes—about 1 million serve in the armed forces, and more than 1 million are housewives. A presidential commission has reported that less than 2 percent of all college students can be classified as militants or radicals. The Justice Department has determined that many so-called "hard core campus radicals" are over 21; for example, all of the infamous Chicago 7 are well over 21.

In the main, the youth of today are responsible citizens who yearn to fully take part in the political processes that govern our country. I believe they are entitled to participate. I believe they should participate. But I do not believe the spirit of the Constitution should have been distorted to provide them this privilege.

This legislation also contained provisions extending the 1965 Voting Rights Act. In the first session of this Congress I voted for the Administration's National Voting Rights Act which would have given voting rights protections to residents of the fifty states rather than focusing federal regulation unfairly on our sister Southern States as does the 1965 Act.

POSTAL REFORM
The United States Post Office stands in sore need of reform. Postal operations run at an annual deficit of well over $1 billion. Most postal equipment is 30 to 100 years old. Last year the Post Office handled about 82 billion pieces of mail. In another 10 years the figure will reach almost 110 billion pieces. Unless something drastic is done now, just imagine what the operating deficit will be in coming years.

For the past 14 months the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee has been laboring over postal reform. The product of their deliberations was the Postal Reorganization and Salary Adjustment Act of 1970. The Act will provide many meaningful and economic reforms in our national postal system. The Act converts the Post Office Department into an independent establishment in the Executive Branch of Government. It frees the Department from political pressures. Finally, and most importantly, it provides the means by which a truly superior mail service can be developed on a business-like basis.

My main reservation about the legislation centered on my strong opposition to a provision which would have legalized the union shop in the Post Office Department. As badly as Post Office reform is needed, I would have voted against the reform package had the final version contained the union shop clause.

TORONTO — Chicago Seven defense lawyer William M. Kunstler, continuing his speech to 1,000 persons after he was beaten on stage: "What happened now is nothing new. It happened in Germany just a short while ago."

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—When Godfrey Cambridge, the well-known actor-comedian, was getting started in show business, he lived in sort of a fool's paradise.

He simply would walk out on the stage and improvise funny monologues.

The audiences loved it, and pretty soon Cambridge was successful enough to need a manager.

After watching his act a couple of times, his manager called Cambridge aside and told him it was extremely difficult for a comedian simply to walk out on the stage and improvise funny monologues.

Upon learning that what he had been doing was extremely difficult, Cambridge was unable to do it any more. Thereafter, he always wrote down, memorized and carefully rehearsed his material before he went on stage.

Cambridge Was in Town
Cambridge told me about this the other day when he was in town for the local premiere of his new movie "Cotton Comes to Harlem."

I can now empathize with him to a degree because I have had a similar experience.

As it happened, I interviewed Cambridge with a couple of other columnists. At the time, I felt certain it would provide some column material. But after the interview was over, one of the other columnists and I fell into a conversation and he began to tell me how hard it was to find column material.

Frankly, it had never before occurred to me that finding material might be difficult. But after this other columnist pointed out the difficulty, I began to realize that he was right.
