A good neighbor and a real hero

Who said there are no more heroes? I know from first-hand experience that statement is pure fiction.

Monday night, I was babysitting with my two-year-old son while my wife was attending classes at Clarendon College. My son was playing with his toys in another part of the house while I was in the living room. When I went to check on him I found him lying semi-conscious on the floor with his mouth open apparently trying to get his breath.

Believing he had swallowed a piece off one of his toys, I frantically tried to revive him. For perhaps three seconds he started breathing, but then slipped back toward unconsciousness. I had been an Army medic, but that was over 15 years ago and I had forgotten a lot of my training.

Almost 30 seconds had gone by and I was becoming panic-stricken. Then I remembered my neighbor, who I felt certain had been trained in life-saving techniques because of his job. So, with my son in my arms, I ran next door...praying all the time that he would be home.

My prayers were answered. My neighbor took my son in his arms, and coolly, efficiently, began working on him. After calling the emergency number, I seemed to have lost all track of time by then. It seemed like an eternity, but it may have been just seconds, before my son started breathing again.

While being rushed to the hospital in a police car, my son was still in the good care of my neighbor's arms, making sure he was still breathing.

After further treatment at the hospital, my son is alive and well now. Apparently, he had belched up a piece of undigested bologna and it had lodged in his throat.

How do you say thanks to someone who saves your son's life? Mere words seem so inadequate. My wife, Lois, and I will never forget this good neighbor and his quick actions.

And when my son, Shawn, is old enough to understand I'll tell him about the time Pampa Police Chief J.J. Ryzman saved his life.

Questions about crime statistics

This letter concerns the recent Pampa crime statistics.

About the time the open container ordinance went into effect is when public intoxication statistics went up. In more than one case, people have been arrested for open containers, then the police report states public intoxication.

Although this has not happened to me, I understood this ordinance was not supposed to be used as a means of harassment. How many people do you know of arrested for open containers? Police reports state public intoxication, nothing about open containers. How can these statistics be right?

Also, I would like to comment on the mileage patrolled on Pampa streets by the police department.

I have seen a number of times police officers off duty and casually dressed with their family at the Pampa Mall, grocery store and other places. It was also about this time when they (the officers) were allowed to drive patrol cars home instead of using personal transportation to and from work.

Who's to say whether these miles were carefully recorded or joy riding? Could this be why there are over 30,000 more miles indicated in their reports?

Tax proposal would cut contributions

To the editor:

The Treasury Department has recently proposed dramatic tax reform which would close many loopholes. Much of this plan makes sense. Unfortunately, the Treasury Department's proposal contains several provisions which would seriously diminish tax incentives for giving to charity. This is a move in the wrong direction. Here is why.

The Treasury Department proposes, for all practical purposes, the elimination of any tax incentive for charitable giving for the great majority of Americans - those low and middle-income people who use the 1040 or short form.

Since United Way and many other charitable organizations rely heavily on contributions from the average American, they have cried out against elimination of deductions for charitable contributions. According to United Way officials the Treasury Department's proposal would result in immediate and lasting damage to charitable programs serving America's needy.

Predictions are that contributions to United Ways and the 37,000 local charities they support will drop 20 percent, or more than $306 million. That would mean less, not more money available for programs such as day care centers, nutrition programs for our senior citizens and work programs for the mentally retarded.

Here in Pampa a 20 percent drop in giving would take us back to the 1981 level in current dollars and would impair United Way's ability to keep up with inflation rates and generate new funds for emerging needs.

As the federal government cuts back on social welfare programs there is a need to increase, not diminish, the ability of private charities to raise money to continue providing basic human care services.

Since the total loss to charities across the nation could be over $10 billion, the idea of eliminating the charitable deduction from the 1040 short form is an idea to be seriously reconsidered.

Far from being a tax loophole, gifts to charity benefit others in the community and should be encouraged as part of public policy.

Abortion vigils under way

By CYNTHIA GREEN
Associated Press Writer

Abortion rights supporters stood watch at clinics across the nation this weekend, lighting candles and forming human chains to protest increasing violence, while opponents organized parades and rallies to mark the 12th anniversary of the U.S. Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion.

The round-the-clock vigils sponsored by the National Organization for Women at 25 family planning centers and abortion clinics in 18 states were intended to counter anti-abortion protests that will culminate Tuesday, the anniversary of the Supreme Court's landmark 1973 ruling, with the 12th March for Life in Washington, D.C.

Demonstrations on both sides of the issue were scheduled just hours apart in some cities, and police and clinics were on the alert for potential clashes although no incidents had been reported Saturday. In Birmingham, Ala., for example, a three-mile march and rally by anti-abortion activists Saturday afternoon was to be followed three hours later by a pro-choice rally.

In Philadelphia, more than 250 supporters and opponents lined up outside the Planned Parenthood clinic Saturday and shouted slogans at each other from opposite sides of the street.

Floodlights and about 70 homemade candles illuminated the Women's Health Organization in Fargo, N.D., Friday night as pro-choice activists began a 60-hour vigil, playing board games and watching movies to pass the time. About 15 participants came to the clinic Saturday despite a biting wind that made overnight temperatures feel like 85 below zero.

Home education challenged

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The right of two fundamentalist Christian parents to educate their son at home through correspondence courses is being challenged by the El Paso Independent School District.

Richard and Kay Wells are appealing a 1984 ruling in which they were fined $200 each plus court costs for refusing to enroll their son Frank, now 14, in school.

Their case was argued in El Paso on Friday before a three-judge panel of a state appeals court. No ruling was handed down.

Lawyers for both sides said it was the first time that a challenge to the state's compulsory school attendance laws ever reached an appeals court in Texas.

At issue is whether the home correspondence course, provided by the American Christian Academy of Colleyville, Texas, fits within the state's definition of a school.

The state compulsory attendance law generally requires children between the ages of 7 and 17 to attend a public, private or parochial school. The statute does not further define what a school is.

Lawyers for the couple say that it does. If it does not, their attorneys contend, then the legal definition of a school is unconstitutionally vague and infringes on a family's religious practices.

The El Paso school district and lawyers for the state argue that the American Christian Academy program is not properly a school, that it provides no teachers or supervision, and deprives the child of the "socialization" process that comes from associating with other students and teachers.

The state's lawyers also argue that the religious question has already been settled by a landmark 1972 U.S. Supreme Court ruling dealing with an Amish community's right to educate their children outside the secular world.

The 3-year-old American Christian Academy, which claims more than 3,000 students and 700 home school pupils, provided the El Paso couple with a Bible-based yearly curriculum, to be supervised by the parents and to be graded by the school through monthly mail-in tests.

According to testimony in the 1984 trial, Wells, a Southern Pacific Railroad employee, and his family moved to El Paso from Oregon in June 1983.

Three months later, the El Paso Independent School District received an anonymous tip that Wells and his wife were not sending their son, then 12, to school.

Wells testified that he felt public schools were "inferior" to to the home program in morals and integrity.

He said public education "taught nothing, no respect, no authority, no patriotism," and was degrading and humanistic. He also objected to compulsory Spanish courses, because "this country was based on English."

After the couple did not comply with two notices to enroll their son in a school, the school district filed criminal charges. Violation of the compulsory attendance law is a class C misdemeanor, punishable by fines of up to $100 for each day the child is kept out of school.

Justice of the Peace Walter McGhee found Wells and his wife guilty and fined them each $200. The case was appealed to county court-at-law, where, after a one-day trial, Judge Herb Cooper upheld the fine.

Tobacco imports are blamed for U.S. problems, decline

By JIM DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Tobacco imports, which U.S. growers contend are threatening their livelihood, actually declined by 23 percent during the first 11 months of last year, the Agriculture Department says. While imports of unmanufactured tobacco totaled $54 million during November, about the same as levels of a year ago, the cumulative figure for the year was $523 million, down by nearly one-fourth from 1983, the department said in a report issued Thursday. Oriental tobacco was the largest import category, at 72,000 tons for the 11-month period out of a total import figure of nearly 177,000 tons. Meanwhile, U.S. tobacco exports were strong in November, growing 11 percent over year-earlier figures to 44,000 tons valued at $267 million. That placed the cumulative 1984 export total at $1.3 billion, about the same as for 1983.

Congress that tobacco imports are driving American leaf farmers out of business. They asked the ITC to impose import quotas or tariffs on the foreign crop, a move opponents said would trigger trade retaliation and would be unwarranted because any problem is due to unduly high U.S. tobacco price supports.

The leading markets for U.S. leaf were Japan, West Germany and Spain. Cigarette exports for the January-November period were $2.1 billion pieces worth $1.03 billion, down 6 percent in volume but up 1 percent in value from 1983. Leading markets were Belgium, Luxembourg, Hong Kong, Saudi Arabia and Japan.

Agricultural use of windbreaks increasing

Despite rumors regarding the demise of windbreaks, the fact is that the miles of trees and shrubs along the fields and around the farmsteads increase each year, and with good reason, according to the Gray County Soil and Water Conservation Service.

can reduce annual heating and cooling costs by as much as 30 percent or more. A well-designed windbreak creates privacy and adds beauty to a farmstead. It can also reduce noise, livestock odors and wind damage to farm buildings, McDonald said.

provide maximum benefit, any windbreak must be carefully designed for a specific location and purpose. The Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District is taking orders for windbreak trees. For more information, contact McDonald at the Gray County SWCD office at 665-1751.

Earlier this month, the U.S. International Trade Commission heard testimony from tobacco-state members of service clubs and agricultural groups. The title of the show is "The First Fifty Years."

Of U.S. exports, the largest category was flue-cured tobacco. That accounted for 63 percent of the cumulative 1983 export figure and showed a 10 percent increase in volume over 1983. Burley tobacco made up about 15 percent of the total, a decline of 22 percent from the previous year.

The cancellation, which is equivalent to about 3.7 million bushels, reduced total Soviet purchases of U.S. grain under the second year of a long-term grain sales agreement to about 14.35 million tons.

True, many older windbreaks have succumbed to disease, insects and general neglect. Others have fallen before chain saws and bulldozers to provide more tillable land on farms hard-pressed to meet high mortgage payments.

Drip irrigation systems now make it possible to establish windbreaks even in extremely hot, dry areas.

Windbreaks can save a great deal of moisture in both irrigated and dryland fields, he noted. By plowing wind movement, trees reduce water losses from evaporation and plant transpiration. Sprinkler efficiency is increased because less water evaporates before it reaches the ground.

McDonald said that in order to

But during the tough economic times of late, new windbreak plantings have more than offset removals.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has canceled the purchase of 100,000 metric tons of U.S. hard red winter wheat that had been bought for delivery through May 30, the Agriculture Department announced.

Farmstead windbreaks are attracting more interest than field windbreaks, according to James L. McDonald, district conservationist, largely for their potential for saving energy. Studies have shown, he said, that a strategically placed windbreak

Along with their many benefits to farmers, windbreaks provide protection, nesting and food for wildlife.

As a general rule, our rangeland survived the recent droughts in better condition than area downstate. However, we do have rangeland sites that have lost a lot if not all of their old native stand of grass.

rangeland, however, the ideal seedbed is a goal seldom attained because of expense and expected return. So, prepare the best seedbed that available resources will allow.

participate in the regional seminars.

"THEY GLADLY RECEIVED HIS WORD"

God's Word is very clear regarding the conditions of salvation. However, these conditions are not compatible with man's sinful way of life. Therefore, if man is to be saved, he must change from a life of sin and conform to God's standard of righteousness.

Where rangeland has had the natural turf basically destroyed, ranchers may want to consider a seeding program in 1985.

The two most common methods of seeding rangeland are broadcast and drill. Broadcasting places seed on the soil surface while drilling puts seed into the soil. Drilling is a superior method of seeding where a drill can be used. However, broadcast seeding by aerial or ground application is often used on rangeland because most drills are not sturdy enough to be used on rough rangeland.

On February 12 for a 1 p.m. starting time, a Agricultural Marketing Seminar will be held at the Courthouse Annex meeting room. This will cover ag options, futures trading and sources of ag marketing information.

The following are 2 1/2 day short courses that will be held at the Stiles Farm:

Then they that gladly received his word were baptized: and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls." (Acts 2:41.)

Range seeding is normally done in the early spring, but now is the time driven seeding plans.

When to seed is important. Start seeding at the beginning of a period that will provide the best growing conditions for the slowly developing seedlings. Warm season plants grow in the summer and will make the best and most vigorous growth if seeded in late winter or early spring. A late summer or fall seeding date for cool season plants may be best because young seedlings may not be able to tolerate hot, dry summers.

On February 18-19, a two-day Estate Planning Seminar will be held. Tentative plans call for this program to be at Tom's Country Inn. This is similar to previous estate seminars and will be conducted by Wayne Hayenga. Farm owners and - operators are missing a most excellent opportunity to learn how to save thousands of tax dollars.

Also seminars on Microcomputer in Farm and Ranch Management will be as follows:

Address all inquiries, questions or comments to:

In every example of conversion recorded in the book of Acts, without exception the same attitude of complete submission to God's will is manifested on the part of those being saved from their past sins. Not only must this attitude prevail in one's becoming a Christian, it must prevail throughout life in order that the Word may have free course with us (James 1:21.)

To begin, evaluate the quantity and distribution of desirable plants currently present. If desirable plants make up less than 10 to 15 percent of the vegetation, seeding is probably necessary. Ranges can be improved by grazing management if desirable plants are uniformly distributed and make up more than 10 to 15 percent of the vegetation.

Species and varieties of plants selected for seeding must be adapted to the site's soil, climate and topography. Also, plants selected should be easily established, palatable to animals, relatively productive, able to withstand invasion by undesirable plants, able to withstand moderate grazing and able to prevent erosion under moderate grazing. Ranchers can give myself or the local Soil Conservation Service office a call for plants adapted to specific areas.

Seeding can rejuvenate poor ranges, but proper planning and use of correct plant material and seeding methods plus good management are essential.

Northern Mexicans: a breed apart

By CAM ROSSIE

Associated Press Writer

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — To the north of them is "Gringolandia," the United States; to the south are the "chilangos," the chili-pepper eaters — their derogatory term for the people who live in the rest of Mexico.

They are the Northern Mexicans, 11 million proud and independent-minded people living in six states spread over an overwhelming emptiness that stretches from the Sierra Madre chains to the dry tableland that spreads out in between to the fishing villages along the Gulf of California in the west and the Gulf of Mexico in the east.

Their homeland was born of the pioneer spirit — as opposed to the Spanish conqueror to the south — and it has produced a breed of its own. Their six states — Tamaulipas, Nuevo Leon, Coahuila, Chihuahua, Sonora and Baja California — are as different from each other as they are as a whole are different from the rest of Mexico.

They are miners and farmers in Coahuila, cattle raisers in Sonora, industrialists and citrus growers in Nuevo Leon, fishermen and tourist-trade workers in Baja California and border merchants and oil shippers in Tamaulipas.

Many of them who cross into Texas, New Mexico, Arizona or California — to visit, to shop or, sometimes surreptitiously, to work — see themselves as going to their own homeland, for the U.S. Southwest was Mexican until the mid-1800s.

And this is how they speak of themselves and outsiders:

—Romeo Flores, education secretary of the northeastern border state of Nuevo Leon: "We have open spaces, not huge populations. The struggle for survival is going to be different here than in the center of Mexico. Here, your personal effort is more important than those old concepts of honor and wealth ... which said you had to be rich and own land to be honorable. The Northerner sees himself as proud, self-sufficient, capable, daring, audacious, and with a special conception of freedom, too."

—Manuel Bejarano, general manager of the Mexicali newspaper Novedades: "The chilango is not well-received here. The people who came here from other parts came with the intention of improving themselves, of surviving the inhospitable conditions. The chilango comes to take advantage of the people."

While national pride runs fierce among Northerners and they identify strongly with Mexico's cultural heritage, an underlying feeling of resentment prevails toward the control the federal government in Mexico City exerts over them and what they view as the easy life their compatriots have in the country's central region.

In the Northerners' view, the bureaucrats in Mexico City make their living off a system that has existed for centuries, while the Northerner moved to a howling wilderness to create new societies by sweat and determination.

Many of those who came to Northern Mexico were part of a migration that came long after those who settled in central Mexico, the Spanish colonial heart.

Northerners, more so than any others in Mexico, have been forced to come to terms with their feelings toward the overpowering influence of the "Other Side," as the United States is often called here.

That need is heightened in the major cities stretching along the 1,760-mile U.S.-Mexico border — Matamoros, Reynosa, Nuevo Laredo, Piedras Negras, Ciudad Juarez, Nogales, Mexicali, Tijuana and even Monterrey, which is about 135 miles south of the border — which face a constant bombardment of the "American way."

"Juarez citizens contemplate the U.S. way of life day by day on television screens, on the radio and in the press, comparing, of course, those ideal conditions of life with what they have in Mexico," writer and politician Heberto Castillo said in an analysis published in the national magazine Proceso.

And, although border residents move freely back and forth to work, shop or visit relatives, they often are offended by what they see as U.S. attitudes of superiority, as cultural encroachment on their societies and what the "dollar economy" has done to their standard of living.

"People at the border have a very intense and daily interaction with Americans and these interactions tend to force a need for identity," said Jorge Bustamante, director of the Tijuana-based Border Studies Center of Northern Mexico.

Areas along the Mexican side of the border have become virtual camping grounds for people waiting for a chance to cross.

"More Mexicans than you can imagine aspire to stop being so in order to become U.S. citizens," Castillo wrote.

Some cities in Northern Mexico began essentially as way stations between Mexico City and settlements farther north in what later became part of the United States. Monterrey, an industrial center that now is Mexico's third-largest city with 2.5 million people, was one of the way stations.

"The nationalism at the border is very well defined," said Rodolfo Pataky, director of the Border Cultural Program set up by President Miguel de la Madrid to help all Mexicans develop their cultures. "The Mexican of the border feels more Mexican than any other because he needs to identify with his roots, his land, his culture in order to maintain a point of difference with those on the Other Side."

"We have our own country, our own culture, our own language and our own education," said Javier Contreras in Chihuahua, the capital of Chihuahua state.

"We see the United States as the most powerful country in the world, as our neighbor and as investment, not influence."

STOP HACKING AROUND

Some cough syrups have an ingredient called "dextromethorphan", which is a cough suppressant that is sometimes effective in stopping a hacking, aggravating cough. However, this ingredient can cause drowsiness and an upset stomach. Another ingredient sometimes found in cough syrups is "guaifenesin". It does not actually stop the cough reflex. It is most useful for congestion in the chest from thick mucus. This is because it breaks up the mucus and allows one to bring it up when coughing. If one has both a hacking cough and congestion, however, choose a medication with both ingredients. In any case, if a cough persists more than three days, consult a doctor.

Financial Focus Budget cuts to affect Navy

Everyone wants to save on taxes, and the purpose of legitimate tax shelters is to provide a reasonably sound investment as well as tax benefits acceptable to the IRS.

Their purpose is not, as some people would have you believe, "to enable you to write off $4 for every $1 you invest or triple your investment in a few years." Obviously, these are exaggerated claims, and, with so many individuals and institutions now offering tax-advantaged investments, it's wise to know what to look for when considering this investment alternative.

First of all, you should read the prospectus. Every public offering must be accompanied by a prospectus, and a copy of this prospectus must be given to you. If the tax-advantaged investment you choose is, for example, a limited partnership, the prospectus tells what the partnership hopes to accomplish and how. It also provides information about the general partner(s) who will manage the limited partnership - his or her financial condition, experience and record of success or failure - plus a host of additional facts. It may not be interesting reading, but it could prove to be some of the most profitable reading you do. And, what you don't understand, investigate.

Secondly, you should know your investment representative. Who does he or she represent, and what is that firm's reputation nationally? Although even an outstanding financial advisor cannot guarantee you investment success, you can be assured one who is reputable has performed the due diligence - since his or her integrity and reputation are at stake, a good financial advisor carefully examines the general partner(s) and the particular project being offered.

You also should know if the offering is registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). An offering registered with the SEC is available nationwide as long as it is "blue skied" or approved for sale in the states which it's offered. Likewise, the representative and the firm offering the partnership must be registered in all states where they sell it. Although an SEC registration doesn't guarantee anything about the offering - this is stated in the prospectus - it does give you some assurance the facts presented in the prospectus are true and the offering has been scrutinized by the SEC.

Finally, you should know if you fit the suitability requirements. Due to the degree of risk in any tax shelter, suitability requirements are established and printed in the prospectus. These requirements vary, but generally a gross annual income limit and - or minimum net worth is specified. Usually the higher the risk, the stricter the suitability requirements.

There are, of course, other questions you should ask before you invest. But, close the careful examination of these considerations should, at least, put you on the right track and save you much of the disappointment of illadvised and hastily entered investing.

WASHINGTON (AP) - A reduction in the Pentagon's fiscal 1986 budget already approved by President Reagan will force the Navy to chop its purchase of F-14 fighters by 25 percent, according to a high-ranking official.

Instead of proceeding with a plan to acquire 24 of the front-line jets during the year starting next Oct. 1, Navy Secretary John Lehman and Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger have decided to submit a budget that calls for the purchase of 18 of the aircraft, even though the change will ultimately prove more expensive, said the source.

The cut, to be formally unveiled when the president's budget is submitted to Congress on Feb. 4, will save about "one-third of a billion dollars in fiscal 1986, but it will drive up the unit cost by $3 million per plane and in the long term, end up costing more for the taxpayer," said the source, who agreed to discuss the matter only if not identified.

The source, who has participated in the Pentagon's budget deliberations, declined to discuss what cutbacks were being made by the Army and Air Force to fulfill a commitment by Weinberger to reduce the department's overall 1986 spending plan by $8.7 billion.

Indeed, the source made it clear he was discussing the planned cutback on purchases of the F-14 only because "it's the best example of harm to the progress we've been making" in controlling weapons cost.

He did say, however, the Navy is also planning to change its acquisition plans for the C-12 - a small, twin-engine cargo plane. He did not elaborate.

Last month, Weinberger announced that President Reagan had approved a fiscal 1986 budget that would allow actual spending, or outlays, of $277.5 billion. To reach that figure, Weinberger added, he had agreed to slash $8.7 billion from his original spending plan, including $2.5 billion in unspecified "program reductions."

Both the White House and Pentagon have come under a drumbeat of criticism from Congress ever since.

Ever since his Dec. 18 announcement, Weinberger and other Pentagon officials have steadfastly refused to discuss how they were dividing the $2.5 billion worth of cuts already promised the president between the various services or what programs would be affected. The disclosure about the F-14's broke that silence.

Economic crisis cripples Monterrey

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) - Carried on the wave of Mexico's boom years in the late 1970s, private industries here grew at breakneck speed, launching into new financial ventures and raking in the profits.

It was a great time to be in business, especially in this northern city where industry had turned the small commercial center of 1890 into the thriving manufacturing and private enterprise hub of 1980.

As the profits rolled in - about $131 million worth for the Alfa Corp. alone in 1980 - Monterrey's major industrial conglomerates took advantage of readily available foreign loans to invest heavily in new projects and expand on others. The boom was on.

"The country as a whole was in a tremendous growth period with the gross national product growing at 10 percent a year," said Ernesto Canales, corporate attorney for the Alfa Corp., Mexico's largest privately held industry.

"In order to stay in business and serve the market, private companies needed to keep up with that growth or lose our competitive position," he said.

Like all of Mexico, however, Monterrey's industries suffered drastic setbacks as the country headed for its unpredictable economic disaster in 1982.

"This has been the worst economic crisis in Mexico in 60 years," Canales said in an interview at Alfa headquarters. "In one year Mexico went from a 30 percent inflation rate to a 100 percent rate, from 25 pesos to the dollar to 150 to the dollar and from a gross national product of 10 percent to 0 percent."

Additionally, Canales said, "Alfa was in a growth period so we had about 25 percent of our assets in projects to be completed."

Alfa, the major corporation in what is commonly called the "Monterrey Group," is not alone.

It, along with the Valores Industriales Corp. and the Cydsa Corp. have all been forced to seek major reworkings on their foreign debts in order to remain in business.

Valores Industriales Corp., known as Visa, is in the process of restructuring the $1 billion foreign debt it had amassed by early this year. The firm - whose principal divisions include the Cuauhtemoc Brewery and soft drink, packaging, food and grain, and tourism companies - announced recently it would not pay dividends to stockholders for 10 years in an attempt to secure its financial footing.

Alfa, whose major subsidiaries include the steel company Hylsa, five petrochemical firms, the Titan paper and packaging company and the Casolar real estate and tourism company, owed $2.48 billion to foreign lenders - the majority in the United States - as of Sept. 30 and another nearly $280 million within Mexico, Canales said.

The holding company, Grupo Industrial Alfa, along with its subsidiaries, lost $248 million in 1981, $40 million in 1982, $48.9 million in 1983 and $33.3 million as of Sept. 30, 1984, Canales said.

The dollar figures were determined from the average peso exchange rate available to Alfa for each of the four years.

Alfa, which divided its subsidiaries into separate companies to ease debt renegotiations, expects to sign agreements with its foreign lenders early this year, Canales said.

Terms of the restructuring vary because the holding company and each subsidiary is negotiating separately.

Dow Jones averages miss signaling big market swing

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock-market followers who monitor only the Dow Jones industrial average have missed a lot of the action on Wall Street lately.

On Tuesday and Wednesday of the past week, for example, the oldest and best known yardstick of trends in stock prices posted declines of 3.75 and 0.11 points.

But in Tuesday's session, 1,025 New York Stock Exchange issues rose in price, while only 577 declined. On Wednesday 1,092 were up and 541 down.

Then, on Thursday, the Dow Jones industrials' modest 1.99 loss gave no hint of a stormy selloff in airline and aircraft stocks prompted by word that American Airlines planned new cut-rate fares, albeit with restrictions.

For evidence of that drop, you had to consult Dow Jones' average of 20 transportation stocks, which took a 10.52-point tumble that day.

The point has been made on Wall Street many times over the years: The Dow, with its relatively narrow sample of 30 old-line industrial stocks, can often give a distorted impression of what is going on.

Yet somehow the average has weathered all the criticism, however compelling, and retained its position as the everyday emblem of the market.

When forecasters want to make waves with some dramatic prediction of where stocks are headed, you don't hear them calling for "225 in the Standard & Poor's 500" or warning of "a plunge to 150 in the Value Line composite." They talk in terms of the Dow.

Though it did indeed lag behind the rest of the market, the Dow Jones industrial average managed to post a gain for the past week, rising 9.27 to 1,227.36.

The NYSE's composite index gained 2.06 to 99.04, and the American Stock Exchange market value index was up 5.35 at 211.09.

Big Board volume averaged 126.79 million shares a day, up from 101.96 million the week before.

Aside from any confusion they may have caused, the divergent paths of the indicators in recent days served as a reminder that at any given moment, the relative fortunes of all the different sectors of the market can be shifting.

IF YOU THOUGHT RETIREMENT PLANS WERE COMPLICATED AND COST A LOT, THINK AGAIN.

Your retirement plan shouldn't have to be complicated to be effective. Security Federal has several retirement plans that make it easy for you.

As little as one hundred dollars can start your Individual Retirement Account. And you can put in the amount you want, when you want.

Your I.R.A. from Security Federal is insured safe, and it earns money market interest. That interest is tax deferred till you retire. You also get real tax savings each year on what you deposit.

There's really no reason to wait on starting a retirement plan. You can do it right now. And it's as simple as walking into your nearest Security Federal office. When you think about retirement, think Security.

'Alberta Clipper' sails toward south

By CHRISTOPHER SULLIVAN
Associated Press Writer

An arctic juggernaut dubbed the "Alberta Clipper" sailed down the middle of the nation Saturday, borne on winds blustering to 35 mph and laden with a cargo of bitter cold that threatened dangerous wind-chills all the way to the Gulf Coast.

Temperatures pitched downward and snow piled up as the icy system moved south, with wind-chill readings of 85 degrees below zero in North Dakota and up to two feet of snow possible in parts of Pennsylvania, the National Weather Service said.

Winds combining with the cold will make it seem only 5 degrees above zero along Mississippi's coast, forecasters said.

"If you don't have to, I wouldn't go (outside)," said Ross Carlyon of the weather service office in Minneapolis, where a high temperature of 15 below was forecast Saturday.

"It'll warm up a little bit tomorrow," he said — to zero.

Duluth, Minn., recorded a record low of 31 degrees below zero, breaking the old mark of 30 below set in 1970. Embarrass, in northeastern Minnesota, reported a low of 38 below.

Fargo, N.D., bundled up as a minus-26 reading and a 26-mph north wind drove the wind-chill index to 85 below zero, the weather service said.

In Minot, N.D., the cold shrank and snapped utility lines, knocking out power to 90 mobile homes and several businesses for two hours

Saturday, said Loren A. Solberg, duty supervisor for Northern States Power Co. in Minot.

At least three people were treated in Minneapolis for exposure, including a 60-year-old man in critical condition after being found with his hands "solidly frozen," said Dr. Brian Mahoney in the emergency room at Hennepin County Medical Center.

Officials blamed icy roads for three traffic fatalities in Michigan on Friday.

"Alberta Clipper" is the name given to a frigid air mass that spills from Canada into the Midwest, according to Benny Gullach of the weather service's Omaha, Neb., office.

"As far as the air itself, this is by far the most severe outbreak we've had all year," said Dan Houser, a meteorologist in Ann Arbor, Mich.

The weather system dumped heavy snow around the Great Lakes on Saturday, with 15 inches reported at Holland, Mich., since Friday.

Would-be robber shot

Chicago applauds latest 'vigilante'

CHICAGO (AP) — On the mean streets of the South Side, where life grinds hard on the poor and the helpless, a man who turned the tables and a gun on would-be robbers is a hero to some who think his action will make criminals "think twice."

"You've got to carry a gun around here, man," said Willie Young, a customer at an auto parts store a block from the shooting site. "They'll stick you up. It's dangerous."

The man who fired the fatal shot Thursday apparently had bought groceries at Tony Pecho's store and was heading home when two youths stopped him at knifepoint and tried to take his groceries, police said.

Instead, the man, described as 55 to 60 years old, pulled out a handgun and shot one youth, while the other escaped, police said.

Detrick Wallace, 18, of Chicago died Friday of a gunshot wound to the head, authorities said.

"They (the suspected robbers) got what they deserved," Young said. "If they wouldn't bother the old man, they wouldn't have got shot."

"He should have shot them both in the head," Young said.

"It's great," said Pecho, owner of Tony's Super Market. "How else are you going to stop this stuff?"

Pecho said he expected the shooting to deter criminals in the area.

"They'll think twice," he said.

A 17-year-old suspected of being the shooting victim's accomplice was in custody Saturday, and police said they hoped to charge the youth if the man who did the shooting came forward.

Police said Saturday they did not know if the man, whose identity they knew but did not release, would be charged.

Pecho, who said he believes he knows who did the shooting, said: "He's a sensible man, if this is the man we're talking about. ... I think he'll eventually come forward. He's known in the neighborhood."

"They (neighbors) agree with what he did," Detective Philip Ducar said Friday.

The shooting occurred on a ravaged residential street marked by untended vacant lots, decrepit houses and junked automobiles.

The predominantly black neighborhood "has its share of crime," Lt. August Locallo said. "We're not associating this shooting with a gang, but there's gang activity all over the district."

Muggings are "not a daily occurrence," Pecho said. But he noted that his grocery store has been held up several times and that he now employs a full-time security guard.

Other residents say many people have started carrying weapons to protect themselves.

"The young boys shouldn't have messed with that old man," said Jerome, a young man who said he witnessed the shooting. He refused to give his full name.

"They grabbed the old man and twisted his arm behind his back, like the police do," Jerome said.

Attorney general's office wants to chase state debts

AUSTIN (AP) — For $500,000, the attorney general's office says it can set up an aggressive collection effort to track down some $240 million owed the state from court judgments, state-ordered penalties and other sources.

"Over the biennium, if we hustled ... we might be able to collect $70 million," said James Williamson, budget director for the attorney general.

At present, there is little incentive for debtors to pay the state.

"The status quo in Texas is, 'Chase me until you catch me.' Debtors typically in Texas do not pay a judgment. Getting the judgment means you're halfway there," said Wendy Schaefer, an assistant attorney general who ran a small collections operation for the state for several months.

The state is aggressive in getting the judgments, but not quite as eager to collect, she said.

Ms. Schaefer's survey of some selected state agencies found a total of $68 million owed the state. Williamson said he got the $240 million figure by "extrapolating" the $68 million figure to cover all state agencies.

A 15-person staff backed by computers could collect about 10 percent of the $240 million in a year, according to Williamson. Nudging is a big part of collecting debt.

"Automation is the key to success. We could do a hell of a job without it, but you've got to remember that collecting debts is a process of constantly being in touch," he said. "The computer acts as a tickler. It reminds you. It sends you dun letters. It brings your name up on a three-week cycle."

The money represents debts owed the state for items such as pollution penalties assessed by the Railroad Commission, overpayments of unemployment insurance benefits and bad checks.

The computer probably won't be programmed to nag minor debtors, such as library fine avoiders and parking ticket violators, according to Williamson.

Ms. Schaefer's survey keyed on debts over $200.

The Legislative Budget Board staff backed the $500,000 request. In a year when the dollar is dear to the state officials who spend them, a major collections effort would be worthwhile, the staff said.

The LBB's numbers show $44 million owed the state. In calculations based on the average annual collections for the past five years, LBB staff analyst Ricardo Adauto reported, "It will take the office 18 years to collect the $44 million estimated to be outstanding at this time."

Part of the problem is figuring out exactly who owes the state what.

"The attorney general's office has attempted to identify outstanding judgments, but the task is time-consuming and difficult, as past case files must be individually researched," the LBB staff report said.

Nevertheless, the LBB did not recommend approval of the $500,000.

"It's one of the most dynamic proposals we've got in there," said Williamson. "They scratched it."

The request will be renewed when the Legislature goes to work on the budget.

Williamson said many state agencies are not equipped to, or interested in, chasing debt.

"It's my impression they'd rather not talk about it and they are not doing a hell of a lot to collect it," he said.

The agencies turn debt cases over to the attorney general's office, where staff lawyers who represent the agencies in other matters sometimes find themselves with collection duties. It's not a popular job.

"You're making the people who are doing the work wear another hat, the bookkeeping hat. Not only does no one like that job, no one knows how to do it," said Ms. Schaefer. "Our clients have very little confidence in us if they turn over a lawsuit to us and all they get is a piece of paper."

Super Bowl Sunday is here!

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Like the needle on a seismograph near the San Andreas Fault, the prices of Super Bowl tickets are fluctuating wildly on the eve of the National Football League's showcase game.

It is indicative of what is being proclaimed the best championship matchup in the history of these Roman-numeraled pageants — or at least the best since last year's, when a projected thriller between the Washington Redskins and Los Angeles ended in a 38-9 blowout by the Raiders.

The face value of a ticket to Sunday's game is $60. Depending on location, they have been changing hands at anywhere from five to 15 times that price in hotel lobbies, bars, street corners — anywhere people are congregating.

Scalping is legal here, and it is being elevated to a high art form as entrepreneurs stand virtually side by side, some pleading, "Who's got tickets? Any tickets?" and others holding fanned-out tickets in their fists and announcing, "Got 'em here! Who needs 'em?"

Meanwhile, relatively sheltered from the tumult of this annual extravaganza, the Miami Dolphins and San Francisco 49ers are going about their business of trying to prove which of them is the best of the best.

The two teams, which assembled a combined record of 33-3 in the months leading to this meeting, planned brief "walk-through" workouts today in preparation for the expected air show in Stanford Stadium, 35 miles south of this City by the Bay.

"Having the opportunity to play in a game of this magnitude against a team as good as the 49ers, with the great record that they have, gives me a great deal of anticipation," Dolphins Coach Don Shula said.

"I'm hoping that it's a fast track and a good day because I think that's the truest test of two football teams facing each other. If it's a bad day, a poor field, then may the best team win, whatever the field conditions, whatever the weather."

The National Weather Service said that after showers today and early Sunday, the forecast for the game is virtually ideal football weather — dry, overcast, a chilly field (because the sun will be dipping below the rim of the stadium) and a kickoff temperature of 52 degrees, dropping down to 45 by the final gun.

The Dolphins faced the prospect of going into the game without the services of their starting tight end, Dan Johnson. The second-year pro from Iowa, their fifth-leading receiver during the season with 34 catches for 426 yards and three touchdowns, complained of stomach pains Friday. He was the only Dolphin to miss the team's 90-minute workout.

After studying blood tests taken during the day, team physician Charles Virgin said Johnson did not appear to be suffering from appendicitis.

Virgin said Johnson, who is listed as questionable for Sunday's game, would not be admitted to a hospital but would stay at the team's hotel in Oakland.

Virgin, who said the tests were inconclusive, said Johnson may be suffering from "regional irritation in the stomach" resulting from a severe gastro-intestinal disorder that caused the tight end to miss the Dolphins' playoff victory over Seattle.

Two other Miami players, wide receiver Mark Clayton and nickel back Paul Lankford, were pronounced fit by Shula at his news conference Friday. Clayton suffered a bruised shoulder in the American Conference championship game and Lankford twisted a knee in that 45-28 victory over Pittsburgh.

For San Francisco, wide receiver Dwight Clark and tight end Russ Francis, each with a pulled hamstring, and defensive end Dwaine Board, with a shoulder injury, resumed practice Friday after missing most of the week's workouts. "I think they'll be all right for the game," 49ers Coach Bill Walsh said.

The game brings together Miami's Dan Marino and San Francisco's Joe Montana, the league's two best quarterbacks this year.

49ers' quarterback Joe Montana hands off to running back Wendell Tyler during the final practice session.

Harvesters lose

Pampa girls down Dunbar

LUBBOCK — Lubbock Dunbar ran off nine unanswered points in the third quarter and then held off a Pampa rally for a 59-49 win over the Harvesters in a District 1-4A game Friday night.

However, Pampa's Lady Harvesters outscored Dunbar, 27-14, in the second half, for an important district victory in the girls' game.

Pampa boys dropped to 2-3 in district play while Dunbar held onto second place at 5-1. Borger still remains unbeaten in loop play after Friday night's win over Lubbock Estacado, 59-45.

Pampa and Dunbar battled on fairly even terms the first half with the score being knotted seven times before the Panthers claimed a 29-25 halftime advantage.

In the second half, the Harvesters never regained the lead as the Panthers built as much as a 12-point bulge in the third quarter. Pampa simply went cold from the floor and Dunbar got hot. Both clubs put up a dozen shots in the third quarter, but Dunbar hit eight and Pampa missed eight. As a result, the Harvesters found themselves down by 11 (46-35) going into the fourth quarter.

Pampa rallied in the first three minutes of the final period and pulled within four, 47-43, but never got any closer.

Dunbar, 15-7 overall, was led in scoring by Joey Torres and Jim Roothe, both with 16 points each. Sam Collins added 10.

Petey Davis, who scored Pampa's first 11 points of the game, led all scorers with 25 points. Davis fouled out with 1:31 to go in the game.

Rodney Young added 11 points and seven rebounds for the Harvesters. Richard Rogers followed with six points, Jeff Gaines, five, and John Tarpley, two.

The Lady Harvesters are now 5-2 in district action and tied with Canyon for second place. These two teams meet Tuesday night in McNeely Fieldhouse for sole possession of the runnerup spot behind unbeaten Levellend.

The Lady Harvesters trailed by one point, 27-26, at halftime, but the second half belonged to them.

Pampa opened up a 7-point lead, 42-35, going into the fourth quarter as Kerri Richardson and Jackie Reed provided the scoring and rebounding punch.

Richardson finished with 21 points and 11 rebounds. Reed had 16 points and 11 rebounds.

Monahan and Barron had 12 points each for Dunbar.

Melissa Nichols, Rogena Fly and Sandee Greenway had four points each for the Lady Harvesters, while Melanie Morgan Camilla Morgan had two each.

Both Pampa boys and girls host Canyon Tuesday night with a starting time of 6 p.m.

In other girls' district games Friday night, Borger clobbered Lubbock Estacado, 40-24, and Levellend edged Canyon, 25-24.

Levellend belted Canyon, 63-47, in boys' action.

Pampa's Junior Varsity Shockers never trailed in defeating Dunbar JV's, 52-45, Friday night.

"It was a total team effort," said Shockers' coach Sparky Roberts. "It was probably the best game we've played all year. We beat a good team."

The Shockers are 13-4 overall and 4-1 in district play.

Kerri Richardson...21 points and 11 rebounds.

Canadian wins on Johnson's shot

CANADIAN — Dana Johnson hit a 12-foot jump shot with two seconds remaining to give Canadian a hard-earned 41-39 win over Dalhart in District 1-3A girls' basketball action.

Johnson hit the shot from the corner after Canadian had called time with 11 seconds to go and the score tied.

"It was a great game," said Canadian coach Steve Zurline. "Nobody had more than a three-point lead and the lead changed eight or nine times."

Johnson and Melinda Vanhooser had 11 and 10 points respectively to lead the Lady Wildcats in scoring. Lucinda Dunnam and Tracie Ross had six points each, while Stephanie Byard had four, Sheila Carr and Jaenna Patton, two each. LaDawna Gentry led Dalhart with nine points while Stacey Reynolds and Cindy Stepps had eight points each.

Canadian girls are 12-6 overall and remain tied with Perryton for first place at 3-0 in the district standings. The two teams meet Tuesday night at Canadian to decide sole possession of first place.

Dalhart defeated Canadian, 43-39, in boys' game.

Dan Johnson led Dalhart with 16 points.

Donnie Anderson paced

Canadian with 18 points. Mark Bessire had nine, Sid Beebe and Rodney Boyd, five each, and Geoffrey Dockray, two.

49ers remember birthday

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Riki Ellison and some off his San Francisco 49ers teammates decided to do something special for Jack Reynolds' 37th birthday last November.

The players hung banners and other reminders of Reynolds' birthday in the locker room and the veteran's reaction was not a happy one.

"He hated it. He even ripped down the signs we put up in the locker room," Ellison said Friday, enjoying a laugh two days before the 49ers faced the Miami Dolphins in Super Bowl XIX.

"Hack (Reynolds) isn't a grouch, he's just different," Ellison, another San Francisco linebacker, added as he spoke of his teammate who has been known as "Hacksaw" since cutting a junked car in half to work off frustration

Super Bowl weather

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Despite a front that could deliver light showers to the San Francisco Bay area by early Sunday, forecasters stood by their prediction of cool, cloudy and dry conditions for the Super Bowl.

"At game time Sunday, skies will be partly cloudy. The temperature will be 55 for the kickoff, cooling to a prophetic 49 for the final gun," Ron Wagner, National Weather Service lead forecaster, said Saturday.

The forecast is good news for the more than 80,000 fans arriving at Stanford Stadium for the contest between the San Francisco 49ers and the Miami Dolphins. The National Football League has banned umbrellas from the stands.

Wagner said a very weak weather front moving off the north Pacific late Saturday could bring sprinkles or light showers to the Bay area, ending early Sunday.

The chance of rainfall during the game remains less than 10 percent, he said. Winds will be from the northwest at 5-7 mph.

after a loss during his college days at Tennessee.

Reynolds takes his football very seriously, as Ellison and friends knew full well when they planned the surprise party in November at the team's training headquarters. The National Football League's oldest linebacker regularly arrives hours before practice to immerse himself in personal gamefilm study and note-taking.

"Watching film is the next best thing to playing," Reynolds said this week. "It keeps you playing better and helps you play longer."

He said he learned under his first professional coach, George Allen of the 1970 Los Angeles Rams, that the most important thing for a player was to "study and learn and know the game."

San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh says, "There is nobody else like Jack Reynolds as far as total consumption of football goes. He'd be a great coach. I'm sure he'd expect a lot of his players."

Ellison said, "Sure, he'd be a great coach. I just hope he's not coaching me."

Reynolds often gives Ellison advice during games.

"Sometimes he gets a little too excited out on the field and starts playing like he's on a cloud," Reynolds said of Ellison, who is 24 and in his second professional season. "When we get to the sidelines, I try to get him straightened away."

Ellison said, "He's never very nice about it. He makes me feel like a scolded puppy."

Reynolds and Ellison are the 49ers' starting inside linebackers in a 3-4 defensive alignment, but they usually switch to a four-man front after first down and take Reynolds out. Still, the 15-year veteran made 46 tackles this season, while Ellison led the team with 95.

Because Reynolds' playing time has been reduced so much this season, there is speculation that Sunday's game will be his last. But the possibility of retirement and what lies ahead for Reynolds are subjects he refuses to discuss. He says they have "no connection with what's going on in this game."

Tewell takes lead in Phoenix Open

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Doug Tewell took advantage of Cal Peete's teary collapse with a 6-under-par 65, came from six shots back and vaulted into a two-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $450,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

Tewell, 35, whose only two PGA Tour triumphs came in 1980, scattered a gaudy collection of eight birdies across his card and rallied from a double-bogey with a birdie-birdie-birdie finish.

He completed three trips over the 6,726-yard Phoenix Country Club course at 200 — 13 shots under par.

Peete, who had led by five strokes after 36 holes, made his first bogeys of the tournament — four of them — and had to work hard for a one-over-par 72 that left him tied for second with Morris Hatafsky at 202. Hatafsky, playing in the same group with Tewell, salvaged a 66 with a scrambling back nine.

Peete, who told tournament officials he was having difficulty with his contact lenses, wiped his eyes repeatedly during the round, declined to be interviewed afterwards and sought the services of an optometrist.

Isao Aoki of Japan moved up with a 67 in the warm sunshine and was only three back at 203. Ed Fiori was next at 65-205.

The group at 206 included Johnny Miller, Chip Beck, T.C. Chen, Corey Pavin, George Burns, Bob Eastwood and Tim Norris. Chen had a third-round 66. Miller, Beck and Pavin shot 67s. Burns had 68. Eastwood and Norris matched rounds of par-71.

Peete, a runaway leader through the first two rounds, made his first two bogeys of the tournament on the third and fourth holes, but bounced back with a string of three consecutive birdies.

That rally enabled him to retain two strokes of his lead at the turn in the face of Tewell's challenging 32.

They matched birdies on the 10th.

Peete, playing one hole behind Tewell, appeared to have a little breathing room when Doug made a double-bogey on the 15th, hitting into the water.

"I stepped back from the shot," he said. "I couldn't pick out the pin against the gallery. When I finally located it, I just made a totally bad swing."

Decker sets record

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mary Decker, apparently recovered in every way, made her return a spectacular one.

Racing for the first time since her famed collision with Zola Budd during the Olympics, Decker blazed to a world indoor best clocking of 5 minutes, 34.52 seconds in the women's 2,000 meters Friday night at the Sunist Invitational.

The victory came against recent critic Ruth Wysocki, who finished a distant second.

"I wanted to win and I was determined to set a world record," said Decker, who was almost nine seconds faster than the old world standard of 5:43.30 by the Soviet Union's Yekaterina Podkopaeva in 1983.

Decker had not run since she and Budd collided in the final of the women's 3,000 meters at the Olympics last summer. Decker suffered a hip injury when she went sprawling onto the Coliseum infield.

"The injury messed up the Olympics, my summer, and my hopes to go to Europe," Decker recalled. "It is athletic history — not the kind I wanted, but there will be an Olympics in 1988."

"Barring injury, I will be there," Decker said. "I am the same person I was before the Olympics, the same that I have been for 16 years since I began competing. The press has not always told the truth about me. The Zola Budd situation was fabrication from start to finish."

She did not elaborate, however. Wysocki, clocked in 5:45.93 Friday night in the 2,000, recently had criticized Decker's behavior following the collision with Budd. Decker had blamed the incident on the young South African runner.

Wysocki, however, softened her remarks after Friday night's loss to Decker, saying, "Mary was wrong (at the Olympics), but she was under undue physical stress at the time."

"I admire her very much, all her talents and all the injuries she's overcome. She's been very, very good for women's track and field. She's been an inspiration for all of us."

Interestingly, both Decker and Wysocki were greeted by a mix of cheers and boos when they were introduced to the sellout crowd of 13,702 at the Los Angeles Sports Arena. But, when it became obvious Decker was threatening a world best, most of the spectators were on their feet, cheering her final laps.

Sooner coach issues apology Hernandez signs with Tigers

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The University of Oklahoma regents told basketball Coach Billy Tubbs his job may be on the line after his recent outburst over the Sooners' 104-89 loss to the Tulsa this week.

Tubbs' apology to Tulsa fans for his remarks came after the regents told him his attitude could cost him his job, a published report says.

Tubbs was told on Wednesday that if his "irritating" behavior didn't change "he would be gone." The Daily Oklahoman reported in today's editions.

The coach had angrily said his No. 13 Sooners "had a hole dug for us" by officials in a Jan. 9 loss to Tulsa and said he wouldn't play the Hurricane again in its home court.

Tubbs' apology was issued to Tulsa media on Thursday, while the OU regents were in session at Norman.

The Tulsa World reported Tubbs had first intended to cancel the Jan. 9 game at Tulsa, but that the regents and OU President William Banowsky insisted it be played. A game between the schools scheduled last season was not played when the Sooners substituted a televised game.

The Oklahoman reported that unnamed sources said the Tulsa game was "the straw that broke the camel's back." Sources told the newspaper they had been concerned about incidents at Colorado and Kansas last year and statements that Tubbs made about those incidents.

"He's been skating on thin ice for quite a while," one unnamed regent reportedly told The Oklahoman.

"He felt we hit him between the eyes and it was good that we did," another unnamed regent told the newspaper. "He thinks he can change and we do, too."

Colorado fans complained that Tubbs made an obscene gesture during a game in Boulder, Colo., last year, which Tubbs denied. Kansas fans said Sooner players taunted them just before the end of a victory over the Jayhawks.

The regents said they were concerned about what would happen on the road this year, The Oklahoman said.

Tulsa Coach Nolan Richardson has won all four games against Tubbs since the coaches took their respective jobs five years ago.

The text of Tubbs' statement:

"The public reaction to our game last week with the University of Tulsa was certainly not what we hoped to achieve. The stories in the Tulsa press and the responses of the people of Tulsa have made it clear that my behavior and statements left something to be desired. I am truly sorry that I did not represent the University of Oklahoma in a more positive way.

Sooners defeat Kansas

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma forward Darryl Kennedy scored a career-high 34 points to offset a career-low six-point performance by All-America teammate Wayman Tisdale, and No. 13 Oklahoma defeated ninth-ranked Kansas 87-76 in a Big Eight college basketball game Saturday.

The six points by Tisdale marked the first time in his career the two-time All-American did not score in double figures. The 6-foot-9 junior failed to score in the second half.

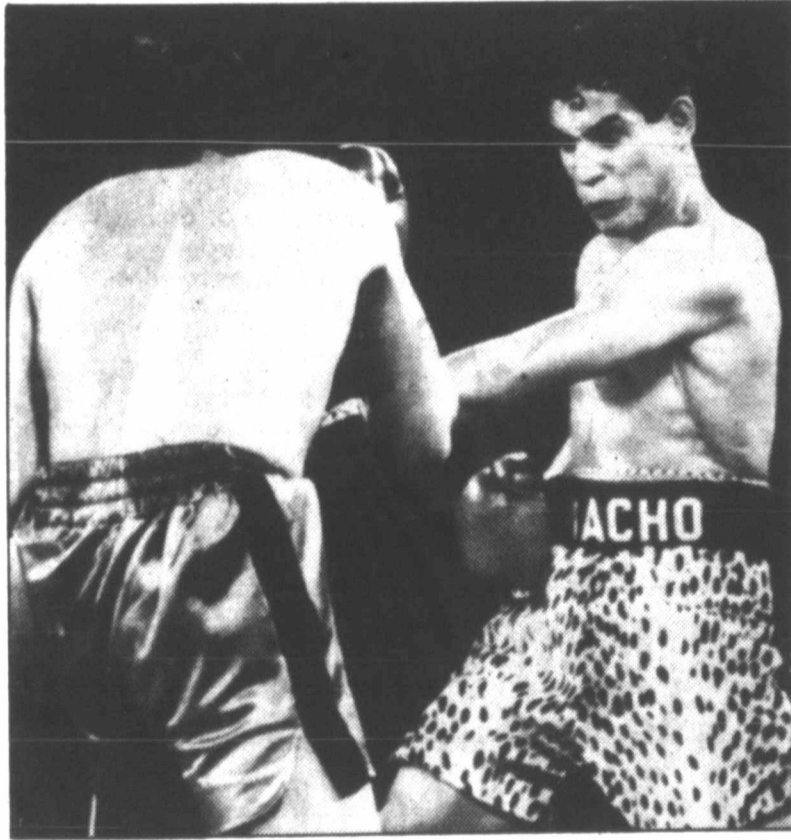

Oklahoma led 35-29 at halftime.

Kennedy, a sophomore, scored 26 in the second half as the Jayhawks left him open in their defense of Tisdale. Kennedy was 15 of 19 from the field and 4-for-4 from the free throw line.

Oklahoma's Anthony Bowie had 21 points and Tim McCalister 18.

For Kansas, Ron Kellogg had 24 points. Greg Dreiling 20, Calvin Thompson 14 and Danny Manning had 12.

Oklahoma improved to 13-4 overall and 2-0 in the conference. Kansas is now 13-3 and 1-1.

The Rockets' Akeem Olajuwon shoots over the Suns' Maurice Lucas.

Rockets stun Suns

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Houston Coach Bill Fitch figured his Rockets would fizzle after his ejection. Instead, they went into orbit.

"We were out of sight down the stretch," said Fitch as Houston snapped its four-game National Basketball Association losing streak with a 112-101 win Friday night over the Phoenix Suns.

"I'm really proud of these guys. We beat a good team at their place," added Fitch. "This has been a really tough week and a really tough trip. We talked about this game beforehand and we thought it would be the hardest game to win."

The lead see-sawed throughout the third quarter until Akeem Olajuwon put the Rockets ahead to stay at 73-71 on a three-point play with 4:11 remaining. Ralph Sampson, who had 12 of his 29 points in the period, added a jumper and a stuff as Houston took an 83-78 lead into the final quarter.

Phoenix cut its deficit to 87-85 on Rod Foster's jumper with 9:39 to go in the game, but Sampson and Allen Leavell keyed a 7-0 Rockets' run for a 94-85 bulge with 8:11 left.

The Suns crept to within six on four occasions before Leavell, who had 15 of his 17 points in the fourth quarter, scored six points in the final 50 seconds to seal Houston's first win here since March 7, 1982.

Fitch, who was ejected with 10:02 remaining after drawing two technical fouls for arguing a call, said he "got to see us shoot more fouls in the TV truck than sitting on the bench. But when Leavell took that long jumper with 43 seconds left, I almost fell out of the truck."

Phoenix forward Maurice Lucas said Fitch's ejection spurred the Rockets on although "that can work in reverse. It depends on what the team is looking for."

"If their team is looking for a reason to lose, an excuse, they would have said, 'OK. Let's die now.' But they weren't looking for an excuse to lose. Those guys were playing well."

Mitchell Wiggins finished with 17 points for the Rockets (22-18) while Rodney McCray added 15 and Olajuwon 11. Sampson also pulled down 12 rebounds.

"This is the smartest game Ralph has played. He showed a lot of growth," Fitch said of his 7-foot-4, second-year forward. "Rodney made it all happen and Wiggins — spell that in caps — came alive on both ends."

Larry Nance had a game-high 31 points for Phoenix (21-20).

Rangers trade Darwin, Sundberg goes to KC

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers have obtained catcher Don Slaught from the Kansas City Royals in a four-team, five-player trade that sent pitcher Danny Darwin to the Milwaukee Brewers.

Catcher Jim Sundberg, whom the Rangers had been trying to re-acquire earlier in the month, also was involved in the trade. But Sundberg, who rescinded his trade demand earlier Friday, landed not in Texas but in Kansas City.

Besides Darwin, the Brewers also received New York Mets pitcher Tim Lary, who was assigned to Milwaukee's Triple A minor-league affiliate in Vancouver. The Mets picked up Kansas City right-hander Frank Wills, who was assigned to New York's Tidewater farm club.

In addition, the Brewers will also receive a minor-league player to be announced later from Texas.

The Rangers immediately installed Slaught, who hit .264 with four homers and 42 runs batted in in his first full season as the Royals' starter last year, as their No. 1 catcher, filling one of their most troublesome spots.

"We're happy to get Don Slaught," Rangers General Manager Tom Grieve told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

"You'd have to say he's our starter going into spring training, but I know the kind of kid Donnie Scott is, too, and I know he won't give an inch. On the other hand, we wouldn't make this deal if we didn't think Slaught was going to play a lot for us."

Manager Doug Rader was quick to second Grieve's assessment.

"He (Slaught) certainly played well against us," Rader said. "What he did for Kansas City can't be denied so we're certainly happy to have him."

"I certainly think Slaught has to be considered number one," Rader continued. "We're certainly going to give Donnie the opportunity (to compete) but based on what the two guys did last year, Slaught has the inside track."

Slaught, who is leaving a division winner for a basement team, didn't seem at all upset.

"I'm happy to be with the Rangers," Slaught said from his home outside Kansas City. "I feel that they're at a position where they're in a transition period. When they come out on top, I'd like to be with that club."

Slaught, 26, once carried a reputation as a good defensive catcher who might not hit well enough in the big leagues. But he batted .312 in 276 at-bats in 1983 and turned his season around in mid-June last year. Slaught was hitting .179 on June 18 but finished the year at .264. Hit .319 against left-handers (37 hits in 116 at-bats).

Slaught also threw out 25 of 81 runners attempting to steal last season.

"I struggled in the first part of my second year ('83) and I just made up my mind to turn it around," Slaught said.

"Last year there was one key series against Oakland on the West Coast when I had a session with my hitting instructor and found a few flaws in my swing. It came around after that."

The price for Slaught, however — Darwin — was admittedly high, Grieve said.

"We've looked for pitching all winter long and felt like we had built a veteran staff that was solid throughout," Grieve conceded. "But to get a catcher of any ability you have to give something up."

Georgetown overpowers Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Patrick Ewing scored 18 points and ignited a second-half surge that carried top-ranked and unbeaten Georgetown to a 65-53 basketball victory over Pittsburgh in a Big East Conference game Saturday.

The 7-foot Ewing was a dominant force at both ends of the court as the Hoyas, who were tied with Pitt 24-24 at the half and trailed 28-26 early in the second half, ran off a 12-2 spurt to grab a 40-30 lead with 12:10 remaining.

The Hoyas, 17-0 and winners of 28 consecutive games over two seasons, never led by fewer than six points after that in raising their Big East record to 6-0.

Ewing hit a twisting jumper in the lane with 15:47 to play to give flaws in my swing. It came around after that."

The price for Slaught, however — Darwin — was admittedly high, Grieve said.

"We've looked for pitching all winter long and felt like we had built a veteran staff that was solid throughout," Grieve conceded. "But to get a catcher of any ability you have to give something up."

Springs arrested on assault charges

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys fullback Ron Springs was free on bond Saturday following a disturbance at a topless bar in north Dallas where two police officers were assaulted, authorities said.

According to a police report, Springs turned belligerent and attacked the officers when they entered the bar to answer a call that he was creating a ruckus.

Springs, 28, was arrested about 5:30 p.m. Friday at the Million Dollar Saloon, police Sgt. J.J. Degan said.

When police arrived at the club, Springs "became belligerent and assaulted the two officers," Degan said. Officers Vanessa Pitz and James Hughes suffered minor cuts and bruises, Degan said.

Degan said police were called to the nightclub after Springs had been asked and refused to leave after "trying to grab at one of the dancers on the floor."

"He's a regular customer of mine, and he's never caused any trouble before," said Ronny Jared, general manager of the Million Dollar Saloon.

Springs was charged Friday night with assault of a police officer — a felony — and misdemeanor counts of criminal trespass and assault. He was released on bond of $5,000 posted late Friday.

Attempts to reach Springs for comment Saturday were unsuccessful. His home telephone number is unlisted.

Police said Ms. Pitz told Springs that if he did not leave the club, he would be arrested on a charge of criminal trespass. It was at that point that he became belligerent, the officers said.

When the officers tried to handcuff the former Ohio State star, he "told arresting officers they better not touch him" and pushed them away, police reports said.

Police said Springs then punched Ms. Pitz in the face and placed Hughes in a headlock. When Ms. Pitz tried to pull Springs away from Hughes, he "bodyslammed" her against the bar, tossed her across some bar stools, and kicked her in the shin, police reports said.

However, Jay Paskero, the bar's night manager, said it appeared to him that the blow to Pitz was inadvertent as Springs moved his arms to avoid being handcuffed.

Cowboys president Tex Schramm, in Oakland, Calif. for Sunday's Super Bowl, said that he was aware of the incident but wanted to talk to police and to Springs before commenting publicly.

"It would be inappropriate for the Dallas Cowboys to have further comment at this time until we can investigate what happened," Schramm said.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry, also in Oakland, said, "I don't know what the circumstances are, so I'm going to have to wait just to see how bad it really is. It sounds like it's pretty bad, and I would like to talk to Ron."

Buffaloes defeated

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) —

Bernard Campbell scored a game-high 16 points to lead Southern Illinois to its first Missouri Valley Conference victory, a 67-58 win over West Texas State on Saturday.

West Texas State grabbed the lead from the opening tip and stayed ahead through the first seven minutes of the first half until the Salukis finally grabbed the lead at 17-15 with 7½ minutes left in the first half.

After holding a 27-23 lead at intermission, the Salukis went on to open up a 17-point lead with 4:20 left in the game. West Texas State cut the lead to seven points twice in the final minute but could get no closer.

Also in double figures for the Salukis were Cleveland Bibbens with 15 points and Kenny Perry with 14. West Texas State was paced by William Giles with 12 points and Glen Jamison with 11.

SIU's record advances to 9-7 overall and 1-4 in the conference. West Texas State drops to 8-8 overall and 1-5 in the league.

Sheriff offers to make reporters his vice investigators

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Sheriff Harlon Copeland says he has had no takers on his offer to make news reporters undercover vice officers in a crackdown on sex-for-pay at local massage parlors.

Copeland said massage parlor owners know all his deputies and he would welcome some fresh faces.

"I want anybody I can get in there undercover," he said Thursday. "None of the reporters have come forward. Hopefully somebody will."

The subject first came up during a Wednesday news conference.

Copeland said he told reporters "that if they wanted to apply (as undercover officers) I would certainly foot the bill."

The sheriff, who has been in office since earlier this month, said the offer is a serious one.

Copeland said if the plan doesn't draw any response, at least it will "scare the heck out of the massage parlor owners. They won't know who's coming in there."

Texans prominent in inaugural planning

WASHINGTON (AP) — If it's a party, Texans will be there. If it's a really big party, they'll figure out how to pay for it.

A "calling all Texans" cry brings a posse of people out of their offices over at the inaugural committee headquarters in southeast Washington.

Many have helped bring in the $10 million in private funds that are expected to provide for the official inaugural activities.

Jill Collins, who ran her own public relations firm in San Antonio before joining up with Vice President George Bush's campaign last summer, is assistant director for promotion of inaugural souvenirs. She's one of the people who tries to figure out how to sell everything from a $1,750 porcelain eagle to a $5 poster.

"We're cranking out press releases so people will know, even if they're not going to be in Washington for the inaugural activities, they can still be a part of it," she said.

Eileen Harris of Dallas is in merchandising. This year, she said, souvenirs will be sold in Washington-area retail stores, gift shops and hotels.

"This is the first time it's been done," she said, "so I'm very proud — 'right proud' as we say in Dallas."

Dave Frederickson, an advertising executive from Houston, pulled off a coup, signing USA Today as a media sponsor for the inaugural. The newspaper is donating full-page ads for the inaugural souvenirs.

Dot Vannerson of Houston "started in fund-raising and raised $1.78 million."

"When we finished raising all the money, I moved over to operations to help spend it," she laughed. "It's always fun and a pleasure to do something for the president."

But Texans aren't just paying for other people's parties, they are throwing their own.

Mike Hudson, an Amarillo native who is now White House legislative liaison officer, normally spends his time negotiating with Congress over budgets and appropriations. For the past few weeks, though, he has been negotiating with caterers, hotels and country-western bands for the Texas "Black Tie and Boots" inaugural gala honoring the Bush family.

"We're not turning people away if they don't have boots on," Hudson laughed. "I personally don't have any black cowboy boots, but I'm going to wear my brown ones."

"We just wanted a real 'Texas' event," he said.

The Saturday night party was not on the list of official inaugural balls, but Hudson says it wasn't an official event last year either and 5,000 people came. One of the reasons might have been the price of admission. In 1981 tickets were $25. This year they are $35 each.

"By inaugural standards, it's a real bargain," Hudson said. "Inaugural tickets — if you can get them — range to $150."

In 1981, he said, "we had so many people, the fire marshal was asking us to vacate the hotel." This year the party moved to a bigger room.

Other Texans who worked at the convention in Dallas or on the campaign in Texas just wanted to be part of the excitement in Washington.

Keith Cartwright of Houston worked for the Republican National Committee at the convention and now works in the administration offices at the inaugural committee. His specialty is telecommunications — "making sure all the sites, routes, hotels and balls are able to communicate with each other."

Talkin' to the animals

PATTER WITH A PARROT — Coronado Nursing Home resident Fannie Bailey discusses a few things with Mick the Parrot, a green-winged macaw. The nursing home residents talked to, petted and thoroughly enjoyed a menagerie of animals one afternoon last week. The animals were brought to the residents, by Carla Cogdell - Jones, owner of a local pet store, who also explained the animals' origins.

WORDLESS CONVERSATION — Pearl Messenger, a resident of Coronado Nursing Center, takes the silky head of Chelsea, an Irish setter, into her hands. She doesn't need words to express her love of animals, nor does Chelsea need words to express her love of all the attention she's getting.

Just imagine it ...

Calling to a chimpy chimpanzee...
Imagine talking to a tiger...
Chatting to a cheetah...
What a neat achievement it would be
If we spoke slang to orangutan.
The advantages any fool on earth
Could plainly see.

Discussing eastern art and drama
With intellectual llamas.
That's a big step forward you'll agree.

We'd learn to speak in antelope and turtle.
Or Pekinese would be extremely good.

If we were asked to sing in hippopotamus
We'd say 'Why not-a-mus,' and would...

We would converse in polar bear or python
And we would curse in fluent kangaroo.
If people asked us if we could speak rhinoceros
We'd say, 'Of course-erous, can't you?'

If we conversed with our furry friends —
Man to animal —
Think of the amazing repartee.
If we could walk with, talk with, cry, squeak
Squawk with the animals.
And they could talk with us...

FONDLING A FERRET — Ellen Lawson snuggles Symone the Ferret tightly to her chest. Symone, who turns out to be quite popular with the nursing home residents, takes it all in stride.

SNEAKY SNAKE — While residents of the nursing center didn't mind looking at Rosie the Boa, none were particularly interested in holding her. Rosie, a young boa constrictor, once got away from her cage in the pet store and was not found until about two months later, but she was quite well-behaved during the pet show.

FERRET HEAVEN — Symone found a delightful place to curl up and relax in the big, gentle hands of nursing home resident, Otis Lester, who was just as pleased to let the tiny animal stay there.

CHATTING WITH A CHICKEN — Eva Mae Humphrey contemplates Zsa Zsa, a Silky Chicken of Japan. Zsa Zsa prefers her box to being picked up, but is happy to sit still while being displayed.

Carter-Linder

Tammy Jan Carter became the bride of Michael Glen Linder in a candlelight ceremony Dec. 29 at the Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ. Keith Feerer, assistant minister, officiated at the wedding.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Carter of Pampa. Her grandparents are W.A. Carter and A.R. McGee, both of Pampa, and great grandmother, Mrs. C.L. Carter. Linder is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Linder of Odessa. He is the grandson of Mrs. Ruth Reid of White Deer.

Tonya Randall of Pampa was maid of honor. C.J. Hill of White Deer was flower girl. Ashly Darby sat at the guest register.

Best man was Cecil Holcomb of Odessa. Ring bearer was Michael Winter of Anchorage, Alaska.

Special music was provided by the Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ quartet, composed of Bill Cox, Andy Lee, Linda Carlton and Kay Hughes, all of Pampa.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Fellowship Hall. Serving were Ashly Darby and Jerry Owens, both of Pampa, Lori Strupp of Panhandle and Connie Holcomb of Odessa.

The couple plan to make their home in Pampa.

The bride attended Pampa High School and Pampa College of Hairdressing. She was formerly employed by Regis Hairstylists.

Linder attended Odessa High School of Odessa and is employed by Wy-Vel Corporation of Pampa.

Warnke-Hughes

Ann Marie Warnke and James Douglas Hughes exchanged wedding vows Jan. 5 in an afternoon ceremony at the Broadway Church of Christ in Lubbock. Horace Coffman, associate minister, performed the wedding service.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry James Warnke of Lake Bluff, Ill. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hughes of Carlsbad, N.M.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was Mrs. Jerry Vroom of Lubbock. Standing as best man for the groom was Jerry Vroom of Lubbock.

After a honeymoon to Angel Fire, N.M., the couple will live in Lubbock.

The bride is a 1981 graduate of Lake Forest High School, Ill. She attended Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

Hughes graduated from Pampa High School in 1976 and graduated from Texas Tech University in Lubbock in December with a degree in civil engineering.

Report says vitamin C worthless against cancer

BOSTON (AP) — Nobel laureate Linus Pauling should not have recommended that cancer victims take vitamin C until more studies were performed, said a researcher whose report today concludes that the vitamin treatment is worthless.

But Pauling, a winner of the Nobel Peace Prize and the Nobel prize for chemistry, countered in an interview that vitamin C is harmless and said that an increasing number of doctors believe massive doses of the vitamin are beneficial.

Pauling based his recommendation on research which, according to the latest study, was flawed because patients who took vitamin C were not compared with similarly ill cancer victims who did not take large doses of the vitamin.

Mayo Clinic doctors undertook the study to test the assertion, and repeated it because Pauling claimed their research was flawed.

Overeating can become compulsive habit

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Lifestyles Editor

Today Jessica is a stylishly dressed, self-assured and attractive woman. But little more than a year and 65 pounds ago, this was not true. She thought she harbored a great secret she could share with no one, not wanting to admit to herself that by seeing her very site people knew.

Jessica was a compulsive overeater. If she was not eating, she was thinking about eating. Food was not a means of replenishing her energy supplies — it was an obsession.

"I've always had a weight problem," she says. "I was a fat baby, a chubby child, an overweight teenager." After becoming an adult she would go through great fluctuations of 30 or 40 pounds or more.

"I've spent a lifetime on diets, but then the same things would happen and the weight would come back," she explains. "You've got to get thin in the head before you get thin in the body."

Jessica would diet when health problems cropped up, or she would be motivated by a special occasion nearing or by "plain disgust," she says.

She was very successful in many other areas of her life, but a basic dissatisfaction undergirded all she did. Even when she received honors and awards for her accomplishments, all she could think of was how fat she was.

Finally Jessica reached the point, like alcoholics sometimes do, where she knew she had a problem and she needed help. She gathered her courage and walked in to the Pampa Overeaters Anonymous (OA) meeting.

"Some people go in (to OA) thinking they're going to find a sure answer, wanting a sure diet plan," Jessica says. "It's not that way at all. It teaches you ways of living so that the desire to overeat is not there. It's not based on strength, but on weakness."

The similarities between OA and Alcoholics Anonymous are not incidental. Like alcoholism, Jessica says, overeating is a disease. AA's 12 steps to recovery are modified and used in the OA recovery plan also, she says.

Like an alcoholic, the overeater is often a perfectionist with low self-esteem. They use alcohol or overeating as a way to escape frustrations, she says.

"The only difference between food and alcohol is the decision," she explains. "It's all compulsive behavior — you just choose your poison."

"My life never could be just right, so I wanted it right in everyone else's life. I had a tendency to control something or someone else since I couldn't control myself. My eating habits were out of control," Jessica recalls.

As Jessica began attending the OA meetings she began to realize that she would not have to give up the pleasure of food. But now when she eats, she says she enjoys it even more because eating is not followed by guilt and self-condemnation.

"I no longer want to be perfect, and I'm more able to accept others not being perfect, too," she says.

She did not have a specific diet plan during this past year, however she did discover that she had certain "trigger foods" that would trigger a binge if she ate them. Unlike an alcoholic she cannot totally abstain from food, but she does abstain from these "trigger foods," Jessica says.

"As soon as I abstained from my trigger foods, then the weight just came off," she says.

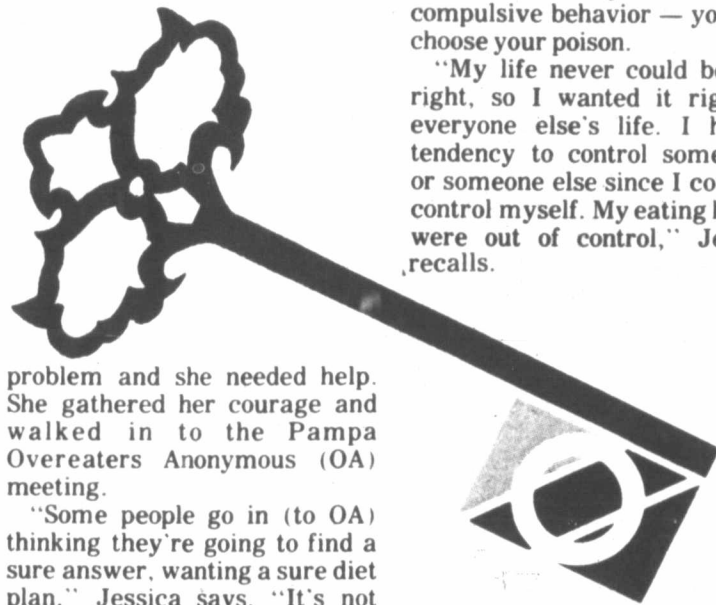

But Jessica adds that a person must be ready psychologically before they can lose weight. And sometimes the weight loss is not as immediate nor as impressive as Jessica's.

As Jessica continued to lose weight she began to wear clothes to OA meetings that would not show her emerging figure because she was afraid that others who were going much slower would be discouraged.

"I want them to know that it may take awhile, but once they start then (the weight loss) will continue," she says.

It was not easy for Jessica to admit her problem on such a public level, although she loves to tell people on a one-to-one basis, she says. "But if just one person could feel that they might want to try (OA), because of what I said, then it's worth it."

Editor's note — This compulsive overeater agreed to an interview on the condition that her name not be used for the sake of her family. She does live in the Pampa area, however, and is a member of the local chapter of Overeaters Anonymous.

Desk & Derrick to meet Jan. 22

Sharon McCarrell, a stockbroker with Kidder, Peabody and Company of Amarillo, is to be guest speaker for the Jan. 22 meeting of the Pampa Desk and Derrick Club at 7 p.m. in the Pampa Country Club.

Exercise needed for good health

By DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent

Keeping your body in shape is essential to good health. Regular, vigorous exercise contributes both to feeling good and looking good! For many people, however, it seems impossible to find the time for fitness. Just getting through the work day and taking care of responsibilities at home often seems hopeless, so how can you possibly find the time or energy to exercise?

"Building" activity into your day can increase caloric expenditure as well as enhance flexibility and muscle strength and endurance. By "building" activity into your routine you will not have to find extra time, but you will need to use your time and energy a little differently. "Build" activity into your daily routine by trying some of the following suggestions:

When the alarm goes off in the morning, do some gentle stretching right in your bed. As you get dressed, think of creative ways to exercise. For example, instead of sitting down, balance on alternate legs when putting on socks and shoes. When you brush your teeth, pull your stomach muscles in tight and pinch your buttocks together while raising up on your toes. You might even try running in place while brushing your teeth.

Find opportunities for walking during the day. Either before, after, on the way to work, coming home from work, or during your lunch and coffee breaks, a brisk walk will help you get rid of accumulated stresses and tensions while improving your cardiovascular system. Another benefit worth considering is that walking two miles a day burns up almost a pound of fat per month. That adds up to over 10 pounds per year.

When you are home and tackling daily household responsibilities, use a little creative thinking to devise ways to build muscle power into your routine. Although no one will claim house cleaning as a favorite activity, make it work for you and your family. Turn on some fast and lively music, assign everyone a task or two and have them attempt to raise their pulse rate by at least 25 beats per minute while dusting, picking up, vacuuming, sweeping, etcetera.

Learn to use those 30 second blank spots that occur in everybody's day - waiting for toast to pop up, sitting through a red light or a television commercial, or waiting for your phone call to go through. Suck in your stomach for six seconds at a time, sit with your feet straight out, roll your head in slow circles or do a few exaggerated shoulder shrugs. Anything is better than just slouching there.

There are many that can build more activity into your life.

1. Never lie down when you can sit up. For example, if you watch an average of five hours of television daily while reclining, and instead you decided to sit up, the difference in a year's time would be equal to a pound of fat. Remember, it's the little things that count.

2. Never sit when you can stand. The caloric difference per hour is about 10 calories, depending on your present weight.

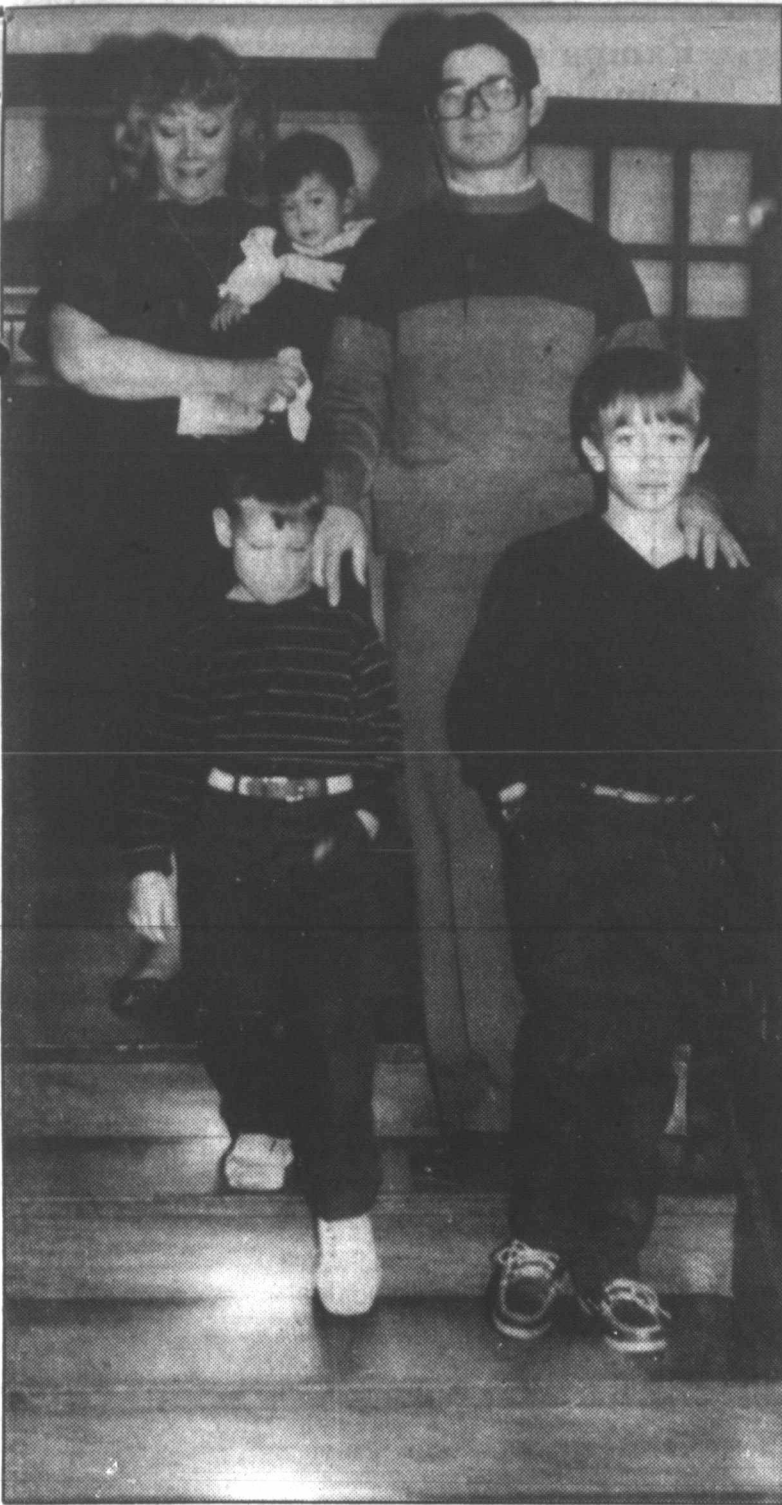

3. Get into the habit of "pacing". Instead of dropping into a chair to mull over a problem, get up and move around.

4. As a general rule, never sit for more than an hour and a half without standing, stretching, and walking (or pacing) five minutes or so. Not only will this burn extra calories; you will return refreshed to what you were doing and be more efficient at it.

5. Run in place whenever you can, even if it's only for 30 seconds or so. "Waiting time" is a natural for this.

Use your imagination and activity to think of other ways of building activity into your day. Just like that extra piece of candy or doughnut adds up over time to several pounds of unsightly fat, the extra minutes of built-in activity will add up over time to increased fitness.

SPECIAL BIRTHDAY GIFT — Sarah Beth MeeLee McCall, in the arms of Nancy McCall, her new mother, may not understand that as she is carried from the District Court Room Jan. 16 she had just received two extra special birthday presents — a new family and a new name. Also shown are her father, John, upper right, and brothers, Andrew, left, and Michael. Sarah Beth was born Jan. 16, 1984, in Korea and arrived in the United States on June 14. However, the legal adoption was not complete until last Wednesday. Mrs. McCall said if any other Pampa couples are interested in adopting Korean babies, they may call her at 665-7852 for more information on how they adopted Sarah Beth. ## ACT I opens second season ACT I, Area Community Theatre Inc., opens its second season with a valentine treat — "Last of the Red Hot Lovers." The Neil Simon comedy is to be presented Feb. 7 and 8 at the Coronado Inn Starlight Room.

 S. Laverne Hinson of Pampa is to play the lead role of Barney Cashman, a married, middle-aged restaurateur who finds himself haunted by a feeling that life has passed him by. To reassure himself that he is still attractive and virile, Cashman sets up three affairs with hilarious, and often touching results.
 Hinson in reality is pastor of Pampa's Church of the Brethren. Recently moved to Pampa from North Carolina, Hinson helped organized a little theatre group there. He is an active member of Pampa Singles Organization.

 Diane Williams is to play Elaine Navazio, Cashman's first encounter. Williams is secretary for Furr's Family Center. She has three children and will share the stage in this production with her daughter Pam McNeely. She is active in the Women of the Moose where she served as Junior Regent. She enjoys traveling and playing with her grandson, Brandon Lane.
 Pam McNeely takes on the role of Bobbi Michele, an aspiring actress and Cashman's second encounter. McNeely is employed by W.B. Supply Co. and is continuing her education at Clarendon College - Pampa Center.

Marva Salisbury will play Jeannette Fisher, Cashman's wife's best friend of 18 years and Cashman's third encounter. Salisbury is employed by the Texas Department of Human Resources as secretary for protective workers. She has three daughters, a son-in-law and one grandson. She is a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints and enjoys furniture refinishing, softball and square dancing.
 ACT I's first production of the season will be a dinner-theatre on Feb. 7 and at the Coronado Inn Starlight Room. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. and the show is to begin at 8 p.m. For more information, contact any ACT I member or call Jim Guest, president, at 665-6434.

Arbor Day recognizes need for conservation

BY JOE VANZANDT
COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT
ARBOR DAY IN TEXAS

Did you know that Arbor Day, a time set aside to commemorate trees, has been designated by the Texas State Legislature as the third Friday in January? Governor White has proclaimed Friday, January 18, as the 1985 Texas Arbor Day.

The Legislature resolved in 1949 that Arbor Day be devoted to the planting and cultivation of forest, shade and ornamental trees throughout the state and that it should be observed for that purpose in a manner deemed best by the people of each community. Legislators recognized that Arbor Day gives us an opportunity to express a deep interest in trees and learn about forest conservation. People who love trees for their beauty also have an active interest in conservation of Texas' forests.

Actually, Arbor Day, as we know it, was first observed in Nebraska (a state with very few trees) as early as 1872. The idea spread to Kansas and Tennessee in 1875 and Minnesota in 1876. The first Texas observance occurred in Temple in 1889. Since that time, it has been observed continuously in Texas.

The traditional Texas Arbor Day is a little early for our part of the state to get very enthused about planting trees. For one thing, we will generally encounter frozen ground as we attempt to dig holes to plant trees in. Our general recommendation for tree planting is in February and March for bare root trees as our temperatures tend to moderate and rise. Container grown plants or ball and burlap trees can be planted later in the year. However, we need to remember that the earlier a tree gets planted after our severe cold weather, then the better chance the tree's root system has to get established before the hot, dry summer weather hits.

Lists of recommended, adapted tree species and varieties are available in the Gray County Extension office.

INSECTS FOUND IN FIREWOOD

With the cold winter months upon us, homeowners begin to supplement heating costs by using their fireplaces and wood burning stoves. Wood burned in these fireplaces and stoves serves as an excellent harborage site for insects. Insects may be found inside the wood and emerge once wood is brought inside the home or they may take refuge in firewood stacked too close to the home and move inside later.

There are a large number of wood infesting insects and wood is subject to attack while trees are standing as well as after they are cut and wood is stacked and stored. Infested wood that is stored inside the home is often the source of wood boring beetles and other insects that are found by homeowners. The insect's life cycle is accelerated by temperatures found inside the home. The insects develop rapidly and when adults emerge from the wood, they cause great concern to the homeowner.

The majority of insects found in firewood are harmless to structural timbers, furniture, and other wooden structures found inside the home. Homeowners can consider most firewood dwelling insects as merely nuisance pests. Powder post beetles (lyctids and anobids) emerging from firewood stored inside the home will not attack seasoned wood or woods that have been painted, varnished or sealed. Cockroaches, psocids, spiders, earwigs, and scorpions may also inhabit firewood, but will seldom damage home structures.

HOW TO AVOID INSECT PROBLEMS IN FIREWOOD PREVENTION:

1. Store firewood away from the house to eliminate a convenient harborage site for pests.

2. Keep firewood off the ground. Wood in contact with the ground provides an attractive harborage area.

3. Stack firewood to accelerate the drying out process. Wood should be stacked so that air can flow through and around the wood. Stacking wood in alternate rows also permits easy access by predators and parasites to many of the inhabitants of stored firewood.

4. Do not store large quantities of firewood inside the home. Bring wood inside the home in a short period of time.

5. Purchase wood that has been out during the fall or winter. This wood will be dry enough by spring to discourage infestation by many of the wood infesting insects.

CHEMICAL CONTROL
1. DO NOT TREAT FIREWOOD WITH INSECTICIDES.

Treating firewood with insecticides is not a safe practice and will not result in any measurable control. Most insects inhabiting firewood live in the wood or between the wood - bark interface. An insecticidal spray will seldom, if ever, reach these insects.

2. It may be necessary to occasionally treat the soil under and around firewood stacks to prevent insects from inhabiting the area. Many insecticides with long residual are available for this purpose. Read the label and follow direction on application rates.

in the PHS Library. Those knowing addresses of former classmates and those wishing to help with the plans are encouraged to attend the meeting. The reunion is scheduled for the last weekend in July. Persons wanting further information may contact Shimon or Morrison. (Staff photo by Larry Hollis)

Peeking at Pampa

The January sun rises and sets, weeks come and go, while busy Pampans and activities move right along. Want to hear about it?

Pampa's South Side Senior Citizens report their Christmas bazaar and sweet shop was quite successful and profitable. The Center is adding two new programs this year - Telephone Reassurance and Friendly Visitors. Anyone who could benefit from either program can find out more by calling 665-4765. Reassurance volunteers include Naomi Neal, Charity O'Neal, Fannie Conley, Allie Blackshire, Willie Vinson and Berta Gray. Friendly Visitors volunteers are Katie Williams, Winnie Roland, Earl Johnson, Billie Phea and M.E. Williams.

Heard, too, that Winnie Roland visited her children recently in San Antonio; however, she left them with the wintry weather and heavy snow to come back to sunny Pampa!

It's "Goodbye!" "Good luck!" and "We'll miss you!" to Barbara and Marion John who will move soon to Clear Lake where Marion will be plant manager of a Celanese plant. Marion, Pampa plant manager for the past five years, has been an active civic leader as immediate past president of the Chamber of Commerce, a Rotarian, and member of the Coronado Community Hospital board. The Johns are members of Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ.

Barbara will be missed as an active member of the CCH auxiliary. Brent, their son, will graduate from Pampa High School in May. People like the Johns are never replaced - only missed.

Earlene and Harold Baston, Mary and Harry Muns, Dorothy and Sherman Cowan, Margaret and Glen Dowdy spent a recent weekend in Fort Worth visiting Mabel and Richard Tunnell, former Pampans. While in the area Margaret and Glen visited their daughter Yvonne and her husband Glen Erwin of Decatur.

Margaret and Randy Matson, Jessica, Jim and Cole of College Station visited Jessie and Bob Burns, Margaret's parents. Randy, a former Olympic star, is head of the Alumni Association of Texas A&M University.

Tracy Cary spent a few days in Lubbock recently. As you would guess, while there he (1) attended more than one church service and (2) was invited to play the organ at First Methodist. A bus man's holiday?

Betty and Jim Brown spent the New Year's weekend in the Houston area.

A few 1977 Pampa High School grads met after Christmas for a wine and cheese party with Anne Henderson, daughter of Betty and Smiley and Sara Riehart (Ruth and Bruce) as hostesses. Attending were Keith Coffee (Nancy and Doug) and his bride Adell, Leigh Barrett Anderson (Dorothy and Raymond) and husband David, Frank Stowers (Dot and Dick), Ann Carmichael (Virginia and Bob).

An update of their current endeavors reads this way: Ann Henderson, studying towards her masters; Sara Riehart, nearing her doctorate; Ann Carmichael, teaching and working toward her masters; Keith Coffee, attending medical school; Frank Stowers, employed with a banking firm; Leigh Anderson, preparing a nursery for a Barrett grandchild - on-the-way.

The report on Roady Spoonemore (Susie and Dean) is that in August he will begin his dentistry practice in Sherman.

Congratulations to Mary and John Smith of Miami, who celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary last Sunday. Their son, Wayde, through high scholastic standing, earned the privilege of wearing a scholar's robe on campus, a tradition of the University of the South at Sevannee, Tenn., where he attends school. Last summer he studied in Oxford, England.

Their daughter Mandy Tenney and her husband have a baby girl, Allison (nicknamed "Dolly" by her grandpa because she is a beautiful doll in his eyes). They live in Aurora, Colo. Youngest son, Eric, is a Miami High School student.

Lisa (Mrs. Greg) Acker was the baby shower honoree last week at First Baptist Church. Hostesses were Brenda (Mrs. Chris) Coffman, Kathy (Mrs. Charlie) Thomas, Kim (Mrs. Marshall) Hopkins, Shari (Mrs. Charles) Langen and Brook (Mrs. Kent) Vise. Trinity (Mrs. Kent) Jones flew up from Austin for the occasion. A few days later Brook was seen pushing little Will in his stroller at a shopping center. He's a cutie!

An example of high fashion in the young, young set was worn by 8-month-old Michael Paulson to church recently. His Tinery included navy pants, white oxford dress shirt, red plaid vest with brass buttons, no less, bow tie and wing tip shoes. A real fashion plate!

Father Jim Tolbert of St. Matthews Episcopal Church spent a few days in Florida last week.

The Gray County Sesquicentennial Committee and interested citizens, not to be confused with Gray County Historical Society, is to compile a history of Gray County to be distributed through sales. About 60 people including coordinators Darlene (Mrs. Wallace) Birkes, Eileta (Mrs. Quentin) Nolte and Eloise Lane attended an all-day training session provided by the publishing company last Thursday. You are invited to write your family history for publication and mail it to Box 2196. Keep watching for more information.

Becky and Terry Allen are pleased and proud as can be that little Trevor at the age of one day chose them for parents. Congratulations to the happy family!

Two pleased ladies are Margie Pontious and Sandy Crosswhite, recipients of necklaces for Christmas gifts. John Pontious succeeded in surprising Margie with a lapis necklace and earrings. Richard Crosswhite's gift was a garnet and gold bead necklace.

Jim Ward presented a program on the Pampa Chamber of Commerce's upcoming building program for the Pampa Varietas Study Club. Club members, including Nina Spoonemore, Gladys (Mrs. Jess) Kirchman, Eula Cary and Laura (Mrs. L.B.) Penick asked some challenging questions about the project. Georgia Mack, president, presented Jim with a horseshoe tie tack for good luck in his efforts on this project. Interest, expressed with contributions, is gaining momentum by the day.

Carpet was scheduled to be laid last week in the building project at Zion Lutheran Church. Members will be moving into their new sanctuary and Sunday School rooms soon. April 14 is the date set for formal dedication services.

Special congratulations and expressions of appreciation to Winifred (Mrs. J.G.) Crinklaw who retired from 29 years of service at Lovett Memorial Library. She was the honoree at a reception hosted by staff members, library board of directors, and Friends of the Library last Sunday afternoon. Happy retirement, Winifred!

Mae (Mrs. Clyde) Ferguson proudly showed a picture of her father, J.B. "Red" Owens, formerly a long-time resident of Pampa now of Bakersfield, Colo., enjoying his 90th birthday surrounded by all the cards he received from friends and well-wishers. Mr. Owens, retired from Phillips, lived in Pampa from 1929 until 1979. In addition to his daughter, he has grandsons Howard Reed, and his wife Linda, and Jess Dean Reed and his wife Doris, here in Pampa as well as four great grandchildren. Many happy wishes on your birthday!

Marie (Mrs. Don) Egerton was honored recently with a reception at First Baptist Church where she has been secretary to the minister for more than 30 years.

Kind words to family volunteers who appear at Coronado Nursing Center every day about 4:30 p.m. to help not only their family members but other residents, as well, as to getting to the dining room and feeding them when necessary - always with kindness and patience. A few of them are Betty Garrett, Dorothy Jeffries, Bett and Lester Sloan and Jeannie (Mrs. Claude) Cone.

See you next week! KATIE

Biopsies for benign lumps don't increase cancer risks

BOSTON (AP) - Contrary to once-common belief, most women who have benign lumps removed from their breasts have no unusual risk of breast cancer in later years, a study released today shows.

Breast cancer is the most frequent malignancy in women, striking 1 in 11 at some time during their lives. While women who have had breast biopsies may someday have the disease, the new research shows that in general their odds are no worse than anyone's.

"They were able to hone down the increased risk, if any exists, to a very small group of patients," Dr. Susan M. Love of Boston's Beth Israel Hospital said of the research. "The importance of the paper is not so much picking out that small group, since it's such a small number, but the fact that the other people don't really have an increased risk."

The study, conducted by Drs. David L. Page and William D. Dupont of Vanderbilt University, was based on a review of 10,366 breast biopsies at three Nashville, Tenn., hospitals.

Only 4 percent of the women with benign lumps - those whose biopsies revealed a condition called atypical hyperplasia - face a "medically significant" increase in risk, the researchers found. They are about four times more likely than usual to have breast cancer.

Dear Abby

Assembly-line thank-yous save time but not feelings

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of the enclosed thank-you note we just received for a wedding gift we sent to a couple?

As you can see, not only is it a form letter, it was made on a copy machine. The senders had left blanks in which they filled in the names of the givers and the kind of gift they had sent.

If we had not received this, we never would have believed that anyone would send such a "thank-you."

Please don't use any real names.
APPALLED

"Dear (Marty and Mary),
"Just a personal note to let you know how much we enjoyed your presence at our wedding and reception. You were who we most hoped would attend. We decided that your gift of a pewter ashtray was our favorite. What a coincidence that we were discussing just before the wedding how much we needed (a pewter ashtray).
"Sincerely, (Bride and Groom)
"P.S. Please don't show this note to anybody else."

DEAR APPALLED: I, too, am appalled. However, I doubt that this type of acknowledgment will ever catch on.

DEAR ABBY: Our family has been having a strong disagreement about what happens to relatives by marriage after a divorce occurs in the family, so my husband suggested we write to you.

My brother was married to "Sally" for 13 years, during which time she was an aunt to my children, right? Then my brother and Sally were divorced, and my brother married somebody else. Sally then cut herself off from our family and didn't want to know any of us. My brother says that since Sally was only an aunt by marriage, she is no longer my children's aunt.

My husband says that since Sally was married to my brother when our children were born, she will always be their aunt even though she divorced my brother.

Who is right, my brother or my husband?

DISAGREEING IN EUGENE, ORE.

DEAR DISAGREEING: When people are related by marriage, the relationship technically ends if the marriage ends. Your brother is right.

DEAR ABBY: It's possible that the Boston stores put one over on you, but they didn't get away with it in New Jersey. A woman filed a complaint against two stores seven years ago when she suspected there were two-way mirrors in the ladies' dressing rooms.

An employee revealed that not only detectives were looking, some of the store personnel also took turns looking. He said they were in hysterics when a fat lady tried on a bikini and did a little dance in front of the mirror!

Another time the men lined up in front of a peephole to get a look at an unbelievably well-built woman "everyone had to see."

Art center organizes exhibition

The Amarillo Art Center announces the premiere showing of the exhibition "Julian Onderdonk: A Texas Tradition," organized by the Art Center in observance of the upcoming Texas Sesquicentennial.

The exhibition consists of 50 works by Texas artist Julian Onderdonk (1882 - 1922), one of the Southwest's leading landscape painters. The show is to be on exhibit at the art center from Jan. 26 through March 17, when it will begin an 18-month tour to seven other Texas institutions.

Onderdonk was born July 30, 1882, in San Antonio, the son of artist Robert Jenkins Onderdonk. He showed an early interest in art, and received his initial training from his father. He studied briefly at the Art Student's League in New York, but his most influential teacher was William Merritt Chase, who advocated painting out - of - doors in a direct approach to nature.

After several years trying to support himself and his family in New York, Onderdonk returned to Texas, where his fresh, impressionistic renderings of the native landscape quickly gained popularity.

His success brought him many imitators, and his influence on Southwestern landscape painting can be seen to this day.

Onderdonk organized art exhibitions for the Dallas Fair each year from 1906 until 1922, with the exceptions of 1915 and 1918. He died on Oct. 27, 1922, at age 40 of an intestinal obstruction.

His works are in many public collections, including the Dallas Museum of Art, the Museum of Fine Arts in Houston, the Los Angeles County Museum of Art and the San Antonio Museum Association.

Accompanying the exhibition

BLUEBONNETS, Texas Hill Country by Julian Onderdonk.

is to be a fully illustrated catalog with a biographical essay by Cecelia Steinfeldt, senior curator, San Antonio Museum Association.

In addition to the Amarillo Art Center, the exhibition is to travel to Galveston, Austin, Dallas, Odessa, Victoria, McAllen and Lubbock.

DISTRICT ROPING SCHOOL
There will be a District I 4-H Calf Roping School at the Bill Cody Arena in Amarillo June 25 - 27. The approximate cost for the school will be $60.

Any Gray County 4-H'ers who wish to attend this school should contact the county Extension office before Jan. 31.

RECORD BOOK WORKSHOP
Mark your calendars now to attend a weekend training for leaders and parents on the subject of record books. You have two weekends to choose from: March 23-24 or March 30-31. These training sessions will be held in Brownwood at the Texas 4-H

Center. It is very important that we send at least two leaders or parents to this training. Gray County needs to turn in a lot of record books for district.

By turning in a book, 4-H'ers are able to tell the story of their 4-H projects. Remember — scholarships and trips to National Congress are based on record books.

This training will help you to understand the changes and reforms in the new Senior National Report Form and the new Junior Report Forms. Please consider this opportunity. It should be very good training and also enjoyable.

METHOD DEMONSTRATIONS
A trip of fun, new friends and a life-time memory should be everyone's incentive for doing a Method Demonstration or Illustrated Talk. We are going to begin working on Method Demonstrations this month.

Begin thinking of a subject you would like to talk about and tell others about. Just about anything will fit into a category.

We will be giving club programs on Method Demonstrations during January. For those of you who are not familiar with Method Demonstrations, this will be your opportunity to find out about them.

The trip I spoke of earlier is to Texas State 4-H Roundup at Texas A&M in June. If you are a 4-H'er, this trip is within reach if you have the desire and drive to do it. If you are 9-13, you need to start working toward the trip by gaining experience and knowledge of how to do a first class demonstration.

We look forward to great participation in Method Demonstrations.

GOP majority leader has 1986 on his mind

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 99th Congress has met only twice this year, but the new Senate majority leader, Bob Dole of Kansas, is scrambling as if these were the last, not the first, days of the session.

It's not even Inauguration Day, and Dole is thinking about 1986 when 22 Republican senators — including himself — are up for re-election. A slide in the economy could return control of the Senate to the Democrats, who dominated it for a quarter century.

Nevertheless, it's no secret that Dole believes what Congress does in the next few months about the economy may not only determine the survival of the Republican Senate, but perhaps even his own — and his wife's — political future.

So Dole is emphasizing Republican efforts to reduce the budget deficit, charting an independent course from the White House by announcing that Senate Republicans will draft their own document.

"We do have a majority after a long, long dry spell," Dole said in a recent interview. "We've had a majority for four years, and we ought to try and preserve it."

"There ought to be a period of time, six months or hopefully longer, when we do what we ought to do and not try to speculate about anything."

That speculation centers around 1988 when Dole may run for president or, in an unusual twist, his wife, Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole, might run for vice president.

"She seems more concerned about what I'm going to do in '88," Dole said. "She doesn't seem to have any drive or any desire to push herself in '88 — which may be the best strategy in town."

Mrs. Dole isn't offering a clue about her thoughts, preferring to turn questions about her political future to an energetic discourse on highway safety and airport legislation.

"I'm not laying the foundation for anything else," she said, insisting it's too early for them to think seriously about the White House. "I'll be fully supporting him if he decides to join the race in '88."

Dole insisted he's not following the lead of Vice President George Bush, who said last week he has instructed aides to come up with a "prudent" plan to see what he has to do to keep his options open for a 1988 presidential bid.

"I don't think prudent planners are going to get you the nomination in '88," Dole said. "It depends on what happens in the economy and where people want to go."

Dole said he feels a sense of urgency about the economy and the budget. "If we don't finish it soon, we'll flounder and end up on the rocks somewhere," he said.

Dole is spending a lot of time these days shuttling between Capitol Hill and the White House, scheduling back-to-back budget meetings between members of Congress, the Reagan administration, leaders in business and labor. He's laying the groundwork to ensure that when the number-crunchers take out their calculators, there is a united Republican front.

Among those watching closely is Dole's Democratic counterpart, Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia, whose job as Senate minority leader is to protect interests of Democratic senators.

"I am very favorably impressed with the way Mr. Dole is tackling these challenging problems," said Byrd, who served as majority leader himself from 1978 to 1980. "Mr. Dole's independence will serve him well and serve the administration well."

Dole said that in past years, Congress has had a tendency to start slowly, that it's unusual for much to happen before Inauguration Day.

"Some of that is built in, and you can't change it," Dole said, shrugging. Then he smiled: "But that doesn't mean you can't do a lot of groundwork."

And that is part of Dole's strategy. He wants to include every Republican senator in the budget process in hopes that each feels he or she has a say — and a stake — in the outcome.

One day last week Dole arranged a White House meeting that included conservative senators Jesse Helms of North Carolina, Steven D. Symms of Idaho and freshman Mitch McConnell of Kentucky, moderate Sen. Pete V. Domenici of New Mexico and the more liberal Sen. Charles Mathias Jr. of Maryland.

This week Dole's schedule included two more meetings with White House officials, as well as with Federal Reserve Board chairman Paul A. Volcker, the executive committee of the Business Roundtable and New Right leader Paul Weyrich.

"I get 15 calls a day from him," said Sen. Alan K. Simpson of Wyoming, whose job as majority whip is to assist Dole in pushing the Republican agenda. "What he's saying to people is, 'Here's the damn budget. Now we have to deal with it.' There's a sense of urgency about him."

Simpson echoed Dole's concern that Republicans must deal with the economy.

"I'm not about to lead my Senate colleagues blindly off the edge," Simpson said. "They'll take less of a bath if the economy goes on a slide than if their constituents find out they had an opportunity to make tough decisions and didn't do it."

Texan's homespun play opening off-Broadway

By CARL HOOVER
Waco Tribune Herald

WACO, Texas (AP) — Waco may be a Texas town on the lips of New York theatergoers if off-Broadway audiences find a warm place in their hearts for the Central Texas found in "Outside Waco," a new play making its New York debut Jan. 30.

For its creator, Patricia Griffith, "Outside Waco" was not only a pleasant return to the Texas of her childhood, but an invigorating change of pace from her novels and short stories, two of which are included in the O. Henry Prize Stories of 1970 and 1976.

"Outside Waco" takes place in Bright Light, Texas, a small Central Texas town whose loss of a bank is a symbol of its decline. It's a small-town, middle-class Texas composed of butane tank drivers, Dr Pepper, knotty pine kitchens, the Senior Sunshine Social Club and prayer chains at the Piggly Wiggly.

Although the daughters of Bright Light resident George Matthews hail from Dallas, Nashville and Washington, D.C., Waco is still the big city for Bright Light residents.

For Matthews, who floats in and out of rationality much to his daughters' displeasure, Waco and a past truth pledged on its outskirts represents a security to which he longs to return.

For the playwright, a 1958 Baylor University graduate, Waco represents the Texas she knows best.

"I grew up in East Texas," Ms. Griffith said in a recent phone interview. "Waco is kind of the center of Texas, in my mind."

Add to that some peculiarities of Waco's history, its "typically Texas" landscape and its unusual sounding name, and one sees why Griffith chose to set her first play outside Waco.

Her play premiered in Dallas in a Theatre Three production, running for four weeks before enthusiastic Dallas audiences who found the play an appealing slice of Texas life, one dead perfect in detail.

Matthews' daughters Sarah, Georgia and Juanita return to Bright Light when their mother suffers a stroke and dies. But before they can return to their individual pursuits, a tenacious Sarah demands they resolve the question of who will take care of Daddy.

Turning loose of individual careers and lifestyles proves easier said than done, however. Georgia, nicknamed Geogiaberry, is on the verge of making the big time in country music. Juanita, a Washington travel agent, has been left by her husband, and she is living with a woman lover. And Sarah, a teacher with teen-age daughter Lashondra — whose name is a vestige of past civil rights activism — is in the midst of her doctoral studies of Edna St. Vincent Millay.

Matthews, for his part, shuffles from memories outside Waco, his days as a butane gas sales agent, the activities of the Senior Sunshine Social Club at the First Baptist Church and "stompin'" his favorite exercise.

While he floats from fog to fog his daughters bicker over Geogiaberry's career (which she defends, saying, "It's not trashy music, honey. It's just livin' here on earth."), Juanita's girlfriend and Sarah's insistence of making her other sisters care for Daddy.

In the course of their contention, however, each daughter confronts personal disappointment and tragedy and finds that despite the fighting they still love each other.

Unlike the women that George Matthews grew up with, who were content to stay at home and raise a family while their husbands brought in the paycheck, Matthews' daughters are all involved in careers that in many ways determine their characters.

Sarah wants the professional security of tenure. Geogiaberry is infected with potential stardom. And Juanita finds her independence from the home is a "of their professional life," Ms. Griffith said. "What a person does really colors their personal life, even if it's only pumping gas."

Ms. Griffith is optimistic her play, with its strong regional flavor, will do well among New York audiences at the Hudson Guild Theatre, an off-Broadway playhouse that has seen premieres of such successes as "On Golden Pond."

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

January 21, 1985

In the year ahead you may participate in a venture where you will play a minor but rewarding role. The pleasure you derive from the project will be more satisfying than the limelight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Put on a positive face if you hope to inspire or direct others today. Appearances are important, so to be a leader you must look like one. The Matchmaker wheel reveals your compatibility to all signs, as well as showing you what signs you are best suited to romantically. To get yours, mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Do not ignore your hunches or intuitive perceptions today. They'll provide you with insights your logic may dismiss.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) When associating with friends today, be flexible and understanding. If you show evidence of stubbornness, they'll mirror your behavior.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Substantial achievements are possible today, provided you're prepared to work hard for what you hope to gain. Don't expect free rides.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Testy situations are manageable today if you keep a cool head and take what occurs philosophically. Don't trip over molehills.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This is a good day to investigate in depth a matter you've been curious about. Your talents for probing or detecting are keener than usual.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Avoid impulses today to jump to conclusions before you have all the facts. Judgments made in haste will not serve your best interests.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You won't be happy today unless you find ways to use your time productively. Let others go off on tangents, but be sure you stay on an industrious course.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Instead of telling others what they should or should not do today, lead by example. Your actions will be far more effective than a thousand words.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The secret to accomplishing a lot today is to get an early start and maintain a steady pace. Do not leave anything until the last minute.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If the name of someone you've been out of touch with lately pops into your mind today, contact this person as promptly as possible. He may have good news.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Have your trowel and mortar ready today because you might be able to lay the foundation for a future financial accomplishment.

Angel survives midseason

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael Landon chose one of the oldest devices in film when he created the probationary angel for his new NBC series "Highway to Heaven."

The use of angels goes back to the pioneer days of the cinema ("Intolerance" in 1916), and angels have been played by a variety of stars: Claude Rains in "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," Jack Benny in "The Horn Blows at Midnight," Robert Cummings in "Heaven Only Knows," Cary Grant in "The Bishop's Wife," and Warren Beatty in "Heaven Can Wait."

"Highway to Heaven" is one of the few fall shows to survive midseason. The show hasn't obtained the huge ratings of "The Cosby Show," but has done well enough to be a success. In the latest ratings period, it was 27th out of 65 shows and got 25 percent of the audience tuned in at that time. "Highway to Heaven" is basically an anthology, and the only regular characters are Landon, as the angel, and Victor French as his sidekick. In each episode Landon and French become involved with a group of people who need a helping hand — and a little reminder that life is worth living. They become involved in the people's lives and subtly guide them toward making the right decision.

Landon, back in his office at MGM after spending the holidays at home with his wife and eight children and one grandchild, says, "I spent 14 years on the ranch on 'Bonanza' and nine years on 'Little House on the Prairie'... People tend to lose their juices if they can't move around and be challenged."

Few people become as involved with a series as does Landon. He's executive producer, star and writes and directs about a third of all the shows. He maintained the same pace on "Little House."

Landon, who was Little Joe on "Bonanza," first started writing when the popular Western series came up without a script one week. If a script wasn't found by Monday morning the show would stop production. On Friday, Landon sat down on his living room floor with a yellow pad and pencil and, using a coffee table as a desk, turned out a script over the weekend.

Despite the large number of shows he now writes or rewrites, Landon still writes while sitting on the floor.

Over the years, Landon has invested the earnings from his various shows in businesses, and he learned first-hand the woes of being a Defense Department supplier. A small company he owns makes duffel bags, tents and cargo tie-downs.

DEBUT ON DYNASTY—Ali MacGraw, seated right, debuts as Lady Ashley Mitchell, an international photojournalist on ABC-TV's "Dynasty." Jan. 23. Guest starring will be Rock Hudson, right, as Daniel Reece, joining the show's regular stars, John Forsythe, as Blake Carrington, and Linda Evans, as Krystle Carrington. (AP Laserphoto)

Ricky Skaggs, 'chance-taker'

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country-bluegrass singer Ricky Skaggs figures he risked his career to prove that he could popularize his style of music, a style that reprises the sound of Roy Acuff and Bill Monroe two generations ago.

In three years as a recording artist for CBS Records, Skaggs has been acclaimed as the best traditional country performer to emerge in years.

He has three Gold albums and eight No. 1 singles, including "Uncle Pen" which last October became the first bluegrass tune recorded by a solo artist to be No. 1 on the country charts.

And success has come with what Skaggs calls "morally good songs — nothing satanic or drug-oriented."

"I base a song on whether I could sing it for my mom and dad," he said. "I don't mean to be self-righteous. I just don't like to hear those songs. The morality of my music is part of my appeal."

Reflecting on his quick-starting career that earned him male vocalist of the year from the Country Music Association in 1982, when he was just 27, Skaggs admits he's been "a chance-taker."

"Three years ago, we all took a big chance when no one else was having success with country and bluegrass music," the former Kentucky mountain boy said. "I figured it would go, and (I) put it on the line and was willing to starve if I had to. CBS took a risk (too)."

"I guess it may have proven a point: that country and bluegrass music can sell records. 'Uncle Pen' was a big shot in the arm for this style of music. That's something. If you have talent and play this kind of music, you should 'go for it.' "I'm not sure I'm a trailblazer. But to be able to have some success and preserve that music and bring it up front... the music deserves to be heard. The music is good; people aren't buying it just to save the music, but because they like it."

Skaggs, blessed with a pure tenor and dazzling musicianship, still embraces the moral and religious principles he learned as a youngster along Brushy Creek deep in Appalachia.

A teetotaler, he is a spokesman for MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Driving). He played in nightclubs during his first year on tour, but avoids them now because the gospel tunes he does don't fit in: "It's hard to sing gospel with beer bottles clanging and everyone raising Cain."

Peter Davies stars as Fr. Jim Vocek on ABC's "Loving."

Peter Davies portrays Father Jim Vocek, a compassionate and sympathetic man with a warm sense of humor and boundless energy for his life's work, in "Loving," on ABC.

Born and reared in Walnut Creek, Calif., Peter always wanted to be an actor and he studied at the American Conservatory Theatre in San Francisco where he earned a Master of Fine Arts degree.

Peter has acted in a wide range of plays in regional and repertory theatre from "The Dining Room" at the Huntington Theater in Boston, to "Romeo and Juliet" at the Kenyon Festival Theatre in Gambier, Ohio, "Cymbeline" at the Hartford (Conn.) Stage Co., "Hamlet" at the Old Globe Theatre in San Diego, to "Fifth of July," "The Homecoming," "The Cherry Orchard," "The Misanthrope" and "The Seagull" at the American Conservatory Theatre.

Off-Broadway, Peter has appeared in "The Blue Dahlia" and "Crystal Blaze." His television credits include "The Streets of San Francisco" and "Taming of the Shrew."

Last week we took a loving and long look at 1984's most exciting storylines. This week let's gaze into our crystal balls and see what 1985 may have in store for our favorite shows and characters. See you this time next year to see how many stories were predicted accurately.

PREVIEWS FOR 1985
ON ALL MY CHILDREN (ABC)—Greg becomes obsessed with Sheila. Nina falls under Zach's spell. Adam destroys Erica's new business venture. Daisy walks out on Palmer over Cynthia. Mike gets fed up with Erica's lies and threatens to leave her. Donna's heart will be broken again when Tom leaves her. Dottie becomes bitter and decides if she can't have Tad no one will. Liza convinces Cliff to stay away from Nina.

ON SEARCH FOR TOMORROW (NBC)—T.R. slowly adjusts to the fact that Lloyd is her father. Liza begins to have an affair with Kentucky. Suzi and Cagney are kept apart when Suzi is tried for attempted murder. Wendy turns on Warren when she realizes he is on a vendetta. Stephanie has a new love in her life but he poses a threat to her position at the TV station. Jo and Stu have problems with their business.

ON AS THE WORLD TURNS (CBS)—Betsy and Steve will have marital problems when Steve gets greedy and puts them in great debt. John and Lucinda make a formidable team. Kim puts romance with Bob on hold. Kirk and Marcy have a brief romance. Lisa has a new man in her life. Cal pursues Maggie even though she's married to Frank. Jay and Kirk reconcile. John and Bob clash over hospital business.

ON LOVING (ABC)—The reconciliation between Shana and Ann will be temporary. Conflict over Dane will be the cause. Jack will be forced into an expanded relationship with Ava. Shana's marriage to Mike will be haunted by her memories of Jim. Dane will get his hands on the Forbes fortune. Stacey will realize how much she loves Jack too late. Cabot will suffer setbacks in business.

ON DAYS OF OUR LIVES (NBC)—Megan's plan to electrocute Hope will backfire tragically for her. Bo will pursue Hope but she has lost patience with him. Melissa will be in great danger as a result of Barry's drug dealing. Marlena will go on a private crusade to bring Stefano to justice. Is Roman really dead or will he emerge from the DiMera crypt? Eugene and Calliope will marry despite his mother's objections.

ON CAPITOL (CBS)—Sloane and Trey will have marital problems when he asks for political favors in her job. Paula will rock Washington with her new book. Mark and Clarissa will pledge their love once more. Julie and Tyler will have a stormy year as Zed continues his friendship with Julie. Cheetah will not win Chip's love. Kelly resurfaces in Washington through her paintings. Wally and Brenda defy the Cleggs and continue their romance.

ON RYAN'S HOPE (ABC)—Jack's daughter, Ryan, will return as a 14 year old. Jill and Frank temporarily reconcile but are driven apart by work and Max. Maggie and Dave face an uncertain future as her career blossoms. Siobhan's career as a policewoman is in jeopardy as she pursues a killer. Max's past comes back to haunt him with the death of another of his associates. Rick and Bill grow closer despite brotherly conflicts.

ON ANOTHER WORLD (NBC)—Carl will launch a campaign against Mac to make it look like he's lost his mind. Thomasina is pregnant but isn't sure she wants to be married. Marley will find out Donna is her mother. Sally's son rejects her relationship with Catlin which causes a conflict between Sally and Catlin. Larry and Clarice will have marital problems. Cass and Kathleen will fall in love.

ON THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS (CBS)—Victor will have an affair with Ashley which will drive Nikki into Jack's arms. Paul and Lauren will split up when he realizes what a schemer she is. Traci will have a new love in her life. Jill will be forced to contemplate murder when Kay backs her into a corner over the blackmail photos. Dina and Brent will renew old feelings. Brent will want to claim one of Dina's offspring as his own. John will begin working closer with Lindsay much to Jill's dismay.

ON GENERAL HOSPITAL (ABC)—Brook makes many enemies and one of them might do him in. Derek will pressure Ginny to leave Rick. Monica will have an extramarital affair and jeopardize her marriage to Alan. Jimmy Lee will lure Celia away from Grant. Tony and Frisco will have a better understanding of each other. Lorena will get back at Jimmy Lee for deceiving her by hurting her reputation. Holly will defy Robert and solve an important mystery.

ON DALLAS (CBS)—Pam will reunite with Mark but eventually go back to Bobbie. Jenna will be cleared of Marchetta's murder by an unlikely source. Bobbie will make a mysterious exit at season's end. Miss Ellie and Clayton will fight about her children. J.R. and Cliff will form an alliance that will baffle and confuse Barnes and Ewing clans.

ON RITUALS—Mike will go to Diandra to warn her of the consequences if she is wrong about the father of her child. Clay will promise Julia some great news when they meet. Taylor will tell a crestfallen Christina that Patrick's first will is in force. Carter will put his latest plan into effect—a plan that might be his final chance. Tom will explain an important decision to an amazed Mike. Diandra will receive shocking news from the doctor and Taylor will confront a smug Carter.

GUIDING LIGHT (CBS)—Kyle will replace Alan Spaulding as arch villain in Springfield. Philip will return with a new look after a brief hiatus. Beth and Lujack will be kept apart by Lujack's stubborn quest to clear his name. Maureen and Ed will start a family. Tony and Jill will come to blows over Annabelle. Vanessa will scare her family with an awful drug problem.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE (ABC)—Jenny and David will be driven apart by Michelle. Bo will be drawn to baby Drew and Didi will feel threatened. Rafe and Deilah will marry to give their baby a home. Asa and Becky will reunite, but she will realize how much she still cares for Bo. Dorian will have a new love in her life that will dominate her. Tina and Clint will notice that Vicki is acting strange, will Niki return?

SANTA BARBARA (NBC)—Sweeping cast changes will reveal a brand new family taking over center stage in this drama. Joe will not have a happy love-life. Mason will disappoint his family with his destructive attitude. C.C.'s villainy will be balanced by a new female cast member who will be a thorn in Capwell's side. Look for an exciting new mystery to develop in February.

1 Card of Thanks

WE wish to express our heartfelt thanks to our family friends, and neighbors for the love and sympathy shown to our family during the illness and death of our darling husband and daddy. We especially wish to thank Norman Rushing, for the visits and prayers, concern his beautiful consoling message the Odd fellow and Rebecca lodge and friends and family who brought food to our home. The Central Baptist church who served food and opened their parlor to our family, to Paul and Carol Helms for the heart warming message of song. Our deepest appreciation to each one of you for the lovely flowers, cards and words of love and kindness to Dr. J.F. Elder and staff, the Coronado Hospital the Agape Society for their concern, comfort and loving care, to Carmichael Whitley for the beautiful rites. Without the loves of our Lord, our family, our friends our precious memories, our prayers of comfort and strength during the past year our burden would have been much heavier. Avis Walls, Patsy Goodwin and family, Katherine Helms and family.

I would like to thank everyone for their cards and letters during my recent stay at the hospital.

W.A. Pershall

J.B. (RED) OWENS
