Judge rules against independents

From Staff and Wire Reports WASHINGTON, D.C.

Independent oil drillers who tapped into a Texas Panhandle natural gas field illegally diverted billions of cubic feet from interstate commerce and federal pricing controls, an administrative law judge has ruled.

Judge Brenda P. Murray, administrative judge with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC), issued a ruling Wednesday afternoon against 35 of 37 independent oil drillers in the case brought by Dorchester Gas Producing Co.

Dorchester had taken its case to FERC complaining independent oil companies had tapped into the company's gas reserves on a 20,000-acre portion of the West

Panhandle Field in Carson and Gray Counties.

Dorchester had claimed the drillers removed 8.6 billion cubic feet of natural gas that was to be sold in federally controlled interstate markets.

The gas company owns gas rights on the field, and the 37 independents had oil-drilling rights.

The independents and Dorchester, joined by various other major oil companies, related utilities and other interests, presented several weeks of testimony at FERC hearings in late summer of last year

The oil companies admitted they were bringing up the gas, but they contended it was "casinghead gas," a normal byproduct of oil regulation. They had argued Dorchester had no legal claim to casinghead gas.

"FERC Administrative Law Judge Brenda P. Murray said expert evidence left no doubt that most of the companies' gas production was not casinghead gas," said a FERC release accompanying the ruling.

The gas that was not casinghead gas was subject to federal price controls. By selling it for higher prices in unregulated markets, the oil drillers violated federal rules, the judge ruled.

Under federal regulations. Dorchester had been selling its natural gas, so-called "old gas." for interstate distribution at 50 cents per 1.000 cubic feet (Mcf.).

Pipelines had been buying the independents' gas, which they had claimed was so-called "new gas" not subject to the federal price controls, at about $3 per Mcf.

Value of the 8.6 billion cubic feet of disputed gas has been estimated at $5 million to $25 million, depending on whether sale price is computed at maximum prices established for old or new gas.

Two of the 37 oil drillers - Meyer Farms and J. B. Watkins - were dropped from the case due to lack of evidence. But Judge Murray recommended the commission seek additional information on their cases

"Apparently it is an unfavorable ruling for all but those two," said Charles Moore, a former FERC counsel now practicing law in Houston and representing the oil drillers.

Moore said he had taken a first look at the 47-page ruling.

"Her (the judge's) decision is simply a recommendation," he said. "The next step is to see what the commission wants to do with it. The ball's in their court.'

While the judge's ruling is "obviously unfavorable" for independents, "It ain't over until it's over," Moore said.

He said the matters in the disputes had been "extremely difficult for her to grapple with, and she made some mistakes, he said, in his opinion.

But the ruling had some favorable elements, he noted. Judge Murray did rule that casinghead gas is not dedicated to interstate markets and thus not subject to federal controls, he said.

But she was wrong on other matters, and he hoped the FERC commissioners would study the ruling and evidence and make other decisions more favorable to the independents, he indicated.

"There's still some fighting to do." he stated.

Moore has said the case could eventually effect billions of dollars worth of gas if the agency rules for Dorchester and broadens the ruling to apply to other similar

John L. Dannelly, Dorchester's vice president in Amarillo, declined comment because he hadn't seen the judge's order.

Famine-relief cargo seized by Ethiopia

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) -Australia says it will protest Ethiopia's seizure of the cargo and crew of a ship carrying Australian famine-relief food and supplies to rebel-held areas of the impoverished African nation.

Ethiopia's Marxist government seized the cargo ship Golden Venture at the Red Sea port of Assab, and a spokesman for the Ethiopian Foreign Ministry on Wednesday described Australia's plan to aid rebel areas as "tantamount to interference in our internal affairs

An estimated 7.75 million people are suffering from drought-related food shortages in Ethiopia. Many of the victims live in guerrilla-controlled areas of northern Tigre and Eritrea provinces

In Australia, Foreign Secretary Bill Hayden said his government would protest the seizure.

"I have directed that our representatives in Addis Ababa should lodge a very strong protest and a demand that the commodities and other items be released," Hayden said in a radio interview in Sydney

He stressed the estimated $1.2 million in aid for rebel areas was for humanitarian purposes and not intended to support guerrillas. "We only supply humanitarian aid because people are starving," he

Hayden said the ship had disregarded instructions and put in at the Ethiopian port Monday instead of one in Ethiopia's neighbor Sudan, where it was supposed to have unloaded the Diplomatic sources in Nairobi, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said the ship was carrying 6,000 tons of wheat for rebel-controlled areas and another 3,500 tons for elsewhere in Ethiopia, plus trucks, medicines, blankets and a well-drilling rig.

Each bag of wheat reportedly was marked as a "Gift of Australia" to the Eritrean Relief Association or the Relief Society of Australia's Freedom from Hunger Campaign, Community Aid Abroad, and the Melbourne Herald and Sun newspapers helped supply the water pumps, trucks, medical supplies and thousands of tons of food

The Ethiopian Foreign Ministry official, who spoke only on condition he not be identified, said his country will do whatever is necessary to prevent aid from reaching the secessionist rebels.

Clayton may switch and run

DALLAS (AP) - According to his friends and associates, former House Speaker Bill Clayton is giving serious consideration to running for governor in 1986 as a Republican, a newspaper reported

"With some encouragement, he has got more than a passing interest in being the third Republican governor of Texas,' Bert Hurlbut, a Republican oil and gas operator from Austin, told The Dallas Morning News.

Hurlburt confirmed that he recently sent out letters to more than 200 conservatives across Texas seeking their support for a Clayton race.

Clayton, 58, a West Texas farmer from Springlake, served in the Texas Legislature as a conservative Democrat for 20 years and was elected to the speakership an unprecedented four terms. He has remained in Austin

The News said Clayton tried to play down any interest in challenging incumbent Gov. Mark White when he was asked earlier in the week about the possibility, but did not rule out the possibility.

Asked specifically about running as a Republican, Clayton said on Tuesday that anyone considering a statewide race "must look at it both ways" as a Democrat and Republican, The News reported.

Clayton endorsed Republican Gov. Bill Clements over White, who was then attorney general, in 1982.

Clements said Wednesday. "Billy and I are such good friends that if he is serious, I'm sure he will talk to me about it," The News reported.

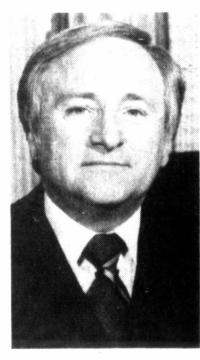

The newspaper said one Austin legislative aide said Clayton told him earlier this week that he intends to talk to Clements soon about the race A West Texas legislator and close friend of Clayton said, "He has convinced me he is running, but he still has some convincing of himself," The News said.

Hurlbut and other Clayton friends said the former House speaker is concerned about making any formal announcement now because, as a lobbyist, some legislation sought by some of his clients might be "vetoed by

Push for tax hike planned

State workers firm on pay demand

AUSTIN (AP) - State government workers won't back away from demands for a pay raise, says the leader of a major employee

Gary Hughes, executive director of the Texas Public Employees Association, said the group's top priority in the 1985 Legislature is "the passage of a tax bill or bills to fund all necessary pay raises and benefit increases being requested.

His statement Wednesday came the day after Gov. Mark White, in his state-of-the-state address, urged lawmakers to avoid a tax increase this year.

But Hughes said state employees have been slighted already and deserve an emergency raise this year and a pay hike in the 1986-87 budget biennium that begins Sept. 1.

"TPEA will not accept the idea of no pay raises for state employees for the next two years, as is reflected in the Legislative Budget Board recommendation and the governor's budget request," Hughes said

Hughes said a 6 percent pay raise, if it becomes effective March 1, would cost the state $98 million. A similar raise for the 1986-87 budget years would total $360 million more, he

Hughes said the governor's call for a freeze on replacing state workers who quit or retire is a good plan.

'It's something I think they've got to consider," he said, adding that White's proposal "still leaves room for the agencies to replace positions that are critical. State Comptroller Bob Bullock has estimated that state revenues in the next two years will fall about $1 billion short of current spending. White and legislators have been looking for ways to cut costs and keep from raising taxes. During a news conference, Hughes admitted that employees will have to sell lawmakers on the idea of raising taxes to fund a pay increase.

"It's not there now," he said of lawmaker support, "but by the end of the session it will

"I think once these (spending) cuts start taking effect ... I think the people of the state are going to be talking to the members of the Legislature when they come home and discussing priorities with them and state services. By the end of the session, we're going to see a lot more consideration for a tax bill."

But Jim Whitlock, an independent oilman from Amarillo who isn't directly involved in the case, said the decision would hurt independent oil drillers if it stands. "It's going to really hurt the economy of the Panhandle," he told an Amarido newspaper. He added that he expects Pampa and Borger to be especially hard hit, since many of the independent drillers' operations are centered around those two cities.

FERC staff members, taking Dorchester's side, have called the case the "tip of the iceberg.

Attorneys in the case have also said the ruling could bring into question the way the Texas Railroad Commission issues drilling permits. The state has been watching the case.

Pot bellies are worse than thick thighs, report says

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) -People with pot bellies are three to five times more likely to suffer heart attacks and strokes than those with fatty thighs and hips, according to a researcher who says it's not how much fat that counts, but where it's located.

"The degree of obesity does not mean very much as a risk factor for cardiovascular disease," said Dr. Ulf Smith, chairman of medicine at the University of Goteburg in Sweden.

"The point is that if the fat is distributed on the abdomen, the chances are considerably greater that the individual will have a heart attack than if the fat is distributed over the thighs, the hips or the back," Smith said Wednesday at an American Heart Association forum for science

The conclusions were based on

Smith's analysis of a 13-year

epidemiological study When the studies started, the extent to which the participants had pot bellies was measured by the ratio of their waist size divided by their hip size. At the end of the studies, the researchers found that those with higher ratios - in other words, with pot bellies - had been three to five times more likely to suffer heart attacks and strokes than those with low ratios. Other studies have shown that stored fat is more rapidly released into the bloodstream from abdominal fat cells than from fat cells in the thighs and hips, Smith

He says, "Individuals with abdominal obesity are more obese from a metabolic point of view than individuals with the same amount of body fat" distributed elsewhere in the body made, according to reports from E. Ray Grasshoff, public information specialist for the RRC, at mid-morning today

The FERC commissioners could accept the judge's recommendation or could order additional proceedings. If the commissioners decided federal law was violated, a remedy hearing would follow and the oil drillers could be ordered to return money they made from the gas.

Pat Long, Amarillo attorney representing the Harrington Foundation in cases involving the independents, said he had not had a chance to look at Judge Murray's opinion and had no comments at this time.

He said the opinion "had been read to us over the phone" and added he would like a chance to study it further before making any comments. Broadus Spivey, Austin lawyer representing various independents, said he hadn't seen the ruling yet and didn't know much about it.

Bob Templeton, Amarillo attorney representing Dorchester, said he preferred not to make any comments yet. He said cases involving Dorchester and independents are still in courts in Carson and Gray Counties with change of venue decisions pending, and he didn't want to affect those

With the FERC commissioners still to decide on Judge Murray's ruling, the RRC still to make its decisions and various court cases pending, the disputes over oil and gas rights in the West Panhandle Field could continue for a long time

Farmers and ranchers in Gray, Roberts, Wheeler and Hemphill Counties may qualify for emergency federal government loans because of losses sustained in last winter's severe freeze. officials have said.

The emergency loans are available through the Farmers Home Administration for losses that occurred because of the abnormally - cold weather between Dec. 18, 1983 and Dec. 31, 1983, the Texas Division of Emergency Management has announced.

The notification was read by

Gray County Commissioners in their regular meeting Tuesday. Wheeler County was hardest hit by the freeze, according to the announcement, while the other area counties have been designated as "contiguous counties" for the purposes of the emergency loans.

Farmers and ranchers must apply for the emergency loans by Aug. 20, 1985, according to the program. The loans for physical and production losses will be processed under FmHA Instruction No. 1945-D.

House Republican leaders were meeting today with Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who has advocated large increases in defense spending in the face of pressure to cut spending in other areas of government.

Michel said many GOP members of the House "have serious questions in the defense area." He said he himself may put on the table a proposal to trade GOP support for the MX missile for a commitment by the administration to limit its request for defense spending increases to around 4

Teachers are opposing state competency tests

requiring competency tests for teachers should be repealed or substantially modified, the Texas Classroom Teachers Association

"Our first choice is that it be repealed," said Jeretta Thompson, president of the 25,000-member

If the testing law isn't repealed, then the teacher's association believes it should be amended so exams could be given on an individual basis and as part of a broader evaluation, she said.

Ms. Thompson said teachers are concerned because, as stated in the school reform law passed last summer, "It's written as the sole thing to make up a teacher's competency.

Susan Crocker, a high school English teacher from Grand Prairie and chairman of the TCTA's legislation committee, said teachers is suffering.

She said teachers who have received undergraduate and advanced college degrees now are finding that the state apparently doesn't consider that proof of their

"You'll find that low morale comes from the fact that we feel like the things we've done in the past, that we did in good faith based on the system that Texas education had, are no longer recognized as valid," Ms. Crocker

"Teachers feel that through course work, they've demonstrated their competency. And they're rather insulted that they have to prove it again," she said.

"But more than that, they don't feel that the problem with incompetent teachers rests primarily in subject matter knowledge. It rests in students," Ms. Crocker said. "It's difficult, almost impossible, to test communication within the classroom through a pencil-and-paper test. It should be tested through a means of evaluation and observation.

The TCTA also said it wants the Legislature to modify the so-called 'career ladder'' system which awards teachers salary bonuses based on additional education, experience and good evaluations.

One needed change, the group said, is a provision to allow teachers with many years of experience to quickly advance up the ladder, rather than making them wait the same amount of time as new teachers who enter the

'A person with 20 years experience will be placed on the career ladder in the same manner as a person with three years experience is," Ms. Crocker said.

Third nuke dump hearing in Austin

AUSTIN (AP) — State officials, including some who have been outspoken against a nuclear waste dump in Texas, were noticeably absent at a U.S. Department of Energy informational hearing on the proposed site.

The meeting at the Sheraton Crest Hotel in Austin Wednesday night was designed to discuss premlinary assessment studies of the site in Deaf Smith and Swisher counties as potential locations for the first permanant repository for high-level nuclear waste in the

The audience was outnumbered by the 30 DOE officials and contractors on hand to answer

The reception was a sharp contrast to the Hereford briefing where more than 400 people showed up Tuesday. About 60 people attended the Tulia briefing at which federal officials said the Swisher site is all but out of the running for the underground waste

Missing from the Austin meeting were top state officials, many of whom have sharply criticized the energy department for the selection process

Several elected officials, including Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower and Attorney General Jim Mattox, sent staff representatives, but it was not surprising that the officials did not Steve Frishmen, director of the Texas nuclear waste program office, said he discouraged urged Gov. Mark White and other state officials not to attend.

'We didn't expect to hear anything new, " he said. Instead the state plans to attend public hearings to be held by the Energy Department in the three cities beginning late next month, Frishmen said.

Among those in attendance here were Richard and Maralyn Vrba, who had been giving some thought to moving to the Panhandle, but not if the government is going to put a nuclear waste burial ground there.

"There is no way we would go there if that's what there going to do." said Ms. Vrba, who was among a dozen people attending the briefing.

Based on the studies, the government has ranked the Deaf Smith site north of Hereford as one of the three top prospects for the nuclear waste dump. A final ranking is expected this summer

Off beat Law suit to prevent dump

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite a federal official's statement that he does not think Congress will force a state to accept a nuclear waste dump, Attorney General Jim Mattox says he will pursue federal suit to keep the dump out of Mattox on Wednesday released a letter from U.S. Secretary of Energy Donald Hodel in which Hodel said he did not think Congress would impose a nuclear dump site "on an unwilling state." Hodel's letter responded to one from Mattox four months ago.

Prior to the November election, Mattox said, "Mr. Hodel was quoted by The Associated Press as saying he did not think any nuclear waste dump sites in Texas would open because of public pressure and Phil Gramm," a Republican who was elected U.S. Senator from

"But a month after Mr. Gramm was elected, DOE (Department of Energy) nominated one site in Deaf Smith County was one of the top three possibilities in the nation for a dangerous high-level nuclear waste dump," Mattox said in a statement

"So, after that fiasco, Mr. Hodel. is wanting us to trust him again?' said Mattox

I thought about having a ballroom or a supper club all the time. Whenever I was driving around the Sherman-Denison area I would look for locations for a ballroom," Mahoney said.

Club revives old memories

Mahoney and his wife looked for just the right place for their business. They tried to get leases on several places, such as the building where the Brass Rail is now located and a larger place which is now Electric Company Phase II. Four different buildings went to those who got the money down sooner 'I was getting pretty depressed by then," Mahoney said. "I had quit driving and I didn't have a paycheck coming in. I looked at several other places like the Denison Hotel Ballroom but none of them seemed right. Then Lewis Pollaro said, 'Why don't you take a look at the old Star Theater?" Mahoney took Pollaro's advice, and looked at the building, which was built in 1913 and had housed both the State and Star theaters. The building had no electricity and Mahoney and his friend looked at the old building by the dim light of a flashlight with "nearly-dead" batteries 'Somehow I knew it was the right place for the ballroom-supper club I wanted to build. It had survived past the era of swing music and it had survived being a video arcade and pool hall. I could just envision it — everything where it would go, how it would look. It even had a stage big enough to hold a full orchestra," Mahoney said with enthusiasm that leaves no doubt how that junk-filled old ghost of a movie theater was transformed into a 1984 Texas version of the Paladium.

The exterior of the building captures the mood of the period that gave birth to swing music.

d the "Stardust" logo. He created the life-sized, cut-out figures, displayed above the marquee, which depict musicians playing various instruments and dancers in the 1930s dress "swinging" to the

To add a truly authentic touch, Mahoney commissioned Brown to paint some posters of the "greats" of the swing era. These "one sheet" posters are exhibited in the glass display cases on the exterior of the building. Mahoney opened his ballroom

Nov.17, but he's waiting until later to hold a grand opening.

"I'll have a grand opening after I've gotten the kitchen set up and the dance floor enlarged. Right now it's only about two-thirds of a dream. I've already invested over $75,000, so I went ahead and opened up. I want to turn some of that outgo into income so I can finish the place.

Finished or not, the Stardust Ballroom and Supper Club with its sparkling silver and "wisp" blue walls, glitter-sprayed ceiling and four-foot diameter mirror ball offers those who visit a step back in time, even before the music begins. When Mahoney and family complete Phase 1 of his dream, the 1930s effect will be even more dramatic

'We'll have a hat and coat-check service, a cigarette girl with a short skirt, fancy bloomers and flash camera. We'll have a menu offering international cuisine and maybe even valet parking,' Mahoney plans out loud.

Read a good book lately?

Bored, looking for a way to waste an hour, my friend and I went out to the mall just to look around

Walking down the hall, I passed a bookstore and started to turn in. "Hey, what are you going in there for?" he asked. "There's nothing in there to look at. Just a bunch of books "Yeah, I know," I said. "That's why I'm going in. "What are you, some kind of a reader?"

"Of course. You know that. You've seen all those books in my house.

"You mean you actually read those?" he inquired in mild disbelief. 'I just thought you had those up on the shelves for show. Ignoring that remark, I asked him, "Don't you read books?"

'Are you kidding? Who reads books today? There's no need for that with TV and computers around

He told me he hadn't read a book in years. "Now that I'm out of school, why should I read a book?" he said, making "book" sound

He was sounding like some freshmen to whom I had tried to teach

English at college. Told they would have to read a novel for an end-of-semester essay, some complained that they had made it through high school without having to read a book, why should they have to do so now?

Unfortunately, I have observed that's become a too common attitude. I have had people bragging that they hadn't read a book in years, and they actually seem proud of that lack of accomplishment. It seems to be a mark of a businessman, laborer or oil field worker, among others, to claim that reading a book is beyond them. They're working for a living now, not studying for a test, they claim. I guess they believe writers can't work for a living. I wonder how they would handle knowing one of the top poets of the mid-century, William Carlos Williams, was a physician. And Nathaniel Hawthorne was a customs official. Herman Melville had been a whaler. But they didn't let their jobs get in the way of increasing their knowledge in

If one perceives life as merely work followed by an evening of watching TV or an occasional game of tennis, then continuing education may seem superfluous.

But if life is seen as a continuing process of growth and development, keeping the old gray cells active, then books can be an essential element in warding off the boredom and decay of aging.

Mark Twain once said, "The man who can read, but does not, has no advantage over the man who cannot read. How many businessmen and other workers have lost out on a promotion to someone else who had more knowledge, who was a more rounded individual because he had kept his mind growing, both in his own field and in other areas? And how many women have deadened their lives by daily rounds of depressing soap operas without seeking the world beyond the TV screen and their own houses?

Victor Hugo once remarked, "We must pity minds, no less than stomachs, that go unfilled. If there is anything more poignant than a body dying for lack of food, it is a mind dying for lack of light. I discussed these matters with my friend as we walked among the

Perhaps more shamed than impressed by my remarks, he actually bought a paperback as we left. ("It doesn't even have any pictures," he complained mildly.)

Of course, it was only a spy novel, basis for a movie he had seen. But perhaps it was a new start for him

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmosi capabilities

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment

It's time to set our farmers free

Are most American farmers entusiastically in favor of the federal government's price-support system? Probably not. Many probably agree with the editor of the New York Times when he says "There is no good economic or social reason to keep America's enormously productive farm sector permanently on welfare.

Now is the time to set the farmer free to paddle his own canoe. President Reagan has pledged to reduce government spending, but he's having a hard time deciding which to cut. If he eliminate price supports, he will alienate some farmers, but who can better afford to do this than a president who is not eligible for re-election.

The fact is that price supports and direct subsidies to farmers benefit most the farmers who need them least—the big commercial operators. This arises from the fact that the subsidies are made in direct proportion to output. In 1981, 80 percent of the direct subsidies went to the most successful 29 percent of the grain and cotton

Let's face it. Farm aid has become a long-term, if not permanent, welfare program. But Washington does not admit this. If it did-if the program were admittedly welfare, the aid would have to be parceled out according to need, not according to scope of operation.

Some try to justify price supports on the ground that foreign governments subsidize their farmers, enabling them to export products to America and undersell American farmers. This argument will not hold water.

If we maintain here a free market for farm products, foreigners will soon find it uneconomical to continue exporting to us, paying the shipping charges an selling at competitive U.S. prices. European grain fields just cannot match our Great Plains and Corn Belt in efficiency of production.

Tough session seen

AUSTIN-- The 69th Legislature convened Tuesday, January 8, 1985, and will adjourn May 28, 1985. This will be the most hard fought session in decades

Comptroller Bob Bullock predicted a $1 billion shortfall in revenue. Each time oil prices drop $1 a barrel, it costs the state $40 million in taxes. With oil prices dropping daily, it appears Bullock will be coming out with another projection that will be lowered. This means an austerity program for the first time in well over a

The special session created a $4.6 billion tax bill and an education bill with which many people disagree. 22 Democrats were defeated in the primary and general elections. All 22 of the defeated candidates voted for the education bill. All but four voted for the tax bill. The Republicans now have 52 state representatives instead of 36 as in the past session. During the special session some of the representatives couldn't seem to read what the folks back home were trying to tell them. Their addition is improving when they add up the score on defeats. I'm very happy with my NO vote on both the tax and education bills. None of the 29 (21 Republicans and 8 Democrats) were defeated that who against the education bill. I stood with the 8 democrats that voted NO.

What are the issues in the legislative session in addition to money?

Pari - mutual gambling on the ponies

Deregulation of the trucking industry

Elimination of the Blue

Damaging the Homestead Indigent Health Care - who regulations

I'll be covering these issues in future articles. Our toll free WATS number is 1 - 800 -692 - 1389. The number did terminate in my Pampa office, but during the legislative session, it terminates in my Capitol

The pendalum has swung

The shoe is on the other foot, firmly and painfully.

A decade and a half ago - the godawful 60s - it was liberals who made excuses, verbal or mental, for lawbreakers. Today it is conservatives. Anyway non - liberals.

A New York man who gunned down four apparent muggers on the subway looks like he's becoming a kind of local folk hero. He has been deluged with offers of aid and messages of support.

Meanwhile, four fundamentalist Christians in Florida have been charged in the Christmas Day bombings of three abortion clinics. According to their attorney, "They said God spoke to them, and they did what they did to save innocent lives of unborn children. They have a one - on - one relationship with Jesus Christ, and they have responded to His revelation.

Various other abortion clinics have been bombed in different parts of the country - almost certainly for the same reason.

How familiar it all seems, thanks to the '60s. The '60s were infinitely more violent than the '80s. Black rioters in Watts and Detroit looted and burned down hundreds of buildings. Scores of people were killed. At universities like Cal -Berkeley and Columbia, protesters seized campus offices to protest the Vietnam War, etc., etc. ROTC buildings were firebombed. Policemen

And why? Well, you see, it was social conditions.

Racism and war had created a climate of violence. The rioters could not help themselves. You had to understand

My favorite '60s quotation comes from John R. Coyne's account of the Berkeley rioting, "The Kumquat Statement." A campus building set afire by the protesters was burning out of control. Coyne, amid the on - looking throng, heard a tweedy academic type muse thoughtfully: "They're trying to tell us something."

So it went throughout the whole benighted period - snarling rioters setting fires, beating up cops, seizing public property. But, ah, we had to understand. These poor folk could not help themselves. It was the kind of world they lived in The guardians of liberal thought assured us so.

Well, here we are, midway through the Reagan Era, and one wonders whether the liberals were not right - up to a point, I mean. May not a public "climate" inspire and engender acts of violence? A climate like the present one, filled with the stench of decayed liberalism?

The '60s bred acts of mass violence. The '80s breed acts of individual violence - vigilante action, if you like. Neither is acceptable in civilized society. Which may be just the problem: The no fault, no - responsibility ethic of '60s liberalism seriously undermined the conditions for civilized

Small wonder that, out among the crime victims, actual or potential, frustration built fast. What had liberal tears ever done for them? The instinct became, if not to grab a gun, at least to applaud those bold enough to defend themselves against rapists and robbers.

Similarly with abortion. Sixties liberalism bade Americans consider the plight of mothers who didn't want the babies they were carrying. For the babies - i.e., the nascent citizens and taxpayers liberalism had nothing to say. In their present state, they were blobs, nothing more. With abortion claiming 1.5 - million victims a year, it was only a question of time before deranged spirits for sook constitutional avenues and took the low road to violence.

Everyone, on whatever philosophical side. should be dismayed by this turn of events. You just don't do things like shoot people on subways and blow up other people's property: Not the least reason being that, when you do, you encourage others - possibly with motives less high - minded than your own - to go and do likewise.

Faced with situations like these, civilized society will jail some people who need jailing. It will change some social conditions, too.

Too gaudy for a shrine

MEMPHIS, TENN. -- Welcome to Graceland, home of Elvis Aaron Presley. We have just passed the 50th anniversary of Elvis' birth, and it occurred to me that many of Elvis' fans, still loyal eight years after his death, might enjoy a tour of the shrine that lingers as a reminder of his

We drive up Elvis Presley Boulevard here in Memphis until we come to Graceland on our left and the many Elvis souvenir shops on our right.

In these shops, you may purchase Elvis bedspreads, pillows, towels, posters, portraits, keychains, Elvis you - name - its. You also may be overcharged for these items, but that's the way your basic tourist ripoffs work.

Next, let us proceed into Graceland itself - after forking over $6.50 a head for the tour

A few words about the house before we go inside: Elvis purchased the property in the late 1950s. The tours of Graceland gross $5 million per year. These funds are being held for Lisa Marie, Elvis' daughter who lives with her mother, Priscilla, in Beverly Hills, Calif. When Lisa Marie is 25, all this will be hers.

Step inside, please. On your left is the dining room, decorated in early tacky. Elvis always sat at the head of the table so between bites he could watch the TV at the other end of the room

On your right is the combination living and music room. See the piano? Priscilla had it covered in 24 - karat gold leaf on her and Elvis' first anniversary. Notice that no matter how much money some people have, they can't spend their way out of bad taste.

We cannot take you upstairs where Elvis died because the family says we can't. Also, the city building inspector says the house isn't what it used to be and a lot of people tracking around up there could cause a terrible accident and who knows how many lawsuits.

Let's walk downstairs to the TV room. Ever seen a TV room done in yellow and black? Now you have. Notice the three television sets side by side. Elvis got that idea from President Lyndon Johnson who enjoyed watching all three evening newscasts at once

President Johnson, luckily, did not get the idea from Elvis to do the Oval Office in yellow and

Here is the pool room. Flaming red hurt your eyes? Don't look in the pool room

Next is the den, or as Elvis called it, the "jungle room." Elvis decorated this room by himself. He went to a Memphis department store one morning and in just 30 minutes picked out all this furniture that the Moose Club wouldn't have. He should have stayed an extra 15 minutes and perhaps avoided a great deal of embarrassment.

Now, stroll around the grounds. Here are Elvis' cars and motorcycles. There's the pink vintage Cadillac Elvis bought for his mother even though she didn't drive and never had a driver's license.

There is Elvis' racquetball court, his horses, his swimming pool. As we reach Elvis' grave, let us pause for a moment of silent prayer:

Please, Lord, when Lisa Marie finally does take over this place, guide her go buy out the souvenir shops across the street and close them down - and then put her in touch with a good interior

minimum wage of $18.91 per hour

BY MARTIN LEFKOWITZ What is the federal minimum wage?

Most people would answer "$3.35 per hour" and would usually be right - but not always

Would you believe $18.91 per hour, or $39,332.80 a year for a standard 40 - hour week? That is the federal minimum wage for bricklayers working on certain federal construction projects in and around the nation's capital.

The justification for minimum wages has been to protect low - wage earners from exploitation, even though most reputable economists now agree that these minimum wage laws do nothing more than reduce the number of jobs available to the least skilled workers.

But why is the federal government setting a minimum wage that is more than double the average hourly rate in manufacturing and about 125 percent more than the average paid for all non supervisory private sector workers? It is ostensibly to protect local workers from unfair competition from workers coming in from outside the Washington area and working for less money than is customary for bricklayers in Washington. Does the $18.91 per hour minimum wage reflect the wages in the Washington area?

A recent review of the Washington Post classified section found 11 ads for bricklayers. Ten of those offered wages ranging from $13 to $14.50 per hour. The other was for a job that paid $18.91 per hour, including a $2.85 per hour set - aside in a savings plan that goes to the worker when he leaves. What was the difference between the $13 to $14.50 per hour jobs and the one paying $18.91 per hour? Just one thing. The job paying $18.91 per hour was a Davis - Bacon job.

What is a Davis - Bacon job? Davis - Bacon refers to a wage - setting bill passed in 1931 that regulates the wages contractors on federal construction projects must pay their employees.

The wages are supposed to reflect average local prevailing wage rates - the wages paid by employers in that area. But in reality, the wages end up reflecting the highest, rather than the average, local wages because there is a built - in bias that tends to give greater weight to union wage scales. That is known as the "30 percent rule." Under that rule, if 30 percent of the workers in a community work at a certain wage, such as a union wage scale, that wage becomes the prevailing rate, even if 70 percent of the workers in that community work at non - union job that pay substantially lower pay scales. Who pays for the higher wages?

The contractor?

Guess again. It's you, the taxpayer. A study by the General Acounting Office in 1978 showed that the Davis - Bacon wage - setting mechanism increased public construction costs by an average of 3.3 percent. This means that this year the cost of public construction projects will be more than $1.5 billion above what it would have been in a free market environment. In addition, the added records that had to be kept by federal contractors resulted in an estimated cost of $189.1 million in 1977, suggesting that the current paperwork cost would exceed $300 million.

The relevant question is: Do workers who can earn $29,000 per year in the free market need, or should they get, the added support of the federal government to help them earn $39,000 per year? Or is this a taxpayer rip - off?

The answer has to be that this is a typical taxpayer rip - off. It is a result of unions using their political clout to set unreasonable and unnatural wage rates. In adition, it is likely that such mechanisms as Davis - Bacon which set minimum wages above prevailing wage rates also tend to inflate construction costs for other sectors of the economy, including housing.

All in all, the Davis - Bacon Act is a good example of unnecessary and expensive government regulation.

Lefkowitz is director of economic trends and statistics for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

NEW YORK (NEA) - The fashion picture for spring could be called confusing or it could be referred to as varied. It all depends upon whether you like your fashion pointed in one, easily understood direction, or whether you like having lots of choic-

This is one season that shows a big change. American designers have hastily swept out all the exaggeratedmannish separates overwhelmed collections last fall and, incidentally, didn't sell too easily in the stores. Was it time to give women some fitted clothes again? Paris evidently thought so, because suddenly the fall couture collections, created for women who can afford custom-made clothes, went all out for a downright sexy fit.

More cautious, American designers have made the short, fitted silhouette an important part of their spring collections but have left room for softer, longer styles which are fit only at the slimmed down and lightened in color and fabric. There are no more layers, so the spring choices look much more attractive than last fall's often dreary

There's no doubt, however, that the short, fitted styles look newest, if you can wear them. The silhouette, particularly in suits, produces a fresh, perky look. Bill Blass shapes his with slim short skirts in navy and white checks or stripes, with fitted white wool jackets accented in contrast lapels and pocket flaps. Oscar de la Renta arcs the shoulders of a pale blue wool jacket, then nips it in at the waist over a navy wool gabardine slim skirt.

Combining short with long, Donna Karan and Louis Dell'Olio for Anne Klein use taupe linen for a wideshouldered, lean tunic jacket with double-breasted side fastening. This goes over a sliver of black, knee-baring skirt. Zoran puts a collarless white wool swingy jacket over a ribbed cashmere skirt.

Suits look fresher in the short, fitted silhouette and it does even more for dresses. Everyone's in love with dresses, such as Perry Ellis, with his pale silk crepe tunic draped from wide shoulders. It is cinched at the waist in studded suede, then wrapped slimly over an above-knee underskirt. Jackie Rogers fits a sleek coatlike tunic in red linen over a brief striped the longs look just as crisp as the short styles. A white linen hopsack coat in wide shouldered duster cut falls over an easy matching anklelength skirt and navy crepe de chine blouse. He makes a gray handkerchief linen into a pure silhouette of pleats which run from collarless neck to ankle-length hem and belts it in leather. The simple blouse and skirt never looked as good as in his white organdy flyaway surplice style with black calf-length skirt.

First families find home sweet White House

By INK MENDELSOHN Smithsonian News Service

A sad little girl arrived in November of 1800 at the door of her new home. Susanna Adams, granddaughter of President John and Abigail Adams, was the first child to reside in the building known today as the White House. Abigail's son Charles lay near death. The sorrowing first lady decided to bring his 4 - year - old daughter to live in the "President's House" in the new capital at Washington.

The "first home" has sound sandstone walls that have withstood British enemy fire and the ravages of time, but they have not been thick enough to insulate its occupants, even the youngest, from the pain felt by ordinary mortals. Over the years, first families have harbored familiar heartaches and known familiar joys. But a White House child's birth, growing pains, peccadillos, grief, romances, marriage and death are shared with the multitude. The stone White House might just as well be made of glass.

in all the ize big ew der big

Young Nelly and George Washington Parke Custis, grandchildren of Martha Washington "adopted to rear as my own" by the general, arrived in 1789 at the executive mansion in New York, the nation's first capital. The first "first children" were, according to Martha, "very little of being sick" from all the parades and public attention en

G.W. Parke, known as Little Wash and called "Tub" by his grandmama, was an 8 - year - old free spirit and a bit spoiled. But his 10 - year - old sister Nelly kept a rigid schedule of painting, language and music lessons. She frequently sang at state dinners and for "Congressmen who...know not one note from another." Nelly was rewarded, though, by a doting grandpapa who took the children for rides around Manhattan in the elegant presidential carriage, to the theater, the circus and an occasional balloon ascension.

Nonetheless, Nelly was delighted to return to Mount Vernon. "I can hardly believe grandpapa is no longer in office...If it is a dream I hope never to awaken from it," she wrote to a friend. In later years, she would feel differently. "Many first children later found their time in the White House to have been the high spot in their lives," the Smithsonian's Margaret Klapthor observes. Klapthor, curator emeritus of political history at the National Museum of American History in Washington, D.C., points out that "life after the years spent in the President's House with their illustrious grandparents never again had quite the same glow for Nelly and Little Wash."

George Washington was not the only Founding Father who was a doting grandfather. chronicler of the day Margaret Bayard Smith described Thomas Jefferson's way with his grandchildren, who had come to spend the winter of 1805 in the

THE ROWDY ROOSEVELTS — Theodore Roosevelt poses with his wife Edith and their large and active family at the Sagamore Hill "summer White House" in 1903. Their brood included Quentin (leaning on his father), Theodore Jr. (in glasses), Archie, "Princess Alice," Kermit and Ethel, the tomboy. President's House. "While I sat looking at him, playing with these infants, one standing on the sofa with its arm around his neck, the other two youngest on his knees, playing with him, I could scarcely realize he was one of the most celebrated men now living, both as a Politician and Philosopher." A widower. Jefferson entertained his grandchildren with poems and stories and sent his friend Dolly Madison out to buy them the latest clothes and toys.

Abraham and Mary Lincoln, the indulgent and adoring parents of 17 year - old Robert, 10 - year - old Willie and 7 - year - old Tad, came to the White House at a harsh time in America's history. Lincoln, commanding a disastrous Civil War, and his wife, a Southerner and therefore suspect, were attacked by a viciously critical press. Sweet Willie and wildly exuberant Tad were a solace in troubled times - in spite of Tad's constant pranks. "Taddy" would pile chairs on a sofa and when his unsuspecting father entered the room - heave ho!

"Let him romp," Lincoln said, thinking of serious - minded Robert, "he will get 'pokey' soon enough." Tad, dressed in his colonel's uniform and spectacles purloined from his father, and Willie, wearing his mother's lavender silk dress, put on shows in the attic.

But after only a year in the W House, Willie fell ill with a fever and died. Mary was inconsolable. The press called her grief excessive. Lincoln, having lost the son most like himself, bore that burden, too, and went on struggling to hold a nation together. Then came the fateful night of April 14, 1865, when Tad rushed to his friend, doorkeeper Thomas Pendel, crying, "O Tom Pen! Tom Pen! They have killed papa dead."

The happy family life of the Grant, Hayes and Garfield families semed to reflect a healing national life. Grant, the great Civil Warrior, walked around with tears in his eyes for days before his darling Nellie - the belle of the nation - was wed in a lavish and widely publicized ceremony. The Hayes' White House was always full. Son Ruddy reported that the president had to go into the bathroom to work on state papers.

First Lady Caroline Harrison had a large family - four generations under one White House roof - and had to share her home with politicians and favor seekers: "I've been a show, the whole family's been a show since Mr. Harrison was elected..." the most famous household member - at least the most photographed - was Benjamin Harrison's grandson, "Baby" McKee. Amateur and professional photographers armed with the new easy - to - operate Kodak box camera, chased Baby, driving his own goat cart, around the White House grounds.

The only president to wed in the White House, 49 - year - old bachelor Grover Cleveland Folsom in 1886. It was largely owing to false stories of Cleveland's brutality toward the popular first lady - which she decried publicly - that he was defeated in 1888. "Frank," as her husband called her, told the staff to take good care of the White House, for we are coming back just four years from today.'

And so they did - this time with little "Baby Ruth," who became the "nation's sweetheart." Just the same, when her mother, alarmed by smothering public attention to the tiny tot, had the gates to the wide - open White House grounds closed, ugly rumors circulated that the child was deformed. The Cleveland's rose above rumor, and in 1893, their second daughter, Esther, became the only president's child to be born in the

Both press and public loved the youthful Theodore Roosevelt family, which set off what Ike Hoover, then chief usher, later called, "the wildest scramble in the history of the White House." Alice, 17; Theodore Jr., 14; Kermit, 12; Ethel, 10; Archibald, 7, and Quentin, 3, came to the mansion on short notice on September of 1901, when Vice President Roosevelt became president upon McKinley's assassination. Still, they brought along horses, dogs, cats, parrots, frogs, white mice, guinea pigs, and a kangaroo rat and a blue macaw named Eli Yale. Alice went visiting with Emily Spinach, a green snake named for a thin aunt. Algonquin, the calico pony, traveled upstairs in the elevator to cheer an ailing

All manner of locomotion was through T.R.'s White House - stilts for the halls, large cookie tins for tobogganing down the stairs and the obvious roller skates, tricycles, bicycles and little red wagon for every place else. The president joined in the pillow fights and the wrestling. Mama Edith was terrific at sports. Naughty "Princess Alice" sped around in automobiles. Her parents forbade her to smoke under their roof, so she smoked on the roof. "I can do one of two things," the president said, "I can be President of the United States or I can control Alice." Alice wed Ohio congressman Nicholas Longworth in a spectacular White House wedding. The nation

In the summer of 1924, the nation mourned. Calvin Coolidge Jr. died at 16 of blood poisoning. "The power and glory of the President went with him," his father wrote. Older son John tried to fill the void. "The unrelenting glare of the spotlight creates a great need for White House families to draw closer together," Margaret Klapthor says.

The White House staff affectionately called one close family the "Three Musketeers." Harry Truman didn't care what anybody said about him, but he got rather excited at occasional criticism of wife Bess, "the boss," and daughter Margaret, "The boss's boss."

EDITOR'S NOTE: This fourth article in a series of five on preparing 1984 income tax returns explains who must file and which form to use

By JIM LUTHER AP Tax Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - You may have to file the long Form 1040 even though you don't itemize

More than 61 percent of federal taxpayers file 1040 but only about 36 percent itemize. To simplify things for the greatest number of taxpayers, the Internal Revenue Service limits the total income, adjustments, credits and exemptions that may be reported on the two shorter forms - 1040A and 1040EZ. That requires more people to use the more-complicated 1040

That number may grow again this year. For the first time, many retired people are having to pay tax on a portion of their Social Security pensions and that will require them to file the long form whether or not they want to itemize deductions.

You must also use 1040 if you paid or received alimony, had capital gains in 1984, received any kind of pension, had employee business expenses, want to claim a credit for residential energy conservation or for certain investments in equipment, or if you claim such adjustments as job-related moving expenses.

The one-page 1040EZ is available only to single people whose taxable income after subtracting the $1,000 personal exemption and any allowable charitable contribution is less than $50,000. (Even if you don't itemize deductions and no matter which form you file, you may deduct a part of charitable contributions)

There is one other limitation on using 1040EZ: all your income must have been from wages, salaries and tips except for interest of $400 or less.

The two-page 1040A may be used by married or single people whose taxable income is under $50,000. Income may include unlimited interest, dividends and unemployment compensation. You may reduce income subject to tax by claiming the special deduction for working couples and by deducting contributions to an Individual Retirement Account. The only tax credits allowed 1040A filers are for child-care expenses, a portion of political contributions and the earned-income credit for poor working families with children.

If you file Form 1040A, you will have to attach a Schedule 1 if you have over $400 of interest income or over $400 of dividends, if you claim the deduction for a two-earner couple or take the child-care credit.

But do you have to file a tax return at all? Yes, if

-Single, under 65 and had income of at least $3,300; or if you are single, over 65 and had $4,300 or more income

-Married, living with your spouse, filing a joint return, both are under 65 and had income totaling at least $5,400. If one spouse is over 65, the filing threshold is $6,400; if both are over 65, it is $7,400.

-Married, with a dependent child but lived apart from your spouse all year, are filing a return as single or head of household, are under 65 and had income of at least $3,300; if you are over 65, the threshold is $4,300.

If you were widowed in 1983 or 1982 and had not remarried last year, you must file if you are under 65 and had at least $3,300 income; if you are over 65, the threshold is $4,300. A qualifying widow or widower with a dependent child does not have to file unless income exceeds $4,400 ($5,400 if over 65) and lower tax rates apply. Details are on Page 6 of Form 1040 instructions.

No matter what your income, you must file (on Form 1040) if your parents could claim you as a dependent and you had $1,000 or more in taxable interest, dividends or other unearned income. And you must file if you are self-employed and earned $400 or more after expenses.

Even if your income is so low that you are not required to file, you should file to get back any taxes that were withheld from your earnings.

NEXT: Figuring and credits.

President Reagan says 'piece of paper' not enough from arms talks

WASHINGTON (AP) -President Reagan, saying he wants more than a "piece of paper" from new arms talks with the Soviets, is calling for a verifiable agreement guaranteeing deep cuts in the nuclear arsenals of both superpowers.

Reagan cautioned his senior arms control advisers Wednesday that they should have "no euphoria" about the U.S.-Soviet decision to resume negotiations that lapsed more than a year ago.

In a 20-minute meeting with members of the delegation that returned from Geneva with the promise of renewed U.S.-Soviet arms talks, Reagan said, "We can't rest on our laurels. This is the beginning of a process.

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes, who quoted Reagan's comments for the benefit of reporters, said the president told the group that although the United States wants an arms agreement, "if it isn't a good agreement, if it won't work, we just don't seek a piece of

Secretary of State George P. Shultz, who led the U.S. delegation, said the negotiators were able to nail down an agreement and "get what we wanted in Geneva" because of their advance preparations and Reagan's instructions, Speakes said.

"We did not have to come back Speakes quoted Shultz as saying. 'We knew as a negotiator that we were free to walk away from the table if we didn't get what we wanted.

Reagan met with the arms control advisers to congratulate them on their success in Geneva and to encourage them to continue working hard.

There was no discussion of talks between Moscow and Washington for setting a precise time and place for the resumption of talks, Speakes said. Nor was there any mention of who will head the American negotiating team.

Speakes said the president told the group he wants "comprehensive and thorough preparations" to be continued. Rep. Les Aspin said Wednesday he is undecided whether to continue backing a compromise MX formula.

Jury decides against Time

Sharon's lawyer is happy with a jury's ruling that Time Inc. defamed the former Israeli defense minister, and says the panel can now "get down to the critical that bear on a verdict of

But a magazine official said he doubted "the jury's going to come to that conclusion.

The jury, which began deliberating Sharon's $50 million libel suit Monday, announced Wednesday its conclusion that Time defamed the former Israeli defense minister in a Feb. 21, 1983, cover story about the findings of a probe into a massacre of Palestinian refugees in Beirut, Lebanon

The jurors still have to decide whether the article was false, and whether the magazine knew it was false and published it with "actual malice" or "reckless disregard" for the truth.

Deliberations were to resume this morning.

If the panel finds against Sharon on any of the three issues, he loses. If it finds for Sharon on all three, a second set of hearings with more witnesses will consider harm to his reputation and possible award of damages

Legally, if there was no damage to Sharon's reputation, he was not Jury foreman Richard Zug said that the Time story defamed Sharon because it meant he 'consciously intended' Christian Lebanese militiamen to massacre Palestinian civilians in 1982.

"I'm pleased that we won on this point," Sharon said outside the courthouse. "I was sorry that Time magazine is charging that the jury did not understand plain English. I

NEW YORK (AP) - Ariel understand that it is still a long way to go and I do not want to comment any more at this point."

"One down, two to go," said Milton Gould, Sharon's chief attorney. "I'm glad we didn't lose on a point of grammar or what the words mean. Now we can get down to the critical issues, whether it was false or not.'

Reagan farm plan already under fire

WASHINGTON (AP) - In a painful preview of battles yet to come on farm legislation this year, President Reagan's spartan agriculture proposals are already being plowed under by commodity groups and farm-state lawmakers.

With the ink not even dry on the administration's policy blueprint, attacks from powerful lobbying groups and from farm-dependent members of Congress have started in earnest

Two signficant developments came last week: a letter from leaders of nine commodity groups to Reagan, objecting in strong terms to a proposed limit on farm subsidy and loan payments, and the refusal of delegates to a Farm Bureau policy convention to go along with the phase-out of farm income protection through target prices.

In addition, Democratic members of Congress have been criticizing the proposal for a more "market-oriented" agriculture as coming at precisely the wrong time, when producers in many areas still are reeling from the worst financial times on the farm since the Depression.

While they have been more restrained, GOP lawmakers have complained privately about the White House proposal and so far none has stepped forward to sponsor the Reagan bill. Instead, Republicans in both the Senate and House are at work on their own alternative legislation.

Seaga said "a coalition of opposition political groups" was responsible for the roadblocks. He acknowledged the demonstrations had created transporation problems for tourists, but said there had only been 11 cancellations of tourist trips compared to 12,000 arrivals on Tuesday and Wednesday.

PUBLIC NOTICE

In accordance with the Public Utility Regulatory Act and the Rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, AT&T Communications of the Southwest, Inc. (AT&T Communications) gives notice to all of its Texas customers that a new procedure for long distance billing was made effective on an interim basis on August 6, 1984 in Docket No. 5800.

The procedure referred to is "Rate Period Specific Billing" and it applies to all message telephone service (AT&T Long Distance calls) including non-REACH OUT Texas calls within the State of Texas. This new procedure effects all AT&T Long Distance customers. All intraLATA long distance calls and all interstate long distance calls are currently billed using this procedure.

Under this procedure, customers are billed a specific charge for long distance calls according to the rate or rates in effect throughout the time of each call. If a call begins in one rate period and extends into a different rate period, the customer will be charged whatever rate is in effect for each portion of the call.

For example, if a customer places a call at 4:58 p.m. on a weekday and talks for ten minutes, the first two minutes of the call would be charged at the full weekday rate which extends from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. The remaining eight minutes of the call would be billed at the evening rate which extends from 5:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. and includes a 25% discount. If Rate Period Specific Billing were not in effect, the entire call would have been billed at the higher day rate. Calls which extend from the evening rate period (25% discount) to the night and weekend rate period (40% discount) or from the night and weekend rate period (40% discount) to the day rate period (no discount) would also be billed according to the actual minutes of use during each rate period.

AT&T Communications anticipates a minimal increase of approximately .02% in its revenues or approximately $250,000 an-

A complete copy of the "Rate Period Specific Billing" tariff is on file with the Texas Public Utility Commission.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene or participate or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. ### Fort Worth Zoo birdman keeps friends in fine feather

Fort Worth Star-Telegram FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) -Not everyone can talk to a swan or a cockatoo and have it pay

But when Ronald Kimbell tells Tornado the swan to straighten up and fly right, the creature lifts his graceful head to the sky and croons like a folk singer.

And gossips at the Fort Worth Zoo have long maintained that Cookie the Cockatoo is madly in love with Kimbell and shamelessly ignores her mate to flirt with him whenever he's in the neighborhood.

Kimbell has a way with birds. Lots of birds. Nearly 400 of them. as a matter of fact. As supervisor of the zoo's bird department, he is responsible for keeping all of them well-fed and feathered.

It's a job that has changed markedly since Kimbell joined the zoo as a fresh young high school graduate more than 20 years ago.

"I was looking for a temporary job." Kimbell said. Except for a two-year stint in the Army, the Fort Worth Zoo has been his only employer. Neither Kimbell, a bachelor who has devoted his life to his art, nor the zoo would have it any other way.

These days, a person would have a hard time getting a job at the zoo without a college degree in the field, Kimbell said. "But when I started I'd never worked with birds before and I'd never studied them. I've taught myself as I went along and learned from experience. Sometimes experience is the best way to learn about birds."

There have been many changes in the way birds are cared for since Kimbell started at the zoo.

"The techniques have changed. We have better foods and medical care," he said. "Also many of the birds used to be so easy to get, we didn't worry when one of them died. Now some birds are so rare, you'd better really take care of Kimbell still mourns the loss of 177 birds that died Christmas Eve in 1983 when the birdhouse at the zoo burned down. Some of them were quite rare and some were on the endangered species list.

"We had 10 Bali mynas in the birdhouse that we hoped to release back into the wilds of Bali," Kimbell said. The endangered mynas were part of a breeding program at the zoo and their loss was particularly heart-breaking.

Along with many other zoos in this country and around the world, the Fort Worth Zoo regards propagation of rare and endangered species as one of its major functions.

"Zoos working together may be the best hope some of these animals have," Kimbell said, "A lot of our purpose is to propogate and release back into the wild. Unfortunately, in some cases, there is no wild to release back into, so zoos are trying to help some of these species survive in captivity at least."

Fortunately, not all the Fort Worth Zoo's breeding programs were damaged severely by the fire. Many birds were housed in other cages or in the large outdoor aviary, and the zoo has had good success in breeding African gray parrots, waterfowl such as swans, cattle egrets and roseate spoonbills. "Right now, we have 44 roseate spoonbills, and we just shipped 12 to Walt Disney World. Normally, zoos breed the ones they're the best at breeding, and then we swap around with each other. We'll be getting some scarlet ibis back for our spoonbills. The spoonbill breeding program has been so successful that it garnered a Silver Propagation Award for the Fort Worth Zoo. The award is given by the American Association for Zoological Parks and Aquariums in recognition of 25 successful nestings. (That's nest,

"Our spoonbills are really in demand. Every major zoo in the country has asked for some," Kimbell said.

But for Fort Worth's 200 to become one of the leaders in the field of bird propogation, a new indoor aviary is vital, he added. Plans were being drawn for one even before the fire.

The projected aviary would cost more than $3 million, said Elvie Turner, director of the zoo. Funding has been sought from some of Fort Worth's major foundations.

"Right now w lon't know where we stand," Turner said. "We were told that no funding was available last year, but we were asked to reapply this year. That's what we did, but we haven't heard anything

As envisioned by Turner and Kimbell, the new aviary would be a state-of-the-art facility that would make Fort Worth one of the three leading zoo's in the country when it comes to birds. The other two are in San Diego and Bronx zoos.

The new facility would have four major exhibit areas representing four climatic zones: tropics. swamp, pine and savannah. Birds indigenous to each area would be shown. But the facility also would overcome some of the propagation obstacles now faced by Kimbell and his seven-person staff.

"Some birds need a natural habitat setting in which to breed," Kimbell explained. "For example, some tropical birds need a certain amount of humidity before they'll mate. In the tropics, the rainy season indicates to them that there will be enough food for their young.

Other birds need privacy. The better zoos have areas away from the display areas where these birds will breed.

Thanks to much research, zoos have a far better understanding of how to get birds to breed than they did 20 years ago, Kimbell said.

"It used to be that zoos didn't want birds raised in captivity, because they didn't think they would breed. Now we know that these birds often are better breeders because they are calmer in a zoo setting."

Imprinting is another problem that has been overcome. Imprinting is the tendency of a young animal to decide that it is the species that it first sees, and birds are particularly prone to it. If a newly hatched bird first lays eyes on a human, upon reaching adulthood, it's likely to display mating behavior toward a favorite zookeeper while ignoring those of its own kind. Obviously, this can thwart most breeding programs. "The Bronx Zoo has developed an effective way to deal with imprinting in those cases where the adult birds can't or won't take care of their young. They use hand puppets of birds when working with Imprinting wasn't a problem with Cookie, the sulfurcrested cockatoo. But, for reasons best known to herself, the bird has developed an inordinate affection for Kimbell.

Kimbell deals with thismisplaced love by avoiding the cockatoo most of the time.

Official denies that Mexico is 'prototype of dishonesty'

MEXICO CITY (AP) - A key official in President Miguel de la Madrid's "moral renewal" campaign against corruption says "Mexico is not, nor will it be a prototype for dishonesty in the world official, Comptroller-General Francisco Rojas, also said, "Corruption is not limited to Mexico, but rather is an endemic evil that all humanity suffers from.

Rojas, whose position was created by de la Madrid to uncover fraud through special audits in government offices, also said the current administration "is not applying political revenge nor fabricating victims among former officials accused of corruption.'

The two top targets of the investigations here have been Jorge Diaz Serrano, who headed the oil monopoly Pemex, and former Mexico City police chief Arturo Durazo, currently in custody in Los Angeles awaiting extradition proceedings. Both served in the 1976-1982 administration of President Jose Lopez Portillo.

Corruption has long been endemic in government here.

Rojas, speaking Monday with local reporters, also said the practice "disguised bribes" has been eliminated. In that practice, valuable gifts were given officials in return for favors.

He said new regulations prohibit officials from accepting gifts worth more than $50. Gifts worth more than that can be returned to their senders or turned over to the comptroller's office to be placed on auction for charity.

Meanwhile. Interior Secretary Manuel Bartlett said that this year there will be "clean elections that will permit Mexicans a broad participation."

In comments carried Tuesday by the government newspaper El Nacional, the cabinet member said achieving clean elections are a goal "on instructions of the president.

Texas border businessmen worrying about possible blue law preference

By JUDY GIANNETTINO Associated Press Writer

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - With a battle over whether to repeal Texas' blue law expected during the legislative session, merchants in neighboring New Mexico are preparing for a fight of their own to hold on to the Texas business they get on Sundays.

Merchants in Las Cruces, N.M.about 45 miles north of this far West Texas city, say a substantial amount of their Sunday sales are to Texans who cannot buy many items in their home state, thanks to the blue law.

The controversial law forbids the sale of 42 selected items on consecutive weekend days. Most Texas stores that carry the banned items close on Sundays.

And in this corner of the state, that means Texans travel to Las Cruces to shop, said Harry Grandon, marketing director of the Mesilla Valley Mall in the southern New Mexico city.

Grandon, relying on the number of Texas license plates in the mall's parking lot on Sundays and on information from store sales. estimated that 50 percent to 70 percent of Mesilla Valley Mall's Sunday business comes from the Lone Star State.

Many El Paso merchants said Grandon's estimates may be slightly high.

But the manager of El Paso's Cielo Vista Mall, Muriel Stathis, said, "Las Cruces does have a high percentage of Texas license plates each Sunday."

"I've seen the (mall's) lot when at least 20 percent of the cars are from Texas," she said. "Around Christmas, it could be near 50 percent.'

If the blue law is repealed, Grandon said, "I'm sure we'll feel a tremendous impact." But, he added, "We're already formulating a plan to help us combat it.

Since the blue law was created. there have been several repeal attempts.

But in 1984, increasing numbers of Texas retailers, including some in El Paso, defied the law, opening on both Saturdays and Sundays.

Recent polls that show seven of every 10 Texans would like to see the blue law wiped off the books also are indications that the statute may face its toughest test this year in the Texas Legislature.

Grandon and other Las Cruces businessmen agreed.

"I certainly would not be surprised to see it repealed," Grandon said.

J.J. Johnston, executive vice president of the Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce, called the blue law a "dinosaur," adding, "It probably will be repealed."

Johnston said a blue law repeal in Texas "will have some impact (on Las Cruces). But I don't see it having a dramatic effect.'

He predicted the most noticable effect in Las Cruces would be competition.

"If it happens, it will make our businesses compete on a more sharper scale," Johnston said. People are going to shop where the bargains are, where it's nice to shop, where the sales clerks are friendly. Our merchants will look at a repeal as a new challenge, especially on Sunday.' The possibility of increased competition is one reason Grandon said his mall would be fighting to keep its Texas business.

"They may already shop here because they like how nice the mall is, as well as because it's open on Sunday," he said. "We intend to keep reminding them of the reasons they came here."

And, he said, for El Pasoans on the west side of the city, "It's just as easy to come up here as to go to Cielo Vista." The El Paso mall is. on the city's east side.

An intensive advertising campaign for the mall already is in the works, Grandon said 'to continue to remind El Pasoans that we're here and that we're a nice place to shop."

He said he planned no lobbying efforts, but does not intend "to just throw up my hands and say 'there goes some of our business.

Ms. Stathis would give no opinion on whether the blue law would be revoked, but agreed with Grandon that if it were, Las Cruces might

"Mesilla Valley Mall does benefit from the blue law," she

She and Grandon both said they could not estimate how much money goes out of state on Sundays because of the blue law

Research underway at Indian village site

By DAVID McCORMICK

ed th he re nd ith

em ed est as ion

Associated Press Writer WICKLIFFE, Ky. (AP) - Kit Wesler, an anthropology professor and archaeologist who directs the study of a prehistoric Indian village here, has some popular misconceptions to contend with these days.

One is the romantic view of his profession presented in the hugely popular movies "Raiders of the Lost Ark" and "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom.'

"People expect me to carry a whip and be a lot more interesting than I am," he said. Another misconception is about what kind of place it is he runs. For years it was Ancient Buried City, a combination tourist attraction and museum whose main draw was an unearthed burial ground strewn with about 150 skeletons

It became the Wickliffe Mounds Research Center last year after the site was donated to Murray State University.

Visitors are still charged admission to look at the skeletons. but Wesler hopes to develop the site into a more serious museum and the center of an anthropology program for the university.

"This will give us probably the best facility for an ongoing field school in the state," he said in a recent interview.

The village, which housed 500 to 1,000 people for about 300 years before being abandoned around the year 1250, is one of the best-preserved examples of mound-building Indian culture in America.

While the school's administrators prepare the required state applications for a new degree program, Wesler is taking stock of just what has been dug from the site since a geographer discovered it 100 years

The mounds were undisturbed until around 1930, Wesler said, when workers putting a highway through the area began digging up a lot of artifacts.

"That got everybody pretty excited," he said.

Particularly excited was Colonel Fain White King, a Paducah lumberman who bought the surrounding land with the idea of developing Ancient Buried City.

Red Raiders blast Arkansas

By The Associated Press

Arkansas coach coach Eddie Sutton was feeling tired and philosophical over the worst conference game loss one of his teams has ever suffered in Southwest Conference play.

'We've had a lot of great games here in Lubbock, but this wasn't one of them," he said after Texas Tech drubbed his Razorbacks 64-48 Wednesday night. "We've won a lot of close games here, but this certainly wasn't very close. Texas Tech displayed its maturity and shot extremely well."

Senior guard Bubba Jennings canned 20 points and Texas Tech hit a school record 67.5 percent from the floor en route to the thumping.

In other Southwest Conference play Wednesday night, Texas A&M overcame Texas Christian 65-60 in overtime, Texas squeezed past Baylor 68-65 and Houston beat Rice

Texas Tech coach Gerald Myers was quick to credit his defense after the Raiders limited Arkansas to just 19 of their 55 field goal

"We came out in the second half and played with great effort on defense," Myers said. "I have to give everybody on our team credit for the job they did. Our defense was good throughout the game and

Jennings fueled Texas Tech's hot-handed effort by hitting nine of 12 field goal attempts, including seven of seven in the first half, as the Raiders withstood a tremendous 32-point performance by Arkansas senior center Joe

The Raiders are now 3-1 in conference play and 10-4 overall, while Arkansas fell to 3-2 and 12-5.

Texas A&M's squad also showed its mettle in their overtime victory over Texas Christian. Only seven players - six in the second half - played in the entire game, and they'd fought to a 51-51 tie before going into overtime and pulling out the victory. "I am really proud of our guys," said a relieved A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf. "They showed a lot of

Pampa wrestlers win top honors

The Pampa Wrestling Club placed six wrestlers at the Trinity Invitational meet held last weekend in El Reno, Okla

Ross Kelso and Bill Larkin took first in Division Four. Kelso won the 70-pound 12 and under class while Larkin won the 81-pound 12 and under class.

Also placing were Cary Thompson, second, 87 pounds, Division Five, 14 and under class; Tony Conner, third, 67 pounds, Division Two, 8 and under class;

Chad Arebalo, fourth, 65 pounds, Division Three, 10 and under class, and Vance Vanderburg, fourth, 94 pounds, 14 and under class. The Pampa team will participate in the River Road Invitational this Saturday. The team is coached by Manny Holden and Fred Vanderburg.

Youngsters from the second through the ninth grades interested in joining the club may contact Holden at 669-1856 or Vanderburg at 665-4309

7th Blue, 8th Red win cage games

The Blue defeated the Red, 31-23, in a Pampa seventh-grade game played earlier this week at the middle school gym.

Mark Woods led the Blue with 10 points, followed by Cale Flemming with seven.

Anton Wallace was Red's top scorer with 14 points while Ray Reed added eight.

In a Pampa eighth-grade game, the Red defeated the Blue, 38-26, with Dustin Miller and Karry Brown scoring 15 and 14 points for the winners.

Jason Garrett led the Blue with six points, followed by Ricky Sewell and David Fields with four points each.

Next Monday, the Pampa eighth-grade Red will host Perryton at 5:30 p.m. in the middle-school gym. The seventh-grade Blue plays at Valley View and the seventh-grade Red goes to Canyon.

Pampa travels to Dunbar Friday

Pampa High head coach Garland Nichols was pleased to see Petey Davis and Jeff Gaines led the scoring parade in the Harvesters' 69-45 win over Dumas last Tuesday

Davis scored 20 points, his season's high, hitting 10 of 13 field goal attempts. Gaines contributed 15 points, the first double-digit scoring game for the 6-51/2 senior in the last four outings.

"Both Petey and Jeff really stood out," said Pampa coach Garland Nichols. "Petey is starting to come into his own and Jeff has got it into his head that he can score.

Davis and Gaines took the scoring load off the shoulders of the Harvesters' leading scorer Rodney Young, who was still suffering the aftereffects of the flu. Young finished with seven points, his lowest-scoring game of the season.

Pampa altered its deliberate offensive pattern to break the game open with fast break layups the second half.

"Dumas was pressuring us and I felt we could break their press by taking it on down the floor,' Nichols said. "We're going to start taking advantage of anything the opposition gives us."

Pampa also had an overwhelming advantage on the boards, outrebounding the Demons, 34-22, with Davis' seven rebounds leading the way.

The Harvesters are 2-2 in District 1-4A play and are currently tied for third place with Canyon and Lubbock Estacado in standings. Borger stands alone at the top with a 4-0 mark.

Pampa travels to Lubbock to take on the Dunbar Panthers Friday night. The girls' varsity game tips off at 7 p.m. follwed by the boys' clash.

"This is a very big district game for us," said Nichols. "We need a win bad. It would help if we could have as many hometown people as possible at the game."

Dunbar has only one district loss and is led by 6-7, 235-pound Sam Collins and first-team all-district guard Joey Torres.

"Dunbar is big, very big," Nichols said. "They're not as quick as Estacado and they don't have the shooters that Borger has, but they've got a good team.'

44-37, Tuesday night in girls' basketball action. Canadian fell behind, 12-6, in the first quarter, but gained the lead, 19-18, at halftime. Childress went 1-up, 31-30, after three quarters, but the Lady Wildcats pulled it out down the stretch for their second District I-3A win without a setback.

'We can't score consistently for four quarters and we had that problem against last night," said Canadian coach Steve Zurline. 'We shot 24 percent from the floor, but we hit 70 percent (14-20) from the line and that was the difference. We put them on the foul line only five times."

Dana Johnson and Melinda Vanhooser led Canadian in scoring with 12 and 11 points respectively Stephanie Byard added seven points, while Lucinda Dunnam had six, Shiela Carr, four; Tracie Ross and Jeanna Patton, two each. "We gave up too many offensive rebounds and that hurt us, but we made only 14 turnovers and we've been averaging 19 a game," Zurline said.

Shelly Ingram and Janet Crawford had 11 and 10 points respectively for Childress.

Canadian is tied with Perryton for first place in district with 2-0 marks. Overall, the Lady Wildcats are 11-6.

Under Zurline, the Lady Wildcats have reached the playoffs the last two seasons. In 1983, Canadian advanced past the bi-district playoffs for the first Canadian also won the boys game, 45-34. Geoffrey Dockray led Canadian with 12 points, followed by Donnie Anderson and Rodney Boyd with 10 points each. The Wildcats led by only one

Borger trucker convicted of criminally negligent homicide

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) - A trucker from Borger, Texas, has been convicted of two counts of criminally negligent homicide for the crossing accident near Pueblo in which two train crewmen died last May 17.

David Slatton insisted that he did not see the Missouri Pacific freight train barreling toward his rig as he started across the Chico Road crossing east of Pueblo. In testimony, he said he didn't hear the train, either.

A district court jury considered the evidence from the week-long trial for most of a day before finding Slatton guilty in the deaths of engineer Donald Wright, 24, of Pueblo and fireman Jerry Garrett, 35, of Houston.

Wright died the next day of injuries received in the crash. Garrett died 10 days later. The train hit the tanker behind

Slatton's cab and he was uninjured. During the trial, witnesses present immediately after the crash last May 17 train at the crossing. Slatton took the stand as the last defense witness Tuesday and said he never saw the train before it reached the Chico Road crossing, across which he was driving a tractor-tanker rig loaded with flammable liquid

He also denied ever telling anyone after the crash that he had seen the train coming and thought he had time to clear the crossing.

Earlier, two Missouri-Pacific employees - Arnold Miller and J.R. White - testified that Slatton came up to them after the crash and told them he had thought he could beat the train.
