Growth Cited In Campus Unrest

TCB Urges Ceiling On Enrollments

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Texas Coordinating Board of Higher Education says campus unrest may be caused by uncontrolled growth in the universities. It has urged college and universities set enrollment ceilings.

We are concerned with the size of institutions only as the size affects student attrition, student attitudes and morale, and in short, the quality of education," education commissioner Bevington Reed said Monday.

Reed said too rapid a growth of universities can disrupt planning, force schools to hire sub-standard teachers and result in equipment and housing shortages.

Research studies indicate "the exact size of an institution may not be as important as its growth rate, since the growth causes morale problems that are often expressed through student and faculty protests," Reed said.

Reed's recommendation asking the board to request the governing boards of state schools "to give careful and immediate consideration" to setting enrollment ceilings was unanimously approved.

The coordinating board tried to impose enrollment ceilings once before. But Attorney General Crawford Martin said the board only has the authority to advise the state's public colleges on such matters.

The board also deviated from their agenda and unanimously passed a resolution urging state college administrators to clamp down on students who disrupt university activities and even expel them if necessary.

Board vice chairman Newton Gresham said the resolution was a "spontaneous reaction of an informal meeting" of board members held Sunday.

"Along with what it believes to be the vast majority of Texans, the coordinating board is gravely concerned at the disruptions of our institutions of higher learning by use of violence and intimidation," the resolution said.

"The coordinating board calls upon the governing boards and the administrative officers of these institutions to prevent such disruptions and to penalize those responsible by full use of the general law and of available administrative regulations, including expulsion."

Gresham said the resolution was not the result of incidents at any one specific campus. He said it was designed to provide "moral support" to administrators who must deal with students who disrupt campus activities.

He said court decisions prevent administrators from expelling students without due process. But he said the students can be given an adequate hearing on the campuses without taking each case to court.

"We thought about putting in the resolution that the students shouldn't be expelled without due process," he said. "But that is part of the general law and we decided it wasn't needed."

The coordinating board also heard Dr. G.V. Brindley Jr. say Texas medical schools will more than double their enrollment by 1975 while some communities will still go on without a physician.

"Our state has made more progress than any other I know of and we are well above the average of the rest of the nation," Brindley, a member of the board, said.

He said studies are now underway that will permit exceptional students to become physicians in five years rather than eight years.

KIDNAPED 12 DAYS AGO High Weeds Give Up Body Of Girl

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Two boys walking along a rural road near here found the body of Laurie Murningham, 16, the object of an intense police search since she was kidnaped during a holdup 12 days ago.

Her abductor remained at large today. Lansing Police Chief Derold Husby vowed he would "leave no stone unturned until the person or persons responsible for the tragedy are brought to justice."

The body of the pretty, blonde daughter of Max E. Murningham, former mayor of this state capital, was found Monday in high grass and weeds near a lake about 15 feet from the road. She was clad in the white blouse, red belt and blue miniskirt she wore when she was abducted July 9 from the gift shop where she was employed for the summer.

Identification was confirmed through dental comparison, Husby said. The cause or time of death was not immediately determined but Husby said he would reveal the results of an autopsy at a news conference today (noon EDT).

Murningham, who spent the early days of the investigation at the Lansing Police Department working with police, was not available for comment, nor were other members of the family.

Gerald W. Graves, Lansing's mayor, said he was "stunned and greatly grieved by this senseless crime. Our hearts and prayers go out in deepest sympathy to Laurie's family."

Miss Murningham was kidnaped from Gallagher's Gift Shop by a gunwielding bandit during a holdup which netted $60. The owner of the store Mrs. Christine Gallagher, was pistol-whipped by the man when she recovered from her injuries was able to help an artist draw a picture of him.

That picture, along with a recent photograph of Miss Murningham was widely circulated, particularly among truck drivers in the hope of determining where the two had gone.

Brilliant Britisher Succumbs

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer Iain N. MacLeod, 56, considered the most brilliant brain in the new Conservative government, died of a heart attack Monday night.

His death faced Prime Minister Edward Heath with the immediate problem of picking a successor. Political sources said it probably would mean a top-level cabinet reshuffle a month after the new government took office.

Heath announced MacLeod's death in a 2 a.m. statement from his No. 10 Downing Street office.

MacLeod, who died at his official residence at No. 11 Downing St.—next door to the prime minister—had been released Sunday from St. George's Hospital, where he underwent an appendectomy July 8.

Political speculation centered at once on Home Secretary Reginald Maudling, 53, for the job. It is equivalent to that of secretary of the Treasury in the United States. The chancellor of the exchequer is responsible for making and directing the nation's economic policies. Maudling held the job in earlier Conservative party governments in 1962-64.

Friends said MacLeod had watched television until late then retired to his bedroom. He suffered the attack at 11:20 and died 10 minutes later.

MacLeod's death left Heath with the problem of making a major replacement in his government after only one month in office. Speculation on a successor centered on Reginald Maudling, the home secretary who served as chancellor of the exchequer, the British equivalent of the U.S. secretary of the Treasury, in the previous Conservative government.

Advance Warning Posted On Season's First Major Storm

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Tropical storm Becky, with peak winds of 55 miles an hour, moved to within 240 miles of the Gulf Coast today. The Weather Bureau said the storm would probably intensify as it neared shore.

A hurricane watch was posted from Morgan City, La., to Apalachicola, Fla., in advance of the first major storm of the hurricane season.

A Coast Guard spokesman said reconnaissance planes had spotted Becky about 240 miles south of Pensacola, Fla.

The storm was moving to the north at 10 miles an hour.

Gale winds—those above 39 miles an hour—extended 150 miles to the north and east of the storm's center.

"Becky is expected to move northward about 10 miles an hour during the next 12 to 18 hours," a Weather Bureau advisory said today. "The storm remains poorly organized, however some intensification will likely occur today and tonight as it approaches the coast."

Small craft warnings were posted from the Texas-Louisiana border to Tampa, Fla., midway down the western side of the Florida panhandle.

TEA Clamps Down On Ineligible Bus Riders

By WANDA MAE HUFF
News Staff Writer

School trustees voted Monday night to eliminate three school bus routes to comply with a Texas Education Agency regulation to transport only eligible bus students.

With an audience of about 20 teachers, taxpayers and school administrators, the board heard reports from Claude Robertson, coordinator of special services, and Supt. Dr. James F. Malone on the school bus regulation being enforced in all Texas school districts by the state education agency.

"Last year we hauled 726 students per day. Of these 403 were eligible, by living beyond the two-mile limit from the nearest school; they can attend and 323 were ineligible. We had 16 bus routes, 13 approved by the state and three not approved. Operating expenses of the three not approved were paid by the local district," Robertson said.

"We have been ordered by the state agency to transport only eligible students on eligible buses. If we continue the present operation of transporting both eligible and ineligible students, we'll have to have 18 buses, because we'll no longer be allowed to mix eligible bus students with ineligible bus students," he said.

"They mean it, too," Dr. Malone said. "They have said they'll get on the buses, count the bus load, ask us where the students live, verify the addresses, and if they are within the two-mile limit, they'll take them off the bus. We have no choice. Besides, operating as we have, we'll exceed the budget allowed for bus transportation."

After Robertson's cafeteria operation report, in which he said school cafeterias were "just barely breaking even" on costs and revenue, the board approved a more centralized cafeteria operation with Robertson as its director.

With this plan, Robertson will supervise centralized purchasing.

IF ELECTIONS ARE FREE

South Viets Indicate Approval To Sharing Gov't With Commies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon says the leaders of South Vietnam are willing to share their government with the Communists, provided such a coalition results from a free election.

At the same time Nixon reassured Saigon his administration is not about to negotiate a deal that would force a coalition government before such elections could be held.

Nixon told an unscheduled news conference in his office Monday South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu had indicated the Communists could participate in free elections, "and he has also indicated that he would accept the result of an election, whatever that result might be."

Nixon's surprise news conference came on the eve of today's 3 p.m. EDT meeting of the National Security Council at which Vietnam was the main topic under consideration. Nixon's new ambassador to the Paris talks, David K. E. Bruce, and his ambassador to Saigon, Ellsworth Bunker, were called home to participate.

Same Old Song In Lower Key

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The cost of living climbed again in June by four-tenths of one percent but food prices went down and the rate of increase for some other things slowed noticeably, the government reported today.

The monthly consumer price index showed that food prices declined on a seasonally adjusted basis, as is customary in the summer.

But higher prices for used cars, homes and most types of consumer services increased to offset the lower food costs to put the general price level at 135.2. This meant that in June, goods and services that cost $10 (See SAME, Page 2)

Cool Front Drops Mercury Into 50s

Pampans today donned coats and sweaters as mid-morning temperatures dropped to unseasonably cold readings ranging from the middle fifties to low sixties.

The cool front moved into the area late Sunday and dropped 38 of an inch of rain on the area.

Farmers, apparently relieved by the break from the heat, did not indicate enough rain had fallen in the area to help the dryland crops.

Down state, however, the cool front generated electrical and thunder storms and caused flash flooding in Kilgore, Longview, Tyler and Carthage and power failure in Kilgore and Henderson.

The rainiest area was Kilgore, Longview, where between three and four inches fell. Several cars caught in low places were flooded and water flowed into a gift shop, a drug store and a jewelry store. Accompanying winds scattered tree limbs and blew down television antennas.

The Good Shepherd Hospital at Longview had two inches of water standing in its basement, and firemen used suction pumps to remove water from a flooded drugstore. Water three and four feet deep stalled cars at underpasses but no serious property damage was done.

Heavy rains also hit Gladewater, Carthage, Henderson and Tyler, where streets flooded over curbs. Henderson had one and a half inches of rain and a power failure that lasted an hour and blacked out approximately two thirds of the city.

The attack on Romeas began Monday night but the Cambodian defenders resisted through the night and today, a Cambodian military spokesman said. It is the key training center for the country's ragtag army.

Kansas Youth Killed On School Campus

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — A white University of Kansas freshman was shot and killed Monday night 200 feet off the school's campus in a confrontation with police. He was the second youth shot to death in a week of racial tension.

Early reports by the Kansas Bureau of Investigation showed the victim, Harry Nick Rice, 18, of Leawood, Kan., was hit in the back of the head by a single bullet.

Another youth was wounded in the leg and a policeman was injured by a rock during the night of violence just north of the university.

"We have plenty of witnesses who saw Rice fall while fleeing officers," Assistant County Attorney Mike Elwell said today. "But no one heard any shots or saw where they came from."

Merton Olds, 25, of Topeka, Kan., was shot and wounded in the calf. Olds is a graduate student at the university.

"I just turned around when I heard something that sounded like firecrackers and felt a stinging sensation," Olds said. "Then I knew what happened."

Douglas County Attorney D.M. Young confirmed one firebombing and said at least one car was overturned in the street by black youths angered at the killing of a young Negro by a policeman last week. Police used tear gas to disperse a group of youths who earlier pelted them with rocks, bottles and other objects. No one was arrested.

USA Econo Health Improving

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy gave Congress a glowing report on the nation's economy today, contending that inflationary pressures were receding and predicting further progress this year toward a healthier economy.

"Our patience is being rewarded," Kennedy testified before the House-Senate Economic Committee. "The orthodox policies of this administration are working."

Kennedy said the economy is making a transition from severe inflation at the same time it is adjusting from a war-time to a peace-time economy.

Another witness, Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson, predicted that any further significant increases in unemployment could be avoided as the administration pursued its anti-inflation program while switching to a peace-time economy.

Solution Sought For Desolate Living Conditions Of Migrants

By ROY MCGHEE
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Few deny the plight of the migrant worker and his children is a blight on society, but nobody seems to be able to do anything about it.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., chairman of a subcommittee which has investigated and reported on migrant farm workers for years, concedes he has no answer. But he's still looking.

In current hearings his subcommittee listened as Dr. Raymond M. Wheeler asked: "What has to be done to convince the Congress of the United States, the most powerful group of men in the world, that the time has come to put aside its greed, its prejudice, its concern for personal power and prestige—and to be concerned for the kind of society in which our children must live together."

"You challenge us, and I can't answer," Mondale replied. "We pass laws that are minimal, but even they are not enforced. If there is anything expendable in American society, it's the migrants, although they crawl on their bellies to produce the food for this country."

Mondale had just heard a recital of health and living conditions of migrants in Hidalgo County, Tex., by Wheeler and Dr. Harry S. Lipscomb of the Baylor College of Medicine, Houston.

The two led a team of 25 doctors and health technicians on a field survey of how migrants live. They found conditions so bad they set up a clinic for four days, treating 1,400 persons heretofore without medical care.

Here is a sample of Lipscomb's report to Mondale: "Intestinal parasites were the rule. We personally saw under the microscope pinworms, hook worms, round worms, amoeba, often occurring in combination in a single patient, and invariably occurring in several members of the same family when present in one. Of the eight drinking-water sources which we cultured, six were contaminated with fecal organisms."

Lipscomb also said the only polio reported in the United States this year was among migrant families in Hidalgo County; that rickets was not an uncommon disease there, although most people thought it was abolished years ago, and that they even found one case of leprosy.

PEGASUS "FLIES" A PIPELINE. "Pegasus," a new underwater reconnaissance vehicle, is seen conducting a documented photographic survey of an offshore oil pipeline. The new photographic system, developed by Real Eight, also has been used in underwater inspection of ship hulls, docks and seawalls.

Official Refutes Charges Of Migrant Health Conditions

EDINBURG, Tex. (UPI) — Dr. John Copenhaver, the head of four South Texas migrant health projects, claims reports of polio and leprosy among migrant children presented before a Senate subcommittee are not true.

Dr. Raymond Wheeler, who conducted an investigation of migrant worker conditions in Texas and Florida, said Monday the only cases of polio found in the United States this year were of migrant children in Hidalgo County. He also told to the Senate subcommittee one case of leprosy was detected there.

"We haven't had a single case of polio among migrant children that I know of," Copenhaver said.

Hidalgo and Cameron counties did suffer a polio epidemic this summer and 14 persons were stricken with what was thought to be polio. Three children died.

Some Not Verified

"Some of those 14 have not yet been verified as polio," Copenhaver said. "But nonetheless, as far as I know none was among migrants. I specifically asked our health nurses to check and I received no notification that any were migrants."

He said some of the victims were not American citizens but were Mexican citizens living in the United States or who came to the United States for treatment.

"As for leprosy, we have about 60 cases of leprosy in Hidalgo and Cameron counties, not just one," he said. "This is certainly not alarming. We found about one new case every two or three months and leprosy is very definitely not more prevalent among migrants than any other group."

Wheeler, president of the Southern Regional Council, said Mexican-American workers in South Texas cross into Mexico to obtain less expensive and more humane health care.

"Not More Humane"

"I guess they can get it cheaper across the river but it is certainly not more humane," Copenhaver replied.

Wheeler said his team saw migrant housing and living conditions in Florida and Texas

"horrible and dehumanizing to the point of disbelief."

Copenhaver said it was unreasonable to compare migrant conditions and homes of both Florida and Texas together since the areas were different and the people and conditions were different.

He said he believed migrants of South Texas "are even a little better off in their health care than the average persons in a similar economic bracket because the federal government has spent a good bit of money down here to take care of them."

He said it was true many migrants live in homes without water or sewer service when they are not on the road seeking work and they often suffer from vitamin deficiency or malnutrition. But he said if they were ejected from unsanitary housing they would have no place to live and while they are eligible for low cost government loans to build their homes they are hesitant to put a mortgage on their land.

Health Board Bans Fish Sale

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — The Vermont Health Board, acting because of the discovery of abnormally high levels of mercury in state waters, has banned the sale of fish caught in Vermont.

The action at the board's monthly meeting Thursday extended a ban against the sale of fish caught in Lake Champlain to other lakes, ponds and rivers.

Both the Fish and Game departments are continuing a program of testing waters for mercury concentrations, initiated after Canadian officials reported last month they had discovered high concentrations in fish in northern Lake Champlain.

Survivors are one daughter, Mrs. Anna Jobe of Amarillo; three sons, C.W. of El Paso, T.J. of Marlow, Okla., and Oscar L. of California; 11 grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

GOP Party Charged With Shapelessness

AUSTIN (UPI) — A Texas Republican Party official Monday denied charges the GOP has lost minority votes because of the state party's "provincialism, snobbery, pettiness and outright stupidity."

The Ripon Society, a national organization of GOP liberals, published an 84-page magazine arguing Nixon lost Texas in 1968 because he lost the minority vote.

"If Nixon had taken only 10 per cent of the black vote, he could have carried Texas, but evidently ideological purity and the depletion allowance were more important to Texas Republicans," the publication said.

It also said President Nixon's southern strategy is hurting GOP candidates, and warned if southern GOP leaders do not "shape up" Texas Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, a Democrat, "could become the leading political figure in Texas and even the South as well."

Norman Newton, executive director of the state Republican Party, called the report grossly unfair and untrue.

Newton said the Texas GOP rector of the state Republican Party, called the report grossly unfair and untrue.

chasing, storing and distribution of food items and supplies and coordinate menu planning with school cafeteria managers.

"We learned to meet expenses, we'll have to cut costs in labor and food purchases. By better use of government commodities offered free, and using the state formula for personnel needed, we could save about $34,000 a year. The state formula suggests one cook for 75 people eating and one additional cook for each additional 100 eating," Robertson said.

In other business, the board approved purchase of 10 electric typewriters from Tri-City Office Supply, Pampa, for high school at $310.00 each, accepted the low bid of State Chemical for paper products, opened but did not accept bids on furniture for the new science wing, third floor classrooms and field house chairs, and rejected all bids for business office machines.

The board also accepted low bids on 16 band instruments and 30 music stands for a total of $5,420.86 for the two bidders, May and Duncan of Amarillo and Tarpley of Pampa.

Trustees designated KGRO as the district's official radio station, approved $2,650.45 final payment to Hallmark Builders of Amarillo for the PHS Athletic Field House, and partial payment of $36,981 to Wiley Hicks Jr. for PHS construction projects.

Personnel changes approved were resignations of Mike Stone and Leon Van Alstine, both from Lee Junior High School; Peggy Aguin, clerical assistant; Marvin Fugate, custodian and Ted Nolte, maintenance. Melvin L. Batman, Norman Walker and George Huat were employed as custodians and James Golleher for football field maintenance.

The board will also meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday, July 27, at Carver administration center to discuss all personnel needed for the Fall school term.

Funeral services for Oscar Charlie Vance, 77, of 637 S. Gray, are pending with Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Home. Mr. Vance was dead on arrival at Worley Hospital Monday.

Born Feb. 26, 1893, at Utica, Iowa, he moved to Panhandle from Iowa and to Pampa in 1928.

Survivors are one daughter, Mrs. Anna Jobe of Amarillo; three sons, C.W. of El Paso, T.J. of Marlow, Okla., and Oscar L. of California; 11 grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

Go-Go Dancer's Murder Under Investigation

ODESSA, Tex. (UPI) — Detective Capt. Glen Wallace said today that he has assigned three men full time to the murder case of go-go dancer Eula Mae Rogers, 26.

An autopsy report Monday showed that Mrs. Rogers died of a stab wound in the right side of her neck. She was stabbed a total of seven times and the body left nude upon a bare bed.

The body was found last Thursday. Dr. Wray Storey, who performed the autopsy, said she had been dead four or five days.

He said the apartment in which the body was found was tightly closed and the air conditioning was not on and it was impossible under the circumstances to determine the time of death.

The condition of the body and a recent hysterectomy also made it impossible to tell whether she had been sexually assaulted.

Friends or other persons heard her talking in the apartment a week ago Sunday night and early Monday with two different men. Investigators were anxious to question the men, but had no names to go on.

Odesa police said Stephen Max Combs, 25, accused in murdering Vicky Berneathy, 20, a North Texas State University coed, was not one of the men.

McDonald's Hamburger Chain Accused Of Misleading Contest

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) accused McDonald's Corp., operator of a big drive-in hamburger chain, of running a "false, misleading and deceptive" sweepstakes contest.

Bush Asks Clearing Of Desegregation Law

DALLAS (UPI)—Rep. George Bush, R-Tex., called for a special session of the U. S. Supreme Court to clear up what he called "the uncertainty and doubt" over public school desegregation.

"The only answer lies in a hood school concept by the Supreme Court," Bush, a candidate for the U. S. Senate, said in a statement at the opening of his Dallas County campaign headquarters.

K of P Junior Order To Install New Officers

David Caldwell, son of Mr. & Mrs. D.A. Caldwell, 2108 N. Dwight, will be installed as the new Regent of Pampa Chapter No. 70 Pi Delta Pi, Junior Order Knights of Pythias, at the regular meeting to be held at 8 p.m. Monday at the Pythias Lodge Hall, 315 N. Nelson.

Other officers to be installed are: David Hopkins, Vice-Regent; Cameron Cunningham, Chaplain; Randy Stephens, Marshall; John Roth, Sentry; Montye Lee Bryan, Master of Finance; Mark Watkins, Elder; and Chip Taylor, Scribe.

Mark Watkins is the outgoing Regent, J.C. Hopkins, Knight Advisor will be in charge of the installation.

Danny Ray McCaskill, Terry Don Braddock, Randy Swope, Dennis Stowers and Rick McGuire will be initiated as new members. Refreshments will be served.

People From All Over World In 'Texas' Audience

As visitors come to the "Texas" Musical Drama, driving through flat uninhabited country to reach the theatre, they are usually surprised at the Canyon, surprised to find the theatre, and surprised to encounter so many other people at the performance. Nearly 21,000 persons saw "Texas" during the first 18 performances of 1970 and one question many of them ask is "Where do the people come from?"

The management has devised several ways to answer the question. The patrons register, with the states they come from. They place pins on huge wall maps of the state, the United States and the world marking their homes, and occasionally they answer surveys.

The distribution of the audience has remained surprisingly constant throughout the years. About one-fourth comes from a radius of twenty-five miles: Amarillo and Canyon. Another fourth comes from a radius of one hundred miles which includes Lubbock. The rest of Texas sends the third quarter and the rest of the United States the fourth. About two per cent of the audience comes from abroad.

In order to honor those who travel great distances to see "Texas," a small gift is presented from the stage each evening to the person who has traveled the farthest to attend. It is a miniature of the triangle which the ranchers use to call people to meals and is very authentic ring.

Since "Texas" opened June 28, the triangle has gone to people from New Zealand, Thailand, Australia, India, Sweden, Netherlands, Canada, Japan, China, Malaysia and Afghanistan. In the 250 productions of "Texas," people in the United States have received it only a half-dozen times or so.

For reservations and tickets write Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015.

The commission proposed that McDonald's pay out $487,000 in prizes which the FTC said were promised but not delivered.

The action was a proposed consent order naming McDonald's; a subsidiary, McDonald's Systems Inc.; the firm's advertising agency, D'Arcy Advertising Co., St. Louis, and D.L. Blair Corp., New York, which prepared and operated "McDonald's $500,000 Sweepstakes" for McDonald's.

Under FTC procedures the companies may sign the consent order, agreeing to follow its terms without acknowledging guilt. If they do not sign, the FTC will issue a formal complaint and the case will go before an FTC hearing examiner for an initial ruling.

The contest in question was conducted through an advertising insert in 18.9 million copies of the June, 1968, issue of Readers Digest.

The ad said 15,610 prizes worth $500,000 would be awarded, the FTC said. Actually, it said, only 227 prizes worth about $13,000 were awarded.

Actually, the FTC said, 15,610 prizes were never bought or "reserved" and that prizes were bought only when winners claimed them. It said the contest claims were "false, misleading and deceptive."

"Some participants were denied prizes even though they submitted coupons bearing winning numbers," the FTC said. It said some winning numbers were sent with the firm's knowledge to Readers Digest subscribers in states where sweepstakes contests are illegal.

Nicholas T. Montalto, general counsel for D. L. Blair, said the firm was "informed of the matter on Friday and we're looking into it. We really have no comment on it at this point."

Of the 18.9 million ad inserts, the FTC said, winning numbers were printed on 15,610 coupons, the FTC said. In an such sweepstakes, an FTC spokesman explained, most of the prospective winners do not check their coupons, and hence never enter the contest or claim their prize.

"The answer there, as in the rest of the state, lies in quality neighborhood school education for all, but not in racial or ethnic quotas," Bush said. "It lies in neighborhood schools for all, but schools of much improved quality in heretofore neglected areas. It lies in fairly enforced freedom of choice. Bussing to achieve a racial balance is wrong."

Bush said he hopes the Supreme Court will recapture, "take a pragmatic look at the situation in north and south alike, and then place the concept of quality neighborhood schools ahead of the concept of forced racial quotas."

Miss Biggs Places Third In K of P Contest

Miss Raylene Biggs, Pampa Lodge No. 480 Knights of Pythias representative in the Knights of Pythias sectional six Public Speaking Contest held in Del Norte, Colorado Saturday, July 18 placed third in the contest.

Miss Biggs, a junior at Panhandle High School, is the daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Raymond Biggs, Panhandle.

She is speech student of Mr. L.A. Sparks, Panhandle High School, and had won the local speaking contest in Pampa last April and the regional 1 and the State contest held in Lubbock.

Miss Mary Bettini, Phoenix, Arizona, won the first place award and a $1,000 scholarship. She will be entered in the National finals contest to be held in Chicago.

against four corporations charging his privacy was invaded and his integrity attacked by a television series.

Perry sued Columbia Broadcasting Systems Inc., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., Xerox Corp., and Indiana Broadcasting Corp. in U.S. District Court. Television star Bill Cosby was named as a co-conspirator.

The suit was based on a CBS program, "Black History: Lost, Stolen or Forgotten," which Perry said took out of context a Stepin Fetchit characterization and depicted him as "the symbol of the white man's Negro, the traditional lazy, stupid, craphooter, chicken-stealing idiot."

The series was prepared by CBS and exhibited by the Indiana Broadcasting Corp. through its station WISH-TV in Indianapolis. It was sponsored by Xerox and contained portions of films owned by 20th Century-Fox, the suit said.

"The broadcasting industry and its sponsors," Perry said in a statement, "have assumed the power to be our judges, our prosecutors and our jury. By taking my professional characters out of context, they would have you believe that they know the intent of every line written and acted on the American stage."

Perry said his movie character is "universally loved by young and old, and by every race" and that it was "as popular in the Negro neighborhoods as in the white."

He said Stepin Fetchit "as I portrayed him, had none of the weak personal characteristics described by Bill Cosby on the CBS programs."

Perry said his own achievement as the first Negro to be accepted as "a top-flight movie star" opened avenues to stardom "for people such as the narrator of the CBS program (Cosby) who is now trying to mar my image."

Although Cosby was not named as a defendant, the suit referred to him as a "co-conspirator . . . who mouthed the objects of black conspiracy and who, as a black man, gave credibility to the defamation of the plaintiff."

Perry asked actual damages of $25,000 and punitive damages of $2,975,000, the latter for "the malice and intentional invasion of privacy and defamation of character."

C-Members To Hear Latest On Water For Texas

Members of the board of directors of Water, Inc. will meet in Pampa for an official meeting July 27 and will provide the program at the membership luncheon of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce on that date. The meeting will be held in the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn at noon.

Bill Clayton, executive vice president and general manager of Water, Inc., will speak of the latest developments in the Texas Water Plan.

All interested area citizens are invited to attend the luncheon where they will have an opportunity to ask questions concerning progress being made to bring water from the Mississippi to Texas.

Luncheon reservations may be made by writing or calling the Pampa Chamber of Commerce. A special invitation is extended to area residents according to Don Lane, president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Last New Year's Eve my boss proposed marriage. I accepted but he didn't offer me a ring. (In fact, he said he couldn't afford it right now. Well, I keep his books, and I know he can!)

I thought he'd surprise me with a ring for Valentine's Day, but instead he gave me a big heart-shaped box of candy I needed like I need another head. Then came Easter, and I expected the "Easter bunny" to bring me a diamond, but I got a live rabbit, which bit me, and I got an infection.

Yesterday a package came to the office addressed to me, and insured for $25. I opened it and it was a set of rings ordered from a mail-order catalog. I didn't know whether to laugh or cry.

I don't know yet if this is

Pampan Attends Library Workshop In New Mexico

Kay Duck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elvis Duck, 1005 S. Dwight, will attend the annual Student Librarian-Workshop at Eastern New Mexico State University in Portales, N.M.

The three-day workshop will end Friday after several sessions led by professionals in the library science field including visits by Rebecca Caudill and James Ayars, authors of several children's books.

his idea of a joke or not. Am I officially engaged? And what should I do?

DEAR SYLVIA: If you accepted his proposal of marriage, you are officially "engaged," ring or no ring. And if you plan on marrying this clown, you'd better develop a sense of humor and learn to live on love and a tight budget.

DEAR ABBY: A young teen-aged girl, signed "SEEKING THE TRUTH," asked you what was wrong with premarital sex. You copped out with your answer when you replied that among other good reasons for abstaining was the fear of an unwanted pregnancy. You even pointed out that in spite of the pill, the illegitimacy rate had not been reduced.

Well I am sorry to disagree with you, Abby, but as a married friend once told me, "fear of pregnancy never stopped anyone; it only makes them worry afterwards."

DEAR BEAVER: (Sorry to disagree with your friend, but the fear of pregnancy has stopped plenty of people. But unfortunately, it's not stopping nearly enough.)

DEAR ABBY: A girl wrote to say that her high school days were the unhappiest days of her life, and she listed her reasons.

She never knew what to wear. She had to sit in the back of the bus with all the hoodlums because when she got on, the other seats were filled, and she couldn't do a thing about it when they got fresh because she was too embarrassed to tell the driver what they said. She said all the "high class" kids looked down on her because her parents were "foreigners." Then she ends up by saying she is in college, now, and is glad those miserable high school days are over.

Well, Abby, let me tell her about my high school days. I didn't have to worry about what to wear because I had one dress and one pair of holey shoes with cardboard in the soles. And where to sit on the "bus" was no problem for me, because I walked three miles to school and back in rain, sleet and snow. And I wore a thin hand-me-down Spring coat in 20 below zero weather.

The "high class" kids looked down on me, too. But not because my parents were "foreigners." They were worse than that. My father was an American Indian which made me a half-breed, and my mother was a divorcee, which was really a disgrace in those days. And as if that wasn't bad enough, I was left-handed, for which I was punished daily.

So there I was, a poor, left-handed half-breed with a divorced mother. I had to fight my way to school every day. But I suffered in silence because that was the code of the Indian.

I never made it to college although I was offered a scholarship. Instead I had to go to work to help support the family. With all of this, I'd have to say high school was the happiest time of my life. Just wait until you get out into the business world with its cut-throat competition. Then you'll look back and remember how good your school days were.

The Rev. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Schrimpf, Pampa residents the past 10 years, will observe their Golden Wedding Anniversary with an open house from 2 to 4 p.m. July 25 at the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas Company.

Rev. Schrimpf, a teacher, evangelist and pastor, has been in the gospel ministry 35 years, and formerly pastored a church at Camp Wood before he retired from the ministry. While in the ministry, he served in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri and Colorado.

He has a doctor of divinity degree from the American Bible College and is affiliated with the Apostolic Faith Church which is headquartered in Baxter Springs, Kans.

He and the former Florence Redhage were married in Oklahoma City, Okla., in 1920.

The couple's two daughters, Mrs. Paul Allen Pletcher, Webb City, Mo., and Mrs. Paul Ross, Albuquerque, N.M., with his sister, Mrs. Cletus Carlile, Denver, Colo., assisting, have organized plans for the 50th anniversary party. The couple have six granddaughters and one grandson.

Their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Pletcher, were missionaries to Mexico 16 years, before Pletcher began teaching a Bible school in Webb City. Mrs. Ross has been teaching the past 16 years with the Indian Service in New Mexico.

JEANE DIXON

WEDNESDAY, JULY 22, 1970

Your birthday Wednesday; Eight or nine months of preparation are ahead, then about seven months of well-earned materialization. Your senses of adequacy and security follow these cycles and develop dramatically when the time comes. Sets of selected objects help you prepare for longterm cycles of changing living conditions. Wednesday's natives are collectors. In some cases they may scatter their own and others' resources in order to save their collections.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your progress runs into a temporary snag. Seek quietly to learn the causes and ask for help from somebody of sufficient authority. It might be your own fault, to begin with.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): People of greater influence tend to go along with your suggestion while people with less power tend to resist. Make all the progress you can. Enjoy good music in the evening.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Matters continue with no serious problems. Get an early start, allow for some scattering of energy. The evening brings a chance to enjoy yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 21): With normal care in travel and a bit more tact with relatives, you can settle personal plans for the near future. You can learn a great deal, if you will.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22): Discussions fill the day, and you have much on your mind. Your opinions are well respected. Top it all off with a good party.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Competition for attention is keen Wednesday. Good manners are your best bet—have your facts and figures well organized. If you are crowded out, Thursday will be better.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Proceed step by step against whatever opposition presents itself. Unnecessary discussions set up side issues, time-wasting repetitions. Seek a change of scene Wednesday.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Strangers are helpful as buffers between you and people who know you too well. Tact gets you past the crisis and lets you use your intuition.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You now attract unexpected help in finding a balance between your private needs and your career efforts. Even financial backing is possible.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Resolve to settle all differences, to make peace and to keep it. Put in a full day of solid effort. The evening will be pleasant.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Personal attention is the only approach that works now—on money and the uses of it. Concentrate on improving your efficiency in earning what you need.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The early hours provide just enough stir to provoke your attention. Once started, this should be a rather easy day. Allow some time for meditation.

Coyle Ford, owner and manager of Ford's Body Shop, 111 N. Frost, told the News' copy-writer to "tell it like it is."

"I don't like all that 'mushy' advertising," Ford said. "How is it?" asked the copy writer.

"Simple," said Ford. "We're the best in town."

Ford said his company provides complete body work and wrecker service.

What makes us the best, he said, "is that we put out the effort to do the job right."

The employees at Ford's Body Shop agreed.

Asked if he would sing a slogan so the writer could tell how enthused he was about his profession, one employee said, "I'm no Sinatra. I'm an auto body man and darned proud of it."

"Modern equipment is used in all our work," Ford said. "We take a lot of pride in what we do here."

Ford said he urged anyone interested in having their body work done with the highest degree of professional skill to call him at 5-1916 during the day and 5-1610 at night and on weekends.

No Signs In Sight For Economy Boost In State

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—A University of Texas business analyst Saturday said Texas' economy is slowing down and shows no convincing signs of an immediate upturn.

Dr. Robert B. Williamson, associate professor of finance, said indicators of Texas bank activity for May and early June reveal slow-downs in production, increases in unemployment and one of the sharpest declines in personal income in recent years.

Williamson said the 3 per cent drop in state income from April to May was partially a reflection of a nationwide fluctuation following lump back-payments of Social Security benefits.

"But the Texas income drop in May was relatively sharper and, the state's year-to-year growth of income for the first five months of 1970, at 7 per cent, was slower than the national growth rate of nearly 8 per cent," he said.

He also pointed to a large decline in Texas bank deposits, another indicator of general economic activity.

"The decrease from April was 6 per cent, in contrast to a national decrease in bank deposits of only one per cent," he said.

Williamson also said Texas bank deposits for the first five months of 1970 showed a year-to-year growth rate of only 9 per cent — compared to a national figure of 11 per cent.

Decreased in durable goods manufacturing led a decrease in industrial production in the state during May, Williamson pointed to slumps in industries producing military aircraft, spacecraft components and electronic equipment for the defense and space programs as major factors.

"The likelihood of further general reductions in industrial production is suggested by recent trends in inventories and new orders relative to sales and producers' plans," he said.

Williamson said much of the slowdown in employment growth Texas has experienced so far this year has been in the field of manufacturing.

"During the first five months of 1970 Texas nonfarm employment grew 4 per cent compared to 5 per cent during 1969," he said. "The seasonally adjusted level of unemployment increased 15 per cent in May and averaged 26 per cent higher than a year earlier."

The professor said retail sales reflected a greater slowing of growth in Texas than income figures.

"Weekly department store sales data from the federal reserve bank of Dallas indicate that the growth rate of Texas retail sales during May and early June made no significant improvement, if any," he said.

Williamson said there is some evidence that inflation finally may be beginning to slow but warned that many analysts have been fooled by false signs in the past six months.

Hollywood In Review

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Tommy Smothers was a study in frustration.

His new "The Smothers Brothers Summer Show" is on the air, but it's not what he wants it to be.

Only half kidding, Tommy suggested this 11-week summer replacement on ABC should be titled "The Smothers Brothers on Probation Cop-Out Show."

Translation: If the show gets poor ratings or stirs too much controversy, it will not be renewed as a regular series next January.

"It's hard for me and Dick not to be controversial because that's where our heads are, man," Tommy said, "with the human condition. We're children of change and we've got to reflect it."

Tom and Dick had completed the first two shows. Neither of them reflected what Tommy — spokesman for the brothers — considers relevant.

Sincere Person

Whether viewers consider Tommy funny, a revolutionary, an idealist or a social commentator, it is difficult to doubt his sincerity.

The sort of show he has in mind doubtless would raise hoots with the networks, a large segment of viewers, the Federal Communications Commission and individual video station owners. He knows this.

"Those people would rather ignore situations than lay a little truth in," Tommy said. "They intimidate performers who would try something more daring."

"That's why television is so bland except for an occasional special or an episode in a series. Television always shows the good guy winning and a bunch of phony ethics."

"We don't see stories about draft dodgers, the student point of view or the blacks within the art form of drama. They are alluded to with no point of view. Once in a while 'Mod Squad' or 'Room 222' will get to the brink of something important and then back away."

Agrees With Agnew

Then Tommy said something surprising: "I agree with Spiro Agnew that too much television news is colored by big programming."

He added quickly that this fragment of his thinking was one of the few points on which he and the vice president were in accord.

"TV is a selling media that hasn't reached its full potential. But it's getting there," Tommy said grimly.

"Sixty per cent of the population gets its information from the tube. But I don't think they're getting enough information," he concluded.

Rice's Stocks Lawn Supplies

Rice's Feed Store, 522 S. Cuyler owned and operated by Ronnie Rice is the center for lawn and garden needs as well as animal feeds and health products.

Winter is over. It is time to put new bulbs into the ground and get the yard and garden plot in shape for the growing season.

Suggestions on successful lawn care and the supplies to enable the best acre are available at Rice's. Plan now for summer's needs. Buy before you need the supplies and have them on hand for Spring days.

Care for range calves is essential this time of year. New born range calves can be subjected to a number of diseases with the fluctuation of weather conditions. Plan a complete preventive medicine care program, then stock the barn with nutrients and preventives to insure a healthy calf crop.

This is the time for planting those fruit trees. Stop in Rice's Feed and Seed and look over the varieties that have been developed for this area.

Lawn and garden supplies, superior feeds by Purina and Superior, are not the limit of stock at the store.

Leather animal accessories are also available.

So now plan for the summer months. Stocks up on the excellent Gates Garden Hoses. There is one to fill every watering need about the garden and lawn.

Supply your garden implement inventory now and be ready to go to work when Spring really comes to stay.

Rock Music Concert Fails To Buy Sewer

LOVE VALLEY, N.C. (UPI)—Mayor Andy Barker dreamed up the Love Valley Rock Music Festival to pay for a water and sewer system in this community of 72 he founded 14 years ago.

Monday he blamed the crashers and printers of allegedly counterfeit tickets in Charlotte and Winston-Salem for the failure of the three-day festival to make money and the temporary end of his plan to finance the sewer system.

But he didn't really mind, he said.

"I really didn't want to make a profit. I just wanted to let kids have a good time."

Several thousand persons smoked marijuana cigarettes Sunday night in a "light-up" ritual marking the festival.

Matches flickered in the dark as the stage announcer called for the "light-up," and, when it was over, he advised the crowd to "use up your dope or bury it. Our numbers and cutting fewer and the police are going into action."

Only about 3,500 were left of the estimated 75,000 persons—hippies, country folk, whites, blacks and Indians—who came for the festival. The music had been scheduled to end at 8 p.m. Sunday, but continued past midnight.

The three days were summed up by one participant who remarked, "I could sit in a rocking chair the rest of my life and do nothing else. This was enough."

One youth was dead, another in serious condition with gunshot wounds and hundreds sick from drug overdoses by the time the festival ended.

The atmosphere reached a high pitch Saturday night when one rock band appeared on stage in the nude. But rock fans were subdued somewhat Sunday as they learned of the death of Army Spec 4 Grant McIvor of Ft. Benning, Ga.

Iredell County Medical Examiner Dr. Donald Schnell said an autopsy showed McIvor had died of heat stroke. McIvor died Saturday when temperatures reached the mid to high 90s, but Schnell said the heat stroke could have been induced by vigorous physical activity after the use of drugs. He said the soldier had been using drugs although he did not know what kind.

Soldier Meets With Brownsville Civic Leaders

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (UPI)—A Brownsville Army sergeant, charged with murder in the My Lai massacre, and his attorney met Monday in Brownsville with civic leaders to lay the groundwork for financing the soldier's defense with donations.

Sgt. Essequiel Torres, 22, dressed in tightly tailored dress greens and spatsined combat boots, carried his chubby, 1-year-old son to the airport to meet his attorney, Charles Weltner.

When Weltner's plane landed and they met with newsmen, Torres handed his son to his wife and appealed in soft tones for financial aid.

"I just hope the people will support me. I need their help," he said. He added he thought the town was "behind me all the way."

A small group of representatives of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Disabled American Veterans met with Torres and Weltner at the airport.

Audie Murphy, WWII Hero, Pleads Innocent To Felony Assault Charge

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Audie Murphy, 45, the most decorated soldier of World War II and onetime movie star, stood in line with accused felons in a crowded courtroom Monday and pleaded innocent to assault with intent to commit murder.

Murphy, dressed in a blue suit, was asked how he pleaded to charges by dog trainer David Gofstein, 51, that he struck and fired a gun at Gofstein in Burbank, Calif., last May 18.

Not guilty, Murphy replied in a strong voice.

A trial date was set for Sept. 4.

First Sex Discrimination Suit Filed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The federal government filed its first suit charging sex discrimination in employment.

Both Libbey-Owens-Ford Co. and a union were accused of discriminating against women in five glass plants in the Toledo, Ohio, area.

Attorney General John N. Mitchell said the suit was filed in U.S. District Court in Toledo against the company and Local 9 of the United Glass and Ceramic Workers of North America AFL-CIO.

The court was asked to order the company and the union to make compensatory payments to discriminatorily rejected women job applicants and discriminatorily assigned women employees who suffered economic loss as a result.

The court also was asked to issue preliminary and permanent injunctions against the company and the union to require that they give women equal opportunities at every level of work.

The government suit alleged violation of the equal employment section of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

It accused the company of maintaining a policy of restricting women production workers to just only one of its five Toledo area plants; of assigning them to less desirable and lower-paying jobs with the least opportunity for advancement, and of subjecting them to a high frequency of layoffs.

The government said the company and the union have labor contracts which establish seniority systems and procedures for promotions, demotion, layoff, recall and transfer which have the result of depriving women of an equal opportunity to compete with men for more desirable, better-paying jobs.

De. ay's Wife Dies Of Cancer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mrs. Thomas E. Dewey, 67, wife of the two-time Republican presidential candidate, died Sunday night at Memorial Hospital of cancer after a long illness.

The former Frances E. Hutt of Sherman, Tex., and Sapulpa, Okla., was studying voice in New York when she met Dewey, who also has studying voice while attending Columbia University Law School.

They were married in 1923 after she had a brief career as a concert singer and a singer of leading roles in "silent" musical movies "at Paramount theaters."

She was first lady of New York State from 1946 to 1954 when Dewey was elected governor after a brilliant career as a special prosecutor of organized crime and district attorney for New York County.

She made long and rigorous campaign trips with Dewey when he campaigned unsuccessfully against President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1944 and President Harry S. Truman in 1948.

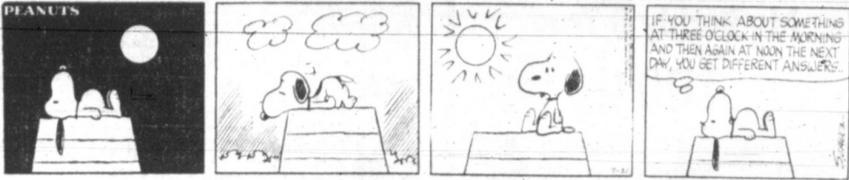

She is survived by her husband and two sons, Thomas E. Jr., and John M., two grandchildren, and a brother, Dr. Harold D. Hutt of Holly, Mich.

A funeral service will be held at St. James Episcopal Church on Wednesday at 2 p.m. EDT. Burial will be made at Pawling, N.Y., where the Deweys have long maintained a country home.

Football Owners To Meet Today

NEW YORK (UPI)—The 26 National Football League club owners get a chance to present their side of the case today when they meet to review their position in the contract dispute with the league's Players Association.

The dispute, centered over the amount of money the owners will contribute to the players' pension fund over the next four years, is threatening cancellation of the annual College All-Star game set for July 31 at Chicago.

Albuquerque, Giants Score TL Triumphs

By United Press International Dallas-Fort Worth took a seven-run lead in the fifth inning, blew it, and then came back with two runs in the bottom of the eighth to down Memphis 10-8 Monday evening.

The Texas League standings remained unaltered after the night's action, because all four western division teams defeated their eastern division colleagues.

Albuquerque 3-1 over San Antonio, Amarillo 4-3 over Shreveport and El Paso over Arkansas 7-4. Memphis' out-hit the Spurs 14-11 and had far more extra-base hits, four doubles, one triple and one home run to only two doubles by Dallas-Fort Worth.

During the Spurs' big inning—six runs in the fifth—Memphis flubbed three, giving the Spurs four unearned tallies.

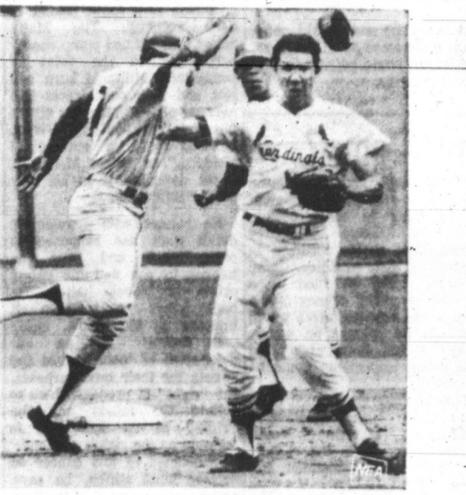

Albuquerque had to score twice in the 11th inning to break a tie with San Antonio. The Missions' only run came in the first on a homer by Jim Brunette, his seventh of the season.

El Paso had fewer hits than Arkansas, but the Sun Kings got a four-run flurry going in the fifth that decided the game.

Shreveport took the lead over Amarillo in the first inning. The Giants went ahead with two runs in the fifth, but Shreveport came back in the bottom of the inning to lead 3-2. The Giants scored a run in each of the following innings and held on tight the rest of the way.

SECOND EFFORTS around second base. At left, Cleveland shortstop Jack Heidemann bounds above sliding Campy Campaneris of A's after throwing to first to complete double play. And Julian Javier, St. Louis second baseman, (right) has cap knocked off after tagging Dodgers' Willie Crawford but still threw to first for double play.

New York reliever Danny Frisella, pitching with the bases loaded, walked home the tying run and winning run in the sixth as San Francisco rallied for four runs to beat the Mets.

Dick Dietz slammed his 19th homer for the Giants and Wayne Garrett hit his sixth for the Mets. Bookie Mike Davison, who retired the only batter he faced, gained credit for his first major league victory.

Newly acquired veteran Don Cardwell pitched Atlanta to its second game victory over Chicago after Tommie Aaron's two-out homer in the ninth gave the Braves their victory in the opener.

Phil Niekro pitched a six-hit game. Tony Gonzalez homered for the Braves in the second game. Phil Niekro pitched a six-hit game in winning the opener.

KANSAS CITY EDGES DETROIT

Orioles Rap Chisox, 14-5

By FRED McMANE UPI Sports Writer The Baltimore Orioles have reconvened their famed "kangaroo court," and that can only mean they're planning a purge on the rest of the American League.

With the Detroit Tigers having moved to within three games of Baltimore' last weekend, the Orioles decided it was time Monday night to reopen the court after they trimmed the Chicago White Sox, 14-5.

Frank Robinson acted as judge and five players were fined $1,000 each. Dave Johnson was considered to have committed the biggest crime of the evening by saying during the Orioles' three-run rally in the ninth that he "hoped Boog Powell would end the rally." Johnson said he uttered the statement because he was too tired to bat and didn't want to get up.

In other AL games, Kansas City blanked Detroit, 3-0; Oakland edged Boston, 3-2; New York beat California, 6-1; Washington shut out Milwaukee, 2-0, and Minnesota edged Cleveland, 4-2.

In National League games, Bill Singer pitched a no-hitter as Los Angeles blanked Philadelphia, 5-0; Cincinnati swept a doubleheader from St. Louis, 4-3 and 4-0; Atlanta took two from Chicago, 3-1 and 5-0. Houston nipped Pittsburgh, 5-4, San Diego defeated Montreal, 3-1, and San Francisco beat New York, 7-4.

stopped by Kansas City's Jim Rooker. Rooker was aided by several fine fielding plays in tossing a six-hitter, and he also drove in a run with a single.

Frank Fernandez' fourth-inning homer proved to be the decisive run in the Athletics' victory. Chuck Dobson and two relief pitchers checked the Red Sox on six hits with Dobson getting credit for his ninth victory. Reggie Smith hit a homer for the Red Sox.

Danny Cater collected three hits, including a homer, and Curt Blefary socked a two-run homer as the Yankees thumped the Angels. Fritz Peterson went the distance, allowing only three hits. The Senators collected only two hits, but turned both of them into runs to defeat the Brewers. Tim Cullen singled in the first inning and came around to score on an errand pickoff throw by catcher Phil Roof and Frank Howard belted his 25th homer in the sixth. Jim Hannan and Darold Knowles combined to stop the Brewers on six hits. President Nixon attended the game.

Cesar Tovar collected three hits and scored twice to help the Twins defeat the Indians. Jim Kaat worked seven innings to get credit for his 150th major league victory.

Golfers Will Qualify For 4-Ball Tournament

LIGONIER, Pa. (UPI)—Sixteen spots will be at stake today in final qualifying rounds for the $200,000 National PGA Four-Ball Championship which begins Thursday at Laurel Valley Golf Club.

Qualifiers will be held both at Oakmont Country Club and the Pittsburgh Field Club near Pittsburgh, with eight two-man teams qualifying from each course.

Several of the players already assured of berths in Thursday's starting field arrived here Monday to begin practice, including the teams of Sam Snead-Gardner Dickinson and Julius Boros-Bill Collins.

Arnold Palmer, who will team with Jack Nicklaus, gets in his first practice round today and then heads to Pittsburgh, 55 miles west of here, where he will be honored at a testimonial dinner tonight. Nicklaus will arrive Wednesday.

Lee Trevino, citing family problems in El Paso, and his partner, former Green Bay Packer Jess Hittenton, withdrew Monday.

Billy Casper, winner of last week's Philadelphia golf Classic, said he and Bert Greene would compete if Greene is no longer bothered by a shoulder injury which forced him to withdraw from the British Open two weeks ago and at Philadelphia last week.

"I can't play Nicklaus and Palmer by myself," Casper said. "I can play them one at a time but not together."

Foreman Scores Fast Victory Over Russell

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—George Foreman will probably be an underdog for the first time in his career for his next fight against George Chuvalo, but today he feels like a winner.

The 21-year-old Foreman hardly had time Monday night to tune up for his Aug. 4 bout with Chuvalo in New York's Madison Square Garden when he knocked out Roger Russell in one round. It was Foreman's 21st consecutive victory and 18th knock-out.

Russell, who has six straight losses over the last two and a half years and an overall record of 11-8-2, would probably like to forget the evening if he could remember it. Foreman knocked down the 23-year-old Russell midway through the first round. Russell got up but

Pin Tourney To McCune

HOUSTON (UPI)—Don McCune of Munster, Ind., lost his last game in the final 16-game round, but won first place and $3,000 in the $30,000 Houston-Sertoma Open Bowling Tournament.

McCune, 33, won his last professional bowling association tournament two years ago in Fort Worth, Tex. He lost his 40th and final game of the tournament to his long-time doubles partner, Jim Stefanich, 278-246.

Clay-Frazier Fight Nixed By Michigan

DETROIT (UPI)—Cassius Clay has lost another out-of-the-ring fight.

His latest setback came Monday when Chuck Davey, chairman of the Michigan Boxing Commission, said a proposed Clay fight with heavyweight champion Joe Frazier "is dead as far as Michigan is concerned."

Davey informed promoters of the bout, which had been planned for Sept. 21 in Detroit's Cobo Hall, he "found the package unacceptable" and Clay would not be granted a license to fight in Michigan.

Lou Handler, former fighter-referee who heads the group which proposed the Michigan bout, was stunned by Davey's announcement.

"I'm just sick about the whole thing," he said. "He didn't tell me specifically what the hangup was, but I'm flabbergasted that the thing didn't come off. I even expected to call a press conference to announce the fight today (Monday)."

Members of the state Boxing Commission denied having met to see the promoters' proposal. However, they act only in an advisory capacity to Davey.

YEARLING SALE LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI)—Fifty-nine yearlings were sold Monday at the first session of Keeneland's summer Thoroughbred sale.

Sales for the first day totaled $1,134,000, an average on $19,229 a head. Biggest sale was $67,000 paid by Arnold N. Winick of Delray Beach, Fla., for a colt sired at 1964 Kentucky Derby winner Northern Dancer.

Mackey Is Frustrated Spokesman

By MILTON RICHMAN UPI Sports Writer NEW YORK (UPI)—John Mackey has this terrible feeling of frustration.

He feels as if he's way down in some bottomless well hollering for help and every time he hollers he never gets an answer.

Primarily, Mackey is a tight end with the Baltimore Colts, and secondarily he's president of the NFL Players Association, only right now his second-job is taking precedence over his first because he's the spokesman, and an effective one, too, for all the players in their show of strength against the owners.

The thing that frustrates Mackey so much is that the players keep setting forth their proposals and the owners keep right on ignoring them. This has produced a stalemate which has resulted in a lockout of all players, except the rookies, at the 26 training camps.

"We have offered to let the commission (Pete Rozelle) be the final arbiter but we have gotten no answer," Mackey says. "We have submitted other proposals to which there have been no answer. Basically, this whole thing is over the pension fund. We're asking the owners to improve the structure of the players' fund and the level of benefits so as to bring it on a par with those in other sports. They say the revenue from TV cannot be expected to keep going up forever. Okay, we've taken that into consideration. We've reduced our requests other than the one involving the pension, but the problem we've had is that no one has answered.

Did it ever strike the players that maybe they were being unreasonable in their demands? Mackey drew back at that question.

"If we're being the slightest bit unreasonable, all we are asking the owners is please tell us where and why?" he said. "I've seen where they called us unreasonable. They never tell us specifically where we're unreasonable though."

Compare the football players' pension of $360 a month at age 65 with the $618 a month baseball players get at the same age. They get that after

How Safe Is The Camp?

This is the season when thousands of families send their children off to summer camps where they can learn new skills and experience the out-of-doors as well as have fun with children they normally would not meet.

Unfortunately, camping can also mean tragedy if those who conduct the camp are not properly trained to handle children and the activities in which the camp engages.

Only about 3,500 of the 11,000 private camps in the nation are accredited by the American Camping Association, which is the only agency whose standards include on-the-spot inspection of camping facilities.

Two federal bills have been introduced to legislate nationwide camping regulations, one by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., and the other by Rep. Dominick V. Daniels, D-N.J., but both are still in committee because there is little public demand for federal law.

One private citizen, Mitchell Kurman of Westport, Conn., whose son was killed in a camping accident in 1965 has prodded Ribicoff and other legislators to act on a bill.

Prospective camp counselors would have to prove their ability first and would have to submit proof of their mental and physical stability. Camp equipment and trail equipment would have to meet certain standards. Camp brochures would have to be accurate in describing their facilities. Camp injuries would be filed at a central recording agency and a Red Cross representative would have to be present on waterfronts at all times. Licensing and safety inspections would be frequent.

Most camps go through each summer with unblemished safety records. Youth organizations like the Young Men's Christian Association and the Catholic Youth Organization, which flourish in major cities, are careful in their selection of counselors, equipment and sites. Camps associated with schools take similar steps, as do most of the private camps.

But parents who plan to send their children off for a week or more will do well to ask some pertinent questions and to make on-site inspections themselves before they entrust their children to the hands of others.

With only five states governing the minimum age of counselors and only 18 requiring camps to be licensed, there's too much chance for carelessness. Camping is one of the most rewarding experiences a youth can have, particularly if he or she lives in the confines of a city. It's only common sense to insure that the joy of camping is matched by safety.

'Liberals' Rap Direct Vote

The Electoral College, under attack from advocates of a popular election of the president, is receiving an eloquent defense from an unexpected quarter of the liberal left.

Constitutional conservatives have long cautioned against replacing the Electoral College with a national plebiscite, warning that such a change would increase the influence of vote fraud and permit a handful of big-city states to outvote other regions of the country.

Now some of the same arguments are being advanced by a number of "liberals" with impeccable credentials. Among them are Theodore H. White, prize-winning author of the series of books on the last three presidential campaigns.

In testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee, White said the possibility of vote fraud deciding a close election would be greatly increased by changing to direct elections.

"There are crooks in every election," he told the committee. "But now, I don't believe they can steal more than 1 per cent of the vote in any state. And each state has built-in anti-boycotts and the thefts are sealed off."

But under a direct election system, White concluded, vote theft could easily swing the nation outcome one way or another in an evenly divided race.

Goodwin whose politics swing well to the left, sounded distinctly like a traditionalist when he declared: "We have never before amended the Constitution in anticipation of possible abuse or on the basis of abstract theory. Only after an abuse has manifested itself, and usually after considerable public pressure, have we acted. Surely this is one of the reasons why the American Constitution has endured while more volatile republics rose and fell."

We hope the Senate Judiciary Committee, now considering the popular vote amendment, was listening while these men spoke. It is hardly wise to replace a system that has worked tolerably well throughout most of our history with one that is untried and may, in fact, be fraught with danger.

Successor To Trains

Ground transportation is coming in for considerable attention—and expenditure—at a number of points and, as has become customary, with a world-of-the-future look about it. Los Angeles and the U. S. Department of Transportation, for example, are going to be partners in constructing the country's first air-cushioned line running 19 miles from Los Angeles International Airport to the San Fernando Valley.

Vehicles will zoom along on a thin layer of ejected air on an elevated guideway-track. Estimated cost of construction for this people-mover system, the in term for far-out mass transit schemes, is $50 million, with service hopefully to begin in late 1972.

by a Long Island firm. And there are other comparable experiments scattered about the country. Fine, but one wonders what might be the result if similar funds and interest were devoted to restoring a people-moving system which once functioned splendidly—called trains.

It has been pointed out that updating existing roadbeds is no easy or inexpensive proposition. A recently cited example put the cost at more than $1.3 billion to condition one Washington-to-Boston line to handle 100 m.p.h. service with the new high-speed Metroliners now being tried out.

To be sure, a lot of money. At something like 400 miles for the distance, it works out to something like $300,000 per mile. Los Angeles' air cushions are costing $2.5 million per mile.

H. L. Hunt Writes

HALT CRIME

The siege guns of the criminal element are zeroed in on this, the wealthiest of nations. Their barrages have reached a crescendo. Not only are we under attack by organized crime, but also by the common criminal plying his dangerous trade on the street, in the business house and in the home.

The attack on our society by criminals is a major threat to our security. The Mafia extort millions and pump deadly narcotics into the veins of youngsters. Militants burn and loot and turn our streets into avenues of fear. Muggers attack passersby without selectivity. All add up to "a climate of violence," as author Melvin T. Munn describes it in his new book, "Halt Crime."

He relates with unrelenting detail what has happened to other people and what can happen to you and me unless crime is indeed halted. He backgrounds what gave it impetus in the 1960's, citing such factors as an endorsement of mobs to use the streets for their own purposes, the "right" of photographers to pollute the minds and the "right" of an individual to trample on the rights of many.

Resistance to this cancer on society must stiffen, he says, and he devotes some of the book to ideas on how it can be done.

The officer on the beat protecting your home will find this book fascinating for he knows first hand how critical the problem is, and your neighbors will like it, too—not because it paints a pretty picture but because it will bring home the problem.

With Some Reservation

By INJUN WOODY

Well, the drive is on to do away with ROTC in colleges. I have always been against the ROTC, though not for the same reasons as the students. My reasons are based on some actual experiences with its graduates.

During World War II they sent the "90 Day Wonders" onto Navy ships in droves. The name soon became "90 Day Blunders" for obvious reasons. They didn't know the stem from the stern—or anything else.

Numerous of these Navy "Ensigns" were named Smith, and strangely enough, after a few days aboard the crew was certain they were spies working for the enemy:

Ensign Smith: "Chief, I want your men to paint that stack." Chief: "You mean, the Charley Noble, sir?"

Ensign: "What's a Charley Noble?" Chief: "It's the stack, sir."

Ensign Smith: "Oh, well, paint it anyway." Chief: "But it's hot, sir."

Ensign: "I don't care if it's hot or cold. Paint it!"

Needless to say, hanging from swinging scaffolds on a ship in motion, trying to paint a hot Charley Noble, resulted in many burned and blistered hands with the result that the deck company was unfit for duty for a week.

Various other episodes of this nature resulted in the following mishap:

When the colors are to be shown on the far tail the order is, "Throw the ensign over the side."

One morning, the company stood at attention on the fan-tail when the order was sounded loud and clear—"Throw the ensign over the side!" A few literal-minded seamen followed the order to the letter and Ensign Smith went sailing into the Deep Six.

A song went like this: "O, what a grand life in this man's Navy-ee, if it wasn't for the Blunders from the R.O.T.C."

Polish Miracle Looks West On A 'Progress' Treadmill

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

Washington Correspondent
POZNAN, POLAND (NEA)—The part of Poland I looked at which lay directly in the Soviet armies' path to Berlin, struck me as a kind of shabby miracle of recovery.

Probably few lands in the world's history have been so ravaged by war. The Poles say 40 per cent of their national wealth was wiped out. Two-thirds of their industrial plants were leveled or incapacitated. One in every five Poles lost his life. It was a nation of rubble. The great war even destroyed an eighth of Poland's forest land.

The visitor can see for himself that the country has been substantially "rebuilt." Yet somehow much of what I saw didn't look rebuilt. And that impression comes only in part from the Poles' conscious goal of restoring historic structures in their old image.

The truth is, parts of western Poland have been raised up anew from almost nothing, yet manage to look 25 to 50 years behind the times, even as the Polish government makes great claims for progress in these zones (surely legitimate claims in some considerable measure).

Even the claimed restoration is, of course, not exactly complete. Warsaw, once more a city of more than one million people after the Nazis flattened it into a sprawling graveyard of broken stone and crushed bodies, still has its display of ruined buildings. Around Wroclaw (once German Breslau) stand huge piles of memory-stirring rubble.

The seeming contradiction I noted touches the people as well as the restored houses, factories, churches and civic landmarks.

By contrast with Red East Germany, the touted high spot in Russia's eastern satellite Poland, appears far more alive and vigorous. The Poles are out on the country roads, afoot or astride motorcycles and, now and then, in cars.

When I walked Poznan's ancient city square at noon on a work day, there lay beneath the visible bustle a sense of the strong continuity in the life of these people whose nation so often over the centuries has been overrun or menaced.

I felt this most when I walked into a lavishly ornamented baroque Catholic church and there caught a moment which a master painter of earlier times would surely have placed on canvas. An old woman in black, her white hair, pale face and thin-rimmed glasses captured by a streaming bright sun, sat quietly thumbing through a small prayer book. Obvious to all else, her beautiful presence spoke for young and old, for human life that endures war and lesser trouble and goes on.

Yet, only moments later, I was hearing of those lesser troubles as they afflict Poland. Beneath the bright statistics of a totalitarian regime, telling of new factories, higher output, growing foreign trade, lies a less impressive reality.

Delighted though they are to be alive in a setting swept flat by the holocaust of 1939-45, many, many Poles seem to suffer a curious malaise, some who profess to know the land say long habit transmitted by heritage accounts for part of the condition. Others say the postwar Stalinist days of the iron fist left a hangover of gross indifference.

However they may be, I am told, that demoralization eats deep at the Polish spirit. There is little caring for private or public property. Workers steal daily from factories, and clerks find ways to cheat the overbearing totalitarian bureaucracy.

The Poles are keenly aware that, for all their comeback from the flatness of nothing, they are decades behind the advanced West—and most particularly America—in the material means to a fuller life. They crowd in to see films of our moon landings, they stare at our computers and other electronic marvels, and sense their place as trailing runners.

With Poles filling up the "regained territories" and Russia taking over eastern zones peopled by Lithuanians, Byelorussians, Ukrainians and Ruthenians, Poland in 1970 is almost "ethnically pure."

Yet by that fact it has become duller. Add Iron Curtain isolation and totalitarian rigidity (only slightly eased today), and you see why "progress," real enough in absolute terms, seems a treadmill to many Poles gazing at the West. More generous East-West trade, sure to come, may stir for them some of the fresh breezes they so clearly need.

Wit And Whimsy

At dinner on his first day at the farm, little Freddie piped up to say he'd learned how pigs were made. "Is that right, dear?" said his aunt hesitantly. "Yeah, Uncle Jim and I watched seven little pigs blowing up one big one."

A small boy was watching a man who was adding a room to his house.

"What are you building, mister?" he asked. "A bathroom, sonny," was the man's reply.

The youngster watched for a little while longer and then walked over to the man.

"Mister," he said, "you can use ours if you're in a hurry."

Two young ladies on the promenade of a seaside resort had been watching the vessels pass through a telescope loaned them by an "ancient mariner." On handing the glass back one of them remarked that it was a very good one.

Mr. Black (the old tar)—Yes, miss, that "ere telescope was given me by Lord Nelson. Miss White—Good Gracious! Why, Nelson has been dead nearly a hundred years.

Limited Disarmament Agreement Close; Signals Political Punct

ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Prospects are good for a limited disarmament agreement, in principle, at the strategic arms limitation talks in Vienna this summer.

That is the word which is circulating here. It follows consultations in which new guidelines were supplied to Gerard C. Smith, the top U.S. negotiator in the talks with the Soviet Union.

Under his new instructions, Smith will seek a generalized agreement to limit both offensive and defensive strategic weapons. The Russians are said to be receptive to such an agreement as a first step toward detailed arrangement which would be embraced later in a treaty or treaties.

In other words, there seems to be a good chance that the U.S. and Russian negotiators will agree to:

—Put a limit on the total number of strategic delivery systems—planes and missiles—which each of the superpowers could retain in its weapons arsenal.

—Limit the level of anti-missile activity (ABM) by each nation.

Such an agreement would not touch such difficult issues as the deployment of MIRVs—re-entry vehicles for use on the delivery systems. Russia will not agree to on-site inspection, and there seems to be no way to limit MIRV deployment without inspection of weapons.

An agreement, in principle, of this sort would also leave a number of other difficult problems for subsequent negotiations. For example, do U.S. long-range fighter-bombers, such as the bomber version F-111, qualify as strategic delivery systems? Do intermediate-range Russian missiles, targeted on U.S. military bases and on cities in Western Europe, come within the limitation?

SAFEGUARD-A FACTOR—These reports indicate that an agreement might include a complete ban on ABM systems. Indications are, however, that a rather tight limitation on ABM—the defense of Moscow and Washington, for example—is a more likely alternative.

In any case, it is quite clear that President Nixon's Safeguard ABM is, as its proponents have always argued, an important negotiating chip on the Vienna poker table. In soon-to-be-published Congressional testimony, the Pentagon's research chief, Dr. John S. Foster Jr., cautions against any unilateral move by the U.S. to drop Safeguard or MIRV.

"If we should abandon those at this point," he warns, "I think the potential pressure on the Soviets to go ahead without a SALT success and gain definite strategic superiority over the U.S. might be too strong."

In that context, Foster sees the success of the SALT talks as dependent on whether the Russians are really determined to build the "first strike" missile force which has been projected in some of the Pentagon's intelligence analyses.

"If the Soviets indeed are intent on getting the capabilities projected by the intelligence community and do not abandon that objective, then I am afraid we will have little or no success in SALT."

"If the Soviets are intent on achieving a deterrent capability only," adds Foster, "then I believe we can have great success in SALT, and I think it is extremely important that we do everything we can to gain that success."

IMPACT UNLIMITED—Even if it were little more than an agreement to seek agreement, the initialing of a limited disarmament agreement, in principle, would have unlimited impact and implications. It would certainly be billed as an international accommodation, comparable with the limited nuclear test-ban treaty.

For President Nixon and the GOP some of the impact would be political. Such an agreement would figure as a major administration accomplishment in the arena of foreign relations, which has seen few Nixon triumphs.

More importantly, the initialing of such an agreement—especially if the Vietnam withdrawal is going well—could deprive Democratic peace their campaign thunder. Such a circumstance would help GOP candidates in the off-year elections.

There is, therefore, added reason to anticipate some developments in Vienna rather quickly, well before election day.

That's what the President is trying to do, "one veteran Democrat told us recently, "and I don't blame him. I'd do it too, if I were in his place."

The Manion Forum

By MARILYN MANION

BEHIND THE BAMBOO CURTAIN

What goes on in the vast mainland of China, a Communist territory, since 1949? Not very many people know for sure. Oh, we have the books by such authors as Edgar Snow and Felix Green—but they are so pro-Red that one suspects them of being mere propaganda. Is there anybody who has been there and knows the truth?

The answer is "yes," and the name of the authority is Jacques Marcuse. The author of "The Peking Papers," Mr. Marcuse is a correspondent for Agence France-Presse. He spent a total of 15 years in China between 1952 and 1964 as a resident correspondent.

When Marcuse appeared on the Manion Forum, radio program, he described what happened to China when the Communists took over:

"The Communists at first—in 1949—were extremely well behaved. There was no raping, no looting, no atrocities. The soldiers went into the shops and paid in cash. This was a new currency, of course, but it had to be accepted for everything they bought. At the same time, they began organizing so-called labor unions. They took over the newspaper, the radio, and the entire propaganda machine began working at once.

"In 1950, they started getting tougher because the people didn't really follow them in their propaganda. Then they started executing people. I saw trucks drive about Shanghai at great speeds, filled with people with their hands tied behind their backs and attached to a long pole that went the whole length of the truck. They were being taken to their execution.

"But the really mass executions began in 1951, which is still remembered in China as the 'Year of Terror.' They killed off not just the landlords, but what they call the 'bourgeois element'—all the people they were not sure of. There are various estimates as to the number of people who were actually killed. It varies between four million and eleven million."

But what of authors Green and Snow—who paint a rosy Red picture of life in Communist China? Here is what Marcuse says about that:

"Edgar Snow has, if I may say so, a rather vested interest in Communist China. And so have, in point of fact, people like Felix Green and all these other correspondents who go in but don't stay very long.

"I don't mean to say they are not in good faith, but whereas we resident correspondents were completely ignored and could hardly travel in the country at all, and were shown nothing, these visiting correspondents were firmly taken in hand by the Communists, with great smiles, and were wined and dined, shown around—a point. They were shown what they were supposed to see, and nothing else. They were taken where they had to go, were told what they had to hear. They left with very favorable impressions.

July 26--Beer And Wine Will Flow For Cuba's Annual Carnival Day

By PHIL NEWSOM, UPI Foreign News Analyst
 July 26 will be carnival day in Cuba. Beer and wine will flow, and parents will give presents to their children. It will be a two-fold celebration. First, it is the 17th anniversary of the attack on the Moncada barracks in Santiago de Cuba by youthful rebels led by Fidel Castro. It was the beginning of the "26 De Julio" movement which on Jan. 1, 1959, overthrew the dictatorship of Fulgencio Batista and replaced it with Castro's own Communist brand. Second, it also is the date on which Castro had hoped to be able to announce a 10-million-sugar cane harvest and Cuba's economic independence. This was the "zafra" (collection of sugar cane) on which virtually all Cuban efforts have been concentrated since last November. The harvest fell a million and a half tons short of the goal but still set a record. The largest previous crop was 7.2 million tons achieved in 1952. Castro had staked the honor of his revolution on reaching his 10-million-ton goal. He had known in May he wouldn't make it but, he said, "We will turn the setback into a victory. We should continue to call it the 10-million-ton harvest." As Castro mobilized the Cuban people for a vast, convulsive effort, huge billboards along highways and country lanes proclaimed the "historic harvest." Newspapers, radio and television stations told the story of the "zafra." Four-hundred-thousand persons were involved in the daily effort. Shops closed and towns were emptied. Diplomats spent days off working on it. Young United States dissidents made their way to Cuba by the hundreds to take part. Cubans are tired and they need something to celebrate in a country whose regime permits no dissent and only endless effort. Most non-Communist observers agree that within a few years Cuba might enjoy a mild prosperity, assuming Castro's huge investments in the sugar industry, agriculture, livestock, roads, dams, fertilizer, power and cement plants are properly managed.

Meat Market Porters Refuse To Handle Meat

LONDON (UPI)—Tough London meat market porters told the government they will not handle meat moved by troops from Britain's strike-bound docks. Len Smith, an official of the Transport and General Workers Union, Britain's largest labor union, told Minister of Agriculture James Prior, "We won't handle meat delivered here by troops. If your members don't deliver meat, we won't handle it." The 1.5 million strong union represents 85 per cent of Britain's striking longshoremen. It also represents about 4,000 meat porters at London's Smithfield market. The government has alerted 36,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen to move into the strike-closed ports to move perishable foodstuffs. The nation's 47,000 longshoremen struck last Wednesday. So far the troops have not been used, although some army officers in civilian clothes visited the docks during the weekend to work out plans for troops to take over if necessary.

Washington Window

By NICHOLAS DANILOFF, WASHINGTON (UPI)—William P. Rogers has recently seemed to be out of step with the Nixon administration on foreign policy in spite of White House insistence that unanimity exists. At the State Department itself, a middle-level, career foreign service officer says privately that Rogers is not having a strong influence on foreign policy. But Rogers' close aides say he has close contact with President Nixon and has an easy working relationship with Henry A. Kissinger, presidential adviser on national security affairs. The White House has denied that there is any rift between the secretary and the White House on the formulation of policy. White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said last week, "It would be wrong to draw a conclusion that there is lack of unanimity in this administration on foreign policy." The indication that there was a lack of unanimity—Ziegler's comment out of a radio interview which Rogers gave in London to Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. as he was winding up a globe-circling trip, mostly to Asia. In the broadcast, Rogers was pessimistic about prospects of a negotiated peace settlement in Vietnam; he suggested that the U. S. intervention in Cambodia had resulted in increased Red Chinese influence in North Vietnam against negotiations, and he foresaw the possibility of a period of no-war-and-no-peace emerging in the long run. Those views seemed at variance with President Nixon's recent assertion that prospects of a negotiated peace settlement had been enhanced. Last Wednesday Rogers did some fancy footwork, apparently to get his gloomy position more in line with the White House. President Nixon was reported to have telephoned him afterwards to congratulate him. What Rogers did was make an impromptu appearance at the daily mid-day State Department briefing for reporters to explain that while he believed immediate prospect for negotiations in the next several months were "not too bright" there still existed a "reasonable prospect" for a peaceful settlement in the long run.

Mitchell Asks Congress Passage Of Legislation To Control Drugs

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Attorney General John N. Mitchell asked Congress Monday to give American families "a back to school present" by passing strong legislation to control drugs which he said have penetrated school rooms throughout the nation. Mitchell testified before the House Ways and Means Committee in support of administration drug legislation, already approved by the Senate. An enforcement provision includes a controversial proposal to allow officers to enter homes without knocking if they could obtain search warrants from a judge. "This committee and the Congress can offer an exciting 'back to school' present to American families by moving swiftly on this legislation by letting them know more effective tools for drug control are on the way," Mitchell said. Parents once looked to a new school year with a smile and a sigh of relief, the attorney general noted. But now, he said, parents view the opening of school "with trepidation and fear because drug traffic—narcotics and pills—has penetrated the school rooms and school yards of America on virtually every level." "It is no exaggeration to say that the drug danger threatens the moral and physical health of an entire generation," Mitchell said. He said drug abuse "has reached the epidemic stage among our young people." "It is a critical national problem that needs all the attention we can focus on it." The Senate passed a drug abuse control bill containing the administration's request for lowering of penalties for possession or use of drugs and harsh penalties for their sale. It also would give the Justice Department control over the classification of drugs, power to veto drug research, as well as the no-knock provision.

BULL TO RETIRE
 JERUSALEM (UPI)—Lt. Gen. Odd Bull of Norway, chief of the U.N. Middle East truce supervision organization, will retire July 31. U.N. officials said Monday. Bull has worked in the Middle East for the past seven years. The United Nations has not announced who will succeed him. The deputy chief of the truce observers is Maj. Gen. Enio Silasvuo of Finland.
