Home Town Talk by Betty

Sentiment is growing in Texas for reduction of the cost of voting.

Until a great portion of those entitled to pay poll taxes, and to vote, provided they pay that tax, began to find it difficult to put up the $1.75 for a poll tax receipt, most Texans just looked upon the tax as something you were naturally supposed to pay for the right to vote.

But, now they are prying around and learning that in many states no such tax is levied. The registration system is used in many states.

Come to think of it, why should the tax be imposed, or if imposed, why should it not be 50 cents or six bits instead of a dollar and six bits?

There may be some good arguments for imposition of a poll tax. But, the fact that a man is a freeholder or householder in the county for a certain period of time ought to make him entitled to vote whether he pays a tax for that purpose or not.

Something is liable to be done during this session of the legislature along this line. It wouldn't be a bad idea at all.

Poll tax payments always decline in Texas in "off years," that is the year between biennial elections of state and county officers. But even the fact that 1933 is an "off year" is not sufficient reason why poll tax receipts and exemptions issued in Howard county ought to drop from 4,500 to 3,900.

The principal reason is that many did not feel like digging up the $1.75. Now, they cannot legally vote.

The law, as it stands, ought to be obeyed. But it ought to be changed. Since it is the law now, however, all election judges no matter what kind of an election it is or where it is held, should stand by the law.

Perhaps before the state elections of 1934 all of us can vote if we register, or at least we may not have to pay as much as we now must in order to gain the legal right to vote.

Water Topic At Luncheon Of Kiwanians

Woiton Speaker; Songs By Mrs. Hall Enjoyed; Reports Heard

Members of the Kiwanis club at last week's luncheon at the Crawford heard an address by J. H. Woiton, who has charge of maintenance and operations work in the city water, sewer and street departments, and were delightfully entertained by vocal solos by Mrs. G. T. Hall, with Miss Mary Willis playing the accompaniments.

Mr. Woiton traced the history of water systems for communities and detailed a great many problems that arise in operation of the city departments in which he works.

A new member, W. R. King, manager of the Montgomery Ward & Company store here, was introduced.

Miss J. Stewart reported on the conference of clubs of Division 6 of the Texas-Oklahoma district of Kiwanis International held recently in Plainview.

Trees Planted Vice President Jack Cummings reported all available trees have been allotted to Kiwanians and that 60 had been bought for planting.

President Blomshield said he would call for reports of the Kiwanis Education and Vocational Guidance committees at the next meeting.

Mr. Blomshield also announced an international attendance contest covering the first four meetings in March.

Mr. Woiton said that in some cases actual cost to the city for making new taps to furnish new customers of the city water department is twice as great as the charge for extra taps, so that means had to be provided to regulate additional taps, so that they would not be made haphazardly and without knowledge of the department. He said that reading or adjustment of water meters may be had by any citizen at any time and that they were welcomed to call the city hall for this purpose.

"The end of the city's obligation to the consumer is at the meter," he said. "If hydrants are allowed to become faulty and water is wasted the city cannot be responsible for the waste. The city does not want to charge you for water you do not use and is therefore anxious to help you stop leaks due to faulty plumbing or old plumbing," he added.

Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Usery delighted the club with a duet, with accompaniment by Miss Willis. They sang "The Old Caken Bunch," and then a parody of that song concluding with the words, "The Faucet, the faucet, the bright, shiny faucet that hangs over the sink" in keeping with the theme of the day's program. Replica of an old style well, with rope, pulley and bucket had been placed in the center of the room.

G. R. Porter was appointed program chairman for the next two months. Dr. J. R. Spann has served in that position for the past two months.

Boy Visiting Here Displays Unusual Handicraft Pieces

Frank C. Lewis, 18, who is visiting his sister, Mrs. W. W. Davis, at Blue Quail, has accomplished something unique in the way of handicraft.

Frank, whose home is in Winn, Arkansas, has made an almost exact miniature reproduction of the Blue Quail tourist camp, where he stays, and the Big Spring airport.

In his spare moments, Frank carved pieces for his project out of discarded boxes and wood scraps. Later he touched the job off with paint corresponding to the camp colors and installed small lighting facilities. The reproduction is exact to the minutest detail, even to the windmill on an adjacent hill.

Hundreds of Big Spring people have stopped at the camp on Highway No. 1 west to view the work.

Coahoma Girls Take Semi-Final Game From Forsan; Knott Boys Is Scoring Sensation Of Tourney

Junior girls and senior boys' basketball teams of the Howard County Interscholastic League were in the semi-final round of the county tournament at Big Spring high school gym Saturday afternoon.

High point of the tournament had been provided by Airhart, Knott forward, who scored 36 points in his team's 48 to 20 victory over Center Point.

Coahoma girls defeated Forsan 18 to 1 in the first semi-final game.

Coahoma and Lomax boys were starting a semi-final game late in the afternoon.

Results of preliminary games played Saturday included: Junior girls; Coahoma 14, Lomax 7; Center Point 15, Richard 19. Forsan 26, Richard 11; Elbow forfeited to Knott.

Senior boys; Knott 47, Center Point 20; Forsan 44, R-Bar 30.

In Friday's games of the Howard County Interscholastic League tournament, Coahoma and Lomax beat back Elbow and Vincent in preliminary play for boys.

Moore, scheduled to play the winner of the Coahoma-Elbow tilt, failed to arrive and the game was forfeited to the Coahoma Bulldogs after they had topped Elbow 58-11, with Elbow on the short end. Rogers, Stroup, and Coffman tallied 18, 14 and 22 points respectively for the Bulldogs, while Bobby Ashbury led Elbow with one field goal and three gratis tosses. Twenty-one fouls were registered.

Lomax put the slide under Vincent 31-16 in a fast rough and tumble game. As in the Coahoma-Elbow game, fouls were nearly as numerous as scores, eighteen being committed during the first half with a total of twenty-four at the end. Lomax kept a good lead throughout, 10-2 at the first quarter, 14-6 at the half, and 20-10 at the end of the third stanza. Hodnet and Appleton, with six points, were Vincent's only scorers up to the half. The Vincent quintet gathered speed in the latter part of the game but failed to turn the tide.

Richard and Highway junior girls started the tournament play at 4 p. m. when Richard copped the opener 19-12. Richard led from the start 7-0, at the half 19-4 and 12-8 at the end of the third period. Elva Proctor, Richard forward, took high point honors with five field goals and one free toss.

Center Point Center Point was from Moore by default after Moore failed to arrive. They did not show up for any of the opening days games.

Richard's victory over Highway and Moore's forfeit to Center Point entitled Center Point and Richard to meet as winners of their bracket.

Richard kept an early lead to win out 19-15. Mollie Barber, Center Point forward, was the only scorer in the torrid fourth period when she dropped in a short field goal from near the sidelines to raise the count 19-15.

The winners experienced little difficulty in taking their games. All of them leading from start to finish.

Neck Is Broken As Automobile Is Overturned

Burial At Ira For Claudyne Miller; Companions Not Injured

Claudyne Miller, 17 year old high school junior, is dead as the result of a tragic turn of a pleasure ride near here Saturday morning.

She died in a Big Spring hospital Saturday 2:30 p. m. from a broken neck received when the car in which she and five companions were driving to Moss Springs overturned.

First Aid Valiant efforts of a first aid crew enlisted by the attending physician from among Texas Electric Service company employees proved fruitless. Artificial respiration was administered for several hours and at one time she revived sufficiently to afford hope. She muttered a few words and lapsed again into utter unconsciousness.

Deep ruts caused the car in which the party of high school students were driving to overturn. T. F. Collins, Melba Wilson, Jimmie Miller, Billie Widmayer and Mickey Davis, other occupants of the car, were only bruised.

The accident occurred at 11:30 a. m. between the highway and Moss Springs.

Miss Miller was rushed to her home at 1123 Main by an unidentified man who arrived at the scene of the accident only a few minutes after it occurred. She was moved later to the Big Spring Hospital in an Eberly ambulance after she responded to artificial resuscitation.

However, after a rally that lent encouragement to efforts of the attending physician and members of the first aid crew, she sank rapidly.

Only Child Large groups of high school students and friends gathered at the Miller residence until Miss Miller was removed to the hospital.

Claudyne was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Claud D. Miller and was a member of the high school pep squad and prominently identified with other activities.

Billie Widmayer, bruised in the wreck, said the car careened from the roadway and flipped over when it struck deep ruts. No one was pinned underneath the car, he said.

Burial will be at Ira in Scurry county. The funeral cortege probably will leave here Monday morning. Other arrangements had not been completed late Saturday.

Clark Gable And Carole Lombard Star At Ritz Starting Today

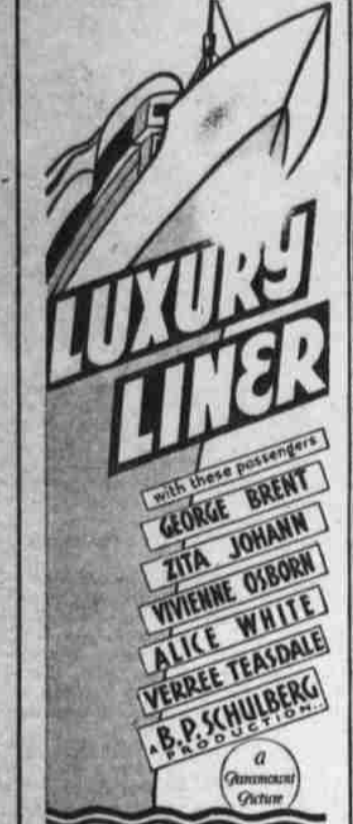

'No Man Of Her Own' Said To Be Great Play

Carole Opposes Miss Macknail As Conflicting Feminine Force

Own," opening today at the Ritz theatre.

As "Babe" Stewart, big-stake gambler with cards and women, Gable adds to his laurels with a fiery characterization which ranks with the best roles he has done. He is given unusually competent support by Carole Lombard and Dorothy Macknail, as the conflicting feminine forces in his life and by favorite screen veterans like Grant Mitchell, George Barbier and J. Farrell MacDonald. Wesley Ruggles directed from an original screen play by Edmund Goulding and Benjamin Glazer.

Miss Macknail, as Kay Everley, is a "come-on" for Gable in his high-stakes card games. Police learn of the racket and make it so not for Gable that he leaves town for a time. At sleepy little Glendale, the hiding place, which he picks by the simple expedient of sticking a pin into a railroad timetable, Gable meets Carole Lombard, playing the role of Connie Randall, a librarian. This time it's love, although originally Gable married the girl with some sort of a "love 'em and leave 'em" idea in mind.

They return to the big city where Carole, quite unconsciously, helps Gable flee his lambs. But the net begins to close again around the gambler. He makes a compromise with the police, realizing that his feeling for Carole is love. How the tangled skein is unravelled makes for high-voltage entertainment which this reviewer enjoyed and so, probably, will you.

Collapse Of Famous Fortune Basis For 'The Match King', Showing This Week At Ritz

Warren William And Lili Damita Have Leading Roles

Dramatically timed for release at a moment when the whole civilized world is still echoing its astonishment over the collapse of what was supposedly one of the world's greatest fortunes, "The Match King," First National's newest screen sensation, opens Tuesday at the Ritz Theatre with Warren William and Lili Damita in the leading roles before an enraptured audience.

High finance and high hand methods of romance share almost equally in this thinly disguised paraphrase of the life and career of the most amazing swindler of the century. True it is that the names are changed and that the locations and associates of Mr. William in this fascinating story of pyramiding credit and complicated love, are all fictitious. Truth and fiction meet in "The Match King" and result in an astounding climax of conflicting passions and spurious financial miracles.

No picture in months has carried the dramatic wallop that culminates this screen drama. The work of Warren William, whose own career has been almost as spectacular in its way as was that of the "Match King" in his, has the best chance of his life and he gives it everything that could be expected and adds more than a touch of sheer genius. Lili Damita, as the aloof and mysterious actress who figured romantically in the life of the ablest swindler of modern times, is lovely beyond comparison, and adds a fascinating touch to the high quality of the picture.

"The Match King" is a daring picture with an epic quality born of its proximity to truth. Adroitly and ably handled by a large cast of expert players, the story of Paul Kroll begins when he is a street sweeper in Chicago, carries him to dizzy heights of power and wealth and ends when the inevitable reckoning against a superman who built his success upon the backs of his weaker if more honest contemporaries, finally comes.

It is the story of a man who built a financial monster which made him, for a time, almost the ruler of the world, a man who forged the securities of nations, who pulled the strings that made the puppet heads of nations dance, but who failed in keeping the one thing that finally mattered to him, the

California Gets Too Much Of RFC Loans Say Critics

By RAYMOND CLAPPER. United Press Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, (UP)—The large share of self-liquidating project money which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is pouring into California is bringing complaints from other sections.

A resolution by the Dubuque, Ia., chamber of commerce and letters from miscellaneous citizens elsewhere were received by the R. F. C. even before its latest authorization of a $22,800,000 loan to Los Angeles for a power line from Boulder Dam.

This loan gives California more than 10 per cent of the total self-liquidating loans authorized by the R. F. C. to date. On the eve of the presidential election two other large California loans were granted, $40,000,000 for the Los Angeles viaduct and $61,400,000 for the San Francisco bridge.

California newspapers said then the San Francisco loan was due to the assistance of Secretary of Treasury Ogden Mills, there on a speaking trip for the Hoover-Curtis ticket, who telephoned Washington and persuaded the R. F. C. to speed up its action at the urging of San Francisco business men.

The next such loan in size is one of $13,000,000 for the combined highway and railroad bridge at New Orleans.

An undercover battle is going on between some members of the R. F. C. and those in congress like Senator Wagner, N. Y., Dem., who assert the corporation is not moving rapidly enough in aiding construction projects as an unemployment relief measure.

From some influential senatorial sources, R. F. C. members have been urged to loosen up on loans which mean work in various communities and lighten down on advances which are merely to take bad loans off the hands of private bankers.

This difference of opinion involves the whole principle of whether the government shall continue to pour money into construction work. Senator Wagner and Senator Couzens, Rep., Mich., assert that this is essential toward restoring normal conditions.

Within the R. F. C. there is strong feeling by some that few projects can be safely relied upon to become self-liquidating, or in other words to pay for themselves.

Beauty From Vienna Star At The Queen

Tala Birell Plays In 'Nagana' Opening Three-Day Engagement

Can true love come to a woman who has gone through life breaking many men's hearts, serene in her ability to love and to "forget" when she has tired of each new lover?

History proves that to such a woman, sophisticated, blasé and apparently heartless, the "grand passion" brings an absolutely devastating experience and the tremendous depth of her feeling brings about a complete change in her entire outlook. Her steely exterior drops from her, and she becomes that abject slave of "her man," ready, if need be, to follow him to the ends of the earth.

Such a situation forms a part of the story of "Nagana," the thrilling Universal drama which is playing at the Queen Theatre beginning today with Tala Birell, exotic Viennese beauty, in the principal female role. Notorious for the multiplicity of her lovers, she finally falls genuinely in love with Melvyn Douglas in his role of Dr. Radnor, head of an organization engaged in fighting the ravages of jungle diseases in Africa, and follows him to a plague infested native village, in spite of the fact that he has repulsed her advances.

Braving the attacks of wild beasts she finally arrives in Nagoru and here begins a strange existence amid the savage tribes of the African interior. A fire brings about a veritable stampede of wild animals, and the picture reaches its climax in scenes of the wildest confusion. "Nagana" was directed by Ernest L. Frank.

Haines Coming Here Two Days In 'Fast Life'

Sinking Of Speedboat In Collision Provides Big Thrill

The filming of thrills for motion pictures often provides gasps for the production crew, as was the case in the motorboat race scenes in "Fast Life," when the Kittyhawk, super-speed boat, was sunk after striking a buoy in the middle of Avalon Bay at Catalina Island.

The breath-taking spectacle will be shown Friday and Saturday at the Ritz. Cameras were set up on the shore to photograph the boat as it rounded the buoy in competition with other fast craft. As the Kittyhawk came toward the camera, it struck a wave, throwing it directly on the buoy, which gouged a large hole in the hull. The driver stood up in his seat and threw off his coat. As the boat sank he stepped overboard, wearing a life preserver, and swam to shore.

A professional diver was called from Avalon, and went down fifty feet to fasten lines to the sunken racer. A tug with a large windlass pulled in the line, bringing the bow to the surface for towing to the beach.

This was only one of the many thrills which occurred during the filming of this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, which includes scenes of boats crashing and exploding their human cargoes into the sea.

'Fighting Champ' Stars Bob Steele

Back again in the type of role that won him his initial fame, Kit Guard, fighting star of "The Leather Pushers" series, plays the part of "The Fighting Champ," the thrilling Monogram western starring Bob Steele which comes to the Queen Theatre Friday and Saturday.

And Guard, making a picture come-back as well as a come-back in the prize-fight character, renders a performance that excels even his gifted characterizations in "The Leather Pushers" and "Telephone Girl" series. In fact some of his punches landed too freely on Bob Steele's face during the filming of the exciting three round bout that furnishes one of the climaxes of the picture, but Steele had to take them without a murmur in order to appear to lose the bout, although he stages a strong return later in the picture to take on all comers.

Guard, incidentally, is not the only old-timer seen in "The Fighting Champ" for the cast also includes George Chesbro who won his first fame as leading man for Ruth Roland in the feminine star's thrilling series for Pathe. Others in supporting roles are Pretty Arletta Duncan, former New Orleans radio star, Madge Evans, Charles King, Frank Ball, George Hayes and Henry Roquemore.

"The Fighting Champ" was directed by J. P. McCarthy from the original screen play by Wellyn Tolman.

Ex-Kaiser's Charges England Was Responsible For War Contained In Private Documents Kept At Doorn

EDITOR'S NOTE—Former Kaiser Wilhelm's intimate reactions to events just before the outbreak of the world war in 1914 are revealed in the following dispatch, based on records made available to the United Press at Doorn, Holland, where the former Kaiser lives in exile.

BY H. C. BURHAM United Press Staff Correspondent (Copyright in All Countries, 1933, By United Press)

DOORN, Holland (UP)—Charges by former Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany, made on the eve of the outbreak of the world war, that responsibility for the conflict rested with England and that the czar of Russia started military activities three days before he asked Wilhelm to act as mediator are contained in private documents at the ex-kaiser's personal archives, never before made public, which the United Press is now privileged to publish.

These historically important documents are to be included in a book called "Germany Acquitted—The Drama of Thirteen Days in History's Judgment," by Dr. Kurt Jagow, Wilhelm's master of the rolls.

On July 30, 1914, Wilhelm wrote the Grand Duchess Luise von Baden, his aunt, expressing alarm at European events and declaring England held the answer to peace or war.

"By remaining silent, or neutral, she encourages France to break loose with Russia against us; through a clear, honorable, manly word, she will save Europe from a world conflagration," the ex-kaiser wrote. "Will she have the moral strength to utter this word?"

Wilhelm Interested The ex-kaiser is personally interested in publication of the documents and has devoted much time in aiding Jagow in preparing them.

In the letter to his aunt, Wilhelm revealed "complete surprise" at learning the czar had ordered mobilization. He wrote:

"The situation is very serious. Following the czar's appeal to my friendship, and at his request to assist him as mediator to save the European peace, I have at once agreed, accepting the role, and started work. Alas, to my complete surprise, the czar informed me early this morning that five days ago he ordered military measures, which now were going into force—that is to say, three days before his appeal to me as mediator. At the same time his government informed us that mobilization against Austria had started.

"This, without my knowledge, behind my back, and without even waiting for the result of my work as mediator. I have pointed out to his majesty (the czar) that military measures which will be understood by Austria as a threat naturally weaken my action as mediator and imperil my work. The czar, however, expressed hope ... I would succeed.

"I can hardly see any hope for a peaceful solution. ... The maintenance of the peace no longer rests with Berlin, but only and solely with London.

More Letters "If England, as it says, really seriously and honorably wishes to prevent war ... she must state now quite clearly in Paris that France, in such an unjust war, can not rely on England's help and must remain quiet. The same thing said in St. Petersburg, and both states will not cry for war, even notwithstanding the mobilization. ... Through a clear, honorable, manly word she will save Europe from a world conflagration. Will she have the moral strength to utter this word? (Signed) WILHELM."

The documents show how Wilhelm received the first telegrams telling of the murder of the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Austria at Sarajevo, while Wilhelm was attending the regatta at Kiel, June 28, 1914.

Fearing complications in the European political situation, the ex-kaiser wanted to return to Berlin at once, but he was persuaded to continue his trip to Northern Europe. Before starting on this trip Wilhelm, as is known, called a conference of his political and military leaders to discuss the memoranda issued by the Austrian government.

Conference This conference has been called "the crown council of Potsdam."

Dr. Jagow, in his book, denies the conference had war-like significance, pointing out that even on July 26, when events in Europe took a more serious turn, Wilhelm did not show undue anxiety such as he would have felt had he believed in less than a week Europe's armies would march on each other.

Late in the evening of July 30 a telegram from King George of England addressed to Prince Heinrich was received at Potsdam. This telegram sounded very pacifying to Wilhelm and he telegraphed the Grand Duchess Luise von Baden on the afternoon of July 31:

"Last night very sympathetic favorable reply from King George received; works in harmony with me; will utilize full influence with his allies for maintaining peace; preparations for negotiations between Vienna and Petersburg also succeeded and there also exchange of views between Vienna and London; God help us further; alas I just received report from Petersburg orders been given to mobilize the entire Russian army and navy; the czar had not even waited for my efforts for mediation for which he had begged me."

The interwoven documents reveal Wilhelm's varying emotions in the weeks before the outbreak of the war. The telegrams are significant partly because they were not addressed to official quarters but to his closest relations, including his wife and his aunt.

Wilhelm's writings will arouse great interest and comment, especially as Jagow expresses the opinion—on the strength of the documents to be published in his book—that "Kaiser Wilhelm and the German government did not in July, 1914, as expressed in the war guilt thesis of Versailles, consciously and deliberately bring on the war. On the contrary, when the crisis reached its climax they did everything possible to maintain the peace and avoid war."

Woman Denies She Wants Son To Surrender

Mrs. Hunsucker Says She'd Rather See Boy Come Back Dead

DALLAS, (UP)—Ida Hunsucker in an interview with newspapermen denied she had issued a plea to her son, Glen, sought in connection with the slaying of Joe Brown, deputy sheriff of Wise county, to surrender.

The statement released by Texas rangers as coming from the portly middle-aged woman was described by her as another "hum-bug of the police."

She was offered opportunity of writing a statement for publication in newspapers.

"No, I won't," she vehemently said.

"I would just as soon have him come in dead as fall in the hands of these police."

Ranger Sergeant Bert Whelan, who is directing the search for Glen Hunsucker, his accomplice, John (Perchmouth) Stanton, announced that Mrs. Hunsucker had authorized him to appeal through the public press for her son to surrender. He said it was explained to her that either of the two men would probably be killed if they made any attempt to shoot their way out of a police trap.

The woman prisoner appeared tired and worn when newspapermen talked with her. Throughout the interview she listened intently to activities of the jail, to the sally summoning officers to patrol duty. Questioning of the woman by rangers preceded the newspaper interview.

The officers were tight-lipped when they dismissed the woman. They said they had nothing new on the case.

Friday, for the second time, Mrs. Hunsucker was driven over the route which she is believed to have taken when she, Glen and Stanton fled from Elmore, after last Tuesday's shooting. Officers said she could not pick out the location where the two men left her automobile.

"This is a hard case," said Sheriff Smoot Schmidt. "It is a case of a mother love rather than disregard of the law."

Schmidt said his investigators learned that Glen is the eldest of the Hunsucker boys and a favorite of his mother. He said that the youngest boy is operating the tourist camp at Quitaque, Tex., where the woman resided until her overland trip to Decatur and Rhome and her subsequent arrest.

While officers followed every available clue as to the whereabouts of the fugitives, questioning of Faye Pennington, Dallas waitress and friend of the young fugitive, continued. The officers would not disclose what they learned from her.

Doris Meeks, the fourth occupant of the automobile which was stopped by Brown before the shooting, is still in jail. He has given officers little information other than that which led to the apprehending of Mrs. Hunsucker.

Abuses Of Telegraph Privilege By Congressmen Bring Restriction

BY RAYMOND CLAFFEE
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 WASHINGTON (UP)—The House committee on accounts has put a firm foot down on persistent abuses of the congressional telegraph privilege who have been sending personal wires at government expense.

The committee has found about twenty chronic offenders in both parties. In seeking to collect reimbursements from these members, some difficulties were encountered. The committee found it necessary to vote to refuse further use of the free telegraph privilege to members who refused to pay up. Names of members involved and contents of the telegrams were withheld.

The House appropriates $100,000 a year to pay for official telegrams sent by members. Until the tightening up campaign began about a year ago, members indulged in long distance telephone calls, charging them to the government. The House accounts committee ruled that no long distance bills would be paid.

It also stopped the charging of cablegrams except those sent by resident delegates of the Philippines and other outlying territories.

75,000 Homeless Room

Texas Says Col. Main
 FORT WORTH (UP)—Nearly 75,000 homeless persons are wandering through Texas in search of shelter and employment, according to estimates of Lieut. Col. David Main, Dallas, divisional commander of the Salvation Army. "After all, they are American citizens, and should be treated as such," he said at a conference of army officials here.

Mrs. Dan Smith told police her Boston bull awoke her early in a scrap with a prowler. The man wrestled with the dog several minutes, then escaped down the street with outdog under his arm.

New Drill Regulations

How to make a fighting soldier out of a civilian with one month's training, instead of the customary six months, has been discovered by tactical officers of the United States army. The new method is embodied in drill regulations which are now being tried out on an infantry company.

The old familiar "squads right" and other close-order drills will be junked. All maneuvers from squads to divisions will be based on one idea alone—that of making each man or each unit an effective fighting force. Purely disciplinary movements will be eliminated. Every command will indicate fighting rather than sheer practice of meaningless routine.

The new order of drill leans toward simplicity and reduction of unnecessary movement. Most drills will be in extended order, every soldier taking his proper interval and holding it throughout the execution of the movement. This will serve to make him a more difficult target for the enemy.

In the main most of our military drills are left-overs from the pre-powder age. The new regulations are designed to fit men for combat with modern weapons.

All the same, many an old dough-boy will see the passing of "squads right" with genuine regret. It was a pretty maneuver, but unfortunately it is not in keeping with the spirit of the times.

Roosevelt On Yacht Cruise For Pre-Inauguration Rest

President-Elect To Combine Relaxation With Final Check Of Tentative List Of Cabinet Appointees

By FREDERICK A. STORM
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 WASHINGTON, Ga. (UP)—President-elect Roosevelt left Friday night for Florida to embark on a ten-day cruise which he expects to leave him rested and physically fit to shoulder the burdens of the nation.

Isolated alike from office-seekers and those who seek to influence his policies, Mr. Roosevelt will combine relaxation in semi-tropic waters with a final check on his tentative cabinet list. When he returns to land, he will complete his slate of key appointments, but he will not announce the personal of his official family until March 2 or 3.

The sea trip started Saturday from Jacksonville, with Vincent Astor as host on the yacht Nourmahal.

Conferences with Judge Robert W. Bingham, Louisville, Ky., publisher, and Prof. Raymond I. Moley, economic adviser, were all that remained on Mr. Roosevelt's schedule as he prepared to quit the "Little White House," in the Georgia pine woods.

Ambassador
 Bingham's presence at Warm Springs at the invitation of the president-elect was taken to verify reports that he would be appointed ambassador to France. He is a close friend to Mr. Roosevelt.

Moley came to discuss the general economic situation.

Out of the speculation and reports that have come from the conversations on patronage this week between Mr. Roosevelt, James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman; Frank C. Walker, party treasurer; and Edward J. Flynn, family is as interesting as he is, beginning with his wife, the daughter of an Italian duke, and running the list of his three daughters and two sons, everyone of them different and yet every one possessed of some of their father's faculty for extracting interests out of life.

Things could not refrain from happening to this group and Tregaron was the type who would stir up circumstances and make things happen, if life was slow in the process.

The only fault the book possesses is a lack of focus and a little too much emphasis on description. It is Tregaron's story but it is also Phillips's, his daughter's and sometimes one is never sure exactly whose story it is of these two. Phillips' love affair drags on slowly to make a brilliant and satisfying finale. I wish that Mr. Young had hurried through those last pages . . . but that is a minor detail considering how magnificent the whole pattern is.

Bright Spots In Business

NEW YORK (UP)—R. C. A. Victor Co. received a $400,000 contract for installation of a large broadcasting transmitter at Station WLW, Cincinnati.

WASHINGTON—World consumption of American cotton this year will show an increase over that for 1931-32, according to the bureau of agricultural economics.

BOSTON—Pepperell Mfg. Co. sold $8,328,000 worth of goods in the last six months of 1932, a gain of 2.6 per cent over sales in the last half of 1931.

HENRYETTA, Ok.—Operations in the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. factory have been resumed here. After an idleness of more than six months 300 men have returned to work.

Check Telegrams

Clerks began a systematic check of all telegrams before okaying the charges. They found that many members had a curious idea of what constituted official business. A number of them were discovered to be sending block telegrams—for instance a statement to the press which would be wired at government expense to every newspaper in a member's district.

Some members sent telegrams of condolence to bereaved constituents. Others had lookouts tip them off concerning all births back home and telegrams were promptly sent, at government expense, congratulating the proud new parents.

Other members have made it a practice to telegraph congratulations to all constituents receiving appointments, pensions or public honors. One member received a petition signed by 100 persons in his district and he promptly telegraphed acknowledgements to each signer.

Disallowed
 All such telegrams have been disallowed as official business and a number of members have had to

"The House Under the Water"
 By Francis Brett Young
 (Harper and Bros.)

A novel by Francis Brett Young is like a tender juicy beefsteak—it appeals to all classes of readers. Highbrow or lowbrow, modern or slightly Victorian, novel-devourer or stylist, it intrigues them all. For Mr. Young has persistently stood by the old English belief that a novel is written primarily to entertain and that if he can make his readers forget themselves in his characters he can be sure of satisfying them.

So when you sit down and sink your teeth into "The House Under the Water" you can be sure of a good meal—and you get it.

I won't tell you the meaning of the title, for that would spoil the book; it's aptly chosen.

The thing about this novel, as well as others of Mr. Young's, is that his characters are so vitally alive; and there are plenty of them; and all of them are doing things. House parties, love affairs, gold in South Africa, the romance of steam-driven machinery just coming into vogue in England, lords and ladies in their ancestral homes and gods of atmosphere—how delightfully free from psychoanalysts all this sounds. And so it is.

Red-Bearded Hero
 The most fascinating character of this novel is the red-bearded Tregaron whose soul is a battleground of conflicts inherited from his peasant mother and his English father. Tregaron goes through the pages like a furious whirlwind, always intense, alive, carrying a chip on his shoulder and carrying the whole world to so much as touch it, and having a gorgeous time, all the while.

Murray Asks He Be Heard
Cousin Of Governor Wishes To Refute Girls' Testimony

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok. (UP)—Col. Cleo I. Murray demanded that he be given opportunity to clear himself of bribery accusations as the story of Oklahoma's bootleg oil racket was resumed before the senate oil investigating committee.

Two young girl stenographers, employees in an asserted fake insurance firm, told the committee yesterday that their employer Raymond C. Walker, handed the oil field military supervisor money. They quoted Walker as saying he "had Cleo fixed."

Colonel Murray announced he would confer again with Count Attorney Lewis Morris and demand that a court of inquiry be held to investigate truth of accusations against him made by the witnesses, Vera Sellers and Pearl Tibbs.

He said he would ask perjury complaints be filed against the girls for their testimony regarding exchange of money.

A. W. Parkers, former partner in the alleged bogus insurance firm that "fronted" for an illicit oil traffic, was called as the first witness.

Parkers said that while working for the state tax commission he met Walker who claimed to be a relative of Governor Murray's wife. The witness said he was discharged by the tax commission for taking time off in June 1932 to take the Klittle band, of which he was treasurer, to the democratic

Lippmann Questions Technocrats' Prediction Of Doom For Existing Order Based On Curves Of Chart

Technocracy 111. The Prophecy of Doom

We come now to a consideration of the reasons which the technocrats offer for predicting the destruction of the existing order. Here in their own authorized language, is the prophecy of doom: We now have the accelerating upward sweep of the energy curves and the curves of an enormous total production and the accelerating declination of the curves of employment...

His claim rests upon the fallacious premise that a social system is wholly determined by the quantity of energy it consumes. If Mr. Scott's assumption were true, the same number of calories consumed in shooting off a cannon and building houses would produce the same social results...

The error in what Mr. Scott calls "the basic postulate" of technocracy is the naive logical error of trying to measure a complex whole by measuring one of its parts. It is possible, for example to weigh all the steel and wood used in building a ship...

So we are entitled to conclude, I think, without any fear that we are turning our backs upon another Galileo, another Newton, or another Darwin, that Mr. Scott has not discovered what he pretends to have discovered: the scientific clue to social evolution...

This epoch-making formula is arrived at by measuring the energy contained in the food that is eaten, in the fuels that are consumed, and dividing the total by the population. Thus Mr. Scott finds that until about 1890 the maximum energy consumption in any society was about 2,500 kilogram calories per capita per day...

I shall assume that these figures are reasonably correct. There is nothing inherently improbable in the statement that the United States today consumes seventy-five times as much energy per capita as it did in 1800. There are moments, to be sure, when Mr. Scott feels very imaginative and then he talks not about a seventy-five fold increase in a century and a quarter, but an 8,766,000 fold acceleration since 1800...

CHAPTER XXIII

Sheila slipped into the routine of the road tour with alacrity. Still there were difficulties. She was a principal without the aloofness of a principal. Nor was she of the chorus. Her salary made it unnecessary for her to slimp along as the girls in the ensemble did. All this made life rather lonely for her. For company she turned to Jappy.

Jappy was a chorus girl who had won her name for obvious reasons. She had been a dancer, billed as an oriental half-caste, an appellation which her slanting eyes did not belie. Actually Jappy, born Mildred Cross, in Passaic, New Jersey, was thoroughly American. She was in the chorus now because she could find no better job.

Sheila liked Jappy. Even when she had believed the press agent's tale that the other girl was half Japanese, Sheila had been drawn to her. They were in a small city in Pennsylvania. It was Friday and they were to play there two nights, making a jump on Sunday for another split week.

Jappy shared the chorus dressing room. Sheila missed that a little. Girls, laughing and gay, at long dressing shelves, mirrors, and cretonne covered chairs all about. She liked the crowded, brightly lighted rooms with knots of girls, dressing, powdering, flexing, scolding, rustling.

Neither one of them was included in any of the chorus' affairs—little parties given after the show—or in those given by the other principals. Ralph McKee, the comedian, liked Sheila. "Going out with him tonight?" Jappy asked.

"I thought I might." "I suppose so. Why?" "I hope you aren't hungry. He'll buy you crackers and milk."

Later Sheila understood this. McKee had definite ideas about diet and crackers and milk were his prescription for every ill. "I understand you turned down a chance to work in New York," was one of the first things he said to Sheila. They were seated at a table in a restaurant that remained open until late. Sheila watched McKee's hands—long and slender—as they crumbled crackers into a bowl of milk. He had ordered a steak for Sheila. She hadn't diet, he said, just because he did. His humorous little eyes regarded her across the table. Sheila had heard that McKee had a wife and five daughters some where on Long Island. He made an excellent salary and he was the show's best drawing card.

"I did," Sheila admitted. "I don't like to play in New York and I love the road." McKee sighed. "But don't you know that a season there with your name in electric lights would give you a chance on the road later with a better salary? You could be a headliner instead of just one step up from the chorus as you are now."

He regarded her thoughtfully. "I wonder if you know that your dancing is extraordinary?" "Of course." "I mean it! It's too good for the sort of part you have—at the rate they're paying you. Go back to New York and try to land that chance to play Broadway again. That's my advice!"

Sheila told him. "I have a contract to play 40 weeks." "Well, 40 weeks isn't forever. Save your money then and go back later. It's the only way to get ahead."

McKee, Sheila knew, was playing the road at a handsome salary. He was a headliner. She was just a dancer—not good enough for Broadway, managers might conclude, simply because they hadn't seen her there.

"I'll see about it," she told him. McKee offered more advice. "You ought to get married," he grunted. "It's not right for a girl like you to try to shift for herself."

The comedian might have been her father from the way he talked. Sheila wondered what it would have been like to play in a company with her own father. She felt suddenly very much alone.

And, for several days this talk with Ralph McKee stayed in her mind. She talked it over with Jappy and they agreed to save their money. They decided to eat in cheaper restaurants and room together.

"Let's go in for exercise, too," suggested Jappy, as though the strenuous dance routines they went through nightly—and on matinee days in the afternoons as well—were not exercise enough.

In trim suits and smart hats Jappy and Sheila went for long, brisk walks each morning. "Did you ever live in a small town?" Jappy asked one day. "I've never lived anywhere," Sheila said significantly. "I was born on the stage—practically—and I may be a queer sort of trouper but I want a home like one of these."

"Well, I had one," returned the other girl. "And do you know these girls would give their eye teeth to have jobs like ours? I'd like, though, just for a little while, to be in a room I didn't expect to leave in a few hours. I'd like to feel I didn't have to worry all the time about money, too."

"Some of them probably worry about money, Jappy." "It isn't the same. They don't go to sleep wondering where the price of a meal next day is to come from. They don't know anything about that."

"No. But they don't stand a chance of earning $300 or $400 a week next season either. It all evens up."

"Maybe," Jappy's voice was listless. And suddenly it occurred to Sheila that her friend's day of triumph had passed. A year ago Jappy had been a featured player, stopping the show with her specialty dance. Now she was in the chorus and would probably stay there. It happened so often in stage life.

There was Marion Randolph, for instance. Oh, yes, the stage had its disillusionments. Sheila determined she would not let it enslave her. To get out of it was the best plan. But could she? Down deep in her heart did she really want to?

Ralph McKee met her at the door of her dressing room that night. He was holding a New York newspaper while he thrust toward her. "Did you see this?" he asked. Marion Randolph had committed suicide.

Last month was the driest January in Big Spring since 1925, the monthly meteorological summary issued by J. A. Cummings, in charge of the United States weather bureau here, discloses.

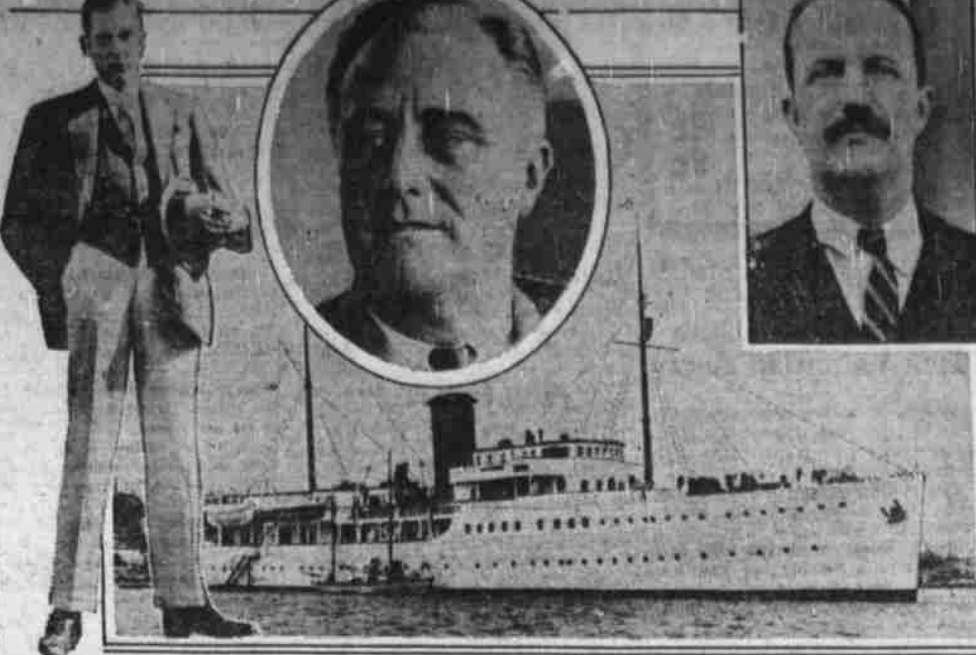

Precipitation for the month gauged only .19 inch at the airport, where the bureau is located. In 1922 January showed .35 precipitation and in 1921 the figure was 1.31 inch. January of 1925 had only .15 rainfall. Wettest January on record here since 1899 was 1.97 inch in 1920.

All except .01 inch of the January moisture was received on the sixth and seventh days of the month. Things look different in COLD BLACK TYPE

"I HEAR," said the friend, "that you have just made $50,000 in the insurance business."

"Right—except for one or two slight particulars. It was real estate—not insurance. It was $75,000, not $50,000. And I didn't make it—I lost it!"

Has it ever happened to you that something you've told an acquaintance comes back, after many days, so distorted that you hardly recognize it? The spoken word so changes and colors much that we say, that by the time it passes many lips only the skeleton of truth remains.

But how different it is with the printed word! That is why you can trust the advertisements. Had you thought of it that way? Because the manufacturer and merchant are compelled to be accurate in type, you know that the quality of soap, ginger ale, clothing, butter or furniture you buy is as standardized as the calendar. It's all the manufacturer and retailer claim for it. It has to be!

Read the advertisements. Read them carefully, critically. Read them for profit! Read them knowing that the truth pays... you and the advertiser!
