Robinson—

The man behind the guns in prohibition repeal was nobody else but that erstwhile ardent dry—Democratic Populcr Leader Robinson.

How he did it is an inside tale reaching far beyond the prohibition issue. It means Robinson's unquestioned retention as democratic leader. It reestablishes his force as a guiding power in congress. When Garner is kicked upstairs to the vice presidency Robinson now will be the most influential man in congress.

Two nudges pushed him into action. One came from the legislature of his state. It went on record for repeal a few days before his change of front. Some close friends suggest he had the legislature take that action to open the way for what he did. That is being denied, but not strongly.

The second nudge is supposed to have come from Mr. Roosevelt. That can never be proved, one way or another.

Robinson went about his little coup with an air of enthusiasm which strongly suggests that he got the idea for it himself before he was nudged by anyone.

He lay low in the last presidential campaign. There was considerable doubt as to whether his state was actually wet. He publicly endorsed the republican platform method of dealing with the situation, opposing a straight repeal of the prohibition law.

He growled when Garner tried to put through a repeal resolution at the opening of congress. His Arkansas delegation voted solidly against Garner's repeal. Bad feeling developed between them. It came to the fore at Mr. Roosevelt's New York conference of Congressional leaders. There Mr. Garner expressed contempt for Mr. Robinson's handling of the issue in the senate and they exchanged looks which needed dry cleaning.

The spectacle of a Democratic leader leading for a Republican platform did not rest well with the boys in the cloakroom. Some of the party wets and even a few of the conservatives patted Huey Long on the back when he went after Robinson's scalp. They had deep plans to contest Robinson's reelection as leader in the next Congress. They wanted a more ardent Roosevelt man in the saddle. They probably had enough votes to defeat him.

All that is changed now. Robinson kept his head and his tongue and went about the business of proving himself worthy of the Roosevelt leadership. He even went so far as to be nice to Huey Long to accomplish his purpose. That was going pretty far.

No one will be against Robinson now except the progressive wing. They can not make a decent opposition showing. None of his champions will criticize him for changing his mind because he came out on the side with the heavy majority.

Whether you are dry or wet you will have to hand it to him for ultimate loyalty to a platform he admittedly did not like.

Sales Tax Opposed—

Two of the most powerful groups of retail merchants in Texas, the Texas Retail Dry Goods association, and the Texas Retail Merchants association have gone on record unqualifiedly against the sales tax, or any other new taxation.

The Dry Goods association represents 600 firms and the Merchants association 2,500 retailers of the state.

Big Spring merchants opposed to the sales tax plans now before the house committee on revenue and taxation were represented in a public hearing at Austin last week by L. A. Euba-ka, manager of the Big Spring Retail Merchants association and high in the councils of the Texas association.

Letters to this writer from Penrose B. Metcalfe, representing this district in the lower house, and Arthur P. Duggan, senator from this district, state their views on the question.

Mr. Metcalfe says that he has decided to vote against all bills designed to put into force new taxation methods. Mr. Duggan, who gave much study to the Sales Tax prior to the opening of an extremely session of the legislature, says that he is opposed to the Sales Tax plans now before that body.

Letter From Duggan—

Senator Duggan writes as follows: "I am not a supporter of the present sales tax bill pending in the house, levying three per cent on manufacturers, three per cent on wholesalers and three per cent on retailers. The legislators find themselves faced with an extremely serious financial problem. The state is about $12,000,000 in the red. If I will lose an additional $10,000,000 approximately, in the $3,000,000 homestead exemption and it is a fact and not a theory that the ad valorem tax has failed as a revenue producer. Not including 1931 and 1932, delinquent taxes are in excess of $60,000,000. As a legislator I believe we should reduce every cost of government possible. As a member of the finance committee of the senate I am so voting. You have little idea, however, what a howl goes up every time we attempt to make a reduction anywhere. I am not in favor of any new taxes and will not vote for them unless it is absolutely necessary to carry on the government after costs have been cut and then not unless the new tax displaces the property tax."

Mr. Euba-ka, on his return from Austin, said the Retail Merchants Association had finished plans to provide representation in Austin throughout the legislative session

Cotton Rate Ruling Brings Comment Here

Watson And Shoemaker Appeared In Opposition To Application

Satisfaction over the rulings of the state railroad commission and Interstate Commerce Commission refusing applications of three Texas roads for flat rates on uncompressed cotton from interior Texas points to Houston, Galveston and Texas City was expressed here by C. T. Watson, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, who acted with F. P. Shoemaker of the Big Spring Cotton Company in opposing the move at a public hearing in Dallas.

The applications were made by the Burlington, Rock Island, Fort Worth and Denver City and Wichita Valley railroads.

"It means our interior compresses will continue to operate for a time," he said. Watson and Shoemaker have opposed the flat rate on the grounds it would center cotton markets at the ports and would bring about destruction of interior compresses and markets. This done, port interests could demand exorbitant prices for compressing, they argued.

Will Clayton of the Anderson-Clayton interests was chief witness for the three railroads.

Chairman Byrnes of the appropriations committee put the plan up to the membership with an announcement an effort would be made by leaders to enlarge presidential authority to include reduction of statutory payments such as veterans' compensation.

Steers In Hamlin For Game Tonight

Tonight at Hamlin the Big Spring Steers will play the rangy Hamlin Pled Pipers in the first of a series of games to decide the championship of District 8.

Hamlin won the eastern half of this district by downing Abilene 18-14 at the same time the Steers were winning the west half from Colorado.

The western half is reputedly stronger than the eastern section, and with a 46-18 victory over the Pipers taken in the Colorado Invitational tournament, the locals will be heavy favorites to represent this district for the third consecutive time.

Thursday night the Hamlin boys will play here, and in case a third game is necessary to decide the winner, it will be played on a neutral court. R. D. Green, superintendent of Abilene schools, has offered the use of the Eagles gym in case of an extra game.

Christians Take City League Basketball Title For Season

Baptists Defeated 30 To 21 By Merrick's Team After Being Endangered By Fouls

Christians won the city basketball league championship Monday evening in the high school gymnasium over East Fourth Baptists, 30-21. It was the first title to be won by the Christians, although the team lineup is almost identical with the one which captured the title for First Methodist last year.

The championship game was the fastest of the season. At no time in the game was there any lagging and heat of the contest is attested to by the fact that one Christian was forced out on fouls, two had three, and an equal number of Baptists were on the edge of going out.

Erroy spells by Baptist guards cost the game. Several times Loper and Forrester broke suddenly behind the defensive guards to score crisp shots for the Christians, and several times they slipped unnoticed to a position under the hoop.

Forrester placed the game on ice for Christians with his uncanny shots from the floor. No matter where or how he threw it, the ball slid through the hoop.

Earl Wilson opened scoring with a trick shot from the side, placing the Baptists two points ahead. But Vaughn even it for the Christians and from there on out it was a struggle, with Christians always having an advantage.

In the third quarter Forrester and Loper went wild and gave the champions a 26-12, but the charges of Lex James took heart when Whittington broke into the line-up and rang his first shot. The quarter ended soon after with the Christian lead reduced by six points.

Manager Merrick was on needles and pins in the closing moments of play with only one substitute and two men running about with three personal fouls. The whistle saved him from an embarrassing situation.

Alton Underwood's Aces administered a lesson to Collins Bros. in winning the consolation round of the league play. The 27-17 win settled the ownership of the cellar.

Bill Tate focused his eye on the basket and dismayed Collins with eleven points. Mr. "Ace" Underwood took a hand in play, and personally accounted for four points. Richards led Collins with nine points but his mates were unable to rally to his support.

Meeting of the city league executive board has been called for 7 p. m. Tuesday in the Big Spring Herald office. An all city team will be selected at that time.

SPOTLIGHT

CHAPTER XXVII

Spencer had been at Club Vesper. Not presently the engagement was to end. A slight stub of hair had been shaved and she had been assured that she would be a job in two weeks was out of a job. Meanwhile Johnny Harrell's promise to find a place in a stage production had not materialized.

Sheila went to Mandrake's office, hearing that he was casting a show. "The role of the featured dancer in the production called for a girl who was small, petite and blond. Sheila by no stretch of the imagination could be said to answer that description. Plenty of girls did, however. Vera Dale got the part."

Harrell wouldn't let Sheila do a specialty dance in the new "Frivolities of 1933." "You're not a beauty, you know, Sheila," he told her. "Not the way they rate 'em. You have talent and talent is something that would be completely lost in the 'Frivolities'."

"There'll be a job for you any time now, I'm sure," Tillie Samper encouraged Sheila. The other four Sampers agreed. They had invited her to stay on as long as she liked with them and pay when she could.

Trevor Lane heard that Sheila was looking for a job and telephoned to invite her to tea. She refused to let him lend her money. "I'm getting along all right," she insisted. "I'll get a job soon."

Lane studied her. "What you need is a change," he announced. "Look here, how about a different kind of job for a while? How'd you like to model dresses in a smart shop?"

Sheila shook her head. "Those who aren't so easy to get and believe it might hurt me with the gents. They'd think I couldn't get a job dancing. Which happens just now, to be true!"

"Couldn't you sprain an ankle or something—just as an excuse?"

"I've only two ankles and I can't spare one. Besides how could a girl model clothes with a sprained ankle? And how could I get such a job?"

"I could easily arrange that, at Henri's."

"You mean Henri really needs models? It wouldn't be—just a party?"

Lane laughed. "Charity!" he exclaimed. "Wait until you've seen Henri! He's a devil to work for but he likes tall, dark brunets. Think they show off his creations best. You'd suit him perfectly."

"Do you really think so? I'd be terribly glad if I could get the job." In her purse was her last five dollars. In a few days she would have to borrow from the Samper if she did not begin earning something.

Thevor Lane telephoned to Henri. He returned to tell Sheila he had made an appointment for her to see the famous designer at 10 next morning. "And you'll get the job," he assured her. "Now we can have dinner in peace, with that off our minds. Please do! I'm lonely. Dick's a regular slave these days. Won't even take time off to eat."

"Is he really working?" Sheila asked. She wondered if Lane knew that Dick had asked her to marry him. She did not think so. Actually Thevor Lane knew that his cousin had never relinquished the idea of winning Sheila. He knew that Dick was working toward the goal he had set for himself—financial independence for Sheila's sake. He knew that alone was the explanation of Dick's industry.

"Working like the devil," Lane told her. "Black coffee at night, stuffed telephone bell, doorbell cut off and all that sort of thing. I never see him any more."

Sheila said soberly. "It seems a shame. So much midnight oil burned, so much good white paper wasted in this town."

"Then you have no faith in Dick?"

Sheila colored. "I didn't mean that. But everyone writes, Trevor. You know that. It isn't like being an artist or an actor. Anyone can get a job on paper and believe they are clever words. Not nearly so many try the stage unless they have at least a little talent. They can't get past the agents and managers. As for art—that's too expensive, too discouraging. It's easier to see that you can't paint than it is to see you can't write."

"As a matter of fact," said the man slowly, "I think Dick can write. Would it make any difference in your feeling toward him if you thought he could?"

"I feel that Dick is wasting time. He should be in business at home as his father wants him to be. Oh, dear, I can't explain."

"Then don't try," said Trevor.

They parted an hour later at the Samper door. "You've been awfully good to help me," Sheila told him. "I mean about the job at Henri's." They shook hands solemnly and the girl watched as Lane swung into his car and started toward Broadway.

Eve, who occupied the other twin bed in Sheila's room, was still awake. She demanded food and Sheila agreed to raid the ice box. She brushed, her hair creamed her face, and went to the kitchen, her little turned-up Chinese slippers padding softly along the hall.

Presently she returned with a glass of milk and sandwiches. Eve was not afraid of encroaching pounds. "You are a love, Sheila," she said. "I don't see why some nice young millionaire doesn't come along and marry you."

"I guess they're all married," Sheila slid her slippers under the bed and tucked herself in with elaborate care.

"Trevor Lane isn't married," Eve objected.

"No."

"Doesn't he want to marry you?" the other girl asked bluntly with the air of having wanted to ask this question for some time.

"If he does, he knows how to keep a secret."

"You are so fascinating," resumed Eve, "that I don't see how any man resists you."

"You'd be surprised!"

Eve set the empty glass on the table, snapped out the light above her head, and went on talking. Sheila answered in reluctant, sleepy murmurs. But she could not check Eve. The Samper girls had never had many beaux and in mediating on another's conquests Eve was gaining a vicarious feeling of popularity.

"Trevor got me a job," Sheila said finally. "I'm sorry, Eve. Let's call it a day. I have to get up early."

Across town two young men were sitting before a fireplace. One of them was talking, the other lighting a pipe.

"Why don't you go home?" Trevor Lane asked. "I have a hunch Sheila might feel differently if you weren't here. She's used to wealthy young men following in her wake. She's used to young men who think they can write."

"Is she accustomed to young men who write masterpieces for her to star in?" asked Dick coolly.

"Trevor laughed. "Is that your ambition?"

"It's been done by less persistent men than I."

Lane nodded soberly. "It's an odd thing about that girl," he said. "She has remarkable talent and it doesn't mean a thing to her except as a means of earning a living. Bread and butter until she marries and settles down in her own home, to forget the stage."

Dick moved wearily. "I want to offer her something besides what other people have given

First Baptist Parlor Furnished By Women

The members of the First Baptist W. M. U. met at the church Monday afternoon for a devotional service.

Most of the time was devoted to furnishing the parlor. A rug had been donated and there was a nice living room set already in. The members plan to add the curtains later. After the room had been furnished the members spent the rest of the afternoon visiting the sick and absentees.

It was decided to set aside the first three days of next week for Week of Prayer preceding Dr. Truett's meeting, and to visit all members possible next week.

There was a good attendance.

Jitney Supper To Be Given By The First Christian Women

The members of the Council of the First Christian Church met at the church Monday afternoon for a business meeting. Mrs. George Hall presided. The meeting opened with the Lord's Prayer.

The members decided to give a jitney supper at the church Friday evening at 7 o'clock. The dishes will be served cafeteria style and will be a nickel each. A large crowd is expected.

Those present were: Mrs. Hall, Dalmon, Cook, J. H. Stiff, C. M. Shaw, Ira Rockhold, D. C. Hamilton, J. F. Kennedy, J. R. Parks, H. Clay Read, Moore, Sam Stone, G. W. Dabney and W. M. Taylor.

"Lord knows, I've offered her myself, my future, everything! That's not much, though, if you count the family out. She just doesn't give a darn about me, Trevor."

"You'll make her change her mind yet," Lane assured him. "I wish I could think of something."

Dick rose, moved toward his hat. "I'll be going," he said. He held out a hand impulsively. "You're a good scout, Thev. Nobody knows it better than I do. But—this is something I have to manage myself."

The door slammed behind him.

J. F. Hair Tries To Wield Chair After Being Hit On Head By Pitcher Thrown By Woodward

Passing Of 'Lie' Brings On Trouble During Senate Investigation Of Governor's Charge

AUSTIN—Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman struck J. F. Hair, a San Antonio attorney, with a water pitcher during a hearing in the senate Monday on allegations that the state highway department had misappropriated some of the state road funds.

Speaker Garner crushed the dry minority by the caucus device. He made those who did not sympathize with the majority refrain from voting.

A hidden factor in the Senate wet vote was the group of 29 Republicans who voted for Democratic repeal. Men like Reed of Pennsylvania and Hastings of Delaware were strongly opposed to the resolution they voted for.

The boarding situation may not be as bad as you have heard. The $150,000,000 increase last week was due almost entirely to the Michigan situation.

The letter severely criticized action of the committee in promulgating a ruling that Hair could not interrogate witnesses after he had attempted to propound some questions last Saturday.

Aside from the financial situation business is holding up as well as could be expected now. Commodity prices were firm last week.

Probably the strangest argument heard on the Senate floor for a long time was that of Senator Glass who ridiculed the idea that Democrats should abide by the platform upon which they won the election.

No matter what they tell you, the three prominent New York bankers now in Detroit are not interested in R.P.C. negotiations. That idea is definitely off.

Henry Ford did not have a free hand in the handling of his funds, which alleviates the charge of non-cooperation.

When quiet was restored Senator Will D. Pace of Tyler cited the incident as "a forerunner of other things that might occur."

Woodward said he had no objection to Senator Glass placing any statement in the record, adding: "But, Senator, I would strike from it anything reflecting on your colleagues."

He said that the senator (Woodward) who, at the outset of the investigation told the committee he had made an investigation of the accusations and found them untrue, was guilty of "misconduct."

Local bankers recognize the desirability of legislation in Michigan to freeze up a percentage of deposits as non-liquid, but they earnestly hope and expect the practice will not spread to other states.

Britain's continued withdrawal of gold is no help. She has now gotten back about three-quarters of the $5 billion dollar payment she made in December and the end is not yet.

There is no doubt in high quarters that Britain's foreign exchange maneuvers are aimed at the dollar for the purpose of creating a bargaining point in debt negotiations.

Mr. Roosevelt's narrow escape at Miami awoke wider appreciation in the financial district than he has ever had before.

Sadler Company Opens Engagement Of Week Here To Much Applause

Seats on the main floor from vestibule to orchestra pit were filled, and many were seated in the balcony of the Municipal Auditorium Monday evening for the first performance of a week's engagement of Harley Sadler's New Show.

Harley was there, the same smiling, comical, lovable character as "Pa Robinson" in a splendid three-act comedy-drama.

This evening the play will be "The Call of the Woods," with Harley in one of his famous "Toby" comedy parts.

Although vaudeville long has been a principal attraction of the Harley Sadler shows, the acts presented this season are without doubt better than any Sadler has ever offered.

The White House Twins, singers and dancers, and Ewart and Barry, accordionists, drew special applause Monday evening.

Patrons are informed the orchestra will begin its program each evening at 7:45 o'clock, and that the curtain will rise by 8:15 p. m. Those wishing reserved seats before going to the auditorium may obtain them at Elies Pharmacy.

Reno Aviator Charged With Girl's Death

Woman Falls Seven Stories Following Quarrel In Hotel

HOUSTON (UP)—Charged with murder after the death of his alleged paramour, H. M. Edwards, aviator who gave his address as Reno, Nev., was held in jail here. Edwards was arrested in his bed in a hotel room from which, a few moments before, by Young, 32-year-old New York divorcee, a former actress, had jumped or fallen on to her death seven stories below.

The woman's death climaxed a quarrel begun at a night club party Sunday, during which, police said, Edwards became angry at attention paid to the former actress by an "old friend" whom she met.

As the couple returned to the hotel where they had registered as man and wife, police said Edwards ordered Miss Young from the car, together with a married couple who had accompanied them.

Later, it was said, she reached the hotel alone, summoned a porter with a pass key to open the locked door of Edwards' room, and entered.

W. E. Wells, parking station attendant, was outside the hotel. He told police he saw the young woman's body burst through the screen on the window and fall to the ground below. A man, he said, stood at the window from which it fell.

Hotel employees said they had heard a commotion in the room. Entering, they said, they found Ed-

Silica Project Progresses, Says Big Spring Man

J. B. Wotton, who resigned here last week as city engineer to accept management of the J. C. Blackburn Company silica operations, was in Big Spring Monday with the promise of a new West Texas industry to be centered here.

His intention is to remain in Big Spring to establish an office and factory for manufacture of floor sweep, abrasive soap, and cleansers. His family will still reside here.

While Wotton will be manager of the company and located here, Blackburn, who has had ten years experience in the production of silica in Topeka, Kansas, will act as superintendent of the mine near Tahoka.

"There have been numerous requests for employment since operations took shape," said Wotton, "but Blackburn will have charge of labor at the mines using Tahoka men. However if our factory here is established we will hire local men commensurate with our needs and demand for the product."

Wotton said cooperation would be needed to establish the new industry. Those interested in the project will be welcomed to inspect the mines near Tahoka where a large deposit of the product is located, or write to him either here or Tahoka. He planned to leave again for Tahoka Tuesday.

wards climbing into bed.

"Well, she went out the window," they quoted him as saying.

The aviator refused to make any statement, although police questioned him for hours.

Edwards will be given an examining trial tomorrow before Peace Justice J. M. Ray, with whom the charge was filed.

Although the woman was fully clothed when the porter admitted her to Edwards' room, she wore only step-ins when her body was found.

H. H. Tolleson, house detective, told of hearing screams as they attempted to open the door.

"The woman was bearing a man not to choke her," said Tolleson.

D. M. Lockett, Jr., Dallas, a guest occupying an adjoining room, reported hearing the same sounds as Tolleson and Clinkcales.

Detectives reported examining the window through which the woman fell and finding evidence of its having been forcibly opened, as if by the impact of a body hurled against it.

With Miss Young, police said, Edwards registered at the hotel Feb. 13.

The dead woman was divorced at Reno recently, according to police information, from Herbert Griffin, of New York.

Mrs. Al B. White, Freeport, N. Y., a sister, instructed that the body be sent to Gloucester, N. Y., where it was said another sister lives.

Nation Saved From Paying For Horse By Blanton, Hurley

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent
(Copyright 1933 By United Press)

WASHINGTON (UP)—Here's what act of economy that no critics can take away from congress.

It happened in the house when Secretary of War Hurley and Rep. Thomas Blanton, Dem., Tex., dropped partisanship and stood shoulder to shoulder against what they deemed a raid on the federal treasury.

Congress had been asked to pay for a dead horse, a real dead horse. It has been dead seven years. An old colored man owned it. He claimed some soldiers from Ft. McPherson, Ga., shot it on or about Christmas Eve, 1925. He wanted $250 damages from the government and a bill was introduced in the house to pay him.

Those behind this legislation reckoned without Secretary Hurley. He's an old cavalryman. He dug up the papers. An army veterinarian had made a thorough investigation. Secretary Hurley wrote a long letter to congress which outlined the case.

"Of Thee I Sing"

Now there was an attempt to buy a dead horse at the expense of congress in a Broadway play called "Of Thee I Sing," which Senator Ashurst, Dem., Ariz., said was a cheap show because it lapsed congress by showing the senate debating a claim bill to buy out Paul Revere's horse.

"If he had, I am sure he would have recommended payment of this bill. He is quoting some veterinarian they sent down there."

Blanton offered, for the sake of the aged negro to compromise and pay $25. Ramspeck cited an affidavit by the man who said he sold the horse to the darkey for $200.

"If he paid that much, he paid too much," said Blanton, and on his objection the house laid aside the measure.

But this service in behalf of economy went entirely unappreciated for the very next day Speaker Garner was declaring that President-elect Roosevelt must be given practically dictatorial powers to economize because "congress hadn't the courage to do it."

Phone Fight Won By San Antonians

SAN ANTONIO, (UP)—The city of San Antonio won a fight of more than four years' duration with the Southwestern Bell Telephone company over rates for service when a federal judge in Mississippi set aside an injunction granted the company in April, 1928.

U. S. Judge Edwin Holmes, Yazoo City, Miss., made a ruling which nullified the writ granted the company allowing it to raise telephone rates one-fourth on residence service and one-third on business service.

Under the ruling the company must pay back to subscribers $1,500,000 it had impounded as fees earned under the injunction rate. The fund has been held by the federal district clerk. Rates now return to the level in effect before the injunction was obtained.

"Secretary Hurley knows all about horses," Blanton, treasury watchdog, insisted.

"Is he acquainted with old horses?" asked Rep. Stafford, Reno, Wis.

"He did not go down and look at this horse," Ramspeck persisted. "If he had, I am sure he would have recommended payment of this bill. He is quoting some veterinarian they sent down there."

Protection Of Americans In Jehol Planned

Fighting Inevitable But Evacuation Not Yet Warranted

By HERBERT E. EKINS
United Press Staff Correspondent

PEIPING (UP)—Diplomatic and military representatives of the United States government in North China discussed plans today for the protection of American lives and property if the impending Japanese drive on Jehol province extended southward to the Peiping-Tientsin region.

Fighting on the Jehol border, with the possibility of the Japanese invasion spreading to the south, was considered inevitable.

Chinese commanders in Jehol, both regulars and guerrillas, adopted acting Premier's Soong's slogan, "we will never surrender Jehol," as their battle cry and declared the slightest Japanese advance would meet "furious resistance."

Big Spring Pastor Holds Revival For Church In Abilene

ABILENE—Rev. Woods Smith, pastor of the East Fourth Street Baptist church of Big Spring, is to do the preaching for a two-week protracted meeting, which opened Sunday at the South Side Baptist church. The pastor was in charge of Sunday's services, but Rev. Smith arrived Monday and preached Monday night.

Services will be conducted daily at 10 a. m. and 7:45 p. m. Group prayer meetings will be at 7:15 p. m. M. Shaw will have charge of the music.

Johnson and his diplomatic and military aides decided that while alertness was warranted, Americans in the Peiping-Tientsin region were not in sufficient danger to call for evacuation.

Minister Johnson called in Col. Walter S. Driadale, military attaché at the American Legation here, Col. Reynolds Burt, commanding the United States 15th Infantry at Tientsin, Col. Luis M. Gulick, commander of the U. S. Marines detachment here, and other officers and members of the legation and consular staffs.

Chinese officials expected that Marshal Chang Hsueh-shan, commanding Chinese forces in North China, would soon receive a formal Japanese ultimatum demanding immediate evacuation of Jehol. Chang, preparing for the defense of Jehol against the Japanese, will ignore the ultimatum.
