57 Million People Expected At Polls

ON ELECTION DAY

Near Perfect Weather Prevails Over Texas

DALLAS (UPI) — Near perfect weather greeted Texans who voted today from a slate that included a Barnes, a Bentsen, a Bush and boozie before brunch.

Most predictions were for 2 million total votes, but that could go higher in view of the good weather. Today's temperatures were expected to range from the 40's in the Panhandle to near 70 in far South Texas. Skies were expected to remain mostly clear.

While the hottest race involved Democrat Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr. and Republican George Bush for Ralph Yarborough's U. S. Senate post, two of seven proposed constitutional amendments also drew considerable attention.

These amendments were proposal No. 2, to allow the legislature to pass local option liquor by the drink laws, and No. 3, a proposal to set a limit on how much rural lands can be taxed.

The second battle between incumbent Gov. Preston Smith and Republican challenger Paul Eggers also generated a lot of heat and saw a lot of money spent. But it never seemed to reach the interest level of the Bentsen-Bush race.

President Nixon put his reputation on the line by coming to Texas to campaign for Bush in an all-out Republican drive to capture control of the U. S. Senate.

A capture of the second U. S. Senate seat from Texas by Republicans could strengthen Nixon's re-election prospects considerably for 1972.

Texas Republicans fielded perhaps their biggest list of candidates in recent history this year.

In addition to the races for the senate and governor, Republican challenger Byron Fullerton made a strong bid to unseat Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, and the GOP fielded 11 U. S. House candidates, 38 state house candidates, five candidates for the state senate and four other statewide candidates.

State GOP strategists were hoping to capture two more U. S. house seats. But most observers predicted they would retain the three they now have with democrats winning the other 20.

Republicans are expected to add a few to their present eight state house seats and are running close races for two state senate seats. Republicans now occupy two of the 31 state senate seats, neither of which are up in today's elections.

In the multi-million dollar U. S. Senate race, Bush drew support from the entire national Republican organization. Vice President Spiro Agnew came to Texas to campaign for Bush, as did practically every member of the Nixon cabinet and dozens of others.

Bentsen pitched his campaign around the theme Texas needs at least one Democrat in the U. S. Senate, since a big majority of the state's congressional delegation is Democratic.

Smith campaigned on his 20 years' service in public office and Eggers used a theme that Texas needs a governor "it can be proud of."

Balloting Ends Bitter Campaigns For Posts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Voters in the 50 states made their ballot box choice today in an election testing whether they are worried more about freedom from fear or freedom from want.

The election day in the middle of the term to which President Nixon was elected in 1968 came after a bitter campaign in which leaders of each party said their rivals lied.

About 57 million people were expected to vote to elect all 435 representatives, 35 of the 100 senators, 35 of the 50 governors and thousands of state and local officials.

Rain was forecast for much of the East and Midwest and for Northern California and Western Oregon.

Although the Democrats were jittery, pre-election surveys indicated they would retain and possibly increase their majority in the House, where the GOP needs a net gain of 29 seats to win control. The Democrats also were expected to gain possibly five governorships.

The Democrats had more cause for worry about the big prize at stake in today's balloting — control of the Senate, which the Republicans could win with a net gain of seven seats. But the GOP needed a sweep of the close races.

The Republican National Committee bought time for a replay of Nixon's Phoenix, Ariz., speech Saturday on violence in America. It was in that speech Nixon blamed violence on "appeasement" and a "permissive" attitude toward thugs and hoodlums.

Although the President said violence was not a partisan issue, his party's candidates clearly have tried to link it to liberal Democrats.

Speaking for the Democrats Monday night was Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, 1968 nominee for vice president. In contrast with the Nixon speech at a partisan airport rally, the soft-speaking Muskie gave a fireside chat from a den overlooking the crashing waves of a Maine seashore.

Muskie said Democrats had been victims of name-calling, deception, slander and questions about their patriotism in attacks inspired and guided "from the highest offices in the land," — meaning, the tactics were encouraged by Nixon and by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. He likened the attacks to those led by the late Joseph R. McCarthy in the early 1950s.

Muskie said GOP campaigners implied Democratic candidates "actually favor violence and champion the wrongdoer."

"That is a lie," he said, "and the American people know it is a lie."

In today's contest for control of the Senate, the chief Republican targets are seats now held by Democrats in Connecticut, Florida, Indiana, New Jersey, North Dakota, Ohio, Tennessee, Texas and Utah. In all of those states except New Jersey, the GOP has candidates who have been elected and re-elected to the House.

Little change is expected in the lineup of the House. Estimates range from a Democratic pickup of 12 seats to a Republican pickup of six.

CARDINAL RICHARD CUSHING

Homage Paid To Blacksmith's Son Who Died Church Prince

BOSTON (UPI) — The powerful, the rich and ordinary citizens who revered him in life paid homage today to Cardinal Richard Cushing, the blacksmith's son who died a prince of the Roman Catholic Church.

Cushing, 75, died of cancer Monday, which was All Souls Day, when Catholics honor their dead. His body lay in state today at Holy Cross Cathedral, where his Requiem Mass will be offered Saturday morning. He will be buried at St. Coletta's Home for Retarded Children, an institution he founded in 1947 and which was one of his favorite concerns.

The cardinal, a priest for 49 years had been in ill health frequently since 1954. It was obvious in recent months that his health had failed still further. He lost weight and his strong voice weakened to a raspy whisper.

Last month Cushing retired as archbishop of Boston after 26 years' service. Two years before, when he was assailed by some critics for defending the right of President Kennedy's widow to marry Aristotle Onassis, his offer to retire had been rejected by the Vatican.

The ceremonies Oct. 7 in which Archbishop Humberto S. Medeiros was elevated to Boston escopate were an ecclesiastical rarity in that Cushing attended. Medeiros was with the cardinal at his home when he died shortly before 2 p.m. Monday.

Cushing's great warmth, humor and personal magnetism were the qualities that endeared him to both his priests and the Catholic laymen of Boston. His bubbling, jaunty informality startled people on a number of occasions — such as the times he danced Irish jigs with housewives at church celebrations or played Santa Claus in the red vestments which marked his rank — he called them his "glad rags."

The cardinal who first succeeded in his priestly career as an "armchair missionary," raising funds, had wanted for years to minister to the poor in South America, and first asked to retire in 1962, but the Pope did not accede to his request until about two months ago.

'VIRTUALLY VEGETATIVE' Watson Responding To Hospital Care

ATASCADERO, Calif. (UPI) — Charles "Tex" Watson, a defendant in the Tate-Labianca slayings who last Friday was described as insane—"virtually vegetative"—is now sitting up and eating regular meals at Atascadero State Hospital.

Watson, 24, was sent to the mental hospital after three court-appointed psychiatrists convinced superior court Judge George Dell the action was necessary to save the man's life.

According to a report given the court, Watson "has become listless, flaccid, he makes no movements, his lips are pursed, it is impossible to spoon-feed him and we are starting to feed him by nasal tube."

"He is virtually vegetative... he is rapidly reverting to a fetal state... which could be rapidly fatal."

It also was disclosed that Watson, since his arrival in Los Angeles from Texas Sept. 11, had lost 50 pounds, dropping to a weight of 110 pounds. He is 6-foot-2.

However, L. C. Wayne, Atascadero administrator, said that shortly after his arrival Friday night Watson voluntarily drank liquid nourishment and continued on the oral, liquid diet Saturday and Sunday.

Monday he ate a solid breakfast and had no difficulty keeping the food down. Wayne said, however, declined to discuss Watson's mental state.

Watson, who unsuccessfully fought extradition from Texas, is charged along with Charles Manson and three young women with the seven slayings. He is accused of actually committing six of them.

His trial was to be held separately because of his delayed return to California—until he was judged insane and unable to stand trial until recovered.

Gray Candidates Make Sure Their Choice Known

A heavier than usual turnout of early morning and mid-forenoon voters was reported by poll officials in today's general election in Gray County.

County Clerk Charlie Thut, in whose court house office the final tally will be counted tonight, issued another reminder that any person with a registration certificate is entitled to vote before the polling places close at 7 p.m. today.

They also are privileged to vote for any candidate, Republican or Democrat or cast a write-in vote, he said.

In keeping with their spirit of service, members of the Pampa High School Key Club will provide rides for voters who have no transportation to the polls.

Anyone needing a ride should call 669-6833 before 4 p.m. or 665-4374 after 4 p.m.

The early voting bore out predictions of a heavy vote that had been made because of the record number of absentee ballots cast in this off-year voting.

At mid-morning 695 absentee ballots had been counted with several more expected in the mail before noon today. That was 200 more than were cast in the 1966 off-year election.

Unusual interest in the Gray County balloting was attributed to intensive campaigning by candidates for county commissioner in Pct. 2, county judge, county clerk and county treasurer.

Erisk and heavier than usual voting was reported at 10:30 a.m. from practically all of the county's 14 precincts.

The heaviest voting at that hour was reported by Pct. 8 at Stephen F. Austin School and Pct. 9 at Woodrow Wilson School with 200 votes each.

Officials at the county's heaviest Pct., No. 10 at the Gray County Court House, would give no figures.

Pct. 14 at William B. Travis School reported 180 votes at 10:30 a.m. Pct. 12 at Lamar School at 100 plus votes.

Pct. 5 at McLean City Hall had 122 votes. Pct. 7 at Horace Mann School reported 120, about the same as last year. Pct. 2 (See GRAY COUNTY, Page 2)

Thousands Mourn Deaths Of Youths In Dance Hall Flames

ST. LAUREN DU PONT, France (UPI) — Several thousand persons crowded into a make-shift funeral chapel in a school gymnasium today for a 20-minute ceremony memorializing 14 youths who died in a flaming dance hall early Sunday.

Weeping parents and relatives crowded around the blonde wood coffins as Labor Minister Joseph Fontanet read a message of condolence from President George Pompidou. Hundreds more could not find room in the school of this French alpine community and followed the service through loud speakers on the sports field.

Several youths yelled at Fontanet as he left the school that the fire in the "5-7" dance hall was "the fault of the governors and it's the fault of the ministers." The crowd was hushed but Fontanet did not reply.

Parents prepared to take the bodies of their children home for burial after the ceremony. Only 110 of the youths had been identified by today and officials said 14 others had been identified tentatively but 18 more remained anonymous.

Two other youths who escaped the holocaust died in a hospital Monday.

Andre Plantier, director of the security service, said his organization had given the dance hall a building permit but never had been called to the premises to issue a final approval certificate.

He said emergency exits to the hall could not be unlocked because of intense heat and not because they had been nailed shut, as previously published. Only decorations were on the outside of the exit doors, he said.

This Week's Grid Contest Winner Guesses 'Em All Without A Flaw

Jerome D. Humphrey, Route 2, Pampa was the only entrant in last week's Football Contest to correctly guess all fifteen winners.

Humphrey won first place prize money in the contest, sponsored by The Pampa Daily News and 17 local merchants.

It was an entirely different story for second and third place as 32 entrants tied missing only one game each.

The two who were closest to the actual score of the Pampa-Borger game were tied with one another.

As a result, the second tiebreaker had to be used to determine which entrant would win 2nd. place and which would win 3rd. place.

On the basis of the second tie-breaker, Wayne Beigle of Skellytown was declared winner of second place and M.N. Cox, 624 Frost, Pampa was declared third place winner.

This week's contest page will be found elsewhere in this issue. Circle the teams you think will win, pick the tie-breaker scores and get your entry in before 5 p.m. this Friday. Be sure to write your name and address in the space provided in the box in the center of the page.

FOR 20 PANHANDLE SCHOOLS

Pampa School Board President Named To Head New PASBA

Jimmy Thompson, president of Pampa School Board, was elected president of the Panhandle Area School Board Association during its organizational meeting and officer election Monday night in Spearman.

Of the four Pampa school trustees attending the meeting, John Gikas, Warren Hasse and Bob Carmichael, Gikas served on the association's nominating committee which nominated the three officers and five directors.

Other officers are Jack Allen, of Perryton, vice president; and Frank Groce of Borger, secretary-treasurer. Directors named were Winford Walker, Sunray; Joe Lackey, Spearman; Willard McCloy, Morse; Hurlon Gaskill, Dalhart and Joe Dale Greer, Stinnett.

About 50 members from 20

Panhandle area school boards attended the meeting. Membership is open to any school board member in the 18th congressional district.

Quarterly meetings are planned to develop closer cooperation among Panhandle area school boards, to improve schools by discussing common problems and solutions, and by cooperation with other educational groups and the State Legislature.

"Most of the discussion concerned a report from the legislative committee on the proposed mandatory four quarter semesters for Texas schools," Gikas said.

The association's next meeting will be in February in Perryton when members are requesting legislators from the Panhandle area to discuss pending state legislation, Gikas said.

Nixon Will Watch Returns In Calif.

By EUGENE V. RISHER
SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon will vote early today and return to the Western White House to follow the results of his exhausting efforts to win Republican congressional seats.

Accompanied by Mrs. Nixon and daughter, Tricia, he will journey to Concordia School, located about a mile from his oceanside residence, to cast his vote shortly after the polls open at 7 a.m. PST (10 a.m. EST).

His other daughter and son-in-law, David and Julie Eisenhower, are registered in Gettysburg, Pa., and are voting by absentee ballot.

He will vote the straight Republican ticket—Ronald Reagan for governor, George Murphy for senator and John Schmitz, an acknowledged John Birch Society member who is seeking re-election to the House seat he won earlier this year, for congressman.

Although the President has refused to make any public predictions on the election, White House aides reflecting his thinking said on the eve of the election that he felt that the momentum throughout the country was running in favor of Republicans and the traditional trend of the party in the White House losing congressional seats in off-year elections would be stemmed if not reversed.

In the Senate races where the President's efforts during his 15,000-mile, 22-state campaign swing have focused, the Republicans would need to win 17 of the 35 seats up for grabs—a total gain of seven seats—to win a clear majority and organize the Senate.

There appears little likelihood of this and Nixon has concentrated his efforts on trying to change the Senate to a more conservative cast.

Nixon spent a quiet Monday working at the Western White House, interrupting it only for a brief helicopter flight to Riverside, Calif., to visit Mrs. Edith Timberlake, a 90-year-old aunt who now lives in a convalescent home.

A crowd of several hundred turned out at Riverside Airport to greet the President. He stopped briefly en route to the hospital to greet several hundred enthusiastic elementary school children and urged them to "grow up and change America for the better"

Lach Jury Lacks One

FORT WORTH (UPI)—Criminal District Judge Byron Matheis today brought in additional veniremen from which to select a 12th juror to try Benjamin Lach, 26, on a charge of murdering a Texas Tech cleaning woman three years ago.

Eleven jurors were selected last week, but the jury could not be completed because no more veniremen were available. A new jury list began service for a week today.

Lach is accused of murdering Mrs. Alice Morgan, 53, in December, 1967, because she caught him stealing examination questions.

The trial was moved to Tarrant County from Lubbock County because defense attorneys claimed there had been too much publicity in Lubbock County.

The President's 22-year old daughter and the elder Mrs. Eisenhower both campaigned in Pennsylvania Friday to boost Republican candidates.

EXTEND CONTRACT NEW YORK (UPI)—Actors Equity members have agreed to extend their present contract for two weeks with off-Broadway theaters while negotiations continue on the condition pay raises will become retroactive no later than Nov. 9.

Sean Callery, spokesman for the 200 actors involved with 120 theaters, said Monday the performers, who make $75 a week now, are demanding $200 and better working conditions. The present contract expired Monday.

Texans Bound To Be Unhappy No Matter What Liquor Vote

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Chances are no matter how the vote turns on the proposed liquor-by-the-drink amendment today, a lot of Texans will be unhappy about it.

The race to decide whether a person of age can walk into a bar or restaurant and buy an alcoholic drink stronger than beer or wine has been hotly contested in the state for years. If it passes the fight will revert to the local level where city and county voters would again battle it out.

If it fails, "wet" legislators quite probably will continue with new proposals, bills and amendments.

In effect, Amendment No. 2 proposes to repeal a state constitutional provision adopted in 1935 prohibiting "open saloons" in Texas. Its passage would bring the first mixed drinks to Texas since before national prohibition.

But there are six other amendments on Tuesday's ballot. Three of them deal with changes in Texas' tax structure and three with changing governmental and judicial structure.

Amendment No. 3 would extend a provision which allows tax assessor-collectors to evaluate crop and ranch land on its earning capacity if 51 per cent of owners income is involved. No. 3 would extend the provision to all crop, timber and corporate land.

Amendment No. 5 proposes to authorize Texas counties to issue bonds up to one-fourth of the assessed value of property in the county if the bond money is to be used for roads and turnpikes and if resident taxpayers voters approve the bond issue by a majority vote.

Amendment No. 6, if passed, would enlarge the exemption from forced sale of a homestead located in a city, town or village from $5,000 to $10,000. As the law stands, a person cannot be forced to sell his homestead if it is below the present valuation. The provision was inserted into the constitution before 1900, raised from $2,000 to $5,000 in 1869 and has not changed a penny in the last 100 years.

The last three amendments deal with metropolitan governments, judicial power and the expenditure of tax money.

Amendment No. 1 would extend to the Judicial Qualifications Commission the power to reprimand county judges, county court at law judges, domestic relations court and juvenile court judges, probate, corporation or municipal judges and justices of the peace.

At present the commission has jurisdiction only over district and appellate court judges. If the amendment passes the commission would be able to remove judges from office if they were found derelict in their duties.

Proposed Amendment No. 7 would allow consolidation of governmental offices and functions of political subdivision within any county if local voters approve. The amendment would centralize county government and allegedly make its execution cheaper but opponents say it would overcentralize county government.

Amendment No. 4 would establish the State Building Commission to be responsible for construction of state buildings. It would be comprised of three members appointed by the governor and would handle functions now handled by the governor, attorney general and the board of control.

Bank Holdup Man Escapes One Block

HOUSTON (UPI)—A holdup man was arrested about a block away from the Pan American Bank (at 218 Main St.) today after robbing the bank of an undetermined amount of money.

The man, with an Afro haircut, entered the downtown bank and gave a woman teller, Mrs. Irene Stefanaki, a note which said: "Give me all the money or you'll die." She gave him the money.

He was arrested by an off-duty officer. The bank, in a building formerly housing a night club, has been open only 2½ months.

Hollywood Reports

By VERNON SCOTT UPI Hollywood Correspondent HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Paul Newman's latest movie is a demonstration of personal courage on his part and he is zealously asking the public to see it although audiences may come away angry and displeased.

Newman could have played it safe with another "Butch Cassidy," but chose instead to shake up movie-goers with the story of a liberal disc jockey who cops-out by working for right-wing radio station "WUSA."

Of his 28 films this is the first that the actor has taken the trouble to sell.

"I don't care if people like the picture or not," Newman said, poolside at his Beverly Hills home. "It will make audiences think, and I'm not sure they like that."

"Some will misinterpret the story as a political statement. It isn't. The movie says some things about what segments of America can do to dehumanize individuals."

Newman a Patriotic Man Newman said nothing of objectivity. But he is a patriotic man who believes the country needs intellectual stirring up.

"Compared to the kind of pabulum fed the public on television and in most pictures," he said, "I think ours is refreshing. I guarantee it will stimulate the mind and the blood pressure."

"Like it or not this movie deals with the problems of the 70s, not the Stone Age. I don't care if people like it. I want them to see it and become angry. It wouldn't surprise me if some areas in the country refused to show it."

"I'm sure not going to get invited to the White House for dinner. But I dig Bob's (author Bob Stone) vision of the bewildered, Americans today. No one can walk away from this picture emotionally uninvolved. Audiences can't be cooled out of this picture."

Asked if his enthusiasm for the film might not be misplaced, Newman sipped a mug of beer, his startlingly blue eyes levelled on the middle distance.

"It can be flawed," he said. "Maybe I see merits in it that aren't there. But I can't deny its original concept and that the scenes are played with force."

Twentieth Century Club Studies Federation Goals

Meeting in the home of Mrs. R. H. Sanford, 1016 Charles, Twentieth Century Club heard guest speaker, Mrs. Kermit Lawson, president of the Top of Texas District of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Introduced by Mrs. Paul Harbaugh, Mrs. Lawson's subject was her administration's theme, "Enrichment, Within and Without."

"There can be no enrichment of environment without," said the speaker, "until there is enrichment within. We must begin right in our own communities to use our resources for creating better health, education, safety, recreation and child care and counseling."

To emphasize how "Woman Power" has pioneered in the field of all enriched environment Mrs. Lawson cited resolutions which have been passed by the General Federation through the years.

"In 1896," she said, "a resolution was passed advocating conservation of our natural resources; in 1900, one concerning water pollution; in 1916, advocating kindergartens; in 1922, uniform marriage and divorce laws; also laws regarding the eradication of marijuana and narcotics in 1923, and a study of, and laws to control subversive actions and the spread of Communism in 1925."

Mrs. Lawson urged women's clubs to be concerned about student unrest, on what can be done to alleviate and control it.

"Did you know that out of one hundred children entering school, 80 will not finish high school? Woman Power can do something about these problems. The women's clubs of El Paso have brought so much pressure on the theaters and local agencies that X-rated movies are banned in their city," she said.

Mrs. Kent Hicks was welcomed as a new member. Others present were Mmes. W. R. Campbell, F.M. Culbertson, William Easley, Charles Fagan, Tom Greenwood, Paul Harbaugh, V. J. Jamieson, Lorene Locke, David McGahey, Fred Neslage, Rex Rose, R. H. Sanford, W. A. Skoog, R. W. Stowers and Miss Elsie Cunningham.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Deodorant Bar Soap Removes Clothing Odor

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I would like to tell J.E.G. that, to remove odor from polyester clothing, I just rub the problem areas with deodorant bar soap, let stand a few minutes and then wash as usual. This works well for me.—C.H.

DEAR POLLY—I am answering J.E.G., who has the problem of polyester clothing picking up odors. I wash mine as usual and then give them an additional rinse in a mild white vinegar and water solution. Test the effects of vinegar on the cloth before plunging the entire garment into the rinse.—J.A.M.

DEAR GIRLS—These letters reminded me of a some-what similar problem I had this past summer with a white plastic purse that looked like patent leather. The purse developed a really embarrassing odor that I first noticed in church on a warm Sunday. Airing did no good. I sprayed the purse all over with an unscented household deodorant spray, which worked.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I have four expensive dresses that wrinkle so badly when I wear them and sit down that they look accordion-pleated across my middle. What can I put on them or treat them with that would stop this wrinkling? One dress is linen, one is silk pongee and two are silk. I have asked at department stores and several dressmakers but to no avail. I do thank anyone who can come up with an answer.—EVA JEAN

Church Women Unite For Community Day

Church Women United in Pampa will celebrate World Community Day on Friday, Nov. 6, at 9:30 a.m. at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, joining with church women in 2,300 other communities.

Mrs. Henry Gunter, 1910 Grape, is program chairman. A theme of the day will be: "Use a Key for Tomorrow—Education." A nursery will be provided.

The offering will be used to provide scholarships to women seeking journalistic training. A Kenya Village Polytechnic will impart special job skills to those who quit school before graduation. Educational materials for new literates, especially in Latin America, will be distributed.

"World Community Day is more than just one day of special emphasis for church women who continue throughout the year to seek justice and freedom for all peoples. Education is the key to power, opportunity, justice. It is the agent of freedom in a new decade," Mrs. Gunter said.

DEAR POLLY—When the foam strips in my commercially manufactured dish mop wore out, I was unable to replace the mop immediately and missed it so much that I improvised by easing a household sponge, butterfly fashion, through the hole in the old one. This worked so well as a temporary measure that I decided to keep it that way permanently. I just replace the sponge when necessary. Because of its firmness, this does a good job of washing bottles and jars.—MRS. P.A.M.

DEAR ABBY: You are the only person who can help me because in an indirect way, you are the cause of my problem. I have the same name as you.

To make matters worse, I work for a newspaper and I am bombarded with letters from people who think I am you.

Also, whenever I am introduced as "Abby Van Buren," people start pouring out their tales of woe. I have a hard time convincing them that I am not you.

To top it all off, I am constantly bothered by nuts who telephone me in the middle of the night and want to tell me their life history. I have had my telephone number changed twice this year, and even though I now have an unlisted number, they still find me.

I have even considered changing my name, but I will do this only as a last resort. Thanks for any help you can give me.

ABBY VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Until some nice young man comes along and changes your name, I guess you'll just have to be a surrogate Abby. You'll be surprised what you hear.

DEAR ABBY: I feel very guilty and indebted because I have no strong feelings toward an 18-year-old boy who says he is in love with me. He is always so kind and gentle and he spends all his hard-earned money on me. He is always looking out for my safety and well-being.

I really enjoy his company and am grateful for his gifts, but I am unable to return his affection.

I would like to date others, but I feel so guilty because I know he has no other girl. I hate to hurt him. Can you advise me what to do?

Bright Color Choices Predict Economy Rise

CHICAGO (NPS) — Home furnishings manufacturers are borrowing a page from the auto makers in predicting consumer optimism and an end to recession blues — all based on the growing preference for brighter colors.

"Several years ago the nation's car manufacturers noticed that people ordered cars in dark, somber colors when the economy turned down, and switched to bright colors and gaudy combinations when things picked up again," noted interior design consultant Mary Ann Willis.

Now the same thing's happening in home furnishings, especially in accessories, with retailers reporting a growing demand for "switched-on" colors like tangerine red, parrot green, ultramarine blue, and curry yellow. A year ago, the preference was for muted or slightly accented wood tones.

A company has introduced five striking colors for a special selection of modern clocks and plaques, plus a new polychrome finish for Mediterranean accessories.

"Significantly, these bright colors are making their appearance in late 1970, when most economists are predicting an upturn from now until the end of the year," Miss Willis said.

Whether the end of recession makes consumers more cheery and more amenable to brighter colors, or vice-versa, is immaterial, she notes. The point, the two trends apparently go together.

"So if you share the outlook for better times ahead, you'll undoubtedly share the overall enthusiasm for the bright look in wall decor," she said.

Included in the "color-quake" of brilliant pure colors are tangerine red, curry yellow, parrot green, ultramarine blue, and plum purple, each con-

I have even considered changing my name, but I will do this only as a last resort. Thanks for any help you can give me.

DEAR ABBY: I have a thought which I hope you will find worthy of passing on to your readers.

I wish parents of married children would quit competing with the other set of parents for their children's company on holidays such as Thanksgiving and Christmas. Although our policy was to alternate between his parents and mine, no matter who asked us first, my parents would sulk for months after we spent the holidays with my in-laws.

Both sets of parents are gone now, but those holidays which could have held such pleasant memories cause my heart to ache a little.

SAD MEMORIES

DEAR SAD: Yes, it is worth passing on—especially with the holiday season approaching. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps your reader, "HATES WASTE," would be interested in knowing that the "silly rule of etiquette" that one should always leave "something" on his plate was begun as an act of charity.

During the Middle Ages, the affluent always left some food on their dinner plates for a good reason. A huge bowl was passed to each diner, who wiped his plate clean with a hunk of bread which he also deposited in the bowl. The bowl was then taken out into the streets to feed the poor.

If the diner "forgot" to leave something on his plate, he was fined. (The fine would be used to feed the needy.)

Today leaving food on one's plate is wasteful, but it originated as a charitable custom.

The same breed of cat is worn two different ways in "Noirobi" cheetah fabric. The midi coat (left) takes on an elegant trim of real raccoon tails. In a more casual mood (center) the short tie-belted trenchcoat is at ease over pants. Both coats are by Fairmore. A regal train, a slashed-to-the-waist back and flowing bias-cut lines give the "tiger" fabric gown by Kleibacker (left) a healthy helping of glamor. Conservationist Cinderellas like Carol Tensing can keep a clear conscience, knowing that the real tiger is still in the jungle.

Copycat Furs Are Super To Pacify Animal Lovers

NEW YORK (NEA)—Furtive is the word for the woman who dares to wear a real leopard, tiger, cheetah or ocelot coat. She will risk the wrath of animal lovers, conservationists and the Beautiful People who have taken up the cause of these near-extinct cats.

Ladies on the Best Dressed List have hidden their exotic furs in the back of the closet and if they are seen in a suspiciously spotted coat, they'll be the first to tell you it's a "copycat."

Ironically, it was fashion's demand for the marked furs that helped endanger the species. Now, fortunately for fashion's guilty conscience, both the fabric and the fur industries have come up with some super-real look-alikes for the once ill-fated cats.

The status "furs" this fall are cleverly designed, deep-pile fabrics. New synthetic fibers simulate guard hairs, special printing methods duplicate the exact markings of the animals and machines direct the hairs to get natural pelting effects.

At Riegel-LaFrance Fabrics fall fashion show celebrity and society models showed how the new "copycats" could be used for everything from ball gowns to burrnooses. Charles Kleibacker, known in the fashion world as the "bias king" for his beautiful bias-cut gowns, draped Boston socialite Carol Tensing in a billowing ball gown of fake tiger fur. A circular cape of fake snow leopard was another sensation in the show.

Gloria Vanderbilt Cooper followed the African theme of the show in a fake fur dashiki with fringe sweeping the floor, done by Adolfo.

For the woman who wants a great-looking coat, three manufacturers (Fairmont, Russel Taylor and Sportowne) showed a wide variety of "copycats" in pants coats, knee-length coats and midi coats. These fabric fur coats cost only a fraction of the price of the real thing. And when winter is over they can be stored with no fuss in an ordinary plastic bag.

For those who prefer real fur at all costs, there's still a way to keep the skin on the cat. Many furriers are taking furs in plentiful supply, such as mink, and stenciling them to look like spotted cats. Jacques Kaplan was recently awarded a certificate of merit from the World Wildlife Fund for inspiring many other furriers to renounce the use and sale of spotted furs.

So whether you choose to fake it or play it for real with a fur coat, you can do it with a clear conscience this winter.

Computer Tells Fashion Secrets

NEW YORK (UPI)—A fashion firm that follows the dictates of customers via continuous computerized monitoring is keeping hemlines over the knee, at the midcalf and sometimes down to the floor for spring.

The obedience to computer reports on customer tastes was reflected throughout the spring collection of the Joan Leslie Fashions Inc., designed by John Pomerantz; president of the Joan Leslie division of Leslie Fay Inc., a fashion conglomerate with nine subdivisions, said the midcalf and below-the-knee hem lengths were also in the Kasper designated fall and winter offerings.

For spring, the Kasper collection includes late afternoon and evening dresses that are high-necked, long-sleeved, floor-sweeping dresses—reminiscent of styles worn by women at the turn of the century. In other fashion shows during the last several weeks, the old fashioned style made new fashioned cropped up repeatedly.

Fashion accents with these and other country girl outfits included white boots with floral patterns applied on them, shoulderwide straw hats—and more.

Some had skull-hugging head covering adorned with strings of colored beads and chains of sparkling ornaments.

Western Beef Big Factor In Growth Of West Texas

J. Harvey Lewis, general manager of Western Beef Packers, Inc., says Western Beef is a participant in the growth of the packing plant and meat industry.

Western Beef slaughters 1,800 cattle per week, with a future increase of 2,200 per week. They ship out six to eight truckloads a day. The average weight of the cattle consists of about 1,100 pounds.

They ship the cattle to the southeast part of the states, the east coast, and the general New York area.

All employees, which consists of about sixty, maintain a high quality of workmanship on the cattle at Western Beef Incorporated. The grading of their cattle is the United States Department of Agriculture and the prime cut.

Lewis says that there are seven steps to butchering "a beef". First, the beef is shot with a captive bolt, in the forehead. This is a piece of metal about one-half an inch long. The animal is stunned a great deal by the bolt. He does not realize what is happening. He is then hoisted to the bleeding rail and hung head downward. This is so that the blood may drain out of his body. The animal actually dies from loss of blood and not from the captive bolt.

Next, the internal organs are removed from the carcass. This process is called "evisceration". Finally, the beef is split, weighed, washed with water under high pressure, and then the carcass is covered with cloth. This shapes and smooths the fat which covers the meat.

When all of these steps have been completed, the carcass is chilled for 18 hours at a temperature of 32 to 34 degrees. They are shipped by truckloads to lots varying from 38,000 to 40,000 pounds.

Lewis spoke of future plans for a boning department. This department would have a capacity of boning 100 to 150 beefs.

Cyclamates Re-Coups Lost Business

By LEROY POPE
 UPI Business Writer
 NEW YORK (UPI)—One year after the cyclamates ban, the diet soft drink industry has recovered at least 70 per cent of the market it lost and two companies are doing better with low-calorie beverages than they did before they had to give up cyclamates.

Curiously, No-Cal Corp. of New York, the company that was hardest hit by the ban because it had no other products, has come back the strongest. No-Cal was founded in 1952 by Morris Kirsch, who owned another beverage firm, at the request of some medical acquaintances in Brooklyn.

He turned the business over to his two sons, Lee and David. When the cyclamates were banned it looked as if the younger Kirsches were sunk. But they managed to work out a new formula using saccharin and various sugar-free flavors to mask the saccharin taste. Sales rose slowly until they surpassed the 1969 level.

The company's success with its new formula brought in a lot of new franchised bottlers. Now, for the first time, No-Cal is in the 48 older states and also in Bermuda, Puerto Rico, Switzerland and Israel.

According to Soft Drink Industry magazine the other firm that has rebounded all the way is American Beverage Corp., also a New York firm, whose Hoffman low-calorie line will have a substantial sales increase this year over last.

Cott Corp. says its diet beverages have rebounded to 85 per cent of the level before the cyclamates ban.

Overall though, diet beverage sales still are down at least 30 per cent, says Soft Drink Industry's assistant publisher, Jesse Meyers. Coca-Cola, Royal Crown and PepsiCo have borne the brunt of the losses. Another major producer, Canada Dry, quit the diet beverage field for months and only recently re-entered it.

Consumers Testify Before FTC

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Trade Commission has taken what may be a significant step toward letting consumer groups participate more actively in the enforcement work of federal regulatory agencies.

In what it called a delicate experiment, the FTC Monday granted a group of law students permission to intervene in a case against Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. of false and deceptive advertising about the pricing and safety of its tires.

The commission's general counsel, Joseph Martin Jr., told reporters it was the first time a consumer's group has been admitted as a party in any contested proceedings before the FTC.

John F. Banzhaf III, associate professor of law at George Washington University and adviser to Students Opposed to Unfair Practices Inc. (SOUP), said "It's a great day for the American consumer. For the first time the consumer is being allowed to talk to the agency that is supposed to be protecting him."

The FTC, the commission dealing most directly with consumer matters, was cautious in its language, however.

1970 Census Affecting Major Markets With Drastic Changes

By LEROY POPE
 UPI Business Writer
 NEW YORK (UPI)—The 1970 Census is turning up more drastic changes in the major markets of business than any census in this century.

Yet, in this age when population trends can be projected (although not with absolute accuracy) by the electronic computer, business planners probably have found fewer surprises in the preliminary census figures than in the past.

Thirteen of the 25 largest cities lost population within their city limits because of urban decay, the drift to the suburbs or basic changes in the nation's industrial and commercial patterns.

Many others of the 150 cities with more than 100,000 inhabitants also lost population in the 1970s, particularly Eastern cities. Nevertheless, 25 small cities passed the 100,000 mark and only five fell back below it. There were only 130 cities above the 100,000 mark in 1960.

One real surprise was New York City. Most forecasts were that its population would fall by half a million.

But the preliminary figures show the population of the five boroughs down only 10,000 to 7,771,730 while the city's metropolitan area had grown enormously.

Cities with more drastic declines were Detroit, Cleveland, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Birmingham, Buffalo and Norfolk. It was the first time Buffalo's population had fallen; all the others had slipped in 1960 from their great growths of the previous 30 years.

Chicago, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Baltimore, Milwaukee and a host of other older cities also had losses but they were not dramatic.

Jack The Ripper Can Claim Relationship To Royalty

LONDON (UPI)—Citing as evidence an article published today about Jack the Ripper, a London newspaper has suggested that the 1888 sex killer was the grandson of Queen Victoria and heir to the throne of England.

The Sunday Times raised the name of Duke of Clarence Prince Albert Victor, grandson of Queen Victoria, brother of George V and heir to the throne on the strength of an article in the journal Criminology by surgeon Dr. Thomas Stowell.

All the points of Mr. Stowell's odd story fit this man, the newspaper said in an article on the still unidentified killer of at least five prostitutes in London's East End.

The evidence suggests that the murderer was a man so senior in the hierarchy of the land, of so noble a family that the police when they realized who was involved, were forced to conceal his identity," the article said.

Stowell said he knew who the killer was but refused to identify him. "I would never dream of doing harm to a family whom I love and admire," he wrote. But he supplied a detailed series of clues.

Jack the Ripper, he said, was the heir to power and wealth. His family, for 50 years, had earned the love and admiration of large numbers of people by its devotion to public service.

His grandmother, who outlived him, was very much the Victorian matriarch, widely and deeply respected. His father, to whose title he was the heir, was a gay cosmopolitan and did much to improve the status of England internationally," Stowell said.

Stowell referred to his suspect as "S," who at the age of 16 went on a world tour during which he contracted syphilis. The disease gradually began to dominate his life, Stowell added.

The Sunday Times said the suspect resigned his commission at age 24 after a raid on a homosexual brothel, the name of which had been linked to a member of the royal family.

Sir William Gull, the royal doctor, treated "S," Stowell said. Gull's daughter, Caroline Acland, a friend of Stowell, who is now in his 80s, described an 1889 entry in her father's diary to him which said "informed blank that his son was dying of syphilis of the brain."

According to Stowell, Gull realized his patient was Jack the Ripper and asked commissioner of police Sir Charles Warren to keep the name secret. For that reason, he contended, many of the clues of the killer's identity were destroyed, including at least one message by Warren himself.

Police vigilance relaxed in November, 1888, because the police knew the killer had been restrained in a mental home, Stowell said.

Prince Albert Victor, first child of King Edward VII, who was the eldest son of Queen Victoria, was born in 1864 and was on a world tour from 1879 to 1882. He died early in 1892, at the age of 28, overtaken by his grandmother, Queen Victoria who died in 1901.

Nixon Once Poker Player

NEW YORK (UPI)—Navy Lt. Richard M. Nixon once bluffed a lieutenant commander out of $1,500 in a poker game, Life magazine reports in its current edition.

In an article on the President's early life, "The Young Nixon," by Donald Jackson, Life said Nixon's buddies on Green Island in the Solomons during World War II recalled his poker skill more than anything else.

"He was consistent. He might win $40 or $50 a night," Lester Wroble said.

"He was the finest poker player I ever played against," James Udall said. "I once saw him bluff a lieutenant commander out of $1,500 with a pair of deuces."

His poker winnings gave Nixon a nestegg of several thousand dollars at the end of the war—money that came in handy since his wife was pregnant with their first child, Tricia, and Nixon was running for Congress in California.

Soviets Sacrifice Its Own Sputnik

LONDON (UPI)—An officer of the British Interplanetary Society said Monday the Soviet Union may have deliberately destroyed one of its own Sputniks recently in trying to develop a means of knocking down U.S. space satellites.

Kenneth Gatland, the society's vice president, said the Russians had blown up one spacecraft directly in the path of another, and that a third satellite was involved. All three were launched within the past two weeks.

Gatland identified the three satellites as Numbers 373, 374 and 375 in the Soviet Union's Cosmos series.

Cosmos 373, he said, was put into orbit 300 to 350 miles above earth. Gatland said Cosmos 374 was placed into a higher and more elliptical orbit and apparently was blown up by a signal from a Soviet ground station when paths of the two moonlets coincided.

Cosmos 375, orbited Oct. 30, also was a part of the test of the "antisatellite" system, Gatland said.

Gatland said he believed it was an attempt to test a method for destroying U.S. military reconnaissance — or "spy in the sky" — satellites such as Midas and Samos, or navigational moonlets such as the American Navy's Transit, in space.

Private War

VIENNA (UPI)—Four rival Gypsy families fought a private war Sunday in front of some 4,000 Viennese who had come to watch a horse race.

The Gypsies, fighting with iron sticks and pistols, intruded the fashionable Freudenau Race Course while quarreling over best places to sell handmade carpets, police said.

The Gypsies had to be hospitalized and 14—including eight women—were arrested.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Nader Charges Unfair Taxation

DALLAS (UPI) — Consumer crusader Ralph Nader says the method of taxing property is a growing scandal in Texas and other parts of the country and has called for a legislative investigation into the state's laws unfairly put too much of the burden on the small taxpayer and deprive city and county governments of "desperately needed" funds.

He based his comments on "shocking inequalities" revealed in a report issued Sunday on alleged inequalities of valuation and assessment of property tax purposes in East Texas and around Houston. The documented, 93-page report was prepared by five graduate law students at the University of Texas at Austin and Houston's Rice University. The report was for the Study of Responsive Law in Washington.

Nader said Rep. Ben Atwell, D-Dallas, chairman of the state commission on state and local tax policy, should begin an "immediate investigation" into the matter.

"In nearly every state, the property tax provides the overwhelming proportion of revenue for our cities, counties and school districts," Nader said. "But the serious inequity in valuations and assessments continues to deprive local governments of funds."

The report said it obtained estimates of the fair market value on certain acreage of East Texas timber from a state and independent forestry appraiser, a forestry professor, a local tax assessor, and estimates made in Senate subcommittee hearings of current prices for areas in the planned Big Thicket National Park.

Nader said these figures were compared with valuations made by the counties and school districts. The comparison revealed, he said, an undervaluation of about 52 per cent.

ANNOUNCEMENT PENDING

TOKYO (UPI)—Italy and Communist China may announce establishment of diplomatic relations in the next two days, the Kyodo news agency said today.

The agency quoted Japanese government sources as saying Rome and Peking will adopt the same formula as that agreed upon between Canada and China in recognizing each other's governments.

In the joint communique issued last month, China claimed sovereignty over Taiwan but Canada merely took note of Peking's claim.

Man Freed From Kidnap Attempt

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—A young unemployed store manager has been arrested on suspicion of kidnaping the nephew of a prominent contractor in a $200,000 ransom plot which began across the street from the police station here.

Ralph Timothy Potter, 22, West Los Angeles, was captured Saturday at Los Angeles International Airport by Newport Beach police. He led officers to the abducted youth's car in the parking lot of the Disneyland Hotel in Anaheim.

John G. Lusk, 18, was inside the trunk, sore and stiff but otherwise unharmed.

Lusk was kidnaped from a market parking lot here Friday — directly across from the police station — by a man who indicated he had a gun. Investigators said Lusk was forced into the trunk of his car by the kidnaper.

After driving for about five miles, the abductor, who apparently knew of the Lusk family, let young Lusk out and ordered him to call his uncle, John D. Lusk, who has built more than 10,000 homes and many commercial and industrial complexes.

Police said the kidnaper told young Lusk if his uncle did not pay the ransom, the youth would be killed and bombs exploded at the University of California campus at Irvine. The contractor called police after receiving the call and withdrew $20,000 in tens and twenties from a bank.

Late Friday night the kidnaper telephoned instructions to place the money in a brown paper bag and give it to the family maid. She was told to take it to the lobby of the Disneyland Hotel. The maid went to the hotel but the kidnaper did not appear.

Early Saturday the kidnaper called again and said the maid was to bring the money to the airport. Six Newport Beach policemen, including chief James Glavis, set up a stakeout and arrested Potter, who was unarmed, when he approached the maid and demanded the money.

Welder Charged In Murder

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI) — Hasket Leroy Willoughby, 31, an Austin welder, was formally charged with murder with malice today in the knife killing early Saturday of a young telephone operator on the Galveston Seawall.

Justice of the Peace Sherwood Brown refused to set bond and ordered a preliminary hearing Nov. 19. Brown appointed Helen Selman as Willoughby's lawyer.

Brenda Judith Mills, 21, and a girlfriend, both telephone operators at the University of Texas Medical branch in Galveston, were walking along a brightly lit section of the Galveston sea-wall Friday night when they were accosted by a man with a knife.

The girls tried to fight off their attacker but all three fell off the 17-foot wall and landed on some boulders.

GIRLS SHOW OFF

ROTHERHAM, England (UPI)—Four wives from a keep-fit class got a chance to show their stuff Sunday when their five-ton bus broke down in the middle of a busy intersection. They climbed out, gave a combined push, and, while 34 passengers and the driver sat stunned, pushed the vehicle 20 yards down the road.

"To be honest, we were as surprised as anyone when I started to move," said keep-fit instructor Mrs. Clarissa Kavoluk, 56.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — According to an article I read the other day, the era of big Hollywood musicals may be over. It said the lush productions of the type that used to smash box office records barely make expenses these days, if that.

The reason for this situation is fairly obvious. It means that large numbers of moviegoers have finally become inhibited by "omniorchestrphobia," which is an aversion to ubiquitous orchestra music. I'll explain that further.

It is the night before the big game. Fred Astaire, the star quarterback, and Ginger Rogers, the head cheerleader, are taking a romantic moonlight walk around the empty stadium.

Fred Starts Whistling

As they stroll down the aisle among the end zone seats, Fred notices that their feet are making a rhythmic pattern. In tempo, he begins to whistle the hit song of the movie, "Dancing in the End Zone." Ginger picks it up with a few tap steps and the next thing you know they are both hoofing like crazy. Fine, so far.

At this point, however, from somewhere, we hear the sound of violins. Moments later the pulsating strings are joined by brass, woodwind and percussion sections. And now we have an entire concert orchestra playing out there in an empty stadium without a single musician in sight.

Where is the music coming from? That question, which arose at nearly every Hollywood musical, used to bug me something fierce. It got so that orchestra music in a place where no orchestra existed would ruin the entire picture for me.

It was, as I recall, a Bing Crosby movie that escalated my incipient "omniorchestrphobia" into a full scale neurosis.

Moon Shines Through Palms

Bing and Dorothy Lamour are lost in the Sahara Desert. At nightfall, they stumble upon an uninhabited oasis. A full moon is shining through the palm fronds. Bing takes a ukulele out of his knapsack, plunks a few chords and begins to croon the movie's hit song, "Moonbeams Through the Palm Fronds."

At that point I bolted from my seat and knelt down in the aisle.

"Please, God!" I cried. "Don't let there be any violins. Don't let them have an invisible orchestra playing out there in the middle of the desert!"

But my prayers came too late.

I was sobbing hysterically when the ushers reached me and I have never been near another Hollywood musical again. Apparently, I have a lot of company.

REPAID IN POOR COIN

HAVANT, England (UPI)—Policeman Fred Jones helped an injured dog he found next to a railway line. The animal repaid him by biting him, opening a wound which required 16 stitches.

PHILIP WRITES BOOK WASHINGTON (UPI)—Britain's Prince Philip, in a newly published book, says history may look back at the 20th century as a time when people "cared so little for the world or for future generations, that they blindly and ruthlessly exploited all the natural resources."

The book is titled "Wildlife Crisis" (Cowles Book Co.) and is co-authored by naturalist James Fischer. Philip said there is a grave danger much of creation will be destroyed because man is plundering the environment "in the boneheaded belief that there is an inexhaustible supply."

FRIENDLY OLD LADY HOUSTON (UPI)—A friendly old lady stood in the courtyard of an apartment complex Halloween night and handed out candy loaded with diet pills, soap and razor blades.

One young girl became slightly ill when she ate some of the treats, but no serious injuries were reported.

Police said children told the woman urged them to try some of her "special" candy. Officers said they had no suspects and the children could only describe the woman as kind and old.

Maravich Hangup No Boon to Hawks

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

ATLANTA (NEA)—Too many times said Atlanta Hawk Coach Richie Guerin. Pete Maravich gets himself "stuck up there in the air." It's a great trait for a moon but not for a basketball player.

That's one of several problems with which Pete Maravich is presently confronted. The rookie guard who is a millionaire twice over is finding that his seven-figure contract did not also earn him the right to be an immediate hit in the National Basketball Association.

"It's tough to get a kid to change in a few weeks things he's been doing for 15, 13 years," said Guerin.

At Louisiana State University, for instance, Maravich could go up for a jump shot and remain for awhile, taking his good time, until he decided to pop the shot. But there, as John Havlicek of the Celtics noted, there weren't many other 6-5 guards unlike the NBA.

When he does soar in the air now, his long brown hair whipping in the stratosphere to shape his sharp-featured face like an eagle, and his brittle-seeming body bent back some, bone-thin legs a-kick in floppy socks, he has company. Defensive guards in the NBA can hang from a roof beam or moon beam with as much perseverance as Pete.

What happens is that Maravich (a) takes a bad shot or (b) makes a bad pass. Bad passes come in two sizes in this case. One, if you're lucky, is to get the ball into a teammate's paws. Rarely will it be the kind of pass that is sharp, that perpetuates team movement, that sets up a play. It is done out of desperation. The other kind of pass is an invitation to larceny, and two points for the bad guys.

After a full set of preseason games and a handful of regular-season contests, Maravich has shown that he can galvanize a crowd, make a spectacular pro pass, sink a long twisting jumper, steal a ball as well as take a shot that is too long. He can also shoot a 3-on-1 fast break shot that, well, "That I should have passed off to Lou (Hudson)," said Maravich on a particular play. Since Pete sank the shot, Hudson said professionally, "That's cool."

On offense he is still sometimes as sloppy as his socks.

His teammates admit that Joe Caldwell, a marvelous, experienced player who's holding out for more loot, of course, had the team moving better. Caldwell is not there because of the circumstances of Maravich's, an increasingly weary subject that involves big bonuses to untried but heralded rookies while proven players must struggle along on impoverished sums of $50,000, $75,000, $100,000 a year.

The fact that the Hawk starters have been black and that Maravich has been termed, sourly but expectedly, "the Great White Hope," could not go unnoticed by Hudson, Hazard, Bridges, Bellamy, Davis.

That he has his playing troubles ("Some rookie mistakes," said Guerin) has to compound his anxieties. But rookie guards such as Jerry West, Earl Monroe, Bob Cousy, Walt Frazier, to name four, started slowly.

"Pete is making normal progress," said Havlicek. "And I think he's improved 50 per cent since the preseason games. I think he'll make a terrific pro."

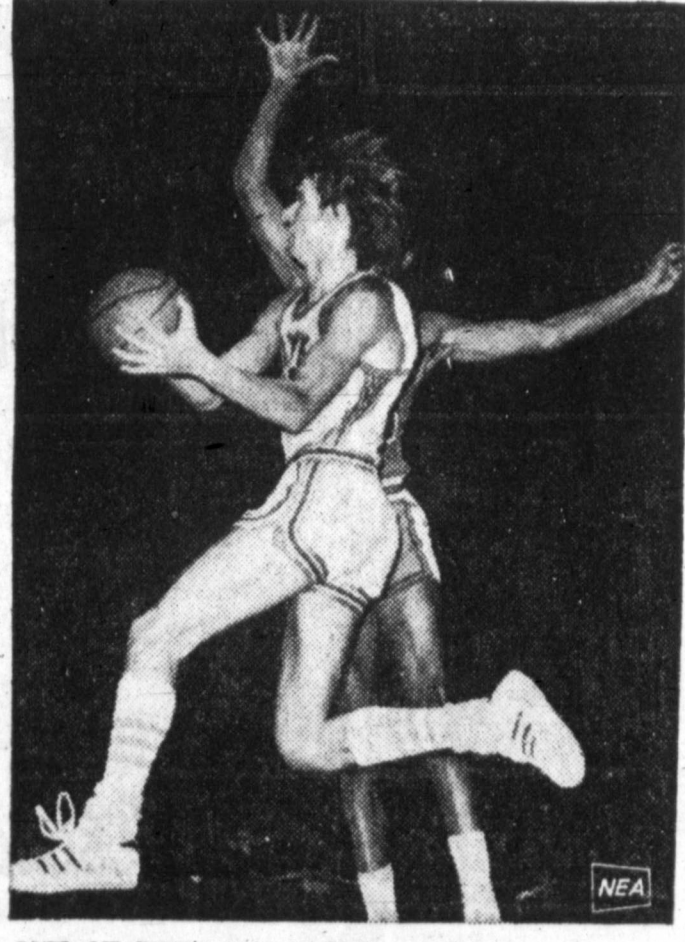

After only a few regular season games, Maravich then scored 23 points against Detroit. He started the next game, his first for the Hawks. He had 15 points the first half and Guerin said that was the best he had played this season, taking shots when he had them, hitting the open man. But the second half, said Maravich, "I was horse manure. I didn't contribute a thing."

And once when the ball was stolen from him, he dove hopelessly to retrieve it, crawling as though trying to dig a hole for himself in the yellow, light-reflecting wood.

"Give Caldwell his money," yelled an unsympathetic soul in the crowd.

ONE OF PETE MARAVICH'S problems in this, his rookie season in the NBA, is that he hangs in the air too long, according to his coach, Richie Guerin of the Atlanta Hawks. And when he hangs, there is a defender hanging with him, more often than not.

'Woo, Woo, Worster' UPI Player of The Week

By STEVE SMILANICH
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — All-America football memo: Sturdy Steve Worster is the type of back who draws a crowd even when he doesn't have the ball so it's small wonder the University of Texas running back is attracting the pro scouts who like what he does with the football.

Worster, a fullback for the defending national champion Longhorns, left little doubt he knows what to do with the ball as he scored four times in a 42-15 rout of Southern Methodist and earned a spot on the United Press International backfield of the week for the second time this season.

The 208-pound back, whose brute power is awesome and his effectiveness at fullback unparalleled was joined on the eighth weekly backfield of the week by Auburn quarterback Pat Sullivan, Bill Burnett of Arkansas and Johnny Musso of Alabama.

In last Saturday's encounter against SMU, Worster responded to the yells from the stands of "Woo, Woo, Woo" and rambled for 144 yards in 25 carries. The power runner, called "Woo" by his teammates, scored on runs of 1, 3, 5 and 3 yards and in the process pushed his career TD total to 32, a Texas record. His efforts also enabled the Longhorns to notch their 26th straight win, longest streak among the nation's major colleges.

A week ago Worster, who came to Texas with a reputation as the most powerful runner in Texas schoolboy history, ran for 170 yards on 23 carries, his best individual effort as a college player.

Burnett was put out of action by a shoulder injury that will sideline him the rest of the season but while the Arkansas back was in the game, he ran for two TD's and caught a pass for a third in a 45-6 conquest of Texas A&M. The Arkansas back ended his collegiate career with a Southwest Conference career total of 294 points, league record.

Worster, a star athlete at Bridge City, Tex., is very quick for his size and is one of the most consistent blockers in the history of Southwest Conference football.

Rice coach Bo Hagan noted "Worster is the best disciplined back I've ever seen. He runs just as hard when he doesn't have the ball as he does when he has. He runs right at you. Even without the ball, he attracts a crowd."

Texas Coach Darrell Royal gave his fullback a pat on the back by saying: "I don't know how they go about picking the Heisman Trophy winner, but if they are going to judge on game performance, they are going to have to start considering this boy."

Hanratty Rallies Pittsburgh For Win Over Cincinnati Cats

By IRA MILLER

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Terry Hanratty came off the bench to rally the sluggish Pittsburgh Steelers to four fourth-quarter touchdowns and a 21-10 victory over the Cincinnati Bengals Monday night, moving Pittsburgh to within a game of the lead in the American Football Conference's Central Division.

Hanratty, taking over for Terry Bradshaw, threw a 72-yard touchdown bomb to rookie tight end Dennis Hughes at 1:08 of the final period and then drove the Steelers 52 yards to score on Warren Bankston's two-yard plunge at 6:11.

It was the first time all season the Steelers had scored two touchdowns in a quarter and the first time they scored more than two touchdowns in a game.

Hughes, who was not drafted but signed as a free agent and is Pittsburgh's leading receiver, also scored the Steelers' first touchdown in the second quarter on a 27-yard pass from halfback Dick Hoak.

Cincinnati, which lost its sixth straight game, scored first in the second period on a two-yard pass from Virgil Carter to Eric Crabtree and added a 43-yard field goal by Horst Muhlmann in the third quarter.

Hanratty completed seven of 11 passes for 126 yards.

Bradshaw, the Steelers' glamour boy and No. 1 draft choice, completed only four of 12 passes for 40 yards before Hanratty replaced him midway through the third period. Two plays later, John Fuqua fumbled and Ken Riley recovered for the Bengals to set up Muhlmann's field goal that gave them a 10-7 lead.

For a while, it looked like the lead might hold up as Hanratty was bothered by a strong pass rush, but on the first play of the fourth quarter he hit Bankston on a crucial third-down nine-yard pass and then on third and 14 he unloaded for the touchdown. Hughes catching the ball at the Cincinnati 30 and breaking away at the 20.

The Steelers iced the game with their touchdown the next time they had the ball with the key play a 25-yard pass from Hanratty to Ron Shanklin that took the ball to the four.

Smilanich Is Killed In Automobile Wreck

MOUNT PLEASANT, N.Y. (UPI)—Veteran UPI newsman and Assistant Sports Editor Steve Smilanich was killed early today in a two-car collision on the Taconic State Parkway near Mount Pleasant, police said.

Smilanich, 42, of 1017 Lester Rd., Yorktown Heights, N.Y., was killed about 12:40 a.m. today when his car collided with that driven by Richard E. Kwasnik, 30, of Croton Ave., Peekskill, N.Y. Kwasnik was not injured, according to state police in the Westchester County barracks.

Kwasnik has been charged with driving while intoxicated, police said, was released on bail early today.

Police said Kwasnik's car apparently crossed the dividing line on the Parkway one mile north of Hawthorne Circle, Mt. Pleasant, and sideswiped Smilanich's car.

Both men were alone at the time of the accident.

A reporter and former head of UPI's Salt Lake City bureau, Smilanich had covered many of the major sporting events in the nation in recent years. On the sports desk in New York he usually handled the weekly college football analysis and roundups used by newspapers across the country, plus his weekly "college prophet" report carried by UPI radio for broadcast.

Broyles And Burnett Looking Towards Texas-Arkansas Game

DALLAS (UPI)—Arkansas tailback Bill Burnett has made fast recoveries before. He and his coach, Frank Broyles, hope he can do it again.

"The doctor says the healing time is six weeks," Burnett said of his shoulder operation. "The Texas game is five weeks away. That's what I will be shooting for."

"There is a slight chance he will be back for the Texas game," Broyles said. "There have been those who have played in five weeks after this operation."

Burnett injured the shoulder in the second quarter of Arkansas' 45-6 win over Texas A&M in College Station Saturday.

But before he went off the field Burnett scored three touchdowns, setting a new Southwest Conference career scoring record with 294 points. The previous record of 288 points was set by Southern Methodist's Doak Walker.

Burnett is just seven touchdowns shy of the national scoring record set last year by Oklahoma's Steve Owens.

After Burnett hurt his shoulder Saturday doctors thought of postponing the surgery because the Bentonville, Ark., senior had been sick with a slight case of the flu. But the operation began on schedule at 11 a.m. at Baylor Hospital in Dallas. It took less than two hours.

"He tore everything there was to tear but right now every thing looks all right," said Dr. Marvin Knight who performed the surgery. "I don't see any restrictions on the use of the shoulder but his playing will depend on how well he builds up the muscle and how fast."

There is some substance to Broyles' hope for a faster than normal recovery for Burnett. He has suffered minor shoulder separations twice in his career, with only slight affect to his running.

His left shoulder, was separated in this year's Tulsa game, and the next day Burnett said he did not see any way he could play the next Saturday against Texas Christian.

But by game day Burnett decided the shoulder did not hurt very much, so he played and scored four touchdowns.

"You just have to learn to play with pain," he said.

Oilers To Start Charley Johnson Against The Kansas City Chiefs

HOUSTON (UPI)—Quarterback Charley Johnson will play next week against the Kansas City Chiefs in an effort to pull the team back together after a humiliating loss and the announcement coach Wally Lemm will quit at the end of the season.

Johnson broke his collarbone against Pittsburgh 16 days ago, but was back to light workouts last week and was running the team for short periods by Friday.

Trainer Bobby Brown said Monday linebacker George Webster's cartilage and ligament operations were successful, but strong safety Kenny Houston's hamstring muscle was unpredictable for the Chief's game.

Houston would be the fifth Oilier starter on the injured list that includes Webster, guard Tom Regner and running backs Woody Campbell and Hoyle Granger. Webster and Granger are out for the season.

Pat Holmes, defensive end, said Monday Lemm's announcement following Sunday's 44-0 loss to St. Louis was unexpected.

"He had mentioned early in the year that he was considering retirement, particularly after the player strike," Holmes said.

Lemm said Monday at a luncheon the game against the Cardinals, which he coached for four seasons, was "the worst by any team I've ever coached."

He said his decision to quit as head coach was based on health and personal reasons.

Lemm said he would consider becoming a general manager, a position he holds unofficially with the Oilers. He didn't rule out staying with the team and said he would like to see the next coach come from within the organization.

"I'm still interested in winning football games," Lemm said.

KC Chiefs Wrong, Referee Right In Penalty Decision

The referee, Bob Finley, ruled that the penalties on Ben Davidson of Oakland and Otis Taylor of Kansas City occurred on a "continuous action" play so they were offsetting penalties that resulted in nullification of Len Dawson's scramble for the Oakland 48 to the 29 with a minute remaining.

The result was that Kansas City was moved back to a third-and-11 situation on the 48 and was forced to punt after failing to make the first down. Oakland then took over on its own 20 with 46 seconds remaining and drove to the Kansas City 41 with eight seconds left. George Blanda then booted a 48-yard field goal to tie the game 17-17.

"It's the officials' job to see that the game is played under the rules and that's what they did," the spokesman said.

Seven Game Winning Streak For Utah State In ABA Season

By United Press International

There are streaks and then there are streaks.

The Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association have a nice, little streak going, a streak that has seen them win their first seven games, including Monday night's 119-100 decision over the Memphis Pros.

The Cleveland Cavaliers of the National Basketball Association are also in the midst of a streak, a not so nice one that has seen them lose all 11 of the games thus far, including Monday night's 141-87 drubbing at the hands of the Philadelphia 76ers.

The Stars are the same team which bowed to Indiana in six games in the ABA's championship round last season. They played out of Los Angeles during the 1969-70 campaign and the change of scenery seems to have worked wonders. Also not detracting from the team's stellar performances has been the addition of Zelmo Beaty, who sat out last season after jumping to the Stars from Atlanta of the NBA.

Beaty tallied 28 points Monday night, as did teammate Donnie Freeman, in leading Utah past Memphis in the only ABA game. Craig Raymond, who was traded by the Stars to Memphis before the start of the season, topped the Pros with 21 points.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper
EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

The Involuntary Students

Yale's President Kingman Brewster Jr. is the darling of the student rebels nowadays, having publicly sympathized with rebel causes, but as recently as January of this year he was capable of what would, in our judgment, be described as rational application of common sense.

In January, Brewster made a mid-semester commencement address at Michigan State University. He said, in the main, that a principal reason for the turmoil and disruption on campus was that too many students are there involuntarily.

They were there, he said, as an alternative to military service, to satisfy parental ambition or because "the university seems to be an indispensable hiring hall for those who would escape the menial levels of drudgery."

The president of Yale said, "Higher learning cannot work if it is involuntary. And the judgments which universities and their faculties must make about degrees and about appointments cannot be made by a process which allows the judged to outvote their judges."

Involuntary students "corrupt, distract and foul the student body," Brewster said.

It was a member of Students for a Democratic Society who made him aware of the students' against-their-will, Brewster told his Michigan audience. The SDS student was quoted by Brewster as follows: "Like don't give me that stuff about how I'm here to learn, I'm here because I have to be, so if I have to be here against my will, why shouldn't I have a say in running the place?" "A conscription system which permits the obligation of service to depend on whether a boy is on campus or off at the age of 19" is responsible for the largest number of involuntary students, Brewster said.

Also blamed were parents who force sons and daughters into "the excessive lock-step continuity of learning, from 5 to 25," which stultifies the motivation of some of the most gifted students. Easier escape and easier re-entry would make the campus a voluntary community once again.

And he blamed the employer who hires on the basis of degrees and pays accordingly. "The package, not the product, seems to be what counts," Brewster said.

Underlying all these reasons which force students to be students is the ease with which "higher education" is financed nowadays. Only a few decades ago, there were few involuntary students. It was in a time when few but the ambitious and the scholarly got to the campus in the first place, and they did not stay long unless they were capable and willing to make use of their capabilities.

Nowadays, it is every youth's "right to a higher education" at the expense not only of those who just pay to keep him there, but at the expense also of those capable and ambitious students who are denied the opportunity to learn because of the disruptions caused by those who are not similarly motivated.

Green Cheese After All?

Lunar modules that have been deliberately crashed on the moon's surface to set off artificial earthquakes have given scientists more puzzling information about that puzzling body.

On earth, compressional waves from earthquakes travel through surface rocks at four miles a second or faster. Seismometers left by astronauts on the moon recorded a wave speed of only about one mile a second.

Two geophysicists at Columbia University's Lamont-Doherty Geological Observatory decided to experiment with compressional waves on two samples of moon rock and a variety of terrestrial substances.

The search was aided, they said, "by considerations of much earlier speculations concerning the nature of the moon."

One moon rock sample gave a reading of 0.78 and the other 1.4 miles a second. The terrestrial materials gave readings from 0.97 to 1.21. They were Sapsago and Emmentaler from Switzerland, Gjetost from Norway, Provione from Italy, Cheddar from Vermont and Muenster from Wisconsin.

All are cheeses. "It is seen that these materials exhibit compressional velocities that are in consonance with those measured for the lunar rocks," reported the scientists. "—which leads us to suspect that perhaps old hypotheses are best, after all, and should not be lightly discarded."

The 'Frayed' Collar Group

To blue collar and white collar, long familiar as designations for the laboring and professional segments of the national work force, may now be added frayed collar.

This is a term which has cropped up to describe the engineers and other technologically trained individuals thrown out of work by the doldrums in the aerospace industry.

For these highly skilled but now wasted individuals, it turns out that knowledge is not necessarily economic power.

With Some Reservation

By WOODY PALMER

Well, a construction strike in Kansas City, Mo., that inflicted a $350 million economic loss has finally been settled.

The union had formerly rejected a $4.50 an hour increase to bring wages to $9.52 per hour in 1971. The 28-week strike is over. But the damage done...

One million worth of contracts have been canceled or moved to other cities. 12,000 construction jobs are standing idle. A real estate member said it would take years to overcome the harmful effects.

Armco Steel Corp. suspended expansion that would have created jobs for 1,250. Bell Telephone reallocated $1 million of its budget to other areas. A shortage of single-family homes developed. The Daily Record newspaper, four weeks after the strike started, carried 15 columns of foreclosure notices. In the Sept. 30 issue there were 21 columns. . . . One carpenter's wife said her husband got some work but the family had to cancel their life, medical and automobile insurance. She hopes her husband can get a job that "pays less but gives a regular income."

So who wins? Only the union bosses, who have no concern for anybody, least of all their own members' plight.

Why the workin' feller follows union bosses to his own destruction, and even pays to be forced out of the market, is something I'll never understand...

ILLOGICAL TRADE BAN

A logical objective of U.S. foreign policy is assuring access of American industry to minerals essential to the security and economic well-being of the nation. Unfortunately, the foreign policy of the United States is not always logical.

For example, consider the matter of U.S. access to chrome ore, one of the most valuable materials used in plating and steel alloys. The applications of chrome range from the automobile industry to atomic energy developments. If U.S. foreign policy were wholly logical, the federal government would bend every effort to assure continuing ample supplies of chromium for this country. Unfortunately, emotionalism and politics shape American policy on chrome imports.

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson, bowing to the will of Britain's Socialist government and seeking to appease black African states in the U.N., ordered a ban on chrome ore imports from independent Rhodesia. While Mr. Johnson may have considered this ban smart politics, the long-range interests of the United States were damaged.

The U.S. must import large quantities of chrome in order to meet industrial needs. Rhodesia, with a known reserve of 600 million tons, is the ideal supplier of chrome ore to the United States. Indeed Rhodesia is the most certain source of chrome ore. Turkey, the only other free world supplier with any substantial amount of the mineral, has a reserve of less than 11 million tons.

Trade with Rhodesia having been banned, the U.S. turned to the Soviet Union for chrome ore — an ironical development. In the eyes of liberals, it is better to trade with Communist Russia than anti-Communist Rhodesia.

The Russians have a nice thing going for themselves. Fred Russell, deputy director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness, has testified that imports of Russian chrome ore increased from 27 per cent of the U.S. supply in 1965 to 45 per cent in 1969. Today, the United States depends on the Soviet Union for an adequate supply of a prime, strategic material.

The Russians are smart businessmen to boot. They know how to profit at a capitalist country's expense. The Russian price for chrome ore in 1965-1967 was between $30.50 and $33.00 a ton. Today, the Russians charge between $55.10 and $59.60.

Meanwhile, an American company in Rhodesia, with 57,000 tons already mined, is barred from selling its chrome to U.S. industrial users.

The American need for chromium will rise rapidly in the 1970's. In 1968, for instance, the U.S. required 325,000 tons of chrome ore for the manufacture of stainless steel. By 1973, the nation will need 659,000 tons for that type of product. Additional quantities of chrome ore will be needed for alloys, tools and high temperature metal products.

If the Executive Order forbidding trade with Rhodesia remains in effect, the United States will become more dependent on the USSR than ever. This is not only absurd but dangerous for the United States. Once before, during the Korean War, the Russians halted chrome ore shipments. They could do it again in another crisis. If that happened, the United States would have no choice but to ask Rhodesia to resume shipments.

It is unwise and unfair to wait until a crisis with Russia before allowing imports of Rhodesian chrome. The Nixon administration cannot justify the ban on the grounds that the British government objects. The Conservative government in Britain clearly hopes to restore normal trade relations with Rhodesia.

When Richard M. Nixon was elected, his supporters expected him to return realism and logic to U.S. foreign policy. In some important respects, he has done this. But the government's policy on trade with Rhodesia remains what it was during the Johnson administration.

Affirmative action to restore normal trade with Rhodesia is long overdue. The national interest requires that Mr. Nixon revoke President Johnson's Executive Order. The U.S.

Stop Using Them To Torture Us—

WASHINGTON

Arabs Are A Bit Leery Of 'Sweet Talk' By Russians

By RAY CROMLEY

Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—For some months now the White House, the State Department and the Department of Defense, by hints, back-grounders and part-statements have been making it clear that this government believes there is danger the Middle East could bring a Soviet-United States confrontation so serious it could end in war.

A major part of the problem is that the Russians are making such great headway in the area and have so committed themselves to radical regimes that they lose sight of caution.

It is pointed out that the Russians have not stopped supplying the Egyptians with modern arms and military advisers. Before the cease-fire, Russian pilots were flying fighter planes in Egypt against the Israelis.

The Russian position looks strong on the surface. The Kremlin's gains in the area have been dramatic. They have allies where they did not have them before. They have made major strides toward acquiring air bases on the borders of the Mediterranean which can threaten Europe's southern flank and make the "Med" unlivable for Western fleets in time of war. Doors have been opened to wider Soviet oil exploration and to possibly very profitable Soviet partnership in the oil wealth of some of the Arab countries.

But these very Soviet successes could well lead to failure. The Russians must keep the conflict with Israel going so that the Arabs will need them. But the Kremlin cannot allow the Arabs to win enough of what they want to be satisfied.

The Soviet Union, therefore, must always be stirring things up and quieting them down at the same time.

With no settlement of Mideast tensions, more Arabs are going to be asking themselves what actual gains have come from Russian help.

For a time, public opinion can be diverted by blaming the United States for arming the Israeli and standing in the way of a "just" settlement. But despite public pronouncements by the Russians championing the Arabs and by both Russians and Egyptians castigating the United States, this reporter has good reason to believe, if his contacts are correct, that Arab suspicion of Russian intentions and effectiveness is growing.

Even more troublesome for the Russians is that they have now entered into such close alliances with some regimes and some factions in Arab countries that they are strongly mistrusted by other groups. Politics in most leading Arab nations is so volatile that the odds may be in tomorrow and throw out the Russian sympathizers.

In addition, the rivalries should break away from the emotionalism engendered by liberals who argued for trade sanctions against Rhodesia.

Obeys Directions Faithfully In Taking Digitalis

Dear Doctor — I have had my chest fluoroscoped and the heart specialist said I have a very tiny heart. I have tachycardia attacks and have a lot of dizziness each day. Digitalis seems to help, but I'm concerned that, if I take it all the time, it will eventually build up poisons and not work any more.

Dear Reader — Digitalis is often given to patients to control or prevent irregularities of the heart and sometimes to improve the heart function or correct heart failure. It is a very important medicine. No patient taking digitalis should ever discontinue the medicine unless his doctor tells him to do so.

Usually, each patient has to be studied awhile to find out what is the right amount of digitalis he should take for a particular purpose. This is sometimes difficult for the physician to determine and, if the patient doesn't follow the doctor's instructions, it becomes impossible.

Digitalis can indeed become a poison, so to speak, and we call this digitalis intoxication. Even the best heart specialists often have trouble telling whether the patient needs more or less digitalis, since both heart disease and too much digitalis cause similar problems.

The body does not develop a resistance to digitalis to the point that it won't work any more. It is true that patients develop tolerance to certain medicines, but digitalis is not one of them. Keeping your doctor thinks you are getting too much, then follow his directions carefully to the letter.

DEAR DOCTOR — You state that you consider coffee inimical to the best welfare of the heart. My question is this: Does this apply to decaffeinated coffee?

Dear Reader — The caffeine in the coffee seems to be the main problem. It is a powerful stimulant or drug. I am not convinced that some people with indigestion or ulcer symptoms should drink decaffeinated coffee, since the other ingredients in coffee may have some effects on the digestion. If you have indigestion, burning in the pit of the stomach or excess acidity, perhaps it would be wise to stop all forms of coffee. If your problem is relieved, you can try a decaffeinated product and find out if it causes the indigestion to return or not.

Now, of course, if you use cream in your coffee, that adds to your fat intake. Cream contains saturated fats. The same is true for most commercial cream substitutes. Sugar in coffee is another source of calories. By the end of a year, two cups of coffee a day of any type with lots of cream and sugar will account for a number of pounds of excess fat, unless you expend the excess calories by your level of physical activity.

JOHN GOLDSMITH

MADRID, Spain—For those of us who lived through the tumultuous prelude to World War II in the 1930s, there is a sad bit of irony in the steady stream of elderly Americans who are now seeking a calm retirement haven in the Generalissimo Franco's Spain.

There is apparently no disputing the facts, however. Knowledgeable sources here say Americans of retirement age are coming to Spain by the thousands to take up a more or less permanent residence for their declining years.

Americans in Spain are not required to register with the U.S. embassy, so there is no accurate total in this regard. One estimate, reliable in all unofficial, is that between 30,000 and 50,000 Americans are now living here, in addition to those on government assignment and the 10,000 Navy and Air Force men who man U.S. military bases.

Observers here mention factors by way of explaining this immigration. The first, of course, is economic.

As tourists from all over the world have discovered, Spain is one of the cheapest cost-of-living countries in Europe. The American dollar buys a lot of creature comforts for Americans who are trying to minimize the impact of inflation on their retirement incomes.

The other important factor, according to these reports, is law-and-order—in just the sense that the expression has created so much concern in the United States. Spain has not experienced the rioting and other disruptive outbreaks which have occurred in cities in the United States and elsewhere in the free world.

Large security forces—army and police—have long been the hallmark of authoritarian government. Too many Americans they seem to mean more importantly, that it is still safe to walk the Spanish streets at night.

WAR OVER—Spanish authorities claim that, for most Americans and the residents of much of Europe, the image of Franco Spain is still that of the complaint that it is a false image.

Certainly (and, again, as annual flood of tourists have discovered), there are no outward signs of repressive government, though the police and uniformed military are much in evidence. Americans here agreed that little is said publicly about suppression of dissent.

Spanish newspapers are not now censored in advance. Reporters, individually, and the newspapers themselves can be fined for slandering the state, however, and publications can be suspended with all of the economic penalties which such a suspension embraces.

Occasional editions of foreign newspapers, including the Paris Herald-Tribune, which circulates widely in Europe, simply do not reach the newsstands here when they contain reports which are considered objectionable by Spanish authorities.

In the law-and-order department, however, the authorities are very tough indeed, as two American newsmen discovered last week when they were detained briefly, in a case of mistaken identity, until the real fugitive was discovered hiding on the airliner from which they had just disembarked.

There have been very few unpleasant incidents involving U.S. military men, who maintain a very low profile here, and U.S. commanders boast that relations between our military men and the Spanish "locals" are better than those which exist anywhere else outside the United States.

TOWARDS TRANSITION—Against this background, some observers see the 77-year-old Generalissimo as taking a series of steps, rather consciously, to prepare the Spanish government for existence after Franco.

The return of the royal family has already been arranged, of course. Now reports are circulating here that Franco may be preparing to appoint a Premier and thus share some of the responsibilities of day-to-day government.

Franco would, of course, retain most of his power as head of state. Designation of a president of the Council of Ministers would, however, let Franco take a firm and direct hand in his own succession.

So far, most of the speculation with respect to such an appointment has centered on Adm. Luis Carrero Blanco, a conservative who has long been one of the Generalissimo's top aides. Some observers think, however, that if Franco defers the appointment for a while longer it could ultimately go to Gregorio Lopez Bravo, the much younger foreign minister who is a charismatic comer in the current regime.

STRAIGHT TALK:

We Are What We Condone

By TOM ANDERSON

The Federal Government has recently spent more than a million dollars in a two-year study of pornography. The Residential Commission on Obscenity and Violence has rendered its verdict: Pornography and obscenity are good, not injurious. That's probably what Walter Jenkins told the boys at the "Y." Since President Johnson appointed all but one of the 18-member commission, it is reasonable to believe a majority of them are probably obscene themselves.

The Commission said: "The Commission is of the view that it is exceedingly unwise to attempt to legislate individual moral values and standards."

It would be exceedingly wise for citizens to once again legislate such things on the local level, imposing such proven effective remedies as public whipping posts, tar and feathers, and jail. The morality breakdown is worldwide, all pervading, overwhelming. But that is no reason to accept it. "First we abhor, then we endure, finally we embrace," we became what we condone.

Believe it or not, I can still remember how embarrassed I was when I came out in my first topless bathing suit. But modesty, male and female, is almost obliterated. Most of the women today want to show everything, either blatantly or in a now-you-see-it-now-you-don't-technique. "If you've got it, show it," is the attitude today. Reminds me of the woman who didn't have it, explaining why she wouldn't dream of walking topless on the beach. "The first guy I'd meet would probably stop me and say, 'Hi buddy, got a match?'"

Our best recourse is to the Congress. Maybe a majority of them are decent. Many are not. There are several homosexuals and more than several notorious philanderers in Congress. And Teddy Kennedy ("Greater love hath no man than this, that he laid down his life for his life"). But a majority of our Senators and Congressmen could doubtless be prevailed upon — with proper pressure from home — to pass an anti-obscenity bill. Senator Dirksen introduced one (S. 1077) shortly before his death. We can't depend on the Supreme Court. It may improve somewhat under Burger, but one of its own members (as well as the Governor of a Southern state) reportedly has one of the nation's "outstanding" pornographic collections.

Obscenity and pornography, and in fact all censorship, should be "local option." What's obscene in New York — and most of it is — would doubtless be obscene anywhere. But what's obscene in the town of Happy Valley, probably would not be obscene in New York. I was in "Fun City" recently, unhappy, after an absence of a couple of years. Up and down Lexington and other avenues, in downtown Manhattan, are magazines and newspapers displayed depicting every conceivable, and some inconceivable, kind of sex, natural and unnatural. Some of these newstands are on the public sidewalks, where any little seven-year-old girl, walking by, couldn't avoid seeing the vilest pictures imaginable. In Happy Valley, the news vendor would not merely lose his license; he'd probably lose his life, too.
