

Backward Glance On Nixon's Anniversary

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Twenty years ago today in the post-midnight glow of his hairline presidential election victory, Richard M. Nixon held up his arms in triumph and remembered the little girl at the train station in Deshler, Ohio, whose placard read: "Bring us together."

As the 37th President of the United States, he promised that unity would be the touchstone of his administration. Americans, he said, would go "forward together."

Nixon also pledged that his White House years would mark an era of "negotiation, not confrontation" with the Soviet Union; that peace in Vietnam, progress at home, prosperity and law and order would be his goals.

In his inaugural speech he asked that voices of dissent be lowered and called for a truce against angry bombastic rhetoric that "fans discontents into hatreds."

NIXON NOT OUT

Muskie Emerges Fair-Haired Boy

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The outcome of Tuesday's elections made the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination appear more valuable to Sen. Edmund S. Muskie and his potential rivals, but it did not wreck President Nixon's chance for a second term.

With two House races still undecided in Kentucky and North Dakota, the new House will have at least 180 Republicans and 253 Democrats, a gain of at least seven for the Democrats. The present lineup is 246 Democrats and 189 Republicans.

It may force the President and his advisers to reassess their plans for building a new coalition of American voters. Muskie, elected to a third term from Maine, stays in front as the strongest prospect for the 1972 Democratic nomination.

In the South, the GOP took a Senate seat and governorship from the Democrats in Tennessee, while losing governorships in Arkansas and Florida. They also failed to win Democratic Senate seats in Florida and Texas and governorships in South Carolina and Texas, which were states on their list of major targets.

While retaining control of Congress, the Democrats enjoyed their greatest triumph in the statehouses. Even if they lose two still unsettled races, and Maine, where a recount is in prospect, they would show a 27 to 23 margin over Republicans in the governorships. The present lineup is 32 Republicans and 18 Democrats.

Election Sidelights

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Mrs. Martha Mitchell says the Republicans can blame no one but themselves for their election losses. The number of women in the House increases by three. So does the number of blacks. Robert "Taft" Jr. says he's not about to be "a rubber stamp senator."

Rangel, running with Republican and Democratic support, to the seat held by Adam Clayton Powell before Rangel defeated him in the New York primary last June. The three new Negro members occupy seats formerly held by whites.

These were some of the lions. Mrs. Mitchell, wife of the attorney general, went to a fashion show in Washington Wednesday. Reporters asked her about the election results and she grinned. "Want me to stand on my head?" she asked.

Unofficial totals late Wednesday, with all precincts reporting, showed Hall with 338, 904 votes to 335,802 for Bartlett and 34,406 for American Party candidate Reuel Little. Hall's margin is less than 5 per cent, or about one vote per precinct.

New Black Congressmen. The election of Ronald V. Dellums of California, who was attacked by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew as sympathetic to the Black Panther party, and of Parven J. Mitchell of Maryland and George W. Collins of Illinois will bring to 12 the number of Negro members of the House. All 12 are Democrats. Harlem elected Charles B.

The official count will not be completed until late Friday or Saturday. Candidates have until noon Saturday to file recount petitions. A victory for Hall would end eight years of Republican rule in the Oklahoma statehouse. If Bartlett wins he will be the first Oklahoma governor to succeed himself.

Hall, Bartlett Ask For Recount Of Their Votes

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)—Democrat David Hall's upset margin over Republican Gov. Dewey Bartlett slipped as low as 2,400 votes Wednesday, then grew to 3,100.

Bartlett called out the National Guard to protect the ballot boxes and both men consulted lawyers for advice on asking a recount.

The opponents can see if they made any mistakes in their campaign against the proposed amendment, approved in Tuesday's elections. If they see they did make some mistakes, they can try to correct them and still prevent liquor by the drink.

HOUSTON (UPI)—The chairman of the Texas New Party is asking federal authorities to investigate "between 20 and 20 documented cases" in which election judges allegedly told voters write-in ballots would not be counted in Tuesday's general election.

Most Texans Remain Loyal To One-Party

Present Status Will Go On For 10 Years

DALLAS (UPI)—The general election in Texas has convincingly answered the question of which party most Texans identify with. But the election has raised other questions about Texas' past and future.

The combined wins of Democratic Sen.-elect Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr. and Gov. Preston Smith along with the convincing wins of Democrats in all other areas of the state proves Texas is still a one-party state. It also indicates Texas is going to remain a one party state for at least another 10 years.

Perhaps voters in the state hinted at this two years ago but no one paid any real attention to it. When former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey carried Texas in the 1968 Presidential election, it was considered somewhat of a surprise.

The combinations of these two factors—plus the fact that extremely popular John B. Connally would not be on top of the Democratic ticket for the first time in six years—made Republicans extremely optimistic about their chances to carry Texas for Nixon.

But the voters went Democratic and Texas became the only Southern or Southwestern state to go in Humphrey's column. The election also proves that Texans, given two candidates with about equal appeal and equal stature, will vote party affiliation ahead of ideology.

Another Dallas lawyer — but one who fought the amendment — Don Cates said the legislature is sure to pass the enabling legislation but because of the margin of victory the laws will be strict. "My personal opinion is that the vote was close enough so that it will be incumbent upon the legislature to pass a very strict liquor by the drink law and make licenses for outlets high enough to make it very selective so we won't have any more problems with crime than we have now," Cates said.

COMMUNITY OPTION

Texans Must Vote Again Before Liquor-By-Drink Saloons Open

By United Press International. Texas voters have approved a proposed amendment to allow liquor by the drink. This doesn't mean they'll get liquor by the drink. It means they will get to vote on it again.

on the few areas that voted for the amendment—places like Houston, Dallas, San Antonio, Fort Worth, El Paso, Austin and Corpus Christi.

The Rev. Mel Carter, assistant pastor of the First Baptist Church in Dallas, said he does not presume to speak for all Baptist churches but he expects they will put up a bitter fight in every local option election.

Therefore, the opponents to liquor by the drink—and they are considerable (904,462 at least)—still have a chance to make sure "demon rum" never comes out in the open in Texas. The opponents can see if they made any mistakes in their campaign against the proposed amendment, approved in Tuesday's elections.

Shannon Jones, a Dallas lawyer who helped lead the fight for the amendment, said Wednesday Dallas, Houston, Galveston, El Paso, Fort Worth, San Antonio, certain precincts of Longview, and in "all probability" Austin will approve liquor by the drink in local option elections.

Another Dallas lawyer — but one who fought the amendment — Don Cates said the legislature is sure to pass the enabling legislation but because of the margin of victory the laws will be strict. No Clues In Arson Try

Police Chief Jim Conner said today no clues had been uncovered yet in the investigation of an arson attempt Tuesday night and early Wednesday morning at the home of city patrolman Bryan Stafford.

An intense investigation still is being pushed, Chief Conner said.

Two molotov cocktails were tossed onto the porch of patrolman Stafford's home at 1334 N. Gray St.

The first one, apparently thrown from an automobile about 10 p.m. Tuesday, was a dud. The second one, tossed onto the porch about 1 a.m. Wednesday, ignited but was quickly put out by Stafford.

Stafford, who had been working as a narcotics undercover agent for several weeks, recently was transferred to a uniformed patrolman's post.

Bush Doesn't Assign Blame To Nixon For Loss In Race

HOUSTON (UPI)—George Bush disagreed with those who said visits to the state by President Nixon and Vice President Agnew cost him the election in his U.S. Senate race.

Bush said Nixon and Agnew campaigned for him in Dallas, Longview, Lubbock and Amarillo, all cities Bush won in Tuesday's general election.

"I don't think it's fair to assign the blame to the President," Bush said Wednesday. "He came down here to help me out and I'm glad he came. He is popular in Texas and, if we had to do it all over again, I would invite him back."

But Bush also admitted "It did give the other side campaign fodder. I don't know how efficient it was. They think it was and obviously something was wrong."

"I can't find anything to blame—not the President, not my campaign workers, not finances. I'm looking introvertedly and I don't like what I see. I must've done something wrong."

Bush said he might have underestimated Bentsen's argument Texas should not be represented by two Republican senators.

"We kind of shrugged it off," he said. "We did not think it would be effective because we thought it was antiquated and people in the 1970s would not put much stock in it. Maybe they did."

Bush speculated talk he might replace Agnew on the national ticket in 1972 might also have hurt his chances. The talk began the day Nixon flew to Texas on Bush's behalf.

Bush's term as a U.S. Representative ends Dec. 31 and the Houston millionaire said he has no plans after that date.

"I like elective politics, but I just don't know," he said. He also acknowledged the talk of his being appointed to a cabinet post, perhaps in the Interior Department to replace Interior Secretary Walter Hickel.

"That's way beyond what I'd expect," he said. "I'm in the enviable position of affording to take time to see what I want."

"We kind of shrugged it off," he said. "We did not think it would be effective because we thought it was antiquated and people in the 1970s would not put much stock in it. Maybe they did."

Taft On Independence
Freshman Sen. William Saxbe, R-Ohio, has demonstrated a strong independent streak since he was elected in 1968. Now Robert Taft, son of a Republican senator and grandson of the only man in history to serve as both Chief Justice and President, says he too will be independent when he joins Saxbe in the Senate.

"I certainly will not be an unequivocal supporter of President Nixon," he said in Columbus. "I will not be a rubber stamp Senator."

The ages of the 100 current members of the U.S. Senate average out to 58.4 years. The average age of the senators who retained their seats and those who won seats average out to 56.7, trimming 1.64 years off the average.

John V. Tunney, 36, will become the youngest senator, a distinction now held by Oregon's Robert W. Packwood, 38. Beall gained a measure of family revenge in his defeat of Democrat Tydings. In 1964, Tydings won his seat by defeating Beall's father.

Basically, Nixon is a loner. He is organized and disciplined. He makes decisions only after studying in depth all his options.

He can be an eloquent off the cuff speaker, however, and he prides most his ability to keep cool under stress.

Last November, he made a sentimental journey to Capitol Hill to visit with members of the House. He told them that when peace comes it will be because of the support he has received from Democrats and Republicans, adding:

"And history will record that the United States of America in a period of crisis, in a period of controversy, met the challenge of greatness and that the representatives of the people thought of themselves as Americans, put their country first rather than their party first in the great tradition of this House."

Dakota, Nebraska and Oklahoma, and reelected a Democratic governor in Republican Kansas. Sen. Quentin N. Burdick, D-N.D., another Republican target, was reelected.

In the West, the GOP reelected Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, but Sen. George Murphy lost his senate seat to Rep. John V. Tunney. The GOP lost governorships in Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico and Alaska and failed to unseat Democratic senators in Wyoming, Utah, Nevada and New Mexico.

Despite the failure of his campaign to win control of the Senate, the President said he could speak with a stronger voice in foreign policy-making because he has "stronger support in the Senate." He said he now has a majority of four in the Senate in face-offs on foreign policy.

Nationally, the Republicans ran against violence in Tuesday's elections, and the Democrats ran against unemployment and inflation. Those issues had some impact, but personalities and local situations appeared to overshadow them in many of the states.

W&S Employees In Lubbock For Schooling
Tony R. Anderson, superintendent, and three employees of the city water and sewer department, attended the West Texas Regional Short School for water and sewer operators in Lubbock Monday and Tuesday.

Attending with Anderson were B. L. Fields, sewage treatment plant operator; Troy Purvis, water distribution foreman, and L. N. Rogers, water production pumper.

Purvis, Fields and Rogers all took license examinations. Instructors for the school were from the Texas A&M Engineering Extension Service at College Station.

No Recount Due For Cates-Nix
Reports that there possibly would be a recount in the Phil Cates-Bill Nix election contest for state representative from the 79th Legislative District were discounted today.

One report said there was only a 15-vote difference in total votes between Cates and Nix in the seven county district.

First figures early Wednesday gave Cates a 155-vote margin. The Pampa News check with county clerks' offices later in the day boosted the margin to 186 for Cates.

Cates, reached at his home in Lefors today, said Nix had called him and extended congratulations yesterday.

Ling Sells Home To H. L. Hunt For $1.5 Million

DALLAS (UPI) — The home of James J. Ling, who has fallen on relatively hard times in recent months, has been sold to Lamar Hunt for a reputed $1.5 million. Ling once headed Ling-Temco-Vought, Inc., a conglomerate worth at least $3.5 billion. LTV is not doing well and has replaced Ling. Hunt's father is H. L. Hunt, whose fortune may total more than $2 billion. Lamar Hunt owns the Kansas City Chiefs football team and other interests and can well afford the Ling mansion. UCC Financial Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary of University Computing Co., took over the Ling home and the 2.6 acre lot it is on Oct. 13 as part of the collateral for a personal loan. Ling subsequently leased the home back from UCC. Ling has bought another home from the president of a savings and loan association. The price of his new home was not disclosed. When Hunt bought the Ling home — which generally resembles the summer homes the French kings used to fancy — he also bought an adjoining nine acres. Hunt bought the nine acres from Omega-Alpha Corp., which Ling organized after he was let out of LTV. There has been speculation that Ling intends to use Omega-Alpha to start another conglomerate. COSTLY DONATION — OLDHAM, England (UPI) — Martha Price, 93, remembers too late that she had hidden $9 in an old stuffed chair. She gave the chair away Wednesday to three teen-agers seeking fuel for their Guy Fawkes Day bonfire. PIERRE, S.D. — A Republican official staring in disbelief as election returns drew a picture of a Democratic sweep in South Dakota: "My God, they would elect a dog or anything rather than go with an incumbent this year."

There's lots of fashion in the hopper for the small fry. The three-piece knit outfit for the little boy (left) is topped by an ear-lap hat. It's a Nonnekings design. Coat, dress and hat ensemble (right) has A-line bonded dress in bright red and bonded wool-like plaid coat. Neck and sleeve binding on dress match the coat and hat. This is by Nannette.

Garden Club Hears Reports On Meeting

Pampa Garden Club met recently in the Pioneer Natural Gas Glame Room with Mrs. W.E. Abernathy as hostess for the program on Garden Club meeting reports.

Mrs. H.H. Boynton presented a program on "Sleeping Beauty," by discussing ways to prepare a garden for the winter months and asking members on horticulture tips.

"Since the moon is on the increase, it is time to plant bare root trees and shrubs on Nov. 3, 4, 7 and 8. Good pruning dates are Nov. 18, 19, and 20 but the best are Nov. 26 and 27.

Members giving reports were Mrs. Myron Dorman, evaluation of the flower show; Mrs. Aubrey Sprawls, tasting bee, and Mrs. Thelma Bray, report on plan considered for the Capsule Garden at Pampa High School.

Mrs. James F. Malone, club president, reported on state Fall meeting of Texas Garden Clubs Inc., which was held at the Amarillo Garden Center Oct. 19, 20 and 21, and said Texas Garden Clubs Inc. was presented a national award, the Bronze Seal for landscaping the Governor's Mansion.

The District I Fall meeting was held in Lubbock Oct. 29 with Mrs. Myron Dorman present to report on Pampa Garden Club activities. District I annually gives a $250 scholarship to a Texas Tech student in Floraculture and plans to give another scholarship soon to a student attending a different Texas college.

Pampa Garden Club members attending the Northern Zone meeting in Perryton Tuesday were Mmes. W.E. Abernathy, Myron Dorman, James Malone, James Trusty and Richard Somner.

Members attending the meeting in the Flame Room were Mmes. W.E. Abernathy, H.H. Boynton, Thelma Bray, W.R. Campbell, Milo Carlson.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our son, 19, attended a boys' high school and never dated until he went to college. As a college freshman he met a girl and they became engaged. She is a year older than he, is of another faith, and she is an invalid, having had spinal surgery at age 13. She needs help to walk, and her coordination is poor.

Our son invited her to our home for a few days. (She lives 300 miles away.) It was heart-breaking! The poor girl made her bed to the best of her ability, but it looked like the work of a child. She left fingerprints on the walls where she had tried to get around, unassisted.

We've explained to our son that he will have a hard time getting insurance and hospitalization—that she will always need a full-time maid, and she is incapable of caring for a baby, if indeed she could ever bear one.

We've told our son that we will see him through college, while he is still single, but if he marries in college, we'll not help him financially.

We love our son and don't want his to make a mistake he will regret all his life. Meanwhile, the girl's parents are encouraging this marriage. Would you recommend this marriage?

HIS PARENTS
DEAR PARENTS: The "marriage" may come off whether I recommend it or not. But I have a recommendation for you. Though I know you have your son's best interests at heart, it is his decision and his life, and even his "mistake" if that's what it turns out to be.

Don't point out the difficulties he will face should he marry this girl. (He's aware of them.) Your obvious disapproval of this choice could make him all the more determined to marry her just to prove you wrong.

DEAR ABBY: A man just can't win. Why is it that when I send my wife flowers for no special occasion, she looks at me funny and says, "Well, what have you done now?"

NOT GUILTY
DEAR NOT: She hasn't been properly trained. When she feels certain that your generosity was not prompted by a guilty conscience, she'll quit being suspicious. To "train" her—send her flowers more often.

DEAR ABBY: The letter about twin beds interested me because for 10 years my husband and I also slept "spoon style" and it was very comfortable for him. He is 6'2" and I am 5'2" and I wasn't getting much bed, or much sleep.

Five years ago we bought twin beds and for the first year my husband hated it. Then we hit upon a good compromise. We pushed the twin beds together. That way we each have our own mattress and when one moves the other isn't disturbed.

Of course the bedroom doesn't look quite as attractive, but now we can hold hands when we go to sleep, and he can lean over and kiss me good night and we can get a good night's sleep.

I know I am much easier to get along with during the daytime if I've slept well and that's worth a lot!

Stitch Sweater Flattery In Diamond Knit Style

By JUDY LOVE

Going around in circles won't get you anywhere—unless, of course, you knit. It's the way most knitters like to travel because working with circular

Can you advise me?—C.R.

DEAR C.R.—At least you're doing one thing right, measuring your work as you go. Too many knitters get a little lazy when it's time to measure.

Your problem may well be in the placement of the measuring tape on your work. The portion to be measured should be placed on a level surface and always keep the needle to your left. You may smooth out knitted piece before you measure. But never, never pull or stretch. It will only spring back later, and you'll be left with a portion of the garment that's too small.

The tape (choose the kind that won't stretch or shrink) should be placed just under the needle. Now measure to the point stated in the directions.

If you are measuring a skirt or coat, however, remember that the weight of the garment may cause stretching. To avoid this problem, knit an inch or two less than the directions specify. Let the garment hang in a closet for a couple of days, you measure and then continue knitting the necessary remaining amount.—JUDY LOVE needles means knitting from the neck down.

A soft, diamond-patterned cardigan is knitted from the neck down on circular needles in figure-flattering design.

That's how this soft, collared cardigan is made. For comfort there's the attraction of raglan sleeves, and the rows of openwork in dazzling diamond shapes add the right fashion detailing.

The cardigan is knitted on size 5 and 8 circular needles in Bernat's Mohairline. This light, tender yarn lets you give the topper its soft, feminine shaping.

Perfect for year-round wear especially with multipleated skirts and shapely pants, this flattering topper can be knitted in small, medium or large fit sizes from 8 to 18.

For your copy of knitting instructions just send 50 cents to Stitchin' Time, C/o Pampa Daily News, Radio City Station, Box 503, New York City, N.Y., 10020. Be sure to ask for leaflet S197 and include your name, address and zip code.

KNIT KNACKS

DEAR JUDY—I must be doing something wrong. My problem seems to be in measuring my work. What the tape measure tells me is one thing, but when the garment is completed and tried on, it doesn't always fit as it should.

Oil Firm Executive Provides Steps To Assure Oil Supplies

DALLAS (UPI) — Robert E. Mead, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, suggested Tuesday government oil policies should be based on a set of basic principles which he proposed to assure the country adequate supplies of oil and gas.

Mead said the nation is facing its first general energy shortage, mainly fuel oil and natural gas. He said there are enormous quantities of hydrocarbon fuels left in the ground, but the oil and gas industry needs incentives to go after them.

He suggested that the government proceed on the following assumptions:

—Total energy resources of the United States are fully adequate to supply the nation's requirements for economic progress and national security at adequate prices.

—All national energy policies should be designed to assure that domestic energy capabilities expand in keeping with increasing requirements.

—Oil imports should be limited to prevent dependency on insecure foreign sources.

—In the interest of national security, import policies should recognize the following priorities: the continental United States, the North American continent, the rest of the Western Hemisphere and the Eastern Hemisphere.

—Under no circumstances should there be any increased dependency on oil from the Eastern Hemisphere.

—Wellhead prices for natural gas should reflect market value.

—There should be no end use controls.

—Percentage depletion and related income tax provisions should be made more effective to encourage expansion of domestic energy supplies, beginning with a revocation of the adverse changes in mineral provisions in the 1969 tax bill.

—There should be access to public lands under policies that encourage multiplicity of effort in maximizing petroleum exploration and development.

—There should be no government expenditures for energy other than research projects and these should not have the effect of subsidizing one course of energy over another.

Miami To Have Dedicatory Services For New Airport

Mrs. Joe Cunningham News Correspondent

MIAMI (SpI)—The formal dedication of the Miami-Roberts County Airport has been set for Saturday, according to Willis Clark, chairman of the County Airport Committee.

Early-bird arrivals will be served coffee and doughnuts at the Community Center. A catered barbecue dinner will be served at The American Legion Hall from 12 noon to 1:30 p.m. for one dollar per person.

The airport dedication program will be held from 2 to 3 p.m. in the Community Center.

A representative from the Texas Aeronautics Commission in Austin will give the dedicatory speech.

Airplane rides over Miami will be available from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. Those interested should sign up in advance, with Jim Bean, Max Paulkner, Mrs.

David McNair or Bill Cox.

In the event of bad weather the dedicatory activities will be postponed until November 14th.

The runway is 3,650 by 50 ft. asphalt, along with a taxiway and apron. Merriman & Barber of Pampa were the engineers on the project. The local Airport Committee is composed of Willis Clark, Ellis Locke, Wallace Locke, Bill Tolbert, Newt Cox, and Bill Wiley.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—"Further chopiness could lie ahead before the current consolidation spends itself," Standard & Poor's Corp. believes. The company expects the long range trend to be upward but it urges a "policy of restraint in making new commitments over the period immediately ahead."

The near-term prospects are "freighted with uncertainties" but chances of a continuation of the market's upturn over the long range are "bright," Spear and Staff Inc. says. Once the General Motors strike is settled, it adds, "the catch-up spurt in auto production will provide a powerful stimulus."

"The unprecedented high amount of new bond issues for November will undoubtedly absorb funds which ordinarily would have found their way into the stock market," according to Oppenheimer, Newberg & Neu. The company believes this factor combined with the "generally poor fourth quarter outlook, could easily make for a weaker market performance in coming weeks."

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — One of the services that journalists perform during an election campaign is notifying candidates of contributions made on their behalf.

During this year's campaign, for example, it is estimated that about $5 million was spent in certain senatorial races. Yet the candidates involved had not reported any contributions prior to the election.

The reason for this is that candidates are only required by law to report contributions received with their "knowledge or consent." And usually they are the last to know.

In fact, there are many cases in which a candidate probably would never have found out about a contribution had not some kindly newsman helpfully called it to his attention.

$5,000 Contributed

Let us say, for illustration purposes, that the chairman of the Senate subcommittee on things and lasses is running for re-election. Whereupon the National Association of Buggywhip Manufacturers contributes $5,000 to his campaign.

A reporter learns of the contribution and, being touched by such an act of generosity, writes a news story about it, pointing out that the subcommittee handles legislation of interest to the buggywhip industry.

Whereupon the chairman issues a statement saying he was unaware of the contribution.

Well, gee, if anyone does anything nice for me, I like to

TV In Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bert Schneider's producing credit include "Easy Rider" and "Five Easy Pieces," two of the most praised, most talked about movies of our time.

Let us forget, he also had a television series on the air a while back. It was called "The Monkees," was presented for a half hour a week on NBC-TV, and, despite a mixed critical reception, its modern film techniques and contemporary attitude constantly drew attention to its zany tales of four young musicians.

Schneider, a lean, handsome and friendly fellow whose father is the chairman of Columbia Pictures, recalls today that "The Monkees" was the closest we could come, under the existing system, to doing what we want to do on television.

It was as close as we were permitted to be to confronting the American tradition I mean. We took guys, essentially teenagers, and put them in unsupervised surroundings. No parent, no adult figure. They were on their own—free. We gave them long hair. Then, whenever we could, we put in as much material as possible that reflected the new culture. But that was a difficult battle to go through each week. You know—How do we trick them this week?"

Schneider says he almost never watches television nowadays.

Why, "Just the normal reason of any citizen that doesn't watch it," he says. "It no longer interests me." Why not? "Well," he says, "The realities of TV are such that, in dramatic programming, the points of view expressed — terms of life and levels of humanity — are stripped down to such a level that they no longer are of interest to me. I mean, how can I be expected to watch "Dragnet" any more?"

What kind of series would be put on today if he had to go through all of the regular commercial television procedures?

"Put it this way," he said. "They have the bat and the ball and the bases. And the bat has a hole in it."

And what if he could put on shows without the usual clearances?

"I'd put on essentially what we're doing in the movies—'Five Easy Pieces,' things like that." And what else? "A talk show—A groovy talk show! Give me one a week, okay?—any show where there's none of this"—and he got up and gave an imitation of Johnny Carson practicing his golf swing.

Look, it isn't what you talk about. There are no subjects touched. It's where people are free to communicate. If you have a talk show, then let everyone really talk.

There's no reality on any of the talk shows. What you see is a guy playing David Frost. It's David Frost playing David Frost. No reality. We have to be closer in touch with reality."

know about it. So I think a candidate should be grateful to a reporter for letting him know about a contribution.

But, surprisingly, newsmen rarely get thank-you notes for writing stories of that nature.

Might Get the Wrong Idea

This brings up the question of why the Buggywhip Association itself did not inform the senator that it was contributing to his campaign.

"The senator might have gotten the wrong idea if we had told him about it," a spokesman for the buggywhip lobby will explain. "He might have felt obligated to return the favor by supporting a bill to repeal the buggywhip tax. We certainly wouldn't want that to happen."

"It is our feeling that all buggywhip legislation should be considered strictly on its own merits."

Crazy World Of Washington

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

UPI Senior Editor
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The President's Council on Environmental Quality came down with a bad case of thermal pollution the other day.

And only a few blocks away two different sets of jack hammers were providing painful examples of noise pollution of the eardrums.

Jet aircraft streaking across the skies were contributing their special brand of noise and at the same time pouring thick streamers of black contaminants into the atmosphere.

An excavation project next door to the White House filled the air with dust which a chill wind blew into the eyes of pedestrians.

Trucks, vans, and buses roaring along 15th street may once have had mufflers—but this is sheer speculation.

Council Headquarters
The Environmental Quality Council has its headquarters on Jackson Place at the west end of Lafayette Park, across Pennsylvania Avenue from the Executive Mansion.

Inside the White House, presumably, there was little air pollution, excessive noise, or immoderate heat.

Whether the lovely White House and park fountains were spouting polluted water only a chemist could say. Since we're told that all water, including the stuff you drink, is tainted by something or other, perhaps they were.

But to get back to the President's Council on Environmental Quality, which is against all kinds of pollution—air, water, noise, thermal, or whatever.

On this particular day it was playing host to the Smithsonian Institution and the Peace Corps at a news conference announcing a joint enterprise to send scores of specially trained volunteers overseas to help environmental problems.

Room too Small
The room, too small for the purpose, was crowded and a lot of people had to stand up. The air was fetid, and lights for a row of television cameras raised the temperature to just this side of endurable.

The speakers, three of them, read releases which already had been distributed to reporters. In an ensuing Q. and A. period, as the temperature rose, they repeated themselves.

When everybody got back outside again, they were coated with a film of perspiration. The wind was still chilly, and the noise and air pollution hadn't appreciably abated.

All that can be said for certain at the moment (cough! cough!) is that on this particular day the environment, inside and outside the President's Council on Environmental Quality, was in a horrible condition.

JEANE DIXON Your Horoscope

FRIDAY, NOV. 6, 1970
Your birthday, Friday, Nov. 6, depends on your ability to overcome limitations, cope with changes and surprises. Most of what you must do now has never been done before or not under the same conditions. You must be general in your approach. Frigid natives almost invariably possess great personal magnetism, frequently have an extremely private life that is seldom brought to public notice.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Sudden turns of circumstance upset your schedule. Don't react to exciting news rashly. There is more to the story, perhaps another side altogether.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Contrary opinions are frequent at the moment. Don't react to exciting news rashly. Your patience saves the day. You'll have a better turn later.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Avoid physical stress; reflect to show the extent. Other people tend to be quite sensitive, so watch where you set your own frontiers with your remarks.

CANCER (June 21-July 21): Special transactions come to your attention and unexpected changes. Take the simplest, most conservative approach and accept interruption of work as normal.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22): You have to be watchful. Changes seem unavoidable. Action taken suddenly, without consultation, might be regretted.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Tact and real emotional acceptance makes all the difference in your activities now. Financial experiments, status, purshary moves are not favored.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Friday there is opposition to any sort of activity, according to the nature of the project and how it has been guided. Courtesy can help avert strife.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Tension rises, within and without. Keep your plans simple, be prepared for changes. Avoid needless competition or competitive attitudes; there should be room for all.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Friends and associates are active Friday, affecting your plans. Side-step any secret deals. Postpone joining a group until you can do so without reservations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your affairs indicate complicated conditions; be ready to change arrangements, day routines. You can't really win an argument.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Discretion is the better part of valor Friday, as even a situation of routine becomes a matter for discord. Your self-control now is important.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Money and other material considerations are disturbed somewhat by circumstances. Relatives—relatives have more problems than you usually encounter.

OPPOSES BOND ISSUE

DALLAS (UPI) — Mayor pro tem Jack McKinney says he will present a formal motion today to cancel a bond issue to help build a city hall. McKinney said he does not believe the money raised by the bond issue would cover the entire construction costs.

Harvesters Humpin' For Palo Duro Don Victory

No football predictor worth his salt would have forecast anything more exciting than a possible three way tie for District 3-4A.

Pre-season favorites were the Palo Duro Dons and the Tascosa Rebels. In one prediction, Pampa was picked to finish last, while another prognosticator placed the Harvesters next-to-last with Borger picked last.

Preview comments about Pampa were guarded—filled with "ifs", "ands", and "buts" that had spiced other football years.

Well, all of the "ifs", "ands", and "buts" became realities and Pampa is now in a four way tie with Palo Duro, Tascosa, and Amarillo for the District 3-4A lead (with help from Caprock).

Pampa has emerged as the team to beat in the race. One of the few advantages of having had a losing streak is that no one takes the team seriously. Suddenly the Harvesters are up on top and the Amarillo teams are confused.

Meanwhile, Pampa has been working up extensive scouting reports and reference charts on Amarillo teams, and, therefore, has a real good idea of what to expect.

What is to be expected tomorrow night is a rather exciting game between the Harvesters and the Palo Duro Dons at 7:30 in Dick Bivins Stadium in Amarillo.

In years past a game like this would see Palo Duro as the overwhelming favorite with Pampa in the role of underdog, hoping without hope for an upset.

This year that "just ain't so." Even though Palo Duro still is the favorite in a lot of places, the Harvesters have the poise, confidence, talent, and balance to come out on top.

No doubt about it, Palo Duro has a good team.

Last year's Dons posted a 9-1 record, losing only to Abilene Cooper in Bi-district. Last year's Dons shut out three teams, Caprock, Lubbock, and Coronado.

One might say, "But that was last year—what does that have to do with this year?"

Tascosa was in the South Zone of District 4-AAAA last year.

The rushing leader in that zone of District 4-5A for last year was Ralph Scott of Palo Duro. Scott got 635 yards in 93 carries for a 6.8 average and seven touchdowns. After three games in the 1970 district season, Scott has 254 yards in 48 carries for a 5.2 average with two touchdowns. Scott is currently fourth in rushing in District 3-AAAA. Watch out for Ralph Scott!!!!

Number two man in district rushing stats is Ray T. Jones, Jones equaled Scott in number of carries, but gained 322 yards for three tallies with a 6.7 average. Watch out for Ray T. Jones!!!!

Palo Duro has an explosive backfield, but as one sage put it, "they're tough but they aren't unbeatable."

Turner Might Touch Football With Luck

NEW YORK (UPI)—Cecil Turner of the Chicago Bears may be lucky if he gets his hand on another football the rest of the year.

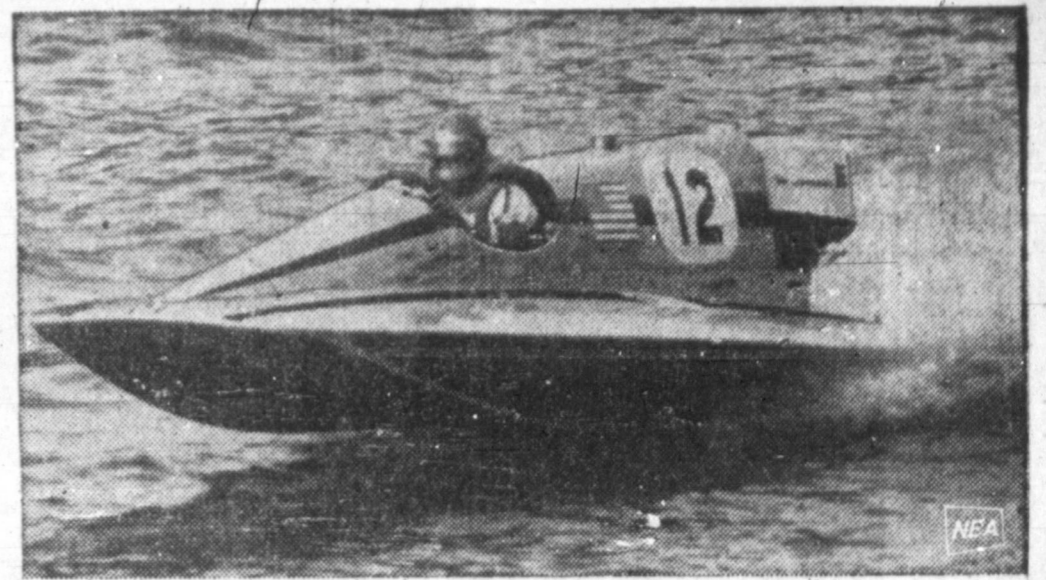

The speedy back has been devastating in his role as a kickoff returner this season, and rival clubs should have learned by now not to kick the ball in his direction. Turner has returned only 14 kicks all season, but three of them have been for touchdowns, including one for 94 yards last Sunday against the Atlanta Falcons.

Turner's three touchdowns with kickoff returns leaves him just shy of the National Football League record for one season, set by Travis Williams of the Green Bay Packers in 1967. Turner also has boosted his lead in the National Football Conference's kickoff return department. Turner has averaged 37.6 yards per return, which is 4.5 yards per game better than Alvin Haymond of Los Angeles.

There were three changes this week in the various offensive departments. Charil Taylor of Washington has supplanted Gene Washington of San Francisco as the conference's leading pass receiver with 31 catches, Dick Lebeau of Detroit has taken over the lead in interceptions with five and Mike Briggs of Washington has moved past Bobby Joe Green of Chicago in the punting department with an average of 43.5 yards per kick.

The other departments remain unchanged from a week ago. Larry Brown of Washington is the leading rusher with 596 yards, Fred Cox of Minnesota tops the scorers with 70 points, John Brodie of San Francisco leads the passers with a low point rating of 10 and Tom McCauley of Atlanta leads in punt returns with an average of 16.4 yards.

Johnny Sanders—100 m.p.h. on the straightaway.

Americans Find Power Plants Pay In Racing

By WM T. McKEOWN

Johnny Sanders is an airline mechanic and lives in Abilene, Tex. Jimbo McConnell and Ron Hill are Californians. Jimbo is an engineer in Victorville. Ron is a grade school teacher in Garden Grove.

But their real specialties are learning on a hand throttle or flooring the foot pedal of an outboard racing boat. Between them they've cleaned up in the two biggest events in Europe.

Americans don't wait around to find who won the Six Hours of Paris or Berlin's Six-Hour classic. Raced on the narrow river in the center of the city, the event churns up waves that bounce back from stone walls in a hull-crushing mix while big river barges plow through the middle of the 85-entry contest. Straightaway speeds

Last year, Renato Molinari from Italy drove a tunnelhull designed by his uncle to beat Sanders by 11 seconds, and Mercury sales also soared into the lead. This year, Sanders completed 441 miles during the six hours on the Seine to set a new record average of 73.5 m.p.h. and beat Renato by five miles. Sanders' 17-foot Molinari hull was powered with the Johnson outboard Stinger, rated 115-plus horsepower but probably souped up 50 per cent over that.

Sanders, at 35, is the first American ever to take the Paris classic. Raced on the narrow river in the center of the city, the event churns up waves that bounce back from stone walls in a hull-crushing mix while big river barges plow through the middle of the 85-entry contest. Straightaway speeds neared 100 m.p.h. this year for the single-outboard flyers, and only 44 lasted the 360 minutes.

Jumbo McConnell crashed into a barge and left his boat at the bottom of the river, but teamed with Ron Hill at Berlin the next weekend to lead all the way and win with an Evinrude Starlife SS, also rated at that 115-plus horsepower. He beat Molinari by five minutes while inboard dragboat Dick Nordskog from Van Nuys, Calif., tried outboards and finished third.

Happiest boatman around was probably ex-racing driver Charles Strang of Waukegan, Head engineer at Outboard Marine, makers of Johnsons and Evinrudes, he saw his drivers beat out Mercury, the company where he had been head engineer before.

Plunkett Has Major Task In Store Against Washington St.

By WILLIAM VERIGAN
UPI Sports Writer

Stanford quarterback Jim Plunkett has a big task confronting him if he wants to make the oddsmakers' prediction come true that the Indians will beat Washington by 17 points on Saturday.

The biggest job facing Plunkett, a prime Heisman Trophy contender, will be matching the performance of Washington's Sonny Sixkiller.

Plunkett is second in the nation in total offense with 2,156 yards for a 269.5 yard average in eight games, but Sixkiller is not far behind, averaging 222.3 yards.

Indians Want Rose Bowl

Although Plunkett has been getting most of the attention in the Pacific Eight, Sixkiller leads the nation in passing. Sixkiller has completed 133 of 252 passes for 1,612 yards compared to Plunkett's 132 of 250 for 1,965 yards. Senior Plunkett has been in one more game than Sixkiller, a sophomore.

The fifth-ranked Indians, 6-1, can clinch a Rose Bowl bid with a victory over Sixkiller's gang, which has a 4-3 record.

Stanford coach John Ralston bluntly calls the game with the Huskies "the biggest game we've ever had to play."

However, Stanford is the only team among the nation's top five that is expected to have trouble this weekend. No odds were established for the four top-ranked teams. Texas (No. 1) takes on Baylor, Notre Dame (No. 2) faces Pittsburgh Ohio State (No. 3) plays Wisconsin and Nebraska (No. 4) tangles with Iowa State.

Texas Running Wild

Texas, with the most potent rushing attack in major college history, replaced Ohio State at the top of the ratings this week after the Buckeyes had unexpected trouble winning their last two games.

Steve Worster has 106.2 yards per game rushing for Texas, which has run wild for an average of 391.7 yards. Oklahoma holds the major college rushing record with 391.0 yards per game in 1956.

Notre Dame, relying on quarterback Joe Theismann, takes the most explosive offense in the nation against Pitt. Theismann has accounted for 243.7 yards per game for the Irish, who led the nation with 544.5 yards per game.

In other games involving the top ten, sixth-ranked Michigan is a 21-point choice over Illinois, Air Force (No. 7) is five over Oregon, Tennessee (No. 10) is 13 over South Carolina. Eighth-ranked Arkansas faces Rice, and ninth-rated Auburn plays Mississippi State at Birmingham, Ala.

Elsewhere, Michigan State is favored by 6½ over Purdue, Cornell is 12 over Brown, Alabama is three over Louisiana State, Mississippi seven over Houston, North Carolina State three over Virginia, Duke eight over Wake Forest, Princeton 7½ over Harvard, Kentucky seven over Vanderbilt, Yale 13 over Pennsylvania, Southern Methodist 12 over Texas A&M, Syracuse 13 over Army, Iowa seven over Indiana, Missouri two over Oklahoma, Texas Christian seven over Texas Tech, Colorado nine over Kansas, California six over Oregon State, Florida State 13½ over Clemson, and Tulane 11 over Miami (Fla.).

O. J. Simpson Is Starting To Show His Winning Form For Buffalo Bills

NEW YORK (UPI)—O.J. Simpson is beginning to flash the form which made him one of the greatest runners in the history of collegiate football two years ago.

Simpson, in his second pro season, has finally caught on to the Buffalo Bills' difficult offensive system and has been lugging the ball with authority in recent weeks. Last Sunday against the Boston Patriots, Simpson carried 17 times and gained 123 yards for his best performance as a pro, and as a result has moved into contention in the American Football Conference's rushing race.

The former Southern California star has moved into third place with 448 yards and is only 52 yards behind the No. 2 rusher, Hewitt Dixon of Oakland. Floyd Little of Denver continues to lead, with 558 yards. Simpson has a good chance to move into second place next week as Dixon is not expected to play this Sunday.

There were no changes among the leaders in the major offensive categories this week. Daryle Lamonica of Oakland continues to lead the passers with a low point rating of 10, Eddie Hinton of Baltimore and Ray Chester of Oakland top the pass receivers with 30 catches, Jan Stenerud of Kansas City leads the scorers with 60 points and Paul Marth of Denver is tops in interceptions with four for 65 yards.

Ed Podolak of Kansas City leads in punt returns with a 15.6 average, but Jim Duncan of Baltimore has replaced Mel Blount of Pittsburgh in kickoff returns with a 39.9 average. Jerrell Wilson of Kansas City has taken over as the leading punter with an average of 46.6 yards per kick.

Cowboys Are Back With A Dilemma At Free Safety Spot, For The Moment It Is Not Too Dangerous

DALLAS (UPI)—The Dallas Cowboys are back with a dilemma at the free safety spot. For the moment it is not too dangerous.

They thought they had the situation solved when rookie Cliff Harris of little-known Ouachita Baptist University came through in grand style and shunted sophomore Richmond Flowers and rookie Charlie Waters aside.

Then, Uncle Sam came along and insisted that Harris spend the next four months with his reserve unit at Fort Polk, La. So Harris departed and the important slot was once again thrown up for grabs.

Flowers, a one-time Tennessee hurdler now in his second season, has drawn the starting nod, but Waters, who was both a quarterback and a pass receiver at Clemson, is making it interesting.

"We felt we had to develop another free safety with Harris leaving," Coach Tom Landry said. "We felt we had two good hustlers but both were inexperienced."

"We'll alternate them. Waters has an excellent knack of playing the ball, which is his long suit. I just hope one will emerge."

Meanwhile, Harris apparently has worked things out with his superiors to where he could get back into Dallas on Friday nights and play with the Cowboys on Sundays—but Landry isn't so sure that will work.

"Harris is too much of a rookie to step into a game each Sunday without more daily preparation," Landry said, "so he couldn't fit into our plans at free safety under those conditions."

"But, he could be a big help to us on our specialty teams if we can make room for him somehow," the coach said.

Landry also has to worry about making room soon, possibly this week, for running back Walt Garrison, who got sidelined three weeks ago to open the gate for rookie Duane Thomas to shine as a ball carrier.

"I hope Garrison will be ready...we need his experience," Landry said. "But, he'll have to earn his way back to a starting job. You have to assure yourself that you are okay and can run as before."

"Meantime, Thomas will keep starting," Landry added, pointing out in answer to a question that the rookie wouldn't lose his job "just because he might fumble one—everybody does that."

Landry dismissed the impotency of the Dallas rushing game against Philadelphia last week—only 46 yards and no first down on the ground.

"Manders (center Dave) had a lot of hurts and couldn't take out the linebacker, Hill (running back Calvin) was hurt all week and we just were not blocking," Landry said. "They had a lot of people up there, but so does everybody else against us."

"But, that opened the door for our big play bombs—the last part of our game to come around this season. Now, if we can just get them all together at once."

Student Volunteers May Be Needed For Detroit Cagers

DETROIT (UPI)—The University of Detroit may have to ask student volunteers to play varsity basketball for the Titans this season.

The entire basketball team has boycotted practice all week after controversial coach Jim Harding suspended two players.

The 18-man varsity met Wednesday with the Rev. Malcolm Carron, president of the university, but he told them to straighten their differences with Harding.

"We may have two alternatives," Harding said. "We may have to forget our schedule completely—and that's a distinct possibility—or we may issue a call for students to come out and play for the school."

The players would not comment on their grievances following the hour-long session. They did not say whether they would meet with Harding today.

Forman K.O.'s Against Lou Bailey

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)—George Foreman, the world's third-ranked heavyweight boxer, knocked out Lou Bailey of Peoria, Ill., in the third round of a scheduled 10-round Tuesday night.

Foreman, a 6-3, 215-pounder who won the 1968 Olympic championship in Mexico City, is unbeaten in 23 fights.

Bailey, 32, has been a sparring partner for Sonny Liston and recently knocked out Ohio heavyweight Joe Byrd.

In Tuesday's second featured match, Ron Stander, unbeaten in 16 starts, knocked out Murphy Gordwin of Houston in the first round. Stander, 6-1 and 215 pounds, is the Nebraska heavyweight champion.

Two Oilers May Return Sunday

HOUSTON (UPI)—Houston Oilers coaches say there is a possibility middle linebacker Garland Boyette and safety Ken Houston will be off the injured list and ready to play Sunday against the Kansas City Chiefs.

South Carolina's Harris Sets Mark For Kickoff Returns

NEW YORK (UPI)—It took released today by National Collegiate Sports Services.

Harris' total average was 0.4 yards per return more than Henry Hawthorne of Kansas State.

Bob Wicks of Utah State displaced Dartmouth's Tim Copper for leadership in punt returns, averaging 18.6 yards per return. Copper was tied with West Texas State's Raymond Brown in second at 17.5.

South Carolina's Dick Harris one good afternoon's work to become the national kickoff return leader.

Harris, a 6-foot-1, 195-pound senior, set a major college season mark by returning five kickoffs for 183 yards in a loss to Georgia Saturday. The figure gave Harris 596 yards for the season and an average of 31.4 per return to rank tops in the nation, according to statistics

Shockers Looking For Sixth Win Tonight Against Tascosa B

The Pampa B-team Shockers will play the Tascosa B-team here in Harvester Stadium at 7:30 tonight.

Coach Jim Cunningham's team is now 5-1-1 for the season. Led by sophomore quarterback Rick Musgrave, the Shockers play an exciting brand of football that puts points on the scoreboard.

Ardent fans of the Pampa Harvesters would do well to attend the game tonight.

This year's Shockers will be next year's Harvesters. With both Pampa Junior High and Robert E. Lee doing well in conference play, the Harvesters of the future will surely be the team to beat in future district seasons. Game time will be 7:30. There is no admission charge.

Who knows! A Steve Worster or a Joe Theismann might emerge from a starting berth on the Pampa Shockers.

Giants End Love Affair

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Giants and the city of San Francisco apparently have ended their love affair.

The Giants filed a breach of contract suit against the city in Superior Court Wednesday, seeking an injunction against a 50-cent surcharge ordered by the city's board of supervisors last week for every ticket sold to Candlestick Park, home of the baseball club.

The price increase is an effort to raise about a half million dollars a year toward defraying a $16.1 renovation job on the 10-year-old park.

Taxed To Pay For Gun

Ever wonder why you're paying more and more and getting less and less? Hang around for a few lines and find out how labor unions, aided and abetted by government, are using your own earnings as a means of further robbing you.

And, as a means of gaining a better understanding of what is being done to you and the utter evil of the union-government combine, imagine a business man "enjoying a government-granted monopoly, laying down the consumers of a community."

"Listen, you stubborn people, I've got a monopoly in this town on the sale of food; so don't imagine that you can go running to any competitor who might undercut the price increases I am about to begin charging for food."

3 Areas To Cut Auto Toll

Despite the fact that U.S. motorists are chalking up more than one trillion vehicular miles each year, the death rate on the nation's highways is gradually declining.

"We are beginning to see some nice trends," says Douglas Toms, director of the National Highway Safety Bureau. For instance, "chest and facial injuries have dropped way off because of collapsible steering columns and the use of nonshattering glass in windshields."

The "Auto Safe" system, developed by Irwin Industries, consists of a wire attached to the seat belt webbing and connected to the car's ignition system.

Small sensors inside the seat cushions are activated when a passenger sits down. If the belts in all occupied positions are not fastened, the ignition will not work. Another sensing device in the buckle can detect if a belt is actually being worn.

The theory is that most people, once they buckle up, will tend to stay buckled up. But to make sure, a dashboard light and audio signal go on if a belt is unfastened after the car is started and continue flashing and buzzing until it is refastened.

The company claims that the bugs have been worked out and that the system is ready for immediate use. It is currently being tested by the Department of Transportation.

The latter is both the most promising and most controversial safety proposal of all. The government wants air bags installed as standard safety equipment on all new cars by the 1972 model year.

Automakers, as usual, plead a variety of technical difficulties.

Fortunately, while this question is being hashed out, there may be something that can be done immediately to help reduce auto deaths and injuries. The world's largest maker of seat belts, who is also working on the air bag concept,

DECISION AT OTTAWA

Canada, our "closest friend and ally," has turned its back on Taiwan and formally recognized the butchers of Peking as the legal government of China. Whatever explanations Ottawa may make for its actions, it will not soften the blow suffered by the United States and the remainder of the free world.

If the brains of the vicious world of communism are in Moscow, part of the powerhouse is in Peking. Thousands of our fighting men have died before the might of that powerhouse in Korea and Indo-China. The diplomatic recognition of communist China by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's government doesn't put the two nations into alliance but it weakens our hand as the leader of the front opposed to international communism.

The recognition also gives Peking new license in operating an embassy at our doorstep. The embassies of Russia and Red China are traditionally hotbeds of subversive activity.

The decision at Ottawa also weakens our position vis-a-vis Peking in keeping Taiwan in the United Nations and Red China out, although the world group has lost such stature already that this may not be a great diplomatic loss. Trudeau's actions in the field of diplomacy compliments the grains trade arrangement that has existed between the two governments for a long time. Canada wheat feeds the stomachs of the people who aim at world domination through the subversion processes of communism.

Thus, our neighbor to the North takes an action that is within its province but that also indirectly stabs us in the back. Are these Canadians of the same stripe that bled and died for freedom at Dieppe?

In speaking about commissions, that pornography study is one instance of worthless waste.

Their recommendations were that we should allow open smut throughout the country because it does not in any way lead to more crime.

It may or may not lead to more criminal acts, or even influence them. That is no excuse for turning the country into an animalistic society composed of 90 percent filth and 10 percent incense.

It is not to be considered that smut has any elevating influence whatsoever in society — in fact it does the opposite, as evidence shows in Denmark since pornography was legalized in June 1967; a country of dirty books, dirty pictures and dirty minds.

Speaking of movies it does not seem possible they can go smutty further. Even those rated for "family viewing" spouts such blasphemous language that any decent family would be too embarrassed to face their own kids when they get out in the daylight.

These sewer-mouth movies come upon the viewer unexpected. I went to see a film titled "Soldier Blue," with the expectation of seeing a historical rendition of the Sand Creek Massacre. What I heard was such a tirade of filth coming from the mouth of Candice Bergen I couldn't follow the plot.

I consider this practice of rating such a film "family entertainment" an outright deceit in an attempt to force smut on decent people.

I seldom attend movies, for this reason. But I was glad I saw this one. Many people asked me whether they should take their family to see it and I was able to save them shock and embarrassment.

Actually, we think a good case can be made that the administration's economic policy is working, albeit slowly and with some setbacks. It must be emphasized once again that this is a Democratic inflation the Republican authorities have been wrestling with. In charity one might possibly acknowledge that the Democratic economists and bureaucrats did not want it to get-out of hand

A Tricky Business

(The Wall Street Journal)

Treasury Secretary Kennedy may be right that the Federal Reserve Board can continue its easier monetary policies without worsening inflationary pressures. But it is a tricky business, with uncertain consequences.

In talking with reporters the other day, Mr. Kennedy left no doubt that policy has changed from restraint to stimulus. At the same time he apparently felt constrained to express his own reservations, observing that the nation has "still some distance to go before one could begin to see that a reasonable degree of price stability had been restored" and that he was against "too rapid, forced expansion of the economy."

The fact is that monetary policy at the moment is in a state of great confusion, even for the experts.

Thus, while it is generally accepted that the current condition is one of easing, interpretations of its significance vary. The October First National City Bank Economic Letter warns against another excessive increase in the money supply, and yet it notes offsetting factors in the present equation.

For one, "banks sharply reduced their borrowing from Reserve Banks because of the outpouring of liquidity from the monetary authorities and the slippage in short-term interest rates. Consequently, total members bank reserves grew substantially less than did nonborrowed reserves."

All in all, the Letter figures that the net growth of money supply was not above target after all. The rate of money supply increase can vary quite sharply from month to month without necessarily reaching an inflationary annual rate.

However that may be, the deeper policy question it seems to us, turns on the Fed's intentions. Does it still plan to adhere to the announced goal of moderate expansion of the money supply? Or has it, in the bank letter's words, "chosen an easy route that would rekindle first inflationary expectations and then inflation itself?"

The political temptations toward the latter course are manifestly strong, even though the Federal Reserve is supposed to be above that mundane arena and independent of the political administration in power. Democratic politicians and Democratic-oriented economists are jumping all over the Republican administration for the alleged failure of its economic approach. And the Fed, as the money-manager partner in the approach, is hardly immune to the blasts.

Actually, we think a good case can be made that the administration's economic policy is working, albeit slowly and with some setbacks. It must be emphasized once again that this is a Democratic inflation the Republican authorities have been wrestling with. In charity one might possibly acknowledge that the Democratic economists and bureaucrats did not want it to get-out of hand

Your Health

By Dr. Lawrence Lamb

Do-It-Yourself Physical Can Indicate the Score

You can do a lot of the important parts of a medical checkup for heart and vascular disease yourself. Much important evidence that you may become a victim is fairly obvious.

Let's see how you score: Reach around to the back just below the ribs and pick up a fold of skin. If it is over a half-inch-thick you have excess fat deposits. Try the same thing around the navel. The thicker the roll the sicker the patient. A truly lean body usually means less likelihood of developing fatty deposits in the arteries.

What has happened to your waistline? Can you wear the same clothes you wore in your early twenties? If not, you are on the road to the diseases of civilization — unless you are pregnant.

What is your body weight? If you have gained weight since your early twenties it is most likely not muscle — weight gain after that age is usually fat.

Check your resting heart rate. If it is less than 70 beats per minute you are more apt to have good heart action. Young men in good physical condition usually have heart rates of 60 beats per minute or less. If your resting heart rate is over 80 beats per minute you have a much greater chance of sudden death at an earlier age than those with rates below 70.

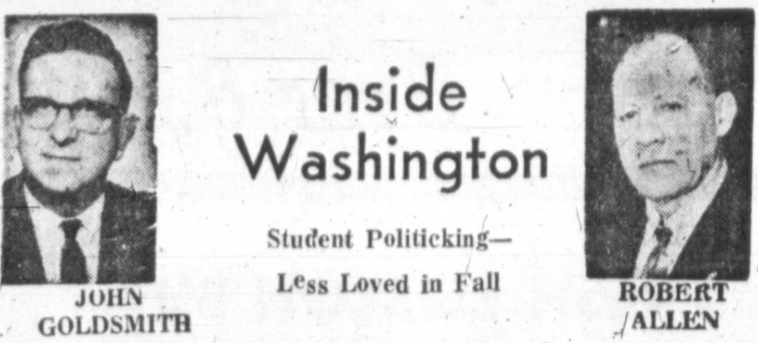

If you didn't flunk the first heart rate test, exercise by running in place about one minute at a rate of 60 steps a minute — counting when the left foot hits the floor. Lie down and count your heart rate again if it is over 100 beats per minute you are not in optimal condition. You don't need to run to the doctor. Get rid of the cigarettes, coffee, colas and alcohol first. Start walking some each day.

Now, inventory your food habits. Are you on a diet low in saturated fat and cholesterol? You should be. What do you eat for breakfast? Eggs? Bacon? Buttered toast? Coffee with cream? If so, you start each day losing ground on your health program.

What are your habits? Cigarettes? Coffee? Colas? Alcohol? If you are a heavy smoker, you are significantly increasing your chances of illness.

Do you have an exercise program or do you get enough exercise?

These items are the most important aspects of an annual examination for the vast majority of people. I am appalled at how many people have expensive annual checkups that ignore these aspects of health. Often the patient leaves without anyone really saying to him about his habits. Oh, there is lots of interest in the laboratory tests — usually normal — but the real meat of the issue is in the above items. And you can answer most of these questions yourself.

Student Politicking— Less Loved in Fall

WASHINGTON. — In the campaign wind-up it was widely noted that the outpouring of student politicians from college campuses, widely predicted after the Cambodia invasion last spring, mostly failed to materialize.

A simple explanation has been suggested. It is said that students simply lost interest in politics as the major provocations — Cambodia and the killings at Kent and Jackson State — receded into last semester's memories.

President Nixon, it is pointed out, has removed the U.S. troops from Cambodia as promised and has been reducing the overall U.S. commitment in Southeast Asia. The President has also proposed a standstill cease-fire.

Under these circumstances we are told that the surge of student interest ebbed, that young people become bored with the political bag, and that campuses became apathetic about the prospects of a new and better Congress which had seemed so important in the spring.

Unquestionably, there is some substance to this analysis. Politicking is hard and tiresome work, and students can certainly become as bored and disenchanted with its weary exercises as others in the electorate.

Before the spring surge of interest is forgotten, however, (and so that young people do not seem to have been wholly fickle) it should be noted that there were, from the very beginning, flaws in the concept of an academic holiday for anti-campaigning. There were questions on many campuses as to whether such a holiday could or should be granted.

LEGAL BARS—From the beginning it was clear that there were legal hazards in a surge of political activity on the campuses. Many college and university administrators were immediately aware of the problems. They realized that on-campus political activities could run afoul of the Internal Revenue Code. Under the code, tax-exempt institutions may not devote any "substantial part" of their activities to propaganda or attempts to influence legislation. Nor can they intervene in political campaigns.

Colleges and universities — especially private institutions supported by endowment — need tax-exempt status under the code for their operations and their fund raising. Administrators were understandably concerned.

Responding to that concern, the American Council on Education issued cautionary guidelines in mid-June. The guidelines warned of possible violations of the tax code and the corrupt practices act, but said the mere rearrangement of a college calendar to allow political activity by individuals would not seem to violate the code.

That cautious appraisal by the Council on Education was challenged in October by a study founded by the American Enterprise Institute. The study, by Yale law professor Robert H. Bork and two experts in tax law, said rearrangement of academic schedules to accommodate faculty and students might not, under certain circumstances, be sanctioned by the revenue code.

"There may be no problem if the academic calendar is rearranged as a permanent matter and this decision is taken without reference to particular issues and campaigns," the study said.

"But there would appear to be at least the possibility of danger if the calendar is rearranged at the request or demand of groups within the university community that the university knows intend to take one side in a campaign," the AEI study declared.

German People Look Ahead, Hope For Reunited Nation

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — There has been a good deal more early ecstasy over the Bonn-Moscow "renunciation of force" pact than the general East-West relationship — and especially the German situation — justifies.

Any easing of tensions and settling of borders is, of course, properly welcome. But the divisions within Europe are still serious, with far too much emphasis upon ideological differences to suit the circumstances of the fast-changing world of today.

The continued existence of the two Germanies cannot be brushed aside as if they were two Koreas or two Vietnams. The German separation is a far-bigger, long-range time bomb than is the Mideast or the Far East.

European analysts are saying that East and West Germany will not be drawn together until the United States and Russia have come to much closer understanding than is found today. Some argue that the "German problem" will be the last to be solved.

This may be the hardest kind of political realism. Yet it is also realistic to recognize that the German people feel themselves as one and want some positive movement soon toward tighter bonds.

To this end, the big Western powers are presently working to promote a freer flow of people and an easing of restrictions between the two Germanies.

It is a fact, however, that this effort goes slowly. In his own endeavors West German Chancellor Willy Brandt has had a much harder time negotiating with the East German leaders than he had in Moscow or Warsaw (with whom the present Polish East German border was settled).

The East German Reds want, as they always have, full recognition as a separate state. Brandt has been searching for a solution that would seem to be for the time being, some independent status to East Germany but not abandon the goal — still vivid in German minds — of reunification.

Though Moscow's pressure may now alter the situation, the East Germans have been incredibly stubborn. Among their demands, for instance, is one for payment to them by Bonn of 10,000 marks for every East German who has crossed the line into West Germany. It is estimated this would come to about $1 billion. West Germans regard the claim as an absurdity.

It would be much more to the point if money flowed the other way. There is a very lively trade between West and East Germany but the Reds' trade deficit at this stage is in the range of $1.1 billion.

West German companies involved have been reimbursed by the Bonn government. The situation amounts to a sort of internal "foreign aid" program by that government. The question is whether that East German debt is going to be repaid and whether it will be permitted to grow.

Otto Wolff von Amerongen, a specialist in East-West trade who favors its growth, told me in Cologne a few weeks ago that this unbalanced German trade situation was "on the brink" and could not go much farther.

Moscow's "new spirit" of accommodation, as evidenced by the pact with Bonn, will not enchant realistic Europeans too greatly until the Kremlin leans on East Germany and compels its Communist overlords to stop demanding everything for nothing.

In this respect, the Bonn-Moscow pact itself was not altogether heartening. The document, as is well-known, did not allude to German reunification. That issue was hit at just slantingly by appending to the treaty some letters from the West German government to the Western Big Three, pledging Bonn to seek German unity. Moscow allegedly took cognizance of this concern.

Understandably, neither the Soviet Union nor Poland nor any other European land recalling World War II looks forward eagerly to a strong, reunited Germany. The East's wish for continuing security arrangements backed by Moscow is plausible enough. But Moscow cannot hope to keep Germany separated indefinitely.

Unlike the condition in such a place as divided Korea, there is no animosity in the Germanies at the popular level.

Best Way To Give Advice

NEW YORK (NAPS) — Advice is the one commodity almost everyone likes to give and almost nobody likes to take.

Yet there comes a time in every life when to advise seems necessary — even, one might say, advisable. However, unless you're a Marine sergeant or a Miss Lonely hearts, it's going to take a lot more than good intentions to get your message across. In other words, the way you present your suggestions will have a decided effect on whether or not they are followed.

Psychologists, who make their living by advice-giving, offer eight tips on the subject: Don't call them; Let them call you. If possible, wait until you're asked. This is not always easy but you'll receive more cordial hearing if you can hold out. Despite an overwhelming urge to advise, the object of your good intentions may learn his lesson better the hard way. Of course, there are occasions when you just can't afford to wait for an opening — and that's where the challenge lies.

In this case sugar coat your suggestions. In most cases, if the advice offered can be concealed in a more palatable form — such as a compliment, an offer of help, or a confidence — it will be swallowed with far greater relish.

If, for instance, you're a mother-in-law eager to persuade a young wife that stew makes a fine substitute for steak, don't stress her extravagance. It's far better to praise her culinary talents, then offer several new gourmet recipes for stew which you feel sure she can "cook to perfection."

On the "Third-Party" line, husbands hate nagging wives, but the clever spouse can offer advice so tactfully that her other half never knows he's a victim.

"Don't you think Bill Bailey was a fool to gamble away all that money at the races?"
