Youth Dies On The Hill

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — It's called "on the hill." No proper name. Not "the hill." It's "on the hill." It's one square block.

The street people live there. "I hesitate to use the term hippies to describe these people," City Manager Buford Watson Jr. said Tuesday. "They want to end the Vietnam War. They want peace. They want social change. They see this racial situation as a means to demonstrate."

Harry Nicholas Rice's girlfriend lives "on the hill." Rice died "on the hill."

Chris Mabbitt, 21, works for a local auto dealer. He was also "on the hill" Monday night. He said 15 policemen opened fire on 150 youths when three or four of them tried to overturn a car and set it on fire.

"I saw four officers walking down the street abreast," Mabbitt said. "I heard one officer say 'Shoot him! Shoot him!' The order to shoot definitely came from the police. They were shooting to hit the people who were lighting the fire."

Owned Volkswagen

Rice's father believes his son was at his girlfriend's house when he heard a Volkswagen was being set on fire. The slain youth owned a Volkswagen.

No official explanation has been offered as to who killed Rice. The fatal bullet has not been recovered.

"We have plenty of witnesses who saw Rice fall while fleeing officers," said Mike Elwell, assistant county attorney. "But no one heard any shots or saw where they came from."

"I don't think it was a policeman's bullet that killed my boy," Rice's father said. "I saw the wound. It was a small wound, not the sort of wound that would have been caused by the weapons the police had."

"On the hill" borders the university campus to the northeast.

On the East Side of Lawrence is the city's Negro district, the scene of much unrest. Rick Donald Dowdell, 19, was killed there Thursday after police allegedly were fired upon by snipers. The police officer who shot Dowdell was relieved of his duties Monday pending the outcome of a coroner's inquest. But he remains on the police force at full pay.

Policeman Shot

A policeman was shot by a sniper while patrolling the East Side Friday night. He remains in the hospital with chest wounds.

"We had a problem in the black community last week and the street people have taken the opportunity to cause trouble," Watson said. "Last night's (Monday) trouble was not racial."

The 47-man Lawrence police force has been working double shifts for five straight days.

Gov. Robert B. Docking was supposed to be in Columbus, Ohio, today attending a meeting of Midwestern governors. He returned to Kansas when he learned of the latest shooting and arrived in Lawrence "for a personal assessment" Tuesday night.

Docking granted a request of Lawrence officials for additional law enforcement help and issued a proclamation declaring an emergency crisis in the community. He ordered 25 Kansas state troopers to assist Lawrence police.

"I will not hesitate to take whatever steps are necessary to protect the citizens," Docking said. "We cannot—and will not—tolerate flagrant disregard for the laws of our state and nation."

THREATEN TO BLOW IT UP

Arab Guerrillas Seize Jet In Athens Airport

ATHENS (UPI)—Six Arab guerrilla passengers today seized an Olympic Airways jet with 58 persons aboard when it landed on a flight from Beirut and said they would blow it up unless Greece released seven imprisoned Arab commandos involved in anti-Israeli terrorist attacks here.

Deputy Premier Stylianos Pattakos personally negotiated with the guerrillas by radio from the Athens control tower and after five hours of bargaining persuaded the Arabs to reduce some demands and let a Red Cross representative aboard the plane, a Boeing 727. Two passengers were freed.

The guerrillas originally demanded freedom for two Arab commandos who go on trial Friday for a bomb explosion at the Israeli El Al Airlines office last November. Then they upped their demands to include release of five other Arabs sentenced for terrorist acts.

Government sources said they later reduced their demands to the immediate freedom for three commandos and the release of the rest within 30 days. In the meantime they freed an Iraqi woman, 22, who became ill, and her husband. She was rushed to the airport first aid station.

Several Arab ambassadors went to the airport to help in negotiating with the guerrillas, and airport sources said Lebanese Ambassador Robert Klak had been requested to contact his government.

Traffic at the airport continued normally. Scheduled aircraft arrived and departed with no signs of delays. No public announcement was made about the guerrilla action 300 yards from the terminal.

A government spokesman said the guerrillas on the plane also had demanded the release of two Arab commandos sent to prison in March for an attack on an El Al plane in December, 1968, and three others given light prison terms a month ago for trying to carry weapons and explosives aboard a plane in December, 1969.

The spokesman said the guerrillas were keeping the passengers in their seats at gunpoint. He said the guerrillas had let two deadlines pass and negotiations between them and Greek Deputy Prime Minister Stylianos Pattakos, who was in the Athens control tower, were still going on.

A ground hostess said the guerrillas were on board the Olympic Airways flight from Beirut and took over the plane when it landed at 10:10 a.m.

Soap Shortage Poses Soviet Social Problem

MOSCOW (UPI)—Russians will be better housed, better fed and better paid this year than ever before. But they will find it harder to buy soap.

The latest figures on the Soviet economy, published Tuesday, showed increases in nearly every area of production except soap. Soap output in the first half of 1970 fell by 10 per cent from 1969.

For the rest of the economy, the figures indicated the nation will achieve the goals set in its plan for this year. The report said overall economic growth was 8.5 per cent.

One of the most important indicators was per capita income, shooting up to an average of 120 rubles—$133—per month. That was only one ruble ($1.11) short of the final goal for the end of the year and was a sure sign the target will be met or surpassed.

The report, published by the government newspaper, Izvestia, detailed growth of consumer goods production but said the consumption rates were even higher, indicating factories are not meeting demands.

For example, the output of televisions and radios went up by 7 per cent but consumption increased by 8 per cent. A 5 per cent rise in production of washing machines was offset by an 8 per cent rise in purchases.

Other figures indicated the Soviets are striving to relieve citizens' hardships. They built 750,000 new apartments, and showed hefty increases in such chronically scarce food items as fruit, meat and milk products.

Consumer production took second place to heavy industry, where the Soviets traditionally concentrate their best efforts. Steel, electrical power, machine building and chemical industries recorded the strongest growth in the economy.

Though not part of the state plan, the production of new Soviet citizens continued apace.

This is the first year the population at 242.8 million, an increase of seven million persons over July 1, 1969.

Reds Reduce Effort To Guerrilla Activity

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Gen. William C. Westmoreland says President Nixon's Cambodian incursion has reduced Communist war activities in the southern part of Vietnam to "a guerrilla level."

Westmoreland said the massive strikes into Cambodian Communist sanctuaries had relieved military pressure, particularly on Saigon and the Makong Delta.

The Army chief of staff made his remarks in a plane-side news conference late Tuesday night after returning from an inspection tour of South Vietnam, where he was once Allied Commander. It was his first return trip.

"President Nixon's decision to cross into Cambodia has achieved great success, both in improving the morale situation of the South Vietnamese troops and in relieving the pressure on the southern part of the country Vietnam," he said.

"Without that operation, I think that part of Vietnam—namely Saigon and the Delta—would be under considerable pressure. But now the war has been reduced to a guerrilla level."

As Westmoreland returned from South Vietnam, President Nixon met with his top defense and diplomatic experts to give instructions to the new Paris negotiator, David K. E. Bruce. No details of the one hour, 45 minute meeting were released.

Turning his attention to Cambodia, Westmoreland said if the Cambodian government of Gen. Lon Nol is given enough material and moral support, "I think the Cambodians should be able to stand off their invaders."

He said the military situation in Cambodia looks "pretty good" but he noted that even with outside support, "it will be a long fight."

Westmoreland said there had been "substantial improvements" in the Vietnam situation since he left June 9, 1968.

Westmoreland said more people now are living in secure areas in Vietnam and "there was considerably more land under cultivation, which was one of the more startling things I observed," he said when he was Vietnam commander many

ROKs Stand Pat On Withdrawals

HONOLULU (UPI)—American delegates to the U.S.-Republic of Korea Defense Ministers Conference doubted today the ROK contingent would relax its opposition to American troops withdrawals from South Korea.

"The ROKs," said an American source, "have been ordered by Seoul to stand pat, and they are following their instructions to the letter."

The two-day meetings began Tuesday with "extremely frank and cordial" discussions of the American proposal to pull out 20,000 of the 64,000 Americans stationed in South Korea.

Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard outlined the American position at Tuesday's three-hour meeting at Camp H.M. Smith. He explained in great detail the Nixon doctrine in which the Republic of Korea and other nations threatened by Communist aggression would have to assume increasing responsibilities for their own security.

But always, Packard said, with the assurances that the United States would render immediate and whole-hearted assistance.

To support these assurances, American sources said Packard offered the South Koreans a conditional reconnaissance planes for their own air force, and said the Americans would beef up the number of jets in the Korea-Japanese area for South Korea's defense.

Cates-Trosper Controversy Due Airing Here On Friday

Phil Cates and Ray Trosper, candidates who have won and lost their bids for the Democratic party's nominee as state representative from the 79th Legislative District, will appear in 31st District Court in Pampa at 10 a.m. Friday for a pre-trial hearing on petitions filed by Trosper charging misconduct of election officials in the June 6 runoff election.

Cates had been thought the winner of the runoff, but the Democratic State Executive Committee in Austin found irregularities in the counting of ballots and named Trosper the winner.

Cates demanded a recount by the county executive committee in the district and when the recount was submitted to the state committee, the decision was reversed and on July 10 Cates was declared the party's official nominee.

Trosper filed the petitions last week charging irregularities in the way certain improperly marked ballots were counted. The request for court action in the case was Trosper's last resort to gain the nomination.

District Judge Grainger McIlhenny said he will hear the evidence in all seven petitions, five of which were filed in the 31st district and two in the 84th district.

McIlhenny said the consolidation of trials in the seven suits is necessary because the law requires such a trial to be held within ten days after the filing of a petition.

Trosper filed petitions in the seven counties of the 79th Legislative District after Phil Cates, his opponent for the district's state representative seat, was declared the Democratic party's nominee after a recount of the runoff votes.

McIlhenny said the candidates will determine in which county they would prefer the trial to be held. He said the trial would begin Monday unless Trosper or Cates ask for a postponement.

The law allows a postponement for at least five days.

McIlhenny was asked to hear the cases by 84th District Judge Max Boyer of Perryton. The trials will consolidate petitions filed in both courts.

USAF Searches For Russian Plane

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Air Force reported today the sighting of "a bundle of some type" and "a ball" in the north Atlantic during a search for a missing Russian mercy plane.

The big cargo plane, carrying relief supplies for victims of the Peruvian earthquake, has been missing since Saturday. It was believed to have been carrying 28 persons.

The Air Force said the sighting of what appeared to be survival gear along with other debris, was made 150 miles east of the southern tip of Greenland.

Pampa's Fairest

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first story in a seven-part series presenting interviews and background information on the 21 contestants for the Miss Top O' Texas beauty title.

By DON TURNER
News Staff Writer

The July 21 deadline Pampa's third annual Fall Festival Style Show and Miss Top O' Texas Beauty Pageant saw 21 beautiful young women into a contest for the Miss Top O' Texas.

That title carries with it the honor of representing Pampa in the Wheatheart of the Nation Contest in Perryton Aug. 24 and in October an expense-paid trip to the Texas State Fair in Dallas.

Each of the contestants comes to the pageant with slightly different idea of what they will like and what they will gain from the competition.

For Linda Brumley, Miss Bentley's, gaining confidence and being with the other girls are two important aspects of the pageant.

"It teaches you poise and confidence," she told The News Tuesday. "And it's a chance to be with the girls during the summer. It's good to get together again."

Miss Brumley, the 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Parks Brumley, 1315 Christine, is not new to the Top O' Texas pageant. She has been in the event since its inception two years ago being named second runner-up the first year.

This has not been the only honor in beauty competition for the 1970 Pampa High graduate who was named Basketball

Queen Attendant, Miss Flame Attendant and Spanish Queen Attendant at high school.

If it appears from this listing she is interested in sports, she is.

Miss Brumley was a Pop Squad captain for two years at Pampa High and football is her favorite sport.

She also found time for other interests at school—interests such as music and student government. Miss Brumley was Student Body secretary for the past school year, a member of Concert Choir, All-Region Choir, an All-State Choir alternate and a member of National Honor Society. And she was a Girl Scout for 11 years.

This fall Miss Brumley will enroll as a freshman at Texas Tech to major in elementary education.

"I like working with kids," she said. "And I think it will be a real rewarding occupation."

Most of the pageant contestants enjoy spectator sports (football is the favorite) and Ellen Curtis, Miss Las Pampas Galleries, is no exception.

"I love all sports," she said. "Football is my favorite and I like to water ski."

Miss Curtis is the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack T. Curtis, 2557 Aspen.

This is the first year in the contest for Miss Curtis who, as the song says, "five foot-two, eyes of blue."

"I think it's exciting working with all the other girls," she said.

First-time starting does carry some disadvantages, though.

"I got awfully scared during practice," she said.

Miss Curtis, has been active in school life for the past four years. She was a cheerleader at Robert E. Lee Junior High her seventh and eighth grade years and head cheerleader in ninth grade. Her freshman year she was also Best All-Around Girl and Optimist Youth. Her sophomore year in High School she served as class secretary and has been elected cheerleader for the upcoming year.

Though she has only been in high school one year, she is not sure whether she will be classified as a junior or senior. She has enough credits to be a senior and is thinking about graduating this summer.

Though she has worked hard to graduate early, she had no favorite subjects.

"None at all," she said. "I just want to go to college, do some traveling then settle down."

tucky Fried Chicken, the pageant is also a first.

"It may give me a little more confidence," she said. "And it might help improve my poise."

Miss Dodd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K.R. Dodd, 1528 Hamilton, was graduated from Pampa High in 1969 after being born and raised in Pampa.

She, too, likes sports, but has a slightly different priority than most.

"Yes, I like sports," she said. "I like football better than basketball, but baseball is my favorite."

Tennis is her favorite participant sport. She was on Pampa High's tennis team and now is playing tennis at West Texas State where she is a sophomore.

Miss Dodd is majoring in business psychology at West Texas with career plans pointed towards either personnel work or stock market brokerage.

Her interest in personal work came because she likes people. Her interest in stock brokerage came after a phone conversation.

"My mother started playing the stock market," she explained. "Once while I was talking on the phone she was talking money. After I finished she told me how much money we could have had if she had sold."

"I think I would like to play the stock market," she said. "It's kind of a gamble. Within a certain amount of time you have so much money, but if you don't jump you lose it."

Miss Dodd is looking forward to the competition Aug. 1.

"I'm looking forward to competing with girls I know, and seeing how they all go along with it and just have fun as a get-together for us all instead of a competing thing."

Population Figures Still Unpopular

EDINBURG (UPI) — Edinburg, the county seat of Hidalgo County in extreme South Texas, 1960 population: 18,150. 1970 population: 17,039, up 291 from the preliminary count but way below the figures a decade ago.

Mike Long, deputy regional census director:

"The increase of 291 is about the normal change between the preliminary population count and the final population count due to verification of the figures themselves and the results of the census post office check. These changes are normally made at our processing office in Jeffersonville, Ind."

The changes were made earlier in Edinburg's case. Mayor Lloyd Hawkins didn't like the preliminary census count which revealed a drastic decline in population. Last year, city officials estimated 20,000 persons lived in Edinburg.

To Prove Them Wrong

So Hawkins officially protested the census bureau statistics. And he set out to prove the head counters were wrong. The Census Bureau's preliminary statistics gave Edinburg a population of 16,748. The count conducted by the city totaled 18,150.

The city turned its figures over to the Census Bureau which tabulated the results and said it proved the preliminary totals were short by 291.

Hawkins is still not satisfied.

"I think they proved what they came down here to prove—that they were right," he said Tuesday. "They did not follow through in the manner promised, that is, to check urban renewal and school records which we used in our count to determine if people were in residence April 1."

Dismissed Many Households

Hawkins said he still believes his city has a population of more than 18,000. And he said he was not satisfied by the way the Census Bureau dismissed many households as duplicates.

He also issued some advice to other cities who are unhappy about their population totals: Don't fight the Census Bureau. He said the process requires more time and manpower than the city can spare.

Long said the extra cost of keeping the Census office open came to $5,000. That's $17 for each new person found.

LTV Licensed To Sell Planes To Israelis

DALLAS (UPI) — LTV Aerospace Corp. announced Tuesday it received an export license which would enable the company to sell defensive aircraft to the Israeli government.

The announcement by LTV Aerospace president Forest Mann said the company has no contracts with the government in Israel and "no further substantive action has been taken by this company."

LTV proposes to sell, if or when asked to do so by the U.S. government, the F8 Crusader jet fighter, which was manufactured in the 1950s and 1960s, and still is used by the U.S. Navy.

The LTV statement said: "The license is our permission to provide written and graphic material on the F8 directly to the Israeli government when and if asked to do so."

Before such sales are permitted, the U.S. Senate would have to give its approval, then aerospace firms could make proposals directly to the Israeli government.

The export license granted to LTV Aerospace was believed to be the first granted for the purpose of possibly selling plans to Israel.

TMA Readies Tax Radar

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Texas Manufacturers Association has formed a research division to find ways to prevent raising taxes in Texas next year.

The association's committee plans to look into all phases of state government and will issue periodic announcements concerning which phases of government spending the association feels can be cut.

"We plan to let the chips fall where they may," association president Ed C. Burris said Tuesday.

Burris said the association has a vested interest in keeping new taxes at a minimum. He said when the costs of running a government grows too rapidly, the taxpayers begin to take their money out of circulation. This money, he said, would ordinarily be invested in business growth.

Burris said the legislature last year could have increased state spending by $300 million per year without a tax increase. Instead, legislators increased state spending by more than $600 million a year and were forced to raise taxes by $300 million a year to finance the budget.

"We're building too much government in this country," he said. "It's becoming too burdensome and costly. Something has to be done."

Within recent weeks the Texas Wildlife Department and the Texas Education Agency announced preliminary budgets for the 1972-73 spending period calling for more than $500 million in new state spending for the two agencies.

"Our worry is the accelerated pace at which state spending is increasing," Burris said. "The rate is far more rapid than can be justified by the combination of inflation and population growth."

CHANGE IN POLICY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department has decided that for security reasons it will not give out the specific times in schedules for official visitors to the United States.

One department official said several incidents prompted the change in policy, including the attempted assassination of Nationalist Chinese Defense Minister Chiang-Kuo in New York earlier this year. Henceforth, the movements of official visitors will be listed only by date and place.

The Alaska Story Told City Realtors

Nicki (Mrs. Bill) Culpepper, a resident of Fairbanks, Alaska, and a native of Pampa, was the guest speaker for the Pampa Board of Realtors Tuesday noon in Coronado Inn.

Mrs. Culpepper's description of "Seward's Folly," so named by opponents of the Alaskan territory purchase in 1867 by the United States from Russia for $7,200,000, was of interest to the Realtors.

"There is quite a contrast to local living conditions, but a delightful climate prevails most of the year," Mrs. Culpepper reported.

Of Alaska's 284,000 residents reported in 1968, more than 45,000 live in the Fairbanks area and, reliable estimates project this population figure will rise to approximately 73,000 for 1980 in Metropolitan Fairbanks area, according to the guest speaker.

In comparing availability of housing in Pampa and Alaska, Mrs. Culpepper reported conditions in Fairbanks are critical, resulting in premium sale prices and, by comparison, abnormally high rental rates.

Mrs. Culpepper is the daughter of Eurl and Velma Lewter, 805 E. Francis.

RECORDS BLAST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission has recorded seismic signals from the Soviet Union, presumably from an underground nuclear blast.

The agency said the signals originated in the Semipalatinsk nuclear test area and were the equivalent of what would result from a blast in the 20 to 200 kiloton range.

Police Chief Won't Disclose Cause Of Kidnap-Murder Victim's Death

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—Police Chief Derold Husby refused Tuesday to disclose the cause of death of kidnap-murder victim Laurie Murningham, saying such information should be known only to the killer and the police.

"This is known to the killer and we should share the same information but no one else," Husby said at a news conference called one day after the 16-year-old girl's body was found in a swampy, rural area south of Lansing.

"He (the killer) may have overlooked something," Husby said. "I don't want to comment any further on it."

Husby said the results of an autopsy being performed on the body would be held in strictest police confidence.

Husby said Miss Murningham, who was abducted July 9 by a gunman who held up a gift shop where she worked, had been dead "a considerable length of time."

The blonde daughter of former Mayor Max Murningham was found Monday afternoon by two boys walking along a marshy state conservation area 22 miles south of here. Her white blouse, red belt and blue skirt were found inches from her body, but police have refused to say whether they washed off from her in the week of heavy rain or if they were removed before her death.

Identification was confirmed through dental X-ray comparisons.

Husby said a special task force of 16 area and State Police investigators would be assigned to exclusively cover the case. The FBI is still working with the local agencies in the meantime, he said.

Miss Murningham was kidnaped by a gun-wielding bandit who robbed Gallagher's Gift Shop of $60. The owner of the store, Mrs. Christine Gallagher, was pistol-whipped by the robber, but was able to give police a description of the abductor when she recovered.

A composite drawing was made from the description and circulated among truck driving terminals and police agencies across the country.

Throughout the investigation, police have received close to 1,600 tips in the case.

Rewards totaling $16,500 were pledged by organizations and anonymous donors for Laurie's safe return.

Sen. Long Proposes Child Care Network

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., proposed legislation Monday to establish a national network of child care centers which would offer pre-school nurseries, babysitting services and summer camping opportunities for youngsters.

Under Long's plan, fees paid by parents would pay for the services and would ultimately pay off a $500 million government loan to get the new service started.

Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said there probably wasn't a parent in the country "who has not felt at one time or another the need to have in his community a trusted resource for helping him find adequate care for a child, either on a temporary or a long-range basis."

He said the operation would be run by a Federal Child Care Corporation, which would either manage the new facilities or contract for them.

He envisioned such services as:

- Child Development Centers offering "an intensive educational experience" for pre-school toddlers.

- Family Day Care Centers offering supervision of youngsters in a home-like setting.
- Day or Summer Camps for vacationing parents.
- "Drop-in" facilities where a parent taking a college course or going shopping, could leave their children for a short period.
- At-home care or baby-sitting for working parents.
- Short-term boarding for parents who leave home for a short time.

Long told the Senate the facilities would have to meet federal standards.

"Today, millions of children are cared for somehow, while their parents work, in unlicensed facilities whose safety is simply unknown," he said.

Long has frequently cited the lack of daycare facilities for youngsters as a chief stumbling block in the attempt to put welfare recipients in jobs. The facilities he proposed would help solve that problem.

President, Pat Plan Mexico Trip

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon said today he and his wife will visit Mexico in early September and will spend some time "at a beautiful resort."

The President, in observing the 30th anniversary on June 21, of his marriage, let it be known that he wanted to return some time in the fall to Mexico, where he and Mrs. Nixon spent their honeymoon.

While accepting an anniversary gift from Ambassador Hugo Margain of Mexico in his office today, Nixon said, "We're planning a trip to Mexico in early September."

Mrs. Nixon, who was present, was taken by surprise and gaped happily. "Oh! We are?"

The President said they plan to visit "a beautiful resort" but declined to give the location except to say it would not be Acapulco because "I've been there."

The Nixons are expected to fly to Mexico following a Labor Day trip to the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif.

News In Brief

Laurie's Funeral Set Thursday LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Police refused Tuesday to disclose the cause of death and autopsy results for Laurie Murningham. They said the information should be known only to the killer and police.

Hijacked Gold Too Heavy To Handle NEW YORK (UPI) — Five men hijacked a panel truck loaded with $200,000 worth of gold Tuesday, then took less than a third of the shipment. The truck was found abandoned three hours after the robbery with $100,000 worth of bullion intact.

LTV Licensed To Sell Planes To Israelis

DALLAS (UPI) — LTV Aerospace Corp. announced Tuesday it received an export license which could enable the company to sell defensive aircraft to the Israeli government.

The announcement by LTV Aerospace president Forrest Mann said the company has no contracts with the government in Israel and "no further substantive action has been taken by this company."

LTV proposes to sell, if or when asked to do so by the U.S. government, the F8 Crusader jet fighter, which was manufactured in the 1950s and 1960s, and still is used by the U.S. Navy.

Before such sales are permitted, the U.S. Senate would have to give its approval, then aerospace firms could make proposals directly to the Israeli government.

CHANGE IN POLICY WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department has decided that for security reasons it will not give out the specific times in schedules for official visitors to the United States.

Several department officials said recent incidents prompted the change in policy, including the attempted assassination of Nationalist Chinese Defense Minister Chiang Ching-kuo in New York earlier this year.

Survivors are the two daughters and four grandchildren. Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday in Carmichael-Whitley Colonial Chapel with Rev. Welter officiating. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery.

TMA Readies Tax Radar

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Texas Manufacturers Association has formed a research division to find ways to prevent raising taxes in Texas next year.

The association's committee plans to look into all phases of state government and will issue periodic announcements concerning which phases of government spending the association feels can be cut.

"We plan to let the chips fall where they may," association president Ed C. Burris said Tuesday.

Burris said the association has a vested interest in keeping new taxes at a minimum. He said when the costs of running a government grows too rapidly, the taxpayers begin to take their money out of circulation.

"We're building too much government in this country," he said. "It's becoming too burdensome and costly. Something has to be done."

Within recent weeks the Texas Wildlife Department and the Texas Education Agency announced preliminary budgets for the 1972-73 spending period calling for more than $500 million in new state spending for the two agencies.

"Our worry is the accelerated pace at which state spending is increasing," Burris said. "The rate is far more rapid than can be justified by the combination of inflation and population growth."

The Alaska Story Told City Realtors

Nicki (Mrs. Bill) Culpepper, a resident of Fairbanks, Alaska, and a native of Pampa, was the guest speaker for the Pampa Board of Realtors Tuesday noon in Coronado Inn.

Mrs. Culpepper's description of "Seward's Folly," so named by opponents of the Alaskan territory purchase in 1867 by the United States from Russia for $7,200,000, was of interest to the Realtors.

"There is quite a contrast to local living conditions, but a delightful climate prevails most of the year," Mrs. Culpepper reported.

Of Alaska's 294,000 residents reported in 1968, more than 45,000 live in the Fairbanks area and, reliable estimates project this population figure will rise to approximately 73,000 for 1980 in Metropolitan Fairbanks area, according to the guest speaker.

In comparing availability of housing in Pampa and Alaska, Mrs. Culpepper reported conditions in Fairbanks are critical, resulting in premium sale prices and, by comparison, abnormally high rental rates.

Mrs. Culpepper is the daughter of Earl and Velma Lewter, 805 E. Francis.

RECORDS BLAST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission has recorded seismic signals from the Soviet Union, presumably from an underground nuclear blast.

The agency said the signals originated in the Semipalatinsk nuclear test area and were the equivalent of what would result from a blast in the 20- to 200 kiloton range.

OWES MUCH TO MEN

Miss Lawrence - Lucky Pollution's Her Job

CLAUDIA LAWRENCE

By AILEEN SNODDY
NEW YORK (NEA) — At 23, Claudia Lawrence admits that she owes much to men. Especially her husband, "who got her through three years of calculus in college" and her father, "who knew somebody with a company and helped get her a job."

Scouring the job market when she took her master's degree at the University of California (Berkeley) opened Claudia's eyes to the male attitude toward female competition.

Claudia has the stereotype pixie face with a dusting of freckles and squeaky clean shoulder-length hair which most men love to see bending over a hot kitchen range.

Instead she is tripping about the United States, trying to explain to a secretary in Cincinnati or a sixth grader in Memphis about "activated sludge process" or "oxidation ponds" or "tertiary treatment."

Claudia is a molecular biologist, funneling information to the public about our drastic water pollution problems. She gives tips on what an individual, for example, can do to conserve water, like putting a brick in a flush toilet tank. She got involved in this critical cause when "I just looked around and saw what the need was."

While growing up in Lyle, Ill., about 25 miles west of Chicago, her scientific interest bloomed and her father, a patent attorney, didn't discourage her. The fact that her high school sweetheart (now husband) was involved in math kept Claudia on the scientific track at the University of Wisconsin. She got her B.A. and her Mrs. there and the newlyweds went off to Berkeley campus together.

At California, she was one of six or seven in a new Master's program in Environmental Health — involving air, water and industrial pollution.

As the only girl in the program within the School of Public Health, Claudia was appraised by professors that her job hunting wouldn't be easy.

"I looked for a job in occupational health," she explained. "Once I sent the application in with only my initial. The personnel man called and wanted to talk to my husband. He was impressed. I asked if there was a problem about hiring a woman, he backed off." She also was told women were paid one-third less than men when hired for technical research. Her driving goal, though, was not "up women" but to get a job to help clear the pollution mess.

Her role with the Rex Resource Bureau, sponsored by a major supplier of equipment and systems to eliminate water pollution, seems to fit the bill.

"I'll go anywhere, talk to anyone," she said and is particularly interested in reaching the homemaker ("I hate the term housewife") and the young ("Because they must live in the results of water and air pollution").

"I am concerned that everyone who is more aware now because of the Environmental Day may not be acting. We are at an environmental crisis; the moment for decisive action and all the country's actions later depend upon what we do now."

She believes industry has a main role in fighting pollution "but unless people don't care, there is no profit in cleaning up. It is necessary for everyone to strike a balance of what their luxury needs are and the environment needs."

Now living in their hometown, of Lyle, Ill., she finds her husband's coworkers getting active and interested in pollution problems. Laughingly, she thinks they may serve up her message with their cookouts.

Bus Driver's Wife Dies Shortly Before His Allentown Arraignment

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — The wife of bus driver Hubert Daye died of a stroke Tuesday shortly before her husband was arraigned on seven counts of involuntary manslaughter stemming from last Wednesday's crash that killed seven Long Island school children and injured 52 others.

Mrs. Henrietta Daye, 45, of Montclair, N.J., died in the dispensary at Allentown General Hospital where her husband had been confined until today.

The hospital listed the unofficial cause of death as a "massive stroke."

Since Daye could not post the bond, he was rushed back to the hospital to be detained there until further details could be worked out.

Word of Mrs. Daye's death was received as the bus driver was being arraigned before Justice of the Peace Richard Levan and held under $7,000 bond. He was not told of his wife's death and was taken back to the hospital and readmitted, while they awaited a physician before telling him.

Daye, also of Montclair, N.J., was served with seven warrants charging him with the involuntary manslaughter after his surprise release today from the hospital where he had been confined since the accident. Upon his release, he was taken to nearby Wescosville for arraignment.

The hospital said Mrs. Daye, who was boarding at the nursing residence across the street from the hospital, complained of chest pains when she awoke this morning.

She was taken to the hospital emergency room and they advised her to stay there. She

Laotian General Says Communists Pulling Together

VIENTIANE (UPI) — Maj. Gen. Ouane Rathikoun, Laotian armed forces commander-in-chief, said today North Vietnamese, Pathet Lao and Cambodian Communists now are fighting side by side in Laotian and Cambodian border villages and towns.

Ouane said in an interview the North Vietnamese were commanding the group and playing a major role in the fighting.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Up to now, the most sought-after document published by the U.S. government has been a booklet titled "Infant Care" which sells for 20 cents and has about 15 million copies in print.

But I will lay you odds that this popular publication will soon be overtaken by a pamphlet titled "Wild Hemp—How to Control It," which has just gone on sale at the Government Printing Office for 10 cents a copy.

In case you are wondering why the government has developed such a keen interest in wild hemp, let me explain that the Spanish word for that particular plant is marijuana (pronounced pot).

The stuff grows wild in many parts of the United States.

Which makes enforcement of antimarijuana laws rather difficult. So, as a public service, the Agriculture Department, in cooperation with the Justice Department, prepared the pamphlet on wild hemp control.

Tells Where to Look

The pamphlet tells where to look for wild hemp. "It is usually found in uncultivated areas such as abandoned fields, on ditch banks, in fence rows, and along railroad tracks."

It also tells, with seven illustrations, how to recognize wild hemp. "The leaflets are dark green on top and lighter on the bottom. The edge of the leaflet is sawtoothed..."

And it tells how wild hemp can be destroyed. Spray with 2,4-D when plants are "young, growing, and not more than 24 inches high."

That explains of course, why the pamphlet is almost certain to become a best-seller.

Thousands Will Buy

As soon as the word gets around that the pamphlet is available, thousands upon thousands of conscientious young citizens undoubtedly will order copies and then fan out along ditch banks, fence rows, abandoned fields and railroad tracks in search of wild hemp to destroy.

Ordinarily, they probably wouldn't know where to look for marijuana in its natural state, and wouldn't be able to recognize it if they found it.

The average conscientious young citizen of today can't tell hemp plants from horse-chestnuts.

But with the pamphlet to guide them, they can't miss.

MAYO Members Meet To Protest Doctor's Death

MATHIS, Tex. (UPI)—Members of the Mexican-American Youth Organization (MAYO) are converging on this Southeast Texas town for a rally tonight protesting the death of a Mathis doctor widely known for his work among the poor.

Dr. Fred E. Logan Jr. was shot to death early this month by San Patricio County deputy sheriff Eric Brauch, who said he shot in self defense when Logan attacked him. He arrested the doctor at a local restaurant.

Yoland Birdwell, spokesman for a group of Houston MAYOs who plan to attend the rally, said she hoped the gathering would be peaceful.

As director of the Mathis migrant Health Program, Logan treated disadvantaged Mexican-Americans for small fees, sometimes for free.

Mathis Mayor Winston Bott called Logan's death a "tragic loss" for the city and asked for a federal investigation. The city Council passed resolutions calling for Brauch's and Sheriff Wayne Hitt's resignations. The council also renamed the city's main street Dr. Logan Street.

In Washington, Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., sent a telegram to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover asking for an investigation into Logan's death.

"I've got all the faith in the world in these kids,"

Attorney Claiming Manhandling Wearing Neck Brace

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (UPI)—An attorney who claims he was manhandled by a Military Police investigator appeared wearing a neck brace at a hearing for his client, an Army captain accused of slaying his wife and two daughters.

Dennis Eisman of Philadelphia, Pa., said his Monday hearing aggravated an old neck injury that caused him to wear a similar brace for several months last year. He indicated he may take action later against the investigator or the Army.

"Right now, we are primarily concerned with Captain MacDonald's hearing," said Eisman when asked what he planned to do about the incident. "We'll come to that later."

The Army forcibly took Capt. Jeffrey MacDonald into custody Monday to obtain a hair sample for use in its investigation.

Eisman said a witness at this morning's closed-door hearing had testified that MacDonald was questioned by the Army while under the influence of pain killers and sedatives.

Eisman maintained he was hurled to the ground by an Army criminal investigation division agent. Several newsmen who witnessed the incident backed up his story.

The Army denied manhandling the lawyer.

The Army released a statement which said Eisman "stood as to block the Military Police from reaching MacDonald," but that before he was touched, "Mr. Eisman wrenched himself violently and either fell or threw himself to the ground."

Your Horoscope

JEANE DIXON

THURSDAY, JULY 23, 1970
Your birthday Thursday: This year the Sun changes Thursday, July 23, from Cancer to Leo at 2:38 AM Eastern Daylight Time. In other years it changes at different hours, usually during the calendar date July 22. For both Cancer and Leo people born on this date: Your year ahead involves much adjustment, which is slower and more difficult for the late Cancerians than for the early Leos. In either case you must meet the other fellow more than halfway. Thursday's natives frequently have direct psychic knowledge or learn quickly in abrupt, erratic stages. The personality is magnetic: forceful among the men, quieter for women.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your main tendency today is impatience. Give people a chance and the reaction will probably be favorable. Quit at the earliest reasonable moment for diversion.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Close associates, particularly if they are bored, want to play games or tease Thursday. Attend seriously to neglected chores and keep going.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Slow-starting morning hours let you settle exact details. With diligence and a bit of good humor it's a lively day. Your friends are more important now.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): In the present relative calm, pick up the threads of interrupted matters, alleviate long-standing nuisances. Further planning is needed before you start anything new.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Questions relating to readily deployable resources come up in the morning, but are quite easily settled. Get in some serious reflections on self-improvement.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Keep a calm exterior while calling up the support of those backing you. Conferences work out readily now. Attend to details as rapidly as you can.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A ripple of excitement or brief confusion in the early hours gives way to an average day in which you should be able to make good progress. Seek and offer cooperation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get on the move early, clear off odds and ends. Much can be done with just normal effort. For the evening, good music and a lively discussion offer much.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): This is an excellent day for putting original ideas into workable form. Clear out your work area first. You may not need as much help as you had thought.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The people you care most about are most likely to bicker. Listen carefully, then do something direct and simple, without waiting for any immediate reactions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Travel, long-distance communications fail to meet your needs. Getting into your chosen spot is not convenient but keep your patience and courtesy.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): There is just enough opposition to stimulate you into developing better plans. Deal with what is near you first. It's a full and quite satisfying day.

Herb Gardens Were Drugstores For Housewives In Middle Ages

Since there were no corner drugstores in Medieval times, home-grown herb gardens provided the wonder drugs of the day. And since physicians were few and far between, it was, of necessity, an era of do-it-yourself medicine.

The most popular books of that time were herbals. For example, a prized herbal was that written by Dioscorides in the first century which listed 500 medicinal plants and what they cured. These medieval best-sellers told how man might be helped with green herbs of the garden and weeds of the field. With book in hand, the medieval housewife planted a garden of herbs that hopefully would help her cope with anything from snakebite to influenza. Many of the plants are familiar to Americans now since they are used in cooking: sage, marjoram, fennel, caraway, bay leaves and rosemary. Then there were others, quaintly named: woodruff, cowslip, rue, periwinkle and wild flax. Ingeniously, housewives in those ancient days found many other uses for herbs besides healing. For instance, sweet woodruff when dried has the scent of new mown hay. Therefore, it was used for strewing on floors, perfuming linen chests, and making garlands for churches on feast days.

Marjoram was a must in the medieval garden. It was used to flavor soups, meat dishes and salads. This same herb "bound on the head would cure a cold; drunk with wine, it warmed the stomach, comforting digestion." Camomile or rosemary was used to make a "sweet washing water." And mint "rubbed on the teeth will give a sweet smelling mouth". One highly respected herbalist recommended the distilled water from the leaves and flowers of cowslip as "good against the pain in the head that comes of a cold," a task assigned today to aspirin.

Caraway was not only for coughs, it was also "good for the frenzy and for biting of venomous beasts; also it restoreth hair which hath fallen away." When a member of a medieval housewife's family had a cold, she boiled up a potent brew of leaves and flowers of fresh borage. For a nervous headache, she made an infusion of primrose root. And for a sedative, there was always a crock of cowslip wine handy.

The time has long vanished when a homemaker finds it necessary to grow an herb garden purely for medicinal purposes. Today, it is more likely to be gourmet cooks or enthusiastic gardeners who find it an esoteric and rewarding hobby. But then how many people today suffer from the "frenzy" or "the biting of venomous beasts?"

POLLY'S POINTERS

Suction Cup Holders
Keep Rack On Cabinet

DEAR POLLY — One remedy for the reader who was having difficulty hanging a rack on her cabinet is to buy suction cup holders. I am referring to a suction cup with a screw in the middle. You wet the cup slightly and push on the surface, then hang the rack on screws. They are marvelous and, also, the cups would hide spots left by the glue previously used.

should not spill quite so often. —MRS. W.P.

DEAR POLLY — When company leaves after a party and you have leftover club soda, do not throw it away but dampen a cloth with it and rub over your toaster, coffee maker and other electric appliances and be amazed at the shine. —MRS. A.K.

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY — I love pretty nightgowns with net or tricot overskirting but do not think the expense is worth the trouble. After the first washing such overskirting shrinks so badly that the underskirt is inches longer. I have tried blocking mine with each washing but this is not entirely satisfactory. I always end up having to cut it off and rehem. Usually the length is all wrong — short ones are too short and long ones fall at an odd in-between length. I hope some reader has an easy solution for me. How could we get the message to manufacturers so they would preshrink such materials before making them up? —PAT

APPLIES HEAT
COLUMBUS, OHIO (UPI) — a would-be robber got an unexpected reaction Monday when he walked up to an unidentified woman and demanded her purse.

The woman ground a lighted cigarette into his arm. The man jumped back in pain and ran away empty handed.

COULD BE, BUT...
FAREHAM, England (UPI) — Navy doctors said the rash on Petty Officer Frank Bromfield's neck could be caused by cats, rabbits, guinea pigs or mice. But the real reason turned out to be an allergy to the shampoo his wife used.

Author Advises Women To Forget Distracting Fashions In Office

NEW YORK (NEA)—If the midi takes over come Fall, it may be a boon for business. The bookkeeper who credited when he should have debited because little Susie across the office showed so much leg will put his figures in the right column once more.

But, meantime, there's a long hot Summer ahead when the midi won't be much in evidence. And many a determined Susie won't accept the midi this Fall, either. So, many firms have become interested in some way to educate employes on what is proper yet fashionable, office attire.

One source of help is a motion picture called "The Fashion-Right Summer." It's only 18 minutes long and is narrated by Letitia Baldrige, director of consumer affairs for a thread company.

"Tish" Baldrige, author of "Diamonds and Diplomats," has a background that gives her the authority to speak frankly on attire for the working girl. She served as social secretary of the First Lady's secretariat during the Kennedy administration. She worked for Clare Boothe Luce when Mrs. Luce was our ambassador to Italy. And when she opened her own public relations firm in Chicago, banks and investment companies called on her to lecture and shape up their women employes.

"But my real credentials for spearheading this film," she said, "are my love of fashion and the fact that I have worked all my life since I graduated from college."

The film uses working girls as well as professional models to include women of a wide range of age, type and figure. Most of the fashions shown cost under $20, so that they fall within the budget of office girls.

"The primary message," Miss Baldrige said, "is: Don't distract in an office. When overdone, anything will distract. 'What girls should understand,' she continued, "is that it's fine to do your own thing—but do it on your own time."

Some of her examples of don'ts on the job are barelegs; clanky jewelry, see-through blouses, overteased hairdos and pants suits.

"Pantsuits are fine," Tish said, "but unless the girl has a job in the fashion field and is confident of how to dress, she may start out in a trim pantsuit and then slide into slacks, jeans, fancy tops that belong at home. And she'll look awful on the job."

For after-five (left) the working girl might choose this polka dot drawstring blouse in a sheer voile worn with a skirt that's sashed at the waistline. For the office (center) Paris-inspired short jacket suit has the new longer length skirt, low pockets and a flowing print scarf for added chic. Weekend wrap-up (right) combines midi coat in Erwin denim with piggyback belts on the sleeves and sides, matching jean-cuts pants and a snappy red and white floral shirt.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our regular minister left town and another one came to replace him. The replacement was 65 years old, and quite attractive.

My mother, a divorcee, was having personal problems, so I suggested she talk to the new minister. Well, his counseling went way beyond the call of duty and they had an affair which got all over town. His wife found out about it, and filed for divorce and left him. She's a lot younger than he is and I don't think she'll have much trouble finding someone else, but I am sick with guilt to think that I sent my mother to this hypocrite in the first place.

As soon as the whole town knew what happened, the minister "resigned" for "health reasons." Mother remarried again (for the third time) shortly after, but I know she is still seeing this minister. Should I switch churches? Or should I continue to tell everyone there is nothing between them as I have been doing?

EMBARRASSED DAUGHTER
DEAR EMBARRASSED: Why switch churches? The "Lochinvar of the Pulpit" is no longer there. Don't discuss your mother's affair with anyone, don't feel guilty for having sent her to him. You meant well, but you are not your mother's keeper, although from your letter, I think she needs or, P.S. Time will solve your problem. An unemployed minister is not about to hang around your town much longer.

DEAR ABBY: I am a male, mid-thirties, and I have an excessive amount of body hair. I've had my share of "hairy ape" jokes. Lately in warm weather I have been shaving my chest and legs for comfort's sake.

What would a psychiatrist say about a man who shaves his chest and legs?
NEAT
DEAR NEAT: Nothing. But

he might say something about a man who shaves his chest and legs and asks what a psychiatrist would say about such a man.

DEAR ABBY: The son of a very dear friend of ours is being married soon. On the invitation was a request that instead of a wedding gift, they would like donations sent to the settlement house where the bride works!

We would prefer to send a nice wedding gift, but since they made a "request" for donations, we hate to go against their wishes. What would you do if you were us?

UP A TREE

DEAR UP: I would send a "donation." It seems to be a very thoughtful and unselfish request.

DEAR ABBY: In reading Juliet's letter in regard to probing questions, I thought of myself and my self-consciousness over a particularly ugly scar on my throat due to a tracheotomy.

For a long time I wore a pearl choker to cover the scar, but removed it one evening at my husband's insistence that I was being overly sensitive. That very evening, at a party, a total stranger came up to me and said, "Wow, that's some scar! Thyroid?"

I replied, "No. I had a very serious social disease." The shock on his face was replaced with embarrassment when I added, "It's called foot-in-mouth disease. When are you going to have yours taken care of?"

Americans Find Camping Reduces Vacation Expense

NEW YORK N.Y.—Fun-oriented, penny-wise American families are taking to camping this year as never before.

In these days of tight money and high prices, a growing number of families are planning camping vacations to cut costs.

Hobbyists Grow Home Orchards

AMES, Iowa — Homeowners with small orchards should realize that growing fruit on this basis is a hobby and doesn't pay financially. Ed Cott, extension horticulturist at Iowa State University, advises.

Cott said that if records are kept for 10 years, if fruit planting is given the minimum recommended care, and if the home grower counts his time as worth $1 per hour, tree fruits don't pay out. In fact, he said, home-grown apples will cost $8 to $10 per bushel.

with no reduction in fun and relaxation. They are finding that tents, trailers and campers can be rented for a fraction of the price of motel accommodations for a family of three or more. And cooking most meals over a wood fire or portable stove shaves food costs way down — and the meals somehow taste more delicious, too!

The three major ingredients for a successful family camping vacation are good weather, good equipment and good health. The first is largely a matter of luck, the second the result of careful reading of catalogs, outdoor life and consumer report magazines, and discussions with knowledgeable friends and neighbors.

You can help assure good health with just a few simple precautions. One suggestion is an early visit to the family doctor, to make sure that everyone is up to the challenge of a camping trip. Camping is a bit more strenuous than motel living, so take it easy at first.

Most seasoned campers pack a simple, inexpensive medical kit for the health emergencies that may crop up during a camping trip. Packed in a light but sturdy box, the kit might include: an American Red Cross first-aid manual, aspirin, antibiotic ointment, antacids, a fever thermometer, antihistamines, first aid supplies, a kaolin-pectin mixture for diarrhea, milk of magnesia, liquid antibacterial skin cleanser, insect repellent, eye drops and suntan creams.

Certainly a first-aid manual and a medical kit cannot substitute for a doctor's care. But in remote campgrounds, they can be the best friends a camping family ever had.

Fool Weeds, Save Yard Work
DAVIS, Calif. — Researchers have developed a growth hormone to stimulate weeds to sprout out of season.

Weeds that sprout in the Winter die from frost, thus saving many Summer man hours. Dr. David Bayer of the University of California at Davis says the method may someday be applicable in home gardens and on farmlands.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—A dog-fight is shaping up between CBS-TV and NBC-TV for ratings supremacy in the pivotal Monday night program competition during the season that starts this fall.

The Monday night schedule has long been the power center of CBS-TV's prominence in the ratings. And despite all the talk of the opposition networks about focusing on the 18-49 age group in home audiences, any broadcast organization would be happy to have any of CBS-TV's Monday prime time series in its lineup.

From start to finish, the power lineup for CBS-TV again this fall on Mondays will be "Gunsmoke," the Lucille Ball series, "Mayberry R.F.D.," the Doris Day Show and the Carol Burnett Variety Hour. Each of these programs ranks very high in the national Nielsen Ratings.

NBC-TV, however, will really be putting the test to CBS-TV on Mondays come September. For the NBC-TV lineup on that night, from start to finish, will be the Red Skelton Show, picked up from CBS-TV and cut to half an hour; "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In," and the Monday Night Movies.

Skelton was dropped by CBS-TV because the network believed he didn't appeal to the 18-49 group, but NBC-TV, despite its emphasis on the same audience, obviously felt he was still such a potent entertainment institution that it could get mileage out of him. Even when he was bounced by CBS-TV, Skelton ranked very near the top of the national ratings, steadily.

"Laugh-In," of course, is another series that is enormously popular. And the movies invariably draw a good share of the home audience, although they are usually stronger at the start of a season, when networks lead off with big pictures, that at the end, when they are down to the level of "Frankenstein Turns on the Wolf Man."

The smallest commercial network, ABC-TV, which has continually been demolished on Monday nights, doesn't figure to do much better in the coming season with entries like "The Young Lawyers" and "Silent Force," a crime tale. However, ABC-TV's weekly pro football games on Monday nights may stir some added interest.

From an intramural industry viewpoint, though, there will be particular interest in whether Skelton, the CBS-TV reject, can unseat another longtime staple on the network that let him go last season, "Gunsmoke." For both shows will be head-on competitors, and you can bet Skelton would love to give CBS-TV something to remember him by.

Job For Religious Writers

Vice President Spiro Agnew is not alone in his attacks upon the media people. The editor of Decision magazine, Sherwood E. Wirt, had something to say upon the subject when he addressed the Evangelical Press Association in Washington, D.C.

He exhorted those in communications to "move into positions of spiritual, intellectual and cultural leadership in the world, and become chaplains to the reading public." He chided writers and editors for allowing horoscope writers and the new brand of humanists to usurp such leadership. By exercise of excellence in their craft, he urged them to take the covers off their typewriters and "instead of spitting mosquitoes by the name of Forman or O'Hair, instead of writing worry-editorials about postal rates, we should be letting our typewriter ribbons scorch the paper as we tell the world what has happened, what is happening now, and what will happen—according to God's word."

His remarks aimed at the Christian journalist, which ran in the May 22 issue of Christianity Today, characterized a desirable communicator as a combination of the Renaissance Man (a sophisticate and connoisseur with encyclopedic knowledge and a wide-range of interests) and the Reformation Man (a man of unrelenting purpose and moral passion with an aim to go forward, not back). He should know more about culture and history and custom than the skeptical reporter alongside of him, know what made the American system of government work, and a hundred others fail, understand James Madison's writings, and be a master of English language and literature, as well as familiar

THE SOUTHWEST DECISION In The New Frontier Vein

At a time when the world is convulsed with strife, when capitalist nations are under assault from within, and when the United States has grave need of obtaining new sources of income abroad, it is dismaying and shocking to find the U.S. State Department actively discouraging American investment in Southwest Africa and attempting to curry favor with African revolutionaries on the Southwest issue.

Charles Y. Yost, the old-line liberal who serves as chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations, announced the new policy at a convocation marking the 25th anniversary of the organization that has proved so hurtful to American and free world interests generally. Under the new State Department policy, the Export-Import Bank, a federal agency that seeks to promote exports by granting loan guarantees, will no longer provide such guarantees for trade with Southwest Africa.

The New York Times rightly described the decision as "a major departure in United States policy."

Southwest Africa, a vast desert territory rich in minerals, is an almost empty land administered by the Republic of South Africa since the end of World War I. South African troops wrested the territory from the Imperial German government. In recent years, the Afro-Asian bloc in the U.N., strongly backed by the communist powers, have sought to nullify the League of Nations mandate of the territory to South Africa and have demanded independent status for the area.

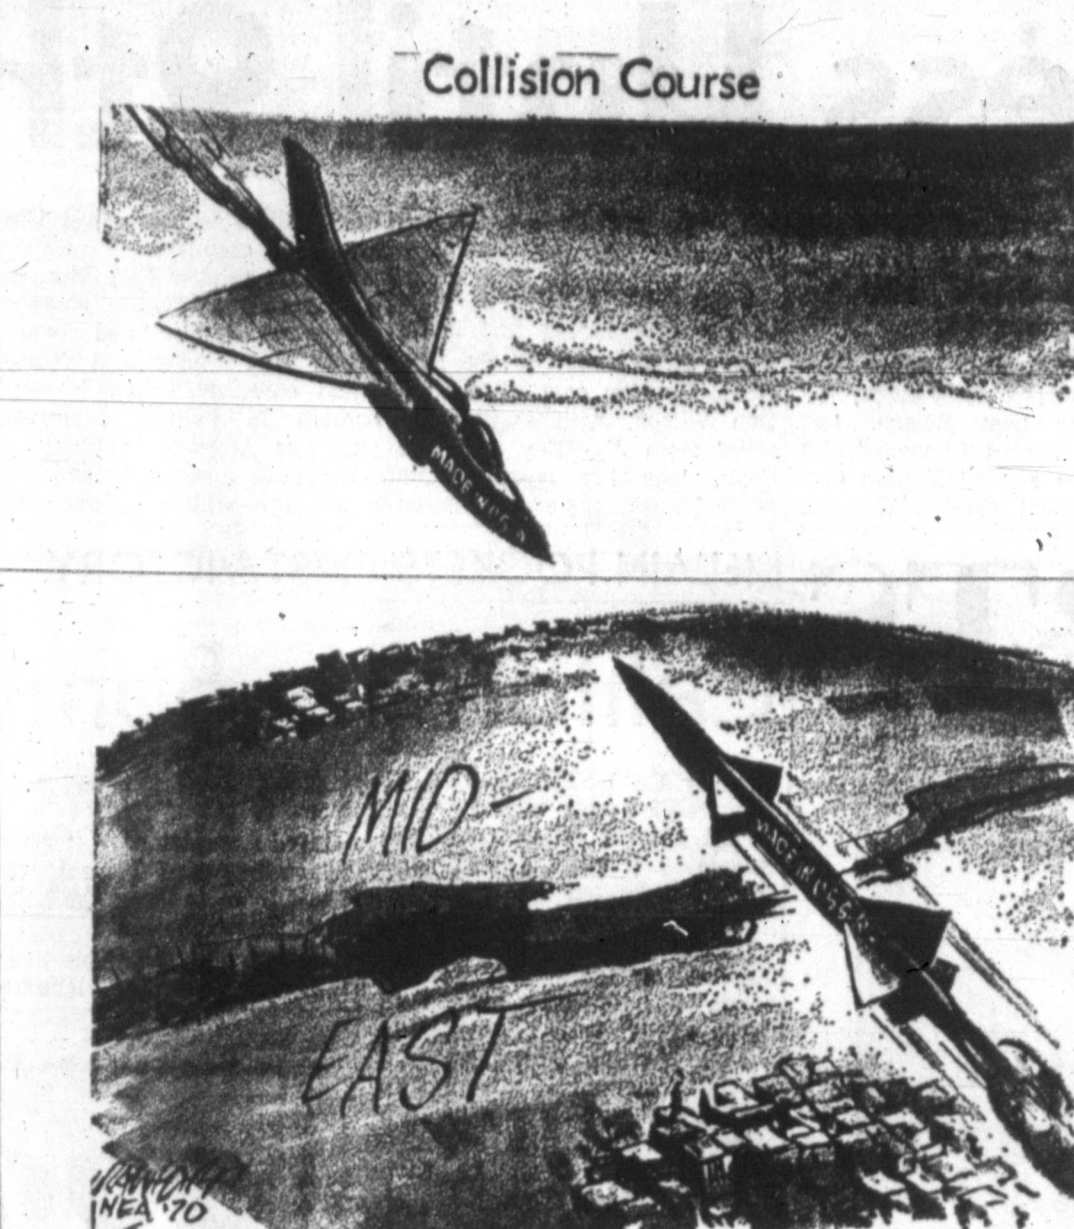

The Soviet Union has a keen interest in the territory, for Southwest Africa, under "independent" rule would be an easy target for infiltration and domination and would serve ideally as a base for Soviet naval forces operating in the South Atlantic. Indeed, a Soviet-orientated Southwest Africa could put the USSR in position to dominate the strategic Cape route for shipping around Africa.

In view of these facts, it is policy towards Southwest Africa which has enunciated a new policy towards Southwest Africa which is hostile to South African administration of the territory. The State Department decision is what Americans might have expected of the Kennedy administration in its heyday.

It is interesting to note that Mr. Yost, in his remarks at the U.N. ceremony, referred to Southwest as Namibia, the name used by the Afro-Asian bloc and the Soviet Union in all U.N. debates. In an utterly absurd comment, Mr. Yost declared that the territory suffered "a unique international wrong in the unlawful perpetuation of South African rule."

There is no foundation of fact for such a statement. In the first place, South African administration halted the swift decline of population in the territory—a decline caused by tribal strife. Second, the South African administration provided health and welfare services unknown to the vast majority of black African nations. Finally, South Africa has invested huge sums in the development of Southwest, thereby affording the native people employment opportunities for the first time.

As for the South African administration being "unlawful," Mr. Yost knows full well there is no law on the subject. The League of Nations mandate cannot be revoked by the United Nations, which is not the legal inheritor of the League's authority.

VIEWPOINT That 'Second' American Revolution A Real Phony

By JESSE HELMS
One of the more prominent figures in higher education in North Carolina voiced the absurdity a few weeks ago that the campus unrest then spreading across the country was—as he put it—"in the finest tradition of America." It was indeed, he said, "a revival of the Spirit of 1776, the American Revolution."

This is a phony line, and unfortunately the gentleman is merely reciting a cliché that has become standard equipment in the lexicon of the far leftwing set. The Washington Post, for example, drew this analogy back in March: "In six years," said the Post, "it will have been two centuries since truly, long-haired Americans took to the streets, staged violent confrontations, and declared their independence from established law and order."

The trouble with that statement, pure and simple, is that it is an absolute historical falsehood, and a libel upon the true architects of American liberty. Yet, this is what is being taught in many a classroom and, in turn, this is all the justification that student mobs have needed to take to the streets.

Several weeks ago, Richard F. Gibbs, executive secretary of the North Carolina Bicentennial Commission, addressed himself to precisely this subject. Mr. Gibbs is a learned man, a scholar of American history. In a speech at Greensboro, Mr. Gibbs offered the reminder that the American Revolution was not a product of street mobs. Nor, he said, "was it rooted in hatred of things English... or of laws and taxes... It did not envision the destruction of an 'establishment,' or the creation of a 'new order.'"

As even the most casual student of American history will realize upon reflection, the American Revolution was conceived—and won—by what would today be called "The Establishment." They were dedicated to the rule of law and, as Mr. Gibbs said, they were "unalterably devoted to the sanctity of private property. They were, in a word, 'conservative.' And, it should be added, they were opposed then to the kind of conduct and principles upon which, years later, communism would be established.

There was violence, yes. The Boston Tea Party happened, along with other incidents that in reality did nothing to assist in the creation of American Independence. But the real leaders of America, the real architects of our liberty, neither participated in the lawless acts nor condoned them. The real leaders of America—the ones who created this country—did not seek an upheaval of society. To the contrary, their wish was to preserve what they already had, including the preservation of property rights and other traditional freedoms. They did not provoke war with England; they defended against a war thrust upon them. The American Revolution, then, was not a revolt but a secession. The mobs which have been roaming the streets, which have prompted violence and hostility, are working in direct contradiction to the meaning and the methods of the Spirit of 1776. They are seeking to destroy freedom in the name of freedom. They are, knowingly or unknowingly, and it doesn't really matter which, serving the cause of the worldwide, conspiratorial tyranny of communism. Any educator, or anybody else, who tries to pretend that the upheaval across our land is "in the finest tradition of America" discloses an abysmal ignorance of both America and her traditions.

It is a sorry "tradition" that some would thrust upon America—the substitution of anarchy for law and order. The ultimate climax, if it does not come earlier, might well prove to be the American tragedy of 1976. But let no man try to say that it has any kinship with the Spirit of 1776. The two are poles apart, diametrically opposite. One gave birth to the hope of freedom in the world. The other, if it succeeds, could well mark the end of the dream that began nearly 200 years ago.

Mark Twain—Certainly, but you must use it on my lawn.

H. L. Hunt Writes

THE BUREAUCRACY GROWS AND GROWS
If any proof is needed that bureaucracies grow whether or not there is necessary work to be done by bureaucrats, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) provides that proof.

Several years ago, then Congressman (now Senator) Robert Griffin of Michigan humorously suggested that the number of employees in the Department of Agriculture be limited to the number of farmers in the United States. When he made his suggestion, there were almost nine million farmers and 90,000 USDA employees, and the proposal could be regarded as a joke.

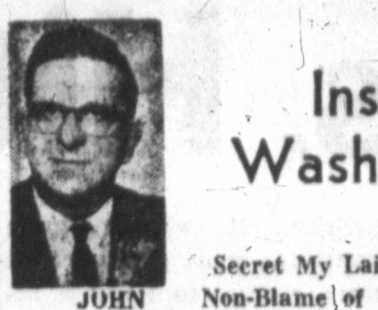

Now, however, the situation is such that perhaps Senator Griffin's proposal should be adopted. Since he made his suggestion, the number of farmers has decreased by 41 per cent. At the same time, the number of USDA employees has increased by 137 per cent.

If the trend continues, there eventually will be more government bureaucrats working in the Department of Agriculture than there are farmers working in the fields.

The trend toward unnecessary increases in staff size occurs throughout government. In the past twenty years, a million employees have been added to the federal payroll. It took the United States approximately 160 years to reach a payroll of one million employees. In the thirty years since the one million mark was reached, twice that many more have been added.

Many persons in Washington will privately admit that the number of employees could be reduced by one-third with no loss in services. But there is very little prospect that such reductions will take place. Instead government continues to grow, placing an increasing burden on our productive citizens.

JOHN GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — A highly revealing and potentially far-reaching report on the long-headlined My Lai incident is about to make new headlines. The unannounced document, the result of seven months of exhaustive investigating by a special five-member House Armed Services Subcommittee, is now in the hands of the full committee—which is slated to release it in a few days.

While reportedly pulling no punches, the findings are authoritatively understood to condemn no one. The report is reliably said to stress these points:

That the U.S. officers and soldiers involved were fighting against a ruthless and viciously deceptive enemy, who often used women and children; that combat conditions and circumstances were extremely trying and exhausting both mentally and physically; and that the reputed incident occurred under conditions and in a manner that cannot be judged by civil or peace-time standards or fairly comprehended by non-combatants, particularly non-Asians thousands of miles distant from the battle zone.

The investigation and report will also be notable on another count. In the seven months of the five-member committee's inquiry, including a trip to South Vietnam for an on-the-scene inspection, there has never been a single leak. Although numerous witnesses were interrogated under oath including principals in the affair and high Pentagon and other officials, there has not been a premature disclosure. Only the investigators and Representative L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., chairman of the full Armed Services Committee, are aware that the long-awaited report has been completed and is ready for committee disposition.

That's a unique record for congressional investigations. In most instances, they "leak like a sieve." Credit for this unusual achievement is due Representative F. Edward Hebert (pronounced "A-Bear"), D-La., Subcommittee Chairman. A one-time New Orleans newspaperman and city editor, he is the first Louisiana in history to serve 30 consecutive years in the House.

Hebert came by his investigative skill and zeal through extensive training and experience before coming to Congress. He was a crusading reporter and became widely known for his exposes of the remnants of the Huey Long machine. As a result of Hebert's disclosure, a governor and head of the state university went to jail.

Explaining his bill, Brinkley said: "Careless accusations and loose allegations are inconsistent with the basic American rules of decency and fair play. In the civil law of this country we have a provision called the 'Emergency Doctrine.' Under that rule, if a person, while driving a car or engaging in other pursuits, is confronted with a sudden emergency not of his own making, he is not held to the same standard of care to which he would normally be held.

"Applying that standard to a situation of war, we certainly should make fair allowance for our servicemen. That's all this bill does and, in my opinion, a law of such kind is long overdue."

Hebert's bill, Brinkley said, would allow a serviceman to sue for damages rising out of such charges to the good name and reputation of the member; actual costs, including reasonable attorney's fees, incurred by the member in defending himself against the charges.

Latest In Bomb Shelters

The newest thing in underground bomb shelters is being promoted in California by a national moving and storage firm. It would be a shelter for and office personnel 40 feet underground for up to 30 days.

A jet landing strip on top, a computer center, a communications center, a large records storage room, offices, living quarters, a morgue and a cafeteria are included in plans.

The shelter is scheduled for construction next year on 200 acres between Los Angeles and San Francisco. That is, if the moving and storage company can interest enough banks, oil companies, construction and manufacturing firms being solicited.

Cost of leasing space on a 10-year term: $100,000 a year. And, we would assume, all moving would be done by the firm making the pitch.

Dinah's Place—Filled With Conversation

By JOAN CROSSBY
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Dinah's place is sunny, friendly, tasteful and filled with spirited, thought-provoking and laugh-making conversation.

Her new NBC-TV series, Dinah Shore, looking prettier, younger and more fit than she did a decade ago when she was Queen of Television, is wearing white slacks, a purple blouse and a smile because someone had remarked that her living room may be one of the prettiest ever seen.

The room, in beige and green, with Utrillo and Chagall paintings on the walls, opens into a brick-floored room with a huge window rising cathedral-high and permitting a view of gardens, flowers, a swimming pool and Dinah's precious tennis court.

"My sister cried when she saw this house four years ago," Dinah says. "She thought I had gone bananas when I bought it."

Indeed, the house had navy blue walls and didn't look as if now does. "We gutted the house and made lots of changes. Actually it was built around stereo speakers, which my sister says is the utmost in decadence. See those urns?" — and she points outside the huge windows — "they have the speakers in them."

She rises and straightens two pictures on the wall. "I think there must have been an earthquake around here. Anyway, after I moved in, the kitchen couldn't be used because there was so much in it, there was no hot or cold water, the carpetlayers were still at work and the bricklayers were still finishing the patio. But there was lovely stereo music floating dreamily through the house and gardens. My sister was so upset over that." Dinah smiles. "Want to hear the pay-off? The stereo won't work for me. I don't get on with things that are mechanical. That will be a whole thing on one show — women should be liberated from their fears of mechanical things."

For the series, which premieres on Aug. 3 on NBC-TV, replacing It Takes Two, a replica of Dinah's home is being built in the studio. The idea of the series is to illustrate what is being discussed: cooking in the kitchen, sewing in a catch-all room, discussion in the living room, and in the bedroom — the fitting of a gown.

Dinah says she doesn't really know what brought her back to TV beyond the fact that her good friend, former and present producer Henry Jaffe, cajoled her into it.

There'll be name guests and Dinah will sing, but there will also be people who do things and accomplish things. With Dinah there is never any lack of conversation. She comes from a family where there was always a perpetual contest to see who could read the most. She speaks knowledgeably on many subjects, including politics.

Underground Priest Charges Brother Being Held Hostage

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Rev. Daniel Berrigan, the Jesuit priest who went underground when sentenced to prison for burning draft records in an antiwar demonstration, charged Tuesday federal authorities were holding his brother hostage in an isolation cell "until I have given myself up."

The fugitive priest and poet made the accusation in an interview with the New Yorker which the magazine said was conducted "at the home of some friends of his a few hours west of the Eastern Seaboard."

Berrigan, 49, and his younger brother, Philip, also a priest, were among the "Catonville Nine" sentenced to prison for burning draft files with homemade maps May 17, 1968, in that Baltimore suburb.

Both brothers went into hiding when directed to give themselves up April 9 after the Supreme Court refused to review their case but Philip was arrested by the FBI April 21 in the Church of St. Gregory the Great in New York.

Daniel Berrigan said he originally had planned to follow the example of the civil rights activists of the 1960s — use the courts for a forum and go to jail for his acts. He said he changed his tactics because the Vietnam War "has gravely worsened" in the last two years, the courts are "being used to break up the peace movement" and he wanted "to break down the myth of the omnipotence of the people in power—to prove the power of powerlessness."

As a result, Berrigan said, authorities "have threatened to press new charges against me. I've forfeited all hope of having my sentence reduced, and it has been made clear to my brother Philip, who is in maximum security at Lewisburg Federal Penitentiary, that he will remain in an isolated cell until I have given myself up."

"This is a punitive measure I consider strictly illegal, and I don't consider my brother a political prisoner anymore—I look upon him as a hostage," Berrigan said.

But Berrigan said this kind of pressure, while a "source of suffering," would not work "because I have confidence in Phil's incredible toughness and dedication, and I know that he wants me to stay underground as long as I can." The priest said he had not expected to be able to evade the FBI for as long as two weeks but was successful for three months "because the FBI are over technologized and dehumanized."

Hollywood In Review

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The same man whose company produces "Green Acres" and "The Beverly Hillbillies" for television films Shakespeare for movie theaters.

His name is Martin Ranschoff. He recognizes the dichotomy of his product but doesn't fret about it. "The important thing about television is what the viewers want," he said. "I can't indulge myself in what I want. I tried my hand at that in 'The Trials of O'Brien' which was rejected."

Ranschoff is a tireless foe of the quasi-pornographic movies which are being palmed off as art.

Films in Opposition "So far as I'm concerned my Shakespearean films are an experiment in opposition to sex and pornography on the screen. It will take time to see if the public will go for the classics if they are superlatively done."

Ranschoff is a stocky, balding man who dresses in sports clothes and thrives on work. At 43 he is one of Hollywood's top producers.

He has filmed "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "King Lear" and "Hamlet," the latter with Nicol Williamson brilliantly portraying the Danish prince. He hopes, moreover, that Williamson will be as well received in "Macbeth."

"Directors as great a consideration as actors," said Ranschoff, whose Shakespearean pictures are shot in Britain. "Tony Richardson directed 'Hamlet' and Peter Brook directed for 'King Lear' with Paul Scofield playing the title role."

Takes Risk on Profits "These pictures are averaging less than a million dollars in cost. We all take little or no money up front in favor of accepting the risk on profits. "It's a form of gambling. But the actors and directors all have had experience with the classic stage versions. They go along with the idea of profits." Ranschoff, unlike most producers, remains active in both video and movies saying, "TV is a habit medium; films are an event medium. "The concrete age is over. No more supporting studio dynasties. Everything is freelance now with independent artists at work on fresh ideas. "This prospect appeals to me and a great many other producers."

Judge, Brother Charged After Crockett Assault

CROCKETT, Tex. (UPI) — Houston County Judge Loyd Lovell and his brother Elwin were under charges of assault with intent to commit murder in the shooting of an undertaker and former bank president.

The man shot Monday was Jim Grady Waller, owner of the Waller Funeral Home and former president of the State National Bank of Lovelady.

Judge Lovell and Elwin Lovell are father and uncle, respectively, of State Rep. James D. Lovell, D-Crockett. They were free on $2,500 bond each.

"I went by the hospital today to check up on Jim Waller," Sheriff Ben Monk said. "His nurse said he is holding his own... doing as well as could be expected. I think he will make it."

Waller was shot once in the chest with a pistol. Monk said county authorities had asked him not to discuss the case. The shooting involved the bank, closed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. in May, 1969.
