EGYPT'S NEW 'PLAGUE'?

Heart Attacks Down Two More Egyptian Leaders

CAIRO (UPI)—Two top contenders to succeed Gamal Abdel Nasser as president of Egypt suffered heart attacks as Nasser's funeral was starting, the semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram said today.

The newspaper said both acting President Anwar El Sadat and former Premier Al Sabri were treated by doctors and taken to their homes. Today, government officials said both Sadat and Sabri had fully recovered and their hearts are sound. The officials said both men attended services for Nasser Thursday night.

News of the illnesses came as Egyptians gathered in 20,000 mosques across the nation to read solemn verses from the Koran in memory of Nasser, who died of a heart attack Monday at 52.

Citizens prayed in the solitude of their home or in the dignified surroundings of the mosques for the leader they buried Thursday after a frenzied parade through Cairo.

Al-Ahram said Sadat, 52, one of Nasser's closest friends who worked with him to oust King Farouk in 1952, collapsed at the revolution council headquarters, the funeral's starting point.

It said doctors administered immediate aid and took a cardiogram.

Al Sabri, 52, a member of the supreme executive committee of the Arab Socialist Union also suffered a heart attack at about the same time as El Sadat, the newspaper said.

It said he was taken to the revolution council headquarters and later was moved to his home.

Under the nation's constitution, a new president must be elected within 60 days of the death of an incumbent. A candidate is chosen by a two-thirds vote of the 360-member parliament. The nomination must be approved by a simple majority in a nationwide referendum.

Following Nasser's funeral, Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, who headed his nation's delegation to the funeral, issued a statement pledging full Soviet support of Egypt and promising to boost its military capability.

Kosygin's statement coincided with a meeting of 16 Arab leaders at the Nile Hilton hotel. They pledged to continue the fight against Israel, support the Palestinian resistance movement and to back the succession of Nasser.

IN SPAIN

Nixon Receives Tumultuous Welcome From Cheering Mob

MADRID (UPI)—More than a million Spaniards, the greatest crowd in his political career, welcomed President Nixon today in a tumultuous display of friendship for America that Nixon called "an indispensable pillar for peace" in the Mediterranean.

The President and Generalissimo Francisco Franco stood side by side in an open limousine that carried them through a canyon of humanity shouting "Nixon! Franco! Nixon! Franco!" on their way to private policy talks.

"Bravo! Bravo! Bravo!" roared the crowd when Nixon seized a golden key to the city and held it high, like a bullfight hero flaunting the ears of a vanquished bull.

The Middle East crisis, European security and economic issues were on the agenda as Nixon and Franco, the unchallenged strongman of Spain for 34 years, conferred for an hour in the late afternoon at the Pardo after Nixon flew in from Communist Yugoslavia.

But the welcome in the streets of the century-old capital was easily the emotional highlight so far of Nixon's 12,000-mile European tour which winds up in Ireland on Monday.

Alfredo Sanchez Bella, Spanish information minister, said the crowd numbered between 1.3 million and 1.5 million. The U.S. Embassy said the crowd easily passed one million, exceeding the 800,000 who turned out for President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1959.

"It was the largest crowd I've seen," Nixon remarked to aides. "It was a very exciting time and it was a very exciting reception."

Flanked by 100 silver-helmeted horsemen in uniforms of the time of Christopher Columbus and carrying flag-tipped lances, Nixon and Franco rode triumphantly for 90 minutes past surging throngs that strained against the locked arms of troops and police.

Resplendent in the uniform of captain-general of the army, Franco smiled indulgently as Nixon waved and plunged in spite of tight security into the crowd at one point to clasp outstretched hands along the 16-mile route.

She seems to be living in a fantasy world," Brig. Booth said Thursday. "We are not too definitely sure this can be confirmed."

Still, she said, the Salvation Army will take care of "Mom" until they can confirm her existence for the public aid files.

Chicago (UPI)—"Mom" got lost somewhere, somehow, in the shuffle of paperwork which makes up government welfare programs. As a result, she says, she spent six months living in a telephone booth.

"Mom" that is the only name she gives—was taken in Thursday by the Salvation Army. An elderly, pleasant-spoken woman, she told Brig. Gladys Boone she had been evicted from her hotel in April when her public aid checks stopped coming.

She had nowhere to go, she said, except the telephone booth.

Salvation Army case workers were trying to piece her story together. They contacted public aid officials who said they had stopped sending "Mom" checks because she had disappeared.

"Mom" said neighbors had helped her with gifts of food and other necessities. But the neighbors could not say what "Mom" did at night or whether she really slept in the phone booth.

Rioting Prisoners Seize Five Guards, Demand To Meet Mayor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Officials of the Queens House of Detention broke off talks early today with rebellious prisoners who held five guards and demanded to meet with Mayor John V. Lindsay.

The discussions, "on friendly terms" according to prison officials, were to resume at noon today.

Some of the leaders of the disturbance were identified as defendants in the federal bombing conspiracy trial of the "Black Panther 13." They and other inmates had been moved from the "Fombs" in Manhattan after rioting there in August.

Corrections Commissioner George McGrath met with the inmates and said the five hostages were being well treated.

The prisoners, in a disturbance involving window smashing and cement throwing, took seven hostages—a cook and six guards. But one guard and the cook were released Wednesday night when McGrath agreed to let reporters hear their complaints.

The disturbance began at the lunch hour, prison sources said. Inmates who ran through the prison released 10 of the Panthers from their cells and asked them to act as their spokesmen.

McGrath said the major demands, involved the "judicial system as a whole." "Previously the prisoners had talked about such things as toothpaste and soap. Now they are concentrating on the two major issues of excessive bail and the slowness of judicial machinery," he said.

Newsman and Barry Gottlieb, Lindsay's urban task force aide, identified on the Panthers as Lumumba Abdul Shakur. Shakur said one of the demands was reinstatement of bail for his wife, Mrs. Afeni Shakur, another defendant in the conspiracy trial. Her $100,000 bond was revoked because of her being late for trial sessions. She is being held in the Women's House of Detention in Queens.

Other demands include better food, an enlarged law library, Spanish-speaking guards, Muslim clergymen and religious services, an end to overcrowding and a stop to alleged homosexuality they said was fostered by corrupt guards.

BOND ELECTION OCT. 24

Foundation Signs Contract With City For Auditorium

By TEX DEWEESE
News Staff Writer

A contract between the City of Pampa and the M.K. Brown Foundation, Inc., for funding a $1,200,000 proposed civic auditorium was formally ratified at a special meeting of the City Commission this morning.

The action was taken on motion of Commissioner Arthur J. Rohde and a second by Commissioner Leo Braswell with Mayor Milo Carlson and Commissioner Hugh Burdette joining in the unanimous vote. Commissioner George B. Cree Jr. was absent.

The contract includes an immediate $400,000 cash contribution from the Foundation as well as its contribution to subsidize a proposed $800,000 bond issue in connection with financing the auditorium at no cost to city taxpayers.

Securities and accrued interest amounting to $400,000 already is on deposit in a First National Bank safety deposit box.

That $400,000 contribution is contingent upon Pampa voters' approval of the $800,000 bond issue on Oct. 24.

Should the bond issue fail, the $400,000 gift returns to the Foundation and Pampa would have no civic auditorium.

City Manager B.M. Wofford said another special meeting of the commission will be held next Thursday, Oct. 8, to set the election for Oct. 24 and employ a fiscal agent to handle the bonds.

Another special meeting will be scheduled Oct. 29 to canvass the election returns.

Following the commission meeting on Oct. 8, city officials will meet at 9:30 a.m. that day with Herbert Brasher, Lubbock architect, for another discussion of auditorium construction details.

Regular semi-monthly meetings of the city governing body are scheduled for Oct. 13 and 27.

Astronauts Don Climbing Boots For Apollo 15's Lunar Landing

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—By landing within driving range of a deep gorge and steep mountains, Apollo 15's astronauts next summer may collect some of the oldest and newest rocks on the moon and find out whether water carved the strange lunar canyons.

But to get there, veteran Apollo pilot David R. Scott and rookie James B. Irwin will have to descend over the 8,000-foot tall Apennine mountains and drop on a lunar plain just short of the half-mile-wide canyon.

It will be the fourth and toughest lunar landing yet attempted by Apollo astronauts, and it promises to yield the most scientific results.

The landing area, named Hadley-Apennines, was selected Thursday by the space agency. It is 466 miles north of the equator and on the eastern rim of the Great Sea of Rains basin.

Scott, Irwin and command module pilot Alfred M. Worden are scheduled to set out on their ambitious expedition July 25. The spot will follow by six months the Jan. 31 launch of Apollo 14 astronauts Alan B. Shepard, Stuart A. Roosa and Edgar D. Mitchell.

Apollo 15 will be the first to carry a four-wheeled moon car to the lunar surface. It will be equipped with a color television camera and will enable Scott and Irwin to explore up to 40 miles of the moon's landscape, televising the view "live" back to earth.

The canyon at the Apollo 15 landing site is called Hadley Rille. It is at least 600 feet deep and .60 miles long, and resembles an arroyo of the southwestern United States. Some scientists have suggested it was carved by water ages ago, but the more prevalent idea is that it was caused by volcanic activity, resulting either from erosion from volcanic ash or a fluidic lava, or from the collapse of tubes that fed lava to the surface.

WH Changes Signals To Favor Buckley

WASHINGTON (UPI)—White House signals directed at New York state can be interpreted only one way—President Nixon prefers James L. Buckley, Conservative-party senatorial nominee, to the Republican incumbent, Sen. Charles E. Goodell.

His preference could be based on political philosophy or, more probably on political reality.

Goodell has been one of the most conscious critics of Nixon administration policies from within the GOP. Readings of the campaign outlook in New York indicate he is running a weak third behind Rep. Richard L. Ottinger, the Democratic nominee, and Buckley.

Republican campaign managers virtually had written off Goodell's chances of winning even before the indirect White House intrusion into the New York campaign.

But if Buckley can overtake Ottinger by the Nov. 3 election, the White House can count on another vote for Republican control of the Senate—should the GOP pick up enough Senate seats—and on support on key issues where it has drawn opposition from Goodell.

The stir began a week ago when White House spokesmen answered questions from newsmen by saying the President had taken no stand on the New York race because Goodell had asked that there be no administration involvement in the campaign. They refused to amplify the explanation when asked when Goodell had ever said he did not want the Nixon endorsement.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew did involve the administration Wednesday by telling a television interviewer in North Dakota that Goodell had left the GOP and joined the "radical liberal" foes of the administration. Agnew did not endorse Buckley.

Republican National Chairman Rogers C. B. Morton wonced but went ahead with plans for a trip to Syracuse, N.Y., to give Goodell the blessing of the national party organization, which is supposed to support all Republican nominees.

Morton suggested Wednesday Agnew was "speaking his own mind" in comments about Goodell. But Murray Chotiner, White House political strategist, said he did not know how any vice president could be thought to be "merely speaking for himself" in remarks about Goodell.

PLAYS NO FAVORITES

Tower Denies Using GOP Cash Wrongly

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. John G. Tower, a conservative and paymaster for the Republican senatorial campaign committee, today denied he was playing ideological favorites with GOP money.

Seeking to soothe ruffled Republican liberals, Tower said "no ideological considerations" figured in the allocation by the committee of campaign funds for GOP senatorial candidates.

The Texan emphatically denied he was using control of the committee and its purse to collect advance pledges from the candidates in support of a bid by Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas for the post of Senate Republican leader.

"The allegation that I was electioneering for Dole is totally false," Tower said in response to a question about reports circulating the Senate. "We never place any strings on assistance we give a candidate."

The issue was raised among Senate Republicans by Sen.

Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon, who confronted them with an accounting of the committee's distribution of money through Sept. 1. Tower was not present at the meeting.

The chart showed a wide discrepancy in the amounts provided incumbent senators and also showed only five of 24 GOP challengers for seats now held by Democrats received money.

The Hatfield accounting did not include allocations made by the committee since Sept. 1. Candidates have received contributions since then.

Although Hatfield insisted he was not charging Tower with an ideological preference in distributing the money but only trying to find Tower's criteria for disbursement, the figures indicated a preference for conservatives.

As of Sept. 1, for instance, Sen. George Murphy of California had received $31,807 and Sen. Ralph T. Smith of Illinois was $37,204. Both are considered Tower-type conservatives.

By contrast, Sen. Charles E. Goodell, in a bitter three-way fight for election in New York, received only $5,611.

An even sharper contrast was presented in the $72,879 provided Rep. George Bush, Tower's fellow Texas and the GOP senatorial candidate. That was almost double what was received by any incumbent senator and nearly nine times as much as provided for another challenger for a seat now held by a Democrat.

Unemployment Rate Soars To New High

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The unemployment rate soared to 5.5 per cent of the national labor force last month, the highest level in nearly seven years, the government reported today.

The increase of 0.4 per cent over August brought the total of jobless Americans to 4.3 million. Most of the September increase occurred among men aged 16 to 24.

The Labor Department noted that unemployment usually falls substantially between August and September. After Labor Day, many young people give up the search for work to return to school.

The September boost, to the highest level since January, 1964, had been expected by government economists. The administration has predicted an upturn in over-all business activity coupled with less inflation.

Safety-Restrictions Asked For Jumbo Jets

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The National Transportation Safety Board has asked for new safety restrictions for the engines used on the Boeing 747 jumbo jets to lessen the danger of fire and explosions.

The board urged the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) Thursday to order steps to cool the Pratt & Whitney engines, including mandatory use of "water injection." The board does not have the power to order the restrictions itself.

The board noted that an American Airlines 747 was forced to return to San Francisco Sept. 18 when an engine exploded and caught fire very soon after takeoff, and an Air France 747 bound from Montreal to Paris on Aug. 17 had to land at New York with the same problem.

In a letter to FAA Administrator John H. Shaffer, the board expressed its concern "of the potentially catastrophic results" of 747 engine failures.

The water injection system would cool the engine turbine and also increase engine thrust to permit faster takeoff. However, the added weight of the water—up to 20,000 pounds for 747—could reduce the airliner's permitted passenger load and out profits from the flight.

The board also advised the FAA to require an improved turbine blade in the engines.

The recommendations were the latest in a series dealing with the 747, a 345-passenger jetliner that made its first flight last January. In August, the FAA ordered a limited X-ray inspection of the plane's

UAW Tells Breakthrough In Talks

DETROIT (UPI)—General Motors Corp. and United Auto Workers negotiators reached agreement Thursday on a key local contract at Detroit Diesel Works. One UAW official called it a possible breakthrough and predicted more local settlements will follow.

"In the next week or so many more plants may reach settlements," said Bernard Young, region 1-E director for the UAW, said. He said there was a "change of attitude" during the all-night bargaining session that extended also to national issues.

"We've made major gains," UAW international representative Curt McGuire agreed. A ratification vote was set by the 6,500 workers involved Saturday and workers go back Monday, despite the lack of a national contract.

But new layoffs boosted the number of striking and laid-off workers to over 400,000 for the first time since the strike began at midnight Sept. 14.

Life Mag To Cancel 1.5 Million Subscriptions, Raise Prices

NEW YORK (UPI)—Life, the magazine with the largest advertising revenue in the world, announced Thursday it will cancel the subscriptions of about 1.5 million of its U.S. subscribers and raise prices for all others in an effort to reverse a trend of declining income.

The forced circulation cut—from a base of 8.5 million to 7 million—will permit Life to charge lower advertising rates and increase the number of pages sold, publisher Garry Valk said in the announcement. He blamed rising costs and inflation for the profit squeeze at Life, the biggest member of the Time, Inc. empire.

Valk also said the bi-weekly international editions of Life for Europe and Asia will be discontinued at the end of this year. The problem in that case also was lack of advertising, but those 635,000 subscribers will be offered a substitute—the United States edition of Life or another Time, Inc. publication.

California Fires On Rampage Again

CUCAMONGA, Calif. (UPI)—Resurging desert winds, gusting up to 70 miles an hour whipped a nearly-contained brush fire into a major holocaust today and the blaze spread toward timber land in two national forests.

The 40,000-acre fire forced the evacuation of 4,500 students from Chaffey Junior College Thursday when the flames encircled the campus. There was no structural damage, however, as more than 1,000 men fought back the flames. Some smoke damage to buildings was reported.

The blaze, propelled by powerful "devil winds" which carried embers up to a half mile away, also forced evacuation of the small community of Mount Baldy village, the center of a popular winter skiing area in the mountains to the north.

At least seven homes have been destroyed since the blaze erupted Monday.

The blaze moved toward timber in Angeles National Forest four miles north of here and at one point licked its way into San Bernardino National Forest. Fire fighters concentrated on its westward movement to protect wildlife areas in the forests.

In northern California, flames of a 38,000 acre blaze slowly ate toward the Hearst castle at San Simeon. The exotic home of the late newspaper publisher William Randolph Hearst, now a state museum, was about 12 miles south of the fire and was not reported in immediate danger.

Pandemonium Reigns In Cultist's Trial

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Charles Manson began singing "The old grey mare, she ain't what she used to be" and three female codefendants at the Tate murder trial loudly called the judge "a woman."

After 15 weeks of decorous behavior by the "Manson family" defendants, the Sharon Tate-LaBianca murder trial erupted into pandemonium Thursday and all four were ordered taken from the courtroom while the jury looked on in amazement.

Even Deputy District Attorney Vincent Bugliosi got involved and he was fined $50 for contempt of court.

Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older was prepared, if necessary, to carry on the trial with the defendants confined in other rooms and listening to the proceedings by loudspeaker. Older was backed up by a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that a defendant may be removed from the courtroom if his behavior becomes disruptive and makes orderly procedure impossible.

The outburst came near the conclusion of testimony by ranch hand Juan Flynn, who lived with the "family" for more than a year. Flynn was telling how Manson "programmed" his girls to forget their past lives and their parents.

Flynn, a Purple Heart Vietnam War veteran, said Manson gained control over the girls by having them engage in lesbian sex acts and unnatural relations with men.

Flynn was on the witness stand late Thursday when Manson burst into the refrain of "The Old Grey Mare." Judge Older's wife was seated in the front row of spectator seats. Older warned Manson that unless he became silent he would have to remove him from the courtroom.

"You'll have to order me to stop living," Manson said. "You're just a woman, judge." behavior becomes disruptive accused his Democratic opponent of "being out of the past." Bush also said Bentsen had distorted the GOP candidate's voting record.

Bentsen, meanwhile, was in his adopted home of Houston where he proposed he and Bush sign an agreement to limit their radio and television campaign expenses to seven cents a voter. Bentsen is a former congressman who represented the Rio Grande Valley.

The Post became the first major metropolitan daily Thursday to endorse one of the two Senate candidates. The Dallas Times Herald said recently Texas voters were fortunate to be able to vote for one of two conservatives and said, in effect, either Bush or Bentsen would make a good senator. Although it stopped short of an outright endorsement of one of the candidates, the Times Herald did not eliminate the possibility it would endorse either Bush or Bentsen sometime before the November election.

The morning newspaper said Bush's "outstanding record has earned him promotion."

The GOP candidate campaigned Thursday in Waco where he

Dowdy Wins Postponement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Rep. John Dowdy, D-Tex., scheduled to undergo a spinal operation in Beaumont Thursday has won an indefinite postponement of his federal bribery trial.

MGM Sold

CULVER CITY, Calif. (UPI) — The 68-acre backlot of Metro-Goldwyn Mayer studio, where scores of motion pictures ranging from grade B westerns to million dollar extravaganzas were filmed, was sold Wednesday for $7.25 million.

The property was purchased by Levitt and Sons and will be developed into a $60 million apartment house complex. Earlier this year, the studio auctioned off costumes and props from 3,000 films. James T. Aubrey Jr., MGM president, said the sale "will not hinder future movie making." He said that it was to divest MGM of the real estate and other assets not essential to production.

U.S. District Judge Roszel C. Thomsen ruled that the trial, scheduled for Monday in Baltimore, be delayed because of Dowdy's back problems.

Dowdy, 58, is under federal indictment, charged with accepting a $25,000 bribe as payment for stopping a Justice Department investigation into a Silver Springs, Tex., finance company that went out of business.

His trial had already been rescheduled once—from Sept. 14 to Oct. 5—because of his ailing back when doctors said an operation would be necessary.

CITY OF FILTH
TOKYO (UPI) — Half the 11,540,880 citizens of Tokyo dislike living in the world's largest city because of air pollution, traffic and lack of playgrounds for children, a poll by the city showed today. The poll was taken between July 18 and Aug. 5 by the Tokyo Metropolitan Government.

Fake Doctor Out Of Hospital

BRISBANE, Australia (UPI) — William Francis Dalglish, 27, who posed as a doctor in McCamey, Tex., in July, was discharged from the Royal Brisbane Hospital today.

He is to fly to his home town of Townsville, 900 miles north of Brisbane for further treatment of a kidney ailment.

Dalglish contracted a supposedly fatal kidney ailment in Texas after posing as a doctor. Physicians at Odessa, Tex., said he had a very short time to live.

and West Texans paid his air fare to Australia. Brisbane physicians however, discovered his illness was not terminal, though they said he had a serious kidney malfunction. Brisbane police, who have been keeping an eye on Dalglish's movements, said a file on Dalglish was being mailed to Townsville and police there would continue observation of him.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The 1970 midi skirt apparently is laying on egg. Television newscaster David Brinkley calls it "the Edsel of the fashion industry."

That being the case, it probably won't be long until you will be seeing a news story somewhat along these lines:

Washington—Consumer advocate Ralph Nader demanded today that the fashion industry recall the 1970 midi skirt for correction of a serious design defect.

He told a Senate subcommittee investigating the garment disasters that a basic flaw in the midi skirt design creates a visibility problem by obscuring the knee.

"The only way the knee can be seen is by peering under the skirt," Nader testified. "This leads to situations that are both awkward and hazardous and in polite society are considered form."

Industry Blamed

He charged that the fashion industry was aware of this defect before the midi skirt was introduced, yet did nothing either to change the design or to caution customers about it.

He also accused the industry of withholding test data that disclosed the visual impairment.

Nader rejected suggestions by subcommittee members that the visibility problem could be solved by lowering the female hemline.

"The knees on most women are stationary, traditionally occupying a fixed position between the thigh," he explained. "The problem definitely is the length of the skirt rather than the height of the knee."

Spokesmen for the fashion industry who attended the hearing denied most of Nader's allegations and dismissed others as inconsequential.

Midi Defended
"The 1970 midi skirt was extensively test worn before it was placed on the market," they told newsmen. "In every case the performance charts showed that any loss of visibility in shifting from mini skirts was more than offset by a gain in dignity and grace."

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Harry Houdini was an American magician famous for his sensational escapes from handcuffs, straitjackets, prison cells and submerged boxes. The World Almanac notes that Houdini attributed his success to his great physical strength and the fact that he was slightly bowlegged.

"Guests" Still Restricted In Clubs

AUSTIN (UPI)—The State's Alcoholic Beverage Commission cannot enforce its rules against private clubs operating as "open saloons" until the clubs have completed their appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court on the constitutionality of the rules.

The Texas Supreme Court has upheld the state agency's authority to enforce the rules but attorneys for the Attic Club of Dallas have appealed that decision to the federal court.

District Judge James R. Meyers turned down a motion by the attorney general's office Wednesday that would have allowed state liquor agents to go ahead and enforce strict regula-

Military Casualties On Increase

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. command said today 63 Americans were killed last week in the Vietnam War and another 344 were wounded. Military spokesmen said the rise in casualties from last week reflected slightly increased fighting.

The casualties for the week ended Sept. 26 were up from the previous week when 122 GIs were killed and 333 wounded. It raised to 43,737 the number of Americans killed in Vietnam since Jan. 1, 1961, and the total wounded to 289,134, the command said.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My children have all urged me to write and take exception to your answer regarding all the "selfish slobs" who bring crying and talking babies to church services.

You said, "If a child makes even one annoying sound he should be removed from the audience for the duration of the service."

We are Mormons, and Mormons believe in large families. We also believe the whole family should attend church together. Maybe the young people who are having problems with drugs, immorality, etc. would be living differently if they had been taken to church when they were babies.

Babies by nature cry. Children by nature sometimes speak out. Adults by nature are often intolerant of others — especially of children. I admire the minister who is impervious to distractions.

I suspect that if Christ were giving the sermon one day and your writer complained to Him about the children, He would repeat what He said once before, "Suffer little children and forbid them not to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

Yours, very truly,

MRS. C.D.H.

BLACKFOOT, IDAHO

DEAR MRS. H.: Thank you for pointing out the other side of the coin. You show yourself to be more compassionate than I in this instance. May I amend my advice and apply the rules of baseball to disturbances in church? Three times and out! I would like to know how clergymen feel about this.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law, who lives in another state, is "things crazy." She has traveled all over the world collecting things. Her home is a museum — not a home.

My husband and I and our two children, ages three and five, visited her recently and it was pure agony. She watched the children like a hawk and it was, "Don't touch that," every other minute. My husband went right along with her, spanking the kids every time one reached to touch something.

I got so nervous I finally sent the children outside. My mother-in-law followed them to be sure they didn't step on her flowers! (She spanked the 3-year-old twice in 20 minutes for daring to touch one of her pansies.)

These children are not bad. And they're certainly not wild or destructive. They have an intelligent curiosity about everything, and what harm is there in touching a flower?

I refuse to visit her with the children again. I've told my husband that if his mother wants to see us, she has good health and plenty of money, and she can look up her museum and visit us in our home. My husband says I am wrong. What do you think?

ALL SPANKED OUT

DEAR ALL: I think you're right.

DEAR ABBY: I had a beautiful body until I had radical cancer surgery six years ago. I accepted what had to be without tears or complaint. It has not changed, my life as I still work up to my full capacity, physically and mentally.

I could forget my bodily disfigurement (almost) because with the proper undergarments I still have a good figure.

My husband's remarks about other women's "builds" hurt me terribly. He will say, "Boy, look at that gal. She sure is stacked. I wonder if her bosoms are real?"

The other day I was standing in front of our window when a buxom redhead walked by. He yelled at me, "Don't block the view!" Then he sighed, "What a body!"

The hurt and humiliation are getting to me, Abby. Can you help me?

HURT

DEAR HURT: I can't imagine any man being so insensitive. If he has always made such remarks, it's possible that because you "look" so well, he's not even thinking about your surgery. Or perhaps because you've had surgery, you are overly sensitive about it. Quit suffering in silence and ask him if he's thoughtless, or just plain cruel.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069.

How do you adults measure up on good food habits? If you are over 30, then you should be eating two or more servings of dairy foods like cottage cheese, yellow cheese, ice cream, and milk every day.

Feminists Help Operate Vatican

VATICAN CITY — From telephone operators to "doctors of the church," women for the first time are finding a place in the traditionally man's world of the Vatican.

The Vatican yearbook for 1970 lists 43 women employees of the Roman Curia, the central government of the Roman Catholic Church. And despite St. Paul's biblical admonition that women "keep silent" prelates now accept the advice of women on many matters affecting the distaff side, such as the administration of religious congregations.

Pope Paul VI has done more than any of his predecessors to better the status of women. He signed a decree naming two saints, Teresa of Avila and Catherine of Siena, as the first women doctors of the church, a title reserved for the greatest teachers of Catholic doctrine. There are only 30 doctors, including St. Augustine and St. Thomas Aquinas.

On a practical level, the Pope reportedly has authorized nuns to take over the Vatican telephone switchboard, now run by lay brothers.

The pontiff allowed women observers at the Ecumenical Council for the first time in history. He brought women into the curia.

He gave women a role in the Catholic liturgy, although many conservative churchmen would agree with Dr. Samuel Johnson's axiom that "a woman's preaching is like a dog's walking on his hinder legs. It is not done well. But you are surprised to find it done at all."

Nonetheless, a reform of the mass now being introduced throughout the world permits women to read gospel passages in church, provided they do it from outside the altar precinct. And as an exception, a few senior nuns are allowed to distribute consecrated communion wafers in areas where priests are scarce.

Most of the women working for the curia hold jobs in agencies set up as a result of the Ecumenical Council, such as the Pontifical Commission Justice and Peace or the Council of the Laity. Traditional old congregations, such as that for the Doctrine of the Faith, the former Holy Office, still are male bastions. The highest-ranking woman staff member of the curia is a diminutive Australian, Miss Rosemary Goldie, who is under-secretary of the Council of the Laity. She came to the job three years ago after many years of church service.

"What makes things easier for me is that this is a completely new agency and I was with it from the beginning," she said. "It was not as though I had entered a congregation where centuries of tradition and habit would be disrupted by a woman's presence."

The Vatican is a tradition-minded institution that has been slow to accept the quality of women in modern society in part because this has been a late development in Italy. There still are considerable limits to what a woman can do in the church.

She may never be ordained. When the Dutch Pastoral Council, representing clergy and laity, voted in favor of women becoming priests, the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano said the priesthood is open only to men because that was the way Christ wanted it.

Occasionally there are instances of discrimination which critics blame on anti-feminism. For example, when West Germany wanted to send Mrs. Elisabeth Mueller, a first secretary of its trade mission to Poland, as counselor of its embassy to the Holy See, the Vatican replied it was usual to appoint only men to such a high post.

But barriers like these are rapidly coming down.

Pick up an idea from the Dutch and serve cheese and ham for breakfast... only make the combination into a sandwich. Spread bread with softened butter and prepared mustard. Broil or pan-broil slices of bacon. Core and slice large apples to form rings 1/4-inch thick. On each slice of bread overlap 2 slices bacon, top with 1 apple ring and 3 Gouda cheese wedges. Broil 3-4 minutes until cheese bubbles and browns slightly. Great for a snack, too.

Flowering Bulbs Grow Indoor Color

DAYTON, Ohio (Sp) — Bring colorful Spring indoors ahead of time? It's easy, if you put up Spring-flowering bulbs now. Reds, yellows, pinks, blues, purples, whites — you can have them all, say the garden experts.

Tulips, daffodils and hyacinths, in particular will give you a good showing with relative ease. And, if you don't have a good soil handy, you can readily buy it at most garden stores, supermarkets and variety stores.

The first thing to do is to get some bulb pans (low flower pots). Then add a few pieces of broken flower pot over the hole to ensure drainage and to keep the soil from sifting through. A small square of window screening and a 1-inch layer of gravel is still better.

If you mix your own soil, you can do it in a carton, on a big canvas or on the garage floor if need be. Shovel together equal parts of good loam, sand and peat or other commercial humus. A one-third part dehydrated cow manure can also be added but no chemical fertilizer. It might burn the tender roots. Mix all well.

Now partly fill your pots and add the bulbs so the tips will be just barely covered and in any number that fits comfortably into the pot without touching — the larger bulbs should be farther apart than the small ones. Finish filling with soil, water well and let stand a few days.

In the meantime, prepare a coldframe in which to place the pots. Then put in the pots and fill in between them with sand or peat to prevent pot breakage. Let the surface freeze lightly to keep out mice and then cover with six to eight inches or more of hay or straw. If you don't have a frame, dig a hole 18-24 inches deep instead and cover it with boards.

Let the bulbs root here two to three months. Then uncover and take the pots in, a few at a time. Keep them in a cool, well lighted place (45-50 degrees is good, higher temperatures produce weak growth and flowers), watering as needed.

With a little practice, you can bloom crocus, snowdrops, Siberian scillas, species tulips, grape hyacinths and muscadinias. To get better flowers you can also apply a weak (one-third usual dilution) of any soluble fertilizer every 10 days to 2 weeks.

After blooming, keep them in active growth and plant them out in well-prepared soil for garden color the next and succeeding years. The daffodils and little bulbs can be naturalized in semiwild areas, or grown in beds like tulips and hyacinths. But, enjoy them indoors, first.

ETERNITY

In the Bible in Hebrews 9:27 it says "And as it is appointed unto men once to die but after this the judgment." People today don't like to think of Eternity or the Judgment, but as sure as death is, Judgment is also.

People are looking for escape from various different things in this world through the pleasures of the world. They find that these worldly pleasures can not give them peace.

In Romans 6:23 it says "For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." The Bible says the only way a man can escape judgment and being condemned for the sins he has committed is to accept Jesus as their Saviour and to be born again by the Blood of Jesus.

People don't like to think about spending eternity in Hell. There are even some people who says there is no place called Hell and that God is a loving God and wouldn't send anyone to Hell, which is true. God does not send any one to Hell, we send ourselves by disobeying the laws of God.

A man asked a preacher once what he would do if he was to die and find out that there was no place called Heaven or a person called Jesus? The preacher answered him and said "Sir, what will you do if you die and find out that there is a place called Hell and you have to spend eternity there? Friend, are you taking a chance that there is no place called Hell? Do you know Jesus as your personal Saviour? If not, attend a church of your choice this Sunday and give your heart and life to Jesus.

God's
help

When we make a mistake in mathematics, does it make sense to say that the principle of mathematics doesn't work? Similarly, when people don't turn understandingly to God for help, does it make sense to say He can't help us? The provable fact that God is our ever-present help will be discussed in a one-hour talk by Noel D. Bryan-Jones, C.S., a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship. The title: "God Omnipotent Makes Man Triumphant."

Admission is free and everyone is welcome.

Unification Of Protestants Now Entering Another Phase

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

The ecumenical movement began about 50 years ago, as an effort to bring Protestants together.

It expanded during the brief out historic reign of Pope John XXIII into a quest for reunion of the entire Christian family—Protestants, Catholics and orthodox.

Now it seems to be entering still another phase, including in its purposes a higher level of understanding and cooperation among all world religions. The new era in ecumenism began with dialogue between the two world religions which have most in common—Christianity and Judaism.

that dialogue is still in its infancy. In some countries, notably the United States, Christians and Jews have attained a high degree of practical collaboration on social issues of common concern, such as rooting out racism. But the Middle East situation places a constant strain on Christian-Jewish relations, because many Jews feel that Christians have been laggard or lukewarm in their support of Israel.

During the past year, significant efforts have been made by the World Council of Churches, the largest Christian ecumenical organization, to bring Moslems, Hindus, and Buddhists into interreligious discourse. Preliminary consultations among representatives of the major religions began at Ajlouton, Lebanon, last March.

A common concern for world peace is providing, on an international scope, the same practical incentive for inter-faith cooperation that the racial rights movement provided in the United States. But to no one's surprise, Views and Moslems are poles apart on the Middle East situation.

Christians have generally taken the initiative in the new quest for harmony among men of all living faiths. Catholics have perhaps gone even farther than Protestants in recognizing that the spirit of Christ may be present in many places where the name of Christ is not invoked.

Participants in inter-faith ecumenism continue to regard their own religions as the best. But they acknowledge that no faith has a monopoly on truth, and that God may accomplish his purposes in the world through more than one channel.

Jess Grahams Invite Friends To Stop By During Anniversary Fete

Jess and Clara Graham, two children, Pamela, a sophomore at Pampa High School and Dennis, 7, a second grade student at Austin.

Jess reminds area residents that he has been in business in Pampa since 1952 and is acquainted with the needs of residents in rural and small town areas. A free delivery service is a part of this considerate operation of business.

Jess contributes the success of the business to the "wonderful people of Pampa and the surrounding areas." Lots of customers have become good friends, he adds.

The present location, 110 N. Cuyler, was opened for business in October, 1964. The complete line of furniture featured by the store was added to the already existing appliance and television store 11 years ago.

Jess has owned and operated the business since 1955. Before he went into business, he had many years of experience in electronics and major appliance repair.

The home-owned family-operated store has become a feature point of Pampa. The owner's satisfaction has been the major goal of the business operation and success.

Clara and Jess remind customers that the service begins with the sale and extend their thanks for the success of the business.

Approximately 1,800 thunderstorms release their violent forces at any one moment throughout the world. The World Almanac says that in the United States the West Coast has the fewest thunderstorms—less than 10 a year—while Florida is buffeted by more than 100 storms yearly.

Washington Window

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Filibusters, by their nature, are deadening and anyone who doesn't believe it ought to have to cover one.

But there is a queer logic in the system that permits unlimited, endless, droning on in the Senate. It was demonstrated when a group of senators talked to apparent death a constitutional amendment to reform the Electoral College system.

Both friend and foe of the amendment considered it most fundamental change in the American method of electing presidents that has ever reached a vote in Congress.

Spotty Attendance
It was brought to the floor at the worst conceivable time for methodical and considerate debate—in the middle of the heading rush for adjournment and in an election campaign when attendance is often spotty.

It is difficult enough for ordinary bills to be considered under such circumstances. But a change in the Constitution is something else.

The amendment in question has vast implications for the American political system. It would eliminate the Electoral College system—under which all of a state's electoral votes usually are cast for the frontrunner even if he carried a state by only one vote. It would substitute direct, popular election.

Third Party Candidate
The driving force behind the amendment was the fear that a third party candidate would deadlock the Electoral College, and prevent anyone from getting a majority, and force the election into the House of Representatives.

The solution proposed was direct popular election, which is the historical trend in the United States and probably an irreversible one.

But the question that was posed—and never answered in the Senate debate—was what it might mean at a time of

Business Executives Hardest Hit By Economic Recession

By DEAN C. MILLER
UPI Business Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—On percentage the current business recession has hit the business executive harder than the blue collar worker.

An estimated 394,000 executives currently are unemployed, up 74 per cent from last year, according to a recent study by the Council of Better Business Bureaus, Inc., New York.

Many of them are in a state of job shock. They flounder around in an overcrowded job market and become easy prey for unethical career counseling firms. The council has been studying this problem and late in October will release a booklet designed to help the executive frantically searching for new security to protect himself against agency sharpies.

Perusal of a pre-publication draft of the booklet provides some helpful hints from the council.

If the unemployed executive decides to seek out a career counselor, says the council, the firm's reputation should be checked as closely as the businessman checks out key decisions on his own job. While there are many reliable, helpful counseling firms, there are those that promise everything and produce little.

The council, located at 230 Park Ave., and its regional offices have information on many such firms and is willing to provide it to interested parties. The Association of Executive Recruiting Consultants, Inc. and Association of Consulting Management Engineers, Inc., both located at 347 Madison Ave., New York, also have lists and cooperate with job seekers.

Executives seeking jobs through a counseling service, says the council, should demand unmistakable evidence of results. They should ask to see materials prepared recently for former clients with similar backgrounds and references from former clients in similar circumstances. If promises are made, get them in writing. And get a clear-cut description in writing of what the firm will and won't do, the costs involved and the period of time covered by the agreement.

Psychological testing, a function of some consulting firms, is a case in point. Is it included in the cost mentioned or will become an expensive extra?

Such tests can be obtained from reliable psychologists at from $175 to $275, according to the council.

Fees vary widely, from approximately $25 per hour to a fixed charge of several thousand dollars per individual. So, says the council, unemployed executives should check counseling firms closely before making agreements, even if mortgage and college tuition payments stare you in the face and an instant job seems imperative.

Preston Pitches In Cities, Eggers Woos Small Towns

By United Press International
Gov. Preston Smith made his campaign pitch to cities and suburbs Wednesday, while his Republican challenger, Paul Eggers, was out wooing the small towns and rural areas.

Speaking at a Chamber of Commerce awards banquet in Dallas County, Smith said cities and their suburb should become political and governmental partners because "neither the cities nor the suburbs can constructively exist without the other."

"Where the cities have resources needed by the suburbs and where the suburbs have resources needed by the cities, partnership of mutual trust and necessity has become essential to the proper development of both," the governor said.

Eggers, at a barbecue rally at Hebronville, told South Texans they have '97 years of one-party rule to blame for the exclusion of people of their area from high levels of state government.

"South Texans are not the only ones who have sometimes felt left out by the big money lobbyists that dictate the decisions of state officials," Eggers said. "No government can be responsive to the needs and aspirations of all segments of people unless they all have an effective voice in its administration."

The GOP contender promised to call on "Texans from every part of this great state" and to include Texans of every ethnic background in his administration.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper
EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE
Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Some To Gain; Others Lose

Welfare is a matter of growing concern in America these days. The man on the receiving end of a welfare check is concerned. Naturally. He's out to get all he can. Ditto the man on the paying end—the tax payer. He would like to keep the cost of welfare at a minimum, or better yet, cut it out altogether.

The thing is, everybody everywhere has an interest in our welfare program. President Nixon is vitally concerned with it. Earlier this year, the President introduced a welfare "reform" bill and he said it was the "most important piece of domestic legislation of the past 35 years."

There are others, in and out of Congress, who would like to see the government get out of the welfare business and encourage individual self-reliance. In a word: work.

They call "reform" is what they call the Nixon bill; welfare "expansion" is what it is.

The bill would "guarantee" a minimum income to every family. It passed the House last April. Presently it is stuck in the Senate Finance Committee. Let us hope it dies there.

The bill "emphatically" called "welfare reform" would, among other ignoble achievements:

—Put every eighth person in the USA on welfare. (Wouldn't that be something to boast about? Do you suppose the politicians responsible would brag, at campaign time, "I helped put one out of every eight of you on the public dole"?)

—Triple the number of families on welfare. (Is that a worthy goal of the Worthies in Washington?)

—Increase the number of persons on welfare from the present 10 1/2 million to 24 1/2 million.

—Add $4.1 billion the first year to welfare costs; for a total of $11 billion. (That's only a starter. There's another bill pending which would up the minimum so that the annual cost to tax payers would be $60 billion.)

—Outrageous, isn't it? In an attempt to get his "reform" bill out of the Senate committee, Mr. Nixon agreed to give the guaranteed minimum income a year's trial before putting it into effect all over the country.

The logic of the compromise escaped Sen. J. Williams of Delaware, the ranking Republican on the Senate Finance Committee. He proposed, quite reasonably we thought, that the pilot programs be given a try before the bill is passed.

"In my opinion, it would make better sense to authorize the $50 million pilot project and then wait the results of the experiment before deciding on what type of law we want to enact," said the senator.

When Mr. Nixon and his principal adviser on the subject, Patrick Moynihan, and those congressmen who support the bill call it legislation to "guarantee an annual income" that means, quite literally, that they are pledging a specified amount of money each year to close to 25 million Americans, secured by the annual earned income of the remainder of the population—that part of the population that works for what it gets.

And it is very probable that the guaranteed annual income for some will mean a guaranteed annual tax increase for the rest.

Corn Blight Has Its Day

The virulent corn blight that devastated Midwest crops, headache and heartache as it is to farmers—and, eventually, to housewives in terms of higher food prices—at least provides a useful lesson in ecology to an ecology-minded nation.

What has happened is that a mutant or variant of a well-known fungus, "helminthosporium maydis," suddenly appeared, and Farmer Jones' corn, developed for its resistance to the ordinary form of the fungus, is sickening and dying.

There has been corn blight as long as there has been corn. But in this century, the balance was tipped in favor of corn, thanks to scientists who constantly developed more resistant hybrids of the plant. Better seeds, better fertilizers, better pesticides and better farming methods have made corn our No. 1 agricultural product.

This was not "tampering" with nature but exploiting nature's own rulebook entitled Evolution. Unfortunately, the blight follows the same rules and has caught up, temporarily.

Seed producers are hopeful that adequate supplies of new seed, resistant to the new fungus, will be available in time for next year's planting.

Then the blight will have to go back to the lab.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION: Should the government subsidize American farms?

ANSWER: — It is our belief that the government should subsidize nothing, and certainly the 35 years or more of farm subsidy in this country has been nothing but a scandalous mismanagement of resources and a drain on the tax payers, for the benefit of only a few farmers. It has actually harmed the farmers it was meant to help because the subsidies have worked more to benefit the large corporate farms while smaller, individual farms have in many cases not been able to survive.

Freedom Newspapers does not believe that the government should interfere at all in the affairs of people nor should it attempt to regulate them. We have long objected to the post office giving special rates to newspapers and magazines, and we do not believe that any subsidy is in the best interests of either the subsidized concern or the public as a whole.

Apparently there are a number of farmers who agree with us about the farm subsidies.

American Farm Bureau President Charles E. Shuman in a news conference in New Orleans recently urged that "costly subsidies be phased out."

He accused President Nixon of "running out" on a campaign promise to change the direction of farm support policy.

"It would be better," he said, "to let the market decide what is going to be produced," than for government to attempt to control it by direct payments and acreage controls designed to hold prices down."

He said "consumer prices are not related to farm prices" but commented that retail food prices might "level off" if governments actually cut their spending and that food prices will continue to go up as long as the nation's inflation continues.

Mr. Shuman has certainly hit the mark when he says that food prices might level off if governments actually cut their spending. And one of the ways to cut spending would be, as Shuman recommends, a phasing out of the farm subsidies.

H. L. Hunt Writes

TAXES ZOOM UPWARD
Is there any such thing as a "free" lunch? Political attempts to deliver more and more "free" lunches have almost ruined the greatest, finest political creation of mankind: the world has ever known: Republic USA.

Demagogues, promising all kinds of goodies in exchange for votes, have penalized the creative individuals and the profit-motive system which made the material benefits possible. Taxes are offered to fulfill all the promises which can be made. In the end, the taxpayers are the middle class workers because there are enough of them to pay the tab. And they don't complain very much.

The demagogues could confiscate all the income of the less than 1 percent of the population which make more than $50,000 a year and the revenues wouldn't run the federal government more than a few hours. The only place sufficient taxes can come from to fuel the welfare machine is from the millions of middle-income families.

The consumer ultimately pays the taxes, no matter who collects them. An automobile company does not build money, it builds cars. A bakery does not bake money, it bakes bread. Much of the cost of both cars and bread is in hidden taxes. There are 151 taxes on a loaf of bread according to the tax foundation. The bakery can pay those taxes only with money—collected from consumers who eat bread. There is no other source for the bakery to get tax money, hidden or otherwise. The good working taxpayers are beginning to discard their apathy and to inform their elected representatives that tax increases are killing our economy. It is too late to do less, if we are to save our Republic.

That Bob S. McNamara busts out into the news again. And again his flamboyant outbursts gives him the Dingleberry Award of the Month.

He blasted off in Copenhagen, which, if nothing else, proves there's something rotten in Denmark. What he is advocating now is reducing world births by one billion to cut the growth rate to 1 per cent a year.

Of course, when you're 55 years old with a bay window, it's easy to look out and see nothing but a good birth-control plan. But when you're 20 and slim its easy to look down and get a different point of view.

No matter how much you cut the birth-rate—the population will still be as dense as it ever was. Probably the reason Mac wants to prevent posterity is so there won't be so many around to see the blunders we've made. But all his harangues will have little effect, other than putting some birthday candlemakers out of business. The trouble with birth-control is—the one's who need it don't understand it; and the one's who understand it don't need it.

Another thing Mac advocates is that our rich nation give away more billions to foreign nations. That way, Americans and foreigners can all go bankrupt at once.

While the president of the World Bank was inside shouting "Hang the expense," about 2000 demonstrators were outside shouting "Hang McNamara!"

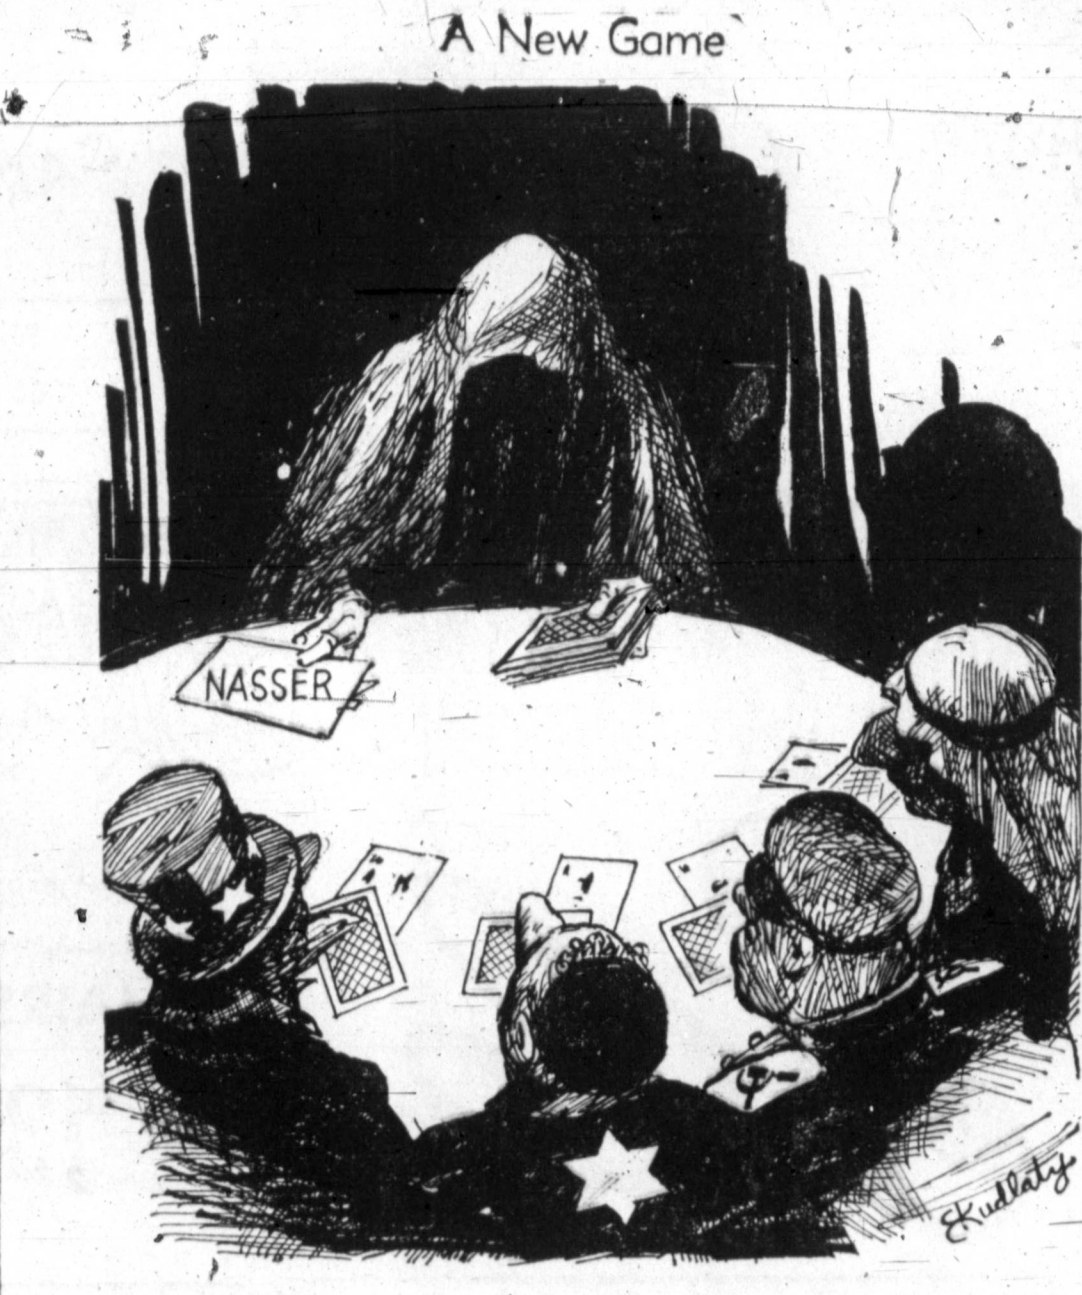

It's the first demonstration we've heard of that might have some merit.

America Today, Tomorrow: Character Vital To Future

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—A great many Americans in public life and beyond think they are saying a stunning thing when they tell us the millions of young are the best informed, most intelligent people we have ever had. It is indeed important.

But character is more vital, and there we are in cruelly short supply. Luckily some Americans recognize it. That is why so much attention was paid to the untimely death this summer of a famed football coach, Vincent Lombardi. His profession was incidental. He was properly seen as a leader and a mover of men.

In his mind, character was a higher quality than the intellect. He defined character as mental toughness, "the perfectly disciplined will," employed in a spirit of sacrifice, self-denial and humility to achieve or strive for high goals. The really pertinent tributes to him were all from men who said not that he had taught them how to play a game well but that he had taught them how to live confidently as men in any walk of life.

The character required to do that is one of the great missing elements in America today, as it has been for a very long time. The character required to do that is one of the great missing elements in America today, as it has been for a very long time. Americans came into nationhood in a convulsive rebellion against authority. The Constitution framed in 1787 created a basis for real free government but still bore a heavy tinge of antigovernment. For all its evident brilliance, the document's effectiveness as an instrument was made possibly the fortunate though irregular appearance of men of character.

Most Americans today (as through history) are essentially undisciplined people. They resent order, authority and law except as it is applied to others. They totally confuse liberty with license. They take freedom as a gift (with no bow to the givers), and assume it carries maximum privilege and little or no obligation.

The worst enemies of freedom today (because they masquerade as its friends) are those who suggest that order, discipline and law are "unnatural" to man and a society aimed at liberty. But, as author Robert Ardrey recently observed in Life magazine, order is the very heart of all nature and organized "societies" exist throughout the animal world, not just human civilizations. Man's indispensable organizing principle he calls the "social contract." Its key problem, he says, is:

...to construct sufficient order so that the group may set as one in behalf of the individual, yet preserve sufficient freedom—what men would call liberty—so that diverse interests may be fulfilled.

Men are inherently aggressive and competitive. Those qualities, properly disciplined, are the engine of progress, the means of solving personal and larger problems, of "winning" in Lombardi's world.

Yet aggressiveness uncontained by rules of order and augmented by force of any degree is violence, destructive of the delicate mechanism Ardrey calls the social contract. "The problem of man," he writes, "is not that we are aggressive—but that we break our own rules."

And so we do, as we have for two centuries. We are incredibly lawless in behavior, from major offense down to the trivia of parking violation. We condone trespass and other invasions of privacy, disregarding not only law but good manners and well-founded customs.

With the willfulness of spoiled children, we answer legitimate challenge with profane insult, degrade debate into a shouting match, litter, despoil and pollute the earth, deface man's proud buildings and destroy some altogether, scream that all this ugliness, disorder and indignity to others is "true liberty."

Almost no American can escape some blame for the loose way we perform on our "social contract." But the heavy condemnation goes to the grossest violators and the sympathizers who today celebrate this despicable carnival of licentiousness as the final triumph of freedom.

JOHN GOLDSMITH Gets Young's Black Ball
ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON — President Nixon, who has had his troubles with Senate confirmation of nominees, has apparently suffered a new rebuff on his selection of former Ohio Congressman Gordon H. Scherer to be a member of the U.S. delegation to the United Nations.

Unlike earlier controversies, involving sub-cabinet officials and Supreme Court justices, this one has had little or no national publicity. It will probably attract none, but it deserves attention as an example of so-called senatorial courtesy under the unwritten "personally obnoxious" rule.

Scherer's nomination is still pending, at this writing, in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. It may well die there. If so, this failure of a nominee to win Senate approval will be attributable to one man — Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio.

If Young has acquired a reputation at all, in two Senate terms preceded by four in the House, it is as the writer of pungent letters, generally to his Ohio constituents. Young has how written one of his letters to Foreign Relations Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., about Scherer.

This time it is not Young's rhetoric which is arresting but his implication that he views the President's selection of Scherer as personally obnoxious, or personally offensive. Under an old Senate precedent, that is probably enough to defeat the nomination.

Under the precedent, such a declaration by a senator is sufficient to block a presidential nominee from the senator's home state or a nominee to a federal position in his home state. Young has asked to testify against Scherer's nomination, and there is every reason to believe that he is ready to invoke the precedent.

NOT CONSISTENT — The White House has been reluctant to accept the appraisal of Senate officials that Scherer's nomination cannot be confirmed. In support of the White House position, it must be said that the Senate has been inconsistent in bowing to the personal objections of its members.

In the best known recent incident involving the unwritten rule, former Senator Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., used it against two appointees to the federal district court for northern Illinois in 1951. Those nominations were blocked by the Douglas objections.

However, unofficial Senate records show that at least four nominees since 1930 have

The fastest airplane in the world is about to be born away from home.

The United States, since Wilbur and Orville Wright, has showed the world the way up. Now the future is about to get away from us; second-place nations are about to become first, not by "trying harder" but simply because squabbling American scientists and politicians are haranguing when they ought to be hustling.

If we do not build a supersonic plane, what is it going to cost you? Britain and France are right now flight-testing an airliner that flies faster than the speed of sound. Russia has been flight-testing one since 1968.

But the U.S. Congress has not yet appropriated money even to begin construction of one of our own.

The White House has asked for $290 million with which to build the first two. That's a lot of money. But these $290 million will circulate through the economies of Seattle and Wichita and 40 states where there are parts suppliers.

These dollars would hold together a first-string team of scientific specialists and generate jobs for American workers.

And besides all the money—eventually $1.3 billion, which the government will have to spend getting this plane into production—will be a loan which will be paid back to the government by the time the 300th such plane is completed. The House half of Congress successfully survived such personal objections and won Senate confirmation. When the chips are down, then the Senate has done as it pleases about this aspect of senatorial courtesy.

In this instance, Young is something of a lame duck. He is retiring from the Senate at the end of this session, and his colleagues need not worry about his wrath (or his wrathful letters) in future congressional sessions.

Nevertheless, the best assessments up to now are that the present Senate, controlled by Democrats, would support personal objections by Young against Scherer. That is why the decision may well be to avoid such an embarrassing and time consuming controversy by letting the nomination die in committee.

LOYALTY AND PATRIOTISM — Scherer, a Cincinnati attorney, was a member of Congress from 1953 until 1962. He served on the House Un-American Activities Committee and on the Public Works Committee.

A conservative, Scherer is currently a member of the Board of Trustees of the conservative organization, Americans for Constitutional Action (ACA). President Nixon has nominated him to be an alternate representative of the U.S. at the UN General Assembly session.

Young contends that Scherer questioned his loyalty and patriotism in 1959, apparently while Scherer was campaigning for reelection. A winner of the Bronze Star during World War II, Young has told the Foreign Relations Committee, in addition, that Scherer was Cincinnati's safety director when he was on the Anzio beachhead.

While it is a relatively minor nomination, there is a significance in Scherer's difficulties which goes beyond a new application of senatorial courtesy.

A question must be asked, as it was in Mr. Nixon's major nomination battles, about how the nominee was chosen in the first place.

Scherer is described, in his semi-official biography supplied by the State Department, as a member of the U.S. National Commission for the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO). That is apparently his entry to service at the UN.

Did that distinction, plus service as a conservative GOP congressman, really make Scherer the best available candidate for the non-official job at the United Nations?

Hollywood In Review

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—General disenchantment across the country with the progress, or lack of it, in the Vietnam war, has played hob with shot-and-shell television series.

Gone are "Rat Patrol," "Garrison's Gorillas," "12 O'Clock High" and "Combat."

This season war makes a comeback in "The Young Rebels."

Producer Jon Epstein says of his new ABC series, "if there's such a thing as a popular war, then it was our own Revolutionary War against the British. And that's the theme of the show."

"We focus on one of a dozen underground spy youth groups fighting the English, who were the establishment of the time—about 1777."

Asked if his show held anything in common—principally sympathy—with today's dissidents and advocates of violent overthrow of the government, Epstein replied negatively.

Epstein, a graduate of Lehigh University and producer of "Arrest and Trial," "Trials of O'Brien," "Rat Patrol" and "The Outcasts," is a bachelor with a mod haircut, mobile face and a sense of humor.

"There are no politics in this series," he said, "and not a great many battle scenes."

"Yes, there are similarities between the young rebels and today's rebels. Their hair is cut almost the same, and our costumes could have been taken off the backs of kids walking along Sunset Boulevard."

"Another thing they have in common is youth. People tend to forget Nathan Hale was only 21 at the time of the revolution. Alexander Hamilton, 22, and General Lafayette, 20."

"Thanks to many factors, including Vietnam, war isn't a popular subject for drama. So we don't dwell on battle scenes."

"We are making a series about the minds of men."

Epstein made it clear his show is not a distorted documentary, but an entertainment series with an historical override. At the end of each show there is brief documentation of what viewers have just seen, fitting the episode into the fabric of the American Revolution.

"Our series is not larger than life," Epstein said. "But in retrospect we've made the revolution and its heroes out of perspective."

An expensive series to make, due in no small part to uniforms, muskets, wigs, scores of extras and costly sets, there are no established performers in the cast.

The leading characters are played by Rick Ely, Alex Henteloff and Lou Gossett.

Because one of the three young dissidents is black, the group may be compared with the trio on "Mod Squad" or other series where a Negro is de rigueur.

Epstein, who was not familiar with the names Crispus Attucks—a black revolutionary leader killed in the Boston massacre of 1770—said his young Negro character was not modeled after any single individual, nor are any other regulars, excepting Lafayette.

Juan Flynn, one of the most important state witnesses at the Tate murder trial, was describing the intimidation used against him to try to scare him out of testifying against Charles Manson and his "family."

Flynn, a 6-foot-5 ranch hand, said that only two weeks ago two of the hippie cult members, a man and a woman, came to his home in the Los Angeles suburbs where he was chopping

"They said they were going to do me in right there," Flynn told the jury. "I had an ax and I told them to help themselves."

"They told me someone downtown (presumably Manson) wanted to see me. And they said if you are not going with us, then we are going to get you right here. When they saw I wasn't going to do what they wanted, the girl started crying."

Saturday's natives are generally proficient in managing money. Many have specialized in entertainment, movies, and the like.
ARIES (March 21-April 19): Seek steady improvement rather than quick return. Your ideas are almost certainly contrary to those of associates. Plan for changes tomorrow, then relax with a good sleep.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Well-meaning associates complicate matters by acting without consulting. Allow for delay and confusion, conscientiously lining up your own share.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20): It takes extra energy Saturday to get anything done. Focus your efforts on the few things that are actually needed. There is something new to do in the later hours.
CANCER (June 21-July 22): Creative ideas surface, many of them premature, feasible later but not right now. Short trips produce good results. Settle details of group ventures.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Family affairs deserve looking into, scope eye worth encouraging. Work out more exact schedules for home and career matters.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A private plan of yours comes into reality with rather interesting results. A short journey offers opportunity for romantic expression, strengthening an old attachment.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A greater investment in time and money promises reasonable satisfaction. There are people and conditions being neglected—do something about them.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Pursue your personal interests with verve. Get the most out of a rather good day of general co-operation. Return calls, catch up on correspondence.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Concentrate on personal matters that are essential to your own welfare. Avoid publicity. Interesting shortcuts can help you in your health care.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Organize legal matters, formalize business proposals. Consultation with experts works out well. Express your concern over family and loved ones.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Diligence brings results. Cover a full schedule at a steady pace to avoid fatigue. The evening is for a party or a good show.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Put worry out of your mind and stay busy. Self-improvement programs promise well. Several activities are available this evening—choose early.

TV In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—As all visitors know, even a temporary trip to San Francisco is good for the soul. So perhaps it is only logical that the handsome city by the bay should produce a television series celebrating life in the notably disheveled year of 1970.
The name of the program is "The San Francisco Mix." In brief, it is an hour electronic montage of human experiences we all share—each week exploring, individually, such subjects as worshipping, eating, courting, dying, playing and dressing—and so on for half a year.
And it will have its debut next week, coast to coast, on about 190 stations of the non-commercial Public Broadcast Service Network.
Originating the show will be San Francisco's KQED, regarded in the industry as one of the nation's most exciting, innovative and "with-it" video stations. Among its achievements is the nationally famous "Newsroom" program, a local nightly offering of informal, in-depth and frequently critical reportage in which a corps of astute newsmen discuss the day's events, city-room style, in a most human manner.
As it happens, the general manager of KQED, Richard Moore, is also executive producer of "The San Francisco Mix," which he says is a try "to uncover what we share in common as members of the human family."
"Television," he notes, "has developed the problem-oriented program to a high degree, so much so that we tend to see human beings not as human beings but as symbols for large abstractions such as the generation gap, hard hats versus hippies, rock versus classical music, doves versus hawks, etc. The 'mix' will concentrate on the human being in his uniqueness, rather than as representative of an idea or a broad scale problem."
Adds producer Zes' Putterman: "Agnew's comment about the eastern elite is right. There is a universe going on that we forget about. We must get to people who are not like us."
The premiere "Mix" broadcast deals with "joining—coming together." At its best, it has the tone of a sort of adult "Sesame Street"—a primer on life-styles for post-schoolers, complete with four amusing people who offer definitions of key words we really ought to know the meaning of. There is splendidly hip photography, music and animation.
The whole approach is cool, the best modern sense, and the result is quite a good show.

Shockers Edge Shorthorns, 28-20

By STEVE BOHLANDER
News Staff Writer
HEREFORD — With eleven seconds gone in the second quarter the Pampa Shockers unloaded a terrible Richard McCampbell against the Hereford Shorthorns.

McCampbell scrambled for 60 yards against the Shorthorn defense for a touchdown. The first quarter of the game saw little action outside of one 60 yard gain by Shocker Rick Musgrave. Both teams acted as if each were waiting on the other to begin play in the first quarter. McCampbell's dart started both teams playing rough-tough football with Hereford scoring with 5:31 remaining in the half. McCampbell rambled through the Shorthorn defense with the assistance of excellent Shocker blocking for a 50 yard touchdown. Hereford came back scoring on an 85-yard dash. Score at halftime was 14-12 in favor of the Shockers.

Starters For Pampa-Lawton Announced

The Pampa Harvesters travel to Burch Stadium in Lawton, Oklahoma, to play the Lawton Wolverines at 8:00 p.m. Lawton is ranked number two in the state in their class.

Casey Cameron and Johnny Clark are the game captains for the game with Lawton. Game captains are appointed by coach Lee based on overall season performance in practice and games.

ALLEN ROUNDTREE, No. 10, leads interference for the Lawton Wolverines in this play against Altus Roundtree, a junior, will be the starting quarterback for the Wolverines in tonight's game against the Harvesters. Both teams meet with 3-0 records.

READY TO SET THE PACE again is Mrs. W. A. Gibson. Mrs. Gibson is the first round leader of the championship flight in the Pampa Women's Golf Association's City Tournament being concluded tomorrow. Tee-offs for the final round will start at 10:00 a.m. at the Pampa Country Club Golf Course. (Staff Photo)

The Shockers failed to block a Hereford pass to Shorthorn Wallace, a split-end, giving the Shorthorns another touchdown making the score 21-20. Richard McCampbell, wanting the victory, put the move into motivation with 7:18 left in the game and an 85-yard burst of glorious running. The Shockers surrendered the ball to the Hereford team with 2:01 remaining on the clock. The Pampa defense held and gave Pampa the win 28-20.

Championship Series On

CHICAGO (UPI) — National League President Charles Feeney says the league championship series and the World Series will be played as scheduled even if major league umpires strike.

The umpires are to meet today in Chicago to discuss the possibility of a strike.

They are seeking a minimum of $5,000 for each umpire working the playoffs and $10,000 for the World Series.

Last year umpires received $2,500 per man for the playoffs and $6,500 for the series. Playoffs in both major leagues start Saturday.

John Reynolds Jr., attorney for the Major League Umpires Association, said no progress has been made in negotiations.

Beman Leads Azalea Open

WILMINGTON, N.C. (UPI) — "I don't think the people watching considered it spectacular because it wasn't, until you started adding it up," mused sandy-haired golfer Deane Beman.

The short Bethesda, Md., golfer fired an eight-under-par round of 63 Thursday to take a two-stroke lead into today's second round of the $60,000 Azalea Open golf tournament.

Beman's round of 30-33 tied the course record at the 7,000 yard Cape Fear Country Club.

Jenkins 2-Hits Cubs Into Second Place

By United Press International
Second place obviously meant more to the Chicago Cubs than to the New York Mets.

Tied with New York for runner-up honors in the National League East going into their final game of the season Thursday night, the Cubs sent 21-game winner Ferguson Jenkins to the mound while the Mets decided to rest their ace Tom Seaver for the long winter ahead.

Jenkins responded with a brilliant two-hitter for his 22nd victory as the Cubs beat the Mets 4-1 to nail down second place, worth approximately $1,200 a player compared to the $500 shares awarded members of the third place team. But, then what's $1,200 a man compared to the approximately $20,000 a player earned by the Mets last year for winning the East Division title, the NL pennant playoffs and the World Series?

Hoople Offers Season Of Saturday Upsets

(Editor's Note: Fortune has smiled upon us, Major Hoople's column arrived in time for today's newspaper. Whether the old boy predicted the Colorado victory over Penn State... we will never know. We do see that he has some more upsets in the offing and hope the old boy himself hasn't been to the well too often.)

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
Peerless Prognosticator

Egad, friends, your favorite forecaster has done it again — um-kumph!

Yes, dear readers, once more the Hoople System has given you the Upset of the Year — Colorado over Penn State — har-rumph!

Love! 'Twas indeed an achievement of monumental proportions — kaff-kaff! And lest you forget, the Colorado triumph was only one of several startling selections I gave you last week on a difficult card which held us to .750 average.

with 39 correct choices, 13 misses and 3 ties!

Before moving on to this week's predictions, I wish to thank you one and all for the deluge of congratulatory messages which poured in to Hoople Manor when word of my amazing forecast spread across the nation.

A diligent search of the jillions of messages has failed to turn up a single one from any of my erstwhile bookmaker friends. Could be they lost their shirts to the loyal followers of the Hoople Forecasts — heh-heh!

This week we have not one but three Hoople five-star specials for you! Watch for Oregon State to topple unbeaten but once tied Southern California, Minnesota to defeat Nebraska (whose only blemish this season is a tie with the Trojans), and Missouri to resume its winning ways by upsetting Oklahoma State.

In other top-rated contests on Saturday, Mississippi will take the measure of Alabama, 35-22. Texas will vanquish UCLA, 42-28. Stanford will ice Purdue, 33-23, and the big lads from Ohio State and Notre Dame will continue to roll by blasting Duke and Michigan State respectively. I predict a 44-7 triumph for the Buckeyes and a 42-14 win for the Fighting Irish — har-rumph!

Martin Follows Mayo As Tiger Manager

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Tigers name a new manager today — with the blessings of the man he's to replace.

The Tigers closed out their highly newsworthy but decidedly dismal 1970 baseball season Thursday with a 1-0 win over the Cleveland Indians.

Billy Martin will be named as manager to succeed Mayo Smith by General Manager Jim Campbell at a news conference scheduled today at 1:00 p.m. EST.

"I wish them all the best," Smith said of Martin and the Detroit organization in his farewell news conference.
