

Wife Pleads For Husband

MONTREAL (UPI)—Barbara Cross, her voice halting as she pleaded in French, Monday night appealed to the kidnapers of her husband, James to release him "without any more delay."

Mrs. Cross, whose husband, the British trade minister, was kidnaped Oct. 5 at machine-gun point from his suburban Montreal home by Quebec Liberation Front (FLQ) terrorists called him "a victim of circumstances."

Shortly before she made her dramatic appeal, the Quebec government reiterated its offer of safe conduct for Cross' kidnapers to Cuba in exchange for the Briton's freedom.

In a message to the FLQ and her husband, broadcast over the French-language radio station CKLM—used previously by the terrorists to convey their communications stating conditions for Cross' safe return—Mrs. Cross said in a halting voice:

"To those holding my husband, I express the hope that as a victim of circumstances, he will be well treated. I beg you to free him without any more delay."

The diplomat's blond wife began by speaking to her husband.

"It is now more than a week since I have heard from you," Mrs. Cross said.

"You are constantly in my thoughts."

"It is agonizing to endure the long period of waiting but I am confident that you are still alive," she said, speaking in French.

A government statement urged the terrorists to proceed to the Canadian pavilion at the Expo '67 World's Fair site and turn Cross over to the Cuban consul.

Cross' last letter to his wife was in danger if the was well but warned his life was in danger if the kidnapers' demands—principally the release from Quebec jails for 23 convicted FLQ members—were not met.

Contacted more than three hours after the broadcast, a spokesman for Mrs. Cross said there had been "no response whatsoever (from the FLQ) to the house or to the police."

Police continued their manhunt to find Cross and his kidnapers as well as those of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, who was found murdered Oct. 17 a week after he was abducted by the FLQ.

Mailing Ban Imposed On Credit Cards

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon has signed into law a bill designed to ban the mailing of unsolicited credit cards, allow consumers to inspect their files in credit agencies, and to crack down on the illegal use of secret foreign bank accounts.

Under the new law, banks and other credit card issuers will be able to mail credit cards only to fill a specific request from a consumer or to renew an already held card.

The consumer's liability for use of a lost or stolen card will be limited to $50 if the company is given notice that the card holder no longer has that card.

This section of the law takes effect in 90 days.

Another section of the law allows consumers to look at credit information on them in the files of credit reporting agencies. This section, which goes into effect in 180 days, provides that false information must be corrected after an investigation.

The new law also requires U.S. banks to keep extensive records to allow investigators to follow the flow of funds to foreign banks. It also states that Americans must report any exports and imports of more than $5,000 at any one time.

The secret bank account section provides maximum fines of $1,000 and a year in prison, unless there are illegal transactions of over $100,000. In that case the fines could go as high as $50,000 with prison penalties up to five years.

CARRYING GENERALS

'Freak' Wind Lands Plane On Soviet Soil

MOSCOW (UPI)—The pilot of a light American plane which crossed the Soviet-Turkish border last week told U.S. diplomats "a freak gust of wind" made him accidentally land on Soviet soil, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said today.

The spokesman quoted the pilot, Army Maj. James Russell of Braxton, Miss., as saying his light Beechcraft plane carrying two American generals and a Turkish colonel was approaching the airport at the Turkish city of Kars when "a sudden gust of wind caught the plane and lifted it up above the clouds."

"When they came down again they thought they were landing at Kars but found themselves at Leninakan," about 12 miles inside the Soviet Union, the spokesman said.

The spokesman said two U.S. consular officials met "for several hours" late Monday with the pilot, Maj. Gen. Edward E. D. Sherrer, Brig. Gen. Claude Monroe McQuarrie and the Turkish liaison officer, Col. Civat Danil.

"All four men are in good health," the spokesman said. "They are housed together in quite comfortable circumstances, in a guest house at Leninakan. They all are feeling fine. The Soviets made no difference in treating the three Americans and the Turk."

The embassy requested the Soviet Foreign Ministry today to allow the consular officials, Peter B. Swiers and Richard E. Combs Jr., to meet again with the four detained officers. There was no immediate response.

Deferments May Be Exchanged For IA Status

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Selective Service System has announced that young men may drop their draft deferments in favor of IA classification at any time they prefer.

The purpose of the new policy is to allow draft age men to place themselves in the draft pool at the least likely time they could be called up. Under old rules, deferments could be dropped only at the end of the deferment period.

Selective Service Director Curtis W. Tarr encouraged men with high draft lottery numbers to take the step because it would cut down on paper work and would reduce anxiety among thousands of draft eligible youth.

Under the new rule, if a man chooses to reclassify IA, he immediately goes into the "first priority group"—along with others who drew low lottery numbers. But on Jan. 1, he would automatically shift into the "second priority group" and be untouchable by the military except in a national emergency.

Egypt Intensifies Diplomatic Tactics

CAIRO (UPI)—The semi-official newspaper Al Ahran said today there has been a "redoubling of military efforts" on both sides of the Suez Canal as the end of the Arab-Israeli cease-fire approaches.

The newspaper, echoing Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad's speech to the United Nations Monday, also warned against continued U.S. support of Israel. "The American stance carries in its folds the most explosive possibilities. It might lead to complications with consequences going beyond the Middle East area."

It noted reports that both Israel and Egypt are building forces in the standstill zone along the Suez Canal. "The situation on both sides of the Suez Canal front seems very serious with the redoubling of military efforts as the cease-fire expiry date approaches." It did not elaborate.

The 90-day cease-fire arranged through American diplomatic efforts expires Nov. 5. There are hopes for an extension.

Egyptian officials shrugged off remarks Monday by Israel's intelligence chief, Maj. Gen. Aharon Yariw, about Egypt massing missile batteries in the Suez Canal standstill zone.

"It's the barking of a dog while the caravan marches on," said one official. Officials described Yariw's statement as "part of the desperate campaign to take the steam out of the U.N. General Assembly debate on the Middle East crisis" which opened Monday.

President Anwar Sadat said Egypt will not concede any territory to Israel as part of a peace settlement. Sadat, in an interview with the British Broadcasting Corp., said "no one will capitulate in this country. No one will surrender one inch or a bit of sand of our land."

Al Ahran also said the cabinet was "making a broad review of prices of some essential commodities." The study apparently is aimed at cutting down prices of some commodities to improve the lives of Egyptians.

Lach Jury Impaneling Underway

FORT WORTH (UPI)—Jury selection resumed today in the trial of Benjamin Lach, the former Texas Tech student charged with killing a cleaning woman with a scapel in Lubbock in 1967.

The trial was moved to Fort Worth on a change of venue.

The first juror was picked when the trial began Monday.

Lach was arrested March 13, 1968, and police said he confessed to the killing. He was found mentally incompetent to stand trial and sent to a mental institution. He was released this year to stand trial.

Mrs. Alice Morgan, 54, was found in the science building on the Lubbock campus at Texas Tech with her throat cut. The murderer apparently tried to cut her head off with a bone saw after she was killed.

Youth Cleared In DWI Charges

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—A youth was cleared of drunken driving charges Monday after his attorney said he received a blood transfusion which may have been "alcoholic."

Robert Asson, 19, found guilty in criminal court on an involuntary manslaughter charge, had drunken driving charges dismissed because he underwent blood transfusions following the accident in which another youth was killed.

His attorney told Judge

Henry Smith blood samples taken from Asson shortly after the accident were inadmissible evidence since Asson had received several blood transfusions at a hospital in the interim.

The attorney said blood used in the transfusions may have contained the alcohol. The samples showed an alcohol level of .14 per cent, four one-hundredths of a per cent over the legal level.

TEXAS GOV. PRESTON SMITH to speak here tonight

GOV. SMITH HERE

Democrat Rally On Stage For Tonight

Democrats will stage a Big Rally at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the Pampa Youth and Community Center at which time Incumbent Texas Gov. Preston Smith will be the principal speaker.

Several state and local candidates will attend including James Denton, Democratic candidate for the State Supreme Court; Lan Bentsen, son of U.S. Senate candidate Lloyd Bentsen; Democratic state senate candidate Max Sherman of Amarillo state representative Dean Cobb and state representative Phil Cates of LeFors.

Special entertainment will be provided by "Sing Out Pampa," a group of local young people who recently toured the Panhandle with Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes.

Gov. Smith is expected to arrive in Pampa at 6:45 p.m. and will go directly to the rally.

Tickets for the barbecue may be obtained prior to the dinner at Gray County Democrat Headquarters, 112 E. Foster or from any Gray County Democrat Club members. $3 tickets will be available at the door.

Fight Raging For Control Of Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The contest for control of the U.S. Senate appears headed toward a photo finish.

In the closing days of the 1970 campaign, the Democrats are less optimistic than they were a few weeks ago. Republican Senate was a realistic goal in the elections a week from today.

The GOP needs a net gain of seven seats and the tie-breaking vote of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew to organize the Senate when it convenes in January. Of 35 seats to be filled, Democrats hold 25, Republicans 10.

Highly placed officials in both parties now agree substantially on the battleground states which will determine the outcome of the struggle to win the Senate. There is little difference in their assessments.

But even if the Republicans don't win outright control of the Senate, strategists recognize a net GOP gain of as few as two seats would be enough to swing overall Senate philosophy closer to the Republican side.

A knowledgeable Democrat, who has traveled many miles this fall into key states, sees a possible net loss of five seats for his party, plus a Virginia seat, Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., D-Va., who is favored to win reelection running as an independent, has declined to say which party he will back for control of the Senate.

Deadline Nears For Absentee Voting

Deadline for absentee balloting in the upcoming Nov. 3 general election is 5 p.m. Friday, according to Gray County Deputy Clerk Wanda Carter.

Mrs. Carter said 308 absentee ballots had been cast as of this forenoon and there are 56 ballots still out.

She said there is a new provision in the voting law that permits new people in town to cast a limited ballot. This must be done in the county clerk's office before Friday.

The Gray County Clerk's office will be open through the noon hour for the convenience of absentee voters.

Egypt Closes Door To Leary

CAIRO (UPI)—LSD advocate Timothy Leary, two Black Panthers and a Yippie were barred from entering Egypt today when they arrived from Lebanon where they were told they were unwelcome visitors.

Egyptian authorities said Leary and his party would have to remain at Cairo Airport until a scheduled flight Thursday to Algeria where they began their frustrated tour of the Middle East last Sunday.

Leary escaped Sept. 12 from a California prison where he was serving a sentence for possession of marijuana. He surfaced in Algeria last week as the guest of Eldridge Cleaver, the Algiers-based Black Panther "information minister" who is a fugitive from a California parole violation charge.

With Leary today were Black Panthers Don Cox and Martin Kenner and Jennifer Dohrn, a member of the Youth International Party—Yippies—whose sister Bernadine is wanted by the FBI for alleged Weatherman terror bombings in the United States.

Leary and the others had wanted to spend two days in Egypt and then go on to Jordan and Syria. At Cairo Airport, when they were told they would not be permitted to enter Egypt, the group requested visas to go to Jordan and Syria. "We did not get them," Cox was quoted as saying.

In Beirut, legal sources said the four had been awakened in the middle of the night at their $46 a day hotel suite and told they would have to leave the Lebanese capital about a 4:15 a.m. flight to Cairo. They were reported driven to the airport in a police jeep.

Police sources said the group's continued stay in Lebanon was "not desirable."

Airport police kept newsmen at a distance with the explanation "we have orders to allow no one to speak to him" and walked with the American LSD advocate from the terminal out to the plane as he left.

When newsmen tried to address him, Leary, wearing a brown suit, open-neck shirt and brown leather cap, smiled and stared ahead.

Leary's colleagues said earlier the group hoped to go to Syria or Jordan "within the next few days" to express the Black Panthers' solidarity with Palestinian commando leaders.

However, Leary, Black Panther Field Marshal Don Cox, New York Panther Chairman Martin Kenner and Jennifer Dohrn, a fund raiser for the Yippies and sister of Bernadine Dohrn, one of the FBI's most wanted persons in the United States, paid their $300 bill at the beachfront Hotel St. Georges before dawn and went to the airport.

Miss Dohrn declined comment when asked where her sister was. There had been reports it was Bernadine rather than Jennifer who was in Algiers shortly after Leary and his wife, Rosemary, arrived there last week.

MINI-COURSES PLANNED

Trustees Hear Description Of PHS Curriculum Goals

By WANDA MAE HUFF
News Staff Writer

After about two hours of breakfast and discussion on Pampa High School personnel questions, Pampa school trustees heard explanations of possible long-range curriculum and scheduling changes for Pampa's high school students.

After taking no action on the personnel questions presented by Cameron Marsh, PHS principal; Marvin Bowman, PHS assistant principal; and Supt. Dr. James F. Malone, the board came out of executive session at 9:15 a.m. to hear Marsh's long-range predictions for high school.

Eight major areas of Marsh's talk concerned potential improvements by moving ninth grade to high school; adopting an open campus-no study hall arrangement; variable scheduling of class hours; establishing a middle school with seventh and eighth grade in one junior high and a separate elementary school for sixth grade; possible changes in the length of class hours; minicourses on an experimental basis; terminal courses on vocational level with different types of diplomas; and contact maintenance.

"We could move the ninth grade to high school, go into a four-year high school program, and establish the middle school without adding classrooms if we altered our philosophy on class scheduling," Marsh said.

The college-campus type arrangement considered would have an open-campus atmosphere, no study halls, and more comprehensive programs by incorporating the ninth grade into high school. Our activities would have to be changed to meet University Interscholastic League standards, but we could offer more courses, Marsh said.

He stressed no additional classroom space would be needed only if the variable scheduling idea was adopted at the same time, because "our present non-flexible schedule would not permit adding 900 students without doing more than just rotating classes."

"The secondary schools would have the semblance of a little college. We're going to experiment this semester with the mini-course idea of a three, four or five week course which concentrates on a specific area in a major subject, like a three week course on "Hamlet" in an English class," Marsh said.

"The date to start our minicourse in English has not been set, but we plan to do it this semester as a pilot program. Students would receive credit as part of their overall credit in English. The idea has been planned and coordinated by all teachers in the English department to make sure no student falls behind his class while attending the minicourse," Marsh said.

Winter Blows Into Texas

By United Press International

Winter, with snow and temperatures slipping to near the freezing mark, blew into Texas today on the heels of a wild night of tornadoes, thunderstorms and hail.

An inch of snow was on the ground in the Upper Texas Panhandle. Snow fell at Dalhart throughout the night and was expected to continue through today, tonight and into Wednesday.

At last report, it was snowing as far south as Palo Duro Canyon, below Amarillo, and the Amarillo forecasters expected snow to spread to the Caprock.

Temperatures were several degrees above freezing and there was not much danger of the snow piling up until tonight. An overnight low of 27 was predicted for Dalhart and a low of 29 for Amarillo.

Damage Light

Tornadoes were reported in the Dallas-Fort Worth area of North Central Texas, and near Waco in Central Texas. Damage was light and no lives were lost or residents of the areas injured.

The heaviest rains hit East Texas; Tyler reported 2.90 inches of rain and Longview reported 2.12 inches.

Thunderstorms continued to rumble across parts of East and Southeast Texas early today. Light rain and drizzle fell in Southwest Texas east of the Pecos.

After a board member asked where "these innovative ideas come from," Marsh explained most of them were from the National Education Association, Texas Educational Association curriculum planning conferences.

WEATHER

PAMPA AND VICINITY — Forecast calls for cloudy and colder with slight chance of snow or rain this afternoon. Cloudy tonight and Wednesday. Much colder tonight, a little warmer Wednesday. High yesterday 70, low last night 33, with a trace of snow. High today near 40, low tonight upper 20s, and high Wednesday mid 40s. Northerly winds 10-25 mph and gusty this afternoon, diminishing tonight. Probability of precipitation 20 per cent this afternoon.

Cold Front Blamed

The storms were caused by a cold front. It was moving southeast from the Paris-Waco — Big Bend areas.

A huge low pressure system in the upper atmosphere and stretching from Canada into southern New Mexico was circulating moisture over the cold to produce the snow.

Except in the Northwestern part of the state, where snow was due, light rain and drizzle were expected over most of the state into Wednesday.

Clay's Victory Nets Bomb Threat

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—An anonymous man made a series of threatening phone calls to Cassius Clay's home here Monday night that included a bomb threat, police said. Mrs. Belinda Clay, who answered the first call, left the home with her newborn twin daughters following the threats, according to Lt. Charles Whittaker.

"They're staying elsewhere in the city," he said. "Approximately ten calls were made, the detective said, after Clay's victory over Jerry Quarry at Atlanta.

"The search of the house was negative. We made a complete search of the house assisted by the Fire Department," Whittaker explained. The search lasted about an hour and included an inspection of the roof.

Clay Fight Brings Out Most Elite

ATLANTA (UPI)—There were sequins and plumes, rich fabrics of baby blue, daring purple, cool off-white, fancy hair, maxi coats and see-through blouses. The women were dressed nicely, too.

It was a gala evening in Atlanta. The Old South had its first major boxing match and Cassius Clay pleased the majority of the fans who turned out by scoring a rapid-fire, third-round technical knockout over Jerry Quarry to prove he is, indeed, back to try to reclaim his heavyweight title.

The crowd was about two-thirds black and a number of Negro dignitaries were introduced—Diana Ross in a black see-through blouse, Sidney Poitier, Bill Cosby, who helped with the closed circuit telecast, Hank Aaron, Donn Clendenon, Wilfrid Young, Clarence Williams III, the Rev. Ralph Abernathy and Mrs. Coretta King, widow of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., who got a standing ovation.

State Sen. Leroy Johnson, the promoter, presented Mayor Sam Massell a check for $50,000 for the mayor's program to combat drug abuse. Johnson, terming it a "historic occasion," said the turnout was a demonstration of democracy.

Quarry's blonde wife, Kathy, said before the fight she was very nervous in contrast to her calm husband. "Jerry has been calm all night," she said. "In fact, just before we left our motel he was sitting there watching the Red Kellon Show on television."

Panther Home Search Turns Up TNT

DETROIT (UPI)—A search of the house which was the scene of a weekend shootout between police and Black Panthers turned up two pipe bombs and 25 sticks of dynamite Monday, police said.

The explosives apparently were missed during a quick search of the building Sunday when tear gas hampered inspection of the house. Police said charges of possession of explosives might be filed against 15 occupants of the house. The 15 were charged earlier with murder and conspiracy to commit murder in connection with the fatal shooting of black Patrolman Glenn E. Smith, 26, Saturday night.

Earlier Monday, Acting Mayor Mel Ravitz credited a black woman newspaper columnist with preventing further bloodshed by persuading the occupants of the house to surrender.

Miss Nadine Brown, a columnist for the weekly Michigan Chronicle, entered the Panther headquarters five times while the structure was under siege, carrying food, cigarettes and messages. "The citizens of this community should be thankful and grateful for her quiet courage," said Ravitz, president of the Common Council.

Miss Brown praised Ravitz and police for their handling of the situation but said it was "precipitated by police."

"Police have harassed the Black Panthers in Detroit for the last year," Miss Brown said. "I just know the black community. I have been riding on top of this situation this year and know the problems they have had with police."

GM-UAW Talks Reach Impasse

DETROIT (UPI)—Negotiations between General Motors and the striking United Auto workers have reached the "critical" phase, according to chief GM bargainer Earl Bramblett.

Unless "a lot of progress" is made at the bargaining table within the next two weeks, resumption of auto production at GM will be held up until at least December, Bramblett said.

"We want a settlement as quickly as it is possible to get it," Bramblett told newsmen after Monday's negotiating session. He labeled as "utter nonsense" a UAW allegation that the company was delaying a settlement of the 6-week-old walkout by dragging its heels in the bargaining.

"We are concerned about the impact on our employees and the national economy and we are losing $90 million a day in sales," the GM vice president said.

Bramblett's statements followed a call by UAW President Leonard Woodcock for more negotiating on both the national

Cultist Leader Deluded Followers Into Belief He Was Jesus Christ

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A tall, gangling runaway from his home in Texas was 19 when he met Charles Manson. He thought that very first day the hippie leader was Jesus Christ.

Bruce Poston, now 21 testified at the Tate murder trial Monday that Manson later told the whole "family" he was Christ and had died for them on the cross.

Poston lived with Manson and his young men and women from June, 1968, to late 1969. The prosecution called him to testify about the hold Manson had on his followers.

Deputy District Attorney Vincent Bugliosi revealed the state would wind up presentation of its case in about a week. The defense case is expected to last at least a month with Manson probably taking the stand near the end.

Manson was in the courtroom, Monday, clean shaven, his hair trimmed and tied in a pony tail. He behaved calmly, as did the three female codefendants, Leslie Van Hou-sten, Patricia Krenwinkel and Susan Atkins. Poston said he first met Manson in Los Angeles in 1968 not long after leaving his home in Texas with another young man. On that first day his friend bowed down and kissed Manson's feet. Poston said he was under the influence of LSD at the time and decided on the spot Manson was Christ.

The witness said he had no place to go and asked Manson if he could join up with him that Manson asked him whether he could "make love to a girl in front of 25 people."

Poston said he told him he thought he could but admitted later in his testimony that he never made love to any of the "family" girls during the entire time he lived with them.

On a number of occasions Manson spoke of a black-white conflict to the death with the "family" members hiding out in the desert, Poston said. He said Manson predicted 144,000 persons would join the clan in its hideout and then take over ruling the country.

Martha Can't Tell A Lie Didn't Chop Down Trees

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The oak trees of Washington have nothing to fear from Martha Mitchell. Dab rest rooms are another matter.

The outspoken wife of Attorney General John N. Mitchell got the blame in stories going around the capital last week for the demise of seven of the 11 oak trees that lined the 10th Street side of the Justice Department Building outside her husband's office.

Mrs. Mitchell, contacted by phone at her apartment, where she is sick in bed with a cold, said Monday, however, that chopping down the huge trees was not a part of her campaign to brighten up the one-block Building.

"I had nothing whatsoever to do with the trees," she said. "I didn't have a thing to do with that side of the building."

Mrs. Mitchell was backed up by her husband's information officer, Jack W. Hushen, who said the trees were cut down because they were killed during excavations in the past year to build a steam tunnel from the Justice Department to a new FBI building under construction nearby.

APHA To Lobby Against Nixon's Health Policies

By EDMUND GLEN JOHNSON
 HOUSTON (UPI) — The American Public Health Association's (APHA) president Monday said the organization would move to Washington to lobby against President Nixon's "deathly" health policies.
 "We're going to have to find a strong champion in Congress, particularly if this man Nixon stays in the White House for another four years," said Dr. Paul B. Cornely. "His attitude on public health has been deathly."
 Cornely today opened the 98th annual meeting of the APHA, representing public health organizations and workers in every state.
 "Public health has had a low priority in this administration," Cornely said.
 Lists Four Problems
 He listed four problems he said society must overcome for better public health: "Addiction to affluence, perversion of democracy, pollution of the mind and racism."
 Cornely said Americans must be willing to spend less for luxuries to have more for needed programs, to return the rule to the majority, to demand more from the media and to treat all men equally.
 He proposed more communication between the national

David Eisenhower Enters Navy School

NEWPORT, R. I. (UPI) — David Eisenhower, son of a West Pointer and grandson of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Monday began a series of examinations and routing indoctrination classes at Navy Officer Candidates School (OCS).
 The 22-year-old Amherst College graduate, who is married to President Nixon's younger daughter, Julie, reported to OCS at the Newport Naval Base Saturday. He was assigned to Oscar Company, a 25-man unit in a class of about 220.
 He secured his uniforms, got a haircut—Navy regulations allow hair up to 2½ inches—and settled in over the weekend. Exams and indoctrination sessions were scheduled for this week.
 If Eisenhower, son of John Eisenhower, former Army officer who is U.S. Ambassador to Belgium, completes the 18-week OCS course, he will be commissioned an ensign.
 His Navy tour is for three years with post-service plans indefinite, although he reportedly was considering law school.

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
 In the Dominican Republic, when it rains it pours.
 The heavy October rains which spread havoc through many Caribbean islands hit the Dominican sugar crop for which there had been high hopes for a new record. A manpower shortage threatened the coffee crop, and government officials said that only quick emergency action could save the tobacco harvest.
 Together they rate one, two and three at the top of Dominican exports.
 These threats of economic disaster come toward the end of a tumultuous year in which President Joaquin Balaguer won election to a second term and more than 100 Dominicans died in political violence.
 It was, said Balaguer, a legacy from the 1965 civil war "which buried its dead but not its hatreds."
 Some 3,000 people died in that conflict.
 In the intervening years, $100 million in U.S. loans bolstered the Dominican economy.
 The worst drought of the century ended in mid-1968 after 22 months, with one result a sugar crop up 2 per cent to 920,000 tons in 1969 and hopes for a million tons this year.
 Lush pastures permitted cattlemen to export more than $7 million in beef to the United States, Puerto Rico and Caribbean Islands.
 Abundant rice, cooking bananas and edible tubers brought prices down at home.
 Upon government hopes for a record sugar crop and an increase of about $8 million in returns from coffee production depended much of the government's ability to finance a $80 million public works program already announced. The financing was to come from new taxes.
 Floods which damaged the crops also wiped out some secondary roads and bridges.
 To bring in the new coffee crop the government is broadcasting appeals for 100,000 rural workers now living in cities to return to the countryside.

WOMEN CONFINED
 COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—The cause of job equality for women might be advanced if women were drafted says the only woman instructor of ROTC in the U.S. Air Force.
 Capt. Rosetta A. Armour, who teaches at Ohio State University, said drafting women "would tear down some stereotypes and help change men's attitudes toward women."
 "Women are mostly confined to so-called womanly jobs now," she said.

Dear Abby

By Irving Van Lier

DEAR ABBY: A young mother complained that her mother-in-law always introduced her and her children, who were still toddlers, as "my daughter-in-law and her two adopted children." The young mother was resentful and you agreed that she had a right to be. I think you are both wrong.

It is never too soon to let children know that they are adopted. They should hear the word "adopted" long before they even know what the word means so they'll grow up knowing that they are adopted.

I still remember when I was eight, running home from school, crying because someone told me I was adopted. I begged my mother to tell me it wasn't true. She assured me it wasn't! When I was 12, I heard that story again, and again I asked my mother if it was true. Again she swore it wasn't. Not until I was 24 and about to be married did my mother tell me the truth, and even then it was a terrible shock.

Please retract your statement, Abby. That mother-in-law was wise to have introduced the children as "adopted."

MRS. L. I agree, it is never too soon to tell children they are adopted, but I think the parents should tell them, and having once been told, unless it is said with obvious pride, it's not necessary to include the word "adopted" in every introduction. From the young mother's letter, I assumed that "pride" was lacking. She could have been mistaken. And so could I. Thank you for making a valid point.

DEAR ABBY: I am not even sure how to word this, but I will do my best. There are six couples of us who go round together. We are all in our middle thirties, and we all like to dance. There is no hanky panky in our crowd. We're all satisfied with our husbands and we don't fool around.

There is one man in our group, who is really a nice person but when he dances, he holds his partner extremely tight and close. It's not only the tightness and closeness, but he gets so intimate when he dances — it's downright indecent. I just hate to dance with him. I keep pulling away and struggling the whole time. At first I thought he danced that way only with me, but I noticed another girl having the same trouble with him. Finally, a few of us started talking and it turns out he dances that way with all of us. Abby, is it possible that he isn't aware of what he is doing? His wife is a lovely person, and I'm sure she doesn't know the way he dances with us. Can this problem be solved without hurting his feelings?

DISGUSTED DEAR DISGUSTED: Why all the pussyfooting around? It's a pretty safe bet that this man is aware of what he is doing. When he asks you to dance, tell him no — you don't care for his style of dancing. He'll get the message. And don't worry about hurting his "feelings." I have an idea he can look after himself.

DEAR ABBY: I have never written a letter to you before but I think the following might interest you and some of your readers:

Yesterday was an old man's birthday. He was 91. He awakened earlier than usual, bathed, shaved and put on his best clothes. Surely they would come today, he thought. He wouldn't take his daily walk to the gas station to visit with the old-timers of the community because he wanted to be right here when they came.

He sat on the front porch with a clear view of the road so he could see them coming. Surely they would come today. He'd skip his noon nap that day, because he wanted to be up when they came.

He has six children. Two of his daughters and their married children live within a few miles. They hadn't been to see him for such a long time and today was his birthday. Surely they would come. At supper time, when a small cake and ice cream was served, he wondered if perhaps he shouldn't wait and have dessert with "them" when they came. Night time came, and he went to his room and got ready for bed, and his last words before turning out his lights were, "Promise to wake me when they come." It was the birthday and he was 91.

Scouting Scoops

By SYLVIA GRIDER The Cadette Camporee at the new council camp near Clarendon was held this month with 105 Girl Scouts and adults who went by bus to the Bob Andis ranch for a hike to the waterfall and a picnic. That afternoon they returned to the campsite where they worked on service projects for the camp.

A program was later provided by Senior Scouts Susie Stowers and Paula Homer, Pampa, and Kathy Rion, Borger, who all attended National Girl Scout Events in Tennessee and Kentucky. They told the Cadettes about the Appalachian crafts, songs, and dances they learned while at these camps. The cold, rainy weather was responsible for the cancellation of this year's Brownie Holiday. More than 225 Brownies were expected for this big event annually sponsored by Senior Scout Troop 2, Pampa.

Local troops have been busy with service projects, badges, and civic education. Cadette Troop 3, with Mrs. Ralph McDonald and Mrs. Jerry Carter as leaders, elected troop officers at one of their recent meetings. The girls are taking a baby sitting course through the local Red Cross. Some of the girls attended the patrol Leaders' Training Course Oct. 24.

Brownie Troop 3 held a cookout with Junior Troop 87. The Brownies, under the leadership of Mrs. J.T. Rogers, attended a troop birthday party to receive their one-year membership pins. Brownie Troop 16 visited the M.K. Brown Museum. Mrs. Wade Gilbert is the leader.

Junior Troop 18 participated in three special events recently. They have hiked along the Hike and Bike Trail, visited the Fire Station for a lesson in safety, and had a scrapbook decorating contest. Each girl decorated her own scrapbook, based on the theme of the Girl Scout Promise and Laws.

First prize was awarded to Phyllis Reynolds and second prize to Kristi Rapstine. Girls regularly participating in the activities of this troop are Terri Coffman, Alison Davis, Denise Damron, Laurel Gruver, Brenda Hoskins, Kim Jones, Kris Jones, Janis Johnson, Cheryl Knight, Gayle McDonald, Amy McMullan, Regina Orr, Kristi Rapstine, and Phyllis Reynolds. Mrs. Glenn Knight is the leader.

Junior Troop 75 did the flag ceremony for new Brownie Troop 79's investiture. These Junior Scouts are making alphabet puppets for the first graders at St. Vincent de Paul School for their service project and plan to put on a puppet show for the first graders at Christmastime. Mrs. Robert LaFon is the Brownie troop leader, and Mrs. Charles Walsh is leader of Junior Troop 75.

Junior Troop 87, under the leadership of Mrs. N.G. Kadingo, is working on Our Own Troop's Lapidary Badge. They have been making rock pictures and jewelry and have been to Plum Creek collecting rocks. They have also completed the Cyclist and Foot Traveller badges. On a weekend the girls worked at Camp Mel Davis on their Outdoor Cook and Observer badges.

French Tots Describe Ideal Papa

By ROSETTE HARGROVE NEA Paris Correspondent PARIS (NEA)—What makes the ideal father? What do children look for? Discipline? Authority? Success? Good looks?

A survey conducted by "Elle," France's popular women's weekly magazine, provided an eye-opener for many parents, an insight into the ruthless world of children's values.

One hundred boys and girls were shown eight pictures especially taken to portray a type of father and a situation. Then came the questions: If you could choose your own father, which of them would you prefer and why?

The boys were asked which of the fathers they would most like to resemble when they grew up. The girls: Which of them they would like to marry. Finally, the kids were asked which of the eight men was most like their father.

The test brought some candid and revealing comments, even though it was started as a lighthearted exploration in a child's mysterious world of values, rather than as an out-and-out scientific probe. Their preferences betrayed their reactions and unconscious judgments, along with a certain cruel appraisal of their own parents, which they seldom would dare to express openly.

The types of fathers suggested were Charmer, Teacher, Executive, Handyman, Star, Home Helper, Spoiler and Sportsman. Care was taken to introduce into every picture a detail which could make the father outstanding, or sympathetic or not so very attractive.

The Charmer: The girls fell headlong for this one as the ideal father and the man they would like to marry. ("Look, he has given her a wrist-watch.") The boys were more reticent. They would, of course, like to grow up to look like him. But quite a few reacted to the pose which seemed artificial. Not one boy chose him as the ideal father.

The Teacher: The pose was intended to indicate authority, almost a martinet. Most of the children did not see this. "He is looking over his son's homework. That shows he is interested. He is discussing his son's work at school, but nicely." The hint of luxury in the background was immediately spotted. ("He makes a lot of money.") And so was the boy's confident way of looking up at him. Verdict: Here was no martinet.

The Handyman: "Nice man. He is mending the electric iron and telling the girls how it works. He is a do-it-yourself fan and loves jacking." Result: The children did not seriously consider him as an ideal father. The girls, on the other hand, thought that a handyman about the house was very precious when one was married.

The Executive: "He's rich. A minister, an ambassador. He has a beautiful automobile. But he is too busy. No time for children. He is more interested in his work." This was the most rejected picture.

The Star: The star quality of the automobile racer appealed more to the younger boys. Only one girl considered him as a future husband. Quite a few decreed he would not make a good husband "because he thinks too much about racing and has no time for his children."

climbing at his hair. "He is letting the children climb all over him. That's wrong. They will go too far and then he'll get mad." They gave him points on his easy, chummy manner but he was rejected both as a future husband and a model for the boys.

The Sportsman: A mountain climber, he won approval because he went ahead and lent a helping hand to the children while showing them the way to the top. "He's teaching them to boys would like to resemble and the girls would like to marry. The 91-4 groups shared their votes between him and the Teacher. Boys split their vote between the Good Looker and the Star, but overall the Good Looker ran off with the honors with 25 per cent. The biggest vote from the girls as to the noneligible husband went to the Star.

All the groups put the Teacher figure at the top when it came to the question: Which of them is most like your real responsibility for them." He polled no votes at all as the ideal father.

Here are the somewhat unexpected results from the poll:

The Teacher was the ideal father who won the highest number of hearts — a commanding 27 per cent. He carried the boys (31 per cent); the 4-9 age group 23 per cent and the 9-14s 31 per cent. Although the girls' favor went to the Good Looker (31 per cent), enough of them chose the Teacher to insure his place at the top of the father list.

No doubt at all, on the other hand, who proved the least popular. The Executive was rejected by all the groups, ending up with a 32 per cent vote against him.

The Good Looker scored quite a few votes as the man the of them is most like your real father? He ended with an overall 36 per cent.

The one least like their father? The Home Helper, the Handyman and the Star all lost out, with the Home Helper at the bottom with a 22 per cent negative rating.

So with the Teacher figure leading, it seems evident that children are in favor of authority. It was obvious that they looked for a father who had authority and took some interest in them.

It also transpired that the "more-pal-than-father" approach was not popular with the age groups questioned.

A child's thirst for knowledge, it seems, is not purely intellectual but also a question of affection. To communicate his knowledge is a father's way of proving his love. (The mother tie is more biological.)

tie is more biological.)

THE HOME HELPER: He was least like the children's real father and not an ideal father, either.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) —The all-purpose 1970 re-election analysis:

The big question perturbing political pundits these days is whether the swing to the right predicted by Scammon and Wattenberg in their book "The Great Majority" actually is taking place.

Soundings taken at the grassroots by a number of pundits indicate there is indeed a swing to the right. Particularly among conservative voters.

However, grassroot soundings taken by a number of other pundits indicate the swing to the right by conservative voters may be offset by a swing to the left among liberal voters.

Assuming that the pundits are right, it is obvious that we are going to have a real swinging election this year. Despite the fact that the bars will be closed during polling hours.

And what of the "Middle American" we have heard so much about lately? Well, present indications are that he is much too much of a square to be considered a swinger.

If, however, you roll up the rec-room rug and put a Lawrence Welk album on the hi-fi, the "Middle American" will put a lamp shade on his head and demonstrate a few of the jitterbug steps he learned during World War II. So don't take his vote for granted.

This brings us to New York. In New York there is a four-way race for Senate among: Richard Ottinger, a Democrat; James Buckley, a Conservative; Charles Goodell, a Republican except in the household of Vice President Agnew, who uses another word; and Christine Jorgensen, who isn't even on the ballot.

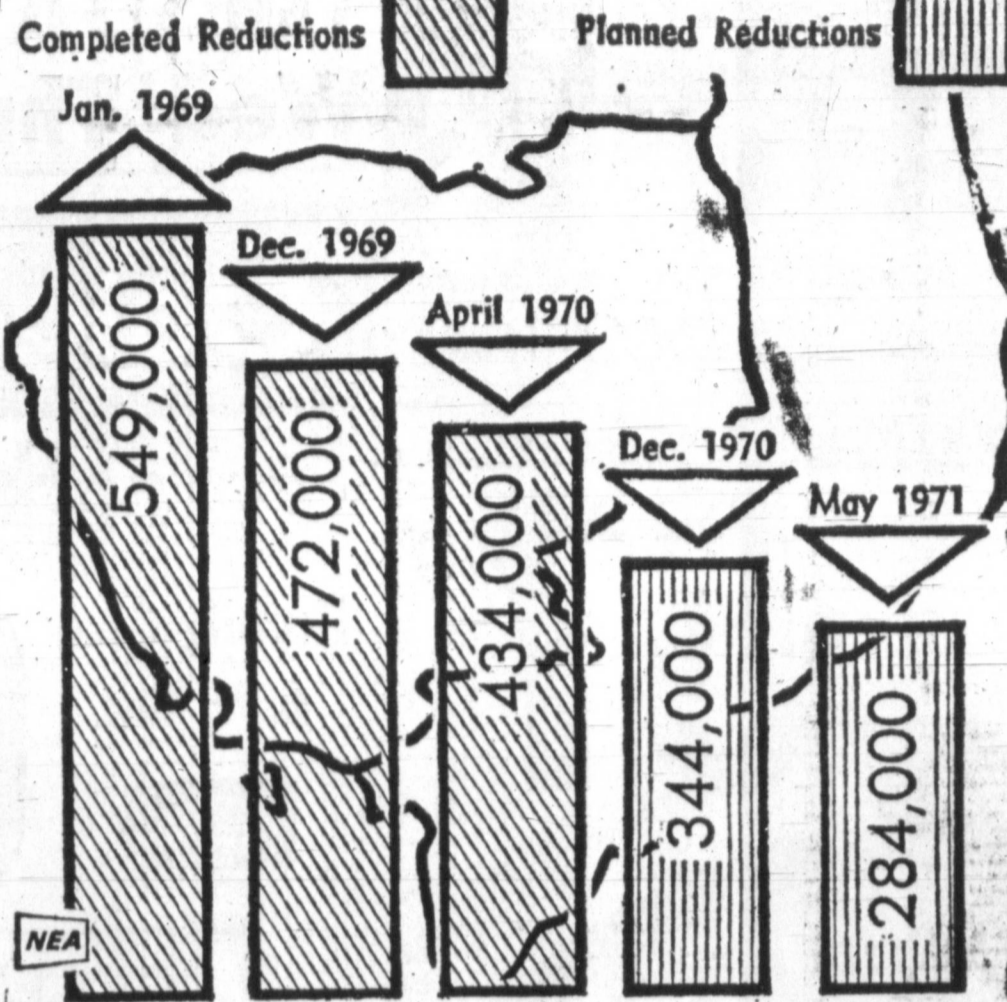

Current trends, caused by the voters swinging in different directions, strongly indicate that Miss Jorgensen will win a write-in victory in New York. And perhaps in a few other states as well.

This is called ticket splitting, and it confronts us with yet another constitutional crisis.

If Miss Jorgensen, who was known as Mr. Jorgensen before swinging to another sex, is elected a senator in more than one state, shall she be forced to relinquish one of the seats? Or will the Senate have to limp along with fewer than 100 members?

These are issues that may have to be resolved by the U.S. Supreme Court. Or by sending Miss Jorgensen back to Sweden for another operation.

WITHDRAWAL—Step by Step

With another 40,000 men home by Christmas, U.S. troop strength in Vietnam will be within 50,000 of the level set by President Nixon for the May 1971 withdrawal deadline. The Cambodian operation halted major cuts in May and June, but some 50,000 men have been withdrawn since then.

Interesting News For Anyone Who Wants To Own An Island

WASHINGTON (UPI) —For everyone who has dreamed of owning an island, the Interior Department has some interesting news.

There are 26,235 islands at least 10 acres large in the United States.

More than one million acres of largely undeveloped islands lie within 25 miles of the nation's large urban centers.

The government has its eye on some of the choicest island groups which may be in danger of being commercialized to death.

These facts are presented in a department pamphlet called "Islands of America," the first inventory of the nation's islands ever produced.

The Bureau of Outdoor Recreation (BOR), which made the study, said islands are a great natural resource. But it said many of them "are threatened with development that would destroy their distinctive qualities and their recreation potential."

Therefore, the bureau has proposed that federal, state and local governments as well as the private sector cooperate in setting up a national system of island trusts to preserve the islands. It suggested that the Casco Bay Islands in Maine be established immediately as the first "trust" under this concept.

Other island groups proposed by the BOR to be included eventually in the trust system were the Platte River Islands in Nebraska, the San Juan Islands in Washington and other island groups in Maine.

The island inventory does not include south heavily populated areas as Manhattan, Long Island and Staten Island in New York, the main island of Puerto Rico, the three major Virgin Islands, Guam, Samoa, the five major Hawaiian Islands or the islands in the Pacific Trust Territory administered by the United States under United Nations mandate.

However, if does include all other islands at least 10 acres in size, located in oceans, bays, estuaries, rivers, lakes and reservoirs within the jurisdiction of the United States. These islands total more than 28.6 million acres, with 21.1 million of these acres in the 5,688 Florida has the most islands, 4,510, of the contiguous 48 states, but the 2,482 islands of Louisiana comprise the largest area, nearly 1.3 million acres.

Swedish Professor Wins Nobel Prize For Economy ... $78,400

STOCKHOLM (UPI)—Prof. Paul A. Samuelson of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), whose textbook on economics has sold more than a million copies in 12 languages, Monday won the 70 Nobel Prize for economy.

The Swedish Academy of Science announced Samuelson, 55, won the award worth $78,400 because "by his many contributions (he) has done more than any other contemporary economist to raise the level of theory."

At his home in Belmont, Mass., Samuelson received the news with a joke. "It looks like a busy day," he told callers. He said when he was awakened by a telephone call "I thought there must have been a death in the family."

Among his many works is the textbook "Economics: An Introductory Analysis." First published in 1948 it has gone through seven editions and has sold more than one million copies in English, German, Italian, Hungarian, Polish, Korean, Portuguese, Spanish, Arabic, Greek and even Russian.

Samuelson, born in Gary, Ind., also served as an economics adviser to both Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy. He was educated at Chicago University and earned his graduate degrees from Harvard. He has been at MIT since 1940.

According to the academy, Samuelson was awarded the prize for "the scientific work through which he has developed static and dynamic economic theory and actively contributed to raising the level of analysis in economic science."

The economy prize, awarded for only the second time this year, was the fourth Nobel Award to be announced this year, with the physics and chemistry prize winners still to be announced by the Swedish Academy of Science Tuesday.

Samuelson helped give economics a new language with theories which cut through the complexities of classical economics and became the guiding words for thousands of colleagues throughout the world.

Samuelson is a prolific author of hundreds of articles on economics, and writes an article every three weeks for a national magazine (Newsweek).

FASTEST GROWING
WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Census Bureau says its new figures show Palm Beach Gardens, Fla. was the fastest growing community in the nation during the 1960's.

It said the town had only one resident in 1960—a home builder who bought the land and incorporated it into a city. It said 5,007 residents moved into the town in the last 10 years, but the builder moved out.

Latest Gossip In Court Circles Concerns Prince And Princess

LONDON (UPI) — Crown Prince Carl Gustaf of Sweden is in London and so is Princess Anne, daughter of Queen Elizabeth. And if you think this doesn't add up to hopes and hints of royal romance you don't know the latest gossip in court circles.

Tall, blond Carl Gustaf is 24. Tall, blonde Anne is 20. When the prince is 25 next April he will become eligible under Swedish law to reign as king. Everyone's thoughts in the Swedish court will then turn, if they haven't already, to whom he will choose as his queen.

Marriageable Age
Anne is now of marriageable age. As a member of the greatest ruling dynasty still functioning she could not be more eligible for the crown of a queen.

The big question these days, when even royalty marries for love, is whether the young people like each other enough for marriage. Royal gossips feel that two attractive people of the same exalted social stratum thrown into each other's company for any length of time have a good chance of falling in love, or at least of recognizing that they belong together.

In addition Carl Gustaf will see his relatives—the royal families of Britain and Sweden are related and both Carl Gustaf and Anne are descendants of Queen Victoria—formally and informally. Queen Elizabeth is giving a lunch for him at Buckingham Palace which will be more of a formal occasion.

Close Friend
He is also a close friend of Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, who has stayed with him at Stockholm's Royal Palace.

Carl Gustaf and Anne have met many times on his private visits to London and have always seemed happy in each other's company. Both are expert riders, both like sailing and swimming and winter sports and the Swedish prince is a good dancer, one of Anne's favorite pastimes.

He has another plus in his favor in the eyes of the gossips. He's a naval man like Prince Philip and Anne has always been close to her father. It is likely Carl Gustaf will invite Anne and Prince Charles to his coming-of-age celebrations in Stockholm next spring.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —If I were a top ABC-TV executive, I think I'd gamble with pro basketball games to replace the Monday night pro football contests when the gridiron season is over.

As is widely known by now, the Monday football games have done well in the ratings, particularly when compared with the other new prime time ABC-TV series, which have been a near-total washout.

The way I understand it, ABC-TV has generally been planning to come in at mid-season, with say movies again, or some other regular entertainment, to fill up the Monday schedule when pro football is gone.

Well, this might be safe, of course. Movies usually get a halfway decent rating. But this kind of thinking is as unattractively cautious as a gambler who cashes in when he has a hot hand going.

ABC-TV has a hot hand in the concept of the elongated sports weekend—the Monday night games. It is the only new series that really has people talking this season. ABC-TV hasn't a chance in the world to win Monday nights anyway, against the likes of "Gunsmoke" and "Laugh-In," but it does have the chance to keep the spotlight.

ABC-TV has nothing to lose on Mondays. But it might have much to gain if it could develop a national habit of a year-round Monday night sports attraction on the network.

Pro basketball ratings in prime time have not been overly impressive in the past, but such contests have been infrequently tried in network night-time schedules. The idea needs practice.

There is little question that pro basketball, particularly because of television, has become enormously popular—one of the fastest-growing sports attractions in the nation. Furthermore, there now are individual stars that are genuine video draws—from Lew Alcindor to Jerry West to Willis Reed. Even such rookies as Pete Maravich and Calvin Murphy are crowd pleasers.

What, really, has ABC-TV got to lose when you consider the ratings disappointment of its new-season shows? For example, in the national ratings for the two weeks ending Oct. 11, six hours of new ABC-TV series

"The Immortal," "Dan August," "The Young Rebels," "The Young Lawyers," "The Most Deadly Game" and "Matt Lincoln"—finished from 82nd to 87th in the rankings. Virtually all the programs below them—and there weren't many—were news, public affairs and talk shows.

Sports has long been ABC-TV's chief strength in the three-network competition. When a technician pointing a camera at a sports event can get ratings equal to, or better than, whole groups of film creators who spend enormous sums of money for standard shows, it is simple common sense to pay attention to the message implied.

Hollywood In Review

UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —When Yvonne DeCarlo made her starring debut a quarter century ago movie actresses were expected to be as full bodied as they were talented.

In many cases bosoms won out over talent. Today Yvonne is playing a fading movie star in "The Seven Minutes," still well-rounded and more gifted as a performer than in the earlier days.

Her first picture was with Alan Ladd in "This Gun for Hire," but it was "Salome, Where She Danced" that stamped Yvonne as a girl to be ogled.

"After that picture I was watched like a hawk by the Johnson Office, the wardrobe department and the producer," Yvonne recalled in the commissary of 20th Century-Fox.

Must Preserve Modesty
"In picture after picture I would walk out on the set and be studied to see if there was a hint of cleavage. If there was I'd be sent back to wardrobe to have a scarf or a bit of fluff added to my neckline to preserve my modesty."

In view of today's standards where totally nude females are commonplace, Yvonne's tribulations seem ridiculous in retrospect.

So do today's naked actresses who are less well endowed, than, say, Don Knotts. It appears that a formula has been derived: The smaller the but the more undressed the actress.

Imagine the shock value of seeing some of yesterday's glamor girls in the buff.

"We used to be called love goddesses or glamor girls," Yvonne said. "Even the term 'sex symbol' was considered naughty because it included the word sex. Girls Were Voluptuous."

"In my first days in movies Lana Turner, Betty Grable, Rita Hayworth Elizabeth Taylor, Ann Sheridan—and all those girls were very voluptuous."

"It was an advantage to have a full figure then. Nowadays a girl with curves is not in demand. The only one I can think of is Raquel Welch."

Yvonne would like to see the full figure return. She did, in fact, say females should look as they did in antiquity. Round. Really round.

"I was as censored as anyone in movies for years," Yvonne said, "simply because I had a large bosom and played roles in which the girls wore low-cut gowns."

"It's funny. In some scenes today the gowns are cut out altogether."

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon in his United Nations address last week acknowledged that the stalemate of nuclear terror is the major factor preventing outbreak of a major conflict.

He said that "the most important and the most obvious" factor in compelling Russia and the United States to try to reduce their differences is that "neither of us wants a nuclear exchange that would cost the lives of tens of millions of people."

Against that background Nixon went on to invite the United States to join the United States in taking "a new road" toward peace by abandoning efforts to "squeeze the maximum advantage" from every troubled situation.

A Bad Omen

Nixon administration officials believe that events of the next few weeks should indicate whether Russia will respond positively.

If the Soviet Union persists in its present course of supporting Egypt's violations of the cease-fire standstill agreement of Aug. 7, U.S. officials will consider it a bad omen for the future.

While a talk by Nixon with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko did nothing to narrow the gap on this and other points of conflict between the two nuclear super powers, the President and his top aides hope that the increasing danger of a new outbreak in the Middle East will cause the Kremlin to alter its tactics.

"The assumption here has been and still is that Russia desires a certain amount of turmoil in the Middle East which it can exploit to its own political advantage."

Three Other Factors

U.S. officials believe that the Soviet Union wants to stop short of a nuclear confrontation with the United States in the area. But as Nixon said at the U.N., "history shows ... that great powers can be drawn into conflict without their intending it by war between smaller nations."

Action from the caution imposed by the stalemate of nuclear terror, Nixon listed three other factors which he said gave Moscow and Washington a common interest in trying to settle or at least to soften some of their differences.

One factor was the "enormous cost of arms." Another was that both Russia and the United States were major industrial powers and both would gain if world conditions permitted them to increase trade and contact.

Finally, he said, the "global challenge of economic and social development" could give Soviet-American competition "a creative direction."

The President's address to the U.N., which is celebrating its 25th anniversary, gave credit to the world organization for having been helpful in preserving the peace. But he made no secret of his conviction that the broad issue of world peace "turns in large part on the relations among the great nuclear powers."

Price Commended By ACA For His Voting Record

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Texas' United States 18th District Congressman Bob Price has been endorsed for reelection by ACA (Americans for Constitutional Action). The non-partisan National organization, headquartered here, said it was endorsing Congressman Price because of his consistent voting record for constitutional principles.

Charles A. McManus, president of ACA, stated, "Congressman Price is best judged by his performance during the 3 1/2 years which he has served in the House. His legislative record gives factual evidence of his valuable and unselfish service to our Nation." He has repeatedly stood for fiscal responsibility; firm responsible opposition to the Communists; and for law and order in our streets and institutions of learning.

Americans for Constitutional Action (ACA) periodically rates all members of Congress on issues which are of major National importance and adherence to constitutional principles. ACA's President stated, "If every member of Congress voted as Congressman Price, there would be little or no Federal debt, inflation would not be a problem, our National military strength would not be in question, Americans would be paying lower taxes, and our wives and children would not be in constant fear for their safety."

McManus cited Congressman Price's voting record as outstanding. "He puts the interest of the United States first and works continually for the preservation of constitutional government."

The endorsement of ACA brings to the Congressman the support of highly distinguished Republicans and Independents, who are members of ACA's Board of Trustees.

PAMPA Business News...

PAMPA CABLE TV, located at 1420 N. Hobart, is there to serve all Pampans. Call 665-2381 if you want cable television service.

Cable TV Sharpens Black-White, Color Pictures On Television

Wayne Steddum, Pampa Cable TV manager, oversees the fast-growing business here. The shop at 1420 N. Hobart is equipped with the most modern equipment available and affords cable subscribers with 24-hour weather conditions.

"Weather Scan" is a unique device used by most cable service to give weather information to cable users. At all times Pampa area subscribers may turn to Channel 12 to pick up the latest time, temperature, barometric pressure, wind velocity and direction and in event of rain, learn the exact amount. The Weather Scan is manufactured by a company located in Wellington, and is used by most cable systems. It is a "must" in the field.

The Pampa Cable TV is a member of National Cable Television Association, which has given information concerning ideas for the future. In the future, "High speed electrostatic printing presses" could be attached to TV sets so the viewer need only press a button and wait a minute or two before tearing off an electrostatic newspaper to read. Future ideas are being dealt with carefully.

Approximately 2,500 Pampans subscribe to Cable TV. It greatly improves reception in black and white television. And also does wonders for color. A small wire similar to a telephone wire is run from the cable into the homes of subscribers. The outlet location is chosen by the owner. Since the television set is connected directly to the cable, there is no longer any need for an antenna.

Talk to Wayne Steddum, manager, for full details on installation and advantages of his services.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—If technical indications are to be believed, a near-term rally will now take place, lasting through election week, TPO Inc. says. In view of this possible minor upswing, traders should become more aggressive, using minor dips to add to their positions, it adds.

In recent sessions, the market's technical condition has been improving, which may explain why losses have been small even in the face of seemingly bad news, E.F.

Hutton & Co. says. Advance-decline figures "are well into oversold territory," perhaps because the odd-lotter has shown unusual willingness to sell on down days. Hutton adds. This marked bearishness on the part of the odd-lotter should be viewed as a favorable technical sign, the firm believes.

The fact that selling pressure remains light is an encouraging note for the market, as is the substantial amount of sidelined buying strength. Alexander Hamilton Institute says. However, until good news appears, the firm recommends sticking to a conservative investment policy. "Now's an excellent time to tune up portfolios," it advises.

The market's basic long-term trend is now upward, says Spear & Staff. Although this does not rule out periods of skepticism, and even of intermediate decline. The market's "much heralded discounting powers" are encouraging investors to set their sights on an expected improved business climate for 1977, the firm adds.

Motors, and also Ford's Body Shop. Fred is a motorcyclist too. He rides a 350 Big Horn.

David Poe is the other mechanic employed at Sharp's motorcycle. He has worked for Alvin Sharp, for two years. David graduated from Pampa High School where he was enrolled in Distributive Education. He learned all about motorcycles. And had on the job training at Sharp's.

New models of motorcycles have come in at Sharp's and new ones are on their way. The little three-wheeled Honda is an all-terrain vehicle which rides in sand, snow, trails, rocks and water. The 22 inch balloon tires absorbs all the bumps. It has seven horsepower and an ATC 90 engine. A new one for the kids is the Honda minicycle. This little cycle has an automatic clutch and 2 speeds. The swivel bars make it easy to pack it in the trunk of your car. It rides 100 miles easy on one tank of gas. If you feel like walking, the Honda QA-50 is light enough to carry.

Go to Alvin Sharp's and let him tell you about their good repair service and their good prices on cycles.

THE BEST of repair service is given to all at Sharp's Motorcycle, located at 800 W. Kingsmill. David Poe (left) and Fred Brown are the mechanics there to give you special service.

RETURN IN STYLE

BASILDON, England (UPI)—There was a roll of drums and a waiter marched up to Richard Strugnell-O'Toole's table and presented him with an unusual dish—his bottom set of false teeth.
He had forgotten them while dining there recently and the restaurant traced him through a charity donation he made there.
"I thought it would be nice to invite Mr. Strugnell O'Toole and his wife to a meal and present his teeth to him in fitting style," said restaurant Manager Andre Spiteri. "It was the highlight of the evening."

Why Charlie Can't Sleep

Tax Foundation Inc. is a research organization based in New York City, and its analysts and computers keep pouring forth statistics on taxes and the cost of government. A lot of it seems pretty impersonal.

Then, every once in a while, it takes those statistics and relates them to a fellow named Charlie Green, who for the benefit of the Charlie Greens in the telephone book, is not a real person. He is an imaginary, but fairly representative white-collar worker whose name could just as well be John Doe or John Q. Public. He's Mr. Average.

Charlie is always crying to his Missus that the family food bill is too high, at $2.47 for this year. But that's increased by only 46 per cent since 1960, while his support of government, in taxes, has more than doubled. He's now paying about $1,000 more in taxes than he is for food.

Charlie doesn't know what he's paying in so-called hidden taxes, and Tax Foundation doesn't help. Except to spoil his day by mentioning that there were at least 116 hidden taxes in the price of that last suit he bought, and that there are 100 hidden taxes on an egg and 151 on a loaf of bread. All paid by Charlie.

He's paying more for schools, for roads, for new and expanding services, for more welfare. At the federal level, he knows that national defense costs half again as much as it did in 1960, that federal welfare costs have multiplied manifold, and that his share of interest on the national debt is double what it was 10 years ago, even though the debt itself hasn't doubled.

NLRB Changes Proposed

Proposed legislation sponsored by a bipartisan group of seven senators has as its target the alleged "inadequacies" of the National Labor Relations Board.

The NLRB, one of the most controversial of the government agencies, has been criticized for 35 years as being motivated by politics in arbitrating labor-management disputes.

The criticism has come from both sides of the fence.

The bill under consideration by the Senate Subcommittee on Separation of Powers would remove from the NLRB its role as investigator, prosecutor and judge over unfair labor practice charges by assigning prosecution duties to the Department of Justice and transferring the decision-making process to the federal courts. In addition, a workman, forced to join a union to hold his job, could challenge excessive initiation fees or dues in the federal courts.

Under present procedures, complaints can be filed only by the office of the NLRB general counsel, who has absolute power. Determinations are made by the five-member board.

In hearings two years ago, the subcommittee compiled two volumes of testimony totaling 1,700 pages regarding complaints against the board.

The counsel for the National Labor-Management Foundation, Harry J. Lambeth, told the subcommittee recently that the board members, the 93 trial examiners and 197 board attorneys who process charges "become so steeped in labor law that they develop a myopia."

Labor-oriented members, he said, hold the philosophy that unions can do no wrong. If members come from business or industry, they are convinced that management knows best.

Sensing The News

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

ON THE CUMBERLAND PLATAU, TENNESSEE—In this region of flat-topped mountains and V-shaped valleys, the traveler discovers anew the magnificent land that lured early settlers from the eastern seaboard. It is a refreshing land, not only in terms of climate but intellectually.

Nowadays, the headlines tell of urban and environmental "crises." The public is bombarded with messages concerning the population "explosion." The beautiful open lands of eastern and middle Tennessee are a reminder that much of America is still unspoiled and uncrowded. Any American who truly longs for natural beauty and privacy can find it in these hills and valleys.

No doubt people today need constant reminders that the crowded megalopolis of the Northeast isn't the sum total of America. The strife-ridden big city is a real and disturbing part of the national scene, but not the only part. In many other regions there is a harmony between God's and man's handiwork, between the physical environment and the way of life of the people.

The distorted view of American realities stems in large measure from the fact that the networks and magazines are published in metropolitan centers where the breakdown of sound values is most pronounced and where the fads of a small segment of the population are regarded as the wave of the future for all elements in the country.

In the 1920's and 1930's a group of scholar-writers at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn., dubbed themselves the "Agrarians." They counseled people in their region to return to the land and traditional values. Ironically, this state—the home of the "Agrarians"—became the founding place of the atomic age.

Neither Tennessee nor any state of the Union will return to a wholly "agrarian" way of life. But the emphasis of the literary "Agrarians" on an ordered mode of life was not futile. Many people in this country, while desiring a strong industrial economy, are aware of the need for balance in their communities and personal lives. They still admire the self-reliance of the pioneers and regard this quality as essential to a modern people. They have kept their faith in America and its promises.

At a time when one hears incessant criticism of the United States and its way of life it is important to bear in mind that America the beautiful still exists and that the vast majority of its people still uphold American principles and traditions.

Republicans Out To Cut Adlai's Lead In Illinois

By BRUCE BOISSAT
Washington Correspondent
CHICAGO (NEA)—Republican Sen. Ralph Tyler Smith's effective "law and order" campaign against potential challenger Adlai Stevenson III topped off too soon, and GOP strategists in urgent war councils are seeking hastily for new ways to cut Adlai's evident continuing lead.

Republican leaders were disappointed when the Chicago Sun-Times poll, a straw sampling with a considerable reputation for accuracy, placed Stevenson ahead by margins ranging from 56 to 43 per cent—with Smith looking weaker downstate than he dare be to have real hope of overcoming a sure Democratic advantage in Mayor Daley's Chicago stronghold. Smith must also do well in ethnic suburbs near Chicago.

As the poll applies to downstate (40 such counties are being tested), some GOP men privately grumble that the poll is not only inaccurate but that pollsters have chosen places unrepresentative of Smith's true strength. Leaders say he needs a downstate margin of at least 150,000 to be in the ball game.

The Smith forces will be counting heavily on President Nixon's scheduled Oct. 29 visit to Illinois, and perhaps a few surprises. It is clear to them that the earlier game plan, letting "law and order" blasts sink home while issuing statesmanlike position papers in the final days, will not do.

The odd thing about this race is that Stevenson, presently Illinois' state treasurer, was slammed in the teeth so hard by Smith's assaults upon him that he is still reacting vigorously to the charges of softness on violence, unrest, crime, etc., even though their effect has plainly weakened.

Stevenson brings up the subject wherever he goes, often before he is asked about it. The words that have haunted him were his reference to Chicago police as "storm troopers in blue" after the riot chaos surrounding the 1968 Democratic convention in this city.

How he tries to escape the Smith television reminders on this count was uniquely revealed when I heard him asked, in a press conference, what his reaction was to an Ohio grand jury's indictment of 25 students and others for various disruptive activities in the days preceding the National Guard killing of four Kent State students May 4.

A FEW KITCHEN TRICKS
Slash Food Calories

Are you fighting the battle of the bulge? The successful battle plan begins in the kitchen. If you prepare the right foods in the right way, you can cut down on your calories and eat just as much.

There are only a few points you need to follow, but these must be followed regularly. Remember that all fat, saturated or unsaturated, or polyunsaturated is loaded with calories. Concentrated carbohydrates, particularly sugar, are small calorie bombs. Sugar contains practically no water, unlike protein foods or vegetables, and is almost all calories—with little else included. Cut down on sugar and fat if you want to hold down on the calories. Use lean meat, fish, vegetables and fruits.

In general, it is best not to fry foods. Fried meat retains more of its fat than if it is broiled. If you must fry—do it next best thing is to fry in unsaturated fat, such as corn oil or safflower oil. That won't help eliminate calories but it will eliminate dangerous saturated or solid fats.

In order to limit the intake of saturated fats, substitute corn or safflower oil in all recipes that call for shortening or fats. The amount of oil necessary is usually a little less than the amount of solid shortening or fats recommended. You can convert many recipes this way. In some instances, the fat isn't that necessary. Try some of your favorite recipes with less or no fat.

Don't use more than three egg yolks a week. Avoid recipes calling for egg yolk or try it without them. You can use egg whites—almost all protein—without any trouble.

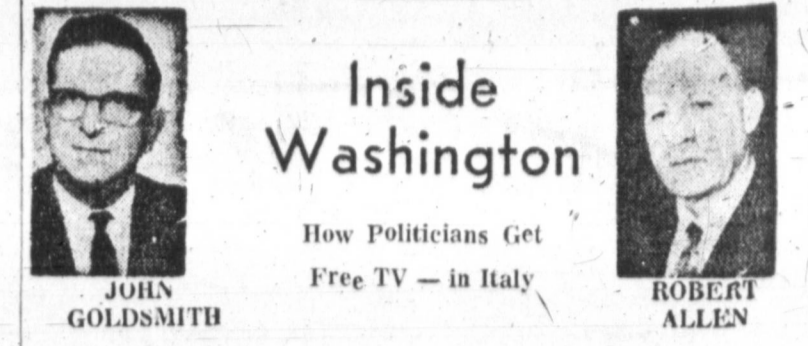

For cooking, nonfat dried milk is wonderful. You can make white sauce with it and flour—no grease is necessary. You can beat up a stiff mix and use it for a cream substitute. It is very versatile and a good source of protein without fat.

If you have a sweet tooth, eat some dietetic food or prepare your own with sugar substitutes.

Roasting is a good technique. When the roast is about two-thirds cooked, set it in the refrigerator to cool. When the fat forms on the top of the drippings, remove it and then finish your roast. The nearly fat-free juices can be used to make gravy if you desire.

Boiling is almost a lost art in the American kitchen. It is an excellent way to combine meat and vegetables. Let the water and juices cool—remove the layer of fat and reheat.

If you prepare your own food and are careful what you select, you can eat better and still not get too many calories. Kitchen power is a good substitute for will-power.

How Politicians Get Free TV—in Italy

ROME — While American politicians are trying to cope with the high cost of television in an election year, their counterparts here in Italy are getting more and more TV exposure, provided at government expense.

Tribuna Popolare — Popular Tribune — is the most recent addition to a list of free political broadcasts aired by the national television network, RAI. Popular Tribune is a series of six weekly telecasts which features two political spokesmen — one from the government majority and one from the opposition — answering questions from the Italian grassroots.

The first hour-long program in the series got a good press earlier this month — Italian radio-TV pundits praised the efforts of the citizen-questioners, who were a Barietta housewife, a pediatrician from Naples and a young university professor from Florence. They were, according to published accounts, well informed and probing with their questions.

Hundreds of television viewers were screened as questioners by network interviewers. Final selection of the rank and file questioners were made by Parliament's Television and Radio Vigilance Committee, which rides herd over the networks here.

Political parties select their own spokesmen for Popular Tribune appearances. Before a series is included all nine Italian parties will have been represented at one time or another.

OTHER TRIBUNES — Now ten years old is the program Political Tribune, which also provides free TV time for Italian politicians. It is an every Thursday feature. In prime viewing hours, except in the summer time.

Audiences numbering up to 9 million people have watched Political Tribune on Thursday nights at 9 or 10 p.m. Time is apportioned by the vigilance committee to the various political parties on the basis of the number of deputies which each has succeeded in electing to the lower house of the Parliament.

Labor Tribune, two years old, is another weekly feature of RAI. A series of hour-long labor forums, it also appears in prime viewing time and at no cost to the unions and the participants involved.

In election years, a special Election Tribune series joins the RAI list. Each political party gets a free, half-hour press conference, as part of the series. (The government gets its own half hour.) Then, in an additional free half hour, each party is allowed to present 30 minutes of its political putery.

All this detail is to suggest that allocation of free television time to a broad variety of parties and interest groups may not be as difficult as it sometimes seems to be in Washington's congressional hearing rooms. Italy's RAI is, to be sure, a monopoly, and its activities — even in the political area — are not free from criticism. Those criticisms, however, turn to matters also under criticism in the United States — unfair news coverage of one candidate as against another and complaints of that sort.

Without attempting to pass judgment on the campaign spending bill vetoed by President Nixon or to assess its television provisions, it would appear that the time is ripe for some steps to assure U.S. candidates reasonable TV exposure without unreasonable expense.

"ITALIAN STYLE"—What is new here in this Eternal City for the revisiting traveler who steps from a new TWA 747, is the anticipated final approval of the first divorce law in Italy's history. It generates much conversation and a lot of jokes.

It has become something of a cliché here to comment that a lot of married Italian men who have been telling girls for years that they would marry them if they could, will soon be in an awkward position.

Only ratification of Senate amendments, by the Chamber of Deputies, stands in the way of final enactment of the divorce law. Ratification is expected and, barring a toppling of the government, it appears that the divorce bill will become law.

Joking and gossip aside, the law will be an important change for many Italians. It is estimated here in Rome, for example, that one marriage in ten has been ending in legal separation in recent years. It is said that as many as five million Italians are somehow involved in a broken home.

Lawyers here are already overwhelmed by clients who want to be ready when and if the new law is approved. Under the pending legislation a judge can end a marriage at once if the divorce petition is uncontested, but the parties must have been legally separated by mutual consent for five years.

Much About Space Unknown

By PAUL HARVEY
Unidentified objects from space? You and I had heard the Air Force had washed his hands of the UFO investigation, assumed we'd heard the last of it.

Now our government formally and officially states that certain unidentified objects have fallen on Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

So I set out through the Air Force and the State Department to try to identify these unidentified objects and stumbled over some fascinating further evidence of "spooks" in space.

Four unidentified objects from space were found—one near Pratt, Kan., one near Beaver City, Okla., one near Adrian, Texas. And one other.

They ranged in weight from 50 to 200 pounds. The largest was 30 inches long, 10 inches wide, five inches thick. Fortunately it did not cook anybody on the head.

Our Air Force, which keeps track of the some 2,000 orbiting hunks of hardware upstairs, had expected Russia's Cosmos 316 probably would decay in our atmosphere at about that time and about that place.

So, though we think we have identified these hunks of space junk, international law requires that we report to the United Nations and recovery of anybody's space objects; these were dutifully reported and returned by our State Department to Russia.

Space is not a precise science. Most Americans would be amazed and a little alarmed at how much we don't know.
