Sea Lions Paralyzed In Calif.

By THOMAS C. MILLER
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Some of California's sea lions are dying on the beaches, apparently paralyzed by a mysterious ailment.

"They're sick, and we don't know the cause," said John Marston of the San Francisco Humane Society. The California Academy of Sciences has recorded 21 "stranded" seals over the past month on beaches near the Golden Gate.

All except two captured alive were found dead on beaches. Dr. Richard Hubbard, investigation scientist for the Marine Mammal Study Center in Fremont, Calif., has performed autopsies on four of the "stranded" seals.

"Don't Know What it Means" "We have never seen anything like this before, and we don't know what it means at this time," Hubbard said. "But we can say that when four out of four animals we've examined show similar lesions, we must think in terms of the possibility of an epidemic."

Hubbard said the bodies of the four seals examined show a severe inflammation of the kidney, a mild to severe inflammation of the stomach and an unusually thick fluid in the heart sac.

"They also show lung problems in various degrees, but that might be a secondary problem," Hubbard said. Further tests are being made on the four seals, and the center's action will depend on those laboratory results.

Hind Quarters Paralyzed Marston said the sick seals have been crawling on to the beaches, and "their hind quarters seem to be paralyzed."

There are tens of thousands of the seals, specifically called the California sea lion, that live in the San Francisco Bay area most of the year.

"We know that at the height of their migration in September there can be as many as 10,000 on one rock alone," Hubbard said.

The playful animals have made Seal Rock in San Francisco a tourist attraction. The seals once were hunted almost to extinction because of their rich source of oil and for their hides. They now are protected by law.

Agnew Attracts Large Crowd At $100-A-Plate Gathering

By DORIS E. WILSON
News Staff Writer
Three years, they were asking Spiro-Who? They aren't asking anymore. Now they know.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who spoke to a crowd of over 1,000 dinner and gallery guests Monday night in Amarillo's Civic Center, is the man who has put punch back in rhetoric. And makes it just a little more interesting to listen to political jargon.

A large delegation of Pampans turned out to welcome the vice president and his party, which include gubernatorial candidate Paul Eggers, senatorial candidate George Bush and unopposed

Congressman Bob Price of Pampa. Also ever present was a large and tight cordon of security police, who eyed the actions of even the most unsuspecting-looking persons.

Agnew attacked a liberal lobby known as the Council for a Liveable World, saying that "group which holds alarming leverage over members of the U.S. Senate" was responsible for McGovern's election in 1962.

Agnew made this last-minute addition to his prepared text to single out the CLW for criticism. He said the council "is one lobby you don't read much about in those Eastern liberal papers that are forever putting the screws to the Texas oil industry." Agnew told an airport rally Texans should send Bush to the U.S. Senate so he could cast his vote to retire J. William Fulbright from the chairmanship of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

He said a vote for Democrat Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr., who is Bush's opponent, would be a vote for the men who control his party... the Fulbrights, McGovern and Kennedys.

Nixon Takes To Road To Woo Voters For GOP Candidates

By HELEN THOMAS
WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon officially is on the campaign trail.

The White House ended any pretense at presidential political aloofness Monday when it unveiled Nixon's plan for marathon campaigning Saturday in four states—Vermont, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin. And early next week Nixon is expected to be on the stump again in Texas, Nevada, and possibly Tennessee.

Nixon has decided to make the big push for Republican congressional victories in intensive campaigning during the next two weeks. Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the President may touch base in as many as 17 states in support of GOP candidates. Other sources said the President is considering requests to appear in 23 states.

Ziegler said Nixon directed that half the tab be paid from GOP coffers left there be criticism. He appeared with GOP office seekers in motorcades and on platforms in Hartford and Stamford, Conn.

Few enjoy campaigning more than Nixon, who likes getting out of his "isolation booth" to press the flesh. He stands up in his limousine waving to the crowd on both sides of the street, or he jumps on the hood of his car, arms stretched to the sky, as voters push and shove to touch his hand.

His Columbus Day appearances in Hartford and Stamford Monday were a preview. Nixon was delighted with the reception from crowds estimated by police at about 50,000. His motorcade was stopped three times, including twice when he went over to meet "hardhat" construction workers. Once he hopped on a bulldozer.

There were some 200 demonstrators who shouted "We don't want your war." But Nixon ignored the chants. Nixon's last stop Monday was at the Westchester County, N.Y. Airport where—apparently by no accident—he ran into a rousing rally for Conservative Senate candidate James L. Buckley.

Diplomatic Relations Established

OTTAWA (UPI)—Canada today announced establishment of diplomatic relations with Red China.

In announcing the diplomatic ties, Canada acknowledged the Peking regime as "the sole legal government of China."

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp announced the move in the House of Commons and released a joint communique, distributed simultaneously in Peking and Ottawa.

"The government of Canada and the government of the People's Republic of China, in accordance with the principles of mutual respect for sovereignty and territorial integrity, noninterference in each other's internal affairs and equality and mutual benefit, have decided upon mutual recognition and establishment of diplomatic relations, effective October 13, 1970," the joint communique said.

"The Chinese government reaffirms that Taiwan is an inalienable part of the territory of the People's Republic of China. The Canadian government takes note of this position of the Chinese government."

"The Canadian government recognizes the government of the People's Republic of China as the sole legal government of China."

"The Canadian and Chinese governments have agreed to exchange ambassadors within six months, and to provide all necessary assistance for the establishment and the performance of the functions of diplomatic missions in their respective capitals, on the basis of equality and mutual benefit and in accordance with international practice."

Sharp said the talks represented the "successful conclusion of our discussions in Stockholm with representatives of the People's Republic of China."

He said that "officials from my department and from industry, trade and commerce will be leaving for Peking very shortly to begin administrative preparations for the opening of a Canadian Embassy in Peking."

"We hope to have the embassy in operation within two or three months."

The minister said Taiwan had been a major consideration in the negotiations in Stockholm, which began on Feb. 6, 1969.

"From the very beginning of our discussions, the Chinese side made clear to us their position that Taiwan was an inalienable part of Chinese territory and that this was a principle to which the Chinese government attached the utmost importance.

"Our position, which I have stated publicly and which we made clear to the Chinese from the start of our negotiations, is that the Canadian government does not consider it appropriate either to endorse or to challenge the Chinese government's position on the status of Taiwan."

"This has been our position and it continues to be our position."

"As the communique says, we have taken note of the Chinese government's statement about Taiwan. We are aware that this is the Chinese view and we know the importance they attach to it, but we have no comment to make one way or the other," he told Parliament.

FOR KIDNAPED DIPLOMAT After Negotiating Breaks Down Mounties Need Assistance

MONTREAL (UPI)—Behind a police shield three blocks deep, representatives of the government and the separatist terrorists who hold two political hostages today were negotiating in the city jail.

Judging by the start, the talks face a rough road. The kidnapers' lawyer was in jail himself, and his clients—two commando cells out of touch with each other—disagreed over the ransom they should demand of the government for the release of the hostages.

In Ottawa, helicopter loads of troops arrived to help the Royal Canadian Mounted Police on guard duty—the first such use of troops in the Canadian capital in peacetime history.

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa Monday named Robert Demers, a tough-minded lawyer and close confidant, to represent the government in negotiations with the Front du Quebec (FLQ).

The FLQ, in communique left for radio station reporters, picked Robert Lemieux, 29, a shaggy-haired lawyer who defends arrested FLQ men.

The FLQ still held British Trade Commissioner James C. Cross, kidnaped eight days ago, and the Quebec Labor and Immigration Minister Pierre LaPorte, grabbed by FLQ gunmen Saturday night.

Demers and Lemieux met in a session that ran well into Tuesday morning in the city jail, where Lemieux was being held on a charge of "obstructing justice."

Lemieux was released and his case was to be heard in court today. There was no word on the progress of the talks.

One FLQ cell offered to free Cross and LaPorte if two conditions were met—but the other, holding LaPorte, insisted they would hold on to him unless four other demands were also met.

The two FLQ cells, each of which holds one hostage, operate without direct contact. The cells make their stand known through communiques left for radio station newsmen at drops in the city, altering them by telephone calls.

Apparently the communiques, which are immediately broadcast, are also the only communication between the two cells.

Solons Toss Out Insurance Bids

By TEX DEWESE
News Staff Writer
Pampa city commissioners today threw out all July 28 bids on group insurance for city employees and ordered a re-study of the matter for a better determination of improved benefits.

City Manager B. M. Wofford told commissioners the city staff recommended the action after a thorough evaluation in which it was found "apparently we were asking for something we cannot afford."

Fred Thompson, an insurance company representative, told commissioners he thought they were making a mistake when his company's bid offered more benefits at approximately the same cost the city currently is paying for group insurance.

City Manager Wofford said it didn't seem realistic to him that anyone could offer more benefits at the same cost and since the contracts only ran for one year there was the chance that premiums would be hiked at the end of that time.

The commission accepted equipment bids for the city's water treatment plant which were $73,107 lower than originally submitted by the low bidder.

Approval was given to City Traffic Commission recommendations for four changes in traffic regulations. The principal recommendation would be to establish a 30-day trial period for blinking

Westmoreland, in a speech prepared for the annual meeting of the Association of the United States Army, said the Army will still have about 200,000 men in Vietnam next summer.

Westmoreland also said the armed services will have to double or triple their enlistment and re-enlistment figures to achieve an all-volunteer force.

"I am announcing today that the Army is committed to an all-out effort in working toward a zero draft—a volunteer force," he said. "But we need support and understanding from the administration, the Congress and our citizenry."

Westmoreland's statement came one day after Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird ordered the services to take necessary steps toward the goal of ending the draft in 1973.

'Wichita Fund' Started By Many Athletic Groups

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Athletic directors and sports groups from throughout the United States are going to the aid of Wichita State to insure the Kansas school will be able to continue participation in athletics.

That was the decision Monday during a meeting here of the steering committee of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics.

The group named Perry Moore, Colorado State athletic director, to head up the "Wichita Fund." Fourteen members of the Wichita State football team were killed nearly three weeks ago in a plane crash while en route to a game at Logan, Utah.

In addition, the school's head coach and athletic director were killed along with team boosters and other officials. In all, 30 persons died.

The committee's action came after Dick Reidenbaugh, executive vice president of the Wichita State Board of Trustees, reported it was doubtful the Shockers could maintain an athletic program without outside help.

Representatives of the various organizations meeting at the Hotel Utah pledged financial support, and also appealed to any other interested groups or individuals to contribute to the Kansas school.

Soviets Deny Buildup Of Cuban Bases

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet government said today it "has not and is not building" a military base in Cuba.

It said U.S. reports the Soviets were building a nuclear submarine base in Cuba represent a "concoction."

"The Soviet Union has not built and is not building a military base on Cuba and is not doing anything that would contradict the understanding reached between the government of the U.S.S.R. and the United States in 1962," a government statement said.

The year 1962 marked the Cuban missile crisis when President John F. Kennedy got the Soviets to withdraw their missiles from Cuba.

Sullins, co-chairmen for the Altruistic Club of Pampa, one of the sponsoring organizations.

Mrs. Sullins said the check list contains approximately 75 names from which students may make selection of those they would like to come to the high school and talk with them. Mrs. Sullins said after the students have made their selections, letters will be written to the consultants inviting them to participate in the clinic. The Career Clinic is scheduled for March 24.

Co-sponsoring the 13th annual Career Clinic will be the Pampa Chamber of Commerce and the Jaycees in cooperation with the counseling department of Pampa High School.

Lights at the intersection of S. Cuyler and Atchison streets. The proposal is to have lights blink red facing Atchison street traffic and blink amber for through traffic on Cuyler. The change was recommended to relieve the long wait for left and right turns into Cuyler from Atchison.

City Manager Wofford said today an announcement will be made in a day or two on when the 30-day trial period will start so motorists can be aware of the change.

Other traffic recommendations approved today included the beginning of two-hour parking on the west side of the 100-block of S. Ballard from Atchison to the Post Office alley, erection of yield signs at Wills and 22nd, and stop signs at 23rd and Lynn.

The commission will receive bids at 8:30 a.m. Nov. 10 for the purchase of a four-door sedan.

A $10,000 surety bond for the city manager, September routine salary changes and payment of $25,169.82 in September bills were approved.

The next regular meeting of the commission was moved from Oct. 27 to Oct. 29 to allow city officials to attend the Texas Municipal League annual meeting Oct. 25-27.

A resolution naming the continuation of Pampa's Hike and Bike Trail in honor of City Commissioner Hugh Burdette was adopted.

The resolution cites Burdette's service to city especially in the area of park improvements. The Hugh Burdette Hike and Bike Trail will extend from Charles St. through Alameda, Aspen, Chestnut and Evergreen Parks to Evergreen St.

Dance Group Opens Concert Season Here

By JEANNE WILLINGHAM
Guest Reviewer
The Bayanihan Philippine Dance Company, just back in the United States after a one-week engagement at Expo '70 in Osaka, Japan, opened the season for Pampa Community Concert Association patrons.

The company of 27 dancers and 12 musicians gave a beautiful and exciting performance and was enthusiastically applauded by the full house of concert patrons. The company began as a group of student-amateurs, trained and sponsored by the Philippine Women's University of Manila, and has done excellent pioneering work in the reviving of all types of native dances from the primitive Igorot through the Moro (Mohammedan) of Mindanao, and from the Spanish colonial to the many contemporary rustic types.

The performance was excellent, the music and costume research superb. The company is very fortunate in having Lucrezia Urtulla, a choreographer of real gift. The dancers were young, beautiful and enthusiastic. Although they perform only folkloric dances some of the dancers appear to have had a ballet background. The troupe has established a world reputation and will be long remembered by their Pampa friends who took them to their hearts when at the end of their performance the entire company came to the footlights and sang "Deep In The Heart of Texas" with their native Philippine accent very noticeable. The audience responded with a rousing applause which was returned by the artists.

For many of us it was our first glimpse of the new curtain and drops of the Pampa Jr. High School Auditorium. We sat in our seats admiring and feeling very proud of the much needed improvement.

Bush Suggests Bentsen Should Meet Campaign Budget Level

By United Press International
Republican Senate candidate George Bush of Houston says he will be more than happy to limit his campaign expenses to the amount spent by his Democratic opponent, Loyal M. Bentsen Jr.

But Bush said Bentsen's campaign expenditures must also take into account the money he spent to defeat Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough, D-Tex., in the May primary. He suggested Bentsen should stop spending money for radio and television campaign spots until the Bush campaign could catch up and then the two candidates could work out an appropriate budget from there.

Bentsen, meanwhile, criticized Vice President Spiro T. Agnew Monday for coming to Texas to campaign against Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark. He also called for spreading out the cost of the development of the controversial Supersonic Transport (SST) plane over a longer period of time.

The resolution cites Burdette's service to city especially in the area of park improvements. The Hugh Burdette Hike and Bike Trail will extend from Charles St. through Alameda, Aspen, Chestnut and Evergreen Parks to Evergreen St.

Hobbs Teen Wins Fair Approval

ROSWELL (UPI)—A 17-year-old Hobbs High School student Thursday won his case against the school's board of education which had sought to limit the length of his hair.

U.S. District Judge Howard G. Bratton ruled the Hobbs Board of Education rule limiting the length of hair for male students unconstitutional. The youth, Al White, had filed a suit challenging the school regulation after he was suspended last spring by school officials. White was reinstated by a court order pending a ruling on his suit.

In finding in favor of the student, Judge Bratton said the Hobbs board had failed to prove the length of White's hair created a "damaging effect" on the classes and activities at Hobbs High School.

'Whipping Post' Is Missing According To Paul Eggers

By United Press International
Republican candidate for governor Paul Eggers told a $100-a-plate GOP dinner Monday the University of Houston students who booed and heckled Gov. Preston Smith last week need a good whipping.

"It's too bad we don't have a whipping post in front of the courthouse," Eggers said in Amarillo. "We'd take them out there and tan their little hides and straighten them out."

Recalling the student who chased after the departing governor, Eggers said, "I'm not going to let a hippie with a broom deny me right of freedom of speech. And if that guy comes after me, I'm 6-1 and used to be an athlete, and that broomstick hippie and I are going to get ready for a confrontation."

"I am not going to let a bunch of these kids run over me. We've been given in too long and I'm not going to let this bunch of kids like this scare me. They're not going to do this and I'm going to stand up right here and be counted."

Gov. Preston Smith denounced Eggers, meanwhile, for his record as a member of the Nixon administration.

"It would seem that if the Republican candidate for governor wanted to be attentive to Texas he would have used his voice and influenced decisions on tax matters which would have helped rather than harmed this state," Smith said in a speech at Lamesa.

Eggers served as chief counsel for the U.S. Treasury Department until he resigned to run for governor.

"While he was in the position of influence the oil depletion allowance was reduced and the oil import program was almost scrapped," Smith said. "Mr. Eggers was conspicuously quiet when both measures were being considered, even though Texas stood to lose millions of dollars."

Smith said he has a record of opposing the lower depletion allowance and favoring changing the oil quota systems to a tariff on oil.

"If Mr. Eggers had been as diligent in protecting the welfare of Texas as I and others were, perhaps we would not have been saddled with a tax bill that is hurting the Texas economy," Smith said.

He said he hopes Eggers "has plans to do more for Texas as governor than he did when he was in Washington."

Earlier in the afternoon Eggers said Texas lawmakers have gone too far in protecting the rights of the accused in criminal cases.

Priesthood Integrates Women After Episcopalian Convention

By RUSSELL CHANDLER
HOUSTON (UPI)—The 63rd general convention of the Episcopal Church turned into something of a women's liberation movement Monday.

After seating women deputies for the first time in the church's 181-year-history; delegates heard a unanimous committee report proposing women be admitted to the priesthood and the episcopate immediately.

Should the convention approve a resolution to "affirm the right of the church to ordain and consecrate women as well as men" three young Episcopal women would be quick to add a "reverend" before their names.

Two of the trio already have completed seminary studies and the third will graduate next June. Seeking ordination are Betty Schiess of the Diocese of Central New York, Suzanne R.

Hiatt of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, and Carol Anderson of the Diocese of Massachusetts.

According to the report of the joint commission on ordained and licensed ministries, ordination of women in the 3.5-million member church could be effected by simply interpreting pertinent church documents to mean both sexes rather than the slower and more difficult route of amending the constitution, canons and prayerbook.

Dr. Henry Rightor of Virginia Theological Seminary in Alexandria and secretary of the joint commission, said the recommendation—composed hastily last month—came out of "an overwhelming sense of urgency."

Previous general conventions have interpreted generic words to include both males and females, Rightor noted. Ordained women ministers are not uncommon in several major Protestant denominations. The Lutheran Church in America voted to ordain women last summer, and the American Lutheran Church will vote on the issue at its national assembly this month in San Antonio.

Mrs. Schiess, a senior at Colgate-Rochester-Bexley Hall in Rochester, N.Y., has degrees from the University of Cincinnati and Syracuse University. She is the mother of three and a member of her local draft board.

Miss Hiatt completed theological education in 1964 at Episcopal Theological School (ETS) in Cambridge, Mass., after undergraduate work at Radcliffe and a masters degree at Boston University.

"I was called to the bedside of a dying woman who needed the sacraments," said Miss Anderson, the hospital chaplain. "I couldn't bring them to her and I could find no priest in time."

Night-Day Security Tightens On Buildings

By United Press International
The government announced today it was tightening security at all federal buildings because of the recent outbreak of explosions and the threat of further violence by militants.

General Services Administrator Robert L. Kunzig, the overseer of all federal buildings, said open access to most federal buildings has been restricted and guards placed on patrol.

Security patrols have been ordered around clock instead of the customary 6 p.m. to 7 a.m. The move came after a day of eight bomb blasts—five in Rochester, N.Y., two in New York City and one in Orlando, Fla.

The explosions, which injured three persons, followed, coincidentally perhaps, warnings by the revolutionary "Weatherman" group that it would mount an offensive of terror.

The explosions in Rochester, and the result of dynamite detonations, were directed against a federal and a county office building, two predominantly Negro churches, and the home of a union official.

City officials were puzzled by the apparently unrelated nature of the targets and the motives and culprits involved in the blasts which erupted within a ten-minute span.

In New York City, a gunpowder pipebomb exploded in a sidewalk planter outside the New York Hilton Hotel in mid-Manhattan, shattering windows and awakening guests.

Pampa Man Jailed On Rape Charge

Roger M. Gross, 23, Murphy's Downtown Motel, was held in county jail today in lieu of $10,000 bond set on a statutory rape charge when he was arraigned in Justice Ed Anderson's court this forenoon.

Gross was arrested by Pampa police early Monday morning at the motel following an incident involving a 13-year-old Pampa girl.

He was cited yesterday on an indecent exposure charge and bond was fixed at $5,000 on that count. The girl's father filed the second charge against Gross later in the day.

Women's Equal Rights Doomed For Failure

By JANE DENISON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite every indication a 47-year effort to abolish legal distinctions between men and women is dead for another year, Senate proponents are still vowing to struggle.

The first test on the proposal is set for 1 p.m. EDT Monday, but it has nothing to do with a constitutional guarantee of equal rights for women.

The proposal is floundering under the weight of riders to get other constitutional changes and well-intentioned efforts to help women keep the legal advantages they already enjoy.

Five senators are giving the equal rights amendment any chance of survival through Wednesday, when Congress adjourns for a one-month vacation, to return for a lame-duck session.

"We've said all along it would be a tough fight," an aide to Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said late Friday. "Now, they're finally starting to believe us."

Bayh, the chief Senate proponent of a constitutional amendment to ban sex discrimination, spent a good share of Friday's debate countering arguments of opponents that the amendment would take away the rights and privileges which women now legally enjoy in such areas as working hours and alimony.

Behind the scenes, Bayh and Senate leaders of both parties worked to keep women's right opponents from cluttering the basic issue with extraneous riders.

German Writer Believes Art Of Storytelling Much Alive

BERLIN (UPI) — Guenter Grass rolled another cigarette and insisted that the art of telling a story is still vital and being practiced.

"There are authors who have ideas for stories and they will continue to tell them," he said. "And there are authors who do not have ideas and they will continue to say that stories are dead."

The German writer was serious about this and he frowned to stress his point.

In repose, Grass' face with its black soup-strainer mustache and penetrating eyes can be grim. But he smiles often as if to show he pardons the absurdity of the world in general and interviewers in particular.

Grass was talking with newsmen about his new ballet "The Scarecrows" that had its world premier Oct. 7 at the West Berlin Opera House during the city's annual cultural festival. It was a hit.

"Aren't stories dead?" He was asked. The question was put to a man who is perhaps the greatest, living story teller, certainly the best in Germany, East or West.

He is unique in that he can tell his stories in novels, plays, poems, ballet, painting and sculpture.

Sometimes he tells the same story in several media. The scarecrow theme, for example, appeared in a poem published in 1960, in the novel "Dog Years" published in 1963, and in the new ballet.

Grass' work is heavily symbolic and contains political parables.

His first novel, "The Brass Drum" published in 1959, as well as later "Cat and Mouse" and "Dog Years" in their grim portrayal of the Nazi era show the suppression of humanity by the powers of evil and the struggle of man with his conscience and feelings of guilt.

The "Scarecrows Ballet" is considered a warning against the dangers of a police state, against blind conformity, and a statement that force and suppression to give birth to force and suppression.

But always Grass is telling a story involving dwarfs with magic drums whose voices can shatter glass, men with gold teeth who produce scarecrows so specialized that some work in the Dakotas and others in the Ukraine or Argentina.

In this ability to combine forceful parables with gripping tales he resembles Herman Melville, whom he greatly admires.

He is such a great storyteller that he is reluctant to discuss the meaning of his work.

UPI Diplomatic Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's "era of negotiations" with the Soviet Union is turning into an "era of recriminations". And there is mounting concern in the Western world as to where it will all end.

The President's top advisers contend that Russia has returned to a hard line on the Middle East and other explosive issues after they indicated earlier that the Kremlin was prepared to adopt a more reasonable and negotiable approach.

It is possible, however, that it is not Russian policy that has changed but the Nixon administration's assessment of that policy. Some diplomats feel that Nixon and his aides were misreading Moscow's intentions and strategy earlier this year when administration officials expressed great optimism concerning possible progress on a variety of East-West issues.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, the most moderate of the administration spokesmen, now charges that Russia's violations of the Middle East cease-fire and her activities in Cuba and the Berlin air corridors raised serious questions about the Kremlin's intentions.

The Russians, to their part, assert that they could not have been guilty of violating the Middle East cease-fire by helping Egypt improve its position in the stand still zone because Moscow was not a party to the cease-fire agreement.

Russia says the Nixon administration has begun an "anti-Soviet campaign of slander in the American press."

The long range exchange of charges between Moscow and Washington has produced a rather chilly atmosphere for the meetings Rogers will have with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko at the United Nations later this week and early next week.

Rogers has said he intends to challenge Gromyko on Russia's Middle East actions and also will seek some explanation of what the Soviet Union is doing in Cuba, where Pentagon officials reported discovering the beginnings of a Soviet nuclear submarine base.

Those challenges do not provide a particularly appropriate background for Rogers' third principal objective in meetings with Gromyko which is to seek Soviet support for Nixon's new Indochina peace plan. Rogers wants Moscow to use its "considerable influence" to get Hanoi to agree to negotiate in earnest.

The President, Rogers and other top administration officials profess to believe that there is a good chance Hanoi and the Viet Cong eventually will agree to begin negotiations on the basis of the American plan, despite their initial criticism of it and the derogatory statements about it by the Soviet Union and mainland China.

BOB PRICE

Congress has been slowly responding to the rising tide of lawlessness throughout the country. This past week, however, the House passed two vitally important pieces of legislation concerning this issue: the Organized Crime Control Act of 1970, and the Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Act of 1970. Last March, if you will remember, Congress also passed strong new laws applying to the District of Columbia. I voted for and actively supported all three of these measures.

The Organized Crime Control Act of 1970, while admittedly not the final solution to the problems caused by organized crime, does provide new tools and techniques to law enforcement officials and harsher punishment for mobsters who up to this time have operated with relative safety from the law.

The Act is comprised of ten major sections; Titles 1-5 improve the present fact finding methods in criminal proceedings and center mainly on federal grand jury operations. Titles 6 & 7 improve the actual process by which persons charged with engaging in organized criminal activities are tried. Titles 8 & 9 create new federal offenses for large-scale organized criminal gambling. Title 10 gives courts authority to give extended prison sentences to those found to be habitual or professional criminals, or members of organized crime groups title 11 deals with the regulation of explosives. And Title 12 establishes a National Commission on Individual Rights.

In my judgment the Act represents an interlocking and comprehensive approach to the complex problems of fighting organized crime. Even at that, I did not fully agree with all the provisions of the Act, and I had particular reservations about the wisdom of authorizing the federal government to regulate the procurement of explosives. While the recent increases in the number of criminal bombings across the nation point to the need for immediate federal action, I took a different approach and introduced legislation drastically increasing the existing penalties for violations of federal laws governing the uses of explosives. My bill, in addition, provides death sentences for criminal bombings causing fatalities. In this connection I have also introduced a bill designed to bring the full force and effect of federal law directly and forcefully to bear on anyone who murders or assaults a local law enforcement official. Last year there were 35,202 assaults on police officers, 11,949 of which resulted in injuries. Eighty-six police officers were killed, a 34 percent increase over 1968. And we are all well aware of the dramatic increase in police killings and assaults this year. Congress simply must focus its attention on this vital aspect of the growing trend toward lawlessness.

The American people have a vital role to play in the fight against organized crime. For without citizen concern and vigilance at the local level where the presence of organized criminal activity is usually first observed, society may prove powerless to stop it, and it may prove unable to eradicate its roots. Without citizen cooperation, organized crime may continue to increase more rapidly than all our efforts to turn it back.

The Comprehensive Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Act of 1970 is designed to give law enforcement officials new tools desperately needed to enforce existing federal narcotics laws. It provides new regulatory controls over the illicit use and misuse of drugs. And it sets forth stronger penalties for the habitual drug abuser and the drug peddler who reap ill-gotten gains from the miseries and the weaknesses of others.

This Act is comprised of three major sections: Title 1 gives the Department of Health, Education and Welfare increased authority in the area of rehabilitation, treatment, and prevention of drug abuse. Title 2 provides new authority to the Department of Justice to regulate the manufacture and distribution of drugs. It also increases the Department's control and enforcement of drug abuse laws.

Drug abuse has become a national problem of grave proportions. Estimates of the number of active hard narcotics addicts in America range between 65,000 and 125,000. Between one-quarter and one-half million people habitually abuse sedatives, stimulants, tranquilizers, and related drugs. And between 8 million and 12 million juveniles and adults have used marijuana at least once; this includes approximately one-third of the entire college population in this country.

Drug abuse has become a particular problem for the young. Faced with social and competitive pressures and lured by the exotic sounds of acid rock music, young people are turning in ever increasing numbers to drugs. An index of the extent of this condition is evidenced by the fact that drug arrests have increased 778 percent in the under 18 age group during the last decade, and 50 percent of all those currently being arrested on drug charges are under the age of 21.

In my judgment, the Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Act is a solid and workable piece of legislation. The Act does not, and will not, though, solve the national drug abuse problem by itself. We must all work together to eliminate both the causes and the effects of drug abuse. The well-being of a whole generation of Americans hangs in the balance.

The District of Columbia Court Reform and Criminal Procedure Act of 1970 was enacted last Spring in an effort to curb the spiraling rate of crime in the Nation's Capital. At the time, reports on D.C. crime were nothing short of horrifying. The city had become WASHINGTON — Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., speaking in favor of an antidraft clause for a proposed constitutional amendment for granting women equal rights with men:

"I really can't imagine a majority of the Senate wants to vote for a constitutional amendment that requires conscription of women into the armed services on the same basis as men, particularly to serve in the infantry or artillery."

 Window on the World:

Mideast Question Mark:

The Israeli government isn't saying so publicly but it is delighted that the United States position has moved closer to that of Israel on the question of Soviet-Egyptian SAM missiles in the Suez Canal zone. The U.S. change of heart, has, if anything, hardened Israel's resolve to refuse to enter peace talks until the Egyptians have moved the missiles back to where they were before start of the cease-fire.

Protection For The Pope:

All of the Philippines armed forces, the military and the police of Manila and the suburbs are being called upon for what is being called "task force Holy Father," the visit of Pope Paul VI to the Philippines Nov. 26-29. The task force will be assigned not only to safeguarding the Pope but also to controlling the huge crowds expected.

Red China Shakeup:

Diplomats assigned to Peking are predicting a major reshuffle of Red China's government when the Chinese National Peoples Congress is convened, probably before the end of the year. Most closely watched will be the selection of a new foreign minister. Peking has never announced the dismissal of Chen Yi, appointed foreign minister in 1964. However, it long has been apparent that most of the work is being done by Premier Chou En-Lai and his associates. If one of these should get the title, it might signal a moderate Chinese foreign policy. If one of Mao's hard-liners gets the job, a tougher policy could be expected.

Hollywood In Review

By VERNON SCOTT
 UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Johnny Mann breaks in a new act at the top—the White House. The singer-conductor unveiled his new "So Proudly We Hail" show last month at an afternoon soiree for the First Lady during a state luncheon. Mann speaks of his show with the fervor of an impassioned evangelist. His show is 90 minutes of Americana tailored for concerts and personal appearances. It opens in Las Vegas this month at the Sahara Hotel. On stage are nine young men and nine young women (some married some single) who sing the songs of the United States heritage.

Singers are Involved
 "Every one of our singers are emotionally involved with this country," Mann said shortly before the show moved into Las Vegas. "We didn't just pick up good looking people who could sing well."

"They also believe in this country and what it stands for. We hope to inspire the nation through music. If we can perform and entertain and inspire, our group can help re-establish America's self-respect."

"We are not only demonstrating patriotism, but love for our fellow men. And we don't put anyone down for anything." Mann, handsome and athletically built, is charged with enthusiasm. His adrenalin flows near the surface. He can't comprehend why it is all right for a Frenchman, Russian, Englishman, Chinese or Israeli to be patriotic, but why an American patriot is censured.

Show is Thoroughly Related
 "We don't have any screaming rock music. But every one of our singers is a soloist as well as a chorus singer. And we break down into duets, trios, quartettes and other combinations."

Mann went on to say that the show is thoroughly related to the United States, including a salute to the music of the 1920s and the big bands of the 1930s and 40s.

"We have a message," Mann said. "We're singing about the good things, the proud things, the hold-up-head-and-shout things about this country. 'Nobody is doing that kind of show now. And some may call us flag wavers. Maybe so. At the end of the show we unfurl a flag of the United States that fills the entire stage.'"

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
 HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Not since television became a major national factor has a president-vice president combination been as effective on the home tube as are Richard Nixon and Spiro Agnew.

President Eisenhower was a popular figure with a winning public personality, but he was not very comfortable on television news conferences, and it showed.

His vice president, of course, was Mr. Nixon. And it is no secret that, at that time, Nixon had nowhere near the command of video that he now has. Many observers feel this was what later cost him the presidential race against John F. Kennedy.

Kennedy is generally conceded to have been the president who most effectively used television. He was a natural in the medium.

Johnson Improved a Bit
 But his vice president, Lyndon Johnson, was quite the opposite—uncomfortable, stiff and remote as a video figure. He improved a bit as time went on, but his old-school-politician image didn't help him.

As president after Kennedy's assassination, Johnson was about the same on television. He got a little better toward the end of his period in office, but gave hardly any evidence of working to boost his ability on video. If he did try, the attempt just didn't pan out.

And Johnson's vice president, Hubert Humphrey, was even less impressive as a television personality. He talked too much, and repetitiously, and somehow seemed less than imposing because of this.

Nixon followed Johnson into the White House, and the education of the current President in the ways and uses of television is well known. Those who have watched him on the tube, in news conference, informal appearances and interviews, know how tremendously he has improved. Mr. Agnew is a surprise.

He is very good on video at this point, and especially so off the cuff. But the surprise in recent months has been Mr. Agnew. I am not talking here about his views, which are a matter for political writers. I am talking about his remarkable command of television.

He seems totally at home, a natural, on the medium. You can teach a man a lot of things to do and not to do on video—and most public figures learn them nowadays. But you cannot really teach the ease and assurance that is immediately perceptible to viewers.

Wives Still Anxious Over Mates' Fate

BANGKOK (UPI)—The wives of eight U.S. Air Force pilots missing in action in Southeast Asia said Monday they were hopeful world public opinion and President Nixon's latest peace proposal for Indochina would help them find out from the Communists what happened to their husbands.

"Why can't they just tell us whether our husbands are alive or dead?" asked Mrs. Robert E. Brinkmann, whose husband—a lieutenant colonel—was shot down over Hanoi four years ago.

The women met newsmen during a brief stopover in Bangkok en route to Vientiane from Hong Kong.

In the Laotian capital the women planned to call on the North Vietnamese Embassy and at the mission of the Pathet Lao, the local Communists.

All of the women live in Fort Walton Beach, Fla., the town that raised the money for their trip and which adjoins Eglin Air Force Base. Together they are the mothers of a total of 25 children ranging in age from eight months to 20 years.

"Some of our children have waited more than four and a half years to learn if they have a father," said Mrs. Brinkmann.

The seven women with her were the wives of Maj. Christos C. Boriages, Maj. Paul W. Bannon, Lt. Col. Walter A. Renelt, Lt. Col. Lavern G. Reilly, Capt. Harry W. Smith, Capt. John K. Badahl and Lt. Col. Charles D. Roby.

and presented to the Communist negotiators at the Paris peace talks on Thursday. "We're hopeful that after President Nixon's peace proposals they will make some sort of a humanitarian gesture," she said.

Protesting Student May Have Aided Smith's Campaign For Governor

AUSTIN (UPI) — A broom-wielding, long-haired University of Houston student and a few cohorts who chased Gov. Preston Smith from the campus this week may have done more to boost Smith's campaign for reelection than a dozen radio or television commercials.
 At least, this is the feeling of some of Smith's campaign strategists.
 "This should put Harris County solidly in the Smith camp on Nov. 3," one top campaign worker said after the melee on the UH campus Wednesday.
 The trip to Houston was part of the governor's intensified campaign schedule for the final four weeks before his Nov. 3 return match against Republican Paul Eggers.
 "As unpleasant as something like that is, it's the best thing that could happen to him," said a Houston resident who knows Texas politics as well as anyone in the state. "It sure ought to give him Harris County."
 Shouting Started Early
 Smith went to the University of Houston campus Wednesday to address a student group. Before he could talk, a handful of students began chanting "Free Lee Otis Johnson." Johnson is a militant Negro serving 30 years in state prison for selling a marijuana cigarette.

 The noise prevented the governor from saying a word. He finally gave up, and as he was being escorted by campus security police through the crowd, Randy Chapman, 21, took a swing at Smith with a broom.
 The governor was quickly hustled out of the milling crowd and driven away.
 Chapman, a senior business major from Houston, lost his broom and had his glasses broken in the melee. He chastised the governor, saying "he came here to talk to children and was met by adults with a political consciousness."
Makes Prediction
 "I don't think he will dare show up on any campus in the state of Texas," Chapman added.
Little Interest Generated
 So far, both the governor's race and the one for the U. S. Senate between Democrat Lloyd Bentsen Jr. and Republican George Bush have failed to stir up much interest among Texas voters.
 More than four million persons registered to vote this year, but some observers are predicting that less than half of them will go to the polls on Nov. 3.

 Any total under 1.8 million could spell danger for the Democrats Smith and Bentsen. Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., easily defeated the challenge of Demoe Waggoner Carr in the last off-year election in 1966 when only 1.6 million persons turned out for the general election.
 The Democrats of Texas are aware of the fact that a low turnout works against them, and are trying to stir up voter interest. They have been pleading for unity and are working on get-out-the-vote campaigns in key areas of the state.

School Bus Bombing Trial Begins

TYLER (UPI) — The trial of two men charged with the bombing of 36 buses owned by the Longview Independent School District began Monday in federal court.
 Fred Lloyd Hanes and Kenneth Ray McMaster are charged with the July 4 destruction of the buses which were parked on a maintenance lot for the summer.
 Federal indictments charged Hayes and McMaster conspired to violate the civil rights of Negro children who were to be bused to previously white schools in the fall.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, Jane, has fallen in love with the son of friends of ours. Steve is a fine young man and we are very fond of him. He has finished school and has a good job with a sound future and could easily support Jane now. Not on luxury, but with all the necessities. They have asked for our permission to marry — but they want to marry right now!

Jane has another year of school and we want her to graduate first. In fact, her father insists upon it. Jane says if we give her our blessings to marry now she promises to finish school after she's married. She has always been an obedient and sensible girl, but she says if we don't give them permission to marry, they will elope.

So far I am on my husband's side. Steve's parents are with the kids and so are many of our friends. They say we are being unreasonable. What do you think?

JANE'S MOTHER: DEAR MOTHER: You don't say how old "the kids" are. If the "school" Steve has finished is college, and Jane has one more year before she, too, is a college graduate, I think you're being unreasonable. If it's "high school," I think you're being blackmailed.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please settle something? If a person wants to visit you, and she knows that her dog doesn't get along with your dog, shouldn't she leave her dog home?

Frisky (my dog) and Gertrude (my friend's dog) nearly had a bloody battle once at my place because they hate the sight of each other, so my friend called up and said she was bringing Gertrude over so I should lock up Frisky. Well, I did, but Frisky knew they were here and he cried and carried on the whole time.

I told my friend that, next time she wants to visit me, she should leave Gertrude home. My friend says that since she is the guest and I am the hostess, I should defer to her wishes. How would you handle this? I really like this person, but I don't care for her dog. FRISKY'S MISTRESS: DEAR MISTRESS: The next time your friend wants to get together, tell her to stay home and lock up Gertrude, because you are coming to visit her and you are bringing Frisky.

DEAR ABBY: The girl who was concerned because her fiancé used a coin purse had good reason to be concerned. From years of experience and observation, I have discovered that men who carry their change in a change purse are cheap, cheap, cheap! and you may quote me.

R.M. IN PORTLAND, ORE. DEAR ABBY: I grew up with the notion that a man who carried a change purse looked like a penny-pinching miser. But after 15 years of mending torn pockets in my husbands otherwise good trousers, I wouldn't be such a bad idea, so I bought one, and he carries it.

I'll admit I am still slightly hung up on my original notion, and I'm always a little uncomfortable when he uses his change purse in public. Then I say to myself, "What do I care what a stranger I'll never see again thinks about our habits as long as they're not illegal or inconsiderate?" And I go home and read or watch TV instead of patching torn pockets.

To be perfectly honest, one of my husband's biggest faults is that he's too extravagant.

DOROTHY IN S.F. CONFIDENTIAL TO "SICK OF HYPOCHONDRIACS": Yes, you saw it in my column, but it was not original. It was written by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, and it went like this:

"Talk health. The dreary, neverending tale of mortal maladies is worn and stale; you cannot charm or interest or please by harping on that minor chord, disease. Say that you are well, or all is well with you. And God shall bear your words and make them true."

Fashion for the young in heart is a whole new scene for fall. New fabrics, silhouettes and new freedoms have been combined to make every girl's outfit her very own thing. The sportswear look plays a big part in this fashion revolution. For a real swinger, there is the great head-to-toe look (left) in deep brown felt. The soft, floppy-brim hat is fringed to complement the cut-out sleeveless jerkin and midi skirt. The three-piece, head-to-toe ensemble (right) is of bold, wide visor and is worn with a jaunty slouch. The look is completed with a sleeveless midi jerkin and matching, fringed midi skirt.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Here's Ways To Remove 'Gluey Stuff' From Iron

DEAR POLLY — Mrs. F.H. told us how she accidentally ironed the wrong side of a patch on her little boy's jeans and got the "goop" on the bottom of her iron. The stunt for removing that gluey stuff from the iron is to sprinkle some salt on the board and run the hot iron over it several times. Makes it slick as a whistle again.

DEAR POLLY — In answer to Mrs. F.H., who wanted to clean the bottom of her iron, I suggest using fine steel-wool pads. Every time I burn something on the iron, my mother makes me clean it with a fine steel-wool pad.

DEAR POLLY — When washing fiberglass or heavy curtains by hand, I make a cover-all out of a plastic garment bag by cutting out a neck and armholes. This helps keep any fiberglass out of my clothing and keeps me clean and dry.

DEAR GIRLS — Just be sure to tear open that plastic bag when you are finished and put it out of reach of the children, so they will not be trying to do what mommy did.

DEAR POLLY — I put a newspaper on my piano stool and someone with damp clothes sat on it. The newspaper print was left on the wood. I wonder if there is any way I can remove this.

DEAR POLLY — Tot's really enjoy getting letters and I have a Pointer for grandmothers and others who write to the small fry. Cut pictures from magazines and use them when writing such a letter. When pictures are substituted for words, such as a car, the sun, a child and so on, the letter will look like a story in one of their small picture books and be doubly enjoyable.

Motorists Need Driving Tips For Winter Weather

NEW YORK (Naps) — Today, thousands of motorists keep a heavy load in the trunk for better traction, rub their windshields with lemon or onion for better vision, watch the braking lights on the car ahead as a stopping cue, and are wholly unaware that each of these actions can lead to death on Winter highways.

If the load in your trunk is too heavy the front end will be higher than usual. The danger of this comes at night when your low beam headlights will look high to drivers coming the other way. Some of them may try to blind you to get even.

As for rubbing lemon or onion on the windshield to prevent icing, the National Safety Council says this: "Save the groceries for better use . . . they only make a mess on the glass. So do glycerin and beeswax. Commercial spray deicers work well, but be sure to wipe your windshield dry after using them or hard-to-remove streaks may remain."

Can it really be a hazard to watch the braking lights on the car ahead to know when you should brake? Oddly, yes. There are more and more sports cars on the road, and many of the drivers enjoy slowing down by "gearing down" — switching to a lower gear — instead of using the brakes. Because of this, it's better to key your moves to the distance between cars, rather than just to brake lights.

Good brakes are a must, but if one of them is better than the others, you may be in for trouble. If brakes aren't balanced — not just good — the "best" one may throw you into a skid.

Seeing as much as possible while driving would seem to be a good idea, but seeing too much — such as the sunlight reflected into your eyes by a patch of mirror-smooth ice — can literally blind you for several seconds, just long enough to travel several hundred feet. This is why it pays to have not just sunglasses, but glasses with polarized lenses. Sunglasses which specialize in filtering out this type of glare while letting useful light reach your eyes so that, though the lenses are tinted, you help see more instead of less.

Almost everyone knows that the best-traveled roads are the safest in winter, but in many areas everyone who "knows" this is wrong. At intersections especially, heavy traffic — starting and stopping — has a polishing effect on snow and ice. Result: it may take you twice the distance to stop at any intersection as it takes on any unpaved road.

Some driving "do's" and "don'ts" may do you some good if you don't forget them.

DO remember to wipe the snow off your headlights every time you wipe it off the windshield.

DON'T let air out of your tires in the hope of getting better traction. This doesn't work, says the National Safety Council, and it only makes your tires wear out sooner.

YOUR CHILD'S DAY

Healthy bodies and minds are the most precious assets we can encourage in our children. And it's probable that as parents we can best help our children in this direction during their preschool and early school years, let us say, from age 3 to 9.

Daily hygiene, healthful meals and snacks, daily exercise and play activities, appropriate clothing for activities and weather, social and family relationships and regular medical and dental care — all these factors can become so "patterned" in young children as to be influential in their life style as adults.

Outdoor Play

Then, there's outdoor play everyday, plus quiet indoor play alone and with other children, or sometimes with grownups or parents. And clothing that suits different activities and weather, with buttons or fasteners that children can reach and handle easily to dress themselves.

Finally, play activities are needed that call for taking turns or making things together that help children to learn the enjoyment of sharing good times — to care for their own and other's belongings.

Good Practices Essential

Not that one wishes to raise a generation of conformists, per se, but good health practices are essential for the fullest development of human potential. They can, in fact, release the individual from the kind of repair and corrective health measures that are the special burden of people who, through ignorance of lack of motivation, neglect their health.

So, parents: What are some basic patterns to encourage?

First, let's get out of bed on time, eager to start the day, with time for the bathroom, wash face and hands, comb hair, dress neatly, tidy up our sleeping place.

Next, an unhurried breakfast, a good lunch at home or school, a nourishing dinner, served pleasantly while the family shares good food and being together. And snacks midmorning and after school that are nourishing but not too close to meal time. A

At Bedtime

Anything else? Yes — bedtime stories, music or quiet play to help young children to "slow down" and get ready for sleep. Bedtime also means the bathroom, with time to wash or bathe, to brush teeth, and be tucked in for about 10 to 12 hours sleep.

There's really little else — except to brush teeth after each meal and after snacks, or at least to rinse the mouth with water. And regular visits to the dentist and physician — every six months — to prevent and repair tooth decay, to get vaccinations and prompt treatment for injuries and ailments — and, most of all, to get to know and trust the family's "health helpers."

MELROSE, Scotland (UPI) — Rugby player Gordon Brown had a tooth extracted Sunday — from his leg. He believes it came from another player he collided with five days ago during a match in Melrose. The tooth was discovered through an X-ray taken when the injury failed to heal.

Italian Beauty Contest Has Many Pitfalls

ENNA, Sicily (UPI)—The "Star of Italy" beauty contest ended early Monday, and officials were glad it was over. The contest started last week but all 20 contestants, the master of ceremonies and the judges got food poisoning at a dinner that began the festivities. That delayed the contest for two days.

Just before the finals Sunday night, Maria Pia Pecoraro, representing Sicily, accused another contestant of stealing her bikini and wearing it.

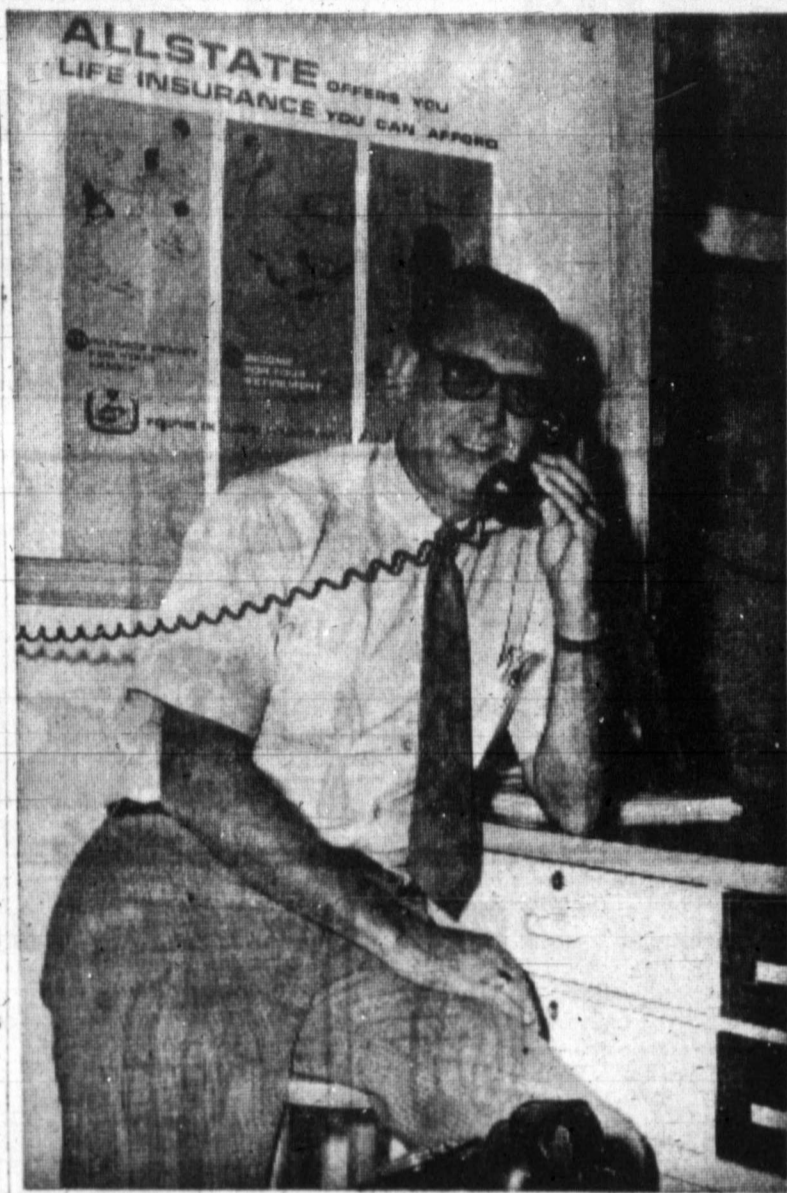

Miss Pecoraro also said the other contestant's only qualification was the fact she was engaged to the master of ceremonies.

The two girls then took matters into their own hands in a hair-pulling, wrestling match. Police separated them.

In the end, Paola Sassatelli, a 21-year-old farmer's daughter from Ravenna, was declared the winner of the beauty contest. When her name was announced, some contestants turned their back on her and fled.

PARIS—Madame Nguyen Thi Binh, head of the Viet Cong delegation to the Paris talks, speaking of President Nixon's five-point proposal to end the war in Indochina:

"We have analyzed with care the speech of Mr. Nixon and we find his so-called peace plan designed neither to give progress to the Paris peace conference nor to aid in a peaceful settlement. That is why we consider it is not acceptable."

THE GOOD HANDS of Mark Buzzard take time out to answer telephone questions about the customized insurance policies offered by Allstate through his office in Pampa.

Customized Insurance Plans Speciality Of Allstate Co.

A full line of insurance plans customized to meet individual needs is the offer of Mark Buzzard, Pampa agent for Allstate Insurance Company, whose place of business is located in 1623 N. Hobart in the Sears-Roebuck building.

Why buy from Allstate instead of another company? Buzzard states the reason why lies in the fact that Allstate is a stock company and a subsidiary of Sears and Roebuck. Thus, the company is soundly financed. Also, the company pays dividends on certain policies.

"Life insurance," says Buzzard, "is money to help you put food on the table, clothe your family, keep your home, pay off your car-money for college. For retirement. For emergencies. It is a form of savings or investment."

What is enough insurance? According to experts, says

Buzzard, families should invest about five or six per cent of its income in life insurance, with the minimum benefits equaling about five times the family income.

Buzzard has insurance policies for homeowners, for mortgage cancellation, for education financing for children should the father be disabled.

He has lived in Pampa since 1935.

for automobile financing.

Buzzard, who has been with Allstate since 1959, recently attended a two-day Allstate sales conference at the Hyatt House in Dallas. During the conference, Buzzard was awarded a Silver Record for his accomplishments in life insurance.

He has lived in Pampa since 1935.

Use Of Cocaine On Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Law enforcement agencies on both the East and West coasts have detected an apparent sharp increase in the use of cocaine among drug addicts.

The Justice Department's Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs so far this year has seized 203 pounds of Cocaine—five times more than federal agents found in the entire year of 1965. Last year the government seized 119 pounds of raw, uncut cocaine.

A narcotics bureau spokesman said part of the increase is due to stiffer enforcement, but he conceded there has been a substantial upswing in cocaine sales in the United States—with many customers coming from among the hippie community.

He also said there is evidence many heroin addicts are adding a bit of cocaine to their "fixes." Heroin acts much more rapidly when mixed with cocaine and the combination is known as a "speedball."

Heroin continues to be more important than cocaine in terms of prevalence in use. Federal agents seize about three times as much heroin as cocaine.

Cocaine affects the user in exactly opposite fashion from heroin. Heroin is a depressant which induces a dreamy euphoria, drowsiness or sleep. Addicts may commit crimes (robberies usually) to obtain money for a shot of heroin, but they are not violent while under its influence.

He also said there is evidence

FTC Gives Rules For Guess Game

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) proposed rules today for one of America's great guessing games—how to figure the real price of a new car.

The rules, subject to public hearings Jan. 12 and 13, would hit alleged ballooning of auto "sticker" prices, deceptively high trade-in values, phony price cuts and advertisements boasting a low price but picturing a fancy model costing much more.

"To millions of consumers buying a new car is one of the biggest purchases of their lives," FTC Chairman Miles W. Kirkpatrick said in a statement. "The need for more complete pricing information becomes very important."

The complex proposals, covering manufacturers and dealers, resulted partly from FTC hearings last year in which the commissioners were told that auto pricing is a maze many consumers never penetrate.

Under the rules, a new car's list, or "sticker," price would have to be within 3 per cent of a level "at which substantial sales were actually made." Some consumer groups have contended today's sticker prices are purposely set way too high so the buyer, given several hundred dollars "off," will think he's getting a bargain even if he's actually paying too much.

The pricing formula would tie the buyer's trade-in allowance to the wholesale value of his used car. An allegedly common dealer's gimmick is to woo the buyer with an artificially high trade-in value, and surreptitiously make it up by charging him that much more for the new car.

The rules would prohibit auto manufacturers from switching "standard" equipment to "optional," then advertising the new model's price in comparison with the preceding one. Such an ad would be permissible only if it prominently listed the dropped equipment and its price item by item.

Prices used in ads would have to include federal, taxes, dealer preparation charges and a statement that the buyer's price may be increased by charges for transportation, state and local taxes, licenses and fees.

Everyone's Eyeing New Bacon Strip

By DEAN C. MILLER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Investors, farmers, diet and budget watchers and government economists are keeping close tabs on a new synthetic strip bacon which looks and cooks like the real thing but is less expensive.

It also doesn't shrink when fried, has no cholesterol and has about one-third the calories found in regular bacon.

Bacon analog, which comes in fabricated strips of vegetable products such as soy and wheat protein and corn oil, first went on the market in September, 1968, around Fort Wayne, Ind. Now some is being sold in South Bend, Ind., and Tacoma Park in the Washington, D.C., area.

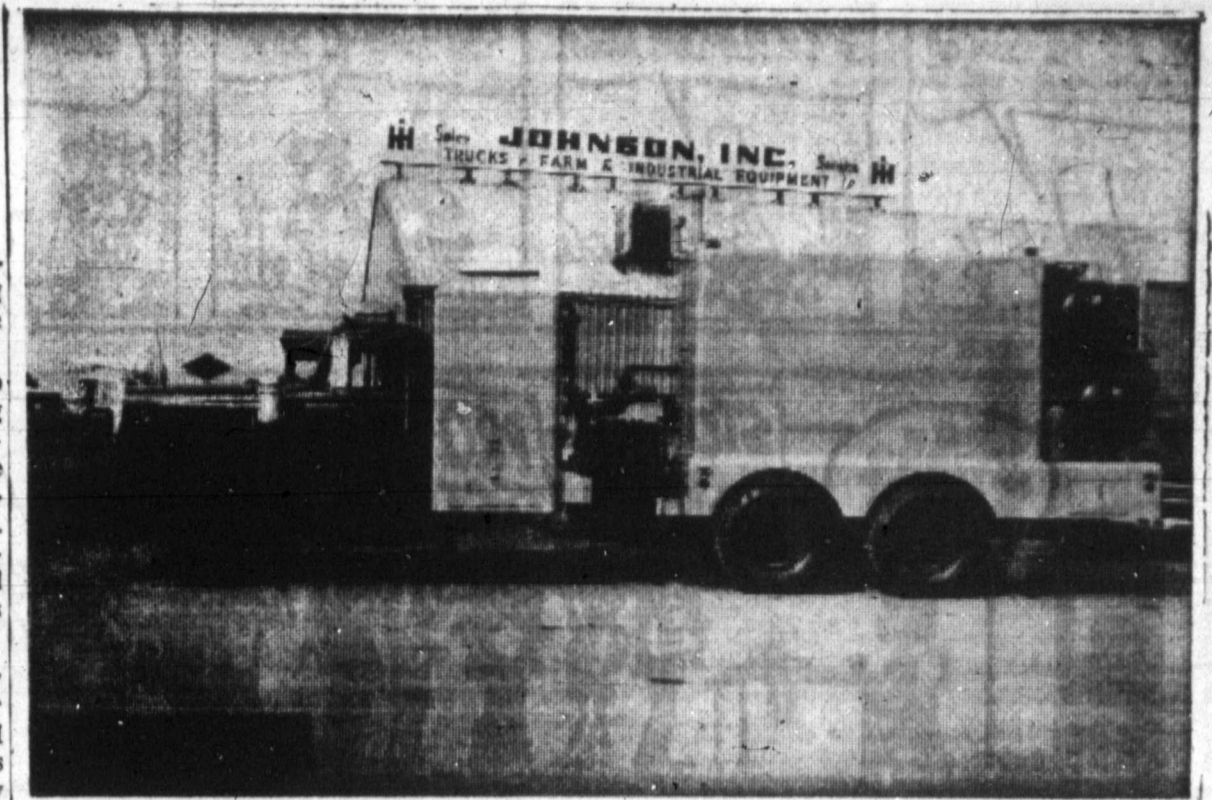

"Test results, limited as they are, indicate a good chance for commercial success," said economist Phil Dvoskin of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which monitored the bacon analog experiment.

The synthetic bacon was sold in a 32-strip, eight-ounce package for 69 cents in 40 supermarkets around Fort Wayne. Regular bacon sold in those same stores was priced at 75 to 85 cents for a one-pound, 20-strip package. During the first three months, when the synthetic bacon was promoted, synthetic bacon took 4 per cent of the total sales. That fell to 1.3 per cent the second three months when promotion deliberately was cut back.

While 4 per cent may sound small it's a lot of money involving a lot of people when you consider the size of the national bacon market. It amounted to about 1.5 billion pounds last year, a lot of pork bellies.

Oddly enough, the Fort Wayne shoppers who bought the synthetic bacon were, by and large, the same who bought the regular bacon. Some buyers were attracted by the cheaper price figured at about half the regular bacon because of the no-shrinkage factor. And some diet watchers bought because of the lower caloric and no-cholesterol factors.

Security Guards III

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Nearly one-third of the United Nations security force called in sick today, only two days before the opening of the United Nations' 25th anniversary commemorative session that is expected to attract nearly 50 heads of states and governments.

There had been rumors for several days that the guards planned such a work stoppage in a campaign for higher pay.

A U.N. spokesman said 69 members of the 230-man security force called in sick.

A U.N. source said it was believed the work stoppage would be only a one-day demonstration and that the guards would be back at work when the session opens Wednesday. Last week a U.N. spokesman said the guards had pledged not to stop work during the commemorative session.

The spokesman said there were still enough regular guards and specially trained maintenance personnel to man the usual guard posts at entrances to the U.N. headquarters.

Price Road. And what is more, it is a hometown product built right on the premises by a crew of highly specialized mechanics.

When an order comes in for one of the $41,800 units, Johnson assigns three men to a full-time schedule to complete the unit in six weeks. To date there have been three pumpers completed and another is on order.

Oilfield trucking units are a speciality of the house at Johnson, Inc., where men from the oil patch are learning they can depend on Johnson's custom-designed trucking units, oilfield equipment.

The Hot Oil Pumper is not the only attraction at Johnsons, Inc. There are mechanics who specialize in diesel and truck maintenance.

And in addition, he handles a complete line of Cummings, Detroit and International Harvester Industrial Equipment and trucks.

While the present facilities are spacious enough, Johnson is looking to the future, when current plans for expansion become a reality.

Johnson has been a resident of Pampa for the past eight years. His interest in trucking began as a small boy and in 1968 he opened his business on Price Road.

Spitalny Dies

MIAMI (UPI)—Phil Spitalny, whose all girl orchestra was a favorite with audiences for over 20 years beginning in 1934, died Sunday in Miami. He was 80.
Spitalny, a Russian immigrant, broke into professional music in Cleveland with his brother, H. Leopold Spitalny. He later directed a 50-piece orchestra in Boston before forming the all-girl orchestra that toured the country and was a Sunday afternoon radio fixture in the 1940s in the "Hour of Charm."
The featured soloist was Evelyn Kaye, known as "Evelyn and Her Magic Violin." Miss Kaye married Spitalny in 1946 and remained at his side following his forced retirement in 1953 due to pernicious anemia. The couple lived in Miami Beach and made annual trips to Europe for the concert season until 1968.

Packers Came Back

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—"It was a Little League play," Young San Diego Chargers' quarterback Marty Domres said after his club lost to the Green Bay Packers, 22-20, Monday night.

"I didn't even see that back," Domres had good reason to moan. He was transformed from hero to bum with one shot, a soft lob pass that veteran safetyman Willie Wood intercepted and returned 21 yards to set up a 14-yard winning field goal by Dale Livingston.

A crowd of 53,164 plus a national television audience of 20 million yawned through three quarters of defensive football in which two short third-quarter touchdown passes by Bart Starr gave Green Bay a seemingly insurmountable 19-6 lead.

Then the 15-year veteran suffered a stiff shoulder and Coach Phil Bengtson sent in former local hero Don Horn, who used to play at San Diego State.

Barnes Picks Off Pass Horn's fourth pass was picked off by San Diego's Pete Barnes and returned 19 yards to San Diego's 38. Domres replaced Chargers' veteran John Hadl. Hadl completed only six passes for 53 yards while losing 55 attempting to throw. He had three interceptions.

Domres connected on a pass to rookie Dave Smith which gained 42 yards. Two plays later he gave to Willie Frazier on a 24-yard end around and San Diego had its first touchdown.

Disaster struck Horn again after the ensuing kickoff.

He faded to pass, saw Travis Williams was covered, turned around and, as he put it, "the guy (Joe Owens) was in my face. He hit my hand. It happens."

Bob Bruggers recovered Horn's fumble on Green Bay's seven-yard line. Domres carried ried to the one and then handed off to Jeff Quee for the touchdown that put San Diego ahead 20-19.

Defense Strengthens

Back came Starr and, injured shoulder or not, he hit Carroll Dale for 10 yards, handed to Williams for 17 and threw to Donny Anderson for 15 to put the ball on the Charger 44. But the defense strengthened and a field goal try failed with four minutes left.

Domres, the apparent miracle worker, tried the clincher, a lob pass over the sure-to-be-rushing Packers' defensive line to Frazier who sneaked behind the defense.

The ball hung, Wood was there, Livingston then kicked his field goal with 3:39 left and the Packers moved into a three-way tie for first in the National Conference's Central Division.

Stanford Regains National Ratings

NEW YORK (UPI)—In one Saturday afternoon, Stanford regained its high national ranking, took undisputed possession of first place in the Pacific Eight Conference and may have gained its first Rose Bowl trip since 1952.

The Indians beat Southern California, ranked fourth last week, 24-14, to move the No. 9 ranking among major colleges as selected Monday by United Press Internationals 35-men-ber Board of Coaches. The victory, Stanford's first over Southern California in eight years, gave John Ralston's team the inside track on a Rose Bowl bid.

Ohio State, Texas and Notre Dame continued to run 1-2-3 in the balloting. Ohio State took the No. 1 ranking for the third consecutive week by downing Michigan State, 29-10. Texas, the defending national champion, ripped Oklahoma, 41-9, and Notre Dame completely outclassed Army, 51-10.

New Tiger Coach

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Joe Schultz, a coach with the Kansas City Royals this year and a manager for the Seattle Pilots in 1969, will be a coach for the Detroit Tigers, it was announced Monday by new Tiger Manager Billy Martin.

Nebraska was fourth, Mississippi took fifth and Air Force was sixth. Michigan took the No. 7 ranking, followed by Auburn, Stanford and Arkansas. Five coaches from each of the seven geographical areas of the nation comprise the UPI ratings board. Each week they select the top 10 major college teams in the nation with points awarded on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis on votes from first through 10th.

"MISS MUNICH," Uechl Badenberg, poses in front of the German city's 960-foot-high Olympia Tower on site of 1972 Olympics.

Garrison Hurt

DALLAS (UPI)—Running back Walt Garrison of the Dallas Cowboys may not play against Minnesota Sunday because of a sprained knee. Cowboy quarterback Craig Morton and tackle Tony Liscio also were injured Sunday against the Atlanta Falcons, but should be back in shape for the Vikings game.

Morton has a bruised knee and Liscio has a sore back.

New Jersey Race

DUBLIN (UPI)—Nijinsky will run in the Champion Stakes at Newmarket Saturday and not the Man o' War at Belmont Park, N.Y. It was announced Monday by David McCall, racing manager for Nijinsky's owner, New Jersey industrialist Charles Englehorn.

Razorbacks Are Offensive

DALLAS (UPI)—The Arkansas Razorbacks have certainly been offensive lately. Baylor and TCU can give character references.

Arkansas' attack is obviously in high gear since the Razorbacks scored more than 40 points for the third straight week against Baylor's Bears last Saturday.

And figures released today show the Razorbacks have moved past Texas in total offense thanks chiefly to their passing game. Arkansas leads the league in passing with an average of 214 yards per game (eight better than A&M).

The Razorbacks have also chomped up 456 yards per contest in total offense, and that is 19 yards more a game than as has come up with.

Although Arkansas' Bill Montgomery leads the league in individual total offense and the Razorbacks' Bill Burnett is way out in front in the scoring race, the SMU Mustangs are still hogging their share of statistical leaders.

Although SMU did not play last week the Mustangs' Gary Hammond still leads in rushing with an average of 96 yards a game (nine better than Texas Gary Phillips) and is tops in the tandem offense category with 136 yards per contest (30 more than Burnett).

Chuck Hixson, although throwing a lot less this year, is still the league leader in passing and teammate Raymond Mapps is still tops in receiving with an average of 4.8 catches a game.

Other individual statistical leaders include: —Texas A&M's Dave Elmendorf, No. 1 in punt returns with a 13.1 average. —Bruce Bushong of Texas Tech, leading in interceptions with four. —Raymond Rhodes of TCU, tops in kickoff returns with an average of 29.1 per return.

Orioles Call On Southpaw McNally To Makes Series 3-0

BALTIMORE (UPI)—The Baltimore Orioles, in excellent position to win the World Series at home, relied on lefthander Dave McNally to give them their third consecutive victory against the Cincinnati Reds when the series resumed today.

Baltimore won the first two games played at Cincinnati for a 2-0 advantage returning home, but even McNally said he had expected to make another visit to Cincinnati before its over.

"We certainly hope we don't have to go back there, of course, but I wouldn't be surprised if we do," McNally said. "We still think Cincinnati has a very good club. They can turn this thing around."

Tony Cloninger, a nine-game winner who failed to complete a start in 18 tries during the regular season, was Manager Sparky Anderson's choice to try to bring the Reds their first victory.

Baltimore Needs Two Baltimore needs only to win two of three at home to avoid a return trip to Cincinnati. The fourth game is scheduled here Wednesday, and the fifth game, if necessary, Thursday.

Although some seats remained unsold, a capacity crowd was expected at Memorial Stadium for today's 1 p.m. EDT start. There was a 30 per cent chance of rain.

McNally is pitching with nine days rest since he worked the second game of the American League playoff against Minnesota Oct. 4. Once before this year Sept. 25 against Cleveland, he pitched with longer than normal rest—six days—and said "My arm bothered me the whole game."

He will be the second straight lefthander the Orioles have thrown against the "Big Red Machine," which chewed up lefties a quick clip during the regular season.

Cloninger, a 24-Game Winner Cloninger, once a 24-game winner for the Braves, is completing the fourth year of a comeback from an eye disorder and a sore arm.

He won 54 games from 1964 through 1966, but the eye bothered him in 1967 and then he got a sore arm which persisted for two years. This season, the Reds put Cloninger in the bullpen but made him starter at the All-Star break after injuries depleted their staff and he was 8-5 the second half of the year.

With only minor changes, both managers planned to go with the same lineups they used in the first two games. The Reds had rookie Dave Concepcion to replace Woody Woodard at shortstop and Andy Etchebarren was to catch for the Orioles, replacing Elrod Hendricks.

Orioles' Manager Earl Weaver named righthander Jim Palmer, the winner pitcher in the first game, to start the fourth game against Gary Nolan, also a righty and the first game loser.

Lilly Visits In Pampa

All-Pro defensive tackle Bob Lilly of the Dallas Cowboys visited Pampa yesterday to honor a promise made by U.S. Senatorial candidate George Bush.

Lilly appeared briefly at Pampa High School and at Robert E. Lee Junior High School. Lilly commented on the Cowboys' season. "In years past, we got our momentum going too fast and peaked out early in the year. This year Tom (Landry) brought us along slow. Also we have a lot of young people who lacked confidence early in the year. We won the game against the Falcons last Sunday because we finally started hitting somebody."

When asked about the controversy over whether Craig Morton or Roger Staubach should start, Lilly said, "I like both of them personally. Morton does, however, have the experience. Roger is a great competitor and should make a fine quarterback."

Lilly spoke to the Pampa Harvesters and the PJHS Reapers and eighth grade team at the high school. He said, "The most important thing you can do right now is to learn the fundamentals. Another thing to remember is to be aggressive. During their football dynasty, the Green Bay Packers were probably the poorest staffed team in the NFL. But BOSTON (UPI)—The Boston Celtics of the National Basketball Association announced Monday that forward John Havlicek and guard Rex Morgan placed on the injured list as the club got down to the 12-man player limit. Morgan is expected to be activated later in the month.

Spreyer's Broken Arm Hurts Texas' Long Ball

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—When Cotton Spreyer went down with a broken arm last Saturday against Oklahoma, Texas Coach Darrell Royal was faced with a much larger decision than simply moving the No. 2 split end to No. 1.

Spreyer had been the Longhorns' singular deep passing threat.

Already the Longhorns had been badly frightened by a team which decided to shut down the Texas ground game at any cost—even if it left itself poorly defended against the pass.

The plan almost worked for UCLA, and it took a catch by Spreyer in the final seconds to save the game.

Now, with Spreyer out, the job fell to No. 2 man Dean Campbell, that 5-5 fellow who fields punts for Texas. Campbell has as much desire as the next fellow, but when it comes time to throw a 40-yard pass the 5-5 receiver is going to be at a huge disadvantage against that 6-0 defensive back guarding him.

So it was Monday that Royal announced senior defensive back Danny Lester would become a two-platoon man play at split end as well as in the secondary.

"Danny has been there before (having played end during his sophomore year)," Royal said. "At split end you need that deep threat."

"We need somebody of a like talent to replace Spreyer, and Danny's the nearest we've got. He can do it. He can come in and get the job done. The only reason he moved to defense in the first place is we couldn't afford that much talent at the same position."

Royal indicated Lester would alternate at the two positions, and when he needed a rest Campbell would play at split end and sophomore Mike Bayer would play in the secondary. He also said quarterback Gary Keithley would work more as a defensive back in case something should happen to Bayer.

"Dann" can be a two-way starter," Royal said. "He has phenomenal endurance. But he won't play all the way."

Even in a crucial game it is doubtful Lester, no matter how much endurance he has, would play the entire game.

Before the season Texas A&M safety Dave Elmendorf was discussing the possibility he might play some offense during the year.

"With today's high scoring offenses there is no way you can play full time," Elmendorf said. "I don't think anybody could go both ways 60 minutes and perform well the entire time."

Royal, in announcing the position changes brought about by Spreyer's injury, also took the occasion to reminisce about the player "we are no longer privileged to have on our team."

"One of the more outstanding games I remember was last year against SMU. He caught only one pass, but you had to measure the effectiveness in the pressure he put on the defensive secondary."

"The defense Oklahoma chose to play against us last Saturday overlaid against Spreyer, and when this happens this leaves something else open. We'll miss him."

"But the doctors say his arm is in perfect alignment, and he should be able to play professional ball. He unquestionably has the talent to do that."

Martin Quips Quotes On McLain Leaving

By MILTON RICHMAN UPI Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (UPI)—It didn't take long.

Billy Martin has been the Detroit manager less than two weeks and already he's in the middle again.

This time he's the middle man in a story concerning Denny McLain. The story is supposed to be the "inside" one on why the Tigers got rid of McLain. There's only one thing wrong with the story. It's not true.

Billy Martin, attending the World Series here, was standing in a hotel lobby waiting for his wife, Gretchen, to join him when a guy he knows came over to him and asked him about the story some people are circulating, the one where Martin asks the Detroit brass to get rid of McLain at any cost because he'd pose a tremendous morale problem among the other players if he remained.

Listening to the story again, Martin frowned.

Washington's Offer Best "Morale had nothing to do with McLain leaving," he said. "We need a third baseman and a shortstop, we listened to all the other offers and thought Washington's was the best."

"You feel you could've handled McLain?" the guy asked the new Detroit manager.

"There isn't the slightest doubt in my mind I could've," he said. "How would you have done it?"

"Easy," Martin said. "I would've sat his butt down and had a talk with him. I would've told him my rules and then we would've seen what happened. If he wanted to be treated like a man I would've treated him like a man; if he wanted me to treat him like a boy, I would've accommodated him that way too."

"What do you figure your biggest job will be with the Tigers," Martin was asked.

"Molding them together," he said. "Getting them thinking 'we' instead of 'I'm.'"

Best Teachers "Who taught you most about managing?"

"Casey Stengel and Charlie Dressen," Martin said. "They were a lot alike. Casey used 'We' and Charlie used 'I' but Charlie really meant 'We' though."

Martin's wife joined the group and Detroit's new manager employed a beautifully controlled soft voice.

"Cripes, Gretchen," he said. "You're so slow! What took you so long? You never get out of first gear."

Gretchen Martin never bothered answering, all she did was smile. She knows her husband well.

Tech's Red Raiders Beat Post-Texas-Letdown To Down Texas A&M's Aggies, 21-7

By MIKE RABUN UPI Sports Writer

Somebody fouled up somewhere. They didn't tell Texas Tech its season was supposed to be over the minute it lost to the Texas Longhorns.

Texas A&M is plenty mad about the slipup.

Last Saturday's Red Raider-Aggie encounter was one of those games that might be used as a barometer. The barometer read Tech 21, A&M 7, and that showed Jim Carlen's version of the Red Raiders had succeeded in curing that old disease—the post-Texas letdown.

Junior quarterback Charles Napper was the chief remedy. He had an almost perfect evening in College Station, winding up the night with 11 straight pass completions and guiding a relentless ground game that is surely second only to Texas in the conference.

Napper's deeds made him United Press International's Southwest Conference offensive player of the week.

"We have been as high as we have ever been since I've been here," Napper said. We still have brightness in our eyes. We know Texas will have to be beaten before we have a chance for the championship. But we still have our hopes."

Since Texas A&M was fresh from its impressive showing against Michigan the week before, there was plenty of thought the Aggies would be strong enough to shut down the Raider running attack. Carlen was obviously a little concerned since he had planned to throw the ball more than turned out to be necessary against A&M.

Early in the game, however, Napper found out how things were.

"I guess their defense did not seem to be as high as I expected it to be," Napper said. "Particularly their defensive line. Their secondary was real alert."

Napper said the general plan was to run right at A&M in an attempt to set up the passes, but when the Raider offensive line began opening up more than sufficient holes there was little need to change.

"We found we could run at them, so we stuck with it," said Napper. "We have four backs who are equal (Danny Hardaway, Larry Hargrave, Miles Langebennig and Doug McCutchen), and they all had a real good night."

Carlen was obviously pleased with his quarterback.

"He's making improvement every week," the head coach said. "But I'm never satisfied. I want him to be perfect."

"He was able to call and hit some audibles at the line this week. I'm glad he's beginning to see things on the field."

Before the season Carlen made a point of telling people that since he was head coach the key play decisions were up to him. He said he wanted to take as much pressure off the quarterback as possible.

He cited an occasion when he was at West Virginia when he let a quarterback talk him out of a play, and the quarterback's play backedfire. That memory, along with an situation last Saturday, shows how much Carlen thinks of Napper.

"I had sent in a running play," Carlen said, "and Charley thought he could throw the ball. He called time out and came over to the sidelines and we discussed it. I don't mind Charley checking anything out. He went back and threw and completed it for a first down."

Bonneville Salt Is Speed's Scene For Jet Racer

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (UPI)—Sporting a new front tire and enlarged fuel injector nozzles, the Blue Flame was poised here today for a renewed assault on the world land speed record.

The Flame careened three miles off the end of the 10 mile track when its brake parachutes failed to activate Sunday. Crew members for the natural gas industry racer spent all Monday and into the early hours today going over the rocket car.

Fire, apparently caused by residual liquefied natural gas which failed to ignite properly, burned the chutes' pilot cords away and when driver Gary Gabelich hit the brake chute lever the drouge gases blasted out their weights trailing burned cords.

Instead of pulling the chutes out and slowing the car which was traveling about 500 miles per hour, the leads fell to the salt alone and Gabelich had a mad-hatter's ride before the Flame came to a stop in a boggy area of the flats.

Parachute man Jim Diest installed aluminum covers over the chute compartments Monday.

fast enough to completely burn with his companion fuel.

The Flame has a best time of about 560 m.p.h. through the timed mile. The world-record is held by Craig Breedlove's jet-powered Spirit of America which clocked 600.601 m.p.h. average for a two-day run through the speed traps.

Mob Action vs. Civilization

Problems of disorder in the world are no longer thought about just by clergy, lawmen, economists, politicians, some school people and editors; they are affecting nearly everyone's lives and nearly everyone is thinking about them.

We have just finished reading one American's citizen's thoughts on the subject of mob action. Mrs. K. Stefan of Santa Ana, Calif., has taken a scholarly objective approach in her questioning. She writes:

"They'll Never Forget" was a B film (film with a plot, featuring lesser known actors). I saw it about the time I became a teenager. My brothers preferred horror and monster films, which I avoided. Yet, to me, "They'll Never Forget" topped any Frankenstein film in horror. In the film a crowd of ordinary citizens is turned into a mob which administers its own brand of justice. But once the deed is done, the question arises: Was justice served? They'll never know, so they'll never forget. Many felt remorse.

"Mob according to Webster (the Latin mobile vulgus, the movable common people) 1. the populace 2. the disorderly element of the populace 3. (slang) a criminal gang.

"In a mob action, everyone participates but no one assumes any responsibility for the mob action or its consequences. Isn't it a kind of group temperament?"

"Each of us knows the unpleasantness of being around a person who has lost his temper. Magnify this by a hundred or thousands of persons of ill-temperament being riled further by screaming fomenters. What have you? A mob! And power! Yes, power, but isn't it only power to destroy?"

Welfare And Higher Taxes

"Are you ready to pay the extra taxes that will be needed to double the welfare rolls? Do you understand that the so-called welfare reform bill will guarantee not just a minimum family income, but also a tax increase?"

The above are questions asked by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in an Aug. 24 letter addressed to businessmen members with respect to H.R. 16311 now heading into the home stretch in Congress. And most cogent questions they are, too: not only for businessmen, but for every productively employed taxpayer in the land.

For, as a flyer accompanying the chamber letter makes chillingly clear, the facts about H.R. 16311, as opposed to the political propaganda, make that conclusion inescapable.

Actually, the facts listed in the chamber bulletin should not be needed by intelligent people. For little more than common sense is required to realize that when the government — which has nothing that it does not first take from someone — begins passing out more goodies, there just isn't anyone other than productively employed taxpayers to pick up the tab. The chamber analysis will prove most helpful. Some of the high points:

—If the bill passes, nearly 12 per cent of the total population of the United States will be eligible for welfare checks. In some states, of course, the count will be much higher. In Mississippi, for example, it is

'Ocean Liners Of The Air'

Those who mourn the all but complete eclipse of the ocean liner by the airplane may take some heart from some of the ideas being planned or being studied for the giant international jets.

Cabin modifications proposed by AIRSEARCH Aviation, an airline products company, include (not all on any one plane, of course):

Duty-free gift, jewelry and liquor stores; beauty parlors and barber shops; luxury staterooms with sleeping

"Imagine yourself as a security officer, a national guardsman, or a police officer sent to quell a mob. How would you react? What are your options?"

"Those who have encouraged the mobs, often very respectable and moral individuals, might just as well have pulled the triggers.

"If I join in a mob action which results in loss of property or life, am I less guilty than the rabble rouser, the one who torches the bank, the one who ignites the bomb, the one who pulls the trigger, or the one who condones and justifies mob action? Would a fomentor, an arsonist, a bomber, an assassin, self-serving politician or power-hungry nincompoop constitute a mob? Could they function as a mob?"

"There is injustice in the world. But mob action and confrontation are not tools of a rational, civilized people. Our nation has too many modes of recourse for social justice to justify mob action of any sort."

Mrs. Stefan does not write as one coddled from birth in affluence. She tells us her childhood was spent in "poverty" in an Eastern mining town. But because she and her large family of sisters and brothers were fortunate enough to have parents who encouraged them to hard work, diligent study and spiritual awareness, they did not know they were "deprived and depressed."

Thus, they set about improving themselves and their lot and shedding their "handicap" before learning they had been handicapped. Preparing themselves for contributions in the field of education and science, they had no time or inclination for mob action.

estimated that passage of the bill will put 35 per cent of its total population on relief.

—But that will be just a beginning, according to the chamber analysis, which predicts that as soon as people realize what H.R. 16311 really means and realize, further, that they can draw about as much for doing nothing as for working, 50 per cent, or approximately 100 million people, will be receiving welfare checks. There is reason to believe that the chamber analysis is on the conservative side; for, as those still working realize that they are going to be taxed at progressively high rates to support those riding their backs, the shift to the welfare way of life could become an economy-wrecking avalanche. The bill, instead of providing incentives to work to those already riding productively employed taxpayers' backs, does exactly the opposite.

—The bill will triple welfare costs, a major cause of fiscal deficits. Federal welfare costs are now $4.4 billion a year. Under H.R. 16311, they will zoom to an estimated $10.8 billion and to $11.8 billion for fiscal 1972.

—The bill also promises a larger welfare bureaucracy for taxpayers to support.

—And, finally, the chamber analysis reveals that, if the so-called welfare reform bill is passed, taxpayer hopes for any relief from already crushing taxes will vanish into thin air for any time in the foreseeable future.

facilities and private baths; office areas where typewriters and dictating equipment would be available, and a children's nursery and play area.

AIRSEARCH has not made and does not plan to make proposals for a gambling area, but some foreign airlines are reportedly considering equipping the 747's upper deck with slot machines and roulette wheels.

So far, however, there are no plans for a swimming pool, shuffleboard area, squash court or bathroom.

'RED' CHILE NEXT?

WASHINGTON. — The Soviet Union is on the verge of securing its second satellite in the Western Hemisphere — strategically located Chile — which stretches along more than half the Pacific coastline of South America.

Tragically, there seems little concern and even less determination to thwart creation of another Cuba on the South American mainland. Sen. Strom Thurmond, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, is one of the few members of Congress who has expressed keen awareness of the threat resulting from the imminent Communist takeover in Chile.

Later this month, the Chilean Congress will choose between Salvador Allende, the avowed Marxist-Leninist who won the presidential election last month, and Jorge Alessandri, a conservative. The Chilean Congress will decide the issue because Allende won a plurality but not a majority.

Unfortunately, it seems that Allende's leftist Unidad Popular coalition will triumph in the congressional voting. The leftists need only 20 votes to carry the day. The liberal Christian Democratic Party apparently is blind to the realities of Communist power. The Chilean military, which hasn't been involved in national politics, reportedly is in no mood to attempt a preventive coup against the Communists. Knowledgeable observers say that a certain fatalism in the Chilean character contributes to inaction in the face of a Communist threat. Chilean businessmen, however, are aware that their properties will be confiscated if Allende becomes president. More than $1 billion foreign investments will be seized, much of it U.S.-owned.

For the moment, Allende and his apologists overseas are playing down Communist objectives. They are trying to sell the notion that a Red Chile would be a "national" socialist state on the lines of Yugoslavia. Nevertheless, Allende is on record as insisting on nationalization of private property. He is a strong supporter of Fidel Castro and Cuban-style Communism.

The Soviet Union is behind Allende, hoping that Chile can be incorporated into the Communist global system without revolutionary warfare. If they can achieve this, the Russians will have useful evidence in their argument with Peking and Third World Communist parties oriented towards Mao Tse-tung's brand of Communism.

The tragedy of Chile is all the greater in that its people are well educated, as compared to other people in South America. The country has been exceptionally stable for the Latin world. It has abundant mineral resources, including the largest deposits of copper in the world. Chile is a country that should be moving closer to the United States, not falling under Red rule.

The U.S. public has reason to ask where the State Department and the National Security Council have been in the last year. Americans should ask why the U.S. has been caught unaware by Chilean developments, as it was by Castro in the 1950s. Dr. Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's principal adviser on foreign policy, should be closely questioned by the Senate and House of Representatives. He was supposed to set up a system that would warn the President of crises such as the one in Chile and to plan effective counter-action. It would seem that Dr. Kissinger and his team failed to do their job and should be called to account.

The United States has immense power — political, economic and military. No doubt the American people want this power to be used constructively to prevent Chile from becoming a Communist satellite.

If the U.S. fails to act, Chile is likely to become the North Vietnam of South America — launching revolutionary war against Argentina next door within five years.

"No, No, Spiro, the Other One!"

Clearing House

"Get something you would like to 'get off your chest'! That's what the 'Clearing House' is for. It has been suggested there should be more letters to the Editor, that people should 'speak their mind'. So, in the public interest, write to the Editor and 'get it off your chest'."

Editor:

The "Melting Pot" boils over. About fifty years ago, the United States was commonly referred to as the melting pot. This was due to the fact that within the memory of late history, we knew our country was made up of immigrants. Either we, or our forbears, came from many countries. The young grew up and a good majority became good citizens. Of course, there were the Jesse James, and the Daltons; later there were the Clyde Barrows and Bonnie Parkers.

The Al Capones are undeniable, the Pretty Boy Floyds days were exciting, and of course, wicked. A man named Hickman kidnaped a little girl out in California, and it held us in awe for a long time. Crime was prevalent then, and the percentage cannot be exactly told, as the population was less.

Colleges protested about things we now consider minor, but the poor among college students were so numerous that many of us merely wanted to get out, and get a job, and get college behind us.

The United States, with all its faults, and with its criminal element which has always existed did not really get into high in the crime business until Russia got its communist house under control, and started to look for greener pastures.

Left to its own actions the United States might have settled its own problems. I was reared among colored people and often played with colored kids. We wrestled, climbed, and fought, and the winner's column was so varied and unimportant that it made no difference.

Communists became very religious missionaries. Communism is not a political party at heart; it is a religious organization—a bad kind of religion. It has all the wild-eyed achievements that many religions have.

The religion of communism finds that first a prospective convert must be convinced there is no God. Deprive a human being of his belief in God and he is ready to commit any crime. Add to that, law enforcement that is lax and cowardly, and a supreme court that is more than lax and the seed bed of anarchy is well prepared.

What kind of people make good criminals, or more exact, good communists? First an assurance that there is no hereafter, for what we know as the soul. Also that there is no very sure punishment for crime, no matter how foul. All this, communists are cultivating in the young, and sometimes the older people of today.

To reach this ideal situation, the communists have always wanted the young, and to get to the young, they, the young, had to be defanged. This is very rapidly being accomplished with dope, in its many forms. Little stands between America today and complete anarchy. The numbers of the conquerors seem so few, they attack generally a spineless majority because fear has invaded the United States.

What brings on this fear? It is generally the government, because the people have little control over those who govern

Your Health

By Dr. Lawrence Lamb

Food in Your Diet Can Be Ruining Your Health

What are you doing about your diet? Unless you make a real effort to eat right, the food you eat may ruin your health. One of the chief differences in our culture, afflicted as it is with early deaths from heart disease and mental senility, from those cultures free of these civilized diseases is what we eat.

Despite the importance of food to our health, vast numbers of intelligent people have only vague ideas about a proper diet. Others go on fad diets and there is more malnutrition in the United States because of ignorance than because of poverty.

The first basic necessity for a proper diet is that it must contain all the essential food elements, vitamins, proteins and minerals. Many fad diets fail in this regard. The amount of food calories you eat must be balanced against the calories you use in your daily activity to prevent developing dangerous fat deposits. You don't need to count calories. If you have or develop excess fat under the skin — usually around the waist — you are eating too much or exercising too little for you. No diet will be successful in preventing heart and vascular disease unless you prevent obesity.

The amount of calories in food is influenced by its water content. Lean raw beef, for example, is over 70 per cent water, while raw beef fat contains less than 20 per cent water. This factor alone means that the fat contains many more calories than the lean. One gram (a teaspoonful of water is about four grams) of pure fat—without water—contains nine calories and one gram of pure protein in the meat contains only four calories. The net result is that, ounce for ounce, fat tissue contains five times as many calories as lean muscle tissue. Obviously, if you need to limit the calories in your food, you can't include too much fat in your diet.

Pure carbohydrate, like sugar, contains four calories per gram. A level teaspoonful of sugar (slightly more than four grams) contains nearly 20 calories. Unlike fat tissue and muscle tissue it has almost no water. For this reason a pound of sugar contains nearly three times as many calories as a pound of lean muscle tissues. Sugar or other concentrated carbohydrates and fat are major sources of calories. Lean meat, many vegetables and fruit are food sources with limited calories per pound and are rich sources of essential vitamins, minerals and proteins.

Too Many 'Oars' In Lake

Like the marsh-dwelling Hydra which Hercules slew, pollution solution for Lake Erie keeps growing new heads.

So many, in fact, that two directors in Ohio's Department of Natural Resources have called for less study and more action. Bounded by four states (New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan and Ohio) and the Canadian province of Ontario, polluted but definitely not-dead Lake Erie is now being studied by:

Six international agencies and organizations, 16 Canadian federal agencies, Ontario, all four states and numerous private groups.

Perhaps, as in mythology, what is needed is someone or something with a sword in one hand and a firebrand in the other. Or at least a co-ordinated plan and the legal power to implement it.

'Young Harry' Headed For Old Va. Story

RICHMOND, Va. — Outwardly, things are quite a bit different in the Old Dominion in this year's election, but in the end the outcome will be the same it has been for a long time.

The telltale signs strongly indicate that a Byrd will continue to represent Virginia in the United States Senate.

Despite highly vocal Democratic and Republican opponents, the latter vigorously aided by a popular GOP governor, the first in a century, "Young Harry" Byrd, running as an independent, appears definitely headed to retain his late father's Senate seat — to which he succeeded by appointment in 1965 and which he won in a hardfought election the following year.

In the three weeks remaining of the campaign, this prediction could be upset by some spectacular or explosive development. But if that does happen, it's not likely to be the handiwork of Byrd's Democratic or Republican opponent. Neither is the type to produce a sensation.

Both are conducting relatively low-key conventional campaigns — with a moderate amount of television advertising. Each is placing chief reliance on his party's regular organization and local leaders.

In the Old Dominion, neither the leaders nor the old-line parties are given to electioneering spectacles.

That suits Byrd's temperament, style and mode perfectly. Reserved, courtly and wholly foreign to rhetoric or bombast, the World War II Navy air veteran is quietly going about his business and completely ignoring his two opponents. While the Senate remains in session, he is meticulously attending to his work there, including that of the important committees of which he is a member and being on hand for all roll calls.

WHAT'S GOING FOR HIM — The last published poll showed Senator Byrd well out in front of his two opponents with 45 per cent.

Behind this impressive lead is a series of significant backstage factors:

A conservative, but not a die-hard stand-patter, Byrd is in tune with the general mood and temper prevailing in Virginia. He is strongly for law and order and powerful military defenses. He is against school busing, soaring welfare spending and campus disorders and violence. At the same time, he voted to override President Nixon's vetoes of the appropriation bills that exceeded his recommendations for education and hospital construction.

The universally known and widely respected Byrd name. "Young Harry," like his father, who as governor and Senator dominated the state for 40 years, is a genuine Virginia gentleman — honorable, upright and responsible. People disagreed with the elder Byrd, but all respected him. The same things hold true for his son.

Both of his opponents are burdened with party and other difficulties and handicaps. Byrd has problems, but they appear less deep-seated and more tractable than those of his rivals. For one thing, there is no lack of campaign funds — although by training and inclination he is not a big spender, and Virginia traditionally is leery about large-scale political splurging.

Numerous and important Democratic and Republican defections to Byrd. Prominent among them are former Democratic Governor Mills Godwin, Marshall Beverley, Republican one-time mayor of Alexandria, and a score of legislators of both parties. Also, a number of local "Republicans for Byrd" and "Democrats for Byrd" committees have been organized and are busy electioneering.

While Byrd is ignoring his two opponents, they are strenuously battling for the liberal, labor, Negro and anti-Byrd vote — with a virtually certain resulting split. To what extent remains to be seen. But there is bound to be a split to some degree — to Byrd's advantage.

George Rawlings, 48-year-old Fredericksburg attorney and former state legislator, who styles himself a "Roosevelt-Truman-Kennedy" Democrat, is counting heavily on labor and black support.

The AFL-CIO, with some 70,000 members in the state and the Virginia Crusade for Voters, the largest black political organization, have endorsed Rawlings. Last year they also backed Republican Governor Linwood Holton in his history-making campaign.

But this year Holton is doing everything he can for his hand-picked Republican senatorial candidate, Ray Garland, 36-year-old wealthy Roanoke bachelor. Any labor or black support Holton lines up for Garland is that much less for Rawlings.

Further, Rawlings is badly burdened with a disunity-riddled Democratic party. It lost the governorship last year after a bitter interecine fight, and Rawlings captured the senatorial nomination this year by a close margin after another bruising primary. The party still continues severely disrupted.

Holton forced Garland, little known outside of his Roanoke bailiwick, which he has represented for three years in the House of Delegates, on the GOP over the open opposition of top party leaders.

Led by Rep. Joel Brophy Arlington, who has represented that populous district for 12 years and is headed for certain re-election, these Republicans forcefully urged an out-and-out party endorsement of Byrd as an independent. When Holton balked, they then proposed that nothing be done; that is, the party not enter a Senate candidate.

But Holton, who built up an effective organization of his own in last year's election, not only insisted on a candidate but named him.

It is Holton's conviction that with his organization and "normal" Republican vote around 33 per cent of the Virginia electorate, Garland has a good chance to win. Rawlings, ailing pool-poohs that. The way he figures it, the race is bet between him and Byrd, with Garland a "poor" third.

Rawlings arrives at this conclusion by citing the "basic" 35 per cent Democratic vote plus his labor and black support. The latter approximate 15 per cent of the Virginia electorate.

Byrd, without a regular organization, is quietly counting on and seeking out his father's unnumbered friends and admirers in both parties. He is finding them all over the state and apparently in a very receptive mood. They not only remember his father, but they are also well aware that "Young Harry" served 18 years in the state senate before succeeding to his father's seat in the U.S. Senate.

It looks as if he is sure to stay there another six years.

POLITICALS — A significant straw in the wind in the three-cornered Virginia senatorial race is that neither President Nixon nor Vice President Agnew will elector for GOP candidate Ray Garland. . . Sen. Winston Prouty, R-Vt., is getting considerable support from conservative Democrats in his campaign for a third term. They dislike the pronounced liberal leanings of his Democratic opponent, former Governor Philip Hoff. One of the campaign issues being raised against him is that he is getting a lot of financial aid from outside liberal and anti-Vietnam sources. A fund-raising effort by Sen. Georg McGovern, D-S.D., led by Moss, produced some $60,000 for Moss, and the strongly pacifist Council for a Livable World dished out $50,000.

SOCIAL NOTES — Taking leaf from Vice President Agnew, Washington society has come up with a new expression. It's "radical chic" — to describe a far-out party or attire.

Mrs. Ethel Kennedy, widow of the late "Bobby," is in class of her own as a hostess. At a party she gave for several thousand guests, she didn't show up until a few moments before the end of the affair. The food ran out long before more than half the guests had eaten; and Al Hirt, note trumpeter, rivaled the hostess as an attraction. Also, those guests who did manage to get champagne, had to drink it in plastic cups.

Former Ambassador W Averell Harriman, whose wife died recently, is writing a book. He is being very secretive about both the title and the subject.
