CC Voting Saturday

BY TEX DEWEESE
News Staff Writer

City officials and supporters of Pampa's proposed $1.2 million auditorium said today a heavy turnout of voters is expected at tomorrow's $800,000 auditorium bond election.

Any registered voter residing within the Pampa city limits is entitled to cast a ballot. Property ownership is not required.

There will be only one polling place. That will be in the City Commission Room at City Hall. The voting place will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Here are salient facts concerning the proposed auditorium to be constructed as a memorial to the late M.K. Brown:

The City already has received $400,000 in cash from the M.K. Brown Foundation, Inc., and assets of the Foundation have been pledged to retire the $800,000 in general obligation bonds.

These assets include an estimated $800,000 in oil and gas income from the Brown ranch during the next ten years, 2,800 acres of ranch land valued at $70 per acre ($196,000), approximately 24,000 shares of S. I. stock (income from 1981-1985), estimated at $83,000 for a total of $1,279,000.

The City already has employed a fiscal agent, bond attorney and architect, and delivered preliminary plans and sketches of the proposed structure.

Auto Mechanic Named Prime Suspect In Ohta Slaying

Evidence Leads To Dropout From Life

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) — Federal Bureau of Investigation agents joined the search today for an auto mechanic "who dropped out and entered the hippy style life" and is charged with the complicated, singlehanded slaughter of five persons.

Peter Chang, Santa Cruz County district attorney, announced late Thursday that a warrant had been issued for John Linley Frazier. Chang declared that "on the present evidence we are seeking one person" in the killing of Dr. Victor Ohta, his wife, two sons and secretary.

Asked how one man could have bound five persons, blindfolded them and then shot them beside a swimming pool Chang replied: "It sounds ridiculous, but it's possible that it happened."

Information leading to the suspect came from hippies in this wooded and hilly community, Chang said. He explained the FBI was called on a warrant charging unlawful flight to escape prosecution.

The suspect—also known as Pascal, his mother's present name—was described as a "white, male American with brownish hair, combed to one side and reaching his collar."

His wife who last saw him when he left the cabin recalled he was wearing a three-quarter inch beard, a beige straw hat with a wide brim and a red, white and blue band, a green coat, dark trousers, which might have been jeans, and ankle high moccasins.

The wife, whom the district attorney did not name, was quoted as saying that when he left the cabin, he had a pistol in his waistband, a backpack of food for several days, expensive binoculars and a book on Tarot.

Tarot is a medieval method of telling fortunes with playing cards. The names of Tarot cards were signed to a note left by the killer under a windshield wiper of Dr. Ohta's Rolls Royce outside the hipshot mansion which had been set on fire. The name declared "World War 3" opposed materialism and vowed death to those who "misuse the environment."

Two Pistols Used

Sheriff's deputies have determined that .38 and .22 caliber pistols were used in the killings and an unnamed friend of Frazier's told detectives the hunted man owned a .38 caliber Smith & Wesson revolver.

One of Dr. Ohta's two surviving daughters said there had been a .22 pistol in the house which overlooks the Pacific Ocean.

Another unnamed friend told police Frazier had said he had been in the Ohta house where he had taken a pair of binoculars.

Victims in the shooting were Dr. Ohta, 47, a Japanese-American eye surgeon; his wife, Virginia, 41; their sons, Victor Taggart, 11, and Richard Derrick, 12; and his secretary, Mrs. Dorothy Cadwallader, 38.

Police said the big hippie community in the communes that dot the wooded country hereabouts was cooperating in the search for Frazier, who was not a popular figure with hippies.

In nearby Santa Clara County, deputies said they could find no connection between the Ohta deaths and the shooting of a gasoline station attendant near Saratoga.

FILES SUIT

Salvage Firm Wants $600,000 Treasure

BROWNSVILLE (UPI)—The salvage firm which recovered $600,000 of treasure only to be forced to turn it all over to the state has filed a suit in federal court which in effect tells the state of Texas to put up or shut up.

Platoro Ltd., the Indiana salvage company which originally agreed to recover the booty if it received half of it, asked U.S. District Judge Reynaldo Garza Thursday to "compel the state of Texas to file a claim or withdraw its appearance" in the disagreement over who gets how much of the treasure.

Platoro claims it is entitled to half the treasure which is now in the hands of the Texas Antiquities Committee.

Platoro recovered the treasure off Padre Island in 1967. The treasure is believed to be from one of 17 Spanish galleons which sank during a storm, in 1533.

The Texas Antiquities Committee earlier this week dispatched an expeditionary team in an effort to retrieve more treasure which may lie on the gulf floor.

Attorney Thomas G. Sharpe Jr. filed the motion asking Judge Garza to order the state to file a claim to the treasure on or before Nov. 27 and to file the legal and factual basis for the claim. The motion also asked Texas to advise the court whether it will honor any contracts the company claimed it made with Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler.

Sadler originally signed contracts with Platoro giving the salvage firm 50 per cent of everything recovered. The contract was later voided and Sadler was reprimanded by the legislature for his handling of the treasure. The state then forced Platoro to surrender the treasure it claimed under the contracts.

"The state did not say it was entitled to the salvage for any specific reason and we want them to tell us what law they rely on to recover any or part of the salvage," Sharpe said.

American Generals Sought

MOSCOW (UPI)—U.S. diplomatic officials sought "consular access" today to two American generals who landed on Soviet territory when their small aircraft reportedly became lost in stormy weather near the Turkish-Russian border.

The Beechcraft plane carrying Maj. Gen. Edward C. D. Scherrer, 57, of Shawneetown, Ill., and Brig. Gen. Claude Monroe McQuarrie Jr., 45, of Ft. Benning, Ga., was reported missing Wednesday.

The Russians announced Thursday the craft "violated Soviet airspace" and landed in Armenia, less than 12 miles inside Soviet territory.

The news agency Tass said the two generals, the plane's pilot, U.S. Maj. James P. Russell, and a Turkish liaison officer, Col. Civat Daniil, all were "in good health."

"Competent Soviet authorities have been instructed to investigate the circumstances connected with the above mentioned violation of the Soviet Union's state frontier by a plane of the U.S. Air Force," Tass said.

The U.S. Embassy asked for "consular access" to the two generals.

The two generals are members of the U.S. Military Assistance Group in Turkey and both are U.S. Military Academy graduates.

According to a CS Defense Department announcement, they were on a flight from the Turkish city of Erzurum to Kars in extreme Eastern Turkey when their plane became lost.

School Officials Plan Open House At New Facilities

Pampa school trustees, school officials and the Parent Teacher Association will sponsor the first Open House from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday to celebrate the completion of eight areas in the school district's $900,000 school improvement projects.

Student guides will be available at Pampa High School to assist school board members and other officials with tours through the new Music Building, library, girls' gym, athletic building, second floor science area and third floor language classrooms, Supt. Dr. James F. Malone said.

About 50 PTA representatives will register guests as they tour the PHS facilities and the two new cafeterias at Mann and Wilson Elementary Schools.

"We hope to have at least 5,000 Pampans and visitors from other towns to see these new facilities. School board members will be stationed in all areas periodically during the tour time to assist with any questions visitors have," Dr. Malone said.

At PHS, visitors may enter any door and will be greeted by student guides, Mark Turner, Lynn Gabelmann, Jill Donaldson, Don Orth, Gail Duncan and Shelly Cogdell, all PHS students.

The athletic building is located on the corner of Decatur and Duncan, adjacent to the football stadium, and houses dressing rooms for Pampa and visiting teams, coaches offices, film room and conference room, and an indoor practice area.

Construction Begins To Rebuild Tornado-Ripped County Annex

By DORIS E. WILSON
News Staff Writer

Construction was begun this week on the new $85,788 Gray County Annex, which was destroyed in the mid-April tornado.

Gene Barber, county consulting engineer, said the new construction is being built on the same site, East Highway 60, on the original foundation and floor slab. When completed, it will be 40 by 200 feet and of a higher grade masonry construction with brick walls and pre-cast concrete roof units.

Barber said weather permitting, the new annex should be completed, according to contract, in 110 calendar days, which should make it ready for occupancy about mid-February.

The new annex is being reconstructed at no cost to the county-city taxpayers since $63,200 of the amount represents insurance coverage and $41,200 was issued from the Office of Emergency Preparedness under the replacement of Public facilities destroyed in disasters.

"We probably wouldn't have had this disaster relief if it had not been for Lubbock's tornado coming about the same time," Barber explained. "That tornado hit about a week later and the entire area was declared a disaster, which qualified Gray County" for the grant from OEP."

Wiley Hicks Jr., Construction Co. of Amarillo was the low-bidding contractor. Subcontracting work has been allotted to Quall's Electric and Parsley Roofing Co.

When the new building is completed, it will again house the offices of county school superintendent, county agent, home demonstration agent, state welfare offices, soil conservation service, agriculture stabilization services. They are presently working out of temporary offices in various locations around Pampa.

Elections Canceled Due To Montreal's Panic Climate

MONTREAL (UPI)—The separatist Parti Quebecois demanded today that the Quebec government cancel Sunday's Montreal city election because of "the climate of panic provoked by the events of the past two weeks."

There was no word about the fate of kidnapped diplomat James R. Cross.

The party, which seeks independence for Quebec through peaceful means, said the political atmosphere of the province is so tense from separatist terror and the accusations of politicians that the election would be a farce.

There was silence for the fifth day from the terrorists of the Front de Liberation du Quebec (FLQ) on the fate of British Diplomat James R. Cross, kidnapped 18 days ago.

The last such word from the FLQ, a letter from Cross "to the authorities," was found Sunday, the day after the FLQ killed its other hostage, Quebec Labor and Immigration Minister Pierre Laporte. He was strangled with the chain of his religious medal.

"Police said they had run out of clues, after more than two weeks of the most intensive manhunt in Canadian history."

"We're getting a bit anxious," said Inspector J. R. Melancon of the Quebec Provincial Police.

"Nothing has led to anything. There are no clues," he said.

Controversy continued about the effect of the kidnap crisis on the Montreal city elections scheduled to be held Sunday.

The administration of Jean Drapeau, mayor for 13 of the last 17 years, is opposed by the Front d'Action Politique (FRAP), a coalition of leftist groups.

Montreal Archbishop Paul Gregoire proposed formation of a special committee to help ease the problems of those arrested under the emergency War Measures Act, which suspends civil liberties.

UAW Strike Fund Almost Drained Of All Reserves

DETROIT (UPI)—The United Auto Workers Union, within two or three weeks of draining a $120 million strike fund to its last reserves, has moved to assess the union's 900,000 working members to support the 38-day strike against General Motors Corp.

The UAW's ruling International Executive Board (IEB) met here Thursday and indicated it will ask a special financial convention Saturday to boost dues to nonstriking members.

Sources said, the increase was likely to be $10 monthly and raise an extra $9 million a month.

The union is currently paying out about $14 million a week in strike benefits to 350,000 who struck GM at midnight, Sept. 14, and some others idled by the strike. Union estimates indicate the fund will provide strike benefits for another two or three weeks—not counting reserves for payment of health and life insurance premiums.

The extra assessment would cover only the insurance premiums. UAW President Leonard Woodcock has vowed to conduct an "old-fashioned" strike if no settlement is reached by the time the benefits run out.

Negotiators for GM and the UAW did not discuss national contract issues in bargaining Thursday. Two more local settlements raised the number of local agreements to 48, leaving 107 U.S. and seven Canadian bargaining units without local contracts.

Committee Plans For Yule Season

Plans for the kick-off of the Christmas shopping season in Pampa were launched yesterday at a meeting of the Retail Trade Committee of the Chamber of Commerce in the Hospitality Room of Citizens' Bank & Trust Co.

John Gattis and Dick Klein, co-chairmen of the committee, led the discussion which brought about a city-wide plan for ushering in Santa Claus and the Christmas season here on Friday, Nov. 27.

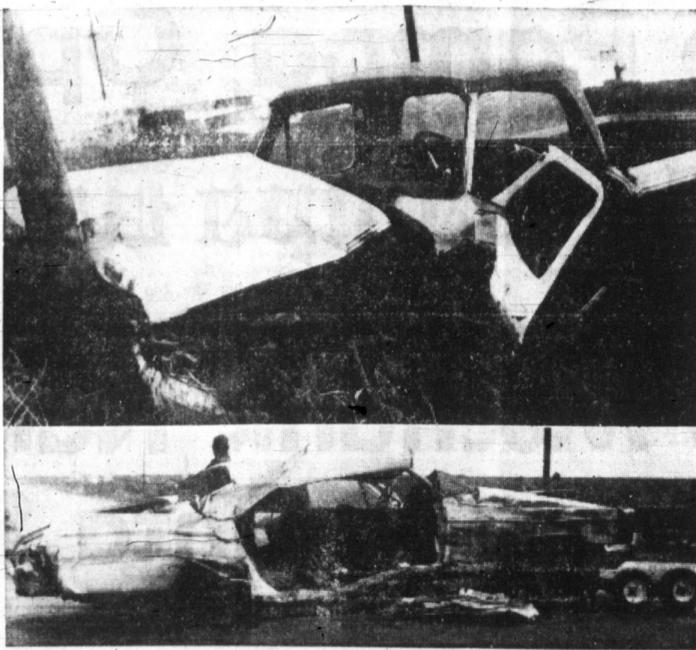

Festivities will get underway when Santa Claus lands by helicopter at 10 a.m. in the Coronado Center parking lot where he will be met by Pampa school bands and hundreds of boys and girls who will not be in school on Friday following the Thanksgiving holiday. Santa Claus will greet the boys and girls at the shopping center where he will have free candy between 10 and 11 a.m.

A street parade will leave Coronado Center at 11 a.m. and wind its way through downtown Pampa, featuring Pampa school bands, floats, community organizations, and other parade features. The parade will disband at the intersection of S. Cuyler and Craven Streets, and Santa Claus will be in downtown Pampa between 12 noon and 1 p.m. when he will again visit with the boys and girls and distribute hundreds of bags of free candy.

Appointed to work out details of the parade lineup were W. C. Bass, Jr., of Coronado Men's Wear, and Ralph Ford, of J. C. Penney Co.

All clubs and organizations, plus business concerns, are invited and urged to place entries in the parade. Appropriate prizes and plaques will be presented to the winners. Complete details will be worked out on the parade within the next few days.

The main idea expressed in yesterday's meeting was the importance of all retail merchants working together on the city-wide promotion to promote Pampa as the Christmas shopping hub of the Top O' Texas area.

NOT LITTERING

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan, traveling between campaign stops Thursday, tossed an apple core from his limousine window into the ivy on the edge of a freeway.

Asked later why he did it, the Republican governor said the core was "humus" and would benefit the soil. He added he was benefiting ecology and not littering.

He did not comment when asked if apple cores violated state antilitter laws.

Dubois left $109 to the town's needy, $90 to the aged of the city hospital and the remaining $21 to the local newspaper for printing his death notice.

Egyptians Begin Work To Reopening Suez Canal

CAIRO (UPI)—The Egyptian government began preliminary work on reopening the Suez Canal after the Middle East cease-fire went into effect Aug. 7, but further steps have been postponed until the political situation clears.

Aly Mahmoud, a director of the state-owned Suez Canal authority, told UPI in an interview today "we were all very optimistic when the truce went into effect and so we contacted some salvage companies to begin preliminary work on clearing the canal."

"We were about to invite them to Egypt to begin a practical phase of the work but things have not worked out as we hoped. The atmosphere is not as good now as we wanted."

Mahmoud indicated the company will await developments after the cease-fire expires Nov. 5.

The 103-mile-long canal, which will be 101 years old Nov. 17, was closed during the July, 1967, war with Israel. No attempts have been made to reopen it since then.

Mahmoud said it would take less than six months to clear the canal for operation once work began. Western experts have estimated up to two years work was necessary because of the silting of the canal, but Mahmoud said the last survey, taken in 1968, showed no silting at all. He said the silting was the result of the wash of water caused by passing ships, but with no ships using the canal there was little erosion.

Mahmoud indicated contacts were still being maintained.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon has signed legislation which wipes from the statute books a law which required the Army to buy its horses and mules through open market auctions.

The law was abolished because the Army has had no need for horses of mules for years. The same legislation signed Thursday also abolished the old requirement that the quartermaster general sell 16 ounces of tobacco a day to all enlisted men asking it.

First Night Audiences Have Pleasant Evening With Play

By HARLAND HYSMITH News Staff Writer

A crowd of over 100 people saw the initial performance of the Pampa High School Drama Department's comedy production, "You Can't Take It With You," last night in the Pampa High Auditorium. Final performance of the Kaufman and Hart play will be Saturday night at 7:30.

News of the death of a friend, John Robert Johnson, 16, of White Deer, killed in a two-car accident just two hours before the curtain went up saddened the cast members who knew him well, but troopers that they are they went "on with the show."

Favorites of the crowd were Rhea, the negro cook, played by Sandra Brown, and her boyfriend, Donald, played by Billy Ray Woodard. Lynn Walker did a great job as Penelope Sycamore and Roy Anderson was convincing as Mr. De Pinna.

As with any play, certain scenes and bits of dialogue stand out in the theatre-goers' mind. Penelope Sycamore reading her plays. Donald RUSHING to the Minute Mart. A "drunk" Gay Wellington (played by a hopefully undrunk Cindy Gigg).

imitating lumps in a sofa. Mr. De Pinna "throwing the discus in costume". Rhea anouncing the corn flakes are ready for supper. Ed Carmichael, played by Daniel Barker, astutely playing the xylophone so his wife, Essie (Pam Mitchell), can practice her ballet.

These and other memories are left from an enjoyable evening at the theater. The general public is invited to attend tomorrow night at 7:30 and choose their own memories to keep.

Shoot To Kill Orders Given To Chile Troops

SANTIAGO (UPI) — Troops with shoot-to-kill orders today enforced martial law imposed in a nationwide effort to find gunmen who wounded Chile's army commander in an apparent attempt to keep Marxist Salvador Allende from becoming president Saturday.

Gen. Rene Schneider, shot three times Thursday morning on his way to his office, took a turn for the worse Thursday night. He was in critical condition.

"The government will not cease in its obligation to find and punish those responsible for this criminal attack," said President Eduardo Frei in a television and radio address Thursday night, announcing imposition of martial law.

Troops patrolled cities and towns from the Atacama Desert on the north to the mountains on the south with authority to make summary arrests, search homes without warrants, censor information media and to shoot to kill any person who does not approach to be identified when challenged.

Schneider was shot only 48 hours before Congress was due to proclaim Allende the Western Hemisphere's first freely elected Marxist president.

In Santiago, Gen. Camilo Valenzuela ordered a nightly curfew from midnight to 6 a.m. and forbade nighttime traffic of private automobiles except for ambulances and other emergency vehicles. Valenzuela appealed to families to keep their children away from windows and off balconies lest they be shot by nervous troops on patrol and threatened to close down any newspaper or radio station contributing to "the disturbance of public order or creation of panic."

Congress must ratify the Sept. 4 election victory of Allende since he did not win an absolute majority of 51 per cent of the vote.

The nation's Marxist left factions blamed what they called "ultra-rightists" and operatives of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) for the attempt to kill Schneider.

Political police were investigating that and another possibility—that Schneider was shot by army men disaffected at his permitting what they said was contact between the army general staff and representatives of Allende.

Several gunmen wearing gloves smashed the windows of Schneider's limousine with iron pipes and fired at least eight slugs into the car. Three hit the general, wounding him in the left lung, diaphragm and liver.

Glamor Witness Expected To Testify In Cult Leader Trial

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The state hopes to produce today one of its glamor witnesses, Terry Melcher, Doris Day's son, to testify about his association with Charles Manson, the hippie cult leader on trial in the Tate-Labianca killings.

Melcher once auditioned Manson, a composer-singer and guitar player, and considered making a movie about the so-called "family" with an authentic sound track.

In an opening statement Deputy District Attorney Vincent Bugliosi said the Benedict Canyon home where actress Sharon Tate was slain on the night of Aug. 8, 1967 was a "hate house" for Manson because Melcher rejected him.

Melcher was the previous tenant of the house owned by Rudolph Altobelli.

The landlord was a witness Wednesday and told how Manson made his way to the guest house in back where he was living on March 23, 1969 and said he was looking for Melcher. Miss Tate and her producer husband Roman Polanski rented the main house from Altobelli for $1,200 a month.

Altobelli knew Manson from a previous meeting at the home of Dennis Wilson, member of the Beach Boys musical group. He told Manson-Melcher had moved. Manson said he knew that but wanted to find out his new address. Altobelli said it was somewhere in Malibu but he couldn't give him the address.

Much of Thursday's session was taken up with testimony from a pudgy 20-year-old woman, a former inmate of the County Jail with defendant, Susan Atkins.

Roseanne Walker testified Miss Atkins indicated she was involved in the Tate-Labianca killings. She was held at the time for investigation of the killing of musician Gary Hinman and told Miss Walker, "I was in on those other murders."

Eggers Charges Smith With Firing Texas' Importance In National Consumer Credit Commissioner Politics Outlined By G. Bush

By United Press International
Republican gubernatorial candidate Paul Eggers repeated his charges Wednesday Democratic Gov. Preston Smith fired his consumer credit commissioner to pay off a political debt.

The governor, meanwhile, running for his second two year term, campaigned on a platform of the "state of the state" which has developed in his first term.

Eggers asked Smith to explain why Frank Miskell was purged from his position as commissioner of consumer credit. Was it because Mr. Miskell refused to play ball with the loan sharks who have heavily supported Mr. Smith's campaigns?

Eggers said Smith received $10,000 in his 1968 campaign from small loan company executives who later bragged they would "get" Miskell. Eggers said Smith has refused to answer his charges of lobbyist influence.

Eggers also said Smith is ignoring his challenges to a debate. The GOP candidate said the governor is letting an announcer do all the talking for him on his television campaign spots and said: "Since he won't debate me, I will also offer to debate his announcer."

Smith said in Odessa the state has made great strides in solving unemployment, the penal system and poverty since he became governor. He said state unemployment is the lowest in the nation and the state also enjoys one of the lowest tax burdens in the country. He said the Texas prison system is a model for other states, the Texas highway system is one of the best and said his "drive friendly" safety campaign has had a significant effect in lowering traffic deaths and accidents.

"We are reducing poverty in Texas almost twice as fast as in the nation at large," he said.

MIDLAND, Tex. (UPI)—President Nixon will never get a chance to try on his "new federalism" unless Texas and other states elect Republicans to the U. S. Senate, GOP candidate George Bush said Wednesday night.

Republicans need to win seven U. S. Senate seats now held by Democrats in order to gain a plurality in that chamber. Texas is considered one of the "must" states among the seven seats which the GOP hopes to pickup.

For this reason Bush told 365 Midland and Odessa who paid $25 a plate at a fund raising dinner the Texas race is looked on "as one of the most important in the nation." He said he gave up his safe seat from one of Houston's congressional districts to run for the Senate in a predominantly Democratic state "because we need a change in leadership in the Senate."

"I want to help President Nixon change the direction of this nation," Bush said. "I think it is important in the 1970s for our kids and for the country as a whole to move away from the permissiveness of the past and get back on the right track."

Bush was joined at the testimonial dinner by national GOP chairman Rogers Morton who said the Houston congressman "is the kind of a man that doesn't come along every day."

Morton said Bush and his wife "brought something new to Washington in terms of leadership, spiritual strength, confidence and ability. I don't believe the brand of cats who traditionally have been coming to Washington — and I mean both Republicans and Democrats — are the type that we need to move this country back where it belongs."

"We need George Bush in the United States Senate," Morton said. "I think it's very important to Texas for George Bush to go to the Senate and I know it's important to the President that you send him there."

Men Need 'Lib' Movement, Also!

NEW YORK (NEA)—Women's Liberation groups complain that laws discriminate against their sex. They mention abortion and prostitution statutes, for two, that obviously pick primarily on female offenders.

The gripes, however, are not likely to gain much sympathy among people in the crime and punishment industry. Too many knowledgeable pros believe that, if anything, the law is discriminatingly lenient with women.

They cite three examples: Police often ignore women to concentrate on male offenders; judges often are reluctant to jail women; even if imprisoned, women usually live in better places than men. Says one authority, Judge L. H. Adyrdnece of the University of Nevada:

"Our whole culture makes it hard for a man to send a woman to the penitentiary. I don't think we hesitate on a woman who commits a violent crime. But for many of them, who commit smaller offenses, I think we give a little."

Says attorney Douglas Rigg, Berkeley, Calif.: "I've been in the business for 30-plus years, and I think we definitely tend to give women special consideration. I guess it goes back to English days when pregnant women used to stand before judges and plead their bellies."

There seems to be little statistical evidence to support what either of these men say. But Dr. Preston Sharp of the American Corrections Association grumbles:

"There seems to be little statistical evidence in most areas of corrections. We can find out how many whooping cranes there are in the United States on any given day but we can't find out how many men and women are in prison."

The closest numerical hint is that, whereas 13 per cent of all people arrested are women, only three per cent of the state and federal jail population is female.

This is not precise proof, since most crimes committed by women usually do not warrant long incarceration. However, one Eastern police chief says:

"You don't need statistics for proof. The proof is in the precinct and the courtroom. Police will go for the man, figuring he's more dangerous. And since no judge enjoys putting a woman behind bars, he is much more likely to put her on probation instead."

This opinion is supported by many. Trial judge Miles McDonald of Brooklyn, for one, ADMITS IT GRANKLY:

"I believe when it comes to sentencing, women are sometimes given special consideration, if only because they are not as recidivistic as men. So if a man comes before me, I have to use judgment. Does she have children? Will it serve any good purpose to lock her away? If I can, yes, I will put her on probation."

Yet even when a judge decides differently and sentence a woman to prison, she is undoubtedly better off than most men. Facilities and treatment at many women's institutions are far superior to men's.

In Nebraska, to illustrate, there are more than 600 men serving time behind 100-year-old, machine-gun guarded stone walls. The regional women's prison, by contrast, holds less than 50 and is located in a pastoral suburb. It has a skimpily chain-fence—no guns, no grim guards, no lockstep routine. It's almost pleasant.

The Nebraska situation is repeated in most states and no apologies are given because of it. "We've always treated women with more dignity," says one veteran Midwest warden. "To my knowledge nobody has ever questioned why."

He's right. One reason is that women have traditionally committed far fewer and far less severe crimes, hence falling into a special category.

Tricia Thinks Republican

OGDEN, Utah (UPI)—Tricia Nixon thinks her father will have a Republican-controlled Senate in 1971.

"I think the country that elected my father in 1968 is going to make a change in the Senate this year," she said Wednesday during a day of campaigning for GOP congressional candidates in Utah.

The 24-year-old blonde toured Brigham Young University in Provo and talked to students and then flew here for a reception in her honor. A crowd of about 300 waited for her in front of the motel where a reception was held in her honor and Miss Nixon did not disappoint them. She shook hands with many of them and signed a few autographs before going inside.

'Mental Pressure' Harder To Bear Than Physical Torture

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—A McAllen, Tex., soldier who spent five years as a prisoner of the Viet Cong said he was subjected to "mental pressure" that was harder to bear than any physical torture.

"The mental pressure is the most difficult," Maj. James W. Rowe said during a visit with Gov. Edgar Whitcomb. "On the physical torture you could take more than they can put out and come back."

"But if they push you over the line mentally, you don't come back. They try to break down all your loyalties and all your beliefs."

Rowe said his captors selected speeches by Americans, excerpts from the Congressional Record and U.S. news columns and stories to try to convince him that "your own people say that coming to Vietnam was a mistake so why should you stay here?"

Rowe was accompanied on his visit by Alfred P. Chamie, new national commander of the American Legion. Chamie said the Legion plans a nationwide program on behalf of POWs. He said the program will include "an avalanche of proclamations" from elected officials at all levels of government and "widespread use of special prayers on behalf of prisoners of war and their families."

Rowe said he was one of eight Americans held prisoner by the Viet Cong in the Binh Forest (Forest of Darkness). He said of the eight, three died of malnutrition, one was executed, three were released and one—himself—escaped.

Rowe said he escaped by killing his guard and running into an open space as some American helicopters flew over.

He said he learned later some of the helicopter crewmen thought he was a Viet Cong and were circling to kill him. But one door gunner noticed his beard and yelled that he was an American.

He complained the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese consider a prisoner "not a human being but something they can manipulate. A POW is a propaganda tool to them or a blue-chip in Paris."

Episcopalians Give Okay To $11.8 Million Budget

HOUSTON (UPI)—The 63rd national convention of the Episcopal Church moved toward adjournment Thurs. with final approval of a basic $11.8 million national budget "hanging fire" as the House of Bishops wrangled into the early hours over minor changes.

However, the controversial programs for minority empowerment were intact, assured of passage despite hints of another pocketbook backlash from conservatives in the 3.5 million member church.

The proposed budget was 10 per cent more than expected in come and $2.9 million below the church's quota budget. Faith commitments would add another $11.9 million for a grand total of $23.7 million for the 1971 budget, $23,800,000 for 1972 and $24 million for 1973.

Something of a pocketbook revolt developed this year when 46 of the 90 dioceses refused to pledge their quota. Revolt came in dioceses where grants by the General Convention Special Program (GCSP) were unpopular. The GCSP has spent about $5 million in 250 grants to minority groups, some militant and a few allegedly violent.

Any changes in the proposed budget could bounce it back to the House of Deputies later today, prolonging debate and final acceptance.

The bishops overwhelmingly voted down (84-35) a measure by the House of Deputies designed to allow the election of persisting bishops in a joint session.

"I fear the election of the persisting bishops would become a political matter if opened-up to the other house," said Bishop Richard S. M. Emrich of Michigan in opposing the resolution.

The bi-cameral legislative body approved a bold new youth program giving subculture and minority youths almost complete control in administering their own programs.

"The time has come for the Episcopal Church to invest significant resources—in the reconciliation of the generations," the enabling resolution for the program said.

The Rt. Rev. Evison B. Noland, bishop of Louisiana, called the youth-oriented version of the GCSP "the most thrilling thing in the church in a long time."

The Rt. Rev. John M. Burgess, bishop of Massachusetts and a Negro, who defended the program, said it would enable youth movements concerned with peace, ecology, educational processes, drug abuse and cultural and racial repression.

Advocates of the program sought at least $1.5 million over the next three years beyond allocations for more traditional youth work in the church.

LAST LAUGH
ROSS-ON-WYE, England (UPI)—His friends thought he was crazy when merchant Jack Roberts bought 1,000 Army-issue chamber-pots at a surplus supplies auction. But now he is having the last laugh. "They are my biggest seller," said Roberts. "Americans especially like them for flowers."

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—It is 2 a.m. The night stillness is rent by overhead jangling. I set up in a somnolent fog, trying to identify the intruding sound. It is the telephone in my upstairs bathroom.

I lurch from the bed, slide my feet into the pair of old bowling shoes that serve as my bedroom slippers and make my way up the stairs, being careful to bang my right knee on the antique milking stool that my wife keeps on the landing for just such purposes.

"Hullo." My voice has the approximate consistency of leftover pabulum.

"Hello." The response has a brightness that belies the hour. "This is Martha."

Rubs Dust from Eyes
"Martha!" I rub sleepy dust from my eyes. "Where are you calling from?"

"I'm calling from the top of the Washington Monument."

"Holy obelisk! How did you get up there?"

"One of my 500 pairs of sling pumps has suction cups on the soles."

"But it's two o'clock in the morning. How could you climb the monument in the dark?"

"I have another pair of shoes with miners' lamps on the buckles."

By this time, I am wide awake. "Why are you calling from the top of the Washington Monument?"

"I don't want John to hear."

"Well, why didn't you call from the bottom of the Watergate swimming pool-like the last time?"

"John Found Out"
"John found out I had a telephone down there."

"How did he find out?"

"He got suspicious because the phone book was always wet."

"Did your husband also find out about the telephone you had hidden in the tuba that you borrowed from the U.S. Marine Band?"

"Not yet. But I don't get a chance to use it except when there is a parade."

"How many other places do you have from where you can telephone reporters late at night when you get upset about something?"

"Seventeen, including the telephone in the cornerstone of the new FBI Building, but that one is hard to get to, so I only use it for emergencies."

I feel a poke in my ribs and my wife's voice interrupts.

"Roll over," she says. "You are talking in your sleep again."

Senate Candidates Debate Ins And Outs

By United Press International
The two candidates for Senate are getting into a debate on just who are the "ins" and "outs" in the upcoming election.

Democrat Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr. says the Republicans are the "ins" because they are in control of the White House and they have people like a President and a Vice President who can swing votes when they campaign.

But Republican George Bush says the Democrats are the "ins" because, after all, they have held the Senate seat he is trying to win for over a century and the Democrats are in control of the Texas political situation.

In Houston, Bentsen said Wednesday White House staff members are telephoning Democratic campaign workers in Texas and trying to intimidate them into voting for Bush. Bentsen said he believes Texans resent "sledgehammer politics of this nature."

In Midland, Bush answered his opponent's remarks by calling them "strange indeed when it's apparent that I'm the one up against the power of the one-party machine in Texas. It is ironic to hear the moans from the other side about a power

Bush also accused Bentsen of distorting his stand on gun control laws and guaranteed annual income for welfare recipients. Bush said he opposes both and is tired of Bentsen's "repeated distortion of my position on these two issues."

Bentsen said later in Fort Worth a vote for him would be one way to register dissatisfaction with the present economic situation.

"This is no time to give the Republicans a vote of confidence on policies which have put nearly two million Americans out of work without stopping inflation," he said. "We'll get more of the same unless we show at the ballot box that we are tired of rising unemployment, high prices and business failures."

What The Texas Candidates Say Just To Be Elected

By United Press International
Democratic Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes seeking re-election to another two year term calling for a "rebirth of faith in this nation."

"We in America share many blessings which are too valuable to be allowed to pass away because of apathy and moral decay and lack of faith." Government officials are "shellshocked by crisis and constant changes and wrongfully choose inaction as the lesser of evils or tragically choose repression as the final answer and ignore the fact that apathy does more than forestall progress, it instigates regression."

Democratic Senate candidate Lloyd M. Eentsen Jr. on the state of the economy:

"This is no time to give the Republicans a vote of confidence on policies which have put nearly two million Americans out of work without stopping inflation. We'll get more of the same unless we show at the ballot box that we are tired of rising unemployment, high prices and business failures."

Republican Senate candidate George Bush responding to his opponent's charges administration officials were urging Democratic campaign workers to vote Republican:

He said the charges were "strange indeed when it's apparent that I'm the one up against the power of the one-party machine in Texas. It is ironic to hear the moans from the other side about a power play."

Republican gubernatorial candidate Paul Eggers noting his opponent Preston Smith has refused to debate him and Smith's television campaign commercials are handled by a professional announcer while Smith's voice is not heard:

"Since he won't debate me, I will offer to debate his announcer."

Republican candidate for lieutenant governor Byron Fullerton accusing his opponent of a "strategy of silence to deceive Texans with the idea that Ben Barnes is unopposed for re-election."

"The technique is to just pretend there are no issues to be faced, and no questions to be answered, all the while cautiously limiting public appearances to captive audiences at ribbon-cutting and dedication ceremonies where polite applause is assured. Such occasions provide a convenient isolation booth to shield Barnes from questions he dare not face in a forthright political campaign."

Democratic Gov. Preston Smith, seeking his second two year term, on the strides made during his administration:

"We are reducing poverty in Texas almost twice as fast as in the nation at large."

Fullerton Feels Issues And Himself Are Being Ignored

By United Press International
Republican candidate Byron Fullerton feels he and the issues are being ignored.

Fullerton accused his Democratic opponent of using a "strategy of silence to deceive Texans with the idea that Ben Barnes is unopposed for re-election."

"The technique is to just pretend there are no issues to be faced, and no questions to be answered, all the while cautiously limiting public appearances to captive audiences at ribbon-cutting and dedication ceremonies where polite applause is assured." Fullerton said Wednesday in Corpus Christi. "Such occasions provide a convenient isolation booth to shield Barnes from questions he dare not face in a forthright political campaign."

Barnes told a meeting of the Missionary Baptist General Convention in Austin a "rebirth of faith in this nation" is needed.

"We in America share many blessings which are too valuable to be allowed to pass away because of apathy and moral decay and lack of faith," Barnes said.

The incumbent said governments are "shellshocked by crisis and constant changes and wrongfully choose inaction as the lesser of evils or tragically choose repression as the final answer and ignore the fact that apathy does more than forestall progress, it instigates regression."

Political Quips Are Shared With Bob Hope By Lindsey

NEW YORK (UPI)—Political quips were the order Wednesday night at the annual Alfred E. Smith Memorial Dinner and not all of them came from Bob Hope at the speakers' table.

Mayor John V. Lindsay greeted the guests with, "I was going to talk about something dear to all your hearts... but I'm not going to discuss my retirement."

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who received a rebuff Monday when Lindsay, a Republican, endorsed Democrat Arthur Goldberg for governor, said, "Mr. Mayor. It's nice to see you this evening... handsome fellow."

Sen. Charles E. Goodell, a Republican who has not received President Nixon's support told newsmen that he had asked the President not to endorse him.

Conservative party candidate James L. Buckley said he considered Tuesday's White House statement on the New York senatorial race a "tacit endorsement."

The evening was overshadowed by the man who did not come to dinner—Nixon. In the past, Presidents, including Nixon, have attended the Smith dinner. But Nixon stayed in Washington Wednesday.

Hope noted that he and

Cardinal Terence Cooke, the dinner's host, "are the only two up here who aren't worried about being re-elected."

He called Lindsay an "outspoken Liberal Republican" and told him, "don't worry. (Vice President Spiro T.) Agnew's only up to the G's," a reference to Agnew's recent attacks on Goodell.

Funds from the dinner go to aid hospitals, Catholic relief agencies and other charities. It honors Smith, the 1928 Democratic presidential candidate, who was governor of New York from 1923 to 1928. He died in 1944.

Hollywood In Review

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—As the current political campaign reaches its climax, one candidate for governor is honest enough to admit the election is fixed, bought and paid for in his favor.

He is the incumbent Gov. William Drinkwater of "The Governor and J.J." television series, Dan Dailey.

For obvious reasons Dailey must win re-election.

Unless he remains in office CBS must (a) cancel the show, (b) change the title (c) hire another actor to play the new governor.

That Dailey's re-election is in the bag.

Unlike other candidates who will leave their fortunes to the electorate in November, Dailey (Drinkwater), will continue his campaign on through until the end of the video season.

Won't Say Who He Backs
A former song and dance man, Dailey refuses to say whether he backs another ex-hooper, Sen. George Murphy, for re-election or Gov. Ronald Reagan for California's State House.

"I keep my politics to myself," Dailey said wisely, making no enemies on either side of the political fence. "I just go vote. Although it is safe enough for me to say I'll vote for Drinkwater."

A hit in its first season last year, "The Governor and J.J." is rolling up satisfactory ratings this season, Dailey think he knows why.

"We're essentially a family show," he said. "We've sidestepped involving ourselves with the real issues in politics or the problems confronting a public official such as Drinkwater.

"A situation comedy should be funny. And we'd much rather have laughs going for us than votes."

Needs Only One Vote
"The only vote I need is from Bob Wood who is one of the network vice presidents and he's in charge of programming. As long as we get his vote we're re-elected."

Last year to lend a note of reality to the show the producers cast some genuine governors in bit roles, including Raymond Shafer of Pennsylvania, Norbert Tiemann of Nebraska, Deane Davis of Vermont and Paul Laxalt of Nevada.

Dailey diplomatically declined comment on their acting gifts.

"Personally, I much prefer being an actor to a politician. There isn't enough money in the world for me to take on a governor's job."

Daily some day will be faced with cancellation, but he'll never have to worry about stuffing the ballot box, being impeached or thrown out of office by irate taxpayers.

Coed Added To KSU Roundup

KENT, Ohio (UPI)—The arrest of a former Kent State University coed has brought to 11 the number arrested on indictments stemming from the disorders that culminated in the shooting deaths of four students by National Guardsmen May 4.

Mary Helen Nicholas, 22, Akron, was arrested Wednesday on a charge of interfering with firemen at the scene of a fire. The charge apparently involved the burning of the Kent State ROTC Building May 2. She was the first woman to be arrested.

Twenty-five persons were indicted by a special grand jury that issued its report on the disorders last Friday and ordered the arrests. No guardsmen were indicted. The jury castigated the university administration for its "permissive attitude."

As Portage County authorities sought the remaining 14 persons indicted, controversy flared over the constitutionality of a court order prohibiting Kent State President Robert I. White from expressing criticism of the jury report.

U.S. District Court Judge Ben C. Vreen refused Wednesday to issue a temporary injunction requested by the American Civil Liberties Union to lift the ban. He set Oct. 29 for a hearing on a permanent injunction.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I accidentally happened on a sure-fire cure for the hiccups. It doesn't involve any gadget, it's just an idea. I have used it on my family and friends and it never fails.

I have read up on cures for hiccups in medical books and there is nothing like my idea mentioned. (They suggest breathing into a paper sack, sipping sugar water very slowly and holding your breath. How silly can you get?) With those methods, the hiccups might go away for a minute or two, but they come right back. My hiccup cure takes only 25 seconds and they are gone for good.

Question: Can I sell my cure to anyone? If so, how? Should I advertise in the magazines next to athlete's foot and trusses?

I, suppose I could give my idea away for free, but darn it, Abby, everybody is getting paid for ideas these days and I think mine is worth a couple of dollars as hiccups can be a nuisance. I am sure businessmen and people in the field of entertainment would give a leg to get rid of hiccups in 25 seconds.

What advice have you for me?

HICCUPS CURER

DEAR CURER: Hiccups can be more than a nuisance. If they persist for hours, days or weeks, hiccups can be a serious medical problem. A sure-fire cure for hiccups would be a valuable contribution to the world. Discuss your cure with a reputable physician. He may not cough up a way to make you rich, but, I promise you, if you have the cure you think you have, it will make you famous.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 20 years to a serviceman and have traveled around and lived in many different cities. I have worked most of the time and have never gotten very friendly with neighbors until we moved to this city two years ago. I have a very close friend now who is a neighbor of mine. She's a divorcee. My husband is presently overseas so this neighbor and I are together a lot.

We heard from a friend (who is willing to go to court and testify if we want her to) that someone I know said that this neighbor and I have a romantic "thing" going between us.

Of course it is vicious gossip, but we are told it is all over town. I would like to know the best way to handle it.

BOILING MAD
DEAR BOILING: If were you, I would forget it. People of quality do not believe such stories so why should you become upset over something which has no more meaning than the barking dogs?

DEAR ABBY: I have a relative who lives in an old age home. I invited her to my home for luncheon, and knowing that she has five friends at the home, I told her to bring them along for lunch. She did.

The following day I discovered that two sets of sterling silver salt and pepper shakers I had used on my table were missing.

I had never seen any of these five ladies before and there were no other strangers around at the time.

These little articles were a wedding gift of long ago and were precious to me. Would you advise me to mention this to my relative?

ANXIOUS TO KNOW

DEAR ANXIOUS: Yes. CONFIDENTIAL TO "BUREAU CHIEF": I agree with your husband. While there may not have been one evil or out-of-the-way thought in your head, or in the head of the businessman who invited you to his hotel with your bathing suit to lunch and swim while you talked business, you should have requested a more businesslike setting. Particularly since you have never met the man before.

CHILDREN'S IDEAS FOR HALLOWEEN costumes could be designed to ward off any tricky spooks as these three modeled by Mr. and Mrs. David Hutto's sons, Kim, 10, Kip, 5, and Ted, 7. The boys, disguised as an Indian, Casper Ghost, and a pirate, will be among the children attending the Travis Elementary School annual Halloween Carnival from 6 to 9 p.m. Saturday in the school gym. Parent Teacher Association members will direct booths for a fish pond, spook house, cake walk and toss games and will serve dessert in the cafeteria. The costume contest at 7 p.m. will include pre-school through second grade, third and fourth grades and fifth and sixth grades.

Black-eyed susans bloom on a shirred headboard, supported by wooden curtain rods. The same pattern, lined with permanent-press white sheeting, may be used for cafe curtains. More sheets are used to make up the bed.

Homemakers Create Fancy Headboards From Sheets

By JOANNE SCHREIBER
Pretty sheets are a sewing room staple for ingenious homemakers. Generous width, low-cost and attractive designs make sheets ideal for all sorts of decorating projects.

If there's a girl's bedroom on your decorating schedule, take a tip from interior designer Lee Derman and use these prettily patterned sheets for a shirred headboard. Complete the plan with cafe curtains.

The beguiling pattern selected for this room is Black-Eyed Susans, with the yellow-orange-black-white color scheme emphasized in the pale yellow of the walls and bamboo-motif chest, and in the deep orange carpeting. It's a sunny but sophisticated color plan, sure to appeal to any teen.

The headboard idea can be adapted to any height. To make it, you will require one flat twin-sized sheet, two 1 1/4 inch diameter round wooden poles each with one wooden bracket, one decorative end piece and one plain cup support for the inside wall. If your bed is centered on a wall, you will need two of the wooden rod supports and end pieces for each rod. In addition, you will need a single slender brass rod for the lower section. This rod will not show and need not be decorative. Rods should be width of bed, plus two inches.

To make the headboard treatment shown here, first mount your top pole at desired height. Stitch a casing for the pole along one long edge of a single sheet so your top and bottom sheet hems will serve as the headboard side hems. Mount second pole and measure from bottom of top rod to top of lower rod. Stitch in a second casing. Measure from second rod to lower rod and stitch in third casing. Cut off excess sheeting, if any.

Note that the middle pole is supported by the fabric. The bracket is mounted upside down. The weight of the pole helps keep the fabric taut. Since these sheets are permanent-press, they will retain their crisp, new look almost indefinitely. When you do take down your headboard for a trip through the washing machine, you can simply tumble it dry with never a thought of ironing.

If you make cafe curtains of matching sheets, allow enough fullness so that lining will be unnecessary. If you do choose to line them, use a solid white permanent-press sheet and Dacron thread, so the whole unit may be tumble-dried without ironing. With today's pretty and practical sheets, decorating is easier and more fun than ever before.

Sorority Members Initiate Pledges Into ESA Chapter

Kappa Alpha Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International sponsored its Pledge ceremony recently in a candle lighted room with six pledges entering the sorority.

Pledges are Mrs. Jerry Thompson, Mrs. Hunter Chisum, Mrs. Jim Ayers, Mrs. Fern Berry, Mrs. K.D. Shook and Mrs. Norman Sublett. Hostesses decorated the ceremonial table with a white cloth and centerpiece of yellow jonquils, the sorority flower. Eleven members attended.

It was announced Mrs. Bob Yost, Mrs. Ira Bewley, Mrs. James Frazier, Mrs. Irvin Hungerford and Mrs. Joe Miller, assisted with the Rubella Vaccine clinics.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Keep Child Occupied With Her Own Projects

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I am answering Donna's worried letter about her inactive eight-year-old. Since they live in a rural area, many more outdoor activities are possible. Give her a small patch of ground for her own vegetable garden and let her sell the produce for spending money. It is fun to watch things grow and she can be taught easily to tend her little plot.

Why not let her have a farm-type pet, or pets, to raise and care for? Ducks are fun if space and finances are limited. Of course, a pony would be ideal for exercise and encouragement to get outdoors.

Put a table under a shade tree and plan some quiet activities such as coloring books, modeling clay, watercolor painting, jewelry making, etc. Also make arrangements to pick up some other little girl once a week to spend the day and share in these activities. And, finally, what is wrong with unplugging the TV and fr-bidding its use in the daytime?—ANNA

DEAR POLLY and DONNA—Ever hear about WORK? It is great exercise and almost a necessity for building a responsible citizen these days. I would not dream of allowing my children to watch all the television they want or to eat any time they want. They may have a SMALL snack in mid-morning and midafternoon but they certainly do not do as they please. I have four boys, the oldest five, and, believe me, he

The Weekly Message of Inspiration...

Pampa Chapel, Apostolic Church

REV. AMOS HARRIS

GOD IS LOVE
In the plentiful world of today, man is inclined to neglect his responsibility of thinking upon the nature of God. There are some scriptures in God's Word that proclaim God's greatness to such an extent that we do not feel we can comprehend it in our own minds. Isaiah declares that God's thoughts and ways are as much above ours as the heavens are above the earth. He is portrayed in Revelations as the Alpha and Omega, the Beginning and the End. In a number of scriptures it declares that God, Himself, made the heavens and the earth. The word also declares, God as a Spirit. Reference to a spirit makes man reluctant to think seriously upon God's true nature, dismissing the idea of God and His nature from our minds and dwelling instead upon all worldly pleasures and resources, we still lack the true peace, joy and contentment we are searching for.

I John 4:8
GOD IS LOVE
God's true nature has always been shown in His love and compassion for man. From the very beginning God has shown His love, such as when He made Adam and Eve and placed them in a beautiful garden. Yet when Adam and Eve sinned, He immediately made a way of deliverance for them, and all mankind.

"For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." Jesus showed the true nature of God on the earth. He came as a token of God's love. While Jesus was on earth, He healed the sick, comforted the sorrowful and because of God's love, He bore the Cross of Calvary. When we think seriously upon the nature of God we realize that He was created in His image and was called upon to accept Him and acquire His nature. When we endeavor to live with His nature in our lives we fulfill the Golden Rule and the Commandments of Jesus; Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself.

Unless Church Pledges Increase Some Churches Will Suffer

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

This is "every member canvass" season — the time when churches across the nation seek financial pledges to support their work during the coming year.

Unless the results are a lot better than they were last fall, many churches are going to be in serious trouble.

In most of the major denominations, giving has leveled off or declined during the past year. With inflation driving up costs at a rate of 5 to 6 percent a year, even a leveling off means a reduction in church programs of ministry, education and service.

Foreign missions have been particularly hard hit. The United Presbyterian Church, whose 3.3 million members probably have the highest average income of any religious body in the world, had to slash its support of overseas work from $16 million in 1969 to $14.6 million in 1970. The cut would have been even steeper had not the church tapped its reserve funds for $2.5 million.

Reserves Never Were Large

"We can't keep that up," warned the Rev. Dr. Theophilus M. Taylor, secretary of the denomination's general council. "These reserves, which have been accumulated over long periods of time as a buffer against emergencies, never were very large and soon will be exhausted."

The same kind of pinch is being felt—all the way from the local congregation to the national level—in many other leading denominations, including the United Methodist Church, Episcopal Church, American Baptist Church, Lutheran Church in America, and Presbyterian Church in the United States.

Many factors seem to be involved in the decline in giving.

Inflation has put a severe squeeze on millions of middle income, family budgets—and giving to the church is a painless place to economize.

Pledge Cutting Is Protest

Some pledge-cutters justify their giving strike as a protest against social activism by the church, although out of every dollar given to churches, less than one half of one cent goes into social programs.

Still another factor is increasing competition for the giver's dollar. Some people who used to give generously to churches are now diverting a major portion of their annual giving to educational institutions, welfare agencies, or health programs.

The most important factor, perhaps, is a widespread public impression that churches are rotting in wealth and don't need any more money, which is pure nonsense.

Possibly it's time for Americans to ask themselves: Do we really want to dispense with the church as a community institution? If now, we are going to have to start supporting our churches a little more adequately.

Episcopalians Adjourn Meet

HOUSTON (UPI)—The 63rd National Convention of the Episcopal Church moved toward adjournment today following approval of a new program giving youths "black, brown, white, red and yellow," almost complete control in administering their own programs.

The time has come for the Episcopal Church to invest significant resources ... in the reconciliation of the generations," the enabling resolution for the program said.

The project will encourage youth movements concerned with war and peace, the draft, ecology, drug abuse, cultural and racial repression "and struggles with identity and sexual problems."

The House of Bishops arranged into the early hours today with final approval of a basic $11.8 million national budget still "hanging fire."

However, the controversial programs for minority empowerment were intact, assured of passage despite hints of another pocketbook backlash from conservatives in the 3.5-million member church.

Tomorrow's Bond Election

There is little left to say about tomorrow's $800,000 bond election to decide the fate of Pampa's M.K. Brown Memorial auditorium except that it would be a shocking jolt to the city's civic and cultural pride if it doesn't carry. The reason we're not saying much about it on the eve of the election is that it is inconceivable that Pampa voters would not take the final step to make the late Mr. Brown's gift to the people a reality. And at no cost to taxpayers. It is inconceivable, too, that voters would reject a $1,200,000 contribution that would give them a public auditorium that has been needed so badly for so long.

So, tomorrow will be your chance to pay tribute to the memory of Mr. Brown. Any registered voter residing within the city limits is eligible to vote. You don't have to own property. The voting place at City Hall will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Let's say "thank you" to Mr. Brown by filling the ballot boxes to overflowing.

Another 'Silent Majority'?

A study of the extent to which student unrest has filtered down to the precollege level has been completed.

The majority of junior and senior high school students consider their high school basically undemocratic, reports a study just released by that fountain of disapproved pedagogy, Teachers College of Columbia University. The students, the report states, complain that they do not participate in making decisions which vitally affect them as individuals and citizens and that they are the victims of the arbitrary behavior of teachers and principals.

While other studies have focused on students who led or participated in protest activities, this one supposedly is the first to look at the student "silent majority"—those who have never taken part in demonstrations or disruptions. It involved a sample of almost 700 junior and senior high school students in the greater New York and Philadelphia areas and included suburban as well as urban schools.

Vietnam and social justice are not the issues bothering students, but rather the question of school governance, individual rights and curriculum. In disputes over these issues, students see the conflicts terminated (not resolved) by "authority figures" about 55 percent of the time and by negotiation between students and authorities only about 17 percent of the time.

The great majority of students are angry, frustrated, increasingly alienated by school, says Alan F. Westin, professor of public law and government at Columbia and one of the principal investigators in the study, in what seems an extreme extrapolation of the data. "Our schools are now educating millions of students who are not forming an allegiance to the democratic political system simply because they do not experience such a democratic system in their daily lives in schools," he said. He then proceeds to offer the reported feelings of the "silent majority" as an explanation for the actions of a noisy minority.

"When currents of frustration such as these are running throughout schools," says Westin, "we should not be surprised that withdrawal through drugs or revolutionary attacks on school and society are the commitments so many students are making."

Fortunately, the majority of students seem to have more sense than those who analyze them, or they would not be the "silent majority" which attends classes and obeys the rules, albeit grudgingly. Any upcoming generation which did not kick against the restraints imposed by its elders and which did not think it could do a better job of running things than the preceding generation would not be worth the ink it would take to write "F" on its report card.

Whatever may be wrong with the schools—and there's plenty—we can only hope that the majority of students have enough intelligence to realize that a special society within society like a school cannot be equated with a national system of self-government or that a principal or teacher hired by a school board is not the same as a popularly-elected president or congressman.

If Westin is right in his diagnosis, if more and more students are committing themselves to drugs or revolution or are becoming disenchanted with "our democratic" political system simply because they do not experience the same system in school, this suggests a want of elementary wisdom in youth that the future of the Republic may be hopeless no matter how much "democracy" is injected into the schools.

The Management Of News

The problem of managed news is not restricted to Washington officials. Unfortunately, many newspapers also must plead guilty.

"Administration spokesmen may be 'following orders' when they suppress or deny news, but this has led to the more recent 'credibility gap' controversy. Another weak link is the Washington correspondent who does not report the facts or doesn't bother to search for the truth.

This doesn't stop with the correspondent, however. In many instances, the problem goes to the newspaper itself. The same situation applies. Either the paper doesn't print the facts or doesn't try to find them. Both are unforgivable.

More to the point, newspapers have joined the national trend of "don't rock the boat." Some editors are frightened of somebody or something out there and want to protect their readers from the truth. What the people don't know will never hurt (or upset) them seems to be their motto. The list of unpublished stories in Texas would fill many editions of this paper. Newspapers, for example, have remained silent on misuse of funds, conflict of interest on school boards and countless other incidents.

Why do they do it? Certainly not because of advertisers who want to spread their messages to the greatest number of readers. And, how better to increase reader interest than to publish the truth?

The fruits of this are apparent by turning to the editorial page of most newspapers. This is the page that gives the newspaper the opportunity to speak out on issues and stand up for what it believes. Using the editorial page as a guide would lead us to believe that many papers do not believe in anything.

This newspaper makes its position quite clearly on this page: "The News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing." How many other newspapers live up to this responsibility? As of now, the field is not crowded.

A Charter For Tyranny
The Constitution of the United States of America, the most perfect form of republican government ever devised, has been twisted by judicial interpretation and subject to manipulation by power-hungry office holders in recent decades. But open appeals for abolition of the Constitution are rarely voiced.

One such proposal was disclosed this fall when the Center Magazine, of the radical Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, published Rexford Guy Tugwell's proposed new Constitution for the "United Republics of America."

To the older generation of Americans, Mr. Tugwell is a voice from the New Deal past. It will surprise many people, no doubt, to learn that Mr. Tugwell, one of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's original "Brain Trusters," is alive and well in Santa Barbara, Calif.

Older Americans won't be surprised, however, that Mr. Tugwell wants to abolish the 50 states and substitute 20 "republics." Back in the 1930's, Mr. Tugwell did his best to steer America in the direction of a collectivist society. It is not startling, therefore, to find that he and the Center have devised a plan of government that will remind many citizens of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

The plan for junking the U.S. Constitution should not be regarded merely as the twilight years dream of an old New Deal collectivist. The Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions plays an active role in the radicalization of contemporary America. Many of Mr. Tugwell's notions are likely to end up on the ideological conveyor belt of the New Left.

Mr. Tugwell's plan would create the conditions for tyranny. The States, guardians of local rights and of individual liberties, would be abolished. The substitute "republics" would be a fiction, for Mr. Tugwell says that these governments could be removed for ineptitude.

With the elimination of the States, the basis of the U.S. Senate also would be abolished. Mr. Tugwell would create a new Senate composed of former high public officials. These "senators" would be appointed. In short, they would be what the British in the 18th century called "placemen," tools of the party in power. Thus the division of powers, which under the U.S. Constitution has prevented autocracy, would be shattered.

The President would serve one nine-year term. This long term would effectively remove the Chief Executive from the control of the people and the coordinate authority of the Congress.

Collectivist control of the economy would be built into the new Constitution. There would be a regulatory branch of government which would "supervise" the operations of private enterprise. This regulatory branch would have corporate enterprises join in multi-company groups to set standards. This is simply Benito Mussolini's "Corporate State," a prime feature of the fascist system in Italy in the 1920's and 1930's. Under this system, private enterprise became the tool of the central government.

This type of economic proposal is to be expected from Mr. Tugwell. He went on record years ago as saying that "unrestricted individual competition is the death, not the life of trade." The Tugwell plan would be the death of constructive capitalism in the United States. The new Constitution would clearly state that economic planning is the right and function of a central planning authority.

Under the Tugwell design, traditional rights and liberties would be undercut in many ways. For instance, the Tugwell constitution for the "United Republics of America" would not contain a provision for trial by jury. No provision would be made for the existing right to bear arms.

Mr. Tugwell says that his draft constitution is "as American as apple pie." Given the proposed destruction of the States and creation of an all-powerful central government, some citizens may conclude the plan is as Russian as caviar.

THE GLOBAL VIEW

Brandt Is Given A Taste Of Real Soviet Stupidity

By LEON DENNEN
Foreign News Analyst

NEW YORK (NEA)—Now it is the West Germans who have cause to worry about the credibility of the men in the Kremlin.

Last August Chancellor Willy Brandt signed his celebrated non-aggression pact with Moscow which he acclaimed as the "cornerstone" of a European detente.

The treaty is still to be ratified by Bonn's Parliament and Brandt—whose political fortunes rest heavily on the success of his politics in the East—is beginning to doubt whether he can deal with Moscow from a position of trust.

Such doubts were freely raised by his closest associates who came here to urge the Nixon administration to continue the presence of U.S. troops in Europe. They also sought to assure U.S. policymakers and journalists that West Germany remains loyal to NATO.

"Brandt is too aware of Soviet diplomacy to fall into any trap set by Moscow," a top German official told this writer. But the official seemed troubled, nevertheless. Perhaps Brandt was "somewhat optimistic" in his negotiations with the Communists, he added.

A cage in point is West Berlin which has been for more than two decades a good yardstick by which to assess Russia's intentions in Germany.

The West Germans have long been seeking a Soviet guarantee of unhindered access to the divided city isolated 110 miles inside Communist East Germany. They also want freedom for West Berliners to visit East Berlin and Moscow's acknowledgement of legal ties between West Berlin and Bonn.

their verbal assurances to Brandt, never abandoned their rigid position that West Berlin must be regarded as an independent entity with no ties to Bonn. Moscow's policy, in fact, was never in doubt.

Brandt assumed, naively, that the Kremlin's top man, Leonid Brezhnev, was anxious to see the non-aggression treaty ratified by the Bundestag before the next congress of the Russian Communist Party scheduled for next March.

It was another miscalculation. In line with usual Soviet strategy, the Russians give away little while asking for a great deal. Now the Kremlin leaders are telling Brandt that they will agree to negotiate a Berlin settlement after Bonn's ratification of the Moscow treaty.

But Brandt's coalition government has only a bare majority of six votes in the Bundestag. And the opponents of his policy are no longer inclined to trust the Russians.

Neither are the Western allies—the United States, Britain and France—who never relinquished their occupation rights in West Berlin. The Nixon administration wants a written agreement on Berlin and not vague statements that the Russians could later repudiate.

As to beverage companies unloading the cost of disposing of "disposable containers," it should be pointed out that it is individuals who throw away the containers. They even throw away containers that have deposits on them. A great many companies are exerting efforts under free enterprise to get their containers collected, by offering to pay for their return at various collecting places. It is not the companies which are guilty; it is unthinking individuals who discard their litter without regard to their neighbors. Newspapers also are being reclaimed to the benefit of all by free enterprise institutions.

The proportion of truly free enterprise companies has been shrinking by a combination of dependence on government for subsidy or by allowing—even urging—some government agency to control "that other fellow" because he might be "predatory" or "fast-buck greedy."

Except when they throw Washington parties for Panther supporters like Roger Delums. Then you see characters like Harold Hughes, Ted Kennedy, Pirc, and Fred Harris. What a bunch of Aln Capens.

Question Box

We invite questions on economic and the proper function of government which will not injure anyone.

QUESTION:— Your repeated assertion that "free enterprise" is the solution for our economic-political hang-ups raises the question of what constitutes free enterprise. Daily evidence appears in the news of financial juggling, such as the Penn Central, cost reduction by soft drink companies by unloading the cost of disposing their "disposable bottles" on the taxpayer, not to mention the enormous bulk of newspaper dumped in the trash each day, and lastly, the article on "Free Enterprise Suicide" from you makes it desirable to know just what "free enterprise" includes. Therefore the question:

First, a request for a definition of "free enterprise" that will avoid confusion with predatory (or fast-buck greed) enterprise. Second: What proportion of our corporations are truly "Free Enterprise"?

ANSWER: As we have said many times, free enterprise consists of enterprise entered into voluntarily by buyer and seller of a good or service, one that is not subsidized or controlled by pitiful agencies, but is controlled by its customers who willingly support it either because of quality or price, or both. Free enterprise, as with any other phase of freedom, includes self-control.

As to "predatory or fast-buck greed" operations, there will always be individuals who take advantage of their fellows. If there is fraud or theft involved, there are laws which can be used. But the most satisfactory control is by the customer's satisfaction or dissatisfaction with a good or service.

As to beverage companies unloading the cost of disposing of "disposable containers," it should be pointed out that it is individuals who throw away the containers. They even throw away containers that have deposits on them. A great many companies are exerting efforts under free enterprise to get their containers collected, by offering to pay for their return at various collecting places. It is not the companies which are guilty; it is unthinking individuals who discard their litter without regard to their neighbors. Newspapers also are being reclaimed to the benefit of all by free enterprise institutions.

The proportion of truly free enterprise companies has been shrinking by a combination of dependence on government for subsidy or by allowing—even urging—some government agency to control "that other fellow" because he might be "predatory" or "fast-buck greedy."

Senators Owner Strikes Out On Tax 'Grab' Threat

ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON.—The last-place Washington Senators may have just as much trouble wangling a government subsidy as the team had winning games the past season.

Although Robert Short, wealthy team owner, is pleading for financial help, got a generally sympathetic hearing from a House District of Columbia subcommittee, other congressmen are decidedly less cordial. Some are outrightly hostile to the idea of tapping taxpayers to bail him out.

Pungently illustrative of this disapproval are the caustic comments of Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, leading economy advocate.

In a brief but sizzling speech in the House, he indignantly denounced Short's entreaty for a sizable subsidy as a "bald-faced blackmail threat" and served notice he would determinedly oppose it.

In Short's appearance before the D.C. subcommittee, the millionaire Minnesotan, a former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, declared the Senators had lost more than $1 million in the several years he had owned the team. He contended that unless given government help, he would either have to sell the team or move its franchise to another city.

Flanked by a coterie of baseball big-wigs—Bowie Kuhn, baseball commissioner, Joe Cronin, American League president, and others—Short asked to be relieved of paying rent for use of the RFK Stadium and larger payments from concessionaires.

The government-financed stadium has never been self-supporting. It will sink still further in the red if Short's rent is drastically reduced or entirely eliminated.

Subcommittee members seemed to be impressed by Short's poverty spiel. Even Chairman John McMillan, D-S.C., usually tight-fisted on Washington finances, expressed concern. He told Short, "I think this committee will do what it can to help you renegotiate your stadium contract."

Both Democratic and Republican colleagues of Gross broke into applause.

SPEAK FOR YOURSELF, JOHN!—But Rep. Gross didn't see it that way at all.

In his tart speech on the House floor, the stern economy champion blasted both Short and the manner in which the RFK Stadium is being run. Gross pointedly recalled that when construction of the stadium was under consideration, he had warned it would "be a huge financial millstone around the necks of both the residents of the District and the rest of the taxpayers throughout the nation, whose money so heavily subsidizes the government of the capital."

A subsidy for the financially strapped Senators was characterized by Gross as "perhaps the most brazen of the attempts to make the long-suffering wage earners of the country pay for a local sports palace."

"It seems incredible," continued Gross, "that Mr. Short should ask that Congress not only subsidize a major league baseball team, but coincidentally bail him out at the same time. I, for one, am at the end of my patience with this sort of Treasury grab. The taxpayers of my district have had their pockets picked to subsidize ballet dancing and concerts on the banks of the Potomac, and now we have an arrogant demand, befitting by a bald-faced blackmail threat, to help pay the freight for a baseball team that can't win games and the closest it gets to my district is Milwaukee."

"Mr. Short has been running his business in exactly the same way certain politicians have been running this country—constantly spending more than is coming in. The result is financial calamity. If Mr. Short chooses to run his business in such a fashion, that is strictly his affair. But when he attempts to saddle the nation's taxpayers with the result of his folly, it is time to inform him that he has just struck out."

Both Democratic and Republican colleagues of Gross broke into applause.

Leader Of War Vets Voices Stiff Opposition To War

By PAUL HARVEY

Certainly its news when a leader of war veterans announces himself in opposition to war. But it may be more than that.

VFW Comdr. Herbert Rainwater's significant break with tradition may have begun to close the door on old-fashioned war.

The American Legion's recent national convention in Portland, Ore., concluded with approval of the customary series of resolutions supporting our nation's policies in Indochina and our troops in the field.

It has been accepted without question that our nation's major veterans' organizations would always accept without question our nation's military posture, whatever and wherever.

Then abruptly, at a news conference in early September, the new national commander of the veterans of Foreign Wars said no.

Comdr. Rainwater says he sees "no reason to fight wars we don't intend to win" and predicted that the 1.1 million men of the VFW will change their historic policy of supporting wars.

"With no prospect of victory" said the commander, "we have ground up 43,000 Americans in Vietnam; I see no reason to grind up any more."

I expect the commander will be rebuked by a segment of his own membership; I hope he will not be silenced.

disrespect for our leaders and to seek the destruction of our government.

So, the enlightened self-interests of the United States desperately need some honorable men on the side of peace. Men like Comdr. Rainwater whose patriotism cannot be impugned, whose motives cannot be misconstrued.

Our nation's life-and-death problems right now are on the home fronts. If we don't meet the domestic challenges of eroding dollars and eroding environment and increasing crime and rioting in our own streets then the Communists can have what's soon to be left of this country; it won't be any place Americans would want to live.

It took a lot of courage for a national commander of one of our nation's proudest war veterans' organizations to denounce dead-end wars. That's not the kind of pronouncement that brings old soldiers to their feet cheering.

For most of them are from an era which will not be again; when war was fought "for" something, when warriors marched toward an objective.

Tomorrow's internal decisions will be negotiated by politicians with their trigger fingers on red buttons.

It's in this transition while, when traditional war is almost but not quite out of style, that old veterans feel so lost and so many young ones are.

CHINA AND THE U.N.

Voting on Admitting Peking

The vote on membership for Communist China, a perennial question before the United Nations General Assembly, is of particular interest at this year's session. Diplomatic relations with Canada, with possibly other Western nations to follow, could bring a shift in Peking's favor. The vote during the past decade consistently has fallen short of the two-thirds necessary for approval of an "important question" under the U.N. charter.

Royal Garbage Is Gathering Fast

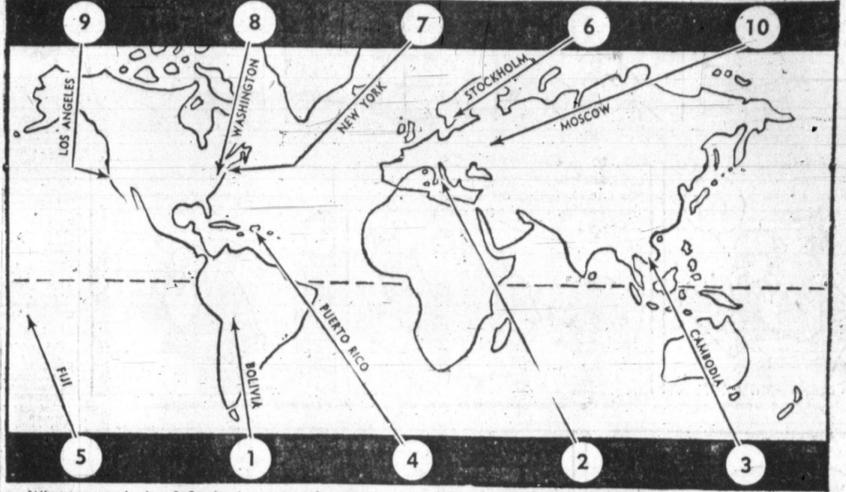

LONDON (UPI) — Garbage piled up today outside Buckingham Palace, 10 Downing Street and the houses of Parliament for the first time since a 23-day-old strike by the nation's local government workers began.

The official homes of the Queen, Prime Minister Edward Heath and Parliament are located in the city of Westminster, one of London's 32 boroughs, where garbage men Wednesday joined 65,000 other local workers in a strike for higher pay.

Also hit for the first time since the walkout started were West End hotels, restaurants and stores.

No progress was reported in the talks Wednesday between union representatives and employers although the unions did agree to consider an independent inquiry into their demand for a $6.60 weekly pay increase.

Washington Window

By JOHN HALL
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nov. 3 election, more than just a contest between political parties, will be a classic struggle for power between the executive branch and the Senate.

The Senate had made it so by a yearlong series of roll call votes in which it rejected two Supreme Court nominations and tried to exert its constitutional power over foreign affairs and defense spending.

President Nixon has made it by going personally to the voters and asking them to turn out the Senators who have opposed him on these questions and replace them with men who can reasonably be expected to back him.

In effect, Nixon has decided to take on the Senate—or at least what it has become—in an election freely and openly decided by the American voters.

Here is what he said Tuesday night in a political speech at a Republican rally in Ft. Wayne, Ind.:

"Do you realize that the present Senate is divided on the major issues. . . in instance after instance by one vote or two votes? Usually a shift of two senators could have made the difference. . . in the field of foreign policy, in the field of the approval of judges.

"And that is why it is so critically important to have from this state a man who might make the majority of one that would determine whether or not the President, not as an individual, because that isn't what matters, but the President who did receive a vote from the people of Indiana (Nixon carried Indiana in 1968) gets the power to do what he promised to do. That is all I ask, nothing more.

"It has nothing to do with personalities. It goes far beyond party lines. One man honestly believes that the best interests of the country will be served by opposing the President on all of the major issues that I have mentioned tonight. The other man believes the best interests of the country will be served by supporting the President."

(In this case, he was campaigning for Rep. Richard L. Roubush, who is trying to take away Democrat Vance Hartke's Senate seat.)

Calvary Baptist WMU Unit Visits Member In Worley

After the reading of the Prayer Calendar Wednesday by Mrs. Irvin Baker, and a prayer led by Mrs. Ed Boyte, Calvary Baptist Church Women's Missionary Union visited Mrs. Clyde Prince who is hospitalized in Worley Hospital.

Mrs. Prince is a member of Calvary Baptist Church and is one of several church members the WMU plans to visit for its Missions in Action program. Part of the unit's Mission in Action program this year will be to frequently visit church members who are ill and unable to attend services or church activities.

After Mrs. Grace Randolph gave the group's benediction, the members returned to the church for the weekly family supper, Bible study, prayer meeting and church visitation programs.

Those attending were Mmes. A. G. Randolph, L. A. Laverty, Myrel Looper, Jack Robertson, Bert Mitchell, Irvin Baker, Ed Boyte, Don Cole and Henry Frith.

Lutheran Candidates Campaign For Votes

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Two of the 10 candidates for president of the American Lutheran Church have been openly campaigning for votes on such issues as ordination of women and broader interdenominational ties.

The Rev. Dr. Fredrik A. Scholz of Minneapolis, president of the ALC since it was established 10 years ago, must retire Dec. 31 because he has reached the constitutional retirement age.

Dr. Schlotz said Wednesday uncertainties in the voting procedure have caused frustration among the candidates. The Rev. Dr. Gerhard Belgum, 54, of Lakewood, Calif., and the Rev. Dr. Keith Bridston, 46, of Berkeley, Calif., have campaigned openly.

JEANE DIXON Your Horoscope

SATURDAY, OCT. 24, 1970
Your birthday Saturday: This is the year of your inner development. By the end of the year your wisdom should be greater and deeper than now. Outer conditions change in normal patterns: yet somehow you learn more and make more effective use of experience than ever before. Stronger emotional experiences are to be expected with fewer chances. Saturday's natives are strong-willed, good-humored, always ready for the unexpected.
ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take up these serious concerns you had not gotten to during the working week. Settle scores, press for improvements, organize your work and applications for the future.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Early hours require your fact and consideration, later hours turn mellow and much easier. The evening promises many choices of enjoyable activities.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Nobody will pursue your interests for you. You do more than your share of family efforts. Put in a bid for something better, mood is the evening.
CANCER (June 21-July 21): The most Let bygones pass with the change of plausible-sounding story may be the least valid. Check your facts, stay with what has proved workable. Tall stories are an art.
LEO (July 22-Aug. 22): Saturday is one of those times for family affairs to get serious. Use good sense, listen for clues and possible solutions. Avoid recriminations, make it clear you really mean it.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It's your turn to be in the minority, in holding a particular viewpoint. Insist on verifying anything you must take seriously. Business dealings are profitable.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your decisions now have to be based on estimates, not make allowances for later adjustments. Formally organized help is at hand if you really need it.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It is too much to expect continued enthusiasm for your work. Get as far away as conditions permit for a completely different scene and a fresh perspective.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Act Saturday toward practical, immediate goals. Somebody near you is unaccepting, protesting, confounding. Get serious advice to go along with your own common sense.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Most of your associates are victims of wishful thinking. Avoid unrealistic schemes. Follow your own insight as to what will work out; begin negotiations.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your contacts still remain cool. Go slowly, there is more at stake than is obvious. Find some symbolic expression of your deeper feelings in the evenings.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Gather your resources, decide what you can do with the present circumstances, make a definite start. Explain later. The evening brings pleasant surprises, good news.

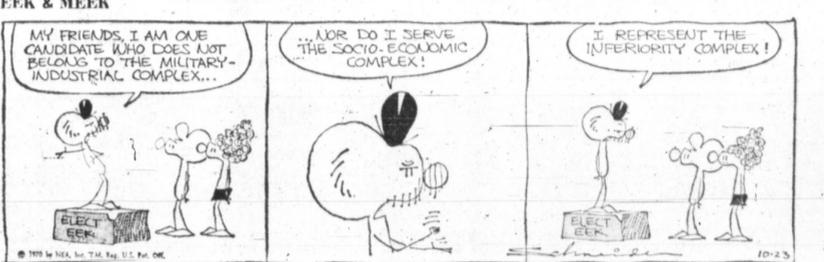

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The market's current drifting action reflects a lack of participation rather than any extensive distribution, E. F. Hutton & Co. says. A noticeable increase in volume accompanying the market's next move would be a strong clue to the overall market's direction over the near term, it adds.
The market should continue its consolidation phase over the near term, according to Spec & Staff. The firm notes that while not enough corporate earnings reports are yet in to permit the drawing of definite conclusions, results from 93 corporations for the quarter average off about 11 per cent, compared to 13 per cent for the June quarter. Only half of the Dow stocks which have so far reported showed a performance better than 1969's, the firm adds. On an average Dow stocks showed a drop of 12 per cent during the quarter.

Argus Research Corp. sees "no substance to the widespread belief that the Fed will tighten up on monetary policy after the congressional elections." Bond yields should dip after the calendar lightens, and the stock market concurrently may show occasional spells of hesitancy, the firm says, but fundamental factors underlying the business outlook are still improving.

Low-priced stocks and stocks that were favored by professional traders failed to provide reliable leadership during the decline and recovery of the stock market this past year, Wright, Investors' Service says. On the whole another category of stocks, those preferred by the most substantial institutions (not necessarily mutual funds), were slowest to decline and quickest to recover, it notes.

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union's unmanned Zond 8 moonship hurtled through space today toward lunar orbit and eventual return to earth in a new Soviet step in continued exploration of the moon. Harvesters Face Tascosa In SeeSaw Gridiron Battle

The Pampa Harvesters travel to Amarillo tonight to take on the Tascosa Rebels at 7:30 in Dick Bivins Stadium.

Pampa is 5-1 for the season and Tascosa is 4-2. Both teams are 1-0 in district competition.

The Pampa defense must hold Tascosa tailback Bucky Sams if the Harvesters are to emerge victorious. Sams is currently second in district statistics in rushing. He compiled 110 yards in 25 spurts for a 4.4 average and two touchdowns.

The Green and Gold defense however, is used to keying on one individual.

Caprock's talented fullback Bruce Brake turned in over 150 yards of individual rushing against Lubbock High two weeks ago in the Longhorns' 25-21 victory over the Westeners. Brake was held to 335 yards in the Harvesters' 25-15 victory last week. Anyway one wants to look at it, though, the Pampa defense will have its hands full.

Coach "Swede" Lee's team has developed tremendously during the past few games, especially in the offense department. Junior quarterback Dale Ammons is leading the district in total offense with 195 yards — all obtained in the game against Caprock. Ammons also leads in the passing department and is fourth in district in individual rushing. Ammons' passes are caught by Tom Watson, Mike Reddell, and Ricky Harris. Reddell and Watson are third and fifth, respectively, in the district in pass receiving. Billy Watkins added the role of fullback to his list of football credits and scored two touchdowns against Caprock, giving him a share of the district lead in scoring. Watkins was substituting for Johnny Clark, who was injured in the Pampa-Lawton game. Clark at fullback with be starting berth tonight and Watkins will return to his job as linebacker. Ammons' is also third in district in punting with a 33.0 average.

One of the big pluses on the Pampa offensive ledger is the running game. Along with Ammons at quarterback and Clark at fullback with be halfbacks Johnny Roth and Monroe Woods. All of these four are capable of exploding for the long run. Close behind them come Watkins, John McCarroll, Greg Wilson, Mike Brister, and Garvin McCarroll. Pampa definitely has backfield talent.

There is no other way to describe this game except as being extremely close, extremely exciting, and extremely important to both teams. Game time is 7:30 at Dick Bivins Stadium.

Sooners Seek Revenge

This Saturday is one that its fans have been waiting for for a whole year.

The Sooners play Kansas State. The Wildcats slaughtered OU 59-21 last year at Manhattan. It was the worst defeat ever suffered by an Oklahoma squad and their first loss to K-State in 35 years.

It was like a nightmare then. And it still seems like a gosh-awful bad dream. That's how Monty Johnson, Oklahoma's senior safety and co-captain, describes the Sooners' humiliating loss.

Texas-Rice, Tennessee-Florida Top In Eyes Of Football Fans

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE

Pisgah Genus
 Egad, friends, your erudite prognosticator warned you last week that there were many disquieting portents lurking in the football firmament which—kaff-kaff—indicated an upheaval of monumental proportions.

True to our prediction, the favored teams were tossed about by the underdogs with all the abandon of leaves spinning before the force of an October nuclear blast—um-kumph!

This week, your faithful correspondent sees a return to normalcy on the nation's gridirons with the chalk horses—er—favored clubs—winning most contests. Most, that is, but not all!

With all of the top-rated teams except Notre Dame slated to see action, the eyes of the football world will be focused on two major meetings, the first at Cliff Hare Stadium, where host Auburn will put its undefeated (5-0) record on the block against the stubborn LSU Tigers (4-1). In a bruising battle, the Hoople System sees the Tigers taking a three-point, 24-21 decision.

The second contest, equal in popular interest with the football filiberts, is the Texas-Rice meeting in Houston. True to tradition, the Rice Owls will frolic in this after-dark affair by stunning the unbeaten Longhorns (5-0) by a 24-23 count. The margin will be as thin as the sliced beef at Chili Joe's. Would you believe dear readers, that last week Joe's beef was so thin I could read the newspaper through it—huh-heh!

A matchmaker's dream is the Tennessee-Florida game on the Vols' home field in Knoxville. For young Bill Battle, serving his first year as head coach of the Volunteers, it will be a big day as his stalwarts polish off the well-regarded Gators, 17-14.

The undefeated powerhouses representing Ohio State, the Air Force, Toledo, Michigan and Yale will continue in high gear as they whip Illinois, Boston College, Kent State, Minnesota and Cornell respectively!

Now go on with the forecast. Air Force 29, Boston Col. 10. Dayton 16, Akron 7 (N). Arkansas 3', Wichita St. 6 (N).

Shockers Punch Palo Duro

After watching the Pampa Shockers play three quarters of touch-football and trailing by 12-points, fans in Harvesters Stadium saw a rare occurrence in High School action. A punt blocked by Kim Lindsey with 6:10 left in the game and recovered in the Palo Duro endzone giving the Shockers their first score and the motivation needed to defeat Palo Duro 20-12.

Alan Keeton bounced the pigskin down the field after an unsuccessful drive by the PD team and pushed the Shockers ahead 13-12. Keeton ran 22 yards for the Shockers second TD and Musgrave kicked the extra point, with 3:32 to play.

The Shockers kicked off to the Palo Duro team and came up with a touchback giving the Palo Duro team the ball on their 20. Three pass attempts later and a blocked running effort the Shockers regained possession of the football.

The Palo Duro team toughened up and held the Shockers to a third and ten when Lindsey took a hand-off and gained six. On a fourth and four situation the Shockers elected to try for the TD. A desperation try made it to the one yard line, but no cigars. The alert Shocker offense had, however, picked up the first down making it first and goal to go.

Rick Scrimshire on a handoff from Rick Musgrave dove up the middle giving the Shockers the clinching score.

Number '9' Meets Number Nine In Little Rock, Arkansas

By United Press International

Seldom does someone appoint a time and a place and say at this particular moment, for those who want to pay their money and sit outside on a chilly evening to see it, there will be a display of unusual courage and determination.

Such qualities are not ordinarily confined to a schedule. They appear spontaneously, when the sudden press of circumstances demand.

But they will appear Saturday, beginning promptly at 7:30 p.m. CDT in Little Rock, Ark., in what realistically must be considered an unfortunate mismatch of two college football teams.

Wichita State's Wheatshockers will play their first game since 13 of their best players, their head coach and their athletic director were killed in a plane crash Oct. 2. They will meet the Arkansas Razorbacks, considered by football coaches around the country this week as the ninth best team in the nation.

None of the nine players who survived the crash, including the team's starting quarterback and the top rusher, will play due to injuries they received in the tragedy.

An extreme example of what Wichita has to handle comes at cornerback, where freshman Marvin Kellum will be the backup man on both sides.

This time last year Kellum was playing eight-man high school football in the tiny town of LeCompton, Kan. The Wichita freshmen did not play a game this year before the tragedy, so Kellum has never played an organized game of football in which 11 players lined up against each other.

Now, with this background, he could be called upon Saturday to cover Chuck Dicus, perhaps the finest receiver in America.

Bob Seaman, the assistant coach who took over the top job when Coach Ben Wilson died in the crash of one of the school's chartered planes, is perfectly willing to discuss the obvious.

"It's really something when you consider the last game Kellum played as an eight-man football game," Seaman said. "It's a long way from high school eight-man to Arkansas, baby."

Wichita State's return to football overshadows three Southwest Conference contests, all of which bear significance.

Texas (1-0 in conference action) enters the post-Cotton Speyer era Saturday night when it takes on the Rice Owls (0-1) in Houston. Danny Lester is expected to start at the split end spot where Speyer performed heroic fetes until breaking his arm against Oklahoma.

SMU (1-0) will be going after its fourth straight victory when it meets Texas Tech (1-1) in Lubbock in an afternoon contest. SMU has won four straight only twice in the past 20 years.

Baylor (0-1) entertains Texas A&M (0-2) in what appears to be the Bears' best chance to win its second game in its last 16 starts.

The real human drama, however, comes in Little Rock. The NCAA gave Wichita State permission to place 45 freshmen players on the school's varsity, but they have had less than a week of contact work to learn the ways of big-time college football.

Wichita State could not conduct full workouts until last Saturday because of a lack of equipment. New helmets and pads, replacing those destroyed in the plane crash, did not arrive until Oct. 16.

"...We were able to get a lot of talking and blackboard teaching done before the equipment got here," Seaman said. "But, being unable to hit took some of the effectiveness out of our early workouts."

"I'm pretty well pleased, though, because these kids have a fantastic attitude. They are young, inexperienced kids and need to mature, but they are giving it everything they've got."

T. Jeremiah Beam.
 Part of the Beam family art for 175 years.

Son of the famous Col. Jim Beam, T. Jeremiah is the fifth generation of the only Kentucky family that's made the same Bourbon since 1795. As a matter of fact, 1970 marks the 175th anniversary of the year that Jacob Beam, founder of the Beam clan, sold his first barrel of Kentucky Straight Bourbon Whiskey.

That's a mighty long time for one family to make one product, according to one formula.

So the next time you sip Jim Beam, savor its quality and its light taste. That's what we mean when we say it's a 175-year-old family art.

Chamber Has Some Good For Boss And Sales People

(Editor's Note—The Evanston (Illinois) Chamber of Commerce compiled this list of suggestions to assist salespeople and merchants in the treatment of their customers.)

1. Present yourself to your customer with a pleasant "ready to serve you" expression. A warm greeting such as hello, good morning, or good afternoon, will start you on the way toward a successful sale.
2. Learn all you can about merchandise.
3. If you cannot provide exactly what the customer wants, always offer alternatives.
4. Embarrassment can be avoided in determining the price the customer is willing to pay by first showing medium priced merchandise. Never hesitate, however, to show your top quality lines.
5. Know your store's policies on such matters as: exchanges, refunds, discounts, delivery, customer complaints, charges and authorized credit cards.
6. Familiarize yourself with other departments and merchandise carried by your store.
7. Wear some item of merchandise currently being shown in your department, if appropriate.
8. Know locations of parking areas.
9. Immediately correct any mistake or misstatements you may have made. Never exaggerate the virtues of your merchandise or make false claims.
10. If a customer cannot make a decision, offer to excuse yourself in order to give the customer time to think.
11. Do not carry on personal conversations with customers or other sales people.
12. A telephone is an important sales tool. However, if a call interrupts a sale, ask the caller for a number and return the call immediately after you have completed your sale.
13. Avoid showing your irritability toward a customer who may be:
 - taking too much of your time,
 - encroaching upon your coffee break, or,
 - detaining you near the closing hour.
14. If a customer leaves without buying, show no resentment. She may return half an hour later — or a day later — or a month later — and buy the very thing that was shopped for previously.
15. If you will treat your customers as you would like to be treated when you are a customer, your selling career will bring personal satisfaction along with financial rewards.

Here's An Idea For Youthful Demonstrators

Students at Westaco High demonstrated with the blessing and assistance of school authorities. No pot-smoking, LSD-tasting, long-haired flower children these, but 85 high school students in the Rio Grande Valley who are proud of their country, their heritage and their fighting men. It all started when they enrolled in a non-credit, after-hours class in America's heritage and developed into a full scale "demonstration for America." First they staged a colorful "Sing-Out" at their school which attracted so much attention that it was seen by thousands of Valley residents both live and on television. The show was taped and shown in Westaco. And the "demonstrators" sponsored an "I Am Proud to be an American" week in Westaco. The Westaco students hope "I Am Proud to be an American Week" will become a Texas-wide event.

LONDON (UPI)—Arthur Boniface put his mother-in-law on a train at Newport Thursday — but it started up before he could get off. The next stop was London, 300 miles away. He did not have to pay for the ride.

Television In Review
By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A number of readers have written in lately to complain about off-color material on television. It would be easy to brand these particular readers as little old ladies in tennis shoes. But they are not. A thread of taste and intelligence runs through their letters. For not a single one of them complained of frankness, even sexual frankness, in legitimate theatrical circumstances. What they were upset about was outright crudeness. I think they have a point. And nowhere is the crudeness more offending than in some of the talk shows. The juvenile innuendo, the leering double entendre on these programs are often nauseating because they are accompanied not by relieving or justifying wit, but rather, by sales pitches and trivial talk of the most asinine kind. Most talk shows are outright setbacks for the human race. In the area of more obvious permissiveness, off-color television material is a matter of opinion. For example, even at its vulgar worst, video is a virtual Disneyland when compared to the stage and movies. Yet there is no doubt television is more frank than before. Do you remember, for instance, when Elvis Presley's gyrations on CBS-TV's Ed Sullivan show caused a national uproar? Now the event seems ludicrously innocent in retrospect, and particularly in comparison with the gyrations seen almost nightly on video. And what about that gorgeous Scandinavian blonde who, in pushing Noxema shaving cream, urged men (while referring to their beards, of course) to "take it off—take it all off"? Since then, commercials have sometimes been so suggestive that they descended into tackiness. Maybe an enlightened despotism is the best government after all. There are, of course, more opportunities nowadays to see frank foreign movies such as "La Dolce Vita", on television. But there are those of us who would argue that art is its own justification for being; whereas television quiz shows are unadorned vulgarity with no socially redeeming qualities. As I say, it's all relative. Unmotivated violence on television is, to this viewer, pure pornography. And the only thing on video that is unquestionably more vulgar and degrading to the human spirit is the unending string of political commercials by election figures offering themselves to the populace like so many pain and headache relievers.

Student Speaks Out On Hair In Article

AUSTIN (UPI) — "When a student athlete speaks out against the athletic department, the result is likely to be his suspension from the team," Frank J. Salzhandler wrote in the University of Texas student newspaper. Twelve hours after his words appeared in print he was suspended from the swimming team. But swimming coach Bill Patterson said Wednesday the "Daily Texan" article had nothing to do with the suspension. "Frank Salzhandler was dismissed from the team because of an attitude not conducive to a winning team," Patterson said. The outspoken sophomore had been suspended once before, for refusing to cut his shoulder-length hair. He was reinstated a week later after he trimmed an inch off his hair. Salzhandler's article referred to the hair incident, calling it "intolerable." "All around the country," the athlete wrote, "athletes are beginning to seek meaning and relevance behind the work and dedication they put into athletics. When these ideas are stunted by a coach who only wants a group of bodies to lead letes are left with no alternative other than speaking out against the system."
