500,000 British Workers Walkout

Britain Plagued By Widespread Strikes

LONDON (UPI)—Strikes and simmering industrial unrest blacked out wide areas of Britain today, left most Britons without newspapers, closed two of London's central food markets and hit docks and some automotive plants.

Although the trouble did not approach proportions of a general strike like the one that nearly brought Britain's economy to its knees in 1926, strike leaders claimed about 500,000 workers stayed off the job.

The government had no immediate estimates.

Prime Minister Edward Heath met with his cabinet to study the burgeoning labor unrest.

The strike was opposed by the top leadership of the Trades Union Congress (TUC), Britain's equivalent of the AFL-CIO.

Newspapers Hit Hardest

The one-day protest strikes zeroed in hardest on Britain's nationally circulated morning newspapers, none of which appeared because electrical workers and many printers stayed off the job.

London's Smithfield Meat Market and Covent Garden Fruit and Vegetable Market were closed by walkouts of market porters.

Many docks in the ports of London, Glasgow, Bristol and other cities were brought to a standstill.

In the automotive industry the British Leyland Tractor plant at Birmingham and the

Vice President Worried About 'Anti' Culture

NEW YORK (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said Monday night he was worried about an "anti" culture because its youthful advocates might unleash a backlash that "could snuff out the freedom that makes their life style possible."

Addressing the board of directors of the Boys' Clubs of America, Agnew said "the competitive, ambitious, aggressive side of our outlook is under attack."

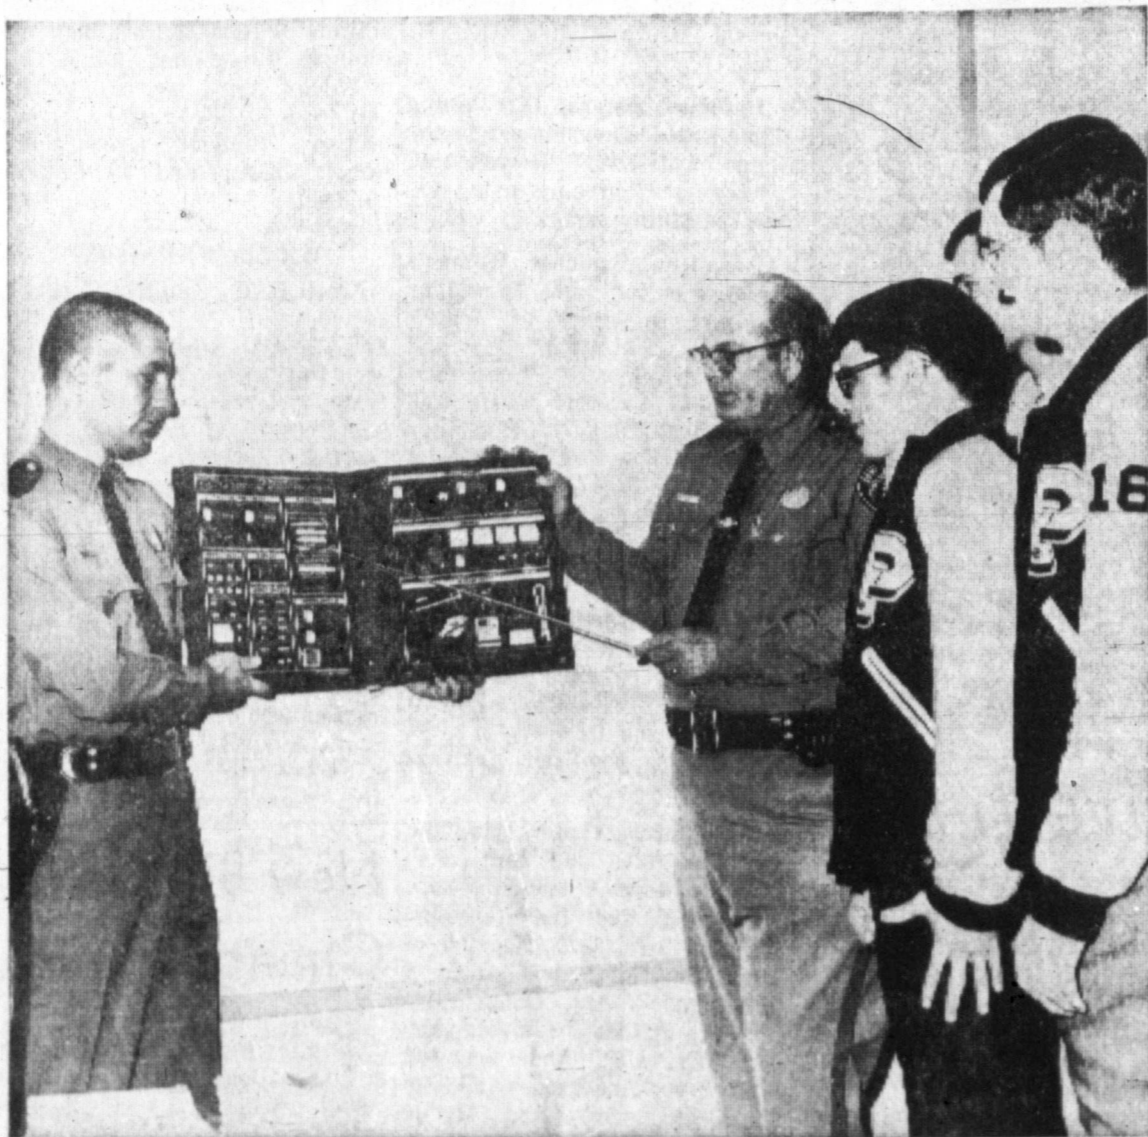

"The businessman's drive for profit is labeled money grubbing. The politician's joust with his opponent is branded as vicious and divisive, the military commander's desire for victory is mocked as jingoistic heroics ...," the vice president said.

Agnew said he feared the failure to halt the spread of the "anti" culture which scorns ambition and responsibility could lead to America's loss of its basic freedoms.

"It is because freedom requires vigilance and effort to survive that I am worried about the 'anti' culture of today. I fear that those who espouse this way of life do not realize how quickly a massive individual rejection of responsibility and power could snuff out the freedom that makes their style of life possible," Agnew said.

He said the "anti" culture has three major precepts:

First, the avoidance of ambition and the retreat from power, struggle and greatness. Second, the emphasis on the abandonment of discipline, on hedonism and doing your own thing. Third, a gradual turn to solipsism, to the notion that there are no standards beyond oneself."

Pampa Also Has Drug Problem; 'Grass' Users Will Be Penalized

If Pampa is like other towns across the nation "it does have a drug problem," Chester E. Fant of the Texas Department of Public Safety told 150 persons at a meeting of the Pampa Optimist Club last night.

Fant presented a program on "Marijuana" with members of the Pampa high school football and basketball squads as special guests.

Fant said movements are underway to legalize marijuana, but expressed hope that these would fail. Even though "grass" is not a narcotic, the fine for possession or usage is incarceration for not less than two years or more than ten years, according to Fant.

Patrolman Kenneth Evans of the local unit of the Department of Public Safety showed colored slides with Fant as narrator.

The slides introduced some of the facts about marijuana.

Included in the program was a color film narrated by Sonny Bono of "Sonny and Cher" fame. The movie was an experimental film developed by the Department of Public Safety to show effects of marijuana without being antagonistic or obnoxious about it.

It presented facts and let the viewers draw their own conclusions. During the film "awareness wafers" were lit to give the program added effect. The wafers gave off the aroma of marijuana.

Fant then charged the crowd, especially the football and basketball players, to remember the influence they had on younger members of the community.

George B. Massie announced that John Douglas McCarroll, son of Mr. and Mrs. George McCarroll, 2119 Christine, was named zone and district winner in the Optimist Young Texan program for the month of October. Steve Wayne Scarbrough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Scarbrough, 1806 Fir, had been chosen as the Young Texan winner for the month of November.

Brazilian Police Starting Massive Search For Kidnaped Swiss Envoy

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI)—Police carried out a massive search today for the Swiss ambassador, kidnaped Monday by a band of terrorists as he was being driven to work. Officials also were checking ransom notes to see if they were authentic.

One of the ransom notes demanded 68 prisoners be released in exchange for the life of Giovanni Enrico Bucher, 57, a career diplomat noted for his love of adventure.

Bucher, a bachelor, was the fourth diplomat kidnaped in Brazil in the past 14 months.

About 3,000 police were mobilized in Rio in the hunt for the ambassador. The only known lead, the arrest of a man driving a car with the same license as one of those supposedly involved in the kidnaping, turned out to be false. Although the auto was the same make, it was a different color.

The precision kidnaping was carried out while Bucher was being driven to work. Two autos swerved in front of the ambassador's car, stopping it, while another pulled alongside.

Bucher's bodyguard, Helio Carvalho Araujo, 44, tried to protect him and was shot. He was hospitalized with a bullet wound in his spinal cord and may be paralyzed for life.

Witnesses said Bucher appeared unharmed when he was taken away. They also said one of the abductors was a blonde woman in a beige skirt and brown blouse.

Police threw up roadblocks and turned off traffic lights in an effort to create traffic jams and keep the kidnapers from getting away. The efforts did not succeed.

Aid To Cambodia Plans Pledged

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers pledged today that the United States would aid Cambodia without resorting to ground combat troops or giving the embattled government sophisticated military equipment that might require U.S. advisers.

Rogers told the Senate Appropriations Committee the Nixon administration was depending on "the united will and patriotic fervor" of the Cambodians to hold off Communist troops and permit the United States to make a speedy exit from Southeast Asia.

Vice President Ky Returns Home With U.S. Assurances

SAIGON (UPI)—Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky returned to South Vietnam today after an absence of nearly two months, carrying assurances by the United States it will adopt a hands-off policy in South Vietnam's 1971 presidential election.

Ky told a news conference upon his arrival, "I have a clear understanding that any political solution, including the

Tate Murder Trial Is Postponed

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Sharon Tate murder trial has been postponed until Dec. 16 to allow the "associate counsel" of missing defense lawyer Ronald Hughes to study the massive 18,000-page transcript of more than five months of court proceedings.

Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older granted the continuance Monday after Maxwell Keith told him he needs more time to bone up on the transcript. If Keith is ready by that date, closing arguments will begin.

Older denied a motion by other defense attorneys for Charles Manson and two female codefendants that he declare a mistrial in the case of Leslie

Rail Union Threatens To Go On Strike Thursday

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A railroad union president said today there will be a nationwide rail strike at 12:01 a.m. Thursday regardless of whether Congress approves the 75-day postponement asked by President Nixon.

C. L. Dennis, president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks, said his men would defy any government order to stay on the job. Only a contract settlement with railroad management would prevent a strike, he said, but added it was not possible now to reach an agreement before the deadline.

Dennis charged that Nixon, in asking for delaying legislation, had sided with "profit-taking railroad management" and had "destroyed any hope of collective bargaining in the two critical days that could have brought a settlement."

He called on Congress to "show greater wisdom and stay out of this dispute."

Dennis Sends Notices

It also was disclosed that Dennis earlier sent out a strike notice to union locals saying that if the government attempted to prevent a strike, "We will not tolerate such action," and that union members should be prepared to see their leaders go to jail and the union treasury depleted by court fines.

In answer to a question early today of what he would do if Congress ordered the postponement, Dennis said:

"My intentions, at this time, if there are no further developments, are to strike. By developments I mean agreement with the carriers. I don't believe it's ethical for anyone to change the rules of the game when one team is at the goal line."

He added: "We are not prepared to forego our basic

Hoover Attacked For Criticizing Dr. Luther King

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two Negro civil rights leaders have fired back at J. Edgar Hoover for his criticism of the late Dr. Martin Luther King, accusing the FBI director of being senile.

The Rev. Walter Fauntroy, aide to King in the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and the Rev. Douglas Moore both took issue with Hoover's assertion in a Time magazine interview that King was undeserving of the Nobel Prize.

Fauntroy said: "I am not in the habit of commenting on the babblings of senile public officials" but added that the statements of the 75-year-old Hoover concerning a personal meeting with King were "categorically untrue."

Moore, chairman of the Washington Black United Front, termed Hoover a "senile sadist" who has "no sense of honor or history."

In another development, the House Appropriations Committee made public closed-session testimony by Hoover on Nov. 19 at which he said there were extenuating circumstances that prompted Ohio National Guardsmen to open fire on the Kent State campus last spring, killing four students.

Calley Defense Attempting To Repair Damage

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI)—The defense tried today to patch up the damage done by a former member of Lt. William L. Calley's platoon who refused to talk to them before the Calley court-martial but hit them like a grenade with his prosecution testimony.

The defense interrupted the testimony of Thomas W. Turner, 24, late Monday with a motion for a mistrial on the ground that the story he told was a "flagrant" departure from what the government stated in a bill of particulars last February it would produce.

Turner, from Bellevue, Neb., and now a student at the University of Nebraska at Omaha, testified he watched Calley put several shots into the chest of a young Vietnamese woman who had her hands upraised in a sign she was trying to give herself up.

She "was coming toward us about 15 feet away," and after Calley, who was standing alone, shot her "she fell over into the rice paddy," Turner said. He also told of watching for an hour as small groups of civilians were brought to a ditch—a total of 90 to 100 being put in it—and "Calley was firing into the ditch."

Two GIs Killed, 22 Wounded As Ship Runs Over Mine

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. Command said today a U.S. Army armored personnel carrier ran over a Communist mine on South Vietnam's northern coast, killing two Americans and wounding 22 others.

The mine explosion occurred Monday afternoon west of Tam Ky, 340 miles north-northeast of Saigon.

Field reports from Phnom Penh said North Vietnamese and Viet Cong units launched simultaneous attacks Monday night against Cambodian positions in Svay Rieng Province near the South Vietnamese border.

Viet Cong and North Vietnamese artillerymen Monday night shelled a position of a unit of the Americal Division, resulting in what the U.S. Command described as light casualties. The attack was carried out against an outpost 11 miles west-southwest of Ky.

City Police Investigating Attempted Break-In Cases

County and city law officers today launched investigations into attempted break-ins and burglaries which occurred in the area last night.

Tom Rose Motor Co., 121 N. F. advised this morning that a break-in had occurred sometime last night at the shop. The burglars had gained entrance by breaking a window. A welding unit in the shop had been pushed to the safe located in the building. No attempt had been made to cut into the safe, but the cutting torch had been seen from the unit.

The White House Lumber Office, located one block from the motor company at 220 E. Foster, also reported a break-in this morning. The offices were entered by breaking a storm door and inside door. Offices had been searched, but company officials had reported nothing missing late this morning.

Two Coronado Center businesses were also targets for burglars according to police reports.

Malone Pharmacy reported a break-in this morning. Entrance to the store was made after a plate glass window was smashed. Thirty dollars in cash was missing from the locked cash register which had been opened by force.

Sav-U Grocery, also located in the Center, advised police shortly after 8 a.m. today that an attempt had been made to enter the store through a metal door in the rear of the building. Welding equipment had been left on the scene when the attempt failed.

Shortly before the call from Sav-U, county law officers had been contacted by Chase Oil Field Co., located south of Pampa.

Thieves had entered the building on the Chase property on South Barnes. A welding unit had been wheeled across the shop, removed from the two wheel cart, and taken from the scene in a vehicle which had been parked at the rear door. A representative of Chase identified the welding equipment left behind at the attempted burglary of Sav-U as equipment stolen from that firm.

County and city officials are continuing the investigation.

Pampa Officials To Attend Meet On Police Rules

Police Chief Jim Conner and George Campbell, city personnel director, will attend a meeting of the Commission on Law Enforcement Officer Standards and Education next Monday in Amarillo.

The commission is a subdivision of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission. The meeting will be held in Room C-111, Amarillo College West Campus on US 66 opposite the Veterans' Hospital.

Purpose of the session, City Manager Mack Wofford said today, will be to explain rules and regulations all law enforcement agencies will be required to operate under in meeting recruitment and education standards currently required under state law.

Monday's session, which starts at 1 p.m., will be conducted by Carl C. Williams, consultant to the commission.

Ernest R. Clark, executive director of the PRPC, has requested all Panhandle cities and towns to send representatives to the meeting.

City Council Oks Readvertising Proposals On Health Insurance

Readvertising for life and health insurance proposals to cover city employees was authorized by the Pampa City Commission today.

Several bids recently were thrown out by the commission as not meeting requirements.

A special 5-man committee of city employees was appointed, completed a study of the insurance problems and recommended that new bids be sought.

The new proposals will be received until Jan. 26 when bids will be opened, City Manager Mack Wofford said.

In other business today commissioners:

Passed two ordinances on final reading. One was to establish standards for industrial wastes discharged into the city's sanitary sewer system and the other establishing portions of Brown and Wilks streets as one-way in connection with U.S. 60 improvements inside the city.

Approved routine salary changes and okayed payment of November bills totaling $26,923.11.

Commissioners also gave second and final reading to legislation authorizing issuance of $800,000 in bonds for Pampa's municipal auditorium.

Two Break-Ins Reported

Police reports this morning included an attempted break-in at the home of a local resident.

Mrs. Emma Tinsley, 1124 N. Russell, called police at 10:05 p.m. yesterday and stated that someone had attempted to enter her home. Investigating officers noted that an object had been used to tear through the outside screen and pry marks were prominent on the window. Entry to the home failed.

Joe Walker, 925 S. Hobart, reported to police that four hubcaps, valued at $40 had been removed from his automobile, parked in the driveway of his residence. The theft occurred sometime between Saturday night and Monday morning.

Correction

The annual Ladies Night Christmas Party of the Pampa Lions Club will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 10, instead of Dec. 17, as announced in yesterday's Pampa News. The affair will be in the Starlight Room of Coronado Inn.

Kidnaped Son Of Bank Manager Found Safe; 2 Suspects Nabbed

By JAMES F. COUR LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The kidnaped son of a bank manager was found safe late Monday and two men arrested in a foiled $100,000 ransom plot which sent the victim's father to Las Vegas, Nev. to deliver the money.

Police said the two men offered no resistance when taken into custody in two separate cars in nearby Burbank. The victim, Lee Spath, 20, a student, was found safe in one of the suspect's vehicles.

Booked on suspicion of kidnap for ransom were George Forens, 35, and Thomas Lecoy Coleman, 20.

Police said the kidnap plot evolved when two men, one armed with a sawed-off shotgun, went to the home of Lee's father, William Spath, 48, in Granada Hills Sunday night.

They demanded the elder Spath give them the key to the night deposit box of the branch of the Bank of America he manages in Glendale. When Spath explained he did not have the key and could not obtain one at night, the men took an undetermined amount of money from the home and forced his son to accompany them in the youth's car.

Police said Spath was contacted by telephone the next morning and told to take the money by bus to Las Vegas, Nev. Spath left the money in a locker at the depot and returned home by plane.

Several hours later one of the men went to the South home in the son's car and demanded the locker key, which Spath handed over.

For the next two hours, more than a dozen unmarked police vehicles and a helicopter were employed to follow the suspect.

When he met with the other suspect, officers saw Lee Spath in the back seat of the second suspect's vehicle and moved in. No shots were fired.

Meanwhile, FBI agents and Las Vegas police had staked out the locker and recovered the money after the arrests. A Los Angeles police spokesman said no other arrests were anticipated.

W.L. Hill Reported In Good Condition

W.L. Hill, 926 Campbell, was listed in fair condition today in Highland General Hospital after receiving facial blisters and burns on his hands and legs in a fire which destroyed the A-I Automotive building, 1317 S. Barnes, yesterday.

Hill, an independent junk dealer, was welding on an automobile frame when there was an explosion, according to Joe Ed Mackie, owner of A-I Automotive.

Mackie estimated the replacement cost of the building and equipment would be about $10,000. There was no insurance on the building.

The four unions involved—of which the BRAC is the most militant—earlier Monday refused a personal request from Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson in a meeting at the union officials' hotel that they postpone their strike.

The BRAC is demanding a higher money settlement than the 37 per cent increase over three years recommended by a White House commission.

Work On Pampa's Water Treatment Plant Starts

Work started in earnest today on Pampa's water treatment plant with the moving in of heavy equipment at the plant site off Kentucky Ave. just west of Price Rd.

Contractor for the project is the A.E. Mitchell Construction Co. of Dallas.

The plant itself will cost $1,302,550 and the water pipe line to tie in with the city's distribution system will be laid by the Foran Construction Co. of Borger at a cost of $133,907.90.

Work on the project is expected to be completed in ten months.

He reviewed government troops while Vietnamese air force F5 "freedom fighter" jets flew overhead in salute to Ky, an air force vice marshal. He also received the cheers of more than 100 bus drivers gathered at the airport.

Ky said he was pleased that he had been able to express to the American people his nation's gratitude for U.S. help in the Indochina War. He also shrugged off questions about his own political future.

"I have no political aspirations," Ky said. "My participation in next year's election is pure speculation. To me, the most important political factor is to keep the anti-Communist people united. Divisiveness is the Communist hope. I won't let them divide us. If we can have unity, I don't see how they can win in South Vietnam."

County Unit Oks Christmas Party Plans For Students

Plans for the annual Christmas party honoring special education students in the area were completed during a meeting of the Gray County Association Monday night.

Arrangements include small gifts, treats and a visit from Santa for the 52 children and young people enrolled in training and education programs in the county.

The festivities will be held in the First United Methodist Church, Dec. 17 at 7:30 p.m.

Gray County Association members voted to send Christmas contribution checks to the Abilene and Lubbock State Schools.

Early Christmas Mailing Is Urged

William L. Crawford, director of the Dallas Postal Region, today urged immediate mailing of all Christmas cards, parcels and other holiday mail as a safeguard in the event of a national railroad strike.

Crawford, who directs the management operations of 2,133 post offices in Texas and Louisiana, said he had been advised by Postmaster General Winton M. Blount to step up Christmas mailing.

"Early mailing of Christmas cards, letters and parcels," Crawford said, "will give customers added assurance of delivery in time for the holidays."

The nationwide announcement to accelerate Christmas mailing came from the Postmaster General in view of a pending nationwide rail strike tentatively scheduled to begin shortly after midnight, Wednesday, Dec. 10.

New Bill Calls For Major Changes In Nation's Trade

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A bill calling for fundamental changes in the nation's trade, welfare, Social Security and health insurance laws is about to win approval from a Senate committee. It then goes to a Senate with no stomach for the bitter fights it could touch off.

Before wrapping up weeks of work on the catch-all measure, however, the Senate Finance Committee must decide how to raise Social Security taxes to pay for $9 billion worth of additional benefits the bill provides.

Included in these benefits is a new $9.2 billion plan to pay some of the doctor and hospital bills for Americans faced with a major medical expense. The plan would cover 80 per cent of hospital costs after the first 60 days of hospitalization and 80 per cent of doctor bills beyond the first $2,000. About 95 per cent of all Americans under age 65 would be covered automatically by this new type of government insurance, approved Monday by a 13 to 2 vote of the committee.

The insurance would be paid for out of the increase in Social Security taxes. The committee could increase the taxes in one or both of two ways — by raising the tax rate or by increasing the wage base on which the rate is applied.

The tax rate already is scheduled to rise next year to 10.4 per cent — half paid by employers and half by workers. The tax rate now is applied to the first $7,809 of a worker's annual earnings.

The bill probably will reach the Senate for debate Monday. With Congress eager to quit for the year only five days later, the outlook was that all but the Social Security benefit increases might be junked on the Senate floor.

Government Is Believed To Play Large Part In Future Of Oil And Gas Industry

By GUY A. GOODINE
TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—A meeting of minds—government and industry—has given the American oil industry something to look forward to in the '70s.

Despite some recent tax allowance setbacks, the industry feels government is finally listening to its plight and becoming a little more receptive to doing something about it.

Nevertheless government will play a large part in the future of the oil and gas industry and mere awareness isn't going to get the job done, oil men feel.

"One of the greatest sources of encouragement for the nation's oil and gas producers has been a new and more positive approach by the administration to problems confronting domestic producers," Robert E. Mead of Dallas, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America (IPAA) said.

Discovery of oil and gas will be of prime concern to the industry, and the nation, in the next 10 years. Supplies are dwindling.

"As the fuel season began this fall," Mead said, "the federal government refused to panic when a fuel shortage threatened cities in the North and East. White House officials stood firm against demands that there be fuel rationing, federal price control on residual fuel oil, and abandonment of all restrictions on imports of foreign crude oil and petroleum products."

The industry got one major roadblock out of the way in 1970. It was a threatened scheme to cut costs of domestic crude oil and allow more foreign imports.

"A major breakthrough came in industry-government relations when the administration rejected a punitive, price-cutting scheme aimed at rolling back the price of domestic crude and permitting ever-increasing quantities of foreign crude to enter the U.S.," Mead said.

Price controls, the government holds over the natural gas industry are another concern in the coming years but to a lesser degree than in the past.

Rate Overhaul Noted

"There was awareness in 1970 with the Federal Power Commission itself, that the entire area-rate procedure of clamping a price-fixing strait-jacket on producers must be overhauled," reserves, now desperately needed in major consumer areas. A bill has been submitted to congress to free natural gas producers from a large measure of federal price controls.

The environmental problem looms big on the 1971 horizon.

"Americans are not pleased by what they see," Randall Meyer of Houston, vice president of Humble Oil & Refining Co., said. "They are demanding action."

"The responsibility this places on our industry is inescapable. We deal in a commodity that can pollute at any time if it is accidentally spilled by us, by a shipper, or by one of our customers."

Public Approval Needed

"Our interest in this problem is based on more than just pure altruism. For we recognize, or should recognize, that in America every business begins with public consent and it can continue to exist only with public approval."

Meyer called "involvement" the key to the decade ahead.

"It is only through involvement—the part of dedicated people, on the part of every echelon of management—that our industry will be able to cope with change and with the problems growing out of change."

The oil industry has said 1969 was one of its worst years in history. A congressional cut in the oil depletion allowance and brainwashing, murder, and medical neglect.

"These stories, born of personal pain and suffering, make me so outraged that I cannot find words to express the full extent of my anger," he said.

Price termed the purpose of the mission a noble one. He said its planning and execution was a monument to the successes of the military is capable of achieving when soldiers are freed to fight.

"The efforts of the gallant men who volunteered for this dangerous mission deserve Congressional recognition. It is their right; it is their due. Their efforts were truly made in behalf of all freedom loving Americans," Price added.

The Panhandle Congressman said that escaped and released POWs have, in bits and pieces, recounted tales of grisly and widespread practices of torture.

Rep. Price Urges House To Expedite Resolution On Commendation To GIs

Congressman Bob Price of Pampa urged the House Armed Services Committee to expedite his resolution providing official Congressional commendation to the American servicemen who participated in the raid on the Soutay prison camp in North Vietnam.

The Texas lawmaker said that the fact that no American prisoners were freed by the raid is regrettable, but it by no means negates the courageous effort or the benefits obtained.

"The rescue attempt," Price stated, "shows the American people and our soldiers in the field that this nation does indeed care for its own. The raid also helps restore the faith of American POWs; it is dramatic evidence that they are not forgotten casualties of the war."

The Panhandle Congressman said that escaped and released POWs have, in bits and pieces, recounted tales of grisly and widespread practices of torture.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Although 29 years have passed since the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, most members of the World War II generation can still remember exactly where they were and what they were doing when they first heard the news.

And 29 years from now, many of us probably will have equally vivid memories with respect to last week's "inflation alert" issued by President Nixon's Council-of-Economic Advisers. At my house, the scene was one of domestic tranquility. I was in the counting house counting up the bunnies. The kids were in the parlor eating Sunday's fannies. And ma was in the garden hanging out the rose.

When the sirens began their ominous wail, ma rushed inside and said, "What's that about?" "It sounds like an inflation alert," I said, trying to keep the panic I felt out of my voice. Although the manuals warn against it, I ran over to the window.

Just Falling Rates

"Do you see anything?" ma asked.

"I don't see anything except a few falling interest rates," I said. "That couldn't hurt anything."

Ma came over and peered up at the sky. "Look at that!" she cried. "See those streaks across the horizon? Those are auto industry wages soaring out of sight."

I gasped and turned pale. For now in the twilight's last gleaming we could see the red glare of skyrocketing auto prices. Meanwhile, gasoline, oil, coal and electric power prices were zooming directly overhead.

By this time, the kids had joined us and for a few moments we all huddled together, cringing. Then I said, "I think we had better go down to the inflation shelter."

By RICK DUBROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Some marvelous engaging show business oldtimers brought a lively and nostalgic hour to NBC-TV Monday-night in a musical-comedy special entitled "Johnny Carson Presents Su City Scandals."

The show's gimmick was that all the entertainers on the hour, aside from host Carson, were 65 and over. And you didn't have to be an oldtimer yourself to appreciate the talent, the zest and the eager amiability of these stylish and knowledgeable veterans.

Louis Armstrong was there, singing "Sunny Side of the Street" and "Hello, Dolly." And Gloria Swanson, still looking incredibly glamorous, pulled off a charming surprise with a tongue-in-cheek singing rendition of "Those Were the Days" and "I'm Glad I'm Not Young Anymore." She also did her well-known impersonation of Charlie Chaplin.

Also on hand was Edward Everett Horton, who has since died. At 84, he did a number of skits for this hour; demonstrated the "triple take," of which he was a master; and even engaged in some singing tomfoolery in his imitatively droll manner. What a dignified stylist he was.

And then there was Billy Gilbert—a sublime addition to the Monday special. At frequent intervals, in the quick-shot "Laugh-In" manner, he revived his famous comic sneezes. Will any movie fan ever forget his exuberatingly funny facial battles to hold off oncoming sneezes?

If there was a singularly touching showstopper Monday, it was a graceful and energetic solo dance by 84-year-old Julia Rooney to "The Daughter of Rosie O'Grady," in the manner of her brother, Pat Rooney.

And then there was the added graceful hoofing of "The Four Smoothies" and the sit-down dance of Benny Rubin, who also did some lively steps while standing up.

If d'Orsy, the "French Bombshell" of the twenties and thirties, delivered a good-natured song in a good-natured way, showing plenty of the old pizzazz.

And if you really love show business, with all its odd and occult acts, there were some especially fascinating bits Monday night that were nostalgic throwbacks to the days of vaudeville, among them:

Whitey Roberts, skipping rope and tap dancing just fine while telling an occasional awful joke (an old-fashioned audience winner); Will and Gladys Ahern dancing to "Ramona" as he twirled a lariat around them; and Wilbur Hall indulging in flashy violin trickery as he played "Pop Goes the Weasel."

There also was, by the way, an attractive chorus line of former Ziegfeld, Earl Carroll and Floradora girls. And Carson played the drums as part of a combo that included the late, great Eddie Peabody on banjo; Buddy Rogers on trombone; Manny Klein on trumpet; Frankie Carl on piano and Freddie Martin on saxophone. It won't make anybody forget the King Oliver Band, but it was fun, and when you have Louis Armstrong up front as your boy singer, nothing else matters much anyway.

Witness Says L. Calley Shot Priest While Pleading For Life

By H. D. QUIGG
 FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI)—A former radio operator for Lt. William L. Calley Jr. testified today he watched Calley shoot a priest in the face while he pleaded for his life and then slung a baby into a ditch and shot it.

The two incidents occurred after Calley and a sergeant in his command pumped automatic weapon fire into 20 to 30 civilians they had shoved into the ditch with their rifles, according to Charles Sledge, 23, of Sardis, Miss.

Sledge was the 33rd prosecution witness in the eleventh day of testimony in the government's attempt to convict the 27-year-old Calley of premeditated murder of 102 civilians in the sweep of his platoon through the Vietnamese village of My Lai in March, 1968.

Sledge testified he stayed with Calley that day operating his radio-telephone. He said he watched Calley and Sgt. David Mitchell shove 20 to 30 women, children and a few old men into the ditch and then spray automatic rifle fire into them "in a sweeping motion with the rifle butts in an underarm position."

"The people started falling and screaming," he said.

"How far were they from the muzzles?" asked Capt. Aubrey M. Daniel III, the prosecutor.

"About four or five feet," Sledge said.

After about four or five minutes of this, he and Calley left and "we ran into a priest in a white robe" who was "just standing there."

He said Calley asked the priest several times whether he was a Viet Cong and the priest "would say no and would put his hands in this shape in front of his face."

The witness put his palms together in front of his nose in a praying gesture.

"Lt. Calley hit him with the rifle butt," Sledge continued. "Where?" Daniel asked. "In the mouth."

"And what did the priest do?" Daniel asked.

"He sort of fell back, and started doing his hands again in front of his face—sort of like pleading."

Sledge said he judged the man was about 40 or 50 years old.

"Lt. Calley took the rifle point-blank and pulled the trigger in the priest's face, blew off half his face," Sledge said.

"Shot him in the head?" Daniel asked.

"Half of it was blown away," Sledge said.

"After the monk was shot was there a child?" Daniel asked.

"Some one hollered 'There's a child running back toward the village,'" Sledge said. "Lt. Calley ran back, and there was a little baby. I couldn't tell whether it was a boy or girl, was about one or two years old. Lt. Calley grabbed it by the arm and slung it into the ditch and fired into the ditch in front of him."

"How many shots?"

"One," Sledge replied.

Sledge's testimony about one phase of the alleged massacre differed from that of a previous witness who had said he saw Calley killing civilians. That witness, Dennis I. Conti, said he watched Calley and PFC Paul D. Meadlo fire into a group of screaming women and children at a trail intersection just south of the village.

Daniel has said he will rest the Army's case against Calley by Wednesday or Thursday at the latest and possibly earlier.

UAW, Ford Co. Reach Accord On New Contract

By DAVID W. CHUTE
 DETROIT (UPI)—Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers reached agreement Monday on a new three-year contract to cover 166,000 workers, thereby avoiding a second crippling auto industry strike this year.

After negotiators had been bargaining for more than 27 hours, United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock emerged from the bargaining room to say, "I am delighted to announce that we have reached a tentative settlement."

Details of the tentative agreement were not announced pending a meeting of the UAW Ford Council at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

But it was known the agreement was virtually identical to the one the union reached with General Motors Corp. after a 67-day strike.

That pact gave the union's GM workers an average 51 cents per hour pay increase in the first year and 3 per cent boosts in the second and third years.

Under that agreement, UAW members who formerly made about $9,000 a year will be getting between $12,000 and $13,000 in the final year of the pact.

Texas Insurance Agents Hold Hearing On Auto Insurance

Over 100 officers of local associations of independent insurance agents throughout Texas were present at a special hearing on auto insurance rate hike held recently in Austin.

The hearing was called by the Texas Association of Insurance, Kay Fancher, president of Pampa Insurance Exchange, also attended the meeting.

Agents reported that a commonly heard complaint from their customers about insurance rates is "I know everything is going up but not that much."

Speakers at the meeting pointed out, however, that the two principal expense items involved in settling claims—medical care and automobile repair—actually have risen much faster than is generally realized. For example, from 1965 to 1970 hospital room charges in Texas went up 344 per cent of the increase in the Consumer Price Index, operating room charges 355 per cent, anesthetist cost 430 per cent, physician fees 180 per cent. The increase in the cost of automobile repair for the same period was 209 per cent. These and other statistics which indicate why auto insurance rates go up were reported in a special study just completed by two University of Texas professors.

Mr. Fancher said the public should blame Detroit for a big part of the requested rate increase. Cars are nowadays built which can't withstand even minor jolts. Bumpers have no real function. They are just put on for cosmetic purposes. Furthermore, they are placed right against thin sheet metal. A 5 mph crash into a fixed object will cause up to $300 of damage to some 1970 automobiles.

As an indication of how difficult it has become to obtain auto insurance by anyone other than a superior driver—the assigned risk plan (Texas Automobile Insurance Plan) made 6,365 monthly assignments in 1968; 7,577 per month in 1969; but in September of 1970, 16,724 and 20,022 in October.

Agents at the conference agreed that the lack of availability of an insurance market is the number one problem in their offices. Because of this they adopted a resolution calling on the State Board of Insurance to promulgate adequate rates. Mr. Fancher said the cost of auto insurance becomes a secondary consideration when it is just not available.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
 HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Dick Van Dyke, a master of characterization, and Bill Cosby, a master at being himself, combined their special abilities Sunday night in an hour NBC-TV offering that pre-empted the high-rated "Bonanza" series.

The special, packaged by Van Dyke's company, with Cosby as the only name guest, actually worked into a 50-50 proposition, with both performers obviously enjoying themselves—and each other—and there should be a profitable ratings payoff.

For viewers, the payoff was also there. For while several of the sequences were only pretty good, there were several segments that were truly wonderful. Van Dyke's top contribution—a genuine masterpiece of comedy—was his portrayal of an aging classical music conductor trying to lead an orchestra. Cosby, meanwhile, offered another of his hilarious monologues on sports

—this one about being on a very bad college football team. The two performers also combined for an amusing children's story—tale about an ant and a grasshopper. And Van Dyke also came up with a sequence in which he did his familiar impersonation of Stan Laurel, accompanied by Mel Berger in a very fine job as Oliver Hardy.

Any imaginative video special is especially welcome these days because, at present, the tight money situation all around is resulting in a definite cutback on such shows. The effects will be more obvious to viewers next year.

But as a current example, it is understood that the air date for CBS-TV's long-planned and previously announced 90-minute special marking the 200th birthday of Ludwig Van Beethoven is indefinite because of the inability to find a sponsor that will foot the high cost. Another special, meanwhile —John Wayne's recent 90-minute NBC-TV outing, "Swing Out, Sweet Land," a musical-comedy show based on American history, and flavored with plenty of frank, sentimental patriotism—got its expected enormous rating. It was the No. 1 show, by far, in the 70-market rankings for the week ending Nov. 29.

And, as a point of interest, it may well be that the Wayne rating—and its huge lead-in audience—helped get a very high ranking, as well, for the drama that followed it on NBC-TV's "The Bold Ones"; a tale of a special commission appointed to investigate two student deaths in a campus confrontation with the National Guard, a story obviously based in the Kent State tragedy. This was the second half of a two-part episode. The first part didn't do too well in the ratings, but the second half, following Wayne's show, ranked 14th among all programs in the 70-market survey.

Hollywood Reports

LPI Hollywood Correspondent HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Television news is a solemn drumbeat of tragedy, disaster and gloom generally unrelieved by humor.

Even sports are treated with the darkness of life and death. Family newspapers are sprinkled with the human comedy, comics, cartoons and the idiocy of the human condition.

The forerunner of visual news was the newsreel in motion picture theaters which, in addition to reporting events of the day, flashed on the screenball antics of society as well.

Best known of the lot was Fox Movietone's Lew Lehr.

Humorist-comedian Eddie Mayehoff hopes to bring the same sort of wackiness to the unrelenting grimness of television news with brief, hilarious "field" dispatches.

"People are entitled to the voice brimming with pompous righteousness."

Roars with Laughter

Then he roars with laughter at himself.

Mayehoff's mobile face and wildly improbable voice are associated with the old pro commercials (for a beer), "That's my boy" television series and a half-dozen movies, including "How to Murder Your Wife."

His forte is the swaggering know-it-all who blusters his way into a problem only to sneak out the back door when he creates a shambles.

"Television news is frustrating," Mayehoff said. "And how much frustration can you stand. Since 1946 I've been frustrated."

"You tune in the news and all you get is arsonists, war, riots, murders, calamities and troubles. There's nothing to break the monotony."

Several years ago CBS toyed with the notion of having Mayehoff appear regularly on the news with Will Rogers-type observations.

"After a year of talking they dropped the idea," Mayehoff reported.

"Then I renewed the idea with Leonard Smith who directed me in an episode of 'Nanny and the Professor.' He thought it was great, so we filmed five segments running from 55 seconds to a minute and a half to be inserted on local newscasts on a syndicated basis."

May Increase Ratings

Mayehoff's experiment may increase video news ratings a hundredfold.

After the sepulchral deliveries of Cronkite, Brinkley, Smith, McGee, Chancellor, Reasoner, and Seavard viewers deserve a giggle, guffaw or belly laugh. God knows they are rarities on the so-called situation comedy shows.

In his first few looks at the news Mayehoff has tackled sonic booms, nudist colonies and a study of people in depth. All are funny.

"Everyone on news shows takes himself as an authority," he said. "Not Edward M. Mayehoff. He knows from nothing. This man is in the wrong business. He doesn't know what he's doing." I think he does.

Paris Talks

Communist negotiators, in private conversations away from the glare of the formal Paris talks on Vietnam, are dropping subtle hints they might agree to one concession—international control of future elections. The hints have come from North Vietnam's chief negotiator, Xuan Thuy, and his Viet Cong counterpart, Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh. U.S. and South Vietnamese negotiators have not yet looked into the matter, according to UPI correspondent George Siber.

Washington Window

By STEWART HENSLEY
UPI Diplomatic Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI) — American intelligence officers report that North Vietnam is engaged in building up a major stronghold in southern Laos, which apparently is designed to serve as the headquarters and logistic supply point for Communist offensives expected in late February or March.

The area in question is located between Sepon and Attapeu, Laotian towns close to the South Vietnamese border and near the southern end of the long Laotian panhandle.

Washington officials say the strongholds being created in that area are receiving most of the men and supplies which Hanoi has been infiltrating southward along the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos since Oct. 1. Hanoi, in recent months, has widened the area she controls in Laos along the South Vietnamese border to provide greater security for the system of paths and roads which comprise the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

The area between Attapeu and Sepon and the trails to the north have been under almost continuous attack by U.S. war planes based in Thailand, on U.S. aircraft carriers in the South China Sea and at times from bases in South Vietnam.

These attacks are not announced although the Pentagon acknowledges them from time to time.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, explaining the heavy U.S. air raids late last month on some North Vietnamese border areas, said these were attacks on missile sites from which Hanoi attempted to interfere with American air operations just across the border in Laos. He said that there would be more such attacks if necessary.

All the evidence received in Washington is that there undoubtedly will be more such attacks on North Vietnamese bases along the Laotian border because of the continuing Hanoi effort to build up the stronghold in southern Laos.

Intelligence officers point out that from such a stronghold, Hanoi eventually could have several options, depending upon where it appeared most profitable to attack.

AT STATE Tuition For Texas Residents Is Lowest While Teachers Pay Higher Than Average

HOUSTON (UPI) — State colleges and universities in Texas are in far better financial shape than those in many other parts of the country, a national higher education study shows.

Tuition for Texas residents is lowest in the nation, while professors' salaries are higher than average.

"Texas is in excellent shape as far as its institutions of higher learning are concerned. Our only problem is to stay there," said Ray Fowler, assistant commissioner for administrative services for the College Coordinating Board.

Last week the Carnegie Higher Education Commission reported 540 institutions enrolling 1.6 million students already face financial difficulties.

"All data we have accumulated up to the present and into the foreseeable future show the present system is adequately financed," Fowler said. "All we have to do is to see that the means to maintenance of this effort are seized."

Texas faculty salaries are now above the national average. They have been since 1966, and this means we can now go out and attract any man we want. We can get the best professors and attract them not only with our salaries but with the fine climate we boast in Texas."

He said Texas' tuition at supported schools of $50 a semester for residents is the lowest in the nation. Nonresident tuition is $200 a semester.

Fowler said research findings show Texas puts more effort into financing higher education than the other 10 most populous states.

"This means that the portion of tax money which goes into higher education in Texas is higher than in the other states compared," he said.

Private colleges and universities in Texas, he said are doing just as well with the exception of a few smaller schools.

Four years ago Rice University in Houston raised $44 million and last month it had to ask for an extra $1 million to meet unexpected costs through the summer. But the school has had little trouble meeting its commitments.

However, St. Thomas University in Houston, which broke ground last month for a $2.5 million library, has had to ask for $500,000 to meet expenses.

Senate Unit OKs Plan Some Of Major Medical Expenses Would Be Covered By Tax Funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Finance Committee today approved a plan under which some of the major medical expenses of all Americans who pay Social Security taxes, and their families, would be paid by tax funds.

Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okl., emerging from a closed committee meeting, told reporters the plan had met "overwhelming" approval in the committee, which will now send it to the Senate for its consideration.

Harris was hazy about how the insurance plan would work. But when it was originally proposed by Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the committee, it called for the government to pay for 80 per cent of all medical expenses above a family's first $3,000 of expenses. Under the long plan, the insurance would cover 80 per cent of hospital bills beyond the first 60 days of hospitalization.

The cost of the program is estimated at $2.2 billion. The money would be raised by an increase in Social Security taxes.

The plan would be comparable to major medical insurance which is now offered by private concerns.

Another matter before the committee is how to raise $5 billion more in Social Security taxes to pay for proposed benefit increases. The question is whether to raise taxes or to tax more income.

Texas Law Will Require Drinkers To Buy Liqueurs At Restaurants

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Legislature will probably require the state's cocktail drinkers to buy their drinks in a restaurant after a mixed-drink bill is passed next year, state Sen. Joe Christie, D-El Paso, predicted Sunday.

Christie, author of the constitutional amendment to legalize the sale of mixed drinks and head of a committee studying the proposed law, told newsmen he expects the legislature to give local voters a choice on how they want cocktails sold. Only in restaurants with food, or in cocktail lounges and restaurants.

"I predict there will be a food requirement that the permit holder will have to derive probably a majority of his income from the sale of food," Christie said during an appearance on the television interview program "Capital Eye." "The sale of mixed drinks would be incidental to the establishment itself."

He predicted that if cocktail lounges are permitted, they permit with a much higher fee and more stringent requirements for the license holder.

Asked if he expects the legislature to provide for separate local option election issues on where mixed drinks could be sold, Christie said "that's the way I'm leaning right now."

"I've always advocated anytime you can let the people decide these issues that affect their daily lives at the ballot box, you should do it," Christie said. "It would be a fairly rational and reasonable way to present this—to let them derive a majority of their income from the sale of food to sell mixed drinks, or allow also in their areas cocktail lounges with no food requirements. That's a very real possibility."

Council Says Americans Will Loosen Purse Strings For Yule

NEW YORK (UPI) — Merchants across the country anticipate reasonably Merry Christmas sales because Americans traditionally loosen purse strings during the Yule season even when times are tough.

That faith is being justified to some extent, according to a survey by United Press International. It indicates the Christmas shopping season is off to a good start in most areas, but not everywhere. In cities such as Seattle and Wichita, hard hit by defense industry cutbacks, merchants expect a grim season.

Nationally, about the best hoped for is to equal or slightly better last year's dollar sales. Considering the 5 per cent inflation of money for the year, that actually translates into a slight decrease in the physical volume of goods going over the Christmas counters.

Only the toymakers seem genuinely jubilant. They report no slowdown in their phenomenal growth over the last decade. So it looks as if the youngsters will fare well even if a few aunts and uncles get lopped off the shopping list because of the current recession.

Restrained shopping was forecast rather clearly in the Yule catalogues leading department stores and mail order houses sent out early in the fall. They were less lavish than in recent years and contained fewer unusual and expensive items. However, one Cleveland store advertised a $700 rabbitskin bedspread.

It's likely to be an unusual Yule season in another respect. Conscious of misery caused by unemployment and social tensions, many prestige stores are trying to avoid the image of conspicuous or ostentatious spending. Ed. Marcus of Neiman-Marcus in Dallas, a store noted in the past for flamboyance said, "We're accepting the fact that the public attitude on extravagance has changed." And the management of Bonwit Teller, a de luxe Fifth Avenue store in New York, said, "We want to avoid things that look frivolous."

Small Bets Go On During Bickering

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — While thousands of patrons wagered small-time bets in Howard Hughes' six casinos, two factions in the mysterious billionaire's business empire bicker in the courts and in meetings today for the whole kitty.

Nevada Gov. Paul Laxalt, who said Monday Hughes was in "good condition" in the Bahamas, personally stepped into the "executive suite" battle and summoned both sides to meetings today for the second day in a row.

Laxalt met with both sides in the power struggle Monday but apparently was unsuccessful in attempts to reach a solution.

The governor said Hughes told him by telephone that he authorized the firing of his top aide in the $500 million-a-year Nevada operation. However, that aide, Robert Maheu, a former FBI agent who has been Hughes' right hand man during the four years the 64-year-old recluse spent in his gambling capital, resisted his ouster by an outside group representing the parent Hughes Tool Co. of Houston.

Hughes Tool today prepared to challenge in court a restraining order granted to Maheu preventing the company from taking control of the Nevada operations.

Laxalt met with the 11 members of the Hughes Tool Board of Directors in the afternoon and said he was going to ask Maheu to voluntarily relinquish control of the Nevada operations.

Laxalt met later with Maheu but was unsuccessful in convincing him to abandon the fight.

Security guards hired by Maheu were still patrolling the casinos of the "strip" gambling spas and Maheu was still in physical control of the hotels.

Laxalt said he was telephoned by Hughes from the Bahamas early Monday morning and that Hughes told him he approved the ouster of Maheu by a group headed by William Frank Gay, a vice president of Hughes Tool Co., and Chester Davis, a New York lawyer.

The governor said Hughes told him he was in good condition and taking a "vacation" he had planned for 14 months. Asked how he could be certain it was Hughes, Laxalt said he recognized his voice and that they also spoke of matters only they knew about.

SPEED READING COURSE SET FOR PAMPA

One Million Words? In a Single Week? Can YOU handle that?

Yet, if you are a student or an average person in a position of average responsibility you are expected to read up to, and in many cases even more than, one million words in a single week. Think of the flood of printed material you must cope with daily. There is more and more material in print every day — and more and more people, including you, have read it.

How rapidly DO you read? And more importantly, how well do you understand and retain what you have read? Is it a chore for you to read a book? Do you back-track repeatedly? Let your mind wander to other things? Silently pronounce words to yourself as you read? If you do any of these, chances are that you not only need but would profit greatly from the Speed Reading Academy's course in Rapid Reading which is set for discussion at Pampa.

Mr. Wayne D. Scott, SRA president, said arrangements have been made to offer SRA's exclusive 7-week, 21-hour Rapid Reading course to a limited number of students in Pampa.

The course is designed primarily for the college-bound high school student, the college student and professional — but anyone over 13 years of age of average intelligence, and without visual weaknesses can quickly master the speed reading techniques of the S.R.A. Method.

The average college student today reads anywhere from 150 to 250 words per minute, retaining about 50 per cent or less of what they have read, Mr. Scott said. "We guarantee that you can learn to read 1,000 words per minute, or more, with better comprehension, retention and enjoyment or your tuition will be refunded."

Thousands of people who have completed the course have an average reading speed of 2,000 words per minute, with 80 per cent or better comprehension. In order to enroll in the course — you must attend one of the free orientation lectures mentioned below and the reading counselor will explain the course in detail — and give you a brief reading test to determine your present reading speed and comprehension.

Most people are shocked to find how slowly they actually read and how low their rate of comprehension really is. How do YOU rate as a reader?

Students enrolling will be required to attend one class per week for seven weeks.

Classes are limited to twenty students — and class places will be filled on a first come, first served basis.

A series of one hour orientation lectures to acquaint interested persons will be held in Cibola Room of the Coronado Inn, 1101 N. Hobart St. on Monday, Dec. 7, at 7:30 p.m.; Tuesday, Dec. 8, at 7:30 p.m.; Wednesday, Dec. 9, at 7:30 p.m.; and a final meeting on Sunday, Dec. 13, at 2:30 p.m.

The Viewpoint Gap

Does the adult public have an accurate idea of college students' thinking? Apparently not, according to a national survey by Louis Harris.

This contributes to one of the problems of America today: How to achieve agreement among younger people and older people on the aims of this nation.

Pollster Harris found, for example, that in six major categories, the public underestimated how deeply students feel. Two of the six categories show that students actually are more traditional and conservative—loyal to the American way—than adults think them to be.

Last May a cross-section of 800 collegians was asked if they oppose the use of violence and if they are prepared to work for change within the system rather than through revolution. To both questions, 89 per cent of the students answered, "Yes."

This fall, a cross-section of the public was asked what the students' position on these questions was. Only 71 per cent of the public believed students oppose violence and only 66 per cent thought students are prepared to work for change within the system.

On two matters related to repression, the disparity between student thinking and adult estimates of student thinking was even sharper. Students were asked if they were convinced America is a repressive society. Fifty-eight per cent answered yes. But only 26 per cent of the public believed that students felt that way. Students were asked if they were convinced Black Panthers can't get a fair trial; 67 per cent said yes. Again, only 22 per cent of the adult public thought students would respond affirmatively.

Fifty-seven per cent of the college group was sympathetic with young men who refuse to serve in the armed forces if drafted. Here the public came closer to zeroing in on student response: 50 per cent estimated college thinking to be that way.

Finally, only 40 per cent of the public believed students would say America is not serious about cleaning up air and water pollution, yet 51 per cent of the collegians held this to be true.

What do these figures mean? Although they can't be taken too conclusively because factors like age, availability of information and influence of peers affect the respondents, they do show that the public could be less hasty in judging the outward aspects of the feeling among collegians. It is too easy to dismiss campus disruption as solely the work of radicals and outside militants and the result of parental or administrative permissiveness. Although deep waters do run still, occasionally they overflow and make waves.

Spend... And Ye Shall Reap

It's things like this that give welfare a bad name.

Education U.S.A., published by the National School Public Relations Association, reports that the California State Department of Welfare has ruled that an Oakland teacher earning $11,000 a year was eligible for welfare payments during July and August.

The teacher, a 33-year-old mother of two, had appealed a decision of the Alameda County Welfare Department denying her $172 a month in welfare payments under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program.

In her appeal, the teacher said that she normally would not apply for aid because she usually budgets her 10 months' earnings over 12 months. But this year she used her savings as a down payment on a home. The hearing officer ordered that she be paid $344 in welfare aid for July and August.

This precedent-setting decision says Education U.S.A. could allow teachers in California and other states to go on welfare during vacation if they meet minimum eligibility requirements. Like spending yourself broke in June?

Time For Air Piracy Pact

The hijacking of a Russian airliner to Turkey by two Lithuanians, father and son, followed by the hijacking of another Russian plane to Turkey by two Russian students, are as much to be condemned as any hijackings that have involved American planes or those of other Western nations by Cuba-bound psychotic or fanatic Palestinians.

In the first instance, a stewardess was shot to death and three crew members seriously wounded.

Whatever may have been their grievances against the Soviet government, the Lithuanians had no right to endanger the lives of innocent persons and, tragically, take the life of one. They have committed a capital crime and should not be permitted to get away with it under the cloak of political asylum.

They, and the two students also, may well have found life unbearable under the Communist system. Many, many thousands—millions, if Russia's Lithuanian population and the populations of the satellite countries are added—are glad under the Soviet heel.

It is most unfortunate, and the Lithuanians and the students had every right to get to flee to freedom, to take their chances and try to cross the border as tens of thousands have done from East Germany.

jeopardize the lives of innocent third parties. Only if a man's own life were in peril, if he faced certain death in a gas oven, or before a firing squad, might he be justified in going to the extremity of taking another life to save his own.

It is probably too much to hope that Russia's experience with hijackings may now at least lead to real efforts to forge an international agreement, binding on all nations, which would require the immediate return of all hijacked and hijacked planes to the country of origin, with stiff sanctions to be taken against any government that did not comply.

But this is the only way this hijacking business will be stopped.

It is not pleasant to think of someone who has suffered real oppression being handed back to his oppressors. But neither is it pleasant to think of all those planes that have been hijacked to Cuba, of the thousands of passengers whose lives have been disrupted and endangered, by hijackers whose oppression has been wholly imaginary.

We can sympathize with the Lithuanians and the students. But we cannot condone their acts of air piracy out of that sympathy—not unless we are ready to condone all the hijackings which will undoubtedly take place in the future until the world community unites to put an end to them.

A STORM OF SMUT
NEW YORK, N.Y.—Here in the nation's largest city to address the emergency leadership conference sponsored by The Center of American Living Inc., I had the privilege of sharing the platform with the Rev. Morton A. Hill, S.J., a battler for decency who deserves the thanks of all respectable citizens.

Father Hill is one of the three members of the presidential Commission on Obscenity and Pornography who dissented from the majority findings. The views of Father Hill and his two colleagues, who filed a minority report, should be widely known. In order to help achieve this important goal, I am devoting this column to excerpts from Father Hill's speech. The following are among his most telling comments to the leadership conference organized by Lady Natalie Douglas-Hamilton, who heads The Center of American Living:

"There's a wild storm of smut buffeting our country today. It's drowning out good media; it's choking our culture; it's corrupting our morals.

"The purveyors of filth are more brazen than ever. Smut peddlers, confident that highly paid legal counsel will see them through anything, are transporting their trash across state lines, are importing it, are sending it through the mails. Commercial films are projecting the anti-hero image to our young people. He's an unloving non-achiever, non-creator; a violent, oversexed or perverted drug user. Underground newspapers—there are some 200 of them in the country—are serving up a potpourri of sex, drugs and rebellion.

"And then a presidential Commission on Obscenity and Pornography, after two years and $2 million of your tax money, comes up and says in effect: 'Leave it there. It's all reaped up. Let it take off. Let's repeal all obscenity laws.' This is what's known as the Danish solution and it is what 12 Americans on the Commission voted for.

"Although the President rejected the majority report and the Senate rejected and censured it, we have not seen the last of the publicity it will get. It is possible that the big brainwash has not even begun. 'The Commission did not do its job. It was mandated by Congress to make recommendations that would effectively and constitutionally regulate the traffic in obscenity and pornography. Obviously, the Commission did not carry out this mandate.

"The Commission began in slant and bias to prove a preconceived theory, and it never changed or altered course.

"The New York State investigation Commission presented evidence (in a study of its own) that organized crime is involved in the smut industry; it presented overwhelming evidence. It named reputed members of crime families who were involved. It named corporations owned and operated by reputed members of crime families. It concluded, in fact, that the smut industry is infested with racketeers. But the Presidential Commission could find no concrete evidence."

The address made by Father Hill deserves to be publicized nationwide. Indeed public officials and community leaders need to familiarize themselves with the entire Hill-Link-Keating minority report which makes clear the menace posed by the smut peddlers.

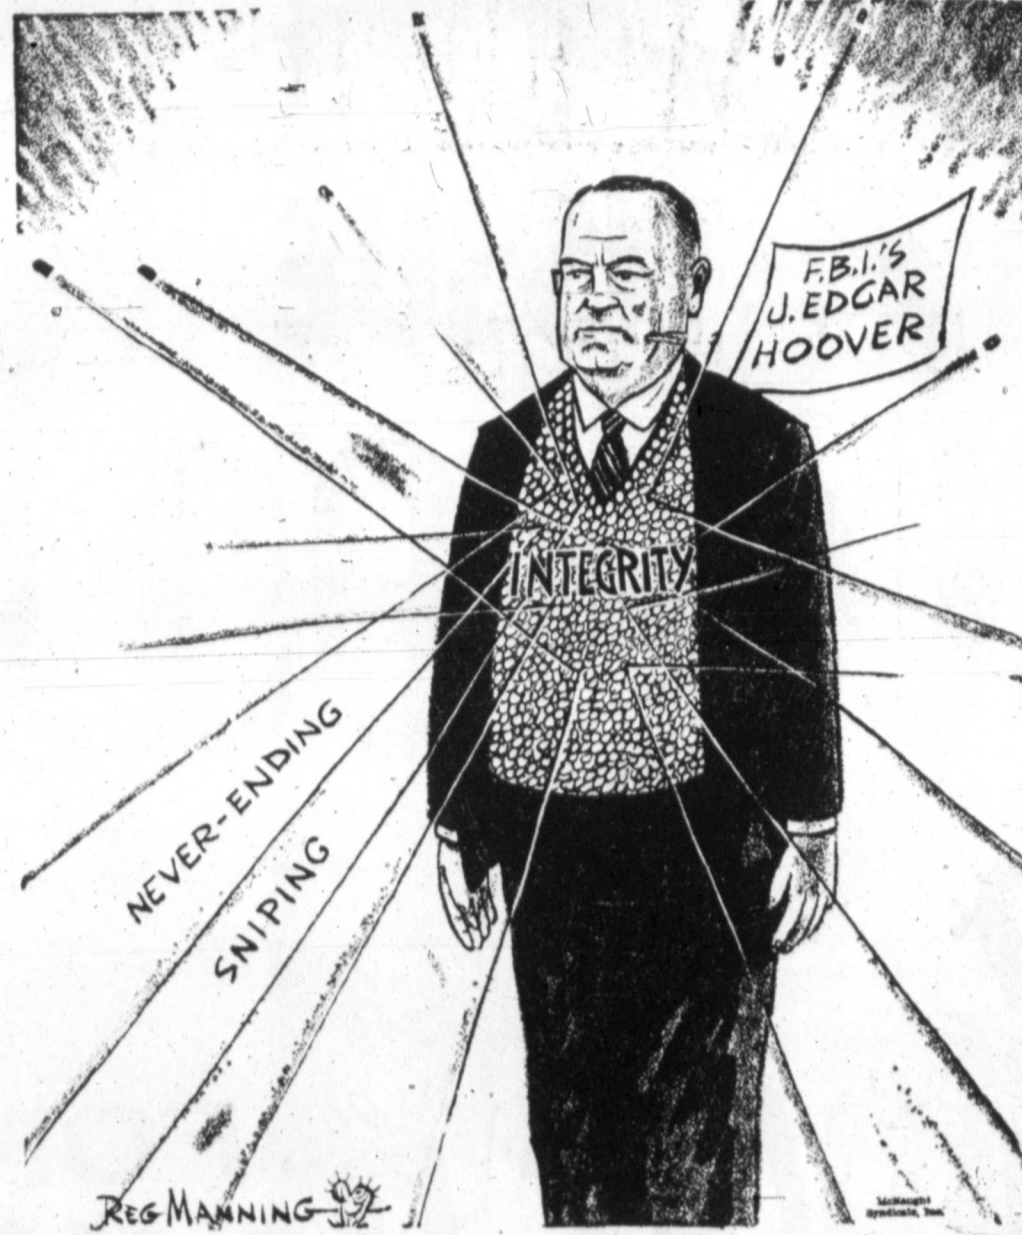

With the facts developed by Father Hill and other dissenters, there is a foundation for an organized, continuous and reasoned community voices against the traffic in pornography—a traffic in which syndicate crime plays a key role.

Father Hill's organization, Rorality In Media Inc., 1256 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y., 10018, can provide concerned citizens with whatever information they need to combat smut peddlers in their communities.

U.S. Computer Lead Puts World At Disadvantage

By BRUCE BOSSART
WASHINGTON (NEA)—The mayor of a large city in Communist eastern Europe was talking to a U.S. diplomat in the mayor's office. What struck the American was the Red official's preoccupation with our immense wealth in the new technologies—and especially in computers.

With amazing candor, the mayor correctly characterized that lead as growing and as putting the rest of the world—but most particularly the Communist countries—at a deepening disadvantage.

His responses were a mixture of admiration, wonderment and very serious concern. He could not see how his country, in concert with other Iron Curtain lands and the Soviet Union itself, could do anything but fall farther and farther behind the United States.

It was plain, too, that the mayor regards high development in computers and related knowledge devices as critical to any kind of hopeful approach by men—irrespective of ideology—to the smothering problems that are already upon us or can be foreseen.

My conversations in Europe this summer suggest that the Red mayor has plenty of company both behind and on this side of the Iron Curtain. And some of our thoughtful writers, like Peter Drucker and Zbigniew Brzezinski, have recently penned books which focus intensely on the "knowledge explosion" and our preeminent role in it.

Of course, neither the Soviet Union nor its satellites openly acknowledge the yawning gulf separating us from them in this field. Indeed, in an unsurprising effort to put down, the Kremlin gave to one Z. Yuryev, in the youth-oriented magazine Komsomolskaya, the task of attacking Brzezinski. Comrade Yuryev's sputtering barrage failed totally.

The facts are incredible. We operate some 80 per cent of all the computers in the world. By probably no coincidence, it is estimated that America has originated about 80 per cent of all scientific and technical discoveries in the last few decades. We have a big advantage in the use of potent lasers, and the International Atomic Energy Agency says that by 1975 we will most likely be using more nuclear power for peaceful purposes than the next 11 most populous nations combined.

U.S. computers in use here may have gone past 70,000 in number. Defense, space and the Atomic Energy Commission account for only about 10 per cent of this total. Russia's public embarrassment is understandable—its non-military computer total is estimated at somewhere between 2,000 and 3,500 (as of 1966), roughly the same as the number in much less populous Japan or West Germany or even the United Kingdom.

What seemed to stagger the eastern European mayor was not just this gross disparity of numbers. He showed a sophisticated awareness of our swift advancement to higher "generations" of computers, and found this the hardest thing to swallow.

We have plunged heavily into the "third generation," meaning we are producing and using computers whose miniaturized circuitry is so complex that a given device may pour out millions upon millions of calculations in small fractions of a second.

Drucker, in his celebrated book, "The Age of Discontinuity," figures this country will need one million new computer programmers in the next 15 years, not to mention another 500,000 systems engineers and designers and other specialists drawing on the computer's output.

There is no use trying to stop all this. Radicals' bombs have smashed a few computers but they are not even a ripple on the tide. As we can see, the Reds don't want to stop us but to catch up.

We are in this realm the envy of the globe. This makes new political and psychological problems for us abroad. Yet, notwithstanding foreign and domestic critics' blasts against the huge force of our technologies, Brzezinski echoes practical leaders everywhere when he says, in "Between Two Ages," that "the United States is the innovative and creative society of today."

The science explosion he finds "the most rapidly expanding aspect of our entire reality." What we need, I suggest, is a way of sharing it with other peoples more fully, and a way of mastering its vast effects as we never did those of the simpler, crude industrial revolution.

Strep Throat, Can Cause Rheumatic Heart Disease

Dear Dr. Lamb—I would like to know if tonsil infections can cause damage to the heart or cause other problems. I had large tonsils as a child. In my teen years I had frequent tonsillitis attacks. At 18, after an extra severe attack, I had them taken out. My doctor says I have a murmur. He said I may have had rheumatic fever as a child. I never had rheumatic symptoms except for the high fever due to the tonsils.

Dear Reader—Sore throats and infected tonsils caused by streptococci bacteria can indeed cause rheumatic heart disease with a heart murmur. Other throat infections like the common virus ones do not.

Simply stated, the body forms immune substances to counteract the streptococcal infection and in some people an allergic response occurs in certain tissues, including the joints (that may become painful and swollen) and the heart. The reaction continues long after the streptococcal infection is gone. Years later a valve inside the heart may still be undergoing changes—usually scarring and deforming the valve.

A damaged valve may not be able to open completely or it may not be able to close completely. The inefficient valve causes turbulence in the flow of blood as it is pumped through the heart. This causes the abnormal sound or murmur. The characteristics of the murmur—where it is heard, if it is loud or soft and when it is best heard during the heart's beat—all help the doctor to determine which heart valve is damaged and how severe the damage is.

A lot of people have murmurs and evidence of rheumatic heart disease who do not recall having had rheumatic fever. In these people we assume the attack of rheumatic fever was so mild or lacking in its usual features to go undiagnosed.

The danger of rheumatic heart disease is the reason why a "strep throat" should always be seen by a doctor and treated. If it were possible to treat every "strep throat" properly, rheumatic heart disease would cease to be a problem.

Treating "strep throats" means proper antibiotic treatment—not removing the tonsils. The tonsils should be removed only if the tonsils and adenoids are causing obstruction which will lead to deformed facial features or repeated ear infections, or if they persistently contain infected material or are abscessed.

The tonsil is a simple lymph gland—like those under the jaw and in the armpits. Lymph glands manufacture white blood cells and substances to defend the body against infection. Naturally, those in the throat (tonsils) enlarge when the throat is infected. An old diseased tonsil full of pus-like material is no longer useful in the fight against infection.

Russian Sub Base: Makings Still in Cuba

JOHN GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — Russia is playing cat and mouse in a highly suspicious manner on that sinister submarine base in Cuba.

Despite Moscow's "indignant" disclaimers and ambiguous State Department and Pentagon pronouncements that shed little light, the irrefutable facts are that all the "makings" for such a base remain at Cienfuegos—on Cuba's west coast about 100 miles from the U.S. and a direct threat to the Panama Canal.

This grim reality has been authoritatively established at a series of closed-door hearings conducted by Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on Latin America.

The proceedings are highly secret. Carefully screened versions of the testimony will be published later. Top Pentagon and State Department officials specializing in Russian and Cuban affairs are testifying. These sessions were preceded by others last Summer.

On the basis of what Chairman Fascell has learned at both series, he is fully convinced that the menace of a Soviet submarine base in Cuba is still very real.

A World War II veteran with 16 years' service in Congress during which he has become a recognized expert on Cuban and Latin American affairs, Fascell is deliberate and restrained. He is no sensation monger or publicity seeker. He weighs his judgments and words carefully.

So when he quietly says he has "no doubts" Russia still has the "potential" and "capability" to quickly establish a submarine base at Cienfuegos, Fascell means exactly that—and is not scare-mongering or grabbing for headlines.

"The situation is basically unchanged," says Fascell. "This menace still prevails. The Soviet has on hand the ships, equipment and other essentials needed to develop a base in a very short time. What their intentions are remains to be seen. Meanwhile, their potential continues as threatening as it has been."

MORE AUTHORITATIVE BELIEVERS — Other knowledgeable congressional leaders are more blunt and outspoken. Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., chairman of the powerful Armed Services Committee, says flatly Russia has a submarine base in Cuba.

The 30-year congressional veteran has access to all intelligence and other classified reports. Militarily, he is one of the most informed members of the House. Rivers is emphatic about the existence of the Soviet's sub base.

"It's there," he says firmly. "The evidence is irrefutable, and the State Department knows it. The only ones who don't know it are the American people. Why they are being kept in the dark is a good question. I don't have the answer to that. But I do know the Russians have a submarine base in Cuba."

Rep. Louis Wyman, R-N.H., member of the Appropriations subcommittee that handles the vast military budget, exceeding $65 billion, is equally positive.

Like Rivers, Wyman has complete clearance on all intelligence and classified material. He is also a former state attorney general and an authority on constitutional law. Not only does the New Englander believe the Soviet has a sub base in Cuba, but feels strongly this dire menace cannot be tolerated.

"Whatever it takes," says Wyman, "it is the responsibility of the government of the United States to take immediate action to stop the construction of a Russian naval base in Cuba. The military and naval tactical consequences of such a development are of near disaster proportions. The national security of our country is directly threatened by the construction of a relatively invulnerable concrete fortress for communist missile-armed nuclear-powered submarines 90 miles off our shores."

"To me, it makes little sense to spend billions to hold the line against communist advances in Indochina and, at the same time, allow the Communists to build a missile-carrying submarine base less than 100 miles from our mainland."

ALARMING REASONS — Behind these stark misgivings

Inside Washington

Russian Sub Base: Makings Still in Cuba

are a series of foreboding factors, as follows:

That 470-foot Soviet submarine tender and two accompanying ocean-going barges are still in the Cienfuegos area. The three vessels arrived at the west coast port last summer. The big barges, equipped with cranes and sub repair facilities, were towed across the Atlantic by a Russian freighter. After the State Department finally publicly raised the question of the establishment of a sub base and the Kremlin issued a denial, the tender took off—apparently headed back to Russia. But it soon developed it had no such intention. Several weeks later Navy reconnaissance spotted the ship at Mariel, a small harbor some 25 miles west of Havana. Recently, it returned to the Cienfuegos area, docking at Casilda, 35 miles east of that port. Where it shows up next remains to be seen.

The tender obviously is not returning to Russia. And as long as it remains in Cuban waters, the Reds have the capability of quickly setting up a submarine base—with the big barges and other facilities, machinery and equipment already at Cienfuegos. On the hillside overlooking the port are large quantities of construction equipment, material and other supplies unloaded by the Soviet in the past six months. All are carefully protected by heavy tarpaulins, with sentries on guard around the clock. Also, a number of structures of various sizes have been erected on the waterside and on small islands at the entrance of the harbor.

It is also definitely known the Russians have developed three large airfields in Cuba, each equipped with huge underground fuel tanks. One near Havana also has underground hangars with elevators to bring planes to the surface. Latest model MIG-21 fighter-bombers are stationed on this base.

Similarly known is that the Soviet has built a number of underwater submarine pens on both Cuban coasts. To provide the concrete for these and other military installations, Russia constructed four large cement plants in Cuba—which operate virtually around the clock. They have a combined capacity of 4 million barrels of cement annually, and most of it has gone for military purposes.

Two eight-lane superhighways that go nowhere have been built by the Soviet in Cuba. Their unmistakable purpose is to serve as landing strips for large military aircraft. One of these mysterious roadways originates at Cienfuegos and runs some 20 miles to a hill mass where the Reds have sizable underground installations. For several years, intelligence has reported a secret base there. The other "landing strip" highway is in Camaguey Province and also extends to hill formations—Escambray Mountains. There the Russians have transformed big caves into military strongholds.

FOREIGN FLASHES — Ireland's 88-year-old President Eamon de Valera is planning to retire next month. Although his term still has three years to run, his office is largely ceremonial. De Valera is in failing health and his 92-year-old wife is even more ill. The American-born champion of Irish independence is the oldest active statesman in the world. Red China is continuing to lavishly entertain Cambodia's ousted former ruler — Prince Sihanouk. Accompanied by his wife and an entourage of henchmen and courtiers, he is touring China in ornate style. Apparently, Peking's masters see some propaganda value in Sihanouk and are making the most of him.

English has become the most widely taught foreign language in Japan. It is now a mandatory subject in elementary schools. Significantly, Russia also is stressing English in its schools. About half of Soviet students are studying English—speaking as well as reading. Peru is preparing to announce a giant earthquake-devastated area to cost around $250 million. Peru hopes to get half this total, $125 million, from the U.S. in various forms — grants, special economic relief, etc.

WANDA MAE HUFF, WOMEN'S NEWS EDITOR
PAMPA DAILY NEWS 9 PAMPA, TEXAS 83rd Year
Tuesday, December 8, 1970

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were invited by another couple to attend a stage play. This was my first opportunity to see live performers, and I was looking forward to it. Our host didn't have four seats together, so we sat a few rows ahead of them.

At intermission, the four of us met in the lobby and our host said, "If you aren't enjoying this, we can leave any time." We were enjoying it so I said, "we'd like to stay for the whole thing."

Well, after the play was over, we discovered that our host and hostess never did go back after intermission, but they were standing out in front of the theater waiting for us.

Now my husband says that when our host mentioned leaving at intermission, he was trying to tell us that they were bored and wanted to leave, and we should have taken the hint and left with them.

Do you think my husband was right?

STAYED AND ENJOYED IT DEAR STAYED: He was right in his opinion that your host and hostess were bored because they left at intermission. But since you wanted to stay, and were given a choice, you can't be blamed for staying.

DEAR ABBY: Please see what you can do for me and countless others who play the organ for pleasure. When company comes to my house, the first thing they notice is the organ.

"Who plays the organ?" they want to know! Then of course they absolutely insist that I sit right down and play something because they just "love" organ music.

Well, I sit down only because

I have been coaxed into it and I start to play something. I don't get through six bars before I can hardly hear myself for the noise. The person who begged me to play is jabbering a mile a minute and by the time I'm finished, nobody even knows I played.

Now, Abby, please be a dear and tell people that when they ask a person to play the organ to please shut up! Thank you.

WISCONSINITE DEAR WISCONSINITE: You've already done it. And beautifully.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing about the young couple who have nothing to do and are bored with life.

This morning we had our kickoff breakfast for the United Appeals. Brother, could we use help! Last week at our Red Cross meeting, one of our board members reported she now has 200 volunteers and is looking for more. Another lady heads up the Cancer Society — busy night and day. Yesterday my wife received a letter saying, "How nice of you to have volunteered to read to me when I had my eye operation and couldn't use my eyes."

A national survey shows that the retired persons's greatest need is transportation. I would like to organize a national society dedicated to giving these distinguished senior citizens a lift.

What's the use, Abby? The list of things to do is endless. How anybody could complain of boredom is utterly beyond my comprehension. Oh, by the way, I am 73.

H.H.: MARSHALL, TEX. DEAR H.H.: Bless you and Mrs. H. You have two of the biggest hearts in the next-to-the-biggest state in the U.S.A.

Knit A Sweater, A Versatile Gift Compliments With Fashions

By JUDY LOVE

Everywhere you turn there's something new to knit, crochet, embroider or handwork. It's simply wonderful all the choices that are available today. But through all this abundance there's one great classic that appeals to you knitters above everything else—the sweater.

Here's a sweater that's every stitch today: it clings ever so gently, which is exactly right for the look of body-consciousness that's important. It complements pants, skirts—no matter where your hemline stops—and it's even right with knickers.

This sweater features an unusual but simple ribbing pattern wide ribs riding high above the bustline, then worked into a flat stockinette across the chest. Ribbed sleeves are set in, and high, ide and ribbed turtleneck collar give this classic a look that's both feminine and sporty.

Directions to knit this smart pullover are available in sizes 12 to 16; use No. 7 needles, and depending upon the size you knit, you need from 18 to 24 skeins of 4-ply Knitting Worsted Light olive is a lovely shade, but you'll find a wide range of colors, from deep winter tones to more pale shades.

To get instruction for this casual pullover sweater, send 50 cents to Stitchin Time, Care of your local newspaper, Radio City Station, Box 503, New York, N.Y. 10021. Ask for leaflet S305 and include your name, address and zip code.

Knit Knacs Turn your needles onto this short guide to make a muffler that's a perfect stocking stuffer.

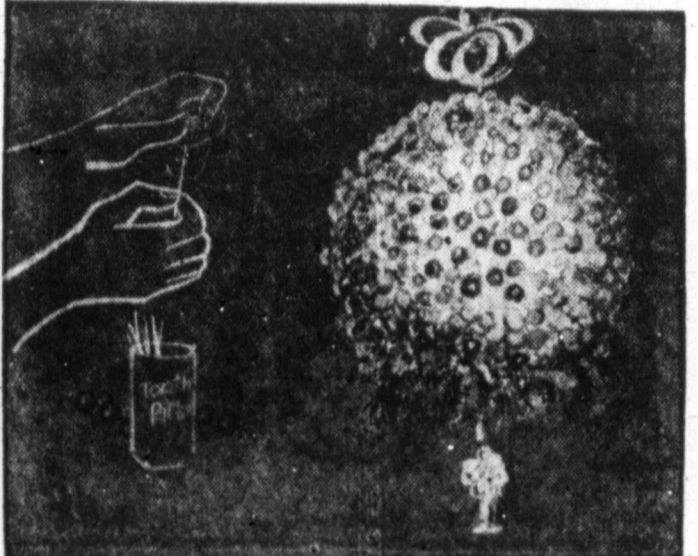

Big skates—and little ones will wear it with warm pride. Pick a bright, winter day color: Easy Winter Muffler: 6 skeins 4-ply yarn, No. 6 needles.

Cast on 48 stitches and knit 20 inches in plain knitting. Then rib by knitting 2, purling 2 for 18 inches. Then return to plain stockinette for 20 more inches, and bind off loosely.

The ribbing will hold the muffler snugly around the neck and also fits comfortably under a collar.

HOLIDAY CANDLESTICKS — Fill glasses with cranberries. Cut round of cardboard to fit top of glasses. Tape in place. Turn glasses upside down. Melt bottom of candle and press into bottom of each glass. Press candles in place.

CRANBERRY KISSING BALL — Cover a round styrofoam ball with bright red cranberries — attaching with toothpicks. Attach a sprig of mistletoe to the bottom. Tie a bright red or green bow at the top and hang your ball where you can catch the unwary male underneath.

Scouting Scoops

Many local Girl Scouts participated in community Thanksgiving activities.

Brownie Troop 83 won a second place trophy in their division of the Thanksgiving Parade. Troops donating food baskets to local families were: Junior Troop 108, Mrs. Dub Adkins, leader; Junior Troop 23, Mrs. Robert Elliott, leader; Junior Troop 32, Mrs. Gene Pitman, leader; Brownie Troop 77, Mrs. Clarence Mullens, leader.

Eronnie Troop 44, Mrs. Earl Crouch, leader, presented their basket to the sisters of St. Vincent's School.

The annual calendar sale has ended and Miss Celia Fowler, executive director, sends thanks to all those involved in making the sale a success.

Mrs. W.W. Hampton joined the office staff Nov. 1 as bookkeeper for the council.

Adults who attended the Junior Workshop on Nov. 23 were: Mmes. Edwin Simmons, Eugene Turner, Jack Scott, Jerry English, Robert Elliott, and Carl Lawyer.

The Brownies have participated in a variety of activities during the past few weeks. Mrs. Joe T. Rogers' Troop 8 taught songs to the girls of Troop 118 at their last meeting. Mrs. Gage Robertson is the leader of Troop 118.

Brownie Troop 16, Mrs. Wade Gilbert, leader, presented their version of the popular children's classic, "Peter and the Wolf."

Brownies in Troop 17, Mrs. Tommy Mason, leader, and Troop 71, Mrs. Carl Lawyer, leader, are making special Christmas gifts for their parents.

Brownie Troop 29 visited the Square House Museum at Panhandle Nov. 18. The girls saw a real canoe and the reconstructed dugout. Mrs. W.W. Hampton is the troop leader.

Other adults on the trip were Mrs. Doug Boyd, Mrs. C.S.

Youngblood, and Mrs. Max Lovell.

Nineteen girls from Brownie Troop 34, led by Mrs. Harper Muse, took cookies and candy to East Ridge Lodge and presented a program of songs for the senior citizens there.

An investiture ceremony was held for Brownie Troop 107 Dec. 3. Girls invested were: Kim Albin, Charla Bates, Leisa Edmiston, Carla Gee, Teena Grant, Shawa Ledbetter, Evelyn O'Neal, Tammy Reams, Dena Simmons, Sheri Skinner, Monica Vaughan, Bobbie Walker, and Christina Wolfe. Mrs. Larry Ledbetter is the leader.

The girls in Cadette Troop 3 are working on their Reporter Badge. Each week a different girl writes and prints the troop newspaper, the "Cadet Gazette."

Troop 41 recently completed their babysitting course and received special certificates from their course teacher, Mrs. Charlotte Hall. Another activity of this troop has been their work toward the Emergency Challenge badge. The first challenge the troop had to meet was planning an overnight trip.

They were responsible for planning meals, clothing, equipment, and safety rules. Junior Troop 187 joined the slumber party as part of their work on the World Wide Game badge. The Cadettes taught the Juniors six games from foreign countries as part of the wide game.

Active members of troop 41 are: Pam Allen, Sandra Vance, Dreka Weatherly, Jill Atchley, Mollie Jackson, Deborah Lawley, Jaye Everett, Paula Kretzmeier, Debbie Welch, and Beverly Burns. Mrs. Eschol Jackson is the leader and Miss Barbara Vance is the assistant.

Senior Scouts Paula Homer and Susie Stowers visited Cadette Troop 58 Dec. 1 and told about their experiences in Scouting and their Senior Opportunity this Summer.

Wide-ribbed pullover sweater is a classic with the softly fitted look of today.

Briscoe Women Organize Club

Clay Downs Bonavena In The Fifteenth Round

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Long after all the post-fight hoopla had died down and the crowd had filed out of what was now an empty, debris-littered Madison Square Garden, Muhammad Ali or Cassius Clay, whichever you prefer, was flat on his back on a wooden table in his dressing room thinking.

He was naked, except for a towel thrown around his midsection, and he clasped both his hands behind his head as a pillow.

Most of the visitors had left. They had asked him every conceivable question pertaining to his lusterless TKO of courageous, bull-like Oscar Bonavena in the 15th round, and he had patiently answered all the questions.

Now Cassius Clay pulled his lower lip down trying to see how badly it was cut.

He wasn't used to being out there tonight were you? somebody said to him.

Clay didn't bluster.

"I wasn't as good as I wanted to be," he said.

That's the closest anybody has ever heard Cassius Clay come to conceding there may be somebody around better than him, and although Oscar Bonavena wasn't Monday night, the mop-haired Argentinian with arms as big as oaks and a heart to match certainly made him look bad.

Clay knew it. He tried glossing over the fact he had missed combinations and run out of gas during some of the late rounds by reciting how nobody had ever stopped Bonavena before, not even Joe Frazier, and how he had put Oscar away even though he wasn't supposed to have a punch. But he didn't fool everybody.

"I've never been this sore," he said, lying there on the table while one of his trainers rubbed his legs with alcohol.

"My neck is sore and my face is sore," Clay said. "He's tougher than all the cats I fought."

"Were You Humbled?"

"Were you humbled a bit by him?"

"What do you mean by that?" Clay wanted to know.

UCLA Has Four NCAA Titles And Looking For More

NEW YORK (UPI)—UCLA, with four straight NCAA titles in hand, is off to a good start in its quest for No. 5.

The Bruins walked off with the No. 1 ranking today in the first week's balloting by the 35-member United Press International Board of Coaches. UCLA received 31 of the 32 first-place votes cast and 319 points in the balloting for games played through Sunday, Dec. 6.

South Carolina, which received the lone first-place ballot not cast for UCLA, was ranked second with Kentucky, Jacksonville and Marquette following in that order.

Notre Dame was sixth, followed by Southern California, Western Kentucky, Kansas and Pennsylvania to complete the top 10.

TO BE REMEMBERED

Art Gilmore's Point A Minute Scoring...

By United Press International
Art Gilmore's point-a-minute scoring will be remembered when he begins dickerer in the millionaire pro class that includes Lew Alcindor, Bob Lanier and Pete Maravich.

The 7-2 Gilmore brought fourth-ranked Jacksonville to life in the second half Monday night as the Dolphins swamped George Washington, 110-85. Three quick layups by the All-America candidate enabled Jacksonville to draw away from a slim 63-61 lead with 14:15 remaining.

Gilmore scored 40 points and collected 29 rebounds in the opening round of the Sunshine Basketball Classic. The Dolphins take on 16th ranked Florida State tonight in the finale. The Seminoles ripped Southern Mississippi, 117-84, behind sophomore Ron King's 30 points.

Third-ranked Kentucky frittered away a 17-point lead and then staged a second-half rally to defeat West Virginia, 106-100. The Wildcats, still ahead by 11 at halftime, 63-52, lost the lead in the first five minutes of the second half when they committed six turnovers. A six-point burst, however, put Kentucky back in front for good. Tom Parker led the Wildcats with 24 points and Kent Hollenbeck added 23. Will Robinson netted 29 for the losing Mountaineers. Ohio State, seeking to regain its former national prominence, ripped Alabama, 74-54, in an intercollegiate contest. Allan Hornyak led the Buckeye attack with 23 points, including some long-range marksmanship from the floor.

In other top games, Duke mauled Michigan, 95-74; Oregon State tripped Utah, 91-75; Duquesne beat American University, 81-70; Colorado dropped Texas-El Paso, 78-68; Purdue coasted to a 90-74 victory over Texas Christian and Houston nipped the University of Florida, 61-60.

These victories were achieved as Randy Denton scored 35 points for Duke; guards Freddie Boyd and Mike Keck accounted for 39 points as Oregon State pinned Utah with its third consecutive loss; Mickey Davis scored 27 points and Duquesne hit 19 of 20 foul shots in beating American U; 6-8 center Cliff Meely scored 28 points and grabbed 15 rebounds as the Colorado Buffalo held off Texas-El Paso with a full court press; TCU's Gene Kennedy's 30 points couldn't contain a more potent Purdue offense; and Larry Brown's deciding foul throw helped Houston creep past Florida by one point.

Would You Believe The Astrodome For Muhammad Ali-Frazier Bout?

Would you believe that the upcoming Muhammad Ali (Cassius Clay) — Joe Frazier fight in the Astrodome might bring in more than a million dollars?

Well, would you believe... two million dollars?

It just might bring in two million dollars at the "live gate." That's what John D. O'Connell, senior vice president for Astrodome Inc., believes.

"The Madison Square Garden people are scaling their 22,000 seats for a potential 1 1/2 million dollars," O'Connell said of the Astrodome's apparent chief competition for staging of the fight which may happen in mid-February, 1971.

"New York would have to get an average of $60 a seat to gross 1 1/2 million dollars," O'Connell said. "The Astrodome would have to average only $30 a seat to get 2 million dollars."

"That means we could have a lot of lower-priced tickets. We think a fight of this magnitude should be seen by everyone who really wants to see it," O'Connell, one of the officials for Judge Roy Hofheinz and Astrodome Championship Enterprises, Inc.

The record now for an indoor live gate is $502,000, from the March 13, 1961 fight between Ingemar Johansson and Floyd Patterson in Miami's Convention Center.

Since Ali (or Clay) downed Oscar Bonavena Monday night (Dec. 7), the bidding is due to be hot and heavy to schedule an Ali-Frazier fight for Monday, Feb. 15.

Ali and Frazier, both undefeated and both near the peaks of their boxing careers, pose a situation which seldom happens in the fight game. The talents of the big, strong and quick Ali versus the perpetual-motion, sledge-hammer aggressive Frazier would be matched for the first time.

HEIR APPARENT TO UCLA?

Maryland Priming For Big Push Against UCLA

By MARTY RALBOVSKY

NEW YORK (NEA)—If the balance of power in college basketball is ever going to shift eastward from the University of California at Los Angeles, its probable resting place for the first half of the 1970s will be College Park, Md. The University of Maryland is right where UCLA was five years ago as a potential basketball power.

In 1965, UCLA had a freshman player from Power Memorial Academy in New York named Ferdinand Lewis Alcindor Jr., who was 7-foot-1 and rated the best prospect in college basketball since Wilt Chamberlain a decade earlier. This fall, Maryland has a 6-foot-11 freshman from Mansfield, Pa., named Tom McMillen. Naturally, he is being rated the best college prospect since Alcindor.

The difference between the schools at comparative stages is in the philosophy of their coaches. Whereas John Wooden coaches UCLA with homespun clichés and an iron hand, C. C. (Lefty) Driesell coaches Maryland with the flamboyance of a street-corner pitcher. Wooden traditionally has approached games with the somberness of a surgeon in mid-incision. Driesell has been as glancingly omnipresent as the red mid-court stripe.

Clearly, the men, their philosophies and their basketball teams are on a collision course that might not bisect for another two years. But when they do, the match-up will not be merely UCLA vs. Maryland. It also will pair the decades, 1960 vs. 1970. If Wooden is representative of the old school of coaching basketball, then Driesell best typifies the new breed. It is scholar vs. salesman.

So opposite are these men in their approaches to the game, their geographical locations illustrate — in a literal sense — the gap between them. Wooden, for example, does not recruit players himself. He prefers aloofness and stands far above the battle for high school hotshots. All the recruiting at UCLA is done by subordinates — his coaching staff. Driesell, however, is rapidly becoming the most successful recruiter among college coaches and his coup of McMillen — he pulled him from under North Carolina's nose at the last minute — enhances his reputation.

"I have always felt that high school players will seek out schools with winning traditions," said Wooden. "I do not believe in this business of high-pressure recruiting. I believe in allowing prospective recruits to see our university and to learn about our program first-hand, but the final decision is theirs. Influencing a player's decision with pressure is something I will not do."

"Recruiting," said Driesell, "is the name of the game. I don't particularly like chasing a bunch of high school kids around, entangling them on visits. But it's a fact of life in college basketball. In order to get players who will make up a winning team, you have to recruit them. There's no other way."

Although Wooden has never placed ads in newspapers in attempts to lure players, and has never staged elaborate press conferences to announce to the world that they have signed letters-of-intent, Driesell has. Wooden's gimmicks are full-court zone presses. Driesell's are geared more for full-page newspaper presses.

"I do not seek publicity or acclaim," said Wooden. "I feel publicity breeds controversy and controversy is a threat to the unity of any team. I do not allow my players to be interviewed because it puts them at the mercy of people who are trying to sell newspapers with controversy. I feel college basketball players are no match for experienced newspapermen. So, if anybody wants to know anything about my teams, let them ask me."

"Publicity," said Driesell, "is the name of the game. You get alumni reading about your team and they send checks. You get high school kids reading about your team and they want to play on it. You have to do things with publicity in mind. Before the start of every season, I take my players on a mile run at 6 in the morning. I tell them, 'You gotta work hard, you gotta make sacrifices, you gotta out-work the other guy. But the real reason I hold it at 6 in the morning is because a lot of silly sportswriters are going to get up early to cover it. They think it's something special. I hold it at 3 in the afternoon, and you know what? Nobody covers it.'"

Personal ambition is another paradox between them. Wooden has spent his entire college coaching career at UCLA. Two years ago he turned down a coaching offer estimated at $50,000 a year from Jack Kent Cooke, owner of the Los Angeles Lakers of the NBA. Driesell has made one college switch already (Davidson to Maryland) and does not rule out the possibility of coaching in one of the professional leagues some day.

"I'm perfectly content right where I am," said Wooden. "I enjoy dealing with young people and I enjoy the level of the game."

"It's only natural for a coach to have ambition, just like anyone else," said Driesell. "Sure, I'd like to coach a pro team some day."

Wooden speaks extensively of coaching clinics and at basketball camps; and makes occasional after-dinner talks. Driesell has his own basketball camp, plus weekly radio and television shows. He owns a restaurant near Davidson College in North Carolina and plans to open another one near the Maryland campus in College Park. Neither has a classroom schedule, but they both describe themselves as "educators."

Clay Barely Out And Calling Frazier

NEW YORK (UPI)—Cassius Clay was hardly out of the ring after his 15th-round technical knockout of Oscar Bonavena, but now Joe Frazier was on his mind.

"I'm sore, tired and I don't want to fight no more," said Clay, who was gored and butted by Bonavena before finally ending the evening's frustration with three knockdowns in the last round for a technical knockout with just 57 seconds left.

But then Yank Durham, the manager of Frazier, who won the heavyweight title after Clay was stripped of the crown and banned from boxing in 1967, stuck his head in the ring. Frazier and Clay will meet here in February. "Joe says you'll go in six," Durham said. "I'm done with all that predicting myself," the 28-year-old Clay replied, "but I'll have some words for him later."

The Bull Gores

For nearly the entire fight, the bull from Argentina had gored and butted away at Clay, a matador in red-tasseled dancing shoes. Bonavena's headgear, across the ring and wild low blow at the opening bell let Clay know exactly what was going to be in store for him. The referee, Mark Conn, frowned on Bonavena's tactics early, however, and took that first round away from him.

In the eighth, Clay's stabbing left finally drew blood from Bonavena's nose, lifting the deposed champion's hopes that he could make his prediction for a ninth-round knockout come true.

From the start of the ninth, Clay, who had an eight-pound advantage at 212, came down off his toes and went for the knockout, and he wound up being staggered himself. Clay fell to the canvas in a vain attempt to connect with the stopper, and Bonavena came back after being momentarily stunned to bloody Clay's mouth and send him reeling back to his corner.

Even at the end, Clay couldn't put the bull down for good. The matador had hoped for a cruel kill, but Bonavena got up after being clubbed to the canvas for the third time for an automatic technical knockout.

Clay Leads

Until the TKO, the scorecards all had Clay leading. Conn had it 12-2, while the judges had 10-3-1 and 8-5-1.

"That man is better than I thought," admitted Clay. "He's better than Joe Frazier. I sure know I won't need another tune-up for Frazier."

"This man, he the champion," Bonavena said, pointing to Clay.

The victory was the 31st in a row and 25th knockout for Clay. It was Bonavena's seventh loss against 46 victories and marked the first time he had ever been stopped.

A crowd of 19,417 paid $615,401 to watch the bout.

Cleveland Browns Slip By A Shaken Up Houston Quarterback

HOUSTON (UPI)—The Cleveland Browns are so determined to beat cross-state rival Cincinnati for the AFC's Central Division crown they passed up a day off this week and returned to work at noon today to begin preparing for Saturday's game with the Dallas Cowboys.

The players decided to skip the day of rest during a quick meeting in the locker room of the Astrodome Monday night after beating the Houston Oilers, 21-10. That put the Browns in a first-place tie with Coach Paul Brown's Bengals, each with 5-6 records with only two games to go.

Coach Swanton Collier of the Browns said he planned to give the players the day off, "but they insisted they wanted to come back and decided to meet at noon."

Collier said the Browns' goal-line stand in the second quarter was the turning point of the game. Trailing 3-0, the Browns stopped the Oilers' Joe Dawkins twice inside the one-yard line midway through the second period.

A Matter of Luck

Tackle Jim Houston, who calls defensive plays for the Browns, said his line slanted the correct way both times, first to the left to stop Dawkins going off right tackle and then to the right to stop Dawkins as he headed for left end.

"It's just a matter of sheer luck," Houston said. "If we slant the wrong way, it's a touchdown. Individually, Ron Snidow, a second team defensive end, was the star of the stand. He moved inside the blockers to stop Dawkins the first time and then raced over to help linebacker Billy Andrews and end Jack Gregory stop him the second time.

Then the Browns drove 99 and two-thirds yards to score and go ahead 7-3 with eight seconds remaining in the first half. The key play in the drive was a third-down-and-seven draw play from their own 4 when Leroy Kelly broke for 32 yards to put the ball out of danger.

Nelsen Throws 26 Yards

The next test as a third-and-eight situation on the Brown 38 and quarterback Bill Nelsen threw 26 yards to wide receiver Fair Hooker to put the ball on the Houston 36.

Harvesters And Shockers Will Meet Plainview Bulldogs Tonight

The bustling Pampa Harvesters will enter the cage tonight against the Plainview Bulldogs at 8:00 p.m. in Harvester Fieldhouse.

The Harvesters will be trying to bounce back against the Bulldogs after a Top O' Texas loss to the Dumas Demons. Pampa lost the TOT Tourney for the first time in sixteen years this past week-end in a Saturday night game.

The Pampa Shockers will play before the Varsity game against the Plainview Jr. Varsity after coming in second in the Borger Jr. Varsity Tournament held the 4th and 5th of December.

The Shockers were defeated by the Borger Jr. Varsity squad in an 8:30 game Saturday night.

Both of Pampa's teams need support from the area fans and with the proper support shown should rally behind the coaching staff and tally two wins tonight in Harvester Fieldhouse.

Thursday night the Harvesters and Shockers will square off against Lamar, Colorado, in a home game.

PAMPA Business News...

B & B PHARMACY, located at the corner of Ballard and Browning Streets in Pampa, has offered top service in the drug and cosmetic field to area consumers since 1953. Other departments offer a wide selection of gifts for the holiday shopper. (News Photo)

B And B Pharmacy Continues Top Service

Since 1953, Pharmacists at B and B Pharmacy have been filling their customer's prescriptions needs. They guarantee complete customer satisfaction on their pharmacy. The pharmacists at B and B are highly-trained and have had many years of experience. They stock over 10,000 medicines and offer complete pharmacy service at all times including Sundays. B and B Pharmacy also offers "over-the-counter" medicines, Dr. Scholl's remedies, and is equipped to meet all everyday drug and first-aid needs.

B and B Pharmacy strives to serve their customers in other departments. The gift department at B and B Pharmacy is an ideal place to shop for Christmas. The department carries such things as costume jewelry, colognes, perfumes, glassware, billfolds, and other items.

For the men, B and B stocks goods to meet all shaving needs and men's fragrances. The pharmacy carries English Leather, in the regular or lemon-lime scent; "That Man" by Revlon; Old Spice; Robert Denny; Black Belt; and Signorico.

In women's fragrances, B and B offers Nia Ricci, Lanvin, Crepe di Shine, Coty, Faberge, and Vitabath. Several well-known lines of beauty aids are stocked including Frances Denny, Dorothy Gray, Revlon, Bonnie Bell, and Allercreme. The coffee shop in B and B Pharmacy serves hungry customers every day. Lunches, sandwiches, ice cream, malts, and soft drinks are on the menu.

Seven employees operate the establishment, directed by F.L. Stone, owner, and Mrs. Lucille Foster, co-owner. Be sure to go to B and B Pharmacy, located at Browning and Ballard, to shop for your Christmas needs.

Gasoline Prices
West Germany's Transport Minister George Leber wants to increase the price of gasoline to "substantially" improve and expand the nation's highway network. The price is currently 16.3 cents per gallon. The move could become a big political issue for the Christian Democratic opposition. Leber's scheme has not yet been approved by the cabinet.

Independent Consumer Protection Agency Dies on Floor of Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Status of major legislation, second session of 91st Congress: Consumer House Rules Committee killed Senate-passed legislation to establish an independent consumer protection agency.

Crime—Senate passed a three-year, $3.55 billion authorization bill, $400 million more than House earlier approved. Differences to be reconciled.

Taxes—House has yet to vote on a $4.1 billion tax package for fiscal 1971 and fiscal 1972—excluding Nixon's proposed $1.6 billion anti-pollution tax on lead in gasoline.

Trade—House has passed trade legislation to restrict imports of shoes and textiles. Senate Finance Committee tentatively approved similar legislation.

Manpower—House passed a $7.5 billion, three year authorization bill. Senate has passed a similar $12 billion version.

Equality—House approved a proposed constitutional amendment to bar discrimination based on sex. Senate has not agreed.

Housing—Senate passed $4 billion authorization bill extending federal aid housing programs for one year. House approved a $2.4 billion bill.

Aid—House Foreign Affairs Committee voted to authorize $500 million for Cambodia, South Korea, Indonesia, Jordan, Lebanon and South Vietnam. Earlier, $500 million had been authorized for Israel. Senate Appropriations Committee considering $1.035 billion appropriation.

Safety—Senate passed occupational health and safety bill. House passed a substitute measure.

Hijack—House passed bill to provide 2,500 air marshals to guard against hijackers. Boosted $4 head tax paid by international passengers to $5 to produce $34 million revenue in fiscal 1971 and $57 million in fiscal 1972.

Military—House passed $66.8 billion defense appropriation bill.

Impeach—House judiciary subcommittee found no grounds to recommend impeachment of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

Pay—House and Senate conferees expected to approve a bill to give federal workers automatic pay raises.

Welfare—Senate Finance Committee voted to kill the House-passed plan of minimum annual income for poor families.

Food Stamps—House Agriculture Committee approved a three-year program. Senate bill passed earlier.

Vietnam War—The Senate voted to limit future U.S. combat operations in Cambodia. House had turned down Senate language. Issue now is in conference.

Pollution—House passed $1 billion toward the program in fiscal 1971. Senate approved a bill requiring automakers to eliminate 90 per cent exhaust pollutants by 1975. House-Senate conferees agreed tentatively to the Senate provision on auto exhaust but other differences remain to be resolved.

Obscenity—House passed bill banning the mailing of obscene material to youths under 17. Senate passed a bill requiring mailers to identify on envelopes whether contents contain sexual advertising.

SST—House approved $290 million appropriation for fiscal 1971. Senate eliminated the funds. The controversy still must be resolved by the House ratifying Senate action or by a House-Senate conference committee.

Social Security—House approved 5 per cent benefits increase to begin Jan. 1, 1971. Senate Finance Committee boosted increase to 10 per cent.

Revenue Sharing—No house hearings. Senate has held hearings.

Electoral—House approved constitutional amendment to abolish Electoral College and replace it with direct popular elections of the President. Senate dropped debate after sponsors failed to cut off discussion.

Bankholdings—House passed a measure that would break up all holding companies controlling banks. Senate has approved a bill to require divestiture of banks by certain holding companies. Differences being resolved.

Strikes—No congressional action.

Votes Overridden
Hospitals—House (279-98) and Senate (76-19) overrode Nixon veto of $2.79 billion authorizing a three year continuation of hospital construction program.
Schools—House (289-114) and
