

Court won't block tests by RRC

From Wire and Staff Reports
AUSTIN — "White oil" producers in the Panhandle Field have lost another battle in what one says has become a "Panhandle War."
State District Judge Harley Clark on Tuesday rejected a request by white oil producers to block temporarily a Railroad Commission order that requires retesting of their wells.
Retesting, in fact, already has begun among those wells that use refrigeration — or LTX — units to chill vapor into a white-water liquid the producers call oil.
Some producers have acknowledged that if the commission disallows white oil in calculating whether a well is an oil well or gas well, they would have to shut down their wells.

An oil well is defined as a well that produces one barrel of oil per 100,000 cubic feet of gas, and operators who own only oil rights must have their wells classified as an oil well to produce. The tests would establish whether the wells in question can meet the criteria for an oil well without the refrigeration units.
Phillips Petroleum Co and others maintain that the white oil producer are really just taking gas that Phillips and others who own gas rights eventually would produce.
Another advantage to having a well classified as an oil well is that one can be drilled on 10 acres. A gas well requires 640 acre-spacing. Nineteen independent operators in the 15 million-acre Panhandle Field asked Clark for a temporary restraining order to halt testing of the LTX wells, which was set out in a May 13 Railroad Commission order.

Lawyers for the independents said their clients would suffer irreparable harm if the judge allowed the testing to continue.
Three witnesses testified at a 5½-hour hearing Tuesday, after which Clark issued an immediate ruling.
Bill Warnick of Lubbock, president of Aspen Petroleum, Inc., said his company had drilled 30 wells at a cost of $250,000 a well, and the majority now use LTX units. Asked if the commission's order could put his company's investment in jeopardy, Warnick replied, "Yes sir."

He said it would cost $1,000 a well to retest Aspen's wells, and he was asked if he could afford the $30,000 total cost. "No, sir, I'm barely hanging on," he replied.
Warnick also said Aspen had not been paid for the past couple of years for casinghead gas, a byproduct of oil production, because the money was going into escrow.
Asked why Aspen had not been paid, Warnick said, "It's all these proceedings that are generally known as the Panhandle War that's been going on since 1981."
That was the year Phillips first went before the Railroad Commission to challenge white oil operators.

Austin lawyer Ivan Hafley, representing the white oil operators, described the commission order as "onerous, expensive and abnormal," but Jim Morrow, director of the commission's Oil and Gas Division, said he had heard testing costs reported as low as under $300 a well.
Morrow also testified that unless an operator refused to retest a well, no action would be taken by the commission until after Sept. 1, when the results of the testing could be reviewed. Operators refusing new tests would be subject to having their wells shut down.

Morris Enlow, who runs a well testing service in Pampa, testified that extra equipment required in the new tests would run his bid up from approximately $75 a well to $1,000 a well.
Asked if he was concerned some clients might not be able to pay, Enlow said, "Yes, I do have concern about that." He said new clients would be required to pay in advance.
Hafley said if producers put out money for new tests and then the commission order was held invalid, the producers could not recover their money.

Area joins observance of July 4th

Staff report
Pampa area residents will have several opportunities to celebrate American independence Thursday, the 4th of July.
City, state and federal offices, banks and the Pampa News business office will be closed Thursday for Independence Day. The post office will be open for box and machine patrons, but there will be no regular window service or mail delivery will be closed.
Most offices and businesses closing Thursday will reopen Friday.
Canadian and Panhandle are among the area towns that will honor the Fourth. Canadian's celebration will be highlighted by its 97th annual Rodeo, a three day event which is said to be the oldest amateur rodeo anywhere.
Festivities begin at 10 a.m. Thursday with a parade through downtown. An Old Timer's reunion will follow at 11 a.m. at city hall with a barbecue — free with an advance rodeo ticket — at noon on the courthouse lawn. Other games include a wild cow milking contest for city businessmen and a wild horse race. Rodeo will begin at 2:30 p.m. Other rodeo performances will be at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday. A fireworks display will be held at nightfall.
Panhandle's celebration will include a Fun Run at 8 a.m., a parade at 9:30 a.m. and the Miss Carson County Contest at 3 p.m. on the courthouse steps. Among the 13 contestants will be Staci Thompson, Shannon Paul, Tami Canaday, Lesli Lemons and Cathy Williams of White Deer and Suni Barnett, Misti Kingston, Jami Duke and Robbie Kuehler of Groom. Entertainment will be provided throughout the afternoon at the courthouse. There will be a fireworks display at the Panhandle Country Club at dusk.

The city of White Deer will sponsor supervised fireworks popping from 8 - 11 p.m. at the Community Center. A city secretary said the activity will be supervised by the fire department and city marshal.
The Texas Department of Public Safety estimates that as many as 17 people will die in traffic accidents in the state during the 30-hour July 4 Holiday period. Last year, 20 people died in Texas crashes during the holiday. Three additional fatalities resulting from serious injuries pushed the final total to 23.
"In an effort to limit the number of deaths, additional DPS troopers will again be patrolling rural roads and highways during the holiday period," said Colonel Jim Adams of the DPS.
Since this is usually a time of celebration, many believe the best way to celebrate is by drinking and then driving. DPS Major Vernon Cawthon warns "anyone can be a problem once they are on the highway. Many of these drivers go undetected until they get into a tight traffic situation, at which time a brain depressed by alcohol cannot think fast enough to keep them out of an accident producing situation."
Cawthon added "If you are planning a trip this 4th of July, be mindful of these things: the best way to have a safe, accident-free holiday is by not drinking and driving, observing all traffic laws and wearing seatbelts.

COMFORT—President Reagan hugs Sherry Sierralta, sister of Robert Stethem, as First Lady Nancy Reagan looks on Tuesday at Arlington National Cemetery after the President and Mrs. Reagan laid a wreath at Stethem's grave. Reagan welcomes hostages, sees 'unfinished business'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, saluting the end of the terror-filled odyssey of TWA Flight 847, says "the homecoming won't be complete" until seven Americans still held captive in Lebanon finally are back home.
Reagan expressed a "deep felt sigh of relief" at nearby Andrews Air Force Base Tuesday as he welcomed 30 Americans back to U.S. soil 18 days after their flight was hijacked by Lebanese terrorists.
"There's only one thing to say, and I say it from the bottom of my heart in the name of all the people of our country: Welcome home," Reagan said as scores of relatives of the former hostages looked on.
But the festive air of the occasion was muted somewhat by what the president clearly saw as the unfinished business of Lebanese terrorism.
Alluding to the murder of Robert Stetham, 23, a U.S. Navy diver who was shot to death the day after the hijacking, Reagan said, "There will be no forgetting His murderers must be brought to justice."
En route to the arrival ceremony at Andrews, Reagan and his wife stopped at Arlington National Cemetery and laid a wreath at Stetham's grave.
"They beat Robbie Stethem without mercy, then shot him to death," Reagan said a few minutes later at Andrews. "Our joy at your return is substantial, but so is our pain at what was done to that son of America."
He expressed bitterness about the continued detention of the seven Americans who have been kidnaped in Lebanon over the past 16 months and remain in detention. "They must be released," the president said. "The homecoming won't be complete until all have come home."
The seven are Terry Anderson, Associated Press

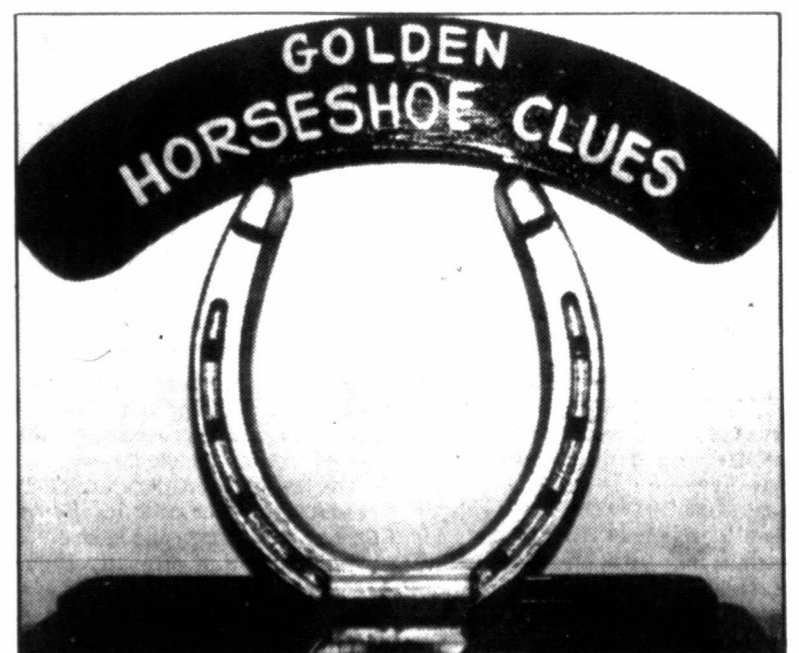

Beirut bureau chief; David Jacobsen, administrator of the American University Hospital in Beirut; William Buckley, a political officer at the U.S. embassy; the Rev. Benjamin Weir, a Presbyterian minister; Thomas Sutherland, dean of the Agriculture Department at the American University; Peter Kilburn, a university librarian; and the Rev. Martin Lawrence Jenco, head of Catholic Relief Services in Lebanon.
Peggy Say, Anderson's sister, said she was led by the administration to believe last week that the seven would be released along with the hostages of the TWA flight.
Declaring "I'm sorry and I'm sad" that the seven remain in captivity, Ms. Say told ABC News, "I no longer believe what these people (administration officials) are saying."
She added that she and other family members plan to go to Damascus to encourage Syrian President Hafez Assad to help free the seven. A senior State Department official who briefed reporters Tuesday night said Assad already is engaged in such an effort.
Meanwhile, the State Department said Tuesday it might undertake "unilateral efforts" against the hijackers of Flight 847 if Lebanese authorities fail to take appropriate action on their own.
Department spokesman Bernard Kalb, noting that Lebanon is a member of two international conventions which require it to try to extradite hijackers, said, "We believe that Lebanon has a responsibility to act under the terms of these conventions."
Kalb left open the possibility of future military action when he said that if the diplomatic approach fails, "we at least have laid a basis for further, unilateral efforts in appropriate circumstances."

Two teacher positions cut at high school

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer
Two teachers have been eliminated from departments at Pampa High School under a reduction of force resulting from declining student enrollments in their areas.
Trustees of the Pampa Independent School District approved the reduction of personnel during their regular board meeting Tuesday evening.
Losing their local school district positions are Dorothy Farrington, art teacher, and Johnny Pond, vocational agriculture instructor.
Supt. James Trusty said the reduction was necessitated because of "a marked decline" in enrollment in the Vocational Agriculture Department and the Arts and Crafts Department. The drop in enrollment created a need to reduce financial expenditures for personnel in those departments, he explained.
Presenting the request for the reduction effort at the June 18 board meeting, Trusty said the enrollment decrease likely resulted from students choosing fewer electives in order to take more academic courses toward graduation, a situation resulting from last year's educational reforms.
Trusty said the department personnel were ranked on certification, performance, professional background and seniority with the district in determining which ones would be subject to the reduction.
The affected personnel were sent written notification of the action on June 19. They had 10 days in which to make a written appeal of the action, he said, but he had received no appeal from either teacher.
Farrington's position will be terminated effective Aug. 26. Pond's reduction action was effective Monday; he was under different contract terms than Farrington, resulting in the earlier dismissal, Trusty explained.
In other action, the trustees approved on second reading Policy Update No. 24, incorporating recommendations presented by the policy service of the Texas Association of School Boards.

Trusty explained most of the changes are based on Chapter 75 requirements established by House Bill 246 about two years ago.
Among the changes is a policy on student activities and contests. The policy update requires athletic directors to submit tentative athletic schedules to the middle school and high school principals, with final approval coming from the district.
The policy change also requires equal efforts to be made to both boys and girls athletics.
In response to a question from trustee David Robertson, Trusty explained the district periodically receives recommended policy changes from TASB based on legislation, court decisions and reviews by the TASB legal staff.
"Or we can originate policy changes" by local action, he said. But those changes have to be checked by the TASB legal staff to make certain they don't violate state laws or other regulations.
Many changes in the past couple of years are arising from HB 246 and House Bill 72, Trusty said. "It's a very big job for the policy service of TASB" to keep up with all the changes, he said.
In other business, the school board
- designated KGRO as the official radio station for 1985-1986 for coverage of school athletic activities;
- selected Lewis Meers CPA firm as the independent auditor for the district's accounts in 1984-1985;
- approved a written transfer agreement with the Grandview-Hopkins Independent School District to accept its students in grades 7 through 12;
- and awarded the depository bank bid for district funds to Citizens Bank and Trust Co. of Pampa.
In other matters, trustees awarded bids totaling approximately $3,500 to six athletic

Groom decides to proceed with building animal shelter

By CATHY SPAULDING Staff Writer

GROOM — Errant city animals will soon find themselves with a new shelter now that city officials have approved plans for a new building.
City council members discussed the shelter and a stiffer animal control ordinance Tuesday at their regular meeting.
The shelter will replace the current shelter, a small cage about four to five feet high located next to the city garage. The city has had problems with residents breaking into the cages to retrieve their animals since most of the dogs caught are residents' pets.
The new shelter will be a 16 x 6 foot cinderblock structure with a sloping floor and four 3 x 6 foot dog pens. The front of the shelter will consist of a wire gate that will go four feet up the wall.
Area resident Herman Leven has offered to build the shelter, which city officials estimate will cost about $2,700. The construction cost will be paid through the city's $7,700 in revenue sharing funds. Because the work will be under $5,000 city officials feel they do not have to go out for bids.
Council members studied the Panhandle animal control ordinance to see how they can adapt it to Groom. At their last meeting, council members considered levying a fine of $25 for the first time a resident's dog is picked up with an additional $10 tacked on if the animal is caught again.

But council member Jerry Gaines wondered whether the $25 pound fee is "a little too high."
"I don't think it can be too high," answered council member Bob Babcock. "The reason for the fee is that it may discourage them from doing it more than one time."
Council members agreed that as long as the dogs wear proof of rabies vaccination, issuing dog licenses would not be necessary. City secretary Pat Ashford said that issuing licenses would be a problem.
In other business, Ashford read a letter from the Texas Department of Health reporting on its latest inspection of city facilities. As it had done in the past, the health department cited the city for an inadequate water supply and an storage tank that is too small. However, the health inspector noted that the city is working to remedy the water situation.
The city is revamping and increasing its water system through a $200,000 grant from the Texas Department of Community Affairs. Bids for building the new water tank and booster pump station came in lower than city officials called for, according to engineer Dwight Brandt, who is working with the city on the project.

Council members accepted a bid of $64,600 from Tank Builders of Eules to build the tank. Although its estimated construction time of 240 days is longer than those of the other bidders — 180 days for Scott Taylor of Hereford and 150 days for Sapulpa Tank Co. of Oklahoma — Brandt said the work can be completed by April of 1986. Also accepted was a bid of $102,402 from Novacks Construction for a booster pump station.
"That leaves almost $25,000 left on the grant," he said, suggesting that the city look into repainting current tanks or repairing city fire plugs. City officials authorized Brandt to look into the costs of the additional work.
Council members also voted to disconnect the volunteer ambulance extension from the city telephone line. Ashford said that the ambulance calls were tying up the city line. Council members agreed that the ambulance can afford its own line.
City officials also studied the proposed 1986 city general fund and water works budget and agreed to grant city employees a five percent raise.
Ashford, who prepared the budget, anticipates total expenses of $56,736 in the general fund and $121,850 in the water works fund. The largest expense in the general fund is $15,000 for salaries, including Ashford's. In the water fund, salaries take up $32,000 while telephone and utilities take up $27,000.
City officials are expected to vote on the budget later this summer.

Jobless rate still going up and down

The unemployment rates in Pampa and Gray County continued their up and down pattern in May, according to the local Texas Employment Commission office.
The unemployment rate in both the city and county climbed six-tenths of a percent in May, after dropping nearly a full point in April.

Figures released by Charles Vance, director of the Pampa TEC office, showed Pampa with a jobless rate of 5.5 percent and Gray County with 5.6. The city rate was up from 4.9 percent the previous month and the county rate climbed from 5.0 percent.

Three slain in robbery

EDMOND, Okla. (AP) — The night manager of a grocery store and two employees were "laid face down on the floor and shot execution-style" during an apparent robbery today, authorities said.

The bodies were found in a storeroom of Wynn's IGA store by a bakery worker arriving at work shortly before 4 a.m., said police Lt. Mike Woodridge.

The victims were identified as Rick Cast, 33, night manager of the store for six months; John Barrier, 27, who had worked at the store two weeks; and Chumpon Chaowanin of Thailand, a student at nearby Central State University, who had worked at the store for about a week.

Oklahoma County District Attorney Bob Macy said investigators theorized all three were shot in the back of the head with a large-caliber weapon.
"We're speculating there had to be more than one person involved," Macy said. "We have three store employees that were gathered up, taken to the back room, taken to the northwest corner, laid face down on the floor and shot execution-style."
"There is no question that they were killed to keep the robber or robbers from identifying them," Macy said.
Woodridge said it was the worst crime ever in Edmond, a bedroom community near Oklahoma City.

Official: phone bill hike would hurt state

AUSTIN (AP) — Southwestern Bell's rate hike request could produce a double-whammy for Texans' wallets — higher phone bills and a state tax hike, according to a lawyer for the state.

State government can't afford the 18.5 percent increase the Bell rate package would involve, said Assistant Attorney General Scott McCollough.

"We'd have to find it somewhere, either through personnel reduction, reducing services or reducing the number of telephone lines. Certainly, that's not in the public interest. We need those telephone lines," said McCollough.

The state now pays Southwestern Bell about $40 million a year, he said.

McCollough's comments came on the first day of company testimony in Bell's $277 million rate hike request. If approved, the request would mean an increase of about $1.50 on monthly residential phone bills.

During questioning of Jim Adams, Bell's Texas president, McCollough mentioned the possibility of a tax hike to pay the phone bill.

"That would be one way," Adams replied. McCollough and Allen King, representing the Texas Retailers Association, also questioned Adams about Bell's request to add a 5 percent penalty to business phone bills not paid on time. Adams said the company is looking for ways to combat business customers who intentionally pay late. In some cases, King said, it takes awhile for business customers to review lengthy, complicated bills.

Adams replied, "It is not our intent to penalize customers with late charges on the basis of some error Southwestern Bell has made. What we are attempting to do is simply provide for a more prompt payment of bills than we have previously seen."

Bell is not seeking a late charge for residential customers.

"Residential customers on occasion do pay late," said Adams. "They do not pay as late as businesses do, who have a concerted effort" to pay as late as possible.

The lawyers took over the case Tuesday after comments from just one consumer. The case continued today. No consumers showed up Monday for a session set aside to hear Texans' thoughts on Bell's plan that would raise monthly residential bills by about $1.50.

Dentist plans a Independence parade

SWEETWATER, Texas (AP) — A dentist who discovered this West Texas city had planned no Independence Day celebration has organized a "March for America" in its place.

Dr. Al Densmore said he was disappointed when he learned no patriotic observances were planned in his hometown. His Fourth of July parade was scheduled for 9 a.m. Thursday.

"When I was a kid on the Fourth of July, there were always parades and picnics," said the Wisconsin native.

Densmore, 65, said the mayor confirmed Tuesday that municipal officials had no citywide plans to celebrate Independence Day.

The World War II veteran then organized the impromptu Fourth of July parade to the courthouse. He urged participants to meet at a grocery store parking lot for the march.

"This is going to be a 'March for America,'" said Densmore. "It's going to be a visible expression of our patriotism, of our love for our country."

Densmore said everyone with an uniform should join the parade and bring a flag. He said the parade was not limited to veterans.

He said he remains optimistic about the turnout because "I feel like there's a whole lot of people who would like to express their gratitude to their country and to God."

"It's going to be fun, whether there's only one or an army of us," he said, adding that the police department has agreed to "protect us from getting run down."

He said he has advertisements for the parade in the Sweetwater Reporter and on radio station KXOX.

Densmore, a B-24 pilot during World War II, came to Sweetwater during his flight training. He retired from the Air Force with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Lucas no-billed in three murder cases

WACO, Texas (AP) — A McLennan County grand jury has cleared Henry Lee Lucas in three murder cases after testimony from his attorney, a jail counselor, Texas Rangers and others.

Grand jurors deliberated less than 15 minutes on Tuesday before deciding that Lucas was not responsible for the 1977 murder of Glen Parks of Bellmead, the 1978 murder of Rita Salazar of Georgetown or the 1981 murder of Dorothy Collins of Waco.

The bodies of all three homicide victims were found in McLennan County.

J.R. Closs, grand jury foreman, presented State District Judge

George Allen with the jury's decision around 4 p.m., ending the inquiry that spanned 83 days and included testimony from about 20 witnesses.

But Attorney General Jim Mattox said his office will continue to investigate Lucas' travels from 1975-1983.

Lucas, now on Death Row, has confessed in hundreds of murders across the nation. But Clemmie Schroeder, the Georgetown jail minister who spent hours counseling with Lucas at Williamson County Jail, said Tuesday she does not believe Lucas committed any murders.

Ms. Schroeder, who spent about two hours testifying on Tuesday, said she brought with her "some old letters I had from Henry, and his daily prayer journal."

"He was made to confess to two murders that he was not guilty of, and then he wanted to kill himself instead of serving life in prison," she said.

"At the time, he thought that maybe he'd be able to show how law enforcement forced him to confess to those crimes. But then he got caught up in the lies and felt he was helping the families by solving cases. Also, it kept him off Death Row as long as he continued to confess," she said.

Parker McCollough, the Georgetown attorney who defended Lucas in the death of an unidentified hitchhiker, testified for about two hours Tuesday afternoon.

McCollough said he does not believe Lucas was responsible for the slaying of the woman, whose body was found near Georgetown on Oct. 31, 1979.

"I don't think he was involved in the number (of murders) I've heard," McCollough said.

Sgt. Bob Prince of the Texas Rangers spent about 20 minutes testifying.

God bless America!

Friday night Wanetta Hill sang a medley of patriotic songs at the Pampa Masonic Lodge No. 966 installation of officers that brought goose bumps to my skin and tears to my eyes.

Lately I've felt pretty jaded when it came to patriotism. I just haven't seen a whole lot to feel patriotic about. Even thoughts of the Fourth of July coming up didn't bring a stir of pride in my country to my heart.

But it must not be dead, because those songs thrilled me to the core.

When I was six years old, I learned "God Bless America" at school. (I wonder if the Supreme Court allows kids to sing that in school anymore?) That afternoon I laid on my back on the sidewalk, looking up at clouds skimming the blue sky, and sang that song with all my heart. I had just learned to say the Pledge of Allegiance, too, and I felt pretty big about it. I was a tried and true patriot and I wasn't even in the second grade, yet!

When I attended junior high in McLean, I helped write their annual "American Heritage Play," two years in a row. I was honored to have the opportunity to express my feelings for my country and to share them with my friends and family.

Then I moved to Minden, La., to a junior high at least five times as large as what I was used to. One of the first things we eighth graders were asked to do that year was to write an essay on "What Americanism Means To Me." I don't remember what I wrote. I remember I felt strongly about it. And apparently, what I wrote affected others, because my essay was read to the whole school over the intercom one morning. That moment turned out to be a good icebreaker in changing from "just a new kid" to someone everybody knew.

My patriotism was bright and shining then. My country could do no wrong, and I would do anything I could for my country.

Since then, my feelings have changed. I once thought that I no longer felt patriotism towards my country at all.

But I do I'm disillusioned with a lot of things I see being done in the civic realm and all the way to federal government. I see so many freedoms being slowly taken away. So slowly they're hardly noticed until it's too late. I see our country's constitution being twisted every which way — but it is still holding on. And so am I.

I may not like a lot of things about this country, but I still love it. I'm not giving up on it yet. The Stars and Stripes waving in the breeze puts a lump in my throat and I can't sing "God Bless America" and "My Country 'Tis of Thee," without coming close to tears. (I can't sing The Star Spangled Banner at all, but I'm still moved when I hear it.)

I can't say that I would go out and unthinkingly kill for my country, just because I was asked to by the government. Too many times, I have seen governments use human life like it was toilet paper, both in the near and the distant past. But if a real threat to our lives and our freedom was present, I'd do everything I could to help.

I couldn't be patriotic for a time, I think, because I could only think of the government as the symbol of my country. My patriotism today, I think, has evolved to a more adult point of view. I'm fiercely loyal to this country and the ideals of freedom and democracy. But that doesn't necessarily mean I am loyal to the government.

(Only in America could I make a statement like that and not be afraid of a knock in the night.)

God bless America! We need it.

Corpus Christi winner in warship plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Corpus Christi can expect to gain 5,200 Navy and civilian personnel and an annual Pentagon payroll of $95 million to $100 million if Congress approves plans to place a battleship in the Texas coast city, the Navy said.

The figures exclude dependents or private-sector jobs generated by homeport status but include shipboard personnel, officials said.

The Defense Department announced plans Tuesday to spread 29 of the nation's warships among nine homeports on the Gulf Coast, sending the battleship Wisconsin and the training carrier Lexington to Corpus Christi and a planned new flattop to Pensacola, Fla.

Corpus Christi also would get three smaller warships under the plan, making it the clear winner in the intensive competition among Gulf cities for the Wisconsin and the job bonanza that often results from homeport status.

The plan, which would spread the vessels among nine Gulf ports, now goes to Capitol Hill. If approved, it would wrap up a massive planning operation to find homeports for the largest warships in the Reagan administration's buildup to a 600-ship Navy.

The plans, announced by Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and Navy Secretary John F. Lehman will be implemented late in this decade at the earliest, the Navy said.

Earlier, the Pentagon had announced plans for three of the four World War II battleships it is reactivating, sending the New Jersey to Long Beach, Calif.; the Iowa to Staten Island, N.Y.; and the Missouri to San Francisco. At that time, it also chose Everett, Wash., as homeport for a 14th flattop it will add to its current fleet of 13 operational carriers plus the Lexington.

Under Reagan's buildup, the Navy will eventually have 15 operational carriers.

Weinberger said Tuesday the Wisconsin — the last of the four battleships coming out of mothballs — would call Corpus Christi home. He said a 15th carrier would displace the Lexington at Pensacola.

The Lexington would move from its current berth at Pensacola to Corpus Christi, probably in 1992, Weinberger said.

The other winners in Tuesday's homeport sweepstakes, which began last year with 16 Gulf Coast cities vying for the Wisconsin, are: New Orleans, La.; Lake Charles, La.; Mobile, Ala.; Pascagoula, Miss.; Gulfport, Miss.; Key West, Fla.; and Houston-Galveston, Texas. The latter had submitted a joint application.

The Navy had announced in February six finalists for the Wisconsin — Mobile, Pensacola, Lake Charles, Pascagoula, Corpus Christi and Houston-Galveston. Key West was described as in the running for smaller vessels.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Have arms talks become outdated?

Since the United States has decided to scrap an old Poseidon submarine to be in compliance with the provisions of the never-ratified SALT II treaty, the pundits are debating whether the move is a step toward future arms control, a step away from security, or a bit of fancy temporizing.

What it may be, whether President Reagan and others in the administration realize it or not, is a demonstration that the link between arms control and formal treaties and solemn negotiations, always tenuous, is simply non-existent in today's world.

There is a superstition that the key to peace and security in the nuclear age is to sit down with the Soviets and negotiate until a formal treaty to limit armaments is produced. Some place so much importance on this process that they are willing to overlook the fact that almost every U.S.-Soviet arms-limitation treaty has been followed by arms buildups on both sides. The process almost becomes an end in itself.

Consider, however, the SALT II treaty, although it was the product of agonizing rounds of negotiation, was never ratified by a U.S. Senate which was, at the time it was presented, controlled by Democrats. It is, therefore, not a treaty. Yet a Republican president (who was an outspoken opponent of the proposal before he became president) has agreed to abide by the terms of this piece of paper that has no legally binding power on the United States.

Washington Monthly magazine reports in its current issue: "The first round of arms negotiations are over in Geneva, and our sources tell us that the U.S. team has its priorities fully straightened out. American negotiators are spending 90 percent of their time jockeying for choice accommodations in the scenic Swiss city. Of secondary importance is fighting over the pecking order around the negotiating table and for influence with officials back at State and Defense. The talks themselves come in a distant third place."

There may be a bit of tongue-in-cheek exaggeration in that report, but the implication is clear. Major negotiating sessions too often become events unto themselves, during which the participants can lose sight of the reason they are there and waste a great deal of time in trivialities.

In our age of communication and electronic wizardry, such sessions may well be anachronisms. The president has demonstrated that he can make an arms-control move without a formal treaty - in effect, a unilateral move. The fact that he has done so is well known to the Soviets. They have the option of responding in any of several dozen ways, and when they respond we will know (after a certain amount of analysis) what they have done.

Why not forget about treaties and concentrate on unilateral moves to reduce armaments? The first moves could be the abandonment of weapons or systems that are either redundant or outdated, whose loss will not affect defense. The cutbacks can be trumpeted to the skies, the ball placed in the Soviets' court, and the next move predicated on a satisfactory Soviet move.

The negotiation-and-treaty process has become sterile and unrewarding. If Reagan understands what he has done in the case of the Poseidon, he may have the opportunity to make real progress in arms reduction without compromising security - assuming that he wants to relieve taxpayers of some of the burdens imposed on them.

Reform efforts sabotaged

Last month President Reagan kicked off his tax reform drive calling it "the second American Revolution" - but even as he circled the nation beating the drums, the final death knell of the "First Revolution" was quietly being tolled on Capitol Hill.

The federal bureaucracy, which by virtue of both its size and its symbiotic relationship to the Washington press corps is the most powerful lobby on Capitol Hill, effectively stopped all further Reagan administration attempts at serious Civil Service reform - including its needed plan to overhaul the Civil Service Retirement System, with its $540-billion unfunded pension liability.

As the president watched helplessly, a coalition of federal employee unions and friendly Republican senators from Maryland and Virginia forced one of the president's most capable and effective appointees, Donald Devine, into, then finally OUT of, a hopelessly long and entrapping re-confirmation process. His more pliable successor then dismantled in one week the staff and reforms it had taken Devine four years to assemble.

The Washington Post applauded this sickening debacle in both editorials and columns, but the costs to the taxpayer will, in the long run, reach the $100s of billions.

The reason Capitol Hill is so afraid of the federal employees' unions is quite simple: collectively the 80,000 pages per year of new rules they write, the billion of bits of information they compile on every business and individual in the country (particularly those in key spots in corporate and political America) make them the most dangerously powerful force in the country.

With their easy access to their friends in the press, they can make or break those who either facilitate or hamper their interests. Few dare take on this "imperial bureaucracy" - and those who do generally pay. The Grace Commission found this out, in spades.

History tells us the American Revolution was started not so much against King George or Parliament as against the oppressive Crown bureaucracy that arrogantly skimmed off the fat of America's colonial lands - and taxed away their income.

This is why Americans understood, perhaps more clearly than any other people on earth, the danger of unelected, benevolent bureaucracies that always seem to grow up around even the most benign elected central authority. French historian Elie Halevy observed, "The socialist believes in two things which are absolutely different, and perhaps even contradictory, freedom and organization."

This is why the Constitution's authors sought to keep a republican form of government - with most powers over domestic affairs left at the more accountable local and state level. Their wisdom is illustrated by the fact that there is now one elected official for every 115 state and local bureaucrats - whereas at the federal level, employees now outnumber elected officials 5,100 to 1.

Thomas Jefferson - whom the Democrats claim as their patron saint - ran for the presidency as a tax-cutting grass-roots populist determined to check the already visible spread of a central federal bureaucracy under Presidents George Washington and John Adams.

In his first Annual Message, Jefferson asked for the repeal of ALL internal taxation, saying, "Considering the general tendency to multiply offices and dependencies and to increase expense to the ultimate term of burden which the citizens can bear, it behooves us to avail ourselves of every occasion which presents itself for taking off the surcharge (tax), that it may never be seen here that after leaving to labor the smallest portion of its earning on which it can subsist, government shall itself consume the whole residue of what it was instituted to guard."

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, July 3, the 184th day of 1985. There are 181 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On July 3, 1863, the three-day Civil War Battle of Gettysburg, Pa., ended in a major victory for the North with the retreat of the Confederate troops. President Abraham Lincoln dedicated a national cemetery on the battlefield the following November.

On this date:
Ten years ago: The Labor Department reported that the nation's unemployment rate fell from 9.2 percent in May to 8.6 percent in June, but officials called the decline a statistical aberration.

Five years ago: The Labor Department said unemployment declined to 7.7 percent in June, down a tenth of a percentage point from May - but officials called the decline a statistical aberration.

Price of play has gone up

Every generation has paid to play. Forty years ago we knew better than to smoke and drink but we did anyway. Because young people are not guided so much by what they know as by how they feel. And they feel indestructible.

The rebelling youth of 20 years ago literally went to pot, experimented with LSD.

The Age-of-Aquarians staged the largest youth rebellion since 1776, turned their backs on the timeless credo of "behave or be damned" and stuck flowers in their stringy hair and burned their bras and overtly trivialized sex - and it cost them.

But by the time Jerry Rubin had shaved, that generation emerged, some hung over, but relatively unscathed.

However, for each generation of us - willing as we were to "pay the piper" - the price has gone up.

The youth rebellion of the 1970s took on added dimension with the introduction of new drugs.

Toking and smoking escalated to toting and snorting.

The disco generation gulped uppers and downers and opened their veins and closed their eyes and dreamed wonderful dreams.

With angel dust and the killer drugs they enslaved themselves to habits which cost a thousand dollars a day.

They, too, were willing to pay to play but the price had gone up. Now life in the fast lane was coasting too much.

And enlightened youth of the '80s sought for themselves marriages and mortgages and sanitation and exercise and health food and church and yet...

The bills are still unpaid.

For the excesses of the '70s introduced super pharmaceutical nightmare molecules and homegrown and imported mutant micro-organisms, some of which not even glass will keep in or keep out. Years dormant, some never die. So hard as we run we can't hide from unprecedented strains of gonorrhea and syphilis, chlamydia and genital herpes - and AIDS.

Familial cycles of youth rebellion and reconversion have become more than we can afford.

Today's escapees from the drugs and the bugs hurry to their own wives and pray that they made it home in time.

The press and the military

The Twentieth Century Fund (and by the way, what will it do 15 years from now?) deserves considerable credit for commissioning a task force to investigate and report on the ongoing relationship between the military and the media. The swift U.S. invasion and occupation of Grenada in October 1983, from which newsmen were arbitrarily excluded until the battle was practically over, shocked many in the media into realizing for the first time that the Pentagon wasn't necessarily going to escort them to the front line in future wars in fur-trimmed limousines. And it quickly transpired that the Pentagon's attitude on this score was intimately related to its perception that a good many of the journalists who covered the Vietnam War had trouble deciding which side, if either, they were on.

Peter Braestrup, himself a reporter in Vietnam, does a generally excellent job, in a "background paper," of reviewing the relevant recent history and sorting out the issues - though I would quarrel with his overly diplomatic assertion that, between the military and the media, "the underlying problem is one of mutual comprehension and trust." That's like the old theory that the difficulties between the United States and the Soviet Union are caused by "misunderstanding." In America today, the media and the military no more fail to comprehend and trust one another than a mongoose and a cobra fail to comprehend and trust one another. The issue in recent years, thanks to brand-new developments in the intentions and capabilities of the media, has become - quite simply - one of power.

That is why the report of the 12-member task force is so disappointing. Here is an impending and probably unavoidable collision between two indispensable institutions in American society, representing the two major forces in the realm of public opinion. How shall their respective rights be mediated? Does a dominant conservative impulse in public affairs, expressed in this case (let us assume) by the military, have an unlimited right to promote the chosen purposes of the society, at the expense if need be of the traditional privileges of the media? Or does the First Amendment confer upon print and electronic media firmly in the grip of a liberal minority the unchallengeable right to thwart the policies of the majority by every low journalistic means at the disposal of a bunch of tendentious and monopolistic demagogues?

Those were the chewy, provocative questions before the task force. Yet its report treats us to little more than a series of operatic tributes to the importance of the media and shrill demands that it be serviced hereafter in the style to which it had become accustomed before Grenada. The possibility that deeper issues are being left untouched is brushed aside with the dismissive comment that the media's "managers and reporters do not seek to aid the enemy in wartime."

But is that necessarily true? Suppose a narrow but adequate congressional majority authorizes, and President Reagan orders, a military invasion of Nicaragua for what many would consider sufficient reason (e.g. the basing there of MiG-21s). If liberal opinion strongly opposed the operation, as surely it might, it takes little imagination to visualize what we would soon be seeing on the networks' evening news and reading in the major print media. Could any open society sustain that kind of a barrage against its military activities? Ought it even to try?

These are not easy questions to answer. But, unless we are willing to face and answer them in the relative calm of peacetime, we will probably have to answer them someday "in blood and smoke and flame." And, under those painful circumstances, the answer might be quite different.

Frozen fruit pop handy dessert

Summer treats are twice as good when mom shares the fun or preparation with eager tots. Fruit Freezer Pops — a frozen dessert on a stick — is an ideal choice for both easy mixing and happy enjoyment! Made with only five ingredients, including fresh chopped peaches, mashed bananas, vanilla instant pudding mix, milk and whipped topping, the dessert is frozen in five-ounce paper drinking cups. Simply peel off the cups to serve as an afternoon snack, as a birthday party surprise... and, anytime, to "kids" of all ages.

That same "young at heart" group will find this Fluffy Peanut Butter Pie irresistible. It has a chocolate wafer crumb crust with a fluffy peanut butter filling made with whipped topping, cream cheese and peanut butter. Strawberry preserves and whipped topping crown the confection.

FRUITY FREEZER POPS
1 (3 1/2 oz.) pkg. vanilla instant pudding and pie filling mix
1 (8 oz.) container (3 cups) whipped topping, thawed
1 c. chopped peaches
1 c. mashed banana

Prepare mix as directed on package for pie filling, except using one cup milk. Fold in whipped topping and fruit. Spoon into 12 five-ounce paper drinking cups; insert wooden sticks. Freeze until firm. Remove from freezer; peel off cups. Let stand five minutes before serving. Makes 12 servings.

FLUFFY PEANUT BUTTER PIE

1 (3 oz.) pkg. cream cheese, softened
1-3rd c. peanut butter
1/4 c. powdered sugar
2 T. milk
1 (12 oz.) container (4 1/2 cups) whipped topping, thawed
1 nine-inch prepared chocolate wafer crumb crust
1-3rd c. strawberry preserves

Combine cream cheese and peanut butter, mixing until well blended. Add sugar and milk; mix well. Fold in two cups whipped topping; spoon into crust. Chill several hours or overnight. Top with preserves and remaining whipped topping just before serving. 8 to 10 servings

THREE EASY STEPS—Fruit Freezer Pops can be made in three simple steps. 1. (upper photo left) Prepare 3 1/2 oz. package vanilla instant pudding and pie filling mix using one cup milk; fold in one cup chopped peaches, one cup mashed banana and 3 cups whipped topping. 2. (upper photo right) Spoon into 12 five-ounce paper drinking cups; insert wooden sticks. Freeze until firm. 3. (left) Remove from freezer; peel off cups. Let stand five minutes before serving.

Mini-treats use season's fruits

BUTTER-PASTRY SHELLS

2 1/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons shortening
1/2 cup butter
2 egg yolks
1 tablespoon lemon juice
4 tablespoons cold water

Stir together flour, sugar and salt. Add shortening and cut into consistency of fine meal. Add butter and cut in until particles are size of peas. Beat egg yolks lightly with a fork and add lemon juice and cold water. Sprinkle over dry mixture, mixing to a stiff dough. Add a few more drops cold water if needed, to make dough hold together. Cover and chill.

Divide into 10 to 12 small balls. Roll one at a time to about 1/8-inch thickness and fit into tart pans about 4 inches in diameter, 1 1/8-inches deep. (Any type of individual pan may be used; simply roll dough to fit pan.)

Trim pastry edge even with edge of pan. Prick bottom and sides with a fork. Bake in 375-degree oven for 15 minutes or until nicely browned. Cool before filling.

This kitchen-tested recipe makes 10 to 12 mini-pie shells. Freeze extra shells.

CREAM FILLING

1 (3 1/8 ounce) package regular vanilla pudding mix (not instant)
1 1/3 cups milk
1/2 cup cream
1 teaspoon vanilla
Few drops almond extract

Combine pudding with milk in small saucepan. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until mixture reaches a full boil. Cover and cool.

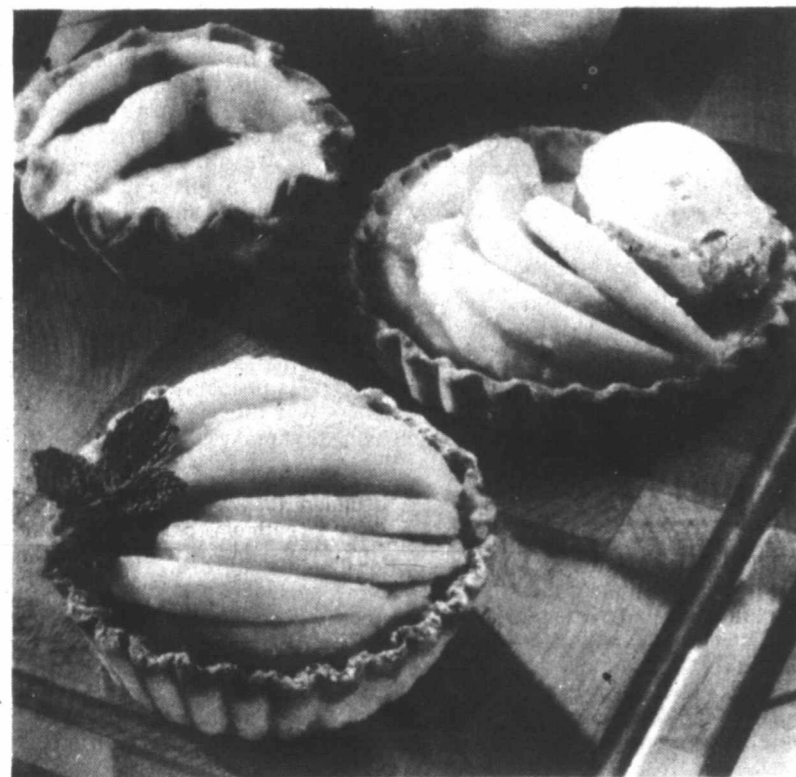

When cold, beat cream to soft peaks. With same beater, beat pudding smooth with vanilla and almond extract. Fold cream into pudding.

This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 2 1/4 cups, enough for 8 mini-pies.

TO SERVE: Fill bottom of mini-pie shells with sliced peaches (skins removed and thinly sliced, allowing 1/2 peach for each mini-pie). Top with Cream Filling. Garnish with peach slices and a drizzle of blueberry or raspberry syrup.

Variations: Spread a little dairy sour cream or yogurt in bottom of each baked shell. Sprinkle lightly with brown sugar. Top with sliced peaches. Garnish with additional sour cream or yogurt, if desired.

Or, add a scoop of ice cream or sherbet to one side of each baked shell. Arrange peach slices to fill shell. Serve plain or topped with bottled Melba sauce.

FRESH peaches top homemade cream filling in a butter-pastry shell.

Dear Abby

Salvation Army marshals its forces to reunite families

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for your information about the Salvation Army tracing long-lost relatives. I was able to find my brother whom I had not seen since 1947.

We are both so happy to be in touch with each other again. Abby, my brother lives in France, and I have been in America since 1947. I am planning to visit him next year. I am a very happy reader of your column in the Lansdale, Pa. Reporter.

M.R. IN LANSDALE, PA.

DEAR M.R.: Glad I was able to help.

Readers, the Salvation Army operates a Missing Persons Locator Service in 86 countries of the world. This is available to the public. Those interested in this service should be aware of the following basic guidelines:

1. The inquirer should be searching for a near relative.
2. The inquirer must be able to provide essential information about the missing person.
3. The Salvation Army reserves the right to accept or reject any request for services based upon considerations of reasonableness, feasibility or motive.
4. The inquirer is asked to pay a $5 non-refundable fee.
5. The inquirer may secure information and/or a missing persons inquiry form by contacting the nearest Salvation Army office in his area or by contacting the nearest Territorial Headquarters.

Addresses: 860 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. 60610; 120 W. 14th St., New York, N.Y. 10011; 1424 Northeast Expressway, Atlanta, Ga. 30329; 30840 Hawthorne Blvd., Rancho Palos Verdes, Calif. 90274.

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a wonderful man I have known for a little less than a year. Ours is a very loving relationship and we communicate well, but he is very vague about his past. This makes me wonder if maybe he is married.

How can I find out (without his knowing) if he was ever married in Tennessee, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Alabama, Missouri, Kansas or Kentucky? Our wedding date is getting closer, and I am becoming more and more nervous.

NERVOUS IN ILLINOIS

DEAR NERVOUS: Marriages are a matter of public record, but it will take you some time to gather the information from each state unless you engage a private investigator. (They don't come cheap.)

If yours is really a "loving relationship" and you communicate well, a direct "Are you married?" is not an unreasonable question to ask your fiancé. And if his response still leaves you with doubts, I urge you to postpone your marriage until you have this "wonderful" man checked out thoroughly.

DEAR ABBY: After several years of infertility tests and various treatments to conceive, we were informed that I could possibly become pregnant, but it was highly unlikely. We chose to adopt, and welcomed our delightful little daughter with much love.

Five months later, much to our surprise, I became pregnant. We are thrilled!

However, the thoughtless comments of friends and relatives infuriate me. A sample: "I knew if you adopted, you'd get pregnant." "You just needed to relax." "If you had only waited a while longer."

Please, Abby, suggest that people restrain themselves from offering such comments. We would have been so pleased to hear a simple, unqualified "Congratulations."

Thanks for letting me air my frustration. I feel better already. Not wishing to offend those who have offended me, sign me...

JOY-FULL

DEAR JOY: Congratulations. And a pox on all those insensitive "I-told-you-so-ers!"

Brenda Bell installed as TSQA vice president

Brenda Bell, accredited records technician, was recently installed as vice president of the Texas Society of Quality Assurance (TSQA) during the society's annual meeting in Dallas.

Mrs. Bell, director of medical records at Coronado Community Hospital here, is a former district director of TSQA and served as both president and vice president of the Top O' Texas Society for Quality Assurance.

A member of the Texas Hospital

Association, Mrs. Bell is also a member of the National Association of Quality Assurance Professionals, the American Medical Record Association, and the Texas Medical Records Association. She is accredited by the American Medical Record Association.

She and her husband Gary came to Pampa in 1980 from Forgan, Okla. They have two children, Marnie, 16, and Chad, 14. She is a member of the chancel choir of the First Christian Church and a member of the Pampa Community Chorus.

The Texas Society for Quality Assurance is an affiliate of the Texas Hospital Association, representing 361 quality assurance professionals from hospitals throughout the state. The Texas Hospital Association is the Austin-based trade association for hospitals in Texas, with more than 800 institutional and 4,500 personal members.

Mother, daughter create greeting cards

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — It took just two — a daughter with a flair for art — to form a greeting card company that in less than a year ballooned into an enterprise doing business in 23 states.

When Georgia Rettmer of Mankato and her daughter, Kimberly Rinehart of Rochester, became partners in "It Takes Two," they were hoping for some degree of success, but at the same time were "prepared for rejection," Mrs. Rinehart said.

The venture started as a way to "share Kim's words," Mrs. Rettmer said.

"I've always written for my own enjoyment," Mrs. Rinehart said. "I've filled books with thoughts and verse, simply because I love doing it."

Over the years she gave several books of original verse to her parents, and when her mother, a former art teacher, wanted to give a special card to someone, she made her own, using one of Kim's thoughts from her books.

Friends suggested they go into the card business, Mrs. Rettmer said. She did put together a portfolio about four years ago, but in spite of the encouragement from professionals in the business, the idea remained dormant.

But after Mrs. Rinehart was married she decided she was ready for a career change and the thought of cards came up again.

"If we didn't go at it as a full-time business, we knew it would remain just a little hobby," she said.

Both her husband, Tim, and Mrs. Rettmer's husband, Forrest, urged them to take the plunge.

The first thing they did was register their name. "It Takes Two," with the U.S. Patent Office. They showed their sample cards to a representative, who indicated an interest in carrying their line, and then they started looking for a printer.

"They let us practically live in their building while we're printing. I think they're as excited about the cards as we are," Mrs. Rettmer said.

Their cards are designed for

After checking with several printers, they decided to give their business to a Mankato firm. It proved to be an excellent choice, they said.

people looking for something out of the ordinary. The messages "say something without being trite," Mrs. Rinehart said. "Even the lighter ones are light without being slapstick. A lot of the market has slipped to extremes — from bizarre at one end to sappy at the other."

The company now has 20 different cards that are sold in about 200 locations in 23 states, from New York to Alaska and Canada, mostly in small shops.

The women do their creative work independently. After deciding what occasions they want to produce cards for, Mrs. Rinehart starts to write. When she is satisfied with the words, her mother works out the appropriate design to fit the message.

The distinctive look of the cards is achieved by Mrs. Rettmer's art work, which is all hand-torn construction paper designs, and Mrs. Rinehart's hand-lettered words. The four-color designs and verses are on the inside of each card, as well as the cover.

"Our contributions are individual, but both are intricately entwined," Mrs. Rinehart said. "We each have a gift and these gifts flow together so naturally."

Tearing paper designs is not child's play for Mrs. Rettmer. "I can't tell you how I labor over every card," she said. "I feel responsible for Kim's words."

Although the design on a card is what attracts people to pick it up, she said, it is the words and their meaning that makes them buy it.

They are able to work together successfully because their mother-daughter relationship has always been special.

Her daughter agreed: "It's been a unique special experience, being partners as well as mother and daughter. It's not even like two very good friends going into business together. It's something innate — we don't have to use words to communicate."

Kids offer advice on making school days more interesting

SELMA, Calif. (AP) — Some sixth-graders at the Jackson School thought their workbooks were boring, and many agreed that they didn't look forward to school each day.

Realizing they had some morale problems, the class in the rural farm community of Selma 200 miles southeast of San Francisco decided to form a "research corporation" to see if they could solve some of their problems.

"Honors Inc." was born when teacher Mario Guerrero divided his class into the research, development, marketing, finance and public relations departments. Students obtained business sponsors, performed weeks of research, developed a student survey, compiled the results and developed 20 recommendations for presentation at a news conference.

The class came up with some down-to-earth ideas for improving their school — plus one suggestion from wishful thinkers.

"This one's a little far-fetched," admitted Sara Bybee, research vice president. "But we're putting down building a swimming pool, too. It certainly would make school more interesting."

Other proposals are more practical.

—Soundproof the cafeteria because it is next to classrooms.

—Create a science laboratory.

—Open a computer lab, recreation center or gymnasium.

—Establish a student council or court to give students a role in school policy.

Roger George of G.W. Insurance Services in Fresno helped the class develop a statistically sound survey to get the opinions of 250 fifth- and sixth-graders at two nearby elementary schools.

The results showed:

—Almost 30 percent find school boring.

—More than 40 percent find their workbooks boring and do not think school puts much pressure on them.

—Almost half feel "bad" about their daily work and homework.

—But nearly 60 percent believe education will be important later in life.

One student recommendation covers those workbooks that some students don't like.

"Many of the students find workbooks boring, and they teach lower levels of knowledge and comprehension," Sara explained.

"We would like to see them used together or a division didn't operate," she said.

To illustrate their findings, the class met with a computer specialist to learn how to create graphs and pie charts on a computer screen — a task they mastered within hours.

"These kids are knocking my socks off," said their proud teacher. "And they're learning more because they are involved."

The class has finished its corporate work for the school year, but Guerrero's class next year is expected to pick up where the first group left off.

Lubbock Lake open house planned

LUBBOCK — Entertainment, demonstrations and artifacts will all be a part of the open house at the Lubbock Lake National and State Landmark, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., July 13.

Visitors will see demonstrations of pottery making, bead making, basketry, bone tool making and flintknapping — making stone tools as Indians did. Children will be entertained with Indian games.

Artifacts excavated during the past 25 years will be on display. They include the tooth of a 25-foot-tall bear, the bones of a six-foot-long, three-foot-tall armadillo and projectile points from the Paleolithic period. Items from the historical Singer Store once located near the site will also be displayed.

A slide show will explain the history of the Lake Site and the excavations. The archaeological site covers from 12,000 years ago to historic times. The Lake Landmark is nationally known as a significant Paleolithic site.

The open house is free to the public. For more information, call (806) 742-2479.

How to avoid the 3 mistakes of funeral planning.

Anyone who's planned a funeral knows how hard it is to make wise decisions under emotional strain. And how easy it is to (1) accept rather than select the type of service to be performed; (2) overlook some of the options; and (3) possibly spend more than you should for the funeral.

National Selected Morticians offer a free booklet that will help you avoid these mistakes. Read it and you can become better prepared to make the right decisions if, and when, the need arises.

LENDING A HAND — Two unidentified Los Angeles police officers lend a hand in wetting down the burned out ruins of a home in the Baldwin Hills section of Los Angeles late Tuesday following a raging brush fire that killed two, injured four and destroyed nearly 50 homes. (AP Laserphoto)

175 California homes burn in firestorms; two killed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Firefighters today battled a blaze that threatened the city of Ojai and forced the evacuation of thousands of people after six days of mostly arson-caused fires charred more than 80,000 acres, destroyed at least 175 homes and killed two people, authorities said.

Fires burned today in California, Idaho, Arizona and Washington.

The blazes, including one started by a plane crash and another by small-arms practice at an army base, have caused more than $30 million damage in California alone, authorities said.

Mayor Tom Bradley declared a state of emergency Tuesday as the third arson fire in three days left 65 homes in ruins and killed two people. San Diego Mayor Roger Hedgecock declared an emergency on Monday.

At least seven other fires burned out of control in California today.

One, a more than 9,000-acre fire that forced the evacuation of 1,000 residents near Ojai and 600 youths and counselors from Camp Ramah in nearby hills, burned toward the town, said U.S. Forest Service spokesman Earl Clayton.

"I don't know if we'll get this dude out before it gets into town," he said early today. Ojai is about 65 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

Most of the damage, including the Normal Heights fire Sunday that was San Diego's worst residential blaze ever, was caused by arsonists, authorities said after one fire roared up a slope Tuesday in Los Angeles' Baldwin Hills.

That fire, also believed to be arson, destroyed 52 homes, damaged 13 others and trapped two people who burned to death, officials said. Nine other people who were trapped in their homes and six firefighters and police were injured.

The blaze was being investigated as murder, said police Lt. Dan Cooke.

Meanwhile, firefighters neared containment today of the largest California blaze, 20,600 acres near Palm Springs.

A wildfire caused by a plane crash burned 740 acres, damaged five ranch buildings and closed the Riverside Freeway at Yorba Linda, 30 miles east of Los Angeles. Two people in the plane were killed, and three firefighters were hurt battling the blaze, Orange County fire spokesman Joe Kerr said.

At Fort Ord Army post, 100 miles south of San Francisco, small-arms practice at the 28,000-acre headquarters of the 7th Infantry Division ignited a 500-acre brush fire. It was controlled Tuesday.

At the Camp Pendleton Marine base, helicopters bombed a 2,000-acre brush fire with water Tuesday.

Another fire, blamed on arson, burned 7,200 acres near the Baboquivari Mountains, 50 miles southwest of Tucson, Ariz., authorities said.

In Goldendale, Wash., a 350-acre brush fire burned three homes and forced the evacuation of up to 50 people, said state Department of Natural Resources spokesman Rob Harper. The evacuees remained away from home today.

Jury awards $3 million to unwed teacher fired for immorality

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — A lawyer for an unmarried woman who won a $3.3 million court award from a school board which fired her after she kept a baby says the verdict will help end discrimination against teachers who become pregnant out of wedlock.

After deliberating five hours, the six-person U.S. District Court jury on Tuesday awarded $2 million in compensatory damages and $1.3 million in punitive damages to Jeanne Eckmann, 38, who said she became pregnant after she was raped.

Six past or present members of the rural Hawthorn School Board that fired her after her son was born are liable for the awards.

After the verdict was read by Judge Stanley Roszkowski, the school board's lawyers said any

More arrests seen in forgery ring

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Authorities who said they broke up a West Texas check forgery ring have arrested between 50 and 60 people across the region, an Ector County Sheriff's department investigator said.

More arrests were expected in the year-old investigation into the ring, which authorities said was allegedly responsible for most of the county's $41,000 in forged checks from January to April.

decision on an appeal would be made later.

"This will give a message to school boards across the nation that they can't discriminate against women teachers who become pregnant out of wedlock," Donna Kotecki, one of the teacher's lawyers, said after Tuesday's ruling.

"I can't even talk right now," a beaming Miss Eckmann, her 3-year-old son, Gregory, in tow, said after her court victory. "I've got a beautiful little boy; I've got a jury that says I'm not immoral."

Miss Eckmann, who once studied in a convent to be a nun, was fired because she refused to give up her son for adoption. Edward Diedrich, her chief attorney, told the jury in closing arguments earlier Tuesday.

Diedrich said school board trustees decided to assail Miss Eckmann "because of her motherhood. They were not after her for anything else."

Miss Eckmann's son was born July 21, 1981 — the day after the rural school board 20 miles east of Rockford began dismissal proceedings.

Miss Eckmann's lawsuit originally sought $25 million in damages from the school board and the six members who voted to dismiss her, but that figure was reduced to about $6 million as the suit went to the jury.

Donald Puckett, a school board lawyer, stressed in his closing remarks that Miss Eckmann's older brother and sister each testified she had told them she became pregnant from an affair while at a weekend religious retreat in Nebraska.

Trustees testified that they doubted Miss Eckmann was raped. They said they also fired her for insubordination, cruelty to students and causing divisiveness among other teachers.

Diedrich told the jury the other charges were invented as "a pretext ... for covering up their real purpose, to charge her and dismiss her for immorality. Everything else was fog."

Miss Eckmann testified she was raped in November 1980 in an Iowa motel room by a hitchhiker she befriended while returning from the Nebraska retreat.

She said she did not report the attack to police because she didn't think anyone would believe her.

Vote reaffirm's PRI's vote

By CARL MANNING
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — Elections in Mexico more than anything else serve to reaffirm the Institutional Revolutionary Party's control of the Mexican government, from the presidency to the smallest villages.

Even before Mexicans vote July 7, the ruling party, known as PRI, is expected to win most — if not all — of the seven gubernatorial races and to continue controlling the federal Chamber of Deputies.

Nevertheless, the campaigning is fierce as if the election outcome really was in doubt. In the capital, campaign banners flutter in endless rows above the main streets, posters hang from utility poles and political slogans are painted on walls. The scene has been repeated throughout the country.

For PRI politicians, it is a chance to restate the underlying theme of Mexican politics — the 1910 Revolution continues and the government "never will take a step backward."

For the opposition, it is a chance to once again decry official corruption, a sagging economy and the "debilitation of the PRI."

PRI never has lost a major election and has controlled the presidency, congress and the governor's offices in the 31 states for more than 50 years.

Over the years, PRI and the government have become virtually synonymous to most Mexicans. The president is the leader of the PRI. The party's use of the national colors of red, green and white in all its campaign materials underscores the relationship.

It's a fact of life that PRI politicians become governors, cabinet officials and president — while opposition candidates complain about the system, lose elections and seldom achieve any real political power.

The PRI was created in 1929 by those already in power, seeking to establish stability in a nation rife with political disputes and violence.

The founders reasoned that by bringing the various factions under one banner, promising them all what they wanted, the nation's development could proceed unhampered by internal strife.

PRI's strength is its ability to adapt to political and social changes over the years and to bring opposing forces under its control.

The elections, therefore, and the strength of opposition parties serve to point out how it must adapt.

In years when currents are running to the left, the PRI runs its campaign accordingly. This year, with the conservative National Action Party running with unprecedented strength — especially in northern Mexico — the campaign runs counter to the right.

Explaining Mexico's political system, President Miguel de la Madrid said, "The Mexican democracy has been formed from our history. It has been formed from our struggles. With its virtues and faults it is ours. It is what we can live with and it is what we will continue perfecting, because we are not satisfied with what we have achieved."

To a great extent, the political experiment has succeeded. PRI points to more than a half century of peace and claims that Mexicans have more individual freedoms and social welfare benefits than almost any other Latin nation.

In a region of the world where national leaders have measured their reigns in days and weeks, government stability indeed is unique. But the price has been absolute control of the government by PRI, whose leaders point out that stability and democracy do not necessarily mean alternating parties in power.

National Action, or PAN, is the largest of eight registered opposition parties.

Opposition parties, while allowed to march, protest and complain, are never allowed to become large enough or strong enough to pose a true threat to the status quo.

School-age population down, but young, middle and elderly grow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Those schoolrooms that have been standing empty in recent years will soon be facing a new crop of youngsters, new Census Bureau figures indicate.

The nation's pre-school population shot up by 9 percent between 1980 and 1984 as the huge post-war Baby Boom aged, the bureau reported. And the elderly increased their numbers by 9.7 percent.

Overall, the Census Bureau said, people postponed marriage and family in favor of education and careers. However, that generation is now becoming settled into jobs, marrying and having families.

The nation's fastest growing group is in the 25-to-44 age bracket, which grew by a whopping 14.1 percent as the Baby Boom aged, the bureau reported. And the elderly increased their numbers by 9.7 percent.

Overall, the Census Bureau said, the nation's population increased by 4.2 percent, or 9.6 million, between 1980 and 1984, with 91 percent of the growth occurring in the South and West.

Other findings of the report included:

- The nation's population totaled 236,158,000 as of July 1, 1984, up 4.2 percent since 1980.
- Alaska ranked as the fastest growing state, gaining 24.4 percent in four years.

Our Tax Deferred Annuities* now pay 10 1/4 %

Everybody knows that there are many investment opportunities around today that pay a handsome rate of interest. The trouble is, in many cases that interest is currently taxable. You can lose up to over half of it to the tax man. So your retirement savings may grow very slowly.

Now, there's a better answer. It's our tax deferred single premium annuities.

Not only is the rate competitive, but the interest is free from current federal income tax. That means your savings can grow up to twice as fast as a mutual fund, time deposit, or other taxable plan.

Taxes on the income must be paid later, of course, but usually not until retirement, when your income tax bracket will probably be lower. And after your savings begin to grow.

Our annuities are also ideal for IRA and Keogh plans—because they also protect against disability and provide a retirement income you cannot outlive. Most other plans don't.

And whether it's IRA, Keogh, or other retirement fund, you get our expert knowledge of annuities and our unbeatable service.

These annuities are available through most New York Life Agents. Go ahead, ask. They'll help you to a richer retirement.

Ex-hostages describe days in captivity

By The Associated Press
 Captivity in Lebanon included beatings, vermin-infested living quarters, the sight of casual shootings and political propaganda, several of the 39 former hostages say in accounts that contrast with the rosier picture conveyed during their ordeal.

The hijacking of TWA Flight 847 was "a publicity stunt," said Richard Herzberg, 33, of Norfolk, Va., one of four men separated from the rest because of his Jewish-sounding surname. Herzberg said Tuesday his captors had "duped the American public into thinking this was fun and these are nice people."

"It was hell," he said. "It is still hell right now. If anybody thinks it was a party, they're sick."

At first, he said, "I was held in a cell for eight days without a shower, without seeing light, without having a toilet." On the ninth day, he and the other three captives were moved to what they dubbed the "Beirut Villa" because it had bathrooms and other basic comforts.

Thomas Cullins, 42, of Burlington, Vt., said on the "CBS Morning News" Tuesday that he now was embarrassed about telling reporters while in captivity that he and his fellow hostages appreciated the Amal's hospitality.

"In retrospect I always felt I made a mistake in that first press conference by using the word 'hospitality,'" Cullins said.

Arthur Toga, 33, of St. Louis, said in Wiesbaden that the hostages were kept in small groups in rundown apartments crawling with cockroaches and rats.

Peter Hill, 57, of Hoffman Estates, Ill., said today on CBS

News' "Nightwatch" that he witnessed two shootings, one an accident, and that his captors "apparently thought nothing of them. The accident occurred when one young Shiite was playing with a gun he thought to be empty, Hill said.

He said the Shiite Amal militia, which took control of the captives from the original hijackers, tried to indoctrinate the hostages.

He said that "the degree of terrorism and brutality that we experienced in the plane was deliberate and premeditated."

"You come from that environment and you're ready to fall in love with anybody that smiles at you. The Amal portrayed themselves as our protectors and our saviors. That's absolute nonsense. They were our captors."

He said there was a "definite affinity between the hijackers and Amal."

Hill and others also took issue with hostage Allyn Conwell and others who expressed strong sympathy for the Amal cause during their captivity.

"In most part I agreed with Allyn," said Jimmy Dell Palmer, who was freed last week because of a heart ailment. "But towards the last I was beginning to get the feeling that he was slipping a little bit too much toward their side."

"I'm being held captive by the people that are trying to indoctrinate me and tell me their cause and how right they are, and I cannot ignore the fact that I'm being held captive," Palmer said from his home in Little Rock, Ark.

"You have to understand that most of those people, those hostages, couldn't find Lebanon on a map three weeks ago," said Hill, who had been to the Middle East more than 100 times and was leading a group of 34 tourists at the time of his capture. "So the only thing they knew about this was the indoctrination to which they were subjected. So I don't blame them."

Conwell said in an interview on NBC's "Today" show that "we were a pretty large group, highly individualized people. Let's face it, we were Americans, we still are Americans, and as such we have very varied opinions on just about anything that gets thrown up to the group."

Ex-hostage James Hoskins Jr., 22, said on his return to Indianapolis Tuesday that he became friends with both of his fellow hostages and some of his captors. "After a while, it became a friendly relationship with the people," he said. "They showed us how to work (a tank) and how to run it. The only thing they didn't show us was how to shoot it."

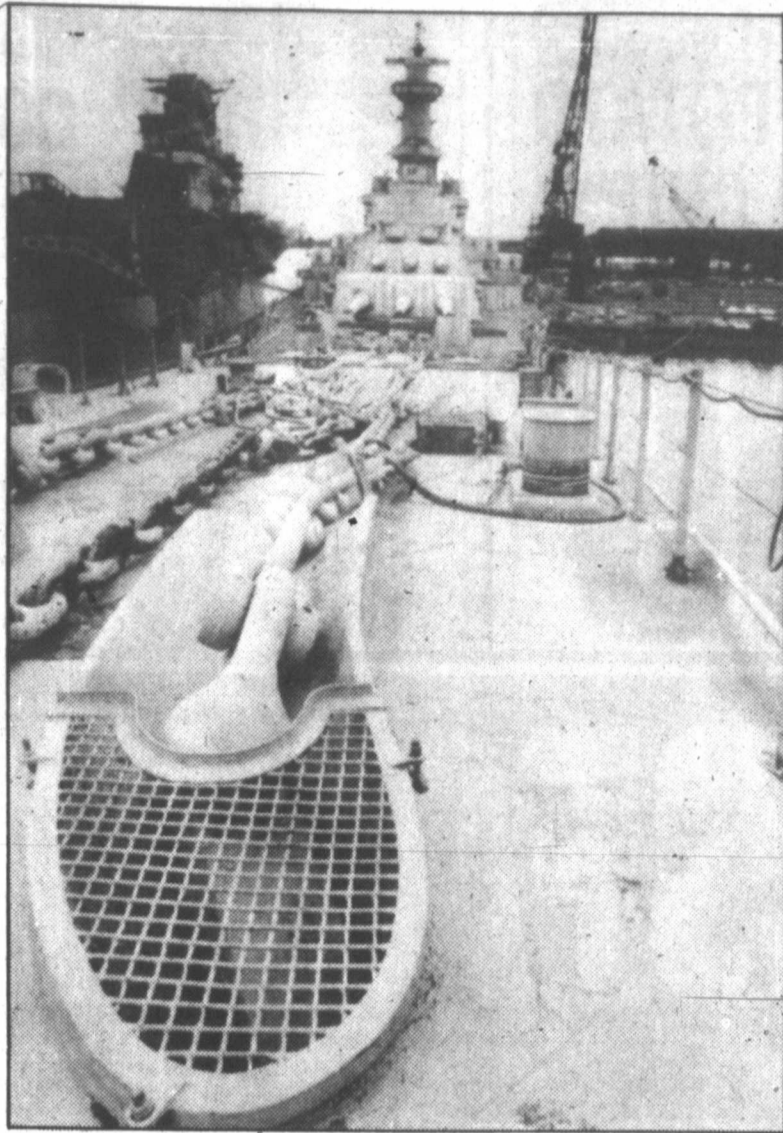

The worst accounts involved the first days of the hijacking while the hostages were still aboard TWA Flight 847.

Clinton Suggs, a Navy diver stationed in Norfolk, Va., said he was "next in line to be shot" and was only five feet from fellow diver Robert Stethem, who was beaten then shot to death. Suggs said on the "Today" show that flight attendant Uli Derickson saved his life.

"While they were beating Robert when we had landed in Beirut the second time, I could hear him screaming and yelling and he was just in sheer agony. And then I heard the gun go off..."

"And then I could hear them say, 'One more. Five minutes.' And the hijacker came back where I was and he was kicking me and hitting me and calling me 'American pig.' And then the stewardess rushed over and she talked to him and said, 'No, please, please.'"

Her pleas apparently bought precious time, because within minutes other Lebanese militiamen boarded the plane. "And then right after that, we all stood up and we were rushed off the back of the plane onto a truck."

Pair sentenced to death by injection

LAWTON, Okla. (AP) — Two men convicted of killing four people in the robbery of a small rural bank were sentenced Tuesday to death by injection.

Comanche County District Judge Jack Brock set a tentative Sept. 30 execution date for Jay Wesley Neill and Robert Grady Johnson. The death sentence is subject to automatic appeal.

Brock also ordered consecutive, rather than concurrent, 20-year sentences for each of the men on three counts of shooting with intent to kill and a count of attempted shooting with intent to kill.

Three tellers and one customer were slain and three customers were wounded during the Dec. 14 robbery of the First Bank of Chattanooga branch in Geronimo, a small farming community 10 miles south of Lawton in southwestern Oklahoma.

The three female employees of the bank were stabbed, slashed and almost decapitated, trial testimony indicated. The fourth victim, a male customer who walked into the bank at the time of the robbery, was shot.

Neill, 19, and Johnson, 23, were convicted in May by a Comanche County District Court jury on four counts of first-degree murder, three counts of shooting with intent to kill and one count of attempted shooting with intent to kill.

The jury recommended the death penalty for both men on all four first-degree murder counts. The jury also recommended the defendants serve the maximum sentence — 20 years in prison — for each of the remaining counts.

A shortage of shortages

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It is an economic rarity that gets little publicity, but have you noticed that there is a shortage of shortages?

Usually there is something important in short supply, if only because of the vagaries of markets and weather, or the bad planning of industry or maybe of government. Or perhaps because of the strength of a cartel.

But as this Fourth of July approaches, most consumer items are in bountiful supply, and judging from the rate at which they are being exchanged for cash there is a good deal of money around too. And credit as well.

True, there are some shortages. This city and several others could run out of water before the year is over. The same situation threatens crops in many areas. In some places you just cannot find an apartment or a job.

And, some people, will point out, there is an everlasting shortage of time, an element that simply cannot be overproduced, as so many things can.

But shortages aren't pervasive, as they have been in some other years.

There have been none of the usual frosts to cut Brazilian coffee supplies, and that country has so much exportable orange juice concentrate that it can offset the loss of much of the Florida citrus crop earlier this year.

There is plenty of oil, and because of that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is face to face with a marketing reality — that if you have a lot of anything you can't keep prices artificially high for very long.

Oil isn't the only plentiful commodity that once was in short supply. Basic industrial metals, gold, grains, silver, farm land and a long list of other items are available in quantities bigger than the marketplace can absorb.

Almost anyone can afford a bottle of wine these days because of a flood of price-drowning imports. Milk is available everywhere, often at prices no higher than those of several years ago. Eggs too, plenty of them.

Houses galore are on the market, and while prices might be a bit high, credit is abundant. Compared to 1982, when you couldn't get a free smile from a lender, bankers are shoveling out credit. Once you applied for a loan, now the bank applies to you with a pre-approved line of credit.

There is, in fact, a glut of many items, which accounts for the relatively low level of inflation. The international debt crisis has forced nations to dump commodities on the market in order to obtain foreign exchange.

"Globally," says Edward Yardeni, a business economist, "there is just too much productive capacity."

Oddly, the situation has also produced a shortage of something that was in glut supply only a few years ago.

That shortage is the shortage mentality, a phenomenon that alarmed millions of people around the world in the 1970s and drove prices higher.

Through a rather peculiar set of circumstances, beneficial things will happen in the year ahead that will be helpful to you financially. In each instance there will be a friend involved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Where finances are concerned, you are likely to be more fortunate today than you will be tomorrow. Strike while the iron is hot. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Tact and diplomacy will have more impact today than assertiveness. Modulate your behavior instead of yielding to urges to be pushy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Adhere to your impulses to be of service to your fellow man today. You'll derive much personal satisfaction by working for noble ends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) What you're promoting can be done successfully today if you present your ideas with flair. Be a showman, but do so without being too flamboyant.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Follow your hunches in commercial matters today. Your sixth sense will serve you well, especially if negotiating or bargaining is involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Minimize physical activity today and make your abode the mental realm. Projects that permit you to use your imagination will be successful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today the pump will have to be primed to produce a flow. Seed money will be required for you to stimulate an enterprise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Give new interests precedence over your older ones today. Lady Luck will treat you more favorably in enterprises that you are pioneering.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) For best results today don't broadcast your purposes or motives to others. Be humble regarding your efforts, but quick to share credit with those who help.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Someone who lives far away from you may occupy your thoughts today. Although he or she isn't close, your telephone is. Use it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your possibilities for achieving worthy objectives are stronger than usual today. However, keep your targets separated and don't try to hit two with one shot.

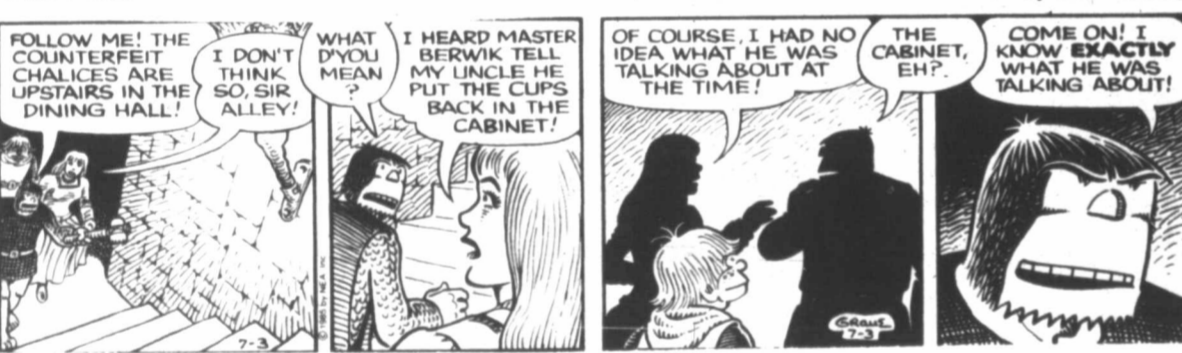

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Normally it's not advisable to put too much stock in snap judgments, but today your initial impressions will be better than those upon which you deliberate.

Homecoming tempered by reminder of other hostages

By The Associated Press

Despite the brass bands, red-white-and-blue streamers, yellow ribbons and jubilant, flag-waving crowds, ex-hostages from TWA Flight 847 had bitter words for their captors and urged Americans not to forget seven U.S. citizens still held in Lebanon.

citizens still held in Lebanon.

The former hostages, released Sunday by Shiite Moslems in Beirut after 17 days in captivity, began coming home Tuesday. Thirty were greeted by President and Nancy Reagan at Andrews Air Force Base, Md.; the other nine made other travel plans.

Coming home "feels like a breath of fresh air," said Simon Grossmayer, 57, as he stepped from a limousine in Algonquin, Ill., with his wife, Elaine.

"Unfortunately, I cannot take that breath of air all the way down, because we still have seven over there," Grossmayer said.

Seven Americans had been kidnapped in Beirut during the 16 months before the hijacking of the TWA jetliner. Despite the Reagan administration's efforts to link their release with that of the hijack victims, they remain in Lebanon.

In Baldwin, N.Y., Flight 847 co-pilot Philip Maresca took only one of the many yellow ribbons friends had hung from a tree outside his parents' home.

"I'm only taking one," said Maresca, 42, of Salt Lake City. "All the others will stay until the seven Americans still being held are freed. I think about the others continually. I hope for their swift return."

Friends met Robert G. Brown, 42, at Boston's Logan International Airport in a van decorated with red, white and blue streamers. State police escorted him to his home in Stow, Mass., where he pinned a yellow ribbon on the Town Hall door and urged his well-wishers to remember the seven still captive and "all the hostages being held against their will wherever they may be throughout the world."

In Rockford, Ill., about 400 people waved American flags distributed by the Salvation Army and sang the "Star Spangled Banner" to welcome Army Reserve Major Kurt Carlson.

"If it hadn't been for all of you out here and all of Rockford, I would not be here today," Carlson said. "For the rest of my life, I will be thanking you."

Carlson spoke bitterly of the two men who carried out the hijacking, calling them "murderers" and saying the United States should "absolutely" retaliate against them.

Leo C. Byron, a Pennsylvania welfare worker, flew home from Andrews on a state plane furnished by Gov. Dick Thornburgh. Byron said he was "in the right place at the right time" after being "in the wrong place at the wrong time."

Appearing today on CBS News' "Nightwatch," Peter Hill said that "the degree of terrorism and brutality that we experienced in the plane was deliberate and premeditated."

The travel agent from Hoffman Estates, Ill., said he could not forgive the killing of Robert Stethem, a Navy diver who was on the hijacked plane, and called the Shiite hijackers "cutthroats ... murderers."

Hill, who said he could not understand why the former hostages were being treated as heroes, added, "I have absolutely no sympathy with the animals that had us in captivity. None whatsoever."

In Houston, Allyn Conwell, 39, who acted as the hostages' spokesman during their detention, stepped from a plane waving an American flag with a yellow ribbon tied to it and said, "I tell you what, it's a big difference coming here to meet people that are friendly instead of a hostile group. It gave us a tremendous amount of fortitude to know that we had loved ones and friends waiting for us. It's good to be home. Thank you, people of Houston, and thank you, fellow Texans."

Arthur Toga, accompanied by his pregnant wife, Debra, arrived Tuesday from New York on a private jet at Hanscom Field in the Boston suburb of Bedford.

Toga, 32, a neurology professor at Washington University in St. Louis, said all he thought about during the 17-day ordeal was "keeping my skin."

He added: "Justice should be served against the hijackers who are responsible for that kind of terror."

In Richmond, Mo., a parade was called for pilot John Testrake, called "an international hero" by Howard Hill, editor of The Richmond Daily News.

"We want him to know his hometown is concerned about him," said Hill, whose newspaper Tuesday included bumper stickers saying "Welcome Home John Testrake," donated by local printer Byron Taber.

Most of the ex-hostages, accompanied by family members who met them in New York, at Andrews and in West Germany, returned home Tuesday. Several planned to be home by tonight and Thursday.

Gemayel as forgotten president

By R. GREGORY NOKES
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration's decision to try to close Beirut airport marks a new low point for the government of President Amin Gemayel, once viewed by Washington as offering the best hope for a strong, new Lebanon.

The action, announced Monday, will hurt Gemayel's government and the Lebanese economy more than it will the hijackers. The administration has put demands on Gemayel to halt terrorism in Lebanon that U.S. officials concede he has no hope of meeting.

Lebanon's ambassador to Washington, Abdallah Bouhabib, reacted angrily, accusing the administration of "playing domestic politics" in Lebanon.

"The State Department knows, the administration knows, the cause of terrorism is not in Lebanon," he said. "The plane was hijacked from Athens," he said, referring to TWA Flight 847.

When the Reagan administration wanted to talk to someone about releasing the hostages, it didn't go to Gemayel, but to Lebanon's justice minister, Nabih Berri, who is emerging as the real power in that embattled country.

When the administration decided to retaliate for the hijackings, it didn't attack the hijackers, but sought to close the Beirut airport, an action it never would have considered when Gemayel was at the height of his popularity in Washington.

Bouhabib told The Associated Press that the hijackers had nothing to do with Lebanon, whose people, he argued, resolutely opposed the hijacking. He said Gemayel sent Reagan a strong condemnation of the hijacking on June 21.

He also said that Berri had Gemayel's blessing in his dealings with the Americans. "We know the limitations of our government," Bouhabib said.

In better days, Gemayel visited the United States in October of 1982, a month after his election, and came to Washington twice more in 1983. The administration had looked to Gemayel to rebulid Lebanon after the Israeli invasion in 1982, even backing him over the reluctance of Israel.

Gemayel's downfall came after the U.S.-brokered May 17, 1983, troop withdrawal agreement fell apart. Gemayel had resisted signing the agreement, which called for a simultaneous withdrawal of Israel and Syrian troops.

Gemayel argued that Syria, which was not consulted, would never go along. He was pressured by Washington to sign anyway, and he did, but he was right about Syria, which refused to even consider it.

Gemayel continues in office at the pleasure of Syria, the real power in Lebanon, which could oust him at any time. Syria's attitude seems to be that there needs to be someone as president, so why not Gemayel who was, after all, elected.

But Gemayel doesn't come to Washington any more.

WARREN HASSE

IT WAS THE BEST OF TIMES... The Fourth of July when I was a kid. Unfortunately, the two things that made it the greatest for a youngster then have become virtual no-no's today...firecrackers and doubleheader baseball games. The changing scene in America has virtually voiced both.

I miss the firecrackers, noisy as they were. And thinking back, it is difficult, in fact impossible, to recall an incident that brought any form of serious physical injury or property damage to any person. Oh sure, there was an occasional minor skin burn from a quick-flaming sizzler or short-fused cracker. But we learned valuable lessons about how to respect potentially dangerous materials. And it's hard to believe the grass didn't get as fire-ready dry in those days. Noise? There was no such thing as home air conditioning in those days, and all families kept every door and window wide open all summer long, except to restrain rain.

I guess we were just a smarter bunch of kids, or our parents were more concerned, or fireworks manufacturers used some self-restraint in their products. It's strange that Texas legislators, who are smart enough to vote to allow people to drive and drink alcoholic beverages and then pass legislation forcing me to wear a seat belt so those drunken drivers won't kill me quite so dead, can't legislate fireworks firepower sold to the general public.

I was fortunate as a kid because my Dad combined the fireworks and baseball. Wrigley Field was 225 miles from my home, the major league schedule makers always had doubleheaders on holidays, and there was no night baseball. The Cubs either played home on the Fourth, or the day before or after. So Dad loaded up the family, the fireworks, and we headed for Uncle John's in suburban Chicago. While I was anxious to see the pinwheels, skyrockets, fountains and parachute bombs, fire the Chinese firecrackers or send cans skyward with a 3-inch, most exciting was the trip on the Howard Street "El" to the Addison Street stop, and Cubs Park.

Digging through my files I found many of those old scorecards, browning with age but golden with memories. The St. Louis Cardinals were generally the opposition due to the geographic relationship of the train-travelling teams. And Big Cat Johnny Mize was the major problem for the Cubs. He might have hit more home runs than Hank Aaron if he could have played half his games in Chicago.

Here's a July 4, 1941 program. Mize's bat and Mort Cooper's arm won the first game, but Larry French shut Mize out in the nightcap for a 5-2 Cub victory. And in only 2:12, compared to today's regular 3-hour contest. And the 1939 twinbill with Babe Dahlgren's ninth inning home run pacing the Cubs 6-5 win over Hal Lanier, with rain catching the nightcap.

July 4, 1937 is an interesting one. The scorecard is the back page of the Chicago Sunday Times, several of the Windy City papers using that play on a special run of papers sold only around the ballpark. The front page headlines say: US SPEEDS AID TO LOST AMELIA. The backpage now shows the Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates split a crackerjack doubleheader. Hall of Fame brothers, Paul and Lloyd Waner, Big and Little Poison, along with teammate Arky Vaughn who will join them at Cooperstown shortly, won the second game. July 4, 1959 saw Don Drysdale, with a Duke Snider homerun powering the attack, win the second-half of the holiday bargain bill after the Cubs beat the Dodgers in the lidlifter despite another Snider bomb. The day before, San Francisco was in town for two, and Mays, Cepeda, and Antonelli were too much, according to our scorecards.

It wasn't July 4, but it was significant, the August 25, 1940 program. It was on the back page of another of those newspapers. Gabby Hartnett's Cubs split a doubleheader with Bill Terry's Giants that day. Chicago beat Hal Schumacher in 10 innings of the first game, but Paul (Daffy) Dean, who was later to pitch, own, and manage in the WT-NM League, own the second game. The important part of that paper, however, was the front page headline: BOMBERS DIVE ON LONDON IN GREATEST RAID. It foretold the future. Eighteen months later we were a nation at war, I had enlisted in the Air Force.

Feeling it might be the very last time I'd ever see the Cubs, Dad and I were back for a Labor Day doubleheader in 1941. Cincinnati, with Paul Derringer, Bucky Walters and Johnny Vander Meer were in town, and we stayed over the next day to see the Cubs beat Howie Pollett and the Cardinals (despite another Mize home run) 4-3 in 10 innings. Enos (Country) Slaughter was on that St. Louis team. We were to bump into him in the Air Force a couple of years later, a story worth telling here at a later date, when he goes into the Hall of Fame this summer, perhaps.

Anyway, despite the war worries, everything turned out okay, even to my getting back from overseas in time to attend the 1945 World Series in Cincinnati. What's the point of all this?

Some may connect Independence Day with picnicking in the park, camping and fishing, drinking beer and golfing. To me there is somehow, somewhere, a patriotic understanding of what the day is about, a subliminal association brought about by Dad's matching fireworks and baseball.

I hope that same "I'm proud to be an American" feeling hasn't gone the way of fireworks and doubleheaders. Let's bring all three of them back!

Yes, it was the best of times...and the worst of times (when Johnny Mize was coming to bat with the game on the line!)

Amarillo schedules Triathlon

The second annual Amarillo Bud Light Triathlon will be held Sept. 7. The event consists of an 800-meter swim, followed by a 40-kilometer bike race and a 10-kilometer run. Winners advance to the National Short Course Triathlon in Hilton Head, South Carolina at the end of September. The first Amarillo Triathlon brought out 150 participants from four states and numerous cities. Expected attendance this year is 350, according to Race Director Kevin Knapp. Prizes include a round-trip ticket and two nights lodging at the National Finals at Hilton Head for the overall men's and women's champions. Trophies and plaques will also be given to the top three in each division.

Interested people can call Kevin Knapp at 806-373-7800 or 1-800-692-1338, Texas only. Or write Box 9480, Amarillo, Tex. 79105 for more information.

Entries will be taken until Aug 28 or until the maximum number of entries are filled.

"We encourage all to enter quickly to ensure a space," Knapp said.

North one of favorites in Canadian Golf Open

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) — Andy North, who won his second U.S. Open golf championship a couple of weeks ago, has decided to skip the British Open.

"I've got a couple of corporate outings that week," North said. "These are the people that have been real good to me over the past few years. There's no way I'm going to say no to them."

North made the comments Tuesday before a practice round for Thursday's start of the Canadian Open, his first competitive appearance since his U.S. Open victory at Oakland Hills in Birmingham, Mich., his first triumph since 1978.

Immediately after the Open, North said he was unsure whether he would play in England.

At Wimbledon

Leconte advances to quarterfinals

Henri Leconte of France is jubilant after upsetting Ivan Lendl in Wimbledon action Tuesday.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Four unseeded players, including a Chilean qualifier and a 17-year-old West German, remain in the hunt for the men's title as the Wimbledon tennis championships reached the quarterfinal stage.

As the seeded players continued to tumble, Chilean qualifier Ricardo Acuna joined West Germany's Boris Becker, Switzerland's Heinz Gunhardt and France's Henri Leconte in the last eight spots of the sport's most coveted tournament.

Since Wimbledon seedings were introduced in 1927, no unseeded player has ever won the men's or women's crown.

But one, at least, was certain to reach the semifinal stage in the men's event as a result of today's pairings.

Becker and Leconte, two of this year's giant-killers, were scheduled to clash on Centre Court in a classic confrontation between the big server and the touchplayer.

But first up today was a women's quarterfinal match between the defending champion and co-top seed, Martina Navratilova, and her doubles partner, Pam Shriver, seeded No. 5. That match was to be followed by a men's quarterfinal pitting defending champion and top-seeded John McEnroe against hard-hitting Kevin Curren, seeded No. 8.

On other courts, quarterfinals matched Gunhardt against fifth-seeded Anders Jarryd of Sweden, co-top seed Chris Evert Lloyd against Barbara Potter, Acuna against No. 3 Jimmy Connors, Kathy Rinaldi against Helena Sukova and Zina Garrison against qualifier Molly Van Nostrand.

McEnroe is aiming to become the first American to win the men's title three straight times, while Connors, seeded No. 3, is after his third crown at age 32.

Leconte scored a shocker when he overpowered a listless No. 2 seed Ivan Lendl, the world's second-ranked player who has won only one Grand Slam title in his career.

"I give Lendl so much trouble because I play so well," Leconte joked after his 3-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-1 victory, his fifth in eight meetings with the stone-faced Czechoslovakian.

Becker shrugged off a sprained ankle to out-blast American Tim Mayotte, the No. 16 seed, 6-3, 4-6, 6-7, 7-6, 6-2 and continue his remarkable charge through the tournament. He is the youngest player to reach the last eight since Bjorn Borg in 1973.

Van Nostrand's 7-5, 6-2 victory over Bulgaria's Manuela Maleeva, the No. 4 seed, also created a sensation.

The little-known 20-year-old American, from Brightwaters, N.Y., lost in the qualifying event last year and had been out of the game for over three months because of injury.

Elliott grabs pole spot in Firecracker 400

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Cale Yarborough and Waddell Wilson did everything they could, but it still wasn't enough to deter intimidating Bill Elliott.

Elliott, the dominant force on the Grand National stock car circuit this year, earned the pole for the sixth time this season in topping Tuesday's qualifying for the Pepsi Firecracker 400 at the Daytona International Speedway.

Yarborough was the fourth of 44 drivers who made qualifying attempts Tuesday morning, while Elliott was 42nd — going onto the tough, high-banked 2.5-mile tri-oval with temperatures about 10 degrees higher than when Yarborough ran and the surface getting slicker and slicker.

"I know I've been doing my job and Waddell (his crew chief and engine builder) has been doing his," said Yarborough. "I think we're pretty close to having it right. But he's real tough to beat right now, and he has a knack for going just as fast as he needs to."

The drawing red-haired native of Dawsonville, Ga., had a fast lap of 201.523 mph, just 156 of a second faster than the 201.270 lap turned in by Yarborough.

That made the front row for this race a duplicate of the one that started the Daytona 500 in February, a race that Elliott totally dominated after Yarborough's engine blew in the early going.

"We'll just have to wait and see on Thursday," was Elliott's middle-of-the-road reply when asked if he felt he could dominate here again as he did in February.

Darrell Waltrip, a two-time Winston Cup champion and second to Elliott in the current point standings, was more certain.

After qualifying a disappointing 19th at 195.627, Waltrip said, "There's Elliott and there's the rest of us. We ain't in the same class right now."

Tuesday's qualifying session was the first official use of a new restrictor plate on the carburetors of the Grand National cars, a rule intended to slow the cars.

Elliott's fast lap was about 4 mph slower than his record qualifying effort for the Daytona 500. Some had contended that the new rule would most hurt the sleek Thunderbirds driven by Elliott and Yarborough, but that was not the case Tuesday.

In fact, if anything, it seemed to affect the Fords less.

"It appears that way. We're going to start one-two-three," Elliott said, referring to his car and the Thunderbirds of Yarborough and third-place qualifier Ricky Rudd (199.049 mph). Facts are facts.

Next to Rudd on the second row for Thursday's race will be defending Winston Cup champion Terry Labonte, who qualified at 199.001 mph in a Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS.

The top 20 qualifiers Tuesday are locked in starting spots for Thursday's event, with the rest of the 40-car field to be filled in another period of time trials today.

USFL to have 12-team league in '86

TEANECK, N.J. (AP) — Commissioner Harry Usher is looking for 12 good teams to play in the United States Football League in the fall of 1986.

Usher and league owners met for more than eight hours Tuesday at a local hotel to plan possible mergers, clubs transfers, team rosters and television contracts as well as a reduction of the 14-team league.

"I have expressed, as I have expressed in there, that 12 teams are the optimum number for 1986," Usher said. "That's part of the game plan and business plan I am going to try to effect over the next several months."

Usher planned at least three times with the owners this summer, but said there were no deadlines for deciding how many teams would make the switch from spring to fall, where they will be playing and what their schedules will be.

There also will be very little discussion of the details of the meetings, unless Usher is doing the talking. A gag order was placed on the owners and their representatives who attended the meeting, said Jerry Sklar, president of the Birmingham Stallions.

San Antonio, Tampa Bay, Denver and Houston were teams mentioned by Usher as possible candidates to be merged or moved during the league's 14-month hiatus.

"The issue of where Houston is going to play was certainly in the forefront," said Usher. "Whether it's going to go here, there or elsewhere is one of the topics of discussion."

He said Shea Stadium in New York City was not going to be the new home for the Gamblers' franchise.

The commissioner refused to say whether the Los Angeles Express would be one of the teams that would be eliminated in a reshuffling of the three-year-old league. The financially ailing Express was taken over by the league this season.

"It is my feeling that Los Angeles is an important market to have a USFL team," said Usher.

Usher said San Antonio is a good market for the league, and noted that officials in Tampa are "looking at the situation to see if it wants to merge."

Optimist baseball roundup

Glo-Valve Service withstood a furious sixth-inning rally Tuesday and downed Keyes Pharmacy, 11-8, to move into the finals of the Little League City Tournament for the fifth time in the last eight years.

Andrew Ramirez was credited with his sixth win of the year while Ricky Gonzales was tagged with the loss.

Leading the 14-hit Glo-Valve attack was Daniel Tolbert with three hits. Brad Smillie, Nacho Vargas, Ramirez, Kelley Quarles and Mitch Spence had two hits each for the winners. Vargas had two doubles and three runs batted in and Quarles had a double and a triple.

Monty Waters with a double and a triple and Bryan Ellis with two hits were the leading hitters for Keyes Pharmacy.

Keyes Pharmacy closed out its season with a 14-5 record. Glo-Valve improved to 12-6.

Glo-Valve returns to action at 7 p.m. tonight at Optimist Park against undefeated Dean's Pharmacy, a 13-0 victor over Glo-Valve last week. Dean's Pharmacy was the regular season champion of the American Little League with a 13-0 record and stands 4-0 in the City Tournament.

The American League champions have defeated Celanese by a forfeit, Dixie Parts, Rotary and Glo-Glove enroute to the finals. Glo-Valve bested Chase Oilfield Service, Harris Sporting Goods and Keyes Pharmacy twice. Glo-Valve was third in the National Little League this year with a regular-season record of 8-5. Glo-Valve is 4-1 in the City Tournament.

In the first-round of the District One 13-year-old Tournament last night, Randall County defeated Top O' Texas, 13-8, and the Pampa All-Stars routed North Plains, 10-3.

Pampa pitcher James Bybee surrendered only one run through six innings. Bybee, along with Mike Cagle, Mark Wood and Matt Brock, led Pampa's hitting attack. One of Brock's hits was a triple.

Pampa Coach Dannie Cagle said Wood played an excellent game at third base, as did second baseman Brad Cryer and first baseman Mike Cagle.

Pampa meets Randall County at 6 p.m. tonight at Optimist Park while Top O' Texas meets North Plains at 8 p.m.

Softball deadline is July 15-16

Entry deadline for the Pampa fall softball leagues is July 15 for the men's open league and July 16 for the mixed league. The season begins July 29 and is scheduled to end Sept. 20. The men's open playoffs are set for Sept. 23-27. Entry fee is $186 in the men's open league based on a 14-game schedule. Entry fee, based on a 12-game schedule, is $144 in the mixed league. Roster forms and by-laws are available in the Parks and Recreation Office at 816 South Hobart after July 1. Checks should be made out to "City of Pampa — Softball" and fees should be paid to the Parks and Recreation Office. Schedules will be available after 1 p.m. July 25 in the Parks and Recreation Office.

Niekro notches 200th victory

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
After reaching one plateau, Joe Niekro quickly set his sights on another. "If we stay healthy, we should get the record," the Houston Astros' right-hander said after winning his 200th major league game Tuesday night with a 3-2 victory over the San Diego Padres. With that barrier cleared, Niekro is now gunning for a combined record with his brother, Phil, of the New York Yankees. They are currently 39 victories behind the leading brother combination of Gaylord and Jim Perry, who racked up 529 victories between them. Niekro, 7-7, pitched seven innings and recorded his fourth straight victory in becoming the 84th pitcher in major league history to reach the 200-win plateau. With a 200-174 record, he also became the eighth active pitcher to reach the milestone. In other National League action, Los Angeles defeated Cincinnati 3-0, San Francisco stopped Atlanta 8-3, St. Louis blanked Montreal 4-0, New York nipped Pittsburgh 5-4, and Philadelphia routed Chicago 11-2.

Dodgers 3, Reds 0
Fernando Valenzuela allowed just three hits in pitching Los Angeles over Cincinnati for his National League-leading fourth shutout of the season. Valenzuela, 8-8, struck out eight and walked two. Pedro Guerrero had three hits and two RBIs as the Dodgers won their fourth straight game and broke a tie with the Reds for second place in the NL West.

Giants 8, Braves 3
Manny Trillo drove in two runs with a single and his first home run of the season and Jeff Leonard also knocked in two runs to power San Francisco over Atlanta. Jim Gott, 4-5, allowed six hits and two runs over 6 2-3 innings before giving way to reliever Scott Garrelts, who was touched for an unearned run in the eighth before recording his sixth save. The Giants rapped out 13 hits, eight against loser Steve Bedrosian, 5-7, and took advantage of four Atlanta errors for only their third victory in 15 games. Dale Murphy drove in two runs for the Braves with his 20th homer, tops in the major leagues. Cardinals 4, Expos 0
John Tudor won his seventh consecutive game, allowing only three singles.

Brett goes on hitting spree against A's

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer
In June, George Brett had nine runs batted in. After collecting eight in the first two days of July and raising his batting average to a season-high .336, he still doesn't feel like he's hitting the ball as well as he can. "I don't think I'm in the groove like in the past where I would come to the park knowing I'm going to drive the ball hard three or four times a game," Brett said Tuesday night after hitting a pair of towering three-run homers and a single to carry the Kansas City Royals to a 10-1 rout of the Oakland A's. Charlie Leibrandt, who scattered six hits in eight innings for his seventh victory in 12 decisions, was far more impressed with Brett's hitting stroke than was the perennial American League All-Star third baseman. "We expect him to pick us up and tonight he did it again," Leibrandt said. "His first home run really took the wind out of their sails." In other AL games Tuesday, it was New York 5, Toronto 3; Baltimore 5, Detroit 4 in 10 innings; Milwaukee 4, Boston 3 in 10 innings; Chicago 12, Seattle 4; California 7, Texas 2; and Minnesota 8, Cleveland 7.

Yankees 5, Blue Jays 3
New York's Rickney Henderson hit the first pitch of the game over the right-field fence for his 10th homer and finished with three hits and two RBIs to support Ed Whitson's strong pitching against

Toronto. Whitson, 4-6, allowed only three hits in eight innings. Orioles 5, Tigers 4
Baltimore, after surrendering a grand-slam homer to Darrell Evans in the first, came back with four homers, including Mike Young's game-winner in the bottom of the 10th inning, to beat Detroit. Young's homer and another solo shot — by Cal Ripken with two outs in the ninth and the Orioles trailing 4-3 — came against 1984 Cy Young Award winner Willie Hernandez, 4-4.

Oilers obtain Rams' Hill

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers, trying to add a deep threat to their receiving corps, have obtained Los Angeles Rams wide receiver Drew Hill in a trade. The Oilers also have signed veteran wide receiver Tim Smith and kicker Florian Kempf, the club announced Tuesday. Terms of the trade were not announced but the conditional deal was believed to involve middle-round draft choices in 1986 and 1987. Hill, 28, was a 12th-round draft choice for the Rams in 1979.

Lebanese national airline would suffer most from blockade

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Reagan's measures to close Beirut's airport to international aviation in retaliation for the TWA hijacking could mean the collapse of Middle East Airlines, the last link with the outside world for many Lebanese.

The airline, Lebanon's national carrier, is the only company that continued flying to and from Beirut following the June 14 seizure of TWA Flight 847 and the subsequent holding of 40 American passengers and crew as hostages.

The airline has kept flying despite the 10-year-long Lebanese civil war. Many times planes have taken off or landed with the sound of artillery fire echoing from the nearby mountains.

MEA, established in 1946, has a fleet that includes 15 Boeing 707 jets and three 747 jumbo jets. The Lebanese government owns 68 percent of MEA. Air France owns 28 percent, and private shareholders own the rest. Capt. Saaduddin Dabbous, MEA's senior pilot until he retired several days ago, said the closing of the airport could lead to the loss of jobs for the airline's 5,000 employees.

MEA Chairman Salim Salaam issued a statement Tuesday saying that the Lebanese company, already suffering from the prolonged civil war, was the "prime innocent victim" of Reagan's measures.

Salaam said Reagan's moves to close the airport were an "arbitrary sanction that may cause it (MEA) tremendous losses and may expose the fate of thousands of families to a somber future."

Reagan's action specifically banned the once-a-week MEA flight to New York. Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Monday "the purpose is to place off limits internationally that airport until the people of Beirut place terrorists off limits."

Names in News

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — "Dynasty" star Linda Evans is quashing rumors that her screen husband, John Forsyth, plans to leave the series.

"I would not let him leave," Miss Evans said at a news conference Tuesday in Edinburgh. "I am sure he is not leaving. He is a gentleman."

There has been speculation that Forsyth, who plays Blake Carrington, might leave "Dynasty" in a dispute over money.

Miss Evans, who plays Carrington's wife, Krystle, was in Edinburgh to join dozens of other entertainers in a charity performance tonight before Queen Elizabeth II.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Native Philadelphians Bill Cosby and David Brenner have donated their time to headline a concert for the 270 people left homeless by the May 13 MOVE fire.

The two comedians, who liberally sprinkle their acts with anecdotes about the City of Brother Love, were joined at the "People for People" concert Tuesday night by four local bands with varying national reputations — Robert Hazzard and the Heroes, the Dixie Hummingbirds, A Touch of Class and the Larry Jones Quartet.

"I'm here because I love the city," Cosby said at a news conference before the concert. "It's sort of like a family."

As a child, Brenner said, he lived several blocks from the decimated neighborhood.

"It's especially horrible when you knew people who lived there," he said. "Something like that could have happened anywhere. But only in Philadelphia would people come out and help people like this."
