SUSPECT ARRESTED

Pope Paul Narrowly Escapes Attempt On Life In Manila

MANILA (UPI)—A Bolivian artist disguised as a priest tried to stab Pope Paul VI with a foot-long knife today. Aides threw themselves in front of the pontiff, subdued the assailant and the uninjured Pope went ahead with a full day of activities.

The assailant, Benjamin Mendoza Amor, 35, was arrested and police said he would be charged with attempted murder. He was quoted as saying: "I want to eliminate the Pope because he is the symbol of superstition and hypocrisy. I don't believe in ideology or religion."

Although the Pope was not hurt, the attack and his extremely heavy schedule took its toll. Tonight, in a speech at the presidential palace, the Pope looked tired and slurred his words. He had been on the go for more than 32 hours with only brief catnaps on the plane from Rome to Manila via Iran and East Pakistan.

The attack came moments after the 73-year-old Pope stepped from his jetliner at Manila International Airport to begin an historic tour of Asian and Pacific lands.

The Pope proceeded almost as if the incident had not happened, receiving the cheers of one million persons as he drove to downtown Manila for talks with President Ferdinand

E. Marcos—one of the heroes of the aborted attack on the Pope. Aides said Marcos, the Pope's private secretary, Msgr. Pasquale Macchi, and an English missionary bishop, Msgr. Anthony D. Galvin, played the key roles in keeping the Pope out of harm's way.

Macchi threw himself on the assailant and prevented him from reaching the Pope. Marcos parried Mendoza's knife with a karate chop. Galvin, a 51-year-old 200-pounder, wrestled Mendoza away into the arms of security police who collared him and hustled him off to jail.

Mendoza was cut in the scuffling and some stains of blood splattered the Pope's white robes. Cardinal Stephen Kim of South Korea received a small cut on one arm from Mendoza's knife, a wavy-bladed dagger known as a kris.

Witnesses said the Pope was startled but regained his composure quickly and went on with the welcoming ceremony. Speaking 10 hours later at the end of a long and arduous day, the frail Pope called for a more equitable distribution of wealth in the Philippines where 90 per cent of the nation's riches are possessed by 10 per cent of the population.

He made no references to the airport attack. Mendoza had managed to slip up close to the Pope during the welcoming crush despite strong security precautions. The stocky, crew-cut Bolivian, speaking in heavily accented English, was heard telling interrogators "I don't believe in ideology or religion, only in mankind I'm not a communist, I am a socialist."

Mendoza, when he was being taken away just after the stabbing attempt, screamed, "I want to liberate." He was carrying 121 pesos—about $20. The incident occurred just minutes after the Pope's white, and yellow jetliner—the Vatican colors—touched down at Manila Airport. He had made brief stops in Tehran and Dacca, East Pakistan, on the way. His stop at Dacca was to express his sorrow for the suffering there because of the cyclone and tidal wave two weeks ago.

last Pope believed to have died a violent death was Leo X, the renaissance Pope who patronized the painter Raphael. Leo, the son of Lorenzo de Medici the Magnificent, died in 1521. Some contemporaries attributed his death to poisoning, although several historians believe the real cause of death was malaria.

The last Pope known to have died a violent death was Lucius II, fatally wounded in 1145 while besieging Rome, which had been occupied by his domestic enemies. In all, 31 Popes—not counting Leo—are more or less reliably reported to have died violent deaths. They include St. Peter, who according to tradition was martyred in Rome in 64 or 67 A.D. and all of his first 14 successors, who are listed in church annals as martyrs. However, the circumstances of their deaths are generally confused and obscure.

The other 16 were killed in personal and power struggles of the Middle Ages by means ranging from poison to strangling. Among them is John XII, who died on 963 eight days after being severely beaten by a jealous husband.

Egypt Will Break Truce If Israel Disrupts Talks

By United Press International
Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad said today Egypt will refuse to extend the Middle East cease-fire past Feb. 3 if Israel tries to stall in the peace talks with U.N. negotiator Gunnar V. Jarring. "Egypt will not accept a new extension of the cease-fire unless we are convinced that Israeli talks with Jarring are proceeding seriously," Riad said in an interview with the mass circulation Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar.

Riad predicted Israel would resume talks shortly before the Feb. 3 cease-fire expiration date and then stall while the United States proposed a cease-fire extension.

Military officials in Cairo said Egypt's armed forces remained on full alert today because of an Israeli military buildup along the Suez Canal. The officials said there were fears of a preemptive strike into Egypt.

Israeli military observers in Tel Aviv theorized the Egyptians saw maneuvers by Israeli armored forces in the occupied Sinai desert and erroneously thought they were preparing for an attack.

Cairo radio said Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Syrian Prime Minister Lt. Gen. Hafez Assad, who seized power in a bloodless coup Nov. 13, had agreed to increase military cooperation between their countries.

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan called in a television interview for a negotiated Middle East cease-fire as a stepping stone to the resumption of peace talks.

Kidnaped British Diplomat Reported Still Alive, Well

LONDON (UPI)—Canadian External Affairs Secretary Mitchell Sharp said today he has assured the British government there is every reason to believe kidnaped British diplomat James R. Cross is alive and well.

"We have no reason to believe the contrary," he told newsmen.

Sharp said this was one of the main questions he discussed Thursday with Prime Minister Edward Heath and Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas Home.

A joint statement by the two governments said Sharp repeated to Douglas-Home the Canadian government's readiness to ensure safe conduct abroad for the kidnapers in return for the release of Cross alive.

ST. NICK COMES TO PAMPA

Santa Day Parade Opens Holiday Shopping Period

Santa Claus came to town this forenoon, the big Santa Day parade wound through city streets and Pampa's pre-Christmas holiday shopping season was officially opened with a fanfare of bands, floats and full-blown yuletide atmosphere.

Santa arrived on schedule at 10 a.m. aboard a helicopter that set down in Coronado Center where he was welcomed by hundreds of children and their parents.

The North Pole ambassador of good cheer, attired in his flaming red suit, greeted the youngsters, talked with them and distributed candy before climbing atop one of the city's red fire trucks to join the parade to downtown Pampa.

The parade formed at the Center and began moving around 11 a.m. for its downtown destination. Streets en route and in midtown were lined with parade spectators from Pampa and trading area towns who came in for the big event.

The parade moved south on Hobart and Ward streets and

ON WAR PRISONERS

Viet Peace Delegate Cancels Price Talk

Congressman Bob Price of Pampa announced from Paris that deputy Chief Nguyen Minh Vy of the North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris Peace Talks has cancelled a follow-up appointment to the Sept. 11 meeting between the two men.

"I talked with Mr. Vy's secretary several times after arriving in Paris this week and was told each time that Mr. Vy was busy, but it was suggested I contact him at a later date," Price said.

The Texas congressman, who discussed the war and the war prisoner issue with Vy at the September meeting said, "I assume our planned meeting was cancelled because of the recent air strikes and commando raid which was aimed at securing the release of American prisoners of war being held in North Vietnam. I regret that this meeting has been cancelled, but I shall continue to make every effort to obtain condition reports and the release of all Americans being held in Communist prisoner of war camps."

During his previous conversation with Vy, the congressman had requested condition reports on several Texans and other Americans who are known POW's or have been listed as missing in action. Price had also requested safe passage to Hanoi to inspect POW camps.

While in Europe, Price had discussions and briefings with agricultural attaches from countries (England and Spain) regarding the obstacles facing export of Panhandle agricultural products to those countries.

The congressman also met for four hours with the two largest beef importers in France for further discussions on the possibility of shipping Panhandle beef to that country.

BRISTOL, England (UPI)—A Charlo, Mont., bar owner Pays Michael Crew to drink as many different kinds of English beer as he can find.

Adrian Browne pays 60 cents each time Crew drinks a bottle, and ships it to Montana, where Browne is decorating one wall of his bar with the empty bottles.

Tight On Spending Ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Although he is faced with a third straight annual deficit, President Nixon virtually has ruled out any request for new or higher taxes in the budget he will send to Congress in January.

"The prospects for a new tax proposal for revenue purposes are not very great," a high administration official explained. "You don't want to raise taxes in the middle of a slack economic period."

Without a major tax increase, Nixon's budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 is almost certain to be out of balance. A deficit, possibly as high as $15 billion, is assured for the current fiscal year which ends June 30. The previous fiscal year, the first of Nixon's term, ended with a deficit of $2.8 billion.

In an effort to hold spending as close as possible to income, Nixon has ordered his Office of Management and Budget (OMB) to keep a tight rein on expenditures.

Administration sources said the Treasury Department has prepared a list of possible budget-balancing tax measures, including boosts in income and excise taxes, a value-added levy and postponement of scheduled reductions included in the 1969 Tax Reform Act. But Nixon decided that economic and political considerations both pointed to no new taxes next year, the sources said.

The President may decide to resubmit to Congress a proposed tax on the lead in gasoline and could suggest reform of inheritance and gift taxes, officials said. However, the lead tax is considered primarily as an antipollution measure and inheritance-gift tax reform would produce only limited revenue.

Nixon recently fixed a ceiling for the overall budget and set limits on spending for each individual agency. The OMB, which is producing its first budget after replacing the Budget Bureau on government organization charts, was told to fill in detailed spending plans that would stay under the ceiling.

In fixing the limits, Nixon abandoned a budgeting procedure employed by him and his recent predecessors which, in effect, made the President an impartial judge of disputes over spending between an economy-program-oriented agencies.

MAIL TROUBLES

HUTTON, England (UPI)—No one was home when the postman tried to deliver a package to Mrs. Leslie Bath, so he left a note and put the package in the coal bunker. The coalman arrived sooner and buried the package which had a new dress inside, under half a ton of coke. It took two postmen four hours to dig the package out.

Walter Hickel Vows To Speak Out On His Abrupt Dismissal

WASHINGTON (UPI) Walter J. Hickel, abruptly dismissed by President Nixon from his post as Interior Secretary, has promised to speak out next week on his ouster.

Nixon fired the 51-year-old former governor of Alaska Wednesday night in what was described as the most abrupt dismissal of a cabinet officer since April, 1952, when President Harry S. Truman fired Attorney General J. Howard McGrath in a dispute over a corruption investigation within the Truman administration.

Nixon notified Hickel of his decision in a 25-minute meeting at the White House. Hickel went to the White House believing he was to attend a budget meeting. A spokesman for Nixon said the President took the action because the two men did not have "mutual confidence."

Rumors Came True
Nixon nominated Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton of Maryland, the Republican National Chairman, to succeed Hickel. Morton is not expected to take office until early next year. His appointment must be confirmed by the Senate.

It had been rumored for some time that Hickel was on his way out. In May, at the time of the U.S. incursion into Cambodia, Hickel angered the President with a letter urging Nixon to pay more attention to the demands of youthful protesters. The letter was leaked to the press.

Hickel also complained cabinet officers had difficulty seeing the President. Hickel made only a brief statement to reporters after his dismissal, saying "I had to do it my way." He spent Thanksgiving in seclusion with his family at their suburban Maryland home but agreed to speak Wednesday to the National Press Club. Hickel said he would "be wide open for any questions at that time."

Controversial From Start
One source said Nixon had agreed not to say anything bad about Hickel in the future. Hickel was a controversial appointee. He was quoted in 1969 as saying he did not favor "conservation for conservation's sake." Some of those who criticized him that time, however, later praised him for his performance on conservation.

"It turns out he had a great instinct for what was right and the guts to act on his convictions," Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said. Nelson had voted against confirmation.

Hickel had won praise from conservationists for his handling of the Santa Barbara channel oil spill and his opposition to the Florida Everglades jetport and to an expensive oil pipeline through his native Alaska.

"The President was remarkably patient with Mr. Hickel," said Rep. Sam Steiger, R-Ariz. "I would have fired him a long time ago."

Sen. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., said the firing showed the administration "either cannot or will not tolerate even the slightest display of independence."

Morton, 56, was in London when he learned of his nomination for Hickel's job. He praised Hickel for giving "a new dimension to solving problems facing this country."

Indians Bury Plymouth Rock Under Mounds Of Sand

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (UPI)—Twenty-five Indians buried Plymouth Rock under mounds of sand and seized a replica of the vessel that carried Pilgrims to the New World as part of their national day of mourning on Thanksgiving.

Some of the Indians, in native dress, slipped over a table laden with turkey and pies when they were invited to sit down for a recreation of the first Thanksgiving dinner. The Indians left with four turkeys after refusing to "eat white man's food."

The Indians scaled fences on the state pier to swarm aboard the Mayflower II. They climbed the rigging and tore down the flag of St. George, the patron saint of England, and the king's colors, the predecessor of the Union Jack.

A wax statue of Capt. Christopher Jones, master of the original Mayflower, was tossed overboard along with the flag of St. George.

The Indians left without incident when police arrived. No arrests were made.

"We asked police to remove them when they began destroying property," said Lawrence Couter, a spokesman for the Plymouth Plantation Foundation, which owns the Mayflower II.

One of the Indians in the rigging demanded the white man "take back his poverty and disease. The Indians lived together for 2,400 years without poverty," he said.

Russell Means, a Sioux from South Dakota who now lives in Cleveland, held a musket in his hands as he shouted to the mostly white visitors who witnessed the spectacle.

The seizure, he said, was "symbolic" because the Indian has the right "to everything on the continent which was taken away from him by the white man."

Sen. McKoll To Introduce Legislation To Limit Auto Insurance Rate Hike To 5%

DALLAS (UPI) — Ruffled over a State Insurance Board staff proposal to guarantee auto insurance companies 11.7 per cent after-tax profits, Sen. Mike McKoll, D-Dallas, said Thursday he will introduce legislation to limit such profits to 5 per cent. McKoll called a staff recommendation of a 23.4 per cent auto insurance rate increase "utterly ridiculous" and said the suggestion of an 11.7 profit for the companies is "a clear indication that the regulators are too close to the regulated." The staff recommendation of a 23.4 per cent hike in premium rates fell just short of the industry's recommendation of 27.7 per cent, McKoll said. "With a staff like that, I don't know why the auto insurance companies need to make any recommendations," he said. "Since the board is unable and unwilling to cope with the strong auto insurance industry, I feel the legislature should take the bull by the horns and set these guidelines to limit the profit to 5 per cent instead of the board's nearly 12 per cent." McKoll said the auto insurance industry spends a great deal of time and money lobbying in Austin, but "the public never knows where any of it is. It's difficult to put your finger on it." McKoll suggested citizens who oppose the recommended insurance increases should write to the insurance board in Austin and make their feelings known. City police and the sheriff's department reported today it was unusually quiet with no major crime or traffic accidents. A theft, shoplifting case, domestic disturbances and a couple of minor incidents constituted the holiday police reports.

Texans Observe Least Violent Holiday Weekend In Years

By United Press International So far it has been one of the least violent Thanksgiving holiday weekends in years in Texas. Since 6 p.m. Wednesday United Press International has counted five traffic deaths, one homicide, an accidental shooting death and two persons killed in an airplane crash. Gerald Mackey, 34, and John Cradner, 35, both of Houston, took off from Houston at 9:30 p.m. Wednesday on a flight to Dallas. The plane crashed half an hour after takeoff. Wreckage and bodies were burned so badly

ACCUSED OF KILLING 3 Murder Suspect Takes Own Life As His Home Besieged By Police

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—A retired Air Force sergeant accused of murdering a couple and their 19-year-old son shot and killed himself in the bathroom of his home Thursday after authorities surrounded the residence. Curtis Willie Hunter, 40, an electronics teacher at a vocational school, put a 45-caliber pistol to his temple and pulled the trigger. Hunter's wife and three teenage daughters were at home when 16 deputies wearing bulletproof vests encircled the house. They were not injured. A warrant was issued for Hunter's arrest after a ballistics check revealed that bullets from a .22 caliber pistol owned by Hunter matched ones that killed Simon Watts, 38. Watts was shot three times in the head and twice in the chest. His body was discovered buried in the desert near here Sunday. The body of his wife, Nanny, 39, was found in the Watts' home Nov. 5. She had been strangled. Shortly after the warrant for Hunter's arrest was issued, the body of the Watts' son Tyrone, was found in the trunk of the suspect's car. Officers said the killings occurred after Mrs. Watts allegedly tried to break off a three-year affair with Hunter.

Army's 1st Black General Dies, 93

CHICAGO (UPI)—Brig. Gen. Benjamin O. Davis Sr., the United States Army's first black general, died Thursday in Great Lakes Naval Hospital. He was 93. The hospital declined to make public the cause of death but Davis reportedly suffered from leukemia. Davis' rank was the highest held by a Negro in the United States armed forces until his son, Benjamin O. Davis Jr., was promoted to the rank of lieutenant general in the Air Force several years after his father's retirement in 1948. The younger Davis recently was named by President Nixon to head federal guards assigned to protect commercial airliners, against hijackings. Davis entered the Army in 1898 during the Spanish-American war. He served in the Philippines until 1901, when he was commissioned a lieutenant. He later served with the cavalry on the Mexican border and was promoted to major and then lieutenant colonel during World War I. President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed his commission as brigadier general in 1940. Davis retired a year after that promotion but returned to duty the next day and served as an advisor to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower during the war.

Max E. Webb, former Pampa, now residing in Westport, Conn., has been made a product director of Celanese Chemical Co., with responsibility for the acetyl and methyl product areas. He had been program manager of methyl and polyol products. Webb joined Celanese in 1960, as a production engineer at the Pampa chemical plant. Later, he served as a production superintendent at the local plant. Born in Streetman, Texas, Webb is a 1960 graduate of the University of New Mexico where he received a B.S. degree in chemical engineering.

Soviet Appears To Be Cautious In Middle East

LONDON (UPI)—The Soviet Union appears to have switched to a "policy of greater caution" in the Middle East to avoid the danger of being pushed over the brink in the Middle East today. The Kremlin remains committed to the Arabs, but was said to have drawn a firm line of so-far-no-further in the Middle East conflict, the sources said. Moscow has been significantly silent lately on the Middle East issue, whereas in the past hardly a day passed without Soviet leaders or Russian media fiercely attacking the Israelis and the United States for supporting the Israelis, the diplomatic informants said. The comparative restraint was seen as indicative of some new thinking in the Kremlin, though nothing has as yet publicly emerged about Russia's new line of strategy. Diplomatic sources, reflecting closely current Communist thinking on the Middle East situation, indicated strongly that Russia wants to avoid the danger of a possible collision with the United States. Apparently, some of the Kremlin leaders felt they had gone—or been pushed—too close to the brink in the Middle East conflict earlier this year. The strong U.S. reaction during the Jordan battle last summer including Syrian intervention and the reported Egyptian cease fire violations have left their mark on Moscow's policymakers, the sources said.

Experts See U.S. Will Have To Adopt Comprehensive Health Insurance Plan

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI)—Experts in the health industry believe the United States will have to adopt a comprehensive government health insurance program within a decade. Maybe sooner.

This was the conclusion of a large health economics conference held early in November at the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Finance.

Since then, another national health insurance bill has been offered in Congress by Sen. Russell Long, D-La. Long's measure is a catastrophe bill which would require Uncle Sam to pick up the tab after unpaid medical and hospital bills exceeded $2,000 or ran for 60 days, whichever came first.

However, the consensus at the Philadelphia meeting was that a federal program to take over basic health insurance is needed. It was felt that private enterprise can do an excellent job with catastrophe insurance, but basic hospitalization and medical insurance plans such as Blue Cross, Blue Shield and others are being hammered so hard by money inflation and rising costs that they no longer do an adequate job.

"The opinion also was expressed freely that the present system of basic hospitalization and medical insurance has a fundamental flaw," said a physician spokesman for Wharton's Leonard Davis Council on Health Economics. "It lacks either the accountability of the market place or the accountability of the ballot box."

This has led to inefficiencies, extravagances and even to widespread chiseling by patients, doctors and hospitals, it was claimed.

The more than 100 government, medical, economics, labor and consumer groups at the meeting agreed that the nation's health bill will rise to 8 to 9 per cent of the gross national product in the coming decade. That would be between $160 billion and $195 billion from the present $100 billion.

Therefore, it was contended, the United States no longer will be able to afford to be the only advanced nation in the world without a comprehensive national health program.

By no means all those at the Philadelphia conference agreed that the federal government should soon undertake basic health insurance for everybody. Several favored the government's undertaking a catastrophe program such as Senator Long proposes and the publicized major risk program of Martin Feldstein.

The insurance industry probably would rather see the government undertake the basic health insurance program with its tough problems and leave catastrophe insurance to the insurance companies.

When Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin made his surprise visit to Peking in September, 1969, he proposed to Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai they seek out areas where they might agree rather than those where they could not.

After a decade of deteriorating relations, in which war seemed a distinct likelihood, the Kosygin proposal has become the premise of their dealings with each other.

Late this month a new Chinese ambassador presented his credentials in Moscow after similar action by the Russians in Peking.

The two had withdrawn their ambassadors in 1966.

Other events in November included the signing of a new trade agreement between the two and a warmer than usual message from Peking to Moscow congratulating the Soviet Union on the 53rd anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

It was not back to the good old days of 1959 when trade between the two came to more than $2 billion nor was it back to early 1969 when bloody border clashes along their 5,000-mile borders brought relations to their lowest point.

It was shortly after the Kosygin visit that the two began their border talks which have been going on ever since.

The attempt to lower tensions has been apparent on both sides.

The Soviets have avoided criticism of the Chinese leadership and have voiced a desire both for improved relations with the Chinese government and with the Chinese people.

On the Chinese side, the more relaxed attitude toward the Soviets has been accompanied by a similar relation toward the world in general, with the United States the main exception.

While it is apparent that both sides are attempting to avoid a major confrontation, it is apparent also that both are keeping their powder dry.

The Soviets are reported to have at least 35 divisions along the border and to be capable of launching an offensive with either conventional or nuclear weapons.

The Chinese also have been building up their conventional forces and are said to be nearly ready with at least a handful of missiles in the 1,500 to 2,000-mile range.

Japan Will Equal America As World's Economic Super Power In Three Decades

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
NEW YORK (NEA)—In the Land of the Rising Sun, Herman Kahn is known as the man who made GNP a household word. watch their GNP the same way we watch baseball scores."

GNP, it should be quickly noted, stands for Gross National Product, which per se has as much zip as the numbers on your driver's license. Actually, it's a country's total output of goods and services valued at market prices.

Because part of the Japanese national character is a fetish about being No. 1 in everything, Kahn satisfies a psychic craving.

In his new book, "The Emerging Japanese Superstate" (Prentice Hall), Kahn predicts Japan will equal the United States as the world's dominant economic power by the end of the 20th century. On his charts for the future, each will have a GNP of $3 trillion, give or take a few bucks. (Current figures: U. S. GNP—$1 trillion; Japan GNP—$200 billion.)

"I talk with the Japanese," says Kahn, who has visited the country five times since he became absorbed in studying its future five years ago, "and I agree with them. When I conduct a lecture, I watch audiences like a hawk. I notice when I mention 'daichi'

(number one) even the cleaning lady in the hall stops to listen. It's a nation that likes hierarchy, that wants to be number one."

And so Premier Eisaku Sato was able to pitch his most recent campaign for reelection on the premise that "the distinguished American scientist Herman Kahn predicts a great future for Japan." The premier, of course, added, "only if I'm reelected."

Kahn, who is director of the Hudson Institute up the Hudson River from New York, has gained considerable notoriety as a "futurist" even if he doesn't like the word.

"We're policy planners and researchers," he says. "Futurist was first used by an Italian fascist group. The movement is sometimes called futurology, also a bad word. Futurists tend to be ideologically committed and as a result much of their work turns out to be a sermon rather than a serious study."

Kahn doesn't look like the sermon type. The words pour out of the face of a scowling cherub with owl glasses and a stubble of graying hair. The body descends bulbously, jowl upon expanding jowl, to make even a Somo wrestler look puny.

"I get away with murder when I visit Japan," he says in a gasp-giggle, "because they think I look like Buddha."

As an analyst of national traits, he deals in a band of snappy iconoclasm.

"The Japanese practice the international ethic to the extreme," he says. "They're terribly polite when they're supposed to be. They're terribly rude when they're not supposed to be polite."

Kahn does not speak Japanese.

"Japan has social unity," he continues. "It's the only group that feels like a pure race. The Japanese have the only resource that counts—people. Red China? There's no super-patriotism there. The Chinese are too civilized."

"The issue in the world in the next 10 years is going to be Russia-United States-Japan—not China. In the 1970s, Japan will go from large to gigantic and make waves. I want to suggest that the next 50 years will be the attempt of the international system to struggle with the rise of Japan."

"It's important for the United States to stay in East Asia to remove temptation from the Japanese. Their business won't accept my numbers (on economic growth). Their government will."

So will other governments. He's working on an internationally financed study of corporate environment, to analyze the impact of new technology. Pollutionists beware.

Texas National Guard Cited For Role In Relief Operation

Special recognition for the Texas National Guard's assistance in Hurricane Celia disaster relief operations was received in Austin recently from the American Red Cross.

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—In one of those cases destined to become landmarks of American jurisprudence, the U.S. Court of Appeals ruled recently that a hangover is no defense in the eyes of the law.

It made the decision in a case where a man had appealed his conviction for grand larceny and false pretenses on grounds that he was hung over when the offense occurred.

The fact that he had been drunk the previous evening cast doubt on his intent to commit the crime, he contended.

In rejecting his argument, the court said: "The evidence does suggest that (the defendant) at the time of the crime was suffering from a hangover. We know of no authority, however, which holds that such a condition precludes the possibility of specific intent."

Possible Injustice
Here we have, in my judgment, a possible miscarriage of justice. It depends on what the court meant by "we know of no authority" upholding the defendant's conviction.

Did it mean that several authorities had investigated the possibility that a hangover might preclude criminal intentions, and had found in the negative?

Or did it simply mean that information on that point was nonexistent?

If no such study has ever been made, then it seems to me that the defendant may have been denied due process of law. For if an inquiry of that sort were undertaken, it might very well produce data in his favor.

At any rate, there can be no doubt that the case underscores my own long-standing crusade for more scientific enlightenment in regard to the hangover.

Calls for Instrument
The record will show I have repeatedly called upon the National Bureau of Standards to develop an instrument capable of measuring the intensity of hangovers after the fashion of the seismograph, which measures the intensity of earthquakes.

But, alas, nothing has been done.

Musical Student From Pampa Gets Top Vocal Award

North Texas State University graduate student Carol Mayo of Pampa added to her list of vocal honors by capturing the National Artists Award in competition Saturday (Nov. 21) at Amarillo College.

The Pampa native's presentation of the aria "Les Lettres" from the opera "Werther" by Massenet won for her the unanimous vote of the judges, who found it unnecessary to have final judgments after hearing the contestants for the first time.

Miss Mayo received the Ray C. Johnson Vocal Award Scholarship of $1,000 and an invitation to perform with the Amarillo Symphony Orchestra in December 1971.

The NTSU candidate for the doctor of musical arts degree in voice is an instructor of music at East Texas State University and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Mayo of Pampa.

Television In Review

By RICK DUBROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Two master performers, James Stewart and Pearl Bailey, illustrated what theatre magic is all about Thursday night in an hourlong NBC-TV special called "Festival at Ford's."

The program offered a number of name performers in a sampling of American folk and pop tunes before a dressy Washington, D.C., audience at historic Ford's theatre.

Those attending included Pat Ethel and Ted Kennedy and various government figures and their wives. Among the other entertainers were host Andy Williams, Tennessee Ernie Ford, Henry Mancini, Bobbie Gentry, Dionne Warwick and the Supremes.

But it was Stewart and Miss Bailey who lifted the hour from what might have been a rather mundane outing to something with a touch of the genuinely special.

About halfway through the program, Stewart, technically billed as the narrator, came out to say a few words about Abe Lincoln and Lincoln's love of theatre. Stewart, in that shuffling, deceptively easygoing delivery of his, was utterly mesmerizing, very touching and just plain wonderful.

There's no doubt in my mind he could have gone on talking about Lincoln for an hour and it all would have been as brilliant and hypnotizing.

Miss Bailey socked over the final spot on Thursday night's hour with her own brand of singing—mostly from "Hello, Dolly!"—and clowning. There was an unforgettable shot—a long one of Miss Bailey working her way across the stage—that captured the excitement in seeing a great star working before a live audience.

"Festival at Ford's" was the first of two major NBC Thanksgiving weekend specials with patriotic themes. On Sunday, John Wayne stars in his first video special, "Swing Out, Sweet Land," a 90-minute musical-comedy look at American history, with a huge all-star cast that includes Lucille Ball, Jack Benny, Johnny Cash, Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Den Martin, Red Skelton, Tom Smothers and Rowan and Martin.

Chantilly will shake her world this Christmas in this new Louis XVI flacon (left) a replica of an antique. She will think you're the greatest Santa alive if you gift her with the perfume claimed to be loved by every woman alive (upper right). Any hostess would be charmed with a collection of hypo-allergenic splash stick—lipsticks for guests (center right). For the little lady on your list there are accent barrettes in make-believe black and white reptile patterns and new mini-broids for instant hairdos (lower right).

Sparkle Christmas For Holiday Belles

NEW YORK (NEA)—It won't be long now when crowded stores will be the battleground for bewildered males trying to find a treasure or a trinket for their Christmas belles.

There's a bafflement on their manly faces as they are buffeted from perfume to hosiery by avid women shoppers who are a lot more at home in the world of frumpies.

One way to avoid a good deal of the chore that can take the joy out of Christmas is to start with a trusty pencil and pad and plan. Making lists can be a bore, but it's a lot simpler than feeling like something out of Lewis Carroll suddenly dumped in "lingerie." Then if you can't send your secretary to do the job for you, show her your list and get suggestions as to where you can go to shop merrily (?) and cross off each item expeditiously.

Here are some ideas as to what's around and new for the holidays:

A soft, pretty robe is always welcome as are the many filmy, pants-type, at-home costumes. If there is a size problem, some come in "small, medium or large" and that should make things easier.

Whether she's a devotee of the long or short hemline, pant hose is still a big favorite. The new bootery types come in colors that exactly match shoes.

Perfume and cologne in the bottle size or the purse flacon as a stocking stuffer are always welcome. If you don't know her preference, buy her your preference and tell her you would be flattered if she would wear it just for you. She will.

In the jewelry category rings are important this season. From flawless diamonds to flattering fakes, she can wear one on nearly every finger.

Newest in neckline jewelry is the dog collar—in pearls, stones, silver or gold. And watches come in a wardrobe of colors to match almost every outfit.

Travel items from luggage to compact umbrellas are sure to be successful as gifts. And in today's world of pants outfits, belts—ornate or plain—are any girl's delight.

There's more to choose from than ever before and with list in hand, playing Santa should not be too difficult.

POLLY'S POINTERS Here Are Some Uses For Baby Food Jars

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Shirley can make paperweights with some of her many baby food jars. Tint water with food coloring and pour into jars. Place a sprig or one big plastic flower big enough so it does not drift into different positions) in the water with the stem side up. Add a small handful of sequins and twist the lid on each jar tightly. Turn upside down and watch the sequins settle in a different place each time a jar is moved. The lids could first be spray painted. It also may make you feel better to know none of mine have ever leaked.—PEGGY

DEAR POLLY—Shirley could fill some of those many leftover baby food jars with homemade jelly. Fill them with several different kinds of jelly and arrange the jars in a wicker basket or whatever you like. Wrap the entire package in transparent wrap and add a bow to have a very personal, attractive and inexpensive Christmas gift for someone.—MRS. J. P.

DEAR POLLY—Shirley could make beautiful candlesticks with leftover baby food jars. I used 4½-ounce jars. Remove paper labels and screw lids on tightly. With all-purpose white glue, glue three jars together, one on top of another. Then do four, one on top of another, then the same with two. Let glue dry completely. Take three lids from other jars and place them upside down on top of each of the three groups made. glue them on and let dry. I spray-painted each of mine black and have three smart candlesticks of graduated heights. I put large, short candles in the top of each, but any size candles could be used. The lid on top catches the drippings. Of course, these could be painted any desired color but black looks smart with my Spanish furniture and black iron accessories.—JAN.

DEAR POLLY—My daughter made cute Santa Claus candy jars from small baby food jar. Cut a piece of red felt in the shape of a quarter-circle so one side fits around the jar lid, fold it like a dunce cap. Sew it down in the middle, fold the "point down, put a little tassel on the point and a white felt band at the bottom. Cut another white felt band and glue it on the bottom of the jar for a belt. Add a fat white mustache, a little red circle tongue, two black dots for eyes, white eyebrows and a green bow for a tie under the mouth. Fill jar with small candies. Very cute for favors or to give small visitors during the holidays.—C.L.J.

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY—I have some lovely old thumbprint pattern glasses with one-inch red bands around the rims. Most of this color has worn off, so I wonder if it would be possible to remove the remaining color. There might be some collectors of old glass among your readers who could help me.—MRS. E.D.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell parents what to look for in their children to know for sure whether they are on drugs or not. We are worried sick over this.

ILLINOIS PARENTS
DEAR PARENTS: That's a tall order. Insofar as marijuana is concerned, it is practically impossible to identify a user by his appearance or behavior.

If one is on barbiturates ("downers," sleeping pills, tranquilizers, pain killers, etc.) the following symptoms could be present: The tendency to sleep more than usual, drowsiness, inattentiveness, slurred speech, lack of coordination. The withdrawal symptoms are vomiting, tremors and diarrhea. Unfortunately, these are also symptoms for any number of illnesses.

One who is on amphetamines ("uppers," speed, bennies, methadine or diet pills) will appear hyperactive, exhilarated and talkative. His speech will be rapid and he may shift abruptly from one subject to another. He is apt to be short-tempered, irritable and snappish. He will also suffer a loss of appetite.

Those who use hallucinogenic drugs (LSD, mescaline, Psilocybin) are not identifiable, unless of course they are on a bad "trip" and begin to behave irrationally. (Some become "wild" and fear they are going insane.)

The paraphernalia will vary, depending upon what drugs are being used. For heroin or some forms of "speed," a hypodermic needle, eye dropper, syringe, matches and spoon are usually stashed away. "Grass" (marijuana) looks much like ordinary tobacco, only a darkish green, and when smoked, smells like burning leaves. Kids usually buy raw grass and roll their own in cigarette papers.

Almost all adolescents who are hooked on drugs will spend a great deal of time alone in their room, or away from home. They are usually always broke and borrowing money. You may notice that many of their prized possessions have disappeared. An addict will sell anything tape recorder, musical instruments, radio, television, even his automobile) in order to support his habit—which can run into several hundreds of dollars a day. If he is hooked on heroin. Many resort to stealing.

But parents, far more important than knowing the "symptoms"—is knowing your child! Get involved with your children at an early age. Encourage open and frank dialog with them. Know their doubts, their fears, their frustrations, ambitions and beliefs. I cannot express too emphatically the importance of listening to your children. Even if you violently disagree with their "far out" philosophies, listen anyway. Then try, really try, to understand them.

Most kids have given up trying to talk with their parents because they know from experience if they express views contrary to those held by their parents it will mean a fight. And kids never win. Once young people know that their parents will actually listen, and will not punish, ridicule or put them down for their beliefs, they will begin to talk freely and honestly.

If I could give today's parents some advice, it would be to let your child know that he can come to you with anything without being made to feel guilty or ashamed. I would urge parents not to over-react or label their child a "dope fiend" if they learn that he has experimented with pot or drugs. Not all drug users are "hooked." (And let's be fair, we adults have our "drugs," too.)

Most adults are surprisingly ignorant about drug abuse. But they need not be ashamed of their initial ignorance because the drug culture is relatively new. However, they need not remain ignorant.

School Without Frills Attracts Eggheads Who Object To 'Yells'

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI)—Willard Barnes sat on the stone steps leading up to the new administration building at St. John's College and scratched at the three inches of red beard on his face.

"I'm not real sure why I wanted to come here," he said, leaning back and gazing over the new college buildings. "I guess it's because I thought I'd have a chance to seek the kind of education you can't find anywhere else."

On a landing above sat two girls in colorful shifts and net stockings. "It's a college where you can get away from all the rah-rah you have to put up with at most schools," one of them said. The other commented, "I couldn't find the education they teach here at any other school."

Young Barnes isn't the handsome All-American type college boy, nor the girls the types that make homecoming queens at Old State.

But St. John's students have one thing in common—they seek a new brand of education, a kind of teaching that is growing in the West.

St. John's at Santa Fe was called unique when it opened its doors three years ago, unique because of what and how it teaches.

The students are unique too because they don't work toward a particular degree.

St. John's college is referred to officially as a "colony." As such, it began operations as an extension of its mother facility—the 180-year-old St. John's at Annapolis, Md.

St. John's has no departments, no divisions, and did not even have a business administration course when it began classes in October, 1964. No vocational or teacher training was offered, and premed, pre-law or required athletics were scoffed at by the school's officials.

What the new school did offer was the beginning of a cloistered four-year course in great books, plus a tough science requirement for graduation.

The books, chosen over a period of nearly 40 years by the school's officials, range from Homer to Tolstoy, Plato to Jung, Euclid to Labachevski, Hippocrates to Einstein.

In short, the new college set itself up to offer a strictly liberal arts education with the single aim of preparing its students with tools for future learning. What the student does with this vast storehouse of knowledge after graduation is left up to him.

Classes at St. John's were established as a series of group meetings of 10 to 15 students plus a tutor. Seminars of about 20 students are held in the evenings. The tutorials are for absorbing knowledge, the seminars are the outlet for that knowledge.

The maximum student load set by the college when it opened was about 300 students in a decade. The first year's enrollment was 80 students. Many dropped out when the going got too rough.

On 200 acres donated locally, St. John's was first called a new step toward private school expansion in the country when it was built. As proof of its widespread support, the board was liberally sprinkled with prominent Westerners—actress Greer Garson, her husband Texas oilman Col. E. E. (Buddy) Fogelson, and newspaper publisher and former Ambassador to Switzerland Robert McKinney of Santa Fe.

Buildings for the school are sparse—nine small dormitories, a classroom building, a laboratory and a student center. But future plans call for a library, added dorms, a new administration building and a half dozen other structures.

Foursquare Gospel Church

Foursquare Gospel Church, 712 Lefors, is beginning a three-day revival tonight at 7:30. The revival will continue through the 11 o'clock Sunday morning worship hour, according to the pastor, Rev. Sam Godwin.

Featured speakers and talented singers and musicians will be the Rev. and Mrs. Gene Smith, and the Rev. and Mrs. Charles Moran, all of Dallas, and the Rev. Carol Godwin. The Rev. Godwin, a former missionary to Mexico, is presently teaching music in the public school system in Midland. The Rev. and Mrs. Smith and the Rev. and Mrs. Moran have had outstanding response to their ministry.

First Church Of Nazarene

Services at the Church Of The Nazarene will begin at the regularly scheduled time. Rev. Frazier will be giving the 4th message in a series preached from the 10 commandments. Sunday night at 7 p.m. the pastor will be speaking on the subject "How to be a disappointment to Christ."

The teens of the church left Wednesday afternoon for a youth retreat at Divide, Colo.

The church wishes to thank Clyde Jonas for donating the transportation for the teens to this retreat. The church also appreciates all other donations for this trip.

First Presbyterian Church

"The Present Tense" will be the sermon topic at both the 8:30 and the 11 a.m. worship services, this First Sunday of Advent, by Rev. Martin Hager, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. Text for the sermon will be taken from Matthew 21:1-9. Rev. Hager will lead the congregation in the lighting of the First Advent Candle, to begin the Season of God the Son.

Jay Loshier will present an original guitar solo composition this Sunday. Jay is a student at Tulsa University and will be home this week for the Thanksgiving Holiday.

The Senior High Fellowship will meet at 6 p.m. Sunday, in the home of Rev. and Mrs. Hager.

There will be a meeting of the Diaconate this Sunday at 4 p.m. in Calvin Hall. The meeting also includes newly-elected Deacons.

First United Methodist Church

The First United Methodist Church will observe this first Sunday in Advent with the lighting of the Advent Wreath. At 8:45 a.m. the Sanctuary Choir will sing the Advent anthem: "Lift Up Your Heads" by Handel. At the 11:00 a.m. service, the Concord Children's Choir will sing "The Carol of the Home" by Dale Wood. This choir will lead the entire service at this hour.

Miss Lynda Gunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Gunn, 1319 Williston, and a student at Texas Tech, will sing an Offertory Solo at both services. She has chosen as her special number, "My God and I" by Sergei.

Dr. H. Dewitt Seago pastor will preach on the topic, "Lift Up Your Eyes". His scripture for the morning will be Psalm 121.

Tracy Cary organist, will play as a Prelude, "The Heavens Are Telling" by Beethoven. His organ Postlude will be "Grand Choeur On 'America the Beautiful'".

Vesper services will be held in the Chapel at 6:00 p.m. with Dr. Seago preaching and Morris Kille, minister of music, leading the hymn singing. Youth Fellowship meetings will follow at 7:00 p.m.

Zion Lutheran Church

Sunday, November 29th, marks the beginning of the Christian Church Year. The Church Year begins with the season of Advent, which means "coming". The purpose of the Advent season is to prepare for the coming of the Son of God: in the flesh, on Judgment Day and through the Means of Grace. It is a general season of penitence and prayer.

The pastor of Zion Lutheran Church, the Rev. M. G. Herring, will deliver a special series of sermons during the Sundays in Advent. The sermon for the First Sunday in Advent will be, "The Present Tense," based on Matthew 21: 1-9. The organist, Mrs. M. G. Herring, will provide appropriate music for the Advent season. The Sundays in Advent will be emphasized by the use of an Advent wreath with its four candles, one for each of the four Sundays in Advent.

The Senior Lutheran Youth Fellowship meets Sunday night at 7:00 p.m. The Junior Lutheran Youth Fellowship meets Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

First Christian Church

The Rev. Ralph T. Palmer will deliver the Message for the morning Worship for the First Christian Church beginning at 10:50 a.m. He has chosen for his Sermon Topic "Santa Claus Has Come to Our Town" with Scripture selections from Luke 1:57-66:80. During the Morning Worship the first candle marking the first Sunday of Advent will be lighted by Miss Sharon King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan King. The choir under the direction of Miss Rosemary Lawlor and accompanied by Mrs. John Gill will present the anthem.

There will be NO Snack Supper or Youth Groups this Sunday. Evening due to the Thanksgiving Holidays.

The choir rehearsal will be held Wednesday evening at the church beginning at 7:00 p.m. The Priscilla Group of the Christian Women's Fellowship will meet at the church Tuesday, December 1, 9:30 p.m. The Mary Martha and Ross

Groups of the Christian Women's Fellowship will meet at the church Wednesday, December 2nd. The Mary Martha Group will meet at 9:30 and the Ross Group will ad ch first christian have a luncheon at 11:00 a.m.

The Christian Men's Fellowship will meet Saturday, December 5th at 7:00 a.m. for their regular monthly breakfast. All of the men of the church are urged to be present.

Church Of Christ, Scientist

Divine help is always at hand, according to the Lesson-Sermon to be read Sunday at Christian Science church services.

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon. The Golden Text is from Isaiah:

"Fear thou not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am they God: I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness."

From Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, this passage will be read:

"At all times and under all circumstances, overcome evil with good. Know thyself, and God will supply the wisdom and the occasion for a victory over evil. Clad in the panoply of Love, human hatred cannot reach you."

First Baptist Church

Dan. B. Cameron, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Pampa, will be in the pulpit for both services of worship Sunday. In the eleven o'clock morning worship he will continue preaching the series of sermons from the book of Hebrews.

David Campbell, minister of music, has announced the following special music for the Morning Worship: "All That Thrills My Soul" arr. Lyall by the Sanctuary Choir; and a duet sung by Mr. and Mrs. Campbell, "If We Could See Beyond Today," arr. Anthony. Miss Eloise Lane, organist has chosen "Lo' How a Rose" by Praetorius for the offertory. This service is broadcast over radio station KPBN.

In the seven o'clock evening worship the pastor will continue preaching the series of sermons on Christian Maturity. The men's chorus will occupy the choir loft and sing, "Give of Your Best to the Master" by Barnard. To complete the special music, Paul Barrett will sing a solo. The organ offertory selection is "The Little Son of God" by Rasley. The church training program precedes the evening worship at six o'clock. The Week of Prayer for foreign missions begins

November 29. The W. M. S. is sponsoring this week of prayer with meetings scheduled at 10:00 Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday mornings. The Lottie Moon Christmas offering will be taken and all the members are invited to participate in this week of prayer.

Visitation begins at 9:30 a.m. for the ladies and at 7:00 on Tuesday for the men. The regular Wednesday evening activities begin with the fellowship supper at 5:30 and is followed by Prayer Meeting under the direction of the pastor. He will continue teaching the Book of Matthew.

Central Baptist Church

The Central Baptist people will hear their pastor, Bryan Halliburton, preach in both services Sunday. Sunday morning his sermon subject will be "The Door Opened in Heaven," based on Revelation 4:1.

The 11:00 a.m. morning worship hour will begin with "Come Thou Almighty King" done by the sanctuary choir.

Other special music will include a solo by Mrs. Karen Pogue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Halliburton. Before the sermon, S. L. Tate, music director of the church, will sing "Each Step a Take."

During the evening service which begins at 7:00 p.m. the choir will present two special numbers, "Only Believe" and a meditation, "The Love of God". Mrs. George Wing will sing a solo.

The Sunday morning services are broadcast over KGRO each Sunday beginning at 11:00 a.m.

The church invites you, to share their services this Lord's day either by radio or by your presence at Browning and Starkweather.

The Weekly Message of Inspiration...

PAMPA BAPTIST TEMPLE

Rev. Cliff A. McDougal

OUR NEED FOR THE HOUR

Galatians 5:13-15. "For brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another. For all the law is fulfilled in one Word, even in this; Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. But if ye bite and devour one another take heed that ye be not consumed one of another."

By the divine providence of God we are privileged to live in a land where we can enjoy blessings of freedom and liberty not shared by any other nation under the sun. Through the dedication of God-fearing men where courage and principles brought about the founding and development of this our nation we can truly enjoy freedom and liberty in the sunshine of liberty.

THE CHRISTIANS PRIVILEGE

God has by His grace and mercy provided for us as His children a citizenship also providing liberty and freedom. Freedom from the penalty of sin. Freedom from the tormenting fear of Satan and the wages of serving him. A liberty which no one outside the Lord Jesus Christ can know.

But just as our citizenship in our land here on earth carries with it certain dangers of being misused so does our citizenship in heaven bring God's warning not to misuse it. Paul directs us through his letter written to the church at Galatia not to let privileges we have used to satisfy the flesh. Its easy, often times, when the flesh is touched and misapplied for us to yield to the feeling of the flesh and forget the direction of the Holy Spirit in doing things that would hurt others and not be beneficial to the name of Christ and His church. He said in I Corinthians 10:23 "All things are lawful for me but all things edify not." And I believe he had this thought in mind as he penned the words in the text of this message "by LOVE SERVE one another."

The Lord in His great wisdom and divine providence brings about the accomplishment of His will in many ways; some which are joyous and happy for us; others which are sorrowful and bring much suffering for His child. Some come about because of our sins and disobedience others come to strengthen our faith and love for Him and for each other. I am reminded of what the Apostle Paul said in Romans 8:28, "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to His purpose."

May we at this Thanksgiving season give thanks to the one who made this possible.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper
EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE
Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Save America From Itself

If you are able to detach yourself from class and minority struggles, from the violence and bombastic explosions of youthful extremists, and spend a few moments in calm appraisal you'll discover that one of the great strengths of this county is its ability to withstand an extraordinary volume of dissent.

Look about you and you'll find dissent almost everywhere. Why? Well, it has developed into a fad. There's a certain prestige among the "liberals" for the one who makes the most noise. College professors have carried their academic freedom to the point where some of them cannot distinguish between their right to gather the facts and anarchy.

College students, often at the suggestion of a few professors, pay large fees to such speakers as Jerry Rubin, Abbie Hoffman, Dave Dellinger, who were convicted in the Chicago conspiracy trial; to Eldridge Cleaver, Black Panther who spoke at the University of Alabama in 1968; to Bernadine Doherty, who spoke at Kent State; to Mark Rudd, who led the first major riot at Columbia University. Most of them spew hatred rather than sense.

As a matter of fact, fees of as high as $2,500 are paid out of students funds to speakers like Angela Davis, an admitted Communist, and people like Angela Davis, an admitted Communist, and people like Dr. Benjamin Spock, Staughton Lynd, the former Yale professor and frequent visitor to Hanoi and Reies Tijerina, head of the Alliance de Mercedes, an insurrectionary movement in New Mexico.

Another area in which our form of government permits great leeway is the underground press and pornography underground newspapers are filled with four-letter words, obscenities, hatred—beyond belief. Some have a political bent, accuse our government and our people of ribald tricks to oppress the blacks, Chicanos, the browns and others.

These blatant, obstructionist mouthings and actions would not be allowed in any other country in the world. They are permitted here because our country is fundamentally free. Our people have more rights than any other people on earth and hence the freest government known to man.

It's time we as a people recognize that we're going to extremes in our criticism. In fact, it often appears that protest and violence are the prime purposes of our lives. Continued on the present intensity, protest and dissent raise the question of whether our civilization can survive. We must realize that our present civilization is only one of the many in known history. Most of them faded away, some decaying from within. Others were conquered. In fact, after the fall of Rome our Christian civilization dangled in this limbo of isolated sects for about 200 years, and was saved by the defeat of the Moors in 732 A.D.

Right now our problem appears to be saving America from itself.

Recycling Old Newsprint

Newspapers have done such a good job of alerting the public to the problems of pollution and misuse of natural resources that they have found themselves under the scrutiny of conservationists.

Some are alarmed by the fact that vast forests are wiped out to produce the nearly 10 million tons of newsprint this country consumes each year. Others say that castoff newspapers are a waste and a strain on disposal facilities.

The Newsprint Information Council, composed of a group of Canadian newsprint mills, has checked into the allegations. (Canada supplies about two-thirds of all newsprint used in the United States.)

The committee confirms that it takes about 17 trees to make one ton of newsprint. But because forests are run on a sustained-yield basis, the annual harvest, plus all losses to fire, insects and disease, is less than half the annual growth.

Cited were the forests of the Tribune Co., owner of a string of newspapers, including two of the largest in the world. These forests have just marked a half-century of turning out increasingly larger harvests of wood for the Chicago Tribune, New York Daily News and others. They currently produce about 550,000 tons of newsprint annually and could continue at this rate or better in perpetuity. "Like wheat," says the committee's publication, Newsprint Facts, "trees for newsprint are a renewable crop, although with a much longer growth cycle."

H. L. Hunt Writes

Porr Monique was unique, but she got shot by a careless geek.

That was the name of the cowboy that was carrying around a big red collar with some instruments that beamed her every move to a soaring satellite.

When they attached the red collar they should have also put on a red coat. Even so, it is doubtful if she would have been safe amongst the brand of "hunters" they turn loose in the woods these days.

I have long ago given up hunting. Not that I don't think I could get some of the hunting game—but I'm scared the hunting game might get me. I have seen a lot of hunters in recent years who went out to get their elk and would wind up getting their horse.

I doubt if Monique would have been guaranteed a longer life even if they had locked her in a barn. When they refer to a hunting party today, that's just what it is. They throw a party at the campsite and hunt for the bottom of a battle.

Bleary-eyed, with heavy heads and shaky hands they sally forth to the trail, seeking big game. If a rabbit or chipmunk moves they bang away blindly. Occasionally, these hunters return, all in one piece, simply because they were lucky enough not to run into another hunter.

The smartest ones, those who return year after year, are the ones who never leave the campsite.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and the proper function of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION — Answering a question you said "If it were not for the ability to set up tax-exempt foundations, many productive business establishments would have to be sold for taxes, thus eliminating many jobs." I don't understand two points — how foundations prevent tax sales, and why transfer of ownership would cause lost jobs. Would you explain further?

ANSWER: Because of the heavy graduated inheritance taxes, many business establishments would have to be sold to pay the tax if an owner were to die. But if he places ownership of all or a major part of the business in a tax-exempt foundation, the property owned by the tax-exempt organization is not subject to the confiscatory tax. Many of these small tax-exempt organizations are still controlled by the families which donated them, and their charitable expenditures are to the charities they choose.

The transfer of ownership would not necessarily result in lost jobs. If the sales were from one individual to another individual who continued to operate the business, there would be little or no change. But if, as is frequently the case, the sale were of a small business to a large organization with many plants, consolidations of operations for more efficient production would be likely, with resultant dislocations or loss of employment opportunities.

Congress Is Sluggish And The Voters Are Apathetic

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)—In these days when "lack of responsiveness" is a persistent charge against government in nearly all its forms, Congress surely is becoming truly an unresponsive institution.

This lame-duck session, first in 20 years, is a characteristic mark of its decline. It tells a story of delay and inaction that has turned into a dispiriting, commonplace tale this past decade.

Seven appropriations bills covering outlays for the fiscal year which began July 1 hang fire. Who can remember the last time these 535 stalwarts (or their earlier counterparts) of House and Senate last got the money bills into law when they were supposed to?

With the nation and world changing with lightning speed, the members of Congress have really modernized nothing but their salaries. The cries for reform wait away on the wind. Everybody knows the infirmities of the seniority system, which rewards the consistent winners in safe areas (ever more numerous) and thus invites places vital committees in the command of often autocratic senior citizens.

There is no way to know, let alone count, all the occasions when key committee judgments involving legislation of great consequence to the country are settled in tightly held little executive sessions ranging from eight minutes to no more than an hour. It happens all the time.

The whole idea underlying congressional elections every two years — affecting a third of the Senate and all 435 House members — was to make the Congress quickly responsive to the shifting desires of the electorate. But, all aside from the awful wordiness of the institution itself, it hasn't been working that way with the voters.

This year, with a war still on, economic difficulties and such other matters as crime, urban strife, campus unrest, the costly shambles in welfare, and trust in government all bothering the people, the minority Republicans gained two seats in the Senate and lost a mere nine in the House.

In 1968, when the war was far hotter and ferment leading into riot and assassination of key public figures blackened the land, the GOP picked up four House seats and seven in the Senate. These changes are staggeringly small when set beside the deeply troubled mood of the country. Significantly, too, they fit pretty well into a pattern that is at least a couple of decades old.

In the last 10 elections, on seven occasions the net change in Senate membership between the two major parties ranged from one to three seats. One time it was four. The modest switch of seven in 1968 was, against this backdrop, unusual. It was outdone only by the Democrats' gain of 17 Senate seats in the sharp recession year of 1958.

How about the House, that marvelously reflective mirror of the national mood? In the 10 elections from 1952 on, it barely fluttered in four. The major party turnovers in these were nine (1970), four twice (1968 and 1962), two (1956).

Three times the change crept up to around the 20-mark. Republicans gained 22 in 1952, the Democrats got 19 back in 1954 and the GOP again picked up 22 in 1960, even as Democrat John F. Kennedy was winning the presidency by a hair.

There are supposed to be around 100 "floating" or swing seats in the House. But in the span here studied, only 1958 Democrats (up 49), Barry Goldwater's 1964 debacle and the Republicans' 1966 recovery from it produced any sort of major upheaval. In 1964 Democrats padded a nice margin with 37 new seats. The GOP turned it around with a 47-seat pickup in 1966.

If American voters really care what Congress is up to, they neither show it nor say it. The Gallup poll in September found one voter in five able to cite any specific benefit to his district from his congressman.

With Some Reservation

By INJUN WOODY

Ain't it amazing how these bureaucrats can consistently make blunders, then go right on backing them up rather than admit to a mistake?

You have heard about the latest bruhaha that "lead-free" gasoline will clear the atmosphere. Would you like to know the truth? Much evidence has been submitted that this approach will actually trigger more, not less, air pollution!

Research at the U.S. Bureau of Mines showed that when the so-called "aromatics" in gasoline are increased to compensate for the lack of lead, one result is the formation in engine exhausts of hydrocarbons.

These substances can increase eye-irritation by as much as 25 percent! In addition, these same molecules have been found to cause cancer in mice. This does not mean that these substances would remain in the atmosphere in sufficient quantities to cause cancer in humans, of course. But no one really knows what the effect might be.

Another ridiculous assertion was made by the Environmental Protection Administration concerning colored or dyed toilet tissue. They stated the dyes didn't break down in ordinary sewage or septic systems and added to the pollution problem.

They were proven wrong simply because they hadn't bothered to check their assertions first. But they didn't admit their mistake. Instead the EPA and the Environmental Action Coalition started blaming each other for supplying them the information.

These examples are just a couple to show what big government is all about. I've got millions of 'em

Budget Cuts to Force Big Post-Holiday Lay-offs

ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON — The handwriting is becoming quite clear on the wall: Soon after the holidays, the federal government will be contributing substantially to the Nixon Administration's unemployment headache.

Wholesale lay-offs are in prospect, here in Washington and elsewhere, especially by the Department of Defense. Some base closings are all but certain.

It is a melancholy prospect for the already shaky economy, but such steps now appear to be unavoidable. They have resulted from an interaction of congressional edicts and administration plans:

In the first place Congress, despite pre-election propaganda, is in the process of cutting appropriation bills proposed by President Nixon. The House has already cut out nearly $2 billion from the "rock bottom" budget proposals supported by Defense Secretary Melvin Laird and all indications are that very large cuts will be included in the final version of the bill.

Because many of the money bills, including defense, have not yet been approved — and because of the pre-election economic uncertainties — no start has yet been made on making additional personnel cuts. The Pentagon was, in fact, already trying to trim its payrolls under last year's money bill and this year's plans.

Precedents suggest that lay-offs will not be made now in the pre-holiday season. Immediately thereafter, however, lay-offs will have to begin. In his Economic Club speech in New York last week, Secretary Laird warned of additional layoffs and base closings unless most of the House-approved cuts are restored.

RESTORATIONS UNLIKELY — There are, however, no indications that most of those funds will be restored. The best guess now is that the defense appropriations approved by the Senate will, like the House-approved bill, cut about $2 billion from administration defense budget estimates.

The Senate bill will apportion the cuts somewhat differently from the House. In working out a compromise version, some programs supported by Laird may be salvaged, but the final version of the bill — always far and away the largest appropriation — will be substantially below the administration's requests. Senate appropriations and the compromise decisions in the $67 billion bill can have important regional effects on the economy. For example, the House-approved bill as it stands would hit indirectly at the already sluggish economy of the Seattle area, because it trims programs contracted by Boeing Aircraft headquartered there.

Generally speaking, however, the major cuts in military hardware programs have already been made in the course of past actions by Congress and the Pentagon. Most of the additional cuts will have to be absorbed by the Defense Department directly, in manpower programs.

That is why Laird is warning of layoffs, base closings, and the like.

THREE-WAY STRETCH — The forecast for January is that the Pentagon, with half of the government's business year already expired, will have to cut a large number of "man-years" from its payrolls. No estimate of the total is available, but the number will be substantial.

In a sense, Pentagon personnel experts will have to make a full year's lay-offs in six months. However, the experts say that it will take three lay-offs — not two — to achieve a "man-year" reduction, with half the year gone, because of additional costs involved in fringe benefits, separation and the like.

Under these circumstances, the word around the Pentagon is that post-holiday personnel reductions in the Defense Department will be the most extensive since the economy year of 1946.

Reports published here indicate that the Navy expects to lose about 30,000 civilian employees when the axe falls. Army estimates are not available, but the Air Force projections are said to range between a reduction of 25,000 and 55,000 jobs.

No projections have been made with respect to how many bases will be closed, by which of the services and where. It is quite safe to predict, however, that both the lay-offs and the base-closings will provoke a wave of congressional protest. Some Pentagon critics in the Senate and House will be aware, for the first time, that major cuts are, indeed, being made in the defense budget.

Lighweight Ramsey Clark Should Fight In Own Class

By PAUL HARVEY

A new book by a former attorney general seeks to discredit FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

Well, people have been sticking pins in Hoover for as long as I can remember, and none has yet drawn blood. Why do they try?

When Ramsey Clark was attorney general for a couple of years, technically he was Hoover's "superior." He could not shove Hoover around; nobody could. So now Clark has written a book accusing the director of "self-centered concern for his own reputation," as if that were bad!

The book purports to "reveal" that there was conflict between Hoover and former Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy.

Lighweight Ramsey Clark should fight in his own class. I guess he knows that now. Instead of temporizing or denying the book's allegations of "conflict," Director Hoover affirms that there most certainly was "conflict" between himself and those others.

Sparing the deceased — a recapitulation of some of Kennedy's conduct while in that office, the director relates only professional differences. For example, Kennedy wanted to lower FBI employment standards in order to bring in more Negro agents. Hoover refused.

"I told him, 'Bobby, I have no prejudices. The FBI has Negro agents, Indian agents, Chinese agents—all kinds of agents. Anyone who can meet the qualifications can have a job. But I will not lower those qualifications.'" likely to slip-flop on any issue."

If Clark is, as some say, seeking a national following which might propel him to national political prominence in 1972, he should never have gone lion-hunting with a peashooter.

About his charge that Director Hoover is concerned "for his own reputation": you bet he is!

Forsaking all others, the FBI is his religion, his wife, his life. When Hoover took over as director 45 years ago, the FBI was a crummy conglomeration of political rejects. Within three years, he cleaned out the misfits and established the standards which have become tradition.

In all those years, no taint of scandal has touched the FBI. No FBI agent ever used threats or violence to get a confession. None ever misbehaved on duty and the few whose conduct off duty was unbecoming were summarily dismissed.

If by that they mean he runs the FBI with an uncompromising hand — he sure does. Be glad he does.

Despite the sensitive nature of his files — which include something about almost everybody, which could be used for diabolical blackmail or nefarious political purpose — Director Hoover has preserved the sanctity of those files against generations of the worst bad people the world has been able to produce.

There were times when Hoover stood almost alone, between them and us. J. Edgar Hoover will continue to be feared by the Panthers on the left and the Klan on the right and the overall underworld — and by lightweight who will always be outclassed as long as he is around.

Your Health

Simple Daily Habits Promote Regularity

You can avoid the constipation problem by forming a regular bowel habit. This doesn't mean the bowels must move every day.

You should consume enough volume at breakfast to stimulate the normal reflex call to stool that follows eating. Then sit on the stool within an hour after your meal. Another meal can be chosen if it is more convenient. The meal needn't contain lots of calories. Two glasses of warm water help to fill the stomach. Two cups of a beverage may be enough to initiate the call for some people.

If you are already having the bowel problem, you can usually correct it. Of course, any significant hemorrhoids (piles) or local rectal problems should be corrected. Stop all laxatives of any type. You might as well choose breakfast as the meal to trigger your call to stool reflex. Eat a good breakfast containing bulk. This includes cereal, fruit, toast, fruit juice and other beverages. Immediately after breakfast, sit on the stool and read to distract attention from the bowels. Continue this practice daily.

Every three days, a small tap-water enema can be used — in the morning after sitting on the stool — if no movement has occurred. Some cases do require one to three tablespoonfuls of mineral oil, taken at bedtime only. Do not use this unless necessary and discontinue as soon as possible.

It usually takes one to four weeks to establish normal bowel function. The morning ritual establishes a natural reflex action and the vicious cycle — laxative, constipation, laxative — can be broken.

In some cases, deep-seated emotional problems require additional attention, usually by a psychiatrist.

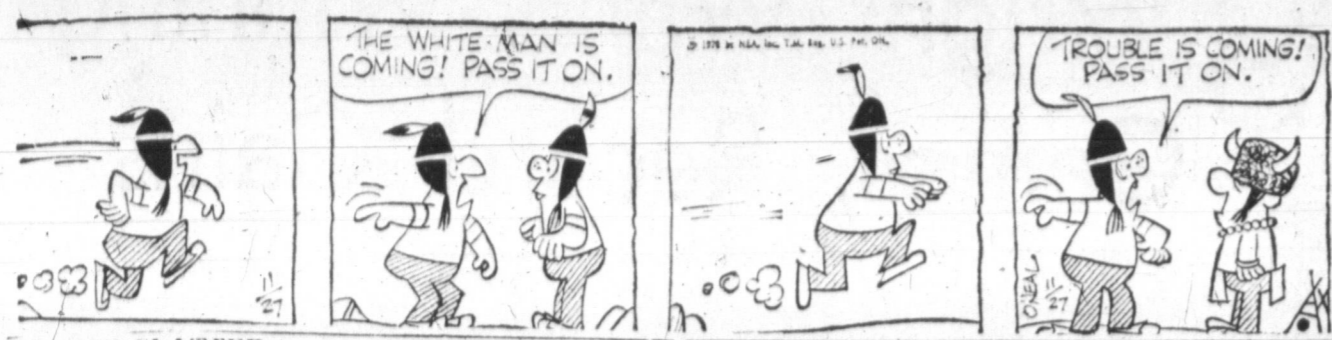

An over-all effort should be made to increase the bulk in the diet. This means salads, vegetables, fruits and cereals. When physical inactivity is a factor, a simple exercise program like daily walking will help.

Avoid things that irritate the digestive tract, like tobacco, alcohol, coffee and highly seasoned foods. Mexican food is an example. Highly seasoned Mexican food irritates the entire digestive tract from mouth to rectum, sometimes called "Mexican heartburn."

The sudden onset of failure of the bowels to move requires immediate medical attention. But most constipation problems relate to poor diet, bad habits, inactivity, injudicious use of laxatives, enemas and failure to train the bowel. By following the simple procedure I have outlined, most people can avoid becoming "a bowel problem."

Hollywood In Review

By VERNON SCOTT

UPI-Hollywood Correspondent HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Come war, riots, student revolt, sociological disaster, social uprising and romance on the screen, the most enduring fare of all is the horse opera.

Then he said a peculiar thing: "As western of any size is the only picture that requires a star. I can't think of a single western without a major personality."

He Looks The Part It was McLaglen who directed John Wayne in 'McClintock' and 'Chisum,' and Jimmy Stewart in 'Shenandoah.'

Under his directorial hand 95 'Gunsmoke's' were produced, along with 116 episodes of 'Have Gun, Will Travel.'

McLaglen, then, knows his subject. He has a deep, rumbling voice and the look of the West upon him: tanned face, open features. He stands a towering 6 feet, 7 inches.

Even a put-down western, the soon-to-be released 'Little Big Man,' stars Dustin Hoffman. The comic horse opera, 'Support Your Local Sheriff,' required the services of Jim Garner.

Your Prime Legends' The incisive, cynical western, 'Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid'—which also was hilarious—starred Paul Newman and Robert Redford.

McLaglen added that the longest running television drama is 'Gunsmoke,' which stars Jim Arness, an actor large enough to fill the foreground of any western vista.

"The western includes love, bad, good, right and wrong, heroes and villains," McLaglen said. "Any story can be transformed to a western simply by providing the background."

"We haven't the heroes of antiquity that belong to Europe or the Orient. So men of the old West are our prime legends."

Pirates Lose Bi-District Bout To Hardened Rule Bobcats 30-21

Coach Scott Dunham's Lefors Pirates couldn't contain the scoring moves of Jimmy Lisle last night in Childress and therefore fell to the Rule Bobcats, 30-21, in a Class B bi-district game.

Lisle, a Rule tailback, hit the line with a vengeance in scoring 26 points in the contest. The 185-pound senior scored on runs of four, 50, 55, and 80 yards plus one two-point conversion. The 55-yard run was on a kick-off.

The first Bobcat score came on the 80-yard gallop by Lisle from scrimmage. The extra point was no good.

Lefors came back in the first quarter on a 2 yard pass from Pirate quarterback David White to Charles Shelton.

Mike Robbins kicked the extra point to put the Pirates ahead 7-6 at the end of the first quarter.

Rule came up with eight points in the second quarter on a 50 yard run around end from Lisle and a two-point plunge by Kent LeFebvre. The teams went to the locker rooms at halftime with Rule leading 14-7.

Coach Dunham's halftime talk inspired the Pirates to tally in both the third and fourth quarters.

The Pirate bomb was still good on a 40 yard aerial from White to Robbins with another Robbins kick adding the fourteenth point. The fourth quarter score came on an eight yard burst from Richard Harkcem. Robbins' extra-point kick added the twenty-first and final Lefors point.

Lefors kicked-off to Rule following the Harkcem score. Lisle took the Pigskin 55 yards to paydirt and then added two more points to put Rule ahead to stay. The final Rule touchdown came on Lisle's four yard effort.

Rule will meet Sundown in the Class B regional contest.

Wright Wants Winning Games, Record Gains

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI)—Breaking a five-year-old NCAA career scoring record is great, but winning football games is better, says Elmo Wright of Houston.

Wright caught two touchdowns passes Thursday night to help Houston to a 53-21 come-from-behind victory over Florida State.

The two catches boosted Wright's career total to 33 touchdowns, eclipsing the record of 32 touchdowns set by Howard Twilley of Tulsa during the 1963-65 seasons. Twilley now is a wide receiver for the Miami Dolphins.

"I'm really glad that record business is over," Wright said after the game. "I knew exactly what was happening and wanted to catch it to get it over with. I'm glad to have the record, but it's better to go out and win. We really wanted this game."

The record-breaking catch was a 12-yard toss from Gary Mullins with 4:48 left in the game. Wright had caught a 13-yard pass from Mullins in the first period.

Mullins also threw a 25-yard scoring pass to Mike Parrott. Joel Despain scored from one yard out and Frank Ditta scored on a pass-interception-lateral play that covered 70 yards. Charlie Ford intercepted a Tommy Warren pass on the Houston 30 yard line and carried it to the FSU 30 where he lateraled to Ditta, who went in.

The Ford-Ditta play was the turning point in the game for the Cougars, who were down 21-12 at that point.

Tommy Mozisek scored two touchdowns on two yard runs and then broke loose midway through the final period for a 70-yard scoring run.

Carlos Lopez, who missed two tries at extra points, kicked successfully after the last five touchdowns. A Mullins' pass attempt for two points early in the game failed.

The Seminoles had taken a first half lead on a 65-yard pass from Warren to Barry Smith and a 12-yard pass to Rhett Dawson. James Jarrett went in to score from one yard out.

Frank Fontes, a barefoot kicker, booted all three extra points for FSU.

Houston, with one game left in its season against Miami on Dec. 5, is 7-3. FSU ended its season against Houston with a 27-4 record.

'Auld Lang Syne' Game To Be Played By Baylor

By MIKE RABUN
UPI Sports Writer

They are playing the Farewell Bows in Waco and Fort Worth Saturday, and, at least in Waco, it has gotten to be a gloomy habit.

Saturday's TCU-SMU and Rice-Baylor games will mark the final appearances in the four-year tenure at Rice for Harold R. "Bo" Hagan — 11 wins, 27 losses and one tie—and the four-year head coaching career at TCU for Fred Taylor—14 wins, 25 losses and one tie.

The last time Rice and Baylor met in Waco it was also the final game as head coach for Baylor's John Bridgers, and the time before that it marked the end of Jess Neely's coaching career at Rice.

"Auld Lang Syne" might be more appropriate than "That Good Old Baylor Line," for this one.

Although a lot of familiar figures will be ending their Southwest Conference days Saturday—Hagan, Taylor, SMU's Chuck Hixson, Rice's Roger Roitech and a host of senior stars on all four clubs—there is one emerging figure on the conference scene who will most certainly be around next season. He is Bill Beall.

Beall's Baylor Bears went 0-10 in his first year as head coach in 1969 and have made the largest resurgence in the league this year. True, the Bears have won only two games, but they came close to defeating Pittsburg and almost beat Texas Tech and nobody is about to forget the show they put on against Texas.

"I think we are satisfied with the progress we made this year," Beall said. "Except we wanted more wins. We came close on a lot of them. There were a lot of 'ifs' through the year. One play here and there and we could have gone over the 500 mark."

"It happened we did not have too many injuries through the year (as opposed to the disastrous hospital list of 1969), but toward the tail end there we did have a few injuries. Our quarterback (Laney Cook) got hurt, and he is still questionable for Rice."

But the level of progress is about to the point Beall had hoped it would be after two year's of his coaching at Baylor.

Harvester Cagers To Play In Key City Tournament

The fighting Pampa Harvester Cagers will don their basketball togas and travel to the Key City Tournament being held in Abilene this week-end.

The Harvesters first game will be against Waco Richfield this afternoon at 4:00 p.m. This is the first encounter with other 4-AAAA school basketball teams and should give the fans some insight as to the season outlook.

The Harvesters dropped their first game of the season by a narrow one point margin against Bowie, Texas. The home team did bounce back the next night and defeated the host Bowie team 46-43.

The Harvesters, who are posting a one-one record so far this season, are tough and have a lot of depth on the court and bench.

Coach McPherson gave the News the starting line-up for this afternoon's game in a telephone interview. Probable starters are 6'5" Junior forward Mike Edgars, 6'4" Junior forward Don Cain, 6'0" senior guard Mike Jordan, 6'0" junior guard Gary Haynes, and 6'3" junior post Richard Buntan.

McPherson said other than a mild case of pre game jitters the team is looking good and a season full of hard fought and won basketball games should be in order barring illness and injuries.

Support your Harvesters. Attend the game tonight and tomorrow.

fieldgoal kicks Are Not Helped By New Football

RIVER GROVE, Ill. Reports that a new and different National League football is responsible for the outbreak of long field goals were denied today by officials of Wilson Sporting Goods Co., manufacturer of the NFL ball since 1941.

"This year's ball," declared Wilson president, Thomas P. Mullaney, "is different from last year's only in the stamping. The same leather, lining material and bladder are assembled using the same pattern we have utilized for many years."

Mullaney's comments followed remarks by former New York Giant place kicking specialist, Pat Summerall, who is currently a television commentator for CBS.

"It's a great deal easier to prove that the football has not been changed than in the case of the baseball," Mullaney said.

Bubbly Blancas Doesn't Consider Himself One Of Golf's Power Hitters, So Plays On Trick Courses

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI)—Bubbly Homero Blancas doesn't consider himself one of the power hitters of golf, so he likes the tricky little courses that trim the long ball hitters down to size.

"This is the toughest course on this year's tour," the Texan of Mexican ancestry said after seizing the opening round lead in the Heritage Golf Classic.

"It breaks the power boys down to where everybody has to hit the same shots."

Only Under-Par Round

Blancas, 32, who has won the Colonial National and more Colonial National and more than $95,000 in this his sixth year on the PGA trail, was the only one of 102 golfers — 100 pros and two amateurs — to break par in Thursday's opening round of this $100,000 tournament.

The Houston, Tex., pro shot a 1-under-par 70 to seize a one stroke lead late in the day.

Jammed at 71, and giving the tournament a total of only six men who shot par or better in the first round, were Frank Beard, John Jacobs, Jim Jamieson, Roy Pace and Jim Wiechers.

Beard is this year's sixth leading money winner and in his fourth straight $100,000 campaign. The other runnersup are virtually unknown. Jacobs is the younger brother of Tommy Jacobs.

Low Scoring Predicted

Jack Nicklaus, who helped design the Harbor Town course that resisted par so stoutly Thursday, had warned ahead of time that a deep freeze earlier in the week would make the course tough to play.

Nicklaus, who wound up with a 75 by bogeying five of his last six holes, predicted that the 1-under-par 283 that defending champ Arnold Palmer shot last year just might win again.

Palmer, who shot 73 Thursday, said he didn't think the course was any tougher than last year but that the first-round pin placements were "considerably tougher."

TCU Is Looking For A New Football Coach And Soon

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) A committee appointed to find a new head football coach for Texas Christian University met for the first time today, but said the meeting was scheduled merely to set up guidelines for the coach hunt.

TCU's current coach, Fred Taylor, was fired Wednesday just one game short of completion of his fourth year as head of the TCU football program.

"The ideal time to choose a new coach is within two weeks (after the old one has left), but I don't know if we can do it that quickly," Martin said.

The committee, appointed by TCU Chancellor James M. Moody, consists of Martin, vice chancellor W. Earl Waldrop and Kenneth W. Herrick, chairman of the faculty committee for athletics.

Martin declined to speculate whether the next TCU coach would have a larger salary and a larger budget to work with than did Taylor, but other than finances he indicated "honesty" was the most important part of the Horned Frog athletic program.

"When I was hired," Martin said, "I was told an honest program was wanted. If we got on probation it meant my job. I have run an honest program."

On the financial question, Martin said:

"You never know when somebody's going to donate a bunch of money. There could be some money coming from somewhere. TCU is not a broke school, but we're not the wealthiest school in America."

Ashe And Emerson In Trouble At Stockholm Open Tennis Tourney

STOCKHOLM (UPI)—Favored Arthur Ashe and fifth-seeded Roy Emerson were both in serious trouble Thursday before qualifying to a quarter-final match against each other in the $35,200 Stockholm Open indoor tennis championships.

The lanky Ashe, of Gum Springs, Va., began well against Briton Roger Taylor, who earned a berth in the semifinals. His opponent, Dennis Ralston, of Bakersfield, Calif., was forced to withdraw because of an injury which he got in a doubles match earlier.

Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., is the third American left in the tourney. Smith, without reaching his peak, slammed experienced South African Cliff Drysdale, 6-3, 6-3.

In today's singles quarterfinals, Ken Rosewall of Australia faced unseeded Mark Cox of Britain while Smith played young Frenchman Georges Goven and Ashe battled Emerson.

Ashe won 6-3, 5-7, 6-4 while Emerson smashed Holmstrom, 5-1, 3-6, 6-4.

Cliff Richey, of San Angelo, Tex., was the first player who might bail out the Raiders for the sixth consecutive time when he hit tight end Raymond Chester with a 37-yard pass that put the ball on Detroit's three yard line.

Farr Sees Up Victory

But Chester was offside on the play, and eventually the Raiders had to punt away their chances. Instead of Blanda, Detroit's Greg Landry and Charlie Sanders were the heroes.

Landry, a three-year pro making his third start since taking over from Bill Manton, passed for three touchdowns to overcome a 14-0 Oakland lead,

Blanda Runs Out Of Miracles As The Lions Run To Victory

By United Press International

George Blanda ran out of miracles for Oakland and the result was simple: Detroit Lions 28, Oakland Raiders 14.

In the only other National Football League game Thursday, the Dallas Cowboys defeated the Green Bay Packers 16-3.

With Oakland trailing 21-14 and 11:19 left to play, Blanda came in to replace Daryle Lamonica. The 43-year-old quarterback hit three passes in a row, and it looked like he might bail out the Raiders for the sixth consecutive time when he hit tight end Raymond Chester with a 37-yard pass that put the ball on Detroit's three yard line.

Mel Farr's 11-yard touchdown run sewed up the victory. Sanders made two spectacular diving TD catches, the second breaking a 14-14 tie with 11:31 remaining.

"I didn't want the miracle man spoiling my Thanksgiving," Sanders said in reference to Blanda.

Hayes Leads Cowboys

Bob Hayes set up two of Mike Clark's three field goals and then sprinted 13 yards around end for a touchdown to clinch Dallas' victory over the Packers. Hayes set up Clark's 21-yard tying field goal in the second quarter with a 34-yard punt return and the third three-point with a 55-yard pass reception from Craig Morton in the last period.

In the 10 Sunday games, Los Angeles is at San Francisco, San Diego is at Kansas City, Minnesota is at the New York Jets, Cleveland goes to Pittsburgh, Chicago is at Baltimore, Denver is at Houston, Philadelphia is at St. Louis, the New York Giants are at Washington, Boston is at Buffalo and New Orleans is at Cincinnati.

In the Monday night TV game, Miami is at Atlanta.

Five division leaders—Baltimore, Cleveland, St. Louis, Minnesota and San Francisco—will be seeking victories that would move them a step closer to the playoffs.

Top Ranked Texas Rolls Over An Underdog A&M Team Thursday

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Top-ranked Texas rolled to an awesome 603 yards total offense Thursday in smashing Texas A&M 52-14, but Longhorn coach Darrell Royal fears the Thanksgiving Day battle cost him too much.

The Longhorns ran their victory string to 29 straight games Thursday in pummeling the Aggies on the ground and through the air. But Royal counted 10 top-line players who were injured after the contest, some of them perhaps severely enough to keep them out of the crucial game Dec. 5 against Arkansas.

Quarterback Eddie Phillips, who ran for one score and threw two scoring passes to Danny Lester, suffered a twisted knee in the game.

Fullback Steve Worster got a painful hip injury on his second carry of the A.M.E. Others on Royal's injury list are defensive end Bill Ateasis, tackle Carl White, linebacker David Richardson, offensive back Alan Lowry, tight end Tommy Woodard, offensive tackle Paul Robichau and Gary Keithley and place kicker Happy Feller.

Texas scored on four of its first five possessions Thursday in smothering the Aggies. Jim Bertlesen scored on a fouryarder, alternate quarterback Donnie Wigginton scored on a pair of short plungers, and Paul Robichau kept in from one yard out.

A&M's offense couldn't muster any punch until late in the fourth period when the Longhorn defense was liberally sprinkled with reserves.

Aggie quarterback Lex James scored on an eight-yard run, and tossed a nine-yard touchdown pass to end Homer May both with less than four minutes to go.

The victory sets up a rematch of last year's conference title game between Texas and Arkansas, and that game was very much on the minds of Texas players and coaches after Thursday's victory.

Of the injury list, Royal said "I'm not just inventing these—some of them are not piddling injuries, they will keep the boys out, and with Arkansas coming up, I can't find very much to be happy about."

Linebacker Scott Henderson expressed concern that Texas may have lost some of its steam since earlier in the season.

"I like to play Arkansas the way our old schedule was. They seem to gain steam as the season goes along while we might lose some. And a December game drags the season out."

Texas normally plays Arkansas at mid-season, but the last two years the game has been switched to early December for a national television audience.

Cowboys May Have Finally Started To Play Pro-Football

DALLAS (UPI)—Dallas linebackers Chuck Howley and Lee Roy Jordan, key defensive heroes in the Cowboys' 16-3 snapping of their Green Bay jinx, figured Thursday's victory could be a fuse that sends the club back to respectability.

The linebacking duo each turned in two key pass breakups and Howley turned in two of the four traps of Packer quarterback Bart Starr as the Cowboys won their first regular season or playoff victory ever against the Packers.

"I thought we regained our confidence against the run," Jordan said after the one-time haughty Cowboys' downsize defense held the Packers to 78 yards on the ground in an about-face to recent games when nearly everybody was committing the push down their backs.

"We made some tough plays and I think people will start thinking twice about us again," Jordan said.

"It was the sort of game that picks you up and maybe sends you on your way," commented Howley after the Cowboys boosted their season record to 7-4 compared with the National East's front running St. Louis at 7-2-1.

Green Bay's defense was sharp, too, in the clutch, as it once held the Cowboys for downs on the one-yard line and forced them to settle for 21, 12 and 15-yard field goals by Mike Clark until the final two minutes when Bob Hayes ended the game with a 13-yard end around scoring scamper.

The Packers also blocked a Ron Widby punt as ex-Cowboy Rudy Kuechenburg broke through to bat the ball, but by that time the Dallas defense manhandled the Packers and threw them back from the Cowboys' 37-yard line to the Green Bay 49 and forced a punt.

It was that way all afternoon, to the delight of a surprise crowd of 67,182, after—the Packers' only sustained drive—and that ate up 10:14 from the opening kickoff—contributed only a 19-yard field goal by Dale Livingston. The Packers never threatened again.

Hayes, who early in the year rode the bench for not meeting the rigorous Cowboy performance levels, was the offensive hero of the day. He set up two of Clark's field goals with a 34-yard punt return and a 55-yard pass reception, and then scored the pullaway touchdown.

Green Bay Coach Phil Bengtson said he was "proud" of his defense, but noted: "Our offense has produced a total of six points in two games, so we're not pleased with that."

The loss pushed the Packers out of any contention for the Central Division title and also erased any hope they might grab the "wild card" playoff spot (the best second place finish) which Dallas now is eyeing with a bit more confidence.

Royal Cites Texas A&M Victory As One Of The Most Costly Games In The Season Due To Injuries

By United Press International

First-ranked Texas had just finished beating Texas A&M 52-14. But Longhorns coach Darrell Royal could only call it "the most costly victory I can remember" as he ticked off the names of 10 key players who were injured.

The Longhorns' success this season hinges on one game, a Southwest Conference showdown against Arkansas on Dec. 5 that holds the key to Texas' national title hopes and a Cotton Bowl meeting with Notre Dame.

Texas' victory over the Aggies on Thursday was merely routine, but the game with Arkansas is crucial. Among the Texas players injured against Texas A&M were starting quarterback Eddie Phillips with a twisted knee and star fullback Steve Worster with a hip pointer that sidelined him after the game's second play.

Most Costly Victory

Others on the injury list were defensive end Bill Ateasis, tackle Carl White, linebacker David Richardson, kicker Happy Feller, tight end Tommy Woodard, running back Paul Robichau and punter and backup quarterback Gary Keithley.

"I am not just inventing these," Royal said. "Some of them are not piddling injuries. They will keep the boys out, and with Arkansas coming up, I can't find very much to be happy about. This was a great football game and I am ticked to death with the victory, but it is the most costly victory I can remember."

If anything, the victory simply stressed the importance of the players who were hurt. Phillips ran for one TD and passed for two others. Robichau plunged over for a touchdown and Feller kicked a 33-yard field goal and seven extra points.

Other Top Games

Mississippi State upset Mississippi, headed for the Gator Bowl against Auburn, 19-14, and Houston came from behind in the second half to rout Florida State 53-21 in a battle of bowl hopefuls in other Thanksgiving Day action.

In Saturday's college games, third-rated Notre Dame faces Southern California. Army takes on Navy at Philadelphia. Auburn (No. 11) meets Alabama (No. 15), Tennessee (No. 5) meets Vanderbilt, Louisiana State (No. 9) faces Tulane, Southern Methodist plays Texas Christian, Rice plays Baylor, Holy Cross tackles Boston College, Miami meets Florida, Oklahoma plays Oklahoma State and Maryland faces West Virginia.

Quarterback Joe Reed ran for one touchdown and passed for another and Glen Ellis kicked two field goals in Mississippi State's upset over Ole Miss. With Mississippi State trailing 14-13 midway through the final period, Reed tried a desperation pass on a third-and-21 situation from his own 34-yard line. A pass interference penalty on the play breathed new life into the drive, and it was fourth down when Reed went over from the one for the winning TD.

Ole Miss played without quarterback Archie Manning, who is expected to be sufficiently recovered from a broken left arm to play against LSU in the season finale.

Elmo Wright: 33 TDs

Elmo Wright caught two scoring passes to set an NCAA career record of 33 touchdowns and Tommy Muzisek ran for three more TDs in Houston's victory over the Seminoles.

Houston trailed 21-12 in the third period when Charlie Ford intercepted a pass on the Houston 30 and carried to the FSU 30, where he lateraled to Frank Ditta for the score. The play brought the Cougars to life for the rout.

Another interception by Houston safety Nick Holm led to the final TD on a bizarre unsportsmanlike conduct penalty. Holm stole the pass and appeared headed for a touchdown as he ran past the Florida State bench. But Seminole linebacker Don Whitehurst stuck his foot onto the field and tripped Holm.

After the Seminoles were penalized 15 yards from the spot, quarterback Gary Mullins hit Wright with the record setting TD pass.

Favorite Sons Lead Suns To A Victory

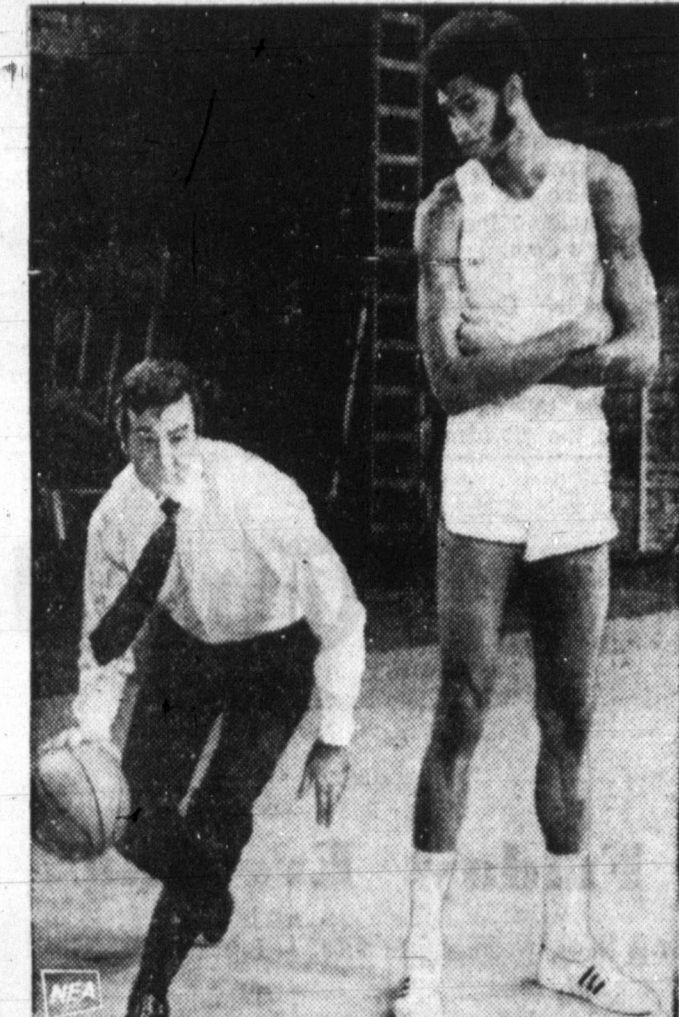

By United Press International

The one-two punch of Connie Hawkins and Dick van Arsdale proved too much for the Seattle SuperSonics Thursday night.

Hawkins and Van Arsdale, the top two scorers for Phoenix, tallied 29 and 25 points respectively to lead the Suns to a 126-115 victory over the Sonics in the only National Basketball Association contest.

Ohio State Places Most Players On All Conference Football Team

CHICAGO (UPI)—Big Ten champion Ohio State placed 12 players, runner-up Michigan had 13 and co-runner-up Northwestern five to dominate the All-Conference football team chosen for United Press International by the league's coaches.

Both the offensive and defensive first teams include 12 players since the coaches' voting resulted in a tie between Guy Murock of Michigan and Joe Zigulich of Northwestern for offensive center and between Henry Hill of Michigan and James Stillwagon of Ohio State for middle guard on defense.

The selections paralleled the statistical finish in the conference too. Michigan, Ohio State and Northwestern were one-two-three on offense and Northwestern, Michigan and Ohio State were one-two-three on defense.

The only players not on the top three teams who made the first units were Doug Dieken of Illinois at tight end on the offensive unit and Bill Gregory and Chuck Winfrey of Wisconsin on defense.

Michigan landed Murock, split end Paul Staroba, tackle Dan Dierdorf, guard Reggie McKenzie, quarterback Don Moorhead and halfback Bill Taylor on the offensive team and end Phil Seymour, tackle Pete Newell, fullback Mary Huff and back Tom Darden on the defensive team.

Ohio State's representatives were tackle Dave Cheney and fullback John Brockington on offense, and end Mark DeBeve, Stillwagon and backs Jack Tatum and Mike Sensibaugh. Northwestern had Zigulich,

The Quail Kit

Quail shooters know that they've got to have a smooth swinging, reliable shotgun that practically points by itself. That's why they're turning to the light, effortless upland guns made by Winchester—the 1400 automatic and the smooth, fast-shucking 1200 slide action. Both of these fine shotguns have lightweight, rust-proof aluminum receivers for a lifetime of trouble free use and both have an exclusive front locking bolt head that meshes steel bolt with steel barrel. They're both built by professional shooters—people who shoot and know what a shooter wants.

And for fine upland shot shells—there you have a happy choice, too.

Take all the power you'll need with either Western Xpert or Winchester Ranger low brass shot shells. The plastic Mark 5 collar protects pellets through the barrel to keep shot round for truer, denser patterns. The unique Sealed-Gas Chamber prevents blowby and patchy patterns. Team either of these fine loads with a 1200 or 1400. They work better together. You'll do better with them.

Priests Cool Off Ghetto Tempers

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Crowds are gathering around a high school in a changing neighborhood in Philadelphia. It has been the scene of many incidents. Tempers are short. There are shouts and name calling. The police are on hand. A call is made to the office of the Cardinal's Commission on Human Relations which, in turn, contacts the Community Tensions Committee.

Within a few minutes, priests are on the scene, talking to both the police and the dissidents — easing the tension and perhaps preventing a riot. When the committee was first formed six years ago, the Philadelphia Police Department offered to equip the priests with helmets when they were called to go into an angry ghetto neighborhood, but the offer was refused.

"We wanted to place ourselves right in the middle," said Monsignor Philip J. Dowling, executive director of the Cardinal's Commission. "We are there as priests and see this as part of the work of reconciling. If we were wearing helmets or badges, we could not do this. We feel, and our experience bears it out, that just by being there, tensions lessened and we could go on to getting meetings started. The way we operate is to attempt to cool tempers, not only of the blacks but of the police."

Philadelphia's last major inner-city riot occurred in 1964. Two months later the committee was formed. "We would like to think that we have helped turn potential riots into mere incidents a number of times during the past six years," said Monsignor Dowling.

Chief Inspector Harry G. Fox, who has worked closely with the ghetto problem, says the priests have been "very helpful."

"We're grateful to the Cardinal (John J. Cardinal Krol, Archdiocese of Philadelphia) not only for the Community Tension Committee, but for the other projects his commission has undertaken," said Inspector Fox.

Other programs mentioned by Fox included a summer program where 400 volunteer nuns entertained ghetto children in 15 city blocks last summer, saving the city an estimated $1.5 million, and a tutoring program conducted by high school Catholic Youth Organization-Community Service Corps youngsters for inner-city children. That program is estimated to save the city about $600,000 through volunteer service.

"These programs are not cure-alls," said Fox, "but they certainly help ease the problems in the inner city. At least blacks get to know whites and vice versa." He said that although most of the people involved during these situations are not Catholic, they show respect for the clergy.

"It's harder for us to talk to people in these situations because we're in uniform," he said. "When, in addition, you're wearing a gun and holding a club, it's difficult to give an impression of simply friendly peacemaking."

Fox said the police-clergy cooperation has helped both sides. "Both the police and the church know we've got a major problem, and we're working together to try to solve it," he said.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Consumers Union recently issued a warning about the potential hazards of certain Christmas toys. As yet, however, I have not seen any warnings about Christmas books. So I will issue one now.

Before you buy a book, carefully read the blurb on the jacket to see if it contains the line "the kind of book you can't put down."

Judging from the blurbs I have seen lately, books of that type currently are being published at a record rate. This is a disturbing trend.

As anyone who has ever gone through the experience can tell you, the inability to put down a book is at best a terrible inconvenience. At worst, it can be traumatic and even harmful.

Two Vignettes

Here are two vignettes based on actual, real-life cases:

1. It is the final game of the World Series. Last of the ninth. Home team behind by one run. Runners on second and third with two outs. Sam Withal goes to the plate as a pinch hitter. He strikes out on three pitches.

"What in the (bleep) were you doing out there?" the manager explodes when Sam returns to the dugout. "It looked like you were swinging the bat with only one arm."

"I was," Sam replies. "I had this book under my other arm."

"Why in the (bleep-bleep) did you have a book under your arm?"

"It's the kind of book..."

2. Sam and Ethel Withal are spending their honeymoon in a luxury hotel suite. Ethel emerges from the bathroom with a soggy book under her arm.

"It Got Wet"

"Why are you bringing that soggy book to bed with you, sweetheart?" Sam inquires.

"It got wet in the shower."

"You took the book into the shower with you?"

"Yes. It's the kind of book..."

These incidents, however distressing, deal with only the mild form of the book blurb hangup. In its extreme form, you are unable to put down a book even after you finish reading it. My friend Archie Wuthering is a case in point.

A few years ago, he received 14 books for Christmas. All of them, unfortunately, were the type you can't put down. Archie ended up lugging around all 14 volumes. He also ended up in the hospital with a sprained back.

So before you buy a book this Christmas make certain it is droppable. It may prevent a lot of grief.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—"The stock market will be a better place to invest funds during 1971 than it has been since 1968," Spear and Staff Inc. predicts. The company says it reached this conclusion because it sees "continued federal emphasis on expansion, lower interest rates, an improving productivity trend and better profits."

Once General Motors is back to full production, "the whole economy should be launched into a new recovery phase," Argus Research Corp. says. The company believes "a positive investment stance is warranted" because long-term interest rates are "falling" and more stimulative economic policies are "forthcoming."
