FOR 20th TIME

UN To Vote On China Representation Today

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The perennial question of China's representation in the United Nations comes to a vote for the 20th time today with the Nationalist China regime of Chiang Kai-shek seemingly assured of retaining its seat.

A U.S.-backed resolution requiring a two-thirds majority vote to give the China seat to Peking appeared certain to pass. There was no chance that the Communists could get that many votes.

The suspense centered on whether a resolution to expel the Nationalists and seat the Communists could muster a simple majority for the first time, a circumstance that would increase chances of passage in a year or two.

The vote was expected before noon, with several nations explaining their votes before the balloting.

The consensus of diplomatic observers was that the Nationalists held an edge of one to three votes, but that any unexpected switch in the vote could change the outcome.

In 19 previous votes, mainland China could manage no better than a 47-47 tie, achieved in the 1965 balloting. Last year's vote was 56-48 in favor of Taiwan on the expulsion vote, with the General Assembly registering 71-48 on the resolution to require a two-thirds margin.

Ambassador Liu Chieh of Nationalist China ended the formal debate Thursday by renewing Taiwan's 14-year-old offer for a plebiscite in mainland China to determine whether the people want the Nationalists to represent them in the United Nations.

WITH TEARS IN EYES

Sgt. David Mitchell Tells Court He Didn't Kill Any Vietnamese

FT. HOOD, Tex. (UPI)—Sgt. David Mitchell, tears rolling down his cheeks onto the two rows of medals clipped to his chest, said Thursday he had been thinking over the events of My Lai for more than a year and still is not sure what happened in the South Vietnamese hamlet.

"But I am positive that I did not shoot anyone," Mitchell said. "I know what I did and what I did not do."

Mitchell was the final witness to testify in his court-martial. Final arguments were scheduled to begin early today. The case should go to the seven-man military court by mid-afternoon.

Ossie Borwn, the attorney Mitchell retained to prove him innocent of shooting 30 Vietnamese old men, women and children at My Lai village, walked over to the witness stand where the career army noncom from Louisiana was testifying Thursday in his own defense.

Denied He Saw Shootings

Q—"Did you shoot any Vietnamese people near the ditch in My Lai on March 16, 1968?"

A—"No, sir, Mr. Brown, I did not. I am positive that I did not shoot anyone."

Army prosecutor Capt. Michael Swan cross-examined Mitchell.

Q—"Did you see anybody shot?"

A—"No, sir, I did not."

Q—"Did you see any bodies in the ditch?"

A—"Yes, sir, I did. But that was after Lt. Calley told me to return to the village and check it out."

Lt. William Calley, Mitchell's commanding officer in Vietnam, is on trial in Ft. Benning, Ga., on charges of killing 102 civilians at My Lai.

Both Swan and Brown met late Thursday with military judge Col. George R. Robinson to discuss the judge's instructions to the court.

Conflicting Testimony Heard

If Mitchell is found guilty he could be sentenced to 20 years at hard labor.

Brown tried to have Calley testify on Mitchell's behalf but gave up on the plan Thursday morning and put Mitchell on the stand. Before Mitchell's testimony the prosecution presented witnesses who said they saw Mitchell and Calley push My Lai villagers into a ditch and then shoot them with automatic weapons.

But defense witnesses said Calley and one or two other soldiers did all the shooting and Mitchell was not at the ditch when the Vietnamese were slaughtered.

Mitchell said Thursday the only time he was at the ditch "was when I brought the people to the trail (by the ditch) and when I crossed it twice." He said the only time he fired his rifle at My Lai was when he shot at "some of the animals in the village."

Pampa Boy Believed Victim Of Poisoning

A three-year Pampa boy, believed to be the victim of poisoning, was rushed to a local clinic shortly before noon today.

City police are investigating the possibility the youngster ate some poisoned food that had been put out for dogs in the vicinity of the 1100 block of S. Wilcox.

Several dogs in that area have died recently as the result of poison.

Senate Approves 3-Year Farm Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Despite predictions of economic disaster for the Cotton Belt, the Senate has sided with the Nixon administration and given final congressional approval to a three-year farm bill.

The Senate approved the controversial measure 48 to 35 Thursday and sent it to President Nixon. Passage was considered a clear-cut legislative victory for the White House.

The bill includes the first ceiling ever imposed on federal support subsidies for big farms—no one farmer may get any more than $25,000 in payments for cotton, wheat and feed grains. It also includes a series of redesigned 1971-73 price support programs for grains and cotton, coupled with a flexible new administration "set aside" system for holding down overproduction.

Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin called passage "a significant victory."

"It will give farmers an opportunity to take greater advantage of shifts in market demands from commodity to commodity by moving away from fixed crop acreages toward greater leeway in crop plantings," he said.

In the three hours preceding the vote, Allen J. Ellender, D-La., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, accused the administration of dictating terms of the bill and charged that fellow senators on the negotiating team with the House betrayed him.

House OKs Trade Bill To Cut Down Flow Of Imports

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House has passed a bill designed to cut down the flow of cheap imported shoes, textiles and other goods coming into the country—a move that would be the first reversal of a free trade policy the United States has followed since World War I.

But the trade bill, the most controversial legislation of its type since the depression, was a long way from becoming law—if it ever does.

The Senate will take it up next month, in the closing weeks of the lame-duck session. It may become so loaded down with other import-stopping devices in the Senate that it may never reach President Nixon's desk.

And the Nixon administration, which issued a last-minute warning the expanded trade bill could trigger international trade wars, may be even less amenable to the measure by the time the Senate finishes with it.

Soviet-Built Tanks Found In Northern Cambodia Area

SAIGON (UPI)—Field commanders reported today that South Vietnamese troops have uncovered evidence the Communists have as many as 15 Soviet-built tanks operating in northeastern Cambodia and may be preparing to use them in the war.

The officers said the discoveries were made by elements of a 6,000-man South Vietnamese task force operating about 12 miles inside Cambodia in an area 200 miles northeast of Phnom Penh.

The officers speculated the Communists may be preparing to use the tanks in Cambodia to counter South Vietnamese armored thrusts across the border. The South Vietnamese armor is much lighter and could not stand up against the T34 tanks.

ELF guerrillas in attempt to hijack a Boeing 707 over Spain last year.

Sudan: Christian Separatists

In the Sudan, Ethiopia's next-door neighbor, guerrilla forces hold areas of three southern provinces in a move for a separate state.

The guerrillas claim to represent 5 million Christian—mostly Catholic—Negroes in the southern Sudan. They want to secede from the Moslem northern Sudan and form a nation to be known as "Azania."

Southerners and northerners in the Sudan have been fighting a little noticed war for the past 15 years. Casualties are believed to have been heavy, but there is no firm count.

In the former French colony of Chad neighboring the Sudan, an insurgent movement appears to be gaining momentum in its campaign against the government. The rebels, who fight under the banner of the National Front for the Liberation of Chad, accuse the government of nepotism, mismanagement of public funds, extortion of taxes by dishonest administrators and perpetuation

IN NEW ORLEANS

Black Panthers Continue To Hold Stronghold Despite Police Threat

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Black Panthers maintained their New Orleans stronghold today after police, faced with massive neighborhood support for the militants, called off a showdown in order to avoid what the police chief called "a bloodbath."

About 150 heavily armed police moved into the Desire Housing Project Thursday to arrest an estimated five to 14 Panthers for trespassing. The militants have been living rent free in the dismal project for a month in defiance of city housing authority rules.

A threatened shootout failed to materialize after police Superintendent Clarence Giarrusso negotiated a 24-hour cooling off period to give the blacks time to challenge the trespass law in court.

"I don't believe a man on the force wanted a bloodbath back there," said Giarrusso after the withdrawal. "There were hundreds and hundreds of people in there—kids all over."

Crowd Supports Panthers.

"There was a wave of emotionalism in the crowd," the chief said. "We were additionally faced with the dilemma of approaching nightfall.

"Some people may regard this as a win-lose proposition," Giarrusso said. "I don't. If the police hadn't left that place, the people who were in the community would have been victims. The Panthers would not have been affected at all."

Giarrusso said he will take no further action to evict the Panthers until the legality of the trespass law is adjudicated, but he said police will return to enforce the law unless the courts intervened.

Panther attorney Ernest Jones said he will ask the U.S. district court in New Orleans today for an order barring further police action against the Panthers, pending a judgement on the trespass law.

Armed Police Advance

Police armed with rifles, shotguns and submarine guns moved into the sprawling brick project Thursday morning to oust the Panthers, who were presumed armed and had barricaded themselves inside the basement of their apartment headquarters.

It was feared the confrontation might be a repeat of a two-day shootout last September that left one black youth dead and 14 Panthers jailed.

A small crowd that gathered when the police arrived swelled by afternoon to at least 300 chanting, jeering blacks, who hurled bottles and taunts at police.

30 Injured, Many Houses Damaged As Tornadoes And Gales Whip Ark.

MARIANNA, Ark. (UPI)—A tornado slipped out of a black storm cloud Thursday and plowed an eight-mile-long path through rural Southeast Arkansas, wrecking homes, overturning cars and twisting metal power line towers.

More than 30 persons were injured and as many houses destroyed or heavily damaged by the tornadoes and strong winds that also battered northern Arkansas. One young boy was hospitalized with a skull fracture but only minor medical treatment was required for the other injured, the Arkansas state police said.

Marianna and other small rural communities were hardest hit. The Lee County Hospital at Marianna had every bed occupied early today. About 30 injured persons left homeless were housed in the basement of the Marianna First Baptist Church.

Officers tried to clear project residents from the area, but many refused to be evacuated. The confrontation lasted seven hours. The only casualty was a Negro youth hit in the stomach by sniper fire apparently intended for police.

Tyrone Curtis, 17, was wounded by a shot fired from a building two blocks away from the Panther stronghold. Authorities at Charity Hospital refused comment on the youth's condition.

Considered A Victory

As police pulled out of Desire, the crowd shouted "Power to the people—stay away pigs," and "Out, Out, out." They cheered what they obviously considered a Panther victory and raised their fists in the black power salute.

Earlier, the Negroes taunted police gathered at the corner of Desire and Pleasure streets, two blocks from the Panther post. A recently-acquired armored vehicle known as the "war wagon" had to be diverted from Panther headquarters to the scene of the bottle-tossing crowd.

At one point a sign on the Panthers' headquarters reading National Committee to Combat Racism fell to the ground. Neighborhood residents put it back up as police looked on.

Cairo Will Never Soften Attitude Toward Israel

By United Press International

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Thursday night he will give "top priority to the war" to recover Israeli-occupied Arab lands, while pursuing a domestic reform program.

"Top priority goes to war first, the war second and the war last," Sadat told the National Assembly Parliament.

Government officials in Cairo said today Sadat's speech was made to give assurance that Egypt would not soften its attitude toward Israel to concentrate on domestic affairs.

In Amman, former Tunisian Premier Bahi Ladgham, head of the Arab Truce Commission, appeared on Jordanian television late Thursday to warn of the dangers of Arab disunity.

Ladgham spoke shortly after he presided over the first face-to-face meeting between Jordanians tough new prime minister, Wasfi Tel, and Palestinian guerrilla leaders Ibrahim Bakr and Abou Iyyad.

Political sources said the next few days would tell if there was a good chance of keeping the peace in Jordan or if periodic fighting was inevitable, probably leading to wider clashes as the guerrillas regained strength.

Syria announced Thursday night the appointment of Lt. Gen. Hafez Assad as prime minister and Ahmed Khatib, a former teacher, as president.

Khatib is a middle road Bathist and seems to be a "front" man for Assad, who seized control in a military coup last Friday. The government-controlled Syrian Arab News Agency said Khatib would serve until a national council meets in three months to choose a permanent head of state.

Bishops Reject Modification Of Communion Rite

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The National Conference of Catholic Bishops, heading protests from laymen disturbed by many changes in traditional church practices, has rejected a proposed modification of the communion rite.

The conference failed to approve the change in a 115-107 vote in a closed meeting Thursday. A two-thirds vote, or 149 votes, was required for passage.

Each worshipper under the proposed change would have been given the option of receiving the host or communion wafer, on his tongue, or having the priest place it in his hand so that he could convey it to his own mouth.

The practice of the priest placing the wafer on the tongue has been in effect for the past 1,000 years.

The Vatican already has approved the communion-in-the-hand option for Catholics in France, Canada and Germany. National hierarchies in each of the nations requested the change.

MAO TO BLAME FOR

Dissident National Liberation Global Movement

By United Press International

Palestinian commandos have seized world attention by hijacking jetliners and terrorizing hostages. French-Canadian extremists demanding a "free Quebec" have kidnapped and killed. Uruguayan Tupamaros kill and rob banks.

There are other dissident national movements around the world—in Africa, in Europe, in Asia and in Latin America. Some are potentially explosive. Others employ the tactic of nonviolence.

Many of these dissidents have the backing of Mao Tse-tung, who believes "wars of national liberation" will win the world for Communism. The Chinese Communists have aided such groups throughout Southeast Asia, have intervened in half a dozen African nations and supplied AK47 automatic rifles to Arab guerrillas.

There also are underground ideological movements, some of which try to capitalize on nationalist sentiments. In South America, for instance, Latin pride is used as a weapon to whip up hatred against the United States.

The political climate throughout Latin America is restless these days, and leftist extremist groups have blossomed in several nations.

All want to change the existing political structures, but none has indicated a desire to transcend national boundaries. The most prominent Latin American terrorist organization is Uruguay's Movement for National Liberation—better known as the Tupamaros.

The Tupamaros are named after a Peruvian chief, Tupac Ameru, who organized an Inca rebellion against the Spaniards in 1780. After Tupac Ameru was defeated, the Spanish tore him apart with four horses pulling in different directions at the same time.

One American Hostage Held

The present-day Tupamaros are urban guerrillas who use a variety of terror tactics in a move to overthrow President Jorge Pacheco Areco's administration in Uruguay and install a revolutionary regime along the lines of the Communist government in Cuba headed by Premier Fidel Castro. One American has been slain at the hands of the Tupamaros; another is a hostage facing possible execution.

In Africa, the seeds for trouble were sown in the era of colonial exploitation. Guerrillas are fighting for independence in Portuguese Angola and Mozambique and in Ethiopia insurgents are trying to wrest the northern coastal province of Eritrea from the government and incorporate it into what they call "the Arab motherland."

The Ethiopian rebels, known as the Eritrean Liberation Front (ELF), enjoy Communist and Arab support and have headquarters in Syria, the most militant nation of the Arab world.

The ELF claims its 8,000 guerrillas have successfully pinned down Emperor Haile Selassie's 40,000-man American-trained army.

Eritrea was an Italian colony until World War II. The United Nations handed it over to Ethiopia in 1953.

The ELF has taken credit for bomb and hijack attempts on Ethiopian airliners in West Germany and Pakistan. Emperor Selassie, decorated an airline guard who shot and killed two

REQUESTED BY COMPANIES

State Panel Likely To Increase Auto Insurance Premium To 13%

STAIN (UPI) — Look for an increase in price of automobile insurance.

The various insurance companies will present their individual requests Monday to the State Insurance Board and the board will probably raise the premiums anywhere from 3.5 to 13 per cent.

The board said Thursday it would even go so far as to include any and all income made by insurance companies in establishing the new rates but predicted there is no way to avoid rising insurance costs.

If blamed the raise, before actually confirming it, on increased costs in repairing automobiles.

The board said insurance companies are already dipping into profits they make from other sources besides underwriting auto insurance companies and the rates will have to be raised to allow the companies to make a profit comparable to other major industries.

The insurance board has worked out a formula for setting rates. It involves subtracting the claims paid from the premiums received and adding onto that an extra 5 per cent for "profit and contingencies."

The board said a national survey shows insurance companies are averaging a 6.1 per cent profit margin which is too low compared to the 11.56 per cent margin of other industries. The only way to rectify the situation, the board said, is to raise the price of auto insurance premiums.

Critics of past rate increases have said the industry could lower its prices if the entire income of insurance companies was considered and not just the income received from insurance claims. Their basic contention was insurance companies make a profit by investing some of their income into other ventures which return a profit and if this investment income was considered, rates would be lower.

The board of insurance companies are being forced to dip into their investment and other income to cover their losses in underwriting automobile insurance.

None of the three members of the board would say exactly how much insurance premiums will be raised to bring the profit margin to the 11.56 per cent figure.

"It could be 13 (per cent) or it could be 10," Durwood Mansford said.

Concert Cast 'Does Right' By 'Oklahoma!' Musical

By HARLAN HYSMITH
News Staff Writer

"People will say we're in love" with the Pampa High School Concert Choir's 1970 production of Rogers and Hammerstein's "Oklahoma!" currently on stage in the Robert E. Lee auditorium starting at 8 p.m. Three performances remain for the musical—tonight, Saturday matinee at 2, and Saturday night.

The personalities of the early settlers come alive as the play unfolds. Sharon Bruce gets things off to a good start in her role as Aunt Eller, a good hearted, "salt-of-the-earth woman" who isn't above pulling a few shenanigans now and then.

Curly (Greg Dennis) and Laurey (Mimi Miller) walk in the dream world of young lovers, "throwing bouquets" at each other. Will Parker (Rick Harris) and Ado Annie Carnes (Jeree Pitts) have no trouble "doin' what comes naturally" whether it's on Oklahoma prairies or the streets of Kansas City.

Proving that harshness and brutality can be used in a musical, John Fitzgerald, as Jud Fry, does a good job in portraying a strong character who stands apart from the crowd.

Rounding out the memories are Ali Hakim (Darrel Cory) a woman-chasing peddler, and Andrew Carnes (Loren Rice), a judge whose sole occupation seems to be to get Ado Annie married to a respectable man (anyone available who has money).

The heart of any show is the back-up people—the singers and dancers, the orchestra, the townspeople, the stage crew, and the other people behind the scenes. Hats off to them for a smooth, professional performance.

One thing especially worth mentioning is the quality of the voices. Choir director Bill Davis has done a fine job of training the members of the chorus.

Rodeo Directors To Be Elected Tonight

Even new directors will be elected for three-year terms when the Top of Texas Rodeo Ass'n meets at 7:30 p.m. today in the Chamber of Commerce conference room.

Holly Gray, association president, said arrangements will be discussed for the 1971 rodeo.

Tentative dates for the four-day rodeo in Recreation Park here have been set for Aug. 4-7.

Police Tracking Down Three Pampa Shoplifters

Police today were continuing an investigation into two shoplifting incidents in Pampa stores yesterday afternoon.

A man and two women were involved in each case, according to police, but made their getaway in both cases.

Two men's suits, valued at $250, were taken from Dunlap's store in Coronado Center and two jackets, valued at $160, were reported missing from Health's Men's Wear in the Combs-Worley Bldg.

Descriptions of suspects in both cases were the same, police said.

Rhonda Molbert, 1806 N. Nelson, a student at Pampa High School, reported theft of a radio, valued at $40, from her car on the school parking lot.

Women Defendants In Tate Murder Trial Want To Take Witness Stand

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The three women defendants in the Tate murder trial demanded the right Thursday to take the witness stand despite refusal of their lawyers to permit them to testify on grounds their answers could be incriminating.

Chief defense lawyer Paul Fitzgerald had barely finished announcing to a startled court that the defense was resting its case without calling a single witness when defendant Patricia Krenwinkel was on her feet protesting she wanted to testify.

Codefendant Charles Manson, the man the girls called "Jesus," just sat smiling and silent.

Their Right To Speak Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older assembled the defendants and all the lawyers in his chambers where the other two young women defendants, Susan Atkins and Leslie Van Houten, said they also wanted to take the witness stand.

Older ruled that the women had a constitutional right to testify if they so wished. Manson, 35, did not ask to appear.

When the Thursday afternoon session began, Miss Atkins took the stand and sat demurely dressed in a royal blue pant suit. She gave her name both as Susan Atkins and Sadie Mae Glutz and said she preferred to be known as "Sadie."

Judge Has Few Options She had written out a series of questions on a yellow legal pad and Older ordered her attorney, Daye Shinn, to ask them. Shinn flatly refused, saying the answers would incriminate his client.

Older once again brought the lawyers and defendants into his chambers where Fitzgerald and Ronald Hughes announced that they, too, would refuse to ask questions of the girls.

"The girls are adamant that they want to testify because they have an overriding desire to tell the truth," Fitzgerald said. "But as a lawyer I cannot permit them to incriminate themselves."

Older had few alternatives. He could find the lawyers guilty of contempt and put them in jail until they agree to ask the questions. He could have them removed and other attorneys appointed, but the young women could refuse to accept new counsel. Fitzgerald said the judge had decided against asking the questions himself.

NORTHERN IRISH have seen too much of guns in recent years. Prime Minister Jack Lynch believes, pleading for reconciliation. This machine gun was used to guard a Belfast roadblock during the August 1969 violence.

Pathet Lao Wants Early Negotiation

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—The Communist Pathet Lao organization has requested an early start on negotiations with the government of Prince Souvanna Phouma to end the war in Laos, government sources said Thursday.

The sources said the request was relayed to Souvanna, who also is prime minister, in his meeting Monday with a representative of the Pathet Lao, Prince Souk Vongsack. They said Souk did not, however, offer any new proposals to break the deadlock on preliminary negotiations toward full peace talks.

The government and the Pathet Lao have agreed on the town of Khgna Kai, about 150 miles north of Vientiane, as site for the peace talks. But the Pathet Lao has demanded that Souvanna negotiate as a leader of a political faction in Laos, not as a chief of state.

TOP CLUB FB TEAM

NEW YORK (UPI)—Kings College of Pennsylvania, which had a 7-1 record this season, was rated the No. 1 club football team in the country Wednesday.

St. Louis University, St. Peter's (N.J.), Paterson State, Nichols, Marist, Loyola of Los Angeles, Siena, St. John's (N.Y.) and Manhattan were listed behind Kings.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—I always had difficulty getting ahead in the world, which seemed passing strange for someone with my towering intellect, surpassing abilities, boyish good looks and all-around charisma.

But when I looked at myself in the light of a study by a group of Boston psychiatrists, I could see what has been holding me back. I sleep too much.

According to a news release from the Spring Air Mattress Co., the study shows that men who habitually sleep more than nine hours a night tend to be "introverted, passive and mildly depressed."

But those who get along with six hours of sleep or less are generally "efficient, hard-working and achievement oriented."

Conflicting Advice
Hypothesis: If I cut three hours off my customary sack time, I would soon be out in front with the achievers.

Question: Should I stay up three hours later or get up three hours earlier?
That was not a decision to be made hastily. Decided to sleep on it.

It might appear here that I was being irresolute. Not so. I was merely acting in accordance with another news release from the self-same mattress company.

When a man dealing with a problem elects to "sleep on it," it says, "there's every possibility that he may literally dream up a solution." Cites the case of inventor Elias Howe.

Sewing Nightmares
Howe got the idea for a sewing machine needle while dreaming he was "about to be killed by a tribe of savages wielding spears with eye-shaped holes in their tips."

Went to bed at usual hour and dreamed I was about to be killed by members of my wife's sewing club.

Awoke the next morning after less than six hours sleep. Felt efficient, hard-working and achievement oriented. Great feeling.

Used the extra time inventing things. Invented a spear with hole in tip. Then invented cotton gin and steamboat. Was just getting into swing of achievement when wife woke up.

Said to wife, "Do you notice anything different about me this morning?"
"Yeah. You look more bleary-eyed than usual."

Began feeling introverted, passive and mildly depressed again.

Youths Suspected Of Shoplifting

Two youths were turned over to juvenile authorities after a shoplifting incident yesterday noon in the C. R. Anthony store, 118 N. Cuyler.

Store officials told police five youngsters, all in the 14 to 15 year-age category, were in the store and one of them hid a pair of pants under his shirt and walked out.

The assistant store manager caught him and brought him back. The other four then started pushing and crowding him, he said, and the youth and another boy ran out of the store. They were followed by the other three.

Police checked with authorities at Pampa Junior High School and the two boys were rounded up and turned over to juvenile authorities.

Washington Window

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Looking over the Senate as it has been fashioned by voters in the past two elections, it is difficult to escape the conclusion that what American voters have spoken out against is simply outspokenness.

Despite its reputation as an inflated, passionate organization of individualists, the Senate is becoming a body of low-profile statesmen. The Morges and Gruening and Goodells are gone. In their place are the Cooks, the Tafts, the Stevensons—men whose views are no less strong but have found a way to express them without offending voters.

This simple fact may be the lesson of the November elections, more than any of the various interpretations involving the war, the economy, campus militancy or any other issue.

It may be a lesson that applies equally to a high-profile vice president and high-profile doves.

In the elections of 1968 and 1970, the men who used temperate language—or at least who had been identified in the public mind with stridency—have been retired.

For that matter, it may have started in 1964 with Barry Goldwater's race for the presidency and his advocacy of "extremism in the defense of liberty."

Exeremism in defense of anything has clearly become a tough proposition to sell to the broad electoral base.

In 1970, Sens. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., Charles Goodell, R-N.Y., and Joseph Tydings, D-Md.—all of whom had stuck their necks out on more than one occasion—were defeated at the same time that men on the opposite end of the political spectrum, backed by the extravagant language of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, were losing.

Two years earlier, Sens. Wayne Morse, D-Oregon, Joseph Clark, D-Pa., and Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, were turned out by their constituents after a tense, open struggle with the President over Vietnam.

All had exposed themselves as persistent, unflinching and harsh critics of the war.

And they did so out of the most deeply held views. But others shared these views, perhaps just as strongly, and survived.

The reason may be that they were able to restrain themselves and their retorts.

To an extent, Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., the most dovish dove of all and Agnew's prototype of the radical liberal, has survived because he is a master in the use of the language and comes through as a reasonable and dispassionate man. At least his Arkansas constituents regard him as such and they re-elected him in 1968.

President Considers Replacing Three Key Cabinet Members

WASHINGTON (UPI)—High administration sources confirmed Thursday that President Nixon is considering replacing three key cabinet members, particularly Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel, as part of a post-election house cleaning.

The other two department chiefs expected to quit around year's end are Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy and Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin.

The mid-term elections gave Nixon a chance to protect his political flanks against criticism, settle old scores and reward losing Republican candidates by making high-echelon personnel changes for the next two years.

It has been an open secret for months that the White House wants Hickel's scalp for a public display of disloyalty that has never been forgiven. That was his letter to Nixon, leaked to the press, imploiring the President to heed the voice of young people who then were protesting the U.S. intervention in Cambodia.

Among those in contention for Hickel's job is Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton of Maryland, who is reported to be unhappy over a lack of influence at the White House as Republican national chairman. If Morton makes a move, the GOP chairmanship may go to White House counselor Robert H. Finch, a trusted Nixon political adviser.

Hickel, the millionaire former governor of Alaska, has said he would quit only if fired. His earliest chance for elective office would be the 1972 House race.

Kennedy, at 65 the oldest member of the cabinet, does not have particularly good relations with Congress and infrequently outgunned by other economic policy advisers to the President.

If Kennedy, a former Chicago banker, retires, speculation has it his successor might be Rep. George Bush, R-Tex., who was defeated by Democrat Lloyd Bentsen Jr. for the Senate.

Television In Review

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—In a development of gorgeous irony, CBS-TV, which bounced Jackie Gleason from this season's schedule because he wasn't considered contemporary enough, is bringing back his "Honeymooners" hours in January.

Retruns of those hours, which also star Art Carney, Sheila MacRae and Jane Kean, will replace the canceled Tim Conway comedy series on Sunday nights beginning Jan. 3.

As you may recall, Gleason was tossed off the network along with Red Skelton (now at NBC) in a burst of new allegiance to what was ambiguously and inaccurately described as "relevant" programming. The comedian must be smiling at the poetic justice that sees him returning to the air, even in reruns.

Another mislabeled "relevant" series, "Headmaster," in which Andy Griffith portrayed a high school principal whose social concern was on the prekindergarten level, also has been canceled. Griffith in a unique network move, will replace himself—but in a new series which will find him as mayor of a small town in North Carolina. It definitely will not be "relevant."

And, to compound the Gleason irony, the new Griffith show also will be a return to almost the exact style of the old one he used to have, in which he played a small town southern sheriff. Like the old one, it will be called "The Andy Griffith Show."

There is, however, one midseason CBS replacement series that may well cause the contemporary excitement the network has been aiming for. It is called "All in the Family" and it is a half-hour situation comedy that tries to Americanize the approach of an explosively successful British series, "Till Death Do Us Part," which tackled, head-on and humorously, prejudices of all "relevant" kinds through a belligerent, big-mouth central character (played on the CBS show by Carroll O'Connor).

Others in "All in the Family" will be Jean Stapleton and Rob Reiner, son of Carl Reiner and a writer and actor in his own right.

One can only hope that the Americanized version doesn't get toned down much in its fear of offending.

The Quail Kit

Quail shooters know that they've got to have a smooth swinging, reliable shotgun that practically points by itself. That's why they're turning to the light, effortless upland guns made by Winchester—the 1400 automatic and the smooth, fast-shucking 1200 slide action. Both of these fine shotguns have lightweight, rust-proof aluminum receivers for a lifetime of trouble free use and both have an exclusive front locking bolt head that meshes steel bolt with steel barrel. They're both built by professional shooters—people who shoot and know what a shooter wants.

And for fine upland shot shells—there you have a happy choice, too.

Take all the power you'll need with either Western Xpert or Winchester Ranger low brass shot shells. The plastic Mark 5 collar protects pellets through the barrel to keep shot round for truer, denser patterns. The unique Sealed-Gas Chamber prevents blowby and patchy patterns. Team either of these fine loads with a 1200 or 1400. They work better together. You'll do better with them.

Government Agencies Can Only Do Just So Much

DALLAS (UPI)—When Americans spy a problem their impulse is to shout, "Don't just stand there, do something!" Even if there is nothing to be done.

This is one of the reasons why the achievements of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare appear to fall short of our expectations. HEW Secretary Elliot L. Richardson told 500 of Dallas' most prominent civic and business leaders Monday night.

"We feel compelled to do something and inevitably there is a shortfall between our expectations and our achievements. This slippage is because of limits on what we can do," he said.

Typhoon Devastates Manila, Killing 38

MANILA (UPI)—Patsy, the most powerful typhoon in Manila's recorded history, slashed through the Philippines biggest population center Thursday with deadly force, the eye of the storm passing directly over the city.

Trees were uprooted, rooftops ripped off and welcoming arches for Pope Paul's visit next week were flattened.

At least 38 persons were reported killed and 300 injured, the number of casualties rising sharply with delayed reports coming in from rural areas outside Manila. In addition, officials said 23,000 persons in the capital were left homeless.

The government declared a "state of calamity" in Manila, which has a population of 3.5 million and a spokesman said the calamity declaration probably would be extended to other areas.

The death toll appeared to be low in the metropolitan area and was expected to climb as more reports were received from central Luzon's outlying provinces. Government and private agencies said destruction from the typhoon extended at least 100 miles from the capital.

Winds from Patsy reached 120 miles an hour in Manila at the height of the storm, exceeding the previous record of 118 miles an hour set in 1882.

Heavy rain accompanied the wind, causing widespread flooding.

He said Americans have "the expectation that we, an affluent society that has been able to conquer polio or go to the moon, should be able to conquer cancer, eliminate poverty and all these problems, if not tomorrow then the day after tomorrow."

Using narcotics as an example he said, "the fact of the matter is we don't know how to rehabilitate heroin addicts."

He said 80 per cent of the patients released from the federal government's narcotics hospital at Lexington, Ky., go back on heroin. And while methadone treatment is the most promising technique at present, Richardson said all it amounts to is substituting dependency on one drug for dependency on another.

Richardson called for certain administrative reforms within HEW, and for a new emphasis on "the significance of the individual as a whole, his relationships to his family, his neighborhood and his community, instead of slicing these up and pigeonholing them."

Asks More Authority
He said more authority should be given to HEW field organizations and there should be better communication with governors, mayors and heads of county governments.

He said in the past pilot demonstration programs funded by HEW have not been followed through, and in some cases the agency has no record of the results of these programs. He said the results of pilot programs should be obtained and disseminated to other locality.

He also criticized the traditional incentive device of the project grant—a grant of money given to states for specific purposes, accompanied by HEW guidelines and requirements for periodic progress reports. He said such grants have not been effective.

NEW ORLEANS—Police Superintendent Clarence Giarusso, explaining why he withdrew his 150 policemen as they moved into a housing project to arrest Black Panthers:

"If the police hadn't left that place, the people who were in the community would have been victims. The Panthers would not have been affected all."

THREE JACKS are good for a big raise—in the offshore drilling game, that is. The three triangular jacks on this oil and gas drilling rig can raise it well above level of the Gulf of Mexico by extending down 100 feet to the gulf floor. ## Oil Industry Suffers Its First Decline In Net Income Since '58

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—The oil industry suffered its first downturn in net income since 1958 through the third quarter of this year.

Worldwide demand for oil mushroomed from 18 million barrels a day in 1959, to 28.4 million barrels daily this year. To accommodate the rapid expansion, the oil industry has spent $150 billion, almost half for the never-ending search for additional sources of oil and gas.

"The search for new oil and gas fields is both risky and expensive," the American Petroleum Institute (API) says. "And in new areas, the chances of making a commercial significant discovery are only two out of 100."

Lack of Incentive
The industry has been reluctant to reinvest its money exploring for new sources of oil and a lack of incentive is blamed.

"Decisions are based upon the combination of geologic, economic and political circumstances encountered in each area of potential investment," experts say. "If one or more of these factors is unfavorable, the industry will be likely to use its available capital resources elsewhere."

Donald P. Jones, senior vice president of finance for Sun Oil Co., says a solution would be equity financing through insurance of new stock in order to overcome tight money situations.

"Petroleum demands are expected to rise sharply in the years ahead," he said, "and the industry moving to meet these demands will incur increasingly heavy expenses. These growing capital requirements are too great to come from traditional internal sources, and long-term debt, already at a high level for the industry as a group, precludes heavy new borrowing."

"The problem with equity financing, however, is that the market appraisal for the industry is a low-reflection of the decline in oil earnings in 1969,

DEAR ABBY: I am 42 and am keeping steady company with a 40-year-old musician who is separated from his wife. I was widowed two years ago, and nearly lost my mind from loneliness, and I must say Joey took my mind off my sorrow.

A month ago, Joey's landlady put him out for nonpayment of rent so I let him bring his stuff to my place. He needs one room for just his guitar and sheet music. Well, he hasn't worked since he moved in with me and he isn't even looking. He plays fair guitar and says he "composes" music. He has trunks of it and to my knowledge he hasn't sold a song in his life.

Meanwhile, I am feeding him and the grocery bill is something else. He says he loves me and will get a divorce if I will pay for it. I do love him when the sun goes down, but I don't know what to do. Am I crazy?

GLADYS: Crazy? No. Crazy people don't ask if they're crazy—they think everybody else is. Did Joey perchance write that song, "I Love Gladys Cuz Everything Is Grats"?

It's all right to love a man when the sun goes down, but when the sun comes up, you've got to pay your bills. There are worse things in life than loneliness, and if you don't get rid of Joey, you'll find out what they are.

DEAR ABBY: I'm hooked on your column. It's the first thing I turn to in the newspaper, but I never thought I'd be writing for advice. It's about my husband, whom I love madly. Is it possible for a happily married man (at least he says he is) to have such affection for a buddy that they have to talk to each other on the phone three or four times a night, at any hour? No business ties or dealings whatsoever. They are just good friends. And several times a week they run to meet each other for "coffee," if it's only for 15 minutes.

His buddy's wife and I wonder with disbelief over these two guys. They are so straight it isn't even funny, or else we're naive, that's why we need an experienced opinion. I have had a close friendship with a girl friend for 15 years and if we talk twice a week, it's sufficient. Should I worry?

PUZZLED: DEAR PUZZLED: No. I have seen such affection between two men, and it's beautiful.

DEAR ABBY: What's wrong with a husband who will not wait to walk across the street with his wife and family? He will use any pretext in order to dash across the street ahead of me. (I am considered attractive.)

Our sons, now in their teens have never seen their father escort me across the street. And when they were small, I was left to manage the children and parcels by myself. I have told him how I feel about this Abby, but he considers it unimportant. I am concerned about the example being set for our sons. Am I being overly sensitive?

CANADIAN: DEAR CANADIAN: No. It's the "little things" that make the "big" difference. Your husband is obviously very impatient, inconsiderate and downright mean if he is aware of how you feel about this and makes no effort to change. If he is merely thoughtless and preoccupied, gently "remind" him.

DEAR ABBY: To the 13-year-old girl who has a collection of dolls, and whose father objects to her keeping them, I would like to venture my opinion after 30 some years of marriage to a 58-year-old woman who still loves dolls.

I don't know whether she "plays" with them, but I know she combs their hair occasionally because I notice once in a while their hairdo is changed.

Based on my experience I would say that a girl who loves dolls will make a darned good mother. ED IN CHICOPEE, MASS.

Use Color Schemes, Measurements To Shop Painlessly For Furniture

By AILEEN SNOODY, NEA Home Editor
NEW YORK (NEA)—Would you go shopping for shoes without your feet? Certainly not. Yet most men and women leave something at home when they go looking for new furnishings.

This "something," according to home furnishing designer and retailer Mimi Harvey, includes color schemes and measurements.

Mimi, a pleasant promoter of the family business, explains that in the last nine years she and her husband have discovered how little people know about their own homes.

The couple broke away from department store life to set up a retail furniture outlet on Park Avenue South in the heart of New York's wholesale furniture district.

Their gimmick was to display complete room settings of well-designed furnishings. The idea sounds simple but is spreading as a store display technique.

Mrs. Harvey feels her ex-submariner husband is the most handsome, erudite man she has ever met. But with feminine strategy she left nothing to chance when she realized he was serious about becoming a home furnishings retailer. She enrolled in the New York School of Design, eventually taught at the College of the City of New York and the Laboratory Institute of Merchandising.

Through her studies, teaching and day-to-day interior decorating jobs she found a flaw in high school and college education for girls.

"It is amazing," she says, "how little home economists know about home furnishings. The ability to furnish a home is something young women don't really learn in school. They are fed a lot of old-fashioned concepts rather than helpful facts."

With this comment she goes back to the original point that a couple or single person shopping for a new couch, carpet or draperies "have no feeling for room size or size of furniture."

It would solve many shopping woes, time and money if people would bring written measurements with them when shopping. With her clients she sketches a floor plan but not an elaborate rendering, which she feels is misleading.

Such preparation is vitally important, she feels, since "few people start from scratch when buying furniture. Even newlyweds start with prejudices for styles they think they like."

When looking at furniture displays, she points out that customers must relate them to their rooms. Generally, apartments or rooms in houses are narrower than a display room or have architectural defects to cope with. And display rooms do not offer the individuality each person brings to his own surroundings.

Since so few persons know how to shop for furniture, it is best, she feels, to deal with reliable stores whose buyers shop the furniture markets for the best in furniture design. Unless it is a warehouse sale of quality furniture, she adds, be wary of furniture that goes for half price.

"Furniture is different from fashion. You can make a mistake with a dress or suit and hide it in the closet or give it away. With a piece of furniture you have to look at your mistake every day."

There are places to splurge when buying furniture that pay off. "Most buy a bedroom set only once or twice in a lifetime. Little can go wrong with a good wood. Buy top quality furnishings for the bedroom. You can economize some on upholstered furniture while buying fine looking lamps and accessories."

One fault that many persons make when decorating, she adds, is not to finish what they started. "It is not the first $1,000 you spend that makes the difference. It is the last $100 that isn't spent for accessories that can spoil the tone of a room."

Topping off a room's decor with accessories also is a way to keep up with fads without spending enormous amounts of money.

"You can use a home furnishings fad without killing the fun or damaging the budget since you may want to buy new things to keep up with a new trend in a year or two," Mrs. Harvey explains. "If you like today's fad, carry it out in accessories which you can afford to change. For more expensive furniture, stick to a basic style."

We agree it is safer and more interesting to mix furniture periods. This allows for an occasional new piece that lets your guests know what's currently hot in interior design.

The Rev. Ralph T. Palmer will deliver the Annual Thanksgiving Message this Sunday during the Morning Worship Hour. The choir under the direction of Miss Rosemary Lawlor and accompanied by Mrs. John Gill will present the Anthem "Now Thank We All Our God" art. Carl F. Mueller.

Sunday evening snack supper will be at 5:30 p.m. followed by evening youth groups at 6:00 p.m. A special jamboree will also be held Sunday afternoon in the church parlor it is for the purpose of all the church school teachers, superintendents, evening youth sponsors and education committee to have the opportunity to visit and become acquainted with the new minister, Rev. Palmer.

The Christian Women's Fellowship will have their executive board meeting Wednesday, Nov. 25, at 9:30 a.m. with Mrs. J. Stanley Hill, president, presiding.

Central Baptist Church

The sanctuary choir of the church will begin the morning service with "Come Ye Thankful People," followed by Thanksgiving hymns by the congregation. A ladies trio will present "Let There Be Peace" and S.L. Tate, who serves as Minister of Music of the church will sing a solo, "Grace So Amazing" preceding the sermon. Bryan Halliburton, pastor of the church will be in the pulpit for both services. He will preach Sunday morning using the subject "Something To Be Thankful For." His evening message will be announced. Special music in the evening service will include music by a mixed quartet and the choir will present "Shelter in A time of Storm." The ordinance of baptism will be observed during the evening service. The church extends a cordial invitation to anyone interested in attending the fastest growing Sunday School in Pampa.

Church Of God

Reverend Ric W. Kennedy will be conducting a revival meeting at the Church of God at Gwendolen and Sumner in Pampa during Nov. 27 to Dec. 6. Reverend Kennedy has conducted revival meetings in various states: Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Florida,

South Carolina, Wisconsin, Washington, New Jersey where he served as Christian Education Director, and now in Texas. The Church of God Headquarters in Texas has appointed him to be the State Evangelist of Texas. He and his wife travel together. She sings the gospel before he begins to minister from the Holy Scriptures. Their message in song and in word has proved to be inspiring to those who will listen. The week night services will start at 7:30 and the Sunday night service will be at 6:00.

Church Of Christ, Scientist

What the healing ministry of Christ Jesus can mean to today's world will be brought out at Christian Science church services Sunday.

Matthew of several healings of Christ Jesus. One of the accompanying passages to be read from Science and Health with Key Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy states: "Knowing that Soul and its attributes were never manifested through man, the Master healed the sick, gave sight to the blind, hearing to the deaf, feet to the lame, thus bringing to light the scientific action of the divine Mind on human minds and bodies and giving a better understanding of Soul and salvation."

Zion Lutheran Church

A liturgical narrative, an explanation of the "liturgy" or order of worship will be used at Zion Lutheran Church this Sunday. The pastor of Zion Lutheran Church, the Rev. M.G. Herring, will be assisted with the presentation of the liturgical narrative by Mr. Deck Woldt, chairman of the Board of Elders. The organist will be Mrs. M.G. Herring. A liturgical narrative is used to explain the depth of meaning and symbolism contained in the Lutheran liturgy and thus make the Order of worship more meaningful to the worshiper. Anyone who is interested in learning more about the Lutheran liturgy is invited to the worship service at 11:00 a.m. Sunday.

Saint Mark Church

The Pastor and members of the Saint Mark Christian Methodist Episcopal Church will celebrate their 38th Church Anniversary on the 22nd of November, 1970, at 3:00 p.m. The Reverend Jonah Parker, minister of the Carter Chapel Christian Methodist Episcopal Church, Amarillo, Texas, will deliver the Anniversary sermon. Reverend Parker is a former minister of Saint Mark. Under the leadership of the present minister, Monroe Woods, Jr., the church in December 1969 paid $16,500 note, 8 years prior to maturity.

Plans have been finalized for the remodeling of the Fellowship Hall and installation of central air in the sanctuary. In addition to paying off the Sanctuary note, a parsonage and additional property have been purchased and paid for. Everyone is invited.

Bible Church Of Pampa

REV. J. S. SMITH
... new pastor

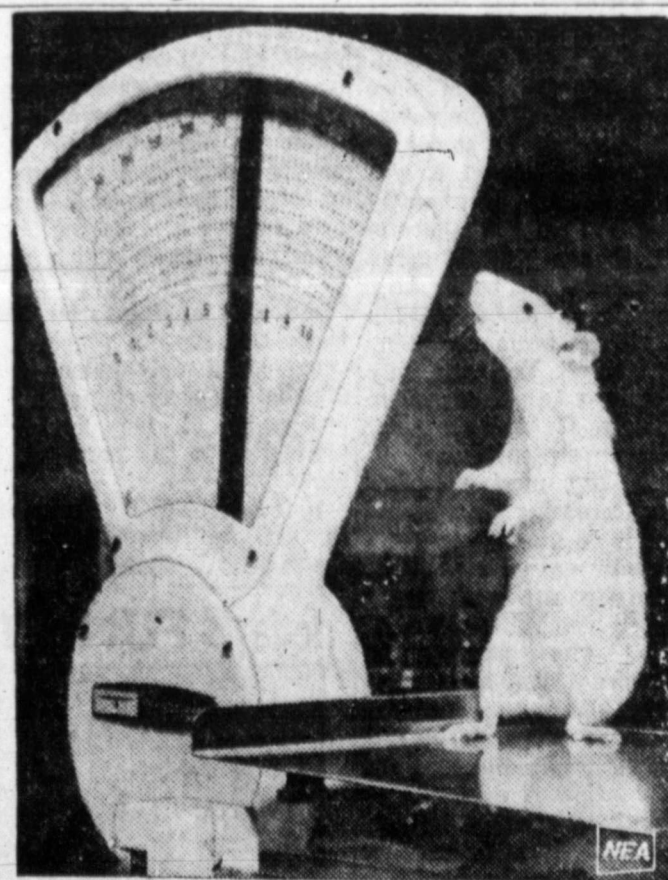

The Bible Church of Pampa at 307 W. Foster took a step of faith last month when they unanimously called their first pastor, Rev. Jonathan S. Smith.

Rev. H.A. Somerville, a retired pastor from the Amarillo Bible Church, has served as interim pastor for over a year. Under his ministry the new church grew spiritually and numerically and has become organized.

Rev. Smith is from Williamsport, Penn. He earned his B.A. degree at John Brown University and his Th.M. degree at Dallas Theological Seminary. He has held pastorates in Arkansas, Texas and Pennsylvania.

Rev. Smith's wife, Maybelle, is also from Pennsylvania and attended John Brown University for two years. The Smiths have three children. The new pastor wishes to have a well balanced ministry in Pampa with the major emphasis on Bible teaching.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper
EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Welfare Scheme Still Alive

As the "lame duck" Congress returns to Washington, there will be new efforts to push through President Nixon's Family Assistance Plan, which is Nixon's version of providing a guaranteed annual income.

The American Conservative Union, headed by Rep. John M. Ashbrook, (328 Pennsylvania Ave., S.E., Washington, D.C.) is alerting the public to be aware of the attempt to push the Family Assistance Plan through the Senate. It already has been approved by the House, and the Senate is under pressure to give its final approval. Sen. John Williams of Delaware charges that the measure would "reward the idle for their idleness and penalize the workers for their labor." The ACU analyzes the "incredible scheme" as follows:

1. Each family of four on welfare is to be guaranteed an income of $1,600, plus additional services like food stamps (total $2,400 annually plus whatever each state provides).

Trains: Limping Recovery

Those visionaries among us who may have been looking for an immediate renaissance in the rail service now that the federal government is taking over responsibility for passenger trains are in for a letdown.

The immediate result is certain to be fewer intercity trains. The legislation on which Congress, the President and the railroads finally got together creates a semipublic National Railroad Passenger Corporation which as of next May 1 will begin operating trains between cities at least 75 miles apart—the definition of "intercity" service.

While the railroads aren't compelled to surrender their passenger operations, most, if not all, are expected to do so with scarcely concealed delight since the alternative is a requirement to continue operating the trains on their own for at least five years. Nothing in the sorry rail record of the past few decades indicates the lines have any such lingering affection for the people-transporting business.

The new agency inherits the once magnificent but now ramshackle remains of a continent-spanning transportation system created to serve the needs of a bygone era but over the years so out-patched up and shortchanged that it bears little direct relation to the transportation needs of today.

It would be a relatively simple, if expensive, proposition if the purpose of the government rescue operation were welfare rolls. In all, 24 million people would be receiving monthly checks from the federal government, or 12 percent of the U.S. population.

3. The plan may cost upwards of $10 billion in taxes the first year... or $275 for the average tax payer through more taxes or more inflation. The average wage-earner already works five months a year to pay his taxes. This despite administration estimates of $15-$25 billion budget deficits in each of the next three fiscal years.

Sen. Williams has charged that in many states recipients would receive more on the FAP program than if they went to work.

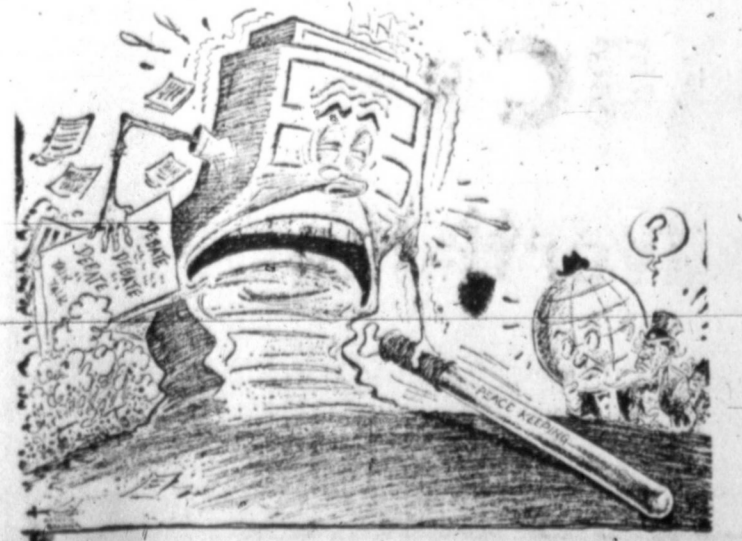

Ashbrook also charged that there would be no enforcement of the "must work" requirement as was originally stated by President Nixon when he introduced this welfare plan.

"The Aid to Families of Dependent Children Program has had such a work requirement since 1967 and it has never been enforced. Tens of thousands receive handouts who refuse to work," Ashbrook said.

Although the Senate Finance Committee twice has voted down the further expansion of welfare giveaways, Ashbrook says "the pro-welfare forces will try to ram it through the lame-duck Congress."

But at long last something other than handwringing is being done. While the great old rail days may be long past and beyond control, there is still a place for trains in a coordinated national transportation system. Even in a jet-powered age, man cannot travel by air alone.

PRISONERS OF WAR AND TROOP PULLOUTS

The prospects of U.S. troops imprisoned in North Vietnam are increasingly uncertain as the Administration continues reducing U.S. involvement in Vietnam. The Allen-Goldsmith Report recently pointed out that we are getting away whatever leverage we might have had to obtain the release of our prisoners by continued troop withdrawals.

Although the Administration has verbally expressed its concern over the welfare of our prisoners, no concrete action has been taken to bring about their release or to improve their lot in any way. Many families do not even know if their husbands, sons, and fathers are alive or dead.

A recent exhibit in the U.S. Capitol brought home to many citizens the brutal treatment of our prisoners by the North Vietnamese, who have steadfastly refused to abide by the Geneva Convention or treatment of prisoners. Many individuals have joined in campaigns to awaken the conscience of our country on this issue. Yet official action is needed as well.

The whole history of dealing with the Communists shows that they will not release any of our prisoners or give them better treatment unless they are put under real pressure from us. This elementary fact of international life is apparently lost on the Administration which continues to cut back U.S. troop commitment in Vietnam without attempting to require release of prisoners as a condition for doing so.

The wives of many of these missing men have displayed remarkable courage in their attempts to help their husbands. It is time that our government, which is responsible for their plight, displayed equal courage in their behalf.

With Some Reservation

By INJUN WOODY

I laughed when they elected a Justice of the Peace in Kansas who pushes pot.

What does your justice push? Is he actually a Mr. Clean? I remember one justice of the peace in my home town. He was the undertaker.

Now the job of justice didn't pay any money, to be sure and the price of a marriage was only 2 bucks and a snort. After the marriage ceremony was over the justice would take a snort of bootleg whiskey, grab the two bottles, and run over to the edge of town and buy four pints.

Well, Bucksnot, which is what the townsfolk called the good justice, found that the marryin and buryin business was not contributing enough to his support. He decided he might as well go into the manufacturing of bootleg whiskey himself.

Bucksnot had all the equipment necessary in this enterprise as he had always concocted his own embalming fluid in the black drapery parlor. He started his new line without too much trouble, the ingredients being simple and easy to obtain.

To Bucksnot's surprise, his whiskey turned out to be quite successful, the mixture of corn and formaldehyde proving to be a double boon as his customers did not last too long after a few samplings of his beverages.

Bucksnot's enterprise prospered, especially inasmuch as his drinking customers required very little embalming fluid once they were stretched out on the slab in his mortuary. In fact, they were so stiff, it was often a problem for Bucksnot to pry the bottle from his victim's grasping hand. Needless to say, Bucksnot never resorted to drinking his own stuff, but would head across town and buy the "top quality" red-eye put out by Shorty Murphy.

So that pot pushing justice in Kansas might do alright if he should decide to go into the embalming racket...

Violence And Extremism Forcing A Narrow Choice

By TOM ANDERSON

Senator Margaret Chase Smith (Rep. Maine) has warned the American people through a recent Senate speech that violence and extremism are "increasingly forcing upon the American people the narrow choice between anarchy and repression."

Nuts. There is a wide chasm between anarchy and repression. But if the "liberal" Senator, who helped bring us to the brink, means anarchy will bring on dictatorship, she's right for a change. History proves that people incapable of ruling themselves must be ruled.

Recently detectives arrested a man and woman after the detectives discovered heroin in the diapers of a nine-month old girl. In court, the defense argued that "the search of the baby was illegal because she did not give her consent and there was no evidence justifying a forcible search."

The judge decided that the search was unwarranted. A baby, he said, has the rights of a person.

Drug pushers should all adopt babies! Incidentally, will parents now need a search warrant every 3 a.m. when there is reason to suspect...?

Attorney-General John Mitchell has proposed the creation of a voluntary united anti-crime fund comparable to United Fund campaigns. It is a crime that crime has become a major problem in our nation and the chief cause is the politicians on the Supreme Court, lower courts, in the Congress and the Presidency.

One of the greatest crimes committee in our nation is the theft of our money by the outrageous taxes and perennial deficits and inflation. Nuts to the anti-crime fund!

News item: "Informal talks don't budget 300 protestors. Militant students continue to occupy the administration building..."

The appropriate "dialog," guaranteed to be successful, is a combination of tear gas, guns and jail.

Florida: "Enrollments in the state university system are expected to triple by 1980. We must soon borrow large sums of money to prepare for the influx..."

Why? So we can have bigger and better riots? Why should people who have no children in college pay through the nose for those who do? Why shouldn't students who can't afford private schools work to pay for some of the cost of their education? Why shouldn't state colleges raise their tuition rates? Why should taxpayers be forced to pay the way of people who don't deserve, appreciate or qualify for a college education? A high percentage of college students don't belong there in the first place. And a high percentage of the professors should be employed at Moscow University instead. The professional pollsters

Your Health

By Dr. Lawrence Lamb

Build Up Resistance To Ward Off Colds

Do you know how to prevent colds and related respiratory illnesses?

The two factors that determine if a person will catch a cold or not is how contagious the infectious agent is and the individual's natural resistance. We can't do much about the many viruses that cause respiratory illnesses, but we can do something about the body's susceptibility.

You can improve your resistance by maintaining optimal health. This means proper nutrition and exercise, avoiding excessive fatigue, getting adequate sleep and eliminating unhealthy habits, such as cigarette smoking.

Cigarette smoke contains poisons and irritants that damage the delicate lining in the nose and respiratory passages, causing them to be more easily infected. So you can decrease your chances of getting an infection by not smoking. Excessive air pollution has similar effects and adds to the problem of cigarette smoke.

No special diets will prevent colds, but a debilitated person or someone with malnutrition usually is more prone to infections. Just eat a good well-balanced diet.

As long as your diet is adequate, and particularly if you don't use excessive amounts of alcohol or smoke, you probably won't need vitamins. Opinion varies on the value of vitamin C in preventing colds. Some doctors think it is useful. If it can't cause any harm since excess amounts are eliminated, Vitamin C cannot be stored in the body, so you need a new supply each day. It is easily destroyed and perhaps cigarette smoking is one way of doing it. Personally, I have been pleased with the use of vitamin C and see no harm in taking a daily tablet. You can buy them without a prescription. Use vitamin C (ascorbic acid) 500-milligram-size tablets.

One of the most effective ways of decreasing the number of colds is to stay away from people—with or without colds. The more exposure to people the more likely you will get a cold. This is why parents of schoolchildren often have more colds than nonparents: Avoiding people won't solve the whole problem but it can minimize the danger.

Attempts to sterilize the air or prevent transmission by infected droplets from sneezing and coughing have been disappointing. Despite this, it is worth-while to stay more than three feet away from a person who is coughing or sneezing. This is the distance the infected droplets usually travel during a sneeze or cough. Customary hygiene in coughing, sneezing and disposing of used tissues may not help much but any effect is better than none. The same can be said about handling dishes, toys and other articles used by sick people.

Guidelines Clarify Security on Flights

ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon is taking precautions to make sure that military secrets do not fall into unfriendly hands as a result of airliner sky-jackings.

New security guidelines were circulated to defense contractors late last month, superseding previous directives. The guidelines relate, in part, to the carrying of classified documents on regular commercial flights.

The new Pentagon rules bar the carrying of documents with regular security classifications on international flights. Also barred is the carrying of classified documents on commercial flights within foreign countries or on flights to Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico or the U.S. trust territories.

The current rules also require that no classified material can be sent by regular mail, which might end up on such regular commercial flights. Such material must go registered mail to Army or Navy APO or FPO addresses.

Stiffer regulations are in effect for documents which carry certain high-level security classification. Those documents are not to travel via commercial aircraft under any circumstances anywhere.

TOP SECURITY CLEARANCES — The Pentagon guidelines also include a warning for industry experts who have been cleared for such top-level information. They are told to use "extreme caution" in the use of commercial airliners here or abroad, but the use of regular flights is not prohibited.

Ever since the wave of plane hijackings began, individuals in sensitive government posts — in CIA, military intelligence agencies and the like — have been operating under similar orders. They must discuss air travel plans — including vacation and leave plans — with their own security officers.

Security officers try for the most part, to arrange for transportation by military air transport, military courier flights and so forth.

The new Pentagon rules, promulgated by a letter from the Office of Industrial Security dated Oct. 26, were apparently designed, in part, to clarify confusing directives issued by various agencies after the destruction of three airliners and the detention of passengers by Arab guerrillas. Some defense contractors felt those original instructions meant that their key personnel could not use the airlines at all.

Many of the industry experts are retired military officers, and some of them are privy to tightly held information with respect to defense plans and military weapons systems. The Pentagon is understandably concerned that they not wind up in hostile hands.

Before the new guidelines were issued, with many firms under the impression that their experts must use issued, with many firms under the impression that their experts must use military or private air transportation, industry sources report that there was even talk of more or less scheduled charter flights, coast-to-coast, for such sensitive individuals.

The new, cautionary guidelines have clarified the matters and the charter plan has been shelved, but the big defense contractors are making more and more use of their private, company planes.

AIRLINE PRECAUTIONS — The airlines are strengthening their anti-hijacking efforts too, especially on international flights. The use of armed marshals to ride shotgun on airliners (two or three of them on the big 747s) is only part of the story.

International air travelers are warned by many of the airlines that their checked luggage is subject to random searches. Small carry-on bags, purses and the like are frequently searched. Some of the airlines have hired men and women to routinely frisk passengers boarding international flights.

Starting with one installation in London, one U.S. Airline, TWA, has taken the lead in the expanded use of magnetometers — upright electronic gates which flash a signal when a large piece of metal such as a gun or knife, is carried between them. New equipment is being installed as rapidly as it becomes available.

Even if passengers leave an airliner temporarily, to spend a short stop-over in the transit area of an international airport, they may be frisked and checked with the magnetometer again on reboarding — on the theory that they may have met someone and secured a weapon there.

Note: The precautions, designed as a deterrent to would-be hijackers, have had a fringe benefit in the form of narcotics seizures at international airports in the United States.

Question Box

QUESTION: — Shouldn't all of the tax-free foundations be eliminated so that everybody would pay taxes? Why should there be exemption for taxes for some and not for others?

ANSWER: — There have been a number of proposals in congress and in state legislatures to start taxing the incomes of all foundations and non-profit corporations. It should be understood that tax-exempt corporations were set up largely because of the heavy graduated income and inheritance taxes, which make up the second plank of the Communist Manifesto by which Marx and Engels proposed to bring about destruction of individual property rights with all ownership of the means of production in the hands of the state.

If it were not for the ability to set up tax-exempt foundations, many productive business establishments would have to be sold for taxes; thus eliminating many jobs. It is not just big business, but many comparatively small establishments would be required to liquidate to pay the heavy graduations of income and inheritance taxes.

Several years ago, when Congress was debating a plan to levy some sort of tax on incomes of foundations, National Review magazine came up with one of the most sensible suggestions, short of adopting the Liberty Amendment to end the graduated income tax. National Review proposed that all individual income tax exemptions be doubled to $1,200 a year per person; that all other exemptions be eliminated entirely, and that a flat percentage be adopted for all incomes regardless of from what source.

That "conservative" magazine's editors figured that the national government would receive more income than at present, and that business would be so stimulated that tax receipts would increase so that rates could gradually be lowered.

The News sees no reason why one individual should be taxed while another is exempt. We believe a flat percentage for all, as outlined by National Review, would be far less unfair than any other form of income tax. The News would prefer to see all taxes eliminated, with present government services being placed on the market place, so that people could buy what services they wanted. But, as an interim proposal, we believe the National Review proposal makes more sense than the initiative-destroying graduated income taxes now in effect.

Robot Science Station Sends Back Signals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Those ditch-like rills on the lunar surface, once thought to be dry river beds, actually may be deep fissures partially filled with rubble. And grinding shifts in the sides of those cracks could explain the mystery of moonquakes.

This twin theory advanced Wednesday by Dr. Gary Latham of New York's Lamont Geological Laboratory, was one of several new insights about Earth's nearest neighbor learned from a year's operation of the robot science station left on the moon by the Apollo 12 astronauts.

The package is stable—planted firmly at one spot on the lunar surface—rather than mobile, as is the remote control moon crawler the Soviets unveiled Tuesday. Scientists said the package still is sending back signals to Earth as it enters its second year of operation today.

The presentation was planned long before the unmanned Soviet robot began crawling and the unmanned Luna 16 flight returned a chunk of the moon to Russia in September; but the scientists took the opportunity to stress the added accomplishments made possible by men who explored the moon and set up delicate instruments that could hardly have been erected by remote control.

In addition to Latham's theory, the scientists said the Apollo 12 science package also had produced evidence that:

- The moon is frozen all the way to its core, rather than molten in the center as some geologists had believed.
- Whiffs of thin gas packing intense energy speed across the lunar surface twice a month, near lunar sunrise and sunset, to form a temporary ionosphere over the moon. The origin of these gas particles, remains unknown.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Arrows in the air: Has anybody noticed that NBC-TV's "Kraft Music Hall" is going this season what a lot of shows should do—putting on numerous special-type hours within the series format?

Can anyone figure out why it took ABC so long to drop Tom Jones, whose ratings finally got so low the network simply had to let the actor go? And isn't it interesting that the video audience never fell for all the high-pressure publicity about what a swoon-maker he is?

Isn't it a pity, by the way, that the same network gave up so fast on the variety series Engelbert Humperdinck, who had low ratings but the kind of likeability, charm and talent that might have been developed into a long-run video success if nurtured?

Does anybody actually watch CBS' "Green Acres"? And does anyone actually know anyone who knows anyone who watches it?

Isn't it a pity that Howard Cosell's monologues on ABC's Monday night football games are constantly interrupted by the action? But isn't it also undeniable now that loveable, charming Howard is one of the most colorful sportscasters to hit the scene in years?

Col. Leftwich Killed In Plane Crash

SAIGON (UPI)—A U.S. Marine Corps CH46 helicopter crashed after picking up a patrol from a jungled area in South Vietnam's northern quarter, killing all 15 Marines aboard, the U.S. military command said Thursday.

The victims included a battalion commander, Lt. Col. William G. Leftwich Jr., 39, of Memphis, Tenn., who was one of the most widely known Marine commanders in South Vietnam.

Military spokesmen said the crash occurred Wednesday about 22 miles southwest of the northern coastal city of Da Nang. The helicopter had gone out to pick up a seven-man patrol because one of its members had broken a leg, sources said, and it crashed from unknown causes after making the pickup.

Your Horoscope

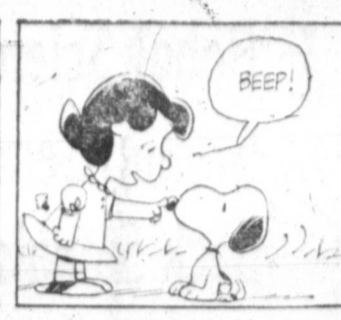

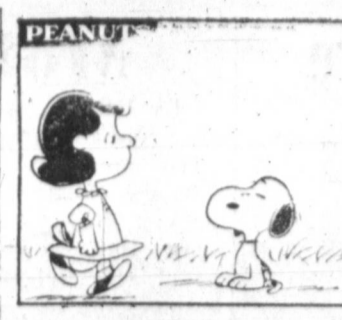

SATURDAY, NOV. 21, 1970
Your birthday Saturday? Your path through this year seems at times all laid out, with no real choices. Many incidents are already determined by you; what happens is the result of many very small actions. Emotional ties come to fairly meaningful for you. Material affairs follow a normal rate of increase, according to your continued hard work. Saturday's natives usually have a broad range of personal interests, frequently even at managing large projects.
ARIES (March 21-April 19): New information brings complex problems while accustomed routines glide easily. Some extra income may be earned today if you ask for the chance. Start early.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20): What you write Saturday will be around a long time to be sure you mean it, people ideas pop up faster than you can put them down. Romance blossoms for those eligible.
CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your bright ideas Saturday bring a new outlook into your home. Being critical of others' ideas would spoil matters—you can smooth out your own. Family offers resources for future use. Original ideas work now if ever-try them out.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Proceed without bias directly to what you want to do. Relatives or uncertainty of what is planned. You get cooperation in responsibility to you.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Acquaintances bring fresh contacts. Business can be arranged during your travels. Accept comment from friends; ask yourself what makes them think as they do.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Career prospects are building up; see what you can develop now. You can more readily seek help from people if they are assured you will not involve them further.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Disputes arising faraway people are of unusual interest. Emotional matters are more easily triggered than usual. The evening gives you much to think about.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You can make a good bargain but only when you really know your needs and have the facts. Nearly everybody is sure he has the best answer for local problems.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Movement, short journeys, or relocations are a part of your property. Saturday. Hence neglected contacts, return borrowed items. Gather friends for a social evening.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The GM strike, "by cooling the economy and permitting an easier money policy, (will) actually prove beneficial for the investment outlook," according to Argus Research Corp. The company says that with bonds showing "a sharp drop in offerings" for December, the prospective supply-demand situation points to "a substantial decline in long-term interest rates ... which ... should be highly beneficial to the stock market".
Even with a recovery in 1971, the year will end up with "unemployed labor and capital resources," F. I. du Pont, Glorie Forgan & Co. predicts. But the company says the moderation in private demands for credit and the continued easy policy by the Fed "will combine to drive long term rates lower."
The Alexander Hamilton Institute, Inc., warns investors not to forget "the Damocles sword of the Middle East and Southeast Asia." Nevertheless, the company believes "the pluses outnumber the minuses" and it urges the adoption of "a constructive investment approach—although selectivity is essential."
"As a whole, the stock market appears to us to be headed higher," Flor Bullard & Smyth believes. The company admits it is difficult to drum up enthusiasm in "a dull, lifeless market" but the company says "once stocks start climbing on volume, the enthusiasm will come in heavy waves."

'B' Reps Will Travel To Lubbock For A Look

By United Press International
B-Day arrives Saturday across the land, and at least for a brief period in the Southwest it even overshadows that king-sized rumble in Austin which lurks just two weeks hence on your calendars.

The "B" is for Bowl, of course, and representatives from the Cotton, Orange, Sugar, Sun, Pecan, Liberty Astro-Bluebonnet, Gator and Adinifinitum bowls will be stationed in press boxes from here to there.

The Southwest Conference has a prominent role to play in the little bowl dramas which will be enacted across the country, with the main cast of characters being on hand in Lubbock, Tex., and South Bend, Ind.

If all the favorites win Saturday, and if all the non-favorites lose, the bowl picture involving Southwest Conference teams could shape up this way by Sunday morning.

Cotton Bowl—Notre Dame vs. either Texas or Arkansas.

Sun Bowl—Texas Tech vs. Georgia Tech.

Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl—Arkansas or Texas against take your pick.

A whole load of breathless people from Dallas are in South Bend anxious to coax Notre Dame back to the Cotton Bowl for a second straight appearance.

Within a few minutes after the Irish and LSU complete their scheduled confrontation Saturday Notre Dame's New Year's plans should be known.

Presuming Notre Dame says "yes" to the Cotton Bowl, the next question is who will be there to greet them Jan. 1.

That question will begin to be answered Saturday in Lubbock where the Arkansas Razorbacks visit the Texas Tech Red Raiders in the only conference game that means anything more than pride.

TCU will be at Rice and SMU will entertain Baylor in other conference games, but all they involve are some teams hoping at best for a break even season. And although Texas Tech has already told the Sun Bowl officials the Raiders would be happy to come to El Paso Dec. 19 if they don't beat Arkansas, there is obviously another bowl they would rather show up in.

"I told the kids last Monday I would give them the word if we were invited to a bowl, and that we would go unless they decided otherwise," Tech Coach Jim Carlen said.

"But of course we want to go to the Cotton Bowl. And we have a big bowl game this week against Arkansas."

The Razorbacks come to Lubbock without Bill Burnett, of course, but Carlen for one does not think the loss of Burnett has slowed down the Arkansas ground game.

"Burnett was great on the goal line, but I think (Jon) Richardson is more explosive than Burnett in the open field," Carlen had his first experience earlier in the season at preparing a team against the University of Texas, but he finds it even harder to get his club ready for Arkansas' balanced attack.

"It is a lot harder," he said. "Arkansas had got their trends down, and they can change them whenever they want. The scout themselves and they will do something one week and then turn around and do something different the next week."

"While Texas has that super running game, it's their bread and butter and you know they will use it. Nobody has stopped it yet."

A victory over Arkansas, and a subsequent win by Arkansas over Texas on Dec. 5, would put the Red Raiders in the Cotton Bowl.

That would be a super end to Carlen's first year on the job at Texas Tech, but Carlen is a hard man to please.

"I'm happy to a point with the success we have had this year," he said. "But we wanted to be undefeated. Of course our kids have pleased me with their play this year, but I'm more critical of myself. I wanted to be undefeated."

Ohio State Players Rest For Big Game

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Members of Ohio State's starting football team were placed in further seclusion Thursday night by Buckeye coach Woody Hayes, who said, "What they need more right now is a good night's rest."

Hayes removed the players from their regular living quarters, but would not say where they would stay, as the Buckeyes wound up the week's work for their Big Ten showdown Saturday with Michigan.

Both Hayes and Michigan coach Bo Schembechler had closed all practice sessions to all visitors this week, but the Buckeye boss took the added step because he said "those dorms are really jumping."

The Buckeyes have waited a year for a chance to avenge a 24-12 defeat handed them by the Wolverines at Ann Arbor. The loss knocked the Buckeyes out of the national championship, an outright Big Ten championship, and snapped their 22-game winning streak.

Both teams go into Saturday's contest, before an expected 87,000 persons, with perfect records. The Buckeyes are 8-0, the Wolverines 9-0.

Ohio State, ranked fourth in this week's major college poll, has been installed a slight favorite over the fifth-ranked Wolverines, but any Ohio State-Michigan game is unpredictable.

Frazier's Last Fight Will Be Against Clay—Win, Lose, Or Draw

DETROIT (UPI)—Jose Frazier's manager, Yank Durham, says the heavyweight champion's last fight will be against Cassius Clay—"win, lose or draw."

Durham has insisted all along that Frazier will fight only until he builds up a retirement nestegg, and a bout with Clay might provide a $2 million payday, the final stuffing for the cushion.

"After Clay, Joe will retire win, lose or draw," said Durham. The manager stressed that losing and drawing weren't the outcomes he expected for the bout, which is tentatively scheduled for February.

Frazier Willing To Continue
"I don't know about that," drawled Frazier. "I'd like to fight another year or so. I don't know what that talk about losing to Clay is either. There's no notion in my mind that I might lose."
"It don't make no difference whether Joe wants to quit or not," Durham explained. "If I don't let him fight, he won't fight. It's in the contract."

Before a showdown is possible between Clay and Frazier, two more obstacles must be overcome. Clay must beat Oscar Bonavena on Dec. 7 and then avoid going to jail to serve a five-year sentence for draft evasion that is being appealed to the Supreme Court.

Frazier and Bob Foster have both left town as champions, but neither one will have much time to rest. Frazier defended his world heavyweight title for the first time Wednesday night by knocking out Bob Foster, the light heavyweight champion, at 49 seconds of the second round.

Foster Defending Soon
"I'm going to keep training every day to keep my weight down," Frazier, 26, explained. "If the fight does come up against Clay I'll be ready."

'Rabbit' In NFL Ball Explains Field Goals

NEW YORK (NEA)—With the merger of the two professional leagues last year, the "Duke" died and "Spaulding" presumably went to that great hog heaven in the sky.

Now there is only one football for all 26 National Football League teams. It is made by Wilson, autographed by Pete Rozelle and, except for the facelift, is identical to the "Duke"—although some people claim it contains a rabbit.

The old footballs had their peculiarities, and so apparently does the new one. Premierer balls weighed between 12½ and 13½ ounces and each was about 28 inches around, but the Spaulding—used by the old American Football League—was more pointed and, therefore, better for passing. The plumber "Duke" was reportedly easier to kick.

"Now the 'Wilson' has disclosed its contribution to the already quirky world of football—distance. All around the NFL, feet are sending balls distances once produced only by 3-woods.

The rumor mill, naturally, has started to grind, but a man marched into the NFL office on Park Avenue here recently and asked the question directly.

"All right, you guys," he said. "Cough it up. How about the 'rabbit' football this year? Does it, or does it not, have a cushioned-cork center?"

"Huh?" said the official. "Don't act so shocked," said the visitor. "Nobody goes around kicking 63-yard field goals these days without provoking suspicion. What if baseball players suddenly began hitting 1,000-foot home runs? Wouldn't you be skeptical?"

The visitor had a point. Surely it is no coincidence, he said, that on the day New Orleans' Tom Dempsey broke the NFL field goal record by seven yards—"Seven yards," gulped Kansas City's Jon Stenerud. "I couldn't kick 63 yards without a tee"—13 field goals of 40 yards or more were made.

In New York, the Giants' Pete Gogolak contributed a 54-yarder while old George Blanda, 43, kicked one 52 yards. Already, more 50-yarders have been made this season than last, when nine were kicked. The Wilson a rabbit ball? Why not?

"Ridiculous," said the NFL official. "You're trying to pump up a story. The ball's too important for passing to fool around with. Besides, I don't know what you'd do to a ball in order to make it go farther unless you pumped helium into it."

But even Blanda, who was kicking football long before Joe Namath discovered girls, was amazed at Dempsey's kick. "It's phenomenal to break the record by seven yards," he said.

Most football experts, however, tend to believe the rash of long field goals is merely the product of specialized training, more long attempts and luck.

"In my first years, the kicking was sort of thorn in with a player's all-around talents," Blanda said. "You didn't specialize. You had other things to do. But now the kids are better than they used to be—they work at it and know they can make the team even if they're not especially big."

Most pro teams have found field goal attempts as profitable as punts at moderately long range and, as for luck, well, luck is luck.

"Maybe they'll miss the next 300," said the NFL official.

Harvester Cagers In Bowie For 1970-71 Season Two-Game Debut

Coach Robert McPherson's Pampa Harvester cagers hit the road this morning to go to Bowie for the first of two basketball games.

The first game will be at 8 o'clock tonight and the second game, against the same Bowie team, will start at 7:30 tomorrow night.

Pampa came out on top last Wednesday night in a three-way scrimmage between the Harvesters, the Canyon Eagles, and a cage team from Merritt, Okla. In the starting positions for the Bowie games will be Mike Edgar, Richard Buntun, Mike Jordan, Gary Hanes, and Don Cain, Jr., or Marsh Gamblin. Cain pulled a back muscle and may be out. If so, then Gamblin will step into the vacancy.

A casual look at the starting line-up might give rise to doubts about the success of the 1970 cage campaign. After all, there is only one senior starting—6'0" Mike Jordan.

But, a closer look at the junior group shows two returning lettermen in Mike Edgar and Richard Buntun, Edgar, 6'5" was the only sophomore to hold a varsity berth last year. A look at last year's All-District list finds Buntun, 6'3", in there with the honorable mentions.

All of this plus the steady improvement of Hanes, 6'0", Cain, 6'4", and Gamblin, 5'11", could put visions of the district crown into the eyes of almost any Pampa Harvester basketball fan.

ASU Sends Chickens

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI)—A group of Arizona State University students have chipped in and sent 11 live chickens to Georgia Tech for refusing to meet ASU in a football bowl game.

"We felt that was their motive in not wanting to meet ASU," said Bob Kuebler, one of the 30 students. "There was no inference Georgia Tech didn't consider ASU of their calibre." The chickens were sent air express to the Georgia Tech football team and coaching staff. At one time ASU, 8-0 and rated 10th in the nation, and Georgia Tech, 7-3, were considered for the Peach Bowl in Atlanta, but Tech declined the offer.

Houston's Bethea Will Suit Out

HOUSTON (UPI)—Elvin Bethea will be back rushing the passer from his defensive end spot Sunday when the Houston Oilers meet the Cleveland Browns.

Betha, 6-3, 255 pounds, from North Carolina A&T, pulled a hamstring muscle in Wednesday's workout. But he was back in pads Thursday for limited training and Oilers trainer Bobby Brown said he will be ready to play.

Anticipating a tough Cleveland defense, the Oilers concentrated Thursday on punt returns and offense inside the Browns' 20-yard line, Coach Wally Lemm said.

Charley Johnson, still recovering from a broken collarbone that was steel-pinned together to allow him to play, ran the first offensive unit and was throwing the ball well, Lemm said.

ACC's Lindsey Can Still Win In Total Offense

NEW YORK (UPI)—Jim Lindsey of Abilene Christian still can win the total offense championship of the college division even though his season ended two weeks ago.

Lindsey, who suffered a broken collarbone, averaged 294.9 rushing-passing yards per game compared to 265.8 by runner-up Tim von Duhl of Portland State, according to official statistics released today by National Collegiate Sports Services.

Von Duhl needs 558 yards total offense in Saturday's final game of the season against Eastern Washington to overtake Lindsey.

Buck-Broncho Battle Tops Bi-district Play

Football fans here in Pampa will have to hit the road tonight, but there is a choice menu to choose from since this is the weekend for Bi-district contests.

One may travel to Clarendon to watch the hometown Bronchos take on the powerful White Deer Bucks or one may go to Dick Bivins Stadium in Amarillo, neutral ground for the Bi-district clash between the Phillips Blackhawks and the Childress Bobcats.

Coach J. T. Hill's White Deer Bucks are strong again this year, posting nine wins for the season. The Bucks can be surprised (ask Sunday), but forecasters are picking White Deer to win—especially since the Bucks beat the Bronchos 33-7 in the second game of the season.

Clarendon, coached by Clyde Noon Kester, have improved steadily and contend that they are not the same team that the Bucks played earlier. The Bronchos went into district play with an unenviable 1-4 mark. Their football fortunes changed in district play, however, and the Bronchos ended up with a very healthy 4-1 record.

The Childress Bobcats won the 2-AA district championship from the Fighting Irish of Shamrock by having more penetrations in the 6-6 tie ball game played earlier this year. The Bobcats are big and strong and confident of being able to hold the Blackhawks.

The Blackhawks, tied Dalhart last year for the District 1-AA crown. In the next-to-last ballgame of this year's 1-AA season, though, the Blackhawks eked out a meager 24-21 win over those same Dalhart gridders to clinch the title. Phillips comes into the contest with a 7-3 season mark and a 4-1 district record, their only district loss being a 26-14 decision against Panhandle.

Elsewhere in grid play one finds the Perryton Rangers, the Groom Tigers, and the Lefors Pirates closing out their respective district grid seasons. Perryton hosts Muleshoe, and Lefors entertains Follett while Groom travels to Booker.

If one wants high school grid action at its best, then the variety for this weekend leaves nothing to be desired.

Landry To Start Craig Morton Against Washington Sunday

DALLAS (UPI)—There will be no change in the Dallas Cowboys' No. 1 quarterback Rods against the Washington Redskins Sunday and Coach Tom Landry declines to be drawn into a discussion whether Craig Morton called a good or bad game in Monday's 38-0 loss to St. Louis.

"You can always second guess," Landry told a questioner who wanted to know if Morton had called all the right signals. The offense never got off the ground against a Cardinals' defense that scored its third straight shutout.

"I think his inability to hit passes early hurt him later in the game," Landry said. "The misses came because of a combination of things—receivers dropping balls, incorrect running of pass routes and Morton's own over and underthrows."

"But, there will be no change in the starting quarterback for Washington. I'm hoping the passing will pick up and he'll start hitting his percentage of passes and we'll start making the third down plays. The protection was never better than against the Cardinals. We didn't get trapped until after Roger Staubach went in and they started blitzing all the time."

Landry confirmed that while the club seems to have a lot of problems this 5-4 season that finds them in third place in the National East, lack of leadership, consistency and confidence are the main ones.

"Somewhere (in evaluation) you have to come down to the quarterback and running back spots," he said.

"Basically, we have had a breakdown in our running, especially at halfback which is the key to winning football. And, you can't win with 45 percent pass completions."

Landry admitted that football was "not much fun this week," and added that "lack of success eats at you."

Landry said his club, which now "needs to win 'em all" if it is to entertain any hopes of grabbing off a fourth playoff spot in the National Conference by finishing with the best second place percentage, faces a tough assignment Sunday in the nation's capital.

"Washington is the best balanced offense in the East with Sonny Jurgensen throwing a d Larry Brown running," Landry said.

"They should have beaten New York last Sunday. They sat on a 33-13 lead and when you try to sit on one, you are apt to let it get away."

Former Cleveland Browns Player Now Blacklisted

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Bernie Parrish, a former Cleveland Browns defensive back who now is writing a book about pro football, told a federal grand jury Thursday he was blacklisted by the National Football League.

After ending his two and a half hours in the closed hearing room of U.S. District Court here, Parris told newsmen he was sure the jury would return indictments when it ends its investigation.

The jury, which has heard from several Browns officials and former players since Monday, is looking into possible violation of antitrust laws by the NFL. It was not expected to meet today.

Parrish said he was blackballed and gave the grand jury a list of other players he believes were treated likewise.

"It is 'inconceivable to me that the jury, when it completes its investigation, will not return indictments,'" he said.

"It will involve blacklisting of players, the waiver system and other practices," he added.

Browns owner Art Modell, who has not yet been called to testify, charged that Parrish was merely promoting his new book. He denied his team has violated any laws.

Parrish said he believes his activities as vice president of the NFL Players' Association caused him to be blacklisted.

Team Refuses To Play Following Player's Death

JEFFERSON CITY, Tenn. (UPI)—Sixteen-year-old Steve Gladson was injured in the first quarter of the annual Tomato Bowl high school football game Thursday night and died en route to a hospital.

His teammates on the Rogersville squad were told of the death at halftime and refused to continue the game.

Hoople Hits .823-Season High-Favors Michigan, Irish And Yale

By MAJOR AMOS E. HOOPLE
Peerless Prognosticator
Egad, friends, once more your favorite correspondent has stumped the football world—harrumph! How, you say? Well—kaff-kaff—who but Hoople gave you Air Force to whip Rose Bowl representative Stanford last Saturday? And, pray tell, what other forecaster tallied 42 correct predictions out of 31 decisions for a cool .823 per cent? None, I'll wager—um-kumph.

Enough for ancient history, dear readers, and let's look to the formidable task that faces your Peerless Prognosticator this week. There are more than enough crucial contests and old-fashioned traditional battles on tap to satisfy even the zaniest football filberts.

Would that this writer were twins so he could attend both the Ohio State (8-0) vs. Michigan (9-0) and Notre Dame (8-0) vs. LSU (7-1) clashes. But, alas, being a mere mortal I shall have to settle for one game. And not wishing to appear to slight any of these great institutions I shall not reveal which game I shall favor with my presence!

Saturday is the day Woody Hayes and his Buckeyes have been waiting for since that afternoon 12 months ago when the Michigan Wolverines belted the Ohio State lads 24-12. The defeat cost the Bucks an undefeated season, the Big Ten crown and a trip to the Rose Bowl.

And—hak-kaff—the Hoople System has some bad news for old friend Woody Hayes again this year. A painstaking examination of all available data indicates a Michigan victory, 24-21, in a titanic tussel!

Not too many miles away at South Bend, in the contest featuring No. 1 Notre Dame and No. 8 LSU, I confidently predict an Irish triumph over the Bayou Bengals, 28-14.

For the first time in memory I will be unable to attend The Game as Harvard and Yale clash for the 87th time on the gridiron. In a hard-fought affair my beloved alma mater—Boola-Boola—will prevail. Make it, Yale 29, Harvard 20!

In other spine-tingling, traditional meetings I predict Oklahoma will stun unbeaten Nebraska, 23-21; Oregon will whip Oregon State, 21-12; Tennessee will outscore Kentucky, 20-0, and Southern California will polish off neighboring UCLA 37-21.

Now go on with the forecast. Air Force 29, Colorado 13

WASHINGTON — Very little has been said about it, but the House of Representatives has dealt a severe blow to Pentagon plans for operational testing of the strategic Minuteman missile.

The House has deleted $3.2 million, earmarked for operational tests, from the $67 billion military appropriations bill. The Senate will consider the bill during the lame duck session, probably after Thanksgiving.

Under the operational base launch program, which has problems, however, because the first stage of a Minuteman falls away in the atmosphere and destruction of an errant missile might cause a further shower of hardware.

Now the House has acted, to veto the plan, on the recommendation of its Appropriations Committee. There is considerable doubt that, in the present antimilitary climate, the Senate will act to rescue it.

"PUBLIC REACTION" — The House Committee contends that the value of operational tests in proving out the Minuteman, does not justify their cost and their poor public relations.

"Even though the planned line of flight selected for the missile will be a cross the northwestern portion of the United States and some 200 miles north of San Francisco, a corridor encompassing the least population density possible, it is believed that public reaction in and around the area affected would be too great," the committee report declares.

"In addition, the committee feels that the total cost of the program, much of it to enhance safety and to reduce the possibility of injury, does not justify the purpose of the program, namely to prove to the general public that Minuteman missiles do constitute a reliable and effective deterrent," the report says, adding that the Minuteman has been fully proven by firings from Vandenberg Air Force Base into the ocean.

By further disclosing that the Air Force planned to fire its first missile from a silo at Malmstrom Air Force Base in Montana, the House Appropriations Committee may have given the operational test program its final coup de grace. Montana's Sen. Mike Mansfield, the Senate Democratic leader, is one of the Senate's outspoken military critics.

Mansfield is expected to voice strong home-state objections to any such firings from Malmstrom which would create a safety hazard in Montana.

HARRIER VETO — As we recently predicted, the House on recommendation of its Appropriations Committee, has also disapproved funds for another Pentagon project — installation of a production line in the United States for Britain's Harrier fighter plane.

The Harrier is a vertical take-off fighter. The Marines are buying it as a plane for close support of ground troops, and 18 Harriers are financed under the pending money bill. In approving the new Harrier purchases, however, the House Armed Services Committee, specified that the planes should be produced here.

A licensing agreement was then arranged so that the British firm, Hawker Siddeley, would let McDonnell Douglas build the Harrier. As we reported last spring, however, the "buy American" arrangement increased the price of the plane and amounted to a Committee-ordered cost over-run.

The Appropriations Committee complained, in addition, that even under the licensing arrangement slightly more than half of the Harriers, and all of their engines, would still

Hopes Are Unfounded

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)— Though the optimistic news reports on progress in the arms talks with Moscow have been based on deliberate leaks by high U.S. officials, it can be stated confidently that there is absolutely no basis as yet for assuming a meaningful agreement can be reached (or that one cannot be reached, for that matter).

This reporter has talked with key members of the U.S. delegation and has been in contact with U.S. government officials here who have monitored the papers detailing all key discussions.

It can be said with certainty the Russians thus far have given no indication at all of whether or not they will compromise on any issues under discussion.

The Russians have been polite. They have been cooperative and businesslike. They have, by and large, kept away from propagandizing. Their negotiators are first-rate men. They have listened to American proposals and American suggestions. But they have not given any tangible indication of what they might agree to in whole or in part.

To put it bluntly, the Americans do not know where the Russians stand.

Why then are the officials this reporter talked to optimistic. So far as can be determined, the optimism boils down to these three points:

The Russians, while non-committal, are personally unusually agreeable and businesslike.

The American theorists have concluded the Russians would profit from a treaty. It would ease Western suspicions (encourage a don't-police-the-world defense attitude in the United States), cause a relaxation among the NATO nations of Western Europe and ease anti-Soviet feelings generated by Moscow's activities in the Middle East.

The administration is determined to get some sort of a treaty and is willing to work for it and to make concessions.

Therefore, U.S. officials do expect a treaty. They think it will contain no provisions for on-site inspection. They expect it will talk of limitations in the most general way.

A mutual pledge by both parties to stop building fixed sites for intercontinental missiles would have very little meaning.

Both sides have ample numbers of fixed-site missiles built or under construction.

The new Russian trend is toward development of mobile missiles, missile launching and bunter-killer subs multi-headed ICBMs and weapons which would fire from satellite-type orbits. There is a heavy Soviet emphasis toward pinpoint accuracy and on countermeasures aimed at outwitting defensive antiballistic missiles (ABMs).

The U.S. men who study the working papers and the Russian responses say that effective pans on these developments are unlikely. It is, however, not clear why they hold to these opinions—since the Russians have been so non-committal one way or another, as they themselves, point out.

For reasons that are equally unclear, these men hold some hope for an agreement on ABM sites, though probably not on ABM development.

The thoughts set down here, of course, are conjectures. As previously noted, the American side does not know what the Russians are thinking or what they will do.

Under the circumstances, the officials who spread the optimistic reports are doing the best they can to get a treaty. This has happened in the past.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — En garde; another Christmas shopping season is about to overtake us.

Pretty soon you'll walk into a department store and see a familiar figure in shiny black boots and red breeches and coat. This could be the resident santa claus. Or it could be your wife trying on a new formal.

Either way, the most impressive thing about the Christmas shopping season is the large variety of workday goods that suddenly blossom forth as gift items. Roofing nails, for example.

Judging from the early Christmas ads I have seen, sump pumps will be very popular this year, although a bit awkward to gift-wrap. And there apparently will be sizeable holiday sales of asphalt driveway sealants.

1970? Law And Order!

By and large, however, Christmas merchandise tends to relate to a central theme, which changes from year to year.

A few years ago, you may recall, we had a medical Christmas, reflecting the growth of the health fetish in America.

Manson Defense Startles Court By Not Calling Single Witness

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The defense announced Thurs. at the Tate Murder trial that it wished to rest its case for Charles Manson and three young female codefendants without calling a single witness to the stand on their behalf.

In a startling and dramatic episode, defense attorney Paul Fitzgerald rose as the defense was expected to begin its case in the 19-week trial and announced:
"The defense rests."
The other three defense lawyers also stood and announced that they wished to rest their case on behalf of their clients.

Patricia Krenwinkel, one of the three young women charged with the seven murders, rose to her feet and announced that she wished to testify in the presence of the jury.

Charles Manson said nothing but sat stolidly in his chair.

Fitzgerald added that the provision that the defense wished to rest subject to being able to "introduce certain exhibits." It was not made clear what he was referring to.

Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older summoned the defense and prosecution attorneys to his bench for a conference and then the trial was recessed briefly.
