Reagan upbeat while awaiting results of test

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — President Reagan, described as optimistic and upbeat after an "excellent" first day of recovery, waited today to learn whether there are cancer cells in the growth that doctors at Bethesda Naval Hospital removed from his abdomen.

"The president is pretty much of an optimist. He's an upbeat person," White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Sunday as Reagan continued what doctors called a remarkable recovery.

"He is very well prepared for any eventuality," Speakes said.

A written statement released by Speakes at 9 a.m. EDT today said Reagan "continues to recover well from surgery. His condition remains good and vital signs are stable."

The statement said Reagan "slept in and his doctors are expected to see him shortly." Later in the morning, the president was to meet with members of his staff.

Reagan had a restful night after reading Sunday evening, the statement added.

The White House spokesman said Reagan was "very comfortable," walked around his room briefly and sat in a chair for about 45 minutes reading a Western novel — Louis L'Amour's "Jubal Sackett" — during his first day after the operation.

"All in all, the president has had an excellent day," Speakes said.

He said Reagan's temperature was slightly above normal, a common symptom in a patient who has just had surgery.

Despite the good reports on the president's recovery, there remained a substantial chance that tests would find cancer in the 2-inch long polyp excised from Reagan's large intestine on Saturday.

"I would say that if one took a large number of lesions of this type, I would estimate that somewhat over half would have malignancy in them," Dr. Steven Rosenberg, chief of surgery at the National Cancer Institute and a member of the surgical team that operated on Reagan, told reporters after the operation.

Rosenberg added, however, that this "only raises the question as to whether or not, at some point in the future, the disease might recur at another site." He said that in any event there was a "very high level of likelihood" there were no cancer cells within the president's body after the operation.

A laboratory analysis of an outer portion of the polyp showed no cancer and doctors said they saw no signs of any in the surrounding organs. The final answer, however, awaited a pathologists' analysis today of tissue from the tumor.

Reagan is expected to remain in the hospital for seven to 10 days, doing increasing amounts of paper and telephone work, Speakes said. He said Reagan will follow a reduced work schedule for several weeks after returning to the White House, perhaps having meetings in the residential quarters for a while before resuming his Oval Office routine.

Reagan returned to the hospital's presidential suite Sunday after spending the night in a recovery room. Speakes quoted him as saying he was "amazed at how good I feel."

Top efforts in rodeo finale

Entertained and thrilled by fine performances, spills and chills, a near capacity crowd attended the concluding performance of the 39th annual Top o' Texas Rodeo Saturday night.

Despite falls, injuries, knocked-over barrels and mis-thrown ropes, a number of the cowboys and cowgirls turned in some fine performances to gain the top spots in their various events.

Lee Lowrey of Pampa survived an injured right hand Saturday night in the bareback bronc riding event to gain fourth place in the competition. Lowrey had a total score of 124 points from his two scoring rides, including a 60 in the final performance.

Lowrey's hand, which held the rope keeping him on the horse, was injured during the ride, with some bleeding of the fingers noted after he removed his glove. He received first aid treatment from members of the Lefors Volunteer Fire Department and returned later in the evening for the Double Muggin' event.

Tony West, no address listed, took top honors in the bareback bronc event, scoring all three nights in his rides and piling up 197 total points. He scored 66 points Saturday.

Also scoring points each night of the rodeo to win second place with a total of 187 was Hadley Reed of Spearman. Reed scored 59 points Saturday.

Coming in third with 129 points for two rides was Dane Mount of Vernon.

Gary Johnson of Henrietta, Okla., swept the calf roping event with a time of 9.3 seconds in his Saturday run, the only one getting under 10 seconds in the event.

The next two top calf ropers also won their spots in Saturday's competition. Second was Jim Cade of Menard, Texas, with a time of 10.2 seconds. Les Cochran of Abilene was third with 10.4. In fourth place with his Thursday time of 10.6 seconds was Tom Dewbre of Wichita, Kan.

Spark Bewley of Phoenix, Ariz., took top honor in the saddle bronc competition with a total score of 143 points in two rides, including 73 earned Saturday.

Tying for second place in saddle bronc were Dave Fisher of Elkhart, Kan., and Van Hale of Snyder. Both had total scores of 136 points for two rides.

Hale survived a contrary bronc to finally gain a 63 score Saturday. He began riding Scotch and Soda only to have the horse turn back into the chute in his attempts to buck off Hale. Officials gave Hale another try, and again Scotch and Soda preferred to remain near the chute, though judges gave Hale 33 points for the horse's feeble efforts.

Hale then was given another ride on another horse, and he earned enough points for his second-place tie.

Fourth place in saddle bronc was awarded to Ken James of Amistad, N.M. James had a total score of 133 points, including the 72 points he received in the final performance.

The steer wrestling competition saw a wide spread in final times for the two attempts made by each participant. Easily gaining the top position was Marty Devers of Booker, who had a combined time of 10.5 seconds for his two efforts.

More than four seconds separated Devers from his nearest competitor Leon Bauerle of Kyle, Texas, took second with a combined time of 14.7 seconds. Reece Taylor of Perryton turned in a fine 6.0 time Saturday to enable him to take third with a combined 15.7 seconds.

Fourth was David Burrows of Hugoton, Kan., who managed 16.1 seconds in his two attempts at wrestling and tying the steer.

Competition was close in the girls barrel racing, with less than a second separating the top 10 finishers.

Taking first with a time of 16.74 seconds for her Thursday ride was Jackie Bob Cox of Del Rio. Only .06 of a second behind was Leisha Wilson of Harmon, Okla., with a 16.80 for her Saturday ride. Third was Karen Galemba of Stephenville with her Saturday time of 16.80 seconds.

Young Pampa rider Cydney Morriss garnered fourth with her Thursday time of 17.05, barely edging out Jeana Day of Woodward, Okla., who took fifth with her Friday ride of 17.06 seconds. Kara Pierce of Miami was sixth with 17.14, while Kimbra Pierce of Miami was seventh with 17.18, each riding Friday.

Tying for the eighth position were Sheri Spillers of Elk City, Okla., and Kimbra Dorsett of Childress with their 17.20 times. Spillers raced the barrels Saturday and Dorsett rode Thursday night. Nannette Fine of Monahans took the tenth spot with a time of 17.22 seconds gained Friday.

In the bull riding event, winners were separated by only three points. First with his score of 76 was Mark McClure of Houston for his Thursday ride. Next with equal scores of 74 points were Randy Queen of Dallas, riding Thursday, and Billy Busbee of Midland, riding Friday. Fourth went to Lewis Barnes of Hutchison, Kan., with a 73 score for his Saturday ride.

Man electrocuted at Miami

MIAMI — A 28-year-old man was electrocuted Friday when a drill he was using on construction at the Roberts County Museum apparently shorted out.

Dennis Leslie Bruce, who worked for the Burns Concrete Co. of Amarillo, died Friday afternoon at Coronado Community Hospital after doctors there spent one-and-a-half hours trying to revive him, a hospital spokesperson said today. Cause of death was attributed to the electrocution.

According to Roberts County Sheriff Eddie Brines, Bruce was drilling through some plywood at the construction site at about 10 a.m. Friday when the drill shorted out. The man reportedly asked a co-worker to unplug the instrument when the shock was first felt. Brines said that the co-worker said Bruce "seemed okay at first."

"Then his eyes got glassy," Brines quoted the co-worker as saying.

There was reportedly no water or stray electrical wires at the site, where the men were setting steel reinforcement rods. The contractors were building an addition to the museum.

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation was administered to Bruce until an ambulance arrived from Pampa.

Services for Bruce, a Vietnam veteran, will be at 10:30 Tuesday at the Edwards Funeral Home Chapel, Van Buren, Ark. Burial will be in the Dogg Creek Cemetery in Shady Point Okla.

Survivors include his parents, a sister and two brothers.

Appraisal notices cause shock for some

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

Many county residents receiving their latest tax appraisal notices may have felt a slight sense of shock at the increased values for their properties.

But Chief Appraiser Charles Buzzard of the Gray County Tax Appraisal District said matters are just balancing out under state laws and asked residents to allow time for the appraising procedures to settle down.

One resident recently received a notice indicating a 6.7 acre tract of his just outside the city limits on the south side of town had increased more than 650 percent from last year's appraised market value.

According to the recent notice he had from the GCAD, last year's market value was listed at $3,090. The new notice indicated a market value of $20,310. The resident was surprised, to say the least. The property has had no improvements or utility services on it, the resident claimed.

He checked with the GCAD office and found it had listed the property as having a mobile home on it; the resident claimed there had never been a mobile home on the tract.

Buzzard admitted there was a mistake made on the appraisal. But the matter has been resolved and the property was again appraised at the previous value.

"Some mistakes may occur," he conceded. "We're not perfect."

But that was an unusual instance, he claimed. Most appraisal increases are not within that range, generally not even near a more than 600 percent hike.

Buzzard explained that most of the increased appraisals are the result of a state law passed a few years back requiring properties to be appraised at 100 percent of the market value.

Under the law, an appraisal district is charged with getting property values reassessed within its area to accord with the general market value.

He explained that in the past, appraisals in Pampa and other Gray County areas had averaged 78 percent of the market value. Now the district is making reassessments to get properties appraised near 100 percent of the market value.

"The law says 100 percent," Buzzard said. "But we're trying to get around 90 to 95 percent."

That attempt to make the appraisals more comparable to real market values has led to increased appraisal values for many properties, especially in Pampa. And those increases showing up on recent notices has lifted some eyebrows.

The amount of increase will vary from one section of the city or county to another, depending on what previous appraisals had been determined in past years for specific areas.

Though the average appraisals have been around 78 percent of market value in the past, some areas have been assessed as low as around 40 percent, Buzzard said. Naturally those areas will see corresponding larger increases in appraised values as the GCAD aims at equalization of appraisals, he explained.

But some residents will see decreased appraisals. Buzzard noted some area properties in the past had been appraised at up to 120 percent of the market value. Those properties will be getting lowered appraisal values as the district proceeds to aim at the 100 percent value under state law.

He said the district is trying to bring county property values "up to everyone else," attempting to equalize the appraisals from past years when each governing district placing a property tax may have appraised properties at different values.

"We're just trying to get to the market value," he stated.

"Ratio studies were low in the area," Buzzard said, resulting in appraised values often being lower than market values. Consequently, many properties will have higher appraisals under the new program than residents may have expected, he indicated.

He disputed rumors that the district is trying to get higher appraisals to offset possible decreased values on surrounding oil properties resulting from on-going "white oil" controversies.

For one thing, none of the governing entities covered in the GCAD authority tells the district how to make its appraisals, Buzzard emphasized.

Appraisals

any of the governing units. Those units set their own property tax rates without consulting the GCAD, which has no input on determining those tax rates. The GCAD has nothing to do with setting the tax rates, Buzzard stated.

Also, appraisals of surrounding oil properties have gained $50 million under recent reassessments, he said. Appraisals of oil and gas properties are done for the district by the private firm of Pritchard and Abbott, he noted; the firm has more expertise in determining those appraisals than the local office staff.

He said values of oil properties may decrease under later appraisals, depending on how the controversies are resolved. But that does not indicate the district has any plan to increase other property values just to offset any possible decreased tax revenues within the governing entities, he stressed.

It's possible, for example, that the Pampa Independent School District might gain more tax revenue from the higher reappraised values, Buzzard observed. "The closer the district is to market value, the more money it gets from the state" under funding programs. But that has nothing to do with attempts to offset possible loss of tax revenues from the oil controversy.

Buzzard also countered complaints about the district making higher appraisals while real estate and home values have been going down.

Some realtors have indicated values of property in Pampa have dropped around 10 to 15 percent in the last couple of years while tax appraised values have gone up on many properties. "The realtors are going down, we're going up," Buzzard said. But that's resulted because of the previous appraisals made at below market values. It will all balance out eventually, he claimed.

Buzzard explained the general procedures involved in efforts to bring appraised values up to or down to the market value.

Last year, for example, the district reappraised the general land values in all of Pampa. This year the GCAD went into specific areas of the city for more detailed assessments. Two of the primary areas in Pampa this year were the Talley and Wilcox additions, though others also were involved in the more detailed review.

Thus, some properties may have had increased appraisal values last year under the general reappraisal. And then some may have had additional increases this year in those areas receiving more specific assessment, he explained.

Other areas will be receiving more detailed studies in subsequent years as the district strives to reach the 100 percent value goal, he noted.

"We can't do the appraisal district all at once," he said, because of the lack of manpower in the office. "We have to hit different areas each year."

It's a slow process to catch up on appraisals for all properties in the district, he said.

Prior to 1984, all properties had to be reappraised every five years. But new laws will require the reappraisals to be made every four years, he said, with the GCAD making efforts toward that program.

Most judgments of property value are based on outside appearances, Buzzard explained. If the staff were to go inside structures, then appraisals might change the value. There's a possibility some structures might look better from the outside, hiding possible matters inside the structure that could cause lower values.

Of course, it could go the other way, too, he said.

"If there are any complaints, come in and let us know," Buzzard advised residents. He said the office was willing to work with residents who feel their property has been assessed wrongly.

"I certainly don't want to create a burden for anyone," he said. "Just come in and talk with us." Some matters can be cleared up by a visit to the office, while others might require protest hearings.

The district has set up appraisal hearings to allow property owners an opportunity to protest values placed on their property for local tax purposes. But owners must file written notice of protest to appear before the Appraisal Review Board.

Protest hearings are already underway for mineral and industrial property; those for real and business personal property will begin Thursday.

Buzzard noted the district has sent out approximately 20,000 notices in 1983, 10,000 in 1984 and 4,100 this year. But out of all those notices, only about two-tenths of one percent have resulted in formal protests, he said.

County delays action on autopsy fees

Gray County Commissioners discussed a proposed change in the fees charged by the area autopsy expert at their regular meeting Friday, but they didn't commit themselves to anything, according to County Judge Carl Kennedy.

Forensic pathologist Dr. Ralph Erdman of Amarillo is asking commissioners of the 20 Panhandle counties he serves to pay him a $100 per month retainer fee in addition to his $500 per autopsy charge. The fee would help pay for travel, toxicology studies and testing.

However, it was not Erdman but assistant District Attorney David Hamilton who presented his case to Gray County commissioners Friday and to other area commissioners' courts earlier this week. Roberts, Hemphill and Wheeler County Commissioners decided to see how Gray County votes before they take action.

But Kennedy wants to have Erdman himself present his case to the commissioners before they take any action.

"If you use the service, you should pay for it. If not, you shouldn't have to," he said, adding he doesn't know just what this "pay increase" would go for.

"All things I hear about Dr. Erdman are excellent and that he does a good job," he said. "But if he wants the county to pay for more services, he's going to have to give us his story."

Another option Erdman proposes is to set a $750 per case fee, which would not include transportation.

In other businesses, commissioners concluded that supporting the Panhandle Transit, a "taxi" service for low income residents, would not be in competition with similar programs offered by churches and the Cabot Retired Volunteer Program and agreed to pay $1,000 to Texas Panhandle Community action for the program. The TPCA is asking counties for the $1,000 to help them fund the service. TPCA officials claim the service will be self sufficient in two years. The $1,000 will come out of the county Revenue Sharing budget.

Live Aid concert proceeds soaring

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Telephone pledges continued pouring in a day after the Live Aid benefit as organizers reported that the mega-concert raised $70 million worldwide to aid the starving in Africa.

Even as the 16-hour extravaganza neared its Saturday night finale with a chorus of stars from the last 20 years of rock, performers and fans agreed they could compare the concert to nothing they had known.

In the United States, which organizers said was responsible for most of the $70 million pledged, the toll-free telephone number for pledges, 1-800-LIVEAID, was overloaded with 180,000 call attempts an hour Saturday and callers were still getting busy signals on Sunday.

The Live Aid programs here and in London were beamed by satellite to between 150 and 170 nations, with a television and radio audience estimated at 1.5 billion.

Clean-up campaign continues

By BOB HART
Pampa City Manager

The Clean-Up Campaign is continuing. Our Sanitation Department is still in Ward 4, and we are hauling about 60 loads a week to the landfill.

We do not have a completion date at this point, however, we will continue with our clean-up efforts until the campaign is completed. At that time, we will return to the other areas of town and pick up the items on a call-in basis.

Our plans are progressing for the renovation to City Hall. We expect the first draft of the plans this week. The commission will review the proposed floor plan, the installation of an elevator and ramps, and exterior work.

In related action, the city commission will also be working on selecting additional streets for major rehabilitation work within the next two to three weeks. If you have suggestions on streets that need repairs, I would appreciate hearing from you, and I would encourage you to call one of the commissioners concerning which streets you would like to see reworked.

We are also working with the owner of the Scheider Hotel to have it listed on the National Register of Historic Places. We have been working with the owner for several months now and are happy to announce that the State Historical Commission will consider the application on Saturday, Aug. 3, in Austin.

The placement of the structure on the National Register entitles the owner to a number of federal income tax incentives for rehabilitation. The proposed project to convert it to an apartment complex will certainly enhance the downtown area and restore an eyesore that has existed for some time in our community.

As I have mentioned before, we are working on our budget and will be presenting it to the city commission during the latter part of August.

Within that vein, many of the employees in the city have been offering suggestions through an idea contest on ways that we can improve the quality and reduce our costs of delivery of services. I received more than 60 suggestions, and many of them are being implemented into our current budget.

Upon implementation of the ideas submitted, we would expect to save approximately $50,000 annually. Naturally, the ideas will take some time to implement, but we will be making efforts throughout the next fiscal year to fully implement them.

And, finally, I am pleased to announce that Nathan Hopson is on board now as our Director of Community Services. Nathan has direct responsibility for the Street Department, Sanitation Department, Parks and Recreation Department, Water and Sewer Department, the Planning and Engineering Department and our Vehicle Maintenance Program.

I would encourage you to stop by and visit with Nathan, or if you have any questions in those departments, to call him at 665-8481.

Seal coating past halfway mark

The current summer streets seal coating project is just past the halfway mark, reported Charlie Smith, engineering technician with the city's Engineering Department.

Smith said most of the work south of the railroad tracks "is fairly well completed," with 55 percent of the project area now seal coated.

A couple of areas are still left in the southwest section of the city, but seal coating was expected to be completed there early this week.

Those areas include Farley from Oklahoma south to McCullough, and Banks and Faulkner from Wilks north to Ripley.

The seal coating operations were to begin moving today into an area bounded on the east by Cuyler and on the west by Hobart, Smith reported. Work this week will be progressing in that area from Atchison north to Red Deer Creek, with most of the area expected to be completed by Thursday.

After that area is completed, the seal coating will be moving west of Hobart into the central western portions of the city, Smith said.

Smith said the crews have appreciated the cooperation of residents in keeping vehicles out of the street and lawn water from the curbs and gutters.

He said residents will be receiving notices a day or two before the seal coating operation moves into their areas. It generally takes between 30 to 45 minutes to work a block, he said.

Smith said work was slowed down for a short while near the end of last week because of failure in the gravel spreading equipment.

Graduation tests approved by board

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas school officials predict as many as 25 percent of students will fail "exit tests" that will be required for the first time this fall before high school students can graduate.

The State Board of Education on Saturday approved mandatory math and English exams for graduation hopefuls. Officials expect about 24 percent will fail the language arts tests this fall and 25 percent will flunk the math quizzes.

But Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby predicted the passing average would rise rapidly the next two years due to the state's increased stress on academics in schooling.

"We believe students will be well aware of the higher expectations placed on them by the requirement to pass this test," said Kirby. "And when you expect more from people, they usually rise to meet those expectations."

The new "exit level" tests on math and language arts will be given first this October to 11th graders. If they make a grade of 70 on the exams, they will be cleared to receive a diploma. Those who fail can take the exam again in December and twice more before they are scheduled to graduate in 1987.

School districts will offer remedial assistance to all who fail.

"By setting this standard, we will be expecting students to know 70 percent of what they have been taught in the area of math and English," said Kirby.

The 15-member appointed board, in one of the busiest three-day sessions of its year-long existence, also approved new rules that will allow Texas schools to crack down on students who bring guns, drugs and liquor to school grounds.

During its 140-day regular session, the Legislature had been unable to agree on the disciplinary measures demanded by parents and local school officials throughout the state.

And in one of the hottest discussions of the day, the board voted 7-6 to give students one-half credit toward graduation for taking a driver training course.

"This is a very important issue in our urban schools," said board member Volly Bastine.

"If you take away this graduation credit, it will hurt many of our rural schools," said member Pete Morales Jr. of Devine. "Kids must learn to drive to go to school and make a living."

A board committee, headed by Jack Strong, Longview, had recommended that graduation credit for driver training be dropped in hopes of encouraging students to take an academic subject such as English or math.

Charles Duncan of Houston, said numerous school superintendents particularly from urban areas, said they planned to drop driver training classes and leave the training of new drivers to parents and private instructors.

The new discipline rules were aimed at "incorrigible" students which school officials say cannot be handled adequately under present law.

Students who bring dangerous weapons to school; sell, deliver or use drugs on school property; assault a teacher or student, or commit arson at school may be suspended for up to a six-week period, or expelled if the violations continue.

Schools would be required to continue "home-based" instruction — such as lesson assignments — while a student was on suspension. The student would not be counted as absent from school.

Strong said one of the most important new rules would allow any student who showed up drunk or drugged to be removed from classroom.

However, the student would be turned over to proper authorities for treatment or handling, not just put off school grounds.

In other action Saturday the state board:

— Outlawed social promotions by saying a student may not be advanced to a higher grade without making a passing grade of 70. Districts could set up tutorial or special summer schools to help students with lagging grades. Special report cards would be issued to the students and parents to show just where they stand in comparison with other students.

— Abolished physical fitness tests now required for an exemption from physical education classes. Present school rules allow athletes, cheerleaders, marching band members, drill team members, Reserve Officer, Training Corps students and working vocational education students to be exempted from physical education classes if they pass a fitness ability test.

Judge will consider prison suit agreement

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge who ordered sweeping changes in the state prison system planned to hear final comments today on a settlement that would end a 13-year-old inmate civil rights suit.

But attorneys involved in the litigation say approval of the agreement by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice would not be the final chapter in the fight for better prison conditions.

"The misconception that this settlement brings the lawsuit to an end has caused a lot of confusion in the prisons. The case has become larger, not smaller," said Vincent Nathan, a Toledo, Ohio, attorney.

Justice appointed Nathan as special master to oversee enforcement of the court-ordered reforms in the Texas Department of Corrections.

Prison overcrowding is the last issue to be settled in the suit, which started in 1972 as a handwritten petition by prisoner David Ruiz, who was serving a sentence for armed robbery.

Ruiz is now awaiting an appeal on a perjury conviction and sexual assault and robbery charges in a federal prison in Bastrop after it was decided he might not be safe in a TDC facility.

Nathan said approval of the settlement will not end the case because he and the court will spend the next several years seeing that the agreement is enforced.

In 1980, after an almost year-long trial, Justice issued a ruling calling for extensive reforms in the TDC and appointed Nathan to oversee them.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans upheld most of Justice's orders, except for a section requiring one-person cells for inmates. The appeals court also asked Justice to wait a year before issuing a final decree to settle the overcrowding problem.

The overcrowding issue was to be the subject of a trial slated for last February, but attorneys averted a trial and reached a settlement in May.

Justice, who is from Tyler, already has given preliminary approval to the agreement reached in May but withheld final approval until he could hear comments from prison inmates.

Since then, TDC inmates have filed more than 330 objections to the settlement, said U.S. District Clerk Jesse Clark.

The proposed settlement calls for TDC to limit its population to 34,200 inmates, about 3,000 fewer prisoners than it now holds.

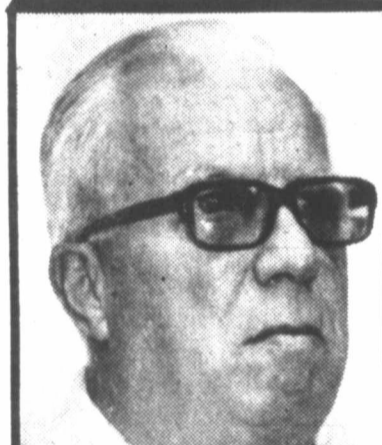

Prison officials say that, in order to meet the cap on the inmate population, they will have to begin expensive prison construction or reduce the number of inmates.

San Francisco attorney William Bennett Turner, who represents Texas' 38,000 inmates, said prisoners fear that once the agreement is approved, they would have no further opportunity to speak their minds of prison conditions.

"That's about as far from the truth as you can get," Turner said. "They are going to be seeing a lot of activity over the next couple of years."

Please, call him Mike

Several months ago I discussed the problems of being a senior citizen and having a small son, explaining that Jimmy wasn't my grandson.

Since then I have learned the young man has numerous friends around town, many people who I do not know apparently know my son.

So, let me take a few words to explain to his fans why Jimmy has ceased to exist and is now known as Mike.

Recently the "little guy" observed a mighty important milestone in his life — his second birthday — and decided it was time to make some changes.

Soooo...on his birthday he told his mother and I "Jimmy gone, gone," and pointing to himself said Mike.

Later that day when I asked him who he was he said, "Mike Parker." Since then it makes him mad for someone to call him Jimmy. He will stamp his foot and very strongly assert "Mike."

So, for those of you who know Jimmy, a word of warning. Unless you want a lecture, when you see Jimmy, please call him Mike.

Writing about the little guy brings to mind that I wrote about city efforts to empty dumpsters which are placed at the edge of several streets by painting no parking from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. signs on them — then emptying the dumpster in front of our house at 6:20 a.m., before neighbors could remove their cars from the street.

Well, last week the dumpster that sits between the curblin and sidewalk, near our driveway, was emptied about 2 p.m. At least Mike and his brother David didn't have all of that racket going on while they were still asleep.

I don't know if the later hour for emptying the dumpster resulted in fewer cars parked along the street, but at least the neighborhood was quieter early in the morning.

I keep hoping that the city eventually will obtain the services of someone who knows something about traffic control when it comes to the timing of the so-called traffic lights in our community.

It seems that there is no rhyme or reason to the present timing of the lights which reportedly were installed in the past to aid in the movement of traffic and reduce hazards where heavily traveled streets intersect.

Instead of helping to move traffic smoothly along the main traffic arteries in our town, some of the lights are more of a hindrance.

Especially annoying is the timing of the lights at the intersection of Francis and Frost, at the northwest corner of the Gray County Courthouse.

I know that the majority of traffic at this intersection is along West Francis, but is that any reason for the north and southbound traffic on Frost to have to wait so long for a green light? I have waited several minutes and at least one person reported a seven minute wait.

My suggestion to local motorists — don't try to cross Francis on Frost during your lunch hour. If you do, there probably won't be sufficient time left after the light changes for you to eat lunch.

And, delivery of mail to boxes at the local post office has improved during the past two weeks, since I mentioned some problems I had encountered.

There has been only one letter addressed to another business in The Pampa News mail since I discussed the problem and only the mail intended for my family has been in my personal post office box.

As a result of my mention of the problems, I received many telephone calls and was also stopped several times in local businesses and told I wasn't the only one encountering problems. Several people told me of the problems they had encountered leaving mail on their residential postal boxes for the postman to pick up. According to their reports the postman (or postwoman) left their mail at another house down the street, instead of taking it to the post office.

While I hate to hear of other people having problems with their mail, I am glad that I am not the only one in town having problems. I was beginning to think someone didn't like me!

I received a short letter from the local postmaster, Richard Wilson, following my earlier comments on problems in mail delivery. In the letter he assured me efforts were made to deliver the mail properly, noting "our employees are human and will never be perfect and void of all errors."

He asked that I inform him of any future problems I have with the mail and I fully intend to do so. If anyone else encounters similar problems I suggest they also contact the postmaster. His telephone number is 665-5713.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Products will sell when price is right

What do you do when you've got a lot to sell and nobody's buying because the price is too high. You drop the price and figure that you'll sell more than enough to cover the difference. It works all the time, especially when the product you're selling is in demand.

That is, of course, unless you've discovered the surest way to keep your prices high, sell very little and still make out like a bandit—plead poverty to the U.S. Congress.

In essence, that's what the farm lobby is doing. Sure enough, last month it was persuasive enough to get eight otherwise rational congressmen to believe that all hell would break loose if American farmers lower their prices to entice overseas buyers. That resulted in an 8-8 partisan deadlock in the Senate Agriculture Committee over a bill to reduce price-support loan rates for such commodities as wheat, corn and rice.

The proposal would have tied the amount a farmer can borrow using crops as collateral to a historical average of world market prices for the crops. The loan rate would be set between 75 percent and 85 percent of that average over the last five years.

A few sharp folks in the Reagan administration, along with a few sensible congressmen, believe that current practice, which locks in minimum loan rates, is to blame for pricing American farm goods too high to be competitive. The loans have set an effective floor price for American produce—a price that foreign competitors have found easy to undercut.

They argue that the high loan rates, coupled with the strong dollar, have caused dramatic drops in the U.S. share of export markets for commodities like wheat, that have been the backbone of the American farm trade.

Thus the move to bring the loan rates, and American prices, more in line with current market trends. But that ran smack into a block of committee Democrats, scared to death that proven economic laws would, in this instance, fail.

"Are we going to arbitrarily lower the price of wheat and further aggravate the situation of farmers, of not having a very good price? I don't think it's worth doing," said Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont.

But is it worth doing. Lowering prices to marketplace levels is not arbitrary, it is logical. In fact, is it a move the agriculture committee cannot afford not to take—and soon—before the prices of American produce ensures that no one, not even Americans, can afford it.

Cuomo tries to protect rich

In 1984, New York Governor Mario Cuomo was the Democratic party's brilliant oratorical defender of the poor and downtrodden.

But in 1985 he has become the passionately articulate defender of rich taxpayers and government bureaucracies in his role as point man in the fight against the Reagan tax reform plan.

While Cuomo argues that eliminating the state and local tax deduction will force cutbacks in services to the poor, he has in fact put his political clout into defending the rich at the expense of lower-income groups.

Cuomo's own 1982 campaign finance chairman, William Stern, chided him in a July 1 Wall Street Journal article for "demanding the continuance of one of the most indefensible deductions in the federal system..." Stern is absolutely correct.

We have just completed an analysis of the IRS summary of 1983 tax returns. And it shows that 74.2 percent of the total $97.4 billion claimed in state and local tax deductions - $72.3 billion - went to the top 18.6 percent of income tax filers; those with incomes over $30,000 who also itemize their deductions.

The other 25.8 percent ($25.1 billion) went to the 15.8 percent of all filers whose incomes were below $30,000 but who also itemized deductions.

The largest group of all, however, the 65.6 percent of all tax filers - mostly under $20,000 - who did NOT itemize got NONE of the $97.4 billion claimed.

Since in 1983 Americans paid a grand total of $244.7 billion in state and local sales, property, and income taxes, over 60 percent of those taxes, $147.3 billion, were not itemized or deducted.

So this may well be the most inefficient, and regressive, tax "loophole" in history - not only because it so heavily favors the top 20 percent - but because 60 percent of the potential deductions are swallowed whole, mostly by the lower-income groups.

To put it bluntly, in Mario Cuomo's New York State, because of this deduction which he is trying to protect, the rich are carrying a tax burden that is at least 30 percent LOWER as a percent of their income than the average taxpayer, and at least 50 percent lower than the renting poor who get nothing.

That's Cuomo's "dirty little secret." He likes rich New Yorkers getting a big tax break, because they keep quiet while he taxes the middle and lower classes at the highest rates in the nation. But those folks who don't itemize are the very ones who would benefit most from Reagan's lower tax rates and doubled-exemption.

That's why the Greater Washington (D.C.) Research Center's July 1 report said lower-income taxpayers would receive the largest proportional benefits under Reagan's proposal.

The reason? Of the 58 percent of all federal tax return filers with incomes below $20,000, only 11.6 percent (less than 6.7 percent of all taxpayers) claimed deductions for state and local taxes, and they only got $7.6 billion, or 7.8 percent of the total.

This means the huge lower-income 58 percent of all taxpayers paid at least $65 billion in state and local taxes that they could NOT or did not deduct from their federal taxes. Only lower tax rates could offset that harsh injustice.

Of the 21 percent of all the taxpayers in the $20-30,000 group, only 44.4 percent itemized, and this group got only 18 percent of the state and local deductions, or $17.56 billion - meaning that 56 percent of the taxpayers in this group failed to itemize at least another $23 billion in state and local taxes.

In short, the whole argument that removing this deduction would "put a tax on a tax" falls apart when over 60 percent of all state and local taxes are being taxed by the present system.

This means that by far the fairest way to reduce this "tax on a tax" effect for all taxpayers is to wipe out the deduction completely, and use all of the $35-40 billion in immediate revenue proceeds to reduce tax rates for everyone.

A recent study by California's State Franchise Tax Board shows that Reagan's tax plan will save individual California taxpayers a net of $3.2 billion. And what they lose in the state and local deduction ($4 billion) is more than offset by what they gain in rate reduction ($6 billion) and the doubled exemptions ($4.8 billion) which also help offset other lost deductions.

The prestigious accounting firm of Arthur Andersen did a study for the Joint Economic Committee of Congress (JEC), and found that even high-income, itemizing taxpayers in EVERY state with taxable incomes of $50,000 and varying value of homes came out AHEAD with the president's plan. Even in New York City, Cuomo's home, taxpayers with a median home ($97,000 value) were $600 better off than under current law. And in the great "heartland" states of Ohio and Illinois, the savings were $1,200 to $1,700.

This is why Cuomo is blowing smoke on this issue. Just don't let that smoke blind you to the value of tax reform.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, July 15, the 196th day of 1985. There are 169 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On July 15, 1971, President Richard M. Nixon announced in a nationally broadcast address that he would visit the People's Republic of China to seek a "normalization of relations." Nixon made the trip the following February.

On this date:
Ten years ago: Three American astronauts blasted off aboard an Apollo spaceship several hours after two Soviet cosmonauts were launched aboard a Soyuz spacecraft for a mission that would include a linkup of the two ships in space.

Five years ago: Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan met with former President Gerald R. Ford at the GCP's convention in Detroit to discuss potential running mates.

The modern-day pirates

Americans are hearing and reading about hostile corporate "takeovers," uncertain whether such shotgun weddings are good or bad.

So are the so-called "experts." The editors of the Wall Street Journal don't know for sure.

And even those most vociferously opposed have greater fear of any heavy-handed congressional response.

Our Americanism - capitalism, consumerism, free-enterprise, whatever you call it - is necessarily dynamic, incessantly creative, ever changing. To be those things it has to remain free.

But freedom implies an obligation of self-discipline. Some paper-shuffling arbitrageurs, gaining control of a corporation through high-leverage borrowing, are abusing freedom.

Presently on Wall Street takeover speculation has moved from coils to broadcasters to natural gas pipeline companies and into food stocks.

It can work two ways. Any gigantic corporate bureaucracy is inclined to hardening of the arteries. Even when raiders have not succeeded sometimes they have been effective in getting tired-blood management off its duff and back to using its imagination again.

But on the other hand... Even an implied threat of a hostile takeover has caused many companies to take defensive action by increasing their debt levels...

As a rape target might seek to make herself appear ugly... And that could be counterproductive.

Phillips Petroleum escaped the clutches of T. Boone Pickens but the excessive debt incurred has resulted in curtailing or canceling two significant projects.

The Phillips plant for producing a protein which might have helped feed the world - scrubbed. Phillips' nuclear fusion research - cut back and may be discontinued.

Thus Mr. Pickens picked up millions of dollars for himself but left all the rest of us poorer.

Oilman Michel Halbouty calls that "a tragic loss, a blight on our national security and our national economy."

He says, "The raiders, arbitrageurs, greenmailers, sharks and greedy profiteers... are morally wrong... and what's morally wrong cannot be economically right."

"Economic freedom does not justify ruthless pursuit of predatory self-interest."

Halbouty remembers that legislation frequently compounds the problems it seeks to solve, but the robber barons of the 19th century had to be publicly scorned before they disciplined themselves.

He expects today's pirates will discipline themselves only if we of the media will unmask them.

"GAME, SET, MATCH and RELATIONSHIP!"

Philippines likely next crisis for U.S.

By Don Graf

Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos has made a point over the years of being his own man, answerable to no one but himself for the way he does his job.

A few years back, for example, when Congress was balking at the $900 million price tag he put on renewing the lease on U.S. bases in the Philippines, he was quick to tell the U.S. government what it could do if it didn't like his terms. Get out. Common front against the world communist threat or not, he needed us less than we needed him.

He has also consistently belittled the strength of the communist insurgency which has been spreading through his country of 7,000 islands. Simultaneously, in what is an obvious contradiction to almost everyone but himself, he has portrayed himself as the only alternative to a communist takeover.

It is especially interesting, therefore, to note the different line Marcos has been talking of late. He is now suggesting it may be necessary to call on allies for military assistance in beating back the rebel threat. To date, no ally has been named, but there is no question as to who he has in mind.

So get ready, Americans. Preoccupied as you already are with Central America and the Mideast, it looks very much like another one could be coming at you.

The State Department and Pentagon make no secret of their alarm. For good reason. Just about everything that could be wrong in the way a country is run is very wrong in the Philippines.

The economy is a basket case, largely as a consequence of the corruption that has been standard operating procedure under Marcos. The spoils go to his relatives and cronies.

The system is too much even for the editorial columns of the Wall Street Journal, whose writers rarely meet an anti-communist authoritarian leader they do not like. But a recent critique of a coconut cartel rigged in favor of a longtime Marcos associate warned that such policies are producing recruits for the rebels among small farmers who know they are being ripped off by their own government.

The corruption reaches into the higher echelons of the armed forces, hampering the campaign against the rebels and feeding resentment among junior officers who have begun pressing for reforms, without satisfaction from Marcos.

The armed forces are a problem in another respect. Abuses against local civilian populations by poorly disciplined paramilitary units, which account for a large part of some 200,000 men under arms, are building guerrilla popularity.

The main guerrilla force is the Maoist-oriented New People's Army which is now operating in all 73 Philippine provinces and, according to Western analysts, may control as much as 20 percent of the country's side.

The NPA claims 20,000 armed fighters. Western estimates give it less, about 15,000, while Marcos says no more than 12,000. What is most interesting is not that the president's estimate is at the low end of the scale but that, until very recently, he was putting NPA strength at under 7,000.

Whatever the actual numbers, what is significant is that the NPA forces are moving out of the jungles into the cities. Even Manila is beginning to be jolted by commando-style raids.

Meanwhile, hopes for a democratic turn raised by last year's parliamentary election, in which opposition candidates won a surprising third of the contested seats, have been largely dashed. The National Assembly is doing little business. It isn't allowed to. Marcos continues to rule by presidential decree.

By now, one would think that even Marcos might be beginning to understand that he is not the answer to but the largest part of the Philippines' problem.

But apparently not. President since 1965, he says that he will be running for another six-year term in 1987.

Dear Abby

Couple should consult a lawyer

By Bruce Williams

DEAR BRUCE — My husband and I have worked hard for the past 50 years and built a substantial and profitable retail business.

But we've had it. We'd like to retire and enjoy our remaining years and the money we've earned, so we're putting the business up for sale.

When is it wise to have an attorney become part of this transaction? My husband feels that it's not necessary to consult one until after we find a buyer. I believe that we should bring one in at the outset and let him contribute along the way.

I know you'll find it hard to believe, but this has caused a very serious family problem. Bringing in a lawyer seems elementary to me, but my husband is adamant — no lawyer until the deal is ready to close.

If I'm being unreasonable, please tell me, and I'll back off. — A.C., COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.

DEAR A.C. — I don't think you're being unreasonable at all. It's your husband who is being extremely unwise.

You've worked all these years to build a substantial enterprise, and selling it can be an extremely complicated affair. Will you give guarantees? How will the inventories be treated? Is there real property changing hands?

The list of questions is almost endless, and the service of an attorney will be required to sort most of these issues out.

Show this column to your husband and tell him that it is in his best interest to bring the attorney in at the very beginning of the transaction. In fact, it may cost less to do it this way, since you will avoid the serious mistakes that people who aren't trained in law are liable to make.

You are right, so hold your ground. DEAR BRUCE — The other day, I received a letter urging me to become part of a recipe chain. I'm to send $5 and my favorite recipe, which is supposed to be suitable for publication, to the person on the top of the list and add my name to the bottom.

The accompanying letter says that since we are selling recipes, this is perfectly legal so it is not a chain letter. It claims that I will receive thousands of dollars in the mail and a great many wonderful recipes. For $5, I'm willing to take a chance. My husband says I'm out of my tree. — W.I., SPOKANE, WASH.

DEAR W.I. — This reminds me of something my father said to me many years ago: "If it squawks like a duck, quacks like a duck, walks like a duck and has feathers, son, you've got a duck."

You've got a chain letter, and chain letters are illegal.

How do you suppose this thing got started? A bunch of wise guys start the chain, put their names near the top, and then send it out.

Since they make no contribution, anything that comes in is gravy. It's super for them, but it's not so good for the chumps who send the money.

Save your money and your recipe. Write to Bruce Williams in care of this newspaper. Volume of mail prohibits personal responses. Questions of general interest will be answered in this column. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Ladies of the evening have to work at home in Nevada

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column a "Trucker's Wife" described the activities of an alleged prostitute who drives a van with a waterbed in the back and "advertises" on her citizens' band radio.

In your response, you stated that solicitation (for purposes of prostitution) is legal in some parts of Nevada. That portion of your response was incorrect.

Brothels, subject to strict health, licensing and other requirements, are legal in some of Nevada's rural counties. However, soliciting any act of prostitution violates a specific statute that is applicable statewide. Therefore, the activity described by "Trucker's Wife" is illegal in our state.

BRIAN McDAY, ATTORNEY GENERAL, CARSON CITY, NEV.

DEAR MR. McKAY: I stand corrected. I wrongly assumed that since prostitution was legal in some parts of Nevada, soliciting was also.

A trucker's wife unloads:

DEAR ABBY: I am a registered nurse, married to a trucker. When I'm not working, I enjoy riding with him. It may be illegal to solicit over a CB, but that doesn't stop the hookers. Truckers are besieged with offers from hookers everywhere—not only in Nevada.

Many truckers have beds built into the cab of their trucks and prefer to sleep there instead of a motel. Law enforcement officials try to keep these hookers out of the parking areas. In some instances, the areas are fenced to keep the hookers out. I once had a hooker knock on our truck door to offer her services.

As long as there are truckers who use their services, the oldest profession in the world will continue to thrive. Truckers' wives will just have to trust their men. There are plenty of decent truckers on the road. I married one.

BILLY'S QUEEN BEE, LAMAR, COLO.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Concerned Mom," who was trying to teach her 5-year-old not to accept gifts from strangers, prompts this letter.

A gentleman friend of mine recently stood in line behind a mother and her young daughter at a bank. The child remarked on the visor he was wearing, as it had the name of a popular pizza imprinted on it. My friend, who is the public relations director for this pizza firm, wanted the child to have the visor, but instead of giving it to the child, he handed the visor to her mother and said to the child: "I'm giving this to your mother to give to you, because she's probably told you never to accept gifts from a stranger. You won't ever do that, will you?"

What a thoughtful way to be friendly while reinforcing a message mothers cannot stress enough.

SUE IN WICHITA, KAN.

DEAR SUE: Thoughtful, indeed. That p.r. man will go far. I'll bet when that child's mother buys pizza, she'll choose the one whose name was imprinted on the visor.

DEAR READERS: How's this for a humbling exchange:

DEAR ABBY:
We know you're bombarded with questions,
Your mail likely runs into tons,
After picking the questions to answer,
Must they always be answered with puns?
Your wisdom we value most highly,
Your witty responses are fun.
We love you, Dear Abby—but spare us

The silly, nonsensical pun!
TOM IN CAMBRIDGE

DEAR TOM:
Writing would be much less fun,
Without the "nonsensical" pun.
I know you abhor it,
But others adore it,
You lose—by 10 million to one.

DEAR ABBY: Now it's 10 million to three, as both my husband and I think your puns sound like a 16-year-old smartaleck.

British native writes book about the pleasures of tea

By JODIPERRAS

Associated Press Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Barbara Walters says it is a very great pleasure.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher admits to being "a hard and shameless drinker" of it.

Great Britain's Queen Elizabeth drinks it every afternoon with cucumber and tomato sandwiches.

And David R. Richards, a native of England and director of corporate communications at Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis, has written a book about it.

What has captured the fancy of so many personalities worldwide? Tea, of course, the drink Richards' book calls "the gentle brew."

Why would anyone write a book about tea in a country of coffee drinkers?

"I believe this country is becoming more and more one of tea drinkers," Richards said. "The consumption of tea is growing rapidly. If the trend continues, in about four or five years, the United States will import as much as the UK."

Tea, as Richards' book, "Tea: The Gentle Brew," points out, has a mystical, colorful history, one which includes the Boston Tea Party, centuries of British tea drinking and using tea leaves to tell the future.

Tea has even been touted as having the power to cure what ails you.

"People believe, probably correctly, that tea relaxes you, that it's a soothing drink," Richards said. "Historically, tea was believed to possess all sorts of medicinal qualities, but I doubt any of that's been proven."

But Richards' book, which is available only by mail, does not concentrate on tea's history. It also tells how to make the perfect cup of tea, the difference between Indian, Indonesian, Chinese and herb teas and how to concoct 17 teatime treats, including crumpets, scones, shortbread and tarts.

Brewing tea is an art that most Americans have not yet mastered, according to Richards.

"A lot of people don't know how to make a decent pot of tea," he said. "In restaurants they really don't know how."

A good cup of tea is made with boiling water, not just hot water, Richards says. His book is also filled with hints on brewing times and water temperatures.

"I find that tea relaxes you and is something of a soothing drink," Richards said.

Ancient craft becoming modern art form

BURNT HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Winding ropes and weaving reeds with an occasional spiral of copper pipe, Jay Mosier and Wendy Benard are artisans of one of the world's most ancient crafts.

With bowed heads, nimble fingers and patience, the married business partners sit on squatly stools with water-soaked reeds at their sides and weave baskets. Dating back to at least 7,000 B.C., the first-known baskets were utilitarian and most people today still consider them to be so.

However, certain cultures have used basketry as decoration and Ms. Benard and Mosier are making baskets as an art form their livelihood — with success.

"A lot of people think of a basket as just something to put your fruit in and we're trying to make it more of an art form," said Ms. Benard, as she sat weaving dyed reeds in the couple's small craft store 160 miles north of New York City.

The couple admits that their baskets, which range in price from $30 to $600, are not for everyone and they will never replace the functional laundry baskets, waste baskets, or fruit baskets.

Their baskets are most appreciated as art, which is evidenced in the craft exhibits they have done at the Smithsonian Institution, the Philadelphia Museum of Art and at the Textile Museum in Washington, D.C.

Because of the price of their work, and the idea most people have of baskets as common and inexpensive, their buyers are usually wealthy, says the bearded Mosier, 26.

Ms. Benard and Mosier have come back from crafts shows with up to $15,000 in orders for their baskets, and have sold up to $4,000 in baskets at a single show. Traveling to four shows a year and owning the craft store has provided them with a comfortable living, including a house they bought last year, Mosier said.

"Craft fairs mean something totally different than they did 10 years ago," said Jo Ann Brown, vice president of operations for American Crafts Enterprises Inc. in New Paltz, N.Y. "These are really and truly small manufacturers. They're small business people."

"There has been a surge and a growth ... across the country (in basket weaving)," said Ms. Brown, although it is a smaller medium than other crafts like ceramics. She said she didn't know how many professional basket weavers there are in the country. Mosier estimated there were probably about 50 in the United States.

"It's really tough to make your living doing this," said Mosier, his hands working strands of mauve and gray in an elliptical basket, which because of its unusual shape and color would cost more than $100. "It takes so much time to make a basket like this."

"Some of the pieces take three days," added Ms. Benard, a factor that increases the price of a basket significantly.

"From the very start I had always worked with the thought of producing them to sell," said Mosier, who began weaving during summers while in college, where he studied music and psychology. "But my marketing techniques weren't very good — and I wasn't very good at it (weaving)."

As Mosier improved, the number of craft shows he did decreased and his baskets were accepted into more distinctive shows.

Mosier had been weaving for four years when he met his wife at a basket-weaving class he was teaching three years ago.

Ms. Benard, 27, with a master's degree in special education, gave up her job when she decided to join her then-future husband in his trade.

"I enjoy it, but I don't think it could be for everybody," Ms. Benard said of the basket weaving, which is a full-time job. Being with just one person all day was something to adjust to, she says.

Ventures or enterprises that you originate will have good chances for success this coming year. Don't be afraid to strike off on your own.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Situations in which you take a personal hand will come off smoothly today, but if you delegate duties to others, the results may not be too desirable. Major changes are ahead for Cancers in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Let those with whom you're involved today savor the spotlight. You'll be more effective as the stage manager directing the show from the wings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Friends are likely to play key roles in your affairs today. Be sure to make note of those who help so you can reciprocate at a later date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You'll handle difficult assignments in a commendable manner today. Your behavior will enhance your standing in the eyes of your peers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't allow yourself to get into a rut today. Try to do things that are mildly adventurous and stimulate your enthusiasm and hopes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you're alert today, you might be able to spot an opportunity that can be of personal benefit in an area into which you seldom delve.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might not find mingling with the crowd too enjoyable today, but you'll find great pleasure in the companionship of one with whom you share much in common.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You'll find being active and productive far more fun than frittering away your time today. Involve yourself in meaningful and worthwhile projects.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You'd like to get to know someone you've recently met. This is a good day to arrange something special for just the two of you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your instincts for gauging the wants and needs of others are finely tuned today. This can be a big plus if you are marketing something to the public.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're more adroit at mental pursuits than physical ones today. It's best that you work on balancing your accounts instead of balancing the barbells.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's likely that your ledgers will show a profit today. This is because you're apt to be sharper than usual when it comes to buying or selling.

NL all-star dominance hard to understand

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The last time baseball's All-Star Game visited Minnesota, the American League and National League had won the same number of games and Pete Rose was just a rookie second baseman with the Cincinnati Reds. A lot has happened since then.

When the 56th All-Star Game begins Tuesday night, the Nationals will take the field with a commanding 35-19-1 advantage that Rose helped build.

"I played my first All-Star Game there and I'll probably play my last there," Rose, now the Reds' player-manager, said Sunday. "It's the only town I'll play two All-Star Games in. Damn, I must be old."

For Rose, 44, his 17th All-Star selection was a break from two more important pursuits — the overhauling of Ty Cobb's all-time hit record and the guiding of the resurgent Reds.

But for the American League, the game presents the same old prickly problem. Why can't it ever win the All-Star Game?

The last time the AL was even in the matchup was in 1965, when the game was played at Metropolitan Stadium in nearby Bloomington, Minn. Rose went 0-for-2, but Willie Mays and Willie Stargell hit home runs that led the Nationals to a 6-5 victory, its seventh in eight games, and an 18-17 lead in the series.

Since then, "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," which helped popularize the Twin Cities, has come and gone. Metropolitan Stadium has been torn down and some vacant lots and warehouses in the downtown area have been transformed into the fluffy, white cloud that is the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome.

And, during that time, it's been all downhill for the AL — two victories in 19 years.

No one seriously believes that one exhibition game in the middle of the season determines which league is better, although the situation keeps nagging at those American Leaguers.

"I have no idea why it happens," said Kansas City's George Brett said. "I think this is probably the best team we've had in a long time. But it seems like something always happens late in the game — a wild pitch or a guy will walk two in a row, things like that. It's real strange."

Some say pitching, particularly the hard-throwers, has swung the advantage to the NL in recent years. Since 1973, NL pitchers have annually struck out more batters than their AL counterparts. But hits have been about even.

So what is it?

"The years I played, it seems we took the game more seriously than the American League did," said veteran Rose. "But I'll tell you, Sparky is going to try to win it."

Sparky is Sparky Anderson, the manager of the World Series champion Detroit Tigers who will guide the AL. He will also be trying to become the first manager to lead winning All-Star teams in both leagues, having won in 1976 and 1977 while with Rose and the Reds.

On Sunday, it was announced that both catchers elected as starters by the fans would miss the game because of injuries. Detroit's Lance Parrish will be replaced by Boston's Rich Gedman, and Gary Carter of the New York Mets will be replaced by Terry Kennedy of San Diego.

U.S. women's title Baker's first win

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Kathy Baker arrived at the practice range just 20 minutes before her tee-off time for the final round of the U.S. Women's Open, soft drink in one hand, sandwich in the other and obviously late.

It was the only thing that went wrong all day as Baker mastered the tough Baltusrol Golf Club on Sunday, firing a 2-under-par 70 for a three-stroke victory over Judy Clark in the 40th U.S. Women's Open.

Nancy Lopez, who led the tournament the opening two rounds and was one shot back heading into the final round, bogeyed three of the first four holes. She was never in the hunt in the final round, again failing to add the Open to her long list of triumphs.

Baker, meanwhile, made the Open her first triumph as a professional in impressive fashion. Her 72-hole total of 8-under-par 280 was just one shot off the Open record of 9-under set by Pat Bradley in 1981.

Baker took the lead for good with consecutive birdies on the seventh and eighth and made the biggest shot of the tournament on No. 16, hitting a seven iron to within three feet of the cup for a birdie. Clark bogeyed the same hole to fall four shots off the pace.

Baker said she was detained getting to the course Sunday and had to park in a lot on a hillside away from the clubhouse. Then she had to run back to her car because she forgot something.

"Then people stopped me for my autograph and finally I had to take a back route to get into the clubhouse," she said.

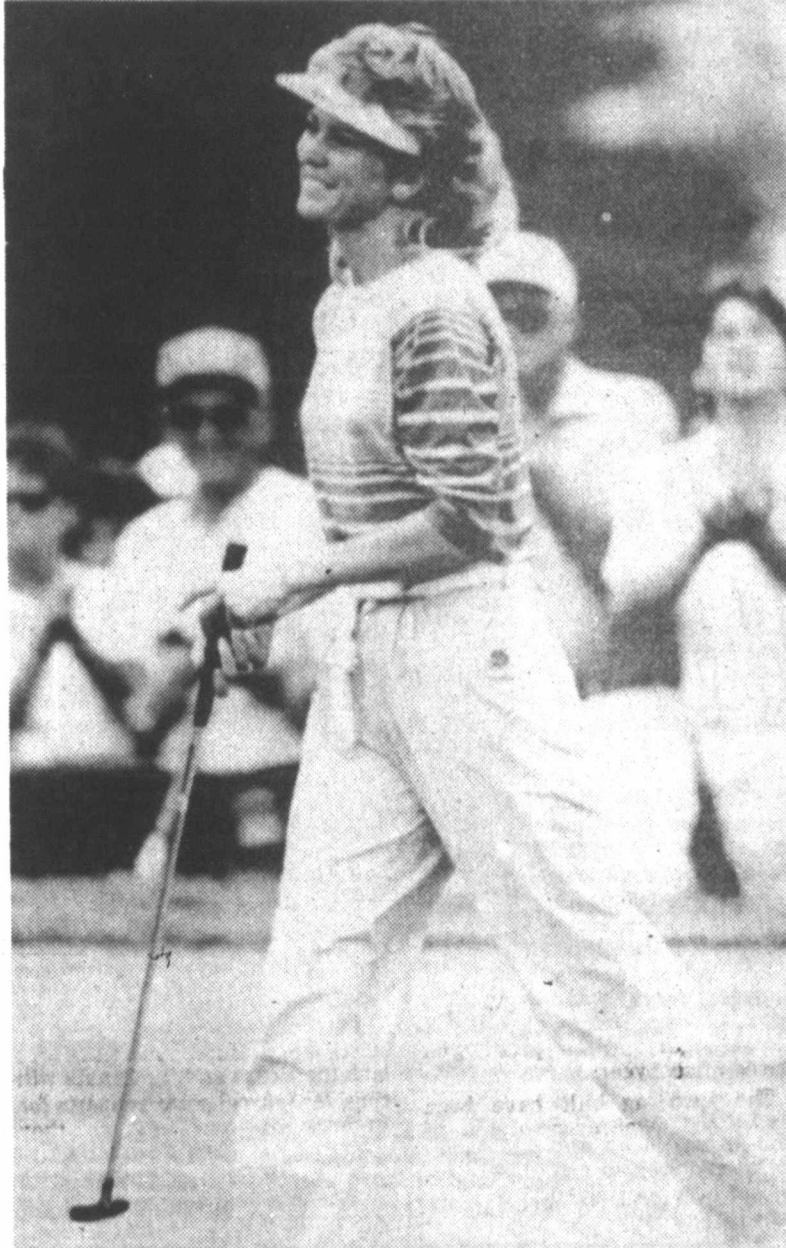

Meanwhile, Lopez was taking herself out of contention with bogeys on the first, second and fourth holes.

A 32-time winner on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, Lopez was looking to guarantee herself a spot in the LPGA Hall of Fame by winning her second major.

But it wasn't to be. She finished her round at 5-over-par 77, her first over-par round of the tournament.

Alvarez claimed third at 1-under-par 287, one shot ahead of Lopez and Coles. Alvarez, seeking her first professional victory, had a 75 and Coles a 76 on the 6,274-yard course.

Baker was the 1982 NCAA champion and was the low amateur in the Open in both 1981 and 1982. She earned $41,975 with the victory.

Winning putt leaves Baker smiling

Stars win uphill race to championship

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The 1985 United States Football League Championship wasn't a mirror image of the Baltimore Stars' season, but it was a fitting end to it.

The Stars, last year's champions, opened with a 1-3-1 record and struggled through the rest of the season, playoffs and right down to the last two minutes of their 28-24 win over the Oakland Invaders in the championship Sunday night.

"Last year it was easy," said Stars quarterback Chuck Fusina. "And it shouldn't have been. We'd have a fumble and it would bounce right into our arms. This year, we had to work for it, grind and spill blood for it."

Baltimore took the lead three times in the first half, only to be tied twice and finally overtaken in the third quarter.

Kelvin Bryant, the game's Most Valuable Player with 103 yards on 23 carries, scored two of his three touchdowns in the first 30 minutes to give Baltimore a 21-14 halftime lead.

But in the third quarter, Baltimore was showered with trouble, as it had been throughout its season. While the offense managed a paltry eight net yards in the third, Oakland took 24-21 lead on a 19-yard field goal by Novo Bojovic and a touchdown after a fumble by Baltimore running back Alan Harvin at his own 24.

Bryant put the Stars up 28-24 with 8:15 left on another seven-yard run, but on the ensuing kickoff, Shawn Faulkner dropped David Trout's kick and was nailed at his own four-yard line.

"I figured if they could go 96 yards on our defense, they deserved to be champions," said Baltimore Coach Jim Mora. "But they didn't."

'Louisiana Lightning' strikes Rangers again as NY scores sweep

NEW YORK (AP) — One month and a half away from his 35th birthday, Ron Guidry doesn't seem all that old to his opponents.

"He's still one hell of a pitcher," said Rangers Manager Bobby Valentine after the New York Yankees left-handers, who were called "Louisiana Lightning" during his earlier years, handcuffed Texas on just four hits Sunday en route to a 7-1 triumph.

The Yankees completed a four-game sweep of the weekend series.

Guidry, the American League's winningest pitcher at 12-3, won his 11th straight decision, tying him with San Diego's Andy Hawkins for the longest winning streak in the majors this year.

He did not walk a batter and retired 16 consecutive batters between the third and eighth innings.

Throwing just 92 pitches for his seventh complete game of the season, Guidry allowed only one baserunner past second until the ninth inning, when he lost his shutout bid. He also lowered his ERA to 2.58, second-best behind the 1.87 mark of Toronto's Dave Stieb.

"I just felt strong all day," said Guidry, who has recently mixed more off-speed pitches into his repertoire. Today, he fired fastballs.

"He's pitching as well as I've ever seen him," said catcher Ron Hassey. "Over the last seven or eight games, he's been in complete command of all his pitches."

Added Dave Winfield: "I'm sure Texas was glad to leave town. Ron had real good velocity and a nasty slider. You just knew he was going to be tough."

Flying under manager Billy

Martin, Guidry is now 74-22, while 70-43 under other managers.

"We've always gotten along fine," Martin said. "He's my kind of player. A pro and a competitor."

Off to his best start since his Cy Young season of 1978 when he was 25-3, Guidry has apparently shaken the professional and personal problems that nagged him last year when he suffered his first losing season as a pro with a 10-11 record.

"In spring training, my goal was to win 15 or 16 games. I wanted to prove that I could still pitch," Guidry said of his 1985 start.

Did he think he would pitch this well?

"No," Guidry said. "I'm still experimenting. I'm learning to pitch when I don't have a good curve or a good slider. It hasn't been an overnight change, but it has been a learning experience."

Winfield, playing as a designated hitter for the first time since 1982, ignited a five-run uprising in the second off loser Burt Hooton, 4-4, when he cracked his 12th homer of the year.

Mike Pagliarulo and Bobby Meacham had RBI singles. Omar Moreno doubled home the fourth run and Willie Randolph's sacrifice fly completed the scoring.

The victory was the 10th for New York on an 11-game homestand. The victory gave the Rangers their seventh loss in eight games.

New York added two runs off Texas reliever Chris Welsh in the sixth on an RBI triple by Moreno and a passed ball by Texas catcher Glenn Brummer.

Texas got on the board in the ninth when Toby Harrah doubled, went to third on a grounder and scored on Buddy Bell's sacrifice fly.

Pampa stars fall in finals

DUMAS — The Pampa All-Stars, fighting back out of the losers bracket, made it to the finals of age 16-18 tournament here Sunday, but lost a 6-5 decision to the host Dumas team in the last game.

Pampa had defeated Dumas 7-6 earlier in the day to stay alive and force another game in the double-elimination tournament.

Wad Howard was the winner in the first game and Gary Clark got the save. Top hitter were Juan Soto, Trace Robbins and Mike Killgo.

In the second game, Pampa led going into the last inning, but Dumas scored twice to take the victory.

Clark was the losing pitcher. Robbins and Brent Cryer played top defensive games.

Dumas will advance to the state tournament in Andrews.

Other members of the Pampa team were John Monthly, John Thomas, Bo Lake, Preston West, Derrick Colman and James Ellison.

Wayne Barkley managed the team. Coaches were Mike Summers and Gary Coleman.

Things change fast in NL race

By The Associated Press

Just a few weeks ago, National League fans were contemplating a replay of the 1984 championship series. The Chicago Cubs held down first place in the East and the San Diego Padres were the best in the West.

My, how times change.

As they head into the All-Star break, the Padres are only No. 2, albeit just one-half game behind the Los Angeles Dodgers, and the Cubs are reeling in fourth place, 7½ games behind the first-running St. Louis Cardinals.

The Cubs buried the Dodgers 10-4 Sunday, giving the Padres a chance to retake the West Division lead, but Terry Pendleton and Tito Landrum of the Cards did them in 2-1 in St. Louis.

Elsewhere Sunday, San Francisco defeated Pittsburgh 7-3 and Atlanta lambasted Philadelphia 12-3. Cincinnati nipped Montreal 5-4 in 10 innings and, in a night game, New York nosed out Houston 1-0.

On Sunday, the Cubs gave the Dodgers a good old-fashioned whipping as Keith Hernandez drove in four runs, three on a homer, and Ryne Sandberg hit two home runs to lead a 15-hit attack that ended LA's six-game winning streak.

Sandberg tagged loser Rick Honeycutt in the first and Jerry Reuss in the third with liners that sailed out of Wrigley Field, while Dennis Powell gave up Moreland's seventh-inning shot.

The Dodgers' only power came from Candy Maldonado, whose third-inning homer so surprised the Cubs they issued a protest and asked that the league inspect the bat for cork.

Cardinals 2, Padres 1

Pendleton homered in the seventh to lift St. Louis into a 1-1 tie with the Padres, then Vince Coleman doubled and Landrum singled in the eighth to give the Cardinals their seventh victory in eight games.

Tommy Herr, comparing these Cards to the 1982 world champions, reflected: "This club is better day in and day out. That team never lost more than three games in a row. This team has played better over longer periods of time."

But he cautioned: "That's not to say we're going to win it. The division is tougher than it was in '82."

Mets 1, Astros 0

In Houston, Dwight Gooden scattered five hits and struck out 11 batters to raise his season total to 153, tops in the majors. It was his 13th victory of the year, his sixth in a row, his eighth complete game and his fourth shutout.

Four double plays turned by the Mets didn't hurt, and neither did Bill Doran's eighth-inning error. It gave the Mets the game's only run and saddled Bob Knepper with the loss.

With Ronn Reynolds on second and Len Dykstra on first with singles, Kelvin Chapman hit a one-out grounder. Third baseman Denny Walling's throw forced Dykstra, but Doran's throw to first skipped past Glenn Davis and was kicked down the right field line by Dykstra, letting Reynolds score.

Giants 7, Pirates 3

Laskey, 2-11, ended a slide that stretched back to May 6, when he also beat the Pirates. He allowed two first-inning runs, then retired 15 consecutive batters before leaving the game in the sixth with a strained back.

David Green and Chili Davis homered for the Giants.

The game was delayed briefly by a bench-clearing fight. The Giants' Dan Gladden tackled pitcher Rick Rhoden after being hit with a pitch. Gladden and Rhoden were the only players ejected.

Braves 12, Phillies 3

In Atlanta, Pascual Perez, 1-7, won for the first time since Sept. 30, the last day of the 1984 season. He gave up five hits and two earned runs in 5 1-3 innings, then Rick Camp wrapped up Perez's first victory with his first save.

Bob Horner was a one-man wrecking crew against the Phillies with his 14th and 15th homers of the year, driving in five runs.

Reds 5, Expos 4

In Cincinnati, speed on the bases and timely hitting nudged the Reds past Montreal.

In the bottom of the ninth, Wayne Krenchicki singled, pinch-runner Gary Redus stole second and Dave Concepcion singled him in to tie the game 4-4. In the 10th, Cesar Cedeno singled off loser Gary Lucas, stole second and, after Pete Rose walked, Dave Parker singled for the winning run.

The Reds are third, four games off the Dodgers' pace.

Area scouts go to Philmont

CIMARRON, N.M. - A group of Skellytown, Pampa and Lefors area Scouts have completed a 12-day stay at Philmont Scout Ranch.

Philmont, which is operated by the Boy Scouts of America, is the world's largest camping facility, covering 214 square miles.

The Scouts are Cody Wheeler, John Stevens, Paul Brooks, Roy Williams and Kenny Williams. They are members of Scout Troops 410 and 560 sponsored by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. The group is under the adult leadership of Dale Thurum.

They are among more than 15,000 young Scouting men and women expected to hike Philmont's mountainous trails this summer.

During their 12-day stay, which began July 2, the Scouts were to have backpacked between 50 and 100 miles, visiting several of the ranch's 25 mountain camps to be instructed in such things as rock climbing, western lore, conservation and other programs.

In addition, they were accompanied for their first three days by a Philmont Ranger who instructed them in the basics of backpacking and wilderness camping.

This year is the 75th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America and the 44th anniversary of Philmont. More than 400,000 people have hiked its trails since the ranch was given to the Boy Scouts by oilman Waite Phillips.

ANN-MARGRET

JOHN DENVER

Names in News

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Ann-Margret, 44, is making a last-ditch effort to attain one goal still unfulfilled after a successful career in film and television: having a baby, according to a published interview.

"This is my last effort, and then I will be quiet about it," she said in the August issue of Redbook magazine. "No one will ever hear me speak of it again."

Ann-Margret, who appeared in films such as "Viva Las Vegas," "Carnal Knowledge" and "Tommy," is helping raise the three children her husband, former actor Roger Smith, had in a previous marriage.

She said she is trying to increase chances of getting pregnant by taking hormones. "No one gets everything he or she wants," she said, "but I'm really a very lucky lady."

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — T-shirts bearing photographs of Prince Sultan Bin Salman, a celebrity since he became the first Arab astronaut, are selling "like hot cakes" merchants said.

Sultan, 28, who traveled aboard the shuttle Discovery in June to help launch a communications satellite for the Arab League, has been accorded a hero's welcome across the kingdom since his return from the United States.

"Young Saudis are buying the T-shirt like hot cakes," Ahmed Asiri, a merchant, said Sunday. "Each is buying more than three shirts."

One Arab diplomat compared the prince's popularity with that of rock star Michael Jackson in the United States. Jackson's records are official; banned in the theocratic kingdom.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — John Denver said he would like to write a song about space flight, but doing so will require a trip aboard the space shuttle first.

"My real hope is to be able to fly in a space shuttle one day," Denver, whose hits include "Rocky Mountain High" and "Country Roads," said Saturday during the Marshall Space Flight Center's 25th anniversary picnic.

But, he said, "I'm not going to write a song about space until I'm up there and can write about the real thing."

Denver said he also believes that problems "faced by mankind can be resolved with steps directed toward the space efforts.

"And nothing is as great as what we are doing to bring space closer to mankind," he added.

Town throws thank-you party for firefighters

By The Associated Press
Firefighters and residents of Ojai celebrated together hours after the largest of California's wildfires was contained, as crews gained the upper hand over blazes that had blackened more than 1 million acres in the West. Weary firefighters were heading for home Sunday, when the number of people on fire lines had declined to 10,000 from the peak of 17,000 last week, said Pauline McGinty, spokeswoman for the Interagency Fire Center in Boise, Idaho. "It's getting very quiet around here," she said of the command center that has coordinated the battle against the 3,500 fires ravaging 12 Western states since June 27. "They're sending the troops home." Flames still flashed today across parts of Arizona, California, Montana, New Mexico, Idaho and South Dakota. A natural smoke screen hampered firefighters' efforts to halt the largest of the fires still out of control, a 27,535-acre blaze south of California's scenic Big Sur, south of San Francisco. "There's a pall of smoke over everything," U.S. Forest Service spokesman Frank Fetsher said. "It makes it impossible to see from an airplane where it is or isn't." Elsewhere in California, 11 fires were contained, controlled or extinguished over the weekend. The city of Ojai, 70 miles northwest of Los Angeles, threw a thank-you party for the firefighters who kept a 116,000-acre fire out of the town of about 7,000 people. Mounds of food, including a truckload of ice cream, were donated for the celebration, and many people offered off-duty crews the use of swimming pools. "They saved our town and we wanted to thank them," said Ted Fleming, who organized a baked goods drive. "They worked so hard and put their lives on the line for a few dollars. ... Everyone in town was dying to say thanks, but didn't know how." Firefighter Larry Schmitt of Blue River, Wis., said, "It makes you feel like you've done something worthwhile — like you've just slayed the dragon." To the north, a fire near Los Gatos, which burned 13,900 acres in the Santa Cruz Mountains near San Francisco last week and sent 4,500 people fleeing, was contained Saturday after gutting at least 20 homes in five days, said Dick Mauldin of the California Department of Forestry.

Body found in trunk of car

HOUSTON (AP) — An unemployed 31-year-old man has been charged with murder in the death of a Mormon bishop and father of seven children whose decomposing body was discovered in the trunk of his car, authorities say. The body of Ronald Gierisch, 39, was discovered early Sunday by church members who started a search when they learned that the newly appointed bishop had been missing since leaving for Galveston on a business trip

Friday afternoon. The body was found in the man's car at a shopping center parking lot. Paul Jeffery Connall, 31, was charged with murder in Gierisch's death after he was arrested at a bar carrying Gierisch's wallet and credit cards. Connall was held in lieu of $10,000 bond. Homicide Lt. J.R. Swaim said Connall told police he was walking along Interstate 10 when Gierisch offered to give him a ride.

Belgian deputy premier resigns after stadium riot

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Deputy Premier Jean Gol today resigned to protest the interior minister's refusal to step down after the Brussels soccer stadium riot in which 38 people were killed. On Saturday, Premier Wilfried Martens' center-right government narrowly won parliamentary a vote of confidence on its handling of the May 29 riot. During the debate, Interior Minister Charles-Ferdinand Nothomb refused to resign, saying he had no responsibility in the drama. "What happened Saturday in Parliament is horrible," Gol said in the letter in which he submitted his resignation to Prime Minister Wilfried Martens. Gol is also justice minister. As interior minister, Nothomb is in charge of all police forces. A bipartisan committee issued a report a week ago charging police with failure to prevent the violence, in which British fans attacked Italian rivals at a European Cup final. Most of the casualties came when a wall collapsed under pressure from the mob. The riot was denounced around the world, and English teams were barred from playing in matches outside Britain.

Syrian-sponsored peace plan due

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Five Syrian observers arrived to oversee a Syrian-sponsored peace plan to end militia rule in the Moslem sector of Beirut and at the hijack-plagued airport. The cease-fire plan, which calls for disarming and disbanding all Moslem militias in west Beirut starting today, was adopted in the Syrian capital, Damascus, last week by Syrian officials and Lebanon's 13 main Moslem leaders. The Christians, the Moslems' main rivals in Lebanon's 10-year civil war, were not part of the new plan. There are few intermilitia clashes in Christian east Beirut, dominated by the Phalange Party and the Lebanese Forces militia. The Damascus meeting followed fierce fighting between Moslem militias in west Beirut and in the northern port of Tripoli. The Syrian observers will sit on a committee of Moslem political leaders, army officers and militia commanders charged with enforcing peace in west Beirut. Prime Minister Rashid Karami of Tripoli, a Sunni Moslem, presided when the committee held its first meeting Friday and agreed on an outline for a new security plan for the capital. Past security plans have failed to end the clashes or the 10-year-old war, in which an estimated 100,000 people have been killed. Syria has an estimated 25,000 peacekeeping troops in eastern and northern Lebanon under an Arab League mandate. Syria resumed its role as the main power broker in Lebanon with the collapse of the U.S.-led peacekeeping mission in Beirut last year and the withdrawal of most Israeli forces from southern Lebanon this year. This is the first peace plan that Syria has put forward since the withdrawal of the Israelis and tests its ability to control the Moslem militias it supports. The Syrians also are expected to recommend tighter security at Beirut International Airport, site of a dozen airplane hijackings in six years. After a TWA jetliner was hijacked to Beirut on June 14 and 39 American passengers and crew were held hostage in Beirut for 17 days, Reagan canceled U.S. landing rights of Lebanon's two air carriers and called for a boycott of the airport. The United States said it will lift the embargo when airport security is restored. The airport is now in the hands of the Shiite Moslems' Amal militia and the Druse. The Sunday Times of London said Syria will try to secure the release of 11 Westerners.
