An Amarillo man is dead and his estranged wife is in critical condition following a shooting incident Sunday night in south Pampa.

According to police reports, Samuel Zepeda, 39, of 1732 E. 8th in Amarillo shot himself about 9:30 p.m. Sunday at 825 S. Barnes.

His wife, Maria Ester Zepeda, 39, was listed in critical condition at mid-morning today at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

Police Chief J. J. Ryzman said the department received a call at 9:35 p.m. yesterday from Mary Wilton, 829 S. Barnes, that a man was shooting a gun in the 800 block of South Barnes.

When police Sgt. Richard Pack arrived at the scene, he found a woman lying partially on the inside and partially on the porch of the front door at 825 S. Barnes. A man was sitting beside her on the porch, with a gun in his possession.

According to reports, Sgt. Pack drew his service revolver and ordered the man to drop his weapon. When the man failed to do so, Pack again ordered him to drop the gun.

At that time, the man then reportedly pointed the gun, a .38-caliber revolver, to his own head and shot himself in the right side of the head. Chief Ryzman said the man apparently died instantly.

The man was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace David Potter.

The woman, who had apparently been shot three times, was transported to the Coronado Community Hospital emergency room. She was initially admitted to the hospital, but then CCH officials decided to transfer her to Northwest Texas Hospital Emergency Receiving Center, where she underwent surgery earlier today.

Ryzman said this morning that at least one bullet had been recovered close to her heart.

She was listed in stable but serious condition early this morning, but Ryzman said her condition had been downgraded to critical at mid-morning.

Ryzman said the couple was married but had been separated for about two years. She has been living in Pampa, where she has been employed with a local fast-food restaurant.

Though the woman was shot three times and the man once, police believe a total of six shots had been fired, Ryzman said.

Pampa police officers were assisted by Department of Public Safety officers at the scene.

Tax reform plan not 'revenue neutral'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's embattled tax overhaul proposal has hit another bump in the road, but opinions differ over whether the obstacle reduces chances of passage or will prove only a minor detour.

The new problem came in a report last week from the congressional Joint Tax Committee which said the president's tax plan would result in $25.1 billion in lost revenue from 1986 through 1990.

The administration has claimed all along that its massive overhaul of the tax code was revenue neutral — that it would raise essentially the same amount in taxes as the current system.

News that the plan would in fact worsen the government's already huge deficit problem sent the administration back to the drawing board.

In a joint statement with congressional tax leaders, Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III pledged that the administration would "move quickly to assure revenue neutrality" with additional tax proposals to be submitted to Congress by Sept. 1.

However, Baker gave no hint of where the extra money would come from, an omission that some observers said pointed up the administration's ticklish situation.

"This is going to create a major problem for the administration," predicted Roger Brinner, an economist with Data Resources Inc., a private forecasting firm. "They are in the same fix as a parent who finds he has overpromised his children on what their Christmas presents will be."

Brinner said the administration, to make up the lost revenue, will have to take back a promised tax reduction for some segment of the population, either for individuals or corporations.

Changing the proposal's impact on individuals would be politically difficult while getting more money from corporations — who already would be paying more as a group than under current law — would raise further business resistance, Brinner said.

David Burton, a tax analyst for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said efforts to raise additional revenue would "hinder the tax reform process since it will mean that many more people whose ox is gored."

But Jack Albertine, president of the U.S. Business Conference, a coalition of high-growth companies, praised the administration's handling of the situation, saying the offer to quickly correct any revenue shortfall removed a major stumbling block.

"The amount of revenue needed is small enough that only a very minor adjustment to the bill, which all sides could agree to, will be needed," he said.

The shortfall between current law and the administration proposal is less than 1 percent of the nearly $3 trillion in tax receipts that are anticipated between 1986 and 1990.

Albertine said that a "slight strengthening" of the proposed minimum tax for corporations or moving back the effective dates of some of the tax reductions would be enough to make up the lost revenue.

Other tax lobbyists suggested that some of the proposals mentioned in the Treasury Department's original tax package, which would have taken an even bigger bite from corporations, might be resurrected.

U.S. invites Soviets to watch nuclear test

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States today invited the Soviet Union to send a team of observers to Nevada to monitor the next American nuclear weapons test, it was announced today.

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said it was an unconditional offer and was intended to demonstrate that the United States will "go the extra mile" to get results in nuclear arms control talks.

Moscow Speakes said, and there was no immediate response. "We look forward to a positive and timely Soviet response," he said.

Speakes said he did not know when the next test would be conducted at the government's underground test site in Nevada.

Announcing the U.S. offer, Speakes said, "As a demonstration of our seriousness, the president has extended to the Soviet leadership our invitation for a Soviet team to observe and to measure a nuclear test at our Nevada test site."

This offer, which is unconditional, is a unilateral step which clearly demonstrates the U.S. intention to go the extra mile.

The Soviet experts are invited to bring any instrumentation devices that the Soviet Union deems necessary to measure the yield of this test," Speakes said.

"This U.S. initiative demonstrates our commitment to achieving verifiable limitations in nuclear testing. We welcome Soviet interest in joining us in developing and putting into place a truly verifiable and durable limit of nuclear testing," he added.

Speakes coupled his announcement with sharp criticism of the Soviet stance in arms control talks, now in recess in Geneva, Switzerland.

"We regret that the Soviet Union to date has been unwilling to negotiate in concrete and detailed terms" to achieve arms reductions, Speakes said.

"While we believe the most direct path is through equitable, verifiable reductions, we also believe that verifiable limitations on nuclear testing can play a useful though more modest role," Speakes added.

President Reagan proposed last year that the United States and Soviet Union exchange visits of experts to measure yields of nuclear tests in each other's country. Speakes said the Soviet Union "has refused to agree to this practical and fair-minded approach."

Reagan would quit if he became severely ill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, back to an Oval Office schedule 16 days after cancer surgery, says he is not troubled by fear of a recurrence, but would step down from the presidency if he became ill and "knew I could not fulfill the requirements."

Reagan, who spent the weekend at the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., returned to the White House Sunday waving to reporters and others gathered on the South Lawn.

"Feel fine," the president, 74, said in an interview with Hugh Sides of Time Magazine that was released by the White House on Sunday.

"Every day I'm amazed at the improvement," Reagan said. "Only a few days ago to bend in the middle, somebody had to help. Now, I can get up all by myself."

Reagan gave the interview on Thursday, the first since the July 13 surgery in which a 2-foot section of his colon was removed.

When asked if the fear of cancer would intrude into his life, he said, "No. I've never been that way about things of that kind."

The president said he was strengthened by his faith in God, and "I can't doubt that whatever He decides will be the right decision."

He was also asked if he would turn the presidency over to Vice President George Bush if he should develop cancer and require treatment.

"I can't foresee anything of that kind," he said. "That's on the basis of all that I've been told by the doctors who are involved in this. ... But, as I said once when they were talking about my age before I was elected the first time, if I found myself ever physically incapacitated where I, in my own mind, knew I could not fulfill the requirements, I'd be the first one to say so and step down."

The president's schedule today included a meeting in the Oval Office with Adm. William J. Crowe, his nominee to be chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

In some of his public appearances last week, his first week out of the hospital, Reagan sounded hoarse to some who heard him. Just before a Cabinet meeting on Thursday, he attributed the trouble with his voice to a tube that was inserted into his nasal passages after the operation to draw gas or fluid from his stomach.

"The longer I get away from that tube that was down my throat the better it will get," he said.

In his weekly radio address from Camp David on Saturday, in which he said that his administration's policies are helping blacks to escape poverty, the president's familiar husky voice seemed to be suffering little if any ill effect.

He said Mrs. Reagan is "very concerned that there be no overdoing" and "very insistent that no one's going to overwork me."

What makes a frog jump?

DOUSMAN, Wis. (AP) — One thought beer might do the trick, another used a lure of a dead fly on a string with simulated buzzing, while a third contestant in the Wisconsin State Championship Frog Jump relied on the old standby — advice from Mom.

"I'm just going to jump and then hit my hands on the ground real loud and then say, 'rah, rah,'" 5-year-old Erin Hendricks said Sunday. "My mom told me to do it that way."

People from as far away as California, Idaho and Arizona came for the 30th annual jump in this southeastern Wisconsin city of about 1,100 near Milwaukee.

Some of the 306 contestants, such as the hometown family teams of Millane and Hettich, are longtime contenders and compete with an intense ferocity.

Both families also sell frogs at the contest as a sideline and give the proceeds — at $1 a frog — to the local Peewee League, which plays on the field where the contest is held.

Freckle-faced Erin Hendricks pinned her hopes on Georgie, a leopard frog she kept in a tin can topped with a piece of window screen.

"We practiced with a salt shaker," Erin's mother, Debbie, said. "She'd shout at the shaker and I'd make it jump."

"We had salt all over the kitchen," her husband,

Kurt, added.

Despite earnest encouragement, Erin's frog jumped only 7 feet, 8 inches, far behind the winner, entered by Peggy Millane, 38, of the Millane team. Ms. Millane's frog, Scooter Two, made it 17 feet, 8½ inches in the allowed three hops, a bit short of the 19 foot-3½-inch state record.

Ms. Millane's winning technique was doing frog-style leaps to encourage Scooter Two, although she fell on her stomach with the third leap.

Contestants in the two-day event were not allowed to touch the frogs and the prevailing techniques seemed to consist of blowing on the frog, hitting the ground behind it and yelling encouragement. One man poured beer into the can holding his entry.

Although many people wait until the last minute and buy their frogs at the contest, some, such as Eric Varous, 9, planned ahead. Eric called contest planners Thursday asking what he should feed his frog until the contest.

He was told to feed it live flies, but the best he could find was dead ones.

Carrying the training strategy a step farther, the enterprising lad tied a string around a fly Sunday, dangled it in front of his frog, Fred, and simulated a live fly, complete with buzzing.

Even though Fred bit the ploy, he managed only 8 feet, 3½ inches in his three jumps.

Soviet official wants better climate

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — The Soviet Union's first new foreign minister in three decades began his first foreign trip today by calling for a radical improvement in the tense world political climate.
Eduard A. Shevardnadze, 57, provided a written statement on arrival in Finland for the 10th anniversary of the Helsinki Accords, saying they could be a foundation for improved relations.
The smiling, silver-haired minister, wearing a gray suit and striped tie, swiftly left the airport by limousine after arriving on a special Aeroflot flight to the Finnish capital.
Shevardnadze did not speak to journalists at the airport, but said in a statement distributed after his departure that the Soviet Union had a "deep commitment" to the 1975 Helsinki agreements.

The statement said the Helsinki pact "remains a good foundation for the development of mutual understanding and cooperation in Europe, and not only in Europe."
"That is why we believe that this foundation should be protected and its erosion prevented," the new Soviet minister said.
"We are convinced that the current tense situation in the world calls for joint efforts aimed at radically improving the political climate in Europe and in international relations as a whole," he said.

Helsinki is Shevardnadze's first official appearance outside the Soviet Union since his appointment 27 days ago.
U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz was scheduled to arrive later today, and the two foreign policy chiefs are to meet Wednesday.
Both Soviet and U.S. officials say the two will discuss human rights, weapons and plans for the November summit between President Reagan and Soviet party leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

Downtown revitalization studied

By BOB HART
Pampa City Manager
The city commission has recently instructed the staff to investigate participation by the city in the Texas Main Street Program.
The Main Street Program is a new philosophy that has been developed within the last six years for revitalizing central business districts. The concept is simple: rehabilitation of existing structures capitalizing on the unique character of the buildings coupled with development of progressive marketing and management techniques.
Preservation and rehabilitation of historic commercial buildings provide the necessary image for the downtown area and serve as a unifying factor to encourage area merchants and building owners to reinvest in downtown.
While this historic image can establish the tone for the revitalization effort, a commitment to a fulltime project manager and utilization of progressive marketing and management techniques are critical elements in the main street concept.
In most of the towns in Texas, the downtown area is in a serious state of decline. The automobile and the growth of regional shopping centers have greatly reduced the traditional role of main street, in small to medium size communities, as a principal center of economic activity.

Many government programs, such as Urban Renewal and various city beautification programs, have failed to halt the decline of main street. The Texas Main Street Project of the Texas Historical Commission works to bring this proven approach of downtown revitalization to towns across the state.
Each year, the project accepts applications for official designation to the program from cities with populations under 50,000. Five cities are selected annually. The cities are required to fund a fulltime project manager who is employed by the city and reports to the city manager.
In turn, the Texas Main Street Project works with each of these communities for three years, providing start-up assistance and developing more local initiative and expertise in the second and third years.
Training and supervision of the local project manager is provided as well as professional assistance and supervision in the design, restoration, marketing, parking and other areas where the community does not have local expertise.

In the first four years of the state project, more than $74 million was reinvested in the downtowns of official and self-initiated Main Street cities, and 721 new businesses came to these cities' downtowns.
These figures indicate that the Main Street concept of economic development within the context of historical preservation works. It is the aim of the Texas Main Street Project to have many Texas towns follow the successful models in the main street network and take a renewed interest in the revitalization of their downtown areas.
It is this entire concept that the city commission has expressed a strong desire for Pampa to pursue. This is a unique opportunity for us in Pampa representing not only our community but the Panhandle area as well. We are preparing an application to submit to the state prior to the third week in August.
If you have any questions on this program or would like additional information, please do not hesitate to contact me at 665-8481.
If you feel this program would be beneficial to the community, it would be helpful for us to receive a letter from you indicating that you support this concept in Pampa. We will include your letter in our application.

El Paso grows as drug distribution center

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — More than $100 million worth of cocaine has been seized so far this month in this border city, which is becoming more attractive as a stateside hub for drug smugglers, according to narcotics agents.

In addition to the cocaine seizures, authorities say they also have broken up a network with the arrest here of several people who was transporting heroin to Chicago.

El Paso's central location and its closeness to Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, make it an ideal launching point for Latin American smugglers to markets throughout the United States, officials said.

The increasingly heavy drug enforcement elsewhere complicates the problem in El Paso, where coordination among federal agencies to patrol the Mexican-United State border and stop the flow of drugs has increased.

The South — and Florida in particular — has been targeted by the Drug Enforcement Administration and other agencies in an attempt to stop drugs from Latin America and the Caribbean, federal officials said.

The attack there has shifted drug traffic to Texas, they said.

"We think El Paso has become an important corridor. We, of course, are paying attention to it, particularly in light of the recent seizures," said

Horace Cavett, deputy director of the El Paso Intelligence Center.

The center pools information about drug shipments from nine agencies and tips off law enforcement offices nationwide when the drugs are coming.

In what narcotics agents called the Southwest's biggest cocaine bust, 528 pounds of the drug were seized in and near El Paso in mid-July.

The four El Paso residents arrested were described by authorities as "mules" who ferried the drug for large-scale traffickers, possibly to Los Angeles and Denver, the Dallas Morning News reported Sunday.

Last week, nine El Pasoans were arrested on charges of conspiring to aid a Mexican heroin operation serving the Chicago area. The suspects were among 134 people in six states indicted in what officials said was a family-run drug smuggling network.

No drugs were confiscated from the nine El Pasoans charged in the case, who are jailed without bond pending hearings this week.

"As time goes on, they are going to find that it's going to cost them dearly if they continue to operate through El Paso," said FBI agent-in-charge Ron Hoverson.

The FBI is somewhat of a newcomer on the scene.

The agency began handling drug investigations only two years ago.

About the same time, a push began in Congress to allow the military to assist in drug cases. Due to legal limitations, the assistance has come in the form of Air Force and Navy surveillance flights, not in arrests and seizures.

The use of AWACS (Airborne Warning and Control System) aircraft has been cited as especially helpful. The high-flying jets' radar supplements ground-based systems that can be fooled by low-flying airplanes.

Another high-technology weapon in the government's arsenal is a system of seismographic sensors along the border to detect foot traffic. Hidden in bushes or cactus near known corridors of illegal alien movement, the antenna-like devices alert immigration officials to movement.

Sometimes it's a cow. Sometimes it's a string of aliens. Sometimes it's a man with a bale of marijuana on his back, authorities said.

But most of the contraband — especially the less obvious packages of heroin and cocaine — escapes detection.

Cocaine and heroin have been found inside hollowed-out pineapples and in shipments of furniture. Most recently, use of tanker trucks and the propane tanks of pickup trucks has become widespread.

For the past several years, the government has coordinated its anti-drug war in an El Paso office building with the El Paso Intelligence Center. So far this year, EPIC tips have led to seizures of 2.5 million pounds of marijuana, deputy director Cavett said.

"We at EPIC would not take credit for it. Never. The operational field units always get credit for any seizures," he said.

EPIC also houses an office of the Reagan administration's newest anti-drug effort, the National Narcotics Border Interdiction System.

"NNBIS has been helping out the enforcement groups by obtaining military assistance, radar, the AWACS flights and that sort of thing," Cavett said. "We (EPIC) are more in the intelligence role."

"The center has been very helpful and effective to a large number of law enforcement officials, from Miami to California," he said.

The center and the Reagan administration have been taken to task in Congress for their drug-fighting tactics. This year, a General Accounting Office report criticized the effort as ineffective and uncoordinated, citing interagency rivalry — the quest to get credit for busts — as a definite problem.

Baldness drug originally for high blood pressure

HOUSTON (AP) — Some doctors are prescribing a drug for high blood pressure to balding patients although manufacturers of the product and the Food and Drug Administration warn of its uncompleted hair growth testing.

The drug, called Minoxidil, is the latest in the long line of products for baldness that is stirring enthusiasm among legitimate medical people as it is among operators of hair clinics that advertise the product as a "new breakthrough."

FDA officials and the Upjohn Co., who market the product under the brand name Loniten, are urging consumers to stay away from the new drug until it gets FDA approval for use on the scalp.

Studies on the baldness drug started in 1983 and are not completed, the FDA and Upjohn warn.

Upjohn first marketed the drug in the early 1970s as a hypertension medication that works by dilating blood vessels. In early trials, patients complained about an undesirable side effect — hair growth in undesirable places like lips, cheeks and backs.

"No only did Loniten lower blood pressure, but it also grew hair," explains Upjohn spokesman Jim Shamp. "So after getting Loniten approved by the FDA we felt we could go back and look at hair growth."

Despite the warnings against using the drug for baldness, some people are being persistent.

Those unable to get minoxidil from their doctors seek out clinics that charge two or three times as much money for the product and may not provide appropriate medical supervision, officials say.

Although initial tests on the drug show it to be safe, there's lots of disagreement about its effectiveness.

"I don't think it works that well," said Dr. Fred Castrow, a dermatologist. "The reports were very glowing at first, but it probably works on less than one-third of the people who use it."

But Dr. Jerry Dickson, president of the Houston Dermatological Society, is optimistic, particularly after his first totally bald patient treated with minoxidil showed up several months later with peach fuzz on the top of his head.

Now he prescribes the drug for 15-20 patients, including two women, he said.

"It's been pretty well proven that minoxidil can grow hair," said Dr. John Wolf, chairman of the dermatology department at Baylor College of Medicine, where more than 100 patients have tried the new drug. "I'm not promoting the product — and I have very mixed feelings about it. But it's very exciting."

New prison board member says

Discipline is needed in Texas prisons

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) — A member of the state prison board, who was greeted with a barrage of curses and a glass of water poured on his head during a recent visit to inmates, has concluded that more discipline is needed behind bars.

James Parsons says he gets the feeling of "the reality of prisons" during his visits to various prison units.

"If you're going to run a prison, you have to visit them to find out the reality of prisons," he said. "This is it. These people don't know how to discipline themselves, and the courts won't let us. That's what we need to change."

Parsons, a Palestine lawyer, was appointed by Gov. Mark White to the Texas Department of Corrections board in February. Even before his appointment, Parsons periodically made unannounced visits to prison units around Palestine.

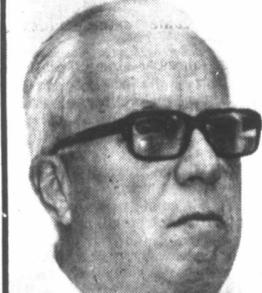

During a recent visit to the Beto I Unit, Parsons was greeted by inmates in the disciplinary unit by a slew of curses. One prisoner threw water on his head.

"I've walked the prisons and seen how it truly is," he said. "I don't believe the federal court has Forecast: Sunny and hot, less than a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms.

In other words, no relief in sight.

In hot times, cool thoughts are in order.

Remember the last time you plopped yourself under a shade tree beside a rippling stream and let that gentle breeze wash over you?

Oops, sorry. This is the Texas Panhandle. There are no rippling streams and very few trees big enough to sit under.

Think about that time last winter when the windshield was frosted over, you had forgotten to bring gloves and the only semblance of an ice scraper available was a credit card.

Or perhaps it wasn't so many months ago when you huddled with your neighbors in the bleachers at a football game and cursed the cold dizzle or howling wind that was leaking in along the back of your coat collar.

Picture a cold slice of watermelon. You bite into it and the juice runs down your chin. You're getting all sticky, but who cares?

Feel better yet?

Conjure up visions of a bowl of homemade ice cream. Then recall the time — maybe years ago, maybe not so long ago — when you took such a big spoonful that shock waves caused excruciating pain in the center of your forehead.

How about that January morning when you got up early, checked the weather and wore a light jacket to work? Then the cold front whistled through later in the morning and the icy north wind seemed to cut right through your body.

Chilling moments are never appreciated — until the sizzling days of summer arrive.

When the sun beats down day after day, burning once green grass to a nasty brown, people tend to wilt a bit, too.

Perhaps somebody will eventually come up with a mathematical way to measure just how much a person's mental and physical capacity diminishes in proportion to heat radiating from a car steering wheel.

Outside of a few sun worshippers and the people who are into weather patterns, not many people get excited about day after day of temperatures hovering in the near 100-degree range. And in today's world of tanning salons, the "bronze is beautiful" crowd probably could do without all that oppressive sunshine, too.

Once the cicadas start singing their maddening dirge, strength in the human sector seems to ebb. Relief seems so far away.

At that point, even little thoughts seem comforting.

Maybe you should take a slight detour on the way home, just so the car air conditioner has enough time to purge the stale, stifling heat and produce some refreshing coolness.

Relish the thought of turning your home air conditioning to its lowest level — hang the cost — and imagine yourself being nestled in a bed of frozen pizzas for a couple of hours.

Lucky folks will be able, in desperation, to get some tangible escape by plunging into a nearby swimming pool. Everybody else has to settle for a cool shower or bath.

One thing is for sure, the heat is on for at least a few more weeks. Take the best posture: Count on sweat and toil while trying to hold back the tears.

But to a certain degree, the difference between warm and hot depends on a person's mental state.

In that vein, it might be wise to remember a slang expression that nearly always seems to find its way into the vocabulary of current times — be cool.

on reform and his appointments show it," said Harry Whittington, a former prison board member.

"Mr. Parsons is simply carrying the message the governor wants to get across. It's all a pretty sad politicization of the board."

Parsons smiles at the criticism. "Oh, I'm not a shill for anyone, but I sure do like Mark White," he said. "I'm an East Texas conservative Democrat, and when he talks, I listen."

Parsons said White has never asked him to run interference for him on the board.

"I think the governor wants to see the system operated on an orderly basis, see the violence cease and have the prison control the prisoners — not the other way around," he said.

Parsons, an avowed conservative on prison issues, feels the reform movement has swung too far in favor of inmates.

"I get tickled when people call me anti-reform," Parsons said. "I'm the reformist on the board because I want to get the prisons back to a lawful, disciplined system."

WHEN LIFE HANDS YOU A LEMON...

We've all heard the saying, but sometimes we don't know how to turn our lemons to lemonade.

Jesus experienced the same feelings. In Matthew 8:20, He said, "Foxes have holes and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man has no place to lay his head."

But Jesus also knew the answer to frustrations. He said in the gospel of John, "Yet I am not alone for my father is with me. I have told you these things so that in me you may have peace...take heart! I have overcome the world."

With Jesus' help we can turn our lemons to lemonade.

BECAUSE HE CARED, WE CARE.

Opinion

Tax increase not answer to deficit

Pessimists are saying the American economy is heading for a recession as early as next year. Optimists are saying that slower growth signifies only a pause as businesses and consumers defer spending in anticipation of lower interest rates, lower oil prices and lower tax rates. Either way, this hardly seems the time for the tax increase some in Congress are pushing privately as the only possible road to deficit reductions during the current budget debate.

Unemployment for June remained steady at 7.3 percent for the fifth consecutive month. Growth rates have been similarly disappointing this year. First-quarter growth was an anemic .3 percent. The second quarter saw a rebound to a modestly healthy 3 percent, but aggregate growth this year is still running at a lackluster rate of 1.7 percent. There are other signs of weakness. Corporate profits are down, and the troubled manufacturing sector continues to lose ground.

Let the economists argue about whether these are portents of a 1986 recession or merely a predictable pause after the 1983-84 boom. Our guess is the latter, but there is room for honest debate. The point is that a tax increase now could only make a weakening economy weaker still.

A tax increase that took money out of consumers' pockets would diminish demand and slow economic activity accordingly. New taxes on corporations would mean less capital available for growth-promoting investment. In both cases, fewer new jobs would be created for the more than 8 million Americans who have yet to share in the benefits of the economic upturn that began at the end of 1982.

Ironically, a tax increase intended to shrink the deficits would be more likely to increase them. If the pessimists are right and recession awaits next year, adding the extra burden of new taxes could only deepen the recession. And, inasmuch as deficits typically grow during recessions, a more severe recession would produce a deficit to match. If, conversely, the optimists are right, a tax increase would at the very least risk choking off the growth that is actually shrinking the deficit as a percentage of gross national product.

Another tax hike would risk making the deficit larger while giving a weak-willed Congress what it craves but most not have: another fix to feed the spending addiction.

Hope ahead for the Fed

The best news the economy has had recently is that Lyle Gramley, a Carter appointee, is stepping down early from his post as a member of the Federal Reserve's Board of Governors.

This, together with the imminent expiration of the term of Charles Partee, means that President Reagan could finally have a working majority (four) on the Fed Board to support his policies.

This just might encourage Paul Volcker to do as he promised back in 1983 and step down as chairman next January, thus allowing the president to pick his own chairman.

Unfortunately, standing in Reagan's way is Sen. Jake Garn's (R-Utah) Senate Banking Committee and its overwhelmingly pro-Volcker bureaucracy. If the Senate Republicans lose their majority in the 1986 elections they have only themselves, not Ronald Reagan, to blame, as they have consistently undermined the president's agenda and appointments to the detriment of their own cause.

Perhaps the most egregious, yet least-publicized example of this was Garn's decision to use his position to pressure President Reagan to reappoint Volcker in June 1983.

Most of Reagan's economic advisers, including then-Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, who strongly opposed to this decision - and with very good reasons.

Democrat Volcker deliberately inflated the money supply to a 17 percent annual rate during the election months (May-October) of 1980 in a vain attempt to bail Jimmy Carter out. Then, instead of immediately embarking on a GRADUAL course of monetary growth-reduction, as called for in President Reagan's January 1981 message, Volcker waited until nearly April before he slammed on the credit brakes so hard he pushed the economy into its second "Volcker-recession" in two years. This sabotaged the Reagan tax-cut program almost a year before it could take effect.

More important, as the quintessential symbol of the Federal Reserve's own all-powerful and unaccountable central-banking bureaucracy, Volcker has stood as the main barrier to one of President Reagan's most important strategic goals: monetary reform, the replacement of central bank manipulation with standards and rules.

Key Reagan advisers warned that not only would Volcker's Fed make such reform impossible, but with his track record of lurching "crisis-management" monetary policy, he could not be counted on to allow the nation's then-budding recovery to blossom smoothly to maturity.

They were right on both counts. Within four months of his 1983 reappointment, Volcker moved again to tighten credit so harshly, he deliberately choked off the strong recovery with such intensity that interest rates soared in 1984, and money growth stopped altogether from May to November.

The effect was to take a 10 percent first-quarter 1984 growth economy to the brink of a third Volcker-recession by the first quarter 1985, and drive the dollar up another 14 percent, and commodity prices down 12 percent precipitating the worst farm crisis since 1933.

Those who have been blaming the nation's high interest rates on the federal deficit, instead of the Fed, have been rudely awakened over the last ten months. In that period the deficit has soared from $175 billion to $210 billion, while interest rates have come DOWN nearly 350 basis points, chiefly because the Fed was finally forced by the market and the flat economy to ease its death-grip on credit.

The plain truth is the chief course of this nation's present economic problems, especially those deficits, has been the incredibly unstable policies of Paul Volcker.

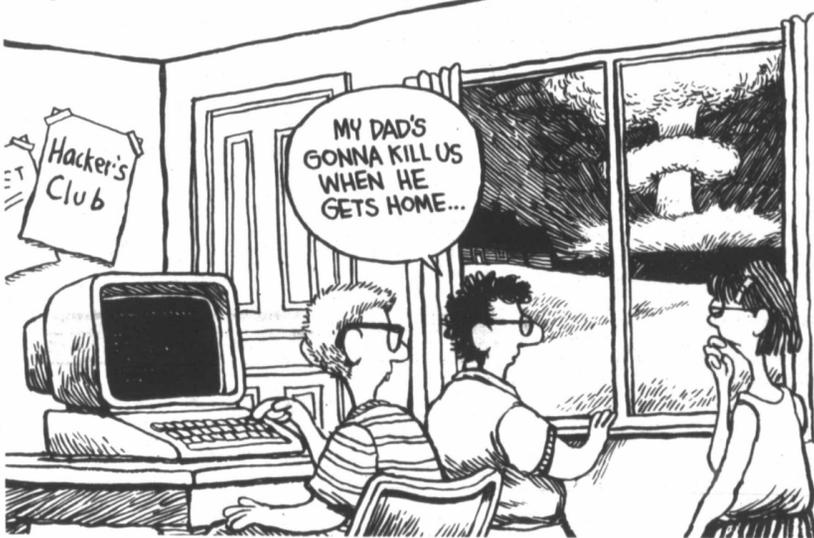

In the nearly six years (1974-1979 - Third Quarter) before Volcker's appointment, quarterly money-supply growth varied within a fairly narrow four- to six-point range with a total six-year "swing" of eight points, lowest to highest.

Contrast this relatively gentle, albeit upward-slanting, curve of 1974-79 to the earthquake seismograph of the Volcker years since 1979 and you can understand why the economy has been so jaggedly rugged, and interest rates remained so stubbornly high.

During the Volcker years quarterly money-supply growth has ranged from minus-4 percent to plus-17, a shocking 21-point variation within a single year (1980), and in 1982 another 14-point swing from 3 percent to 17, followed by a similarly unnerving 15-point swing from 18 percent to 3 in 1983-84, lurching back up to nearly 12 percent in the current quarter.

It is this wildly volatile and unpredictable course that has convinced even the staunchest former advocates of using the Fed to "fine-tune" the economy to now argue for a return to some kind of money-government by rule, or law, instead of heavy-handed bureaucrats like Volcker - a reform which as our next column will show, the Fed and its big bank partners strongly oppose.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, July 29, the 210th day of 1985. There are 155 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On July 29, 1981, Britain's Prince Charles married Lady Diana Spencer in an elaborate ceremony televised worldwide from St. Paul's Cathedral in London. The event had captured the hearts of many Britons and other fans of the British royal family. Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie, who officiated at the ceremony, noted: "Here is the stuff of which fairy tales are made."

On this date:
Ten years ago: President Gerald R. Ford became the first U.S. head of state to visit the site of the Nazi concentration camp Auschwitz in Poland to pay tribute to its victims.
Five years ago: President Jimmy Carter expressed eagerness to answer questions from a Senate panel investigating his brother Billy's dealings with the Libyan government.

Financing our enemies

No wonder we're broke!
We're a trillion dollars in debt and yet continue giving away money we don't have.

And I just ran down the list of those nations with which we have been most generous and we have not one "friend" in the whole bunch!

One billion, one hundred one million, six hundred eighty-one thousand, one hundred thirty-four dollars. That's how much of your money is in Bangladesh. More than a billion dollars.

Two billion, two hundred eighty-five million, four hundred twenty-one thousand, four hundred seventy-two dollars. That's how much Brazil owes us. More than two billion.

Egypt eight and a half billion.

You are owed money in the hundreds of millions of dollars by each of a whole bunch of Latin American nations - Bolivia, Chile, Argentina, Guatemala, Haiti, Nicaragua, Mexico, Peru.

And in addition to the money our government has been willing to "lend" those countries, private and quasi-private lenders have "jillions" outstanding in unpaid obligations down there.

It was largely "bad loans" to foreign governments which was the undoing of once mighty Continental Illinois Bank.

And now Cuba's Fidel Castro is urging those Latin nations to declare "economic war" on us. All they have to do, he says, is to refuse to pay any of the money they owe - and he believes that American banks would collapse and the United States be thrown into economic chaos within months.

He says, "The poor nations have nothing to lose."

They are all over-borrowed in a world that is over-borrowed. Latin America has a total foreign debt in excess of $350 billion.

They should stop, in his words, "allowing the rich nations to suck the blood of the poor nations." So he urges what he calls "a moratorium on the repayment of foreign debt."

When I try to query international bankers about the viability of Castro's proposed economic war, I get only qualified response.

"He cannot cause the collapse of our banking system" - they think.

Some bankers are frankly anxious about Brazil's outstanding hundred billion dollars in foreign debt.

This next is going to sound "isolationist" in a world of inevitably overlapping and integrated interests, but there's a country-folks expression about "not dumping good money after bad" which certainly seems to apply to our present efforts further to aid deep-debtor nations in the faint hope that we may thus help them back to their financial feet so that they can pay what they owe.

There's another country-folks expression about "borrowing from the bartender postpones the hangover but worsens it."

The sexual revolution is not over yet

By Rusty Brown

If anyone says the sexual revolution is over, don't believe it.

Because of the S.R., we can continue to be honest in expressing our sexual needs with our partners. The medical profession and the media can continue to discuss sexuality and sexual problems with frankness. Sex will never again be a dirty word.

But while the revolution isn't over, it is changing. We are, it seems, entering a new phase.

We've learned that easy sex satisfies neither men nor women. Even British author Germaine Greer, once a vocal advocate of active sexuality for women, has changed her mind and now says that permissiveness is a mistake.

While women have frequently felt tricked by the new morality, men are beginning to admit their disillusionment, too. My favorite "meathead," Rob Reiner, the son-in-law in the "All In The Family" TV series, said in a recent interview:

"You get to a point where you don't want to engage in a lot of meaningless sex. I tried it plenty. And the actual act itself, while you're doing it, certainly feels great. It's just that afterward, you know the old joke, you want the woman to turn into a pizza. It's because you're not emotionally connected - and that feeling is horrible."

That horrible feeling is turning a lot of people away from impersonal sex and has them searching for a better resolution to the sexual revolution.

That something is intimacy: getting to know someone deeply, loving and caring for them just as deeply, and sharing life's responsibilities together. These are the major components - ahead of sex - that will lead us to the ultimate satisfaction.

I had a conversation recently with a leading advocate of this view: Sol Gordon, dean of sex educators and just-retired director of Syracuse

University's Institute for Family Research and Education. (Incidentally, more than 10,000 students took his "Human Sexuality" course over the past 15 years.)

"We are using sex as an avoidance of intimacy - rather than an expression of it," said Gordon. That's a poetic way of observing that too often these days, going to bed comes at the beginning of the conversation, rather than at the end.

"The myth is that there is some connection between sex and love," he said. "I think this is why many marriages, thought to be made in heaven, ended up in hell."

He believes intimacy, not body chemistry, should be the real turn-on.

What are the qualities that put intimacy into a relationship? Gordon says loving and caring are first. A sense of humor, honest communications and doing meaningful things together are also high on his list. Others include sharing household tasks, a tolerance for each other's weak spots as well as likes and dislikes, and not having to compromise who you are or want to be.

He rates good sex ninth. Some might argue that it should be higher or lower, but hardly anyone puts it first anymore.

This evolution of the sexual revolution will give us a superior level in male-female relationships. Bullying and nagging are on their way out. Closeness and mutual respect are on their way in.

Plus the realization there's more to share in life than a bed.

Smart Money

When enough is enough

By Bruce Williams

DEAR BRUCE — When I was walking across the street 11 years ago, an improperly placed manhole caused me to twist my ankle, fall down and injure my back.

I was hospitalized at the time and later lost my job because I had to call in sick so often.

My attorney advised me that my injuries were worth at least $50,000. The city offered me only $5,000, so I told my attorney that we should go to court.

Eleven years have passed. We have never gotten to court, and I still have collected no award. When I call my attorney, all he says is that "these things take time."

Does it ordinarily take 11 years to settle an affair of this kind? At this point, I almost wish I had accepted the $5,000. — M.S., MIAMI, FLA.

DEAR M.S. — No, 11 years is not an ordinary period of time. You should immediately sit down with your attorney and ask to be told precisely what the delay is.

You will note that I said you should "sit down" with him, not telephone him or mail him a letter. He has an obligation to bring your case to a reasonable conclusion. And if he cannot, he has an obligation to tell you — very specifically — why not.

You might remind the attorney that if he continues to neglect you, two things will happen: (1) he will be discharged, and (2) a very strong complaint will be lodged with his local bar association.

I hope that neither of these courses have to be taken, but it is long past time for you to say "enough is enough."

DEAR BRUCE — About 12 years ago, when we were younger and a lot more foolish, my husband and I purchased a lot from a developer in Florida.

We have long since paid off the outstanding balance on the lot and have become more realistic about the possibility of living in Florida in the foreseeable future.

Recently, we heard from the developer, who offered to give us a $14,500 credit (we paid $7,000) for the lot toward the purchase of a condominium apartment in the same development by the same developer.

We asked if we could sell the lot for the $14,000, but he said no. He claims that they are giving us a bonus price in order to encourage us to buy the condominium.

Well, if we can't sell the lot, perhaps we could sell the condominium. We'd like to do something, but we're not sure that this is the right direction. — S.S., PORTLAND, MAINE

DEAR S.S. — Let's separate the issues.

First of all, the lot may or may not be worth $14,000. Call two or three real-estate sales offices (not the developer) in the area where the property is located, give them the lot and block, and ask them to look up the specific location.

Then, ask them to give you some idea what they could sell it for, and ask if they would be willing to list it. This would at least give you an idea of what the possible sales price would be.

Dear Abby

Moms urge realistic approach to problems of teens and sex

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to the letter from "Disappointed Mom" who found her daughter's birth control pills. (The girl was 18, a straight-A student, active in her church, and had worked since she was 16, saving every penny for college.) Mom said she could not condone premarital sex, and asked you what she should do.

You said, "I'm not asking you to condone premarital sex, but be thankful she's not risking pregnancy, and love her for her admirable qualities. She appears to have many."

That was a perfect answer. I have a daughter who will be 18 soon. She's also a straight-A student and has two college scholarships. I told her everything she wanted to know about sex, and even helped her get on the pill when she asked me to. She was never promiscuous, but I knew all it would take was the right time, the right place and a boy she was in love with. It happened when she was 17. She told me and I didn't love her any less for it.

I also have a 16-year-old son who always carries Trojans in his wallet. Better to be safe than sorry.

These are the '80s, Abby, and my, how times have changed! We don't have to like it, or even understand it. We just have to be realistic and do what we can to prevent our precious children from wrecking their lives in a weak moment by an unwanted pregnancy.

AN UNDERSTANDING MOM

DEAR MOM: I'll probably get a lot of flak for printing your letter, but it was one of many bearing the "better safe than sorry" message. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: "Disappointed Mom" could have been me a few years ago. My daughter also had straight A's, was active in church and showed much potential. She became sexually active when she was 13, but I didn't know it until she became pregnant at 14. She didn't take birth control pills or any kind of precautions because it's against our religion.

I never thought it could happen to her. She was so ashamed she ran away from home. She's back now, trying to pick up the pieces and put her life together.

I can tell you, I wish she'd taken birth control pills when she needed them.

I blame myself for not telling her about sex and contraception when she started to ask questions. I thought if she didn't know anything, she would be too scared to have sex. I was wrong. And all along I thought I was being a good parent.

TOO LATE IN TEXAS

DEAR TOO LATE: Don't beat yourself up, Mother. Good parents teach their children that they can't have everything they want when they want it. That includes sex. Children need to be taught self-control as well as birth control.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WONDERING": Heed the wise words of Benjamin Franklin: "When a friend deals with a friend, let the bargain be clean and well penn'd, that they may continue to be friends to the end."

The same can be said of a relative. See a lawyer, and put it in writing.

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about sex, drugs and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

DIET FACTS & FALLACIES

EXCESS WEIGHT: IS IT WORTH THE RISKS?

Those excess pounds that surround your hips or widen your waistline affect far more than just your figure! An overweight condition is often forerunner to many other diseases or complications.

Heart attacks and stroke, diabetes, high blood pressure and gout have all been directly linked to excess weight. Overweight people also tend to suffer more from varicose veins, abdominal hernias, cancer and respiratory problems than normal weight individuals.

There are now over 80 million overweight men, women and children in the United States. Diet Center believes that being overweight poses one of the most serious health problems in the country today.

If you are overweight, seek a sensible solution TODAY! Diet Center can provide you with the permanent weight control solution you need.

Scientists link childhood obesity to heart disease

CHICAGO (AP) — Obese children who lose weight are reducing their chances of getting heart disease as adults, say researchers who linked childhood obesity with high cholesterol levels — a leading factor in the development of heart ailments.

"Instead of treating the clinical symptoms of heart disease in adults, a more rational approach would be preventing weight gain in children," said David Freedman, an epidemiologist at Louisiana State University involved in the study of children in Bogalusa, La.

"Habits would be easier to learn in childhood than to change in adulthood," Freedman said.

The study, published in today's Journal of the American Medical Association, found that high cholesterol can be detected in overweight people early in life and may signal future health risks.

"An obese child is more likely to be a candidate for heart disease in adulthood," Freedman said.

But if children lose weight, their chances of developing heart ailments as adults are reduced, said a fellow researcher, Dr. David Harsha, a physical anthropologist at Louisiana State.

Harsha also has helped develop programs being tested in New Orleans schools that teach children how to avoid heart disease through diet, exercise and weight control.

"Whether you actually develop heart disease is still an individual thing. But if you're high in (cholesterol) levels early in life, you're likely to be high later in life," he said.

Examinations of 1,598 youngsters ages 5 to 17 over a five-year period showed weight gain corresponded with increases in blood cholesterol, a biological factor that contributes to heart disease, according to the Louisiana State study.

Researchers said their findings support previous studies linking high cholesterol levels and adult obesity.

"The connection between cholesterol and obesity in adults is well documented, but the link in children is less well known," Freedman said Wednesday.

The cross-section of children in Bogalusa, a town of 20,000 near New Orleans, was tested twice — at the beginning and at the end of the five-year study period — for the level of body fat as well as factors indicating blood cholesterol level, he said.

The connection between obesity and high cholesterol was strongest in boys, the study said, although girls generally had gained more weight during the test period.

The study didn't explore the sex difference, but researchers speculated hormonal differences between males and females may play a role.

"Women tend to be better buffered against heart disease"

Israeli jets attack Bekaa Valley rebel headquarters

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli jets attacked a rebel base in the Bekaa Valley today, setting afire a two-story command headquarters for a Libyan-backed faction, police said.

Meanwhile, four days of peace in Beirut were shattered Sunday by two bombings, sniper fire against civilians and militia duels. Four people were reported killed in the capital and two in the northern city of Tripoli.

A police communique said six Israeli warplanes staged the 10-minute bombing raid at 7 a.m. in the Barr Elias area near the Beirut-Damascus highway.

A command headquarters for the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command was demolished by direct hits at the Marj neighborhood of Barr Elias, a town 31 miles east of Beirut and six miles west of the Syrian border, the communique said.

The Israeli command in Tel Aviv said all jets returned safely from the Barr Elias raid and that the pilots reported accurate hits on targets on the base of the PFLP-GC, led by former Syrian officer Ahmed Gebril. It was Israel's eighth air strike in Lebanon this year.

Police said two Israeli-made Kfir divebombed the PFLP-GC center, while four other jets flew cover. All six warplanes dropped crimson balloons that deflected scores of SAM-7 and SAM-9 anti-aircraft missiles fired by guerrillas.

In the Syrian capital of Damascus, a communique issued by the Syrian army command claimed a "number of inhabitants, mostly women, children and old men, were killed or wounded" in the raid.

It said "a pair of Israeli enemy warplanes attempted to bomb targets in the Barr Elias area at 6:50 local time. But they were driven off by our air defenses."

Police also said civil defense teams put down the fire in the stricken building an hour after the raid. Ambulances were seen rushing to and from the raid scene but there were no casualty reports.

The air strike came a day after the Syrian defense minister, Gen. Mustafa Tlass, made an inspection tour of some 25,000 Syrian forces stationed in eastern Lebanon under an Arab League peacekeeping mandate.

Palestinian guerrilla factions opposed to the chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, Yasser Arafat, are allowed to operate behind Syrian lines in Lebanon.

Guerrilla bases in the Barr Elias area have been attacked by Israeli planes several times in the past. The last air raid there was on April 17.

Prime Minister Shimon Peres of Israel has said Israel will continue carrying out air strikes against guerrilla bases in Lebanon from which it believes terrorist operations are being planned against the Jewish state.

Israel invaded Lebanon in June 1982 to rout Palestinian guerrillas but last month withdrew most of its forces.

Ugandan army commander new head of government

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Lt. Gen. Tito Okello, the Ugandan armed forces commander, has been named head of state following the military coup and will run the country until elections are held in 12 months, Radio Uganda said today.

The radio announcement did not mention Brigadier Basilio Olara Okello, the most visible leader of Saturday's military coup that toppled President Milton Obote's civilian government. Olara Okello is not related to the general.

Obote, 60, and two of his Cabinet members fled to neighboring Kenya. The radio said Tito Okello, believed to be in his 70s, would be sworn in this afternoon outside the Parliament building as head of state and chairman of the military council.

He will appoint an executive prime minister, who will form a broad-based interim government, the radio said. Earlier, the coup leaders announced the suspension of the constitution and the closing of the nation's borders in this East African nation of 14 million people.

Tito Okello returned to Kampala on Sunday and said in a radio speech he had heard about the coup while away in the northern part of the country.

However, there had been persistent speculation the general had traveled to the north earlier this month to take command of rebellious army units fighting Obote loyalists.

Both the Okellos are members of the Acholi tribe, while Obote is a member of the Langi tribe. Members of the two tribes predominate in the army, and the coup was preceded by a month of strife within the armed forces between the two factions.

On Sunday, residents of Kampala, a hilly capital city of 500,000, were warned to stay in their homes because of looting and other unrest and most citizens heeded the call of a dawn to dusk curfew. However, the radio said today shops should reopen and civilians could carry on normal activities.

Police officers, who had abandoned their posts Saturday, were back on duty, helping soldiers guard such facilities as the post office and central bank.

However, banks and government offices remained closed, and shops were unable to reopen because of the heavy damage they had suffered during the looting spree.

In his first radio address Sunday broadcast through this East African nation, coup leader Brigadier Basilio Olara Okello said he wanted to end the bitter tribal conflicts.

"Stay calm at home," Okello, speaking in Swahili, told the nation in his broadcast. "We took the step (the coup) because of unity ... I pray to God to bless all the citizens of Uganda."

In a statement broadcast on the radio Sunday, a man identifying himself as Col. Maruru read a statement announcing that the constitution was suspended. He said the statement was signed by Okello.

He said the coup's objective was to "see the advent of true democracy" by allowing free and fair elections, but he did not say when elections might be held. The radio announcement said all government ministers had been dismissed and foreign exchange transactions suspended.

TDC dairy complete, but lacks equipment

LOVELADY, Texas (AP) — A $2 million prison dairy is completed but prison officials still have to contend to pasteurizing equipment needed to make the milk safe.

Jim Lynaugh, finance director for the Texas Department of Corrections, said the milking barn is expected to begin operation next month.

But the state health department still has not issued the necessary permits.

The dairy, built at the Eastham Unit in Houston County, will milk enough cows to provide about 3,000 gallons of raw milk daily, the amount needed by the TDC for its 38,000 inmates, Lynaugh said.

But the dairy barn has no processing equipment to clean the milk of disease-producing bacteria, Lynaugh said. The milk must be pasteurized before it can be fed to state prisoners, he said.

Lynaugh said he is considering three options — selling the milk to commercial milk processors, trading the raw milk for pasteurized milk or joining a milk co-op that will sell the milk for the prison system.

The TDC now depends on seven small dairies located around the prisons for its milk. The pasteurized equipment at those dairies is too small and too old to process the new dairy's milk, Lynaugh said.

"Right now, the milk from some of the dairies spoils too rapidly and is fed to the pigs," he said.

The dairy was built amid a state investigation and criticism from Gov. Mark White. The facility's building contract was issued to a Lovelady construction firm owned by a business partner of former TDC Director W.J. Estelle.

Attorney General Jim Mattox investigated the project and concluded there was no criminal wrongdoing committed when Estelle awarded the contract to his partner.

The dairy was part of a larger $8 million milk processing plant that was approved by the TDC board in November 1983.

Congressional calendar crowded with August vacation approaching

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress plays beat-the-clock this week as it races toward an August vacation through a calendar peppered with legislation affecting defense spending, the Farm Belt and foreign aid projects.

In the Senate, Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas has vowed to bring a farm bill to the floor this week, regardless of whether the Senate Agriculture Committee has completed work on the measure.

A number of authorization and appropriations bills are lined up for final passage in both houses.

And congressional deficit cutters remain as deadlocked as ever with prospects dim for an early breakthrough on a federal budget package.

There are reports that some unhappy House liberals are trying to force the Democratic caucus to take a hard look at a $302.5 billion Pentagon spending bill. It cleared a House-Senate conference committee, they say, bloated with too many dollars for military programs and more weapons than are needed for an adequate defense.

But others say the report of the conference is the highwater mark for both military spending during the Reagan administration and for the MX missile program.

"The time of big defense spending increases is over," said Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

The plan would limit the rise in the defense budget to the expected rate of inflation instead of the nearly 6 percent after-inflation increase President Reagan had sought.

The bill faces floor votes in both houses this week, along with a separate House struggle over chemical weapons which the bill would permit the United States to produce for the first time in 16 years.

On the budget front, neither Reagan nor House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. show any sign of yielding on a $338 billion Senate deficit reduction package that would raise taxes and delay Social Security benefit increases.

Many lawmakers from farm states would like to return home in August with evidence that they are doing something constructive to aid farmers.

But the Senate panel, as well as its House counterpart, remained snagged over subsidy and price support sections of the farm bill.

Dole planned a last-minute effort at compromise, but it appeared likely he would be forced to bypass the Agriculture Committee to bring the issue to the floor. That was almost certain to trigger a filibuster from members who still believe the bill doesn't do enough for farmers.

House and Senate foreign aid negotiators last week guided a bill granting $12.7 billion in foreign aid spending authority to the last hurdle of the legislative process.

Congress has not passed a foreign aid authorization act since 1981 but will get its chance to do so this week.

Toronto talk of AL East after sweep

By BEN WALKER
AP Sports Writer

Once again, the Toronto Blue Jays are the talk of the American League.

"In these last four games, the hitting, pitching and defense seemed to all come together at once," Toronto Manager Bobby Cox said after the Blue Jays completed an impressive four-game sweep of the California Angels with a 5-1 victory Sunday.

The Blue Jays won their eighth straight game and increased their lead in the AL East to seven games — their biggest margin of the season.

The Blue Jays outscored the AL West-leading Angels 28-7 in the series.

In other AL games, Texas routed New York 8-2, Detroit edged Minnesota 3-2, Kansas City clipped Cleveland 7-4, Baltimore downed Chicago 6-1, Seattle defeated Boston 7-2, and Oakland beat Milwaukee 5-2.

George Bell put Toronto ahead with a two-run double in the first. An error by second baseman Rob Wilfong helped the Blue Jays make it 3-0 in the second, Ernie Whitt tripled home a run in the fourth and an RBI grounder by Willie Upshaw in the fifth capped Toronto's scoring. Kirk McCaskill, 6-7, took the loss.

Doyle Alexander, 10-6, scattered eight hits and struck out nine. The only run Alexander gave up was Reggie Jackson's 17th home run of the season in the eighth. The homer was No. 520 for the Angels' slugger, putting him one behind Willie McCovey and Ted Williams on the all-time list.

Tigers 3, Twins 2
Darrell Evans hit his 300th career home run to break a sixth-inning tie at the Metrodome.

Since May 15 Evans has batted .269 with 20 homers and 48 RBIs. He connected for his 22nd homer on a 3-0 pitch from Ken Schrom, 8-11.

Frank Tanana, 5-10, got the victory and Willie Hernandez earned his 20th save.

Royals 7, Indians 4
Hal McRae, who recently won back his job as Kansas City's starting designated hitter, and Steve Balboni each drove home three runs to lead the Royals to their sixth straight victory.

McRae hit his ninth homer in the first after George Brett singled. Balboni hit a three-run homer in the fourth and then doubled and scored in the fifth.

Mark Gubicza, 7-5, gave up one run on six hits over seven innings. Dan Quisenberry got the final four outs for his 23rd save.

Orioles 6, White Sox 1

Rich Dauer, Eddie Murray and Gary Roenicke all homered in the sixth as Baltimore broke open a close game in Chicago.

Winner Scott McGregor, 9-8, who finished with a four-hitter, and Britt Burns were locked in a scoreless duel until Dauer led off the sixth with a home run. After Alan Wiggins followed with a bunt single and later scored on Cal Ripken's sacrifice fly, Murray and Roenicke both homered.

Rangers 8, Yankees 2

Oddibe McDowell, continuing his power streak, hit Marty Bystrom's first pitch of the season for a home run, sparking a five-run uprising in the first as Texas sacked New York.

It was McDowell's 10th homer of the season, and fifth in the last six games. Bystrom had been on the disabled list with arm problems.

Cliff Johnson went 3-for-3 and drove in three runs.

Chris Welsh, 2-2, went seven innings for the win, scattering eight hits, walking three and striking out four. It was his first win as a starter since September 6, 1982, when he was with the San Diego Padres.

Rickey Henderson drove in both Yankee runs with a homer, his 14th.

Mariners 7, Red Sox 2

Mike Moore scattered nine hits, while Gorman Thomas hit his 20th homer and Jim Presley went 4-for-5.

Moore, 9-6, struck out seven and walked only one.

Thomas hit a two-run homer in the seventh, his third two-run blow in two days.

Presley singled four times as Seattle ended Bruce Hurst's five-game winning streak.

A's 5, Brewers 2

Dwayne Murphy wrapped up a productive weekend in Milwaukee by helping the Oakland A's to victory.

Murphy had an RBI double, walked twice and scored in the eighth on a wild pitch by loser Danny Darwin, 6-12, to break a 2-2 tie.

Basepath demons inducted

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Enos "Country" Slaughter and Lou Brock, basepath demons in different eras for the St. Louis Cardinals, became teammates for a day when they entered baseball's Hall of Fame.

Slaughter, who helped the Cardinals to World Series titles in 1942 and 1946, had to wait 20 years for election to the Hall of Fame. Brock, the game's premier base-stealer and key to St. Louis' two world championships in the mid-1960s, was elected in his first year of eligibility.

Joining the two ex-Cardinals in this year's Hall of Fame class were relief ace Hoyt Wilhelm and the late Arky Vaughn.

"I made my choice to follow my dream and become a major league ballplayer," Brock said Sunday during investiture ceremonies at the Hall of Fame.

Brock, greeted by chants of "Lou, Lou, Lou!" by Cardinal fans among the crowd of about 5,000, recalled that as a black child growing up in the South, he was influenced by radio broadcasts of Cardinal games.

"The Jim Crow law excluded me from the mainstream of society," said the 47-year-old Brock. "Sports, especially baseball, fed my fantasy of what life could offer. Life does not often provide an opportunity for a person to make a clean choice."

Brock stroked 3,023 hits and set a major league record with 938 stolen bases, including a then-record 118 in 1974.

Slaughter feared he would never become a member, despite posting a .300 batting average for 19 big league seasons. After retiring in 1961, he was passed over for 15 years in the writers' balloting before being selected by the veterans committee.

"So this is it," said Slaughter as he strode to the podium, clapping his hands.

"The letters and fan mail I've received have kept my spirits up," he said of the years of waiting. "I never dreamed in 1935 that I'd be standing here."

Slaughter was a deft baserunner in the "Charlie Hustle" style made famous 20 years later by Pete Rose.

Wilhelm, who rode a single pitch — the knuckleball — to a long career as a pitcher, almost didn't get a chance to play in the majors.

"I was released from a Class D team but didn't give up," said Wilhelm, who finally made the major leagues as a 28-year-old rookie.

The 62-year-old Wilhelm, who appeared in 1,070 games and had a career earned run average of 2.52, was named on 321 of 395 ballots cast by members of the Baseball

Writers Association of America. He was the top vote-getter in the balloting.

Vaughn, who played for the Pittsburgh Pirates and Brooklyn Dodgers, had a career batting average of .318, second only to Honus Wagner's .329 among Hall of Fame shortstops. He struck out only 276 times in 6,622 lifetime at bats and hit .385 in 1935, a figure yet to be surpassed in the National League.

"My father never sought fame or glory," said Vaughn's daughter, Patricia Johnson, who accepted the bronze plaque for her father.

"He played baseball because he loved the game."

Vaughn, who retired in 1948, died in a boating accident in 1952.

James Williams made the grade

Oilers' Williams finds home

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Houston Tight end Jamie Williams says he had to come through the back door to get into the National Football League.

But the Oilers let him in and he responded by earning a starting job last season and became the team's No. 2 pass receiver.

After spending a nomadic rookie season in the NFL traveling from the New York Giants to the St. Louis Cardinals to the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, Williams finally found a home with the Oilers last season.

Williams was drafted by the Giants in the third round but his name appeared on the final cut list. He then signed with St. Louis and appeared in four games before being waived again and picked up by Tampa Bay.

After Tampa Bay, Williams decided to give the pros one more try when the Oilers called.

"Getting released by the Giants was really depressing for me because it was such a setback," Williams said. "Once I got released, I got caught up in the system and I had to basically come through the back door to get on a team."

Williams, 6-4, 244, is thankful the back door was open with the Oilers.

"Once you get cut, you have to work that much harder to prove them wrong," he said. "I was fortunate to get the opportunity to come back. A lot of guys weren't as fortunate as I was to be able to compete for a position."

Williams' travels helped him learn more about the pro game.

"I didn't know much about special teams and I wasn't very good at pass blocking and reading defenses," Williams said. "We didn't do that at Nebraska. It was block a pitch, block an off-tackle play and we're off to the races."

Williams caught 41 passes for three touchdowns and 545 yards last season.

"The coaches started me off slowly and gave me a chance to learn," he said. "Then I was fortunate to do some things early and it built up my confidence."

Williams and Chris Dressel were the only receivers to catch at least one pass in all 16 games last season.

Williams is anticipating another good year for himself and an improved season for the Oiler offense under new offensive coordinator Joe Faragalli.

"Our offense is going to be the big difference in our team this year because it's more wide open," Williams said. "We're getting our running backs into the passing scheme and it's going to help the tight end."

"We're all going to work for each other. If they double me, we can go to the wideouts. If they double the wideouts, they can go to me or the backs."

The Oilers have a tough opening month of the season with games against Super Bowl finalist Miami, Washington, Pittsburgh and Dallas.

"That excites me and I hope it does some of the other guys," Williams said. "Those are the teams you make a name on, earn respect. If you beat a team like that people say 'hey, this team has got something.'"

"I really feel we're going to get a couple of those upsets."

Photographer's head helps Blackmar win first tourney

CROMWELL, Conn. (AP) — After PGA rookie Phil Blackmar won the $600,000 Canon-Sammy Davis Jr. Greater Hartford Open in a sudden-death playoff, he credited a heads-up photographer with an assist.

Blackmar knocked in a 10-foot putt on the first hole of the playoff Sunday — the 37th hole of the day — to break a tie with Jodie Mudd and Dan Pohl, who had tied him at the end of regulation.

The winner said that if it weren't for Bob Child, an Associated Press photographer, he wouldn't have been in position to win his first tournament.

"I'd just like to thank the photographer I hit in the head,"

Blackmar said after accepting the winner's check.

On the final hole of regulation play, Blackmar's approach shot sailed off course and beamed the veteran photographer, who was standing beside the green waiting for Blackmar to walk to the hole.

"I'm glad he stopped it," Blackmar said. "It probably would have gone out of bounds."

The ball caromed off Child and fell onto the fringe of the green, from where Blackmar was able to save par and eventually gain a spot in the playoff with Mudd and Pohl.

Child was taken to the first-aid trailer where he received 12 stitches to his bloodied forehead. But he was back on the job in time for the playoff.

The final hole was the closest brush Blackmar had with bogey in the 37 holes he played Sunday. He had 11 birdies and 26 pars during his 11½ hours on the golf course.

Pohl, Mudd and Blackmar, at 6-foot-7 and 260 pounds the largest player on the professional tour, each finished regulation play at 13-under-par 271 after four rounds over the par-71, 6,800-yard Tournament Players Club of Connecticut course.

Mudd, putting first in the playoff on the par-3, 172-yard 18th hole, slid his 13-foot putt past the cup on the left side.

Blackmar, 27, then rolled his putt straight into the cup.

When opportunity knocked, Cards' Porter answered

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

St. Louis catcher Darrell Porter has been an uneasy rider on the bench of late. But when called on as a replacement, Porter responded with a two-run double and home run to power the Cardinals 4-2 over the San Diego Padres Sunday.

"I just got the wood on the ball a couple of times," said Porter, who started the day with a .157 average in 29 games.

Manager Whitey Herzog said he played Porter because some of the Cardinals weren't hitting, although St. Louis has won six of its past seven games.

In other National League games, Chicago routed Los Angeles 9-2; Montreal blanked Cincinnati 6-0; Houston knocked off New York 12-4; Philadelphia turned back Atlanta 7-3; and San Francisco edged Pittsburgh 3-2 in 10 innings.

John Tudor, 12-8, won his 11th game in the last 12 decisions for St. Louis, allowing nine hits, walking none and striking out four in 8 1-3 innings. Reliever Jeff Lahti got the last two outs for his 12th save.

Porter supplied most of the power for the Cardinals with a two-run double in the first and a homer leading off the fourth. Willie McGee also had his league-leading 12th triple for the Cards in the seventh and scored on Tom Herr's groundout.

LaMarr Hoyt, 13-5, had his string of 11 straight victories snapped as he allowed all four Cardinal runs in seven innings.

Astros 12, Mets 4
Joe Niekro pitched an eight-hitter and Houston put together 19 hits and its highest run production of the season to beat New York. Niekro, 8-8, struck out three and walked two in pitching his third complete game.

Glenn Davis drove in two runs with a single and a sacrifice fly and scored two runs for the Astros, while Craig Reynolds had four singles in six at-bats with one RBI.

Cubs 9, Dodgers 2
Dave Lopes drove in two runs with a homer and a double to lead Chicago over Los Angeles, snapping a three-game losing streak for the Cubs and a five-game winning streak for the West-leading Dodgers.

Lary Sorensen, 3-2, came in on relief of ailing starter Rick Sutcliffe in pitch for the victory. Warren Bruslarf pitched the last three innings for his third save.

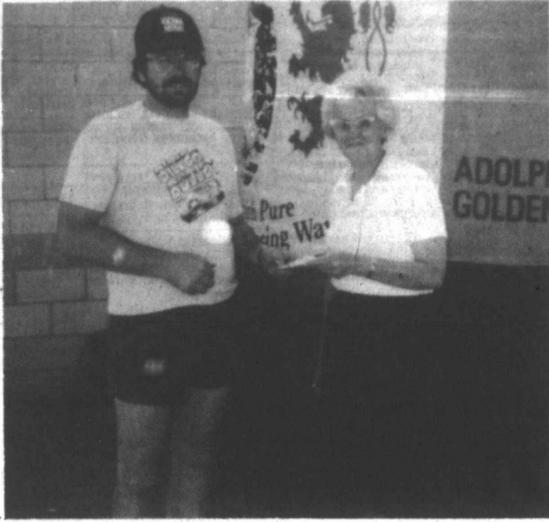

Lopes slugged a two-run homer in the first and Gary Matthews and Jody Davis hit solo shots in the fourth off Dennis Powell. Leading 4-2, the Cubs broke it open in the seventh by scoring five runs off relievers Rick Honeycutt and Bobby Castillo. Lopes doubled in two runs.

Powell, 0-1, making his first major league start, took the loss.

Expos 6, Reds 0
Andre Dawson's first home run in six weeks, a two-run shot, and Herm Wainwright's RBI triple highlighted consecutive three-run innings that carried Montreal over Cincinnati.

Joe Hesketh, 8-4, walked four batters in the first two innings but overcame early control problems to hurl his first shutout of the season with a four-hitter. The rookie left-hander struck out four and wound up with five walks.

Dawson homered off Ron Robinson, 5-2, with U.L. Washington aboard in the third to give the Expos a 3-0 lead. Wainwright's triple helped the Expos build their lead to 6-0 in the fourth.

TOURNAMENT EARNINGS—Ronnie Morrison of North Country Coors presents a $3,000 check to Ernestine Ammons of the Gray County Association of Retarded Citizens. The funds were raised in the second annual Coors slowpitch softball tournament.

Softball tournament pronounced success

The second annual Coors slowpitch softball tournament held last weekend was pronounced a success and raised $3,000 for the Gray County Association of Retarded Citizens.

The tournament attracted 30 teams and provided top quality competition.

Tournament directors Nelson Medley and Randy Holmes reported that it was the largest turnout of fans and players for any Pampa tournament.

Nationally ranked CDI Garretts of Oklahoma City won the tournament after two outstanding games with Owsleys of Liberal, Kan.

Garretts, led by most valuable player Joe Sandy, proved to have too much strong hitting and defense for the determined Owsleys team, which was led by Ray "Rainbow" Potter, the home run hitting champion, and a strong performance by third baseman Tim McAfee.

Moss Body Shop of Amarillo, proving it can compete with the best, took third place. Fourth Place went to Clement's Flowers, the only team from Pampa to win a trophy. Clement's was led by Blake Howard, Steve Hancock and Steve Williams.

Local softball officials expressed thanks to North Country Coors of Borger for staging the tournament and to Cowan Construction of its assistance in preparing for the event.

Landry withholds Dorsett decision

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas Coach Tom Landry says he wants to talk to running back Tony Dorsett before he makes any decision whether to fine him for missing training camp.

"I can't tell what I'm going to do until I talk to a player," said Landry. "I don't want to hear anything second hand. I need to know it from the horse's mouth."

Dorsett was expected to meet with Internal Revenue Service officials in Dallas today about his financial problems.

"I've got to know the facts," said Landry. "I'll talk to Tony this week."

Quarterback Danny White says he believes Dorsett "has the inner strength" to overcome his financial problems.

Dorsett called club President Tex Schramm Saturday night and said he wasn't reporting to training camp despite possible $1,000-a-day fines.

White says Dorsett showed he could handle personal problems and still play quality football last year.

"Remember, Tony's father died, yet he came back and handled his job well," said White. "All true, great athletes can handle an unexpected challenge. Tony has a mountain to climb but he can do it."

"He's a competitor and he can be tough. Remember when he came into this league they told him he was too small."

"I bet Tony is staying in good shape," White said. "He knows what he had to do to stay ready."

However, it was not certain if or when Dorsett would report to camp.

"Tony was hoping to come to camp sometime after the first of the week," said Schramm. "It is no great secret that Tony has IRS problems. They have attached his paychecks since last October."

Dorsett, who had used Mike Trope and Whit Stewart as agents, is taking the advice of Howard Slusher, who is also Randy White's agent.

Bradley shows why golfers get grey

MONTREAL (AP) — Pat Bradley feels the drama that went with her win in the du Maurier Classic is the kind of golf that ages even veterans like herself.

"You don't get these grey hairs for nothing," the 34-year-old Bradley said after winning the championship Sunday over Jane Geddes at the Beaconsfield Golf Course by virtue of a birdie on the par-5, 479-yard 18th hole.

Geddes led Bradley by two strokes when they teed off under sunny skies on the 6,033-yard course.

But while Geddes faltered on the final two holes, Bradley birdied them to win her second title of the year and 15th since she joined the Ladies' Professional Golf Association tour in 1974.

Bradley, whose $60,000 payday increased her season earnings to $272,903, shot a four-under-par 68 and finished at 278, 10 under par.

Geddes, a third-year pro from Summerville, N.C., who tied for second in Boston last week, finished one stroke back, while Amy Alcott of Santa Monica, Calif., was third at 280.

The lead changed hands several times during the last round with Bradley, Geddes and Val Skinner of North Platte, Neb., joining the spotlight.

Skinner knocked herself out of contention with three bogeys on the back nine.

Trio grabs Sports Festival spotlight

BATON ROUGE (AP) — For Greg Louganis, it was just another day at the 10-meter-high office. For Charles Simpkins, it was a day on which he toppled an idol. And for Jeff Olsen, it was time to horde the gold.

Louganis, the world's greatest diver, unheralded triple jumper Simpkins and Olsen, an 18-year-old swimmer just beginning to make his mark, held the spotlight Sunday at the sixth National Sports Festival.

Even though he was barely challenged on the 10-meter platform, Louganis felt invigorated by the competition as he collected his eighth NSF gold medal, a record, with his third-highest point total ever in that discipline. It was the second gold medal this week for the 25-year-old double champion from the 1984 Summer Olympics and current world titleholder.

He won by a massive 67 points over local hero Ron Meyer of River Ridge, La., but claimed Meyer's fine diving helped keep him sharp.

"When Ronnie hit his dives, I was forced to rise to the occasion," said Louganis, of Malibu, Calif. "It's good because you test yourself and it gives you the reassurance that you can hang tough and come back."

Simpkins upset Olympic champion Al Joyner and world record-holder Willie Banks, his idol, in the triple jump. Simpkins, who attends Baptist College in Charleston, S.C., won with 56-11 1/4. Banks, who set the world record of 58-11 1/2 last month in the national championships at Indianapolis, was second at 56-1 1/4, and Joyner was third at 55-8 1/4.

"It feels great," Simpkins said, who said he had no remorse about beating his "hero."

"This is the time I've been waiting for. Willie has been my idol for as long as I've been triple jumping and I've finally beaten him."

Banks said he was bothered by a knee injury suffered three months ago and reinjured two weeks ago.

Olsen, a high-school senior from Austin, Texas, is surprising himself with his showing here. He is the only triple gold medalist, having won the 800-meter freestyle and 200-meter breaststroke 45 minutes apart on Saturday. He took the 200 freestyle on Sunday.

"This is the best I've ever done at a meet of this caliber," he said.

Jackie Joyner's versatility paid off as she earned 6,718 points in the heptathlon, the most in the world this year. Joyner won six of the seven events and tied for first in the other.

Other track winners were Johnny Gray in the men's 800 meters in a meet record 1:44.66; Brian Whitehead in the men's high jump with a meet-record 7-7 1/4; Kevin Akins in the shot put at 70-6 1/4, another meet record; NCAA champion Kirk Baptiste of Houston in the 100-meter dash in 10.20; Doug Padilla in the 5,000 in 13:54.71; Tom Jadwin won the javelin at 259-8; Mike Buncic grabbed the discus gold at 214-2, and Orville Peterson scored 7,834 points to win the decathlon.

Among the other women's winners were Olympic silver medalist Alice Brown in the 100 in 11:07; Leisa Davis-Knowles in the 400 hurdles in 56.16; Leann Warren in the 1,500 meters in 4:24.94; Jane Clough in the high jump at 6-3 1/4, tying the meet record; Sabrina Williams in the long jump with a wind-aided 21-6, and Peggy Pollock in the shot put at 55-10 1/4.

Four athletes were overcome by heat and had to receive medical treatment Sunday. They were men's 1,600-meter relay runner Rodie Haley and women's 1,600 relayists Vicki Davis and Adriana Diamond and hurdler Latonya Sheffield.

Mike Pinnoci, 30, of South Lake Tahoe, Calif., won the men's half-marathon in one hour, seven minutes, 23 seconds. The women's event was won by Kathy Pfeifer of Albuquerque, N.M. in 1:18:24. Officials cut the race in half because of the heat and high humidity.

Favorites Brian Boitano and Debi Thomas won the figure skating competition.

Pampa's Babe Ruth stars suffer loss

DUMAS—Pampa's Babe Ruth League all-stars were blasted by Brazoswood, 24-3, in the second round of the Southwest Regional Tournament Sunday afternoon.

A tournament officials said Pampa committed a number of errors early in the game and was never in contention.

The defeat bumps Pampa into the losers' bracket against Belem, New Mexico at 8 o'clock tonight. Belem defeated hot Dumas in the losers bracket Sunday. The winner of the Pampa-Belen game will meet the winner between Enid, Okla., and Eagle Pass at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Brazoswood and Louisiana are the only two unbeaten teams left in the tournament. They play each other at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Winner of the regional tournament will advance to the Babe Ruth World Series.

GM stays silent on Saturn site

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. held firm Sunday in its refusal to reveal where it will build its highly touted Saturn car-making complex, despite a flood of reports the plant was heading for Tennessee.

Tennessee's two U.S. senators and published reports quoting unnamed GM officials have said the $5 billion project's assembly plant definitely will be built in Spring Hill, Tenn., but the automaker has remained mum pending an official announcement, expected this week.

"As far as we can tell, it's not a done deal," said Richard Cole, Michigan Gov. James Blanchard's press secretary.

Saturn spokesman Stanley Hall on Sunday declined comment on the Spring Hill reports. He said Saturday that the new subsidiary's corporate headquarters would be located in Michigan, in the Detroit suburb of Troy.

Spring Hill and towns in Michigan and Kentucky had been widely mentioned as finalists in the sweepstakes for the Saturn factory and its 6,000 jobs. An announcement of a site was expected after GM and the United Auto Workers union agreed to a tentative contract covering Saturn workers.

Announcement of that agreement Friday came on the heels of published reports that GM would locate the small-car plant in Spring Hill.

Saturn Corp., to which GM said it would commit $5 billion, is the automaker's attempt to use innovative technology and employee work rules to build a small car that will effectively compete with the Japanese. GM plans to build and market a line of cars under the Saturn nameplate beginning in 1989 or 1990.

Three dozen states have courted GM using tax inducements, utility rate breaks and a variety of other incentives in their bids to lure Saturn's $3.5 billion assembly operation.

Tennessee's Democratic U.S. senators, Jim Sasser and Albert Gore Jr., announced Friday that the plant "no doubt" would be built in Spring Hill. In Spring Hill, Mayor George Jones was predicting boom times for the city of 1,110 people 30 miles south of Nashville.

"Everything is going to go up. The economy, the population will increase, more housing. It will create a lot more jobs. Taxes will go up," he said.

Reaction from other states which sought the project was a mixture of disappointment and refusals to concede the plant to Tennessee.

"As far as we're concerned, Kentucky is still in the running until we hear otherwise," Phil Miller, deputy press secretary for Gov. Martha Layne Collins, said when the Tennessee reports began surfacing.

KEITH CARRADINE

DAVID COPPERFIELD

Names in News

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Actor Keith Carradine had to do more than learn his lines for "The Pete Gray Story," a film about the one-armed outfielder who played for the old St. Louis Browns.

Before the movie began shooting last week in Chattanooga, Carradine, 35, spent a month learning to duplicate Gray's one-handed fielding and throwing style with his left hand.

"I played a lot of baseball in Little League and high school — but right-handed. I'm left-handed in other aspects ... so I've got a little bit of an edge, I guess," he said.

His other works have included wrapping Chicago's Museum of Modern Art, part of the Australian coastline and 11 of Florida's Bay of Biscayne islands in plastic.

NORWALK, Conn. (AP) — Bruce Weitz, who plays the gruff detective Mick Belker on television's "Hill Street Blues," says he plans to give up the role after two more years.

Weitz, 42, also said during a weekend visit to his native Norwalk that three characters will be written out of the popular police drama.

"There were just too many people on the show," he said.

Those that will not survive the season, he said, are Rene Enriquez, who plays Lt. Ray Callitano; Mimi Kusec, who plays Detective Patsy Mayo; and Ken Olen, who plays Detective Harry Garibaldi.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor says her three guiding values in life are creativity, work and love.

In accepting a citation of merit from the Salvation Army on Saturday, O'Connor defined creativity as "active participation in life ... the individual can make a difference. I just tried to be a good wife and mother, a good volunteer and a good lawyer and judge."

O'Connor, who served on the Arizona advisory board of the Salvation Army from 1975 to 1981, said she was "a compulsive volunteer."

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The voyages of the starship Enterprise haven't always been smooth for the career of James Doohan, the actor who has portrayed Scotty in the "Star Trek" television series and three motion pictures.

"I didn't realize it would typecast me and ruin the rest of my career in Hollywood," Doohan, 65, said during a weekend convention of about 600 science-fiction buffs in Kansas City.

Doohan said he plans to produce and star in a play about an aging actor.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — David Copperfield, the illusionist who made a jet and the Statue of Liberty disappear, is turning his talent to China's Great Wall.

Copperfield plans to walk through the 25-foot thick wall in September. The feat is scheduled to be filmed and shown on the magician's March television special.

"All walls are built to keep people out," said Copperfield, 28, of Metuchen, N.J. "That particular wall was built to keep armies out. To walk through it signifies that there are no walls between our countries anymore."

LONDON (AP) — Queen Mother Elizabeth is getting a special 85th birthday present from British Airways — her first trip through the sound barrier.

"We had heard that flying on Concorde was one of her long-held wishes," British Airways Chairman Lord King said Sunday.

The queen mother celebrates her birthday on Sunday and plans to board a Concorde two days later.

PARIS (AP) — Parisians accustomed to the sober lines of the historic Pont Neuf, their oldest bridge, will discover it shrouded in stone-colored cloth down to the waterline, thanks to the artist Christo.

Christo plans to cover the 780-foot-long bridge with 430,000 square feet of cloth on Sept. 23, making it "a giant sculpture."

Bulgarian-born Christo Javacheff, 50, known professionally by his first name, said the project will probably cost about $2.1 million. His other works have included wrapping Chicago's Museum of Modern Art, part of the Australian coastline and 11 of Florida's Bay of Biscayne islands in plastic.
