Glitter's gone from Texas' economic boom

DALLAS (AP) — The glitter of ample jobs that lured thousands to Texas over the past few years has faded this year, economists say, as the state's unemployment rate climbs to record-high levels.

The latest figures show Texas' 7.2 percent unemployment rate trailing the national average by only one-tenth of a percentage point, the closest it has come in more than 10 years, said Dale Craymer, director of revenue estimates for the state Comptroller's Office.

And the state's overall job expansion rate, which boomed along at 5 percent to 6 percent in 1980-81, has decelerated to about 2 percent to 3 percent and probably will stay that way for the next few years, Craymer said.

"Things have gotten quite stagnant," agreed Nic Santangelo, a Bureau of Labor Statistics economist based in Dallas. "And I don't see any all-out improvement any time soon."

The reasons for the flat index are myriad, but analysts say they all point to one thing: Texas has accomplished its goal of switching from an almost entirely oil-based economy to one that's more diverse, but one that makes the state more susceptible to swings in the national market.

As the state's economy more closely reflects the national picture, so, too, does its unemployment rate they say

"Oil insulated us from earlier national recessions," Craymer said. "But not any more. We're more diverse now."

That doesn't mean the world-wide oil glut doesn't hurt, however — the economies of coastal cities such as Houston, Port Arthur and Beaumont are suffering from lower oil prices, less production and an evaporating demand for subsidiary oilfield equipment and services, Santangelo said.

Dr. Morgan Reynolds, an economics professor at Texas A&M University, noted that "the oil and gas industries have been real flat for the last 18 months. And if oil prices continue their decline, there could be a real tailspin."

But it does mean other things hurt, too.

Although the average 4.5 unemployment rate is much lower in the so-called "golden corridor" along Interstate 35 from San Antonio to north of Dallas-Fort Worth, growth there has slowed, too, because of the continuing slump in the construction and semiconductor industries, Santangelo said.

And the Mexican peso's wild slide and winter freezes have combined to devastate economies in the state's border cities.

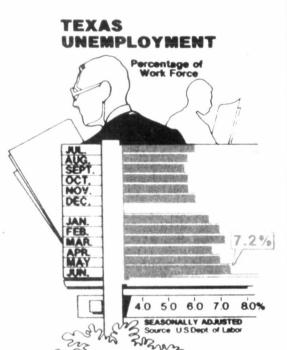

The peso plummeted from 27 per dollar in February 1982 to more than 360 on the free market this week, leaving border retail businesses that rely on Mexican customers in the lurch. And freezes over the last two winters have virtually squeezed the area's citrus crops dry.

Those whammies have helped produce unemployment rates in the McAllen, Laredo and Brownsville statistical areas that have been among the 10 worst in the nation for the last 18 months. Santangelo said.

McAllen's rate soared as high as 20.1 percent in April 1984, but was 18.1 percent as of May, the latest month for which individual areas' statistics are available. Laredo's was 13.7 percent and Brownsville's 13.9 percent.

"Another reason the unemployment rate is up is all those people who came to Texas expecting to find jobs," Craymer said. "I wouldn't advise anybody to come down here without lining up a job first."

The number of unemployed Texans increased to 573,000, up from both the previous month and the year-ago level. Total employment dropped to 7,358,000 in June from 7,375,000 in May and 7,498,000 a year ago.

S. Africa scorns U.N.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) -- More than 1,000 people were detained during South Africa's first week of a state of emergency, police said Saturday.

The white-minority government meanwhile scorned a United Nations call for sanctions to force an end to apartheid, the nation's race segregation system.

News reports said black Anglican Bishop Desmond Tutu planned to seek a meeting with President P.W. Botha this week to discuss the crisis. But Tutu, winner of the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize, declined comment, except to say he feared Botha might exploit such a meeting for his own political credibility abroad.

A police statement from Pretoria said the number of activists held since Botha declared the emergency on July 21 rose to 1,035, up from 915 on Friday. Nearly all those held are blacks from local, grassroots civic associations and student groups, in an apparent police attempt to deal a body blow to the opposition after nearly a year of persistent violence.

The statement said three riot incidents were reported since Friday evening, with no new deaths. Police say rioting has subsided since the emergency took effect, although they have confirmed 15 blacks killed in clashes since then.

lashes since then.
About 500 blacks have perished

since last August in unrest that led to the state of emergency. Most were killed by police, but many were slain by other blacks who saw the victims as collaborators with the white government.

In response to a U.N. Security Council resolution Friday calling for voluntary worldwide sanctions against South Africa. Foreign Minister R.F. Botha — no relation to the president — said "radical elements" at the U.N. were behind what he called an invalid resolution under the terms of the U.N.

Charter.

"South Africa is not a threat to peace, but the decision by the Security Council is a threat to the economic stability and progress for all states of southern Africa," Botha said.

"The door of the South African government is open for discussion," he added.

Maneuvering over a possible meeting between Tutu and President Botha underlined the suspicion and wariness between white rulers and black leaders in South Africa.

The Johannesburg Star quoted Tutu as saying Saturday he planned to send a message to Botha on Monday requesting a meeting this week, and that he would go to the meeting with an open mind "and hope that God will bless my decision"

Sound of Bluegrass

MOBEETIE — A cramped multitude of recreational vehicles, a sizzling aroma of grilled hamburgers and the boe-down sounds of fiddles, mandolins and banjos are surrounding the Old Mobeetie Jail this weekend during the annual Old Mobeetie Bluegrass Festival.

Residents and visitors were entertained by bluegrass bands from across the country, who performed on a new spacious stage. Among the groups that were scheduled play during the week-end long festivities were the Vinings Family Band of Pampa, Hyde Town Sheriff's Posse of Amarillo, Panhandle Country of Amarillo, Salt Lick, West Texas Grass, Border Line, Elk Creek Boys, Elliot String Band, Fireside Convention, The Mayfields, Native Land Band, Plainsmen and Tri-State Bluegrass Express.

Sponsored by the Panhandle Bluegrass and Old Tyme Music Association, the festival continues today at 10 a.m. at the Old Mobeetie Jailhouse, 30 miles east of Pampa on State Highway 152

Clements' foes facing delicate task

AUSTIN (AP) — Probable GOP gubernatorial contenders Kent Hance and Tom Loeffler on aturday began the delicate political task of running against Bill Clements, an ex-governor who both say did a good job.

"He was a good governor." Hance said before a speech to Republican county chairmen.

"I believe Bill Clements did a fine job. He was the best administrator as a governor of Texas that the state has ever had," Loeffler said after his speech to the same group.

same group.
Clements, defeated by Democrat
Mark White in 1982, jumped back into the political spotlight Friday by announcing he wants his old job back. Hance, a former Democratic congressman, and Loeffler, a Hunt congressman, have been campaigning for weeks — though neither has formally announced his candidacy.

Hance and Loeffler said the Clements' decision won't influence their's.

"The more the merrier," said Hance.

The Hance approach to the Clements' candidacy will be to say nice things about Clements, but try to persuade Republicans that he can do something that Clements couldn't — beat White.

"I think the people are looking for something new, a new face, new leadership," he said. "One of the things we have to look at is who can

"We can be the one that beats Mark White," said Hance.

Another good reason not to say bad things about Clements is because those instructions have come down from on high, he added. "Ronald Reagan pretty well laid down the 11th commandment, you don't criticize other Republicans in the primary. (State GOP Chairman) George Strake has explained that to me and the other candidates. We understand it. We're all on board," said Hance.

In his Saturday speech he said, "We don't have to talk about each other. We're all good guys. We can talk about the one bad guy that's on the other side."

Loeffler hinted that his approach to running against Clements would be to persuade Republicans that he can build the bi-partisan coalition needed to win.

Asked why he would be a better governor than Clements, Loeffler talked about his ability to work with Democrats in Washington

"I have credibility as a Republican working with Democrats in a legislative body, which means I provide for the people of Texas that kind of leadership which can disagree from time to time with members on the other side of the aisle, but still pull together the type of program that will serve all Texans, based upon a responsible conservative thrust of government," he said.

Asked if Clements is unable or unwilling to work with Democrats, Loeffler responded, "Your questions are something that is seeking a negative sort of response. I have no negative response for anyone who will be running for the gubernatorial position on the Republican side."

Granny charged with pill-peddling again

HOUSTON (AP) — A 75-year-old great-grandmother nicknamed 'Mama Soul' was released from jail Saturday, accused for the second time in three months of selling pills to undercover narcotics officers, authorities said.

Sally Evans, who claims she has 22 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren, was arrested Friday on charges of illegal possession and sale of controlled substances. She was freed on $20,000 bond.

Harris County Sheriff's Sgt. Bill Kessler said officers went to Ms. Eyans' home in north Houston after a neighbor complained of being "tired of her dealing drugs in the neighborhood.

An undercover officer went to her home on Wednesday and purchased five diazepam pills, Kessler said. She was selling the tranquilizers for $1.30 each

"She was selling them at a pretty good price," said the undercover agent, who asked not to be identified. "Other dealers in the street charge three times more for Ms. Evans apparently "has a good connection - she buys them like a pharmacy buys them,' Kessler said.

On Friday, detectives confiscated about $4,000 worth of Valium and codeine pills and three marijuana cigarettes from her home, Kessler said. "She kept them right next to her Bible in the living room. She kept the money in the Bible," he said.

Officers also seized $1,100 in cash, two .38-caliber pistols and a .22-caliber handgun, he said

Ms. Evans was charged May 9 with possession and sale of controlled substances, possession phol with intent to sell and ale of alcohol without a . She was released on $13,600 bond

Chautauqua gets grant

The Pampa Fine Arts Association has received a grant again from the Texas Commission on the Arts to assist with the fourth annual Chautauqua to be held Labor Day.

The association will use the $1,500 grant to support the community celebration activities in Central Park.

The TCA and the National Endowment for the Arts grant will be used to fund the PFAA event offering educational and informational displays and exhibits by Pampa and area clubs, civic organizations, youth groups, churches, artists, crafts people, museums and businesses.

The emphasis also is on fun for the thousands expected to participate in the day-long events, with bicycle tours, games, puppet shows, music, stage shows, a petting zoo and numerous other activities. In addition, various food and drinks booths will be available.

Evidence has been turned over to the Randall County Criminal District Attorney office for presentation to a grand jury, which will decide if any charges are to be filed in the death.

Services for Waite were held at 11 a.m. Saturday in the First Baptist Church at Dumas. Officiating were Rev. Fay Brown, pastor of First United Methodist Church in Channing, and Rev. Dan Turner, pastor of the Dumas First Baptist Church. Burial was in Dumas Cemetery

The two indictments originally named James Richard Anderson, 34, of El Paso, who was sentenced to five years on the charges in December. He is serving time in the state prison in Huntsville.

McCluskey, who also served as James Anderson' defense lawyer, told the El Paso Times he didn't find out that he was Richard Anderson's appointed attorney until Anderson talked to him for the first time Thursday.

He said Richard Anderson called his office two or three times over the past couple of months and left the indictment case numbers. McCluskey said he would go over to the jail and ask to see James Anderson, thinking he had been sent back to El Paso for some reason.

"I went over to the jail thinking they had brought back my old client (James Anderson) from Huntsville," McCluskey said. "I talked with Richard Anderson (Thursday), and that is when I filed for his charge to be dismissed.'

At the Friday hearing, Judge Brunson Moore told McCluskey to file for dismissal of the misdemeanor charge.

"You are going to be out of jail just as soon as I can get you out,' Moore told Richard Anderson during the hearing.

Women inmates often lose their children

GATESVILLE, Texas (AP) — Hours after Betty Hudson gave birth to her son at a local hospital May 6, she was forced to leave the baby and return home — to a cellblock inside a Texas prison.

Ms. Hudson is one of 59 women sentenced to prison in Texas who gave birth last year while incarcerated — about twice as many as in 1979, officials for the Texas Department of Corrections

Their experience with motherhood was brief and bittersweet because the Texas prison system, unlike prisons in California and New York, doesn't allow inmates to care for their

The TDC forces prisoners to give up the infants to relatives or foster care while they are incarcerated. And sometimes the temporary loss becomes a permanent one, the Dallas Times Herald said in its Sunday editions.

More inmates are bearing children because more pregnant women are being sent to prison, officials say. They add that that's because of the new equality in the criminal justice system where punishment is blind to a defendant's sex.

In 1979, the TDC housed only 1,166 female inmates. At the beginning of 1985, that number was 1,652.

"Women are committing more crimes and judges are less chauvinistic than they used to be," said Susan Cranford, warden of the Gatesville Unit, one of two TDC prisons for women. "Pregnancy is just not a ticket for probation anymore."

State District Judge Richard Mays of Dallas said that when he first started on the bench, "I probably would have been influenced if a woman was pregnant. Now it is a fairly minor thing."

TDC officials, who say there is no evidence that women become pregnant after arriving in prison, attribute the increase in deliveries to swift prosecution under the Speedy Trial Act. They also say county jail officials promptly send pregnant women to the TDC to be rid of the responsibility.

Betty Hudson back in prison room

"The counties are eager. They feel it is a nightmare to deal with pregnant women," said Dr. Armond Start, the prison system's medical director. "The general mindset is, if they have a pregnant woman, get her to TDC."

The mothers behind Texas prison walls are typically armed robbers, drug dealers, hot-check writers and veteran shoplifters, the Times Herald said.

Ms. Hudson, a former jewelry store credit clerk, was convicted in November of the armed robbery of a Marshall couple, who were bound and gagged by her and two accomplices.

Ms. Hudson said she knew she would have to part with her baby after the brief hospital stay, and tried to prepare herself by dressing and undressing the infant, hoping to recall every detail afterwards.

But when TDC guards arrived to return her to prison, she wasn't ready to part with the baby.

"I had to just walk out of the room and leave the baby there," she said "That's kind of hard walking out of a hospital and leaving your baby."

Ms. Hudson, who is unmarried, left the child in the care of her mother.

Texas authorities say they have opposed letting women keep their babies in prison for several reasons.

Texas Board of Corrections Chairman Robert Gunn said the prison system, struggling to meet the terms of a federal court order for reform, lacks the resources to begin a prison nursery.

Start said that women would have to part with their children at some point anyway, because experts believe prison life would be harmful to a child's development.

In a few instances, a female inmate has permanently lost custody of her child because of her prison term, the Times Herald said. Texas Department of Resources statistics show that of the 59 inmates who delivered babies last year, two gave up the babies for adoption, four placed them in temporary foster care with private agencies and another four placed them in foster care through the state

The remaining babies are living with relatives until their mothers are released.

Drought in Juarez creating problems

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP)

— Health officials say this summer's drought and water shortage have created one of the worst health problems in the Mexican border town in years.

As of June, the health department reported 27 people had died from gastroenteritis, a digestive tract ailment often leading to dehydration in children.

Health department figures show 18,000 cases of the ailment have been reported, a figure 25 percent higher than the number of cases reported for the same period last year. Many of those affected by the severe diarrhea are children.

"In 26 years, this is absolutely the worst I've ever seen it," said Dr. Jorge Puentes Cuellar, director of Juarez's Red Cross Hospital where more than 100 people are being treated daily for severe diarrhea.

"The situation for dehydration," Cuellar said, "is very, very bad."
Health officials say Juarez clinics and hospitals are crowded with youngsters suffering from severe diarrhea.

The problem stems from lack of rainfall, hot weather and rapid growth in the city's squatter colonies.

As many as 40 percent of the residents don't have indoor plumbing, forcing them to cook with and drink untreated water from the Rio Grande or impure water bought from tank trucks and stored in open, unprotected containers

The shortage of clean drinking water is heightened in the summer when water demand increases and water pressure drops

But the shortages are symptomatic of the larger problem of fast population growth in Mexico's urban areas by poor, rural settlers who move to the cities, and live in poor sections called "colonias."

"We just don't have the infrastructure to deal with the kind of expanding population you see in the colonias," Sergio Lastra, city government director, told the Dallas Times Herald.

In one of the colonias, resident Gloria Cisneros, mother of a two-momth-old baby, asked, "How can I bathe my baby? How can we find enough to drink for the children?"

At the Red Cross clinic near downtown Juarez, Felipa Alvarez, 20-year-old mother of three, said, "We have to use whatever water we can."

She said the water from her faucet is brown, but she boils it and hopes there's nothing wrong with it.

"All over the colonia, we see children holding their stomachs, saying they have stomach-aches," she said.

Victor Valdez, a resident physician in the pediatrics ward of General Hospital in Juarez, said 80 to 90 percent of the patients in the ward for children age 2 and younger are suffering from dehydration.

"The tragedy is that it's so preventable," Dan Epstein, a spokesman for the World Health Organization, said in a Times Herald interview.

"Just a five-cent packet of salt solution can save a child's life: That's all it takes."

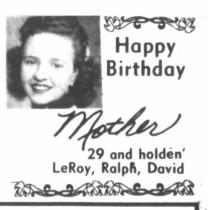

In clinics throughout the city, posters inform mothers how to make the solution, and a brigade of young volunteers go door-to-door distributing thousands of free packets.

However, many families remain uninformed and rely instead on home remedies, which doctors say often complicate the condition of those suffering from diarrhea.

Meanwhile, across the river in El Paso, health officials say the situation is just the opposite, with ample water supplies and modern sanitary facilities.

"It's a very opposite type of environment, separated by a river that is sometimes so shallow you don't even get your feet wet," said Dr. Laurance Nickey, director of the El Paso City-County Health District.

Dallas banker pays ransom for wife

DALLAS (AP) — The president of a Dallas area bank paid a six-figure ransom for the safe release of his wife after she was abucted from the couple's home by two masked gunmen, a Dallas police investigator said Saturday.

Julie Sanders, 32, was released unharmed Friday after a five-hour ordeal during which she was bound, gagged and locked in the trunk of a car, authorities said.

Mrs. Sanders was freed after her

Mrs. Sanders was freed after her husband, Michael K. Sanders, president of Bent Tree National Bank in Addison, delivered the money to a designated drop-off point, said Dallas police detective Stan McNear.

McNear said Saturday that FBI and Dallas police were searching for two white males in connection with the kidnapping.

He said authorities have few leads but are questioning neighbors who might have seen the two men unmasked before the kidnapping, which appeared to be well-planned.

"It's obvious that they had been observing this house for some period of time," McNear said. "They had to have observed them for at least a week to know their daily routines."

Mrs. Sanders, the daughter of William E. Weatherford, chairman of the board of the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, told authorities she answered the doorbell about 8 a.m. soon after her husband left for work. She said she was pushed inside by two men wearing masks, McNear said.

After she was bound and gagged, one of her captors held her in place while the other snapped two Polaroid photographs, McNear said. The men then tied a bed sheet over her head, locked her in the trunk of a car and drove away.

A phone call to Michael Sanders directed him to the back seat of his Cadillac where he found photographs and a ransom note telling him where to drop the money and what to do afterward, the detective said,

"There was a series of phone calls and directions given to him about how to drop the money off. They kept him on a tight time schedule," Addison Police Chief Rick Sullivan said.

Sanders was able to call the FBI at one point, but because of the schedule set by the extortionists, he was unable to give enough information to allow them to reach the scene before the money was dropped off, Sullivan said.

McNear said Dallas police did not receive a telephone call from Sanders until about 11:30 a.m. Friday after the ransom had been delivered.

Police Capt. John Holt said Mrs. Sanders was released unharmed about 1:30 p.m. on a road near Lewisville, northwest of Dallas.

She was told to lie down at the side of the unpaved road and to look away until after her abductors had escaped, Holt said. He said she later flagged down a passing motorist.

McNear said Mrs. Sanders. weak clues. He declined to elaborate.

and dehydrated after the ordeal, was unable to describe her attackers in detail and never saw the outside of the car in which she was confined.

"All we know at this time is they are two white males," McNear said.

FBI spokesman Richard Newth said Saturday the agency would not comment on the investigation. He also would not confirm or deny that there were new developments in the case.

McNear said authorities had no suspects but were looking into new clues. He declined to elaborate.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands free 'om and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Freedom answer to world hunger

We try to dispel hunger with aid. Countless shiploands of Western-grown graind and other foods that are so abundant in this country have the sent to Ethiopia and

All that these gives have accomplished is temporarily to assuage the hunder of a small percentage of the populations. What will happen when these rations are eaten up? Hunger will still afflict millions of people in Africa and elsewhere in the world. Why? There is much rich soil in Africa and the Orient. The climate cannot be blamed; in much of Africa crops can be grown in summer and winter.

Check the places of greatest want and the greatest poverty and hunger will be found to prevail in countries where government owns and controls the land and its uses. It resembles the medieval system in which all real property was owned by the lord and all menial work done by the serfs

The abundant production of American farms is due, basically, to the private ownership of land and free decisions of the owners as to how it shall be tilled.

Another basis feature of out system is freedom of the market. The owner-producer is free to sell his product where and when he pleases, in most cases. The buyers are equally free to buy or not buy. Producers are free to join forces in order to get the advantages of mass production, and consumers are likewise free to buy individually or cooperativly.

Producers seeking maximum profits are free to seek out the best markets. Consumers also can shop freely in any market they choose. All this profit, not "aid" is the motivating force. Supply and demand determine prices.

Government's only possible legitimate function in the free-market, profit-seeking system is to keep order, preventing theft and violence. Citizens are not equal as producers and consumers. Here, ability and industry

The most valuable aid that government can give the hunger-stricken countries of the world is to get out. set the people free, and let it be understood that the level of living will be determined by the inhabitants themselves.

Mr. Hooks' kind of justice

The scene is Tokyo. The problem: how to get Japanese cars onto American markets. Early post-World War II Japan has a manufacturing reputation for shoddy products. Efforts at deception are unsuccessful. Some companies try stamping their products "Made in USA," but it only means the product was made in Usa - a tiny island off Japan's southwest coast. Compounding the problem is residual anti-Japanese feelings among Americans.

Encountering such product discrimination, stereotyping, and injustice Japan's automakers naturally negotiated the services of Mr. Hooks, a minister, widely known for securing justice for the downtrodden in America. Whenever Hooks saw the evils of discrimination, stereotyping, and injustice, he'd accuse, cajole, intimidate, threaten, and lead the downtrodden in a famous song. If Hooks couldn't bore the forces of evil with song, he'd sing the song to the undiscriminating ears of the U.S. Supreme Court justices.

It was agreed for the encouraging sum of $100,000 a year, an expense account, and a car, Hooks would seek justice for the Japanese. If Hooks could get Japanese cars widely used in America, he would become Japan's national hero; his name would forever grace history pages.

Upon returning to the U.S., Hooks consulted with colleagues and formed the National Association for the Advancement of Japanese Products (NAAJP). The NAAJP sang songs, cajoled, conducted sensitivity training classes with only minor success; consumers maintained loyalty to U.S.-built cars. Faced with such insensitivity, the NAAJP went to court. The court saw the injustice of consumer free-choice and mandated a Japanese auto quota. The NAAJP was initially pleased, but import standards were raised making it difficult for Japanese cars to qualify. Also, companies with government contracts, and particularly vulnerable to quotas, were using fronts: a Japanese auto body on an American-made car. When companies got wind of an affirmative-action inspection they'd rush out and rent Japanese cars.

While groping for a solution, Hooks encountered an economist who suggested that the Japanese auto manufacturers should simply lower their prices. Hooks was outraged. He screamed, "Why, in the name of all that is good, should Japanese cars sell for a lower price? It's unfair." Hooks went on to sing, "If anything, justice demands there be a MINIMUM price to prevent exploitation and promote a decent living for the Japanese.' The economist shouted, "Hogwash! If you want to see the American consumer get rid of his stereotypes and discrimination against Japanese cars, then let them go for a lower price.'

Hooks ignored the economist. Instead, he sought the advice of his buddies at the United Auto Workers Union (UAW). Unknown to Hooks, the UAW had a long record of being against the importation of Japanese or any other foreign cars. The UAW people sided with Hooks saying, "Don't pay any attention to that economist. Fairness and justice demand that if an American car sells for $10,000, a Japanese car should go for the same price." The UAW told Hooks it was proud of the NAAJP, and would happily make financial contributions to the noble mission of insuring justice for Japanese automakers.

The UAW had many tools they'd lend to Hooks. One was a labor law, but it could be easily adapted and applied to cars. It was the minimum-wage law. The UAW explained to Hooks that when applied to cars it could be called a tariff. And merrily off to Congress went the UAW and Hooks to lobby for higher minimum prices for Japanese Hooks, delighted with his new alliance and legislative efforts, reported back to Tokyo. His news was greeted with all sorts of unprintable unpleasantries, but the bottom line was, YOU'RE FIRED!

Fortunately, the Japanese didn't pay attention to Hooks' advice. But fortunately, for Hooks, he's still employed - advising others.

Today in History

By The Associated Press Today is Sunday, July 28, the 209th day of 1985. There are 156 days left in the year

Today's highlight in history: Forty years ago, the U.S. Senate ratified the United Nations Charter by a vote of 89-2.

On this date: Ten years ago: President Gerald R. Ford arrived in Warsaw, Poland, where he was greeted by friendly crowds. The president met privately for nearly two hours with Communist Party chief Edward Gierek.

Five years ago: Twelve years of military rule in Peru ended when Fernando Belaunde Terry took the presidential oath of office in ceremonies in Lima.

One year ago: The Los Angeles Summer Olympics opened, minus 15 nations who stayed away in a Soviet-led withdrawal.

Today's birthdays: Singer Rudy Vallee is 84. Jacqueline Onassis is 56. Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., is 42. Actress Linda Kelsey is 39. Actress Sally Struthers is 37. Actress Georgia Engel is 37.

No sale for a used car

One of the good things about being 38 and back on the streets again is you get to talk to younger people who have interesting perspectives. I was in the company of a young woman of 24 recently who is quite concerned if she will ever find a husband. "For what reason?" I asked her

"It's because there are only four types of men these days, and I don't want to get involved with any of them.

I asked her to explain further

"The first type is the wimp," the young woman continued. "A wimp always picks you up on time, never forgets your birthday, will go browsing with you in antique stores, calls you 10 times a day at work and is constantly paying you compliments.'

See what I mean about interesting perspectives? I thought women enjoyed that sort of attention from a man.

"The problem with wimps," the lady explained, is they are no challenge whatsoever. They fall in love with you on the first date, and what they are really looking for is another mother to take care of them. Being married to a wimp would be dreadfully boring.

I asked about the second type of man.

"Jerks," was her answer, "Jerks are handsome and confident of themselves, but you can't take your eye off them because they constantly are looking at somebody else besides you.

"Jerks try to snow every girl they meet, but they have little interest in a lasting relationship or

"Jerks are better than wimps, though, because most of them are at least real men. Women don't think they want a real man until they've dated a few wimps, and a lot of women fall for jerks because they think they can change them, which

'Once a jerk, always a jerk?'' "Precisely," my companion replied

And the third group

"Gays. Besides the obvious problem, women don't want to go out with gays because no woman wants to go out with a guy who's better looking than she is.

The fourth group?

"They're the takens. They are perfect. They are trustworthy like wimps, but they've got some real man in them too. The problem is when you meet a man like that, he's already been taken by another woman, so he's definitely out."

I began to wonder where I fit into the lady's

I'm not taken. I have been before, but not now. I'm not gay. I hate browsing in antique stores, and if a jerk has to be handsome, then I'm not one of those either

I decided there was a fifth category of men for guys like myself. We're the used cars. We've been around the block a time or two, to be sure, but sometimes if a girl gets lucky, she can hook up with a used car that will be as reliable as a shiny new one

We have the advantage of experience, and most of us can't afford another mistake - financially or otherwise. And the older we get, the more cuddly we become.

I mentioned my thoughts to the young lady. "I see your point," she said, "but I don't think I would like to be married to a used car either.'

"And why is that?"

'Ever try to crank one of those things on a cold morning?

One of the bad things about being 38 and back on the streets again is how bad the truth hurts when vou hear it.

time bomb ticks in the Philippines

By William A. Rusher

When I checked into the Hotel Manila on Nov. 18, 1964, in the course of a leisurely trip around the world, I was considerably annoyed because I couldn't get a room with a tub bath. It turned out that I had arrived in the midst of a convention of the Nacionalista Party, which was being held at the famous old hotel

Judging by the pins on the delegates who swarmed through the corridors, and by the helium balloons supporting slogans out on the lawn, somebody named Marcos was the front-runner in the race for the party's presidential nomination. In due course he won it, as well as the ensuing election, and he has been president of the Republic of the Philippines ever since In the intervening two decades, Ferdinand Marcos has been a loyal friend of Uncle Sam in an area of the globe where the United States has, to put it mildly, had its problems. Vietnam is now wholly communist, and Camranh Bay houses a Soviet naval base operating from 25 to 30 warships and auxiliaries in the South China Sea. Our own principal base in the area is Clark Field on the major Philippine island of Luzon, and without it and the port facilities afforded to our Navy by Manila we would be hard put to protect vital American and allied interests in

Unfortunately the Marcos era, like many another-long political regime in the developing world, has been increasingly shadowed by authoritarian methods and, inevitably, a good deal of corruption. The local communists, who have long maintained insurgent forces in the countryside on certain islands in the archipelago, are growing bolder and moving into the cities. More ominously, the anti-Marcos forces now include a good many noncommunist leftists who are explicitly anti-American, plus others who are not yet outspokenly so but who nonetheless resent our continued support of Marcos. Finally, the powerful influence of the Catholic Church, as well as that of certain disaffected business interests, are being thrown into the scales against Marcos (who suffers from kidney trouble and is reportedly on dialysis).

It is not hard to foresee the course events may follow. The international left-liberal attacks on Marcos will intensify, and opposition to him at home will increase. He will respond with re-pressive measures based on military pport, and lose what little credit he still has abroad. Economic distress will worsen. A multi-party junta will overthrow the Marcos regime, with belated and halfhearted support from our State Department. Within a couple of years it will transpire that slightly over half the junta members are 'Marxists"; the rest will thereupon be neutralized or exiled; the Catholic Church will change sides — too late; the People's Democratic Republic of the Philippines will join the communist bloc in the United Nations; and the New York Times will charge, editorially, that we "drove it into Russia's

Is there still time to avoid this drearily familiar scenario? Yes - if we get off our verandas and start taking the necessary preventive steps right away. In a perceptive study prepared for the Heritage Foundation, Berkeley Professor A. James Gregor calls for a policy of encouraging "evolutionary change" in the Philippines. The first step must be short-term military assistance to counter the insurgents, followed by a comprehensive package of economic aid. Then the United States should encourage a "transition to a normalized political system," with Marcos's cooperation if possible. Gregor argues that this would "isolate the radicals" and reduce the attraction of anti-Americanism. Would it work? We can at least try.

Skellytown council praised

The city of Skellytown is faced with a problem of their city dump being closed due to the fact that the present dump is running out of land. The city council has hired BFI for a permanent solution to this

There has been so much controversy over bringing BFI in. But if the people who oppose BFI would just have an open mind and listen to what the city council has to say they would understand that there is no other alternative.

The people who oppose BFI feel there is no other land available. But the land they talk about, and the city council has checked out, does not meet state requirements for a dump site. They expected Mr. Arrington to solve their problems. But it is not up to Mr. Arrington to solve the city's problems. It is the city's problem. And the city council is trying to do just that-solve the problems.

The people opposing BFI have a petition signed by approximately 250 people who say they oppose BFI. The paper stated there are 545 registered voters in Skellytown. But the paper and the opposers failed to state that many of these people who signed the petition were not eligible to sign it. They were either underaged or not registered. And many of the people who signed it were not correctly informed. Some were told there was definitely other dump sites available and some were told BFI would cost $20 or $50 a month. The cost of BFI would be $8.05 per month.

Some people are saying $8.05 is too much and they can't afford it. But it seems strange they can afford cable TV and cigarettes. Granted some can't afford it, but it will cost them more than that if the dump is closed and they have to hire someone to carry their trash to another town and dump it.

It was also brought up at a city council meeting about the conditions of the roads in town. If the city council could find land for a city dump, and if the state health department would approve it, it would cost the city $150,000 for a new dump. That would mean even

It's time this city united together and work together as neighbors and help support the city council. The members of this city council are not paid. They are doing the best they can to the best of their ability. The people of Skellytown voted them in. This was brought up at a council meeting. One man said "but we didn't vote them in to abuse their duties." That man didn't even vote. He also stated they were breaking their oath. Maybe they should read their oath. I'm proud of our city council and the decisions they are making. I have lived here over 20 years and its nice to see a city council that is trying to clean up the city and make it a better place to live in and make permanent solutions to the problems that face this town. If the people in Skellytown have any questions about BFI, go to the city hall. I know they will be glad to answer your questions.

Fox set to guard hen-house

There is a continuing effort in Congress by some of the "liberal" Congressmen to do away with the right-to-work laws at the insistance of the labor "bossies."

Texas is one of about 22 states that have no compulsory unionism. The work force in this country, in my opinion, received a "slap in the face" when Secretary of Labor William E. Brock appointed Stephen Schlossberg to be one of the assistantss to the Labor Secretary to "coordinate" labor problems. Mr. Schlossberg for more than 15 years has been the chief attorney for the AFL-CIO unions and was a principal force for the union "bossies" advocating compulsory

In May, 1973, there was filed the largest multi-union action in history by union lawyers Joe Raub and Stephen Schlossberg against the National Right to Work Committee and Legal Defense Foundation. The goal of the AFL-CIO was to force all workers into compulsory unionism. It is still their goal and apparently Mr. Schlossberg has not changed sides.

It is amazing that with only 17 percent of the work force as members of organized unions that Mr. Brock would see fit to bolster the efforts of the unions, whose membership is in constant decline. Mr. Brock has said the Right to Work movement is an 'irrelevancy. demonstrating his ostrich-like approach to Big Labor's coercive abuse of the American workers

Apparently the appointment of Mr. Schlossberg was an attempt to appease the "big labor bossies" representing 17 percent of the work force, at the same time Mr. Brock has managed to alienate much of the 83 percent of the non-union workers. Mr. Brock has set the fox to guard the hen-house.

Challengers go after Mattox

AUSTIN (AP) - Two Republican candidates for attorney general paraded their law-and-order records in front of GOP county chairmen Saturday, but Democratic Attorney General Jim Mattox says crime-fighting is only about 2 percent of the job.

"Jim Mattox is a disgrace to law enforcement," said Ed Walsh, a former Democrat and Williamson County district attorney who is now seeking the GOP nomination for attorney general.

"The people deserve an attorney general they can be proud of," said state Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown, R-Lake Jackson.

Brown and Walsh have spent much of their campaign time talking about getting tougher on criminals and doing more for crime victims.

Mattox, after a Saturday news conference to publicize the state's new crime victims' bill of rights. said Walsh and Brown seem to know little about what the attorney general does

"It's disappointing that people like Buster Brown and Ed Walsh attempt to play on the ignorance of the public. It's probably because they don't know anything about the office," said Mattox, who faces re-election next year.

Talk about crime-fighting is not particularly pertinent in an attorney general's race, according to the incumbent

"Those folks are just trying to throw up a smoke screen. They don't have anything else to talk about so they are going to talk about that. I think that's not what the job is about. The job is being primarily the chief civil law

Of Walsh, Mattox said, "I'm sure the people out there in his county are disappointed he would quit his job as a front-line individual dealing with crime to go and chase his own political fortunes.'

President amused by media watch

WASHINGTON (AP) — At the first Cabinet meeting since his cancer operation, President Reagan waited until reporters and photographers had left after recording the start of the session before sharing a thought with his top advisers.

"They all watch you, those press guys," one of the officials present quoted Reagan as saying. "I was really sorely tempted to stumble forward just to see their reaction."

Reagan delivered the quip with a twinkle of the eye, reassuring those in the room that his operation hadn't diminished his sense of humor.

But the president, who is no stranger to the camera's harsh stare, certainly is being watched these days.

And the conclusions of observers don't always agree. To some who saw him welcome Chinese President Li Xiannian to the White House on Tuesday, Reagan looked pale and sounded hoarse. Others noticed his ruddy cheeks and strong voice.

He made another public appearance two days later, just before the Cabinet meeting. Then, he referred to the problem with his voice, saying, "The longer I get away from that tube that was down my throat the better it will get."

For several days after the July 13 surgery to remove a two-foot section of his colon, Reagan had a tube running through his nasal passage into his stomach to remove any gas or fluids accumulating there while his normal digestive processes were interrupted.

With the exception of the brief photo sessions, access to Reagan has been strictly controlled. The president granted one interview late in the week to a friendly columnist, and his wife, Nancy, gave one to another friend, rejecting requests from

Although Reagan does appear to be making a normal or perhaps even faster-than-normal recovery, some aides privately question the official line put out every day that makes the president seem almost superhuman.

"It was amazing to see how well he did at the hospital," said an aide who spoke on condition of anonymity.

"Now he's reached a sort of plateau, and he is going to heal more slowly. It does take time, after all. And let's face it, he is 74 years old."

Decision ends wild Saturn scramble

DETROIT (AP) — The reported decision by General Motors Corp. to build its Saturn car plant at Spring Hill, Tenn., ends eight months of promotion and speculation in a 36-state scramble for the industrial plum.

GM remained silent on the decision pending the official announcement, expected Monday, but two Tennessee senators claimed victory for their state.

Sens. Albert Gore Jr and Jim Sasser, both Democrats, said Friday there was no doubt the 6,000-worker plant would be located at Spring Hill, a town of 1,110 people 30 miles south of Nashville.

Ironically, Tennessee had not been among the hardest-fighting contenders.

In announcing the details of the Saturn Corp. project in January. GM set off an unprecedented nationwide contest among states hit by high unemployment during the recession of the early 1980s.

Saturn promises jobs, not just the 6,000 at the plant but 20,000 more in related production. And GM said it was committing $5 billion to start up the project billion to start up the project.

The 36 states deluged GM headquarters with details of why they deserved the plant, including cheap utilities, good schools, top-notch workers and tax breaks.

More than two dozen governors delivered their pitches in person.

Halfway through the rush, seven governors, GM Chairman Roger B.
Smith and a candy apple red prototype of a Saturn car appeared on the syndicated "Donohue"

But Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander was not among those who traveled to Michigan, although he did meet with Smith in April when the GM chief spoke in Memphis.

Tennessee made its initial bid for the plant when Economic Development Commissioner Bill Long traveled to Detroit in February. He said no tax concessions or other incentives were offered, but the state said it would build a road between Interstate 65 and the 2,400 acres in Spring Hill that have been optioned for the plant.

Long said the state's main selling point is its location — within 500 miles of 76 percent of the U.S. markets — plus state training for workers.

Throughout the eight months, news coverage of the contest led Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lee Iacocca to complain that "World War II got less ink."

Minnesota reportedly offered a "tax-free environment," a $30 million manufacturing technology center and relocation aid for UAW members from around the country. The cost of the state's package was estimated at $1.3 billion.

In contrast, Michigan estimated its incentive package for the Mazda Motor Corp. plant now under construction near Detroit at about 100 times smaller, or $130 million to $150 million.

Mixed in with the hard proposals were the soft sells — such as golfer Arnold Palmer's pitches on Detroit radio asking that Saturn come to his home area, Westmoreland County, Pa.

Missouri and the city of Chicago bought billboard space. Ohio cities and newspapers sponsored letter campaigns to Smith and the depressed Mahoning Valley even sent a busload of schoolchildren.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson wrote GM asking that economically hard-hit Youngstown, Ohio, get Saturn Days later, after complaints from people back home in Chicago, Jackson switched and asked GM to put the plant in Illinois.

"Both communities are desperate and needy areas," he explained.

Critics charged that GM was playing states against one another to get the best deal. Consumer advocate Ralph Nader called it a President Douglas Fraser called Saturn a "dog and pony show."

GM denied the allegations. Privately, company officials claim that Illinois Gov. James Thompson began the hoopla by flying to

U.S. policy under heavy fire

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Reagan administration's policy of "constructive engagement," devised 41/2 years ago to foster peaceful change in South Africa, is floundering in a climate of violence and repression that is leading Congress to substitute its own policy of

Secretary of State George P. Shultz has acknowledged that constructive engagement is "a very controversial policy," although the administration clings to it.

Pretoria clearly doesn't pay it heed as it resorts to extreme measures to maintain the system of apartheid that gives South Africa's white minority total domination over the nation's 22 million blacks. It has imposed a state of emergency at home and staged new cross-border raids into neighboring black-ruled states.

The death toll from recent violence has risen to more than 500, most of them blacks killed by police and soldiers, but also some blacks slain by other blacks who suspected them of collaborating with the white regime. South Africa plotted a sabotage mission against a U.S.-owned oil refinery in Angola that failed only because the Angolans

Critics in Congress - now in the majority in both houses - say the administration's policy has grown increasingly irrelevant.

"I think you have a revolution now taking place in South Africa," said Rep. Howard Wolpe, D-Mich., chairman of the House subcommittee on Africa. "There will be no turning back... The longer the revolution continues, the more violent it becomes."

Even some lawmakers who normally support the administration, such as Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., chairman of the Senate subcommittee on Africa, worry that the administration's policy appears to favor the forces of apartheid.

In recent weeks, however, the administration has shown it is having second-thoughts about its stand.

It has withdrawn the American ambassador, Herman Nickel, and issued progressively more critical statements. On Thursday, the White House for the first time said it was "reviewing the situation," although not the basic policy

And on Friday, spokesman Larry Speakes declared, "We want the state of emergency removed. ... Violence and repression will not solve the country's problems.

Constructive engagement was devised as a policy of persuasion - aimed at encouraging South Africa to relax its apartheid measures. It marked a reversal of the more confrontational stand of the Carter administration.

The policy also sought to create a climate for change by promoting peace between South Africa and its black-ruled neighbors. Other goals were to achieve independence for Namibia and a withdrawal of the more than 25,000 Cuban troops in Marxist Angola.

But after 4 1-2 years, none of the goals have been attained. Shultz claimed in a speech last week there has been a great deal of reform in South Africa, but critics say the changes haven't addressed the fundamental issue, which is that blacks are denied the right to vote or join in the government. Administration criticism of the South African government was muted until recently. At a press conference on March 21, for example, President Reagan defended South African police who killed 19 unarmed blacks gathering for a funeral march, referring to police as defending the "law and order side.

In point of fact, constructive engagement no longer has much meaning, and few in the administration seem to any longer believe in it, although they publicly support it.

Bishop Desmond Tutu, the Nobel peace prize-winning black South African cleric, said on the White House lawn after a meeting with Reagan in December that constructive engagement had worsened the plight of blacks.

The problem for the administration, however, has been what to put in its place.

Ugandan military overthrows leader

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) -Soldiers loyal to a rebellious military commander rolled into the capital from two sides today and overthrew President Milton Obote in a bloodless coup, according to a broadcast on Radio Uganda.

An army officer who said he spoke for Brigadier Basilio Olara Okello, the northern army commander who revolted a week ago, interrupted normal broadcasting on the state radio to proclaim the coup.

"I announce to you the total end of Obote's tribalistic rule," said the officer, who identified himself as Lt. Col. Walter Laceru. He spoke in broken English. There were unconfirmed reports that Obote had fled to neighboring Kenya.

Former dictator Idi Amin told The Associated Press in a telephone interview from his home in Jidda, Saudi Arabia, that he supported the coup. He said the military rulers must release all political detainees and allow exiled Ugandans to return home in order to consolidate their power.

Okelio and his supporters were mostly members of the Acholi tribe of northern Uganda. Obote and his military chief of staff, 'rigadier Smith Opon Acak, are Langi, also a northern tribe.

Friction between the two tribes began after Opon Acak was promoted to chief of staff over more prominent officers like Okello in 1984.

"It was a bloodless coup. Civilians can join in the city square any time from now," the broadcast said. It also called on rebels under former Defense Minister Yoweri Museveni to end their four-year-old guerrilla movement and help the new government end tribalism.

Crowds of civilians began pouring into the streets in response to the rebel's radio appeal, singing songs of the opposition Democratic Party along with the soldiers. There was some evidence of moving to contain it.

The radio announcement was made at 11:30 a.m. (4:30 a.m. EDT). Less than 30 minutes earlier, 25 military trucks entered Kampala from the north, and met no resistance.

The rebel force captured the main post office and the central bank after driving past the Democratic Party headquarters, where they shouted the party's rally cheer, "DP, DP."

One Westerner living in Uganda said in a telephone interview that, "at 11:15 all hell broke loose." She said there initially was heavy machine gun and mortar fire, but that her neighborhood near downtown became "very peaceful in an eerie sort of way." She said large numbers of soldiers were walking around, but that as of early afternoon there had been no reports of injuries or resistance

Reports reaching Kampala said rebel units had captured the important military base at Bombo, about 30 miles north of Kampala early today and staged their assault on the capital from there. Another rebel force reportedly captured the eastern town of Soroti and then moved toward Kampala, taking the industrial center of Jinja and the strategic Owens Falls dam over the Nile River.

Pro-Obote garrisons in Jinja and the nearby Magamaga ordinance depot ran, leaving the installations empty, according to reports.

Obote's chief aide, Cris Rwakasisi, was arrested while crossing a road over the dam, the reports said. He apparently was trying to escape eastward toward Kenya, according to reports from Jinja, a city 50 miles east of Kampala on the shore of Lake Victoria.

Rwakasisi, Obote's internal security chief, was being held at a police station in Jinja, sources

Hot, dry conditions prevail; harvest begins

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Crop harvesting operations are in full swing in parts of Texas as hot, dry conditions prevail, says Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, in his weekly report on the state's agriculture.

While sorghum harvesting is about complete in the Rio Grande Valley, cotton harvesting is picking up the slack in that region and corn harvesting is about to start. Sorghum harvesting is in full swing in coastal areas and in Southwest Texas west of San Antonio and is increasing in central and north central counties.

Sorghum yields are generally running above average in the early going, Carpenter said. Corn prospects also look good in many areas, particularly in the Valley and Southwest Texas.

Cotton bolls are popping open in the Valley and Coastal Bend. About 10 percent of the cotton crop has been harvested in the Valley while producers in the Coastal Bend are preparing to apply defoliants to get their crop ready for harvesting.

The rice harvest is under way in the Upper Coast region.

Onion and potato harvesting is active in parts of the plains, particularly in Deaf Smith County, and harvesting of Pecos cantaloupes is in full swing, Carpenter said.

Harvesting of some late peaches continues in eastern and northern counties while summer vegetable production is winding down. Some preparations are already under way for fall vegetable plantings, particularly in the Rio Grande

Lack of moisture is starting to hamper some late crops and dryland crops in western areas of the state, said Carpenter. Also, pastures and ranges are starting to decline under the typically hot, dry mid-summer weather, causing an increase in cattle marketings in some locations.

Hay making has slowed in many locations due to limited forage growth, Carpenter said.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions. PANHANDLE: Most crops are making good progress although those on dryland need rain. Corn is silking and cotton is fruiting. Potato and onion harvesting remains in full swing in Deaf Smith County. Crop irrigations are increasing under hot, dry conditions. Ranges need rain.

SOUTH PLAINS: Open weather is helping cotton although much of the crop is late. Corn is making good progress, with irrigations active. Sorghum and sugar beets continue to look good. Ranges are starting to show a need for rain.

ROLLING PLAINS: Cotton and sorghum are making good growth but will need rain soon. Farmers are busy cultivating cotton and baling hay. Some ranchers are continuing to spray mesquite. Livestock continue to look good although grazing is tapering off due to lack of moisture.

NORTH CENTRAL: Crops are maturing under hot, dry conditions although recent scattered rains caused some slowdown. Some early sorghum harvesting is under way. Cotton is blooming. Harvesting of summer vegetables and late peaches continues. Livestock remain in good condition with plenty of grazing.

NORTHEAST: Crops and pastures need rain. Cotton is setting bolls and looks good, and a good peach harvest continues. Vegetables are generally succumbing to the hot, dry weather. Dry conditions are limiting hay cuttings.

FAR WEST: Hot, dry conditions are boosting the cotton crop but are causing pastures and ranges to decline. Cotton is blooming and looks good but fleahoppers are increasing. Also, pink bollworm moths continue to be active in cotton fields. Cantaloupe harvesting remains in full swing in the Pecos area.

WEST CENTRAL: Early sorghum is turning color while peanuts and cotton are making good progress. Baling of sudan hay is active. Peaches are still in good supply and pecan prospects are good. Crops as well as pastures and ranges need rain. Ranchers are selling some livestock as grazing conditions decline.

CENTRAL: Sorghum harvesting is under way, with above average yields. Corn is maturing and cotton bolls are developing. Farmers are spraying cotton for late-season lygus bugs and bollworms. Forage growth on hay crops and pastures is slowing down due to hot, dry conditions.

EAST: Hot, dry conditions are limiting crop progress and forage growth. Peanut plantings generally are limited this year. Watermelon harvesting continues and the pecan crop looks good. Rain is needed for additional hay cuttings. Livestock are in fair to good condition.

UPPER COAST: Harvest operations are gaining momentum, with rice and sorghum harvesting under way. Hay making also is active, with good yields. Some watermelon harvesting continues. Pastures are in good shape for this time of the year. Most livestock are harvesting is active, with generally good to excellent yields. Some early corn harvesting also has started; yields also are good. Most pastures and ranges continue to look good although rain will be needed soon in some counties.

SOUTHWEST: Harvesting of a bumper sorghum crop is under way, and a bumper corn crop is waiting in the wings. However, sorghum prices have dropped below the breakeven level. Hay making remains active. Dry conditions are affecting pastures and ranges, and ranchers are starting to move livestock to market. Goat shearing is active.

COASTAL BEND: Sorghum harvesting made good progress under open weather. The crop is about 30 percent harvested and yields are above average in some areas. Cotton bolls are opening and farmers are getting ready to apply defoliants to the crop in preparation for harvesting. Harvesting of a good hay crop continues. Pastures and ranges will need rain soon.

SOUTH: Crop harvesting is in full swing. Cotton harvesting is increasing while the sorghum harvest is about complete, with yields above average. A good corn harvest also is in prospect. Sugarcane is making excellent progress. Farmers are making preparations for fall vegetable plantings. Pasture, range and livestock conditions remain good.

Cloud seeders do their rain dance high up in the sky

By SHEILA ALLEE

Associated Press Writer UVALDE, Texas (AP) - In a recreational vehicle and small portable building at an airstrip here, Robert Beaumont watches for clouds.

If he spots one, he dispatches a plane to the sky, hunting the cloud and seeding it with a chemical.

Beaumont is a rain-maker. He works for North American Weather Consultants, a cloud-seeding operation that contracts its services worldwide and is working for municipal customers in dry areas of South and West Texas.

The Uvalde operation services projects for the Edwards Underground Water District and the city of Corpus Christi, both hit hard last year by a severe drought.

The drought since has broken in Corpus Christi, which draws its water from the overflowing Lake Corpurs Christi, and in San Antonio, which taps the Edwards Aquifer.

But conditions are not as rosy in San Angelo, skirted by the heavy rains that have doused the other two cities and their surroundings in the past six months.

San Angelo still faces drought conditions and has contracted with North American for its own cloud seeding effort, hoping to drum up rainwater that will flow into its water supplies in O.C. Fisher, Twin Buttes and Nasworthy lakes.

Officials in all three areas say they hope the projects are just the commitment to cloud seeding.

'You can't view it a something that's going to solve your problems," said Beaumont, a meteorologist. "To make it a success and worthwhile, you need to do it all the time.

But not everyone is pleased that Beaumont and his co-workers are fooling with Mother Nature. Farmers have protested that showers in their area, triggered to benefit city water supplies, only cause them grief.

Equipped with satellite weather maps, radar and National Weather Service reports, Beaumont spends much of his time tucked inside the recreational vehicle eyeing a radar screen.

When he spots a promising cumulus cloud, he dispatches a pilot in a twin-engine Beechcraft. Once the top of the cloud reaches 18,000 to 20,000 feet, it contains water drops colder than freezing but still liquid.

Then the aircraft deposits silver iodide crystals, whose temperature is even colder.

Water freezes around those crystals, drops through the clouds and gathers more moisture around it. The process continues and gathers momentum until a rainshower occurs.

Cloud seeding doesn't make rain, says North American spokesman Bob Swart, it just makes a rainshower start sooner.

The opposition has come from farmers who fear the rainshowers may some day trigger flooding on their crop and ranchland

Maurice Rimkus, a cotton and grain farmer from Uvalde County, said the Edwards Underground Water District project calls for cloud seeding in the Hill Country. Heavy rains in the target area could result in destructive rainwaters rushing through farmlands in Real and Uvalde counties, he said.

We have very violent and unforecastable weather here," he

Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board has provided a toll-free phone line for the benefit of sorghum farmers who have questions about the forthcoming grain sorghum checkoff referendum. The number, 1-800-692-4169, will be in operation from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, July 17 to August

Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board (TGSPB) is conducting a statewide referendum on the proposition that grain sorghum may be assessed up to one cent per hundredweight to finance grain sorghum promotion and market development. The program is voluntary. Producers who do not wish to participate will request and promptly receive a refund.

The TGSPB checkoff funds are used to finance promotion of Texas grain sorghum throughout the world. In recent years, most of the effort has been concentrated in Mexico. That effort has paid off with Mexico becoming the number one customer for U.S. sorghum buying more than half as much in the last three years as Texas produced.

Other sorghum promotion projects have been started in Egypt, Algeria, and China. Plans are under way for livestock feeding demonstrations in several countries in South America and Asia. Implementation of those projects depends upon the support of Texas sorghum farmers.

At the same time, Texas farmers vote on the checkoff referendum, they will elect directors to seven positions on the board which administers the TGSPB programs. The TGSPB directors - all sorghum farmers themselves - will have complete authority over the program, once it is established. They will set the rate of assessment (within the limit approved by the voters). They will determine collection procedures, decide projects and hire the staff to do the work. Ballots are mailed to more than 60,000 Texas sorghum farmers on the ASCS rolls. About 13,000 of these producers are in the twenty-nine counties which already have a grain sorghum checkoff. The remaining 47,000 are in the new territory which is petitioning expansion.

Any farmer who does not receive his ballot by August 1 may pick one up at the office of his county agent or get one from the TGSPB office by calling the toll-free number

Man, 75, rises early to broadcast ag news

By JERRY LYNAS Beaumont Enterprise BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) -

Charlie Schmucker used to get up at 4 a.m. to milk 16 cows. That's why going on the radio at 5:09 a.m. comes easy to him. He hits the airwaves Monday through Friday, doing what comes naturally, giving the farm news and advice from the Farmer's Almanac. "A little bit of corn Schmucker says. deprecatingly

But it must be good. He's in his 37th year of early morning broadcasting.

After his radio stint is over for the day, he heads home for breakfast, but he's at work at his second job at Modern Inc., a farm implement company, by 7:30.

'It's no problem for me to get up," Schmucker said. "On the farm, we got up close to 4 o'clock in the morning, and my dad and I milked the cows seven days a week." They did the milking early to have the milk ready for a milk truck by 6 a.m.

Schmucker's two jobs are the only ones he is doing these days, after "retiring" from three other jobs. He's 75, but he doesn't act or look it.

Schmucker's love for farming and the people who till the soil is what keeps him doing the broadcasts.

He was born in Indiana but his family moved to Hamshire when he was 8 years old. His father farmed rice, figs and watermelon.

He graduated from Winnie High School and furthered his education at Lamar Junior College and Texas A&M, where he received a 'bachelor's degree in agricultural education.

In 1935 he married Nola Mae Jowell, who was teaching school at Hamshire but is now retired. He and his wife have a daughter, Linda, who teaches at Pasadena public schools and Houston Community College.

Schmucker began 17 years of teaching vocational agriculture in 1973 when he joined the faculty of Bellville High School. In 1943, he moved to Yoakum High School, whre he remained until returning to A&M in 1946 to pursue a master's degree, which he received in 1947. He became Beaumont High School's vocational agriculture teacher in 1948, a year before he started his radio broadcasts. He stayed at the high school until 1952. Then he "retired" at the age of 42.

"I thought I was getting too old," Schmucker said. "I was 42. My idea of teaching agriculture was seven days a week, 24 hours a day and going all the time. I just didn't want to be an old ag teacher. Anybody that was a good ag teacher was closely involved with the boys.

Schmucker's next job wasn't far removed from agriculture. He managed and operated the Beaumont Ford Tractor dealership of Oil City Tractors for five years, until 1957. Then his path led to First National Bank, where he became a vice president and chief agricultural loan officer.

He retired from that position in 1975 at the age of 65, but moved to Lamar University as director of development and executive secretary of the Alumni Assocation. Four years later he retired again, but not for long. He became associated with Modern Inc. on a part-time basis as a special representative.

Schumucker isn't the retiring kind when it comes to his radio broadcasts, which began in 1949 over Beaumont's KTRM. Later, he moved to Beaumont's KLVI. His is the longest continuous farm show in East Texas, possibly in the entire state. His broadcasts are a mixture of local, area, state and national farm news.

He speaks of his love of agriculture and the people it attracts in explaining his long stint as an agricultural radio broadcaster.

"I love agriculture and the things connected to it," he said. "I feel deeply its importance to our country. I like the animals, and I like the smell of plowed dirt. I like to see the birds and the animals doing well and being treated well.'

Although he said he plants vegetables in his garden when the ground is ready, he gives his listeners the advice in the Farmers' Almanac about planting by the phases of the moon

"I plant when my ground is ready, but my dear mother always planted by the moon, and she was a good gardener. I give them their

USDA report outlines arguments against crop controls

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Reagan administration will be looking closely at any move by Congress to include even the slightest hint of mandatory crop acreage controls in a new farm bill. according to sources in the Agriculture Department.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block has been opposed to mandatory curbs but has become alarmed about recent moves on Capitol Hill that could lead to forced restrictions on farmers as a means of reducing costly surpluses, said one of the sources. The clincher came Thursday when Block was sent a report by USDA economists on what they thought would happen if Congress opted for tough, mandatory acreage curbs and higher support

According to the sources, who spoke only on condition they remain anonymous, the report's findings virtually rule out any compromise by the administration on the question of mandatory acreage controls for wheat and

The report, one said, "lent new muscle" to Block's view that farm legislation must be kept free of forced government controls on farmers

'Mandatory production controls with accompanying higher prices would effectively eliminate U.S. commercial sales of wheat, causing an estimated decline in total wheat exports of 50 percent from the expected 1985-86 level." the report said.

In all likelihood, it added, by 1990-91, U.S. wheat exports would be limited to donations under Food for Peace aid and sales financed by U.S. credit programs.

"Exports of corn would drop by 40 percent and soybean exports would decline to a lesser extent,' the report said. "If the United States wanted to retain a share of the world market, large-scale export subsidies would be needed.

The two-page report was sent to Block and senior aides by the department's chief economist. Assistant Secretary Robert L. Thompson. Copies were obtained by The Associated Press and others.

Specifically, the report assessed the economic impact of a plan in the House to allow farmers to vote on whether to switch from basic programs for wheat, feed grains and soybeans to an alternative stem of tight mandatory production controls and higher price supports for a six-year period

A similar feature has had some support in the Senate, where Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., has urged it as an option for wheat farmers. The provision is also supported by the American Agriculture Movement.

The Reagan administration wants Congress to come up with a basic change in farm law in favor of more "market-oriented" commodity programs and reduced supports so that wheat and other crops can be more competitive in world markets.

According to the report, a mandatory land-idling program and higher support prices would raise wheat prices nearly 75 percent and corn and soybean prices by more than 50 percent from their expected 1985-86 levels.

The USDA currently projects wheat prices at the farm in the 1985-86 marketing year at around $3.30 per bushel. Thus, the mandatory curbs and higher supports would boost wheat prices to roughly $5.78 per bushel.

Corn, now projected at $2.55 per bushel, would rise to $3.83 per bushel, and soybeans, projected at $5.60 per bushel in 1985-86, could go up to $8.40 under the plan, according to USDA figures.

The report said that to maintain grain exports, it would take subsidies of $2.3 billion to $3.4 billion annually for wheat; $1.9 billion to $2.4 billion for corn; and about $2.4 billion for soybeans. 'On the other hand, the European Community would benefit since higher world prices would enable them to export more wheat and coarse grains with minimum of zero subsidy needed.' the report said.

Other consequences cited in the report included:

-A significant change in the U.S. livestock-and-feed economy Higher supports would boost feed costs and result in further cutbacks in breeding herds. The impact would be particularly pronounced in the beef sector with per capita consumption declining to 68.5 pounds in 1991, down 13 percent

1984 -The economic impact of mandatory controls would be focused on Midwest farm-based from the 78.5 pounds consumed in fuel, seed, pesticides, machinery and other inputs would drop by $2 billion or more. Under the 1983 PIK program, for example, purchases dropped nearly $5 billion. -As many as 200,000 people would lose their jobs by the end of the 1980s. Apart from losses in the farm input sector, there would be further attrition of meat packing plants and employees. Recent financial hardships among farmers would be aggravated.

-Meat prices would rise 10 percent to 20 percent more than otherwise as a result of mandatory crop production controls. Cereal and bakery prices would likely increase 3 percent to 4 percent

research for a full-scale excavation

By DAVID SEDENO Associated Press Writer

PORT MANSFIELD, Texas (AP) - Somewhere in the Gulf of Mexico is more than 50,000 pounds of booty from a Spanish shipwreck in 1554, but that's not what snagged Dr. Herman Smith's curiosity.

As officials begin laying the groundwork for a major excavation near here next year, Smith is more interested in the salvage crews that scoured the wreckage a few months after the three ships ran aground on sandbars off Padre Island

"If we find silver and gold, sure we'll take it. But that's not what's important to us," Smith, a Corpus Christi Museum archaeologist, said as he walked in an area where Spanish crews stayed for about a month while salvaging.

Sand and wind have since covered up or moved much of what was left behind from the ships, and two of them - the San Esteban and Espiritu Santo — have been pretty thoroughly excavated.

But the wreck of the Santa Maria de Yciar continues to elude treasure hunters, and experts believe there are more than 50,000 pounds of precious metals, coins and jewelry out in the Gulf.

Smith said he and other archaeologists don't expect any time soon to find any treasure, but he said the historical data is much more valuable anyway

Believe me, people love to see shipwreck stuff," he said. "But how long can you stare at a bar of

Legality, propriety of 21-hour session raised OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) -House Speaker Jim Barker said

Some legislators claimed it was illegal, others called it improper and virtually everyone connected with the overnight windup of the Oklahoma Legislature said they wished it wasn't necessary.

"This is a helluva way to run a railroad," was one of the most common gripes from House and Senate members as they trudged through the marathon final day of the first half of the 40th Oklahoma Legislature.

It was even worse for legislative staff members, including some who were up all night on the eve of the July 19 adjournment day to finish a mountain of paperwork. The session actually ended on July 20 at 5:41 a.m

Some contend extending the session into the next day violated the constitutional provision limiting a legislative session to 90 meeting days.

What concerned many lawmakers was that after meeting for 61/2 months, they wound up appropriating almost three-fourths of a $2.55 billion budget in a single

There was little time to read, let alone digest, the voluminous conference committee reports, they said.

Major legislation was not printed until the late-night hours before adjournment, including the $1.3 billion education package and the $60.5 million appropriation for capital improvements.

Many legislators, including Senate President Pro Tempore Rodger Randle, worried publicly that the crush of bills might cause errors that would force a special it was an extraordinary run of legislation - too much for one evening.

But he said there were some peculiar circumstances that led to the legislative finale.

"We were two-thirds of the way through the session before we ever knew how much money we were going to appropriate. We were very late reaching agreements — especially on the education bill because of the fight over the hold-harmless provision and other differences.

Barker, D-Muskogee, said it is not unusual for the education measure to be considered last, along with several other appropriations. He says much of the budget naturally comes together late.

There is some merit in passing those bills last," he said.

"I could reverse the argument on you and say we took every bit of the time that we could to work on those particular bills before we brought them up on the House floor.

"I know it would be better if we had had more time," he added. "But I don't think it would have made any difference.

The speaker is among the legislative leaders who have pooh-poohed contentions that the Legislature ran afoul of the Constitution by going past midnight on the 90th legislative

Barker contends a legislative meeting day can last "indefinitely." He said his opinion is based on advice from current legislative staff and attorneys.

Sen. Charles Ford, R-Tulsa, is among those who think there is a definite legislative time limit.

"I think the constitutional day is the 90th legislative day and it ends at midnight," says Ford. "I can find no definition of a day that goes past midnight of a particular calendar day.

In past years, lawmakers covered the clock when the midnight hour approached and kept on working

"HAVE YE NOT READ—?"

"And there came unto him Pharisees, trying him, and saying, Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife for every cause? And he answered and said, Have ye not read, that he who made them from the beginning made them male and female, and ning made them male and female, and said, For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother and shall cleave to his wife; and the two shall become one flesh. What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asun-der" (Matthew 19:3-6.) With these words Jesus set forth the simple truth regarding God's institution of marriage. This fundamental truth is as applicable today as it was then. Re-gardless of civil laws and society's acceptance, the only scriptural ground for divorce is fornication (Matthew

The Jewish leaders of that day should have known what was written in God's law. Whether they were ig-norant because they chose to be or just never had investigated the scriptures, we don't know. But the question, "Have ye not read?" could be asked of a lot of people concerning their obvious erroneous teaching today. For instance, those who teach salvation apart from baptism, we could ask, "Have ye not read" the scripture which states: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved" (Mark 16:16)? Have they never read these scriptures or do they choose to be ignorant of them?

When people speak of many churches and indicate that all are pleasing and acceptable to God, we wonder if they have never read, "and he put all things in subjection under his feet and gave him to be head over all things to the church, which is his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all" (Ephesians 1:22-23)? Have they never read, "there is one body" (Ephesians 4:4)? Have they never read that we shall be judged by the words of Jesus (John 12:48)?

God's Word, the Bible, is very plain in its teaching. Anyone with an average mentality can read and learn what they have to do to be saved. It is the communication of God's will to

News

As it approaches its 25th birthday in September, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries remains mired in perhaps its greatest crisis ever.

Oil prices are falling, demand for OPEC crude is stagnant and the group has all but lost its once-feared ability to influence the path of the oil market.

In four days of often tumultuous negotiations this week, the OPEC oil ministers could do no better than a majority decision to make minor cuts in some oil prices.

Earlier this month the ministers had met for three days in emergency session and produced nothing but a lame promise to stop cheating on price rules

If Bob Giese of Amarillo has a serious bone in his body it is not readily apparent-not even when he's playing tournament golf.

But what the always-joking senior golfer did to the Pampa County Club's back nine in the finals of the 51st Tri-State Seniors Golf Association Tournament Friday couldn't have seemed a bit funny to the rest

Giese shot a sizzling 5-under-par 31 on the back nine, breaking open a tight tournament and winning his third Seniors championship by an eight-stroke

The 63-year-old Giese posted a six-under 65 on the final 18 holes, finishing the tournament with a 72-hole total of 281, three under par.

Jake Broyles of Lamesa, who kept it close until Giese started his birdie barrage on the back nine, finished second at 289, nosing out Roy Peden of Kermit for the runnerup spot.

Giese, incredibly, used only nine putts on the back nine, chipping in for birdies on the 11th and 13th holes to turn the close contest into a runaway.

They started the final round with Giese holding a one-stroke lead over Broyles and Peden, both former champions.

He stretched his lead to two over Broyles and three over Peden with a birdie on the second hole. But Broyles birdied No. 3 to close it back to one and had two good chances to pull even, but missed makable birdie putts on the sixth and ninth greens.

It looked as if Giese was going to lose a stroke on the 11th after he missed the green to the left and faced a chip over a steep slope with the pin cut so close to the edge of the green that there was little chance of stopping the ball close to the hole.

So Giese decided to play a pitch-and-run, bouncing the ball through the fringe, running it over the slope and straight into the hole for a birdie.

After all three golfers parred the 12th, Giese did it again on the 13th and broke the battle for first place

Giese was in the rough with his first and second shots on the par five hole. His third shot was on the fringe about 15 feet short of the cup. He chipped it straight into the hole for another birdie to go three-under for the day.

Broyles, meanwhile, ran into all sorts of trouble on that hole after his tee shot stopped under a tree and he had to chip out onto the fairway. He went in a sand trap on his fourth shot, blasted out over the green and three strokes later finished with an eight, dropping four strokes to Giese on one hole.

Peden bogeyed the hole when a one-footer rimmed out, leaving Giese six shots ahead of both his playing companions.

Giese added birdies on the 15th and 17th, hitting perfect tee shots then wedging to within 10 feet and sinking the putts on both. He got into tree trouble with his tee shot on the par five 18th and couldn't go for the green on his second shot. But he hit an iron eight feet past the cup on his third shot and rolled in still another birdie putt for his 65.

After the 13th hole, it became obvious that Broyles and Peden were playing for second place.

Broyles, shaking off the effects of that disastrous eight on No. 13, went to his irons off the tee and played par golf for the next four holes before getting a final birdie on 18 to post a 73.

Peden missed a two-footer on the 16th green to fall one stroke behind Broyles. His bid for an eagle off the fringe on No. 18 that would have tied him for second just missed.

The relaxed Giese talked and joked with spectators throughout the round and afterward.

Someone blew a car horn in a nearby parking lot while he was putting on No. 9 and still locked in a tight race with Broyles.

'Nice going, Mrs. Broyles," he yelled as he walked off the green laughing.

Giese's third Seniors championship puts him in position to become only the third person to win four titles in the 51-year history of the event for golfers age 55 and over

'As young as I am, I might win it 10 times unless they find out I'm only 42," he joked.

WARREN HASSE

'YOU SURE DO KNOW how to put the pressure on a guy' whispered Carl Birdsong as he approached the microphone. I had just finished introducing the St. Louis football Cardinals premier punter to about 400 young men and adults at the annual Cal Farley Boys Ranch All-Sports Banquet about three months ago.

You bet," I said. "And I know you well enough to know you can

He first came to our attention as a football player at Amarillo High School. There he was an all-district punter and place kicker for two seasons, as well as an all-district performer in baseball. He went on to enroll at West Texas State to play for Bill Yung, a coach with the same high christian beliefs that have inspired Birdsong. He spent two seasons at Buffaloland, being named all-Missouri Valley Conference punter his sophomore season.

The final game that year was an afternoon affair at Tulsa. Driving home afterward, I stopped in Oklahoma City to eat. And there, in the very same restaurant, sat Carl with members of his family and friends. I paused at his table to congratulate him on a fine game, one that ended in a 17-17 tie and sent the Golden Hurricane to the Independence Bowl instead of the Buffs.

"That was my last game," he replied "I'm quitting and transferring to Southwestern Oklahoma to study pharmacy." Those were sad words to hear for area football fans, but they were indicitive of the type person Birdsong is. He had his priorities straight. A professional business goal was not going to be sidetracked by a little matter like superior athletic ability. He had always managed to combine both, having been an Honor Graduate in high school as well as a member of the Spanish Honor Society. After enrolling the next fall at the NAIA school he found he was able to obtain a classroom load that permitted him to continue football. And for the next two football seasons he also continued to collect honors...all-Oklahoma Conference punter and kicker and all-American NAIA punter...plus his bachelor of science degree in narmacy. He hauled in classroom honors, too, the president's hono roll, Rho Chi Honor Society, graduating Summa Cum Laude, and receiving three special academic awards upon graduation. Apothecary degree in hand and that goal secured, he was willing to take a look-see when Buffalo offered him a free agent contract. The rookie was unable to unseat veteran punter Greg Carter, and Carl was placed on waivers and immediately picked up by the Cardinals where he won the team punting job...and NFL honors. 1981 National Conference All-Rookie punter; 1982 National Conference leading punter: 1983 all-pro punter and Pro Bowl selectee.

1984 was a Catch 22 year. The Cardinals were a much-improved team offensively. As a consequence, Birdsong's duties changed from a distance, high hang time booter to one with a foot that could produce sideline accuracy or a deadened ball inside the 10 yard line. A devotee to practice, he made the adjustment and continued to work on it all off-season in Amarillo and daily now at the St. Louis camp on the Eastern Illinois University campus at Charleston, Illinois. "It was frustrating at times," he said, "but satisfying when you get the job done. Most upsetting was getting one kick blocked! Married in 1980 to a former AHS cheerleader, Shylan Williams, the couple just completed a new home in that city. "I work at the pharmacy part time, filling in when they are shorthanded," he said. The rest of the time I work on my punting, plant and work on the new yard, ride motorcycles, and work in our church. Shylan and I do a lot of programs for youth groups, playing the guitar and singing. As Birdsong addressed the Ranchers, he told of the four steps he uses to success, starting off with goal-setting and involving such things as expectations, physical preparation, practice, motivation, and embodying the most important thing to him, faith through the Bible. Billy Hobbs, another great football all-everything and very close friend of Birdsong's, had accompanied him to the Ranch. Hobbs is regional director for the outstanding Fellowship of Christian Athletes organization, and involves his punting friends in many activities of that group.

'There's nothing phony about Carl," Hobbs told me after the banquet dismissed. "He is everything he appears to be." Hobbs didn't have to tell me that. After 10 years of knowing him, I believe he has his life's priorities more in proper alignment than any athlete I have ever known, and won't let anything re-arrange them. That's why I could, with complete confidence and honesty put the pressure on him in the introduction by telling the young men of Boys Ranch: "If you want an athlete for a role model for your life, I recommend Carl Birdsong.

As the wife and I drove through the arched gateway from Cal Farley's attained dream-goal that night, I could look in the rear view mirror and see Carl Birdsong, surrounded by about 100 young men, explaining to them how to punt the ball, how to place kick, how to

Landry lectures wide receivers

Landry running tough Cowboy camp

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. - The Qallas Cowboys aren't involved in "California Dreamin" out

The Cowboy camp is as dead serious as the Mojave Desert at high noon in August, partly because Coach Tom Landry has picked his team to finish fourth in he National Conference Eastern

Not making the National ootball League playoffs last year was as good a reason as any, Landry figured.

The rookies got their first dose of Landry boot camp at Cal Lutheran College when they were told they would have no days off.

"If they want to make the team, they shouldn't mind," Landry said, and no rookie within his earshot complained as of the first two

Then, Landry scheduled three scrimmages in five days with the Los Angeles Raiders and Rams, tough-hitting affairs that the Cowboys filmed so the staff could make some quick decisions on the 85 free agents in camp.

"With the roster being trimmed from 49 to 45, we have to make decisions on some of the rookies earlier," said Landry. "The best way to do that is live action." And the veterans don't expect any better of it. We know what's coming," said fullback Timmy Newsome, who reported early. "Tom's going to be tough and we know it. But that's to be expected. We need to make up for last year. We want to make all the experts eat those fourth-place

Of course, Newsome was talking about the media, which generally is writing the Cowboys off, not Landry's psychological warfare

Not even the disturbing news of Tony Dorsett's immense financial problems has kept Landry from charting a tough course that he hopes will get the Cowboys back into the playoffs.

Diver first to win two gold medals

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — World champion Michele Mitchell became the first double gold medalist at the sixth - and last under the current title - National Sports Festival as she shattered the competition Saturday in her specialty, 10-meter platform

Jackie Joyner, the Olympic silver medalist in the women's heptathlon, set a collegiate record in the 100-meter high hurdles at Southern University's track. Joyner, 23, was timed in 13.32 seconds in the opening event of the seven-event, two-day competition, despite running into a wind of 2.28 meters per second and on a track saturated by rain.

Officials previously announced that Joyner had set an American record of 13.13 seconds but then reversed themselves, saying they had misread the time and photo of

Mitchell, 23, of El Toro, Calif., reasserted her mastery on the platform, collecting 448.59 points. She clinched the win with a near-perfect 11/2 somersault with

31/2 twists on the seventh of eight

Prior to Mitchell's performance, Matt Scoggin, the bronze medalist on the 3-meter springboard here, led the qualifiers from the 10-meter platform in men's diving. Scoggin, of Austin, Texas, had 592.35 points.

rounds, earning 85.44 points.

Greg Louganis, the world champion and double gold medalist at the Los Angeles Olympics, was third, more than 34 points behind. Louganis won the springboard competition Thursday night.

DALLAS (AP) - Paintings of family life and a drawing that depicts a lone basketball player reaching for a hoop grace the walls of the executive's contemporary office.

Behind the desk sits an athletic, slightly graying executive sipping ice water. The office and routine could be that of almost any Dallas businessman, but this particular world belongs to Roger Staubach.

At 43, the former Dallas Cowboys great is quarterbacking a growing commercial real estate firm called The Staubach Company, making heads turn in the real estate field as he did on the football

Business life seems to pale in light of a spectacular football career. As quarterback for the Cowboys, Staubach became the highest-rated passer in National Football League history and led the the Cowboys to two Super Bowls.

Next Saturday, Staubach will be inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame. The honor caps an 11-year career that ended with his retirement in Staubach admits that the transition from professional quarterback to local businessman has not always been easy.

"I had withdrawal pains on Sunday afternoons for awhile. It was hard the first couple of years," he said. "I didn't realize I'd miss the competition of the game as much as I did the first couple of years."

"Going from being a football star to a father and businessman was not hard," Staubach said. "But I do miss that competition on the field.

His football career may be over but people will long remember his name - a name that is now opening some doors in business.

Today, Staubach calculates his plays in the commerical real estate world. He is intent on establishing a business that has an honest reputation in the fast-pace world of real estate

"I've always wanted to control what I've done," he said. "You have to pay a price to make good things happen. It takes a lot of hard work to be

The Staubach Company offers brokerage and leasing services, and it also is involved in development projects and property management. The company employs more than 100 people.

Staubach says he has encountered some skepticism from people who are not quite sure what an ex-athlete is doing in real estate.

"Some people may feel I'm not qualified. Some feel I shouldn't be in their arena," he said. "Some people are aloof, and other are very emotional about seeing you.'

But overall, recognition as a football hero "has been a very positive thing.'

Staubach was 27 when he started with the Cowboys in 1969. Then, he was married with three children, and he always had his eye on the future

He and his wife Marianne now have five children, between ages 8 and 19.

"I didn't know how long my career would be," he

During off seasons, Staubach sold insurance with the Henry S. Miller Co., and he then got into the real estate side of the business in 1971. He became one of the company's top producers even though he only worked five or six months out of the year.

Staubach and business associate Robert Holloway formed a company in 1977, and the two made a friendly split about 1982.

His decision to retire from football at age 38 came after a season in which he suffered five concussions.

The injuries influenced his decision, but he said he was most concerned with being able to decide when he would quit and not being forced out of football.

After his retirement, Staubach worked as a sports commentator and in advertising. Then he settled down in real estate.

Some have said politics may be the next step, but he said he has "no desire" to run for public office

"I really feel like this is my life," he said. "I'm like a sponge trying to soak in all this information. I'm still pretty hungry as far as wanting to learn."

And he feels a little more at ease these days. 'The pressures of business are less than in football where there is the pressure of winning every Sunday afternoon," he said.

Today, his Sunday afternoons are sometimes spent out at Texas Stadium - where he sits in a box leased by his company and watches the team that brought him fame

"My advice to guys playing right now is that football is your priority, but you still have to prepare yourself tir life after football. It's imperative that

Tourney success The Minor League tournament for players ages 8 and 9 held in Pampa last week was pronounced a complete success by Larry Gilbert, one of the organizers, and raised hopes it might become an annual event

It was the first Minor League tournament ever held in the state. A state Little League district commissioner attended and was impressed, Gilbert said.

'We just hoping that enough people will be interested enough that we can hold tournaments for this age group in the future," Gilbert said.

The Pampa team went undefeated to win the tournament, beating Borger 10-7 in the final game, its second win over Borger in the tournament

The game was tied going into the last inning when Pampa scored three runs to take the victory.

During the tournament, Pampa received outstanding pitching from Chris Gilber, Hank Gindorf and Matt Edgar. Leading hitters were Edgar, Gregg Moor, Chad Dunnam and Mannie Munoz. Terry Bob Moore managed the team and Larry Gilbert was the coach.

Police chiefs better educated, politically naive, study indicates

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's police chiefs are better educated than they were a decade ago, but many remain underqualified and inattentive to the political tasks required of them, according to a study released Saturday.

The typical chief turns out to be 49 years old, with five and a half years in his job and 24 years in law enforcement. He has spent nearly 18 years with the same department and works nearly 57 hours a week, the study found

He is more likely than not to have a college degree and will spend nearly eight years in his post if he was appointed to it and slightly more than 11 years there if he was

The study was based on surveys conducted in 1982 and 1983 of 493 chief executive officers of police departments with more than 75 employees. There are 1,100 police departments of that size and they provide law enforcement to a majority of the nation's population. The study, "The American Law Enforcement Chief Executive: A Management Profile," was conducted and written by Donald C. Witham, a supervisory FBI agent who teaches at the FBI Academy in Quantico, Va. The facility is a training center for FBI agents and many state and local policemen.

The study was financed and published by the Police Executive Research Forum, an organization of police chiefs devoted to modernizing police methods.

In 1982, 50.7 percent of the chiefs had at least a bachelor's degree, and a year later, 56.8 percent reported having at least a bachelor's degree.

The study found that 67.4 percent of chiefs younger than age 41 had college degrees, compared to 28.3 percent of those over age 57.

"All of these percentages are much higher than observed in earlier studies," Witham wrote. "Law enforcement has been able to raise the educational level of its top officials.'

But he noted that a national commission recommended in 1976 that departments with 75 or more employees require their chiefs to have a four-year college degree.

"Nearly 10 years later," Witham wrote, "almost 50 percent of these officials still do not possess a baccalaureate degree.

The chiefs were asked to list their three most important duties. and most concentrated on administrative tasks. Only 45.7 percent listed one of four "political" duties among the top

The political duties listed were: developing proper relationships with community leaders, with police union officials, with media representatives, and with political officials

In addition, Witham said he found that "very few of the leaders have recent managerial

Gandhi proving masterful at solving internal disputes

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - In nine months, Rajiv Gandhi has shown himself to be a peacemaker in internal and regional disputes, displaying a conciliatory style that differs markedly from his mother's politics of confrontation.

The prime minister has defused a host of inherited crises.

He has come to terms with the moderate wing of the Sikh minority; ended bloody, caste-related agitation in western Gujarat state; moved toward a settlement of the anti-immigrant feud in Assam, and arranged peace talks between Sri Lanka's warring

Few expected so much so soon from the 40-year-old former airline pilot, who joined politics reluctantly four years ago and was thrust into the prime minister's office with the slaying of his mother, Indira Gandhi, last Oct. 31.

After an accord was signed Wednesday to end strife in Punjab - India's most volatile region, with 4,500 people killed in Sikh-related violence in the past three years - Gandhi is being hailed throughout India as a great statesman.

"He has matured into a leader who can and will take India to unprecedented heights of stability. unity and prosperity," the Hindustan Times said in a front page editorial Thursday.

The agreement conceded only some of the Sikhs' political, religious and territorial demands. and was signed after just two days of negotiations in New Delhi. Sikh militants have rejected the accord as a "sell-out," but analysts of Indian events believe most Sikhs will embrace it.

Political observers said the peace pact was nearly identical to others scuttled under Mrs.

"This settlement should have come three years earlier," said Khushwant Singh, a prominent Sikh parliamentarian, historian and author. "But Mrs. Gandhi had her eye on the electorate and adopted a posture which blocked a settlement

"Rajiv Gandhi has shown he is flexible and not calculating. He's not a politician. There is no cunning about the man," he said.

A major reason for Gandhi's success in negotiations is that he learned from his mother's mistakes, several experts said in interviews.

"He has been a close witness to the very heavy price India paid from her policies, particularly in Puniab." said Pran Chopra, a leading analyst from the independent Center for Policy Research. "She had felt obliged to follow short-sighted tactics for preserving her own power. But he feels politically safe enough to decide honest politics is good

"While she was inclined to accentuate confrontation, he favors politics of conciliation and accomodation," Chopra added.

Gandhi's healing touch has not been restricted to Punjab, the northern state bordering Pakistan.

On July 18, the government revoked two controversial security laws in Assam to prepare ground for a settlement in the remote northeast state.

Assam has been torn by a five-year conflict that began when students demanded expulsion of more than 1 million Bengali-speaking Moslems who immigrated from Bangladesh.

More than 3,600 people were killed in Assam in early 1983 in sectarian violence set off by Mrs. Gandhi's decision to hold state

Femininity returns to winter fashions

Most fashion conscious women will be happy to hear that the designers are bringing back beautifully feminine clothes in their winter collections previewed this week in Paris.

On a more local level Wednesday, wives of the Tri-State

On a more local level Wednesday, wives of the Tri-State Seniors Golf Tournament players were treated to a colorful selection of fall and winter clothing available here that reflected the same comfortable, yet elegant lines shown in the haute couture collections. The fashion show followed a salad luncheon for the players' wives at the Pampa Country Club.

Colors for fall - winter, range from soft nuetrals and winter pastels to brilliant emeralds and rubies. Dress lengths vary, depending on the whims of the wearer, however, as a general rule most seem to favor a just - below - the - knee length.

Easy care fabrics, usually with natural fibers blended in, promise to be popular as the air turns cooler. Wool and wool blends continue to be ever-present.

Luxurious furs presented by Behrman's received oohs and ahhs from the crowd. A full-length Azurine mink, white tipped with silver, with push-up sleeves was especially well-received, as was a natural-color crystal fox, tuxedo style jacket from Lippin International.

For a more casual look, Sarah's presented several sporty ensembles. Pat Reeves wore a coordinating sweater and skirt in autumn colors of black, grey and tan from Ann Stevens. Cinda Robinson modeled a bright, but appropriate set for the career woman of a navy blazer, bright yellow sweater and plaid skirt by Jerell. Skirt and sweater coordinates look to be another fallwinter favorite, if Sarah's showing is any indication.

Narrator Glenna Lee Miller modeled a cheerful cotton - linen sweater and challis skirt in raspberry and grape designs from Behrman's. Behrman's also displayed fashions for lounging (white crepe de chin caftan with maribu trim), lunch (red wool jersey dress), career (hand knit sweater and gabardine skirt set), travel, (pink wool jersey coordinates with hip accents topped with a wool flannel jacket dyed to match), and for dinner a pure cashmere dress with hip wrap accent from Peggy Jennings.

Hi-land Fashions presented a collection of striking clothes featuring outstanding colors and strong designs. Pat Johnson wore a silk chantung dress in a shade of cherry red. Design elements included a shawl collar with extended shoulders and a slim tulip skirt. Brenda Nole's ensemble in royal blue featured a cowl neck, full-gored skirt and a unique drape at the hipline (very popular in fall winter designs). Perfect for luncheons, bridge or shopping -Rosie Myatt selected a kelly green melton topper by Geoffrey Beene. The crowd was delighted when she shed the jacket to reveal a really fun sweater, featuring a menagerie of animals, called "The Zoo." Winter white trousers completed women. Bette Hoyler wore a tissue foille, double-breasted, drop torso dress in soft, soft black. Design accents included a double pleats from the back yoke and a slim skirt with off center seam and slit. A casual pantsuit modeled by Getta Bridge featured sage green pull-on pants and short sleeve camp shirt — matching or contrasting belt can be added. For special occasions, a natural color crepe and rosepoint lace, drop-waist dress worn by Gaylene Bradley can't be beat.

Standouts in clothing presented by Michelle's Fashions included an emerald green silk dress with blouson styling by Liz Claiborne and worn by Irvine Dunn and a classic black wool suit by Lillie Ann, modeled by Betty Wilson. A dyed blue fox collar added a luxurious touch. For the executive, a jade dress by Lilly Ann with ultra suede trim goes to work as easily as it goes to dinner later.

Jewelry fashions lean towards the well - made costume look. Brightly colored stones and heavy styling are popular. Antique earrings and pins are appearing regularly. Names to look for: Joan Collins, Doris Lee, Karen Reed, Whiting-Davis, Cynthia Jean Originals, Barbara Lewis, Direction One.

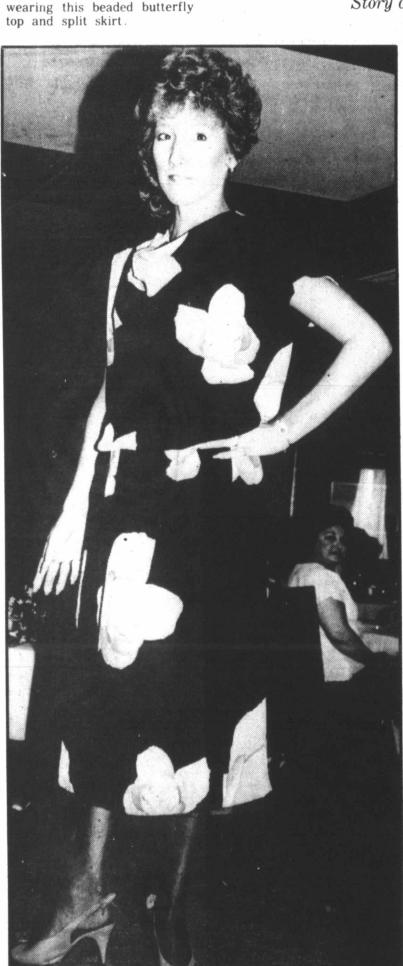

As in skirt lengths, anything goes in shoes as well. Pumps are classic; heel lengths vary from flats to three inches; heel styles can be chunky or stiletto whatever fits the style of the rest of the ensemble.

If these fashion previews are any indications, women have a lot to look forward to this fall and winter — bright, beautiful clothes to make them feel glad they are who they are.

FURS & BEADS-Maxine Freeman models a luxurious Azurine mink, perfect for the grand entrance to banquets and charity balls, but the drama only begins with the coat, underneath is a winter white beaded jacket and camisole of pure silk over silk charmeuse pants. All are from Behrman's.

COCKTAILS FROM SARAH'S-Rhonda Hill wears a variation on the basic black cocktail dress by Jerell. The simple design is spiced with giant roses. Rhonda chose rose - colored sling backs and black patterned hose as the perfect accessories.

CAREER DRESSING, flattering yet serviceable. Jeanne Derr demonstrates the versatility of this plum - colored suit by Personal II's for the full - figured woman from Bette's Boutique.

TAKING A WALK is much more fun in this sports ensemble by Merona Sport, worn by Janice Miller. The shaker-rib sweater and knee-length shorts in winter white are brightened with a "star" print shirt. On Janice's wrist is a new fashion watch by Anne Klein with a smart cork band. All are from Hi-land Fashions.

Riverside Garden honored as Britain's loveliest

MIDDLE WOODFORD, England (AP) - A peaceful expanse of flowers growing around a Japanese tea house beside the River Avon has been chosen as Britain's loveliest private garden

Heale House Garden, situated 80 miles southwest of London in the village of Middle Woodford, was named garden of the year in an award given jointly by the Historic Houses Association and the auction house Christie's. This is the first year the award has been given.

Lady Anne Rasch, who owns the garden with her husband, Thomas, can often be seen tending the garden's beds of musk roses and its shady tunnels of espaliered apple and pear trees.

In the spring, the grounds erupt with white daffodils and flowering magnolias and cherries

Thomas Rasch, a retired army major, helps with the pruning and mowing. But he spends most of his time raising livestock and grain on the 1,500 acres of rolling farmland that surround the garden and the family's 17th-century manor

The most striking feature of the eight-acre garden is the 150-year-old thatched-roof tea house, tucked away under the flowering trees.

> Dr. L.J. Zachry Optometrist 669-6839 Combs-Worley Building

In a recent interview, Lady Anne said that her husband's great-uncle, a British diplomat in Tokyo, had shipped the tea house to England around the turn of the century. The diplomat also brought back four Japanese gardeners who designed and built the garden.

Two brooks diverted from the River Avon cross beneath the tea house, and a half-dozen tiny streams flow under the weeping willows that shade the paths leading to the tea house.

brought from Japan, crosses one of the brooks, and narrow spans of wood and stone bridge the tiny streams

On a recent day, cattle grazed in meadow beside the river, goldfish swam in the garden's several ponds, and the Rasch family's two black Labrador retrievers, Meg and Becky, happily greeted visitors. Heale House Garden is located 5 miles north of Salisbury. The house is not open to the public, but the garden is.

Ivy wins Dr. Frist Award

Jimmie Ivy, R.N., received the 1985 Dr. Frist Humanitarian Award at a reception at Coronado Community Hospital recently. The award, named for one of the founders of Hospital Corporation of America, Dr. Thomas Frist, is given each year in each HCA facility to the outstanding employee.

"Mrs. Ivy exemplifies the qualities we want in our employees," said Norman Knox, CCH administrator. "As patient education and discharge management coordinator, she helps our patients learn skills to stay healthy after they leave the hospital. Her devotion to her patients and the concern and caring that she exhibits for every person she comes in contact with are the qualities Dr. Frist so strongly advocates.

Ivy's biography and letters of recommendation are to be sent to HCA's regional and national offices for consideration of her as the regional and national Dr. Frist Award winner.

She came to CCH in 1982 as head nurse of the medical floor. In 1983, she moved to the operating room where she worked as a circulating nurse. In July 1984, she was named as discharge management - patient education coordinator.

A native of Mississippi, Ivy attended Mississippi State University, completing her nursing training at St. Dominick's School of Nursing in Jackson, Miss.

Ivy is the recording secretary for the Pampa charter chapter of the American Business Women's Association, and was named their 1985 Woman of the Year: She is a board member of the Gray County chapter of the American Diabetes Association, the Gray County Mental Retardation board, and the board for the volunteer program of the Department of Human Resources

An active member of First Baptist Church in Pampa, she teaches a special class for the mentally handicapped each Finalists in the competition for the award at CCh included Darryel Ledbetter, a patient counselor, and Cathy Land, R.N., head nurse for the emergency room. Both were also recognized at the reception.

The winner is chosen by a committee representing each department of the hospital. Employees are given a two-week period to make written nominations for the award. More than 30 nominations were received on the outside and inside of each bag, using a business address if possible. Be sure to remove any old baggage tags. Bags are easier to spot if they have some kind of instant identification attached to them such as a ribbon or piece of colorful tape. Put a note inside each bag stating where you are going and the dates you will the there.

Lock your suitcases to prevent them from opening accidentally. It is a good idea to use luggage straps around your bags. Carry with you any items which are valuable or which you must have, such as medicine, jewelry, contact lens equipment, and any other small items which are indispensable or irreplaceable.

Be sure that the correct baggage-check tags are attached to your luggage at the airport. Get to the baggage claim area as soon as possible after landing. ### Responsible decisions on public issues take study

By DONNA BRAUCHI

ty all

County Extension Agent Extension staff members from across the state of Texas had the opportunity to gather in College Station last week for training and educational up-date. I attended a technical session on public policy education. It made me stop and think that this is an area that affects every family. We are faced with local, state, and national issues daily that we must form an opinion on and yet - do we really become adequately informed to make a decision?

Public issues take many forms. They can be consumer environmental, social, or economic and they can be city, county, state or federal. Often they deal with a potential regulatory or legislative problem. Issues can be private or public affairs. Private affairs may become public affairs when their consequences begin to have impact beyond that of an individual person or group. Public affairs are private affairs when they affect us as individuals and families The reason for studying public · issues is so that you can establish a position and then make your position known by voting or other public activity. As individual citizens and family members, you can then become spokespersons for the policies you believe are "right", according to your own personal value system. You can then take opportunities to speak, write, or otherwise influence others. As one state representative put it, "Legislators depend upon educated, informed individuals who can provide beneficial thinking, facts and experience by writing, calling, or visiting them in person." Remember that most elected public officials are sincere and anxious to promote good legislation.

The objective is to clearly understand issues, alternatives, and consequences so that we can make up our own mind about the outcome. The process for studying issues has several parts.

1. Identify the issues. A topic or area we are concerned about is a broad umbrella under which related subtopics, problems, or issues fit. At this general level, the area of concern is usually not controversial. Subtopics help us identify the issues specifically. Still, they are too general to move us to action. More specifically, problems touch us.

Take a given problem and to help focus on the issue, look at the problem and ask: why are things going wrong? What is the best remedy? What resources are available? What are the cost and benefits?

2. Who will be affected by the issue? The different parties involved with an issue should be identified and considered

3. Examine different perspectives.

4. Consider consequences of action. The consequence will likely have social economic and political implications. This includes assessing the costs and benefits of each alternative of various groups. Also take a long-term look at the effects and consequences of alternatives.

5. Find information about an issue. Sources are numerous and varied. Consider media sources, personal contacts, library journals, legislative reports, government agencies, special interest groups, and various citizen might change the perspective.

6. Evaluate statements about an issue. By studying statements related to the issue, you can build a knowledge of how the issue affects different persons and groups. You can also learn about aspects of the issue you never knew about. This type of study will help you to begin to form your own opinion based on the facts and your own evaluation rather than being persuaded.

Tri-State Seniors' spouses entertained with food and fun

By DEE DEE LARAMORE Lifestyles Editor

Wives of the men competing in the Tri-State Seniors Golf Tournament here last week were treated to a luncheon, awards presentation and style show at the Pampa Country Club Wednesday.

After a lunch of salads, fresh fruits and vegetables, JoAnne Young of Pampa sang a moving rendition of "You'll Never Walk

Winners of the ladies' putting contest, held Tuesday, were also announced at the luncheon. First place winners won three golf balls, second place winners - two, and third and fourth places each received one golf ball. First flight winners were Dolores

Sharp - first, Faye Paris - second, Callie Combest, third and Mary Knight, fourth. In the second flight, Mary Nelson came in first, Opal Blackburn - second, Janet Dudley third, and Sis McClendon, fourth.

Francis Reeves was the third flight winner, Si Woolet - second, Rosemary Heatley - third, and Glada Webb, fourth. Fourth flight winner was Johnnie Martin, Jane McElvy - second, Loretta Kerr third, and Vina Redford - fourth. Winner of the fifth flight was Nedra Garrett, Nelora Pounds - second, Maxine Freeman - third, and Rhonda Short - fourth.

Mildred Peet won a special award for the most putts - a total

Glenna Lee Miller, commentator for the style show, presented a few "little known" facts about the tournament, taken from a questionnaire they had filled out the year before:

The average age of the group is 55, according to the survey. As a group, they have been married a total of 4,252 years, have 279 children, 382 grandchildren and 21 great grandchildren.

"These figures may have changed a year later," Mrs. Miller added. "I remember one lady telling me last year that she had four and eight - ninths grandchildren."

As time has passed, the group has gained 549 pounds, Mrs. Miller reported. Yet, they have also lost 289 pounds, so that leaves only a gain of 260 pounds, she said, an average of about two pounds per

The group of women donate 1,802 hours of their time to volunteer work, weekly, Mrs. Miller said, with some accumulating more than 4,000 hours of volunteer work.

The women surveyed also said that ¼ of them play golf, ¼ play bridge, ½ have a hobby, ½ enjoy gardening, ½ walk and jog for exercise and ¼ of them go to

Other activities for the women conducted during the week of the tournament included a treasure hunt through local businesses, bridge games, a brunch, Friday, followed by bingo. For more about the style show presented at the luncheon, see page 17 of today's

Peeking at Pampa

With coffee perked and poured and feet propped up, let's read, drink and be comfortable as we check on people and activities around town

The upcoming 50th reunion of the PHS Class of '35 plus students of the 30s is a popular subject around town. Did you know that several teachers and 27 class members of the 1935 era still live in Pampa? The following former teachers plan to attend the event on Sept. 7: Angela (Mrs. Robert) Sanford, Lucille (Mrs. J.B.) Massa, Dorothy Teed. Nellie Norman, (Miss) Roy Riley, Ben Guill. Several former teachers who live out of town plan to attend, too. Marie Smith is chairman; Katherine Taylor secretary; Otto Rice, class president, emcee; Milo Carlson, program chairman

Dear Abby

Quilter becomes wet 5lanket after she tallies up her bill

By Abigail Van Buren

• 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine who does beautiful needlework mentioned in passing, after I complimented her on her quilting, that she would love to make a quilt for me. I was thrilled. Together we worked on an original design that turned out to be very striking. Then I bought all the materials, which came to $70.

I assumed she was offering to make it for me out of friendship. We never once discussed money. Well, yesterday she finished the quilt and brought it to me. It was beautiful. Then she handed me an envelope and said, "I didn't know what to charge you, so I asked several friends and they said $5 an hour was the going rate, but because this was a labor of love, I've given you a lesser rate."

Abby, I had already decided to give her $400 to show my appreciation, but when I opened the envelope I nearly went into cardiac arrest! The bill read:

"Handmade quilt: 324 hours at $3.50 an hour: $1,134."

Now I'm trying to scrape up the money to pay her. I love the quilt, but the joy was destroyed by the price. My husband will kill me if he finds out how much I paid for it.

What would you do, Abby?
MISUNDERSTANDING
IN MICHIGAN

DEAR MISUNDERSTAND-ING: I would tell this friend that since there was no mention of money when she offered to make the quilt, you assumed there would be no charge for making it.

I would express much regret over the misunderstanding, then return the quilt. And that should cover everything.

DEAR ABBY: I was a widow and knows for sure.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine my husband was a widower when ho does beautiful needlework menoned in passing, after I complimately marriage and are very happy.

Do you think it is right for him to carry pictures of his first wife in his wallet? I know that he loved her very much, and I wouldn't want to destroy his memories of her, but, Abby, couldn't he put those pictures in his dresser? Or would that be too much to ask? We are both in our early 70s and have been married for two years.

UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: Have you asked your husband to put those pictures in his drawer? If you have, and he continues to carry them, then obviously it is too much to ask.

If you have not asked him, the word from here is don't. You can't destroy the memories of his first wife, regardless of where her pictures are, so don't make an issue of it.

DEAR ABBY: Recently I was having a permanent wave at a first-class beauty parlor. While waiting for the solution to act, I noticed a large coffee urn with cups. Not having been offered a cup of coffee, I asked my beauty operator if I might have a cup. I was astonished when he replied, "No." He then hastily explained that drinking coffee while having a "perm" would affect the perm adversely. Other hairdressers in the shop agreed with him.

Have you ever heard of such a

Causes of bitter-tasting fruit

By JOE VanZANDT County Extension Agent

Every year, a seemingly serious problem occurs in many home gardens. Reports show that for some mysterious reason, cucumber and eggplant fruits develop an unpleasant, bitter taste. Possible reasons for bitter fruit range from old wives' tales to seemingly accurate scientific explanations. Some of the more common explanations include planting by the wrong sign of the moon, harvesting after midday, improper watering and fertilization, and high temperatures during fruit growth and development

What is the real reason? It's safe to say that the exact cause is unknown even though numerous tests have been conducted on this phenomenon. Research indicates that bitterness is genetic and can be inherited. Therefore, some varieties are more likely to be bitter than others. However, this does not explain differences within a variety of how bitterness varies from fruit to fruit on the same plant. Such differences tend to indicate bitterness is affected by other conditions. It appears that stress conditions can lead to bitter fruit. In this area, these conditions the season. Young, vigorously growing plants very seldom produce bitter fruit. Conditions early in the year are generally favorable for good growth. As the season progresses, high temperatures, moisture stress and possible low fertility conditions occur, and reports of bitter fruit increase dramatically. To help prevent bitter fruit, try to maintain favorable growing conditions during the summer months. Apply light applications of fertilizer around cucumbers and eggplants to maintain vigorous growth. Mulching to reduce water loss is a good idea. Water more often as temperatures increase during the summer.

are no doubt low moisture, high

Reports of bitter eggplants and cucumbers generally occur toward midsummer, very seldom early in temperature and low fertility.

Even though growing conditions are favorable, bitterness can still occur. When it does, peel the eggplant and cucumber fruit a little deeper as the bitterness usually is associated with the skin.

It's interesting to note that on cucumbers the stem end is always more bitter than the blossom end.

One Texas gardener with more than 50 years of experience says to peel a cucumber from the blossom end toward the stem end. If you don't, he contends, the whole fruit becomes bitter.

KEEP GRASS CLIPPINGS FOR COMPOST

Instead of throwing away grass clippings when you mow your lawn, put them to use in a compost

Compost is a good source of organic matter for gardens and flower beds. Furthermore, composting is an excellent way to dispose of garden debris leaves and similar plant material.

Make a compost pile 4 to 6 feet wide and any length, depending on material and space available.

The simplest composting method is to alternate 4- to 6-inch layers of plant matter, such as leaves or grass, with 2 to 4 inches of good garden soil. Add manure to the soil laver if it's available, and sprinkle commercial fertilizer on each layer of plant matter to hasten decomposition. Use a cupful of fertilizer with a 1-1-1 ratio per 10

Lee Roy McBride appointed to Texas K of C Council

Lee Roy McBride of Pampa has been appointed by the newly elected State Deputy Dee Simon to serve as district deputy for the Texas State Council of the Knights of Columbus at the annual state organizational meeting in Arlington recently.

Highlight of the meeting was installation of the new state officers taking place during a special Installation Mass celebrated before a congregation of 1.000.

Taking office were Dee Simon, Groves, state deputy; Bishop Rene H. Gracida, Corpus Christi, state chaplain; Monsignor Edward T. Rabroker, Waco, associate state chaplain; Floyd A. Tafelski, deputy; Judge Ricardo Garcia, treasurer; John E. Rapier, Dallas, state advocate and William J. Vita, Irving, state warden

Also installed were an all-time record 92 district deputies who will represent the state deputy in coordinating the activities of Texas' 372 councils serving 53,000 member families. They will be supported by 80 regional committee members and 37 state program directors, who were also in Arlington to help plan the year's agenda

Major business transacted at the meeting was signing of a contract with Houston sculptor Dana John

Pearland, immediate past state Steinheimer to create a life-size bronze statue of Father Michael J. San Diego, state secretary; Ray McGivney, founder of the Knights Neumann Jr., San Antonio, state of Columbus in New Haven, Conn.,

> The statue is to stand before the K of C state headquarters building in Austin to be unveiled on April 5, 1986, the day of the Knights' Texas Sesquicentennial celebration.

> Also during the three-day meeting, plans were made for the introduction of a number of new statewide programs to aid the needy, sick, handicapped, youth, unwed mothers, prison chaplains and seminarians. Means to strengthen existing charitable and community service projects of the Knights in Texas were also discussed

'Moon Man' stories of '30s reappear in collect

Wal-Mart Sells for Less • Wal-Mart Sells for

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) - The Moon Man is back.

Beloved of the poor, dreaded by the rich, the silver-plated visage of Moon Man - the Depression-era remake of Robin Hood - is returning, this time engineered by two students who say Moon Man and cohorts from the pages of pulp fiction are again the escapist literature of the day.

The newly published "The Night Nemesis: The Complete Adventures of the Moon Man" was compiled by Garyn G. Roberts and Gary Hoppenstand, students in the department of American Culture at

Bowling Green State University. They are writing theses on the cultural value of pulp fiction, but their Moon Man collection is no high-brow literary analysis. Instead, "The Night Nemesis" compiles the first 19 Moon Man stories, written by the late Fredrick C. Davis, as a celebration of the everyday literary tastes of the 1930s and, now, the 1980s as

Roberts and Hoppenstand say a revival in the popularity of pulp magazines and their lurid, crime-and-adventure tales led them to search for rare copies of "Ten Detective Aces," the pulp magazine that featured the Moon Man from June 1933 to November

The Moon Man, a.k.a. Steve Thatcher, son of a police chief and the bright-eyed young star of the police detective unit, added a globe of mottled gray glass to the black cape and mysterious demeanor of his forerunner in pulp fiction, The Shadow

With face covered by the globe's one-way glass, Moon Man slithered into the homes of the rich, took their money and handed it to Ned "Angel" Dargan, an ex-boxer with a cauliflower ear and kind heart who braved death in the electric chair to hand the illegal gain to the

"Gosh Boss ... You're the greatest," Dargan said in the pages of Ten Detective Aces - and the public agreed, buying 6,000-10,000 copies of the magazine each month to read another novelette by Davis and other pulp authors.

The characters may have been corny, but the Moon Man plots were action-packed and addictive for readers, say the most recent editors of Davis' work.

The first thousand copies of "The Night Nemesis," published this spring by Bowling Green's Purple Prose Press, sold quickly, Roberts said, and the editing duo is preparing the book for paperback sales along with a sequel of the last 20 Moon Man stories, to be published this fall.

The clue to Moon Man's lure, say Roberts and Hoppenstand, is his victory over overwhelming odds and a society in which he had no control - the type of hero custom-made to ease the worries of the Depression, at least for a few

"They offer solutions to things that really couldn't be solved.' Hoppenstand said. "They wrap it all up in a neat little package - the evil empire is defeated.'

Evil empire. It sounds familiar, thanks to the smash motion picture hit, "Star Wars," which Roberts and Hoppenstand pinpoint as the first big indication that pulp fiction has made a comeback.

Like Moon Man and other pulp plots. Star Wars pitted the good guys against the bad, reusing old themes of the underworld in a new setting of outer space, Hoppenstand said. Such movies as 'Raiders of the Lost Ark' followed, both recycling plot twists and thrills from the pulp stories of the 1930s and 1940s.

Today's authors and film writers can easily poach from yesterday's pulps. Roberts said, because the pulps typically were written as throw-aways by young authors who didn't bother to renew copyrights.

But while people rediscover the likes of the Spider and Doc Savage through reprints of their old potboilers, and may enjoy an action-packed movie scene without linking it to a plot written 50 years ago, most of today's readers have grown up with pulp literature,

ANOTHER WORLD--Ada thinks all is well with Nancy not realizing she is high on drugs. MJ is very busy with 'Dirty Harriet'

By JERRY BUCK AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Jamie Rose's portrayal of the the Magnum-toting detective in ABC's "Lady Blue" has earned her the nickname "Dirty Harriet."

Miss Rose, who has worked several times with Clint Eastwood, admits she used "Dirty Harry" as an inspiration for Katy Mahoney. After she got the role she rented all the "Dirty Harry" movies. Like Harry Callahan, Katy Mahoney packs a .357-caliber Magnum with a four-inch barrel.

'I watched the tapes and emulated the gun moves so it would look real," she says. "When I told Clint what I was doing, he gave me some gun pointers.

'The gun is very heavy, but I handled it very well. I shot at a police range in Chicago. I was a good shot immediately, even though I'd never handled a gun

The movie pilot for "Lady Blue" was telecast on ABC last April. It returns as a series in September and will run until "Dynasty II: The Colbys" comes on in October.

All seven segments of "Lady Blue" will be filmed in Chicago by David Gerber Productions, which turned out "Police Story" and 'Police Woman.''

Miss Rose appeared with Eastwood in "Tightrope" and was in a segment of "Amazing Stories" directed by him. "Amazing Stories" is a new anthology series for NBC produced by Steven Spielberg.

Miss Rose says she does not think there's too much violence in "Lady

"We live in a very violent she says. "There was world," violence by very bad guys and I dealt with them in as deadly a way as they dealt with the public. I approve of what she did. In every instance where she used deadly force it was warranted. For instance, she kills a man who has killed a family of four in cold blood.

"But the nice thing about the show is that it had other levels. I think she's been hurt by losing the men in her life. Her father and brother were policemen and killed in the line of duty. She's not eager to jump into another relationship after her boyfriend is killed. She cries. She's a well-rounded person

Miss Rose, with long, curly, fiery red hair, green eyes and freckles, was a child actress from age 6 to 13. Her father, Stewart Rose, had been a musical comedy actor until he decided he was spending too much time away from home and decided to invest in a business. The family settled in Los Angeles.

She appeared in commercials and such series as "Family Affair" and "Green Acres.

'It was something my family did," she says. "It didn't seem like anything special. My mother had also been a dancer.

Miss Rose attended several colleges, but initially she couldn't get any roles. Soon, however, she was soon supporting herself doing commercials.

She eventually landed a lead role in the movie "Just Before Dawn," which she describes as a teen-age 'Deliverance.

"I was also in a special called 'The Wave' in which I played one of the students,'' she says. ''I cried a lot so they put the camera on me more. Then I did 'Twirl.' I was the twirlette who had a miscarriage during the modeling poise section. It was a real tasteful production."

She also appeared in a number of other films and TV episodes and was a regular on "Falcon Crest."

Her role in "Jessie," a short-lived series starring Lindsay Wagner, brought her to the attention of David Gerber. Miss Rose is engaged to screenwriter and director James Orr. He and his partner, Jim Cruikshank, are now writing a screenplay for Walt Disney Productions called "Tough Guys," and a pilot for ABC. They plan to be married next

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) -Islamic artwork from the 7th to 19th centuries, including an Iranian manuscript auctioned for a record price five years ago, has been brought together for the first time, in the cause of cultural understanding.

The 367 works of art and 200 coins, many loaned from private collections, compose a mosaic of 12 centuries of development in the vast area influenced by Islam, from India to northern Africa and

It's the first exhibition devoted to Islamic art in Switzerland, and the oranizers say the hope that the "Treasures of Islam" show, which runs through Oct. 27, will promote understanding of one of hte world's largest religions.

A flap erupted several weeks before the start of the exhibit between organizers and Sotheby's auction house of London, which announced it was holding its first auction of Islamic artworks in Geneva on the same day the exhibit

The Prince Sadruddin Aga Khan, who headed the honorary organizing committee, wrote to Sotheby's that the choice of dates was "regrettable. But the head of the organizing committee, Hashem Khosrovani, was not disturbed, saying "it's a world of free enterprise

One highlight of the exhibition is a 14th-century Iranian manuscript that was purchased in 1980 at auction in London for $2.02 million - a record for a Persian work of art and for any Oriental manuscript. The owner, an international foundation, has not been identified

The 63-folio piece was originally part of a royal copy of the Jam'al-tawarikh (World History) of Rashid al-Din, who served as vizier to the Persian emperor Ulijaytu (1304-1316) and was an influential figure in Islamic manuscript and art history.

It was an ambitions historical work as well as an artistic treasure and reflected an Islamic passion for books and the written word.

The display piece contains portions of four sections of the original work

From glamourous gowns to rags for singer-actress

NEW YORK (AP) - Cleo Laine is a familiar figure in glamorous gowns, singing in front of a symphony orchestra or a combo of jazz musicians led by her husband. Johnny Dankworth

But from Aug. 2 to Sept. 1 the English singer-actress will be seen in rags, playing the owner of an opium den in Shakespeare in the Park's second free offering of the summer. Charles Dickens' "The Mystery of Edwin Drood.

Rupert Holmes has composed some new songs for the play, which producer Joseph Papp hopes to take to Broadway, as he did "The Pirates of Penzance" after its outdoor summer run. "It's not a glamorous part," Miss

Laine says. "I quite like that. It is

One year, when she was acting at the Edinburgh Festival in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" as Titania, the queen of the fairies, Frank Dunlop asked if she would play the maid in Ionesco's "The Lesson" later in the festival. "I said I'd love to," Miss Laine says. "I created my own makeup. I passed John in the corridor. He thought it was the cleaning lady.

Dickens died before completing The Mystery of Edwin Drood, and five endings have been devised for the park performances.

'At the point where Dickens stopped, died in fact, the audience votes for whether Edwin Drood was murdered or just disappeared and, if murdered, who is the murderer," Miss Laine says. "The audience will raise their hands. Anybody who doesn't want to know

MEXICO-CITY (AP) - The United States will consult with Mexico about resuming talks with leftist Nicaragua, but the Sandinistas first must stop subverting their neighbors and start talking to dissidents, U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz

Shultz said Friday that the talks, begun in June 1984 and suspended by Washington last January, were the "most visible" area of disagreement between the United States and Mexico on the subject

Most of the earlier U.S.-Nicaragua talks were held in Mexico's Pacific coast resort of Manzanillo. Mexico is one of the four Contadora countries that is seeking a peaceful solution to conflicts in Central

Shultz told a news conference that he did not think the United States and Mexico were at a stalemate over the talks, but acknowledged that "there are differences of opinion about a variety of practical issues about how to handle the situation." He did not "What is needed in Central America most of all is for Nicaragua to give up its aims for subverting the neighborhood and to undertake a process of national, (Roman Catholic) Church-mediated reconciliation," Shultz said. He said the United States could return to talks with Nicaragua if they would lead to such a dialogue, but that there was no evidence of that happening. The Contadora peace group, which also includes Venezuela, Colombia, and Panama, has appealed to the United State to resume the talks. Foreign Minister Bernardo Sepulveda, who along with other Mexican officials met with Shultz on Friday, said at a news conference later: "The cancellation of the dialogue between the United States and Nicaragua is not useful, nor does it help the Contadora peace process." "In my opinion there is a possibility of setting a date in the near future for resumption of those conversations," Sepulveda said.

Shultz said of the U.S. suspension of talks with Nicaragua: "The Nicaraguan communists refused then, as they refuse now, even to consider dialogue with the Nicaraguan democratic resistance."

He said the Sandinistas concentrated instead on bilateral agreements dealing with their own

Shultz denied that U.S. support for Nicaraguan rebels conflicted with statements that it does not seek a military solution to the problem.

"It is Nicaragua that has armed itself to the teeth. way beyond anything necessary for self-defense in Central America," he said.

He said Nicaraguans whom the United States supports are opposed to the arms buildup, to moves toward a totalitarian form of government, to restrictions on press freedom, and to attempts to undermine the Roman Catholic Church.

"There are more and more people in Nicaragua who want to fight against it (the Sandinista government). That's not something created by the United States. That's something created by the communist government of Nicaragua and it's causing a reaction to the things they're doing," he Nicaragua claims American support for the rebels is laying the groundwork for a U.S. invasion.

The U.S.-Mexico talks, part of the one-day fifth annual meeting of the Mexican-U.S. Binational Commission, also dealt with trade and investment questions related to Mexico's economic crisis.

END OF ERA—Ramiro Diaz stands in front of the Guajardo Cash Grocery & Market in Austin that he has closed for good. Diaz started working part-time in 1950 until he earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Texas. (AP Laserphoto)

Store that helped students get through school closing

Austin American-Statesman AUSTIN (AP) - The last time Eloy "Joe" Guajardo expanded his east Austin grocery, T-bone steak sold for 79 cents a pound, a dime more than a pound of coffee. That was June 1950, the summer that Guajardo offered part-time work to a young man who had arrived to attend the University of

Ramiro Diaz of Mercedes accepted the job and kept it until he had earned a bachelor's degree from UT. The part-time work became full-time when Guajardo suffered a series of heart attacks. Diaz's plans to pursue a career in educational administration were dropped by the time Guajardo

"There was no one else to help," Diaz said as he recalled how he stepped in to assist Guajardo's

Diaz, who married the Guajardos' oldest daughter, Mary, has been helping at the store ever since. Seven days a week, including a half-day on Sundays, the store at 809 Lydia St. has been open. But after 49 years at the same location, the Guajardo Cash Grocery & Market is closing.

The business of Eloy and Soledad Guajardo, who died in 1983, is being closed by their three daughters as a step toward settling the family estate. "They want to close it and settle it. It's kind of hard to think about," Diaz said. Mary Diaz said she and her sisters have no specific plans for the property. Perhaps the store will reopen under new ownership, perhaps not.

"This was my father's dream," she said of the business. "He believed in education and hired a lot of kids who were going to UT. A lot of them went through school on their part-time work here. Now they're all professionals - pharmacists, lawyers, judges, doctors.

"'Daddy used to say, 'Set your own hours, your school comes first."

Ramiro Diaz has reduced the price of everything in the small store by at least 20 percent, but has not advertised the savings because he does not want to attract a crowd of strangers.

"Our regular customers will benefit," he said. Those customers come not only from the neighborhood, but also from west and north Austin, Round Rock, and Kyle, Diaz said. They come because of "what we offer in ethnic products and the personal service."

"We still have over-the-counter service in the meat market, which really is a thing of the past," "It's the end of an era," he said. "I'm kind of sad."

Election protested

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) - A crowd of about 25,000 opposition National Action Party supporters rallied in Monterrey's main plaza on Friday night to protest alleged election fraud and called for governor-elect Jorge Trevino's resignation.

Fernando Canales Clariond, National Action's defeated gubernatorial candidate for Nuevo Leon state, called for citizens to called for citizens to continue the peaceful stuggle for clean elections by signing a letter requesting Trevino's stuggled in Section 18 of Article II requesting Trevino's resignation.

"The people are sovereign," Canales said in the rally that followed his "march for sovereignty" through the central city area.

As he spoke, citizens lined up to sign the letter addressed to Trevino

Sesquicentennial promises celebration as big as Texas

By SUZANNE GAMBOA Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) - From a rattlesnake round-up to an across-the-state wagon trail ride, the Texas 1986 Sesquicentennial Commission is organizing a celebration they hope will rival any

"Our attitude is we want it as big as Texas," said Richard Frank, organization director. "In other words there's no limit.

With 10,000 events planned thus far for the 150th anniversary of Texas' independence from Mexico. Frank said the state "has the potential of having a more exciting and more complete celebration than even the Bicentennial.

For the past five years the commission, sanctioned during the 1979 state Legislature, has been organizing events for the Sesquicentennial.

In that time, it has registered 1,700 groups that intend to host some type of event, Frank said.

'Sometimes you dread coming in on Monday because you never know who is going to call," he said. 'We are all about six inches shorter, balder and grayer.

Frank estimates $20 million will be spent on major statewde events and guesses total of about $1.5 billion to $3 billion will be spent when community-sposored events are added in. The only state funds used are operation funds by the commission and funds used to get communities started on their

The spending, Frank said, has already been offset by contributions and donations.

"The Sesquicentennial has already made more for the state of Texas than than it has cost the state of Texas," Frank said.

The commission expects 10,000 tourism events to be held next year and a total of 30,000 programs in recognition of Sesquicentennial.

Officials also hope to capture a large portion of the tourism industry next year. The state is third in the nation in tourism, annually hosting at least 27 million tourists who spend about $14

Frank said the commission wants those figures to increase to about 40 million tourists and $17

But Texas must compete with a highly publicized world's fair in Vancouver, British Columbia, a Sesquicentennial celebration in Arkansas and the unveiling of the restored Statue of Liberty.

Working in favor of the state are several highly visible projects. In Dallas, the Texas Independence Express Inc. just launched a $3 million fund-raising campaign to set in motion a 1910 steam locomotive, said Robert Finklea, a representative for the non-profit group

Carrying about 20 restored rail cars, the locomotive will make two round trips totaling 5,000 miles and stop in almost 7,100 towns, Finklea

"People that have a love of steam engines and railways will really enjoy this," he said.

Retired and active railroaders will commandeer the antique locomotive that also will carry historical exhibits, performances and passengers.

"Right now we have thousands of people who want tickets on the train." Finklea said.

The restored engine has served as incentive for many towns to restore old depots that operated in the late 1800s and early 1900s, including a mission-style depot in Sugar Land, Texas.

A six-month wagon train trail ride has received equal interest, said Jan France, Texas Wagon Train Association executive director.

The convoy of wagon trains will circle around Texas stopping at various towns and camping in primitive conditions.

Wagon train enthusiasts and hobbyists from Texas and other states will be participating in the ride. The wagon train also will be open to the public to take a one day ride or to spend as much as a month with the association.

If land travel isn't enough, Frank said the commission is planning a 20,000 all-ship sail in the Gulf as well as a balloon lift featuring hot air balloons bearing the Sesquicentennial symbol.

Commissioners also are organizing a 1,836 mile state bicycle rally and a 183.6 mile wheelchair race.

Numerous stage performances are planned ranging from plays by community theater groups to a reunion performance by former stars of "Texas!"

On the money-raising end, Frank said the commission is aggressively arranging sponsorships for the many events.

Just in time for the Christmas wholesale buying season, the commission's marketing division has opened a showroom at the World Trade Center in Dallas. From promotional bumper

Buyers are ordering the merchandise now to have on stock for customers at Christmas, said Dorrie Kelly, a commission

Souvenirs of Texas' big birthday bash are for sale

By SUZANNE GAMBOA

Associated Press Writer DALLAS (AP) - On the eighth floor of the World Trade Center, between toys and towels, glass showcases are filled and walls are decorated with official souvenirs of the Texas Sesquicentennial.

In one corner is a long dusty brown overcoat that looks like it could be a trenchcoat. But the heavy cotton wrap is a "duster," the official coat of the Texas Sesquicentennial.

According to its maker, the Broken Spear Cattle Company based in Colorado, the cowboys of the Old West converted a fisherman's overcoat to one that would accommodate their dusty MARSHALL, Texas (AP) -Former Gov. Bill Clements said he is "95 percent" certain that he will run for governor again next year, The Dallas Morning News reported last week.

Clements discussed his political plans Thursday in an interview during a campaign swing through Northeast Texas for former Texas

Unlike the dusters of the old West, this one bears the Sesquicentennial logo and it should sell for about $120. But it still has the authentic split back that can be buttoned around the legs for horseback riding and the shortened collar to allow cowboy hats to be worn with it. Makers of Sequicentennial curios have left no stone unturned and no ground unshoveled. For those who want a home-grown product there is a six-ounce plastic barrel of genuine Texas crude oil. The barrel contains actual Texas oil that Marilyn Lart, owner of Barrels Plus, the company that makes the novelty, said she gets from the oil fields.

The oil comes with an official oilman's handbook which "teaches you to walk, talk and dress like a Texas oilman," Hart said

At the bottom of the price scale is a 50-cent aluminum coin bearing the Sesquicentennial logo while at the other end is a $10,000 bronze sculpture of a mockingbird in a pecan tree surrounded by bluebonnets. No celebration is complete without an official mascot, and the commission is offering a gray armadillo wearing a white hat, white boots and a wide grin that makes him look a little like a Dallas Cowboy cheerleader.

Dorrie Kelley, who works with the commission's marketing division, estimated a total of $11 million to $12 million would be gained from sales of the items.

All money from sales of commemorative products will be used by the state to set up events for the Sesquicentennial, and money from promotional products such as bumper stickers and T-shirts will be used as fundraisers for Texas communities, she said.
